Polish workers leave shipyard without settlement of strike

GDANSK, Poland — Lech Walesa and 1,000-fellow-workers left the Le-nin shipyard Tuesday night with heads held high but with no settle-ment, declaring that their eight-day strike showed Poles they must "fight ment, declaring that their eight-apy strike showed Poles they must "fight to win."

Bearing a cross and two Polish flags, they marched slowly from the yard, the 1980 birthplace of Solidarity, shortly after 8 p.m. (noon MDT). Police stepped back silently and let them pass.

Townspeeple applauded from balconies and sidewalks as the procession walked three blocks to St. Brygida's Church, a stronghold of Solidarity.

As the workers approached, bells pealed and supporters rushed to embrace Walesa- and other strike leaders, offering them flowers and kisses. "We thank you. We thank you!" the crowd chanted.

Walesa was a founder of Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's first and only independent trade union movement. The federation was outlawed in 1982, but the workers declared Tuesday night. Panel pledges early finish

Panel pledges early finish

WASHINGTON (AP) — The panel of experts created to solve the government's budget wees convened for its first public meeting Tuesday with a pledge that it would finish its work ahead of schedule. But many members of the National Economic Commission quickly realized it will be no easy task to master the arean edatals of federal budget writing.

Former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, now head of Union Pacific Corp., and Washington lawyer Robert Strauss, the occhairmon of the 12-member commission, both said the panel was committed to solving the budget problem in a bipartisan way after considering all possible solutions.

Lewis announced that the panel in an earlier closed-door session had agreed to an accelerated schedule under which its recommendations would be completed and released on Dec. 21, more than two months ahead of the deadline called for by law.

shut down.

"This is the stickiest wicket in this bill," said Sen.

Alan Dixon, D-Ill., as he acknowledged the political sensitivity of the base-closing provision, which is part of the Pentagon budget bill now on the Senate floor.

The plan, approved on an 83-13 vote, provides for the creation of a 15-member commission, that will review, the nation's 3,600 military facilities to determine which the nations 3,000 military includes to determine when of them can be closed.

The panel's report will be sent to Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci by next Dec. 31, and he will then have 15 days to either accept or reject all the commission recommendations. That means Carlucci, who supports the base-closing plan, might order closures only five days before the Reagan administration-leaves office:

Schlueter had colled the early election hoping to win a clear endorsement of Demark's "full membership" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Social Democrats, Denmark's largest, party, pushed through a resolution in Parliament last month designed to reinforce a 1957 pencetime ban on nuclear weapons on Danish territory. Both the United States and Britain had expressed opposition to the measure.

Boise ranks low in spending

Boise ranks low in spending Boise (AP) — One week before an important bond election, a new study shows the Boise-independent School District spends less per pupil than any of nine comparable Western cities, although the city's per-capita income ranks third in the group.
The report found Boise ranks the lowest among the 10 cities in per-capita and per-pupil revenues and expenditures. It spends about $2,300 per pupil per year, 37 percent below the average.
But Boise's per-capita income, at $14,275, was the third-highest of 'the group.' Spending the most per pupil was Taccana, Wash., at $4,790. The lowest per-capita income of the 10 was Pueblo, Colo., at $11,035, and the highest was Reno at $17,469.

Hospitals oppose H&W rules

MOSOUR (AP) — Proposed new state rules could require Idaho, hespitals to treat things such as facial tissues and surgical gowns as potentially infectious material.

The Idaho Hospital Association opposes regulations under consideration by the Department of Health and Welfare.

Officials said under the proposal, hospitals will have to burn materials which could be infectious or place them in containers before they are buried in landfills.

The agency is scheduled to make a decision on the rules by December.

Time capsule meets apathy

COSUR DALENE (AP) – Signs of the times are hard to come by in this northern Idaho city. At least that's the word from Bob Jenks, who's trying to fill a 12-cubic-foot time capsule for the final event of the city's 1987 centennial celebration scheduled Saturday. Just one-third of the space has been filled. Jenks says that will show people 100 years from now that the community was apathetic. The only items received so far by Jenks and his group, the Centennial Activities Committee's Time Capsule Subcommittee, were individual capsules from each of the area's schools, plus posters and a centennial T-shirt.

Endorsement for Robbins

I am writing to endorse Gary Robbins and encourage voters to vote for him in May 24th primary elections.

It is not sufficient to ask for support without giving good and just reason. I shall. I have known Gary, personally, for nearly 20 years. In that time I have learned how he thinks about life's issues and the personal opinions that he holds.

Time to save water waning
To Robie Russell, EPA administrator, Seat

Time is running out for safeguarding the potability of the Snake River Aquifer, upon which over 200,000 people depend for household water. Since the first proposal for sole source designation in 1982 we have seen six years of backing and geeing and hawing by various officials and representatives of the people. We have not seen any disposition to move forward on a set of unequivocal standards. The Legislature has demonstrated itself unable to overcome the hurdle special interest users place in front of the broad common interest of the people as a whole.

True, the 1988 Legislature did discuss and produce a bill relating to surface waters, but this bill plainly demonstrated the primacy of commercial uses over public interest. We have yet to see emerge from the Capital any legislation, or instruction for rule making that puts clean water at the top of the process. What we have are processes to protect the degradation already in place, and devices whereby ambient qualities may be lowered still further.

I have read the eiter of Governor Cecil Andrus written in February, requesting further delay of EPA Sols Source designation. Reasons were always to the secondary of the secondar

We see no conflict between the State's control of water rights and federal standards of water quality where federal money is involved. State of Idaho standards have not been known to be higher nor more protective of peoples intervaus than those of the federal governing than the federal governing that the federal governing the federal governing that the federal governing the federal gove

Clinton Watson was real lucky that he was the "right" color. Let me explain.

