Inspection dispute stalls Senate INF debate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate leaders on Monday indefinitely postponed debate on the U.S.-Soviet medium-range missile treaty, citing a serious superpower dispute over the pact's on-site inspection provisions. The decision puts in doubt whether the Senate will ratify the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty before President Reagan's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev begins May 29. Reagan had appealed to the Senate to act on the treaty before then. Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia canceled the debate opening set tentatively for Wednesday and said he will not call up the INF for debate until the dispute is satisfactorily resolved. "It's obvious that not only have the problems which had surfaced earlier not been resolved but that some new problems have arisen," Byrd told reporters. "I think it behooves the Soviets to come forward with solutions and permit the Senate to open the debate with our eyes open," Byrd said. "We don't want to walk off a cliff." Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he agreed with the decision.

Byrd and Dole announced the decision to postpone the ratification debate after a bipartisan meeting with other Senate leaders and with White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker and national security adviser Colin Powell. Powell, in response to questions from reporters, said after the meeting: "Not a bad outcome, not a bad course of action." He did not elaborate. The three committees that have been evaluating the treaty — Armed Services, Foreign Relations and Intelligence — will continue to monitor the situation and Byrd said he will not schedule ratification debate until all three committees report that all outstanding serious issues have been resolved satisfactorily. The senators involved in the decision to delay the debate declined to discuss the specific problems standing in the way of ratification other than to say they involve implementation of on-site inspection agreements. Byrd said the matter could be resolved by the end of the week, after discussions in Geneva between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard

Shevardnadze on Wednesday and Thursday. But he said there was no guarantee of that. Earlier, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the chairman of the intelligence panel, had agreed with Cohen, saying, "There are serious ambiguities that remain. There simply has not been a meeting of the minds on verification problems. There are a number of things that have to be resolved." Soviet officials have been quoted in recent weeks as backing away from certain on-site inspection procedures spelled out by the treaty.

Polygamists found guilty on 21 counts

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal jury Monday found four members of a polygamist clan guilty of 20 of 23 counts stemming from the bombing of a Mormon chapel and a 13-day standoff with police that left a lawman dead. The jury of seven men and five women, deliberating 25 hours over four days, acquitted clan matriarch Vickie Singer of one count of attempted murder of FBI agents and one count of possession of a sawed-off shotgun. On the charges of attempted murder against the other three, the jury decided to return guilty verdicts in the second-degree, which meant the panel did not find the crimes premeditated as required for first-degree attempted murder. U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins scheduled sentencing July 1. Testimony in the case, one of the most controversial in recent Utah history, lasted as long as the gunfire-punctuated statements at the clan's Marion farm. The siege by some 100 lawmen ended in a shootout Jan. 28 that killed state Corrections Lt. Fred House and injured clan leader Addam Swapp. Assistant Attorney General Creighton Horton III said his office intends next week to file state murder charges in House's death against an unspecified number of the defendants. Swapp, 27, was found guilty of mo-liciously damaging the church building; attempting to kill FBI agents; assaulting, resisting, impeding, intimidating and interfering with federal agents; and possession of an unregistered bomb. He also was guilty of a corollary charge of use of a bomb on the malicious damage count and two counts of use of a firearm linked to the assault and attempted murder charges. The jury found Mrs. Singer, 45, guilty of the same charges as Swapp, with the exception of the attempted murder charge and a corollary firearms charge which the acquittal rendered moot. Swapp's brother, Jonathan Swapp, 21, and Mrs. Singer's son, John Timothy Singer, 21, were found guilty of assault-resistance and attempted murder charges and the two accompanying firearms counts. "We've already won the victory!" Addam Swapp had shouted to reporters as he was led into the federal court building. But there was little discernible reaction when the verdicts were read. Jenkins thanked the jury, saying he believed they had been very discerning. "We were very pleased and satisfied," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Lambert. "It was a very fair verdict. As the judge said, the jury was discerning. They just didn't make a clean sweep."

Board to vote on creationism policy for Twin Falls schools

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls schools may move into a new era on the controversial topic of creationism to night. The Twin Falls School board plans to vote at tonight's meeting on a policy allowing its teachers to mention, but not teach, creationism or any origin of life theory representing a religious tenet in science classes. Assistant Superintendent Keith Tolzin said the public won't be able to speak at tonight's meeting unless the board specifically decides to allow comment.

Instead, the board probably will discuss the issue. A proposal at last month's school board meeting, which was stricter than the one they will consider tonight, was hotly debated by people attending the meeting, but trustees made only passing comments on the issue. The school has received numerous letters and phone calls supporting creationism. But the school district says it is bound by its interpretation of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision, which says creationism is a religious tenet and can't be taught. The policy to be discussed tonight has two prongs. The district says alternative theories of origins should be taught in science classes, but those alternative theories can't represent religious tenets. The implementation of the policy will probably be left to administrators, who will draw up definitions and other guidelines for teachers. The board will also hear from a local resident who proposed his own policy on creationism and specifically requested permission to speak at the meeting. R. Michael Redman, a Twin Falls-County magistrate-judge, is listed on the agenda. Creationism, taught quietly for many years, became an issue last December when Times-News Managing Editor

Raisa shines, Nancy fumes over dinner, Regan writes

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan held both Gorbachev spellbound with Hollywood stories during the Geneva summit, according to the latest tales from the White House, but after Raisa Gorbachev sparked in dinner table conversation, Nancy Reagan fumed: "Who does that dame think she is?" Former White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan, in his book, "For the Record," published Monday, portrayed a first lady who tried to keep presidential spokesman Larry Spinks from saying the word "cancer" when a malignancy was found in her husband's colon and who kept Regan from riding the helicopter to Bethesda Naval Hospital because helicopters were too "presidential" for staff members' use. And he told of a president who perks up in the presence of women — and unflinchingly offers a fatherly wave to the pretty stewardesses across an airport tarmac. Beyond his disclosure of Mrs. Reagan's reliance on a Nob Hill astrologist, Regan's book gave out-of-school tales about a first lady with a pervasive, protective role in her husband's presidency. The Iran-Contra arms and money affair made Mrs. Reagan's "sensitivity to criticism more acute than ever," Regan wrote, and as a result Mrs. Reagan gave him frequent directions on how to handle the matter. "The first lady's telephoning was so frequent that I was spending two or three times as much time talking to her as to the president," he said. Mrs. Regan was influential in Regan's unceremonious departure from the White House. By then, hard

Book in demand

By The Associated Press

Donald Regan's publisher isn't delivering fast enough to get the former White House staffer's badly debated new book onto shelves, book store employees said Monday. Spot checks around the country indicated many booksellers hadn't received by midday Monday the book that tattles about first lady Nancy Reagan's stargazing activities. Many said, however, that readers are clamoring for the book. feelings between the two were common knowledge in Washington. In recalling all the latest in a series of gossip White House memoirs about disarray within the Reagan presidency — Regan described how Raisa Gorbachev, the stylish wife of the Soviet leader, upstaged Nancy Reagan at their first social session — a dinner during the 1985 Geneva summit. Mrs. Regan was hostess, he wrote, but Mrs. Gorbachev "did not confine herself, as most other wives of heads of state and government did in such meetings, to cross-chat with Mrs. Regan on palace housewifery and other harmless subjects." • See BOOK on Page A9

Supplemental levy vote set today

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For Twin Falls School District patrons, today is the day to cast ballots on a $302,000 supplemental levy for textbooks, supplies and utilities. The district is asking its patrons to approve the supplemental levy by saying it won't be able to purchase new textbooks for math, vocational and other classes if the levy isn't approved. Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at six locations: Twin Falls High School, Harrison Elementary School, Lincoln Elementary School, Morning-side Elementary School, Perrine Elementary School and Sawtooth Elementary School. Voters, who must be registered, can cast their ballots at any of the polling places. The levy will have to pass with a 50 percent margin, which is less than in the past. The Idaho Legislature lowered the margins on some levy elections two years ago. Twin Falls schools will receive about a 3.1 percent increase in state funding next year. However, administrators say they are forced to increase budgets 3.8 percent or more to keep up with inflation, mandated salary increases and textbook purchases. The $302,000 levy will help cover a

Polish shipyard workers shout down settlement

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa led a strike rally at the Lenin shipyard Monday and some 700 workers responded, "We'll win! We'll win!" They shouted down a management offer and took their strike into its second week.

Walesa, who founded the independent union Solidarity at the shipyard in the turbulent summer of 1980, told his comrades he still has a "couple of beautiful cards" to play.

In his speech, before the workers were asked whether they wanted to continue striking, Walesa said: "I was afraid we were broken. . . . But the mood is changing. People are coming back" to the strike. "Their wives are saying, 'You can't abandon them.'"

At a prayer meeting in the morning, Walesa had told the strikers: "We're in good shape. Those who wanted to leave are gone. Only the tough ones are here."

The Solidarity founder, a shipyard electrician who won the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize, and strike committee leader Alojzy Szablewski spoke at the 45-minute assembly rally. Walesa, 44, told the strikers last week he was too tired to lead the strike but would be the last to leave the shipyard.

Strikers in Poland customarily occupy the plants rather than leaving them.

Szablewski said late Monday that Tadeusz Goculowski, the Roman Catholic bishop of Gdansk, was trying to get talks with management started again but there were no signs of resumption.

Shipyard workers turned down the management offer of pay raises and reinstatement of some fired activists because it did not include a legally recognized chapter of Solidarity, the independent union, first in the Soviet bloc, was suppressed and then outlawed after martial law was declared Dec. 13, 1981.

State television reported the rejection of the management offer and said in an official commentary:

"The hint of hope for a positive solution which we presented on Saturday and Sunday in our newscasts turned out to be illusory. The organizers of the illegal strike are rejecting every initiative for a conciliatory and humanitarian settlement."

"Poland's communist government has not ruled out ending the strike with force. A pre-dawn police raid last Thursday crushed a 10-day strike by steel workers at Nowa Huta in southern Poland.

Workers at the 15,000-employee Ursus tractor factory outside Warsaw tried to mount a strike Monday in sympathy with those at Gdansk's Le-nia shipyard, but it fizzled.

Opposition spokeswoman Ewa Milewicz said most of the tractor plant's first shift refused to work and employees leaving the plant told a photographer at 2 p.m. the strike included about 1,000 people from three departments.

Employees leaving later, however, reported only about 100 strikers occupying a canteen and said they ended the protest by 9 p.m. The official news agency PAP denied there had been a strike.

Western reporters who were at the 11,000-worker Lenin shipyard late Sunday said about 300 strikers remained. Their number appeared to have more than doubled by the time Walesa spoke at mid-afternoon Monday.

Bennett sets his course

WASHINGTON (AP) — William J. Bennett, a scourge of school bureaucrats, teacher unions and slipshod standards during 3½ years as secretary of education, said Monday he will resign his Cabinet post in mid-September to return to private life.

The Department of Education made the announcement after Bennett met privately with President Reagan at the White House and then informed his senior staff of his departure plans.

Bennett told the staff he had recommended that Linus Wright, the undersecretary of education and a former superintendent of schools in Dallas, succeed him.

Bennett told education reporters last month he probably would not stay for the final few months of the Reagan administration.

In somewhat uncharacteristic fashion, he refused to take calls from reporters Monday to discuss his plans, which include hitting the lecture circuit and writing a book spelling out his vision for improving America's schools and colleges. Bennett plans to issue two new reports on a model elementary school curriculum and on improving colleges before he steps down, said Bill Kristol, his chief of staff. The college book will try to shed some light on the black box of higher education with practical advice for parents, policy-makers and others, he said.

Editor Stephen Hargen and his wife, Jan, asked the school to clarify its policy on creationism.

The Hargens' daughter, Tiffany, was enrolled in a seventh-grade science class where creationism was taught as an alternative theory of origin.

The Hargens said creationism was improper in a science class and several recent court decisions prohibited its teaching.

Tiffany Hargen's teacher, Phil Gerrish, said he taught creationism only as an alternative theory of origins. He denies promoting religious beliefs in his classes.

Twin Falls Superintendent Carl Snow said last week that Gerrish will have to change his classroom presentation. Gerrish says he will want to see what changes will be required before deciding how he will react.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the school district's Main Avenue administration building.

"Mrs. Gorbachev was a highly educated woman — a professor of Marxist-Leninist theory," Regan said. "At this dinner party and the later one at the Soviet Mission, she did not hesitate to make use of the opportunities offered to her to educate the president of the United States on the intellectual and philosophical basis of Soviet policy."

"It was evident that she was mistress of her subject, an intellectual with a truly impressive grasp of a specialty that she regarded as the key to understanding Soviet society and the world beyond," Regan recalled.

"Regan listened to Mrs. Gorbachev's extremely detailed and fervently argued opinions with gallant courtesy."

"Gorbachev, like any husband in his circumstances, kept his peace," Regan said. "Mrs. Regan, however, chafed under the monologue. After the door had closed behind the Gorbachevs, she said, 'Who does that dame think she is?'"

Batt yields political post

WILDER (AP) — Former state senator Phil Batt of Wilder, a new member of the Idaho Transportation Board, has discovered that he can't both serve on the board and participate in a political campaign.
So Batt announced Monday he is resigning as chairman of the re-election committee for Sen. George Vance, R-Wilder.
Batt resigned after the last legislative session to accept appointment to the three-member Transportation Board. Vance was appointed by Gov. Cecil Andrus to succeed Batt and is running for the Republican nomination in District 13 in the May 24 primary election.

Former GOP chairman dies

BOISE (AP) — Funeral services will be held here Tuesday for John O. McMurray, a longtime power in Idaho Republican politics, who died Saturday of natural causes at age 84.
McMurray, who became a partner in the Boise insurance company of Stein-McMurray Insurance in 1944, was state Republican chairman from 1961-67 and a member of the Republican National Committee. He attended the GOP national convention in 1964 as a delegate.
He was civilian aide to the secretary of the Army from 1970-74. He helped found the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry and served as a director from 1975-81.
McMurray was born at Oakley and graduated from the University of Idaho in 1927.
Survivors include two sons, both of Boise, Michael K. McMurray and J. Patrick McMurray.

Tractor rolls, kills driver

BONNERS FERRY (AP) — A Bonners Ferry youth has been killed when the tractor he was driving rolled over, the Boundary County Sheriff's Department reported.
Cody Lee McAlpin, 18, died when he pulled his tractor over to the side of U.S. 95 to allow traffic to pass on Sunday morning and the front tire jumped the guard-rail, causing the tractor to roll, authorities said.

Prison industry unit cited

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's tourism agency is able to respond quickly to requests for information from potential tourists, thanks to inmate labor provided by Correctional Industries.
Correctional Industries has been honored by the Governor's Conference on Tourism for its contributions toward development of the state tourism industry. The award, which was presented to Melvin Johnson, deputy director of Correctional Industries, was announced by the governor's office on Monday.
"This award provides the kind of public recognition that is often overlooked for major accomplishments," said Gov. Cecil Andrus. "This profit-making, self-sufficient entity is providing a very consistent, speedy and cost-effective response to tourism inquiries at a fraction of the national average cost."

Two years ago, the Division of Travel Promotion discovered it was taking months to respond to queries about travel information. Some potential visitors said they hadn't received information six months after making inquiries.

Correctional Industries, which uses prison inmates, took over the program and recently completed its first year as the tourism telemarketing arm for the Department of Commerce.
Future program expansion plans include an in-state WATS line to be used for the Idaho ski report.

Ditch rider drowns in canal

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A 68-year-old ditch rider drowned in the Danskin Canal here over the weekend.
Bingham County Sheriff Roy Nelson said Harold Reeder of Blackfoot was reported missing at about 2:30 p.m. Following a two-hour search by deputies and the Bingham County Search and Rescue group, the body was discovered in a headgate. Reeder's body was discovered a half mile downstream from where Clark Road crosses the canal, located in a rural area northwest of the city.

'Soap box' for candidates

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's Renaissance Fair will institute an old-fashioned way of allowing politicians to express themselves — a "soap box" to speak from.
Nancy Olmstead, president of the fair board, said Monday her instructions to some Latah County Commission candidates to not campaign at the fair this year were the result of "an unfortunate judgment."
She told a Moscow City Council committee the fair will bring back the soapbox "so everyone can get their two cents in. I regret any intimation that I wanted to violate anyone's free speech rights."
Latah County Commission candidates Carol Reynolds and Dana Magnusson were asked April 30 by Olmstead to not campaign at the fair in East City Park to preserve the non-political orientation of the fair.

New statue due at memorial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnam Veterans' Memorial in Washington, D.C., will feature a new statue honoring the thousands of women who served in Vietnam under a proposal cosponsored by Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.
"There were 10,000 women who served with our troops in Vietnam," Craig said. "They performed their duties with the same dedication and heroism as their male counterparts, and I think the time has come for us to recognize their efforts."
The statue would be situated on a ridge near one called "Three Fighting Men." On an opposite rise is "The Wall," a list of the names of Americans who died in the conflict in Indochina.
"The wall of the Vietnam Memorial would be laden with many more names had it not been for the nursing efforts of American women on the battlefield," Craig said.

