Ada County Deputy Coroner Lynn Bowerman said Donna McGee, 56, was identified by two acquintances. Sheriff's Sgt. Chuck Howard said a convenience store clerk who knew Ma. McGee identified her after seeing a tolevision broadcast, about the incident Saturday night.

Until then, police had been unable to identify the body, which had been reported to the sheriff's office Saturday morning. The Garden City woman was married, Bowerman said.

An unidentified man discovered the body, and notified police, but did not stay at the seen, Howard said.

Bowerman said an autopsy conducted Saturday found no indication of foul play. However, he and and sheriff's deputies were not ruling out that possibility.

Sheriff's Sgt. Ian Ishiyama said the body could have been in the river for about 24 hours before it was found. He said that bruises found on the body did not indicate whether she had fallen or been pushed into the water.

Virginia Westergren was Twin Falls' best

In an awful and ugly moment, crime has pushed its presence into our usually peaceful community and taken the life of Virgina Westergren, as decent a human being as we know.
Why someone — presumably even someone with a criminal mind and in a moment of panic — would take the life of a 79-year-old woman is beyond comprehension.

Now, a murderer is on the run, presumably in her car which was taken, and a community is still absorbing the shock and meaning of such an event.

Yes, we all know that living in a small city in a rural state does not make us immune from such happenings. Sadly, crime and violent death are a part of modern life, and their victims are sometimes random and unaware.
But crime does not define a community. We prefer to see a community as the sum of its people, their collective work and toil and their devotion to making it a more deeper and heavently all heaventl

Virginia Westergren was one of the people who made Twin Falls such a community.

How we wish, Ginny, that you had not been home Friday. How we wish that you had gone to, Portland with Al. How we wish that you could have lived out your life in happiness, good healthand the glow of years. How we shall miss you.

Martin is our pick for Northside slot

The Republican primary contest for House Seat 22 matches three individuals who probably are not well known outside of their local communities. Tom Morrison of Gooding; Billy C. Emerson of Jerome and James Martin of Hagerman are all retired and all three say they would have plenty of time to devote to the Northside seat which encompasses Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln Counties. A profile of the contest appears in The Times-News today.

Any of the three would likely run a strong contest in November against Democrat Gene Sullivan of Fairfield, who almost ambushed the incumbent, Gary Robbins, in 1986.

bent, Gary Robbins, in 1986. Sullivan has the backing of the Idaho Education Association, the teacher's union, and is expected to have as good a shot at a Magic Valley seat as any Democrat has had in recent years. In the May 24 Republican primary to face him, our nod goes to Martin on two counts.

First, Martin is a former three-term legislator in the 100c when have recently leave Minimum.

The Hagerman area has the potential, in our view, to be developed as one of the Northwest's most versatile tourist sites, what with its boating, fishing, fossil beds and developing wine industry.

Martin understands that potential and could be instrumental in bringing it about for the district and for Southern Idaho as a whole.

We would like to take this opportunity to voice our support for Obeen Redman of Albion in his quest for the state legislature. Every once in a while, not only a good candidate comes along, but also a genuinely nice individual who could give considerable leadership to an elected position.

As a very successful businessman, Obeen knows the needs and the advantages of the business arena. The type of business that he operates allows him many opportunities for communication as well as listening and both of these traits are necessary to a public servant. Obeen is a person who will listen, think through and then make a decision based on sound facts.

As educator's (46 years collectively) we are not just interested in hearing a person say that they will "give more money to education" but that they will "give more money to education" but that they will endeavor to make strides helping all phases of education.

Robbins a friend of schools

Now that Jerry Callen has declared that he is fond of the property tax, I proposed that we call the many school override levies triggered by his support for sparse state funding, "The Callen property tax."

Let it be known this citizen is voting for Gary Robbins.

If we follow Jerry Callen's advice about school funding, we will create larger and larger inequities for our children.

Education will become an accident of geography, and those students who live in wealthy districts will enjoy a superior education over those who live in poor districts.

Callen's idea for imposing greater tax burdens on the property owner to support schools makes little sense. But, then again, this is the same legistator who placed a brochure on each legislator's deak last session which claimed that AIDS is a communist conspiracy.

The facts they knew but chose to ignore are as follows:

— I. While the program was not as successful amight have been hoped, it did eliminate 1.7 million head of female dairy cattle along with their potential offspring.

Therefore, it very effectively did reduce the surplus of milk in this country. In fact, some government food programs have had to be curtailed because of the virtual elimination of surplus dairy stocks. The fact that dairy supplies are once again building has nothing to do with the Dairy Termination Program.

2. The dairy farmers themselves, through a pinion was that the Dairy Termination Pro-was a total failure and a senseless expense

5. In large part, the result of the elimination of those dairy cattle has caused the price of beef received by the producer to be higher now than at cary time in the past five years. This has allowed many beef producers to again reach a profit main level in their operations.

