Actions of U.S. flayed

By The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Speakers criticized the United States for shooting down an Iranian airliner, but did not condemn it, and they called in Security Council debate Friday for an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

Britain defended the United States. The Soviet Union and China said the Americans were responsible, and the Soviets said the U.S. Navy must withdraw from the Persian Gulf at once in favor of an international peacekeeping force under U.N. sponsorship.

Friday was the second day of a meeting Iran requested in hopes the 15-nation council would condemn the United States for shooting down the Iran Air Airbus and demand its withdrawal from the gulf.

Asking for the session was a reversal by Iran, which has boycotted council meetings during the 8-year-old war with Iraq, accusing the council of bias in favor of its enemy.

On Thursday, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati of Iran condemned the United States before the council, and Vice President George Bush said the cruiser USS Vincennes acted in self defense when it hit the jet with missiles July 3, killing all 290 people aboard.

Iran has been unable to rally support for condemnation and the council president for July, Ambassador Paulo Nogueira Batista of Brazil, is trying to draft a document that would be acceptable to everyone and save face for Iran.

Diplomatic sources said council members feel Iran must achieve something at the meeting or it will continue boycotting the council and continue rejecting 588, the year-old council resolution that demands an immediate cease-fire.

Thirteen nations spoke Friday — including Britain, China, France, Italy, Japan, West Germany, Yugoslavia, West Germany, Algeria and Argentina — and the council adjourned until 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Valentine V. Lozinskiy, the deputy Soviet representative, said in Friday's meeting: "Destruction of the airliner is a dramatic confirmation of Soviet warnings that the unprecedented buildup of U.S. warships and aircraft has made for an explosive situation which is fraught with the most awful consequences." This "tragedy has demonstrated once again that the U.S. naval fleet must leave the gulf without delay."

Nicaraguan envoy yields, flies home

Carlos Tunnermann waves as he leaves the Nicaraguan embassy in Washington Friday.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Nicaraguan Ambassador Carlos Tunnermann reluctantly yielded Friday to a Reagan administration demand that he leave the country, departing five minutes ahead of the deadline imposed by the State Department.

But he took a parting shot at the administration, insisting that the U.S. action threatened the independence of the Organization of American States and saying his leftist government would seek recourse through OAS legal channels.

Speaking at a crowded embassy news conference shortly before leaving for the airport, Tunnermann said defiance of the expulsion order could give the Reagan administration an excuse "to continue its aggression against our people."

Tunnermann and seven embassy colleagues were notified of the expulsion on Tuesday and were given until 3:30 p.m. MDT Friday to leave the country. They flew to Mexico City via Houston on a 3:25 p.m. MDT flight and planned to go to Managua today.

About a dozen police officers were stationed at the Continental Airlines plane's gate at Washington National Airport. Two police vehicles followed the jet out onto the taxiway, then pulled out to the head of the runway and waited for it to take off.

Tunnermann's wife, Rosa, who accompanied the envoy to news conference, said she and seven of the couple's children plan to remain in the Washington area.

The State Department acted after eight American diplomats, including Ambassador Richard Melton, were ordered home by the Nicaraguan government on Monday for alleged interference in the country's internal affairs.

The administration described the U.S. response as retaliatory and said that in the case of Tunnermann and Nicaragua's military attaché, Major Pedro Sampson, the expulsion was also based on "abuses" of their privilege of residence.

Tunnermann served as both ambassador to the United States and the OAS and maintained throughout that the United States had no right to expel him, citing guarantees contained in the OAS charter.

The charter states that attendance at OAS meetings shall not depend on bilateral relations between any member state and the United States, which is host country for the OAS.

But the administration said a separate agreement between the United States and the OAS authorizes the U.S. government to order any OAS diplomat home.

Tunnermann repeatedly challenged U.S. officials to present evidence of the wrongdoing he and Sampson were alleged to have engaged in. The administration has steadfastly refused, saying it was under no obligation to provide details.

In Managua, Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto issued a statement saying Tunnermann would remain as Nicaragua's ambassador to the OAS "until this controversy can be elucidated."

The statement reiterated the Sandinista government's position that Tunnermann cannot be prevented from being in Washington as the OAS ambassador, despite his expulsion as ambassador to the United States. It called for the Inter-American Legal Committee to resolve the dispute.

Food costs up; analysts edgy

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices rose a moderate 0.4 percent in June, the government said Friday, but analysts saw cause for worry in the steep, drought-induced climb in raw food prices.

The Labor Department said the "hot, dry weather searing much of the nation — sent prices of unprocessed grain and poultry soaring by more than 20 percent last month, pushing raw food prices 4.2 percent higher than in May. It was the biggest jump since October 1985.

Food prices rose a lower, but still substantial, 1.1 percent at the wholesale level, one step before retail stores. Economists said that it was only a matter of time before price bulges earlier production stages show up in supermarket shelves.

"Food price inflation looks like it will be with us for many months to come," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co. "The report suggests to me that we remain in the beginning stages of a potentially spiraling inflationary process with no relief in sight."

Task force says drought, heat are worst on record

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A special task force headed by Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng told President Reagan on Friday the 1988 drought and abnormal heat are the worst on record at this stage of the season, and have bitten deeply into harvests of wheat, soybeans, corn and other livestock feed grains.

While July rains have eased the dry conditions in some parts of the Great Plains and Delta, conditions have worsened in the eastern Corn Belt and Southeast, where crops are

Other analysts, however, were less pessimistic, pointing to a drop in energy prices and generally modest increases in other areas.

Energy prices fell 1.6 percent, with a 7.1 percent decline in fuel oil leading the way. Gasoline and natural gas now in the critical growth stage," the panel said in its second report to the president.

Market prices for a number of commodities "are well above spring levels and are highly volatile," the report said. Some livestock producers, faced with rising feed costs, have been forced to liquidate herds.

The report mostly reviewed what has been said before by the Agriculture Department and other agencies, and during President Reagan's tour this week in drought areas of Illinois and Iowa.

fell 2.4 percent and 1.0 percent respectively.

"That's a real break because the last few times we had droughts, we also had double-digit increases in energy prices," said Michael K. Evans, a private economic consultant in Washington.

"Energy prices are heading down for the rest of the summer," he said, noting a sharp drop between mid-June and mid-July in the price of crude oil, to the lowest level in nearly two years.

Subtracting the effects of volatile food and energy prices, wholesale prices rose 0.3 percent last month, the same as in May. Analysts consider this rate a better indication of underlying inflationary pressures in the economy.

In other economic news: • The Commerce Department said the U.S. trade deficit rose slightly in May to $10.9 billion, up from $10.3 billion in April. But the imbalance was still the second smallest in almost three years. Both exports and imports increased.

• The Federal Reserve Board said production at the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose a moderate 0.4 percent in June, the ninth consecutive month without a decline. Production at utilities surged 2.6 percent, primarily for air conditioning during

Release of papers on hold

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A federal judge temporarily blocked the release of court documents in the massive probe of fraud in the defense industry Friday, saying he will decide in a week whether to overturn a magistrate's ruling that the media and the public have a right to see the documents.

U.S. District Judge David Kennedy ordered attorneys for the "news media," the government and other interested parties to submit papers and be prepared to present arguments July 22 at 1 p.m. MDT.

Federal judges in three other jurisdictions — Minneapolis, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Alexandria, Va. — rejected other efforts Friday to equal affidavits concerning the probe.

The massive investigation, which became public last month, centers on allegations that defense industry consultants bribed Pentagon officials for information that helped contractors win multimillion-dollar contracts.

Kenyon's decision blocked action on a ruling hours before by U.S. Magistrate Joseph Reichmann ordering release of sealed affidavits filed with warrants to search the offices of three Southern California defense contractors and one defense consultant.

Kenyon said his office had been inundated with calls, many of them from people who claimed an interest in keeping the documents secret, and he said he wanted them to give them a chance to be heard.

An attorney for one of those individuals appeared in the courtroom but refused to identify the person he represented.

Counties may examine changes in government

JUDY FELTON
Time to take a look

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners support a plan to examine alternative forms of county government to allow the state's 44 counties to meet their diverse needs.

"I personally think we've reached a point where we need to look at that," said County Commission Chairman Judy Felton. The other commissioners agree, she said.

The Boise Chamber of Commerce's Local Government Committee recently concluded that Idaho's mandated uniform government structure may not suit all counties, which differ widely in size, population and economic makeup.

