'Vindicated' Meese resigns

Nothing left after town burns

NOTHING, Ariz. — Nothing was left of Nothing on Tuesday after a fire swept through this tiny desert community, destroying its only business and the trailer homes of its four permanent residents. The combination grocery store and service station in Nothing, about 100 miles northwest of Phoenix, had been a popular stop for travelers on U.S. 89, the main route between Phoenix and Las Vegas. 'People would stop there, have a pop and kick back for a while, but it is just about the only thing between Wickenburg and Wickiup,' Jim Bell, a firefighter with the Hualapai Valley Fire Department, said Tuesday. The two towns are about 75 miles apart on the highway. 'I guess they won't be stopping anymore because there's nothing left in Nothing.' The cause of the Monday afternoon fire remained under investigation, Bell said in a telephone interview. 'It started in one of the trailers, spread to the store and gas station and to the other trailer,' Bell said. The blaze also touched off about a 10-acre brush fire, he added. Bell said his department, which is based in Kingman, 75 miles northwest of Nothing, sent two units to the fire after being notified shortly after 4 p.m. Monday. When the units arrived at 5:45 p.m., there was little they could do to save the town, but they were able to help an elderly couple who refused to leave a small trailer they were staying in, Bell said. 'They made a stand, so we had to make a stand. We dedicated one truck to keeping the fire away from their trailer,' he said. 'They were lucky.' There were no injuries in the fire, he said.

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese III announced Tuesday he will resign later this month or early August, even though an independent prosecutor's 14-month probe into his official conduct ended without indictment and "completely vindicates me." Meese, 56, made his surprise announcement at a news conference in Sacramento, Calif., 3,000 miles away from his office and the courthouse where Independent Counsel James McKay filed his 830-page report. The document was not made public, but McKay did not seek charges against Meese for his ties with the scandal-ridden Wedtech Corp. or any other activity, according to sources. Each aspect of the investigation involved Meese's relationship with longtime friend E. Robert Wallach, who is under indictment for alleged racketeering in the Wedtech scandal. Meese said he informed President Reagan of his decision by telephone shortly before announcing it at the news conference. He said he would return to private life either late this month or in August. The president praised Meese, his confidant of two decades as a "darned good attorney general" and said he had no one in mind to succeed him. "That will all come later," said the president. Meese's decision removes a stumbling block from Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign. The vice president is said to be uncomfortable by the continuing controversy over the attorney general's actions, but he has refrained from criticizing Meese publicly. Meese has been a favorite political punching bag of prospective Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and other Democrats. In a written statement, Bush said: "Ed did the right thing and I wish him well." Dukakis called Meese's resignation "long overdue."

In a written statement, Bush said: "Ed did the right thing and I wish him well." Dukakis called Meese's resignation "long overdue."

"I don't think he should have been appointed attorney general in the first place and he should have stepped down long ago," he said. "But this administration's inability to set high standards for public service will not be solved by the Meese resignation. We need a president who believes in public service who will set those high standards." See MEESE on Page A2

Legal troubles? Attorney General Meese has a lot of them

The Associated Press WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, is a look at Attorney General Edwin Meese III's legal troubles, which began last May 11 when independent counsel James C. McKay launched a criminal investigation of his activities. McKay, who filed his report Tuesday with a three-member federal appeals court panel, found insufficient evidence to recommend criminal prosecution of Meese at this time. Here is a summary of the various matters that have been investigated: • The involvement of Meese when he was White House counselor with Wedtech Corp., a New York City defense contractor on whose behalf Meese intervened in 1981 at the behest of his longtime friend, E. Robert Wallach. • The attorney general's actions again at Wallach's request, in connection with a $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline project. Wallach, a San Francisco lawyer, was representing one of the project's partners. • Meese's $14,000 in telephone industry stock holdings at a time when he met with executives of the regional Bell companies, who were seeking a reversal of Justice Department policy opposing expansion into new areas of business by the regional firms. Wallach wrote a memo to Meese urging him to become personally involved in the matter, and within weeks the attorney general approved a reversal of the department's position. • The role of Wallach in helping obtain a job for Meese's wife, Ursula, whose $40,000-a-year salary came from a contribution from a Washington real estate family leasing space to the Justice Department. • The Office of Professional Responsibility, a Justice Department unit which examines improper behavior inside the department, is expected to study ethical questions raised by McKay's office in its report. • In a matter unrelated to McKay's inquiry, the Office of Government Ethics is launching an investigation into why Meese solicited 30,000 lawyers and businessmen to pay more than $9,000 apiece to a profit-making organization to attend a conference in Japan.

Help end war, Reagan asks

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in a careful diplomatic overture following the U.S. downing of an Iranian jetliner, urged Tehran to work with the United States to end the Persian Gulf war despite the icy distance between the two nations, it was disclosed Tuesday. Reagan's message, sent Sunday

Navy to remain in gulf to safeguard sheikdoms

Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, in statements reflecting a gradual but significant expansion of its military objectives in the Persian Gulf, pledged Tuesday to keep the U.S. Navy in the war zone as long as Iran threatens the security of the area's pro-American Arab sheikdoms. Although President Reagan initially sent the Navy into the Gulf a year ago this month to protect Kuwait oil tankers from Iranian attacks, over time the focus of U.S. policy statements has shifted to broader aims. And on Tuesday, reaffirming the administration's military commitment in the gulf following the shooting down of an Iranian commercial airliner by a U.S. Navy cruiser, killing all 290 persons aboard, officials left no doubt that the administration's objectives now go well beyond protecting merchant ships. "We are there to demonstrate our commitment to the shared defense of the gulf, our commitment to the gulf states (and) to keep international waters open to all nations," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "We believe that policy has been successful, and there are no considerations of changing it at this point." "As long as there is a danger of the war expanding, and U.S. and Western interests as well as the security of our Gulf friends are threatened, we will maintain our heightened presence there," State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said. "Our policy remains firm, and our presence in the Gulf will remain firm, as long as the threats to our interests remain."

through Swiss intermediaries, expressed "deep regret" that an American warship earlier that day had shot down the Iranian passenger plane over the gulf with 290 people aboard. "It was not an intentional act," Reagan said in the message, which was made available at White House and the State Department on Tuesday. But even while the president called the downing by the Vincennes of Iran Air Airbus A300 an accident, U.S. officials delayed a decision on paying compensation to the victims of the disaster at least until a Navy team completes an on-the-scene investigation in about two weeks. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater called the inquiry the "first order of business." A senior State Department official, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said "we have not made a decision" and that neither Iran nor the families of the victims had made any claims. A six-member Navy investigating team arrived on the warship Tuesday to sort through conflicting computer records, including a determination by another American ship in the gulf that the jetliner was flying above 12,000 feet rather than at about 7,000 feet when it was shot down. At the Pentagon, chief spokesman Dan Howard said the Iranian airliner had been broadcasting a radio identifier signal on a frequency used only by military aircraft, leading the skipper of the Vincennes to believe he faced attack. Howard said the Iranian aircraft was broadcasting over a radio transmitter known as Identify Friend or Foe in two modes: It was squawking on Mode-3, which is a common identifier for both military and civilian aircraft, used in air traffic control.

Doors open to beef, citrus U.S., Japan sign trade agreement

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — An agreement opening Japan to more American beef and citrus was signed Tuesday by officials of the two countries. U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yaitzer called it "a great day for American agriculture, a great day for Japanese consumers." Nobuo Matsunaga, Japan's ambassador to the United States, said the pact marked "an end to the decade-long trade issue between the two governments." The agreement, which was reached last month during negotiations in Tokyo, will open the door gradually over the next few years to more U.S. beef and citrus and move away from the restrictive quota system that has been in effect. Earlier demands that Japan allow sales of U.S. rice were dropped in reaching the settlement on beef and citrus. Yaitzer said he hoped Japan would relent on allowing rice imports but that such discussions would be more appropriate in the current Uruguay round of multilateral trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, or GATT. Matsunaga said Japan has made it clear that "we will not refuse to discuss the matter of rice" in GATT negotiations on condition that other participating countries are prepared to discuss their own agricultural policies. The Commerce Department has estimated that annual U.S. beef exports to Japan could grow to about $1 billion a year from about $550 million now. Sales of oranges and juice, now less than $100 million, could rise to more than $150 million, it says. Yaitzer said in a statement that the signing was a "historic development" for both countries. "It settles one of our most controversial bilateral disputes," he said. "Just as important, it demonstrates that Japan is accepting even more responsibility as a major trading nation." Yaitzer noted that the agreement not only commits Japan to increase access and eliminate non-tariff barriers to trade in beef, oranges and orange juice but reduces tariffs on a variety of other products, including lemons, grapefruit and nuts. In a formal exchange of letters dated July 5, Matsunaga said the government of Japan "intends to implement market-opening measures" as indicated by the agreement and will be prepared to hold consultations annually with the United States to discuss how the arrangement is faring.

was shot down over waters patrolled by U.S. warships "protecting" tankers carrying oil to Europe and Japan.
While the commanders have orders to fire if attacked - and have done so - the United States is not at war with Iran.

The president would make the decision in tandem with Congress because of the "implications" - and the fact that any compensation would be so substantial that Congress would have to provide the money, the State Department official said.

The guarded overtone was sent through Switzerland, which has handled the infrequent U.S. contacts with Tehran since the United States broke relations with Iran in 1979 over the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and the seizure of American diplomats as hostages.

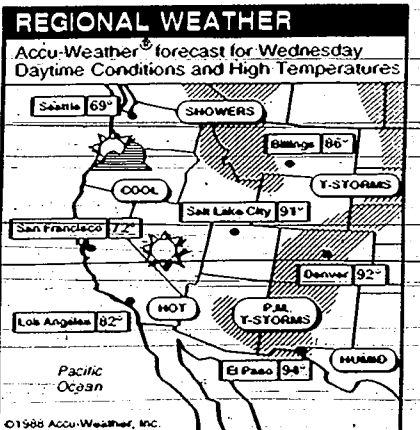

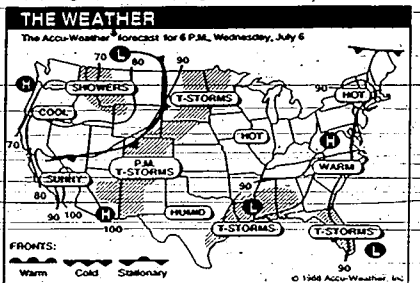

Obviously, questions remain and we are going to get answers to those questions before we discuss reparations," said Phyllis Oakley, a State Department spokeswoman.
Apparently the most relevant law is one that provides for compensation in "contingent situations." It empowers the Pentagon to settle claims for such losses. The Iranian jetliner

Administration sources stressed that any discussions with Iran to end the war must be with officials who could speak for the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government. "We are not going to deal around with people who claim to be representing various positions in Iran," said a U.S. official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Farm Credit System combines 9 banks into single lending institution

WASHINGTON (AP) - Officials of the Farm Credit System announced Tuesday a multibillion-dollar merger that will combine nine of the system's banks for cooperatives into one lending institution.

This vote is a landmark in agricultural finance, said Edward Breihan of Lubbock, Texas, chairman of a committee on banks for cooperatives structure.

The merger decision was announced in Denver and Washington by the Farm Credit Council, an arm of the Farm Credit System; a $50 billion network of borrower-owned cooperatives that taken together represent the nation's largest farm lender.

Mrs. Oakley said the United States was prepared to discuss the war with an "authorized Iranian representative," but that so far there had been no response to Reagan's message.

Meece said he resisted calls for his resignation while McKay was conducting his probe because he refused to "allow myself to be hounded out of office by false accusations."

Meece told his California news conference he could not bring himself to resign earlier, because "to allow myself to be hounded out of office would undermine the system."

McKay's report is expected to be issued publicly later in July, after Meece's lawyers have had an opportunity to prepare a response to it.

McKay's office would say only that it anticipated the court panel would direct that a copy be sent to Meece's attorneys, Nathan Lewin and James Rosen.

In April, McKay said that if he decided that no prosecution was warranted, he would refer all of those matters for review and action by the appropriate administrative authorities.

Before Meece's announcement, it was expected that any ethical questions raised by McKay's office would be referred to the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility, a unit which examines allegations of improper behavior inside the department. Such a review could result in a recommendation of dismissal by Reagan.

At the Justice Department in Washington, spokesman Patrick Korten said he didn't think the prospect of an OPR examination of Meece "was a major factor in resigning."

ported $11 billion in assets in 1987 and $8 billion in loan volume.

oped by the committee headed by Breihan.
District banks for cooperatives that did not approve the merger will continue to operate independently but may choose to join the newly formed bank later or to take part in other mergers, authorities said.

District banks for cooperatives voting to merge were Baltimore, Columbia, S.C.; Louisville, Ky.; St. Louis, Mo.; Omaha, Wis.; the Texas Bank for Cooperatives, and Sacramento, Calif.; Jackson, Miss.; St. Paul, Minn.; and Spokane, Wash.

They said the new bank will begin operations Jan. 1. It will have authority to make loans anywhere in the country and a lending office in each of the banks taking part in the merger. The Central Bank for Cooperatives will be part of the new institution.

The stockholder vote was June 30. The merger blueprint was developed by the committee headed by Breihan.

ISU offers vice presidency

BOCATELLO (AP)—Idaho State University President Richard Bowen has offered the job of financial vice president to one of five finalists but has declined to identify the choice to replace retiring Phil Eastman.

Bowen said he "hoped to have an acceptance by the end of this week."

The five finalists included former state Health and Welfare Director Thomas "Les" Purce, now director of the ISU Research Park; Keith Hasselquist, university budget officer in the Office of Financial Affairs; Gerard J. Bonotti, vice chancellor at the University of Alaska-Anchorage; Stephen O. Mitchell, vice president at the University of Charleston in West Virginia; and Robert W. Pearce, vice president for administration, University of Southern Arkansas in Magnolia, Ark.

Court rules confession void

BOISE (AP)—A detective's statement that it was a "safe bet" a robbery suspect would be free in time to see his baby born was enough of an implied promise to void his confession, the Idaho Court of Appeals has ruled.

The unanimous three-judge panel, in the decision issued Tuesday, held that Dale Kysar's constitutional protection against making involuntary self-incriminating statements was violated because of a police assurance he received about his fate in connection with the robbery of an Idaho Falls Pizza Hut that convinced him to make the confession.

The ruling upheld the decision by 7th District Judge H. Reynold George, whose suppression of the incriminating statements had been appealed by the prosecution.

During a 30-minute recorded conversation after the arrest, the detective suggested things would go better for Kysar if he cooperated in the investigation. When Kysar asked if he would be out of jail by the time his baby was to be born in about five months, the detective said, "I'd say that's a pretty safe bet," going on to say that there would be an arraignment the next day and bond would be set.

Idaho receives highest marks

BOISE (AP)—Idaho has received the highest credit marks from two rating services for its 1988-89 tax anticipation notes, state Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards said.

Moody's awarded a MIG-1 and Standard & Poor's a SP1-plus rating for the $100 million in tax notes sold July 27.

Favorable ratings from the two New York companies mean lower interest rates paid by the state to borrow the funds. Proceeds from the notes are invested and the interest earned is credited to the state's general fund, which means that fewer taxes must be levied to pay Idaho's budget.

Tribes ask for aquifer study

FORT HALL (AP)—The Shoshone-Bannock Indian Tribes have asked the U.S. Geological Survey to test for contaminants filtering through the Snake River Plain Aquifer over their reservation, including radioactive waste from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"There is a misconception by the public that the Environmental Protection Agency is watching over us so we don't have to worry," said Dennis Townsend, tribal water resources engineer. "The standard drinking water test doesn't even show some harmful contaminants."

Townsend dubbed the INEL's request to uncap a radioactive wastewater injection well at the Idaho Chemical Processing Plant for emergency use "ridiculous."

"Anything they do up there at INEL affects the aquifer, and since contaminants are documented as moving, it's ridiculous to put harmful things into the ground," he said.

Mine plan concerns coalition

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)—A plan by Asarco to develop a silver and copper mine in the Cabinet Mountain Wilderness of western Montana has met with concern from the Clark Fork Coalition.

"The Cabinet Mountain mine is one of our main priorities, because of the scale of the project," said Bruce Fanning, a member of the coalition's research staff in Missoula, Mont. "There's some potential for some pretty serious environmental damage."

The 700-member coalition focuses on environmental and wildlife issues in the Clark Fork River area, including Idaho's Lake Pend Oreille.

Intestinal infections on rise

BOISE (AP)—The intestinal maladies of campylobacter and giardia are enjoying a resurgence in Idaho this year, state health officials say.

So far this year, 123 people have suffered infections of campylobacter or giardia, which cause diarrhea. They usually do not make people seriously ill, but the very old and very young may experience dehydration.

The incidence of campylobacter infection is up 44 percent from this point last year. The incidence of giardia is up 33 percent.