Some weeks ago one Hector Gonzalez, note the last name, was a passenger in a car that almost collided with some bicyclists at a four and the cyclists exchanged words and scuffled.

The driver gets the worst of it and both parties go on their way. Later on the driver and his passenger are arrested and charged with ag

I assume that being branded as uncooperative entitles one to "special treatment." Weeks since being handcuffed, the cuff marks are still visible, but Genzalez is getting the feeling in his fingers back. Gonzalez was kept incommunicado for a day, but when he managed to contact a bail bondsman, according to the bondsman, the police tried to persuade the bondsman, the mosting bail. bondsman from posting bail.

The atrocity that irritates me the most was when Gonzalez was being fitted in leg irons to visit the judge, the jailer would push Gonzalez into a more suitable position, Gonzalez, pro-

Louisiana act was improper

Louisiana act was improper I believe there has been great confusion about what the U.S. Supreme Court-said in-Edwards v. Aguillard, the case that dedared a Louisiana "balanced treatment" law to be unconstitutional. Therefore, so you might decide for yourself, I have condensed the decision, inserting language only where necessary to maintain continuity.

"The question for decision is whether Louisiana's Balanced Treatment for Creationism—Science and Evolution—Science in Public School Instruction Act ... is invalid as violative of the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment." p. 2575. "The Establishment Clause for the growth of the School Instruction have a superior of the School Instruction have the stablishment Clause for the public about the supplied a three-pronged test. First the legislature must have adopted the law with a secular purpose." p. 2576-77. "If the law was enacted for the purpose of endorsing religion, no consideration of the second or third criteria is necessary. In this case, the petitioners have identified no secular purpose for the Louisiana Act."

True, the Act's stated purpose is to protect cacdemic freedom. "p. 2578. Whether that term means "the freedom of teachers to teach what they will." p. 2578. or "teaching all the evidence." p. 2579 "teaching all the evidence." p. 2579. "the goal of providing a more comprehensive science curriculum is not furthered either by outlawing the teaching of evolution or by requiring the teaching of creation science." p. 2579. Evolute the Act's requirements, teachers who were once free to teach any and all the facets of this subject are now unable to do so." p. 2580.

"The legislature the facets of this subject are now unable to do so." p. 2580.

"The legislature hat adopted this Act, embodies the religious belief that a supernatural creator was responsible for the creation of human-kind. Because the primary purpose is to advance a particular religious belief, the Act em dorses religion in violation of the First Amendment.

We do not imply that a legislature could dorses reigion.n.voiation of the rist Amen ment.

We do not imply that a legislature could never require that scientific critiques of prevailing scientific theories be taught. Teaching a variety of scientific theories about the origins of humankind to school children might be validly done with the clear secular intent of enhancing the effectiveness of science instruc-tion. But because the primary purpose of the Creationism Act is to endorse a particular reli-gious doctrine, the Act furthers religion in vio-lation of the Establishment Clause." p. 2582-

In my opinion, the language is clear. The In my opinion, the language is clear. The Louisiana Act was improper because the claimed purpose to enhance academic freedom was a sham: teachers could already teach any was a small, teachers dutin and any teach any scientific theory they wished (including creationism), and all the law did was limit their right to teach evolution.

The Court also found that the legislature in tended to promote the Biblical dectrine of di vine creation in violation of the Establishment

In one sentence, I believe, the Court declared that a state legislature may not require-the teaching of creationism if the overriding purpose is to promote that religious doctrine It did not decide what could or could not be taught in a classroom.

At last, an exchange of ideas about evolution vs. creation

There is a real gain in the evolution versus creation question of late: we are, at last, exchanging ideas.

Harry Missoth's letter, May 5, 1988, is but one example. Brave! He stands up for his belief as I do for mine. Re: his "proper and improper application, the presentation of science vs. pseudo-science in the classroom," and creationism has been justly exposed as a weak scientific theory. I must agree with him, as I do also with "hundreds of biologists who, during the last 35 years, have rejected neo-Darwinism as a fact of life." But there we particompany intellectually.

I would point out to him, both evolution and creation must be — by their very nature—taken by fatth, neither of them being "empirical science," (since the beginnings were a non-time event and cannot be duplicated and/or falsified — it is a fact only). Ken A. Ham puts it this way in his book "The Lie": It is astonishing, in this so-called scientific age, that so few people know what science really is or how it works. Many think of scientists as unbiased people in white laboratory coats objectively seeking, searching for, the truth However, scientists come in two basic forms, male and female, and they are just like you and me. They have beliefs and biases. A bias determines what you do with the evidence, es pecially the way in which you decide that cer-tain evidence is more relevant or important time evidence is more relevant or important than other evidence. Scientists are not objective truth seekers — they are not neutral. Many people misunderstand bias, thinking that some individuals are biased and some are not-Consider an athiest, for example; such a person believes there is no god. Can atheists entertain the question "Did God create?" The answer is no. As soon as they even allow it as a question they are no longer atheists.

Elizabeth Werner

An agnostic is 100 percent biased. He believes one cannot know anything for sure, so leaves one cannot know anything for sure, so mattle no matter how much evidence he hears, he can still say, "I do not know." As soon as he knows, he has stopped being an agnostic.

But what about a revelationist, that is, a person who believes that the god of history has revealed the truth about himself by means of a book? (A book which claims over 3,000 times to be the word of God J. Can such a person consider the opposite question — that God did not sider the opposite question— that God did not sider the opposite question — that God did not create? No! Because he starts with the prem-ise that God is the creator and his word is

All three (above named) (and theists) hold to religious positions and what they do with the evidence will again be determined by the as-sumptions (beliefs) of their religious positions It is not a matter of whether one is biased o not. It is really a question of which bias is the best bias with which to be biased."