6. The meat purchased by the government as part of this program was not of inferior quality as alleged by former budget director David Stockman.

In fact, the meat purchased under this program and shipped to our servicemen overseas, had to meet all the quality and safety standards of meat sold everywhere in this country.

Therefore, it was probably more wholesome and of better quality than could have been purchased locally in other parts of the world.

7. In addition, the money received by program articipants provided disposable income which as spent in the local areas which helped to stim-late those local economies.

To those four who know the whole story, the segment about the Dairy Termination Program aired on "Sixty Minutes" recently, clearly presented less than half of the truth. The program producers chose selected facts and statements out context to support a predetermined conclusion

If "Sixty Minutes" can "manufacture" news to the extent that was done here, then it calls into question the veracity of any other report done on that program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — One year after the USS Stark was attacked by a "friendly" Iraqi jet fighter, American ships in the Persian Gulf continue to operate under war-time rules of engagement designed to prevent a repetition of that tragedy.

The ground rules for fighting have been modified several times since the Stark was attacked on May 17, 1987, primarily to expand the number of situations in which American warships may come to the aid of merchant ships.

may come to the mu may make ships.

But the first change in the rules made by the Pentagon after the attack, which killed 37 seamen, was to authorize ship commanders to open fire on any plane or vessel that came close enough to fire on their ship — and those guidelines remain in place.

There are really two U.S. navies—one for peace and one for war." Dr. Michael Valnos, the director of the State Department's Center for the Stady of Foreign Affairs, observed recently. "The difference is mental readiness.

"In war, one's senses are honed for battle; in peace, even where the threat. of, inadvertent attack is considered, one's senses must be leashed," Valnos said.

That peace-time leashing may have left the Stark's crew mentally disarmed, "Valnos argues.

The Stark's crew knew for an hour that a jet fighter was flying in their direction and that it was 'assumed friendly, assumed fragi."

No effort was made to warn the plane away until it was too late. The

Copper-7 on trial again in Minneapolis court

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The once widely used Copper-7 intrautering contraceptive device was back on trial Monday, and plaintiffs attorneys said they were armed with internal documents never before used against the G.D. Searle & Co. product.

The Minneapolis law firm Robins, Zelle, Larson & Kaplan, which represented plaintiffs in earlier, litigation against Dalkon Shield maker A.H. Robins Co., settling 198 cases for a total of $38 million, also is representing the plaintiffs in the case against Sear-lee Robins Zelle, which is representing more than 30-other women-in-separate Copper-7 lawauits, has said evidence introduced in the firm's first trial against Searle is expected to set a foundation for lawauits to come. U.S. District Judge Robert G. Renner questioned potential jurors Monday to hear the suit brought by Esther R. Kociemba, 29, of the Melrose area coethwest of here, and her husband, William. Opening arguments were planned Tuesday.

While 17 other cases involving the Copper-7 antionwide have gone to trial, attorney Roger P. Brosnahan has said his law firm will introduce in ternal company documents not used in those trials. Those documents, he said, will show that Searle marketed the IUDs without regard for women's health and anafety.

Searle, which won 14 of the earlier cases, has denied that its IUD caused any injury to the women. One of the cases lost by Searle is on appeal. When they filed the suit in October 1984, the Kociembas asked for $500,000 in compensatory damages and $500,000 in punitive damages, plus court costs, for injuries Mrs. Kociemba allegedly suffered as a result of using a Copper-? IUD for just Lunder 1½ years in 1977 and 1978. The couple later amended their lawsuit to ak for an unspecified amount.

couple later amended their lawauit to ask for an unspecified amount.

According to the suit, Mrs. Koci-emba has experienced infertility, ill-nesses, "great pain, suffering and mental anguish" that have continued since she had the IUD removed in November 1978.

More than a dozen attorneys for Robins Zelle have been going through More than a dozen attorneys for Ackins-Zella-haw-been, going-through-documents involved in the Searle IUD cases for more than three years in preparation for the trial, Brosnahan said.

Jerome dairy still possible

Panel hears both pro and con testimony

TWIN FALLS — Kenneth Vander-ham will get a chance to amend his-special-use permit application-for-a-600-towdniry west of Jerome. Jerome County Planning and Zon-ing Director Jim Jurgens asked-Vanderham to complete the applica-tion — the California dairyman left some information off the form, Jur-gens said. The request came after more than two hours of testimony at a public hearing Monday. Jurgens didn't state what information was lacking on the form.

Nearly: 100 people attended the meeting at the Jerome County district courtroom. The crowd spilled out of the courtroom and into the hallway.

More than half the people in the audience raised their hands in support of Vanderham's dairy.