Director cites bias against migrants

BOISE (AP)—Despite some progress thanks to federal laws and local initiatives, the approximately 132,000 migrant farm workers and family members in Idaho continue to face housing and job discrimination, says the director of the Idaho Migrant Council.

"We're making some gains," said Humberto Fuentes, "but we're not there yet."
Fuentes said problems for the 95-percent of Idaho's Hispanic population involved in farm labor include a lack of adequate housing, pay that often falls below the minimum wage and a high student dropout rate.

He made his comments in an interview with

The Idaho Statesman.

Fuentes also he doubts the effectiveness of the federal government's Immigration Reform Act, designed to discourage illegal aliens from crossing the Mexican border and provide legal residency for many aliens already here.

Of the approximately 62,000 to 67,000 migrant farm workers in Idaho, perhaps 15,000 to 20,000 are undocumented. Fuentes said 12,000 to 14,000 of those are expected to take advantage of the Special Agricultural Worker provision of the new immigration law and become legal residents.

But as long as economic conditions in Mexico remain depressed, he said, more migrant workers will continue to make their way to Idaho.

"You're not going to stop the flow of undocumented workers. The alternative for them is to starve in Mexico," he said. "Unless you start a police state and put an armed guard every 50 or 20 feet or a Berlin Wall, you're not going to stop the flow of undocumented workers."

Fuentes said the U.S. should address the illegal alien problem by providing more economic development assistance to Mexico. The government's immigration policy for too long has been based on the short-term employment needs in the U.S. without regard to conditions south of the border.

Jones wants surplus used to fight drugs

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Attorney

General Jim Jones says he would like to see some of the state's anticipated fiscal 1988 revenue surplus directed toward increased drug enforcement and education and treatment for abusers.

Jones said at a news conference Tuesday that he would like to see $1 million allocated to local law enforcement agencies to allow them to hire the manpower needed to fight drugs and improve enforcement coordination with the state. Another $500,000 should be set aside for drug education and treatment, he said.

State government officials have forecast a budget surplus for the fiscal year that ended June 30 as high as $20 million. Legislative leaders have ruled out any prospect of holding a special session to decide how to spend the extra money, but Senate President Pro Tem James Risch has said most of the surplus probably will be allocated to education when the Legislature convenes next January.

Jones said Tuesday that he would propose legislation next year designed to strengthen laws against drug users without adding to the prison population. He said he will propose an increase in the maximum fine for a drug conviction from $5,000 to $25,000 and earmark any fine over $5,000 to the substance-abuse program.

These convicted would be required to undergo an evaluation. If treatment is needed, he said, judges would be given the authority to mandate it.

"The idea is to make people pay for their treatment," Jones said. "If the state has to pay, restitution should be made once the treatment has been completed."

Jones said his proposal also would allow judges to increase sentences for community service. He said he would rather see tougher laws than the legalization of drugs. The talk about legalization, Jones said, "is a solution that comes out of desperation. It comes from the American demand for immediate results."

U.S. Forest Service, Army swap land tracts near Boise

States News Service

Specialist Steven Gale said.

WASHINGTON — In an effort to consolidate management, the U.S. Forest Service and the U.S. Army have swapped tracts of land in or close to the Boise National Forest.

On June 27, the Army Corps of Engineers took over 557 acres of Forest Service land within the Lucky Peak Lake Project southeast of Boise. The Corps plans to develop 69 acres of the land it acquired in the Macka Creek area at the upper end of the reservoir for recreational uses such as fishing, boating and picnicking. Army Realty

Gale said the Corps will leave the rest of the traded land for use by white-tail deer and other wildlife, probably under the oversight of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

This means "we assume total management responsibility for the Lucky Peak Lake Project," Gale said.

In exchange for the 557-acre tract, the Forest Service deeded nine acres of land wedged between the Lucky Peak Lake Dam and 80 acres of National Forest land used to grow tree seedlings.

Lava Hot Springs asks for exemption

POCATELLO (AP)—More than 100 Lava Hot Springs residents, unhappy about paying taxes for what they consider a financially unstable and little-used hospital, have asked Bannock County to exempt their community from the Marsh Valley Hospital District.

Pat Grant, a retired Lava Hot Springs man who organized the move, recently presented county commissioners in Pocatello with a petition with 135 valid signatures.

"We're not trying to close the hospital in Downey and we're not trying to eliminate the doctor in Downey," Grant said Tuesday. "But we don't feel we should pay for a hospital in Downey."

He contends most Lava Hot Springs residents travel the few extra miles to Pocatello for medical care rather than the 28 miles to the Marsh Valley Hospital in Downey.

Random drug testing of employees fails on several counts

"We maintain a drug-free workplace" will soon appear in corporate advertising alongside "We are an equal-opportunity employer."

Gerald F. Uelmen

Corporate America is enthusiastically enlisting in the war on drugs. The call now is to mandate anti-drug programs as a condition for receiving government contracts. In congressional testimony last month Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci suggested ordering all defense contractors to institute "drug-free workplace" programs, a move that could affect 3.2 million American workers. The recent revelation of drug use by White House employees led President Reagan to say that the incidents proved the need for widespread drug testing.

signs of drug use on the job. Drug testing was perceived as a panacea that actually was receiving too much emphasis at the expense of other approaches. Despite this warning, random urine testing on a broad scale is the most prominent feature of the programs being pushed by federal officials. Why?

A clue emerged from a conference for 200 top corporate executives in Washington in early June. The executives were treated to a remarkable speech by Reagan, who attributed America's drug problems to the student activists of the 1960s.

"The students of that period who used illegal drugs in high school or college have in many cases taken their destructive drug habits with them into their places of employment," the president said. The solution offered by a long parade of high government officials: Screen employees, make them take urine tests.

The conference sponsor was Hoffman-La Roche, a New Jersey pharmaceutical company that earned $300 million last year providing drug tests and laboratory analyses to other companies and government agencies. Hoffman-La Roche's biggest customer for drug tests: The Pentagon. Drug testing is one of the fastest-growing industries in America, well on its way to becoming a billion-dollar-per-year industry. Companies are scrambling to market new products, including a home testing kit for parents so that they can mail in urine samples taken from their children. Many of the employers who are jumping on the drug-testing bandwagon are child-concerned with corporate images rather than toward employees. Testing programs are perceived as "good public relations" and being "responsive" to government efforts. Whether they are good employee relations is ignored.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently agreed to review two cases that challenge the legality of employee drug-testing programs. While decisions in these cases will resolve some of the troublesome issues of the right to privacy, the court will not address the most significant issue of all: Is it worth the cost?

While drug abuse itself imposes enormous costs in higher accident rates and lower productivity, broad-scale urine testing may accomplish little to reduce these costs. Experience thus far indicates that the drug most frequently turning up in positive urine tests is marijuana. This simply reflects the fact that marijuana can be detected in urine for 30 days after use, while other drugs are dissipated within 24 hours. Casual weekend users of marijuana are not the chief culprits when it totals up the costs of drug abuse to industrial productivity, but they are unquestionably the chief victims of widespread urine testing. But then again, industrial productivity may not be the only concern. The hidden agenda might be rooting out those throwbacks from the 1960s who were responsible for "erosion of our values and the decline in self-responsibility," as Reagan described "the enemy" to the executive recruits for his war on drugs.

In lambasting the hypocrisy of "chemical Calvinism," Dr. George Lundberg, former president of the American Medical Association, estimated that it would cost $8 billion to $10 billion a year to test every employee in the United States once a year. That's more than we currently spend on all drug-treatment programs combined. Lundberg searched in vain for a single proper cost-benefit analysis to justify massive investment in employee drug testing. The reason should now be apparent.

This is an issue that has more to do with political posturing and making quiet profits than it has to do with serious cost-benefit analysis.

TV writers' strike could produce roller-coaster fall election

WASHINGTON — The late June polls are out and show a sharp change in the shape of the presidential race. Michael Dukakis, who led George Bush by 53 to 40 percent in the late May Washington Post-ABC poll, in late June was up only 46 to 41 percent according to Gallup and 45 to 42 percent in the ABC-Money Magazine poll.

I think it's likely that these sharp changes will keep on occurring right up to Nov. 8, and that the outcome will be determined by big shifts of opinion in the last couple of weeks.

The reason for this is simple enough: It is the Hollywood writers' strike.

This battle between gangs of greedy millionaires has nothing directly to do with politics, but it has a great deal to do with the medium from which most American voters get most of their information about politics — television. Prime-time television has become the courthouse square of American politics. Candidates can't get voters to come down to the courthouse square to listen to their speeches, as they could in the days of William Jennings Bryan, and so they go where the voters are and deliver their messages in 60-, 30- and even 15-second spots scattered amidst network entertainment programs. But this year most voters may not be watching prime-time TV. The writers' strike means that there won't be any new prime-time entertainment shows until at least mid-October, and maybe not until after Nov. 8. This lack of new shows is likely to accelerate what has been a slow, long-term movement of viewers away from prime-time network broadcasts and toward other forms of entertainment: independent stations, cable, VCRs, public TV, sports and exercise, even reading.

The slow decline in the collective ratings of the three commercial networks in the last three years will probably become a fast decline next fall if all viewers can see is reruns of reruns. The decline is likely to be greatest among the young, who also happen to be the most switchable voters.

Voters will still get some information from network newscasts, but their viewership is declining too. The new people-meter rating systems say it's down 10 percent from last year — which means either that viewers are fleeing the newscasts or that there weren't as many viewers as we used to think.

The weekday evening newscasts in any case have just 22 minutes five times a week to report the race. They won't be as cluttered with candidates as they were in, for example, the five newscasts between Iowa and New Hampshire when they had 13 contenders to report on. But they will only be able to provide a few minutes of coverage a night at best.

Nor will the conventions provide us with any sort of information. They'll be broadcast just two hours per night (three on the last day), and in 1984 only 23 percent of households were tuned in to them. The politicians who are negotiating furiously to speak from the podiums in Atlanta or New Orleans are likely to find that when it they succeed very few voters will hear what they're saying. So it's going to be harder than usual for the politicians to communicate with the voters. They can buy time on what are likely to be the only high-rating broadcasts of the fall, the Olympics in late September and the World Series in October, but that will be extremely expensive. The candidates will be unable to speak directly to the voters in the four debates sponsored by the two parties on Sept. 14 and 25 and Oct. 11 and 27 and maybe in League of Women Voters debates this fall, but how many people will be listening?

The fact is that voters aren't likely to have much information about two candidates they don't know all that much about already until the last couple of weeks of campaigning. In that environment, every new bit of information will have the potential for utterly transforming voter opinion.

Hence my prediction of a roller-coaster election in the last 10 weeks with heady ascents and wild plunges in the polls for each candidate.

Letters/Comments range from INEL to politics to thievery

Let's not exempt INEL waste
"Contain and clean up." That is what every one who has a hazardous material spill must do according to the mandates coming down from the federal government.

I have seen gasoline spills of as little as 20 gallons that had to be covered with sand then hauled off. Service stations with 200 pounds of waste oil per month must now take care of the oil as a hazardous material.

I have recently received a letter from Health and Welfare which tells us that we are soon going to have to separate household hazardous waste before it is sent to the city dump.

So, why should the INEL be allowed to dump their waste into our water supply? The Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act and the Safe Drinking Water Amendments of 1986 are very strict about controlling hazardous waste and keeping it from drinking water sources. Is the INEL magically exempt from all regulations?

The INEL must contain and clean up just as everyone else must contain and clean-up.

A few weeks ago statistics showed 74% of Northern Idahoans were bucking up.

A few days ago reports show only 27% of Idaho was bucking up. Probably it said due to the fact the fine was only $5. So does this mean they are going to scare us into bucking up by raising the fine?

Those of you vacationing in other states, take time out to find out their laws. Then perhaps more of us will realize how unfair and far out this law is. How carry it? I.L. Hargten of Twin Falls is the one to contact if you are interested in helping remove this law. Oregon does not have one.

And how did they come up with the above statistics? Stopping everyone and counting, or telephone poll?

Mrs. Idaho deserves honor

Last Sunday, June 26th, my family, friends and I travelled to Boise to see my wife, Shanna, compete in the Idaho Pageant.

Twelve women from throughout the state participated in the pageant, including a former Miss Idaho, and two other women from Twin Falls. Imagine how delighted and proud I was when Shanna was chosen from among all of those other worthy candidates to represent the married women of our state in the Mrs. America Pageant to be held in October.

Imagine my dismay when this achievement went virtually unnoticed by the media community until the Times News saw fit to offer it a small space in the food section of Wednesday's paper next to "Dear Alvie."

If a younger woman from Twin Falls won the Miss Idaho title, the paper would have gone to greater lengths to whip up some community pride and anticipation of the upcoming national contest. Indeed, the paper would have emphasized all the outstanding qualities the woman possessed that helped her win the crown.

With this rather perfunctory item in Wednesday's paper, one gets the impression that Shanna merely looked good in a swimsuit on evening gown.

As you know, Shanna possesses more than physical beauty. She was chosen the first female Kiwanian in the state, is a past president of Dilettantes and of the Renaissance Academy of the Arts, the director of the Twin Falls/Magic Valley Junior Miss Pageant, a member of the Board of the Magic Valley Arts Council, and an active member of several community theatre groups. life, in essence, ignores the very meaning of the Mrs. Idaho title. In addition, the newspaper ignored the two other contestants from Twin Falls: Lori Heid and Stephanie Homan. Mrs. Head was named fourth runner-up in the competition.

The back-handed recognition of this honor, which is, in my opinion, an honor to the entire community, should be rectified by your paper. Attention should be paid to the other local women who participated. At a time when our community needs positive reinforcement and positive role models, we can't afford to relegate any source of pride to the food section of the local paper.

Don't ignore Constitution

It is my considered opinion that a grave injustice is being perpetuated by your newspaper as well as other leading newspapers when issues and questions concerning the original Constitution of the United States are either knowingly or unknowingly being withheld from subscribers and readers.

Just last year, this nation honored the 200th anniversary of the birth of the Constitution. There was pomp and ceremony, to be sure. But, in all sincerity, and out of a nation of about 250 million citizens, how many have an understanding of government, as seen through the eyes of the Constitution? Perhaps ten percent would be a conservative figure!

Take the income tax, for example. Where does the original Constitution empower the federal government to impose a charge, and rights, liberties, and freedoms? Then by what stretch of the imagination can we Americans claim and profess to be free when we're paying a tax for this so-called freedom?

How about Title 31 of the US Code, Section 3124, which specifically exempts Federal Reserve notes as payment of each form of taxation? If this is a law, then why isn't it being enforced? Why are the newspapers keeping silent about its non-enforcement? How can readers and subscribers have trust in newspapers when such information is withheld?

The dollar is the accepted unit of value, requiring a certain amount of gold content. Federal Reserve notes, or "dollars," do not contain such gold content nor do they encompass the "whom," "when," "what," and "where" requirements. They are illegal, worthless, and irredeemable flat paper.

Isn't it time Americans did things right by observing the principles established in the original Constitution instead of following unscrupulous interpretations? For a better America.

Fear takes on many guises

How ironic that Sen. James McClure says "Fear is a very easy thing to peddle" in referring to concerns over the environmental threats posed by the injection of nuclear wastes into the Snake River Aquifer. This comes from a man who knows what he's talking about.

Fear has peddled very effectively by McClure, Sen. Symms, Rep. Craig and their conservative soul brothers around the country — fear of communism, fear of change, fear of losing control of things we never really controlled to begin with.

It's certainly not a new tactic. We've been distracted from legitimate, pressing concerns for generations by the use of illusory fears of one thing or another. When all else failed to keep us in line, there was always the bogeyman.

What else but fear drives McClure's campaign for a nuclear weapons factory at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory? It's clear there's no practical need for it — fear OK in that context but not OK when we wonder whether our water will be poisoned by nuclear waste?

We've often been told by the nuclear industry that what it does is nothing to be concerned about, but they've been proven wrong too often.

Hopefully, the upcoming elections will continue the process of pushing out those people who exploit fear and ignorance and who pay lip service to ideas they often fail to adhere to, such as democracy.

Iowa considers emergency; Southeast rejoices over rain

The Associated Press

Iowa's governor said Tuesday he might declare a statewide drought emergency, and an Indiana official warned of possible power shortages as generating plants ran low on cooling water.

Farmers in the Southeast celebrated rain and high prices because of the Midwest's problems, and a new heat wave spread water restrictions and brushfires into the Northeast.

A dispute over diversion of Lake Michigan water continued to cause friction between Great Lakes and Mississippi Valley states as one of the Mississippi River's shipping channels shrank to a depth of only 7 feet.

Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad said he may issue an emergency declaration unless rainfall is widespread this week, even though federal officials say it's too early to assess drought damage.

"It's early enough to know it's a real disaster," said Branstad, who is carrying his case for emergency aid to Washington this week. "We don't want to see a lot of farm families forced back into bankruptcy."

