Suspect charged in Nampa slaying

POCATELLO (AP) — Suspected multiple-killer David Leslie Card was formally charged with two counts of capital murder Friday in the weekend slayings of a Nampa couple.

Card, 28, was calm and collected as he heard the charges read by Bannock County Magistrate Wesley Crowther.

The courtroom was under tight security for Card, whose hands were cuffed and his legs chained. He was not represented by an attorney at the initial court appearance.

Bannock County authorities said Card would be returned to Canyon County this weekend, and a preliminary hearing scheduled in the deaths of Eugene Morey, 41, and his wife, Shirley, 40.

The Moreys, their bodies riddled with bullets as they sat in their car outside a Nampa convenience store during the early morning last Sunday, were buried in Nampa as Card appeared before Crowther.

The Moreys were carriers for the Idaho Press-Tribune and were folding newspapers for delivery when what police were calling a random killing occurred.

Card was arrested Thursday near the Greyhound Bus Depot in Pocatello after police spotted the pickup truck he was reportedly driving. He offered no resistance. Police had been alerted only a short time earlier that Nampa authorities believed Card might be in the area and might be buying a bus ticket to Arizona.

Taken into custody at the same time was Helen Sullivan, Card's mother, who told police she had a feeling her son might be involved in the killings but said her son swore he knew nothing about the murders. Sullivan, 52, was allowed to return to Nampa after being questioned.

Chief of Detectives Lynn Harris said police found a .357 magnum revolver when they searched the truck, but Nampa authorities did not believe the handgun was the murder weapon, which has been described only as a large caliber revolver.

Economists suggest paying for organs

BOISE (AP) — It could be described as the ultimate futures contract — the promise of a heart, kidney or lung and the life it brings in exchange for a large sum paid to the donor's family after his untimely death.

That kind of transaction is prohibited by the federal National Organ Transplant Act of 1984. It is repugnant to many physicians and philosophers who believe human body parts should not be put on the auction block.

But Dwayne Barney of Boise State University is among an increasing number of economists who contend the current altruistic system of donating organs for transplant cannot keep up with demand.

Barney and Larry Reynolds, also of the BSU Economics Department, have been exploring the economics of organs and transplants and recently published their analysis in the Journal of Economic Issues.

"At higher prices people are willing to sell things they wouldn't sell at lower prices," says Barney. "At a price of zero, some organs aren't being donated."

If the supply and demand for body parts were regulated by the free enterprise system, "I think organ donors would end up getting a portion of the money that's now going to surgeons. I'm just saying let the market work."

But Virginia Zimmer, who coordinates organ donations for St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, believes the availability of organs would decline if a price tag were put on them.

"It's amazing how many people want to give that gift," she says. "People look at it as an opportunity to do a charitable act. I think they would be repulsed" by a system for selling their organs.

Barney admits selling organs is an emotional issue and that "a lot of people find it highly unethical to even consider it."

But, "If my wife and children could be compensated in the event of my untimely death, I would prefer them to be compensated," he says.

Barney says Reynolds' piqued his interest in the economics of body parts by using the issue in discussions on property rights, suggesting that "the property right to your own organs is being constrained by federal legislation."

They point out that everyone but the donor benefits from the current transplant system.

"The recipient of the transplant organ benefits by living a longer and healthier life. Physicians, hospitals and nurses all receive financial compensation for their participation in the process," they wrote in a similar paper presented last month at the 22nd Pacific Northwest Regional Economic Conference. "The only person not to gain is the person who provides the organ."

Compensating donors would increase the supply of available organs, ultimately bringing down the cost of transplant operations and making them available to more people, Barney contends.

The compensation could be arranged by an individual before he dies or by the family after death, he says, and voluntary contributions could still be made.

Commission adopts policy on builders

BOISE (AP) — With Commission President Dean Joe Miller dissenting, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission has adopted a new policy on the tax treatment of builder contributions made to help with utility construction.

Homeowners and developers make the contributions as their share of the costs when utility lines are installed, improved or replaced. New federal tax laws make the contributions taxable.

Effective July 1, Idaho will have a new policy, treating the tax obligations differently for various utilities.

For small water and telephone companies, the PUC said Friday, the person making the contribution will pay the utility's full tax obligation. That will add up to $600 to a builder's $1,000 contribution.

The PUC said it will apply to phone companies with fewer than 3,000 customers and to all water companies except Boise Water Corp.

For large utilities, the income taxes paid on contributions will be added to the company's rate base and charged to ratepayers over the tax life of the investment. That usually is 20-30 years. The decision will add about one-half cent per month to the average residential electric customer's bill, the PUC said.

Miller dissented on the portion dealing with large utilities.

"The method proposed by the majority (commissioners Percy Swisher and Ralph Nelson) places the entire tax burden resulting from contributions upon ratepayers," he said. Miller argued that is wrong both from historic policy of the commission and also because of the PUC's primary duty to protect ratepayers.

The majority acknowledged that the new policy might tend to discourage developers from contributing their systems to utilities.

Director says sex ed needed

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Students need information on sexuality, including AIDS, starting in pre-school and kindergarten, the head of Idaho's Planned Parenthood's education program says.

Having conservative beliefs doesn't rule out bringing education on the acquired immune deficiency syndrome into the classroom, says Sherry Iverson, Boise, education director of Planned Parenthood for the last 10 years.

Iverson, who gives sex education seminars in Idaho schools, addressed teachers and school nurses here Friday during an AIDS conference at University of Idaho.

Because AIDS is fatal, Iverson said, teachers no longer can ignore the issue simply because they may feel uncomfortable with it.

"We can't say, 'Oh well, she'll just get pregnant or he'll just drop out if their sexual behavior goes wrong,'" said Iverson. "We're now confronted with an issue we can't put a Band-Aid on."

Planned Parenthood's own strategy on sex education emphasizes values, she said, and it recognizes that parents should be the main sources of information on sexuality for their children.

"I love the idea of homework because I know it opens the doors to these issues when the students go home," she said.

Communities no matter how conservative can set the pace and scope of sex education in their local schools, she said. But all communities must address the issue. Openness and a sense of humor are key ingredients.

City puts breaks on cruising

BOISE (AP) — Boise city officials, fed up with damage to downtown construction sites, barricaded the two main drags through town Friday night to put the brakes on a teen-age tradition — cruising.

"We won't have anywhere to go," lamented 14-year-old Nicki Stultz. "It will ruin the cruise."

But Ada County Highway District Director Tom MacGregor said the cruise already has ruined much of the construction work involved in the multimillion-dollar downtown renaissance.

On recent weekends, officials said, teen cruisers have knocked down the barrels used to keep motorists from driving into deep trenches, driven four-wheelers through the trenched-out streets, and littered the construction sites with beer bottles and other trash.

"We have already experienced considerable damage," MacGregor said.

The two main streets, Main and Idaho, will be closed off from 9:30 p.m. Friday until 6 a.m. Saturday and again from 9:30 p.m. Saturday to 6 a.m. Sunday, MacGregor said the plan will be reviewed after a month, and if determined successful it could be in effect until fall.

Violations of Western irrigation law prompt reorganization

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Interior Department, which told Congress last year that it was committed to stopping violations of Western irrigation law, is planning to dismantle the office that monitors compliance with the law and transfer its director to an unrelated job.

Western farmers, are collecting millions of dollars' worth of unwarranted water subsidies, the department said last July that it would beef up enforcement of reclamation rules. "We will not tolerate fraud or abuse of the program through schemes, devices or other activities designed to subvert the law," Assistant Secretary James W. Ziglar said at the time.

Reclamation Commissioner C. Dale Durrall said the reorganization is part of an effort to remold the bureau as a resource management agency and reduce its emphasis on water-project construction.

But critics view the move as an effort to silence the Acreage Limitation Branch, which enraged Western growers several years ago by proposing regulations that would have required many of them to pay more for federal water.

down on excessive water subsidies to large farms. The new law allowed farmers to receive subsidized water on as much as 960 acres, instead of the 160 acres allowed under previous reclamation law.

Plans in motion to sell warplanes to Kuwait

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration said Friday it wants to sell up to 40 F-18 warplanes to Kuwait, which would be the first Arab state to get America's most sophisticated fighter-bombers.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater announced the sale plan and said the triggering of a 50-day process under which Congress could block the proposed $1 billion sale was imminent.

The sale would be part of an administration policy of arming Persian Gulf nations endangered by attacks spilling over from the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. Gulf states have also benefited from U.S. naval cover for tankers plying the oil routes.

Congressional opposition to the sale is likely, however, from members who have noted that Kuwait, like other Arab nations, is technically in a state of war with Israel. Some lawmakers also have complained that U.S. arms sales to the region will contribute to an already-dangerous weapons buildup in the gulf, without enhance-ing U.S. security. State Department officials met privately with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Thursday in an effort to allay some of those fears.

Richard W. Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Near East affairs, said last month that the administration favored the sale of advanced aircraft to Kuwait, but Friday's announcement was the first on-the-record word that the F-18, produced by McDonnell Douglas, was chosen over other candidates.

F-18s, the newest jets in the U.S. Navy's carrier-based arsenal, are twin-engine craft with the latest electronic guidance systems. Kuwait chose these planes because they could hit targets throughout the gulf and could make a quick transition between bombing and interception missions.

Only Australia, Canada and Spain — all formal allies of the United States — have been permitted to buy F-18s.

Official proposes drug tests for drivers

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley called Friday for drug tests for up to 5 million drivers of interstate trucks, passenger buses and vehicles carrying hazardous materials.

"We must act to identify those commercial drivers who abuse drugs and get them off the roads. When one drugged truck or bus driver goes out on the road, he not only puts the lives of many people in danger, he gives the entire work force a bad reputation," Burnley said.