Vanderham testified at the hearing that he plans to run a clean, trouble-free operation, like his family does in Ontario, Calif.

Jerry Swensen, 215 Orchard Drive, said the proposed zone change from residential to commercial for four properties on the corner of Washington and Orchard Drive, could cause a deterioration in the neighborhood. The proposed change was sought by Lasalle Investments, which wanted to locate a heating and cooling business at one of the properties.

The council, following the lead of the planning and zoning-board, which call actually increased property value.

Twin FALLS — Twin Falls City Council members Monday approved an ordinance that will temporarily prevent adult entertainment shops from obtaining a license while the council considers a permanent ordinance.

City attorney Fritz Wonderlich said the ordinance is meant to keep people from taking advantage of the time it takes to pass a proposed ordinance by obtaining a license, and thereby qualifying to be grandfinthered in.

The ordinance prohibits the establishment of shops which rent or sell sexually oriented or obscene materials as defined in the the Idaho code within 2,500 feet of schools and churches and within 500 feet of schools and churches and within 500 feet of schools and churches and said.

borhood becoming commercially zoned.

"One-place goes commercial," Boitano said. "I don't want a junkyard in the back. I don't want to have to build a fence."

Swensen said a person's home and property is often the single biggest investment of their lives. "It should be protected," he said.

Francis McKay, 160 East Drive, said there is no way Lasalle Investments can ensure that its arrival in the neighborhood would not affect property value in the area.

Is he willing to subsidize our property value if it goes down after the zone change?" she asked. "If he was then Ldon't think anyone would be upposed to the zone change." Residents also said the increased traffic in the area would endanger several young children who live in the area. They said the company should locate at any one of 100 available vacancies around town.

An audience of about 50 area homeowners applauded the council when it voted the measure down.

Carr, Arthur Frantz and Mayor Doug Vollmer voted for the measure, while Tom Condie, Gale Kleinkopf, Mary McClusky and Jim Vickers voted aguinst.

The case was delayed for more than a year because a grand jury that Twin Falls—Gounty—K. Eilen—Baxter—convened last June saw all its indictments thrown out when Hurlbutt and fellow 5th District Judge Daniel Methl ruled the county's jury-selection procedures were illegal.

Baxter chose to take Warr and 16 other defendants through another grand jury rather than through more common preliminary hearings.

Because the county's jury-selection procedure had to be fixed first, it took more than three months to get the second grand jury underway.

At Monday's sentencing hearing, Baxter argued that Warr must be sent to the state penitentiary. She said her position is clear: 'Any amount of drugs being sold to anyone in Twin Falls is too much.'

But Twin Falls Public Defender Michael J. Wood said Warr, through her cooperation during the extended criminal case, had proved to be a good risk for probation.

In addition, Wood said, she had al-ready suffered "tremendous social distress" since her first indictment.

Salt Lake County official voices 'shame' over arrest

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Democratic Salt Lake County Commissioner David M. Watson Monday expressed "total humility and shame" for his arrest this past weekend on a drunk driving charge.
South Salt Lake police also said they found a small vial allegedly containing occasine during a search of Watson early Sunday.
"To every citizen who voted for me,
to every citizen who voted for me,
to every citizen who's called, to every person who has taken time and just given me heart-felt support, I do thank you because this is a painful experience," Watson said during a news conference at the office of his attorney, Ronald Yengich.
"And for someone who is a very proud person, to feel the type of shame that I have brought on myself and then realize I have hurt a lot of other people, is a very devastating experience for me to go through." he added.
While expressing regret for the inciother people, is a very ususes and caperience for me to go through," he added.

While expressing regret for the incident, Watsen said he plans to continue in his job.

"As Ran has stated, I do feel a responsibility to continue to do my job as best I can and hope that the process goes amosthly," Watson said.

He said Democratic Party officials will meet with him late this week or early next week to determine what my political future might be and what decisions we'll be making in terms of future races and things of that nature," he said.

Watson, 33, freshman commissioner, was arrested across the street from the Salt Lake County Government Center offices at 3:40 a.m. Sunday after a South Salt Lake police officer noticed a southbond car weaving on State Street.

The commissioner's arrest came only a week before the Salt Lake County Democratic Convention. Watson has been involved in a tight race with Republican Tom. Shimizu. who. previously held that two-year commissions seat. Watson won the seat in.—1886, defeating Merrill Cook.

Commissione Chairman Burt Burker—said the commission was to meet with the Salt Lake County Attoriey's Office to determine what steps could or said the commission was to meet with the Salt Lake County Attorney's Of-fice to determine what steps could or should be taken. The Salt Lake Tribune reported Monday that a breathalyzer test performed Sunday morning showed the commissioner's blood alcohol level at .23 percent, almost three times the .08 legal limit in Utah.