The Idaho Constitution requires the election of nine county officers, including a sheriff, assessor, corner, treasurer, prosecuting attorney, auditor-recorder-clerk and three county commissioners in all 44 counties.

The committee is seeking support for a statewide coalition for a constitutional amendment that would allow counties to use other forms of government.

It identified three possible forms of government including:

- Commission, now mandated for counties in Idaho, in which the people elect three commissioners to run the county;

- Council-administrator, where an elected council has legislative duties and an administrator oversees staff functions, such as the current system in the city of Twin Falls;

- And council-elected executive, in which the administrator is elected.

such as the current system in the city of Boise.

Buzz Langdon, director of the Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, said it is too much to require a small county to provide the same form of government as a large county.

He said it is also inefficient for counties the size of Clark County, with approximately 700 residents, to field the same type of government as Ada County, with 160,000 residents.

"It (Clark County) certainly wouldn't require the same attention as Ada County," Langdon said.

He said it may make more sense to combine smaller counties into one so that areas in the same geographic location can pool their resources.

The Boise committee found that several areas of local government

Dukakis, Jackson back off from convention confrontation

By The Associated Press

Michael Dukakis said Friday he doesn't need a mediator to settle his pre-convention differences with Jesse Jackson, and his Democratic rival acknowledged, "We can only win with each other."

The two men talked by telephone and agreed to have their top aides meet in Atlanta Saturday night, as they edged away from a confrontation that threatened to disturb the peace at the party's convention. "I want him involved, I want his staff people involved," said Dukakis, whose nomination is assured. At the same time, he curtly rejected his rival's call to have former President Carter mediate their disagreements. "We don't need mediators," he said in an interview in the Massachusetts Statehouse. Carter, in an interview in Atlanta, also said his services as a mediator were unneeded. He called for better communication and suggested relatively minor differences between Dukakis and Jackson could vanish "if the two men understood each other a little bit better."

Dukakis on the one hand and Lloyd Bentsen on the other." In his Statehouse interview, Dukakis insisted that Democrats are unified despite Jackson's prodding on platform issues and Jackson supporters' complaints about the selection of Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as running mate.

Jackson called a news conference in Louisville, Ky., as his bus caravan wound southward toward the convention city. "We simply cannot win without each other. We can only win with each other," he said of himself and Dukakis.

Bonds increased for sect members as probe of slayings moves ahead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Authorities on Friday increased the bonds to $50,000 each for two members of a violent polygamist sect that has been linked to killings in Utah and Texas and a disappearance in California.

They also slapped federal hold tags on the three other cult members now in custody to ensure that they appear before a grand jury investigating the Utah killing.

Phoenix police at a time when police believed they only were dealing with auto thefts. "For a homicide, you look for different things," Wakefield said, adding that he hoped the initial search had not damaged potential murder evidence.

The latest Democratic developments came as Vice President George Bush was ready to leave a "gone fishing" sign on his door in Washington. Aides said he would spend the next several days in Wyoming with Treasury Secretary James Baker, who is expected to resign his Cabinet post shortly to join his old friend's campaign for the White House.

He refused to say whether he would challenge Bentsen's vice-presidential nomination, said Dukakis—didn't know what would happen on that score. For his part, Dukakis refused to disclose the nature of his conversation with Jackson. But he ruled out his rival's idea to have former President Carter play mediator in their pre-convention disagreements.

Carter also said he didn't think his services were needed.

Phoenix police did not initially realize that they were dealing with members of the Church of the Lamb of God because those they interviewed and arrested after spotting the stolen truck July 1 all gave false names. Wakefield said.

At least seven other members of the late Ervil LeBaron's sect are still being sought for questioning, the sources said, speaking on condition of confidentiality because of ongoing disclosure of matters related to grand juries.

One of the vehicles, a pick-up truck stolen from Euleas, Texas, is a dark-brown or black 1987 Chevy Silverado, similar to a truck that Irving police have been searching for since the June 27 slaying, Wakefield said.

Police were further hampered when the FBI failed to match fingerprints of one of those arrested, Heber LeBaron, with prints they already had of him, Wakefield said.

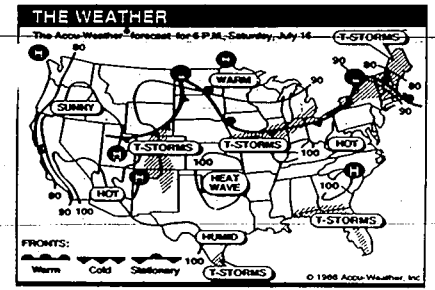

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said that regardless of whom Bush picks as his vice presidential candidate, "you're going to find only shades of difference in our philosophy, not this chasm you find between

"I think that's the reason you just don't have these deep ideological divisions that you often have had in the past."

Asked what the U.S. government would do if Tumernann defied the deadline, Reagan told reporters, "We're expecting him to leave at that hour. Beyond that hour, he is here illegally."

Today's weather It's sunny skies and hot, hot, hot

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Mostly sunny, hot days and fair at night through Sunday. Isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms east and southeast, mainly near the mountains. Lows tonight to the low 70s. Highs today and Sunday 90s to near 105. Nevada — Mostly sunny, warm days through Sunday. Isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms over the northeast and central mountains. Highs mostly 90 to 100. Lows in the low 60s to low 60s.

The National Weather Service says a weak upper air disturbance in central Oregon spread clouds over northern Idaho on Friday. A few clouds from this system also spread over western Idaho. No precipitation has been reported. A flat ridge of high pressure will move over Idaho the next few days to bring sunny and warmer weather.

Skyline across the state Friday afternoon ranged from mostly cloudy in the north to mostly sunny elsewhere. Temperatures were mostly in the 60s except in the north where the cloud cover has kept temperatures in the lower 70s. Temperatures at mid-elevations ranged from 71 at Mallian and Coeur d'Alene to 96 at Milad. The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 97 degrees at Milad. Skelly reported the coldest at 37 degrees. The pollen count in Twin Falls Friday was 417 particles per cubic meter of air.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho shows continued hot and dry conditions through Monday and Tuesday, except for isolated evening thunderstorms, mainly over the mountains. Highs 95 to 105. Lows in the mid 60s to mid 60s. The agricultural outlook for Southern Idaho shows conditions for field work and haying will be good to excellent through Wednesday. Rainfall chances will be above normal today and Sunday then much above normal into Wednesday. Winds for spraying will be mostly westerly at 10 to 15 mph today and Sunday. Temperatures in the shade will be rising to near 105 degrees beginning Monday and continuing into Wednesday. Farmers and ranchers may want to plan their field work accordingly.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 114 degrees at Glendale, Ariz., and Laughlin, Nev. The lowest was 29 degrees at Missoula, Mont., and Truckee, Calif.

Envoy

Continued from Page A1 On Thursday, the U.S. ambassador to the O.A.S., Robert McCormack, said the administration had deferred expelling Tunernann and Sampson earlier in order to avoid giving the Nicaraguan government a pretext for ordering home U.S. diplomats.

Tunernann elected to leave the country. He said, however, that he still considers himself to be Nicaragua's ambassador. Shortly before the news conference, President Reagan said he expected Tunernann to observe comply with the expulsion order by the deadline.

Asked what the U.S. government would do if Tunernann defied the deadline, Reagan told reporters, "We're expecting him to leave at that hour. Beyond that hour, he is here illegally."

He added that the expulsion of the eight Americans this week "removed the basis for such restraint on the part of the United States."

Tunernann took this case to the O.A.S. Security Council on Thursday but received little more than a polite hearing from most of his 31 colleagues there.

"I don't know where he'll hide," the president said, indicating the government would enforce its expulsion order if necessary. "He's illegally here beyond that period of time. We expect him to be going to the airport or to leave."

A statement issued in the name of seven Latin American governments acknowledged that the rights of ambassadors against arbitrary expulsion are not adequately protected and said "it is necessary to fill this legal vacuum."

Asked what the U.S. government would do if Tunernann defied the deadline, Reagan told reporters, "We're expecting him to leave at that hour. Beyond that hour, he is here illegally."

Prices

Continued from Page A1 The heat wave. Business inventories in May rose a moderate 0.6 percent to $28.4 billion, held in check by a 0.3 percent jump in sales, the Commerce Department said. Sales rose to $482.7 billion.