His announcement at a news conference here follows similar proposals unveiled in March for the aviation industry and in May for railroads.

There are no firm statistics to indicate how many truck drivers are drug abusers, Burnley said. But he cited a June 1987 test of 317 tractor-trailer drivers in Tennessee that showed 15 percent of the drivers tested positive for marijuana, cocaine or prescription stimulants.

He also noted a survey of 1,800 truck drivers in Florida in which 36 percent said they sometimes drove under the influence of drugs.

"When society has a drug problem, no segment of our population, from welfare recipients to Wall Street brokers, is exempt from it. The trucking industry is clearly vulnerable as well," Burnley said.

"Operating these large, heavy vehicles requires that a driver be fully alert and in complete control of his mental faculties," he added.

The proposed rule would cover 3 million to 5 million people who drive commercial motor vehicles weighing more than 10,000 pounds, vehicles that transport 16 or more people or vehicles that transport hazardous materials. School bus drivers and city bus drivers would not be affected by the proposal, he said.

The Department of Transportation is proposing five types of drug testing: pre-employment, random, post-accident, as part of a physical, and for reasonable cause when a trucker is suspected of using narcotics.

Burnley did not suggest a budget or method of payment for the drug testing plan.

In Washington, the American Trucking Associations endorsed the effort but expressed concerns about how the tests would be implemented.

Lana Batts, a legislative specialist at the trade organization, said there is concern the tests would focus on drivers for large companies and not reach many of the estimated 400,000 owner-operator drivers and those driving for small companies.

The Transportation Department has suggested small companies or independent operators might join together to develop a testing program.

'Unacademic' Cosby kid graduates with high honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Malcolm-Jamal Warner, who plays Bill Cosby's decidedly unacademic son in the top-rated NBC television show, has graduated from Professional Children's School with high honors.

At Thursday's graduation, Warner, 17, was cheered on by one of his co-stars on "The Cosby Show," Tempestt Bledsoe, 15, who plays a younger sister. In his role as Theo Huxtable, Warner struggles through his homework while dreaming of flying.

The actor said his first plans were to buy himself a new car. After lunch with his family, Warner went back to work Thursday evening in "Three Ways Home," a three-person play at the off-Broadway Astor Place Theater. He was treated to cake at an onstage party afterward.

stars appearing at this year's Fan Fair remember what it was like to be a nobody.

"It's been four years ago that I had my first booth at Fan Fair. Very few of 'em (fans) came to see me. Not many at all," said Travis, who won four awards, including entertainer of the year, at the annual Music City News country music awards Monday.

Up to 24,000 people were in town for the annual fair, which features concerts and 365 autograph booths at the state fairgrounds for fans to meet favorite artists up close. This week's fair began Monday and wrapped up Friday.

Mandrell recalled she and sisters Irene and Louise fixed up their booth themselves the first year they attended the event.

"And I sat in it full time, the whole time it was open, every day. And I would be sitting there for as long as 15 minutes at a stretch before any-

McEntire said at her first Fan Fair in 1976, she was pretty much ignored. "People would come by ... and ask, 'Where's the bathroom?' or 'When are the Statler Brothers gonna be here?'" she said.

Douglas gives testimony as murder trial witness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Wall Street" bad guy Michael Douglas made his first appearance as a court witness when he testified during a murder trial.

Douglas, who won an Academy Award for his role as a greedy tycoon in the film, was called as a character witness Thursday at the murder trial of David P. Thompson, a beer importer accused of killing his landlord with a .357-caliber Magnum. Douglas testified he met Thompson six times in 1986 when he was considering investing in the importer's firm. He said he never saw Thompson show signs of a hot temper.

Thompson displayed "good business acumen and good marketing skills," said Douglas, who saw some make-believe court action as a police officer in the 1970s television series "The Streets of San Francisco."

Kindergarten teacher made garden for a day

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. (AP) — Her students dressed her in a gold cape and handmade crown, the school board named a kindergarten classroom in her honor and the mayor declared it "Nellie M. Karrey Day."

It was all part of a celebration by this western Massachusetts city for the teacher who, for more than a half-century, has gently introduced its children to school.

"It was such a surprise. It was a big secret and the children didn't tell," Miss Karrey, 78, said Friday. "They were awfully cute."

She will retire this month after 54 years of teaching, including 51 in North Adams kindergarten classrooms.

She and her three sisters, also teachers, never wanted to do anything else, Miss Karrey said. "I don't like cooking and I don't like gardening, but kindergarten was my niche."

The celebrations began Thursday with a gala assembly at Greylock Elementary School where, with a paper crown perched on her gray curls, she accepted each class' handmade tributes, poems and cheers as well as proclamations from local and national politicians.

A fifth-grade class changed the lyrics of "Sho's Coming Around the Mountain" and sang "She gave us birthday cards and pulled our teeth ... she taught all my aunts and uncles and grandpa, too."

As for teacher burnout, Miss Karrey scoffed.

"I don't know what they are talking about," she said.

Contra leader calls for resumption of U.S. military aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following the collapse of the Nicaraguan peace talks, Contra leader on Friday called for a resumption of U.S. military aid to the rebels, saying the alternative could be Sandinista annihilation of his forces.

Meanwhile, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., urged the White House to propose an aid package for the Contras that matches the amount of military assistance he said the Soviet Union provided to the Sandinista government during the first three months of this year. He put the amount at $105 million.

The Contra leader, Adolfo Calero, indicated he felt that was a reasonable amount. The rebels have received no military aid since Feb. 29. President Reagan's last military aid request for the Contras was rejected by the House on Feb. 3. Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., a leader of the anti-Contra forces in the House, called for additional efforts to achieve a peace settlement before a new military aid request is considered.

"This is no time to be talking of military aid," he said. The Reagan administration blamed the Nicaraguan government for the breakdown in talks, but said no decision had been made about whether to ask Congress for more aid for the insurgents.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "I think that in view of the Sandinistas' actions here, their unwillingness to negotiate in good faith, their unwillingness to instill democratic reforms, you may well see a press for Contra aid from members of the Congress and from people in Nicaragua and from other sources, but at this point we have made no decisions." "While there are no talks scheduled, we still hope that a peaceful solution can be achieved," Fitzwater said. "It is clear that the lack of progress is due to Sandinista intransigence over democratic reform."

He said that "without clear or lasting democratic reforms being implemented, the Contras cannot be expected to make unilateral concessions. We urge that the Sandinistas show the same good will in the negotiating process that the resistance has exhibited during these talks."

Calero told a news conference the aid was needed because of Sandinista threats to wipe out the insurgents if the latest round of peace talks did not produce a final settlement to the Nicaraguan war.

"The only alternative we have in the face of those threats is to defend ourselves. And to defend ourselves we need military aid. We should get military aid," Calero said. Calero spoke a day after the leftist Sandinista government and the Contras broke off peace talks in Managua although both sides said a temporary truce would remain in effect.

Guerrilla battling ends in 8 dead, 50 wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival Palestinian guerrilla factions battled with mortars and machine guns in Beirut's two refugee camps for a third day Friday. Police said 50 people were killed and 50 wounded. One stray shell slammed into a crowded vegetable market near the Chatilla camp at mid-afternoon, killing two people and wounding 31.

The rest of the casualties occurred in overnight clashes between PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat's mainstream Fatah faction and the dissident Fatah-Uprising group in Chatilla and the Bourj el-Barajneh camp, police said.

The Syrian-backed dissidents are led by Col. Saeed Mousa, code-named Abu Mousa, who broke away from Fatah in 1983 and set up headquarters in Damascus, Syria.

Friday's casualties increased the known casualties to 10 killed and 80 wounded since the latest round of fighting between the feuding wings erupted Wednesday.

Also Friday, Israeli-backed militiamen opened fire on U.N. peacekeepers in southern Lebanon and slightly wounded a Norwegian soldier, a spokesman for the peacekeeping force said in Jerusalem.

Members of the South Lebanon Army militia also held U.N. troops at gunpoint for nearly an hour and prevented them from administering first aid to the wounded man.

Catholic officials meet with Ukrainians

MOSCOW (AP) — Two of the Vatican's highest officials met with clergymen of an underground Catholic church Friday in the first official contact since Josef Stalin crushed the church more than 40 years ago.

Their meeting at a Moscow hotel was kept quiet by both sides and was a contrast to the official celebration of the 1,000th anniversary of Christianity in what now is the Soviet Union.

Friday's event in that observance was a gala at the Bolshoi Theater attended by Raisa Gorbachev, wife of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. American evangelist Billy Graham and Rabbi Arthur Schneier, head of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation of New York, were among the speakers.

Members of the delegation said two bishops and three priests — of the Ukrainian Catholic Church met at the hotel with two cardinals from the Vatican, Secretary of State Augustine Casaroli and Johannes Willebrands, head of the Secretariat for Christian Unity.

The meeting and the appearance of the Soviet leader's wife at a religious event emphasized the changing attitude of the Communist Party, which is officially atheist.

"The meeting was very warm and fruitful. It gave us much hope and strength," said Ivan Gel, a lay leader of the Ukrainian Catholic Church who accompanied the church delegation to the hotel. "This kind of official meeting was the first in more than 40 years."

He said previous contacts were informal, at lower levels, and Friday's meeting would not have been possible without the reforms Gorbachev is making in Soviet society.

It lasted 90 minutes, three times longer than scheduled, Gel said. Vatican officials would not talk about the meeting. Members of the Ukrainian delegation canceled a news conference, saying they had promised not to discuss it further and were returning to the Ukraine later Friday.