But South Carolina farmers were optimistic that record yields would combine with higher prices, although rain in the Southeast helped push corn and soybean prices down on the Chicago Commodities Exchange.

"We're looking at another billion dollar year," said state Agriculture Commissioner D. Leslie Tindal.

Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., said Tuesday that the drought will save the federal government $5.3 billion to $10.85 billion in reduced farm subsidies and the entire amount should be allocated to rural America.

"The good Lord in effect made the money available by devastating a lot of farmers," said Durenberger, who is in a heated re-election campaign.

Side effects continued to spread, with bug experts saying conditions are ideal for grasshoppers and golfers celebrating as balls bounced farther down hard, dry fairways.

Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson, who fears any temporary diversion of the Mississippi would become permanent and lower lake levels, said Illinois actually wanted Lake Michigan water to flush out Chicago's sewage. Chicago officials said the drought had had no effect on sewage.

Barge traffic was halted at Greenville, Miss., where the shipping channel was 7 feet deep, but a dredge was deepening it to 15 feet and the Army Corps of Engineers expected a towboat traffic jam to clear quickly.

Robert D. Glazier of the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission said a prolonged drought would leave some power plants with less cooling water and might create environmental problems if too much hot water was pumped back into low streams. Further downriver, officials said the tip of a wedge of salt water moving up from the Gulf of Mexico may reach New Orleans water intakes Wednesday. They were trying to determine how much salt water the processing system can handle.

Dry conditions and July Fourth fireworks encouraged fires across the nation, but most were under control Tuesday.

Hunting restrictions on waterfowl were being considered because normal breeding areas had dried out, but the same conditions also prevented mosquitoes from reproducing. Fish faced a mixed blessing — less water to swim in, fewer fishermen to dodge.

Study says refuge oil rights should not be traded away

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration should abandon its controversial proposal to trade away potentially valuable oil rights in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, a congressional study said Tuesday.

The study by the investigative General Accounting Office said the Interior Department proposal to exchange plan is "not in the best interests of the government" and should be rejected by Congress.

The study focused on Interior's proposal to trade the mineral rights to 166,000 acres in the refuge for surface rights to 896,000 acres owned by six Alaska native corporations in seven other wildlife refuges in the state.

Last month, Interior Secretary Donald Hodel ordered the trade put on hold until after Congress confronts the larger question of whether to allow development of the possibly large oil reserves in the Arctic refuge. In findings disputed by the department, GAO said Interior has valued the 896,000 acres at six times their appraised market value and that three-fourths of the land has "only limited wildlife and habitat protection benefits."

And while Interior is rating the deal as an even-up trade worth $539 million to both sides, it is impossible to calculate the value of the oil rights in the refuge until more exploration is done, according to GAO.

Interior told GAO that the actual values for the best (Arctic refuge) tracts could be between zero and 6.5 times the estimated value, GAO said in the study released by Rep. George Miller, D-Calif.

"Under the proposed land exchanges, however, Interior neither required the native corporations to bid against one another competitively for the tracts nor retained a continuing monetary interest in any future oil production," GAO said.

On Thursday, Miller is planning to hold what could be the final hearing this year on whether to open the refuge's 1.5 million acre coastal plain to oil rigs.

Angry Iranian leaders urge terrorist attacks on U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran told the world Tuesday the U.S. Navy created "a wave of rage" by shooting down an Iranian jetliner, and the designated heir-to-power urged terrorist attacks on American targets around the world.

Tehran radio quoted President Ali Khamenei as saying in letters to heads of state that Iran has the "right to avenge the blood of innocent children, men and women." Iran said all 290 people on the Iran Air flight were killed when the Airbus A300 was shot down Sunday.

"While the U.S. leadership has not yet officially declared its war against Iran's people, it has, by resorting to this criminal act, which followed earlier aggressive actions, taken a serious step toward war with a revolutionary, Islamic nation," he said.

Khamenei asked other nations to condemn the United States for the action by the U.S. missile cruiser Vincennes.

At the United Nations in New York, Iran demanded a Security Council meeting, condemnation of the United States for the "terrorist attack" and withdrawal of U.S. military forces from the Persian Gulf, where Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

In other developments:

— A six-man team of U.S. experts led by an admiral arrived in the gulf Tuesday to begin a confidential investigation. U.S. officials said the airliner, bound for Dubai from a military-civilian airport in Bandar Abbas, was mistaken for an Iranian F-14 jet fighter.

— Iranian Ambassador Mohammad Jafar Mahallati told a news conference at the United Nations that Iran Air Flight 655 had sent "normal signals... to all radar that it was a civilian plane." The Pentagon said Tuesday it transmitted information on two radio channels, one identified with F-14s.

— American military sources said at least two other mix-ups between U.S. warships and commercial aircraft had occurred in the past month. They said one involved a pilot who thought a Navy ship was ordering him to change course, and the second a vessel just arriving in the gulf fixed its fire-control radar briefly on an airliner.

— Air traffic to the United Arab Emirates was disrupted. Iran Air canceled its daily flights from Bandar Abbas to Dubai and said it would not use the corridor "threatened by the American naval presence." Dubai canceled flights of other airlines using the same corridor over the Strait of Hormuz, and air traffic to Abu Dhabi, 105 miles away, also was affected.

Iran has been trying to improve relations with other nations to end its isolation, particularly U.S. allies in Western Europe, and a wave of terrorism corresponding with its fiery rhetoric would jeopardize that effort.

Jetliner had response equipment

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — The Airbus passenger jet shot down by a U.S. warship was "delivered to Iran Air six years ago with two transponders aboard that should have responded to identification requests from the cruiser, an Airbus spokesman said Tuesday.

U.S. military officials have said the A300 jet failed to respond to electronic identification requests and voice warnings from the U.S. cruiser Vincennes to change course, beamed over civilian and military radio channels.

The plane, mistaken for an F-14, was shot down Sunday.

Electronic identification signals are received by transponders, standard equipment on Airbus planes, said spokesman David Velupillai.

An Iranian A300 Airbus sits in Tehran

He said the make of transponders on Airbus planes is up to the individual customer and he did not know the manufacturer of the transponders on the Iran Air jet.

All transponders, regardless of make, work to international standards on a system called Secondary Surveillance Radar.

Deadline for execution passes without incident

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A man purporting to speak for Islamic Jihad claimed Tuesday the pro-Iranian faction would kill one of two American hostages it was holding, but police said the deadline passed without incident.

"The threat appears to be a hoax," said a police spokesman.

The caller told the Voice of the Nation radio station that either American "Jerry" Anderson or Thomas Sutherland would be executed to avenge the downing of the Iran Air jetliner by a U.S. Navy missile cruiser in the Persian Gulf on Sunday.

The Sunni Moslem radio quoted the caller as saying the group would kill one hostage by 8 p.m. (11 a.m. MDT) and dump the body in the Syrian-polluted-seaside neighborhood of Ramle-al-Baida in west Beirut. But the deadline passed with no developments, police said.

"We have patrols along the coastal boulevard where the kidnappers said they will throw the body. But we haven't received any report about any corpse," said the police spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The caller did not elaborate and it was not possible to authenticate the call.

Earlier Tuesday, a pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem cleric, Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, said the 18 foreign hostages in Lebanon should not pay the price for the U.S. Navy's action in the gulf.

"I find no justification for making the hostages account for a matter with which they have no link," said Fadlallah, spiritual guide of Hezbollah, or Party of God, which is believed to be an umbrella for the underground factions holding 18 foreign hostages.

The United States said the USS Vincennes shot down the Iran Air jetliner on Sunday after mistaking it for a jet fighter.

Estonians want prisoners released

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — About a dozen protesters demanding freedom for three Estonian political prisoners gathered more than 6,000 signatures by Tuesday during a five-day demonstration in Tallinn.

"We will continue the demonstration until they are freed or until the authorities give us an exact date for their release," Eve Parnaste said as she carried a poster at the protest outside the Estonian Supreme Court building.

She said this three political prisoners, all arrested in the past several months, had been defending publication of a secret pact between Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union that placed Estonia and the other Baltic republics, Lithuania and Latvia, under Moscow's control.

In contrast to Moscow, where uniformed and plainclothes police sometimes outnumber the demonstrators they are policing, no security forces were visible around the Tallinn demonstration. The demonstration attracted about a dozens pedestrians, some of whom signed the petition demanding the release of the prisoners and repeal of the two sections of the Estonian criminal code most frequently used to punish political activists.

Earlier Tuesday, Estonia's Communist Party chief, Vaino Vyalys, said he was unaware of the demonstrations, which began Friday, but he expressed tolerance.

"How should we treat such demonstrations?" he asked. "Absolutely calmly."

TWA hijacking trial recesses

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A court on Tuesday recessed the trial of a Lebanese Shiite Moslem accused in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA airliner, after he refused to take part in the first day of proceedings.

Mohammed Ali Hamadi, who is charged with murder and air piracy, cited disputes over his interpreter and his legal representation for his refusal to participate.

"I don't say anything important until we have an interpreter," he said in broken German. The trial is scheduled to resume Thursday.

West German attorney Rainer Hanau said the parents of U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem of Waldorf, Md., who was killed in the 17-day hijacking, were in the courtroom for the first day of the session.

Contras ambush jeep, truck

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Defense Ministry said Tuesday the U.S.-supported Contra rebels mounted their biggest attack since signing a cease-fire with the government three months ago. Five soldiers and seven civilians died in the ambush, the ministry said.

But Contra spokesman Jorge Rosales said he could not confirm or deny report.

Newspapers quoted the Defense Ministry as saying the Contras on Monday ambushed a Soviet-made jeep and a military truck full of government troops and civilians.

Piecemeal wilderness bills not popular option

By MARK PRATTER

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Richard Stallings dismissed as "futile" the idea of area-by-area wilderness bills instead of a statewide wilderness bill.

State-environmental groups have expressed some interest in the idea if a statewide bill currently before Congress fails.

Sen. James McClure would never support piecemeal wilderness legislation, and without his support, it wouldn't pass, Stallings, D-Idaho, said Tuesday.

"We have looked very seriously at a wilderness plan for the Second District," he said. "The idea of area-by-area wilderness bills is not a realistic option. The Second District includes the Boulder-White Clouds areas that have strong constituencies for the wilderness designation."

McClure's office in Boise confirmed McClure would not consider other wilderness legislation.

Republican McClure and Democrat Gov. Cecil Andrus have proposed an additional 1.4 million acres of new wilderness in addition to the nearly 4 million acres of wilderness in

Doubts passage of bill

Idaho. Wilderness areas generally allow access only by foot and back logging.

The McClure bill is in trouble in Congress particularly on the House side where a key committee chairman's staff says there are serious concerns about the water rights language in the bill.

While Stallings praised McClure and Andrus for being "statesman-like" in trying to craft a compromise on the wilderness issue, he said the bill is in trouble because "there was no constituency for it."

Stallings said no side in the conflict environmental groups or the timber industry — agrees with it.

"During a stab at a statewide wilderness bill two years ago, McClure got beat up by the interest groups before the hearings."

"Why not send it around and take your abuse just once?" Stallings asked. "They felt they had heard the arguments," he said.

Stallings said McClure and Andrus didn't do the spadework to convince people. He called it "wishful thinking" on McClure's and Andrus' part to think that the issue could be resolved without talking to people.

Stallings said he would rather see the wilderness issue resolved in Congress than in the courts.

He said he is more confident of the chances for two other bills — one making the Hagerman fossil bed a national monument and the other making the City of Rocks near Oakley a national reserve.

Although they are also hung up in House — with the sticking point the same controversial water rights language as the wilderness bill — Stallings said there is still "a ray of optimism" that those bills can pass the House. They have already passed the Senate.

"That issue is more easily solved. It is not a national bill. There is a constituency for that legislation and no in-state opposition," said Stallings.

Spokesman for environmental groups agree with Stallings that such an issue could be resolved without passing McClure's blessing no piecemeal wilderness bill can pass Congress.

But Craig Gehrkke of the Wilderness Society and Rick Johnson of the Sierra Club disagree that the courts are a bad place to resolve issues about the remaining roadless lands in Idaho. The courts are taking up issues that are much broader than wilderness, Johnson and Gehrkke said.

The McClure-Andrus wilderness bill directs the U.S. Forest Service how to manage public lands in the 10 national forests in Idaho.

Andrus and McClure have both

Stallings aligns with Symms on remedies for drought

By BART JANSEN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As Idaho dodges the brunt of the nationwide drought, 2nd District Congressman Richard Stallings is waiting to assess the damage before proposing remedies.

"I don't think you're going to see government do much at this point," said the Rexburg Democrat, a majority member of the House Agriculture Committee.

In a rare alignment, his reaction mirrors that of Idaho's GOP Sen. Steve Symms. That's because Idaho's irrigation farmers stand to cash in on higher crop prices accompanying the dry weather.

"They could do very well this year," said Stallings, referring to farmers watering with wells and canals. "We could find a lot of people doing better than they've done for a number of years."

Nevertheless, solutions offered from the drought-stricken Midwest must be watched, Stallings said, because they may not coincide with practices benefiting the arid West.

During an interview Tuesday, Stallings predicted little change in federal-farm policy until at least the fall harvest and predicted no tinkering with the 1985 Farm Bill. "We're not going to open that," Stallings said.

Instead of looking toward short-term drought relief, Stallings said he'll be turning his attention to winter snowfall that could make or break southern Idaho's irrigated agriculture next year.

"We're sitting on the edge of a precipice here," Stallings said of repeated low snowfalls in Idaho. He said

Twin Falls media oppose closure of Jagers hearing

By CRAIG LINCOLN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls news organizations say the public and the press have a right to know what happens at a pretrial hearing on first-degree murder charges against 18-year-old Jesse Ray Jagers.

KMYT-TV and The Times-News filed formal objections Tuesday to a request by Jagers' attorney to close the Friday hearing.

At preliminary hearings, judges decide whether there is enough evidence for cases to proceed to trial. The hearings are also the first time prosecutors must lay out their case in court. If their evidence is not strong enough, charges may be dismissed.

The media argues that a recent U.S. Supreme Court case permits closing preliminary hearings only in rare cases. Attorney Monte Carlson argues that Jagers' case doesn't qualify.

"In the event as seems likely, that some disposition of the Jagers' case is made short of a full-blown trial, the public should be able to have access to the information" bearing on the charges against Jagers, Carlson wrote in his filing.

Greg Fuller, private attorney who represents Jagers, asked 5th District Court last week to close the preliminary hearing.

A hearing is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

today before 5th District Magistrate Judge Melvin C. Edwards to determine if Friday's hearing will be closed to the public.

Jagers is charged with murdering Virginia Westergren, 78, on May 13, in her Twin Falls home. In addition to the murder charges, Jagers faces a second-degree burglary charge and two grand theft charges.

Westergren died of four stab wounds to her abdomen and a cut throat.

Today's hearing will rekindle the debate over the fair trial/free press controversy. Defense attorneys, backed with an Idaho statute, have traditionally closed preliminary hearings to the public and the press.

Defense attorneys say pretrial news coverage jeopardizes their defendants' rights to a fair trial by tainting potential jurors.

But a recent U.S. Supreme Court case potentially jeopardizes that statute. At least two magistrate judges presiding over first-degree murder cases have ruled the Supreme Court case controls Idaho court procedures, and have opened preliminary hearings.

"That case requires 'public' preliminary hearings unless a defendant can prove a probable likelihood he won't get a fair trial. The defendant also must prove alternatives to closing a hearing," said JAGGERS on Page B2

Hospital upgrades emergency care

By ADRIENNE TOOMEY

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When a car accident severely injured a Twin Falls woman two weeks ago, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center paramedics stabilized her into high gear.

Within minutes, paramedics had raced to the scene, started an IV, administered six medications, began a heart monitor and inserted a breathing tube down the woman's trachea.

Three months ago, MVRMC's ambulance crew would have been unable to perform many of these procedures.

Realizing "wasted minutes can spell death," the hospital recently upgraded its ambulance care to a paramedic level and now is the first medical facility in the eight-county area to provide paramedic service.

"The general public has given us a lot of good feedback, but a lot of people aren't aware of the significant difference between the two types of care," Dave Silbernagel, head nurse of MVRMC's critical care departments, said. "The new system increases the chance for survival."

Previously, MVRMC ambulances were staffed with Emergency Medical Technicians, who can perform basic prehospital procedures such as cardiopulmonary resuscitation. They can also hook up patients to intravenous fluids and apply electrical shocks to patients' hearts.

In contrast, paramedics can administer drugs and provide advanced cardiac care. They can also create emergency airways for patients with breathing difficulties.

"They used to scoop the patient up and bring him to the hospital. They didn't have the equipment or skills to stabilize him in the field," paramedic Mike Degerness said. "Now, there is very little we can't do when it comes to a medical emergency. We can do nearly everything in the field."

"With paramedics, we can bring the emergency room to the patient," Silbernagel said.

