Thousands of aliens file for amnesty

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Thousands of undocumented aliens armed with lawn chairs, ice chests and toys queued outside the nation's busiest immigration office Monday to apply for amnesty just two days before the unprecedented program's deadline. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials hired police officers to control crowds and traffic, and brought in portable toilets to ease the wait.

"This is an incredible amount of activity," regional INS commissioner Mario Ortiz said. "The pace is really phenomenal, particularly in Dallas and Houston."

By midmorning Monday, a line containing several hundred people circled the shopping center that houses the Houston office and stretched into an alley.

Many of the 2,000 applicants processed by noon had camped out since Sunday evening to be at the head of the line, said Richard S. Rios, director of the center.

"I really didn't know what to do," Zeerak Khan, 20, of Pakistan, said as she waited in the line. "That's why I waited until the last minute."

One woman stood holding her baby in one arm and clutching amnesty documents in the other that were longer than the infant. Others camped out with lawn chairs and ice chests and brought toys for their children.

Officials planned to deal with the last-minute rush by keeping offices in the 13-state Southern region open from Tuesday morning straight through to the midnight Wednesday deadline, Ortiz said. They also were waiving interviews with applicants until after the deadline.

The 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act allows aliens who can prove continuous residency in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982, to apply for legal status by midnight Wednesday. The filing fee is $185 for adults and $50 for children, with a family limit of $420.

People turning in applications Monday received a receipt, temporary work authorization number and an interview date, in many cases not until November.

The INS' latest figures show that as of Saturday, more than 1.3 million aliens had applied for amnesty at 107 INS offices nationwide, Ortiz said. The total is near the agency's planning estimate, he added.

In Houston, Marcelino Crespo Vargas said he finally got the documentation to prove he's been living and working in nearby Dayton for 16

Israeli units enter Lebanon, hunt for Palestinian guerrillas

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli troops supported by helicopter gunships and tanks thrust into southeastern Lebanon Monday in search of Palestinian guerrillas, police reported.

Israel said its troops had moved into Israel's self-declared security zone in southern Lebanon. "The army is combing the security zone because of increasing attempts to infiltrate into Israel for purposes of murder and hostage-taking," an Israeli military spokesman said.

It did not say how long the operation would last or how many troops were involved. The communique was issued by the military in the northern Israeli town of Metula.

Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said 500 to 1,500 Israeli soldiers were dispatched to the border region before the operation began.

Lebanese police said reports from the Arakoub region in the foothills of Mount Hermon indicated at least three suspected guerrillas had been seized by the Israelis in the late evening operation.

The area is in the western sector of the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley. He declined comment on a report by NBC News that said about 2,000 Israeli troops had crossed into Lebanon in search of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas and their strongholds.

Last week, Palestinian guerrillas entered northern Israel from southeastern Lebanon in two different incursions. Five guerrillas and two soldiers were killed in fights with Israeli army patrols.

There have been 12 infiltrations or attempted infiltrations since Nov. 25, when a Palestinian guerrilla landed a hang-glider near a military base and killed six soldiers before being shot to death.

Israeli officials said recent cross-border raids probably were linked to the five months of anti-Israeli demonstrations in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

There have been reports of an Israeli military buildup in areas of guerrilla incursions last week. The Israeli military censor on Monday prevented journalists in Israel from reporting details about the buildup.

United 747 lands safely on 1 engine

The Associated Press

TOKYO — A United Airlines jumbo jet with 258 people aboard landed safely on one engine Monday after two of the engines stopped over the Pacific and the third quit just before the landing, an airline official said.

Kyodo News Service, quoting airport and airline officials, did not identify, said the pilot shut off the engines after noticing problems with fuel gauges. It was not known if that meant the plane was running out of fuel.

United spokesman Katsuro Ise said emergency vehicles stood by at the New Tokyo International Airport in Narita, 40 miles northeast of Tokyo, but the Boeing 747 taxied to the terminal under its own power.

Nons of the 239 passengers and 19 crew members on the Los Angeles-Tokyo flight was injured, he said.

JAL Flight 97 was 39,000 feet above the Pacific and about 125 miles from Narita when the first engine stopped, Kyodo reported.

Ise said that half an hour later, 45 minutes before landing, the second engine stopped and the pilot radioed the Narita control tower for an "expedited approach." The third engine stopped shortly before the plane landed at 3:17 p.m. Officials were investigating.

Idaho students hold their own in standard school testing

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho grade school and high school students effectively held their own at or above national norms on this year's round of standardized tests of increases or decreases, compared to previous years' scores, is not significant," state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said. "Any changes fall within the normal range of variation."

For the third straight year, the state's eighth-grade students took the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, recording an adjusted composite score in the 53rd percentile nationally, down from 56 last year. That means 47 percent of other students scored higher.

Achievement and Proficiency for the fourth straight year, compiling an adjusted composite score in the 68th percentile, down from 69 last year but higher than the first two years.

State Education Department officials said the 1988 test scores had to be adjusted because the tests were given much earlier than normal this year, in February. That meant the results had to be compared against mid-year national averages instead of spring averages, making comparisons with past year's scores difficult. They said the Idaho scores had to be adjusted to reflect the fact that Idaho students had six weeks more class work than the national mid-year average would reflect.

The unadjusted composite for the eighth-graders was in the 70th percentile and for the high school juniors in the 75th percentile. Sixth-grade students also took the Iowa Test of Basic Skills for the first time, recording a complete composite score in the 69th percentile.

The Education Department also released results from its annual Direct Writing Assessment, which ranks the writing abilities of eighth-graders and high school juniors on a scale of zero to five.

Among the more than 14,000 eighth-grade students taking that test, 79 percent received grades of three, reflecting basic proficiency or above. That compared to just over 85 percent a year ago. The percentage scoring average or above in the three years before 1987 never exceeded 78.

Another 823 high school seniors, apparently facing the prospect of failing to graduate under the state's new "C" average requirement, also took the writing assessment. A number of grades below the required "C" in core courses to graduate anyway if they score a three or better on the writing assessment. Education Department officials said the results for those students were not available.

On the individual components of the standardized achievement tests, the Idaho eighth-graders had unadjusted scores in the 67th percentile in vocabulary, 68 in reading, 70 in language skills, 69 in work study skills, 75 in mathematics skills, 78 in social studies and 81 in science.

The high school seniors scored in the 80th percentile in reading comprehension, 67 in mathematics, 77 in written expression, 81 in use of information sources, 77 in social studies and 84 in science.

The first-year results for the sixth graders were 66 in vocabulary, 72 in reading, 62 in language skills, 68 in work study skills, 75 in mathematics, 78 in social studies and 84 in science.

Jet check finds signs of metal fatigue

KAHULUI, Hawaii (AP) — Federal investigators have found evidence of cracks apparently caused by metal fatigue on the remaining fuselage of an Aloha Airlines jet that lost about a third of its roof in midflight.

However, they say the investigation is continuing and it is too early to determine a definite cause of the accident last Thursday when a flight attendant died and 61 of 89 passengers were injured.

Evidence of fatigue cracking was found at six rivet holes on a metal strip running the length of the Boeing 737, said Joseph Nall of the National Transportation Safety Board.

All of the plane's rivets, as well as those of Aloha's other 737s, were being tested electronically in an effort to find any other cracks, Nall said on a Sunday night news conference.

However, in an interview on the NBC "Today" show Monday, Nall said it was not known yet whether the cracks occurred before or after 20 feet of the upper fuselage was blown away at 24,000 feet.

The part of the remaining fuselage where the cracks were found was being taken to Washington for a "very careful analysis to see just what relationship it may have had," he said. Investigators are always concerned about fatigue and cracking in older aircraft, and the Aloha plane involved in the accident was an older one, Nall said.

An inspection of the aircraft showed that repairs made to two cracks found last November appeared to have held.

The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered the oldest versions of the Boeing 737, those with more than 55,000 landings, not to fly above 23,000 feet.

The cargo door on the lower right side of the plane remained closed until the pilot made an emergency landing on Maui 13 minutes after the incident, Nall said. This added rigidity to the fuselage and helped hold the aircraft together until it landed, he said.

Seven people remained hospitalized Monday, all reported in stable condition with fractures, burns and lacerations.

Clarebelle "C.B." Lansing, one of three flight attendants aboard the plane, is believed to have been blown out of the plane.

A renewed search Sunday of waters south and southwest of Maui failed to turn up any trace of her or of the missing section of fuselage.

Strike

electrician in the shipyard, led the Gdansk strikers in that tumultuous summer eight years ago and was awarded the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize.

Jack Kuron, an adviser to Solidarity, said Monday that police had arrested at least nine regional representatives who serve on the 13-member Solidarity executive commission. He said two commission members, including Walesa, were free and the whereabouts of two others was not known.

Workers want pay raises of 50-60 percent to balance prices, which have risen 42 percent this year because of reductions in subsidies by the Communist government.

On Sunday, Walesa had called for protest actions by workers in support of strikers at the Nowa Huta steel mill in the south, Poland's largest industrial plant. He addressed workers shortly after the beginning of Monday's strike at the Lenin shipyard, which has a payroll of 12,000.

About 3,000 employees were involved by late Monday — the entire evening shift of 2,000 workers and about 1,000 who remained after the day shift — said Kuron in Warsaw.

Polish strikers occupy the places they work rather than leaving them. A spokesman at the government press office in Warsaw confirmed a strike at the shipyard, but government spokesman Jerzy Urbaniak telephoned The Associated Press on Monday evening and said there was no strike.

Storm brings snow, rain, high winds to plains

By The Associated Press

A storm dumped more than a foot of snow in parts of the Rockies, closing schools and highways Monday, and its powerful wind blew up dust storms that cut down young crops and contributed to two traffic deaths.

"Dust was blowing so it covered everything like fine oil. You couldn't see in front of your face," said Colorado State Patrol Trooper James E. Price.

The storm also contributed to weekend wind in Southern California that left one boater dead and another missing and believed drowned.

The weather system rolled onto the Plains on Monday, spreading locally heavy rain and thunderstorms ahead, and it also kicked out a funnel cloud over southeastern Colorado that dissipated without causing damage.

Interstate 80, in Wyoming was closed Monday morning, from Laramie west to Walscot Junction, but was reopened about five hours later. But police later closed U.S. 287 south of Laramie because of poor conditions and a series of minor accidents that clogged the highway.

Wind gusting to 40 mph created blizzard conditions around Cheyenne, parts of which had no power during the morning. The wind combined with temperatures in the 20s across most of Wyoming to drive the wind-chill factor to 2 degrees below zero, the weather service said.

The Colorado State Patrol closed a 70-mile section of Interstate 70 from just east of Aurora to Limon in both directions Monday morning because of numerous accidents, heavy snow and poor visibility.

That section of I-70 was closed for more than two hours Sunday because of zero visibility when 50 mph wind caused a dust storm. Two major pile-ups on the highway killed two people and injured 17, officials said.

A 17-mile stretch of I-70 from Goodland, Kan., to Colorado also was closed Monday afternoon at the request of the Kansas State Patrol, which said stranded motorists had filled every hotel along that portion of the highway.

Eastern Colorado with gusts Monday of up to 83 mph at La Junta and 64 mph at Grand County Springs.

The storm left up to 14 inches of snow in the mountains and foothills of south-central Montana, with up to a foot of snow in the mountains of northern Colorado. Snow also fell in western South Dakota, with 4 inches on the ground in the Black Hills.

Rain also fell over most of western Kansas and wind gusted above 30 mph at Dodge City and Russell.

Today's weather

A chance of showers again today

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Cloudy today with a slight chance of showers. Southerly winds from 5 to 15 mph. Highs in the mid 60s. Showers to night and Wednesday.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Mostly cloudy today with southerly winds from 5 to 15 mph. Highs in the 50s. Scattered rain tonight and Wednesday with the snow level near 5,000 feet. Lows from 30 to 35. Highs in the 40s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Partly cloudy today. Warmer. Considerable cloudiness tonight and Wednesday with increasing showers. High today in upper 50s and 60s. Lows tonight from 35 to 45. High Wednesday from 60 to 75.

Nevada: Partly cloudy through Wednesday. Lows mostly in the mid 20s and 30s. Highs in the 50s and 60s.

Summary: The National Weather Service in Boise says cool, showery spring weather will persist over Idaho this week.

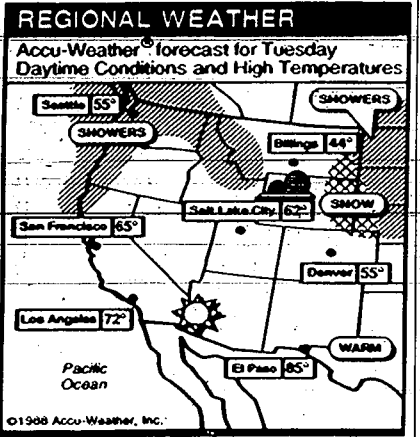

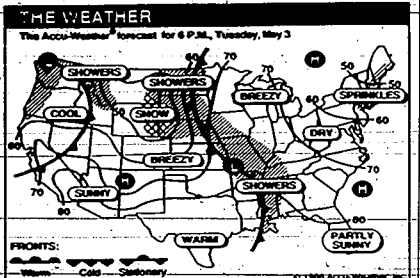

Another cool Gulf of Alaska air mass is expected to settle over the Pacific Northwest today and show little movement into the weekend. This will circulate bands of showers into Idaho and keep temperatures cool. Light winds will prevail over the next few days.

High, thin overcast clouds covered much of the state Monday. Winds were light but afternoon temperatures ran about 10 degrees below normal for this date.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 62 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 15 degrees.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho, Thursday through Saturday, scattered showers through the period. Snow showers for the high terrain. Continued cool. High in the upper 40s and 50s. Lows in the 30s in the west and the upper 20s and 30s in the east.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 94 degrees at Laredo, Texas. The lowest was 10 degrees at Jackson, Wyo., and Yellowstone, Wyo.

Crash kills Idaho woman

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Montana authorities have identified an Idaho Falls woman who died in a one-vehicle accident at the intersection of Interstates 16 and 90 about five miles west of Butte.

Authorities on Monday said the victim was Ruth Ebersole, 65, who died on Sunday.

Reported in fair condition Monday at St. James Community Hospital in Butte were Eleanor Stevenson, Ammon, and Jeanne James, Idaho Falls.

Highway Patrolman Larry Zeiler said they were in a car traveling north shortly after 10 p.m. The driver apparently lost control while entering a turn posted for 25 mph, he said. The car left the road, rolled twice and came to rest on its wheels.

Zeiler said he is unsure who was driving.

Missing man's body found

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A body believed to be that of an Idaho Falls man missing for about three weeks has been found in a mountainous area of Butte County.

Butte County Sheriff Darrel Richards said there was no identification on the body found Sunday in Antelope Valley about 33 miles northwest of Arco.

Sgt. Paul Wilde of the Bonneville County Sheriff's Office said the body is believed to be that of Cary Bretz, 20.

An autopsy was scheduled Monday to determine cause of death and to establish identity, Wilde said.

He said Bretz was reported missing by his mother on April 7, who said her son left home the previous day for shooting and failed to return.

Bretz's vehicle was seen parked along a Butte County road Friday afternoon by a deputy sheriff, said Wilde. When the deputy checked the license number later, he learned the owner was missing and contacted the Bonneville County Sheriff's Office, he said.

Boiseans fill panel seats

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus has named three Boise men to the Hazardous Waste Facility Siting License Review Panel.

Hydrogeologist E. Gerry Crosthwaite, engineer Steve Narkiewicz and Boise State University Environmental Health Department Dean Eldon Edmondson will represent the public on the 10-member panel.

The panel is charged with reviewing applications for state licenses to operate hazardous waste disposal facilities.

Also on Monday, the governor named Soda Springs Mayor Kirk Hansen to the District VI Magistrates Commission. Hansen's term will run through mid-1993.