All believe (!) starting with the premise that aly their belief is valid. I agree with Mr. am, it is really not a matter of whether one is used or not, but a question of which bias has bissed or not, but a question of which bias has the most value. Creationists have real difficulties talking to some evalutionists because of the way (evolutionists) the most value. Creationists through evolutionary ears. I am saving: to understand the evolution-creation issue correctly, we must first try for a complete understanding of the beliefs for faith) adhered to by both sides, for when evolution-creation is discussed we are in both instances talking about beliefs for religion. The controversy is interligion versus science at all, but the science of one religion the lief versus the science of the other. Intellectual honesty requires that this be acknowledged first. This is what candemin is struggling with presently. Meanwhile creationists do not have the same media coverage to explain to the world at large all the nearoverwhelming evidences they have — all of which tend to prove their belief.

It seems to me that if we teach our students that all scientists start with presuppositions, or (beliefs), which they use in interpreting the available evidence, those same students (from first grade through adulthood) will be enabled to identify assumptions as belief systems which determine the interpretation of such evidence. They will then understand the issues better and become better independent thinkers, better future accinities.
It is so very painful to witness the perpetual ongoing wrangle which solves nothing. I pray the readers, fellow Christians or not, may decide for themselves to give this some thought—at least. My experience has been that an earnest prayer for help in understanding is never in vain.

Israelis rake in ID cards

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Israeli troops roused Palestin-ians at dawn Tuesday and confiscated their identity papers in a new cam-paign to force 400,000 Arabs in the Gaza Strip to renew their government ID cards.

paign to force 400,000 Arabs in the Gaza Strip to renew their government ID cards.

Arab underground leaders warned residents via leaflets and mosque loudspeakers that the ID campaign in the Gaza Strip was a plu to break a five-month Palestinian uprising.

Maj. Gen. Yitzhak Mordechai, commander of Israeli troops in Gaza, said the effort was designed to ferret out false ID cards and catch security and tax offenders. Refusal to pay taxes and other fees has been a chief tactic of the, struggle against Israels 21-year occupation in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Some of the new cards actually banned Palestinians from entering Israel.

Also Tuesday, Israeli troops shot and wounded an Arab youth in the stometh after an army jeep was stoned in the West Bank village of Ramin, eight miles north of Nablus, the military command said.

The unidentified youth was in serious condition, officials at nearby Tulkarem hospital said. The army said a soldier was slightly wounded.

Rocard new French premier

PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand named. Socialist Michel Rocard as premier Tuesday to form n new government following Mitterrand's decisive victory in the presidential election.

Premier Jacques Chirac resigned and Mitterrand-swiftly-picked Rochard, a popular politician who describes himself as a "free-enterprise leftist."

Mitterrand, also a Socialist, defeated the conservative Chirac in Sunday's presidential election. Chirac had been premier since his conservative alliance defeated the Socialists in 1986 for control of Parliament.

Rocard, who has centrist support, went to his new offices in the Hotel

Afterward, Rocard told reporters,
"The president has given me a tough job." He said he would form a Cabinet bearing in mind the French people's worries "for their future, for their jobs, for their education, for their security."

Under the French constitution, the president is responsible for foreign affairs, defense and guarding the nation's interests abroad, while the premier runs day-to-day government.

After meeting with Rocard, Chirac left for the Paris City Hall, where he maintains an apartment. He has been mayor since 1977.

Because his party does not control Parliament, Rocard must form a government with support from outside the Socialist ranks. Mitterrand, who is beginning his second seven-year term-as-precident, has said non-Socialists would be included in the Cabinet cialists would be included in the observed.

The change of government formally ends "cohabitation," as the French call the uneasy sharing of power by a president and pzemier of opposing political views.

It also marked the first time in 30 years of the Fifth Republic that a government does not have a majority in the National Assembly, which is controlled by center-right parties that backed Chirac.

WASHINGTON — Although unsuccessful in an earlier attempt, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D. Mass., will try again this week to slow or block spending on the Special Isotope Separation project in Idaho, a spokesman said Tuesday. The aide, Christopher Paine, declined to give details of an amendment to the defense authorization bill the senator intends to bring up for debate Wednesday or. Thursday on the Senate floor, but he said it would be "something like" a measure the House approved ast week.

Under the House amendment, a compromise worked out by Rops. Richard Stallings, D. Second District, and Albert Bustamante, D. Peass, no construction or site work for the SIS project could be performed at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory until March 1, 1989, after the Energy Department submits safety reports.

That would mean withholding $2 million from the project until that date.

The $1-billion SIS project would use laser technology, now being developed at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory-in-Galifornia, to-refine plutonium for use in nuclear weapons. Several national facilities are vying for the project, but the Department of Energy has proposed the INEL as the preferred site.

The project has provoked considerable controversy in Idaho and on Capitol Hill, where Bustamante and Kennedy have maintained that the government has more weapons grade plutonium than it needs. The SIS project backers, including the Idaho congressional delegation, say the country will need a ready stockpile of plutonium in the future.

Kennedy sought to amend the defense authorization bill in the Senate Armed Services Committee a couple of weeks ago, but the committee rejected his measure. The amendment would have blocked any construction or site-preparation until April -1, 1989, when an environmental and safety report by the Department of Energy was to be delivered to Congress.

The committee approved a watered-down amendment requiring only that DOE issue a safety and environmental impact report on the project. Federal panel holds hearings on emergency livestock feed

By MARTA CLEAVELAND Times News writer

WIN FALLS = A key U.S. House of Representatives agriculture sub-committee will hold a hearing here Friday to take public tostimony on an-emergency livestock-feed assistance bill.

The Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry will hear testimony on legislation introduced by IdahoCongressman Richard Stallings in 1987 that would address problems with emergency livesfock feed assistance programs during drought and other disaster conditions.