No information was available about whether Pope John Paul II addressed the issue of Ukrainian Catholics in a letter to Gorbachev brought by Casaroli, the No. 2 Vatican official.

Religious groups must be registered with the government, which puts strict limits on the practice of religion. Officials have not recognized Ukrainian Catholic groups, making their religious services illegal.

2 new exhibits allow closer view of historic Idaho

CSI exhibit portrays lifestyle of Indians

By ADRIENNE TOOMEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Visitors of the Herrett Museum's Baker Caves exhibition will see more than randomly encased arrowheads.

The exhibit is intended to illuminate the day-to-day lifestyle of Baker Caves Indians.

The exhibition opened at College of Southern Idaho's museum this week, only two years after Mark Baker discovered the three caves in the lava wastelands outside Minidoka.

"Looking at an artifact and saying 'This is 10,000 years old' is important, but it's only part of the story," said Jim Woods, Herrett Museum director. "The purpose of this exhibition is to take it a step further and determine things about people. These people talked about the meaning of life, their kids, where the next meal would come from, just like we do."

Actually, most of these artifacts aren't that old. The BSU Archaeological Laboratory dated the Baker artifacts and concluded that Indians visited the caves in A.D. 600. The bulk of the artifacts, however, were dated A.D. 1100.

"Some people looking at the exhibit almost seemed disappointed that the dates were so recent," said Woods. "Actually, it's a very important discovery because we don't know very much about that time period. It's a late prehistoric period. It's right before Indians began being influenced by white culture."

Besides displaying the artifacts, the museum has added explanatory panels and lithographic crayon drawings based on evidence discovered in Baker Caves. For example, one painting depicts a woman using tools found in the cave to butcher a buffalo.

"The role of my paintings was to interpret and add life to what the archaeologists found," said Mike Youngman, the artist whose paintings decorate the exhibition's walls.

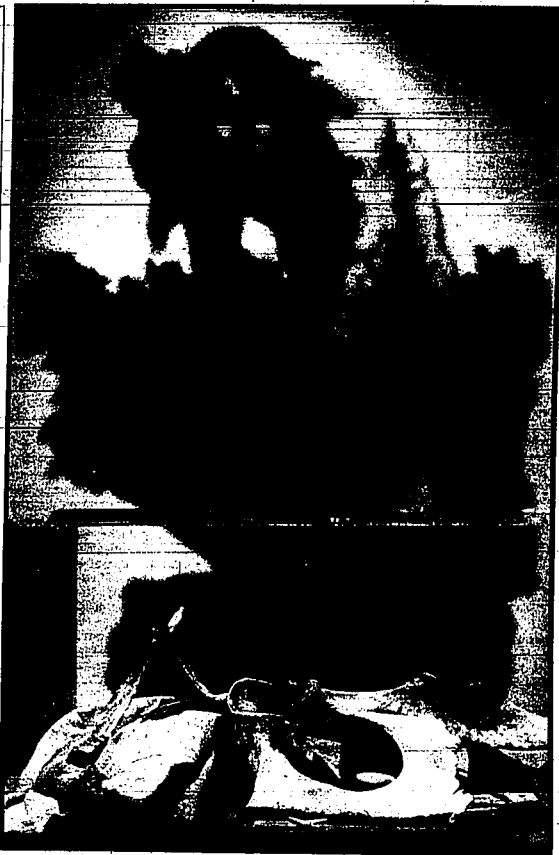

Bison-shaped panels, also created by Youngman, are included in the exhibition. These panels are covered with photographs, replicas and information. The portable panels will eventually travel throughout Idaho, bringing the Baker Caves' history to schools, fairs and public meetings.

According to Woods, the portable panels were constructed because Baker Caves' actual artifacts are not transportable. The wood, bone and fiber objects would quickly deteriorate outside a museum's controlled environment.

"We hear a lot of complaints that archaeologists dig up interesting artifacts but just end up storing them away somewhere or putting them in a museum," said Woods. "We didn't want that to happen here. Informing the public, not just a few scholars, is what's most important to us here."

The Herrett Museum began working on the exhibition almost immediately after the Baker Caves were discovered. Bureau of Land Management officials "approached us and said they were interested in some type of display but didn't have the facilities or money to do it themselves," Woods said.

ISU invites public to Dagger Falls dig

The Times-News

STANLEY — If you'd like the chance to see history unearthed, the Idaho State University's Archaeological Field School will oblige.

From Monday through August 4 visitors are invited to view an archeology excavation conducted by the school at Dagger Falls on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

The site once served as a prehistoric summer fishing camp. Results from this excavation will help researchers reconstruct the role of fishing in the Salmon River Mountains' aboriginal hunter-gatherer society.

"The Forest Service plans to extend its campground into the Dagger Falls area," said Suzanne Henriksen, the field school's teaching assistant. "They are obligated by federal law to have an archeology team find out the depth and amount of remains before they destroy the archeological site."

Twenty-six people, including ISU students, professional excavators and volunteers will take part in the excavation.

By studying bones, tools and seeds found at the site, the excavation team will gather information about the inhabitants' eating patterns, technology level and activities.

"We basically want to find out as much as possible about the people who lived at Dagger Falls," said Henriksen.

Evidence gathered at Dagger Falls will add to research obtained during previous ISU excavations at Corn Creek and Smith Gulch. Corn Creek was once a prehistoric winter base camp supported by big horn sheep hunting. Smith Gulch served as a short-term hunting location.

The crew will be working 10-day sessions separated by four-day weekends. Sessions will be as follows: Monday to June 23; June 27 to July 6; July 11 to July 21; and July 25 to August 4.

Visitors can stay overnight at the campground at no charge. If they wish to eat with the camp crew, they must provide two weeks advance notice.

Dagger Falls is located at the southern boundary of the River of No Return Wilderness Area in central Idaho. Maps showing the exact location are available at ISU's Idaho Museum of Natural History or the Forest Service can provide help in finding the site.

For more information contact, Marion McDaniel, Challis National Forest, Box 404, Challis, 83226. The Challis National Forest is paying for the excavation.

Boise Cascade gives CSI $20,000 grant

The Times-News

BURLEY — Boise Cascade announced a $20,000 donation Thursday to help the College of Southern Idaho expand its branch service here. The money will be part of a $350,000 fund drive begun by CSI Foundation Inc. to help pay for the purchase, renovation and equipping of a church office building that will be the college's new administration and classroom facility, CSI President Jerry Meyerhoeffer said.

Funds also will help pay for a new parking lot adjacent to the church office building, he added. Parishioners of the United Methodist Church, where the parking lot will be located, are building a new church.

The ability to offer classes during daytime hours and a permanent computer classroom will be two major advantages of the new facility, CSI officials said.

Since 1976, when CSI began offering classes in Burley, the college has depended on various buildings around town for classroom space, mostly the schools. But most of these spaces were available only during evenings, Meyerhoeffer said. The church office building will have eight classrooms and an auditorium. "This gives us a chance to expand into a daytime schedule," Meyerhoeffer said. The building will require little renovation, he added.

Also, the facility will give the Ministry Center a new home.

Lincoln County gets USDA assistance

By MARTA CLEVELAND
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County has become the first and so far the only county in Idaho to receive an emergency assistance designation from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The designation, announced late Friday, allows Lincoln County farmers to graze livestock on land normally off limits — the annual set-aside acres in the Acreage Conservation Reduction and Conserving Use programs. No haying will be allowed, however.

USDA also granted the county Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service approval to begin the emergency feed program and to renegotiate 0-92 contracts. The contracts allow farmers to set aside additional base acres in wheat and feed grain and still receive a government payment on 92 percent of the historical yield.

The three programs are an effort to counteract almost certain drought conditions expected later this season.

Farmers must file a formal request with the county ASCS before turning their cattle out for grazing, emphasized Judy Black, the director.

The emergency feed program allows farmers who can show they have suffered a 40 percent loss of their hay production or pasture use to receive about 50 percent in matching funds from ASCS to purchase replacement feed. Black urged any farmer who believes he may reach

St. Vincent sponsors attempt to centralize social referrals

By LORAYNE ORTON SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sheila Brown has been "through the system" needing assistance for food and shelter.

Now a client of the Vocational-Rehabilitation agency, she has a short-term job, sponsored by St. Vincent de Paul Center, trying to establish a central referral system for people seeking help in Twin Falls.

The proposed referral center would serve recently displaced households, street people, homeless, transients, victims of violence, migrant workers and families, utility shut-off victims, female heads of households and the working poor, Brown says.

As yet there are no definite plans for either funding or location for the proposed center. But Brown said she has contacted 50 agencies, businesses and individuals who have pledged their support for the proposal.

"I want to help people in need avoid the frustration and problems I went through," she told about 30 social agency workers Friday morning at the monthly meeting of Service Providers.

Willard Abbott, Region IV director of the Health and Welfare Department and current chairman of the group, said attendance was better than usual because of the interest Brown has stirred in the needs assessment she is making.

No official action was taken on the proposal.

Want to see Idaho at its best? Visit Mt. Harrison and environs

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

ALBION — On a clear day you can see forever. Well, almost forever.

From the 9,285 foot summit of Mt. Harrison south of Burley, views are, in the current vernacular, totally awesome. One of the few Forest Service fire lookouts located near an all-weather road, the glass-enclosed tower offers breathtaking views of Nevada, Utah and the lights of at least six cities.

Zeke Zimmerman, recreation and special use specialist with the U.S. Forest Service, says, "On a clear fall day, you can make out the Teton, some 175 miles distant."

Jim Sheridan, whom the Forest

Service personnel affectionately call "The Old Man on the Mountain," lives at the lookout during the summer months. A visit with Sheridan is worth the trip up the mountain — he is knowledgeable about the geography, history, and folklore of the area and willing to share his knowledge with all visitors.