Andrus seeks federal funds

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus is seeking the help of Idaho's congressional delegation to win release of $1 million in federal money earmarked for two water projects critical to the Panhandle.

Andrus told the members of the delegation in a letter sent Monday he was "very disturbed" by the Reagan administration's Office of Management and Budget ignoring congressional intent by withholding $700,000 for blocking contamination of the Spokane-Rathdrum Prairie Aquifer and $300,000 for the Clark Fork River-Lake Pend Oreille degradation study.

"Although I fully recognize the need for fiscal restraint in the federal budget, I feel that these two projects are absolutely critical for the protection of the environment in north Idaho at this time," the governor said.

Since the federal money was allocated, Andrus said the state had devoted considerable resources to developing cooperative work plans with Washington and Montana on the two projects.

Court denies laborer's bid

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has rejected the request of a Mexican laborer to withdraw his guilty plea to drug trafficking.

But a majority of the court has ordered the sentences of Gorgonio Carrasco cut by a third, in part because of inducements offered by undercover narcotics agents.

"The sentences imposed here are longer than reasonably necessary to deter similar conduct in the future, to exact retribution or to protect society," Judge Donald Burnett said in the ruling endorsed by Judge Roger Swanstrom.

"Indeed, the sentences exceed the stiffest penalty our court has ever reviewed in a drug case — even for a repeat offender," Burnett wrote in ordering Carrasco's two concurrent 30-year indeterminate prison terms reduced to 20 years each.

3-year education budget gets reaction

MOSCOW (AP) — The new president of the Idaho Board of Education wants the Idaho Legislature to dole out education budgets for a three-year period instead of the current year-to-year funding.

And while some educators applauded the idea from Charles "Tiny" Grant of Rexburg, House Speaker Tom Boyd, R-Geneseo, says such a plan is "out of the question" because funding decisions would last longer than the two-year term of legislators.

Grant was named president of the Board of Education last month. He is assistant to the president and director of development at Ricks College at Rexburg.

Grant said multi-year budgets would allow public schools and higher education to plan ahead and avoid budget headaches when state funding differs from year to year.

"We kind of get caught in what I call a tide factor," said Grant, who has been a member of the board since 1985. "One year we receive funding to cover the basic needs and maybe start some improvements or new programs and then the next year the funding recedes and we can't continue those efforts."

Grant said educators deserve more consistency.

"I'd like to somehow work with the board, the governor, the legislative people and all those concerned to see if there isn't a way to analyze the needs of education on a three-year basis and get common consent," he said.

But Boyd said the Legislature, whose members are subject to election every two years, couldn't cope with triennial budgets.

"Three years is out of the question," said Boyd. "It's not practical because you're getting into the next Legislature."

Boyd unsuccessfully pushed for biennial legislative sessions, and said funding education on a two-year basis "would work like a dream. The problem when you go annually, what you do one year is forgotten the next year."

Leaders foresee some cuts in vocational-ed

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — As the debate over state support for public and higher education continues, Idaho's vocational-education leaders are warning that their programs will be cut back again, possibly threatening the state's bid for economic expansion.

"We're not expanding or improving services in general," said William Ulery, administrator of the Division of Vocational Education. "We're cutting back and adjusting as best we can."

Idaho's six vocational schools were allocated $21.8 million from lawmakers this winter, a 3.9 percent increase in support for a year during which inflation is projected to run 4.5 percent.

By contrast, community colleges and higher education received a 4.3 percent support increase, underscoring claims that vocational education has often taken a back seat to other education interests when it comes to money.

Ulery declines to claim his system has been treated unfairly, acknowledging that lawmakers held the line on spending increases for nearly all state operations last winter.

Letters/SIS, air transportation, and seat belt law bring comments

Opposes totalitarianism

In response to Steve Symms' latest unimpeachable statement that people opposed to the SIS are people who would rather be "killed than dead," I offer the following. It is my testimony from the SIS public hearings and I hope it will help to clarify just who it is that supports Communism.

According to Webster's Dictionary, environment means all the conditions, circumstances and influences surrounding and affecting the development of an organism.

I am a human organism. That is to say that I am a mental, physical and spiritual being. I assume that my government acknowledges those three aspects of my being.

We are entitled to religious freedom in this country and it is upheld by the government and those green pieces of paper we all are issued say "In God We Trust" on them. Also I recall that on some ancient document it says that "we are endowed by our creator." Therefore I assume the government believes us to be spiritual beings; or at least the founding fathers did. We have an education system for the supposed development of our mental capacities and it is obvious that we are indeed physical.

Nowhere in the Draft Environmental Impact Statement do I find mention of the psychological effects of the arms race or the effects of participating in the making of bombs that indiscriminately kill men, women, children, plants and animals, all of life.

I suggest Dr. Margaret Brennan-Gibson of Harvard Medical School who has been doing a study on these psychological factors as a consultant on the Final Environmental Impact Statement.

Our illustrious Governor Cecil Andrus, evidently does not feel that we are spiritual beings for he had told us that he will not let moral or religious considerations get in the way of economic development. I can only assume that you, the DOE, agree as I find no mention of the morality of this project as it relates to those of us involved. It is a Godless mentality that seeks only material gain.

I also noticed that you are not liable for the accuracy of your document. Who I ask, is responsible? If there is an accident who do we turn to? Who will give us back our water and air? Who will give us back our lives? You do not address that in your comment.

Finally and most frightening of all because it does not involve a hypothetical accident, is your perpetuation of a totalitarian controlled economy. I am speaking of the U.S. military industrial complex, the second largest controlled economy in the world. It is second only to the USSR's economy.

People cannot vote their consciences or their psyches. They can vote only their pay checks if they are employed by the federal government on such a massive scale. A democracy cannot function within the confines of a controlled economy.

I, as an American citizen, strongly object to your destruction of our free enterprise system. That is free as in freedom. This and all your projects of doom are designed to destroy our freedoms by controlling the distribution of wealth in this country. I do not care to live under Communist or capitalist totalitarianism.

The very thing we are supposedly fighting, a Godless government controlled society, is what you are perpetuating. It is treason.

Progressive isn't all bad

I know that no one, including myself, likes to hear "I told you so." However, I cannot pass up this particular opportunity to remind the past opponents of the proposed new regional airport that their lack of foresight and shortsightedness in looking at the infinitely hurting the economy of Magic Valley.

The announcement that Universal Frozen Foods was moving 11 of their key personnel to Boise because of the lack of adequate air transportation out of Twin Falls makes about the third or fourth such occasion in the past 18 months. We are losing or failing to gain vital components to help the economy of Magic Valley because of inadequate air transportation. Those that worked against the new regional airport concept should be extremely pleased with their conservation, personal interests and lack of confidence in attempting a change. A new regional airport with the support of the entire valley must not have been the answer to the present dilemma but at least it would have been an attempt at trying to improve the future of Magic Valley.

It might even have provided a decent airport for modern aircraft which we could utilize, rather than having to drive to Boise or Salt Lake City.

I said then and will repeat that the residents of the city of Twin Falls would have paid less total, certainly no more, in taxes for a new regional airport than they pay for Joslin Field, which is very little more than a small industrial airport. That is what it should be.

Just wait until the Sun Valley area no longer wants to contribute to the upkeep of Joslin Field?

Oh well, just like the sign on North Blue Lakes said recently, "Will the last person out of town, turn out the lights?" Does it really hurt to be progressive?

Trade bill is a good bill

So, the corporate puppet in the White House is at it again! Threatening to veto legislation that favors working people, even in as small a way as giving them 30 days notice of impending layoffs and job termination. Instead of getting at the root of the problem (illegal and uneeded imports) that have forced businesses to close.

This phony, knot headed, stubborn, spoiled and over praised presidential disaster does it again, threatens a veto. Thank the Lord this substitute for sanity is about to exit the political scene.

A big question remains -- how in heaven's name does a good man like P.F. Kennedy get murdered and this misery-making homo sapien continue to live and lie and lie? Your editorial in Thursday's (April 28) The Times-News, stinks to high heaven. Are you so hard up for news that you have to print the opinions of the decrepit Los Angeles Times?

The trade bill is not filled with wrong signals as stated in that Republican rag. The bill is a good bill and should be passed just the way it was originally written.

When will you understand that the crummy imports have us on the ropes and will kill us if we do not shut them down? It's time we stopped the stupid policy of trying to buy our friends and other countries' friendship. Wise up and quote more Democratic philosophy.

Supports Callen for seat

It has been my pleasure to serve with Rep. Jerry Callen in the Idaho House of Representatives for the last four sessions. I have served on the Commerce, Industry and Tourism Committee with Jerry and, as vice chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, I have observed Jerry's voting record on tax issues. Like most truly good men, Jerry Callen's philosophy is simple and straightforward. He believes that Idaho state government should live within its means just as every Idaho family must. You pay your bills and you don't buy what you can't pay for. It's the simple fact of life that every family must live with but too few legislators remember when they go to Boise.

During the last four sessions of the legislature, I've also observed Jerry's opponent in the May 24 primary. Seldom do voters have such a clear choice.

A vote for Jerry Callen is a vote for cautious tax and spending policy that balances the true needs of our great state with the interests of the taxpayers and our business climate.

A vote for Jerry Callen's opponent is a vote for the same kind of runaway spending that our federal government has practiced, mortgaging our grandchildren's future because of their lack of restraint.

I urge you to vote for a good man to represent District 25. Reelect Jerry Callen on May 24.

Speak out now on SIS

I have been studying the pros and cons of the recently proposed SIS facility at INEL. I have never been one to get directly involved in politics, but never have I felt so compelled to do so.

After attending one night of hearings and listening to the majority in attendance speak out against the project, I felt confident that this issue, one that has so many potential disasterous ramifications, would be unpopular, down-played and eventually vetoed by our elected officials who have our best interests at heart.

After all, the hearings were sponsored by the Department of Energy for the sole purpose of hearing the input and views from the people of Idaho. The same people who will be footing the billion dollars to pay for it, and the same people (and their future generations) who will be put in a potentially dangerous position environmentally if it is built.

I heard doctors, nuclear engineers, business men and women, farmers, housewives, mothers, fathers and students all speak out against this outrageous proposition. How is it that our senators and congressmen are elected by us to represent us, but don't heed the input that we give them?

I am against the building of the SIS plant in Idaho or anywhere else. We have no real need for more processed plutonium. The supply is abundant and has a shelf life of 24,000 years plus. We cannot afford it, nor can we properly dispose of the now existing wastes. I would rather see a billion dollars spent more optimistically in Idaho. It could affect more than just 400 short-term jobs if it were used for education and promoting new industry and tourism. We do have a state to be proud of. It is one of the few left with clean air, unspoiled beauty, and wide open spaces. Let's not take it for granted.

Please, speak out. It will be the most important thing that you do. Don't wait for someone else to do it for you. Call and write your elected officials. Don't allow them to sell Idaho short.

Enjoys asparagus search

In pursuit of the wily asparagus. Many are those who brave the danger of local ditch banks and borrow pits in search of this delectable treat. It can be canned, frozen, pickled, creamed, steamed, stir fried or eaten raw. If you do go looking, let me give you some pointers:

Wear good sturdy shoes and long pants as protection, because asparagus is sneaky, it hides in dry weeds, tall grass, broken glass, beer cans, wine and whiskey bottles, soft drink cartons, pieces of barbed wire, electric fences and an occasional water snake. And beware of ant hills. Once I did a wild dance when I ran afoul of one, and the farmer dropped his shovel; his cows raced to the other side of the field. And where does all this rubbish come from? Well, I ask you!

But from all that, the thrill of the hunt, birds singing, beautiful fields, and thoughts of the culinary rewards make it worth while and maybe some day we can convince people to stop listening.

About seat belts -- we never think of them till we're out and going 50 mph. And trying to fasten them then is a real hazard.

Another law wouldn't work

I have been giving further careful consideration to the enforcement of the Mandatory Seat Belt Law.

Some doubt has been raised in my mind that my proposed Mandatory Cordon Law wouldn't work very well either, since it is so unenforceable to sleep three in a bed. Besides, how many people would wear a policeman tagging along on every trip or date, which would be necessary for another law to be 100 percent effective and fully enforced?

Near miss at intersection

I have been in Twin Falls for one year now, and I can't believe you have neglected the bad intersection at Washington North and Falls Ave. I just missed getting hit last Sunday. I slow down going north and south on Washington and it is a good thing I did that day, or I would have been hit on the left side -- right where I was sitting.

The man heading east did stop and I watched him, and sure enough, he drove right in front of me -- we were so close I can't believe I didn't get hit. -- I honked my horn and pointed to the blinking light and he turned around as if to say "What did I do wrong?" I stopped, you didn't!

You wrote in November 1987, you were going to start in the spring on the intersection -- so, let's get this dangerous corner started before we have more accidents. Summer time brings more strangers in and they are not use to the corner, so give this intersection "No. 1" priority.

A disgusting picture

of activities in Eden

I was completely disgusted by the picture you ran on the front page of your April 23, 1988, issue, of two migrant workers lolling in the street in front of the most ramshackle building in Eden. That picture was an affront to anyone who lives or has lived in Eden.

I was born and raised in Eden, and though I've been gone several years, Eden has a lot more going for it than what you've depicted. Why didn't your news hungry photographer look for the positive aspects of small town living such as children playing unafraid and people knowing each other on a first name basis?

Why didn't you take a picture of some of the hard-working people who live in Eden, ply their trade, and catch some of the unique Americana of the area? Oh no, you had to make two disreputable looking people lolling on the sidewalk on Main Street a front page sideshow and an embarrassment to the people of Eden.

To friends and colleagues whom I showed the picture here in Northern Idaho, it only seemed to confirm their erroneous beliefs that Southern Idaho is a dismal, disgusting place to live. Obviously your "newspaper" has very little of note to report if this is the best you can do. Perhaps if so little happens in the Magic Valley, then The Times-News could do the residents a big favor and close down for lack of interest.

I am proud to have lived in Eden and I'm proud of the people there. They deserve more than your brand of tripe as their news source.

Idaho's seat belt law

should be rescinded

If enough voices be heard, we can have a positive utterance on a mandatory seat belt law. No one has to lecture me on the advantages and safety of seat belts. I am a veteran Navy fighter pilot on a carrier in World War II, and seat belts saved my life.

I have a wonderful wife who is claustrophobic and cannot be tied down. Seat belts should be available to occupants of a vehicle, but not mandatory. It's an idiotic law.

How impractical for a delivery man who gets out of his truck countless times in a day to have to buckle and unbuckle. Let's hear more from the public -- flood your legislators with letters and let's get this law off the books.

Bush likely prefers his own problems

Despite real differences on issues, presidential candidates George Bush and Michael S. Dukakis have a lot in common.

The presumptive nominees were born within five miles of one another in Massachusetts. Both are dull campaigners who try to compensate by projecting an image of competence and relevant experience. The latest polls show them in a virtual dead heat.

And, in a country where presidential elections are normally won in the middle of the road, both are under pressure to make potentially disastrous concessions to party elements that are outside the American mainstream.

Dukakis has some things going for him. The experience of the last 30 years suggests, however, that his problems are less manageable than Bush's.

On the plus side for Dukakis, a recent poll showed that one-fifth of voters who went for Ronald Reagan in 1984 expect to vote Democratic this time.

There is, however, another set of political arithmetic.

Assuming Dukakis gets the nomination, the Democrats will have chosen a Northern liberal for the fourth time in the last six elections. The previous three -- Walter Mondale, George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey -- all lost. To win, Dukakis must do very well in the South, where Bush is strong, and among white blue-collar workers who so far have not been especially turned on by his message.

Ernest Conine

This means that Dukakis, the liberal activist, must move toward the center. But to do that will risk serious erosion of support among blacks, the Democrats' most faithful constituency.

Jesse Jackson has no chance of winning the Democratic nomination. But he has won too many votes in the primaries to be ignored. Jackson probably can be counted upon to work for a Dukakis victory in November -- for a price.