Spokane, 'sister' to sign agreement

SPOKANE (AP) — Spokane city officials are preparing a welcome for a four-member delegation from the Soviet-seeport-of-Makhachkale irn preparration for formal signing Thursday of a "sister city" agreement.
Discussions about the agreement, which provides for cultural and trade exchanges, have been under way since the fall of 1986. Mayor Vicki McNeill may lead a trade delegation to the Soviet city next spring, said City Councilman Jack Hebner.

The commissioner denied the drugs were his and told the officer he had taken them from a friend. However, he would not say to whom the drugs belonged, Chapman's police report said.

Watson also, made a number of Watson also, made a number, of spontaneous statements, and at one point became belligerent when told he was under arrest, police said.

"The commissioner indicated to the officer that there was no problem," Gray said. "He told her, 'I'm just going to my office over there."

"I'm not too bad, 'Gray quoted Watson as telling the police officer. "I've probably, had too much to drink to drive."

The ICC approved the merger Friday, but it was not announced until Monday, agency officials said.

The commission acknowledged that, the merger would result in the elimination of some jobs and abandonment of more than 300 miles of tracks where the two rail systems run parallel tracks. The railroads have said about 1,000 jobs would be eliminated. The commission concluded, however, that the benefits of the merger both to the public and to rail shippers outweigh the negative impact. The public benefits will be achieved

Knight decides he's going to stay in Bloomington

The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Bob Knight said Monday he would remain at Indiana University because, after 23 years as a college basketball coach, he wasn't convinced he could approach a new job with the necessary energy or enthusiasm.

Knight turned down the vacant coaching job at the University of New-Mexico, he said, even though said he was attracted to its basketball program and to that area of the country.

"I had a strong attraction going—based on things 1 like — living conditions, fishing, hunting, the weather,"

the 47-year-old Knight told the Associated Press.

the 47 year-old Knight told the Asso-ciated Press.

But he added:
"It comes down to the job itself.
There's a certain energy level to everyjob. We have developed a situation here where we can do it effectively with 'x' energy. If go to New Mexico; then it's 'x' plus quite a bit. I'm not ure I'm at a point I can put the energy in the situation to do the best job possible."

For the past week, Knight had bas-ketball fans in two states following would be desert indiana, where he had won three national championships, for the relatively low-profile job at New Mexico. Or would he jump, in part because of a rift with Thomas Ehrlich, who took over as IU's president a year ago? sident a year ago?

— Knight issued a statement through the IU news bureau on Monday deny-ing any problems with Ehrlich, who-twice chastized Knight publicly in the past year — once for pulling his team off the floor during a gaine with the Soviet national team and again after the coach said in an NBC special on stress-that if rape is inevitable; "sit back and enjoy it."

he only meant it as an analogy.

"The thing that aggravates me," he was quoted as saying by the press release," is that so may remarks have been made and inferences drawn by people who have not either taken the time to look at this situation or have any understanding of my thinking, right on through to where I was supposed. to be upset, with a president who emphasises academies. IU Athlotic Director Ralph Floyd also blamed the media and said theweek had been a "wear and tear" on situation more than the university has, Floyd said of the mystery that has surrounded Knight's deliberations. "At times, they try to make controversy when there is none."

Asked why Knight refused interviews that might have cleared up the situation, Floyd replied that it

Emery delivers

Eagles' 6-5 right-hander learns to win with finesse

TWIN FALLS — Last season it was Emery Air Express. This year it's Emery Guaranteed Delivery.

"He's become less of a thrower and more of a pitcher," said College of Southern Idaho pitching coach Jim Dawson of the Eagles_sea, sophomore—Don Emery, 'But the biggest thing is confidence. This year he's challenging the hitters."

Emery, who came to CSI a year ago as a lanky (6 feet, 5 inches, 200 pounds), raw-armed right-hander, has changed into a control pitcher who gets hitters out with a silder and a changeup. He's also doubled his victories (to 8-3), cut to carned run average in half (to 2.03) and has opposing hitters-batting_247-against-him." I know! Can get hitters out with an yliches this year, 'said Emery, a 19-year-old resident of Sandy, Utah, who's headed for Brigham Young University on a baseball scholarship. "Last year i'didn't have that confidence, and it's made all the difference in the world." "He came in last season throwing 84 (miles perhour) and ended up throwing 75, said CSI head-coach Jim Walker. "He wasn't hurt, it was just lack of confidence."

The rise of Emery has paralleled the seasoning of a pitching staff that has compiled a composite ERA so far this year of 2:39, almost two points less than less year. By the end of last season, the Eagles were essentially down to two pitchers, starter David Carter and relivere John Braase, although Tony Mortenson pitched in the regional tournament despite a groin injury. This year, the CSI staff is nine deep.