June wholesale prices increased pushed the Labor Department's Producer Price Index on finished goods to 107.9, meaning that selection of goods cost $100 in 1982 cost $107.90 last month, 40 cents more than in May. This calculation is not adjusted for seasonal variations, as are other calculations in the report.

Consumer price figures for June will be released next week. Stacy Kottman, an economist with Georgia State University in Atlanta, said the worst effects of the drought may not be felt by consumers until late this year because meat prices will initially come down as farmers slaughter animals rather than pay expensive feed prices.

If the June price rise held for 12 straight months, the inflation rate would be 4.6 percent annually, more than double the 2.2 percent rise of 1987.

For the first half of 1988, prices one step short of retail rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.6 percent. Excluding food and energy, wholesale costs rose at 4.0 percent rate over that period.

County

Someone would be voted in that is competent. Felton said if voters were not satisfied with an elected official's performance then they could always vote against them in the next election.

Consumer food prices, the task force reported, are expected to rise an additional 1 percent this year because of the drought, and another 2 percent in 1989. That was in line with previous USDA estimates.

John Rosholt, chairman of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce's governing affairs committee, said Magic Valley has seven counties, excluding Blaine County, that share the same goals and possibly could be combined to be more efficient.

The subcommittee said the commission form of government hampers long-range project planning. Felton said the county will need to spend a large amount of money on an alternative waste disposal plan 10 or 15 years from now.

The task force said drought relief legislation has been working its way through Congress and "would provide effective disaster assistance if it advances unencumbered with provisions unrelated to the drought" and meets budgetary and other guidelines.

He said a council-administrator system would be the most efficient. The administrator would be in the trenches more than the commissioner. He said full-time commissioners, such as the county has now, may not be needed in such a plan.

Felton said "Idaho shouldn't have a provision that allows residents to vote for increased taxes to fund the projects that the normal budget does not cover."

Saudi Arabia's large arms stockpile concerns U.S., Israel

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia is using its oil wealth to acquire a multibillion-dollar arsenal of arms that is snarling beyond self-defense needs, worrying Israel and putting Britain in a position to surpass the United States as the principal supplier to the Persian Gulf country.

Even the State Department, usually sympathetic to the Saudis' pursuit of a modern military force, is showing some concern because

Analysis

The new air force Britain is providing and missiles from China are not subject to the kind of constraints Washington would have insisted on.

The main rationale for the purchase of jet fighter planes, helicopters and mine-hunting ships from Britain and intermediate-range missiles from China is to counter Iran, which follows a muscular Moslem course at odds with the zealous but conservative Saudi royal dynasty.

But ironically, Iraq, which is fighting Iran in an eight-year war with financial help from the Saudis, may pose a longer-range threat to the kingdom, in the view of some analysts.

The Reagan administration has worked hard in Congress to clear U.S. weapons for the Saudis. The drive succeeded in 1981 when AWACS radar planes were approved after a bitter fight and failed in 1985 when the purchase of 40 F-15 fighters was shelved under congressional attack as a potential threat to Israel. When the Saudis struck a $17 billion deal with Britain this month for about 50 Tornado jet fighters, up to 60 Hawk jet trainer aircraft, more than 60 Westland Black Hawk helicopters and six minesweeping vessels, the State Department argued that the weapons purchase — one of the largest in history — was not in the interest of the United States.

Israeli officials have denounced the deal as regrettable, cynical and potentially threatening since the Saudis would be under "tremendous pressure" to throw the weapons into the mix in the event of another Middle East war.

Shai Feldman, senior research associate at Israel's Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies, said the Saudis face a potential threat from Iran during the current Persian Gulf war and from Iraq once the war ends.

Adding British Tornados to the air force means the Saudis will have a jet fighter capable of low-level penetration, one that is "more offense-oriented than others," Feldman said. "That's the real reason some Israelis are worried," he said.

Teamsters choose president

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters turned Friday to one of its "old guard" leaders, William J. McCarthy, to head the besieged union, narrowly rejecting the image-conscious heir designate of the late Jackie Presser.

The union's 17-member General Executive Board elected McCarthy, 69, of Boston, by a one-vote margin over Secretary-Treasurer Weldon Mathis to fill out the last three years of Presser's term as the Teamsters' president.

Presser, who died a week ago, had appointed Mathis, 62, of Atlanta, in May as acting president of the 1.6-million-member union. The appointment was to last for 120 days, and was made just before Presser underwent brain surgery for cancer.

Mathis remains the union's secretary-treasurer in the wake of the board's decision Friday.

The turnover in the top post of the nation's largest union — one in every 75 working Americans is a Teamster — occurs just two weeks after the Justice Department filed suit to seize control of its affairs, claiming the union's leadership has been controlled by organized crime for more than 30 years.

William J. McCarthy is the new Teamsters president

McCarthy led a rump movement among Teamster vice presidents against a new nationwide trucking contract, signed in May, covering some 200,000 union members. McCarthy indicated Friday he now will try to reopen the pact.

"I don't know what I can do but I plan to do everything I can to improve on it and get the wishes of our membership," he said at a news conference following his election. The contract was declared ratified, even though 64 percent of the affected members who voted opposed it.

Vietnam, U.S. governments reach emigration agreement

HANOI—Vietnam (AFP) — Vietnam and the United States have reached an agreement in principle for former Vietnamese political prisoners to emigrate, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Robert Funseth said here Friday.

The voluntary emigration program would begin "within the next few months" although "additional exchanges of views will be required," Funseth told reporters after two days of talks with Deputy Foreign Minister

Tran Quang Co. The United States had put forward a list of 11,000 people who collaborated with the former South Vietnamese regime, plus 40,000 family members, who wished to emigrate to the United States, Funseth said.

Vietnam says it arrested 500,000 people, including 100,000 officers of the South Vietnamese army, after the fall of Saigon in 1975. Interior Minister Mai Chi Tho said recently fewer than 200 remained in re-education camps.

"We are interested in all re-education camps detainees and their family members who may wish to resettle in the United States," said Funseth, who is senior deputy assistant secretary of state for refugee programs.

"We presently have at the American Embassy in Bangkok applications from more than 11,000 former detainees plus approximately 40,000 family members.

Discovery shuttle springs gas leak

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery sprang a small gas leak in one of its steering engines Friday, and NASA said there was a possibility of additional delay in the launch of the first post-Challenger shuttle flight.

Technicians detected an odor of nitrogen tetroxide gas while preparing Discovery on Launch Pad 39B, but after several hours of inspection they had not found the source of the leak, said space agency spokeswoman Lisa Malone.

She said it was too early to determine if the planned early-September launch would have to be postponed because of the latest problem.

"It will depend on where the leak is and how severe it is," Malone said.

Officials said they believed the leak was in one of three places, all within the pod that covers the left Orbital Maneuvering System engine, one of two used to steer the shuttle in orbit.

They are a power valve, an oxidizer tank filler or a jet thruster. Malone said that if the leak is in a thruster, the problem could be corrected on the launch pad. If it is one of the other two areas, Discovery might have to be rolled off the pad and back to an assembly building where equipment is available to remove and possibly replace the pod.

Transferring the the shuttle off the pad could mean a delay of several weeks, officials estimated.

Nitrogen tetroxide serves as the oxidizer in the OMS engines.

Baker is selected for board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday named Howard H. Baker Jr., former senator and White House chief of staff, to the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board for a two-year term.

Baker served as both majority leader and minority leader during his Senate career.

Reagan also announced the appointment of Tyrus W. Cobb, a member of the National Security Council staff since 1983, as senior director of international programs and technology affairs for the council.

Hearing of Aloha flight ends without answers

SEATTLE (AP) — A 3½-day hearing into what caused a fuselage section to rip away in flight from an Aloha Airlines jetliner ended Friday with at least some participants saying the cause of the near-disaster may never be known.

The 18-foot section tore away April 28 from a Boeing 737 at 24,000 feet over the Hawaiian Islands. A flight attendant was thrown to her death, and 61 of the 94 people aboard were hurt before the crew managed to land the crippled craft on Maui.

In addition to searching for the accident's cause, an inquiry panel from the National Transportation Safety Board looked into the problems of aging aircraft, airline maintenance, and communications among airlines, plane manufacturers and regulators.