Paramedics have 1,500 hours of initial training. Every two years, they must be recertified by taking at least 80 hours of additional training. Advanced EMTs are trained 211 hours, according to Dave Hobben, training specialist at MVRMC.

The paramedic service was proposed by hospital personnel almost a year ago. Before upgrading its ambulance care, the MVRMC required approval from the state Physicians Advisory Committee on Advanced Life Support, a process which took nine months.

To gain committee approval, MVRMC hired three paramedics and spent almost $40,000 on new equipment, Silbernagel said.

The majority was spent on new communications equipment which links paramedics to emergency room physicians. Paramedics at a crisis scene can now speak with a physician and can even transmit by radio a patient's heart rhythms to the emergency room. "Whatever we do is under direct physician control," paramedic Stephanie Hillius said.

Currently, four of the hospital's 13 ambulance employees are paramedics. This ensures that one or two ambulances are staffed with a paramedic at all times. Eventually, this number may increase to three ambulances. As EMTs quit or retire, they will be replaced with paramedics. Other EMTs will take leaves of absence to attend paramedic school.

"During their first two months of operation, MVRMC paramedics proved their competence repeatedly. The hospital received almost 30 paramedic calls each month, ranging from drug overdoses to car accidents. This number accounts for approximately 15 percent of all ambulance calls," Silbernagel said.

While many of the emergencies were in Twin Falls, some were in surrounding rural areas. "Geography can present a problem," Silbernagel said. Paramedics "are even more important in rural areas than urban."

The clock ticks loudly when an ambulance responds to an emergency call. A person having a cardiac arrest requires basic treatment in four to six minutes and advanced treatment in six to 10. With out paramedics in the ambulance, the patient must be taken to an emergency room before receiving this advanced treatment. In rural areas, transferring the patient within 10 minutes is virtually impossible. "Some of the patients probably wouldn't have made it without (the paramedic service)," Silbernagel said.

First day of Phillips trial emotional for daughter

By CRAIG LINCOLN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The 16-year-old daughter of Rose Dry Phillips cried on the witness stand when she saw the picture.

"Do you recognize that?" asked Deputy Prosecutor J. Scott James.

"That's Maria," said Tamara L. Daniel. Her face clouded up, her voice cracked, and she cried.

Tuesday was an emotional day in 5th District Court during the trial against Jerome resident Rose Dry Phillips. Phillips is charged with two counts of vehicular manslaughter in connection with an accident the day after Christmas, 1987.

Maria Jvarec Phillips, 17, and her cousin, Jany Jo Johnston, 13, died in that accident. James was showing Daniel pictures of the accident including the bodies of the two teenagers who died.

Daniel was riding in the front passenger seat of the 1982 Ford station wagon that she said Rose Phillips was driving that day.

After Daniel cried, 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt called a recess to allow Daniel a chance to recover. Phillips' attorney used the break to object to James' use of the pictures.

Deputy Public Defender Jonathan Hull said the pictures were inflammatory and that the jury should not be allowed to see them. He also said there was no good reason to put Daniel through the stress.

"It's simply unnecessary to put her through this," Hurlbutt said.

James said he had to show the pictures to Daniel so the jury can weigh coroner testimony better and prove the identity of the two teenagers.

"For the jury to determine the truth of what he (the coroner) is saying, they should see the photos," James said. "Death is always an ugly picture."

Hurlbutt told James to pick two pictures to show Daniel, one of each of the two teenagers who died in the accident.

The trial of 34-year-old Phillips was filled with emotion from its start. During the four hours of jury selection, some jurors said they couldn't be fair to a defendant accused of drinking and driving. During breaks in the trial, Phillips was surrounded by people giving her support.

Hurlbutt also ordered attorneys to give special consideration to her 7-year-old son, who rode to Kimberly with Phillips before the accident but still hasn't been told of the accident and its deaths.

Hurlbutt gave the son's father, also a witness in the trial, permission to sit in the courtroom during his testimony. Court rules normally don't let a witness sit in court through another witness' testimony.

The judge also told attorneys not to mention the deaths of the two teenagers.

Phillips is charged with driving too

Shovel to take the plunge for new pool today

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Work will begin today on Twin Falls' new municipal swimming pool — after city officials turn the first shovel of dirt at a public ceremony.

"It's exciting to see the pool start to become a reality," said Lance Clow, chairman of the Citizens for a Better

Community. "It has taken a long time to get to this point."

City Manager Tom Courtney said the informal ground-breaking ceremony will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the pool site on Locust Street just north of Twin Falls High School. The public is welcome.

The city issued a permit for the project last week, said City Engineer

Gary Young. The plans were submitted by Contractors Northwest Inc. nearly two weeks ago.

The project is expected to be finished in about 120 days — early November.

"That's almost too late to get any use out of the pool this season, but it will be completed this year," said Clow.

The city's cost will likely be $355,140 and be funded with capital improvement money, Clow said.

He said the projected cost of the pool has risen $25,440 above the preliminary estimate of $1 million.

The remainder of the pool's cost, $230,000, is being funded by private donations and fundraising events, Clow said.

Sawtooth reports several small fires

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS — Sawtooth National Forest officials reported no major fires over the July 4 weekend despite a record number of visitors.
"People were extremely cooperative and went on their best behavior," said Ed Waldapfel, information officer with the Sawtooth National Forest. "We really appreciate that."
Six small fires were reported: three in the South Hills, two in the national recreation area and one in the Ketchum district. Waldapfel said all the fires were extinguished before they could build-up or control.
Forest Service fire crews received help from about a dozen campers in fighting one of the blazes.

"That was really kind of neat," Waldapfel said. "I think people are really conscious about the fire danger."
Two fires were caused by lightning, two by abandoned campfires and one by fireworks, Waldapfel said. The remaining fire involved a vehicle that caught ablaze in the Trapper Creek area of the South Hills.
"Four of those were extremely preventable," Waldapfel said. "People just can't walk away from a campfire when we have this kind of fire danger. Of course, they should never do that."
Danger of forest fires is particularly high right now because of this year's low amount of snowfall, the drought conditions and this spring's hot weather, Waldapfel said.

The weekend crush of visitors set new records, officials said. At the visitors center north of Ketchum, the number of visitors exceeded by 23 percent the previous high, set in 1985.
Waldapfel said there were two more fires reported Tuesday, one caused by a discarded cigarette and the other by an abandoned campfire. Those blazes pushed this year's total to 16, considerably higher than the 10 fires which had been reported at this time last year.
Waldapfel said the number of fires reported so far in 1988 is also greater than the average set over the last 10 years. "It's kind of spooky having this many small fires this early in the year," he said.

... preliminary hearing, such as choosing jurors in another county, would be inadequate to protect his right to a fair trial.
"In this case, there has been no indication, through factual data, to indicate the need for the closure, and it is believed that such evidence cannot be produced," Carlson argues.

Carlson agrees the costs of an unfair trial are high, but quotes a Supreme Court case that says the Pres-

"does not simply publish information about trials, but guards against the miscarriage of justice by subjecting the process to extensive public scrutiny and criticism."

Teen released from hospital

OAKLEY — An Oakley teen-ager injured in a weekend accident was discharged from the hospital Monday, Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal said.
Heather Mitchell, 14, was injured around 12:40 p.m. Saturday three miles east of Oakley, Crystal said. She was driving a 1985 Dodge pickup on Basin Road when she lost control of the truck and it rolled onto its top.

Members of the Burley-Rupert Rescue Team took about an hour to free her from the pickup, Crystal said. She was taken by ambulance to Cassia Memorial Hospital.
There were no passengers in the truck, which sustained roughly $3,500 worth of damage. Mitchell told officers that she lost control of the vehicle after a dog in the truck's cab distracted her.

Jagers was living in a Twin Falls motel during the time period — of Westergren's death.
In addition to the murder charges, prosecutors say Jagers entered Westergren's home intending to commit a felony. Jagers also is charged with stealing the Westergrens' 1983 Buick Century and a videocassette recorder.

Police charge man in crash

KETCHUM — A Ketchum man who drove off the Warm Springs Bridge on Sunday has been charged with driving under the influence and reckless driving, Ketchum Police Chief Cal Nevland said.
Mark Middleton, 31, crashed his 1973 Ford Torino into the Big Wood River around 8:55 p.m., Nevland said. He was also charged with driving while suspended and driving without insurance.
He was being held in jail Tuesday on $4,200 bond, Nevland said.

Valley, Police picked Middleton up after he was sighted walking away from the accident, Nevland said.
Middleton was released from the hospital and placed in police custody Monday, Nevland said. There were no passengers in the car, which was totaled.

Intermountain Gas employees repaired damage to the gas line Monday. The severed gas line knocked out service to an estimated 200 to 250 homes, and four or five homes were evacuated because of leaking gas.

Heather Mitchell, 14, was injured around 12:40 p.m. Saturday three miles east of Oakley, Crystal said. She was driving a 1985 Dodge pickup on Basin Road when she lost control of the truck and it rolled onto its top.

There were no passengers in the truck, which sustained roughly $3,500 worth of damage. Mitchell told officers that she lost control of the vehicle after a dog in the truck's cab distracted her.

He was being held in jail Tuesday on $4,200 bond, Nevland said.

Middleton was driving northwest out of Ketchum when he lost control of the car on the new Warm Springs Bridge, Nevland said. The car went over the left railing and then hit an abutment of the old bridge.
It also hit and severed a gas line before landing in the river, about 10 feet below the new bridge.
"I was kind of surprised," Nevland said. "I didn't know anyone was capable of that. I didn't think anyone could go off that bridge even if they tried."
Middleton received minor injuries and was taken by ambulance to the Moritz Community Hospital in Sun

Character, not his politics lead Ali to endorse Utah Hatch

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Three-time world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali says it's not Sen. Orrin Hatch's politics that will bring him to Utah this fall to campaign for the conservative Republican.

Ali said he admires Hatch's character. That's also the reason he supports Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., Hatch's ideological foe in Washington. Both men, Ali says, have worked hard to overcome their backgrounds to take on public service.

"I think (Hatch) is a remarkable man," Ali said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Charlottesville, Va.

"Man, he's one of the most effective leaders in the U.S. Senate. Any time he wants to be there, I'll be there. I think he's the greatest, with greatest with a capital 'G,'" Ali said.

"I don't have enough words in my vocabulary to describe the respect I have for him as a human being."

Ali said he doesn't always agree with Hatch's conservatism, but he admires his "characterism," but he admires him as a man of conviction.

"I respect the fact that he does what he believes in, and fights on for what he believes in," Ali said.

Hatch campaign manager Bud

Scruggs said the chance to have "The Greatest" campaign for his boss was too good to pass up. He plans to bring Ali to Utah sometime this fall.

Scruggs said Ali began to admire Hatch last year when he watched televised congressional hearings on the Iran-Contra scandal, in which the senator repeatedly leaped to the defense of Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, and during the unsuccessful Senate confirmation hearings for proposed Supreme Court Justice Robert Bork.

Hatch later helped push through the appointment of one of Ali's friends, Steven Saltzberg, to a Justice Department post. Ali sent Hatch, himself a fighter with an 11-1 record as a youth, an autographed punching bag.

"I told him when he gets mad, don't go beating up on any liberal Democrats. Hit the punching bag instead. Take your frustrations out on that," Ali said.

Ali said he and Hatch have visited several times since then and become good friends. In fact, Ali said Hatch had invited him to his home for dinner — invite the former champion said he plans to accept "as long as he doesn't serve me any black-eyed peas and watermelon."

It was during one of his visits with Hatch that Ali, out of the blue, made his campaign offer.

"I don't judge people by their political label, just like I don't like people to judge me," Ali said. "I have friends who are Republicans, friends who are Democrats."

"I believe in people, I put my hopes in people ... as long as they're sincere in what they profess," he added.

Ali said Hatch and Kennedy, so often at odds in Senate debate, have something in common — they struggle to overcome their environments.

"Orrin Hatch was very poor. He grew up on the wrong side of the tracks," he explained. "Ted Kennedy was a rich boy, didn't have to do anything ... (but) instead he dedicated himself to public life, even though he knew it could cost him his own life, like it did with his two brothers."

Ali said he also claimed as a friend Sen. Strom Thurmond, South Carolina's veteran conservative.

"People say how can you be friends with Strom Thurmond?" Ali said, noting the senator's past opposition to the civil rights movement.

But Ali said Thurmond has learned through nearly four decades of public service and "exposure to all walks of life not to be prejudiced. There's an example of someone outgrowing his environment, his prejudices."

Finally, Ali said that while he respects Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, the former aide to civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King is not ready for the White House, either as president or vice president.

"As far as I'm concerned, Jesse's done a lot for the dispossessed and downtrodden, and he's done a lot for his race, and I think he's to be highly commended for that," Ali said.

But I also think he needs to prove that he's more than just a motivator."

He added, "He needs to prove to the world that he's capable ... of being the leader of the free world."

Instead, Ali suggested a cabinet post for Jackson, something to give him the chance to "prove he can put his money where his mouth is."

AT&T filing first with PUC

BOISE (AP) — AT&T Communications of the Mountain States has become the first telephone company to notify the Idaho Public Utilities Commission that it will accept the partial deregulation offered under a bill passed by the Idaho Legislature last winter.

The PUC said late Tuesday that AT&T filed its "notice of election" last Friday, the day the new law became effective. Thirty days after the application is submitted, AT&T will be subject to only partial regulation by the commission.

The PUC will retain authority to review the quality and availability of the company's services and the terms and conditions under which they are offered.

The commission will continue to conduct public hearings on complaints against AT&T, and may order changes if problems are identified.

Companies taking advantage of the Idaho Telecommunications Act of 1988 must file price lists with the PUC and give at least 10 days notice of any price changes.

AT&T provides both in-state and interstate long-distance service in Idaho.

Nevada senator files for 2nd term

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Republican Sen. Chic Hecht filed for a second term Tuesday, criticizing Democratic challenger Dick Bryan for a "campaign of deception."

Hecht also termed Iranians "a bunch of religious fanatics" when asked to comment on the shooting down of an Iranian passenger jet carrying 290 people.

The incumbent, an upset winner six years ago, also said he was agreeable to debates or debate-type forums with Gov. Bryan and that while nothing is scheduled before the end of August "I'm ready if something comes up."

In filing for Senate last week, Bryan accused Hecht of stalling a debate, of being ineffective and too far to the political right, and trying to buy re-election with a war chest of up to $5 million.

Hecht said Bryan was wrong on the $5 million in campaign funds and the amount was closer to $2.5 million — or $3 million — about the same amount Bryan figures on spending. He also said Bryan was getting desperate and "swinging wild."

Asked whether the United States should pay damages for the shooting down of an Iranian passenger jet by a Navy warship in the Persian Gulf, Hecht said he wanted to study the issue first. He also said he had no second thoughts about his vote earlier this year against reparations to U.S. Japanese held in camps in this country during World War II.

Referring to the Iranian situation, Hecht said, "We're dealing with a bunch of religious fanatics over there who feel they can kill an American that they're passport to heaven."

Hecht has trailed Bryan in several polls taken earlier this year and last year. But in filing he said a new GOP poll shows him virtually in a "dead heat" with Bryan and with the lion's share of voters over 45 years old.

He also said he and Hatch have visited several times since then and become good friends. In fact, Ali said Hatch had invited him to his home for dinner — invite the former champion said he plans to accept "as long as he doesn't serve me any black-eyed peas and watermelon."

he would be closely watching reservoirs in Island Park, Jackson and the Palisades for water levels for 1989.

And while irrigation farmers may profit from the drought, Stallings observed that two other prongs of agriculture in the 2nd District — livestock and dry land farming — may suffer.

"The livestock people are going to take a beating," said Stallings, counting the higher feed prices coupled with more ranchers selling off their stock and driving prices down.

He said interest in his Emergency Livestock Feed Assistance bill is picking up steam. The bill would consolidate seven existing disaster-relief programs.

Success of area dry-land farmers is still uncertain, as yields will likely be lower, but perhaps not disastrous. Stallings said for this reason, planning must be delayed until harvest, to determine the extent of the drought's damage.

Still, he worries about programs of ferred by lawmakers in drought-stricken areas, such as Iowa's Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin. Stallings said there is increasing movement toward decoupling farm programs from farming, with farmers simply receiving federal money under programs such as O-92.

The O-92 Option program allows a farmer to idle a portion of his acres in government wheat or feed-grain programs and still receive 92 percent of his federal payment for that crop based on previous years. The purpose of the program is to reduce the government-owned surpluses of those crops.

Stallings characterized the philosophy as "just pay them."

"People are talking about these," he added.

In addition, Stallings warned that Midwest programs, focusing on saving the "family farm," often don't coincide with western interests because the size of those operations "couldn't support a family in the West."

Campers run from fire

By The Associated Press

Bridger-Teton National Forest officials on Tuesday evacuated a campground and summer cabins on Fremont Lake as gusty winds blew a 400-acre sagebrush fire to within a half-mile of the homes.