Sheridan says he has picked up the glow of fires at night as far away as the Boise National Forest. Both Sheridan and Zimmerman say, however, that the days of unlimited views are coming to a close. "With farming and dust pollution, the clear crisp days are getting fewer and fewer," Zimmerman says.

While other fire lookouts rely on a helicopter or pack string for access, Mt. Harrison is an easy drive. From Interstate 84, take the Declo/Albion exit (#216); then go south on Idaho Highway 77 through Declo and Albion. Turn on the road to Pomeroy Ski Resort, and continue up the mountain, past the resort, and on up to the summit.

On the way back down the mountain, don't miss the turn off to Lake Cleveland, just down from the mountain's summit. The picturesque lake is unique in that it is the only alpine lake accessible by motor vehicle between Redfish Lake and the High Uinta in Utah.

Zimmerman says the fishing is excellent at Lake Cleveland, which is planted with 9,000 trout every

While Herrett Museum petitioned the Idaho Council of Humanities and the College of Southern Idaho for funding, the BLM looked for an archaeological team to excavate the three caves. BLM's search was marked by urgency. "Word about Bakers' discovery got around," said Woods. "Within a few days, looters were in the caves."

Volunteers from the Snake River Chapter of the Idaho Archaeological Society began guarding the caves 24 hours a day until an archaeological team could be organized.

Archaeologist Mark Pev from Boise State University, Marianne Davis from the State Historical Society and a team of 15 volunteers gathered to begin an emergency excavation. The excavation was completed in seven days.

"A week seems like a short time, but luckily, the deposits were shallow," said Woods. "They dug about 30 percent of the cave. They wanted to go back at some point to conduct a more extensive excavation, but within a few days, people had gone in and removed any remaining artifacts. Baker I is down to bare rock. Baker III is so thoroughly destroyed it's self-destructive."

The Herrett Museum Baker Cave exhibition will continue until August 25. Information about the traveling exhibit schedule can be obtained from Burley's Bureau of Land Management.

Casita Outreach Center, the CSI Burley branch's name, more permanent space for the popular computer courses. In the past, the college has had to haul the personal computers in and out of temporary classrooms as courses began and ended.

CSI hopes to be in the office building by Aug. 1. Parishioners plan to vacate the church by April 1, 1989, and demolish the deteriorating structure before turning the property over to CSI by July, 1989, so work on the parking lot can begin.

The Burley branch of CSI has grown steadily since it was opened, with the greatest enrollment increase the last three years when entire degree programs began to be offered. Business and office occupations are two especially popular programs, according to CSI.

Meyerhoefer said CSI hopes within two years to install in Burley a telecommunications hookup with other state and national colleges and universities to provide a broader range of educational opportunities. "Anything we can bring to Twin Falls we hope to bring to Burley too," he said.

Doug Pasley, the general manager of Burley's Boise Cascade plant, presented Meyerhoefer with a $10,000 check. The second installment will be given to the CSI foundation next year.

since all the Service Providers represent agencies, both governmental and private, and would have to confer with their respective officials.

But the providers clearly favor Brown's effort and many pledged support for establishment of a center where, as Brown says, "a person could walk in and be taken through the steps of all that is available."

This would eliminate the need to drive or call many service agencies, often when the needy person is without a car or phone, she said. "The time-consuming explanations, Community Action Agency personnel said that typically people do not pay any attention to where food stamps are available until they need them.

Cyd Dillon of CAA said they now see many people who are for the first time having to seek help.

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — A woman formerly from the Mini-Cassia area was shot and killed in Nevada Thursday by her ex-husband, who minutes later fatally shot himself.

Sherman Bowen, 42, shot his former wife, Cheryl, shortly after 7:30 a.m. in a Fallon, Nev. parking lot, according to authorities. The couple's divorce was finalized roughly three weeks ago.

The body of Cheryl Bowen, 29, is being brought back to Rupert for burial, officials said. She previously lived in the Mini-Cassia area, where her grandfather now lives.

Bowen, a Shoshone tribal leader on the Stillwater Indian Reservation near Fallon, went to his former wife's apartment and took her at gunpoint to the parking lot, said Deputy District Attorney Paul Drakulich.

"He was going to take her and kill her. That was his expressed intention," Drakulich said.

that point during this season to apply as soon as possible to save time later.

Reopening the 0-92 Option allows any farmer who is currently enrolled in that program to renegotiate his contract to increase his setaside acreage.

Black speculated that Lincoln County was the only one to receive an emergency designation so far because its officials—only requested grazing rights, and didn't mention anything. Other counties may have requested having capability which Black said USDA is not granting under any circumstances.

But police, notified by a man still in the apartment, cut Bowen off in the parking lot before the two could drive away. They asked Bowen to drop his weapon, a .44 magnum, then heard a muffled pop.

Bowen shot his former wife in the back, the bullet going through her heart. Drakulich said Bowen then crouched down between two cars.

Police suspect arson of camper

TWIN FALLS — Police suspect arson in a pre-dawn fire Friday which gutted a nine-foot camper parked near a Twin Falls alley.

The camper, owned by Bill and Susan Rehwal of 315 Sunrise Blvd. North, caught fire around 2 a.m., according to reports. Firefighters took nearly two hours to extinguish the blaze, which spread to an adjacent trailer and garage.

Police found two propane tanks, one empty and the other nearly so, tipped over in the camper. Bill Rehwal told police he heard a car driving down the alley a few minutes prior to the blaze.

The fire's cause is being investigated by the Public Safety Department's police division, which categorized the blaze as first-degree arson in preliminary reports.

year. Most rainbows, the trout average one to one and a quarter pounds and are ready to "bite on just about anything."

"Contrary to local rumors, the lake does have a bottom," Zimmerman says. "There's a mystique about high mountain lakes, with people believing they are bottomless holes. However, this one is 60 feet deep at its deepest point."

Rafts and boats are allowed on the lake, but paddle power is required. Motors are illegal.

Until around July 4, trail riders are not advised at the lake's two campgrounds, Lake Cleveland and Brackenburg. Zimmerman says the campground was built by the CCC for tent camping, "before people knew what a motor home or travel trailer was."

For this reason, roads and parking spurs are a "little antiquated," he says. The Forest Service has plans to lengthen and modernize the spurs to a large extent this year, but Zimmerman says the entire project may take two or three years to complete.

While some facilities for the handicapped are already installed, they hope to update the entire campgrounds for use by the handicapped. Zimmerman says private funds are being used for this project, and donations are "always welcome."

Also in the construction stages is a scenic overlook on the road from Pomerelle to Lake Cleveland. It will overlook the Raft River mountains in Utah and the Independence Lakes Basin.

Two other popular camping spots in the area are at Thompson Flat and Bennett Spring, both immediately off the main road and well marked. Thompson Flat, at 8,000 foot elevation, is open from July through October, and group reservations can be called in to the Burley District.

while police beseeched him to surrender for the next several minutes.

"He said, 'OK,' stood up as though he was going to drop the weapon, then fired a round through his mouth and out the top of his head," Drakulich said.

Both shooting victims were pronounced dead at the scene.

Bowen, vice chairman of the Paiute-Shoshone tribal council, apparently could not come to terms with the recent divorce.

"I don't think it was any surprise that he was upset," Drakulich said.

Officials charge felony

GOODING — Officials Friday filed a felony charge of vehicular manslaughter against Leon Howard, accusing him of being drunk when he car hit and killed a woman Thursday.

The initial court appearance for Howard, 60, of Gooding, has been scheduled for July 5 in Gooding Magistrate Court. Howard, hospitalized in the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, was upgraded from serious to stable condition Friday.

The criminal complaint, filed by Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn Nelson, alleges Howard was driving while under the influence of alcohol. Cpl. Pat Mooney of the Idaho State Police said the allegation is based on

"But it certainly was a surprise that he took it to the extent he did."

The shooting marked the town's first homicide in three years. Drakulich said. The two had lived together in Fallon for about six years.

"Everybody I talked to said (Bowen) was a hell of a guy," Drakulich said. "Several people, including the police chief on the reservation, indicated that he was simply an outstanding councilman—He was very active in helping Indian youths with substance-abuse problems — basically the kind of person you hate to lose."

Police administered a blood-alcohol test to Howard after he was hospitalized but have not received the laboratory results.

Shortly after midnight Thursday, Howard was driving the wrong way on Interstate 84 near Wendell when he struck head-on a car driven by Heidi Hemplman, 20, Hemplman, the daughter of Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hemplman, died less than an hour later at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome.

witnesses' statements, the odor of alcohol on Howard's breath and the fact Howard was driving the wrong way when the collision occurred.

The Independence Lake area is also accessible from the Almo side of the mountain, from which horses may also be used.

The area is rich in historical lore, with Peter Ogden of the Hudson Bay Company and the Sublette Brothers being the first white men to enjoy its intoxicating wonders. Many of the peaks and streams were named by the fur trappers, the most notable being Cache Peak, which towers over Independence Lakes. At Cache Peak, the trappers had an unrestricted view of the area from which to locate the skins they had "cached" the previous winter.

The area was a gold mine for the beaver trappers, as beaver were so plentiful they backed up the river so much, it could only be crossed by raft. Hence, the name "Raft River."

Zimmerman says Mr. Harrison and Lake Cleveland got their names a little later in history. It seems some Burley residents were camping on the mountain during the Cleveland-Harrison political campaign and made a little political wager. Whichever man won the presidency got the mountain named after him; the loser got the lake.