Beef backers map strategy

The Associated Press

Confident of overwhelming Idaho support, state backers of the National Beef Check-Off mapped last-minute strategy Monday to ensure the high-stakes turnout possible among Idaho ranchers for Tuesday's vote on the future of the 19-month-old industry assessment.
"It all depends on the weather, and it looks like we're going to have a good day," said Linda Ostolasa, an Idaho referendum coordinator. "I'm afraid that will hurt the turnout. When the sun's shining, those ranchers need to get out and get their work done."

Ms. Ostolasa and other industry officials said turnout was not crucial to endorsement of the dollar check-off in Idaho or the rest of the West, where the program has had enthusiastic participation.
"But an overwhelming vote of support was believed needed from the West to offset anticipated negative response in the eastern part of the nation, especially the Northeast."

"I feel sure it will pass, but it's not a shoe-in," Ms. Ostolasa said. "We need all those votes in support to be sure."
To help bolster turnout prospects, Idaho organizers have added 20 polling places to augment balloting at each county extension agent's office around the state, and Ed Duren, Caribou County extension agent overseeing statewide balloting, said referendum supporters have put together a plan to encourage ranchers to vote if turnout is low early in the day.
"In our opinion, the producers want it," Duren said. "There just seems to be some complacency, the feeling that their neighbors can carry it."
Bruce Bradshaw of the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said turnout was difficult to predict, but he expected it to be moderate, possibly running about half of the state's 25,000 cattle producers.

Absentee balloting in the referendum has run at about 1,000, slightly lower than officials expected, but Duren said that reduced absentee balloting may have been prompted by the addition of polling places.
The dollar-a-head assessment, collected at the time of sale, took effect in October 1986, and has since raised tens of millions of dollars for beef industry research, development, and promotion. Tuesday's vote among cattlemen who have been paying the assessment will determine whether it will be continued.

After allowing time for ballots to be challenged, the county agents will count the votes on May 24 and the Agriculture Department will announce the results two days later, Bradshaw said.

In Idaho, the state keeps half of the collections — over $2 million during the 1½ years the assessment has been in effect.

Campaign finances shaping up

BOISE (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, bidding for his fifth term as Idaho's 1st District congressman, already has passed $100,000 in fundraising for his campaign.
Campaign finance reports filed with the secretary of state's office here Monday showed that as of last Wednesday, Craig had $104,754 for the campaign, including $48,625 on hand at the start of the year and $56,129 he has raised so far this year. He has spent $43,507 on the campaign so far this year.
Craig is unopposed for the GOP nomination. There's a three-way race for the Democrat nomination between state Rep. Jeanne Givens; D-Coeur d'Alene, Bruce Robinson of Bonners Ferry and David Shepherd of Lewiston.

In the 2nd District Janet Reid, Idaho Falls, who is seeking the GOP congressional nomination reported raising only $49 in outside contributions.
She listed a $5,000 personal loan to the campaign, which was to be paid to her husband, John, for campaign work.
The other candidate for the nomination, former state senator Dane Watkins, Idaho Falls, hasn't filed his report yet.
Mrs. Reid also filed the personal financial disclosure report required of all congressional candidates.
It showed her family's income was $44,895 from her husband's job with EG&G Idaho in 1987, with a net loss of $142 from Janet L. Reid Publishing. The couple listed no significant holdings, assets or liabilities.
Craig's report showed he received more than half of his latest contributions from political action groups. The largest was $5,000 from a Realtors organization.
Among individual contributors, Duane Jacklin, president of Jacklin Seed Co., Post Falls, contributed $500 as did Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jacklin, the company's production manager.
Donald Walsh, Rador, Pa., contributed $1,000 to Craig for the Sun Political Action Committee.

HEAT WITH GAS
Next winter, be comfortable for a change. Your old heat pump sends out cool 90 degree air. A new gas furnace will keep you warm in the coldest weather with 120 degree air. Heat pumps need a lot of maintenance and are guaranteed for 10 years at best. Most new gas furnaces are guaranteed for 20 years. That ought to tell you something.

COOL WITH ELECTRICITY
Gas heat and electric air conditioning. They're the best year around, trouble-free system money can buy. The compressor in your air conditioner will have a far longer life because it will run about four months a year compared to 10 months a year for a heat pump. And your gas furnace will keep you warm and comfortable year after year after after.

No-Money-Down Financing
When you change from electric to high efficiency gas heat, Intermountain Gas can offer you 10-year, low interest financing with payments as low as $20.00 a month. You can also add a new gas water heater under this finance program. (Certain conditions apply.)

Creation science decision centers on academic freedom

The Twin Falls School District Board of Trustees is facing the difficult decision about whether or not to permit the teaching of creation science in the classroom. The outcome of their decision should be of compelling concern to all citizens, for it appropriately centers around academic freedom.

Here we are again: Phil Gerrish, a seventh grade science teacher at O'Leary Junior High School in Twin Falls, has injected scientific observation and evidence concerning creation science into his curriculum. He seeks to provide balanced treatment of a controversial issue which is steadily and increasingly reaching the front pages of our scientific journals, to say nothing of our national media. He has done this in an open, honest, and scientific manner, refraining from the mention of either God, the Bible or the book of Genesis.

Les Breitman

However, just as there was an enormous volume of material on the evils of communism in the 1950s, that was being kept out of the classroom, sadly to the detriment of our kids, there is now a plethora of scientific observation dealing with evidence for a young earth, a world-wide flood, and the sudden appearance of the various taxonomic types of animals. In the instant case of the O'Leary Junior High School teaching of scientific evidence for creation science (which turns out to be evidence against evolution), the identical fallacy of straw-man logic is being applied. That is, Gerrish's critics label his evidences as being derived from the Bible — the Book of Genesis — and then proceed to attack the Bible as being non-scientific.

Gerrish's instruction is consequently defined as religious and therefore not acceptable in the classroom. Nobody even bothers to comment on the factuality of the scientific evidence presented by Gerrish. Notice the similarity of the nature of the debates mentioned above: attack the Bible; forget the scientific evidence!

Not only is the logical fallacy of straw-man logic being applied to Gerrish's classroom instruction, but he is also being the object of argument ad hominem, another fallacy at logic. To wit, the Twin Falls Times-News has several times printed the religious portion of Gerrish's life outside the classroom, as though this has anything to do with the scientific nature of what Gerrish teaches.

Further, that newspaper deems it relevant that Gerrish is involved with a lawsuit attempting to stop dissemination of obscene material from a local bookstore. Should the reader infer that this comprises Gerrish's ability to present factual and unbiased science instruction in his classroom? If not, why does the Times-News present this irrelevant background information about Gerrish?

Neither can we condemn the scientific observations and conclusions of the creationists scientists of today simply because their source of inspiration can also be found in the Book of Genesis, a book of worship. Should we permit the exclusion of the study of rocks from the classroom simply because New Agers worship crystals, a la religion of Shirley MacLaine? This writer deems it regrettable that creation science was the name chosen to designate this important field of endeavor. It has obviously caused proponents of this view to be branded with all sorts of uncomely religious blemishing. It would have been preferable to employ terms such as "abrupt origins" or "young earth." Such titles might have avoided the "religious" arguments, and then the issue of scientific validity might have been the sole consideration, as well it should be.

Let us hope that our students' education will be made complete by the introduction of this compelling scientific theory, and stop entertaining the ridiculous argument that our kids are going to be somehow converted into foreign religious sect in the classroom!

Letters/ Misconceptions about Twin Falls air service persist

Excellent connections provided for travelers

Recently, Universal Frozen Foods announced in The Times-News that the company would be relocating its sales staff and president to Boise. The reason for this relocation was supposedly the inadequacy of the Twin Falls Airport and its commercial carriers. I attempted to address this situation, both on KMYT and on Party Line radio show. Some misconceptions persist.

David Mallory of Universal Frozen Foods called and told me that the very morning of the announced "pull out," three people were "bumped" from their Skywest flight, and the people bumped were clients of Universal Frozen Foods. Mr. Mallory also left word in my office that this happens "all the time."

I have checked with Skywest Airlines, and from January through April of this year, there were 5,523 passengers on the Twin Falls-Salt Lake route. Eighteen persons were denied boardings on 11 separate flights. This is three-tenths of one percent, and this encompasses 673 flights.

With regard to the Universal Frozen Foods people who were supposedly denied boarding on the day of the announcement of the "pull out," one person was denied boarding, but three people elected to remain. Subsequently the aircraft left Twin Falls with two empty seats.

We have excellent connections from Twin Falls to Salt Lake City with five planes daily. On June 1, Skywest will redeploy the Brazilia Aircraft which holds some 32 passengers, and is fully equipped with a stewardess and rest-room facilities.

We have four round trip flights from Twin Falls to Boise daily and Horizon does a good job serving the North West.

Automotive article

looks like ad to him

Your article in Section F of The Times-News, May 8, 1988, by Warren Brown of the Washington Post is in this writer's opinion an advertisement for the Japanese made automobile Mazda.

Why a reporter or feature writer for any publication would publicly advertise a foreign made product as a feature story is beyond understanding.

For another publisher to reprint it as a story is not rational. Japan has viewed free trade as a one-way street. This writer recently saw a report listing only the best and worst made cars. All of the best made cars listed were American made. All of the worst cars were foreign made.

explains departure

After receiving numerous phone calls at my parents' home in Bountiful, Utah, and after members of my family have run into people from the Twin Falls and Mini-Cassia areas with all sorts of stories, I think that some clarification concerning my disappearance from the weathercast at KMYT-TV needs to be made.

It seems that some people may have received the mistaken impression that I took another job in Salt Lake City, Utah. Actually, I was fired from KMYT for "inconsistency of weather presentation skills and a lack of acceptance by the viewing audience."

My wife and I, and our five children loved the Twin Falls area. We hope to return there again to live some day. We hold all of you special in our memories.

At the present, we are living with my parents in Utah while searching for employment. This will help us conserve our resources during these economically trying times. I am not writing this letter out of spite for KMYT. I really enjoyed working there. It's just one of those things that happens. I just think that the situation needed some clarification.

Effects of gossip

spread like ripples

To some of the people of Wendell: Due to the fact that some of your children came to my home when I wasn't there and brought alcohol with them is not the fault of my daughter. If you would have gathered your facts instead of listening to gossip, you would have found out that I do not allow my daughter to drink, nor do I allow her friends to come to my house and drink.

Because of all the gossip, she is not allowed to be around some of her very good friends. Maybe you people should stop and consider what would happen if the tides were turned. I would at least have the courtesy to get the facts before I condemned anyone. Just because I am a single mother doesn't mean that I let my children get away with anything from yours. Maybe it's because I'm a little more understanding that all of your children come to our house. It's true that I can't be home all the time, but think about it, can you?

Letters/ Oregon solves problem with mail-in balloting

An idea worth considering

Here in Idaho we are concerned about polling places that are near our homes.

Oregon, our neighbor state, has solved this problem by mail-in ballots and increased the democratic process of voting by 80 percent.

After one year of trial, mail-in voting in Oregon, officials cite an increase up to 80 percent in those who vote. Josephine County in a recent school levy had 74 percent voter participation.

The only problem they found was that 18 percent of the ballots were returned because of outdated addresses.

County officials note that when the address rolls are updated the percentage of voters will reach the high 80s or even as high as 90 percent of the voters.

Federal, state, county and city governments all have mail-in taxes, how about choosing our government by this same process?

Urges support for Robbins

I am writing in support of Gary Robbins for the position of state representative District 25.

Gary is an experienced legislator, having served for two terms from District 14. He has been a vigorous advocate, often taking part in debate and lending his wisdom to the committees that he faithfully served — namely agricultural affairs, commerce, industry and tourism and revenue and taxation.

Inasmuch as Gary is a certified public accountant, many of us have leaned on him for advice concerning revenue and taxation matters. He is very knowledgeable in his field of expertise.

Representative Robbins has been in the forefront in his support of adequate education for the people of Idaho.

He has worked diligently for economic development upon which the prosperity of our state depends.

I am happy to urge your support for Gary Robbins in the primary and general elections. His faithful past activity merits his continued service for our great state.

Idaho needs training area

In response to the "Dear Magic Valley" article in the Twin Falls Times-News, dated May 5, 1988: I am a member of the Idaho Army National Guard and, like the children in the Wendell Elementary School sixth grade, I am a strong supporter of wildlife conservation. I am proud to live in such a beautiful country and will support any cause to preserve our natural habitat.

I am also proud, however, to have been skillfully trained to defend and protect the freedoms that we enjoy in this great land. I feel that a few more facts need to be mentioned about the National Guard's activities and impact on the Boise area. Of the 31,000 acres presently being reserved for the raptors, one-third will be used by the National Guard. This land is already being used, and has been since 1953. As of yet, there has been no substantial bird reduction or destruction to the raptors' habitat.

Actually, the Idaho Army National Guard has done everything possible to keep the area flourishing by reseeding and building fire breaks so that fires are contained with minimal damage to the area and the habitat.

Forty thousand Guard members from Idaho and different states will train in the Boise area in 1988. This will result in approximately $18 million being turned over in the Boise area, exceeding the $20 million already being spent on goods and services provided to the training area exclusively. Idaho National Guard creates 4,450 full and part time jobs, resulting in $2.5 million dollars in taxes on salary plus $1.5 million sales tax. For each dependent of a federal employee attending public schools, the federal government pays that school district $200 per child. The $18 million allotted for these improvements to the training area will be open for bid to local contractors.

To sum this up, the Idaho Army National Guard will spend $97.7 million dollars in the state of Idaho in 1988 alone. Let's face reality, Idaho needs the training area in Boise. If we don't concern ourselves with the economy now, all that may be left to enjoy this great state is the birds of prey.

It's still brainwashing

To the people who think that the Bible should be taught in public schools: First, you have to get the fed to back your idea, and that requires a majority of American voters. As Abe Lincoln said, you can't feel that many people long enough to pass legislation for words to that effect! Second, and most importantly, if you want to teach your children morals, values and/or religious beliefs, you should teach them by example and you should do so, I believe, at home.

We have something called religious freedom in this country, and you should think about that with an open mind before you start forcing your beliefs and attitudes on impressionable children.

In Iran they use human mine detectors of grade school age. To prolong the usefulness of the older (high school age) soldiers in their holy war, I see a parallel between what you Christian bigots are saying, and what the Ayatollah is doing. Whether you think it's right or not, it's still brainwashing.

Common sense must prevail

The defense of this country should have priority over the Audubon Society, The Friends of the Good Earth, The Snake River Alliance, The High Desert Coalition and any other anti-war and environmentalist groups. And yes, colonel, even over the cattlemen and sheepherders.

A lot of the birds nest in the cliffs of the Snake River well above the high water level and far enough below the canyon rim to be safe from predators, including most humans. The Townsend Ground Squirrel or the damn gopher as most farmers and ranchers call them is the food supply for a lot of these useless and undesirable chicken hawks called Ptarmigan falcons. The Sultan of Iran values a pair of these birds at $1,500 — good, let him have them! They like pheasant, quail, dove, sage hen, chukar and chicken eggs to munch on. They do a fair job on locusts ( Mormon cricket), grasshoppers and other crop destroying bugs and insects.

The scullie do a lot better job if you can get them to show up and you can call Salt Lake City and talk to the right people. The National Guard is not going bird hunting with M-60 tanks and other weapons of war. If they kill a few of those damnable gophers then by hell the birds can just sit around and have a picnic.

Let us pray that the birds of prey will continue to live in the land of the brave and free, protected by the National Guard. Let common sense prevail, so help us all. For God and country.

Bush considered Noriega report as speculative, aide says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush knew of allegations of drug trafficking by the government of Gen. Manuel Noriega well before the Panamanian indictment earlier this year, but viewed the information as speculative, a campaign official said Monday.

Peter Teeley, spokesman for Bush's Republican presidential campaign, said Panama was just one of a number of countries about which there were such reports. He repeated Bush's central contention that he did not have clear evidence of Noriega's alleged drug dealing until Noriega's indictment in Florida in Febru-

The question of exactly when Bush learned of Noriega's alleged role in drug-dealing has become a major issue in the presidential race. It was raised in the Republican primaries before Bush locked up the GOP nomination and now is being pressed by Democrats Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson. Bush has consistently maintained he had no direct knowledge of a Noriega role in drug trafficking — just as he has said he lacked early knowledge in the other case that followed him as he campaigns, the Iran-Contra arms-hostages affair.

Democratic front-runner Dukakis frequently criticizes what he calls "dealing with drug-running Panamanian dictators" by the Reagan-Bush administration. And Jesse Jackson asserts, "The reason Mr. Bush has not led the charge to fight drugs is because he knew of the administration's dealings with the drug dealers."