In 1985 Idaho and many other states experienced drought conditions which forced them to request emergency—livestock—feed—assistance which forced them to request emer-gency—livestock feed—assistance— through the U.S. Department of Agri-culture, Stallings said. "USDA's response was too little, too late and many livestock producers— were forced to sell their herds or to re-sort to purchasing poor value feed," he said.

Want to testify or need information?

The hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho in Room 108 of the Aspen Building.

If you want to testify, or would like a copy of the bill, contact Charles Barnes at Richard Stallinges Twin Falls office at 734-8329:

The subcommittee will also accept written testimony in lieu of an appearance. appearance.

Lincoln County Extension Agent tacy Camp said speeding up the pro-ess would be a tremendous help. "Last year USDA brought a corps of people out from Washington to look at drought conditions, and by the time they got here it was raining," Camp said. It was also too late to help many livestock producers by the time the dissaster funds were released.

Lincoln County has 25 people signed up for emergency feed assistance right now, said Judy Black, director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service there.

"The process is just too slow to respond to regional needs," Stallings said.

USDA now has seven existing programs at its disposal. Four require a national disaster declaration by the president, and only three have been used since 1979.

Stillings's Emergency Livestock Feed Assistance bill would consolidate the seven existing programs into one, would give governors the option of requesting the type of feed assistance needed and would require USDA to respond to requests within strict time frames.

Some of the disaster feed assistance options the bill would offer are as follows:

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An alternate juror in the federal trial of a polygamist family says he leaned toward acquittal of clan leader Addam Swapp on an attempted murder charge stemming from a lawman's death.

Swapp and three other family members were found guilty Monday of 20 of 23 counts stemming from the Jan. 16 bombing of a Mormon chapel and a firefight 13 days later that left state Corrections Lt. Fred House dead.

Clan matriarth Vickie Singer was acquitted of attempted murder of FBI agents, an accompanying firedrims

Lacy said the indecision hinged on testimony that Jonathan Swapp and John Timothy Singer fired at officers during the shooting, but only two of seven witnesses said they saw Addam Swapp point a rifle at lawmen.

"For a firing sequence of about 15 seconds, we had about two days of testimony," Christensen said.

The prosecution and defense agreed that Addam Swapp didn't actually fire his rifle, but there was disagreement over whether he took aim with it before he himself was shot. Christensen said he was not wholly convinced Swapp brought his rifle to bear.

But he said there was little ques-tion about the remaining charges, since Swapp admitted on the witness stand that he'd bombed the church.

Christensen said he had the impression Addam Swapp was the instigator of the bombing and the standoff at Marion, but he did not discount Vickie Singer's role in the affair.

Vickie Singer's role in the affair.
"She had a large part in the whole thing starting out," he said. "She drilled into them her story of John Singer (her husband, who was killed by police at the same Marion farm house in 1979). She set the tenor for the way everybody felt."

Officials admit knowing dangers existed at Nevada plant

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — State and county officials have acknowledged they knew as long as five years ago that potentially dangerous conditions existed at a Henderson plant that blew plast Wednesday.

Despite the concerns, the county approved plans for a housing development just half a mile from the facility. The housing project, which would have included 1,200 homes and condominiums, was never built.

The residential community was planned by the Gibson family, owners of the Pacific Engineering and Production Co. plant.

Stroller discovers dinosaur

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A termite inspector taking an evening stroll in a hilliside wash in the Tucson Mountains has turned up dinosaur bones that a scienits says survived "a geological Cuisinart."

Adam Tatium says he was guided to the wash by 60d, who wanted him to remind people that if humans "don't get our act together, if we don't repent and turn back to the ways of God, we're going to end up like the dinosaurs — extinct."

Kevin Moodie, a University of Arizona vertebrate paleentologist, said it appears the bones came from the hind legs of a duck-billed dinosaur that lived between 65 million and 100 milliony years gow. Modie spent between 20 and 30 hours chiseling the bones from the rock in which they were embedded.

Moodie said the dinosaur probably stood 15 to 18 feet tall and measured about 30 feet from head to tail. He said thousands of similar remains have been found in Montana but that these may be the first in southern Arizona and definitely are the first of any kind of dinosaur bones found in southern Arizona in the last 20 years. — Ther rarity in southern Arizona stems in part from the area being under water during much of the time-that dinosaurs provided the earth, and in part because of destruction associated with formation of mountain ranges.

County records show that state and county officials became aware in 1983 of dangerously high levels of hydrogen at the Pacific plant.

One document listed the hydrogen as being 'in the explosive range," the Las Vegas Review-Journal reported Tuesday.

County building inspectors confirmed the unsafe conditions in late 1983 after being asked to assist the state Divission of Occupational Safety and Health.

There are no county records indi-cating whether the company ever re-sponded to subsequent building de-partment requests to make the area

CSI sweeps pair from Ricks, will host regional tournament

Special to The Times-News

REXBURG — The College of Southern Idaho's baseball team exploded for 24 hits, including three home runs, to sweep a regular season-ending northern division Region 18 doubleheader from Ricks College, 10-3, 10-3, here Tuesday.

The twin-killing earned CSI the host designation for next week's Region 18 tournament, thanks to a regional bylaw that provides for a second tiebreaker when two teams deadlock for the division champinship as the Eagles did with North Idaho this year.

"When we need to do it, we find a way to get it done," said CSI Coach Jim Walker, whose ballclub was in jeopardy of missing the tournament altegether just 10 days ago. The sweep climaxed an improbable comeback by CSI for the right to host the tournament, the annual four-team playoffs involving the top two teams from the northern and southern divisions of Region 18. Until last Saturday, the host designation seemed to be locked up by North Idaho.

But after Treasure Valley Commu-nity College swept a pair from the nity College swept a pair from the Cardinals on their home tilmment and then lost a double-header to Ricks here on Monday, the pieces were failing in place for Eagles. To complete the comeback they needed a sweep over Ricks Tuesday.