Zimmerman emphasizes that camp stamps and Golden Age Passports are both usable at all the district's campgrounds. Golden Age Passport holders get a 50 percent reduction on camp fees, while those who use the new camp stamp program receive a 15 percent reduction.

He says the camp stamps can be purchased at Forest Service offices or at selected retail outlets for 85 percent of the stamps face value. These can then be used at the self-service fee stations just like cash.

Bakker claims God's said retrieving PTL

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) - Jim Bakker said Wednesday that God has given him a plan to save PTL as a Christian retreat, and if the ministry is sold for non-religious purposes, it will be cursed.

Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, returned to Fort Mill on Tuesday from Gatlinburg, Tenn., and set up in an office about a mile from Heritage USA.

Bakker met Wednesday with supporters in the office, which had been headquarters of the "Bring Bakkers Back Club." The meeting ended with a prayer session in which he read from the Bible.

Fire shows need for standards

Newspay

HENDERSON, Nev. — On a hot, wind-blown morning last month, Rick Rieckmann, a welder at the Pacific Engineering and Production Co. of Nevada, was about to break for lunch when he saw his partner's face suddenly go white.

"Fire! Get me down!" yelled the co-worker, Dan McCulley, who was repairing the roof of a plant building.

Rieckmann glanced over his shoulder. Several yards away, flames shot up the wall. It was a startling scene, he recalled later, but not without precedent. Over the years, there had been dozens of small fires at the Pacific Engineering plant, which manufactures ammonium perchlorate, a rocket-fuel component used in the space shuttle and many of the nation's military missiles.

This fire would be different.

Rieckmann, McCulley and others grabbed fire hoses. Inexplicably, the water pressure dropped. The building, with sections of roof and siding removed, was like a wind tunnel, Rieckmann said, and within minutes the fire was raging out of control.

"There was a bright wall of fire," Rieckmann said. "It was so hot, I couldn't look back. All he could think of was to get away. He learned in Vietnam: 'Get down and keep your mouth open.'"

By mid-afternoon, as workers wandered back from the desert, they could see that Pacific Engineering was gone, little more than smoldering rubble and twisted metal frames. Twelve buildings were demolished; an adjacent marshmallow factory was flattened. While most of the employees had left the plant by the time the first explosion occurred, two workers were confirmed dead, and more than 300 workers and townspeople injured. In nearby residential and commercial areas, the blasts caused more than $75 million in damage, ripping doors from hinges, crumpling walls and ceilings, shattering windows and upending cars and pedestrians.

And the damage goes beyond Nevada: The explosion is expected to set back the nation's space program by diminishing the supply of ammonium perchlorate, a crucial component in solid-fuel rockets.

A former Pacific Engineering employee issued a sworn statement saying the company had not reported dozens of small fires when she was there between 1982 and 1985. And the Las Vegas Review-Journal disclosed OSHA records that the company had been cited for 123 safety and health violations since 1974, although only $1,280 in fines were handed out.

But perhaps even more significantly, many experts are saying that the plant had fully complied with the federal standards, it still might have been vulnerable to the kind of catastrophic explosion that occurred. What is needed, they say, is a new set of "generic" standards that cover plant design, as well as processing and storage of extremely hazardous substances.

"Things were looking up," Rieckmann said. Still, there have been nagging worker concerns about sloppy handling of ammonium perchlorate at the plant, Rieckmann said. What happened last month, he said, "was an accident looking for a place to happen."

Employee tells of attempted bribe

SEATTLE (AP) — Casey Ruid, a whistleblower who lost his job after detailing safety problems at the Hanford nuclear reservation, said he was told by a Department of Energy official he would be viewed as "the villain that shut down Hanford" if he cooperated with an investigation into safety deficiencies at Hanford.

Ruid said that during a two-hour lunch in November 1986 at a Richmond restaurant, Mike Karol, then DOE chief quality assurance manager for Hanford, indicated Ruid would be better off financially and personally if he did not cooperate with the imminent investigation.

"It started out with subtle hints. Then it got more frank. He kept saying, 'You're forcing me to be more frank with you,'" Ruid said.

Ruid said Karol told him, "If you support the Department of Energy and not the subcommittee then you will be hailed in the Tri-Cities as a savior of Hanford. But if you don't and you go with the subcommittee side, then there isn't anything that we can do to prevent you from being viewed as the villain that shut down Hanford."

Karol, contacted late Thursday at his Kennewick home, said he was aware of Ruid's allegations, which he termed "ridiculous." He declined to comment further Thursday night.

Ruid was laid off in February. The previous October, he and two other Hanford safety inspectors testified before the House Energy Committee subcommittee on oversight and investigations, detailing unsafe practices at the federal reservation in southeastern Washington.

Ruid testified again last month before the same subcommittee, saying he had been harassed by DOE and Westinghouse. Hanford, the government's main Hanford contractor, for going public with safety problems.

Karol no longer works in the same position at Hanford, but is now in DOE's transportation division there.

Bishop goes to death remorsefully, calmly

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — A former Eagle Scout who sought his own execution for the sex-related murders of five boys went calmly to his death today, saying, "Though perhaps too little too late, I am doing the right thing now."

Arthur Gary Bishop, a 36-year-old former bookkeeper and excommunicated Mormon, was pronounced dead by injection at Utah State Prison at 12:16 a.m., said Myron March, Department of Corrections director of field operations.

"Give my apologies to the families of the victims," were Bishop's last spoken words, said Warden Jerry Cook. "He went peacefully to the execution chamber," March said.

Three drugs in succession — sodium pentothal, the muscle relaxant Pavulon, and potassium chloride — were used in the execution, said Bishop's right arm. The former Mormon missionary, clad in a white jumpsuit and strapped to a gurney, appeared to stop breathing a minute after the injection began at 12:09 a.m.

Bishop, who strangled, shot or bludgeoned and drowned his victims, told police he got sexual pleasure out of seeing their bodies naked afterwards.

Bishop decided earlier this year to shun further appeals and be executed, an act of contrition he hoped would bring peace to his victims' families.

"With great sadness and remorse, I realize that I allowed myself to be misled by Satan, and as a result, my life has been marked by wicked, perverse and depraved actions," he wrote in a final statement released after his execution.

In the hours before his execution, Bishop pored over the Bible and Mormon scriptures, and prayed and met with clergy.

Mormon Bishop Heber Geurts, a volunteer chaplain at the prison, said Bishop was calm and cool, and was "the most careful and repentant and remorseful man" of the thousands of inmates he'd seen in 33 years.

Bishop was convicted in 1984 of the murders of Alton Daniels, 4; Kim Peterson, 11; Danny Davis, 4; Troy Ward, 6; and Graeme Cunningham, 13, in Salt Lake County between 1979 and 1983.

Official reports corps failed to protect fish

BEND, Ore. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers has failed to comply with fish-protection measures at its dams on the Columbia and Snake rivers, a National Marine Fisheries Service official says.

Douglas DeHart, chief of the service's Northwest fishery operations, told the Northwest Power Planning Council on Thursday that a lack of action by the corps is killing too many young fish at the hydroelectric dams.

DeHart said the corps had refused to fully implement the council's program calling for measures to protect migrating salmon and steelhead. "Our concerns are falling on deaf ears," said DeHart.

Pakistan violates peace accord

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze on Friday accused Pakistan of violating the accord on the Afghan war by continuing to give arms to the rebels...

At a news conference, he repeated a Soviet Foreign Ministry statement that if violations continue, the Soviet Union may be obliged to review the nine-month schedule for troop withdrawal stipulated in the accord.

The United States and Soviet Union are guarantors of the Afghanistan agreement signed by Afghanistan and Pakistan on April 14 in Geneva.

In another development, the United Nations on Friday called on the world community to donate more than $1 billion over 18 months to help the people of Afghanistan resettle their war-shattered nation.

Pakistan and Afghanistan agreed not to interfere in each other's internal affairs under terms of the Geneva accord, and many observers say Pakistan's training and arming of Afghan guerrillas is a clear violation.

The United States also supports and has supplied arms to the rebels and is Pakistan's major arms supplier. In his statement at the Soviet Mission on Friday, Shevardnadze said in answer to a question: "When we criticize Pakistan for non-compliance, for non-observance of its obligations under the Geneva agreement, we also, of course, have in mind the United States."

"If Pakistan is violating the Geneva accords, of course, the United States, too, bears a portion of the responsibility," he said.

He said that if violations by Pakistan continue, "then we may have to review the schedule of withdrawal of Soviet troops, and we believe this would be quite legal."

The minister added, "But that would be an extreme measure and not something we would want to do."

Diplomats said that Shevardnadze's statement was his first criticism of the United States by name for aiding Afghan rebels.

In a speech to the General Assembly on disarmament Wednesday, Shevardnadze also indirectly criticized the United States on the Afghanistan issue and said U.S. actions could harm the possible settlement of other regional issues.

Under the Afghan accord, the Soviet Union agreed to withdraw more than 110,000 troops over nine months, beginning May 15. About a third are to be withdrawn in the first three months.

Afghan leader Najib said this week that 34,000 Soviet troops have left, while Soviet officials said 15,000 had been withdrawn.

Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the coordinator of the United Nations humanitarian assistance program for Afghanistan, said a $1.2 billion program is needed to see the Afghan people through two crop cycles.

The nearly decade-long war between the communist government in Kabul and the Moslem rebels has crippled agricultural production in Afghanistan.

"Now the United Nations must drive a wedge which can shore up stability and trigger a return to normalcy in the country," said Sadruddin.

Botha lengthens emergency rule

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - South Africa entered a third day of emergency rule Friday with tighter controls on opposition activity. Critics predicted the measures would bring about a permanent way of governing.