Forest spokesman Fred Kingwill said boats on Fremont Lake were ferrying out campers and residents of the Sylvan Homes group, but he did not know how many people were involved.

"The fire was not in the actual summer home group or in the campground. It still remains a distance away from it," he said. "But obviously we can't take any chances."

Some of the evacuees headed to nearby Lakeside Lodge, while others were going into the town of Pinedale, just three miles from the fire, officials said.

Kingwill said the evacuation was largely precautionary since the fire started to die down somewhat with lower nighttime temperatures, but he said fire engines were moved into the area in case the flames get any closer to the houses.

Work by 140 firefighters to control the blaze on Tuesday was hampered by gusty winds, which also made it difficult for two airplanes to chemically retardant to make accurate drops.

Officials had hoped to have the fire contained at about 100 acres by Tuesday, but the high winds blew it up.

Meanwhile, officials in the Shoshone National Forest said a day of relatively calm weather allowed firefighters to make good progress with a 1,550-acre fire there.

Witnesses at the trial estimated Phillips' speed at between 50 mph and 60 mph on Blue Lakes, south of town near Rock Creek.

The witnesses say the northbound car left the road and hit a telephone pole. The road had ice in the middle and on the sides.

A policeman who investigated the scene said the car left the ground twice during the accident, once immediately after leaving the road and once after hitting the telephone pole.

James called six witnesses Tuesday who started piecing together the story of the day of the accident.

They say Phillips drove from her Jerome home to the Kimberly house where her ex-husband lived. She left her 7-year-old son at the house, after having what some witnesses called an argument and her ex-husband called a discussion.

Then she left for Jerome.

Daniel said she was drinking tequila from a bottle. On the stand Tuesday, eyes downcast and mouth clenched, she said her mother wasn't drunk despite telling police officers otherwise on the day of the accident.

"I said that it was because she was intoxicated, but now I know it was because she was upset," Daniel said.

"She had gotten into an argument with my stepdad."

Twin Falls city police officer Ronald Robertson said the car went into the air after leaving the road, hit a telephone pole and went airborne again before coming to a rest.

The second day of testimony starts at 9 a.m. today.

said it is better to resolve wilderness in Congress than in the courts.

But George said this is a bogus point because no federal judge will designate wilderness in Idaho. Both George and Johnson said even with a wilderness bill, the federal courts will pass on the adequacy of the forest plans in Idaho.

Issues before the courts concern water quality, wildlife, the size and methods of the timber harvest.

Only the Targhee National Forest plan is in effect, the rest have been appealed, Johnson said.

But Johnson said ultimately legislation is the best way to resolve the wilderness question in Idaho. It may take 10 years, he said.

The forest products industry sees two options if the McClure-Andrus bill fails.

The forest products industry can fight in the courts against making certain areas roadless or it can fight for new legislation, said Joe Hinson, spokesman for the Idaho Intermountain Forest Industry Association.

"We can visualize a scenario two years down the road where we look more favorably at a partial solution to wilderness," said Hinson. But first the forest industry would have to be in legal disarray, he said.

And environmentalists need to be concerned about bad public relations from holding up the disposition of roadless lands, Hinson said.

"From here on out we are in unexplored waters," he said.

Zion park fire lines nearly set

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah (AP) — Firefighters, plagued by winds and hot weather, hoped to near containment by nightfall Tuesday of a 750-acre fire in timber-dry Zion National Park.

Chief Ranger Bob Andrew said the blaze, 2 miles southwest of Lava Point near the West Kim Trail, said an army of more than 100 firefighters was struggling Tuesday afternoon to throw a fire line around the blaze.

"We had been told to expect severe winds this afternoon, but so far they haven't materialized," Andrew said late Tuesday. Right now everything's in pretty good shape. They should be able to come up with a containment line sometime tonight."

The fire was sparked June 19 by lightning, and at first the flames were allowed to burn in what was a small area, in accordance with park policy.

However, on Sunday winds ranging from 30 mph to 60 mph fanned the flames out of control, and the fire nearly doubled in size from early Tuesday to mid-day.

No injuries or property damage was reported.

Crews under the direction of the Interagency Fire Center in Salt Lake City, including a firefighting team from the Utah State Prison, left for Cedar City Tuesday morning to help fight the blaze.

Firefighters included the Flame 'N Goes, a 15-member prison unit, said Interagency Fire Center Manager Pete Hansen.

Zion was not the only hot spot Tuesday, Hansen said.

He said two Monday night fires, one in Salt Lake and one near Tooele, kept crews busy until midnight.

Officials blamed fireworks for a grass fire that burned five acres of watershed area near the mouth of City Creek Canyon. Firefighters from Salt Lake City and the U.S. Forest Service responded to the fire at about 9 p.m. and had the burning grass and brush extinguished in about an hour, Hansen said.

The cause of a 20-acre fire near Stillwater Reservoir in Blaine County Monday night had not been determined Tuesday. It started about 10:45 p.m. and was controlled about midnight.

Utah man slain in family fight

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 33-year-old Mount Pleasant man was shot to death early Tuesday in the wake of what police say was a family fight.

Michael Ellison died about 1 a.m. after being shot in the chest with a small-caliber handgun at the Salt Lake City home of his father, Robert Ellison, 58, police said.

Police Lt. Norm Thompson said the shooting is believed to have been accidental.

The case has been referred to the county attorney's office, which will decide whether charges will be filed, Thompson said.

Ellison was pronounced dead at the scene.

Balloon festival labeled success

DRIGGS (AP) — Thunderstorms may have ended the annual Driggs hot-air balloon festival a day earlier, but organizers are still labeling the event a success.

The Driggs races drew 10,000 people on Saturday and 7,500 on Sunday with nearly three dozen hot-air balloons participating. The closing event on Monday morning was canceled by the storm.

"We had some disappointed people this morning, but that's part of racing," promoter Mike Vale said. "Even planes wouldn't fly in this weather."

Vale estimated the abbreviated event still pumped $400,000 into the Teton Valley economy. Thirty-four balloons participated Saturday and 33 on Sunday.

Reds hammer 15 hits, use 7 Malad errors to triumph 33-0

By The Times-News

MALAD — Jim Bos threw a one-hit, 13-strikeout shutout at Malad and gave Jerome a lopsided 33-0 Southern Region "American Legion victory here Tuesday.

Jerome victimized the Malad catching for 14 stolen bases and had 15 hits.

Jerome will entertain Mini-Cassias' "B" team in a doubleheader at 5 p.m. Thursday and travel to Wood River for another twinnish July 9.

four innings of "pitching Tuesday night to help the Mini-Cassias 'A' team sweep a non-conference double header from Mountain Home.

In the opener, Dan Poulton and Mike Price combined for a no-hitter.

Miller crunched a three-run homer to highlight a five-inning performance in the opener as Mini-Cassias cruised to a 14-0 decision. Mountain Home finally broke the shutout string with four runs in the fourth inning of the night cap but Malad already was sailing toward a 21-4 decision by then.

The Sage, 8-17, goes on the road this weekend, making a three-day visit to the Kearns, Utah, tournament. Coach Cory Bridges did the unusual in pulling Poulton when he was throwing a no-hitter through three innings.

"Danny hadn't throw for the last 2 1/2 weeks and we just wanted a good tune-up for him tonight," he explained.

In the nightcap, Mini-Cassias pounded out 14 hits and just about everyone in the lineup had a couple. Eric Miller was 2-for-3 with three RBIs in that one while John Cruchett was 3-for-5 with 3 RBIs and John Zamora and Jason Whitehead had two hits each.

Idahoan

Continued from Page B5 runs in 31 1/3 innings for a 2.27 ERA and has beaten the first-place Dodgers twice and his old team, the Reds, once.

"More than anything else, he has symbolized manager Jack McKeon's bottom-line philosophy: It doesn't matter who you are or where you have been, as long as you win.

And if Rasmussen, a three-year veteran, never wins another big league game, he is a winner."

"Here, I'll show you," he said resignedly, pulling off his left sock and revealing a slightly misshapen ankle on which the only other obvious sign of injury is a skin graft.

"You'd be surprised how many people don't know about it," he said. "I bet hardly anybody in this clubhouse knows about it. That makes me happy."

"It's no big deal anymore. I never even think about it anymore. I've done too much. I've gone too far."

Quiet, careful Dennis Rasmussen. Do you know why the Reds were willing to trade this former 18-game winner — for the New York Yankees in 1986 — who had a record of 45-31 and who just last season was 4-1 with a 3.87 ERA in seven starts?

The Reds considered him timid. Their manager, Pete Rose, didn't think Rasmussen, who stands 6-foot-7 and weighs 225 pounds, threw hard enough or mean enough.

"I've heard that," Rasmussen said recently, shaking his head. "I'm never going to show as much emotion as Rose did. If that's the kind of player he liked, then he probably didn't like me. I can't change the way I am. I'm very intense, but I don't show it, and I know a lot of guys who have made it who don't show it."

"Whatever they think about me, all I know is, I don't keep me from getting to the big leagues."

When asked how he could so quickly turn around his season, he said, "The way I look at it, I was just throwing badly for Cincinnati and was bound to come out of it sooner or later. Who knows, I could have come out of my slump and done these same things with the Reds. It was just a matter of time."

"The matter of time? That's what he was thinking Sept. 3, 1973, as he lay on the pavement, his legs held up by that frightened driver, his father racing to phone for an ambulance.

It was just a simple bike ride, a holiday afternoon, father and son, the boy trying to get in shape for his freshman year at high school, the father trying to keep up.

"Then all of a sudden behind us, over this hill, comes this joy-riding Marine and his girlfriend," Rasmussen recalled. "They were going over a hill, it was in the stomach if you get over it too fast. They went over it too fast. We were on the other side of that hill.

"Their car went flying at us. It was a brand-new Jaguar, I'll never forget that. It came down and hit my right pedal. I went flying."

The next thing Rasmussen remembers is lying there in the gravel and staring down at his foot. Or what was left of it.

"A stump," he said. "That's all I saw, a stump."

Looking back, he says the most amazing thing was not that he lived or kept the foot, but that he didn't feel pain or fright.

"I don't know why. I still don't know why," he said. "I remember just looking down there and feeling nothing. It was like, 'OK, no problem. I know I'm going to be fine.'"

"Which goes a long way toward explaining how, just six months later, he appeared for 45 seconds in each of the last two games of the San Clemente junior varsity basketball team."

The foot was huge. It was so swollen you couldn't believe it," he said. "But I played."

Norman out of British Open

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Australian star Greg Norman reinjured his left wrist during a practice round this week and has decided to pull out of the British Open later this month, The Orlando Sentinel reported Wednesday.

Norman aggravated the wrist sprain Monday at the Big Cypress Resort where he was playing his first full practice round since the injury forced him to withdraw from the U.S. Open June 17, the newspaper reported Wednesday.

On the advice of his orthopedic surgeon, Norton Baker, Norman decided to withdraw from the British Open and stay out of action for at least a month, the newspaper reported.

Minnesota A.D. Giel fired

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Paul Giel, one of the greatest athletes in University of Minnesota history and the men's athletic director at the school since 1971, was fired Tuesday in the wake of a series of problems and allegations about the Gopher athletic program.

Frank B. Wilcoxon Jr., vice president for student development and Giel's immediate supervisor, also was stripped of his role in the university's Athletic Department, interim President Richard Sauer said.

Giel became the first Athletic Department casualty after 2 1/2 years of renewed problems that began when three Minnesota basketball players were charged with sexually assaulting a woman after a game in Madison, Wis. The three were later acquitted.

A short time later, a report listed Minnesota athletes as having the lowest graduation rates in the Big Ten. Earlier this year, the basketball team was put on probation but will be eligible for postseason competition next season.

AL: Twins trim 1 1/2 games off A's West lead

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Gary Gaetti was just trying to hit the baseball up in the air.
He did that and more, smashing Los Smith's 45-thing after 453 feet over the center-field wall for a game-winning three-run homer in the eighth inning Tuesday night, giving the Minnesota Twins a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"I was trying to see the ball, make good contact and hopefully try to get it up in the air," said Gaetti, who said he was thinking about a sacrifice fly as he came up with runners on first and third and one out. "You always dream about doing something like that. I don't care if it goes over the wall by one foot or a half-inch."

Smith, 2-4, who also gave up a game-tying three-run homer to Gaetti in Boston on April 29, blamed himself for making a poor pitch this time.

"I got it down, more over the middle of the plate," he said. "I wanted it away. (Catcher Rich Gedman) told me I didn't do very much."

Until he left Gaetti's bat, that is. "It was a slider and he got it all," Boston's Mike Greenwell said. "He's a great clutch hitter and he came through again."

With one out in the eighth, Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek singled before Gaetti hit Smith's 1-2 pitch for his 18th homer of the season.

Gaetti also singled twice and drove in a fourth-inning run as the Twins won for the 21st time in their last 30 starts and pulled within 4 1/2 games of first-place Oakland in the American League West. The Athletics dropped a double-headed Cleveland.

"We gained a game-and-a-half in one day," Puckett said. "I'll take it."

Cleveland 4 Oakland 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Scott Bailes pitched a three-hitter for his second career shutout and Rick Rodriguez posted his first victory of the season in the nightcap as the Cleveland Indians swept Tuesday's two-night double-header from the Oakland Athletics 3-0 and 4-2.

Cleveland relief ace Doug Jones extended his successful string of saves to 16 in a row by pitching two innings in the second game. He allowed a run in the ninth on Stan Javier's triple and a single by Jose Canseco.

The A's completed their 50th inning in three days, having won 16-inning games in Toronto on Sunday and Cleveland on Monday.

Rodriguez, 1-1, making his fourth appearance since he was called up from the minors on June 18, held the A's to one run and six hits in 8 1/3 innings. Jon Perlman finished the seventh before giving way to Jones.

Oakland's Rich Bardi, 0-1, called up from the minors earlier in the day, held the Indians scores on three hits through five innings of the second game. The A's took a 1-0 lead in the sixth when Javier walked, stole second and scored on Carney Lansford's single.

He also singled in the eighth to score Jay Bell, who went in as a pinch runner following Bob Kittle's double.

Cleveland 3 Oakland 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Scott Bailes pitched a live-hitter for his second career shutout and Gory Snyder hit a two-run homer Tuesday night as the Cleveland Indians ended Oakland's five-game winning streak by beating the Athletics 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Bailes, 7-7, walked one and struck out three in pitching his fifth complete game of the year and his first win in five starts. He retired 16 straight hitters at one stretch.

His last victory was a three-hitter against Toronto on June 7.

Cleveland ended a string of eight straight losses to Oakland, including five in a row this year, while winning for the only second time in its last 10 games.

Dave Stewart, 11-7, took the loss, allowing eight hits and all three runs in eight innings. He walked two and struck out five. The right-hander is 3-7 after going 8-0 to start the season.

Seattle 5 Detroit 4

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Valle's two-run double keyed a three-run fourth inning and the Seattle Mariners beat Detroit 5-4 Tuesday night, handing Val Terrell a rare defeat at Tiger Stadium.

Winning pitcher Steve Trout, 4-4, yielded three runs and seven hits in 5 1/3 innings. Mike Schooner pitched the final 1 1/3 innings for his fourth save.

Terrell, 4-8, pitched a complete game, allowing nine hits, as his home record dropped to 3-9. Two of the Seattle runs were unearned.

Matt Nokes singled to start the Tigers' ninth and one out later Pat Sheridan got an infield hit. Nokes scored on a single by Tom Brookens but Luis Salazar grounded into a game-ending double play.

Salazar gave Detroit a 1-0 lead with his ninth home run in the first. The Mariners tied it in the third. Val singled and was forced by Greg Briley, who advanced on Harold Reynolds' grounder and scored on a single by Rey Kinones.

The Mariners led the bases with one out in the fourth on two walks and an error by Brookens. Detroit's third baseman, Valie doubled two runs home and Briley's sacrifice fly made it 4-1.

Seattle scored what proved to be the decisive run in the sixth. Glenn Wilson singled and went all the way to third when the ball got past center fielder Gary Pettis for an error. Wilson scored on Scott Bradley's sacrifice fly to right for a 5-1 lead.

New York 5 Texas 3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The New York Yankees scored all their runs in the first inning, including two straight walks with the bases loaded, and held on to beat the Texas Rangers 5-3 Tuesday night.

Tommy John, 7-2, the oldest player in the majors, yielded two runs and six hits in six innings but took three relievers to protect the 28th victory of his career as the 45-year-old left-hander tied Ferguson Jenkins for 22nd place on the all-time victory list.

Tim Stoddard retired Scott Fletcher, the only batter he faced, on a fly ball with the bases loaded to end the game after the Rangers scored a ninth-inning run off Dave Righetti. It was Stoddard's second save.

The victory pulled the Yankees within 1 1/2 games of first-place Detroit in the American League East.