Critics have asserted that, either Bush knew more than he is saying on the subject or, if he didn't, he should have as head of the South Florida Task Force, a federal drug-inderdiction effort, in the early 1980s.

Bush, a former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has made the war on drugs a major campaign issue, challenging both Dukakis and Jackson to stand with him in supporting the death penalty for "drug kingpins."

Teeley said Bush's assertion that he had no prior knowledge of specific Noriega drug dealings does not suggest Bush was completely in the dark.

"I think anybody who knows anything about what's gone on in the world of international narcotics trafficking is fully aware that there are all sorts of rumors and reports about foreign officials being involved in drug traffic-ing, money laundering and payoffs. Some turn out to be accurate, some are not," Teeley said. "We heard all sorts of accusations about the government in the Bahamas, Columbia, Bolivia, Peru, Mexico and Panama," he added. "But the question is, when do you get concrete evidence that something of this nature is indeed true?"

The New York Times, quoting unidentified administration officials, said in Sunday editions that the former U.S. ambassador to Panama, Everett E. Briggs, told in a letter to President Reagan will formally endorse Bush on Wednesday.

Senators want DUI called 'national crisis'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ninety-nine senators asked Surgeon General C. Everett Koop on Monday to declare drunken driving a "national crisis," but Koop said he believed the problem was most effectively handled locally.

"I am a man of integrity. I make no promises that I can't keep," the government's top medical official said at a news conference at which several senators and members of private groups called for a federal effort to bring attention to the problem.

In a letter handed to Koop at the session, the senators wrote that about 24,000 people are killed and 43,000 seriously injured in alcohol-related automobile accidents each year.

"We urge you to focus national attention on this slaughter on our highways by declaring drunk driving to be a national crisis," the letter said.

The letter was signed at the news conference by 12-year-old Charlene Boyette of Hopkins, S.C., whose father was killed in an accident involving a drunken driver in 1986.

Koop said that drunk driving is "the direct cause of far too many tragedies in our homes and neighborhoods."

He said that on June 15, a member of his staff will begin developing a plan his office can use to support efforts by citizens groups to reduce drunken driving.

Shultz plans another Mideast peace mission for early June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite repeated failures, Secretary of State George P. Shultz will make another attempt in early June to persuade Arab and Israeli leaders to agree to negotiations on Palestinian self-rule and an overall Middle East settlement. "There are problems there that need to be resolved," State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said Monday in announcing Shultz will visit Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Syria immediately after the superpower summit in Moscow. Shultz will remain in the region from June 3 until a meeting of the North-Atlantic-Treaty-Organization foreign ministers in Madrid on June 9-10. "The status quo is not tenable," Redman said in announcing that President Reagan had directed the secretary to try again.

After a fact-finding tour of the region last October, Shultz flew to the Middle East in late February, reported to Reagan at an allied summit meeting in Brussels and returned in early March. He made a separate trip in April but failed to line up any of the Mideast leaders except Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Still, Shultz vowed to keep at it, fighting the long odds. "What am I saving myself for, anyway," he said at the end of the last venture.

Redman said Arabs and Israelis had urged Shultz to keep trying. "All of the people in the region have been very insistent on the fact that the secretary and the administration continue these efforts," the spokesman said.

He acknowledged, however, that the plan for negotiations had not won approval and declined to specify any changes in position by the various leaders that might make this trip a success.

"The real reason the secretary is going is because at this stage we've not yet been able to bring about the negotiations to which all of this effort is directed," Redman said.

Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead — said, meantime, that Shultz believes that "though the prospects for progress may not look encouraging, at the moment he really has no other course but to keep at it."

He spoke to foreign correspondents at the Foreign Press Center.

Shultz initially hoped a Mideast peace conference could be convened in mid-April, setting up negotiations on the Palestinians on May 1 between Israel and a delegation headed by Jordan that included Palestinians.

Regan 'falsehoods' irritate Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was quoted Monday as telling a luncheon guest that Donald T. Regan's tell-all book was a bunch of falsehoods and the White House denounced it as a "breach of confidence."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater refused to say whether astrology was used to determine the president's schedule, but said first lady Nancy Reagan would continue to consult an astrologer and said "she has that right."

As Regan's new insider account went on sale, syndicated columnist Carl Rowan, who had lunch with Regan on Monday, quoted the president as calling the book by his former chief of staff "a bunch of falsehoods" and saying, "I'll be damned if I'll just stand by and let them railroad my wife."

"He claims, for example, that Mrs. Regan never asked him to fire former CIA Director (William J.) Casey," Rowan said in his conversation with Regan. "He says Mrs. Regan didn't fire Regan. He says Regan got ticked off when somebody leaked the story that Howard Baker was going to replace him as chief of staff."

Regan was ousted as White House chief of staff in early 1987, reportedly at the urging of Mrs. Regan, among others.

Rowan, in an interview on WDVN-TV in Washington, also said the president told him a three-month period of activity following his July 1986 colon cancer surgery "had nothing to do with astrology," as maintained in the book.

He said Regan told him Mrs. Regan "was only trying to get Regan to honor what the doctors had put on paper, and said the president could or couldn't do."

"He said she was very upset and had said to him that she feared that she had brought all this down on his head, and he had told her, 'No, honey, I brought all this down on your head by taking this job,'" Rowan quoted Regan as saying.

Fitzwater, meanwhile, repeatedly sidestepped requests to say whether Mrs. Regan's stargazing has had any connection with her husband's public outings.

"Every first lady since Martha Washington has had a role in the presidency," Fitzwater said, "and I don't think anyone denies a role of a wife and her husband. ... But I'm not going to try to characterize any specific responsibilities."

The new book by Donald Regan is a kiss-and-tell story in the mold of all books that seek to exploit the presidency or the first family for personal self-interest, Fitzwater said.

Regan's book, "For the Record," depicted a passive president unduly influenced by his wife on many matters, including the scheduling of public appearances. Regan suggested that Mrs. Regan's interference in scheduling harmed her husband's presidency at times.

Fitzwater said Regan feels "deep personal disappointment" with this breach of confidence." Mrs. Regan was quoted by her press secretary as saying, "I was taken aback by the vengefulness of the attack. It comes through to me that Don Regan doesn't really like me."

Asked about a weekend White House statement labeling his book as a product of "vindictiveness and revenge," Regan responded in an NBC-TV interview, "They ought to know it when they see it."

Town meetings attack 'Star Wars'

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Activists in the western Massachusetts towns where the nuclear freeze movement was born are attacking "Star Wars" with the tactic they used so well eight years ago: town meetings.

So far, residents of 13 communities have voted to order their town clerks to notify President Reagan of their displeasure with the satellite-based missile-killing system also known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The anti-SDI article failed in two other towns and was tabled in a third, but activists said Monday they were heartened by the results thus far. Fifteen to 20 towns are expected to debate the question in May and June.

Nancy dismisses right-to-lifers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-abortion activists expressed disappointment Monday at Nancy Reagan's reported declaration that "I don't give a damn about the right-to-lifers," but they praised President Reagan's steadfast support for their cause.

ord. From Wall Street to Washington.

Regan wrote that during a telephone conversation from Washington with Mrs. Regan at Camp David, Md., on Jan. 24, 1987, the first lady demanded that all mention of the abortion issue be eliminated from the draft text of her husband's State of the Union address.

"Albert Einstein said nuclear technology should be discussed on the village square," said Frances Crowe of the American Friends Service Committee of Northampton, who is helping to organize the drive against SDI.

"These town meetings are really the most democratic way of letting the people discuss and decide about nuclear issues," said Crowe.

She and others in the Coalition to Stop Star Wars, a group of 35 area activists, hope to use the town meeting votes to get an anti-SDI question on the statewide referendum in November.

Nakasone pays courtesy call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, beginning a week-long visit to the United States, paid a courtesy call Monday on President Reagan.

ministership, and the two leaders developed a first-name, "Ron-Yasu" relationship.

Nakasone, 69, remains an influential member of the Japanese Diet (parliament) in the Liberal-Democratic Party headed by his successor Noboru Takeshita.

In western Massachusetts, where Democrats outnumber Republicans by better than 3-1, towns have never been shy about their opinions on global matters.

The nuclear freeze movement began on the floors of town meetings in western Massachusetts in the spring of 1980. It spread to the ballot box that fall.

Chirac prepares to hand over power

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Premier Jacques Chirac on Monday prepared to resign and hand over power to a new Socialist-led government a day after he was trounced in an election by President François Mitterrand.

Meanwhile, the Paris stock market rebounded positively to the Socialist incumbent's victory.

While aides packed files and personal items in cardboard boxes and plastic sacks, Chirac made an appointment to hand his resignation letter to Mitterrand on Tuesday, his spokesman said.

The move clears the way for appointment of a new premier.

Officials at presidential Elysee Palace made no comment, but Mitterrand was widely expected to name Chirac's successor within a day or two.

Mitterrand, 71, swept away his 55-year-old premier in Sunday's voting, winning re-election to a second seven-year term and ending two years of uncomfortable "cohabitation" between the political opponents.

Final results announced Monday afternoon gave Mitterrand 16,710,723 votes or 54 percent, to 14,221,682 or 46 percent for Chirac.

Michel Rocard, a 57-year-old former agriculture minister, was billed as the most likely choice to lead the new government. Mitterrand has said he wants non-Socialists included in the Cabinet.

Rocard has been known for his openness to the political center, a characteristic that has helped make him suspect among some officials in his own Socialist Party.

Other possible names include two former finance ministers, Jacques Delors and Pierre Berégovoy, and Mitterrand's chief of staff, Jean-Louis Bianco. But political commentators said the wily president could well surprise everyone with an unexpected choice.

The Socialists control only 211 seats in the 577-member National Assembly, so the life of the new government could be difficult — or short.

The new premier could try to negotiate a coalition with centrist members of parliament but will probably try to survive at least several months by avoiding controversial issues apt to lead to a legislative defeat.

Mitterrand could also dissolve the body and call new elections, but he has vowed to do so only if his first government loses a parliamentary vote of confidence and falls.

The Union for French Democracy, the center-right coalition body that was aligned with Chirac's Rally for the Republic for the past two years, said in a statement that it would judge the new premier's proposals one by one and not automatically vote to censure his government.

Meanwhile, the extreme-right National Front claimed it was the new leader of France's right.

Beirut carnage continues; 65 die, 150 hurt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival militias fought hand-to-hand Monday for control of Shiite slums and rained shells on each other's positions in the grim shantytowns despite Syrian army orders to stop the four days of carnage.

Police said 65 people were killed and 150 wounded Monday, bringing total casualties in the Shiite territorial war to 154 dead and 367 wounded.

The thunder of shellfire rolled over the city all day and into the night. Gunmen atop racing ambulances fired into the air to clear traffic so the wounded could reach hospitals. Radio stations appealed for blood donations.

Doctors confirmed allegations by both sides that wounded fighters were dragged from ambulances and hospitals and slaughtered by their rivals.

Fighting began Friday between the moderate militia Amal, which means Hope and has Syria's backing, and the radical, pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God.

Syria has 25,000 soldiers in Lebanon, about 7,500 in Beirut. It is the main power broker after 13 years of civil war but is being challenged by Iran, which the Syrians support in its 8-year-old war with Iraq.

The battle for control of Beirut's southern slums, where an estimated 250,000 Shiites live, raised fears about the fate of 18 foreign hostages. They include nine Americans and most are believed held by Hezbollah-affiliated kidnappers in the 16-square-mile Shiite enclave.

Lebanon's 1.2 million Shiites are its largest sect. With Syria's blessing, Amal crushed Hezbollah last month in a predominantly Shiite south Lebanon. The four-day battle cost 62 lives and 150 people were wounded.

Among Monday's victims were three Amal militiamen killed with axes. Their bodies were taken to Beirut's American University Hospital. Officials there said it was full to capacity and could not handle more casualties.

An Amal spokesman said privately the three "were axed to death after they were taken prisoner by Hezbollah."

Pope leaves for Bolivia

SALTO, Uruguay (AP) — Pope John Paul II left Uruguay on Monday in a special jet whose oxygen level was reduced to prepare him for the high altitude of his next stop: rugged, landlocked Bolivia.

John Paul headed to La Paz, the world's highest capital at 2½ miles above sea level.

A Vatican advance team had already been sent to the mountainous capital to test the possible effects of kneeling and kissing the ground at more than 12,000 feet above sea level.

Vatican officials said the pope would be given a light meal and the oxygen level in the cabin of the Lloyd Agro-Boliviano jet-taking him there would gradually be reduced.

On his four-nation, 12-day visit to South America, which began Friday, the 67-year-old pontiff was also scheduled to travel to Peru and Paraguay.

The pope's schedule calls for five days in the poor, mountainous country, where government austerity measures that eliminated 20,000-percent annual inflation have caused serious labor unrest due to mass layoffs. The country is also a major source of the world's cocaine.

In Uruguay, where the pope made an overnight stop in March 1987, John Paul asked for a renewal of religious fervor and for more priests. This small nation of 3 million is South America's most secular society, with an agnostic president and only lukewarm interest in church affairs.

Since arriving last Saturday, the pope visited the towns of Melo near Brazil, Florida outside the capital of Montevideo and Salto on the northwestern frontier with Argentina.

John Paul was presented with gifts ranging from a live fawn to a nest of a local bird.

In Salto, Uruguay's second-largest city with 77,000 residents, John Paul spoke at a mass Monday about his hopes for a renewal of evangelization in South America, saying "religious fervor is not fanaticism but is coherent with Christian life."

Earlier Monday, John Paul met privately in Montevideo with President Julio Sanguinetti, an agnostic Sanguinetti, a highly popular leader, became president in 1985 when he restored democracy to Uruguay after 12 years of harsh military rule.

John Paul is scheduled to spend his 68th birthday in Paraguay on May 18 and returns to Rome on May 19.

Israel jails Awad pending his trial

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel's Supreme Court refused immediate deportation of an Arab-American accused of inciting violence. But said Monday he must be kept in jail.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Mubarak Awad might be danger to security if he was released.

Soldiers shot a Palestinian to death and wounded four in a battle with stone-throwers during a general strike in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where Arabs began a rebellion against Israeli occupation five months ago.

In Gaza, the army arrested three women without charge and ordered them to be jailed for four months under emergency laws. Hundreds of men have been confined under those laws but the measures seldom have been used against women.

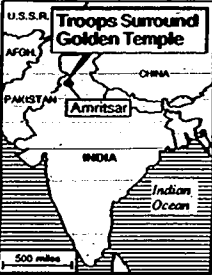

At least 185 Palestinians have been killed since the violence began Dec. 8. An Israeli soldier and a Jewish settler also have been slain.

Supreme Court justices set May 23 to hear the appeal. The deportation order was issued after his arrest Thursday night.

The court accepted a request by Awad, 44, to remain in Israel until it completes the appeal. The deportation order was issued after his arrest Thursday night.

Justices Aharon Barak, Gabriel Bach and Shoshana Netanyahu turned down Awad's request for release after seeking an opinion from Shamir, who signed the deportation order.

Shamir issued a statement saying Awad might incite Arab violence, endangering security.

Sikhs, police clash in gun battle; 4 die

AMRITSAR, India (AP) - Security forces fought a gun battle Monday with Sikh extremists inside the Golden Temple and more than 2,000 paramilitary troops surrounded the 400-year-old Sikh shrine, police reported.

Witnesses said at least four people were killed and five wounded.

Militants began shooting at 1:15 p.m. after spotting officers inspecting their position from outside the temple. Security forces fired back with light machine guns, said Baldev Singh, superintendent of police in Amritsar.

Indian journalists trapped inside the Golden Temple, the holiest shrine of Sikhism, said one civilian and three Sikh militants were killed.

Authorities imposed an indefinite curfew on the walled central district of Amritsar to keep civilians indoors.

Sikhs make up less than 2 percent of India's 800 million people but are a majority in Punjab. Extremists have been fighting since 1982 for a separate Sikh nation in the northern agricultural province, and thousands of people have been killed.

The Sikh religion was founded five centuries ago as an alternative to Hinduism and Islam. Sikhs claim Hindus, the vast majority in India, discriminate against them. Five people were reported killed by Sikh extremists in overnight attacks in Punjab, the United News of India reported. On Saturday, Sikh gunmen killed 13 Hindu migrants on a road in a wedding party in neighboring Haryana state.

At least 941 people have been reported slain so far this year - more than twice the rate in 1987, when Sikh extremists killed 1,000 people. Most victims are Hindus or Muslims.

A government statement released Monday in Chandigarh, capital of Punjab, called the shooting from inside the Golden Temple a "great provocation."

The 2,000 paramilitary troops sealed off exits and kept people from entering.

Philippines ask for nuclear compromise

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Philippines is asking the United States to accept reduced flexibility regarding nuclear weapons and to pay more compensation in the military bases review taking place in Manila, according to Foreign Minister Reul Manglapus, the Philippines' chief negotiator in the month-old talks.