President P.W. Botha's third emergency proclamation Friday means hundreds of prominent activists will remain in jail without charge. The decree tightened curbs on press coverage of opposition activity and made it illegal to promote a boycott of October municipal elections.

The government in February banned 17 major anti-apartheid groups, most of which oppose black participation in elections held by the white-dominated government until blacks have equal voting rights on a national level.

State-run media announced Thursday night that the emergency, which went into effect June 12, 1986, would likely be extended for a year.

Botha's announcement of the extension came two days after blacks ended their largest and longest general strike against the government. Black workers were planting olive trees to protest the army's uprooting of orchards and demolition of 14 Arab houses.

The uprooting and demolition were in retaliation for an April 6 clash between villagers and Israeli settlers in which two Palestinians and a 15-year-old Jewish girl were killed.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir returned from a five-day trip to the United States and told reporters he urged Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to support direct peace talks between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

The army said in a statement it arrested Faraj on Thursday night. A large yellow bulldozer leveled the three-story house where Faraj lived with his 60-year-old mother. Only an almond tree, plum tree and rose bush were left standing.

Before sending about a dozen vehicles and two bulldozers into Jelzoum, the army imposed a curfew and cut electricity to the camp where about 5,600 Palestinians live. It is about 20 miles north of Jerusalem.

labor federations said Friday that 2,000 workers who joined the protest have been fired and 3,000 more subjected to various disciplinary actions.

Botha said the government hopes conditions will improve so that the emergency can be lifted.

The critics included Mangosuthu Buthe, chief minister of the KwaZulu semi-autonomous homeland and one of the black leaders whom Pretoria wants to include in negotiations on a power-sharing system that would retain white rule.

Israelis arrest suspect in stabbing

JELAZOUM, Occupied West Bank (AP) - The army arrested a 26-year-old Palestinian suspected of stabbing an Israeli policeman in the chest and bulldozed his cinderblock home Friday in the Jelzoum refugee camp.

The army said Khamis Jawad Faraj had killed Hassan Tawil, 74, the mayor of El Bireh, and knifed him in a act of Palestinian nationalism. Tawil was critically wounded.

Elsewhere in the West Bank, troops ordered about 100 Israelis out of the village of Beita, where the Israelis were planting olive trees to protest the army's uprooting of orchards and demolition of 14 Arab houses.

156 WOODRIDGE DRIVE
This stunning French country design will appeal to the most discriminating home buyer with the kind of charm found only in 19th century homes. The elegant exterior includes detailed brick work and is enhanced by arched windows with unique gothic styling. As you tour the beautiful 3,400 square foot home, you will find the oakwork and fine craftsmanship that Whitehead Homes are known for. As Dave Whitehead personally designs each home to cater to the owners' tastes, you are sure to get exactly what YOU want in your dream home.

644 CONCORDIA CIRCLE
This innovative and stylish 3,600 square foot home meets all of the needs of today's family. From the large master suite, to the elegant oak entry, the design and craftsmanship of this home represents 17 years of experience in "custom building" and can be observed in every room. Some features to be noted are a spacious front porch, formal dining room, large redwood docks, breakfast nook, unique entry handrailing, ample storage, triple car garage, upstairs laundry room, handcrafted fireplace nookings, and large family room in basement.

1259 CANDLERIDGE CIRCLE
Another innovative design by Gary Bond that creates a feeling of elegance and livability. This home has the master suite to equal anyone's dream. His and hers walk-in closets, large soaking tub and a panoramic view of the valley. Special features include triple car garage, 8' high overhead doors, hand crafted fireplace front, oak entry and handrailing, 4 bedrooms, mad room/alc, and Anderson पर्मा shield windows.

6. CORNER OF CANYON RIDGE DR. & CANYON PLACE
Style, affordability, and quality construction combine to bring you this 5 bedroom, 3 bath family home by Ray Goffin Construction. Once again the time you have to come to expect from Ray is evident in this 2,800 square foot home with the following special features: 2 1/2 construction with R-26 walls and R-38 ceiling; Idaho Power pool control program; Ray rock fireplace & exterior windowed ceilings; lots of beautiful oak; and master suite with jacuzzi and walk-in closet.

7. 2786 COCHISE
This gracious 2-story plan (together with quality construction) is designed to comfortably meet the needs of today's American family. Colonial charm is highlighted by the covered veranda, bay windows, dormers and chaise inside the vaulted ceiling enhances the spacious living room, formal dining room and elegant kitchen. A separate family room, convenient laundry area and powder room meet at the first floor. The staircase leads you to 2 bedrooms, adorned by dormers, 2nd bath and then the master bedroom joined with 45 sq. ft. bath.

8. CORNER OF MADRONA ST. N. & POMERELLE
Features 1,922 sq. ft. single level living area, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, garage door opener, auto sprinkler system, duck off master bedroom and family room, vaulted ceiling, double garage, fireplace, formal dining, jacuzzi hot tub, heat pump with air conditioning, and is an energy efficient "Good Costs" home.

9. CORNER OF ELIZABETH BLVD. & CHEROKEE DR.
This is a smaller home with a touch of class. Constructed by Kelly Hill for Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vance, it features a country kitchen with fireplace, sunken living room and a maintenance-free exterior. R-26, 2x6" exterior walls and R-40 attic insulation help to make this an Idaho Power "Good Costs" home. New electric furnace and water heater. Attractively landscaped yard with automatic lawn sprinklers by Kimberly Nurseries adds the final touch to this clean, well-crafted home.

10. POLE LINE ROAD EAST
A dream come true! Take a team of professional designers, the finest materials on the market, advanced building techniques, a contractor with over thirty years in the trade, then bring all the together on a site with a breathtaking view of the Snake River Gorge, and the result is, very likely, the most luxurious home in the Magic Valley. Let your eyes be captivated by the impressive marble entry and the beauty and quality of the solid oak cabinetry. Stroll around the sprawling redwood deck complete with hot-tub and greenhouse enclosure.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Picture be many wise men that have... heart and transparent countenances.

NORTH 6-1A... SOUTH... EAST... WEST...

An experienced defender knows that it often pays to refuse to win...

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: South... South holds: 1 NT... 2 NT... 3 NT...

West starts with the diamond queen, South refuses twice and then wins dummy's ace on the third round.

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds: 1 NT... 2 NT... 3 NT... 4 NT...

The second West is ready when the club jack is finessed. He ducks the club finesse smoothly, and South has options.

ANSWER: Pass. Not enough for an invitational raise, and there is little justification to look for a 4-4 spade fit.

Since dummy has no entry left, declarer can no longer take the heart finesse.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 1243, Dallas, Texas 75225, with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Pistons understand they can win it at home

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The mission is clear for Detroit Pistons: beat Los Angeles in three straight games at the Silverdome and the NBA title is theirs.

"We obviously had to win one to win the series and obviously we've accomplished that," center Bill Laimbeer said of the two games played in Los Angeles. "Now we have to protect our home territory and we win the series."

"The Lakers are a terrific team, home or away, so that won't be easy. We'll have 45 to 50,000 screaming maniacs here and that ought to help us."

The third, fourth and fifth games of the championship series will be played Sunday, Tuesday night and Thursday night at the Silverdome.

The Lakers, who won Game 2 108-96 on Thursday night, must win one of those three games to force the series back home and keep alive their hopes of becoming the first repeat champion since 1969.

"I think we established how we wanted to play — aggressive defense," said Byron Scott, who had 24 points for the Lakers. "We know what we had to do in Game 2. Now we have to take it to Detroit. We haven't attacked on the road, but Sunday we will attack. We're going to be ready."

"Whether it's 2-3 or 3-2, our whole objective is to get back to L.A.," Coach Pat Riley said.

The Lakers' 26-15 road record during the season was the best in the NBA, but they are 2-5 on the road in the playoffs, including four straight losses.

After shooting 39.8 percent from the field and losing Game 1, the Lakers held Detroit to 32.5 percent shooting in the first half of the second game. The Pistons shot 43.5 percent for the game.

But a 17-5 second-half rally by the Pistons turned a 75-63 deficit into an 80-80 tie with 8:26 remaining in the game.

James Worthy then scored six of his 26 points, including two baskets on offensive rebounds, leading an 11-2 run that put the Lakers in front 91-82.

Dennis Rodman, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the fourth quarter, led a comeback that got the Pistons within three, but they could get no closer. With Los Angeles leading 97-92, a possible steal and breakaway by Rodman was negated by confusion over a 24-second clock shot ruling.

"We had an opportunity to win two games, but we only got one," Pistons forward John Salley said. "We proved we could play with them and that's what counts. Now we can go home and get the job done there."

It was the first time in 12 playoff victories that the Lakers have won despite shooting below 50 percent from the field. They shot 45.4 percent Thursday night, but their defense came through. High-scoring forward Adrian Dantley led the Pistons with 19 points, but he was scoreless in the fourth quarter and made only five of 10 shots. He was 14-for-16 and scored 34 points in Game 1.

"I thought we got a good defensive effort, and we didn't let one player dominate like Adrian Dantley dominated the other night," said center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 15 points after missing his first five shots in the first quarter.

While Worthy and Scott rediscovered their scoring touch, it probably was Magic Johnson's effort that saved the Lakers. Battling the flu and severe diarrhoea, Johnson played 42 minutes and had 23 points, 11 assists and seven rebounds.

"If I show my teammates I'm sick, it's a big letdown," Johnson said. "They look to me and I've got to let them know I'm here to play."

"Going back to Detroit down 0-2 would have been one of the deepest holes I've been in and one of the deepest holes we've been in as a team."

The Lakers could still be in a deep hole if they don't get more support from their bench.