Baltimore 5 Chicago 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Jose Bautista pitched a five-hitter for his first complete game in the majors and Cal Ripken drove in three runs with a homer and a bases-loaded walk as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1 Tuesday night.

Bautista, 4-6, making his 11th start, struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

Ripken also had two singles and scored in the first inning, while his brother, Billy, had a pair of singles and drove in a run.

Toronto 4 California 1

TORONTO (AP) — Jimmy Key, making his second start since returning from elbow surgery, scattered six hits in 8 1/3 innings and Rick Leach took advantage of a score start by getting two hits and racing twice as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the California Angels 4-1 Tuesday night.

Key, 4-1, struck out three, didn't issue a walk and retired 13 of 14 batters between Dick Schofield's third-inning triple and a single by Devon White in the seventh. He lost his shutout when Schofield hit his fourth home run with one out in the eighth.

In two appearances — both victories — since he had two home chips removed from his elbow on May 4, Key has allowed two runs and 10 hits in 15 innings.

Milwaukee 3 Kansas City 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mike Birckbeck, just recalled from the minors, blanked Kansas City until the ninth inning and Jeffery Leonard homered as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Kansas City Royals 3-1 Tuesday night.

Birckbeck, who was 2-5 with Milwaukee earlier in the season and 4-1 with Denver of the Class AAA American Association, retired the first 13 batters before Pat Tabler singled with one out in the fifth.

Kansas City scored in the ninth when Kurt Stillwell led off with a double and Kevin Seitzer singled one out later, the fifth hit off Birckbeck. Dan Plesac retired the last two batters for his 18th save.

NL: Browning defeats Mets for 7th straight

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Browning wanted to prove to the New York Mets that he is a pitcher, not someone who goes to the mound with the idea of throwing at batters.

The 6-foot-1, 195-pound left-hander proved his point perfectly Tuesday night as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Mets 3-1 for his seventh straight victory.

Browning held the Mets to three hits and one run for eight innings. John Franco earned the 11th save with one-hit relief in the ninth inning. "I didn't even think about the turmoil of the last time (April 30 in Cincinnati) in a melee that led to Manager Pete Rose's 30-day suspension," Browning said. "Frankly, I was keyed-up for the game. I had something to prove... that I'm a pitcher."

Browning, now 8-3, credits his victory streak to "learning more about myself."

"Now I'm only doing what I'm capable of doing," he said. "I'm in a groove and I hope to stay in it. I'm not a power pitcher, but it took me a while to realize it."

"I'd get stubborn and try to blow the ball past everybody, but it didn't work. Once I learned to stay within myself, things have gone well. Tonight, I had great command and great location."

Pittsburgh 3 San Diego 2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Andy Van Slyke broke a 2-2 tie with a home run in the seventh inning and Tommy Gregg hit his first major-league homer, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates and Bob Walk to a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres Tuesday night.

Van Slyke, who preserved the lead with a throw from center field to home in the ninth inning, homered off Padres starter Jimmy Jones, 6-7, his 13th of the year, giving the Pirates the lead after they had lost five of their previous six games.

Walk, 9-4, who had allowed only one run in 14 innings in his first two starts against San Diego, gave up two runs in the first but then blanked the Padres until he was relieved with one out and two on base in the ninth.

Montreal 4 Houston 3

HOUSTON (AP) — Luis Rivera tripled home the winning run in the 11th inning, giving the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros Tuesday night.

Tom Foley started the 11th with a double off Dave Smith, 3-5. After a sacrifice, Rivera hit a line drive down the right field line, just out of reach of right fielder Kevin Bass.

After Wallace Johnson flied out, left fielder Billy Hatcher threw out Rivera at home, but the one run was enough to make a winner of Jeff Parrett, 8-2, who pitched 1 1/3 innings.

Neal Henton pitched the 11th for his first save, getting the last two outs on a double-play grounder by Smith, who batted because there were no available pinch-hitters.

The Astros' loss was their seventh in eight games and they dropped below .500 for the first time this season, while Montreal won for the fifth time in six games and improved its extraordinary record to 11-4.

Atlanta 10 Philadelphia 5

ATLANTA (AP) — Gerald Perry doubled in the tie-breaking run, starting a five-run sixth inning that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 10-5 victory over Philadelphia despite 17 hits by the Phillies Tuesday night.

With the score 4-4, Ron Gant opened the sixth with a double off reliever Bruce Ruffin, 5-7, and scored when Perry doubled, his third hit in the game.

After Dale Murphy was walked intentionally, Ken Griffey singled to lead the bases. Andres Thomas followed with a run-scoring single and Murphy also scored on the play when center fielder Bob Dernier overran the ball for an error.

The other two runs in the inning crossed on Dion James' infield grounder and a double by Bruce Benedict.

The Phillies tied it 4-4 in the sixth on a two-run single by Steve Jeltz off winning pitcher Jose Alvarez, 3-2.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the second on singles by James and Benedict and an RBI infield grounder by Tom Glavine.

Los Angeles 6 St. Louis 3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orel Hershiser won his sixth consecutive start and John Shelby and Mike Marshall drove in two runs apiece Tuesday night as the streaking Los Angeles Dodgers beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3.

The victory was the 13th in the last 17 games for the Dodgers, while the loss was the eighth in the last 11 games for the Cardinals.

Hershiser, 19-0, allowed seven hits and all three St. Louis runs in seven innings. Tim Lincecum blanked the Cardinals for the final two innings for his fourth save.

The Dodgers took the lead for good by scoring three runs in the first inning after St. Louis starter Danny Cox, 2-4, retired the first two batters.

Kirk Gibson started the rally by drawing a walk before Marshall was hit by a pitch; Shelby then doubled to right field for a 2-0 lead, and Mike Scioscia followed with a double to right-center, scoring Shelby.

Tom Brunansky and Terry Pendleton hit consecutive homers with two outs in the fourth to make it 3-2.

San Francisco 9 Chicago 0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Terry Mulholland pitched a six-hitter in his first major-league start since 1986 as the Giants beat the error-prone Chicago Cubs 9-0 Tuesday night.

Mulholland, 1-0, recalled from the Giants' AAA team in Phoenix when Mike Krukow was placed on the disabled list Sunday, also scored two runs as the Cubs took a 4-0 first-inning lead off Giants starter Calvin Schiraldi, 4-7. Mulholland walked one and struck out two in losing his first career complete game.

Will Clark drove in two runs with a first-inning double as the Giants scored three times before Schiraldi could get an out.

Surprising vanilla

...adds elegance to your cooking

Several years ago Parisian chef Alain Senderens created quite a stir with his recipe for Roast Lobster with Vanilla Butter Sauce. If you've never thought about vanilla—the ice cream and dessert flavoring—in a main dish, you're in for a delightful surprise.

Today, chefs are making news with vanilla in many well-known restaurants. In New York at the three-star restaurant La Reserve, Chef Andre Gaillard celebrates the versatility of vanilla in a warm shrimp salad served with a vanilla vinaigrette dressing, and a main dish using chicken breasts. For dessert he offers a creamy pear and vanilla bavarian.

The shrimp salad can be easily duplicated at home from Chef Andre's recipe. It's made with a vanilla vinegar (see recipe) that can also be used with sautéed fish and chicken. The salad makes a delicate, delicious first course or you can double the recipe for a light luncheon main course.

Chef Andre's Breast of Chicken with Vanilla Carrot Sauce isn't for edote counting, but the flavor is ambrosial and the total dish, with its bouquet of vanilla, is well worth a little splurging. Bone-in chicken breasts are sautéed first, then kirsch is added to the skillet followed by cream and carrot juice accented with vanilla. The sauce is cooked until reduced and thickened. Potatoes or rice may be served with it, and peas or young squash.

For dessert, drained canned pears are pureed in a blender as a first step in preparing a pear bavarian. The puree is stirred into a cooked gelatin mixture and flavored with vanilla. Then the mixture is folded into whipped cream and chilled until firm in individual molds. This can be done the day before. Vanilla-Custard Sauce may also be prepared and refrigerated, then spooned over each bavarian just before serving.

WARM SALAD OF SHRIMP WITH VANILLA VINAIGRETTE

6 tablespoons hazelnut or vegetable oil, di-

1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract*
1 1/2 teaspoons chopped fresh tarragon leaves or 1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 pound fresh or frozen jumbo shrimp, shelled, deveined and cut in half lengthwise
6-ounces Boston or other mild lettuce, torn in bite-sized pieces (about 4 cups)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons Vanilla-Vinegar (recipe follows)

In a medium bowl combine 2 tablespoons oil, pure vanilla extract, tarragon, salt and black pepper; mix well. Add shrimp; toss to coat completely. Cover and refrigerate 6 hours or overnight. Just before serving, arrange lettuce on 4 salad plates; set aside. Using a slotted spoon remove shrimp from marinade to a plate; reserve marinade. In a medium skillet melt butter. Add shrimp;

Spud cuisine: There may be more variety than you think

I've learned not to ask Friend-Husband when I get stuck for an idea for a column because his answer (to everything) is always the same — "write about potatoes!"

Actually, he does have some good ideas about potatoes and here's one or two. I'll let you decide which are directly his and which are ones he lets me think are mine!

This first recipe calls for frozen hash browns. Use the IQF (Individually Quick Frozen) kind. They are the ones that are loose in a bag, not shaped into patties or otherwise stuck together.

CRISPY POTATO CRUST

Preheat oven to 425 degrees and grease a 10-inch pie pan.

Ingredients:
24-ounces or a bag that size of frozen-shredded hash browns; thawed
1/2 cup melted butter

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

Press the thawed hashbrowns between paper or a clean dishcloth to remove excess moisture.

Now press the hashbrowns firmly in the pie pan forming a solid crust.

Brush the entire crust with melted butter and then bake in the preheated oven for 25 minutes.

You can remove this from oven and fill with veggies and cheeses (use your favorite quick recipe) and bake some more.

I also like to let these crusts cool and then wrap them tightly and freeze for later use.

Now, if your lucky and your favorite farmer has just presented you with some new potatoes, try this salad.

NEW POTATO GARDEN SALAD

1/2 pound sliced bacon, cut into 1-inch pieces and cooked nearly crisp

3 pounds small new red potatoes, washed but not peeled, and cut into 1/4-inch pieces

1 pound fresh green beans, washed, trimmed and cut into 2-inch pieces

1/2 cup salad oil

1/4 cup tarragon vinegar

1/2 cup beef consomme

1/2 cup chopped green onions (use both white and green parts)

1/4 cup finely chopped fresh parsley

1 clove garlic, crushed

salt and fresh ground pepper to taste

1-teaspoon dry mustard

1-teaspoon minced fresh basil

Put the pieces of potato into a pot, add enough salted cold water to cover and bring to a boil. Cook until tender, about 10 minutes, then drain.

Steam the beans until crisp tender and drain. Combine the rest of the ingredients and mix well. Set aside.

Put the warm potatoes and beans in a bowl and pour dressing over. Toss gently and then add the cooked bacon pieces and toss again (gently please).

You can serve this warm immediately or cover and keep at room temperature for a few hours.

Now for a whole basket of good news about potatoes. The Idaho Potato Commission has sponsored this timely and tasty special publication—it's named the "Idaho Potato Microwave Cookbook" and deals with hot meals and cool kitchens. A real winning combination right now, right?

I made this tasty side dish and it was super easy and turned out tasty.

POTATOES LYONNAISE

3 fresh Idaho potatoes, cut into 1-inch pieces

2 medium onions, sliced

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 garlic cloves, minced

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon pepper

1/4 teaspoon paprika

In a 3-quart microwave-safe casserole combine all ingredients. Cover loosely with plastic wrap, then cook on High 15 to 20 minutes or until potatoes and onions are tender.

Flavors of France never far for cook

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — On July 14 the French celebrate Bastille Day commemorating the start of the French revolution. Even in the French colony in San Francisco, where Francois Casabonne grew up, the holiday was cause for much celebration.

The festivities, held on the weekend nearest the date, began with the choosing of a queen and two princesses. On Saturday there was a coronation, for which Casabonne says he remembers having the privilege of acting as crownbearer at the age of 5. After a short program, there was a big dance. On Sunday a special Mass was celebrated at the Notre Dame des Victoires Church, and in the afternoon, a band concert filled Golden Gate Park with French music.

All of Casabonne's grandparents came from Southern France, and his paternal grandfather brought with him a love of cooking. Both of Casabonne's parents are also good cooks. They even worked with a caterer in their spare time. While he was growing up, his dad cooked a lot of the parish dinners, and he and his three brothers helped out.

"When my folks used to go to their different lodge meetings and things at first they would feed us before they left. And then once we got old enough, they would say, 'Well, the potatoes are there, the chops are there — go ahead and cook it, and take care of yourself.'"

Casabonne says he loves to cook; he and his brother's started when they were old enough not to burn the house down while doing it. "When my folks used to go to their different lodge meetings and things — at first they would feed us before they left. And then once we got old enough, they would say, 'Well, the potatoes are there, the chops are there — go ahead and cook it, and take care of yourself.'"

He says most of what his parents fixed at home was basic everyday French cooking, using a lot of parsley, garlic and wine. But, he remembers when they were doing dinner parties for friends, his dad delved into his French cookbooks, and tried out new and different things.

Casabonne has continued to cook, and does about 50 percent of the food preparation at home on his days off — basic everyday type meals. But, he says sometimes he'll get an urge to have people over for dinner, and then he pulls out his cookbooks and Bon Appetit magazines.

"Usually though," he says, "Janet (his wife) will decide we are going to have a dinner, and then she will pick out the menu, and give it to me, and have me cook it. It's usually stuff I've made before, and she'll say, 'I'd like you to make this, this and this. She helps with decorating and setting the table.'"

It is too soon to tell if 4-year-old, Nicole and 1-year-old, Patrick, will follow in their dad's footsteps in the kitchen. But perhaps dinners such as the following,

COQUILLES SAINT-JACQUES AU GRATIN

Serves about six

- 1 1/2 pounds scallops
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup cream
- 1/4 pound butter
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- a dash of nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- dash of white pepper
- 2 tablespoons cognac (brandy may be substituted)
- Dry bread crumbs or grated Parmesan cheese

Wash and drain the scallops, and blot them dry with a paper towel. Make sure the scallops are cut into bite size pieces. (You don't need to worry about this if scallops are quite small, but sea scallops are big, and these should be cut in quarters.)

Melt butter in a skillet. Add the scallops, garlic and the wine. Bring to a boil, and lift the scallops from the liquid and divide the scallops among six scallop shells. Or, they can be put in a shallow baking dish. Boil the pan liquids and reduce them to just the butter. That takes about 15 minutes. Add the flour, and stir-cook for a couple of minutes. Then stir in the cream, the milk, the mushrooms, the nutmeg, the salt and pepper. Stir-cook that until it's thickened (about 10 minutes).

Add the cognac or brandy. Taste it, and adjust the seasonings accordingly. Then spoon the sauce into the shells, covering the scallops. Or, if you put it in the baking dish, spoon the sauce over the scallops. Sprinkle over the top of that the bread crumbs or Parmesan cheese. They may be made in advance to this point, which is what Casabonne usually does, covering it with a clear plastic wrap and refrigerating.

When ready to serve, place on top shelf of a preheated 425 degree oven, and heat for about 10 minutes, or until they're lightly browned and hot.

"It has a creamy texture," he says. "And the scallops are very tender. I've had a lot of comments about it and it's really not that difficult."

The next recipe derives its name from a French king who came from the region of France where Casabonne's family originated — the Bearn region.

TOURNEDOES HENRI IV

Serves six

- Bearnaise sauce (recipe follows)
- six 1-inch tournedos (two-ounce steaks)

toast rounds made by toasting bread and cutting round to fit the steak

Prepare the Bearnaise sauce. See below. Pour it into a small serving dish and set it in warm water, no hotter than the sauce. Then cover with a transparent wrap, to prevent a crust from forming on top. Then preheat broiler.

Oil the steaks. He says he uses a little olive oil on the top and bottom of the steaks. Broil the steaks to your guest's specifications.

When they are done, set the steaks on the toast rounds. Garnish the platter with parsley or whatever, and serve steaks with a spoonful of sauce atop each.

Note: The toast will absorb the red juices as the steaks are cut, and keeps the juice from running over the plate and onto the other food.

The Bearnaise sauce:

Bearnaise sauce is a member of the hollandaise family of sauces, and in France one would use a heavy tin lined copper pan to make it, and the sauce is cooked over low heat. In absence of a heavy pan, a double-boiler may be used. The hollandaise sauce can never be served more than lukewarm, because to reheat may cause it to curdle.

First, the basic hollandaise sauce:

- 1/2 sticks unsalted butter
  - 4 egg yolks
  - 1 tablespoon cold water
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - dash of white pepper
  - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- For the Bearnaise part of the recipe:
- 2 shallots, minced
  - 3 crushed peppercorns
  - 1 teaspoon dried tarragon
  - 4 tablespoons vine vinegar

Step #1: Simmer the shallots, peppercorns and tarragon with the vinegar, and reduce liquid to 1 tablespoon. Strain the liquid into a heavy pan or the top of a double-boiler. Proceed with the hollandaise recipe, omitting the tablespoon of water and using instead the tablespoon of liquid with the spices in it.