Manglapus, interviewed during a brief visit to the northern Virginia area where he lived 14 years in exile during the regime of Ferdinand E. Marcos, said the sticky nuclear issue must be addressed because the new Philippines-constitution declares that nation's policy to be

"freedom from nuclear weapons on its territory."

This constitutional provision, adopted last year instead of a much more specific one, is "subject to interpretation," Manglapus conceded.

However, he said, the constitutional restrictions should be applied. He cited Spain, where the United States has accepted limits on the storage, overflight and transit of nuclear weapons in connection with U.S. bases there, he said.

"The United States seems to be able to live with that," he said. U.S. officials have expressed concern about the restrictions in Spain, noting that Spain no longer receives U.S. security assistance in connection with the bases.

Manglapus did not detail the Philippines' nuclear-related demands. He did confirm that the Philippines is asking for the right to inspect all areas of the big, important U.S. bases, including "cryptographic areas" now off-limits to such inspections. One reason, he said, is that "there is always suspicion" that "something" else might be in those areas.

The U.S.-Philippines bases agreement authorizing use of Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, which are among the most important American facilities in the Pacific, runs out in 1991. President Corason Aquino has made no decision on a renewal of the accord, saying it is her policy to keep Philippine options open.

A five-year basing agreement "review," however, began April 5 in Manila and is to be completed in July.

Suitable South Park polling place must wait for November

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Petitioners seeking a polling place in South Park have pushed back expectations for the switch to the November general election, instead of the May primary.

South Park, or District-18, residents now vote.

South Park's fire station was considered too small and the South Central Community Action Agency, aside from being outside the district's boundaries, wasn't heated sufficiently.

"It was just a little old living room," Clerk Dick Pence said of the fire station handling 1,100 residents of the area.

But petitioners Don McMurrian and Joe Gulick, who is a Democratic legislative candidate, said there are only about 600 registered voters in the area. They said the county Judicial Annex and Twin Falls High School, used as polling places in other precincts, are each crowded.

"First of all, there's not enough parking" at the annex, Gulick said. "You can hardly find a parking place today, much less on election day when you've got three precincts all voting there."

Their search continues for another spot in South Park.

The grange hall, where South Park residents voted until four years ago, became obsolete as a polling place because of its steps — polling places must be handicap-accessible.

Bipartisan petitioners sought to move a polling place closer to South Park because of the longer distances to the Judicial Annex. Petitioners said the distance was too great for residents without cars and the county complex was perceived as intimidating to the area's lower-income residents.

McMurrian and Gulick said they have collected 120 signatures so far, but stopped when county officials seemed willing to switch a polling place to South Park. Few residents turned down the opportunity to sign a petition to bring a polling place closer to home, they said.

The deadline passed April 25 for changing the polling places before the primary. But Oct. 10 is the deadline to change polling places for the general election.

Commissioners, who ultimately decided where polling places are located, were initially reluctant to change the location of polling places between the primary and general election. They feared causing confusion about where people should vote.

But commissioners will continue to look at alternatives offered.

"I'm sure we'll be looking at it further, but I don't want to make any promises," said Commissioner Marvin Hempleman.

Shoshone will build RV dump

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation has approved funds for a recreational vehicle dump station in Shoshone.

Mayor Tim Ridinger said the state recreation group has approved a $12,000 grant to install the facility, which is proposed for the southwest edge of town.

The city will provide some labor as part of its grant match, as well as provide the land, he said.

The city is negotiating with Idaho Power Co. to acquire five lots adjacent to U.S. Highway 93 where it enters Shoshone from the south. The proposed site would be convenient to travelers in the area, Ridinger said.

First plans called for the city to trade land with Idaho Power to consolidate the power companies property in the area and give the city a "good site" for the RV station. Ridinger said negotiations are continuing with the power company.

Plans also call for the city to landscape the site. The project must be fully underway by June 30.

City planning and zoning administrator Mike Austin said the proposed site will have to be rezoned from residential to commercial use to allow for the RV use. Rezone requires a three-week public notice period, followed by a public hearing, Austin said.

The city asked that the re-zone process be started as quickly as possible to facilitate work on the grant project. In related business at last week's city council meeting, Councilman Jerry Baltazor said the state Parks Department is accepting pre-applications for grants from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Appeals likely by developers on state hold

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hydroelectric developers on the main stem of the Snake will either appeal a state hold on their projects or they are thinking about appeals.

Tacoma City Light may appeal state plans to shelve its A.J. Wiley project near Bliss for two years, says spokesman Garth Jackson.

Bish Beymer, developer of a $45 million hydro project at Star Falls near Murtaugh, says he will appeal. Cogeneration Inc. of Boise can't say yet if it will appeal the hold on its Auger Falls project downstream of Twin Falls, says Bill Block of J-U-B Engineering.

Auger developers won't be able to tell until the state Department of Water Resources issues appeals procedures.

Tacoma doesn't know the basis of the appeal yet because it too is awaiting the appeal regulations, says Jackson.

One possibility for appeal is the large amount of money spent on the application, he says.

"If it's (the appeal) a legal requirement to establish the license, then we will do it," Jackson said.

Effective July 1, the rivers protection law shields stretches of Idaho rivers from development including the Snake from north of Murtaugh to King Hill.

During the two-year hold, DWR will fashion a comprehensive rivers plan. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission licenses non-federal dams. FERC has to consider a state's rivers plan in its licensing decisions.

But if FERC should license a dam over the state's objections, then the state will set for a legal confrontation of national import over federal and state rights.

A key provision of the law is maintaining state control over dam licensing decisions.

The state feels it should control the destiny of its water resources and not the federal government or out-of-state interests.

City Light's Wiley project would produce an average of 65 megawatts per 24 hours. No price tag is attached to the project but City Light said when Idaho Power Co. tried to develop the same site, the cost was about $200 million.

Other rivers receiving protection under the new law are:

- Priest River, from the Canadian border to the confluence of Priest Lake;
- South Fork of the Boise River, from Anderson Ranch Dam to Neal Bridge;
- The North Fork of the Payette River from Caberton Bridge to Bankette;
- South Fork of the Payette River, from the Sawtooth Wilderness Boundary to Banks;
- Main Payette River, from Banks to Black Canyon Dam;
- Henry's Fork of the Snake River, from Banks to Black Canyon Dam;
- Henry's Fork of the Snake River from its point of origin at Henry's Lake to the point of its confluence with the backwaters of Ashton Reservoir.

Richfield gets superintendent

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

RICHFIELD — Montana native Neuman Matson has been hired as the new school superintendent in Richfield.

He replaces Jenn Waite, who resigned in January and left in April in the middle of his second year because of a controversy over student discipline.

Matson says he is originally from Missoula, Mont. After four years in the Navy, he completed undergraduate work at the University of Montana in Bozeman.

After teaching two years at Berah High School in Boise, Matson moved to Leadore, where he taught industrial arts, health and mathematics for four years and then was superintendent for 17 years. During that time he received his master's degree from the University of Montana in Missoula.

When the last of his five children left home, Matson left Leadore to move to Texas to live near his son and also his wife, Jacqueline, could resume her work as a registered nurse.

"I was looking for employment there and hadn't found it, so I decided to come back to Idaho and get back into education," Matson says.

After applying for several positions, Matson, 57, accepted an offer from Richfield for an annual salary of $33,000. He says his wife is still working in Texas but plans to move to Richfield soon.

"Right now, I'm trying to get acquainted with the students and staff, and wind the school year down," says Matson, who started work May 2. The last day of school is May 20.

Small schools, he says, usually have a problem with turnover of staff. Young teachers get a few years of experience and then move to more populated areas for more pay.

Also, Matson says, big demands are made on a small staff. Teachers usually have to teach in multiple areas so the school can meet accreditation requirements.

The humanities, such as art and music, and guidance are the most difficult teaching positions to fill, he says, because they are not full-time.

Juvenile detention center raises specter of increased local taxes

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State licensing guidelines for juvenile detention centers and an increase in the number of youths committing crimes could result in a tax increase for county property owners.

County Commissioner Judy Patton said the Idaho Commission for Children and Youth is drafting regulations that will require a staff increase at the Southern Idaho Youth Center in Jerome, where Twin Falls County sends its youth offenders, which should be finalized by July; the county's youth correction price tag could increase from $74,000 in 1987 to $150,000 this year.

Felton said the increased costs could cause taxes to rise, but added it is too early in the budget-making process to know for sure.

Felton said according to the tentative state regulations, he would have to hire an nursing care, buy exercise equipment and increase his staff. His seven-member staff

Pizza, beer trail lead to man's arrest

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — His 12-pack ripped open and a dozen Coors bottles littered the ground. He dropped his frozen pizza. Then he cut his lip while shaving off his mustache.

It was all in a day for Thomas Walsh Jr., who was attempting to escape after robbing a convenience store Sunday evening, police reports allege.

Police arrested Walsh, a 30-year-old from Fresno, Calif., at about 7:30 p.m. Sunday — an hour and a half after the 7-Eleven on Kimberly Road was held up.

Walsh was arrested Monday on charges of armed robbery and resisting arrest. Bail was set at $45,000.

Police records allege Walsh used a large butcher knife to rob approximately $20 in cash and checks from the store. Following an intense manhunt, he also kicked a police officer in the shin when being arrested, according to police reports.

The mustachoid man, whose hair is pulled into a short ponytail, had been staying at the Western Motel on Kimberly Road for the last 30 days, said Pat Birmingham, a commander with the Twin Falls Department of Public Safety.

The robber entered the 7-Eleven sometime around 6:45 p.m., according to police records. For the next 15 minutes he talked to the store's two clerks, Suzanne Giles and Annis Chong, asking questions about pizza and hotdogs.

He eventually picked up a 12-pack of Coors and a frozen pizza, which he placed on the front counter. The robber then grabbed Chong by her apron and pushed a large butcher knife against her chest.

After the robber demanded the money from the till, the second clerk, Giles, opened a drawer and handed him currency and checks. The robber grabbed the beer and pizza, then left the store on foot.

Giles, a 26-year-old Twin Falls resident, attempted to call police using the phones inside the 7-Eleven, but neither one worked. She also tried to use the two phones located in booths outside the store, but met the same problem.

The robber apparently cut the lines of all four phones, Birmingham said. However, Giles walked next door to the Pioneer Bar where she telephoned police. Officers spent the next hour and a half looking for the robber, who walked with a pronounced limp.

One officer found the beer and pizza strewn on the ground behind the store. The way it looked, the 12-pack just ripped open and it scattered all over, Birmingham said.

Another officer found the butcher knife in front of the Gerri Motel, near the 7-Eleven store. Police located the knife after three children told officers they saw a man — running west on Kimberly Road — throw a large knife into that area.

At about 7:20 p.m., Cpl. Jim Massey saw Walsh limping north in an alley between the 100 block of Ash and Elm streets. The officer, driving in his patrol car, followed Walsh for a few minutes, then stopped him in a vacant lot on the northwest corner of Second Avenue East and Ash Street.

Massey asked Walsh for some identification, and the suspect provided the officer with a photo ID picture — Walsh — with a mustache. See PIZZA on Page B3

'Secret war' talks set

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — "Exposing the Secret War in Central America" is the topic of a north-west caravan of speaking engagements that rolls into Twin Falls Thursday.

The Fellowship of Reconciliation is hosting the event featuring presentations on United States involvement in Central America, while honoring those who have died there. The presentation will focus especially on "low-intensity conflict," such as using food as a political weapon and covert operations, which don't attract much attention within the United States.

Speakers Richie Blase Bonpane and Robert Ritchie will speak in Twin Falls as one stop on a 14-city Northwest tour. Bonpane is director of the Office of the Americas, a Santa Monica, Calif.-based organization dedicated to justice and peace in this hemisphere. Bonpane recently visited Nicaragua and is expected to share observations and a brief report.

Ritchie has worked for the past year with the Christian Institute, an interfaith organization that successfully represented national cases, such as those for Karen Silkwood and the Greensboro Civil Rights suits.

Christie is now litigating a federal suit against high-ranking officials within and outside government, alleging that for the past 25 years they have participated in illegal, covert actions such as assassination, drug dealing and arms shipments.

The civil suit was filed before the Congressional, Iran-Contra hearings last year, but names many of the same individuals for the same issues investigated then.

A potluck dinner for those who wish to meet the speakers is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Goodall Center at 630 Falls Ave. and the presentation begins at 7:30 p.m.

Mormons object to Boise textbooks

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two history books being considered for adoption by the Boise School Board are raising the ire of Mormons who find passages unfair and derogatory to their faith.
 "A handful of Mormons have requested that the books not be purchased. The books are among 30 texts the board will consider for adoption at the meeting."
 Jack Cravee, director of curriculum and instruction for Boise schools, said the books are being reviewed for historical accuracy and balance. The findings will be forwarded to the school board, he said.
 Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, a Mormon, said he does not approve of the treatment Mormons receive in "American History: A Survey." The text is designed for 11th-grade advanced-placement history classes.

 "The overall tone of the section on Mormons is derogatory and misleading," Montgomery said. "It misrepresents history and theology. I assume that would be a general reaction by most members of the Latter-day Saints."
 The other book under fire is a ninth-grade history text.
 Parent Ellen McKinnon, also a Mormon, wrote in a letter to Craven: "In light of the fact that there is a large LDS population in this community and that the vast majority of Latter-day Saints are supporters of education, it seems less than wise to select texts that will inflame if there are others that deal with this period in a balanced manner."

The 11th-grade history book describes Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, in his early days as "a young, energetic, but economically unsuccessful man, who had spent most of his 24 years moving restlessly through New England and the Northeast."
 It also says early Mormons did not believe in "individual liberty" and were "economically marginal people."
 Steve T'ree, social studies supervisor for Boise schools, defended the book, saying it is widely used in high schools, colleges and universities throughout the country.
 Among those T'ree said is Brigham Young University, an LDS-owned institution in Provo, Utah, that will use the text this summer.

Jerome sells parcel, fixes streets

BY DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome City Council is considering selling a small parcel of property at 321 West C Street for public use.
 The property was used by the city for a wastewater treatment pump station. The land, which measures 50 feet by 135 feet, is in a residential area. The lot has connections for a mobile home.
 The City Council has also begun work toward spring road repairs.

At last week's council meeting, Public Works Director Lanny Sloan announced that it is time to start paving operations this year and asked for money to buy related materials. These materials include 28 tons of asphalt mix at $177 a ton for a total expenditure of $4,956. Another $1,320 will be used to undertake a pug mill mixing operation which, according to Sloan, will make a mix that is easier to lay and lasts longer.
 Sloan estimated the process will add three years of life to a street because it will evenly coat and mix gravel. The mixing will be done by Winn and Company at no additional cost.
 The purchase of a new type of oil to help restore, seal and coat streets is estimated to cost $4,680. This CRF oil, Sloan said, will fill in cracks and will go twice as far as emulsions used in the past at a little more than half the cost. Some 3,000 gallons of the oil, which costs $1.56 a gallon, will be needed. "This will help the streets last longer," Sloan said.

At a future council meeting, members plan to discuss the possibility of putting some playground equipment in the area of the old Jerome water tower at Avenue "B" and Filmore Street.
 Discussion of a proposed Jerome County Fairgrounds sign to be placed five blocks west of the main intersection of the city was tabled until the next council meeting so liability insurance questions could be studied.
 The fairgrounds sign would be placed on the property of Volco, Inc. and would be used for the benefit of the community in addition to advertising fairgrounds events. Jackson, who has worked with the Optimist Club and other concerned citizens in planning the sign, offered to clarify the issue of insurance with those involved and make a report at the next council meeting.

Witnesses warn of merger problems

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A state legislator warned on Monday that the proposed merger of Utah Power & Light Co. and PacifiCorp could close Utah coal mines, while another witness warned the state could lose regulatory authority over the utility.

House Minority Leader Mike Dimitrich, D-Price, whose district includes parts of coal-rich Carbon, Emery and Grand counties, expressed his conditional support for the planned merger.

However, he said the PSC should make sure that the Hunter and Huntington coal mines in his district are not adversely affected by the merger.

Dimitrich was among those testifying during the second week of the 15-day hearing on the merger. Monday was set aside as a day for the public to testify on the merger hearings.

He said he is worried that the merger would close down the production in several mines, including those two.

"We cannot jeopardize the economy of these counties at the price of a small rate level decrease. We cannot suffer any more increases in layoffs," he said.

He said the unemployment level in those counties is already 20 percent, including weekend layoffs of 100 people at the Amax-owned Castle Gate coal mine.

Sen. Paul Rogers, R-Orem, who represents seven communities in northeast Utah County, said he supports the planned merger because of the projected rate decrease.

In doing so, he also expressed concern that the PSC continue to regulate the super-utility.

"Although there might be a short-term impact on the Utah economy, I believe this is offset by the long-term benefit to Utah ratepayers," he said.

Rogers said Utah ratepayers will benefit because economies of scale will be increased, and the sharing of power between the Northwest and Utah will decrease rates.