CSI completed the season with an 8-4 league record, the same as North Idaho. However due to the fact that the Eagles had a better record against the third-place team, Treasure Valley, CSI earned-the right to host the tournament.

Their misfortune was our good lead to the gains open with five runs. And designated hitter Carl Smith's 410-foot triple were the key hits.—
In the seventh inning, CSI added wo insurance runs on shortstop playoff contention, were relaxed and earlier in the season had upset CSI. Ricks The Vikings, already out of playoff contention, were relaxed and earlier in the season had upset CSI. Ricks grabbed a 1-0 lead in the opener, but CSI's bats came alive in the third inning. Third baseman Jesse Torres, right-fielder Troy Hymas, left-fielder Errol Shirer and center-fielder Billy Satterfield each cracked singles as CSI pulled ahead the 320-foot mark on the right-hander fence.

Meanwhile, CSI's ace right-hander Don Emery was keeping Ricks' bats in check. Ricks' only other runs came on left-fielder Kip , Shepard's two-run homer run in the sixth.

The second game was almost a replay of the opener. Again Ricks lead-off batter Tracy Wwlker scored in the first inning, but after that it was all

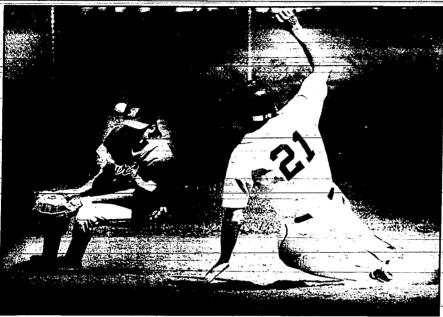

The Engles took the lead in the third inning on the strength of single by second baseman Todd Webb and backte-back doubles by Shirer and Stiterfield.

In the fourth inning, CSI scored four runs on four hits, including a double by third-baseman Rich Hooper. Satterfield, who was the game's leading hitter with a 3-for-3 performance, launched a home run over the left-field fence in the sixth inning to boost the Engles' lead to 7-1.

Then in the-seventh, catcher John NeSmith hit a three-run homer over the right-field fence to ice the victory.

RUPERT — After a pair of 10-run victories, the last thing anybody would expect would be a one run Minico victory.

Nobody expected it, but that's what happened Tuesday afternoon in the first round of the Region III Class A baseball tournament. Mini-co's 6-5 victory advances the Spartans to the second round for a 6 p.m. contest against Highland in Pocatello today. Burley will play Poca-tello in a loser-out game in Pocatello at 3 p.m.

It's called playing good enough to "It's called playing good enough to win," said Minico Cooch Cory Bridg-es, who will send right-handed ace Dan Poulton (6:0) against Highland right-hander John Jones (3:0). Minico trailed twice in the con-test, something that hadn't occured all season after the Spartans put the Bobcats away after five innings.

Burley-scored a pair in the first inning off pitcher Jack Bagley.

A single by Fete Rodriguez scored Shay Watterson, who walked to start the game-abson Allem-plated Rodriguez with a single of his own.

The scoreboard read 2-0 in favor of Burley, which wasn't unusual because Burley had taken early leads in many gomes just to see the game-slip away in the later innings.

The Bobcats may have felt jinxed when Alfie Aragon, the second Spartan batter lined a triple and scored easily on a Dan Poulton single. Burley escaped the bottom of the first inning and still had the lead.

Burley hurler Tom Messinbrink backed himself into trouble in the second, when he walked the eighth, and ninth batters and watched as both scored on a single by leadoff hitter Kent Schow. The crowd was ready for the roof to cave in on-the Bobcats, but the dreaded fly ball ended another Spartan rally.

In the top of the third, Burley knotted 3-3, when Allen and Messin-

No, much worse. The PMS monster has emerged from two weeks of peaceful hibernation to terrorise husbands, children and co-workers. prior to the start of their menstrual periods. PMS, or Premenstrual Syndrome, has as many as 150 symptoms and despite many theories, has no known cause or cure.
In a landmark study at the University of California at San Diego in 1984, researchers firmly established a physical basis for PMS. They chemically shut down the ovariof a test group of women and relieved their PMS sympheadache, pelvic pain, skin disorders, backache, weight gain and bloating. Behavioral complaints include mood swings, irritability, depression, anxiety, food cravings and binges.

The key to defining these symptoms as PMS is in their periodic nature. They are intensified in the 7-10 days prior to a menstrual period and disappear for at least a week at-terwards.

Diet, drugs, exercise and group psychotherapy have all been recommended as treatments for PMS. Lois Adrian, a family physician, and Judy Bean and Carol Wade, both family nurse practitioners, believe that PMS has a physical cause and that a change in diet and lifestyle can help relieve symptoms.

Many women notice symptoms typical of hypoglycemia such as jitteriness, irritability, hunger and fatigue. By eating six small meals a day that are high in complex carbohydrates, some women find they are able to even out their mood swings.

If you suffer from PMS, here are a few things you can do or not do — to help you feel better:

Avoid sweets like candy and cookies, which cause an insulin surge and latera drop in-blood sugar that aggravates depression. When the urge to eat a candy bar hits, ask yourself if it is worth suffering "the blues" in two hours.

Avoid caffeine. Coffee, cola drinks and chocolate are all high in caffeine, a stimulant that increases irritability and breast tenderness. Adrian said if you are used to two cups of offee a day, that amount is OK as long as you

Adrian also recommends six tablets a day of Optivite for the two weeks prior to your period and two tablets a day during the rest of the month. Six tablets a day supply 300 mg, which is high above the recommended daily allowances set by the U.S. government.