We can use anybody on our staff, said Dawson. "It's just like Don —they we worked hard and draye improved. Our sophomores. Don and Corby (Schreeder) and Kendall (Bennett, have done the job for us when we've needed them." The Eagles needed Emery in Coeur d'Alene on April 28 after losing the first game of a vital double-header to North-Idaho-College. A second loss—header to North-Idaho-College. The Eagles needed Emery in Coeur d'Alene on April 28 after losing the first game of a vital double-header to North-Idaho-College. A second-loss would have all but eliminated CSI from the postseason Region 18 playoffs, and Emery responded with an 8-hit, 4-strikeout performance in a 10-2

"I told Skip (Walker) before the game I didn't think their hitters were that tough," said Emery. All I had to do was go out and challeage them."—Emery came in here with a fastball and he found out he needed more than that," said Walker. "He learned how to throw the slider and learned to get it over. He's a year older, a year more mature." Emery agreed that he's a different pitcher than he was in high school.

I threw the fastball and the curve and the slider in high school, but I came here and Daws really helped me develop the slider, 'he said. Togan Easley (a CSI alumnus now with the Pittsburgh Pirates) taught me to throw the split-fingered fast-

Greg Booker, 0.2, started the seventh by walking Darryl Strawberry.

After Kevin McRoynolds singled, Carter hit his 16th career homer at Jack Murphy Stadium, a drive over the 370-foot sign in 1eft-center.

The Padrest took leads of 2-0, 3-1 and 4-2, but couldn't hold them.

San Diego scored twice in the bottom of the first on John Kruk's RBI double and Carmelo, Martinez' runscoring single.

After the Mets got a run in the topol-the-second-on-two-walks-and-Howard Johnson's RBI single off San Diego starter Mark Grant, former Met Shawn Abner hit his second homer of the season in the bottom of the inning for a 3-1 lead.

The Mets made it 3-2 in the third when Strawberry, who broke an O-for-13 slump with a single, scored on Grant's wild pitch.

track, led by the aiready-qualified Mario Andretti at 216.468.
In all, there were nine cars on the track which qualified over the weekend and were out working on race-day setup. Ten non-qualified cars also made it out, but one of thom was the Penske Racing backup car, which record-setting pole-winner Rick Mears got up to 215.775, while another was the backup of Roberto Guerrero, who also qualified on Saturday, at 203.804.

number of home runs a given team could hit in ASA-sanctioned tournamenta.

It was a part of the never ending quest to make the game more interesting, fair and competitive.

Since the passage of the home run rule however, its legitimacy and effectiveness has been questioned.

The rule dictates that in all ASA sanctioned men's Cleaguer tournaments, teams will be limited to one out-of-the home run per team, per game. For Bleague teams, the ceiling is three-For 'A-league' tourneys, the number is five.

Among the several reasons for the rule's passage, according to Idaho ASA Cammissioner, Arnold 'Red' Halpern, were the 'infiltration' of 'A' caliber teams into the 'B' leagues.

"An umber of years ago," Halpern-said, 'there were two branches — A and major. Then all the borderline major-teams-dropped-into-the-Aleagues."

What resulted, Halpern said, were complaints from the weaker A league teams. They (the weaker A teams) wanted to win hardware (trophies)' Halpern said, 'there win hardware (trophies)' Halpern said, that soon after the formation of B leagues in Idaho.

Halpern said, 'so we started B leagues.'
Halpern said that soon after the formation of B leagues in Idaho, weaker B teams pushed to form a C league. 'Idaho was the first state in the Pacific Northwest to start C leagues,' Halpern said.

"Everybody likes to win,' he added." It used to be everybody wanted to play to the best of their ability."

Halpern inferred with that statement that playing to the best of ones ability is not the objective today so much as winning.

Because of the dramatic exodus, so much as winning.

Because of the dramatic exodus, so to speak, of weaker major and A calibart teams to the lower learners in the late 1970s and early 1980s, Halpern, who in 1989s was president of the Marie Labes 1970s and early 1980s, Halpern, order to keep the stronger teams in their own divisions and, for the most part, he said that the rule has worked.

Mini-Cassia men host first major tourney next weekend

By The Times-News

RUPERT - The Mini-Cassia men's softball regular season began on Monday and its first major-tournament-of-the-year-will begin next weekend.

At Neptune Park, the Sprin-kle Shop and Paul Home Center will host a C league tourna-will host a C league tournament.