Inquiry chairman John Lauber refused to draw any conclusions from what he had heard from the 19 witnesses, including representatives from Aloha, The Boeing Co. and the Federal Aviation Administration. He said conclusions will be made after the NTSB finishes its investigation, probably not until the end of the year.

Richard Johnson, a chief engineer for structures technology at Boeing, was among the experts saying the accident's cause may never be pinpointed, because evidence is on the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

But Johnson said he believes the NTSB will find the reasons why such an accident could have occurred. He declined to say what he thought those reasons might be.

Watkins, Rickards clash in debate on SIS

DANE WATKINS
"There won't be any permanent storage at INEL - that's going to New Mexico."

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was an argument over whether Idaho has bitten off more than it can chew. Peter Rickards said old contamination at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory should be cleaned up before inviting the Special Isotope Separator, which would refine plutonium for nuclear weapons. "We have to be very careful what we invite into Idaho above the aquifer," said Rickards, who is threatening a recall for Idaho's congressional delegation supporting SIS. But Republican 2nd District congressional candidate Dane Watkins supported SIS, saying it would not mean storing more hazardous waste at INEL. "There won't be any permanent storage at INEL - that's going to New Mexico," Watkins said.

"It sounds good, Dane, but we're tired of lip service," Rickards replied. He said two million cubic feet of toxic waste at the site must be removed before new waste begins to stack up. "You elect me to Congress and I'll do that," Watkins said. Rickards replied, "No sir, that's a promise that's been broken for 17 years." The two clashed over SIS for a "Views" program, hosted by reporter Michael Sommermeier, scheduled to air Saturday at 4 p.m. on KMYT-TV. SIS is a $1 billion federal project for refining plutonium for nuclear weapons. The U.S. Department of Energy prefers to locate SIS at INEL, although construction isn't scheduled to begin until at least next March. Rickards is a Twin Falls podiatrist protesting SIS with the recall threat. "Democrats and Republicans are equally guilty here," Rickards said. In a moment of levity, Watkins said he'd appreciate it if Rickards were successful in unseating one member of the delegation, namely Watkins' opponent, Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings. "I'm trying to concentrate on one office-holder," Watkins said. But from there the two sharply disagreed on whether Idaho should pursue the SIS. Rickards asked Watkins whether he would oppose SIS if the majority of people in the 2nd Congressional District opposed it. Sommermeier had said there was widespread opposition to SIS in Magic Valley during recent hearings. Watkins said he understood there was opposition in Twin Falls, but that he felt he could educate area residents about the safety of SIS. He added that in Idaho Falls, where SIS would be located, people were "very supportive." Watkins endorsed it for three reasons — maintaining a nuclear deterrent, improving technology and for the hundreds of new jobs brought to his native Idaho Falls. He said his family has farmed next to INEL for 40 years without incident, including last week when he redrilled one his 12 wells into the Snake River Plain Aquifer to below 460 feet. Rickards countered that there are already enough nuclear weapons to destroy the planet 10 times. He said making more bombs wasn't worth risking contaminating the aquifer, which supplies fresh water to 200,000 people across southern Idaho. "At a certain point you have to look at how many times do we need to blow up the surface of the earth," Rickards said. "Right now I admit we have enough plutonium," said Watkins. But he added that SIS provides the security of having weapons production for the next five, 10 or 15 years.

Drought may create more area fish kills

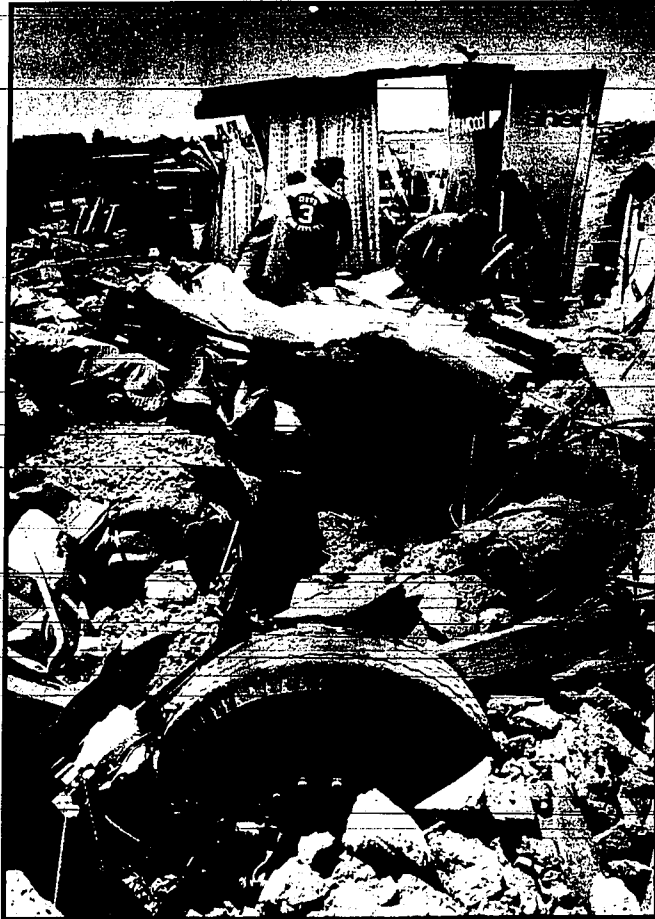

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More fish kills are expected on Magic Valley rivers and streams from the drought, according to the state Division of Environmental Quality. State officials reported fish kills last week below Magic Reservoir in Lincoln County and Billingsley Creek in Hagerman. There also was a fish kill near the boat dock above Twin Falls. The state Department of Fish and Game investigated the kill below Magic and blamed low flows and higher than normal water temperatures for the problem. More than a thousand fish died in the "Big Hole" below the reservoir last week. Officials didn't investigate the kills at Twin Falls and Billingsley but believe the problem is also the flows and water temperatures. "It's a condition of the drought," says Mike McMasters of Environmental Quality. Fish can only stand so much change in temperature and in flows. If there is too much change, it stresses the fish and puts them in jeopardy, says McMasters. While the drought reduced water at Magic Reservoir, about 30 people are fishing daily, says Don Farnes of the West Shore Lodge. The Magic Lake Resort at the reservoir also reports some fishing. Water depth is about 27 feet. Normally it would be 60 to 90 feet. But boats can be launched off Myrtle Point, Farnes says. The Big Wood Canal Co. will be drawing the reservoir down further during the week of July 25 and then will do it again at the end of September, says Jerry Nance, Big Wood board chairman. The reservoir is refilled by the Big Wood River and Camas Creek, but only at the rate of about 200 acre feet per day. The reservoir holds 290,000 acre feet. The reservoir normally provides about 160 days of water a year to farmers in Dietrich, Richfield and the north-Shoshone areas. But this year farmers received only about 65 days of water.

Workers sort through the tangled remains of moving van, cargo and overpass bridge

BURLEY — Preliminary autopsy results support the theory that the Texas trucker who fell an overpass Thursday died before impact, Minidoka County Coroner Todd Goodsell said. "We're still looking toward the possibility of a heart attack," Goodsell said. Indications are that he was dead before he hit the wall. Pathologist Kerry Patterson performed the autopsy Friday morning on Harliiss Coleman, 56, of San Antonio, Texas. Coleman, driving a moving van, crashed into the supporting columns of an Interstate-84 overpass east of Burley around 4 a.m. Thursday. Two of the bridge's spans, weighing 110 tons each, collapsed on top of Coleman's rig. Friday workers with the Idaho Department of Transportation continued their effort to clean up the accident's aftermath. All four lanes of traffic under the overpass were opened shortly after midnight, around 12:36 a.m. Friday, Idaho State Police said. Westbound traffic had to detour through Rupert or Burley for 20 hours. While state workers were breaking the concrete from the overpass into manageable pieces, other officials were trying to piece together how the accident happened. Goodsell said autopsy findings will not be conclusive for another two or three weeks, pending return of laboratory results. Among other things, physicians are examining Coleman's brain to see whether he suffered a stroke. The color of Coleman's lungs indicated that he did not die of suffocation, Goodsell said. "We feel pretty certain that if he was not dead before he hit the wall, then death was immediate." The manner in which Coleman approached the bridge buttresses the possibility that he suffered a heart attack, Goodsell said. State police said Coleman's eastbound rig went into the median roughly 360 feet ahead of the overpass, and there apparently was no effort to right the moving van. Officials and truckers at the scene said that, normally, when a truck driver falls asleep, he awakes when the wheels go off the road. Often, the truck driver will then overcorrect. BID hopes committee can recruit businesses