Wade recommends 100-200mg of Wade recommends 100-200mg of B6 per day for three months and grad-unlly decreasing that amount down to 60 mg per-day. Be careful with vita-min supplements. At 300-500mg of B6 per day symptoms of headache, dizzi-ness and numbness in your fingers can result.

can result.

One theory proposes that a lack of vitamin E leads to breast tenderness. But before you buy vitamin E supplements, try eating foods rich in vitamin E such as dried beans, nuts, whole wheat and green vegetables. Vitamin E is a fat soluble vitamin that can be stored in your body and reach toxic levels if you overdose. Signs of toxicity such as fatigue, skin rash and abdominal discomfort, have occurred in patients taking 400-1600IU perday.

Another possible cause of PMS is a relative imbalance of magnessum and calcium. The theory points to an overconsumption of dairy products and a diet of highly concentrated sweets leading to a decreased uptake of magnesium. This leads to mood swings.

tension, bloating and breast tend-

I would not cut down on dairy prod-ucts with their much-needed calcium. Eating foods high in magnesium, such as red meat, whole grains, seeds and legumes is much safer than increas-ing your risk of osteoporosis by cut-ting down on calcium.

ting down on calcium.

Taking magnesium supplements exposes you to the risk of adversely affecting your calcium uptake. Cutting down on sugar may help and certainly there is no harm in that. Ronald Norris and Colleen Sullivan in their book.

"PMS' Premenstrual Syndrome," note that checolate is high in magnesium and craving it may represent a deficiency. They do not recommend eating it, however, but other foods high in magnesium.

Another theory holds that a deficiency of progesterone arises from a lack of linoleic or other omega-6 fatty acids. The recommended treatment is acida. The recommended treatment is taking evening primrose oil. A local health food store sells sixty capsules for SI7.28. Safflower oilthe kind you cook with is also rich in omega-6 fatty acids and is much cheaper. Keep in mind that all these diet treatments are controversial. Studies can be cited defending or defeating their use, but they do work for somewomen and they may work for you.

Asking if stress causes PMS or PMS causes stress is like asking whether the chicken or the egg came first. One enhances the other. A stressful month can lead to more PMS symptoms. If your symptoms are worse, during one month this will lead to more stress which escalates the cycle.

Everyone I talked to recommended Everyone I talked to recommended regular aerobic exercise as one of the best 'treatments' for PMS. Bean stressed that even if you work full-time, a half hour a day of brisk walking can be squeezed in. Running after children, while energy draning, is not enough. Adrian believes the stress relief attained with aerobic exercise definitely reduces PMS symptoms. Wade said the benefit of doing something for yourself by exercising seems to have a positive effect.

Home/garden

Intensive garden planting adds to efficiency, reduces work

Intensive planting methods can increase the efficiency and reduce the amount of work for a vegetable garden. The same amount of garden space can produce twice the yield of conventional single row planting. With intensive gardening, seeds or plants of small and medium size vegetables are spaced or broadcast across a band or row I to 3-feet wide. This method uses the space more intensively because a higher proportion of space is used for actual production.

For example, three rows of peas or beans are planted leaving only 6-inches between rows. When fully grown they produce a wide row about 2-feet-wide. Plants can be reached—picking. Three conventional rows each spaced 2-feet-apart would occupy twice as much garden space and would yield approximately the same amount of peas or beans.

If you only need one row, just make the rows ½ as long. By using less space to produce the same yield, the size of your garden shrinks. A smaller garden requires less time and work.

I generally broadcast seeds of small beets and lettuce in wide rows 1 to 2-feet in width. A 1-foot by 1-foot patch of radishes is all my family can use before they become over ripe.

This method also leaves enough leftower space to make a second or third planting of fast maturing vegetables. With repeat plantings, you can have radishes, lettuce, beets and other vegetables in prime eating condition all summer long.

There are a number of special variations on intensive gardening. Grow boxes or raised beds offer some additional advantages. One of the most interesting variations is Square Foot Gardening. You will find books on Square Foot Gardening and other intensive gardening methods at book stores and in the library. I have a leaf-let with additional information on intensive planting, repeat planting and other techniques for improving vegetable gardening efficiency. If you would like a copy, send $1.00 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to idaho 63440.

Intensive gardening methods do not apply very well to large vegetables like tomatoes and squash. A single plant can occupy 3 or more feet of space, so it is not practical to space plants close together unless they are caged or trained up on some type of support.

Like cars, houses of the future will lose 'lavish quirkiness

NEW YORK — Think of one of those splashy 1940s Cadillacs — the kind with long puffy fenders, silvery grilles and imperial hood ornaments. Then picture a parking lot full of today's look-alike boxes on wheels, each one distinguishable chiefly by its colors.

Over the decades, American cars ish quirkiness in home-building will probably fizzle and the standardization of houses, which has already being un to happen, will become more and more prevalent, Pappas said.

Pappas, a likable man with a down-home Plorida drawl and a small, Jacksonville-based firm, was in New York recently – he's been here a lot lately — to help plan and promote the May, 1988, American Institute of Architects convention. For the first time in 20, years, it will be held in New York; next week, about 14,000 architects from all over the country will converge on this city to talk about everything from art's cutting edge to the growing disaster of homelessness. During his stay, Pappas spent a long afternoon press conference talk.

As the century winds down, American will screw their heads on straight and begin thinking globally as opposed to egoistically and individually. Pappas predicted. The pendully and individually. Pappas predicted. The pendully may be the problems, its designs. He tended to see the fluture as a barreling forcenational mood will turn to one of secondary and the se

There's demographics, and, there's psychographics, he went on, 'and psychographics, is the study of the change in people's tittludes in the country. Through psychographics, one can discern not only how people relate to each other, but how that mood will affect the built environment.