For further information, contact Steve Hunn at 438-5544.
Last week, the Mini-Cassia Softball association held their week-long annual pre-season warm-up. The tournament featured on Wednesday, Steele's Silver Bullets, three-time Super-National—Champions—out—of-Grafton, Ohio.
Living up to their title, the Silver Bulletts easily defeated the Mini-Cassia Division II all-stars 52-11 in the first game of a double-header. The game was called after four innings due to a time limit.

atime limit.
In the nightcap, the Silver Bullets made easy work of the Mini-Cassia Division I all-stars 83-7 in three innings. Like the opener, the second game was called due to time.

When the home rule was first passed five years ago by the ASA, it allowed for a ground-rule singlefand advancement accordingly of runners on base for every ball hit out of the park, after the ceiling had been reached.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® BOBBY WOLFF

"Ah! How different it is to render an account to ourselves of ourselves and to render account to the public of ourselves."

of play.

After West plays his two high clubs, it should be obvious that the king-of-hearts-and-the-acc-of-diamonds are not in the same hand. With both held by West, East would have had no raise; with both held by East. West would have had-no-open—log bid.

ing bid.

To clinch the game, regardless of where the missing key cards are, South should cash his heart ace after drawing trumps and then lead a low heart toward dummy. If West ducks, South loses only a club and two diamonds. If West wins, South rejoys two discards on dummy's Q-Jof hearts.

3 of hearts.

If the heart king is with East, West must have the diamond ace. In that case, two leads toward dummy's diamonds limit the losses to only three tricks.

Vending machine celebrates 100th

By JERRY ZEZIMA The Stamford Advoc

The vending machine industry is celebrating its 190th anniversary this year, so we thought it only fitting that we depart from accepted practice and make this column educational by giving a brief history of the machine that we as a nation have come to depend on for afternon sustenance and dental decay.

The vending machine was invented on this day in 1888 by a German engineer named Hans Vend (literally, "wet hands"). Originally Vend had planned to invent the Kitchen Magician ("slices, dices and juliennes uniformly"), but because late-night television had not yet been invented, thus depriving him of the only-viable-op-portunity to sell such a product, he turned his attention to selling snacks. At the outset, however, Vend had not conceived the dimensions of the machine that would bear his name. (Originally it was called the Hansing machine, but the name was changed when people in Heidelberg thought they were supposed to wash their hands and perhaps even their laundry in it.)

hands and perhaps even their laundry init.)
Anyway, the first Vending machine contained only a change box, which required Vend to stand thore with all those snacks in his arms. Whenever anyone wanted change, he would have to drop the snacks and oblige.
Eventually it dawned on him that it might be more practical to expand the machine to contain both snacks and change. This hed did it 1829.

But even this hold stroke of business acumen did not help Vend's foundering fortunes. So he sailed to America, the land of opportunity, in the hope of becoming a success.

Once there, Vend strove to improve his machine, tinkering with its design and stocking it with better food such as eggs and sausage, which, unfortunately, had a tendency to go bad in the hot weather.

When Vend died of food poisoning in Brooklyn in, 1912, he was penniless. It was soon apparent why. His second cousin, Vittor Vend, who took-over the business, was the first to nover the business was the first to nover the business.

second cousin, Victor Vend, who took over the business, was the first to notice that Hans had been putting snacks in tiny compartments in the machine but had failed to encase them in glass, thus encouraging any hungry person who happened to be walking by to help himself.

Victor's first order of business, after equipping, his machines with glass. Fronts, was to recoup some of the losses that the pathetic Hans had incurred over nearly a quarter century.

This resulted in the first Vending machines to eat change while refusing to fork over the desired sancks housed. Within. But because the machineswere still small and encased in breakable glass, angered customers had little trouble smashing them in order to retrieve their snacks and get their change back for good measure.

Victor tried to solve the problem by making bigger machines, which he thought would be more difficult to destroy. But it was not until the 1960s that the problem was solved once and for all. This was accomplished by Victor's son, Vinton Vend, who inherited the business from his father and immediately deployed unbrenkable plastic as a deterrent to retribution by spurmed snackers.

Vinton quickly proved to be a genius, and under him the industry thrived. In a cost-saving campaign, he devised those little rings that turn to release candy bars or hags of potato chips. Much to his delight, the found that snacks aften became snagged in the rings, thus foreign snackers to put in more mency if they wanted snacker broke into Vinton's office and asphysiated him by stuffing his nostrils with quarters. NEW-YORK-(AP) — Babe-Ruth-wasn' just a legendary home run hitter for the New York Yankees — he's a registered federal trademark, his two daughters have charged in a suit against MacMillan Publ'ishing.

The suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court by Dorothy Ruth Pirone of Durham, Conn., and Julia Ruth Stevens of Conway. N.H. seeks to halt sales of a 1986 calendar published by MacMillan that carries a picture of the late slugger on its cover.

MacMillan's unauthorized, unlicensed and unapproved use of Babe Ruth's image, likeness and name tends to cause confusion and deceive the public, said attorney Martin A. Levitin, representing the Ruth family, in court papers.