By ADRIENNE TOOMEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Concerned about the lure of shopping malls, the Downtown Business Improvement District has established a Recruitment Committee to entice businesses to the downtown area. The committee has "all kinds of ideas," said Caroline Baird, committee member and Sports Country owner. "We just need to put them together and go for it." The committee, which met for the first time last week, hopes to present incentives to businesses considering a downtown location. "We can't make the same offers that the malls do," said Melissa Dellamater, BID president and owner of The Leatherman. "They have full-time recruiters. They sometimes offer free rent for a year." Although the BID's resources are more limited than the malls', "there's a lot we can do," said Baird. "We've just been a little slow getting started." The five committee members hope to enlist the help of realtors. Realtors renting the buildings know how much they cost. They know all the details about the buildings," said Pegan Venzon, committee member and owner of Venzon's Jewelry. "They have a vested interest in getting them rented. We can work together to help each other." The committee may negotiate with building owners to arrange incentives. "We could entice businesses by offering to remodel the building or have some period where they get free rent," said Baird. Committee members plan to focus on downtown's large empty stores. "Most of the smaller stores fill up as soon as they vacate," said Dellamater. There is a possibility of converting the empty Idaho Department Store into a mini-mall filled with specialty shops, according to Baird. "People also talk about wanting a place to exercise downtown," she said. That would be a good building for it because it has wooden floors. Luring a department store to a downtown location is another priority. The committee plans to investigate a See BID on Page A6

Blaine County Planning and Zoning

Official urges zoning efficiency upgrade

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Changes in Blaine County planning and zoning are needed to upgrade the effectiveness and professionalism of county planning, a planning board member told the county commissioners this week. Leonard Harlig presented the county commissioners with a list of six items he says are crucial to the operation of the planning board and the planning office. "I don't think we're doing as effective a job as we can do for a variety of reasons," Harlig said of the planning board. The commissioners discussed each item but tabled any decision on the matter until after next year's budget is adopted later this summer. Some of the suggestions would mean initial costs for the county. Specifically, Harlig asked the commissioners to: Update the county's comprehensive plan. Enforce the zoning ordinance and comprehensive plan. Add an employee to the planning and zoning office. Reduce the size of the 12-member planning commission. Address planning issues which he said have been neglected. Achieve a closer coordination between the county commissioners and the planning commissioners. County Commissioner Alan Reynolds agreed with two of Harlig's suggestions. He described as "long over-due" an update of the comprehensive plan and replacing a short summary of the original plan. Also, Reynolds described as "very valid" Harlig's suggestion that the planning board be reduced from its current format of 12 volunteer members to seven. He said the 12 members are supposed to provide the board with a wide representation throughout the county, but he suggested such a large body of volunteers may be too "unwieldy." The board currently has three vacancies and two other members want to leave their positions, Harlig said. The board has failed to obtain a quorum at its bi-monthly meetings twice in less than a year, creating poor service to the county, Harlig said. See BLAINE on Page A6

Fire increase concerns Sawtooth

By ADRIENNE TOOMEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Drought conditions and careless campers have caused a dramatic flare-up of fires in the Sawtooth National Forest. There have been 25 fires in the Sawtooth forest since June 13, and fire officials blame 13 of these on human negligence. Last year at this time, only 10 fires had occurred, two being caused by people. "We're in very extreme conditions," said Lenden Gunter, a Sawtooth National Forest dispatcher. "Everybody should watch out, that's for sure." Currently, timber and other large fuels are drier than the forest's grass and brush. These extreme conditions usually do not occur until later in the summer. "What we are seeing is that right now the conditions we are experiencing are the same as what we had last year during the month of August," said Bob Powers, Sawtooth National Forest dispatcher.

"We have been extremely fortunate that the fires we have had so far were discovered when they were small and our fire crews have been able to put them out before they got very large," he said. "However, conditions in the forest are extremely dry and it will not be very long before these small fires turn into large ones." During the last month, six fires were caused by discarded cigarettes. Fire officials urge people to smoke only in areas which are clear of burnable fuel. Matches and cigarettes should be completely extinguished. "Stomping them into the layer of dead material on the forest floor does not work," Powers said. "They will smolder and burst into flames as the day heats up." Abandoned campfires accounted for three fires. When building a campfire, people should clear the area to bare soil for at least 10 feet. Campers should also double-check that their fire is completely out before leaving. Several fires were caused by fireworks, and one resulted from a vehicle catching fire. Lightning was blamed for 12 fires.

Search for plane from Burley continues

FILLMORE, Utah (AP) — Searchers fanned into extreme Southern Utah and Northern Arizona on Friday in their effort to find a plane missing on a flight from Burley to Arizona.

"We are sending a lot of time in northern Arizona between Page and St. George (Utah) and down to Flagstaff," said Lt. Ron Lillie at the Civil Air Patrol office in Salt Lake City.

Earlier, a crew had thought that debris spotted late Thursday in the remote Utah mountains near Fillmore was the missing plane, but it turned out to be discarded camping equipment.

"We're back to square one," Lillie said. "What we found on the mountain is discarded camping gear. We found absolutely nothing."

Millard County Sheriff Ed Phillips said CAP pilots spotted the debris late Thursday, but nightfall forced searchers to wait until daybreak to travel to the area.

When a helicopter from Dugway reached the site Friday morning, they found camping gear, an orange parachute, several blue tarps and several lawn chairs, Phillips said.

The debris was in rough terrain about the 8,700-foot level and about three or four miles southeast of Fillmore.

Lillie said 15 planes from Utah and about 10 from Arizona searched Friday for the Piper Tri-Pacer flown by Sherman Flake, 52, Chandler, accompanied by his son, Scott, 19, also of Chandler.

"We have covered every inch of the lower part of Utah," Lillie said. "Some parts of Utah, we have covered four or five times."

Basque Picnic activities set

GOODING — The public is invited to a Basque Picnic on Sunday in Gooding West Park.

The event begins with a mass at 11 p.m. At 1 p.m. dinner will be served. An evening of dancing and games will conclude the celebration.

The dinner will include barbecued lamb and steak, salad, beans and rice, beer and wine. Entertainment will be provided by the Arriak Basque Dancers of Elko, Nev., and the Euskadi Dancers of Gooding. There will also be weight carrying, sack races for the kids and other contests.

Organizers of the picnic — the seventh consecutive celebration — expect about 2,000 people to attend. Admission will be $7 for adults and $4 for children.

Young dies in motorcycle accident

STANLEY (AP) — Nolan G. Young, a Republican candidate for state auditor in 1982 and at the center of a major controversy in the last session of the Legislature, died Thursday night in a motorcycle accident near Stanley.

Young, 59, a gifted public accountant and civic leader, died when he lost control and the motorcycle he was riding went off Idaho 21 west of Stanley. It went into a borrow pit and overturned several times. Custer County Sheriff Doug Leaton said Friday.

Leaton said Young was eastbound about 7 p.m. when he left the roadway and was thrown from the motorcycle. He said it didn't appear that Young swerved to miss anything prior to going off the road.

Young, who was pronounced dead at the scene, was wearing a helmet and protective clothing, Leaton said.

He served as president of the Idaho Falls Estate Planning Council and the Idaho Falls Kiwanis Club.

He was named this year by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to the Idaho Personnel Commission, but his appointment was turned down by Senate Republicans for political reasons. Young, who openly supported Andrus in the 1986 race for governor, was one of several Republican appointees rejected by the GOP-dominated Legislature.

He was an Idaho native and grew up and attended school at Ririe. He graduated from Brigham Young University with a degree in accounting and economics in 1953.

He began practicing as a CPA in Idaho Falls in 1954.

He had prepared independent audits of county and municipal financial records and reports for Bonneville County for 14 years.

After living in Boise for a time he returned to Idaho Falls in 1983 where he resumed his CPA practice with Richard K. Hale.

Police arrest Blaine 3rd in burglary

TWIN FALLS — Police have arrested a third person and are looking for a fourth in connection with the July 7 burglary of a downtown pawn shop.

Lauren Abreu, 18, of Twin Falls, was arrested Thursday and charged with first-degree burglary, according to court records. She posted a $3,500 bond Friday and was released from custody.