He presented a stack of letters from 15 other legislators in support of the planned merger.

James L. Barker Jr., representing a consumer group, said he is concerned that regulatory authority over a multi-state utility may shift from Utah's PSC to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

"Regulatory authority should be maintained in the state. It should represent the public interest and assets of the company," said Barker.

He said the assets and operations of the company would come under federal control as a result of the merger. He also warned the commission to be wary of the utilities' proposal, adding that UP&L has "snowed" the PSC in earlier proposals.

Merging UP&L and PacifiCorp would create one of the largest utilities in the West, serving more than 1 million customers in seven states, and Utah is the last jurisdiction where hearings have been held.

Arthur Dale Hodge, 32, the sheriff's department said Hodge died instantly when the vehicle he was driving hit a horse early Sunday on U.S. 30.

The grant program requires a 50 percent match from the city, which can be labor as well as money, Baltazor said.

City Clerk Ron Boian is looking at possible projects for the grant application including an exercise path, bike paths, improvements at the fairgrounds, purchase of the fairground site from Union-Pacific Railroad, improvements at the ball field or improvements to the running track at the field.

He will report to the council as the application process continues.

In other business, the council agreed to authorize enforcement of its water ordinance which calls for termination of service if water bills are 60 days overdue.

Baltazor said some water users owe between $100 and $500 and bills have not been paid since last fall.

Boian said all the proper written notifications have been made as well as personal contacts with the property owners involved. "Then turn the water off in the morning," Baltazor said.

Mayor Tim Ridinger agreed. "If we are not going to enforce the law, we need to change it. It's not fair to make the people who pay their bills carry the people who don't," he said. Ridinger also said that the law should be enforced the same for all residents.

Shoshone's water ordinance provides for a turn-off fee when service is terminated, a turn-on fee if water service is restored to the property, plus full payment of all past due bills and a security deposit before the water can be turned back on.

The city is willing to work out a payment schedule with property owners having difficulty meeting their obligations, Baltazor said, "but it must be a good faith effort on their part and we cannot agree to a plan that will never let them catch up."

could double, he said.

The state is imposing the regulations to qualify for a $225,000 federal grant that is given to states implementing programs to separate adult and juvenile offenders and to upgrade detention centers, Felton said.

Felton said meeting the licensing requirements when they are adopted would help the county avoid lawsuits. Twin Falls County is one of seven Magic Valley counties served by the Jerome center.

Felton said she has told the state commission to keep in mind the financial limitations of a rural area while setting the parameters for detention centers.

"There have to be guidelines for protection of the youth to ensure the children are not placed in jeopardy," she said. "But there have to be realistic guidelines for the protection of the taxpayers also."

Devine said he believes the facility will be able to meet the state requirements by passing on costs to the counties. It contracts with, but wonders where the regulations will end.

He said the Jerome center, which houses an average of 14 detainees a day, would have to close if it was forced to provide the same services as juvenile detention centers in larger areas, which provide education and therapy.

Devine said if that was to happen, Twin Falls County would have to send its juvenile offenders to a detention center in Ada County that costs more than $80 a day.

"We do not provide as much as they do, but I've flown first class and coach, and I've always gotten to the same destination," Devine said. "I don't think the people of Magic Valley want to pay for the first class ticket for these children."

He said he agrees with the commission that nursing care and most of the other proposed requirements would improve the Jerome facility, but every service comes with a price that must be paid by taxpayers.

Devine said his facility doesn't have a school teacher or class, "but most of the kids there are drop-outs to begin with."

"We try to just get them to think a little bit. That usually is what they need. We're not afraid of showing them a tear. Sometimes if you cry with them, you can get them to open up," Devine said.

The center has had children as young as 10, but 15 or 16 is the average age, he said.

Felton said part of the funding problem is that there are several other new county projects that also need money, including a state-mandated medical program for indigents that, beginning this year, requires counties to pay doctor bills.

She said two years ago, when juvenile offenders were housed in the county jail, the expense of taking care of them was not much more than the cost of their meals.

Felton said once the commission makes a final decision on what the regulations will be, the Jerome center should be given a grace period to comply.

She said county leaders in Magic Valley have considered building their own regional facility but the cost of constructing a building at about $1.5 million and staffing it would be more than the price of sending the youths to the private facility.

Walsh had a freshly shaved upper lip still bleeding from a razor nick, police records show.

"Evidently he had found some time to shave it," Birmingham said.

The officer frisked Walsh, at which time he found a bulge in the man's crotch area.

"I don't have anything down my pants," said Walsh, when asked about the bulge.

When the officer reached around Walsh to find out what was in his pants, Walsh kicked Massey in the shin and ran across the lot, police records allege. Massey pursued Walsh and apprehended him approximately 25 feet from his patrol car.

Other officers backing up Massey pulled a plastic bag from Walsh's pants containing $140 in cash and a check made out to 7-Eleven, according to police records.

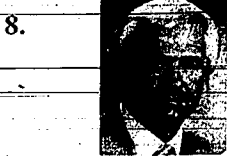

Police have yet to piece together exactly what the suspected robber did in the hour and a half between when the store was robbed and when he was apprehended.

"He wouldn't talk to us," Birmingham said. "All he kept saying was he didn't do it."

"He was caught within a block of the hotel so we figured he was trying to get back there," the commander added. "We don't have any idea where he was for that hour and a half, but he was not at the hotel."

Mormons object to Boise textbooks

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two history books being considered for adoption by the Boise School Board are raising the ire of Mormons who find passages unfair and derogatory to their faith.

A handful of Mormons have requested that the books not be purchased. The books are among 30 texts the board will consider for adoption at the meeting.

Jack Craven, director of curriculum and instruction for Boise schools, said the books are being reviewed for historical accuracy and balance. The findings will be forwarded to the school board, he said.

Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, a Mormon, said he does not approve of the treatment Mormons receive in "American History, A Survey." The text is designed for 11th-grade advanced-placement-history-classes.

"The overall tone of the section on Mormons is derogatory and misleading," Montgomery said. "It misrepresents history and theology. I assume that would be a general reaction by most members of the Latter-day Saints."

The other book under fire is a ninth-grade history text.

Parent Ellen McKinnon, also a Mormon, wrote in a letter to Craven: "In light of the fact that there is a large LDS population in this community and that the vast majority of Latter-day Saints are supporters of education, it seems less than wise to select texts that will inflame if there are others that deal with this period in a balanced manner."

The 11th-grade history book describes Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, in his early days as "a young, energetic, but economically unsuccessful man, who had spent most of his 24 years moving restlessly through New England and the North-east."

It also says early Mormons did not believe in "individual liberty," and were "economically marginal people."

Steve Tyree, social studies supervisor for Boise schools, defended the book, saying it is widely used in high schools, colleges and universities throughout the country.

Among those, Tyree said, is Brigham Young University, an LDS-owned institution in Provo, Utah, that will use the text this summer.

Jerome sells parcel, fixes streets

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome City Council is considering selling a small parcel of property at 521 West C Street at public auction.

The property was used by the city for a wastewater treatment pump station. The land, which measures 50 feet by 135 feet, is in a residential area. The lot has connections for a mobile home.

The City Council has also begun work toward spring road repairs.

At last week's council meeting, Public Works Director Lanny Sloan announced that it is time to start paving operations this year and asked for money to buy related materials. These materials include 28 tons of asphalt mix at $177 a ton for a total expenditure of $4,956. Another $1,320 will be used to undertake a pug mill mixing operation which, according to Sloan, will make a mix that is easier to lay and lasts longer.

Sloan estimated the process will add three years of life to a street because it will evenly coat and mix gravel. The mixing will be done by Wimmer and Company at no additional cost.

The purchase of a new type of oil to help restore, seal and coat streets is estimated to cost $4,680. This CRP oil, Sloan said, will fill in cracks and will go twice as far as emulsions used in the past at a little more than half the cost. Some 3,000 gallons of the oil, which costs $1.56 a gallon, will be needed. "This will help the streets last longer," Sloan said.

Fire Chief James Auclair invited council members to witness a major disaster test of emergency operations. It will be held May 16 in the basement of the courthouse in condition with a nationwide program. There are 33 states participating in this type of program this year, Auclair said.

At a future council meeting, members plan to discuss the possibility of putting some playground equipment in the area of the old Jerome water tower at Avenue "B" and Filmore Street.

Discussion of a proposed Jerome County Fairgrounds sign to be placed five blocks west of the main intersection of the city was tabled until the next council meeting so liability insurance questions could be studied.

The fairgrounds sign would be placed on the property of Volco, Inc. and would be used for the benefit of the community in addition to advertising fairgrounds events—Jackson, who has worked with the Optimist Club and other concerned citizens in planning the sign, offered to clarify the issue of insurance with those involved and make a report at the next council meeting.

Let's assume grandpa and grandma have a brand new grandson and would like to do something very special:

How special? Each grandparent agrees to make a $10,000 gift for a total of $20,000 to their new grandson by purchasing for him a Single Premium-Plan.

Assume grandson is age 1 at issue of the contract and that he will be attending college at ages 19, 20, 21, and 22. We withdraw $25,000 a year for four (4) years.

At age 26 grandson gets married and draws out $30,000 as a down-payment on a new home.

When he is age 28, his wife delivers a beautiful baby girl, and he withdraws $20,000 to purchase a Single Premium-Plan for his daughter's future. At her ages 18, 19, 20, and 21, he withdraws $25,000 per year to cover her college expenses.

After college, his daughter tells him that she's getting married. At dad's age 52 he draws out $20,000 to foot the bill.

At age 60 he decides to start fishing full-time and starts drawing $100,000 a year.

This is a happy story as he lives past age 95.

All from a $20,000 deposit in a Single Premium Plan this man has drawn out $3,623,000 and the day he turned 95, the Insurance Company sends him a check for $24,679,423.

AND he's still fishing everyday!

Witnesses warn of merger problems

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A state legislator warned on Monday that the proposed merger of Utah Power & Light Co. and PacifiCorp could close Utah coal mines, while another witness warned the state could lose regulatory authority over the utility.

"House" Minority Leader Mike Dimitrich, D-Price, whose district includes parts of coal-rich Carbon, Emery and Grand counties, expressed his conditional support for the planned merger.

"However, he said the PSC should make sure that the Hunter and Huntington coal mines in his district are not adversely affected by the merger. Dimitrich was among those testifying during the second week of the 16-day hearing on the merger. Monday was set aside as a day for the public to testify on the merger hearings.

He said he is worried that the merger would close down the production in several mines, including those two.

"We cannot jeopardize the economy of these counties at the price of a small rate level decrease. We cannot suffer any more increases in layoffs," he said.

He said the unemployment level in those counties is already 20 percent, including weekend layoffs of 100 people at the Amax-owned Castle Gate coal mine.

Sen. Paul Rogers, R-Orem, who represents seven communities in northeast Utah County, said he supports the planned merger because of the projected rate decrease.

In doing so, he also expressed concern that the PSC continue to regulate the super-utility.

"Although there might be a short-term impact on the Utah economy, I believe this is offset by the long-term benefit to Utah ratepayers," he said.

Rogers said Utah ratepayers will benefit because economies of scale will be increased, and the sharing of power between the Northwest and Utah will decrease rates.

He presented a stack of letters from 15 other legislators in support of the planned merger.

James L. Barker Jr., representing a consumer group, said he is concerned that regulatory authority over a multi-state utility may shift from Utah's PSC to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

"Regulatory authority should be maintained in the state. It should represent the public interest and assets of the company," said Barker.

He said the assets and operations of the company could come under federal control as a result of the merger.

He also warned the commission to be wary of the utilities' proposal, adding that UP&L has "enowed" the PSC in earlier proposals.

Merging UP&L and PacifiCorp would create one of the largest utilities in the West, serving more than 1 million customers in seven states, and Utah is the last jurisdiction where hearings have been held.

The grant program requires a 50 percent match from the city, which can be labor as well as money, Baltazor said.

City Clerk Ron Boian is looking at possible projects for the grant application including an exercise path, bike paths — improvements at "the fairgrounds," purchase of fairground site from Union-Pacific Railroad — improvements at the ball field or improvements to the running track at the field.

He will report to the council as the application process continues.

In other business, the council agreed to authorize enforcement of its water ordinances which call for termination of service if water bills are 60 days overdue.

Baltazor said some water users owe between $100 and $500 and bills have not been paid since last fall.

Boian said all the proper written notifications have been made as well as personal contacts with the property owners involved. "Then turn the water off in the morning," Baltazor said.

Mayor Tim Ridinger agreed. "If we are not going to enforce the law, we need to change it. It's not fair to make the people who pay their bills carry the people who don't," he said. Ridinger also said that the law should be enforced the same for all residents.

Shoshone's water ordinance provides for a turn-off fee when service is terminated, a turn-off fee if water service is restored to the property, plus full payment of all past due bills and a security deposit before the water can be turned back on.

The city is willing to work out a payment schedule with property owners having difficulty meeting their obligations. Baltazor said, "but it must be a good faith effort on their part and we cannot agree to a plan that will never let them catch up."

Walsh had a freshly shaved upper lip still bleeding from a razor nick, police records show.

"Evidently he had found some time to shave it," Birmingham said.

The officer frisked Walsh, at which time he found a bulge in the man's crotch area.

"I don't have anything down my pants," said Walsh, when asked about the bulge.

When the officer reached around Walsh to find out what was in his pants, Walsh kicked Massey in the shin and ran across the lot, police records allege. Massey pursued Walsh and apprehended him approximately 25 feet from his patrol car.

Other officers backing up Massey pulled a plastic bag from Walsh's pants containing $140 in cash and a check made out to 7-Eleven, according to police records.

Police have yet to piece together exactly what the suspected robber did in the hour and a half between when the store was robbed and when he was apprehended.

"He wouldn't talk to us," Birmingham said. "All he kept saying was he didn't do it."

He was caught within a block of the hotel so we figured he was trying to get back there," the commander added. "We don't have any idea where he was for that hour and a half, but he was not at the hotel."

could double, he said.

The state is imposing the regulations to qualify for a $225,000 federal grant that is given to states implementing programs to separate adult and juvenile offenders and to upgrade standards, Felton said.

Felton said meeting the licensing requirements when they are adopted would help the county avoid lawsuits. Twin Falls County is one of seven Magic Valley counties served by the Jerome center.

Felton said she has told the state commission to keep in mind the financial limitations of a rural area while setting the parameters for detention centers.

"There have to be guidelines for protection of the youth to ensure the children are not placed in jeopardy," she said. "But there have to be realistic guidelines for the protection of the taxpayers also."

Devine said he believes the facility will be able to meet the state requirements by passing on costs to the counties it contracts with, but wonders where the regulations will end.

He said the Jerome center, which houses an average of 14 detainees a day, would have to close if it was forced to provide the same services as juvenile detention centers in larger areas, which provide education and therapy.

Devine said if that was to happen, Twin Falls County would have to send its juvenile offenders to a detention center in Ada County that costs more than $80 a day.

"We do not provide as much as they do, but I've flown first class and coach and I've always gotten to the same destination," Devine said. "I don't think the people of Magic Valley want to pay for the first class ticket for these children."

He said he agrees with the commission that nursing care and most of the other proposed requirements would improve the Jerome facility, but every service comes with a price that must be paid by taxpayers.

Devine said his facility doesn't have a school teacher or class, "but most of the kids there are drop-outs to begin with."

"We try to just get them to think a little bit. That usually is what they need. We're not afraid of showing them a tear. Sometimes if you cry with them, you can get them to open up," Devine said.

The center has had children as young as 10, but 15 or 16 is the average age, he said.

Felton said part of the funding problem is that there are several other new county projects that also need money, including a state-mandated medical program for indigents that, beginning this year, requires counties to pay doctor bills.

She said two years ago, when juvenile offenders were housed in the county jail, the expense of taking care of them was not much more than the cost of their meals.

Felton said once the commission makes a final decision on what the regulations will be, the Jerome center should be given a grace period to comply.

She said county leaders in Magic Valley have considered building their own regional facility but the cost of constructing a building at about $1.5 million and staffing it would be more than the price of sending the youths to the private facility.

Idaho whooping cough incidence concerns officials

LEWISTON (AP) - As of April 15, according to the state Bureau of Preventive Medicine, Idaho had 32 percent of all the nation's cases of pertussis, or whooping cough.

And Dr. John Rusche, a Lewiston pediatrician, said the pertussis epidemic in southern Idaho is directly related to the state's decision last year to shut off the supply of free vaccine for infants to private physicians.

That, in turn, is related to the lack of money appropriated by the Idaho Legislature to buy the vaccine from the federal government, Rusche said.

Primarily, the conservatives in the Legislature say that parents should take responsibility and pay for their own child's vaccines," he said, "but they forget that the rest of the community and the children, who can't be held accountable for their parents' actions, have to take the brunt" of what results.

Fifteen months ago, when state health officials announced that soaring vaccine prices meant they no longer could afford to give vaccine to private physicians, who were in turn giving it to their patients for free, Rusche warned of the possible consequences.