Detroit's reserves have outscored backups Michael Cooper, Mychal Thompson and Kurt Rambis 63-12 in the series.

Saying goodbye to the boys

Winning Colors takes aim at Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Winning Colors will say goodbye to the boys Saturday when she tries to win the Belmont Stakes, which has become known as "Woody's Race."

A victory in the 1 1/2-mile Belmont would make the front-running winner of the Kentucky Derby the first filly to win two Triple Crown races. She finished third in the Preakness.

"We're not looking to run against colts any more," trainer D. Wayne Lukas said Friday. "It doesn't serve her purpose."

Five colts will oppose Winning Colors, and one of them, Cefis, is trained by Woody Stephens, who won five straight Belmonts before finishing sixth in 1987.

The filly's main opposition is expected from Risen Star, who finished third in the 1 1/4-mile Derby, then won the 1 3/16-mile Preakness.

Risen Star, a strapping son of Secretariat, the 1973 Triple Crown winner, turned in a sizzling workout Friday. With exercise rider Cowboy Jimmy Nicols in the irons, Risen Star worked three-eighths of a mile in 33 3/5 seconds, with a first quarter in 22 1/5.

"I was looking for 35-36," trainer Louis Roussel said. "It was too fast, but it's over with now and there's nothing we can do about it."

Nichols was not disturbed. "He does it easy," he said. "He come back good. There's not a horse in America as sharp as he is right now."

Winning Colors scored three straight wire-to-wire victories before the Preakness.

"Given fractions that are relatively fast. She's going to be up there by herself," Lukas said. "If anyone goes with her, they'll compromise their chances."

Belmont Stakes, Positions, & Odds

June 11, 1988	Horse	Jockey	Odds
1.	Cefis	Pincay	12-1
2.	Granacus	Vasquez	8-1
3.	Winning Colors	Stevens	9-5
4.	Kingpost	Davis	15-1
5.	Risen Star	Delahoussaye	8-5
6.	Brian's Time	Cordero	5-2

"I think Forty Niner compromised his chances in the Preakness. That's just a fact."

Forty Niner, who was second by a neck after laying off the pace in the Derby, dueling with the filly for the lead for almost a mile in the Preakness. Stephens was accused by Eugene V. Klein, Winning Colors' owner, of sacrificing the colt just to get the filly beat.

Forty Niner, who finished seventh in the Preakness, will not run in the Belmont.

Roussel said that if Forty Niner had not challenged Winning Colors in the Preakness, Risen Star would have won the Derby and Belmont.

Friday, Nichols said Risen Star, who will be ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye, "will be laying right off that filly, just waiting. I think he's a winner."

"It's almost as bad to go too slow as to go too fast," Lukas said. "You go too slow, you take away your advantage and neutralize the race."

Gary Stevens, who also was critical of Stephens after the Preakness, again will ride Winning Colors.

"This is kind of a riders' race in a lot of ways," Lukas said. "He (Stevens) knows the filly and I tell he will adjust well. He has to ride to the occasion."

"I think he's on the best horse, and that will help him."

Eddie Delahoussaye will ride Risen Star. The other jockey assignments are Cefis, Laffit Pincay Jr., Brian's Time, Angel Cordero Jr., Granacas, Jacinto Vasquez, and Kingpost, Robbie Davis.

Winning Colors will carry 121 pounds, five pounds less than each of her rivals. If all six 3-year-olds start, the 120th Belmont will be worth $506,200, with $303,720 to the winner.

Posttime will be 5:30 p.m. EDT. ABC will televise from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Winning Colors, Risen Star and Brian's Time are in contention for a $1 million bonus which goes to the horse earning the most points in the three races based on five for a win, three for a second and one for third.

Winning Colors and Risen Star each has six points. Brian's Time, sixth in the Derby and second in the Preakness, has three.

The only filly to have run in all three Triple Crown races was Genuine Risk, who won the Derby and finished second in both the Preakness and Belmont in 1980.

Winning Colors, who will be the first filly to start in the Belmont since Genuine Risk, can become the third to win. The others were Ruthless in the inaugural Belmont in 1867 and Tanya in 1905.

Stephens' five straight Belmont winners were Conquistador Cielo (1982), Cavacat, Swale, Crame-Friche and Danzig Connection.

Roberts, lesser lights lead at Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Loren Roberts scrambled to an even-par 71 Friday and led a group of lesser-known players atop the standings after the second round of the $700,000 Westchester Classic.

Roberts, a non-winner in seven seasons on the PGA Tour, completed two trips over the Westchester Country Club course in 137, five under par — the lowest sub-par total for a 36-hole lead on the Tour this season.

"It was work today. I hit it all over the place," said Roberts, who clipped two irons, scored two bogeys and a double bogey and pitched in from 50 yards for one of his four birdies.

With two rounds to go in the chase for a $126,000 first prize, Australian Steve Elkington, Bill Buttner and rookie Brandt Chamblee shared second at 138, a single stroke back.

None of the four players atop the leader board has a career finish higher than third. Collectively, they have missed the cut in 26 of 49 starts this season.

But no one did any better in the tricky winds.

"It was pretty windy," Elkington said after his 70. "It was very hard to pick a club. You couldn't tell where the wind was coming from. The wind made the greens a little firmer. It was difficult to get it close to the hole."

He said he hit all nine greens on his front side "and didn't have a realistic putt for birdie."

On one occasion, Elkington sloped his 40-foot lag putt ran down a slope about 15 feet beyond the cup. "And that was about the best I could have hoped for," he said.

The group at 139 included first-round leader Howard Twitty, Dick Mast, Ken Green and South African David Probst. Twitty took a 73. Mast, Green and Frost all had 68s.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, a former winner of this title and a playoff loser last year, had a 68 that put him at 140 at the tournament's halfway point.

The rest of the major foreign stars were well back.

Australian Greg Norman had a 69 and was at 142. Bernhard Langer of West Germany also shot a 69 for a 143 total and British Open champion Nick Faldo of England matched par-71 for a 145.

Sandy Lyle of Scotland, the Masters champion and the only three-time winner on the American tour this year, had another 74 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 148. It was the third time this season Lyle had missed the cut.

Sun Valley Grand Prix

Top US bikers compete on weekend

By COLIN MULLOON Times-News writer

HALLEY — This weekend, Blaine County's Rotarun Ski Area will be the site of Idaho's largest motorcycle competition of the year when cyclists from around the country will converge here for the seventh annual Sun Valley Grand Prix.

"This is by far the biggest motorcycle event in Idaho," organizer Ron Dilton said of Idaho's only national motorcycle competition.

Dilton said he expects 150 riders in today's competition and 130 on Sunday when some of the nation's top cyclists will vie for the first-place trophy.

"300 is the magic number," he said.

"Harry Cunningham from Ohio and Mark Hyde, also from Ohio, will be here," Dilton said. "Duke Dowll from Walnut Grove (California) will be here. These are some of the country's top riders."

Dilton also said that Nampa's Curtis Dice, one of Idaho's leading cyclists and runner-up here last year is also scheduled to compete.

The nearly 300 riders competing this weekend will be split into 25 different categories, 13 novice divisions on Sunday and 12 expert categories on today.

Novice categories will include 125,

200 and 250cc, open novice, women, beginner, two senior divisions for ages 35-53, four-stroke novice, antique (which includes any size bike built between 1977 and 1982) dinosaur (any size bike built before 1976), senior intermediate (ages 35-44) and master (54 and up).

Sunday's competition will feature 125, 200 and 250cc expert, 250cc intermediate B, open intermediate B, open and senior expert, super senior expert, four-stroke expert 60-200cc intermediate B and team competitions.

All of Sunday's races are sanctioned by the American Motorcyclists Association.

In today's races, riders will circle around the "25-mile course: three times, with 10 riders starting at 10-second intervals. On Sunday, the cyclists will travel four times around the course that will take them, according to Dilton, clockwise through Bullion Gulch into Kelley and Wolfone Canyons, back into Bullion Gulch and eventually back to the starting point.

Trophies will be awarded for the best time in each individual category as well as for the best overall time for each of the two days.

Preliminary races will get underway at 8:45 a.m. today and the grand prix will begin at noon. Preliminary races will feature mini-bikes, four-wheelers and a National Off-Road Bicycle Association race at 10 a.m.

Pistons' Laimbeer named captain of NBA's all-whiner team

By The Los Angeles Times

In a story headlined, "A Fine Whine," Bill Laimbeer was picked by the Milwaukee Journal to head its National Basketball Association All-Whiner team.

Danny Ainge and Moses Malone were followed by Charles Barkley, Magic Johnson, Tom Chambers, Kelly Tripucka and Isaiah Thomas.

Of Magic, a writer said, "He has a sort of running dialog with the referee. He's a good actor. That comes from playing in Hollywood."

Selected for the "Whiners Hall of Fame" were Rick Barry, Oscar Robertson and Billy Cunningham.

by himself. He'd have his own wing in the Hall of Fame. He even complains in old-timers games, and those are supposed to be fun."

Add Whiners: Kevin Loughery and Doug Moe were picked as the coaches, but former Philadelphia 76ers' general manager Pat Williams nominated Dick Motta.

"Dick never thought his team committed a foul," said Williams. "But Dick really loved those referees. He sent them cards every Christmas."

In a trailer: "He was always kind to them at Chicago Stadium. He'd help them feel their way into the gym."

Add Ainge: Says Norman Chad of The Washington Post: "I'll lay 4-1 odds that Danny Ainge yells at the officials when he's watching the NBA games on TV from home."

Wait a Minute: Said CBS analyst Billy Cunningham after a string of missed free throws Thursday night: "No excuse for that."