"I believe that architects will always be concerned with design and the evolution of design. But I think inthe decedes to come they'll develop a greater sense of social responsibility, like in the Sixties, and not only architects, but everyone."

like in the Sixtes. And not only arent-tects, but everyone."

Practical housing problems due to America's shifting demographics will soon-be-legion, Pappas said. The ar-chitects who address them will proba-bly build new kinds of houses that haven't yet been imagined.

"I assume that in the future, buildings will be put together to a large degree by robots," Pappas said. "They're already doing it in Japan."

To alleviate the shortage of affordable housing, architects will probably use stronger, cheaper materials that are now. being, developed.—woods, plastics and alloys as strong as steel, Pappas said. In fact, he said, by the year 2000, a significant percentage of yany given new home will probably be timade of plastic—not just the egg—tray in the refigerator, but the beams themselves. The new materials will dictate the shapes and styles of the rhouses—just as steel plus the invention of the elevator equaled an until precedented building form called the skyscraper. precedented building form called the skyscraper. Sections of houses will be made on

Sections of houses will be made on assembly lines, in larger and larger parts, to be put together on site. The houses themselves will be smaller and more standardized-than ever—both as an economical measure and as a way of responding to the shrinking American family. These houses will probably cost roughly the same as cars will cost. Pappas said. And, as with cars, the differences between individual houses will reside in the options and colors.

"Bedrooms are going to stay," he said. "Bathrooms are going to stay. Kitchens aregoing to get more technical. And living rooms will become the head rooms." The head room is where you sit down and it's got all the electronic stuff and computers and VCRs. Head trooms—there the trig one.

Dining rooms. Pappas said; will probably go the way of the parlor, the music room and the sewing room.

"Nobody's going to sit at a dining table and bring out the butter and all. I see it happening already. People don't use their dining rooms."

And, as far as design goes, there will probably be one other change that will kill, noce and for nell, the ubiquitous ranch house with sliding glass if doors.

"We're getting more and more concerned about security." Pappas said.

houses of the future will be based on ideas like these."

Meanwhile, as the houses get smaller, the people in this country will have gotten much older. It's already happened. Today there are aver 35,000 Americans over the age of 100, Pappas said, and there are 2.5 million over the age of 85. So people's houses will do double duty as tiny health, facilities, and old-age, homes, with first tures and furnishings that can be easily negotiated by impaired or weak-ined people.

Book reveals the art, practice of topiary

WASHINGTON — Topiary is the craft of trimming plants into shapes—balls—lions—peacocks—and it is hard to draw the line between topiary and clipped hedges, arches of evergreens, and fruit trees espaliered flat against a wall or grown into pyramids.

mids. The Romans, who were fairly steady and little given to nonsense, sometimes made-entire-scenes — a-hunt, for example, or a naval battle—for their gardens out of clipped box, and this somewhat simple-minded practice (how many delights in this-world are basically simple-minded) figured later in Renaissance gardens when the taste for geometry flowered. In a less austere fashion, the hobby of topiary was taken up by the Dutch, and became popular-in-England under the nule of the Dutch king William III, who came over in 1682.

The practitioners of topiary were often gardeners of innocent taste and

I think it was Christopher Lloyd (whose father was far gone in yew) who said-there-is something a bit humorous and nonserious in topiary, and it is probably true that people who do not care to be trifled with and have-a-solemn-view-of-things-usually-do not like ducks clipped out of box or holly.

to not the ducks employed out of oox or holly.

A new hook by Barbara Callup and Deborah Reich, "The Complete Book of Topiary," is a mine of tidbits from the past - comments by Cicero, Markham, Parkinson, Bacon, and many more - sprinkled through the directions on how to make a terrier out of clipped plants.

The ideal plant for topiary is, of course, box. Unfortunately the gardener may be long dead before his box peacock comes to maturity, unless he has some good-sized box bushes to start with.

art with. Yew, a much quicker-growing-ever green, is the usual stuff from which large cats, ducks and Apostles are made. It grows about a foot a year, so you-can see a peacock-tail-can fairty rapidly be achieved.

rapidly be achieved.

But many gardeners, who secretly itch for a pointing bird dog in yew, say, are unsure how to begin. Or they think, quite mistakenly, that topiary requires much skill and expense. This book explodes that myth.

You may as well know that we-Americans are busy with "topiary" in pots or tubs that can be moved about and set on a dining table or tin one notable example of leafy dogs or bears) trutting down the main stairs of a höuse.

And since impatience is so And since impatience is so pro-nounced a vice among us (and the very opposite of that plodding pa-tience found in good topiarists), we have devised shortcuts.

I well recall the recumbent horse, or perhaps it was a unicorn, that guarded the gate into the highly manicured garden of the late Julia-Helms.

and so on.

The question often arises how you make the frames for, say, a nice topiary turtle or lion, and quite helpful details are to be found in the soft-cover, 300-page book — details simple enough that the merest amateur can readily follow them.

Knowing the frailty of gardeners, I guess, the authors, will let, you make topiary out of privet, with the warning it takes a good bit of clipping. Another casy, quick-growing plant is hawthorn, though as Joseph Addison pointed out, a wet spell will turn your peacock into a porcupine with sudden new growth.

You would be surprised, I think, at the number of inquiries over the years about mazes made of holly or yew. I have usually referred such questers to old books and old libraries, where woodcut illustrations of mazes may be found.

A defect of the Gallup-Reich book the kind I find most infuriating in a possible.

staff a pleasure Dear Mr. Bingham: Recently I was on the third floor iof your fine institution (Magic Valley Regenal Medical Center) for a stather lengthy stay. I was particularly impressed by the friendliness, competence and commitment of the entire nursing staff. licensed practicular unrese, registered nurses, certified nurse registered nurses, certified nurse aides and the College of Southern Idaho nursing students. Their helpfulness made the time pass more cheerfully and I left happy that I had acquired a lovely new family of friends. Wine label disguises quality

As the federal and state governments seek labels that will say more about what is in a bottle of wine, a new wine has just hit store shelves—that will say less.