"The big overriding problem is that the level of immunization is going to drop and that we'll have an outbreak," he was quoted as saying by the Lewiston Morning Tribune. "It's penny wise and pound foolish to save money on immunizations and pay it out in hospital care. And that's the medical treatment for children who contract diseases that are preventable through vaccines.

Fragile agreements managing dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world is on a thin standard for managing the dollar and other currencies. A negotiation-brought-about through secret transactions worthy of a spy novel, according to a new book released Monday.

"Managing the Dollar: From the Plaza to the Louvre" traces the high-stakes bargaining between the United States and its major allies over the past three years as the Reagan administration sought desperately for solutions to the huge U.S. trade deficit.

But the book, being published by the Institute for International Economics, a Washington think tank, argues that the agreements, both the public ones and the private deals, have proven "agonizingly fragile."

"The possibility of backsliding, over-committing or reneging has continually threatened the credibility of these deals," author Yoichi Funabashi wrote in a briefing.

Dunabashi, a Japanese newspaper reporter, spent a year researching the book, which for the first time throws light on the shadowy world of international monetary agreements reached between the so-called Group of Seven—the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy.

The book traces the shift in the Reagan administration, which until 1985 stood by as the dollar surged to new highs. It ignored critics who argued that the high-flying dollar was devastating American manufacturers and farmers, whose products were being priced out of world markets.

After James A. Baker III succeeded Donald T. Regan as treasury secretary in early 1985, administration policy shifted dramatically. Funabashi said a principal architect of the change was Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman, who wrote a secret memorandum to Baker in April 1985 outlining a strategy to strengthen international coordination and manage currencies.

Darman proposed that the administration promote a move away from the floating exchange rates to currency "reference ranges."

From the end of World War II until 1973, the world was on the gold standard, with the price of gold set at $35 an ounce and the currencies of other governments set at fixed rates based on the dollar.

This system was replaced by floating exchange rates, in which each currency was set on the open market. This process, however, caused extreme volatility and wide swings in the value of the dollar and other currencies, playing "havoc" with international trade.

Darman's memo argued for the floating exchange rate system to be tamed by the adoption of reference ranges, which would limit currency swings. Currencies would be kept in specified ranges through the use of such tools as intervention, by which governments buy and sell dollars and other currencies on the open market in an effort to influence the value.

The first effort at managing the dollar's value came in an agreement between the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain and France at a meeting at the Plaza Hotel in New York on Sept. 22, 1985. The five countries agreed to use coordinated intervention to drive the value of the dollar lower as a way of correcting the U.S. trade deficit.

A weaker dollar makes imports more expensive and American products more competitive on overseas markets.

The administration considered the negotiations leading up to the Plaza agreement so sensitive that the talking paper distributed to countries before the meeting was called a "nonpaper" and its contents were kept secret.

The United States and its allies switched course again in February 1987 with the Louvre agreement, named for the Paris building where the meeting took place, which said that the dollar had declined far enough. The nations pledged to intervene in currency markets to defend the dollar against continued downward pressure and adopted a form of Darman's reference ranges.

The book says the participants agreed to stabilize the dollar to keep it falling more than 5 percent below a base of 163.5 yen to the dollar, a range that has never been publicly confirmed.

The dollar has continued to fall, however, and now stands around 125 yen, down more than 18 percent from the lower limit established by the Louvre accord.

"The major story of this book is that it should lay to rest any lingering doubts about whether the world is still on a floating exchange rate system or something else," said C. Fred Bergsten, executive director of the Institute. "The Louvre put into place a rather detailed, reference range system."

Stocks sustain 4th straight loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices topped their fourth straight loss Monday in a session dominated by dividend-related trading and takeover news.

Analysts said fears of a continued increase in interest rates kept the market on the defensive.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial shares dropped 10.11 to 1,997.35, extending its loss over the past four sessions to 61.01 points.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 9 to 5 in New York Stock Exchange-listed trading, with 597 up, 975 down and 481 unchanged.

The NYSE board volume came to 166.32 billion shares, up from 129.08 million in the previous session.

Nearly one-third of Monday's total turnover was concentrated in a single issue—Houston Industries, which was unchanged at 30 3/4 on turnover of 2 1/2 million shares. Analysts cited trading strategies keyed to the electric utility holding company's impending quarterly dividend.

Murray Ohio Manufacturing jumped 18 to 53 1/4. The company, which makes bicycles and lawn mowers, said its directors rejected a $48-a-share takeover offer from AB Electrolux of Sweden.

Losers among the blue chips included General Motors, down 3/4 at 73 1/4; Procter & Gamble, down 1/4 at 74 1/4; Bethlehem Steel, down 3/4 at 18 1/4; and McDonald's, down 3/4 at 42 1/4.

Japanese stocks ran into some selling following a down day in the Tokyo market. Honda Motor dropped 5 to 141 1/4 and Matsushita Electrical 5 1/4 to 215 1/4.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 184.69 million shares.

Standard & Poor's industrial index fell 1.43 to 299.53, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 0.94 at 256.54.

The NASDAQ composite index, over-the-counter market dropped 0.15 to 376.27. At the American Stock Exchange, the market index closed at 299.39, down 1.82.

AL: A's win streak grows to 14 games

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jose Canseco hit his league-leading ninth home run and Bob Welch allowed four hits in eight-plus innings Monday night as the Oakland Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers 3-1 to extend their winning streak to 14 games, the longest in the major leagues in 11 years.

The A's, now 12-0 against American League East teams, won their most consecutive victories since the Kansas City Royals won 16 straight in 1977.

Welch, 5-2, struck out five and walked one in beating Jack Morris to win his fourth consecutive game. Morris, 5-4, had 11 strikeouts and allowed nine hits on route to his fourth complete game.

Lou Whitaker led off the top of the ninth with a double and Dennis Eckersley relieved Welch and got his 12th save in 13 games. Eckersley was not allowed a run in 16½ innings.

The Tigers scored in the third inning without hitting the ball out of the field.

Pat Sheridan beat out a high-chop to third base, advanced to second on a balk, went to third on an infield hit by Gary Pettis and scored on Welch's second balk of the inning and seventh of the season.

The A's took the lead in the bottom of the inning when Carney Lansford singled and Canseco hit a home run to tie the fielding, tying New York's Dave Winfield off the major-league RBI lead with 32.

Boston 2 Kansas City 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Roger Clemens pitched a three-hitter, striking out 16 and retiring 24 in a row until the ninth inning, as the Boston Red Sox beat Mark Gubicza and the Kansas City Royals 2-0 Monday night.

Clemens, 5-1, gave up consecutive one-out singles to Kevin Seitzer and George Brett in the first inning, then was perfect until Willie Wilson beat out a bouncer over the mound with one out in the ninth. He gave up his only walk with a two out in the ninth.

The Royals have lost six in a row, all at home.

Gubicza, 5-4, allowed seven hits — three to Jody Reed — in 8-1/3 innings before he was relieved by Gene Garber with the bases loaded in the ninth. With two out, Garber hit Marty Barrett with a pitch for Boston's second run.

Chicago 3 Baltimore 0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jerry Reuss earned his 200th major league victory, and Dan Paquin drove in all three Chicago runs, leading the White Sox to a 3-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Reuss, 2-1, limited Baltimore to four hits in 7½ innings, matching his longest outing of the season. Bobby Thigpen pitched 1½ hitless innings, striking out three, for his sixth save.

Paquin had a sacrifice fly and two-run homer, enabling the 38-year-old Reuss to become the 86th pitcher to reach the 200-victory plateau. Reuss joined Milt Pappas, who won 209 games, as the only pitchers to win 200 without a 20-win season.

Milwaukee 9 Minnesota 6

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rob Deer's three-run homer off Minnesota bullpen ace Jeff Reardon capped a five-run eighth inning that carried the Milwaukee Brewers to their 10th straight victory, 9-6 over the Minnesota Twins.

Twins reliever Juan Berenguer, who had blown a 4-1 seventh-inning lead, walked Paul Molitor and gave up Robin Yount's single to start the eighth.

Reardon, 0-2, came in and failed to field B.J. Surhoff's bunt single to load the bases for Greg Brock, whose two-run single made it 5-6. Four pitches later, Deer lined his sixth homer of the year over the left-field fence.

California 2 Cleveland 1

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Dan Petry allowed eight hits in 7½ innings as the California Angels beat Cleveland 2-1 to send the Indians to their sixth straight defeat.

Petry, 2-2, walked two and benefited from three double plays. He had a shutout until pinch-hitter Ron Kittle homered — with one out — in the eighth. Bryan Harvey finished for his first major league save, allowing no hits.

The Indians, who won 16 of their first 20 games, have now lost nine of 10.

Witness disputes Martin's story of restroom assault

By DANNY ROBBINS
— Newsday

BILLY MARTIN Injured in fall?

ARLINGTON, Texas — Yankees Manager Billy Martin gave police and the media inaccurate accounts of the altercation he was involved in at a topless club here, according to a Fort Worth man who says he was an eyewitness and isn't an employee of the club.

In an interview with Newsday Monday, Keith Morrow, a college student, said he was in the restroom at Luce, the topless club, at the same time as Martin early last Saturday and saw Martin throw the first and only punch of the incident.

Morrow's account is similar to that of a club employee. Speaking on the condition that his name not be used, the employee told Newsday Sunday that he witnessed the incident and helped restrain Martin and remove him from the club through a side door, where, according to the employee, Martin suffered cuts and abrasions after falling against a rough, stucco wall.

Martin, who suffered a 40-stitch cut around his left ear as well as scrapes and bruises on his face, scalp and body, said he was beaten without provocation in the restroom by a man wielding a blunt instrument while another man pinned him against the wall.

Martin gave similar accounts to both the Arlington police and reporters, although he told reporters he was attacked by three men and told police, according to the police report, the number was two.

Morrow, who said he was attending a bachelor party at the club, said he didn't realize that it was Martin he had seen in the restroom until somebody at the wedding reception the next day mentioned that Martin had been in an altercation at Luce the night before.

"This guy walks up and says, 'That's Billy Martin who got beat up in the restroom,'" he said. "I was shocked. I didn't recognize him. I guess I expected him to be bigger."

Morrow said he didn't give the situation much more thought until he read Martin's account in the newspaper. "I read it Sunday," he said, "and said, 'This isn't accurate.'"

When he entered the restroom, Morrow said, he found Martin having a mild argument with a younger, smaller man. Two other men also were in the room, he said, watching the argument. Morrow said he does not know any of the men but heard later that the two men watching the argument were an employee and a former employee of the club. The restroom attendant was not present, he said.

Morrow said the first thing he heard was Martin saying, "Not bad for an old man." According to Morrow, the younger, smaller man replied by saying something on the order of: "Yeah, but you're still an old man." Then, Morrow said, Martin said, "That's enough," and threw a punch with his right hand that grazed the man's jaw. "A good punch," Morrow said, "but it didn't even faze the guy." The man didn't fight back, Morrow said, and, after briefly checking his face in the mirror, left the restroom.

At that point, Morrow said, the other two men pulled Martin out of the restroom. Martin, he said, put up little resistance.

Morrow said that about 30 seconds later, after finishing in the restroom, he walked out and saw that an adjacent security door was ajar. Looking outside, he said, he saw Martin stretched out on the pavement by the wall, his head down. Morrow said he saw the two men who had pulled Martin out of the restroom — lift Martin's head and, finding blood, rush off saying they had to call an ambulance.

Morrow said he, too, then left the scene.

The bar employee had told Newsday Sunday that Martin called the patron "a faggot" and used profanity, prompting the patron to say, "I love it when you talk to me that way."

NL: Reds' Jackson blanks Phillies on two hits

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Danny Jackson pitched his second consecutive two-hit victory over Philadelphia as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Phillies 2-0 Monday night.

In his last four starts, Jackson has allowed two earned runs and his earned run average is 2.04. He beat the Phillies 3-1 on a two-hitter at Cincinnati on May 4.

The only hits off Jackson were Chris James' single leading off the third inning and Mike Young's pinch double starting the ninth. Jackson, 6-1, struck out five and walked three.

It was Jackson's second shutout of the season and the eighth of his career.

"I didn't feel as good tonight as I did in Cincinnati," Jackson said. "I didn't have a real good slider, and my change-up wasn't that good. I threw mostly fastballs inside. That's my game."

Jackson was acquired from Kansas City last November with infielder Angel Salazar for pitcher Ted Power and shortstop Kurt Stillwell.

Philadelphia starter David Palmer, 0-2, allowed eight hits and struck out nine in eight-plus innings.

Atlanta 9 Montreal 8

ATLANTA (AP) — Gerald Perry

and Ron Gant each had a two-run homer in a six-run third inning and Atlanta held on for a 9-8 victory over Montreal.

Ken Griffey gave the Braves the lead in the second inning when he hit his first homer off starter Dennis Martinez, 3-4.

Rick Mahler, 1-4, ended a four-game losing streak and got his first victory since beating the Expos 7-4 last Sept. 4.

The Expos scored four runs each in the fifth and eighth innings, but a double batter came out to get his second out.

Houston 6 New York 2

HOUSTON (AP) — Danny Darwin pitched a seven-hitter and Kevin Bass had three hits and drove in a run as Houston beat New York 6-2 to snap the Mets' five-game winning streak.

Darwin, 2-2, struck out seven en route to his first complete game, retiring 14 of the last 16 batters. Darwin lost the Mets 8-0 in New York on May 4.

The Astros took a 3-2 lead in the fourth when Glenn Davis reached on a fielding error by shortstop Jeff Elster, moved to second on Basse's single, and scored on a single by Rafael Ramirez.

Houston moved ahead 2-1 in the second against Sid Fernandez, 1-2. Bass led off with a double and Jim Pankovits then grounded a single up the middle that got by center fielder Len Dykstra and rolled all the way to the warning, allowing both runners to score. Dykstra was charged with a three-base error.

New York tied the score 2-2 in the third on a double by Dykstra and an RBI single by Keith Hernandez.

"After the third inning I got stronger," Darwin said. "I got in a groove and a rhythm when I felt real comfortable. I felt in command," Darwin said.

The Astros took a 3-2 lead in the fourth when Glenn Davis reached on a fielding error by shortstop Kevin Elster, moved to second on Basse's single, and scored on a single by Rafael Ramirez.

Houston made it 6-2 in the fifth on RBI singles by Bill Doran and Bass.

The Mets made four errors in the game and the Astros stole five bases.

St. Louis 7 San Diego 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie Luis Alieca hit a two-run single to cap a six-run third inning, leading St. Louis past San Diego 7-1.

Left-hander Larry McWilliams allowed six hits in 6½ innings and improved to 2-0. Scott Terry finished for St. Louis, allowing one hit.

McWilliams doubled off starter Ed Whitson, 2-2, to spark an inning that matched St. Louis' biggest of the season.

McWilliams home, third on Ozkie Smith's infield hit, and Tom Brunson's one-out double made it 2-0. The Cards added two more runs on Bob Horner's run-scoring grounder and Terry Pendleton's RBI double. Alieca made it 6-0 with his two-run single.

San Francisco 8 Pittsburgh 6

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Will Clark's second double of the game drove Robby Thompson with the tie-breaking run and Jeffrey Leonard followed with a two-run homer in a four-run San Francisco eighth inning as the Giants beat Pittsburgh 8-6.

Kevin Mitchell went 4-for-5 with a homer, two doubles and three runs batted in as the Giants blew a 4-1 lead, then rallied to win against former Giant reliever Jeff Robinson, 2-1.

The Pirates, who made six errors, took a 5-4 lead in the seventh on Bobby Bonilla's two-run homer off former Pirate Don Robinson.

NHL playoffs: Oilers take 3-1 lead on Wings

DETROIT (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers survived the heat of Joe Louis Arena Monday night and nearly put the Detroit Red Wings in the deep freeze in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Playing in a steamy arena that kept both temperatures and fog rising, the Oilers got another brilliant shot from Jar Kurri to pull out a 4-3 overtime thriller and move into one game of clinching a spot in the Stanley Cup finals. The Oilers lead the Campbell Conference series 3-1.

"Tikkanen made the play and Kurri made a great shot," Edmonton Coach Glenn Sather said. "He has the quick release that the great players have—that's why he's so good. The great players make shots like that. I've seen him do that time and again." Kurri's shot, at 11:02, was set up on the winning shot by linemate Esa Tikkanen, who stole a pass by defenseman Lee Norwood.

Detroit goaltender Glen Hanlon had no explanation for it, either. "I don't know," he said. "It just went in."

Before Kurri wrapped it up with his second goal of the night and playoff-leading 12th, the teams battled through a brilliant, tense game that featured some of the best hockey in the playoffs.

This game was a hot one — in more ways than one.

"It was very hot, making it hard to breathe," said Hanlon. "And there was fog, too."