Police earlier arrested Rose Munigua, 18, of Hollister, and a male juvenile, 16, of Twin Falls. They are accused of stealing roughly $10,000 worth of property from Twin Falls Coin & Lawn.

The business was broken into during the pre-dawn hours of July 7. Police arrested Munigua and the juvenile outside of the Main Avenue East shop.

Police allege in court records that Abreu and a fourth person fled the scene to avoid arrest. A warrant has been issued for the fourth person's arrest.

On other issues, Reynolds took issue with Harlig.

Harlig contends planning for the future — a prime function of the board and planning office — is difficult because of an over-worked planning staff and some planning board members who are not serious about their responsibilities. Some do not prepare for meetings and are absent too often, he said.

"It's not just a question of fewer bodies, it's a matter of new bodies," Harlig said.

Reynolds agreed problems exist but said the planning board could correct some itself such as by structuring the meetings and adhering to time limits for people to speak.

County Commissioner Robert Gardner agreed: "It has a bad reputation right now because the meetings drag out and it's boring," Gardner said, referring to the planning board.

Reynolds said the hiring of Planning Director Ralph Cisco and Building Inspector Bill Howes should eliminate several of these problems, including ordinance enforcement and coordination between the commissions.

Reynolds also said the county does not have the funds for more employees in the planning office, since three other departments have asked for additional staff. He said the county should watch the planning office with its new staff "rather than act on this right now."

At the close of Harlig's presentation, the commissioners said they would discuss the matter after lunch. But the issue will be discussed at a later meeting due to budget hearings that afternoon.

Obituaries

Edward T. Little
 RUPERT — Edward Truman Little, 77, of Mesa, Ariz., and formerly of Rupert, died Monday, July 11, 1988, at his home in Mesa.

Born May 5, 1911, in Salt Lake City, Utah, the son of Charles Ezra and Elizabeth Bullock Little. He was married and moved to Rupert with his family and attended schools there.

He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the U.S. Army as a sergeant. He married Edith Thompson on April 30, 1935, in Boise. Their marriage was later solemnized in the LDS Temple.

He attended Barber College in Boise and was a barber there. He later moved to Sacramento, Calif., and continued barbering until he retired because of ill health. He then moved to Mesa, where he had since resided.

He was a member of the LDS Church, having served in various capacities. At the time of his death he was serving as the high priest historian in his ward.

Surviving are his wife of Mesa; one brother, Willard "Bill" Little of Rupert; three sisters, Genevieve Collins of Boise, Myrtle Stuart of Rupert and Edith Johnson of Boise. He was preceded in death by five brothers and one sister.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Rupert Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Hansen Mortuary in Rupert Tuesday morning until the time of the service.

Funeral arrangements are pending and will be announced by the Payne Mortuary in Burley.

Craig's funds near $140,000

BOISE (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig, a four-term incumbent Republican congressman, is nearing the $140,000 mark in campaign funds in his bid for a fifth term.

Craig, who had no opposition in the May 24 Idaho primary election, faces Democratic challenger state Rep. Jeanne Givens, D-Coeur d'Alene.

Craig had $48,600 at the start of the year and raised $90,604 this year through June 30, according to campaign finance reports received Friday at the secretary of state's office.

He received contributions of $34,476 between May 5 and the end of June, and spent $28,500, with a carry-over balance of $68,139.

About half of Craig's contributions in the latest period, $17,347, came from political action committees, his report said.

The American Medical Political Action Committee contributed $3,947 and a builders' association has contributed $2,600, including $1,500 in the latest reporting period.

Coleman, a driver for Texas-based Sherwood Van Lines Inc., had previously undergone double-bypass surgery. Goodsell said the scar tissue on his heart posed some problems for medical examiners trying to determine whether he had a heart attack before the accident.

Estimates from state officials concerning how long it will take to rebuild the overpass have fallen between three months and three years.

Howard Johnson, Highway District IV engineer, said repair costs will probably be billed to Sherwood Van Lines or the company's insurance.

 BURLEY — Amy Richmond, 33, of Burley, died Thursday, July 14, 1988, at the home of her daughter.

Born Sept. 7, 1894, in Enid, Okla., she married Thomas Richmond on July 8, 1914, in Tulsa, Okla. They moved from Sealing, Okla., to Idaho in 1914, and resided in Filer until 1929.

She moved to the Filer district in Burley, where they farmed until his death in 1956, when she moved into the town of Burley. In 1978 she went to live with her daughter.

Surviving are one daughter, Dixie Hendrix of Burley; one sister, Ruth

Elton E. Fessenden
 TWIN FALLS — Elton Evanson Fessenden, 71, of Twin Falls, died Thursday, July 14, 1988, at his home following a heart attack.

Born Oct. 14, 1916, in Northwood, N.D., the son of Elton M. and Karine Evanson Fessenden, he farmed with his father before going into the Army Air Corps, where he flew missions out of Africa over Italy during World War II. Following his discharge from the service, he spent 26 years in the National Guard.

He married Dorothy Webb on Jan. 23, 1944, in Gooding. He had lived in Twin Falls for the past 15 years. Prior to that time, he had moved to and from Twin Falls on several occasions.

He was a member of the American Legion, the Fraternal Order of the Eagles, Elks Lodge and was a member of the grange.

Surviving are his wife of Twin Falls; one son, Robert Webb Fessenden of Beaverton, Ore.; two daughters, Mrs. Donald (Margaret) Fessenden Warren of Warwick, R.I., and Judith Austy, en route to Korea; one brother, Robert Fessenden of Palooka; one sister, Marguerite Hironaka of King City, Ore.; and nine grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, one brother and one sister.

Cremation took place under the direction of White Crematory in Twin Falls. No service is planned.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Idaho Youth Ranch.

L.M. Boyd What's what

Winner's doubles

Do you know anybody who could double for George Bush or Michael Dukakis? Some may turn up. For whom-ever wins... That's not always so, however. Few men looked enough like Dwight D. Eisenhower to be mistaken for him. Yet thousands thought they were a match for Abraham Lincoln. Likewise, for Theodore Roosevelt. The American with the most lookalikes, though, was Mark Twain.

Q. In the cowboy lingo of the Old West, what was a "ketch hand"?

A. A calf roper.

A showgirl in the Paris of World War I was voted by American soldiers as the best exotic dancer in the world. How much her stage name had to do with it I don't know. She called herself Rhonda Voux.

RHONDA ON RAIN

In a TV weather forecast, a 50-percent chance of rain doesn't predict the shoulder pads out of my sports coat.

SHIPWRECKS

Q. Where's the most dangerous spot in all the oceans?

A. Sable Island, 180 miles east of Nova Scotia. Presumably. At least, that's the whereabouts of the most shipwrecks, the most drownings, according to marine records.

Q. How many eyelashes do I lose in a year?

A. About 1,600, if typical.

First U.S. president to descend in a submarine was Teddy Roosevelt.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are unusually beneficial influences at work all day and through the night for putting your finest talents into motion to help yourself and others. You are filled with inspiration to work hard.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you have planned thoroughly, whatever you do today will prove advantageous for a long time to come. Impress your ideas on others.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Today is a fine time to try to get others to empathize with your ideals—Your influence is at a peak. Invite some friends in tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You can speak very convincingly today and should divulge some information that you have held dear until now. This can be helpful to all.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Order your priorities and make real progress on what is most important to you today. Listen to an expert who has worked for similar goals.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't be afraid to ask for help from close friends in order to get things accomplished. Personal relations are in unusual harmony today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study your most personal needs and pursue them with confidence. Work to improve your relationship with your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Keep your activities casual today, and you can learn a lot. Be polite and charming, and later it will be easier to realize your wishes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Get out and take some risks today for results that are most gratifying. Do your weekend shopping early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Look closely around you for new opportunities that may have escaped your attention. Those of a different background can help you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You can reach an understanding on a grave matter with your mate today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): An unexpected opportunity for advance may come from someone very powerful today. Work on making agreements with your associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Work on reconciling differences with those who you usually work closely with, and the day should progress quite productively.

If Your Child Is Born Today: He or she will be blessed with many talents that should make him or her a great success in life. Too much money may take away this child's desire to succeed; he or she should be taught prudence, humility and integrity.

Symms will meet with Gorbachev

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Republican Sen. Steve Symms is on his way to the Soviet Union and a meeting with Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev to see if the superpower is living up to all its "propaganda" about new openness.