Signals from the Jackson camp indicate that he will try to use his leverage to nudge Dukakis into campaigning on the Jackson agenda, which includes items of broad appeal but on balance is well left of center.

In short, Jackson will try to move Dukakis even further to the left -- the opposite of where he, as a liberal, needs to go.

If Dukakis accommodates Jackson, he will lose votes among Southerners and other conservative Democrats. If he doesn't, a lot of black voters may stay home on election day.

Bush has his own problems with the Republican right wing, which fumes that he is taking them for granted. He would not like to see them out on the campaign. But his strong following among rank-and-file Reagan loyalists puts him in a good position to resist their extremist demands.

Bush also has the edge in the battle of the resumes. If you can believe some polls, the voters want the next president to be a competent leader who knows his way around Washington. Bush has served in Congress and as ambassador to the United Nations, GOP national chairman, envoy to China, director of the Central Intelligence Agency and vice president.

Dukakis is a governor and former state legislator. Period. He has never worked in Washington and has exhibited a dubious grasp of foreign affairs.

The governor has scored some success in claiming competence on the basis of his state's economic gains. Bush's stridentists are confident, however, that they can deflate the "Massachusetts miracle" -- the state's actually lost factory jobs during Dukakis' tenure -- and exploit his weakness on defense issues. Bush's most intractable problem springs from the nature of the vice presidency -- an notoriously dubious launching pad for a presidential bid. (No sitting vice president has been elected to the top job since 1836.)

A vice president finds it difficult to establish his identity as a strong leader with ideas of his own. He cannot appropriately disavow unpopular policies of the president he hopes to succeed, and he is inhibited from making positive proposals in conflict with the policies of the outgoing administration.

Bush, for example, could be mightily damaged by the "sleaze factor" if Attorney General Edwin Meese remains in office much longer. But he cannot publicly demand Meese's removal.

Even if Bush advised against the attempt to trade arms for hostages in Iran -- and there is no evidence that he did -- he cannot say so without violating the confidentiality of his relationship with Reagan.

It is hard to believe that Bush really thinks the anti-plant closing provisions of the trade bill would destroy U.S. competitiveness. But he has supported that Reagan absurdity, leaving Dukakis free to pose as the champion of workers and communities threatened by corporate callousness.

For Bush, there is no easy way out of the dilemma. It's a safe bet, though, that he wouldn't trade his problems for those faced by Dukakis.

Ernest Conine writes a column for The Los Angeles Times.

Supreme Court makes bargain-hunting more difficult

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in an antitrust ruling that could make bargain-hunting more difficult, said Monday that manufacturers do not always act illegally when they agree with retailers to stop supplying discount stores.

By a 6-2 vote, the court said such action by a manufacturer becomes illegal only when "it includes some agreement on price or price levels." The ruling makes it easier for manufacturers to avoid antitrust liability when acting on requests from competing retailers, they stop doing business with stores that cut prices.

"At the margin, this can make life easier for discounters," said Diane P. Wood, an antitrust professor at the University of Chicago Law School.

Noting that bills pending in Congress would outlaw such tactics by manufacturers, she said, "The legislation reflects a fear that discounters could go out of business or find it harder to get merchandise without such protection."

In other action Monday, the court

Ordered further hearings to determine whether a New Jersey man accused of helping Nazis kill more than 2,000 Jews in Lithuania should be stripped of his U.S. citizenship.

But that a procedural miscue by federal lawyers must result in dismissing the government's contempt-of-court prosecution against a Rhode Island newspaper that published FBI information about a Mafia boss.

Agreed to consider a case from Washington state that makes it easier for the federal government to turn over U.S. tax information to a foreign government.

Refused to let Connecticut police subject all people who attend Ku Klux Klan rallies to pat-down searches for weapons. The justices let stand rulings that such searches violated individuals' privacy rights.

The court's antitrust decision is a victory for Sharp Electronics Corp. and setback for a former Houston retailer of Sharp calculators.

Business Electronics Corp., owned and operated by Kelson Ehrensberger, was the exclusive retailer of Sharp calculators in Houston from 1968 to 1972. During that period, Sharp became dissatisfied with BECA's performance. Sharp contended it was unhappy with BECA's failure to meet sales quotas.

But a federal jury found that Sharp's policy of selling calculators at prices lower than those suggested by Sharp in 1972 appointed

Hartwell's Office World as a second retailer of his calculators in Houston, and in 1973 terminated BECA's dealership. Hartwell had told Sharp it would quit distributing its products unless Sharp ended its relationship with BECA. BECA then sued Sharp, and a federal jury awarded BECA $600,000 in damages. Under federal antitrust law, that amount was tripled to $1.8 million. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, however, threw out the jury verdict.

Carlucci abandons gulf plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci has decided against having U.S. Coast Guard ships help the Navy patrol the Persian Gulf "at this time," the Pentagon said Monday.

The announcement came amid strong congressional opposition to the idea on grounds the Coast Guard is needed at home to fight drug smuggling and confirmed a disclosure hours earlier by Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Warner, ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee and a former Navy secretary, said he spoke with Carlucci last week and urged that the proposal be dropped.

"He (Carlucci) said it was his current thinking that the guard is not going," Warner said in a telephone interview from Norfolk, Va.

The secretary of defense reached his decision on his own initiative, but he did listen carefully to those of us in Congress, including myself, and the leadership, who suggested that this would not be the right time to take Coast Guard vessels from the United States.

He said Carlucci "is now of a mind to pull back from that proposal because these vessels are needed to interdict the drug trade. I don't believe the idea is going ahead."

Late Monday, the Pentagon issued a statement agreeing the idea of deploying Coast Guard vessels was no longer under consideration "at this time."

The statement said: "After a thorough assessment during the past week, it has been decided that the current strength and force mix of our task force in the gulf is sufficient to protect U.S. interests in the region and to defend against threats to the rights of U.S.-flagged ships, as well as neutral ships in distress requesting assistance in international waters of the gulf."

The idea of sending Coast Guard boats had been raised by Pentagon officials in the past two weeks as part of a review of U.S. policy in the gulf. That review came in the wake of the April 18 clash between the Navy and Iran, when Navy ships and planes sank or damaged six Iranian ships.

Administration officials announced Friday that U.S. policy in the war-torn waterway was changing from the previous 10-month-old plan of only having the Navy protect 11 Kuwaiti-owned tankers which have been carrying the U.S. flag.

Navy warships will now have authority to respond to calls for aid from any neutral merchant ships which come under attack, assuming the American vessels is close enough to help.

Officially, the United States is neutral in the Iran-Iraq war, but Kuwait has aided Iraq and critics of the U.S. policy say the Reagan administration is tilting too far toward Iraq.

Warner praised the policy change. "I believe this new policy may discourage Iranian attacks on neutral shipping because it will inject an element of uncertainty as to their attacks on neutral shipping," he explained.

"Iran only has two frigates left, along with a number of smaller vessels," Warner said. "They may be discouraged."

Methodists bar homosexual ordination

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The United Methodist governing conference today voted strongly to retain its rules forbidding ordination of "self-avowed, practicing homosexuals."

After an hour-long, tense debate, delegates voted 676-293 to maintain the restriction, assailed by some as unfair and even unenforceable.

Attorney John Stumbo of Topeka, Kan., a delegate, said the resolution was a "legal nightmare in terms of provability" since self-identification violates the concept of due process.

Another lawyer-delegate, Scott Williams of Muncie, Pa., argued, however, that the rule was essential and that "many people would leave the church if it is not retained."

The action came shortly after the delegates also had voted overwhelmingly not to substitute a more liberal section about the ordained ministry.

Several other questions related to homosexuality still were before the conference, including a section of the church discipline calling "the practice of homosexuality ... incompatible with Christian teaching."

United Methodists have struggled for 18 years with the status of homosexuals in the nation's second-largest Protestant denomination. Delegates called the issue the most important before their quadrennial governing conference.

An advance poll indicated three-fourths of the 538 delegates oppose any easing of present restrictions.

But powerful national agencies of the denomination have urged modifications in disciplines condemning homosexual practice and barring active homosexuals from the clergy.

The issue reached a decisive stage on the seventh day of the 11-day conference, which previously has been occupied in committee sessions, with floor action now beginning.

The 9.6-million-member denomination, larger than any Protestant body in the country except for Southern Baptists, first established standards against active homosexuality in 1972, following several years of debate.

Controversy about the issue has gone on ever since, including at the last three general conferences.

The sides are too polarized to find any common ground," said the Rev. Elliott Wright of New York City.

At issue were 3 sections in the Book of Discipline, including a section on social principles terming homosexual persons of "sacred worth," entitled to church participation, care, and other human and civil rights.

A WORD ABOUT OUR SALE

A word of explanation about our decision to end so abruptly after our 78 year history... After having decided that we wanted to retire, we considered selling our store. However, the Sterling name has always been synonymous with quality, value, and service. Rather than taking the chance that newspapers would not continue to adhere to the same high standards and principles that we have always demanded of ourselves, and that you have come to rely upon when dealing with Sterling Jewelry Co., we reached the very difficult decision to close.

Sincerely Charles & Edward

TROPHIES AND AWARDS

Richard "Dick" Maclamer who is a part of our extended family at Sterling Jewelry Co. will take over our trophy and award department that he has been in charge of since 1951. Dick will move his new venture, to be called "Dick's Trophies", to another location in the Rogerson Mall, 149 Main Ave. East, where he will continue to service your trophy and award needs as well as repairs of jewelry and watches.

In French provinces, there's no difference

FOIX, France (AP) - The political jousting, coded language and sophisticated election arguments of Paris fade long before they reach this French provincial capital.

To the residents of Foix, President Francois Mitterrand and challenger Jacques Chirac are just about the same.

"Do you know what 'bof' means?" asks 80-year-old Roger Boy, a retired draftsman, as he sipped his morning coffee on the main square of this lovely town nestled in the foothills of the Pyrenees.

"Bof" is a French expression that amounts to a verbal shrug. And that's exactly how Boy and many other inhabitants of Foix view Sunday's election runoff between the Socialist president and the conservative premier.

"Whether it's one or the other, things will continue just the same," said Boy. "It's 'le bof' in general."

Foix, a town of about 10,000 residents, is from Paris to the capital of the Ariège department, one of the least populated districts of the country. It is dominated by the 11th century chateau of the Counts of Foix perched on a massive rock overlooking the town.

The area has a long Socialist tradition, and because of this Mitterrand is favored, but with more resignation than enthusiasm.

On April 24, in the first round of voting, the Ariège gave Mitterrand 44 percent of its vote, seven points above the president's national score, and 18 percent to Chirac, two points under his overall showing.

Mitterrand no doubt will win again here Sunday, but it will be a victory more than a carefully reasoned choice.

Jacques Doumein, who for the past 25 years has been the local correspondent for the Toulouse newspaper 50 miles away, put it best when he said the things people here really care about are television reception and a proposed tunnel to Spain.

"Mitterrand doesn't have a program for after May 8," said Gerard Fren, a local homebuilder. "Really, there is no fundamental difference between the two. And they both need the Le Pen vote."

Jean Marie Le Pen, leader of the extreme right National Front, won 14.4 percent in the first round, stunning many political observers. Le Pen campaigned hard on a platform of ridding France of its immigrants and cracking down on law and order.

In the Ariège, despite its leftist tradition, Le Pen won 10.3 percent. It's hard to find somebody who will own up to voting for the extreme right and many Foxians as local residents are called, were looking suspiciously at their neighbors last week.

Bernard Roueh lounged on a bench in Foix's packed criminal court, wearing the traditional black habit. A crowd waited for the jury to return its verdict in a sensational local murder case. "The Ariège is a place where we live well," he said. "There is no pollution, no racism. There is unemployment, yes ... but we live well. I don't know about Le Pen. It's a rejection phenomenon."

Despite the lack of enthusiasm for Mitterrand, polls after the first round show him winning the runoff by scores ranging from 68-

47 percent to 57-43 percent. Mitterrand "still" represents a popular image that no other political group can match," said defense attorney Yves Suez, just before the jury convicted his client and sentenced her to 12 years in prison for bludgeoning her husband to death.

Police hunt IRA men after attacks

LONDON - Military and civilian police throughout Europe were said Monday to be on the lookout for Irish Republican Army members responsible for the deaths of three British servicemen killed Sunday morning in the Netherlands.

At the scenes of two separate attacks which the men died in the first an assault with an automatic weapon that killed one British airman in the town of Roermond, the second a car bomb 30 minutes later in the town of Nieuw Bergen that killed two airmen - Dutch police were combing surrounding streets for possible clues to the identity of the killers.

Police forensics specialists were examining the two vehicles of the servicemen. Other officers searched power drains and combed nearby bushes with pitchforks in a search for spent cartridges and bomb fragments and conducted a door-to-door inquiry of nearby residents.

But police spokesmen said they still were not sure how many assassins were involved in the incidents. The possibility was raised that one IRA member could have been responsible for both attacks, first setting the car bomb, then driving the short distance to Roermond.

Officials acknowledged the possibility that the assassins quickly slipped across nearby borders into West Germany or Belgium or vanished into Amsterdam.

Japan wants train speed record back

TOKYO - The Japanese want to regain the speed record for scheduled train travel by increasing the top speed of their Shinkansen "bullet" trains to 185 miles an hour, according to plans published by the East Japan Railway Co. Monday.

Trains traversing the northern Japanese route from Tokyo to Morioka are to travel at 170 miles an hour next year and will speed along at 185 miles an hour a year later.

Traffic on the bullet-train route between Tokyo and Osaka, on which trains operate every few minutes, will remain at 136 mph. Increasing the speed would result in almost unbearable noise for the millions of people who live along the tracks between the two cities.

An experimental West German train set a new world speed record Sunday, reaching 257 mph in an hour on a stretch of railroad built especially for high-speed trains near Wuerzburg in Bavaria. The Japanese earlier had lost their speed record to the French TGV (Train Grande Vitesse) with a top speed of 239 mph in 1981.

Canal business thriving

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) - The Panama Canal is thriving despite anti-government unrest and U.S. pressure to oust strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, a canal official says.

"Business is almost embarrassingly high," said Richard A. Woinio, chief of economic research and market development for the bilateral Panama Canal Commission, which runs the waterway linking the Atlantic and Pacific.

During the first five months of fiscal year 1988, toll revenues came to $143.6 million, exceeding estimated revenues by $4.6 million, Woinio said in a recent interview.

The commission, made up of five American and five Panamanian government representatives, was set up under a 1977 treaty that will turn the canal over to Panama in 1999.

"Woinio said neither Panama nor the United States wants to jeopardize canal operations.

But there is an impasse over canal revenues because the United States refuses to recognize Noriega's rule and is trying to force him out as chief of Panama's Defense Forces.

The United States has been withholding payments of about $18 million in canal revenues from the Noriega government ever since the general, under indictment in U.S. federal courts on drug-trafficking charges, fired President Eric Arturo Delvalle on Feb. 26.

In a thinly veiled cue, Noriega had the National Legislature, which he dominates, oust Delvalle one day after the president tried to fire the general. The United States still recognizes Delvalle as the legitimate president.

Woinio said that canal expenses during the rest of 1988 are expected to wipe out any revenue surplus.

The treaty specifies that any surplus revenue, up to $10 million annually during the life of the treaty, be turned over to the Panamanian government.

The United States paid Panama nearly $79 million for use of the canal in fiscal 1982.

Hospital collapse kills many Indian children

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - A new wing of a children's hospital collapsed Monday in Kashmir, and at least 14 people died in a crush of bricks and concrete. Dozens of children, their mothers growing fainter, were trapped.

"There are fewer and fewer signs of life," one official said. Rescuers were pumping oxygen and drinking water through the debris to sustain any survivors.

The three-story building disintegrated shortly after sunrise in Jammu, winter capital of the northern state of Kashmir.

The wing, completed in 1986, had been lined with cracks. An older wing remained standing.

More than 18 hours after the building came tumbling down, Indian army rescue teams were trying to remove the debris by hand and with cranes, but hopes were fading. Some rescuers pulled severed limbs from the wreckage.