The 1988 MacMillan Baseball Engagement Calendar includes two photos of the Babe that were used without permission of the family, the suit charged.

The suit, which also lists Babe Ruth League Inc. and the Curtis Management Group Inc. as plaintiffs, said Ruth's daughters filed a written request with MacMillan asking it to halt distribution of the calendar.

New Yorker suffers parking nightmare

MOUNT KISCO; N.Y. (AP) — Helga Huitt is 83 years old, doesn't do a lot of driving and gets very few parking tickets.
Well, she gets a lot of tickets, actually, but she shouldn't.
Huitt, who lives in Manhattan, had a license plate stolen from her 1975 Plymouth Duster in Albany two years ago.
By the end of the next day, she had reported the theft to New York City police and received new plates from the Department of Motor Vehicles.

That was not the end of it.

Huitt has gotten notices from the New York City Parking Violations Bureau about 169 unpaid tickets totaling $9,299, including in-

She tried to explain, but the notices kept coming. A default judgment had been issued, they said. We can take your property and bank accounts, they said.

"I was living in a nightmare," she said.

"I was living in a nightmare," she said.

Finally through the help of state Sen. Mary Goodhue, Huitt was given a letter here on Thursday from the parking bureau clearing her of the tickets and saying she didn't owe New York City a cent — for now.

We solved this, but there is something wrong with the system,

Goodhue said Thursday. She and Gregory Breen, an administrative supervisor for the PVB said that as long as someone is still out there with her license plate, the computers say it's her car violating the parking laws. And she'll still get dunning notices. "There is nothing in the system to trip it if someone has reported the car stolen or the plates stolen," said Goodhue.

The saga of Andy Warhol's estate has put a new spin on

The saga of Andy Warhol's estate has put a new spin on his image. The glamorous art star is now being cast as a crusader for traditional values and academic rigor.

Warhol astonished the art world after his death when it was revealed that he had stashed away a wildly eelectic collection of 10,000 objects in his six-floor townhouse. Early American shop signs and Coca-Cola memorabilia seemed appropriate treasures for an artist who had elevated Campbell's Soup cans and Brillo boxes to the level of hish art.

and Federal furniture to stock an antique store? And why was this stuff stacked floor-to-ceiling in a traditionally decorated home that seemed more a traditionally decorated home that appropriate to a stuffy dowager than a trend-setting artist?

"What happened was that Modernism got boring (for Warhol)," said Stuart Pivar, a collector of 19th century art and the artist's shopping partner. "But his overall game plan, what he really believed, was that the modern age was going away and that we were entering a necclassical period. Andy came from a very traditional Catholic family and he was a clussical artist who painted portraits and still lifes. People think that Pop art is about popular objects, but Andy made traditional art palatable to the avant garde world."

"I see no resolution in sight, I just don't see it," said David Strode, whose son, Duffey, has been suspended once for fighting and twice for remaining outside the school as he hurled terms of hellfire and damnation at students and teachers.

Currently offering only a certificate program and operating on a $700,000 annual budget, the privately funded institution has filed a charter to establish a Graduate School of Figurative Art and offer a Master of Fine Arts degree program. while techniques grow progressively complex. Not only the production of art is controlled at the Academy. A code of behavior outlined in the catalogue in-dicates that full-time students "are expected to attend all classes, arrive punctually, and to stay the entire length of the class time. ... POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP) — Frank Zamboni, the man who made his name a household word in hockey country, fittingly received his first honorary degree from Clarkson University, an NCAA Division I hockey power in upstate New York.

Zamboni, 87, inventor of the ice resurfacing machine that bears his name, was awarded an honorary doctor of engineering degree at the university's commencement exercises Sunday.

"He's very important to us here in the North Country," said Clark Bailey, assistant to acting Clarkson president R. Thomas Williamson.

Bailey nominated Zamboni, a man with a ninth grade education, for the doctorate.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) —
Transvestite "smash-and-grab" burglars who recently hit doesn of stores from Titusville to Fort Lauderdale have expensive taste in women's clothing, which they wear or deal for cocaine, police say.

They are wild people, said Fort Fierce police betective free Kirk told The Palm Beach Post in a story published Monday. The guys we've arrested say that 99 perent smoke rock cocaine. So they are supporting a drug habit as well as a belief that they need to wear women's attire."

Police say they are tracking a ring of 30 to 40 transvestites who livemostly in West Palm Beach and rove the eastern coast of Florida — shop-lifting during the day and smashing windows with concrete blocks to loot-women's clothing boutiques at night. When they enter the stores, they grab donim miniskirts, linen suits and silk pants with co-ordinating jackets.