"The reason we're traveling to the Soviet Union is to see firsthand how the Soviet Union is intending to implement some of the propaganda about perestroika and the talk about new economic and civil rights reforms," Symms said.

The senator left Friday along with fellow Armed Services Committee members Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Richard Shelby, D-Ala.

In addition to meeting with Gorbachev, Symms will attempt to meet with physicist Andrei Sakharov and historian Roy Medvedev. But press spokesman Bill Jarrell said the agenda is being planned by the Soviet Union.

The group also will be reviewing implementation of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty, the status of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the outlook of future reduction of conventional arms and Soviet progress on withdrawing troops from Afghanistan.

Democrats predict unity

BOISE (AP) — Will Democrats squabble at the national convention at Atlanta next week?

"Of course, that's what we're all about," says a member of the Idaho delegation, state Democratic Party Chairman Cecil Ward.

"But we will come out of the convention unified, with the full force of the Democratic Party behind the ticket," Ward said Friday.

He and other top Idaho Democrats were on hand as Ada County Democrats opened campaign headquarters.

Ada Vice Chairman Steve Hamilton said he will be "a hotbed" of Democratic campaigning in the county.

Democrats have "the opportunities and the issues" this election, said Gov. Cecil Andrus, in the presidential, congressional and legislative races.

Officials say dispute may lead to demands

BOISE (AP) — The Mountain Home School District contract dispute could be the start of more confrontations as teachers demand a voice in school policy, two Idaho Education Association officials say.

Jim Shackelford, assistant executive director of the IEA, and Rob Nicholson, IEA research director, made their comments at Thursday's taping of KTUV's "Viewpoint" program.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we don't see more and more of the faculties of school districts in Idaho stepping forth and saying they want to participate more actively in the educational policy and decision-making procedures in each and every school district," Shackelford said.

Lobbyist requests jury trial on drunken driving charge

BOISE (AP) — The legislative lobbyist who shepherded telephone de-regulation through the Idaho Legislature is requesting a jury trial on a drunken driving charge.

William Roden has pleaded innocent to the charge stemming from a June 28 incident in which a police officer stopped him after he veered into a parking lane on a city street.

The police report said Roden failed a field sobriety test and refused to take a breath test.

It was the second drunken driving charge lodged against Roden, 59, a Boise attorney and former state senator. The first in 1986 was dismissed after a judge ruled that the police stop of Roden under circumstances similar to last month's incident violated the constitutional protection against illegal search and seizure. The judge held police had no probable cause to stop Roden in the 1986 case.

Roden was the primary proponent for Mountain Bell Telephone Co.'s de-regulation bill that finally cleared the Legislature in a modified form last year after ill-fated attempts in three earlier legislative sessions.

The de-regulation provisions took effect this month.

Business leaders ask for apology

BAYVIEW (AP) — Two area business leaders say all 250 to 300 residents of this small north Idaho town will descend on 1st District Court July 27 unless Kootenai County officials apologize and rescind tickets issued for Fourth of July festivities.

Wally Wright, president of the Bayview Chamber of Commerce, was cited for failure to obtain permits for the Dinghy Derby, Independence Day Boat Parade and a $5,000 fireworks show.

"It was a great show," Wright said. "It was Americanism. It was democracy. It was what little towns are all about. But, instead of coming to help us with our record crowd, our sheriff's department hammers us."

Wright and Gary MacDonald of the Pend Oreille Yacht Club want the apology from Kootenai County Sheriff Merf Stalder, whose marine division issued the tickets.

Stalder said he didn't know enough about the situation to comment on it and referred questions to Lt. Gary Anderson, former marine division head.

"If Wally's saying we're picking on them and we're out of line, then he's wrong," Anderson said. "We're not singling anybody out or discriminating against anyone. We're doing our job the best way we can and trying to encourage voluntary compliance. I'm certainly not anti-civic."

Governors support Andrus' plan for fuels

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says he's pleased that other Western governors support his efforts to expand the use of alternative fuels to reduce dependence on petroleum.

At this week's Western Governors' Association meeting in Seattle, Andrus sponsored a resolution recognizing the "large role" alternative fuels could play in future needs.

"We in Idaho have been requiring use of alcohol-blended fuels in state vehicles for more than a year," the governor said Friday.

The use of alternative fuels also could help air pollution programs, the governor said.

The statement urged oil companies to provide base gasoline for blending a choice of alternative fuels, including ethanol, methanol, alcohol blends and natural gas.

Hawaiice ICESHAVER

What Is Shaved Ice?
Shaved ice is a scrumptious, tropical refreshment that is made by shaving a block of ice in the Hawaiice Ice Shaver. The "snowy" texture actually absorbs the flavoring, and doesn't let it run to the bottom of the serving as happens with the "crushed" ice. In a snow cone. Add one of our 16 distinctive Hawaiice flavors or your own favorite flavoring and you have a delightful tropical treat.

Shultz wants end of tech sales to China

BEIJING (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said on Friday the United States should not try to stop the Chinese from selling arms to Middle East nations by slowing high technology sales to China.

Shultz, on his second day in Beijing, said there were other, constructive ways to persuade the Chinese not to sell the weapons. He was responding to reporters' questions about a published report that Beijing had agreed to sell intermediate-range, M-9 missiles to Syria as an enemy of Israel.

Shultz said Chinese leaders told him their only ballistic missile sales in the Middle East have been to Saudi Arabia.

More than 100 U.S. congressmen sent Shultz a cable Thursday warning that future transfers of U.S. high technology to China would be "jeopardized" if the sale to Syria went through.

Shultz said he got word of the cable only after his meetings with top Chinese leaders. He met privately with senior leader Deng Xiaoping, Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang and Premier Li Peng.

"I think the way to try to get at it with the Chinese is other kinds of constructive ways," he said.

The Los Angeles Times reported on Thursday that Beijing had agreed to sell intermediate range M-9 missiles to Syria.

Senior Reagan administration officials traveling with Shultz have said the Chinese are believed to be marketing the weapons, which have a maximum range of about 370 miles, but there are no indications of a final sale.

U.N. Command responds to North Korean charges

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United Nations Command on Friday accused North Korea of trying to undermine the 1988 Olympics in Seoul by threatening war.

The command made the allegation in response to North Korean charges that the United States and South Korea were using the Olympics as a cover to create a war machine.

"The world will not be deceived or misled," said U.S. Rear Adm. William T. Pendley, chief U.N. Command delegate to the Military Armistice Commission.

"Your attempts to contrive an atmosphere of danger on the Korean peninsula, in a transparent attempt to undermine the upcoming Seoul Olympics, will not succeed," he said.

The U.N. command is made up of the United States and 15 other countries that fought on the side of South Korea during the 1950-53 Korean War. The Korean peninsula has been divided into the pro-Western South and the communist North since 1945.

The command has repeatedly charged that North Korea is trying to create military tension to try to disrupt the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in September. The North has made a series of accusations in recent months.

Tanker receives minor damage in attack

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Speedboats attacked a tanker that passed within five miles of the Iran's Farsi Island military stronghold Friday, but the ship escaped with minor damage as an American missile frigate raced to its aid.

No assistance was required when the Robert G. Bradley reached the 85,989-ton Sea Victory in international waters, a U.S. Navy spokesman said.

"She went within five miles of Farsi and they came out to get her," he said. "She turned tail and ran straight out. They went back home and left her alone."

U.S. officials said the warship could not have defended the tanker close to the island because Navy rules of engagement allow intervention only in international waters and the United States recognizes a 12-mile limit around Farsi.

Shipping executives said Iran is preparing a new oil platform in the southern Persian Gulf equipped with facilities that suggest military purposes, possibly defensive, as well as civilian.

A radio report from the Liberian-registered tanker's Greek captain said the speedboats attacked three times, making "lots of holes," starting a small fire and slightly wounding the first mate.

It was the second attack in three days near Farsi in the northern Persian Gulf. Iranian Revolutionary Guards use the island 60 miles off Saudi Arabia as a base for attacks on neutral commercial shipping from speedboats armed with machine guns and grenade launchers.

On Friday, the Sea Victory was bound for Kuwait when speedboats attacked at about 2 p.m., and the captain issued a distress call.

Armenians plagued by lack of food

MOSCOW (AP) — Food shortages and illnesses caused by stress are plaguing Armenians living in a disputed region trying to break away from Azerbaijan, a resident and the state-run media reported Friday.