"I heard children moaning in the morning, but in late evening there was nothing, a kind of terrible silence amid the noise of rescue work," said Kashmir Times reporter Arun Joshi. "They may be dying."

By evening, 14 bodies and 29 survivors had been found. Some news reports placed the death toll as high as 30.

But the worst is yet to come: At least 60 children and their parents or attendants are trapped on the first floor, Joshi said in a telephone call to New Delhi. "It is a terrible sight up here."

Joshi said a total of at least 76 children and their parents or attendants were caught in the hospital.

A police spokesman in Jammu, 340 miles north of New Delhi, said the collapse was caused by a weak foundation in the new wing of the hospital.

"The entire new wing has come down. Much of it has just gone inside the earth," spokesman Satish Gupta said.

West Bank continues to seethe

JERUSALEM (AP) - A 16-year-old Arab was electrocuted while climbing on a power pole with a Palestinian flag, and the government Monday closed an Arab weekly that it called a tool for terrorists.

NBC News said Israeli troops, mounting a major offensive into Lebanon, pushed more than five miles into the Bekaa Valley in pursuit of Palestinian guerrillas. Beirut radio stations carried no reports of any such troop movement.

The jailed editor of a pro-Arab Israeli newspaper asked the Supreme Court to overturn a government order that stops her from meeting her lawyer.

LT. Col. Ranun Gissin, a military spokesman, said the army had opened a new detention center in Jerusalem for Palestinians under age 16.

Israeli military law in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip permits arrest and imprisonment of children aged 12-16. Gissin said the youngest detainees in the new center were 13.

"We've concentrated the youngsters in one prison... so they won't be incited by older inmates," Gissin said. The daily Hadashot said several dozen youths were in the facility.

In the Israeli-occupied West Bank, 16-year-old Nidal Abdulhuk of Beit Wazan, two miles west of Nablus, died Sunday night in Al-Itihad Hospital, the army said.

Hospital officials quoted family members as saying he was electrocuted when following orders from soldiers to remove a Palestinian flag from the pole, but the army said Abdulhuk apparently was trying to hang the red, green, black and white banner, Israel has outlawed the Palestinian flag.

His death brought to at least 177 the number of Palestinians killed since rebellion began Dec. 8 among the 1.5 million Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel has occupied since the 1967 Middle East war. An Israeli soldier and Jewish settler also have been slain.

An Interior Ministry order shut down Al Awdat, a weekly based in Arad, east Jerusalem, and published in English and Arabic.

City Council considers rotating its contract towing business

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two towing companies say it's time the city takes another look at an exclusive contract granted to a third towing company eight years ago.

Following an extended hearing among several city council members Monday, the Twin Falls City Council took under consideration their request to rotate towing business.

The city since 1980 has delivered, under contract, the towing of its traffic casualties to Twin Falls Body & Paint. That company, owned and operated by Jim Thorpe, won the contract following the taking of bids eight years ago.

According to city officials, the contract has not since been put back up for bid.

"Why is one towing company given all the non-preference towing in Twin Falls?" Carter Killinger, owner and operator of Highway 30 Garage, asked in a series of rhetorical questions. "How can it even be called non-preference if the city of Twin Falls chooses them to do all the towing?"

"How can this inequitable situation of favoring one company and not using other qualified towing companies be corrected?"

Killinger asked the council to put its "towing business" on a rotation schedule in which towing calls would be alternated among a set group of towing companies. But during discussion of the issue — which lasted almost an hour — Thorpe argued that if the system isn't broken, it shouldn't be fixed.

"The contract is a proven system," Thorpe said. "It's worked for the past eight years without any problems to speak of."

Thorpe said he would favor putting the matter back up for competitive bid. He was seconded on that count by Tim Qualls, chief of the Twin Falls Department of Public Safety.

Qualls said his department experienced a variety of problems, including price gouging and poor wrecker response time, when the city previously worked on a wrecker-rotation schedule. "I can speak for the department as a whole, and they would prefer one company," Qualls said.

He added that he would prefer the towing company be as close to Twin Falls as possible. Highway 30 Garage is located roughly two miles west of the city.

"I don't feel you're going to get justice with a towing company outside of the city limits," Thorpe said.

Al Lewis, owner of Magic Valley

Towing & Repair, said it was his right as a Twin Falls taxpayer to be given the opportunity to participate in a rotation schedule. Roy Raymond, owner of Roy Raymond Ford-BMW, which does body work but not towing, said he would similarly favor rotation. He echoed Killinger's argument that it would afford the city a greater pool of available tow trucks when need is heavy.

Killinger said that three companies — his, Lewis' and Thorpe's — would

Drug case may come full circle

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor J. Scott James came full circle in a 14-month-old drug case Monday, only to run into the same road block he's tried to get around two times.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge Thomas Cushman ordered James to disclose the identity of a police confidential informant before a preliminary hearing Monday, and dismissed the charges after James refused.

James said he planned to appeal Cushman's ruling to district court.

Cushman thus added another chapter to the legal saga of 34-year-old Jiwana Diaz, who has been charged twice and indicted twice on evidence seized in a Feb. 19, 1987, search.

The Gooding judge kicked the round of indictments and charges into gear when he bounced charges against Diaz out of court last March.

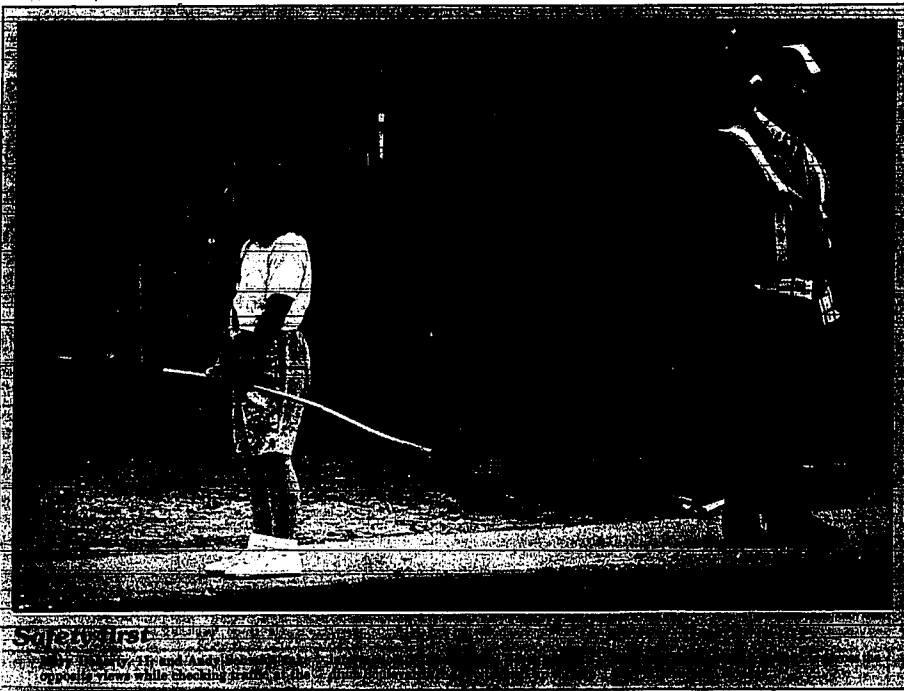

None of the charges has passed muster in Twin Falls courts.

Twin Falls Public Defender Michael J. Wood said prosecutors hold a grudge against Diaz.

"This is a purely vindictive prosecution as a result of Jiwana Diaz asserting her rights," Wood said.

"We're not being vindictive, we're trying to prove whatever case we can," James said.

School candidates finish filing

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There were no surprise last minute filings for the Twin Falls School District position up for election May 17.

But across the valley, last minute candidates added their names to school trustee ballots Friday. In about half the races across the valley this year, voters will have a choice of at least two candidates.

This year residents must be registered to vote in their county before they can cast ballots. Lists of registered voters are available in county courthouses and in many school district offices.

Voters must also live in the zone with a trustee up for election. Local school district offices can provide information on zone boundaries.

Candidates filing for Magic Valley school board elections follow:

- Twin Falls School District — Two candidates have filed for the Zone 1 seat that Gary Fay will vacate. They are Lorris Wilkes and Lenore L-McNeer.
- Filer District — Tom Chandler is not running for re-election in Zone 2. Dale Coon has filed for his seat.
- Kimberly District — Kent Taylor has filed for re-election in Zone 2. James Campbell's seat in Zone 3 is also up for election, but Campbell

Business people work to inaugurate Joe Cilek scholarship

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local business people are working to raise $25,000 over the next two weeks to honor civic leader Joe Cilek with a business scholarship fund.

The money will be invested and the interest will be used to fund business scholarships for local high school and college students.

The memorial scholarship was the brainchild of Mike McBride, marketing director for Falls Brand Independent Meat Co., and a close friend of Cilek, who died Feb. 26.

"He's one of those guys you just don't replace," McBride said. "I thought Joe deserved more than just to have his name on a drinking fountain."

He suggested the idea to some other business and civic leaders who agreed it was an excellent and lasting way to honor Cilek.

Cilek moved to Twin Falls from Iowa in the 1960s and bought Kregel's True Value Hardware stores here and in Jerome.

He was big on business, and big on people. He was instrumental in creating the downtown mall in 1970. He helped start the Downtown Business Improvement District. He was president of the Chamber of Commerce, and was responsible for large gains in local corporate contributions to the "United Way" after he got involved there.

He was working on a deal to purchase the J.C. Penney building downtown with some other business owners when he died suddenly.

"Joe was always getting people together," said McBride. "His real love after his business was to find ways to make it better to do business in Twin Falls."

The interest earned on the $25,000 principal will be used for two scholarships.

A "Joe Cilek Scholar" will be chosen each year from among Twin Falls High School juniors to represent Twin Falls at the annual Idaho Business Week seminar held in Boise each spring for outstanding juniors. If enough interest income is accumulated, a second student may be selected.

Since Joe also had a hardware store in Jerome, the high school scholarship probably would expand there next, McBride said.

The goal is to give each student $250.

The scholarship will be administered by a Twin Falls High School counselor.

A second scholarship will be given annually at the college level. A "Joe Cilek Business Scholar" will receive a minimum of $500 a year toward an education at the College of Southern Idaho.

The student will also serve an internship during the sophomore year with the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and the board of the Downtown Business Improvement District, by serving as a non-voting member of their boards of directors.

The college grant will be awarded by the CSI Scholarship Committee upon recommendation from the Business Department faculty. It will be given to a freshman for two years.

This fund is more Magic Valley oriented, McBride said. The recipient does not have to be from Twin Falls.

"We're interested in building the entire Magic Valley, and Joe was too," he said.

Recipients for both scholarships must meet specific criteria: maintain a B average, demonstrate interest in a business career, want to live and work in the Magic Valley, and be interested in community involvement.

Both grants will be financially administered by the Twin Falls Bank & Trust.

A committee of three will serve to update grant rules as necessary and increase the award sizes when available. The scholarship committee for the first three years will be Jean Cilek, John Roabolt and Mike McBride.

The group putting the scholarship fund together will be approaching a very organization in town for contributions.

Anyone interested in making a tax deductible contribution to the fund may write a check to the Joe Cilek Scholarship Fund in care of Twin Falls Bank & Trust. The fundraising drive began Sunday and will end May 16.

Proposed changes in city election process prompt critics, supporters

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A proposed city election ordinance would allow voters to target council members they don't like, said Twin Falls City Councilman Jim Vickers, a supporter of the change.

He said seat elections would also allow voters to support more than one candidate, who they liked instead of narrowing their choice to one.

The ordinance would change the election of city officials from the at-large system, where top-vote-getters in a pool of candidates win, to an election by seat, in which candidates would run for one of seven individual seats.

The council approved the second reading Monday night. The council will vote on the ordinance May 15.

Joe Gulick, a democratic candidate for the State Legislature, said the city should go on one further and set up voting districts in which each seat would represent a specific area of the city.

Gulick said that would encourage more accountability from the council members and give people in the South Park area better representation.

He said because of poor representation in South Park, a low-income area, the area seldom gets city improvement and is decaying because of it.

However, short of district seat elections, Gulick said the general seat elections would be better than the present system.

Vickers said in cases when a council member consistently votes contrary to a person's wishes, his vote in a seat election would be more effective where the field of opponents is narrowed.

He said in the past, councilmen have advised their constituents to vote for only them because a vote for anyone else under the at-large system would be a vote against them.

Vickers said that prevented voters from supporting two or more candidates they liked. However, the proposed law would enable voters to support and write candidate running in each seat.

He said the present system is a popularity contest in which the person who has the most impressive advertising campaign usually wins. He said that discourages candidates from concentrating on important issues.

Vickers said when a candidate is vying for a particular seat, he is more apt to call the challenger's viewpoints into question. Instead of battling a mass, a candidate would be facing one or two people, whom he could confront specifically.

On the other hand, in an at-large election, it wouldn't be practical to challenge one person's platform when he has eight other foes, he said.

Councilman Tom Condie said the new form of elections would stimulate debate.

He also said a candidate would more likely be able to enlist endorsements from other council members not seeking election. The councilman would not be placed in a situation where support of one party member would appear to be in opposition to another.

Condie said that could encourage more direct campaign battles, in which an incumbent's record would more likely be called into question.

Vickers said Twin Falls is the last major city in Idaho that hasn't yet adopted seat elections since the Idaho Legislature passed a bill in 1984 making the system possible.

"All the other cities in Idaho can't be all wrong," he said.

Wandalee Anderson to run

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Wandalee Anderson is running for the state Legislature with ideas to increase tourism, instead of raising income taxes, to fund education.

In announcing her candidacy she quoted Andrew Jackson's view on limited government: "It is well known that there have always been those amongst us who wish to enlarge the powers of the general government and to overlay the boundaries marked out for it by the Constitution."

Anderson, 55, is running against Don Siplon and Lee Barnes in the Republican primary May 24. They seek to replace Rep. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, who is vacating the seat representing Twin Falls County.

Siplon is a technical writer living in Twin Falls and Barnes is a Twin Falls dentist who lives in Buhl.

The primary winner will face Democrat Virginia Ash, of Buhl, in the general election.

Anderson noted that the $68.8

do it in other ways than raising taxes. After all, teachers pay taxes too.

Anderson, who said she is not related to Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, advocated tourism as one method for increasing taxes by broadening the tax base. She said luring just 5 percent of the cars off Interstate 84 to use Shoshone Falls, or other might not bring millions more into state coffers.

"I get very discouraged when people are driving along the highway and they don't know Magic Valley is here," Anderson said. "I feel they should know."

She suggested signs near Bliss or in Utah could help notify travelers about sights along their way.

Anderson is a Minidoka native who graduated Rupert High School in 1952. She now lives in Kimberly with husband, Dwayne, and she is a member of the Order of the Daughters of the East, the National Association of Parliamentarians and International Training in Communication.

She has worked on U.S. Sen. Steve Symms' campaigns, both the Congress and Senate.

Gooding tax group to meet weekly

GOODING — A group concerned with rising taxes and the operation of city and county government has been formed in Gooding.

The group meets weekly at the home of Benjie Benjamin residence on South Main Street, a half block south of the State Highway 46/26 intersection of the Gooding city.

Meetings begin at 7 p.m. on Thursdays, and Benjamin says all persons interested in local issues are welcome to attend and offer comment.

"We want to be a help, not a hindrance to local government," he says. "The purpose of the organization is to try to help both the city and the county become more efficient so taxes will not continue to increase. Benjamin says.

Twin Falls police, using a tip from an undercover informant, raided Diaz's house at 277 Alexander St. Cushman said they didn't follow proper procedures.

If the police sent an undercover officer into Diaz's house to investigate the informant's tip, the informant's identity could stay secret, Cushman said.

"But you should circumvent the procedure," Cushman told James.

The search warrant was granted on the informant's tip alone. The informant therefore is Diaz' accuser under the Sixth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and Diaz has a right to confront her accuser in court, Cushman said.