Megamansions attract the egos

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — In a money-is-no-object land rush, g egos and bigger bucks are tearing down grand but aging estates the world's highest-priced real estate to make room for layish suon the worlds mignest-practical teaters to the most pershrines.

The wealthy sq-called Golden Triangle area — Beverly Hills, Beldriand Brentwood — roars and rumbles and rings with the din of bulldozers and power saws.

Some residents consider the new megamansions architectural obscenities. The enormous $12 million palace under construction for television mogul Aaron Spelling is bigger than the White House and has been dubbed "The Hillton" by disgusted neighbors.

"Our peaceful neighborhood has been shattered," said one, J.P. Guerin.

"Our peaceful neighborhood has been shattere,"
"It's ostentatious and over-consumption," added another, Audrey Irmas, who won a court injunction limiting construction hours and the number of trucks pormitted at the site. "The Spelings are very self-centered to come in and destroy a neighborhood like this."
Mrs. Irmas called the mansion, which includes a bowling alley and an entire floor of closets, "the mental institution, because you'd have to be crazy to build something like that."

"That's nothing," said Elaine Young of the real estate firm Alvarez, Hyland and Young. "The biggest monument is going to be by the Sultlan-of-Brunei-behind-the-Beverly-Hills Hotel-He's turn down fivehouses for a palace."

—One-was the estate-of-actor-James-Coburn-he-said-adding:"He-(the sultan) paid full price, $$$ million, and it's a teardown."

Sentiment or nostalgia hold no sway in high-stakes real estate. Homes once owned by James Cagney, Bing Crosby and others have crumbled beneath buildozer treads. Crosby's estate-was just part of the property Spelling leveled for his project.

"Everything is emotional. They want it, they buy it," said Ms. Young. "Nobody does a square footage cost on properties here anymore."

Young. "Nobody does, a square rootage tost on properties more."

Beverly Hills, where property value within the 5.6-square-mile city limite is estimated at more than $5 billion, issued permits for 28 tear-down projects in 1985, 43 in 1986 and 51 last year, said city spokesman Fred Cunningham. Fourteen have been granted so far this year. The trend is to buy a "bargain basement" house for $1 million or more, raze it and build a grand, gated kingdom.
"They are buying these charming homes and ripping them down and building these things," said Mrs. Irmas.

A new law allews a structure to occupy a maximum 55 percent of the property. "Some of these were really out of scale in the neighborhood and we put in an emergency ordinance to stop it," Cunningham said.

said.

Architect Cliff May, futher of the California ranch-style house, is a critic of the huge projects.

"Good architecture is something that fits in the neighborhood, but nowadays, many architects are building monuments to their clients and the homes look like castles and mausoleums." May said.

Talk show host and producer Merv Griffin has also plowed money into real estate. A few years ago he spent $5 million, modest by Beverly Hills standards, on a four-acre stone mansion and completely refurbished it.

Huge salaries, unfair rewards?

NEW-YORK (AP) - Lee A, Iaocca made enough money last year to buy a fleet of more than 1,500 Chrysler Le Barons, while his company lost market share to rival automakers and its profits fell 7 percent.

his company lost market share to rival automakers and its profits fell 7 percent.

Put another way, a worker toiling at minimum wage for 40 hours a week since the birth of Christ probably wouldn't have earned as much as the $38.43 million lacocan collected in the last two years from salary, bonuses and exercised stock-options, AFL-ClO economists have calculated.

The example reflects what labor activists and some compensation consultante-call—an irrational—and unfair system for rewarding America's corporate executives.

Defenders of the system say it's dictated by the law of supply and demand, as well as the enormous stress chief executives endure in an increasingly competitive world.

Critics contend the system allowe both the best and worst talent to lock in millions of dollars in compensation for years into the future. They say it's also a system that doesn't necessarily reward risk or penalize failure.

For example, oil giant Texao Inc., recling from bankruptcy proceedings and a record $4.4 billion loss last year that caused it to suspend three dividend payments, awarded a 14 percent pay raise to James W. Kinnear, who replaced John McKinley as chief executive at the end of 1986. That boosted Kinnear's salary to nearly $723,000.

Critics say that American executives receive the highest pay of any industrialized democracy, and that their compensation has grown much faster than inflation, corporate profits and worker wages.

This growth persists despite economic uncertainties raised by the October stock market crash and drastic corporate restructurings that have reshaped and trimmed U.S. businesses over the past sev-

Crystal, a compensation expert and professor who teaches courses on management reward systems at the University of California — Berkoloygraduate business school. "What compensation committees and consultants are designing is the most dreamboat security ever thought."

According to an anlysis by Towers Perrin Forster & Crosby, a leading management consulting firm, the median total cash compensation — salary plus annual bo-nus — for chief executives in the nation's largest industrial compa-nies passed the $1 million mark for the first time last year.