The winery that made this wine wants desperately to—say tell you more, but the federal government, falling back on archaic laws, does not want to to know more.

The wine is a 1987 Chardonnay marde entirely from Washington state grapes and produced by Bel Arbres Vineyards, the affiliate winery of Feiger Vineyards in Mendocino County, Calif. This is Fetzer's first foray into the so-called pop-premium category, of wine — cork-finished varietal — two states of the state of the st less-tham-So-a bottle.

Feter is proud of the fact that this wine is 100 percent Chardonnay (at a time when some of its competitors in the pop-premium field are making wine with less than 100 percent of the named variety). And Feters-is-proud of the fact that the wine is of high quality (at a time when some competitors' wines are not as good because of a shortage of premium-quality grapes).

Yet under a strange law on the books of the Department of Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, Fetzer-cannot-say-this-wine-is-from Washington. The law says that if a winery produces wine from a non-

And the vintage date? Even though the wine is entirely made of 1987 harvest grapes, the vintage date is not on the label either because the bureau law says that if a winery uses an appellation as large as a country (in this case the appellation is "American"), then the wine cannot have a vintagedate.

Mascolo said his office is looking into the legislative history of the rule

He said he suspected that the law was instituted years ago "when it wasn't feasible to ship grapes long distances" and the regulation may have been supported by the California wine industry to protect the state's image if grapes shipped to the East Coast produced poor quality wine.

Why, one might'ask, would Fetzer—be willing to buy Washington state grapes and make wine from it (80,000 cases of Cabernet Sauvignon) when it faced of Cabernet Sauvignon) when it faced He said he suspected that the law

Newest woks offer versatility

The Los Angues

Meet the new "chop suey bowls."

The modern woks are clean looking, shiny, long-lasting and some like them that way. They are created from stainless steel, joining the hot line of carbon steel and lightweight aluminum woks. However, the new generation is "mixed breed" stainless steel.

Mada of high-grade-stainless, somewoks are interspersed with carbon steel and others with aluminum, to achieve the high heat conductivity and recovery of these metals.

The traditional Chinese cook could easily abhor a wok made solely of stainless steel because of poor, uneven heating, soorching, and sticking. His or her true friend is a well-seasoned carbon steel pan that conducts heat beautifully as it ages and blackens. Cookware manufacturers have found that the average home chef, however, dislikes cleaning a carbon steel wok that rusts when not seasoned well or when hardly used. They also found that people favor stainless steel because it does not cause any chomical reaction with any food and is impervious to oxidation.

Tailored for those concerned about aluminum reaction and getting all the

Ligna Tech seeks financing

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP) — Ligna Technology Inc. is having trouble finding financial backers to complete its purchase of Harris Pine Mills Inc. from the Seventh-day Adventist Church, according to com-

We're dealing with a company (Harris Pine) that is in bankrupety and has a checkered past, said Gene Krueger, vice president of finance for Ligna, based in lesquaph, Wash.

"A lot of people in the financial community will not have interest in a company in bankrupty at all," Krueger added.

Ligna had planned to join with a Canadian investment banking firm in Toronto to buy Harris Pine's furniture manufacturing operations, which employ about 600 people at 11 facilities in eight states. The company headquarters in Pendleton has about 160 workers.

U.S. Bankrupty Judge Elizabeth L. Perris approved Ligna's purchase plan in April, subject to several requirements, including a 'St million minimum down payment if the sale did not close by May 31. Krueger said Ligna has not made the down payment.

If financing problems are solved, Ligna plans to modernize Harris Pine plants and expand into new lines, including kitchen cabinets and office furniture.

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned ideas of service?

NEW YORK (AP) — Implicit in arguments upholding a manufacturer's guments upholding a manufacturer's right to deny discount retailers access to its products is the concept of service, a promise built into the price of most hardware sold today.

The notion of service was inherent in a recent Supreme Court decision upholding a manufacturer's right to right to reliable. It is fewere seems

In contrast, the assumption is made that the discounter is able to sell at a lower price because it offers little service. The relationship is considered closed at the time of sale. For service, the customer goes elsewhere.

But if the service isn't forthcoming, ised service isn't delivered, doesn't the agreement to maintain higher prices simply become price-fixing? While the Supreme Court sought to cut through the issue — declaring that a manufacturer's denial of access to a discounter isn't automatically illegal unless accompanied by an effort to fix retail prices — it probably

Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed."

— Alexander Pope.

When the oppoisants remain silent during the bidding, it's reasonable to expect normal trump breaks. When they bid on distribution, declarer should anticipate a bad-trump break.

Dummy's heart ace won, and the ace and king of trumps were cashed to reveal the 4-1 break that should have been expected. Four rounds of diamonds came next and the 4-1 break in this suit allowed south to discard his heart loser. Success now rested with the club finesse, and when this lost, South was forced to concede one down.

It is possible that toake the stam a would break 3-2 to make the slam a laydown. However, it costs nothing to provide for finding four trumps with West.

with West.

After winning-the ace of hearts, it's correct to draw two rounds of rumps, but not with the ace, and, king, Instead, South should cash his ace and queen. If trumps are 2-2, he draws the last trump and discards a heart and a club on dummy's diamonds. If the club finesse wins, he then has 13 tricks.

When trumps prove to be 4-1,
South runs four diamonds to discard a heart and ther ruffs a heart. South then leads his last trump to duma heart and then ruffs a heart. South then leads his last trump to dummy's king and diseards a club on dummy's last diamond. If West ruffs, he must lead a club for South's 12th winner, and if he deesn't, dummy's last trump puts West on play for the same result.