Diaz' most recent charge, the ones Cushman dismissed Monday, is possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver, but several other charges from the same raid were kicked out of Twin Falls courts in the past year.

Diaz was charged with the possession of cocaine one day after the 1987 raid. Cushman dismissed those charges at a March 1987 preliminary hearing for the same reason he dismissed charges Monday.

James didn't object to Cushman's ruling then.

"I agreed up," James said Monday after the March preliminary hearing.

"It was my first preliminary hearing and I don't know how long I have to live with that."

Cushman noted that Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter attended parts of the March 1987 hearing, and said James' inexperience here had nothing to do with his ruling.

Diaz was subsequently indicted by a grand jury for possession of more than three ounces of marijuana in June 1987. Those charges were thrown out because of illegal jury selection.

She was then indicted by another grand jury for possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver in October 1987, one day after prosecutors lost a case charging another woman with possession of the same bag of marijuana.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt heaved those charges out of court, saying prosecutors were trying to make an end run around Cushman's unfavorable ruling, which they didn't object to.

All charges stem from the February 1987 raid, although the actual charges varied.

"We're clearly dealing with the same offense," Cushman said.

After both dismissals, Cushman told James he had to refile charges and schedule a preliminary hearing before him to avoid playing "musical judges."

probably want to be put on a rotation list should the city adopt that system. Both the Idaho State Police and the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office use a wrecker-rotation schedule.

At least one council member, Jim Viers, cautiously voiced his approval of the requested change.

"I think I might be in favor of setting the guidelines and putting it back on a rotation basis in (consideration of) the taxpayer," he said.

The council ultimately decided to discuss the issue at greater length before taking any action.

A large number of issues were bandied about during the exchange.

"Killinger, the local representative of Idaho Towing and Recovery Professionals Inc., told the council he had been informed by the organization's top state official that the present contractual arrangement is illegal. Qualls countered with the fact that he had been informed to the contrary by the city's top legal official.

Shane Bangochea, the city's former attorney, outlined in a Sept. 14 memorandum his opinion that the present arrangement violates no statutory or regulatory requirements.

Thorpe also challenged Killinger's statement, again issued based on information received from officials with Idaho Towing and Recovery Professionals, that Twin Falls is the only Idaho city to contract its towing business. Thorpe said Ketchum and Halley have also called for bids for their business.

Judge suspends sentence

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls fish dealer received a suspended sentence on drug charges Monday.

Roger Dennis Bolton, who operates a fish market in Twin Falls, earlier pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and cocaine after a his attorney, Harry DeHaan, reached a plea bargain with Twin Falls County prosecutors.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt sentenced Bolton to between three and five years on the two drug counts, but suspended the prison term and put Bolton on five years probation. Hurlbutt left a $1,000 fine intact.

Hurlbutt also gave Bolton a warning to obey the terms of the probation, which includes counseling and urinalysis.

"If you deviate from this one inch, you're going to the penitentiary," Hurlbutt said.

DeHaan argued during the hearing that the pre-sentence investigation prepared by local probation officers grossly overstated the value of drugs seized in the case.

Testimony during the hearing showed that Bolton had already enrolled in drug counseling programs.

Man tries to qualify

TWIN FALLS — Jackpot resident Seward Benjamin King has 120 days to prove he can qualify for probation on a drug possession charge.

King unsuccessfully challenged the search warrant used to find methamphetamines in his 1973 Lincoln Mark IV last September, and Monday he was sentenced to between four and 10 years in prison.

However, 5th District Judge Daniel Huributt retained jurisdiction in the case and sent King to a state Department of Corrections program for 120 days.

The program includes psychiatric and rehabilitative programs. If the department says King is ready for probation, Huributt may suspend King's prison term and sentence him to probation.

King was one of 17 people indicted by a September grand jury.

He testified during the sentencing hearing and said he was employed at Cactus Pete's in Jackpot.

There was no provision for extending it.

Boisean faces charge

TWIN FALLS — A Boise man was arrested Monday and charged with aggravated battery for allegedly swinging open the door of a moving car and knocking a Twin Falls boy from his bicycle, according to court records.

Richard Matthews, 30, was arraigned Monday and bail was set at $4,000.

Travis McBride, 14, of Twin Falls, was knocked from his bicycle Feb. 14 while in the 700-block of Fillmore Street. According to court records, Matthews allegedly injured McBride when he opened the passenger door of a 1967 Jeep Wagoneer and knocked him to the ground.

McBride injured an arm and a leg, court records showed.

Christian Kalas, of Twin Falls, was driving the Jeep and previously pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an injury accident. He was ordered on March 14 to participate in an in-patient program at Canyon View Hospital, after which sentencing was to be scheduled.

Kalas and his wife, Theresa, originally told police that the man who swung the car door open was an unknown hitchhiker who they had picked up, according to court records. Police subsequently learned that Matthews, who allegedly committed the battery, is Theresa Kalas' brother.

Fire victims suffer

TWIN FALLS — Jaime Herrera, one of the three persons injured in a Castletford flash fire Sunday morning, was still listed in critical condition late Monday afternoon, hospital officials said.

Herrera, 16, and Efrain Lopez, also known as Florio Gonzalez, were flown to the Salt Lake City Burn Center Sunday. Lopez, 24, was listed on Monday in serious but stable condition.

The third man injured, Roberto Rivera-Urrio, was listed in stable condition Monday at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

The three men were injured when a flash fire ignited in their house at 206 Rome St. in Castletford.

Albion to boil water

ALBION (AP) — Albion residents have been asked to boil their drinking water before use, following the results of a state study that showed an abnormally high level of coliform bacteria in the city system.

The Cassia County town was notified by the Idaho Health and Welfare Department after a routine study. The presence of bacteria is not uncommon during the spring run-off period.

Ben Chaburn, Albion city clerk, said the water should be boiled for five minutes to ensure it is safe. The advisory remains in effect until further notice from the state.

Fire engulfs Coeur d'Alene business, apartment building

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A smoky fire engulfed a downtown building housing an office supply store Monday night, but no injuries were reported.

The basement and first floors were occupied by Interstate Typewriter Co., while nine overhead apartments were on the second floor.

The fire apparently originated in the rear of the main floor of the two-story building, said city Fire Chief Frank Sexton.

One person was evacuated down a ladder from the second floor, and the other apartments were not believed to be occupied at the time, fire officials said.

The fire was reported shortly after 5 p.m. and was declared out about three hours later. Several downtown blocks were roped off, and parked cars were ordered removed. Coeur d'Alene firefighters were backed up by firefighters from nearby Post Falls.

Prosecution possible in 1984 Utah mine fire

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The federal Mine Safety and Health Administration on Monday submitted a special investigative report on the 1984 Wilberg Mine fire to the Justice Department for possible prosecution, a spokeswoman said.

The special investigation, intended to determine whether criminal violations of federal mine standards occurred in the Dec. 19, 1984, coal mine disaster, was launched in April 1987 following release of MSHA's standard accident report.

The special investigative report was hand-delivered to the U.S. attorney for Utah by two Labor Department representatives, said MSHA spokeswoman Katharine Snyder in Arlington, Va.

Twenty-seven miners died in the fire that MSHA blamed on a faulty air compressor. Last week, the agency re-issued 41 citations with fines totaling an industry-record $110,000 against the mine's owner, Utah Power & Light Co.

"It's up to the Justice Department to evaluate the contents of the file and determine whether prosecution is appropriate," Snyder said.

In general, the law provides for criminal penalties if "willful and knowing violations of federal health and safety standards" are proven, she said.

UP&L spokesman John Ward denied any such violations and labeled MSHA's action as "paper pushing."

"We've had report after report," he said. "It's been three and half years after the disaster, and we're still going around the mulberry bush waiting for MSHA to do something.

"It's been agonizing, especially to a handful of people directly involved," he said. "We hope that this will maybe signal an end to all the paper pushing."

Snyder said that on the advice of Labor Department attorneys, she could not disclose whether the special report contained a recommendation to prosecute.

She said there have been several criminal prosecutions based on the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977. Most recently, a 12-count indictment was returned April 22 against the Hustler Coal Co. of Virginia and three individuals.

Criminal penalties include fines of up to $25,000 and a year imprisonment or both, she said.

The special investigation was begun by MSHA investigators and officials who "felt the facts of the case suggested it would be worthwhile," Snyder said.

The agency re-issued the citations in the wake of an administrative judge's March ruling that the utility was not liable for the same citations, issued a year earlier, which identified UP&L as successor-in-interest of the mine.

UP&L was the mine's owner at the time of the fire, while Emery Mining Corp. operated the mine for the utility. UP&L bought Emery's assets and took over management of the Wilberg and its other central Utah coal mines two years ago.

MSHA's investigation found the fire originated at an air compressor that had been rigged to operate with its heat sensor and on-off switch disconnected.

Andrus renews drought plea

BOISE (AP) — Renewal of federal drought disaster assistance has been requested for the Idaho counties of Blaine, Elmore, Lincoln and Washington.

"These counties have suffered through one entire drought season and are headed into another," Gov. Cecil Andrus said. "And Idaho farmers cannot be expected to wait long for this assistance."

"It is my hope by making this request now, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be able to respond to this emergency situation as soon as possible," he said.

The four counties were granted disaster status and eligibility for federal aid last March as a result of the 1987 drought. But the federal government planned a new request to be made for this year's water shortage to keep that aid available.

The assistance from the Farmers Home Administration would be available to eligible producers once post-harvest drought damage is determined.

Home jail OK for low risk

BOISE (AP) — A pilot program to imprison offenders in their own homes using electronic bracelets is fine for low-risk prisoners, but not tough enough for more serious or second-time offenders, three 4th District magistrate judges say.

Ada County's program, three weeks old, is designed for people convicted of driving under the influence or without privileges, who must serve sentences ranging from two days to a few months. Judges determine who will be placed in the program.

Fourth District Magistrate E. Kay Hamilton said she had sentenced about five people to be imprisoned at home by last week.

"Up to 10 days, the program is alright and ideal for first-time offenders," Mr. Hamilton said. "But someone whom I'm sentencing for more than 10 days needs to get the message in jail."

Judge Michael Dennard, who had assigned one person to the program, said he sees it being used for people who have shown exemplary behavior in work-release programs.

EPA orders poison warning

BOISE (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has ordered communities across Idaho to warn water users about the hazards related to lead in drinking water.

Under the Safe Drinking Water Act of 1986, the EPA requires notices from community water systems in the form of mailing or advertisements by June 19, regardless of whether any lead exists in the water lines.

That includes community water systems that serve 25 or more people at 10 or more locations for more than two months a year. Also affected are non-community systems such as day-care centers or businesses with their own water sources that serve the same amount of people for at least six months a year.

EPA has found excessive levels of lead can damage the central nervous system, heart or kidneys. Infants, young children and pregnant women are especially vulnerable.

Raid closes down drug lab

EMMETT, Idaho (AP) — Two men have been arrested following a police raid on a methamphetamine laboratory at a Gem County farm.

The raid Saturday morning may prove to be one of the largest in the state, Gem County Sheriff Bill McConnell said. He declined to release the name of the people arrested or their charges until after their arraignment.

The two, both Idahoans, surrendered without a struggle. Police seized weapons, lab equipment and a substance they believe is methamphetamine, or "pink."

The amount of the material seized is uncertain. Authorities from Gem County, Emmett, the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and the state forensic lab participated in the raid, McConnell said.

Police say murder-suicide

CALDWELL (AP) — A Caldwell couple have been found dead in their rural home in what authorities label a homicide-suicide.

Barbara Downing, 32, and Lane Dyas, 23, were discovered by sheriff's deputies about 12:10 a.m. Sunday, after a neighbor called about a disturbance at the home, Canyon County Sheriff Bill Anderson said.

Forest plans run gauntlet of appeals

BOISE (AP) — After 10 years in the making, the management plans for Idaho's forests must run the gauntlet of dozens of appeals filed by environmentalists and timber interests alike. More than 70 appeals have been filed on six Idaho national forest management plans, and even though some plans were issued eight months ago, 62 appeals still are pending.

It may take more than a year to resolve them, using a new philosophy of negotiation, Forest Service officials say.

The Payette National Forest's final management plan is expected to be released this week, and, if other plans are any indication, it will be appealed as well.

The plans attempt to "coordinate" management in a single, forest-wide operation, instead of piecemeal as before.

"Our position is, hey, we put this plan together, obviously, the public has some problems with it," said Robert Hendricks, forest planner for the Sawtooth National Forest on which eight appeals were filed. "Now we've got to settle all these differences and justify what we've done."

Opposition ranges from concerns over too much development to not enough.

In all six forests the timber industry has appealed to raise harvest levels, while environmental groups want to increase fish and wildlife habitat, improve or maintain water quality and boost lands recommended for wilderness.

The Forest Service is taking a new settlement approach to avoid lawsuits and better meet public concerns, officials say. The agency used to just issue rulings on appeals. If appellants didn't like the results, they had no other recourse than to file a federal suit.

Tom Rhoda, planning officer for the Clearwater National Forest, said the negotiation route seems to be working. "I think it opens up communication real well," he said.

Ed Stockly of the Idaho Natural Resources Legal Foundation agreed negotiations are effectively resolving questions about timber harvest, off-road-vehicle use and water quality in the Challis National Forest.

"I was rather scared going into (negotiations)," said Stockly, who represents environmental concerns. "The people there had widely divergent views, and they were very polarized." Jim Riley, a spokesman for Intermountain Forest Industries in Coeur d'Alene, agreed about the success of negotiations, but says the scores of environmentalist appeals on the Panhandle National Forest may have soured the harmony between the two groups.

As a result of the appeals, the Forest Service granted a stay on all roadless acreage in the forest, effectively saving one-third of the anticipated land for timber production from harvest for now.

"We're entirely supportive of negotiation to reach a mutually agreeable solution," he said. "But it's pretty hard to negotiate in good faith when there's a gun pointed at your head."

Despite the appeals, the Forest Service has set the management plans into motion.

PETE ROSE
He'll appeal

NL banishes Rose for 30 days for shoving umpire

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose was suspended Monday for 30 days for "forcefully and deliberately shoving" umpire Dave Pallone in what National League President Bart Giamatti called "one of the worst manager-umpire disputes in recent memory."

Rose, who had arthroscopic knee surgery Monday and was not expected to manage even before the announcement, released a statement saying he would appeal the suspension. Since he appealed, Rose can continue to manage the Reds until a decision is rendered. If the appeal is denied, the suspension would begin immediately thereafter.

Giamatti suspended Rose for his actions in last Saturday night's Cincinnati-New York Mets game when the manager rushed from the dugout to argue with Pallone after a disputed call at first base that led to the eventual winning run in the 6-5 game.

The game was delayed for 15 minutes and Pallone was finally forced to leave the playing area for the final four outs after fans showered the field with debris, including lighters, garbage and even portable radios.

"No player or manager has greater respect for the umpires than I do and I have demonstrated that over the years," Rose said in the statement. "But I am shocked at the length of the suspension I received."

"While I expected to be suspended, I feel that this unprecedented 30 days is excessive."

"I also feel that I should have been given the right to give my side of the matter to the league president. The umpire certainly presented his side. In light of this, I have no choice but to appeal the decision," he said.

The suspension was the longest for a manager since Leo Durocher of the then-Brooklyn Dodgers was suspended for the entire 1947 season by Commissioner Happy Chandler for "incidents detrimental to baseball." Durocher allegedly had associated with gamblers.

Tommy Helms, a Reds coach since 1982 and Rose's top assistant in the dugout, was running the Reds on Monday night in his absence.

Rose had said that during the argument, Pallone poked him in the cheek. Jim Tridlich, a spokesman for the NL, said Giamatti will review a statement from Pallone on the matter but first wanted to address Rose's actions against the umpire.

"I lost my cool in that situation," Rose said before Sunday's game. "I was wrong. But if he doesn't touch me, I don't touch him."