Melt the butter in a small saucepan. Remove it from the heat, and skim off the foam. Then tilt the pan to make a well of butter, and the impurities will settle to the bottom. Try to skim the milky liquid on top from the butter. — should be about 2 tablespoons full.

Remove from the yolks the thick white piece that usually adheres to them. Put the yolks and liquid from step #1 in a heavy pan or top part of the double boiler. If using double boiler heat 1/2-inch of water to boiling and then reduce it to a simmer. Place the top part of the double-boiler over the water and the pan should not touch the water. Using a wire whisk, beat the yolks and water continuously, until they have formed a thick custard.

When mixture is thick, gradually add the butter. Spoon into the custard drop by drop, and then in a fine stream, beating all the while. Leave white residue in the bottom of the butter pan, which has already been done, and once butter is added, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Pour into a serving dish, and keep it warm in water at the same temperature as the sauce.

NOTE: To cure a curdled hollandaise sauce, beat an egg yolk with 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, and gradually add the curdled mixture to the fresh yolk.

This was made by a richer snicker, the next recipe is one Casabonne, for the most part, made up himself after looking over some recipes.

TOMATES PROVENCEALE

Serves six

- 3 large tomatoes
- 3 cloves of garlic, minced
- Salt, pepper and sugar, to taste
- Minced parsley
- 3 shallots, minced
- Dried bread crumbs
- Butter

Remove stems, if they are still attached, from tomatoes. Cut tomatoes in half horizontally. Shake out the liquid and the seeds. Then put the cut side down onto paper towels to drain.

Mix the shallots, the garlic, the parsley and the bread crumbs together. Place the tomatoes, cut side up in a lightly greased baking dish. Sprinkle the spice mixture on the top of each tomato half. Put each one with a pat of butter. Brown under a broiler about 3 minutes. Watch them closely. — tastes wonderful," he says.

"Baked like this, the butter with the garlic and other spices really give it a good rich flavor, and they also look quite pretty on the plate."

And next, the potato dish...

POMMES DE TERRE DUCHESSE

Serves six

- 6 large potatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- butter
- 1 whole egg
- 2 egg yolks
- Salt and white pepper, to taste
- dash of nutmeg

Peel potatoes. Cut them into quarters, and put them into water seasoned with salt, sugar and a chunk of butter. Boil the potatoes until done. Drain and dry them. Press the potatoes through a food mill or a potato ricer. The mixture should be soft enough to squeeze through a pastry nozzle, yet firm enough to hold a shape. Add a chunk of butter or margarine and mix well. Mix together the egg and the yolks, and add them to the potatoes. Mix well, and season with salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Then if the mixture seems too dry, you can add an egg white. And if it needs a little more, you can add the yolk.

Put the potato mixture into pastry bag with star nozzle, and then squeeze onto a greased and floured cookie sheet. You can make mounds or designs in the shape of a figure eight, or be creative and do whatever you wish with them. He says he usually starts with a large circle, and then builds it up — like a cone shaped mound of potatoes.

Then brown these potato creations in a 475 degree oven, about 5 minutes. Remove them from cookie sheet with a pancake turner. Place them on a platter as a garnish, or use as a potato dish for a meal.

"I usually make these in the morning," he says. "Once they are squeezed out of the pastry bag, they can be put in the refrigerator. When ready to serve them, I toss them in the oven for about 5-10 minutes."

And now for dessert...

PECHES CARDINALE

Serves six

- One (10-ounce) package thawed raspberries, drained
- 1 tablespoon superfine sugar (He uses granulated sugar)
- 2 tablespoons cherry flavored brandy (Can use 2 tablespoons regular brandy and a dash of cherry flavoring)

One number 2 1/2 can of peach halves (preferably Melba peaches)

2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Buttermilk powder no mystery to find

By JOAN DRAKE
Los Angeles Times

Q: Can you tell me where to find buttermilk powder?

A: Saco Buttermilk Powder is available at most supermarkets. In some stores it is stocked in the dry milk section, in others it may be found with the baking supplies.

Q: How do you prepare a fruit pie for freezing?

A: In "Canning, Freezing & Drying" (Lane Publishing; 1981) the editors of Sunset magazine and books give the following recommendations:
"Prepare as usual, adding one tablespoon flour or tapioca or 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch to very juicy fillings. This will help prevent fillings from boiling over when pies are baked. Do not cut vents in top crust. Do not bake."

"Steam and let light-colored fruits cool before making pie. For apple pie, dip raw apple slices in mixture of 1/4 teaspoon ascorbic acid to 1 cup water. For peach pie, peel peaches without scalding. Dip raw peach slices in mixture of one tablespoon lemon juice or 1/4 teaspoon ascorbic acid to 1 cup water for each pie.

"Freeze fruit pies in their own pans. Wrap in freezer paper or put in plastic bags. Store in carton, or cover with empty pan turned upside down and tape edges together."

Recommended freezer storage time is three to four months. To serve, without thawing, cut vent holes in top crust. Place on baking sheet and bake at 450 degrees 15 to 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake 20 to 30 more minutes or until top crust is browned.

Food poisoning common, but usually preventable

By Novaday

Illness caused by food poisoning can ruin a summer outing—and, in some rare cases, lead to death, according to several food experts.

Bacteria thrive in food at temperatures between 60 and 90 degrees, especially in foods that aren't properly sealed or prepared. This could lead to salmonella poisoning or other related food illnesses.

"A lot of people seriously underestimate the dangers of food poisoning, and they don't follow the necessary hygienic procedures, such as washing their food as well as their hands and cooking the food thoroughly," said Chris Lecos, a public affairs specialist with the Food and Drug Administration.

There are several types of food poisoning, with different effects on people. These include:

- Staphylococcus aureus, or staph, is the most common cause of food poisoning, according to USDA public affairs specialist Karen Stuck. Staph produces a poisonous toxin in food during warm conditions by multiplying rapidly. It usually appears in starchy foods, cooked and cured meats, cheese and meat salads that sit at room temperature for more than two hours.

The illness is not serious in healthy people, said Stuck, the main symptoms are nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, which usually lasts for a couple of days. Children, the elderly and those with otherwise weakened immune systems can contract more serious cases of staph, she said. "In some cases, the symptoms are so slight, the person might not even know that they have it. It all depends on the situation and the immune system of the person," Stuck said.

● Salmonella is the next leading cause of food poisoning, responsible for about 40,000 cases a year, said Stuck.

● Salmonella causes more flu-like symptoms than staph: diarrhea, vomiting and fever. The salmonella bacteria is usually found in raw or undercooked foods such as poultry, meat and eggs. Stuck said cooking foods thoroughly is the best defense.

Julie Parsonnet, a doctor at the Enteric Disease Branch of the Federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, estimated that 2,000 people die every year of salmonella poisoning, but most of the deaths are people who have weak immune systems, such as the elderly and young children.

● Clostridium perfringens, much less common than staph and salmonella, according to a USDA pamphlet, usually strikes when food is served in large quantities and left for long periods on a steam table or at room temperature. It is often found in cooked beef, turkey, gravy, dressing, stew and casseroles.

The main symptoms of perfringens, or the "enteric germ," include diarrhea and gas pains, but they usually go away in a day or two. Ulcer patients, however, can be seriously affected.

● Botulism, although very rare, is deadly. It usually takes place in home-canned goods, especially if safe canning procedures have not been followed precisely.

Parsonnet said that two or three people die every year from botulism. She advised avoiding canned foods that have milky liquids, cracked jars, loose lids and swollen cans or lids.

Botulism causes the nervous system to break down, inhibiting normal breathing patterns and causing suffocation.

The vast majority of food poisoning cases are self-cured—within two days, said Parsonnet, "but that doesn't mean that we should underestimate their threat and severity. There have been four million cases of salmonella alone, and we know that makes up less than half of all the food poisoning cases that are known. It's a very widespread disease, but if people used a little common sense, most of these cases could be prevented."

Cool off on a hot afternoon with a light, healthful drink

Los Angeles Times

Afternoon snackers looking for something rich and satisfying like a milkshake but without all the fat and calories might enjoy the following pre-summer cooler. Perfect for sipping or spooning, they are chock full of good-for-you ingredients like carrot juice, which packs a whopping supply of beta carotene; and bananas, which provide a hefty dose of the day's potassium.

These non-alcoholic beverages are perfect for sipping by the pool. They also serve well as a great treat for thirsty kids.

Carrot juice in the can is suggested in the recipes below. But the fresh-squeezed taste is good too, whether you pulverize your own in one of the new juice extractors on the market or purchase fresh-squeezed in the produce section of the supermarket.

In addition to these ideas, especially for those who have not yet acquired the taste for carrot juice, try adding a small amount of celery or apple juice to chilled carrot juice for flavor.

In Early Bird Breakfast Smoothie, one egg white stands in for the traditional whole egg often added to breakfast drinks.

FROZEN CARROT-LEMON COOLER

2 (8-ounce) containers lemon yogurt
1 (12-ounce) can carrot juice, chilled

Place yogurt in medium bowl. Gradually stir in juice, mixing with wire whisk or fork until smooth. Pour into shallow 1-quart baking pan. Freeze until partially frozen. (Or, freeze until firm and let stand at room temperature until partially thawed.)

Just before serving, break mixture in 1½-inch pieces with back of spoon. Place half of mixture into blender container. Blend until smooth, stopping blender and scraping down sides of container as needed. Spoon into serving glasses. Repeat. Serve immediately with straws. Makes 5 servings.

cook and stir over medium heat until shrimp turn pink and opaque, about 2 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, remove shrimp to a plate; cover to keep warm. To skillet add Vanilla Vinegar, scraping up brown bits from pan. Add remaining 4 tablespoons oil and reserved marinade. Cook and stir until foil to keep warm. Add kirsch to skillet; cook until kirsch is almost evaporated, about 1 minute. Add cream, carrot juice and remaining 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract; boil over medium high heat until sauce is reduced to 1 cup, 6 to 8 minutes. Season sauce to taste with salt and black pepper, if needed. To serve: Cut chicken breast into ½-inch thick slices. Place water. Process until carrots are finely chopped. Place in a sieve, pressing carrots to extract all liquid.

YIELD: about 1 cup

FRUITED VANILLA BAVARIAN CREAM

1 can (16-ounce) pearls packed in extra light syrup
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract tin over reserved ½ cup syrup; let stand 5 minutes to soften. Over low heat, cook and stir gelatin mixture until dissolved, 3 to 5 minutes; remove from heat. Stir in pure vanilla extract, lemon juice, salt and reserved pureed pears; set aside. In a large bowl of an electric mixer with cream until soft peaks form. Carefully fold pear mixture into cream, ½ at a time, until combined. Spoon mixture into 4 (6-ounce) individual molds with flat bottoms (such as custard cups or soufflé dishes); chill until firm, 2 to 4 hours. To serve: Quickly dip each mold into hot water then loosen with a thin knife or a narrow metal spatula; unload onto center of a dessert plate. Pour about ¼ cup Bavarian Custard Sauce over each bavarian. Garnish with fruits.

YIELD: 4 portions

• Or substitute seeds from 2 (8-inch) vanilla beans for pure vanilla extract; scrape and add seeds to hot gelatin mixture. If desired, place pods in a small canister of sugar to make vanilla sugar.

VANILLA CUSTARD SAUCE

2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
1 cup milk, scalded
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract

In a medium saucepan heat egg yolks and sugar. Gradually stir in milk. Cook and stir over low heat until mixture thickens; then pour the back of a metal spoon and leaves a clean path when you run your finger across it, about 5 minutes. (Do not boil). Stir in pure vanilla extract. Refrigerate in a covered bowl until cold.

YIELD: About 1 cup

• Or substitute 2 inches of a vanilla bean, split lengthwise, for pure vanilla extract; scrape seeds and add pod to milk/yolk mixture. Remove pod when custard is cold.

Drain pears reserving ½ cup syrup. In a bowl of a food processor fitted with a metal whiping blade or in a container of an electric blender process pears until smooth, about 15 seconds (makes about 1 cup puree). Set aside. In a medium saucepan sprinkle gela-

Getting to know vanilla

Vanilla facts:

- Madagascar, Reunion and The Comores Islands produce approximately 75 percent of the world's supply of vanilla. The product from this area is known as Bourbon vanilla and is recognized as the finest classic vanilla flavor.
- Vanilla comes from a tropical orchid — the only one of some 20,000 varieties of orchid that yields an edible product.
- Each vanilla orchid is pollinated by hand to produce the flavor-bearing fruit we call a vanilla bean.
- Vanilla beans are fully grown two months after fertilization, but require five to seven more months to reach maturity.
- At harvest, the beans have no vanilla flavor or aroma. It takes an additional five to six months of curing to develop our favorite flavor.
- For pure vanilla extract, the beans are chopped finely and alcohol is circulated through them to extract the flavor — a process much like percolating coffee.

the country are using real vanilla in interesting new ways:

- Chef Bernhard Ponczek celebrated the opening of the Fairmont Hotel in San Jose, Calif. by serving a salad of apples and celery marinated in cream cheese-mayonnaise dressing spiked with vanilla extract and fresh ginger.
- Seeds from the vanilla bean added to heavy cream make a sauce for sea scallops, papaya and mangoes served at Chef Charlie Trotter's restaurant in Chicago.
- In New Orleans the Cafe Anglais pairs a shrimp and tomato curry with rice studded with raisins and almonds and sweetened with a spoonful of vanilla extract.
- Chef Claude Guermont at Le Pavillon in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. serves chicken breast in a sauce of chicken stock and creme fraiche mellowed with white wine in which split vanilla beans have been steeped.
- A recipe for Gazpacho scented with vanilla extract is called Cold Vanilla Soup by Executive Chef Buonaventura Fernandez at Windows on the Green, Pier 66 Hotel and Marina, Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

YIELD: 4 portions

- Or substitute 1 (8-inch) vanilla bean, split lengthwise, for pure vanilla extract; scrape and add seeds to oil along with the pod; remove pod when shrimp are cooked.

VANILLA VINEGAR

2 cups champagne vinegar
¼ cup pure vanilla extract

In a covered jar or bottle add vinegar and pure vanilla extract. Shake well. Use in salads or marinades.

YIELD: 2½ cups

- Or substitute 4 (8-inch) vanilla beans, split lengthwise, for pure vanilla extract; let stand at room temperature for at least 4 days; add more vinegar as used.

BREAST OF CHICKEN WITH VANILLA CARROT SAUCE

2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract, divided
1½ pounds boned and skinned chicken breast halves (cutlets), pounded ¼-inch thick
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons peanut or vegetable oil
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup kirsch (cherry flavored brandy)
1 cup heavy (whipping) cream
¾ cup fresh carrot juice (see note) or canned carrot juice or vegetable juice cocktail

Rub 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract into all sides of chicken breast; sprinkle with salt and black pepper. In a large skillet heat oil and butter until hot. Add chicken, cook until golden, 1 to 2 minutes per side. Remove chicken from pan; cover with

Home/Garden

Planning, creativity are the keys

Personalize your summer rental

By The Baltimore Sun

Remember the wacky flip-flop "Summer Rental"? Every scourge and trauma associated with vacationing befall Aunt Cindy and his family.

The mosquitoes bite. Cook-out foods burn. Let them. The best revenge is looking well. With a little planning and a creative hand with fabrics, you can seek refuge each sunny day in a comfortable and personalized apartment, cabin or condo.

A few tasteful, unframed posters and green plants that can be left behind or sold to the next tenant add a homey feeling. But some rentals need a shot of color and style to really feel cozy.

"What you want is a cheap and cheerful—frankly said—Baltimore designer Wilson Gorrell. You want something you can put in a shopping bag and carry. You don't want to rent a truck and move it down there and then in three weeks or five weeks rent a truck and take it back."

Simple fabric designs fit the bill, he said.

Instant pillow covers made from patterned sheets or cotton yard goods can help turn an ordinary cottage into a designer getaway. Canvas frocoatons, especially lightweight duck and denim, can endure the abuses of wet bathing suits, pets, toys, food and sand. And whether the furnishings are castoffs, flea market treasures or brand-new, the fabrics add accents to the decor and wrap up a coordinated look.

Best of all, the makings are portable. If you're not a fan of a few pretty sheets or several yards of fabric, a pair of scissors and a box of safety pins pack up quickly. Once at the beach, their uses are endless. They can provide impromptu replacements for missing or forgotten beach blankets, pillows, tablecloths, picnic spreads or even tote sacks.

"You might get a rental and it's a suite of Hercules furniture and it's just the thing you hate," he said. "You can disguise the flaws or just change ple by cotton duck in an off-white, because it doesn't fade in the sunlight and as a neutral it takes care of decorating problems. I like prints because they don't show dirt as much and during vacations you are prone to more accidents."