Sather intimated the Red Wings were purposely responsible for that. He took a swipe at Red Wings' management, indicating they had tried to heat up the building to slow down his quick Oilers.

"I would have expected a building like this to be air-conditioned," Sather said. "I think with the money that (Red Wings owner) Mike Ilich makes, he can afford air conditioning."

Bob Probert's second goal of the game and Detroit's third on a power play, at 13:13 of the third period.

Co-ed softball grows bigger in Twin Falls

Harmon Park was full of local competitors Monday evening as this year's softball season is now under way. Times-News photo/MIKE GALSBURY

Editor's note: At The Ballpark, a weekly roundup of adult softball league news in the Magic Valley, is published Tuesdays in The Times-News from early May through early August. League secretaries and presidents wishing to submit softball news and statistics for The Ballpark should telephone Colin Muldoon at 733-0931 before 5 p.m. on Mondays.

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Softball fever has once again gripped the Magic Valley and it appears the preferred summer pastime will be as popular as ever in 1988.

This is especially the case with co-ed softball in Twin Falls.

While other area softball organizations — the Mini-Cassia and Jerome leagues, for example — have failed to put together co-ed programs, the popularity of men and women competing together has grown enormously in the five years the program has existed in Twin Falls.

The co-ed program began in 1983 with six teams. According to Pat Labrum, the league's third-year president, 45 teams divided into four divisions will participate this summer. For statistical purposes, that's a 750 percent increase.

In contrast and what appears to be in direct correlation with the increase in co-ed teams, is the decrease in the number of men's and women's teams from previous years.

Although the decrease has not been a drastic one from year to year, the drop-off in numbers of women's teams especially has been dramatic.

Previous to the formation of the co-ed league, there were well over twenty women's teams competing annually. Last year, the league fielded only 13 and this year, the number has dropped to 12.

Last year, there were 31 men's teams while this year only 27 teams signed up for competition.

Twin Falls Department of Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said the increased interest in co-ed softball has affected the women's league more directly than the men's and department supervisor Chad Browning agreed, citing the possibility that people now may be less interested in the stiffer competition in the past have presented.

Labrum concurred with Browning and Bowyer.

"I think it's (co-ed's) popularity probably because they only have to play once a week," Labrum said, "and boyfriend and girlfriend and husbands and wives can play together."

But Labrum also said that if one wishes competition, co-ed softball has that too.

"We have competitive teams," she said. "In the B leagues, we have more competition than in the D leagues."

Labrum said there are no "A league" caliber teams in Twin Falls, but the league has been divided into B, I and II divisions, C and II divisions and D and I divisions.

The only problem this interest in co-ed softball presents to the district, according to Browning, is scheduling.

The recreation department uses five diamonds at Frontier Field and Harmon Park and there are two alternate fields at South Park, but Browning said the lighting facilities are less than adequate.

"We're just about scheduled up to the max now," Browning said. "If we really had to, we could play two games at South Park in the evenings before it gets dark."

The attraction of co-ed softball is not just a Twin Falls phenomenon.

There are more than 250 teams participating in the Boise area, some in "twi-lite" leagues where teams just throw down four bases in a grassy field and play, according to Labrum and Browning.

That extreme hasn't resulted as of yet in the Magic Valley, but Browning said with the addition of high school co-ed teams — there are three this year playing in the C league — there are sure to be more teams next year.

Browning added that there could be next year, a league of just high school co-ed teams.

Men's league competition has been under way now for two weeks and the women's, co-ed and the eleven-member church league will commence play this week.

In Jerome, men's and women's softball play got under way last week, despite a slight drop in men's teams from 17 last year to 11 this season.

The good news is that the struggling women's league got a shot in the arm this season with the addition of four teams which brings the total up to seven.

Men's league president Eddie McKean couldn't put his finger on any particular reason for the drop in team numbers. "Three or four teams just folded," he said, "but it was none of the top teams, it was the lower teams."

McKean did say, however, that if anyone would like to take the initiative to form a team for this season's competition, "we'll try to work the team into the program. We don't want to turn anyone away. I imagine that they (the Jerome Recreation Department) would try to work something out," he said.

Among the major softball events taking place in Jerome this season will be the Longview Invitational, Rusty Palmer Memorial Tournament scheduled to begin either May 21 or 28, according to McKean.

In Rupert, the annual Mini-Cassia Men's League pre-season tournament got under way Monday. Steve Haun, a league spokesman said that 27 teams will make up three divisions of "B and C league" caliber teams.

The Mini-Cassia Women's League will begin June 1.

On Wednesday, the tournament will play host to Steele's Silver Bullets, three-time Amateur Softball Association Super National Champions.

The Silver Bullets will clash with the Mini-Cassia All Stars in a double-header. Game time is slated for 7:30 p.m. and a $1 donation to the Mini-Cassia Softball Leagues is encouraged, according to Haun.

The stop in Rupert is part of the Silver Bullets western swing through the United States. According to information provided to The Times-News, the Bullets, featured in Sports Illustrated two years ago, were 122-5 through April 24, averaging 35.7 runs per game and 18.3 home runs in each outing.

The Bullets are led in hitting by Rick Weiteman with a .739 batting average and Macenko leads the team in slugging with a .717 average, 251 home runs and 485 RBIs through April 24. Macenko cracked 10 home runs in one game earlier this season.

shortstop Dwayne Cummins at .389. The Bruins are led at the plate by junior center fielder Bryan Williams with a .300 average, followed by sophomore catcher Shane Quessell, sophomore infielder Matt Rasmussen, sophomore first baseman Bobby Jenco and sophomore infielder Shayn Wallace, all at about .350.

For Minico, the opponent will be familiar. The Spartans have run-ruled the Bobcats twice this season.

"I think we're in the tough spot as far as the seedings are concerned," said Coach Cory Bridges. "Not only do we have to play Highland if we win Tuesday, but we have to win three games to get to state.

The Spartans, who could have gotten the second seed in the tournament by sweeping Pocatello last Saturday instead of splitting with the Indians, will send right-hander Jack Bagley (2-2) to the mound today against Burlington. Left-hander Tom Meisenbrink (2-10). The game is scheduled for 4 p.m. at Minico High.

"We just got to play with consistency," said Bridges. "We've been hitting the ball and we've been getting good pitching (starters Dan Poulton and Eric Miller have ERAs under 1.50), but we've been making mistakes and they've hurt us."

Budd says she'll skip Seoul Games

LONDON (AP) — South African-born runner Zola Budd, the center of an international track controversy, said Monday night she will follow medical advice and not participate in international competition "for a substantial period" while she recovers from nervous exhaustion.

Track

Budd said in a statement to the British domestic news agency Press Association that she needs a "substantial period of recuperation along with the support of my family and friends to regain my health."

She said she is not well enough to continue fighting claims that she was involved in a sports meet in South Africa last June, a move in violation of the spirit of the rules of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, track and field's governing body.

Budd is currently the subject of a special committee of inquiry set up by the British Amateur Athletics Board. The inquiry was established following a demand by the IAAF that she should be banned for a year from taking part in international track and field events because of her alleged involvement with the Brakpan sports meet.

Budd, 21, took British citizenship in 1984 on the basis of one of her grandparents being born in Britain. The move enabled her to compete for Britain in international sports meets and sidestepped a ban on South African athletes taking part in international events.

Horror in the garden Part IV

LOS ANGELES — I was driving through a housing tract in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles one day on a seek and destroy mission when I was attracted by a woman cursing and smashing a shovel on the ground.

I rarely stop when I see women in the suburbs cursing and smashing, but there was a puppy playing nearby and I wanted to see if she intended to flatten him into her delphiniums. I am always on the lookout for new types of garden fertilizer.

"Excuse me, ma'am," I said, careful not to lower my car window too far.

Perspectives

Al Martinez

"What is it?" she demanded. "I couldn't help but notice you cursing and smashing your shovel on the ground."

"Well," I said, "I was wondering why you were carrying on in such a manner."

She stared at me for a long time then slowly approached the car. I kept my foot on the accelerator, ready to move at the first sign of danger to my physical being, but it was obvious I was not her intended victim.

She pressed her face against the car window and said one word: "Snails." Ah, yes.

There are only three conditions I know of, short of total madness, that will drive a woman into fits of irrational behavior: excessive glandular secretions, indolent husbands and ravaging snails.

The poor lady in the Valley had awakened that morning to discover her newly-planted anemones eaten to the ground, and now she was out smashing snails with a vengeance that was chilling to behold. But I know how that can be.

My own wife, a gentle woman with a garden that takes your breath away, has declared a state of all-out war against Liguus fasciatus. It is the only living creature I know of she will gladly and without the slightest blink of conscience dispatch to oblivion. In 35 years of otherwise violence-free residency in L.A., she has probably killed 3,000 snails and has declared on occasion she would rather eat pond scum than spare even one mollusk of the class Gastropoda.

I became aware of her growing antipathy toward snails one night when I awakened to realize she was not next to me in bed. I called her name as I wandered through the house, but there was no answer.

My first thought was that at long last she had abandoned all hope of ever transforming me into a decent human being and had run off with a tall, white person from one of our feature sections at the Los Angeles Times.

But then the front door opened and she entered from out of the darkness, dressed in tennis and a sweatshirt over her nightgown and wearing a triumphant expression. When I asked where she had been, she said, "Killing snails."

It was the beginning of a siege that has lasted ever since, by flashlight and by sunlight. Neither rain nor the presence one night of a rattlesnake in the garden has discouraged her from attacking snails after sunset, even as the snails are attacking her cowslips.

"You can't go out there at night," I said. "That's the time ratters are foraging and they don't like to be disturbed."

"It is also," she replied, "the time snails are foraging. Douglas MacArthur would have never re-taken the Philippines if he'd spent his time worrying about snails."

My heart went out to her and I wanted to help, but my contract with The Times specifically forbids my personal involvement in mayhem on the grounds that a columnist who kills once will kill again.

Bound by contractual restraints, I was forced, alas, to lie on the couch and watch television while she fought the war alone.

Over the years, she has employed a variety of weapons to eliminate snails. Diatomaceous earth barriers, copper sheeting fences, ashes from

Hotdogs suggestive? That's a new one

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — When a union charged that Northwest Airlines forbids stewardesses from eating hot dogs or ice cream cones while in uniform, the carrier served up the snacks to its flight attendants Friday to show it's not true.

The Teamsters had charged that the airline prohibited eating such food because it might appear sexually suggestive. "The whole thing is so absurd that when (a newspaper) called me and asked me, I said, 'Look it's not our policy, but just so there's no misunderstanding, why don't you come on down and have ice cream and hot dogs with our flight attendants,'" Northwest spokesman Redmond Tyler said.

Flight attendants were treated to hot dogs and ice cream at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, Tyler said. Teamsters spokesman Ken Daugherty in Detroit had said the policy, was published in a monthly employee newsletter, Northwest Detroit Inflight. He said it was signed by Northwest Detroit base manager Wendy Evans.

Evans called the document a fake. "We are looking into it, but we do not know where it originated," Tyler said. "It is my understanding that the union backed off of this and is now saying it's not true."

Daugherty did not return telephone calls for comment Friday. Northwest, which operates one of its three hubs from Detroit, accounts for more than half of the departures and landings at the airport 25 miles outside Detroit.

And it calls itself a news organization

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A convicted fraud artist, who fled in such a hurry he left behind his photo, bilked Time Inc. out of $2,000 by posing as the son of the magazine's chief executive officer, authorities said.

An all points bulletin was issued Thursday for David Lee Geiken, 30, the district attorney's office said.

"A lot of research went into this unusual scam," said district attorney chief investigator John Majka.

A worker at Time Inc. in San Francisco received a call April 29, supposedly from a Time executive in New York, Majka said. The caller said a son of Time chief executive officer Dick Munro was in Los Angeles and needed help.

The Time employee was told the son had been aboard the Aloha Airlines plane in Hawaii last week when the top part of the cabin was ripped off. He needed a ticket to San Francisco, a hotel room and $400.

The con artist was met by a limousine when he arrived in San Francisco and later used the vehicle to go to lunch on the other side of the Golden Gate Bridge, authorities said.

The "son" called the Time office again on Sunday and asked for $500 more, the investigator said. He called later Sunday but a long-distance operator broke in, saying there was an urgent call from Time in New York.

The man hung up and vanished, said Majka. He left behind his briefcase containing his identification and picture, as well as names and private phone numbers of some of the nation's top corporate executives.

Time spokesman Louis Slovinsky said the man gained credence by dropping the names of employees in Time's corporate headquarters that he had somehow learned.

Hide your missiles ... the aliens aren't happy

The Associated Press

OGDEN, Utah — Peace-minded aliens from outer space may be sabotaging American nuclear missiles in an effort to save the Earth from itself, a UFO researcher says.

Robert Hastings told a crowd of 250 at Weber State College that many former U.S. Air Force officers have reported malfunctions occurred on nuclear missiles after reported sightings of flying discs in the area.

An advanced extraterrestrial civilization bent on preventing our planet's destruction in a nuclear holocaust would have little difficulty sabotaging the missiles, Hastings said.

Hastings' two-hour lecture and slide show also focused on alleged abductions by aliens, the sighting of a UFO by President Jimmy Carter and the suggestion the government is hiding alien ships and bodies that crashed in New Mexico.

"This may be like science fiction or paranoid delusion ... it is not," he said Thursday.

The theme of the convocation lecture was the United States' "policy of secrecy" regarding alleged UFO sightings the past 40 years, Hastings said.

While agencies like the Air Force try to debunk the allegations or dismiss them as "small meteors and swamp gas," they conduct large-scale studies on UFOs that they keep secret from the public, he said.

Many of those secret files recently were made available through the Freedom of Information Act, Hastings said. The documents show that so-called flying saucers "do exist (and) they are not American or Soviet secret weapons," he said.

One of the documents Hastings presented was a 1950 letter to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover from an agent discussing the recovery of three flying saucers that crashed in New Mexico.

The ships were 50 feet in diameter and each contained three dead aliens who were three feet tall and wore metallic cloth, according to the letter.

I don't think it's fair No Girl Scout cookies for these sailors

The Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas — A Brownie troop's hopes of sending Girl Scout cookies to U.S. sailors have been snuffed in red tape because of a half-baked $2,000 Japanese import tax slapped on the goods, a troop leader said Friday.

The 402 boxes of Thin Mints, Golden Yangles, Scot Ts, Savannahs, Jubilees, Classic Cremes and Hoedowns are piled up at the Corpus Christi International Airport while officials try to figure out how to get them to their destination.

"We thought there would be a small import fee, but not this much," groused Marchetta White, leader of Brownie Troop 807 in nearby Beeville.

The 18 girls in the troop sold the cookies to crew members of the USS Midway, berthed in Atsugi, Japan, and were eagerly awaiting letters from the servicemen who bought them, White said.

American Airlines shipped the cookies April 26 to Japan without charge. However, when Japanese customs officials demanded a $2,000 import tax, the boxes sat in a customs warehouse for four days before being returned to Corpus Christi. They have been in storage in one of the airline's offices this week.

The troop's top cookie seller, 8-year-old Nickelle Clark, said she did not like the plan crumbled.

Jean Titus, general manager for the airline in Corpus Christi, said it probably will fly the cookies to Honolulu, where the Navy will pick them up, but it could take several weeks for the shipment to arrive.

"I'm quite sure that they will be leaving in the morning," she added.

Bruce: So is he bad or what?

The Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. — Bruce Willis, a favorite whipping boy of the scandal tabloids, doesn't think he's that bad.

"When I've been talking to people about this film (Sunset), I find them so surprised to see that I'm this calm and that I'm not throwing chairs and swinging from the rafters," he said. "They're pretty surprised that I can be this relaxed."

Indeed, he was relaxed as he lounged beside the swimming pool on a sunset morning at the beachfront home he shares with his wife, actress Demi Moore.

After three frantic years of doing TV's "Moonlighting" and three feature movies, Willis is unaccustomed to the leisure that has been endorsed by the screenwriters' strike. Like most television series, "Moonlighting" has shut down for lack of scripts.

The actor wore only swim trunks and a cap marked Newark National Company — "a small firm that will some day package my films; the name is an homage to my beginnings in the Garden State (New Jersey)." He looked trim, healthy — and relaxed.

The National Enquirer is facing another lawsuit. Cher, seeking $15 million in damages, charges the Enquirer made her look like a racist in a "complete falsehood" story saying she clashed backstage with comedian Eddie Murphy during the Academy Awards. The supermarket tabloid reported that Cher lashed out at Murphy for saying at the awards ceremony that too few blacks receive Academy Awards.

Cher, who won the Best Actress honors that night for her performance in "Moonstruck," said she didn't hear Murphy's comments and never spoke to him backstage.