Giamatti also said he had summoned two Cincinnati broadcasters, Marty Brennaman and Joe Nuxhall, to New York for "inciting the unacceptable behavior of some of the fans" after Pallone's ninth-inning decision led to the winning run in the New York Mets' 6-5 victory over the Reds.

"Such disgraceful episodes are not business as usual nor can they be allowed to become so," Giamatti said after reviewing the tapes of the game with supervisor of umpires Ed Vargo. "The National League will not tolerate the degeneration of baseball games into dangerous displays of public disorder, nor will it countenance any potentially injurious harassment of any kind of the umpires."

Dana Cowan soars in the long jump during last year's Class A-1 Region III track meet

A year later, Cowan's back on track

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — It's been kind of a strange year for Dana Cowan. Last spring, Cowan was one of the chief reasons Twin Falls High School won the Idaho Class A-1 girls' track championship.

In the process, she instantly became the best female triple jumper in Idaho high school history, winning the A-1 title and setting the overall state record in the event, which was held for the first time last spring.

Six months later, she was attending Valparaiso University in Indiana, a school without a track program.

Six months after that — and one week shy of the first anniversary of Cowan and the Bruins' championship weekend — she will be on the same Bronco Stadium track trying to win a Mountain West Athletic Conference title for Boise State University.

BSU women's track coach Jim Klein, who saw Cowan perform at last year's state meet, didn't hear any more about her until one of his shot putters, Nancy Kuiper, mentioned there was a girl in her dormitory who might be interested in getting back into track.

"Dana has a long way to go," says Klein. She's had several fractures in her right ankle, which means she hasn't really been able to work out. She's had no off-season weight training, like most of the women on this team. Technically, she really doesn't have a middle phase to her triple jump. She has a hop and a jump, but no step.

Still, Klein clearly regards the tall, angular freshman as a project.

"She has great speed, and she's a good athlete," he says. "She'll be a 40-foot (plus) triple jumper within a year or two."

Cowan's best so far is 37 feet, 7 1/2 inches, 7 1/2 inches shy of her state high school championship mark of a year ago.

"I look at (Idaho State University senior) Marcel Payne, who has gone 41 feet (41-7/4) and qualified for the NCAA's," says Cowan. "Payne's jumps seem like a long ways away."

Cowan transferred to Boise State, she says, because it was close to home, and with no previous thought about returning to track.

"I'm glad I did it, but it's been hard. I came in during the middle of the year and started jumping, and now I'm having to learn the everything."

"Dana jumps like most people just do — she was somebody who would jump if you took them off the street and told them to take a hop, step and jump," explains Klein. "A lot of what we do involves getting people to understand what they know and start doing it differently."

Cowan, always a strong sprinter, wants to do the long jump and later the triple jump, she says, because she had little success with the long jump in junior high and high school.

"Last year, we just sort of did the triple jump as we went along," she says. "It was so new to everybody, I just tried to improve a little every week, but when I got to state I thought it would be really hard to beat (Idaho Falls) Mikki Kane and (Mountain Home's) Jenny Jauquet."

O's bid farewell to McGregor

BALTIMORE (AP) — With tears in his eyes and a calling in his heart, Scott McGregor said goodbye to baseball Monday.

The left-hander who has won more games than all but four other pitchers since 1980 was released Monday by the Baltimore Orioles after a disappointing start in their disappointing season in which they lost their first 21 games.

"I gave it everything I had and the results weren't there," said McGregor, who broke down twice during a news conference at Memorial Stadium.

"... There have been good times and bad times. I choose to remember the great times."

McGregor, 34, has struggled in recent years, going 13-25 since the beginning of the 1986 season. He was 0-3 this season with an 8.83 ERA. In three of his four 1988 starts, McGregor failed to last four innings. Yet he found solace in his best outing, in which he went 7 1/2 innings, allowing three runs in a 3-2 tie to the Cleveland Indians on April 15.

"That's very important to me — my last start here was a good one, against Cleveland," McGregor said. "I got a standing ovation. That meant a lot."

McGregor won 107 games since 1980. Only Detroit's Jack Morris, Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, and Toronto's Dave Stieb have recorded more.

He finished with a 138-106 record and was the fifth-winningest pitcher in Orioles' history behind Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Mike Cuellar and Mike Flanagan. He went 20-8 in 1980 and '78 in the Orioles' World Championship season in 1983.

clined the pennant for the Orioles.

"That's the game that keeps coming back to me," McGregor said. "In my hometown, in front of my coaches and friends, I got to pour champagne on my parents and we went to the World Series. That was the most special game of my whole life."

McGregor said his release means the end of his baseball playing days. "I have no desire to play anymore," McGregor said. "That's how I feel right now. If I can't play here, I don't want to leave my family anymore."

An off-season rehabilitation program that still has McGregor saying he feels as good as he ever has just hasn't paid off.

"My wife was asking me about it last night and the only thing I could say is that you can't make a 34-year-old shoulder 28 again," McGregor said.

McGregor has spoken often recently of his plans of joining the ministry.

"This is the toughest day of my whole life," McGregor said. "... I've played baseball from 7 until 34 and now I'll be training for my next career. Having something to go on to makes this a little easier."

Orioles general manager Roland Hammond said, "I'm sure he'll do a lot of good for a lot of people for the rest of his life."

Dolphins sign Beals; Jackson, 2 teammates

By The Times-News

A week after the NFL draft, the Miami Dolphins redeemed some of the Big Sky Conference's pride by signing four players to free agent contracts.

The Dolphins Monday signed Boise State running back Chris Jackson, BSU defensive lineman Peter Kwiatkowski, Bronco wide receiver Eric Andrade and Idaho State wide receiver Shawn Beals.

Idaho, Idaho State and Boise State were all shut out in last week's NFL draft, the first time that has happened since 1978.

Jackson, Kwiatkowski and Andrade were all first-team—all-Big Sky Conference selections this year and Beals was a second-team pick. Kwiatkowski was the Big Sky defensive player of the year.

Jackson, a Dallas resident who played for two years at Boise State after stints at Houston and Texas-Arlington, had preliminary discussions with the Dallas Cowboys last week after he was not selected in the draft. Kwiatkowski, a four-year starter at BSU from Santa Barbara, Calif., had been contacted by the Dolphins before the draft. An-drader, a three-year Boise State starter from Anaheim, Calif., and Beals, a three-year starter at ISU from Pittsburg, Calif., were contacted within the last week.

Three Big Sky players were chosen in the draft—Montana offensive tackle Larry Clarkston, Northern Arizona wide receiver Michael Haynes and Montana defensive lineman Pat Foster.

Jackson, Kwiatkowski, Andrade and Beals signed make-good contracts and will report to the first of Miami's rookie camps next week.

Of 17 even Idaho players currently in the NFL, only one — Atlanta Falcons tight end Donny Cox, formerly of Boise State — earned his position after not being selected in the NFL draft.

Ace for Obenchain

TWIN FALLS — Mary Obenchain knocked a hole-in-one at the Blue Lakes Country Club Saturday.

The hole-in-one came on the 114-yard, No. 5 hole using a nine-iron. It was her first ace.

The shot came during a Texas scramble Saturday.

Stroud signs two

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho volleyball and women's basketball Coach Ben Stroud has signed two athletes to letters of intent.

They are Becky Brower of American Falls, the Idaho Statesman Class A-2 girls' basketball player of the year, and Marcia Yastrop of Pocatello, who played on two state Class A-1 championship teams at Highland High School.

The 5-foot, 9-inch Brower averaged 24 points in 11 rebounds and four assists last season and played on the Idaho Basketball Congress International team her junior and senior years.

Yastrop, a 6-0 center, is the sister of Markette Yastrop, who played for CSI two years ago. She was the starting center on the Highland team that won the state championship in 1987 and finished second this year.

Key sidelined

SPRINGFIELD — Left-hander Jimmy Key, runner-up in balloting for the American League Cy Young award last season, will undergo arthroscopic surgery to remove a bone fragment from his left elbow, the Toronto Blue Jays announced Monday night.

Key, who has been on the disabled list since April 15, will undergo surgery on Wednesday at Birmingham, Ala. He will be able to begin throwing in three or four weeks and will be able to pitch in 6-10 weeks, the club said.

Suns fire coach

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns president Jerry Colangelo, saying his NBA club was "going in the wrong direction" with four straight losing seasons, fired first-year head coach John Wetzel and assistant coach Herb Brown on Monday.

The Suns were 28-54 this season — the worst record since the 1968-69 expansion team went 16-66.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Sax drove in three runs with his first on-base inside-the-park homer and Kirk Gibson hit one over the fence, as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 Monday night in a showdown between the leaders in the National League Western and Eastern Divisions.

Don Sutton, who allowed a pair of fifth-inning runs, was lifted with a 5-3 lead after 4 1/2 innings — one out shy of the mandatory five innings required for a victory.

Alejandro Pena replaced Sutton and pitched two innings and allowed one hit and three walks. Jesse Orosco pitched the final 2 1/2 and was credited with the victory by the official scorer. Orosco, 1-0, allowed one hit and struck out two.

The victory left the Dodgers one game in front of Houston in the NL.

Baseball

West, while Pittsburgh stayed one game ahead of New York in the NL East following the Mets' loss to Atlanta.

The Dodgers took a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the fourth when Doug Drabek, 3-2, walked leader batter Danny Heep, and two outs later walked Sutton. Sax followed with a sinking line to short right field, which former Dodger outfielder Ral Reynolds missed on a shoestring attempt.

The ball went under Reynolds' glove and rolled to the fence as Sax circled the bases. It was his second homer of the year and his first since opening day, when he hit Dave Dravecky's first pitch of the season for a home run against the San Francisco Giants.

Chicago 5 San Diego 2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Andre Dawson and Ryne Sandberg hit home runs and Jamie Moyer allowed seven hits in six innings, leading the Chicago Cubs past the San Diego Padres 5-2 Monday night.

Dawson's two-run homer off starter Jimmy Jones, 2-3, was his ninth against San Diego since he joined the Cubs in 1987, and 23rd of his career overall.

Atlanta 3 New York 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Gant hit a three-run double in the seventh inning and Zane Smith scattered nine hits Monday night as the Atlanta Braves beat New York 3-1, snapping the Mets' five-game winning streak.

The victory was the first ever for the Braves over Ron Darling, who had beaten them in eight previous decisions, Darling, 3-1; allowed three runs on five hits, struck out three and walked one in seven innings.

Philadelphia 7 Houston 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt hit the 534th home run of his career and Kevin Gross pitched a five-hitter as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 7-1 Monday night.

Cincinnati 3 Montreal 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ron Robinson scored 8 1/2 perfect innings before pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson singled to left field as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Montreal Expos 3-2 Monday night.

Robinson retired catcher Mike Fitzgerald on a grounder to shortstop for the first out-of-the-ninth inning, and Tom Foley then hit a short fly ball to center field for the second out.

AL: 50,402 fans watch Orioles win second game

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, spurred by a noisy crowd of 50,402 on "Fantastic Fans Night," returned home and beat the Texas Rangers 9-4 Monday night as Cal Ripken homered and doubled.

The Orioles, 2-23 after a 1-11 road trip, won for the first time in nine games at Memorial Stadium this year. Before the game, Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer announced the team and the city had worked out a 10-year lease that includes a new downtown ballpark.

It was a festive evening, filled with orange-and-black banners, constant chants and promotional giveaways. Morgana, baseball's "Kissing Bandit" rushed onto the field and puckered up with Ripken in the first inning.

Bob Rivers, the radio disc jockey who stayed on the air for 200 hours while the Orioles lost their first two games, threw out the first ball; Baltimore television announcer Brooks Robinson broadcast the game wearing his No. 5 uniform, and team owner Edward Bennett Williams and Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke were in attendance.

Milwaukee 4 Minnesota 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dale Sveum's two-out single capped a three-run second inning, and Odele Jones pitched four innings of hitless relief Monday night as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-3 and beat Bert Blyleven for the first time in three years. The Brewers' victory was their first over Twins since May 22, 1985. The Twins right-hander had beaten Milwaukee seven straight times, including six in a row since coming to Minnesota in August of '85.

Kansas City 2 Boston 0

BOSTON (AP) — George Brett had two doubles and a single, and the Kansas City Royals beat the Boston Red Sox 2-0 Monday night behind the clutch pitching of Floyd Bannister and three relievers.

Bannister, 4-1, pitched 5 1/2 innings, allowing six hits, including three doubles. It was the second straight shut-out loss for the Red Sox, who were blanked by Frank Viola of Minnesota on Sunday.

Oakland 4 Detroit 2

TROIT (AP) — Ron Hassey hit a two-run homer and drove in two more runs with two out in the 10th inning to lead the Oakland Athletics to a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Monday night.

It was Oakland's eighth straight victory, while the Tigers had a four-game winning streak snapped.

Hassey's double of the fence in left field scored Jose Canseco and Dave Henderson with the winning runs. Canseco walked, Henderson singled and Mark McGwire struck out before

Dennis Eckersley pitched the bottom of the 10th for his major league-leading 10th save.

Cleveland 3 California 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Greg Swindell pitched a two-hitter for his sixth straight victory and second career shutout, and Brock Jacoby drove in two runs as the Cleveland Indians beat the California Angels 3-0 Monday night.

The Indians broke a three-game losing streak to remain in first place in the American League East. Their 17-7 record matches the second-best start in their history.

New Idaho coach Davis signs 4 JC transfers

MOSCOW (AP) — Idaho and new head coach Kermit Davis on Monday announced the signings of four junior college players to letters of intent to play basketball for the Vandals next year.

Two of the signings are at Oresso, Texas, Junior College: 6-foot-8, 235-pound Mike Davis; 6-foot-3, 190-pound power forward Remy Smith and 6-3 guard Peter Davis.

Also signing were Cesar Prewel, a 6-2 guard from Bossier City, La.; Junior College, and Clifton Jones, 6-6 forward from Midland, Texas, Junior College.

As a freshman, Smith averaged 16.3 points. He boasted a 10.2 rebounding average as a sophomore. He was a starter in both seasons after coming to Odessa from Mansfield, Texas, High School.

Davis, from Ballard, Ky. High School, averaged 10.5 points, four rebounds, three assists per game as a sophomore for Odessa, which finished 30-5.

Jones attended Texas City High School in La Marque, Texas. He averaged 12 points and six rebounds last year for Midland JC.

Prewel averaged 18.2 points, 4.5 assists and four rebounds at Bossier City.

O'Maley sets torrid pace in District 5

By The Times-News

GLENN'S FERRY — Shoshone High School freshman Tammy O'Maley took the lead in three events in the first District 5 high school rodeo of the season, held last weekend at the Elmore County Fairgrounds.

O'Maley took the average lead in pole bending, goat tying and breakaway roping and ranks second in a fourth event, barrel racing.

O'Maley and Gooding's Dally Curtis, the calf roping leader who shared the team roping lead with Hagerman's Toby Millican, were the only multi-event winners in the first of four rodeos, which will culminate with the district finals in June at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

Other first round average leaders after the career are Jodi Farnworth, Carey, barrel racing; Lisa Aslett, Jerome, girls' cut setting; Kelly Jennings, Dietrich, barbecue riding; Justin James, Jerome, steer wrestling; George Grisham, Glenn's Ferry, saddle bronc riding.

Barrel racing
First go — J. Roberts, Jerome, 16:23.2; Fern, 16:24.4; J. O'Maley, Shoshone, 17:19.4; Whitson, Rockford, 17:50.0; Second go — Farnworth, 17:18.1; O'Maley, 17:20.7; Williams, 17:21.6; Aslett, Jerome, 17:24.8; Average — 17:18.8.

Pole bending
First go — J. O'Maley, 11:27.1; Fern, Shoshone, 11:30.0; Dietrich, 11:31.8; Aslett, Jerome, 11:34.4; Average — 11:30.8.