Many of the major pattern companies feature pillow and slipcover designs requiring a minimum of sewing,

"You might get a rental and it's a suite of Hercules furniture and it's just the thing you hate. You can disguise the flaws or just change the look to make it as beachy as can be."

— Baltimore designer Wilson Gorrell

Slipcovers are a fast solution. Once thought of as simply cover-ups, slipcovers have come of age in the home fashion world, said design consultant Lisa Geoghegan. They now drape everything from folding metal chairs to decorator sofas. Depending on the fabric, the cover can exhibit tailored formality or rumpled ease. When the vacation is over, wash the fabric and use it again. If it has endured many indignities during the vacation, toss it out.

Easy-care fabrics work best, Geoghegan said.

For summer homes, most people are concerned with having as little work as possible, she said. "Most people just like clothing trends. This year, the look is lighthearted—Romantic florals and cottons with linen-like textures are popular this year. The newest look, however, is the wide stripe, a throwback to the old-fashioned beach umbrellas, awnings and cabanas. In neutral like tan and off-white, or 1988 fashion colors like sea foam green, the stripe can become the decorating theme. As important as the look, however, is the durability. Looking pretty isn't enough. The same items carry over into summer rental furniture and accessories. No comfortable furniture fiber is truly waterproof. But appropriate summer rental furnishings can stand the heat, sunlight, moisture and sand — though they may not withstand John Candy-esque comic plaques and ravages.

For floor coverings, easily cleaned area rugs and sisal are preferred by owners of some of the cottages. Many rentals, however, come with strong wall-to-wall carpeting, which hides some of the sand tracked in from the beach. A rental might bring along a small cotton rug for bedside or for the bathroom if he knows he'll be moving in to a place with wood or tile floors.

Beware of furniture, deck chairs and any accessories that use metal fittings or elements, decorators warned. Reproduction captain's trunks and even modern hampers with brass fittings may have a seafaring look, but the metal will quickly turn greenish in the moist, beach air. Even a commonplace household item like a metal curtain rod will need replacement more often than usual in waterside summer rentals. "Plastic and wooden rods are better for beach houses."

Vinyl and plastic may seem like perfect alternatives for summer rental furniture, but they can be hot, sticky and uncomfortable.

Thanks for another Buhl success

Buhl loves a parade. For those of you who attended or participated in the 23rd Annual Buhl Sagebrush Days 4th of July Parade, Rodeo and Celebration, you saw one of the best. The parade featured floats, antique cars, horse groups, and many Shriners along with lots of patriotic music, all lead by our honorary Grand Marshall, Curtis Prior.

Thanks to all committee chairmen, volunteers, and participants who made our 4th of July celebration a success. It's really great to see the whole community get involved in Sagebrush Days year after year and 1988 was no exception.

The Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, was the beginning of a struggle to form a new government. This day is celebrated to show our loyalty and love of our country and our belief in democratic principles. Buhl can be proud a terrific celebration was held and all our friends and neighbors from other towns and states were invited. Those who attended thoroughly enjoyed themselves. ...

Thanks again, Buhl and Magic Valley for caring and expressing your love of our country during this past Sagebrush Days 4th of July Celebration.

See you next year!

Buzz celebration was wonderful

I would like to personally thank each and every one of you who made our "celebration" such a wonderful evening. I have never seen such support... the businesses who donated their services, the people who donated their time, and most of all the friends who came out to show Buzz how much we love and appreciate all his years of service and dedication to our community, and the pleasure he has given to us over the years.

This Magic Valley is some place to live!

Antique yard sales the way to go

I just want to say thank you, to all the friendly people, at the big yard sale at 627 Main Ave. West. For the last three years I have really enjoyed myself looking and finding things I could never find anywhere else. There are a lot of friendly people selling there, and I sure hope they are out there again next year, so I can find more bargains. Its things like these antique yard sales that bring in the tourists to Twin Falls. When we traveled through California, we found tourists at these yard sales, and I'm glad to see them come to Twin Falls.

Thank you,

Berry best of the blue treats

By Newsway

When Samuel de Champlain discovered Lake Huron in 1616; he found Indians adding blueberries to sautau-thig, a dish he described in his diary as delicious. The Pilgrims were visited by friendly Indians in Plymouth and presented with huge wicker baskets of dried blueberries. And one of the first meals Lewis and Clark ate around the campfire with the Indians of the Northwest Territory was smoke-dried venison with blueberries.

Blueberries are an American as apple pie. Low-bush or "wild" blueberries are raised commercially in Maine, New Hampshire and parts of eastern Canada. High-bush blueberries, usually called cultivated, are grown in New Jersey, North Carolina, Michigan, Oregon, Washington, Arkansas, Georgia and Florida. Last year a total of 320 million pounds of both kinds were harvested in the United States and Canada.

When buying blueberries, choose those that are plump and firm with a light grayish-bloom. They can be refrigerated for up to two weeks, but do not rinse them in water until you are ready to use them. Blueberries usually are sold by the pint, which is approximately 2 cups and weighs about 14 ounces. A half cup of blueberries is 41 calories.

WORLD'S BEST BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- Cup butter, softened
- 1 egg
- 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2-3 cup all-purpose flour
- Cup cold butter

In a mixing bowl, cream sugar and butter until fluffy. Beat in the egg. In a separate bowl, combine flour, baking powder and salt. Add the dry ingredients to the sugar-egg mixture alternately with the milk, beginning and ending with the flour mixture. Add vanilla and beat well. Gently fold in blueberries. Spoon mixture into a 6- or 12-muffin tin.

In a small bowl, mix sugar, cinnamon, flour and butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over muffin batter. Bake in a 375-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm. Makes 6 to 12 muffins.

LAURE'S ORIGINAL OLD-FASHIONED BLUE-BERRY CAKE

- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 2-3 cup water
- 2 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup butter
- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 cup apricot preserves or peach jam
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1/2 cup buttermilk

Confectioners' sugar. Combine 2 tablespoons sugar with water. Pour over blueberries and allow to stand 30 minutes. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, salt, blueberry mixture, flour, raisins and preserves. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer or by hand until well blended. Dissolve baking soda in buttermilk; add to batter and mix well, but do not overbeat.

Four batter into three greased and floured 8-inch round cake pans. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 to 35 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Sprinkle confectioners' sugar between layers and on top of cake.

Note: This cake can also be baked in two 4- by 8-inch loaf pans in a 350-degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes.

Clippings: A choice between health or looks

Which is best for your lawn, to catch the clippings or let them fall onto the ground? There is no simple answer for this question. There are advantages and disadvantages with both choices.

There are two main benefits to letting the clippings fall onto the ground. Lawn clippings are high in nutrients, particularly nitrogen. Research has shown that fertilization needs are reduced by 20 percent or more when lawn clippings are allowed to fall onto the soil and decay naturally so they can be used several months later.

It requires less time to mow your lawn if you do not have to stop perodically to empty the clipping bag. It may also require time and expense to dispose of the clippings, unless you use them as a mulch around other plants. Both of these benefits can save you money, particularly if you have your lawn professionally fertilized or mowed.

There can be several disadvantages to leaving lawn clippings. If not mowed frequently enough, lawn clippings will be long and can collect in bunches on top of the grass. This is particularly a problem if the grass is wet when mowed. Some mowers leave bunches of clippings even when they are short and dry. This disadvantage can be overcome by using a mower with a "mulching" blade, which chops the clippings into little pieces that easily fall between grass blades.

Most mowers will not leave clippings if the mower is pulled backwards. Of course this can be awkward unless the handle can be easily changed so the mower can be pushed backwards. Another method which works on some mowers is to put the blade on upside down.

Clippings are often blamed for the development of a thatch layer of dead material between the soil and green grass. Excessive thatch can cause problems with uniformity of appearance (scalping), reduce water infiltration and make grass more susceptible to disease. However, research has shown that thatch is primarily stems, not leaf blades (clippings). If a lawn is properly irrigated, mowed and fertilized, grass clippings are quickly decayed into humus. A thatch layer of 1/2-inch is desirable, since it cushions the grass against shock and wear, provides some insulation against winter cold and reduces water evaporation from the soil. Of course, excessive thatch can be removed with a power rake. Perhaps the strongest argument for removing clippings is that they can be tracked into the house. At least this is the one which prevails at my house.

From the viewpoint of the grass, leaving clippings is usually more beneficial than removing them. This is certainly true for the climate and grass varieties generally grown in the Intermountain area.

Wedding

Crowley-Van Wagenen

TWIN FALLS — Diana Crowley became the bride of Ronald Clark Van Wagenen May 20, 1988, in the LDS Temple in Salt Lake City.

The bride is the daughter of Bob and Louise Crowley, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Stephen L. Van Wagenen, Sacramento, Calif.

After the ceremony a luncheon was held in Salt Lake City followed by a reception. Special music was provided by the newlyweds and sisters, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

A reception was held May 21 at the home of the bride's parents in Twin Falls. The couple also was honored at a reception the next weekend at the bridegroom's parents' home in Sacramento.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Caryn and Cathy Crowley, Lisa Christley, a cousin, and Lorie Van Wagenen, sister of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom was attended by his brothers, Dave and Brent Van Wagenen, and Greg Holliday, Provo.

Diana, Ronald Van Wagenen

Mrs. S. Leslie Crowley, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Russell Petty, Provo, Utah, grandmothers of the bride, attended the guest book.

The couple resides in Provo where they will attend Brigham Young University this fall.

Can telephone wires kill in a storm?

DEAR ABBY: Having just read your article on lightning, I commend you for your efforts, but I must correct one of your "facts."

You said, "Do not use the phone during lightning storms." Abby, there is no possibility of being killed by telephone-line electrical surges caused by nearby lightning strikes, because the size of the wires in the telephone prohibits transmission of high-voltage. The wires would "blow," much like a light bulb filament when a light bulb burns out.

However, the rest of your information is very good. You are right: Lightning can strike twice in the same place. In fact, lightning must strike the same place at least eight times before it can be seen by the human eye. Electricity is that fast!

— WASHINGTON READER

DEAR READER: Read on, please. DEAR ABBY: Your column on how to avoid the dangers of lightning ran in the Syracuse (N.Y.) Post-Standard on Saturday, May 21.

Thank God, I read it carefully that morning, because Saturday afternoon the storm clouds gathered and I quickly called my three children in doors. We shut all the windows and doors — and stayed away from the windows as you advised. Then the storm broke loose, and it was terrible!

Later we read in the paper that a 22-year-old woman, eight months pregnant, was killed during that storm while talking on the telephone. Lightning had struck the telephone wires and traveled into the receiver, killing her instantly.

In your column you said, "Don't use the telephone unless it's absolutely necessary. Electricity can travel through the telephone wires."

All I could think of was that if she had read Dear Abby in the Syracuse Post-Standard that day, this tragedy could have been avoided.

Abby, we'll never know how many lives you saved that day. Moral: Read Dear Abby every day.

— SADDENED IN SYRACUSE

DEAR SADDENED: I checked with the Syracuse Post-Standard and discovered that the cause of death is still in dispute, with some investigators pointing the finger at a microwave oven the woman was standing next to, and others blaming the phone wires. Stay tuned.

DEAR ABBY: Although I have an extraordinary relationship with my mother, my father has never been able to accept affection, or give it.

When my older brother, "Buddy," died unexpectedly a couple of years ago, Dad brooded silently over his death. He had never really verbalized his love for Buddy.

Last year, on Father's Day, I took your advice and wrote Dad a letter, telling him how much he meant to me. I recalled some memories — some happy, some sad. When he called to thank me for my "wonderful letter," I was thrilled. Then he told me that he had received a similar letter from Buddy shortly before his untimely death.

Six months ago, Dad suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, causing him to lose most of his long-term memory. Had I put off writing that letter, I would have lost the opportunity to share some of my most cherished memories and tell him how much he meant to me.

I can tell you how glad I am that I wrote that letter while Dad was still able to enjoy it. Thank you, Abby, for motivating me.

Engagements

Stover-Nash

HAZELTON — Mr. and Mrs. Mercer Stover, Hazelton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leslie, to Steven Patrick Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Nash, Homedale.

Stover is a 1982 graduate of Valley High School and a 1984 graduate of the College of Southern Idaho. She is employed at the Cleveland Animal Hospital, Caldwell.

Nash, who graduated from Homedale High School in 1982 and from the University of Idaho in 1986, is self-employed as a farmer and works during the income tax season at Parker and Drum Accounting in Homedale.

The wedding is scheduled for Aug. 13 in Boone Memorial-Presbyterian Church, Caldwell.

Steven Nash, Leslie Stover

Ruth Staley and Byron Webb

Staley-Webb

JEROME — John and Valerie Staley, former Jerome residents now of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth-Marie, to Byron S. Webb, son of James E. and Alice Webb, Shoshone.

Staley graduated from Jerome High School and worked at Sprouse Reitz, Jerome, until moving to California recently.

Webb, who graduated in 1982 from Shoshone High School, works for "United Parcel Service" in Twin Falls.

The wedding is planned for Sept. 17 at the LDS Temple in Los Angeles.

Singing trio to perform

TWIN FALLS — "Heaven Bound," a women's trio from Ottawa, Kan., will perform at 7:30 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church, Ninth Avenue and Shoshone Street East. They perform a variety of inspirational songs. The public is invited.

Bank pictorial on display

TWIN FALLS — As part of the Magic Valley celebration of Idaho Statehood Day, Twin Falls Bank & Trust is displaying a collection of historical photographs, bank ledgers and scrapbooks. The display can be viewed through Friday in the lobby of the downtown office.

This collection traces the history of the bank from the first $5,000 ledger entry in 1905 through its many physical changes. The public is invited to view the display from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

City band concerts back

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City band weekly concerts in the City Park will resume at 8:15 p.m. Thursday after a change in schedule for the July 4 weekend when they played at Piler and at CSI. Thursday's concert, directed by Ted Hurdley, will include "Symphonic Variations on Amazing Grace," the "Teddy Bears' Picnic" and an arrangement of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Working mothers to meet

TWIN FALLS — A working mothers support group is being formed. The first meeting will be held at 7 p.m. July 12. Call 733-3121 for the meeting place and more information. There will be no fees or requirements, but informal exchange of problems with focus on pre-school children.

Rush information party set

TWIN FALLS — All college women interested in joining a sorority are invited to a Panhellenic rush party at 7 p.m. July 12 at the home of Lisa Alexander, 624 Mountain View Drive, Twin Falls. Active members are asked to notify prospective rushees. Questions will be answered about sorority life. For more information call Alexander at 733-0359.

LEGAL NOTICE

formed that the address Route 421, Idaho is sometimes associated with said real property. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, encumbrances, or obligations secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust, dated March 11, 1977, by DUANE L. HANKINS and ELOUISE M. HANKINS, husband and wife, Grantor to Lawyers Title Company of Idaho as the present Trustee for the benefit and security of SHERWOOD & ROBERTS INCORPORATION, now known as OLD STONE MORTGAGE CORPORATION. Beneficiary, recorded on March 14, 1977, as Instrument No. 111111 in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Grants named herein are listed to comply with Article 15-1506 (4) (a) of the Idaho Code. No resignation is made whether or not they are currently responsible for the obligation listed herein. Foreclosure is being effected because of default in the payment of the obligation due on or before January 1, 1988, as provided in the Deed of Trust, said obligation is secured by the said Deed of Trust, said default consisting of failure to make the regularly scheduled monthly payments of $338.98 due on February 1, 1988 and failure to make the payment due on the first day of every month from March 1, 1988 and the regularly scheduled payment of $404.98 on the first day of every month thereafter. By reason of said default, the Beneficiary has exercised its option in the Deed of Trust to declare the entire indebtedness and accrued interest, late charges, attorney's fees, trustee's fee and other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure to be due and payable. The principal balance owing as of this date is $31,846.15 plus accrued interest at the rate of 8.00 per cent per annum from January 1, 1988, plus late charges of $7.34 per month, attorney's fees and any other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure as provided by the Deed of Trust; the Promissory Note or other documents dated January 14, 1988. TRUSTEE: TITLE COMPANY OF IDAHO, a partnership by American Land Title Co., Inc., and Eric B. Nelson, Assistant Vice-President of the Corporation. PUBLISH: Wednesday, July 22, 29, July 6 and July 13, 1988.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE On the 9th day of November, 1988, at 10 o'clock A.M., of said day, at the office of TITLEFACT, INC., 163 1/2 Ave. N., Twin Falls, Idaho. LAWYERS TITLE COMPANY OF IDAHO, will sell, to the highest bidder, for cash or cash equivalent, the property of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real estate situated as follows: to wit: Lots 36 and 37 in Block 10 of BLUE LAKES

ADDITION West, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the plat thereof recorded in the Office of the County Clerk, Page 30, records of said county.