Sylvester Stallone's ex-wife, the statuesque Brigitte Nielsen, and her latest, New York Jets' defensive lineman Mark Gastineau, have announced they are to become parents — though they won't say just when the baby is expected. The couple has been dating since January and plan to marry as soon as Gastineau's divorce becomes final. Appropriately, Nielsen and Gastineau met during Super Bowl week at a San Diego health club. # Couch potatoes? No way, 88 percent of Americans insist BOSTON (AP) — The "couch potato" isn't flourishing on American soil. While about 70 percent of U.S. adults indicate they watch some television during the evening, only 12 percent said it is their principal activity, according to a survey released Wednesday.

"We found that most people are not just simply couch potatoes, but do a number of other things with their free time," said Carol Hess, research consultant for Lexington-based Decision Research Corp., which conducted the poll.

Most adults reported they combine television with other activities, such as cooking, cleaning and crafts, said Hess. The survey, a follow-up to a previous leisure time poll released last year, asked 1,000 adults during October, November and December to describe how they spent the previous evening from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m.

After television, reading was the second-most popular activity, particularly among older respondents, with 22 percent reporting reading books or magazines as part of their evening.

Men comprised the majority of the 18 percent saying they worked during the evening, while the 9 percent reporting they shopped were mostly women, according to the survey. Twelve percent said they dined out. Sports or exercising, going to a meeting or having sex each were noted by 2 percent of the respondents. One percent went to a movie.

"We had a lot of other responses from knitting to spent last night in jail to skinning a racoon," said Hess. Only 15 percent rated their evening as "great," with satisfaction higher among older or married respondents or people with annual incomes above $50,000.

The survey was launched after DRC researchers last year found that many respondents felt their leisure time was diminishing. "We thought this was curious considering all the labor-saving equipment and that, in theory, people have a five-day work week," said Hess. DRC research, however, indicates that people perceive they have less leisure time because of the trend toward highly structured activities outside of work, said Hess.

the Japanese Embassy in Washington, said cookies would have a duty equal to 24 percent of the item's value and its freight costs. He said the $2,000 fee seemed high.

"It may be a mistake," Mura said. The cookie crisis even got Sen. Lloyd Benenson involved. The Texas Democrat has been working through diplomatic channels since Thursday "to get those cookies on the way to the sailors on the Midway," a spokesman said.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration spokesman Curtis Coker said that if the situation were reversed, "we would let it go right through to the Japanese in their ship or at their base. You have to apply a bit of common sense in regulating the food supply."

Mrs. White said that she chose the Midway because her son-in-law is stationed on the ship, and that the Brownies have been corresponding with the crew since they sent Christmas cards to the sailors last year.

Girl Scout leaders have not told all of the first, second- and third-graders that their cookie scheme met an international barrier.

"They decided at this point, since the cookies are going to get to the sailors, they didn't want to complicate the Brownies' lives," said Ann Diaz, executive director of the Paisano Girl Scout Council in southern Texas.

However, some of the girls' parents have told them about the detained cookies.

"Some of the younger ones weren't real comprehending about what happened, and the older ones do understand and are a little disappointed the guys didn't get their cookies," Mrs. White said.

Next time, she vowed, they will go through the military or the mail.

the Greplice and decolate snails. Decolates are snails that do not eat plants but eat plant-eating snails instead. They constitute a weapon which, when you stop to think about it, embraces a terrifying principle.

Imagine, if you will, U.S. Marines eating the Japanese at Guadalcanal and you will understand the moral nature of our newest weapon against snails. Decolates were shipped to us by the crateload. They arrived live at our house and, like newly-trained recruits, were eager to get into the fighting. But confronted by a numerically superior enemy in a yard that covers an acre, the little dears couldn't keep up and in the end vanished into the ivy, never to be seen again.

My wife, meanwhile, has been driven to chemical warfare in her battle against guerrilla snails, sprinkling poison near the base of the new spring flowers that otherwise would constitute a feast for the marauders.

I don't know that she will ever win the war, but I do know she will never stop trying. Even as I write on this velvety spring evening, she is out there engaged in combat.

If I listen closely, I can hear bugles blowing.

Through the many years of changes from pink neon signs in the 1930s and 1940s, to presenting sterling silver teaspoons as souvenir girls in the wading high school senior girls in the '50s and '60s to the current inventory closeout sale of the present, the store has been an institution in town.

The brothers considered selling the store to an outsider, but they were unwilling to put the Sterling reputation in the hands of owners whose fashionable virtues of honesty, quality and value which have been so important to us. They said in a letter of farewell.

They have often been kidded about their old slogan over the years, "Every gift should carry two names - yours and Sterling's."

Willis has been doing interviews for 'Sunset' Blake Edwards' Hollywood period piece in which Tom Mix (Willis) and Wyatt Earp (James Garner) pursue a murder scandal. Willis interviews have been rare in recent times. "My wife has helped me in dealing with the matter of publicity," he said. "It just sells more magazines to say I'm the Bad Boy of Hollywood than to say that I'm not doing anything this week, or I'm not throwing any wild parties."

"By and large, the basic principle was that if you put my picture on the cover of a magazine, people were going to buy it. I sell magazines, I had to realize that if you took all those people out of that industry, next week a whole new crowd would come in. Because somebody's got to do that job."

Becoming a husband and future father appears to have had a salutary influence on Willis, also the stimulus of working with veterans Edwards and Garner in a top-flight production.

"The work I had done in television was basically a two-character show," he said. "The film 'Blind Date' was basically a two-character love story. I had wanted to work in an ensemble situation with a large cast. The feel on 'Sunset' was the closest I've come to working on stage since I've come out here."

"I came on the film three weeks late, because I was finishing up the season on 'Moonlighting.' When I arrived, everyone else had been working on their characters and were into that genre. Jim especially made it very comfortable for me. We hit it off right away, and I had never met him before."

There's further evidence of Willis' domestication: He is into gardening.

"I'm having a lot of trouble with snails," he complained as he proudly displayed a tiny bed of marigolds and zinnias. "My interest in gardening," he explained, harks back to his New Jersey childhood.

"Everyone associates New Jersey with going on the turnpike through Elizabeth, Newark and that area," he said. "Where I grew up in south Jersey (Carneys Point) it's very beautiful."

"I really grew up out of doors. The majority of my first 16-17 years were outside, which I really didn't appreciate then. As a kid I always wanted to live in a larger city. Now that I'm older, those are the memories I have: climbing trees and being in the woods."

Willis, 33, spent a few years at Montclair State College, where he studied drama under Jerry Lockwood. In 1977, he moved to New York and began a life of hunting work as an actor and tending bar.

"I still remember when $20 was a lot of money," he reminisced. "I could eat for three or four days on $20. Of course my diet in those days was pretty much pizza and beer. In some ways things were a lot simpler then. There was only one thing to do: get a job. Then I didn't have to think about anything else — as long as the show ran."

"Once I had a structured job for six months, I fell in love with a girl, and she needed more security in our relationship. I was anything but financially secure. So I took a job managing a health club and became the director. The relationship fell apart and I went back to hunting for acting jobs."

His luck began to change when he starred in Sam Shamard's "Pool for Love." When he was passed over for a role in "Desperately Seeking Susan," Willis took a trip to Hollywood and soon was tapped for "Moonlighting."

The ABC series co-starring Cybill Shepherd and Willis as an odd couple of private eyes had a sensational two-years. It recently has been lambasted by critics and fans for constant reruns.

"I think we went through a rough time," Willis said. "Cybill was off the show having her babies. We really missed having her there; she brings a lot to the show. Not having her was like watching the Three Stooges with only one Stogie."

He still enjoys doing the show, he said.

"I'll stay as long as it remains creative. ... The medium of television itself has worn pretty thin for me. ABC has been very generous with expenses, but there are only so many shows you can do, so many ways to approach a scene. After my experiences in film, I find myself leaning more towards that."

SUBPOENAED

The U.S. Justice Department has subpoenaed the records of Sylvester Stallone's production company as part of a grand jury investigation of the Teamsters union's influence in the entertainment industry.

Stallone's White Eagle company is not the focus of the investigation, but the government is interested in its relationship with labor and studio consultant Marty Bacow.

The Justice Department also was looking into the relationship between Bacow, the Teamsters and other unidentified Hollywood production companies.

Bacow's relationship with Stallone goes back to 1983, when Bacow served as a consultant for the movie "Rhinestone."

But the assertion can't be verified today because all the names but Hoover's have been blacked out, Hastings said.

The U.S. government publicly dismisses such allegations so it won't cause a stampede, he said.

Hastings said he first became involved with UFO studies when five unidentified objects appeared over a Montana Air Force Base where he was living in 1967. The objects hovered and conducted quick maneuvers over the area for 30 minutes before they zoomed away at speeds of 4,800 mph, he said.

Hastings called his presentation "grassroots public information" designed to show that such organizations as the Central Intelligence Agency are serious about investigating UFOs.

Tak, tak. Despite considerable news coverage and publicity, the word is that folks haven't quite woken up to the fact that those handy interest deductions we've all enjoyed for years are drifting away.

Year	% of Interest Deductible	% Usually Deductible With First Security Home Equity Line
1987	65%	100%
1988	45%	100%
1989	30%	100%
1990	10%	100%
1991	0%	100%

As you can see, interest paid last year on things like a car loan, a washing machine or even your VISA or Mastercard is no longer totally deductible at tax time. Only 65% of it is. And this year's allowable deduction drops to 40%. Next year it sinks to 20%.

In 1990 it's 10%. And we won't even talk about what happens after that.

Now for the good news. With a First Security Home Equity Line, the interest paid is all deductible for most people. 100%.

While you should talk to a tax consultant for details, this does suggest several encouraging possibilities.

CONVERT ALL YOUR INTEREST CHARGES TO THE DEDUCTIBLE VARIETY.
Debt consolidation is nothing new. But these new tax laws make it more advantageous than ever. With a First Security Home Equity Line you could pay off your old loans and start fresh with a single payment—the interest of which is all "write-off-able."

A little remodeling. A new RV. Whatever. AN INTEREST CAP ON TOP OF ALL THIS. Being able to deduct all the interest is nice, but only if the amount of interest you have to pay is competitive. Like heat. Ours is based on the prime rate, as published in the Wall Street Journal, plus only 2% (which currently works out to 10.75% Annual Percentage Rate (as of 1/15/88)).

And there's a cap on that, so if the prime rate increases, you're protected. Our rate cap is 12.9% Annual Percentage Rate* and it protects you until January 1, 1992, after which the rate becomes variable.

Finally, we will even let you make interest-only payments for ten years, if that'll help.

forgo a few things with FSB. Like origination fees, and annual fees. And we'll even defer your title and appraisal fees until you use your loan.

We sure sure years wouldn't mind. Oh, and if you're fortunate enough to be a current FSB customer, watch for our special offer in your mail: It sweetens the pot even more.

THE TIME TO ACT IS ABOUT NOW. If you like the sound of this, and if you've established some equity in your home, call us at 1-800-453-1800. Or stop by any First Security Bank office. This could be the smartest loan you ever floated.

Wasted food helps needy

DEAR ABBY: I agree that the waste of good food in the school lunchroom is appalling.

Your suggestion that the matter be taken up by the PTA is a good one. There is one more thing that can be done, however.

There is a non-governmental, non-profit agency in St. Paul called Twelve Baskets (named after the baskets of food scraps collected after one of the miracles of the loaves and fishes).

About three years ago, the founders approached the St. Paul Health Department with a plan to redistribute unwanted salvageable food. With the guidance and blessing of the health department, the program was begun. It was one of the first of its kind in the country.

Twelve Baskets picks up surplus and distressed food and delivers it directly to on-site eating programs, where it is immediately prepared in approved kitchens and served. The food comes from food plants, bakeries, dairies, restaurants, grocery stores and other facilities where such food may be available.

Unfortunately, schools are not allowed to participate in this program because federal law prohibits redistribution of federal commodities that schools receive.

Until the U.S. Congress passes a bill that allows for such redistribution, salvageable, wholesome food will continue to be wasted daily. Minnesota Senators Beschwitz and Durenberger are aware of the problem, and would introduce a bill to correct it, but they don't feel there is adequate support for it in Congress.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

There is an increasing need for redistribution of this type of food, and schools are a valuable untapped resource. When there are needy people who can benefit from the work of organizations such as Twelve Baskets, but the law prevents that help, then it's time to change the law.

This is an election year. Please tell your readers to write to their senators and representatives and ask them to support a repeal of the anti-redistribution law, which is a part of the commodities program. Sending this column along with the letter might help.

THE HUE AND CRY

In early England, witnesses to a felony were required by common law to chase down the felon. The victim was required to yell — to raise a "human cry." The phrase wound up in the vernacular as "hue and cry."

That Love and War expert Madame Dariusz says couples contemplating matrimony ought to spend a few weeks also watching television together.

TOO MUCH MUSIC

Follsters asked walkabout folk if they liked the music they hear in markets, elevators, shopping malls, wherever. And 57 percent of this sampling said no, we'd rather have a little peace and quiet. Interesting. Don't believe those pollsters yet have asked about the telephone music you hear sometimes when you're put on hold. A real trap. You can't put the phoro down.

BATTLE CURL

According to the historical footnotes; Roman soldiers before going into battle traditionally went to their beauticians to get their hair lacquered and curled.

When the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton hired Albert Einstein, the directors asked him to name his salary. He said he had no idea, maybe his wife could come up with some figure. That way, she couldn't complain about money. It's said he never bothered to ask her about it, and never knew.

Wasted food helps needy

DEAR ABBY: I agree that the waste of good food in the school lunchroom is appalling.

Your suggestion that the matter be taken up by the PTA is a good one. There is one more thing that can be done, however.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

There is a non-governmental, non-profit agency in St. Paul called Twelve Baskets (named after the baskets of food scraps collected after one of the miracles of the loaves and fish).

About three years ago, the founders approached the St. Paul Health Department with a plan to redistribute unwanted salvageable food. With the guidance and blessing of the health department, the program was begun. It was one of the first of its kind in the country.

This is an interesting need for redistribution of this type of food, and schools are a valuable untapped resource. When there are needy people who can benefit from the work of organizations such as Twelve Baskets, but the law prevents that help, then it's time to change the law.

This is an election-year. Please tell your readers to write to their senators and representatives and ask them to support a repeal of the anti-redistribution law, which is a part of the commodities program. Sending this column along with the letter might help.

For information on how to set up a food reclamation and redistribution program, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Dick Goebel, Twelve Baskets, P.O. Box 7217, St. Paul, Minn. 55107. The program is funded through private contributions, foundation grants and the United Way.

By the way, I am in no way associated with Twelve Baskets.

— BILL JASPERS (FORMER ST. PAUL INSPECTOR)

DEAR BILL: Neither am I, but it's a crime to throw out edible food when so many people are hungry and homeless. It's a great idea. Rudy and Dave, the ball is in your court!

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for friends of mine as well as for myself. We would like to know how to say, "I love you. Will you marry me?" in French, German, Danish and Portuguese.

We went to the public library, and the librarian gave us some books, but they were of little use.

We would greatly appreciate it, Abby, if you could help us.

FRENCH: Je vous aime. Je voudrais vous épouser?

GERMAN: Ich liebe dich. Ich möchte dich heiraten.

DANISH: Jeg elsker dig. Vil du gifte dig med mig?

A word of caution, Dick. Don't say anything you don't mean. And don't make any promises you cannot keep.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know."

Twelve Baskets picks up surplus and distressed food and delivers it directly to on-site eating programs, where it is immediately prepared in approved kitchens and served. The food comes from food plants, bakeries, dairies, restaurants, grocery stores and other facilities where such food may be available.

Unfortunately, schools are not allowed to participate in this program because federal law prohibits redistribution of federal commodities that schools receive.

Until the U.S. Congress passes a bill that allows for such redistribution, salvageable, wholesome food will

THE WAITING GAME IS OVER!

Current Annual Percentage Rate as low as 9.5% on consumer loans.

"THE DOUBLE GUARANTEE"

The Best-Rate Guarantee

The Twin Falls Bank & Trust Company guarantees you, the borrower(s), that the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of your Twin Falls Bank & Trust direct consumer loan of at least $2500 with a term of 24 months or more, will not be higher than the published APR (for similar terms and collateral) offered by any other business and loan located in Twin Falls or Burley, Idaho, from the date of loan closing. If, within 30 days of the date of your loan, you discover there was available elsewhere a published APR better than the APR of your loan, we'll adjust your rate to match the discovered rate and subtract 1/2%. The discovered rate will begin on the day we verify the competitive rate and will extend through the end of your loan term.

DOUBLE LOAN GUARANTEE

The Same Day Response Guarantee

Twin Falls Bank & Trust Company guarantees you, the applicant(s), a same day response to your direct consumer loan application of $2,500 or more, on our completed application form received before 2 p.m. on a regular banking day. We will have a response for you as promised, or we'll pay $25 to you for the inconvenience. We will attempt to telephone you as soon as we have a response. However, if we cannot reach you, you will share the responsibility to contact us for a response.

For all the details, stop by the nearest Twin Falls Bank & Trust Office and just ask about the Double Guarantee.

Some restrictions do apply. Double Guarantee available for a limited time.