Goat tying

NBA playoffs: Bullets stave off elimination

Pro basketball

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Jeff Malone scored eight of his 35 points in overtime Monday night to lift Washington to a 114-113 victory over the Detroit Pistons and kept the Bullets alive in the opening round of the NBA playoffs.

The Pistons, who got 29 points from Isiah Thomas, still hold a 2-1 lead in the best-of-5 series. The next game will be held Wednesday night at the Capital Center.

With the score tied 104-104, Malone hit a 15-foot jumper with 2:08 left. After a Detroit miss, a basket by John Williams made it 108-104.

A driving basket by Thomas cut the Washington lead to 108-106, but Malone and Darrell Walker hit consecutive field goals to give the Bullets a secure 112-108 lead with 45 seconds left.

Moses Malone scored 23 points for the Bullets, who finally beat the Pistons in postseason play after losing three straight last year and two in a row last week.

Detroit used a 12-1 run at the beginning of the fourth quarter to turn an 80-75 deficit into an 87-81 lead but eventually let Washington get back into the game. Although the Bullets were held without a basket for the opening 6:17 of the final period, Jeff Malone's 15-foot jumper gave Washington a 99-92 lead with 1:59 left.

L.A. Lakers 130 San Antonio 112

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Guard Alvin Robertson of the San Antonio Spurs insists the Los Angeles Lakers' number is about to come up.

But Robertson's prediction doesn't necessarily mean the Lakers are overly concerned as their Western Conference first-round NBA playoffs move to the Spurs' home court Tuesday night.

The defending world champions have already trounced the Spurs twice — a 130-112 victory Sunday and a 122-110 decision Friday — and a third win in the best-of-five series would send the Lakers into the second round.

She beat Kane by 7 inches and Jaquet by 3 feet, then ran the first leg on the 800-meter relay team that won the state championship.

"She's a competitor, and that's one reason why I think she'll be successful," says Klein.

"Last year, I was using as muscles to jump," says Cowan. "It's like starting over."

Economy robust, reports say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans increased their efficiency in producing goods and services at an annual rate of nearly 1 percent last quarter, the government said Monday in one of three reports showing a robust U.S. economy.

Non-farm businesses improved their productivity by an annual rate of 0.9 percent from January through March, reversing a 1 percent deterioration in their efficiency during the previous three months, the Labor Department said.

Excluding agriculture and government, those businesses responsible for three-fourths of the nation's economic activity raised their output of goods and services by 2.7 percent with only a 1.7 percent increase in hours worked.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said orders for U.S. manufactured products increased 1.6 percent in March while construction spending rose by 1.5 percent, much of it on government building and highway projects.

"Everything is coming up roses," said Allen Shulz of the Boston Co., a New York-based economic consultant. "A little trouble on the inflation front and in the financial markets is not a strong price to pay for the kind of good performance on growth, jobs and spending. It's an incumbent politi-

Sluggish day for market

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip issues staged a modest rally, but the rest of the stock market lagged in a sluggish session Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 10.84 to 2,043.27.

But declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 4 to 3 in New York Stock Exchange-listed trading, with 617 up, 875 down and 485 unchanged.

Big Board volume came to 136.47 million shares, against 135.62 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index slipped .04 to 147.83.

Energy stocks were mostly lower on oil prices. While an export boom has been occurring for several months, analysts had seen little in trade figures to indicate that the devaluation of the dollar had made imports expensive enough to curb Americans' appetites for foreign goods.

2.4 percent annually

But those unit labor costs had soared at an annual rate of 4.5 percent in the final quarter of 1987, triggering fears among several analysts that the nation was on the verge of wage-push inflation.

After taking inflation into account — as measured by relative changes in total output and prices — the wage gains the first quarter of 1988 yielded not a penny more of purchasing power for workers. Still, it is the first time since the last quarter of 1986 that they have even kept pace with inflation.

Manufacturing, which still accounts for about one-fourth of the country's gross national product, continued to lead the effort in restoring its competitiveness.

Productivity by manufacturers increased at an annual rate of 2.9 percent the first quarter with a 4.3 percent increase in output on only a 1.3 percent increase in the number of hours worked in the nation's factories.

For the first time since early 1986, factory workers actually kept ahead of inflation, according to the data.

Nominal wage gains averaging 3.9 percent annually the first quarter — the biggest in more than two years — increased the purchasing power of assembly line workers by one-half of 1 percent.

The rise in construction spending was led by a 5.4-percent surge in government projects, some of the result of Congress overriding President Reagan's veto of an $88 billion highway bill last year.

The productivity gains were a surprise to most economists in the wake of employment reports showing the creation of nearly 1 million new jobs the first three months of 1988.

The productivity numbers showed wages and benefits increased at an annual rate of 3.4 percent in the first quarter, raising the labor costs associated with each service or product by 3.4 percent. The commitment was then sold, and no stock investments were made until October 20, 1971, when the prime rate fell to 5.75 percent from 6 percent.

Thereafter, he sold when the prime rose and bought when it fell.

The result: A 462-percent gain in value, dividends excluded, which is more than double the 195 percent capital appreciation earned on a buy-and-hold strategy employed over the entire period.

He concludes: even if commissions and investment fees are accounted for, the prime rate portfolio readjustment strategy yields a significantly higher overall rate of return relative to generalization of a buy-and-hold strategy.

But the story doesn't end there. In fact, a very big question arises: What might have happened if you weren't able to hold the portfolio intact for that long period of time? What if you had a cash need? Answer: You might not have done very well, since the strategy would

Test shows stocks, bonds, interest link

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a wide old saying that when interest rates show signs of rising, it's a good to consider moving your investments from stocks to bonds.

John Cuniff

For experimental purposes, he assumed that on that date a 100 percent commitment was made to the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index and maintained until May 11, 1971, when the prime rate rose to 5.5 percent from 5.25 percent.

not have yielded the best results on all occasions. In fact, says Peritt, there were five periods when the strategy would have placed the investor in the stock market during times of declining stock prices.

Similarly, on six occasions the strategy would have resulted in the investor sitting on the sidelines during periods of rising stock prices.

Question: Would you, or most other investors, have been able to follow a strategy that failed to work on so many occasions, confident that over longer periods of time it would work out for the best?

Peritt concedes it would have taken extra-patience for investors to have followed the theory, one of the reasons being, if learned and kept in mind, can improve one's well-being.

And, he acknowledges, the one investment axiom that has long stood the test of time is "whatever has worked well in the past will most likely work not continuously in the future." Nevertheless, he expresses the opinion that "history, when examined closely, can improve one's well-being." This, he believes, is the case with the historical relationship between interest rates and stock market prices.

It may be one of those times now. Believing in the theory is one thing, but believing in it strongly enough to make a basic investment change is a matter of a vastly different magnitude, since commissions and stock capital gains taxes could be involved.

Still, since the theory seems to make sense, the temptation is there. When interest rates rise, the returns from bonds become relatively more attractive. As investors shift, stocks tend to become depressed. And as rates rise, corporate earnings may fall, depressing stocks further.

Gerald Peritt, a former DePaul University professor and current president and editor of the newsletter Investment Horizons, is among those who wonder if really performed according to theory, and so he put the theory to the test.

Using changes in the prime interest rate as a guide, it was an arbitrary decision; other measures could have been used — he traced the stock mar-

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

These are those who would misteach us that to stick in a rut is consistency — and a virtue, and that to climb out of the rut is inconsistency — and a vice.

The opening shot against a no-trump game should not get the course of defense in concrete. Often there's no substitute for a little counting and bold action.

Dummy's spade king wins the opening lead; and a low diamond from dummy goes to East's king. After East gets over his initial surprise, how does he bid?

If he follows the old bromide "Always return partner's lead," he will return a spade, and South escapes with an easy game.

West should East consider returning something other than a spade? He knows so far that West has the diamond ace and does not have the spade queen. Clearly South holds the spade queen and club ace to justify his bid.

East should realize that South will win four diamonds, three spades and at least two clubs. Since the only chance for the defense lies in the heart suit, East should bid 4♥ to bid more, but no other action is more descriptive.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 1234, Twin Falls, with self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Just a li'l gal in Calvins

A lighter look at Brooke's career

Brooke Shields has done a demo of three country and western songs in Nashville and is seeking a record label — People magazine

"Excerpts from Personal Manager's Daughter — The Brooke Shields Story"

Onliest person I ever sang for grown-up was my ma. She'd be out in the kitchen workin' as usual, tearin' up arguing for supper time, and she'd say, "Minnie Brooke, sing me one o' them ol' songs o' yers."

And I'd like to rear back my head and just sing "Stand by Your Tan" or "R-E-S-I-D-U-A-L."

Ma'd say, "Now, Brooke Jo, sing 'at one you sing 'bout your makeup."

And I'd sing, "I Found the Right Pancakes (But You're the Wrong Batter)," and Ma would smile and set down her argula and, after a spell, she'd up and say, "Land, child, I b'lieve you might could plurge tonight and eat out. Put on your Sunday best Mackie, and let's us essay on down to Le Cirque for some blanket de Saint Jack Julian."

I'd say, "Ma!"

She'd say, "Sorry, child, but I never did learn no French at Princeton like you did. I'm just a simple country wannabe stage mama."

But times got hard, and all the Revlon money dried up. We did hard-scrabble modellin' and grew our own orchids just to save corsage money. We got by as best we could, I reckon.

One day as we were having our Tabs for breakfast, I said to Ma, "Maybe I oughta try and git my own line of clothes at Sears like that there Tieggs gal did.

"Do what?" Ma said, just as full of bodacious contempt as Chuckie Pete Bandelino, whose poor I studied at Princeton. "Brooke Marie, you will do no such thing. Them Tieggs was never nothin' but trash, and you ain't never modellin' no clothes in the same catalog with radial tairs."

"Well then, maybe I might ought to sing my songs on the radio."

"Now that's a thought."

I had written a song right after I broke up with Billy Bobby Dan Mash-ogs. It was called "I Hate You 'Er 3 Women in Oman (But Someday You'll Be Saudi)." Part of it went:

"You think you got a big hegemony On girls from here to West Gethesemans

But I been chasat'n' with a Yemeni Who makes your kisses seem real lemony."

I knew that song could be a hit. But it was easier said than done. I had to go on the road, stoppin' at office after office and singin' 'til my throat was raw. But Ma was there right beside me for all four cab rides. When the day was over, and we showed up at Maxwell's Plum so late they were out of soft-shell crab; I saw the weary disappointment in Ma's eyes and wondered if we was drivin' ourselves too hard.

But dogging it if the waiter didn't bring a phone right over to our table, and it was Tex Al-Faud, the Grand Ole Kuwaifi, and he said he was prepared to set me up with a studio band down in Nashville and start recordin' right away.

My dream was comin' true. The first songs I recorded were about the heartbreak I went through when my old flame Michael left me. I did "You Moonwalked Out on Me (You Ain't No Friend of Mine)" and "I'm Reading Balzac (and You're Acting Batty)."

As you know by now, both of them were big hits, and pretty soon I had enough money to do something I'd always wanted to do for my dear old Ma — repurchase the Mercedes. It was a happy day.

On the country-music circuit, I fell in love with Jimmy Jeff Daryl-Ed Moonpie Jeff "Whisper" Cunion. It was a mad, tempestuous affair, and numerous times we was caught up in each other I considered kisin' him, but then I remembered when I had to kiss someone in the "Blue Lagoon" and how it was like they broke a raw egg into my mouth, and I told myself, "Minnie Brooke, ain't nothin' worth doin' that again."

Never throw out anything

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — School officials called in an art appraiser to check whether a couple of old paintings that had hung unnoticed for years in school buildings might be worth anything.

"My chin dropped," said appraiser E. Eugene Bechtel, who recognized a dirty, tattered painting of an Indian as the work of American master Frederick E. Church (1826-1900) and worth from $100,000 to $125,000.

He then discovered that another painting in the Central Bucks School District was a circa 1900 still life by William M. Chase, and worth at least $15,000, Bechtel said Tuesday.

The paintings have been in the district for 15 or 20 years; but no one seems to know how they got there, district business manager Gene Abel said.

Abel said the potential windfall "is a significant sum of money," but is not overwhelming, considering the district's annual $53 million operating budget.

It's all in the stars for Reagan's

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, have consulted an astrologer on occasion to help set the president's schedule, NBC News reported Monday.

The network quoted unidentified sources as saying the scheduling of major events has sometimes been changed because the Reagans said the astrologer had indicated another time would be better.

Newsweek magazine reported Monday that former White House chief of staff Donald Regan's memoirs would relate that the Reagans sometimes consult astrologers for help on tough decisions.

Asked about the reports, White House spokesman Mark Weinberg said Monday night, "I do not know anything about it."

Status without the static

DALLAS (AP) — Yuppies who can't afford to have it all are calling on a new accessory to tone up their image — a fake cellular phone that's a dead ringer for the must-have gadget.

The Cellular Phoney is a realistic copy of the devices that have become standard fixtures in the BMWs and Mercedes of big-city dealmakers.

At $15.95 for the handset and a fake, stick-on antenna, the fake phones live up to the advertising slogan of "status without the static," Stein said.

The Cellular Phoneys are made by Faux (that's French for "false") Systems in Los Altes, Calif. An estimated 40,000 phones have been sold, many in Los Angeles, another hub of freeway fashion.

Although many people are buying the Cellular Phoneys as gag gifts, some find the gaglets ring true, Stein said.

"It's so incredibly real-looking that you have to begin to wonder how many people driving around out there with an antenna on the back of their car actually have a phony," she said.

Falwell calls him a savior

Ollie calls himself a hero; graduates hush on subject

The Associated Press

LYNCHBURG, Va. — Oliver North lashed out at his accusers Monday, telling a commencement crowd at the school founded by the Rev. Jerry Falwell that charges against him in the Iran-Contra affair are "not a brand" but "a badge of honor."

North, a former lieutenant colonel in the Marines, was given an honorary doctorate of humanities by Liberty University as Falwell called him an American hero and compared his legal predicament to the suffering of Jesus Christ.

From certain commentaries in the media, it is clear that some believe once a man is accused, he's branded for ever," North told the cheering crowd of about 12,000 that gave him three standing ovations.

"Well, I've been accused of helping the brave young men and women of the Nicaraguan resistance in their struggle for the very liberties we claim as a birthright."

"I've been accused of trying to rescue American hostages, held captive, and trying to prevent other terrorist attacks. Those accusations are not a brand. They are a 'badge of honor.'"

North lashed out at congressmen and a special prosecutor who have accused him of illegally diverting money from an Iranian arms deal to rebels seeking to overthrow Nicaragua's Marxist government.

"We must not just choose the right president" in 1988, North said. "We need a better Congress."

Falwell said when he was introduced that many journalists had asked why he chose an indicted man to offer advice to about 900 graduates.

"We serve a savior who was indicted and convicted and crucified," Falwell said.

North's speech came on his first day of civilian life after retiring from the Marine Corps. He faces a federal indictment charging him with conspiring to defraud the government by illegally diverting money from Iranian arms sales to Contra rebels seeking to oust Nicaragua's Marxist government.

Falwell's staff declined to make North available for questions from reporters.

North told students graduating from the campus of about 8,000 that they should use their talents to become productive members of society.

"As you leave Liberty University, you can be anything you want to be," he said. "As your counterparts are graduated from the University of Moscow, they can be anything the state wants them to be."

Their name is misused

And Johns of the world won't take it anymore!

DALLAS (AP) — A man whose first name is John mounted his third annual protest Friday and called on Johns of the world to wrest their good names away from toilet, customers of prostitutes and John Doe anonymity.

John Brooks, armed with a well-thumbed paperback dictionary and a battered sign proclaiming April 29 "National John Day," stood on a windy downtown corner, seeking to draw attention to his claims that the proper name of John has been abused.

"In defending the name John," he yelled, drawing amused stares from lunchtime crowds.

Brooks, 45, freely admits there's nothing official about his cause and doesn't expect to make a name for himself with the annual protests, which he said would stop after this year. But he says years of name-calling prompted him to take action.