Combined: "The Lakers and Detroit Pistons shot 72 percent from the line," Cunningham, as a member of the 1966-67 Philadelphia 76ers, voted the best team in NBA history, was 69 percent from the line. In the playoffs he was 66 percent.

Said Kurt Rambis before Game 2 when someone asked him if he'd like to "take a shot" at guarding Adrian Dantley: "I'd like to get a shot at guarding anybody."

Trivia Time: Fifty years ago Saturday when Cincinnati's Johnny Vander Meer beat Boston, 3-0, in the first of his consecutive no-hitters, who was the Boston manager and what was the team's nickname? (Answer below.)

Bob Babb, coach of the Johns Hopkins baseball team that has been playing in the Soviet Union, told The Baltimore Sun: "In Leningrad we were told not to drink the water unless it had been boiled. We drank a lot of Pepsi and mineral water. The food was wild. They served raw fish with Jello on top, which the players promptly called 'Jellofish.'"

Change-of-tune department: According to Wallace Matthews of Newsday, promoter Bob Arum, trying to entice the Thomas Hearns fight, said, "Iran Barkley never fought any crumbos or tomato cans."

Said Arum, gleeting after Hearns was knocked out: "We had Barkley from the beginning, when he was fighting tomato cans on ESPN."

From Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott, denying she is about to fire Pete Rose: "Everyone wants to beat a dog when he's down. But I'm fond of dogs."

Wonder how Pete took that one?

Trivia Answer: The Boston manager was Casey Stengel, and the team was nicknamed the Bees.

Quotebook: Mary Dunphy, U.S. men's volleyball coach, on an international edict that players shall wipe sweat off the floor during play instead of ballboys: "You didn't see Pete mowing the lawn, and I don't think we should have our players wiping the floor."

Brooks powers Expos past Mets 5-2

MONTREAL (AP) — Hubie Brooks hit a three-run homer to back the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez and Jeff Parrett as the Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets 5-2 Friday night.

Martinez, 6-6, won his third straight decision as he allowed seven hits, struck out three and walked four. After pinch-hitter Mookie Wilson led off the ninth with a single, Parrett came in and retired the next three batters to earn his fourth save.

Don Darling, 6-4, lasted only 4-1/3 innings and had his three-game winning streak snapped. The Mets' three-game losing streak equals their longest of the season.

The Mets scored an unearned run in the first inning. Len Dykstra was safe when second baseman Tom Foley booted his grounder for an error. Dykstra went to third on Wally Backman's single and scored on a wild pitch by Martinez.

The Expos, who had gone 22 straight innings without scoring against the Mets, took a 4-1 lead in the fifth.

Martinez led off with an infield single, went to third on a double by Tim Lincecum and scored the tying run on Foley's single. One out later, Brooks hit the first pitch from Darling into the left-field corner for his seventh homer of the season.

Phillies 12, Pirates 10

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Von Hayes' two-run double highlighted a six-run eighth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-10 Friday night.

With the Pirates leading 9-6, Chris James walked and Phil Bradley doubled with one out in the eighth to chase reliever Barry Jones. Milt Thompson greeted Jeff Robinson, 3-2, with a two-run single.

Pinch-hitter Darren Daulton singled and Greg Gross was hit by a pitch before Juan Samuel singled to score Thompson with the tying run and extend his hitting streak to 16 games. Hayes' followed with a double to left-center. Mike Schmidt, batting for the second time in the inning, capped the rally with a sacrifice fly.

Greg Harris, 3-2, the fifth of seven Philadelphia pitchers, pitched one scoreless inning. Steve Bedrosian relieved with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth and allowed Mike LaValiere's one-out sacrifice fly that earned his sixth save as the Phillies beat Pittsburgh—for just the second time in their last 12 meetings.

The Pirates took a 5-0 lead in the first: Barry Bonds singled and moved to second on right fielder James' error. Andy Van Slyke tripled to right and scored on Billy Ripken's single. Darnell Coles singled and Randy Milligan walked before Junior Ortiz doubled into the right-field corner, making it 4-0 and chasing Shane Rawley.

Danny Clay allowed Rafael Bellard's RBI single before getting the final two outs. Eight of the 10 runners that Clay has inherited this season have scored.

Cubs 7, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie Mark Grace had his first four-hit game to lead a 19-hit attack as the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Friday night.

The 19 hits—18 of them singles, equaled the Cubs' high for the season. Rafael Palmeiro and Shawn Dunston each had three hits.

Rookie Jeff Pico, 2-1, making his third major-league start, allowed nine hits, struck out two and walked four before giving way to Pat Perry in the ninth with none out and runners on first and third. Perry allowed an RBI single to Bob Horner.

Cris Carpenter, 2-1, lost for the first time in his professional baseball career, covering seven games this season with Louisville of the American Association and six starts with the Cardinals.

The Cubs jumped on Carpenter for five singles and three runs in the first inning.

Orioles takes 5-3 win from Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Boddicker pitched a seven-hitter and Eddie Murray hit a two-run homer Friday night, leading the Baltimore Orioles over the New York Yankees 5-3.

The Orioles scored three unearned runs in the first inning, helped by first baseman Jack Clark's error, and Murray's homer in the fifth provided insurance.

Boddicker, 3-8, won his third straight decision since ending his team-record 13-game losing streak. Boddicker, who struck out nine and walked three, is the winningest Baltimore starter. He pitched his second complete game in 13 starts.

Rick Rhoden, 2-5, put himself in trouble with two-out walks in the first and Cal Ripken and Murray. Larry Sheets got an infield single to lead the bases and Fred Lynn, in an 0-for-15 slump, followed with a high bunker that Clark misplayed, allowing Ripken to score.

Jim Traher then lined a two-run single, ending Baltimore's 0-for-16 skid with the bases loaded.

The Yankees scored in the second on walks to Clark and Mike Pagnallulo and a single by Dave Winfield, making him 23-for-51 with runners in scoring position. New York made it 3-2 in the fourth on two-out singles by Joel Skinner, Jose Cruz and Wayne Tolleson.

Tigers 2, Indians 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jeff Robinson got his sixth consecutive victory and Alan Trammell snapped a seventh-inning tie with a home run as the Detroit Tigers edged the Cleveland Indians 2-1 Friday night before the major league's largest crowd in nearly two years, 71,188.

Robinson, 2-2, and undefeated since losing to the Red Sox on April 21, beat Cleveland ace Gregg Swindell for the second time in six days. Robinson allowed only an unearned run, struck out four and walked three in seven innings of work.

Guillermo Hernandez and Mike Henneman finished, with Henneman getting the last four outs for his 12th save.

Last Sunday, the Tigers beat Swindell, 10-3 in a game in which they got six runs on 17 hits in seven innings off the left-hander. Swindell gave up six hits Friday night and struck out seven in his fifth complete game.

Trammell broke the 1-1 tie when he lined Swindell's first pitch of the seventh inning just into the left field seats for his ninth home run.

White Sox 1, Brewers 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Walker struck the score Darryl Strawberry in the 10th inning and hit the Chicago White Sox to a 1-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday night.

Walker's hit past first baseman

Joey Meyer into right field for the first run of Teddy Higuera, 5-4, in 24 innings. Higuera, who shut out California 1-0 on three hits Saturday, got his fourth complete game this season.

In the 10th, with one out, Higuera walked Harold Baines and Boston was inserted as a pinch runner. Boston stole second and reached third on a throwing error by catcher B.J. Surhoff, setting up Walker's game-winning hit.

Bill Lang, 2-2, gave up a harmless single in the 10th.

Dave Gallagher's ground-rule double leading off the first was the lone hit off Higuera until the seventh, when Ivan Calderon doubled with one out. Higuera struck out nine.

Jack McDowell yielded six hits and five strikeouts in nine innings.

Blue Jays 3, Red Sox 0

TORONTO (AP) — Renee Mulliniks had three hits and Dave Stieb pitched a four-hitter for 6-2-3 innings of one-run ball as the Blue Jays took advantage of defensive mistakes by the Boston Red Sox for a 3-0 victory Friday night.

Stieb, 8-3, issued four walks and struck out four as the Blue Jays, who turned three double plays and beat Toronto for the fifth time without a defeat this season.

In the third inning, Lloyd Moseby's single turned into a triple when left fielder Mike Squires was caught guzzling helplessly toward the bases, looking for the ball. It bounded past him into the corner and Moseby scored when Mulliniks singled.

With two outs, Kelly Gruber singled, but center fielder Ellis Burks threw Mulliniks out at the plate.

In the sixth, Gruber singled, stole second as catcher Rick Cerone mishandled a pitch from Jeff Sellers.

Idaho hires cage assistant

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — James Green, a coach at Jim Hill High School in Jackson, Miss., on Friday was named assistant basketball coach at the University of Idaho.

Green, 27, compiled a 57-76 record over four years at Jim Hill High. He led last year's team to a second-place finish in the state Class 2-A tournament, despite a mediocre 26-26 overall record.

Green graduated in 1983 from the University of Mississippi, where he was a reserve guard for four seasons.

Friday's appointment completes an overhaul of the Vandals coaching brass that began in April when former head coach Tim Floyd left to take the top coaching spot at the University of New Orleans.

Floyd took along with him assistant coach Brent Iba.

Kermit Davis, Floyd's other assistant at UI, was elevated to head coach.

In May, Davis named Fletcher Cooker as assistant coach at Ochsenschlager, Texas, Junior College, to fill one assistant coaching vacancy.

Green fills the other slot for the Big Sky Conference Vandals.

One of Jim Hill High's top players last season, 6-foot-8 Dwayne Chisolm, signed a letter of intent earlier this year to play for the Vandals next season.