"A major complaint, in the dictionary, is John being used as a prostitute's client or a toilet," he said. "It makes a swear word out of our name, doesn't it?"

He said the seedy first definition isn't even accurate.

"Over the last year also, the Johns aren't the ones (who've) been seeing the prostitutes. The customers (have been) dimmies," Brooks said, making an oblique reference to recent television evangelist scandals.

Brooks also is upset about "putting John Doe on the toes of people who've died and they don't know who he is."

As part of his efforts, Brooks, a self-employed carpenter in Dallas, has created a fictitious lawsuit against society, seeking $12.5 trillion. Retitution could be handled by giving all Johns the day off on April 29, a date he said he picked for no particular reason.

Girls' best friend to cost more

LONDON (AP)—The De Beers diamond cartel said Wednesday it was increasing prices for rough gemstones an average of 18.5 percent because sales are sparkling worldwide despite the stock markets' crash.

Sales of diamonds are priced in dollars and have been boosted by the drop in the U.S. currency, which makes them cheaper to holders of Japanese yen and European currencies.

De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd. said the price increases for a broad range of uncut diamonds would take effect May 3.

"The increases are not weighted toward any particular category," said spokesman Richard Dickson.

De Beers, based in Johannesburg, South Africa, controls 80 percent of the world's rough diamond market through its London-based marketing arm, Central Selling Organization.

When De Beers last raised its prices, by an average 10 percent on Oct. 5, the biggest increases were for better-quality diamonds. That was the only price hike in 1987 and followed an increase of 14.5 percent, in two steps, in 1986.

De Beers does not disclose its prices.

DIED

Carroll Righter, doyen of American astrologers, in Santa Monica, Calif., from complications of age. He was 86.

At his death, Righter's daily columns were being syndicated in 166 newspapers in the United States, Europe and Canada. He was also the author of several books. He began writing for newspapers in 1951.

Asked regularly over the years whether his interpretation of the movements of celestial bodies could be taken as guidelines for life, Righter would offer the same advice he offered as a disclaimer to his column:

"The stars impel, they don't compel. What you make of your life depends on you."

Righter had been sick several times over the past few years and predicted he would not survive his latest hospitalization.

UNINDICTED

Fawn Hall, former secretary to Oliver North, has been named by a federal grand jury as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Iran-Contra affair.

The action, which has been kept under court seal, allows independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh to use the testimony of the unindicted co-conspirators against the prosecutor's primary targets: North, former national security adviser John Poindexter, retired Gen. Richard Secord and Iranian-born arms dealer Albert Hakim.

The Los Angeles Times said the move is significant because it distinguishes Hall from conventional witnesses whose testimony would apply only to one defendant at a time.

EATING LOTS

Molloko, the first California condor born to captive parents is downing about 30 minced mice a day and slowly gaining weight.

"So far so good," Martha Baker, spokeswoman for the San Diego Wild Animal Park, said Sunday. "We're not through the most critical period, which is 72 hours."

"The chick, named after the Indian word for condor, was hatched with human help Friday, boosting the endangered species' numbers to 28."

At 28 mice Saturday and 30 more by Sunday afternoon, Baker said:

All 28 California condors known to exist are in captivity: 15 at the Wild Animal Park and 13 at the Los Angeles Zoo. Fourteen birds are female. The chick's sex has not been determined.

Sophomores set frisbee toss record

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—Two Connecticut College sophomores set a world record for Frisbee-tossing but finally succumbed to the need for sleep and ended their marathon session after more than four days.

Jeremy Tubb and John Fischer beat the previous record of 110 hours, 40 minutes at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday and ended their streak at 3:36 p.m. after 118 hours and 36 minutes, said Daniel MacAlpine, a college spokesman.

The two had planned to toss the disk until 5 p.m. Tuesday, but were beginning to hallucinate.

Note: Foot massages now legal

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — City Council resolved a ticklish problem by approving an amendment that allows members of one sex to massage feet of the other.

The problem came up when Denise Sewell opened the Foot Rub Inn, figuring that she could turn a buck by rubbing some of this West Texas city's million feet.

But she learned that because of a city ordinance regulating massage parlors and Turkish baths, she could rub women's feet but not men's without a doctor's prescription.

The council on Tuesday chopped the ordinance off at the ankles, making it legal to charge for a massage below that joint.

The original ordinance, aimed at banning massage parlors with a penchant for providing illicit pleasures on the side, prohibited a woman from giving a man a rubdown for pay and vice versa.

So the council members decided they didn't want to go on record favoring digital discrimination.

Not every council member was wholeheartedly in favor of the amendment, at least not without some clarification.

"Well, how far up do feet go?" asked member Suzie Azar.

"As far as the ankle, and that was all the council removed from under the city's anti-massage parlor ordinance."

"I just believe it's good for the body's organs, and just plain feeling good," said Sewell, who charges $15 for a half-hour rub. "We're all born with gifts, and that happens to be one of mine. I'm good with my hands."

Councilman Ed Elsey says he's all in favor of foot massage.

"My wife does it at no charge," he said. "She's the best foot rubber in the country. Someone who's better participated in foot rubbing just wouldn't know how relaxing it is."

Elsey admitted, however, that he had never discussed his love for foot rubbing in public before.

"I have a lot of conservative people on the East Side, and they wouldn't understand," he said.

Diamonds

But, as an example, the wholesale price of a polished, one-carat, D-flawless diamond — the highest grade — costs about $15,000.

The cartel sets prices for rough diamonds only. It operates a pipeline of diamonds from its mines in Africa and Australia to dealers and cutters in the world's major diamond centers —

Antwerp, Bombay, New York and Tel Aviv.

"The rough market is strong, the prices of polished diamonds are strong, retail demand is good," Dickson said. "Much of the motor for the momentum behind demand is coming from Japan and Southeast Asia."

De Beers enjoyed record sales of $3.075 billion in 1987, up 23 percent from sales of $2.5 billion in 1986.

Diamond sales, which slumped in the early 1980s, jumped even though De Beers cut supply after the Oct. 19 stock markets' crash, Dickson said.

"We carried that cautious policy through the early part of 1988. We reacted very quickly. What we wouldn't want to do is sell diamonds that the market couldn't absorb."

'Password' winner draws jail term for fraud

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The biggest single-game winner on the TV game show "Password" who was arrested when a television viewer recognized him as a fugitive, was sentenced Monday to five years in prison for an insurance scheme.

Kerry Dee Ketchum, 36, had admitted to fraudulently collecting $100,000 from an insurance policy by falsely saying his wife had been killed in an auto accident.

U.S. District Court Judge William Byrne also ordered Ketchum to repay the $100,000 to the insurance company and said prosecutors were correct in calling Ketchum a "con-man and a thief."

Ketchum pleaded guilty March 14 to two counts of a six-count mail-fraud indictment returned by a federal grand jury in San Francisco.

Ketchum had used the name Patrick Quinn to appear on the show, which was seen by an Alaskan banker who recognized Ketchum as the man who allegedly ran up about $25,000 in credit in Alaska by fraudulently obtaining credit cards.

Ketchum was arrested when he tried to pick up $58,600 in winnings from his appearance on "Password." The sum would have been the show's biggest single-game award, but NBC refused to pay it on the ground Ketchum won under a false identity.

North

"A few, perhaps, I hope only a few, may become special prosecutors. On the other hand, maybe it might be good if you did. My case may still be around," North said.

Nearby, in this central Virginia city's downtown, about 60 people staged a quiet protest against North's appearance, carrying signs that read "Ollie Not for President" and "Real Heroes Don't Lie."

"Too many people in the current administration have decided that North is not guilty," said Malcolm Douglas, founder of the Latin American Coalition, one of the half-dozen groups from area colleges that took part.

People for the American Way passed out a statement at the ceremony expressing the group's opposition to Falwell's effort to win a pardon for North.

Falwell said he had about 600,000 names to put on a petition seeking North's pardon and that he hopes to get 2 million before delivering it to the White House this summer.

The commencement also attracted representatives of a northern Virginia group seeking to draft North as a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Republican F. Tribe.

North's reference to electing a better Congress may boost the effort, said Jamey R. Wheeler, chairman of the Arlington-based Draft North For U.S. Senate Committee.

"I think it was a hint intentionally put in his speech," Wheeler said.

Wheeler declined to say if the effort to draft North has the prospective candidate's support.

Johns

At least one John who joined Brooks' demonstration said he took advantage of that idea. John Malmqvist, 20, a carpet technician, said he talked his boss into giving him a half-day off.

Malmqvist said he's also liked at the way "John" is used in hypothetical situations such as "Why Johnny Can't Read."

"If you're in school, they always use Johnny for this, Johnny for that. When they're giving examples over the speakers, talking about bad kids, they always say, 'Well, Johnny went home and did this and that ...'"

Passer-by Bobby Mullins, 22, said he sympathized with the Johns' plight, although he didn't expect to stop using John as a generic term.

"I probably still will, but I'll think about that guy over there," he said.

Brooke

But sometimes, when I hear the song he wrote about us, "She's Wearin' Herrera (And I'm Wearin' Mine)," I still like to get choked up.

Of course, eventually I developed an abuse problem with Dove bars and had to be put into the asylum, and when I got out, that Kashoggi boy invited me on a cruise, and I never did get back to country music, but it'll always have a special place in my heart, right next to Givenchy.

What's what

OF MICE AND MINT

Did I tell you mice can't stand the smell of fresh peppermint?

No woman is ever really surprised by a matrimonial proposal. Nor by any sort of romantic overture, in fact. So said that Love and War authority Theodor Reik. It was his belief that in uncriminal social behavior the female of the species always sets the stage.

Expressions of spontaneous emotions show up on both sides of the face. But those of faked emotions show up only on one side of the face, usually the left. So says a student of the matter. If true, this may be why you know - without even knowing why you know - when somebody is putting on an act.

Ireland is no place to open a high-fashion clothing shop, evidently. Not because the economy won't support it, though that has to be taken into account. But because the Irish don't tend to be clothes-conscious. They have little interest in clothing styles. So say the merchandisers.

In 90 percent of the fatal accidents in which the driver of the responsible car is the only occupant of the car, that driver is drunk. So say police statisticians.

SLEEP

Q. A boy typically sleeps a little longer than a girl on an average night. I've read. How much longer?

A. Ten minutes.

You'll always speak your second language, if any, with an accent, if you didn't learn it before you were 12 years old. So says a teacher of tongues. Exceptions are rare.

Did you move your eyes 100,000 times yesterday? If typical, you did.

study them well, see where you stand, and set up a new budget if necessary.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Plan a surprise which will delight your mate quite a bit, and improve your relationship considerably. Be direct in stating your opinions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Try to make your property more valuable and modern-looking, but be sure to stay within your budget. Have some friends in tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Get rid of that feeling of inferiority, and realize that you have many valuable talents. This is a good time to do some shopping.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Your mate can proffer some ideas on how to handle a troubling financial matter, so listen to this person and show gratitude for the help.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Several good friends may have the feeling you've been ignoring them, so get together with these people. Listen more and talk less.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Get some expert advice on how to improve your position in credit and civic matters. Be very cautious in motion of any kind today.

If Your Child Is Born Today ... he of she will have a very inquisitive mind, especially where philosophical and scientific matters are concerned, and this tendency should be encouraged. Your progeny should have a fine education, and include foreign languages, as much travel is likely later in life.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a very good day to make definite decisions concerning financial and practical affairs. If a short journey will soon be necessary, this is the right time to make all the specific arrangements.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Forget old, outdated techniques which will only hold you back in life; and try to use modern methods. Enjoy your home this evening.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Sit down with your mate and discuss how to improve your credit situation. Show more affection for this person, and be happy together.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A light and enjoyable amusement could take the tension out of that business situation. Make the evening a very romantic one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You can find a way to improve your efficiency today. This improvement will make your work seem much more enjoyable.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You may have to do quite a bit of running around if you want to get your activities properly organized for the remainder of the week.

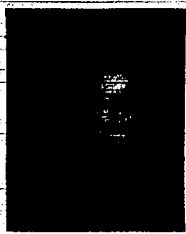

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Financial and property matters are very important right now, so Baxter participates in varsity football and basketball and is class sentinel.

Nebeker is PTSO representative, president of his church group, plays in the band and participated in Murtaugh community plays.

Hansen delegates are Lance Wade Butler, son of Dennis and Ginger Butler, and Brian Andrew Hall, son of Diana Gray and Chet Hall.

Lance Butler — Butler is student body vice president, active in football and track, band and choir president and has held several other class offices.

Hall participates in track, football and basketball; is vice president of the band, choir section leader, belongs to independent band and is a songwriter.

Letters of Thanks

Thanks expressed for help on pool party

It would be impossible to acknowledge and thank each and every organization, service club, youth group, merchant and individual for the effort and time donated to the "Pool Party" held at the Magic Valley Mall April 23.

The community always comes through with dedicated people and terrific ideas when given good reason.

The "Pool Fund" is an ongoing project, and we appreciate all the participation and support, including donated funds from people paying extra dollars on their water bill and merchants, businesses and individuals who donate the prizes for the monthly Sweepstakes drawings.

Although plans for the Twin Falls City Pool have progressed to the point of acceptance of a site and bids, the fund-raising goes on. We have not yet reached our goal and we hope the people who will benefit from the pool and enjoy it do not think the "party is over" ... not yet!

But we will get there, we will reach that goal with all of the continuing support in helping us "make it happen!"

Thank you Magic Valley.

Live-in girlfriend upsets mom by bringing her own dinner

DEAR ABBY: Please settle this. My son brought his live-in girlfriend over to my house for supper. She's 32 and he's 26, and they plan to marry "someday."

My specialty is stew. I am on a fixed income and can't afford anything fancy, but everyone who has had my stew says it's the best. Anyway, the live-in girlfriend brought her own microwave dinner! She said she had my stew and she didn't care for it, so she brought something she could enjoy.

Miss Abby, I raised four children and taught them manners and respect for their elders, which is something this woman obviously never learned. If she had been on a special diet, I would have accommodated her with great compassion, but that wasn't the case, so I told her flat out that she was rude.

Now the girlfriend is mad at my son because he didn't stand up to me and take her part when I said she was rude.

So, please, tell me, who is right?

MOM IN THE MIDDLE
DEAR MOM: You aren't in the middle, your son is. Ms. Live-in was indeed rude to have brought her own dinner to your house.

If she didn't care for your stew, she should have eaten a token and toyed with the rest. Furthermore, if she's mad at your son because he didn't side with her instead of you, she's not only rude, she's stupid.

Every smart woman knows that in the long haul, a man will treat his wife the way he treats his mother.

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: I have been married for 11 years to a man who was married before. (I'll call him Paul.) He and his "ex" were divorced when I met him, so I had nothing to do with breaking up Paul's marriage. They had been married for 17 years and had three children.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Now every time there is a death in Paul's family, his "ex" not only shows up at the funeral, she sits in the family room with his family. I think she has very poor taste. What would be a tactful way for me to get across to Paul's "ex" that she does not belong there?

DEAR ANNOYED: It is not your place to get across to her that she does not belong there. Perhaps she has warm feelings for members of Paul's family, and they for her.

Her three children are bonds between her and your husband's family and always will be, even though she and Paul are divorced.

DEAR ABBY: You recently ran a letter from a Carlton R. Epperson (retired), First Class Petty Officer, who said he believes that his 11 months at sea without setting foot on land is a record. I am writing this letter to you for my uncle, who is still laughing so hard he can't write.

He served from 1942 to 1946 on the USS Minneapolis CA36 heavy cruiser and spent three years and nine months at open sea. (He has 11 battle stars.)

My uncle, who was both a shellback and a polar bear, has gone around the world seven and a half times in water mileage, and engaged in surface battle with the Japanese fleet at Corregidor, the turning point of World War II — as my Mr. Epperson owes my uncle a right-hand salute.

I'm sure you'll be hearing from many of the other 2,000 men who served on the USS Minneapolis during that time. Any one of them can verify this.