One resident, a journalist with the state broadcasting authority, claimed Azerbaijani authorities were preventing food from getting to the region, Nagorno-Karabakh.

"We are under a virtual economic blockade," said the journalist. "The Azerbaijanis are trying to morally kill our movement, to strike down our just demands."

The official news agency Tass, however, blamed the supply problems in Nagorno-Karabakh on a nearly 2-month-old strike. Tass said more than 130 freight cars and more than 300 containers of food have backed up at the railway station in Stepanakert, Nagorno-Karabakh's main city.

"There are no more fruits or vegetables in our shops," said the reporter, who spoke on condition he not be identified by name. "We have almost no economic ties now with Azerbaijan."

Former Idahoan Hyde rising star in arcane world of steeplechase

By COLIN MULDOON
Times-News writer

W

RIGHT: PATTERSON AIR FORCE BASE, Ohio — The name Bret Hyde may not be a familiar one to most Idahoans right now, but it may become more so as next week's steeplechase competition at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Indianapolis unfolds.

It's no wonder that Hyde's name is veiled in obscurity. He hasn't lived in Idaho for any substantial length of time since graduating in 1977 from Wallace High School. And because the steeplechase — an arcane 3,000-meter distance race obstructed by oversized hurdles and water hazards — is not one of the events featured in Idaho high school track meets, Hyde certainly couldn't have made a name for himself in that respect as a Wallace Miner.

Yet Hyde probably has the best chance of any Idahoan of making it to the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, in September.

After graduating from Wallace High, Hyde moved on to Colorado Springs, Colo., to attend the Air Force Academy. During his four-year stay at the academy, Hyde — a former cross-country runner at Wallace — discovered and excelled in the steeplechase. Since that time, Hyde, now an Air Force captain stationed here where he is a program manager in the electronic warfare acquisition department, has doubled as Air Force officer and amateur athlete.

Three years after graduating from the academy and a two-year stay here in Ohio, Hyde placed eighth in the 1984 Olympic trials, setting his name in stone as one of America's top steeplechasers.

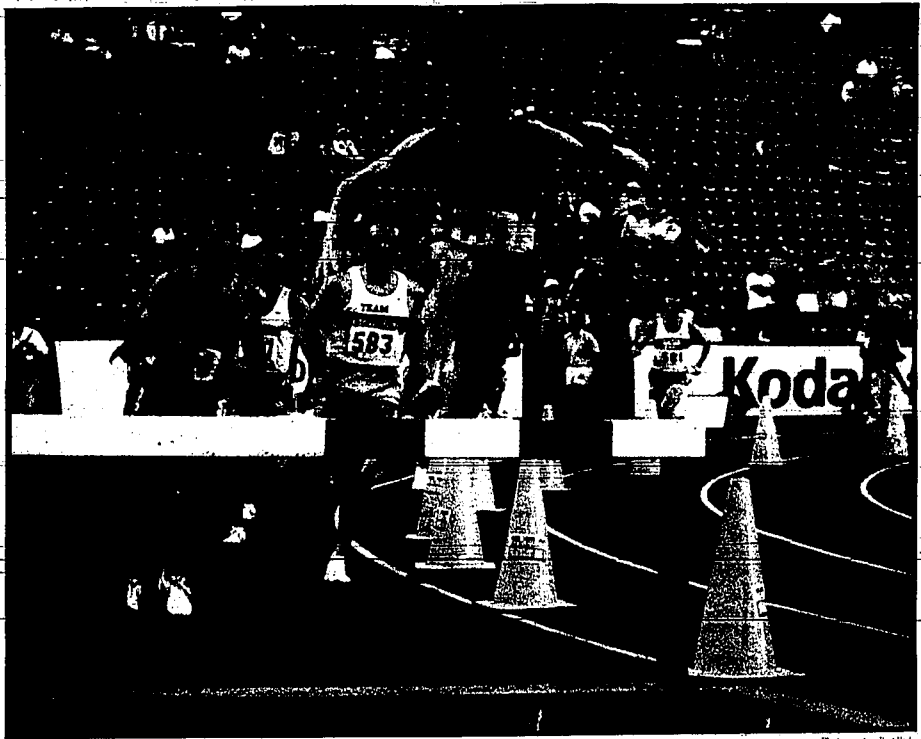

In 1984, Hyde was an 25-year-old infant in the sport. In 1988 at 29, Brett says he's ready to take the "next step."

"In '84, I was super thrilled to make the finals (top 12)," he says. "I did a lot more than I thought I would. Now I'm trying to take the next step."

That next step may not be too far out of reach for Hyde this year. His coach, Bob Schul, a 1964 Olympic gold medalist in the 5,000-meter run, places Hyde in the top five in the country. Three will make the Olympic team.

Jacoby makes high jump finals at Olympic trials

INDIANAPOLIS — Former Boise State University high jumper Jake Jacoby was among 16 athletes to clear 7 feet, 5 inches Friday and qualify for today's finals at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

Jacoby, 26, will compete beginning at 1 p.m. MDT today at Indiana University Track Stadium for one of three spots on the U.S. Olympic team. ABC Wide World of Sports will televise the finals in part, beginning at 2 p.m. MDT on KIVI-TV, Channel 6.

U.S. co-record-holders Thomas McCanis and Jerome Carter also qualified for the finals by clearing 7-5; but former U.S. record-holder Dwight Stones didn't make it, failing to clear 7-2 1/2.

Jackie Joyner-Kersey was far ahead of her world-record pace after four events in the two-day heptathlon, and Carl Lewis turned in the two fastest 100-meter heats of the year during Friday's first day of the trials.

Joyner-Kersey, the world record holder and 1987 world champion in the heptathlon, had a sensational day in the steamy Indiana University Track and Field Stadium. She climaxed it by winning her 200-meter heat in 22.30 seconds, the fastest ever by a heptathlete. With three events left on Saturday, she has 4,367 points, a first-day point record and 222 ahead of the pace when she established the world record of 7,158 points in the 1986 U.S. Olympic Festival at Houston.

Joyner-Kersey set the previous world record in the heptathlon 200 of 22.85 in 1986 and the first-day point mark of 4,256 in 1987. The first-day mark was set during the World Track and Field Championships at Rome.

"Today is just a half a day," she said. "I can't afford to relax. I remember in Rome being on a good pace the first day and sort of sloughing off the second" and failing to break her two-day mark of 7,158.

She began Friday by running the 100-meter hurdles in 12.71 seconds and clearing 6 feet, 4 inches in the high jump, each effort the best ever for an American heptathlete, then threw the shot 51-4 1/4.

She will complete the heptathlon with the long jump, javelin throw and 800-meter run.

"Today, I was ready," she said. "In Rome, it was almost like I was going through the motions."

Her husband-coach, Bob Kersee, agreed that she was ready.

"Today, she showed me she had the heart to compete... the competition attitude she's going to need" in the Olympic Games in September at Seoul, South Korea.

Prior to the trials, Kersee said his wife was "programmed" for a score of 7,194.

"We're going after the first-day world record, too," Kersee said. "I would like to see her around 4,300 points."

She got it, with points to spare. She skinned over the hurdles flawlessly, breaking the U.S. heptathlon record of 12.85 she set during the 1986 Goodwill Games at Moscow.

Then, on her third and final attempt, she broke her American heptathlon record of 6-2 1/4 in the high jump, set at Rome in 1987. Joyner-Kersey didn't take any more jumps after clearing 6-4.

Terrri Turner and Trish King also cleared 6-2 1/4, but each missed three times at 6-4.

"Obviously, I'm delighted, especially in this (99 degree) heat," Kersee said. "I figured the way she jumped in Rome, she could do it. I know she can take it higher, but in this heat, there was no reason to take it higher."

The air temperature reached 103 degrees at 1:10 p.m. MDT, but a short time later, when Joyner-Kersey was throwing the shot, rain dampened the field. Still, she managed to break the meet and stadium records in the shot put, giving her first place in all three events.

Lewis, the four-time Olympic champion, won his opening-round heat in the men's 100-meter dash in 9.96, fastest in the world this year, then matched it in a second-round race Friday night.

As Seoul Games near, U.S. boxing in turmoil

By EARL GUSTKEY
Los Angeles Times

It has been a long year for the man who runs amateur boxing in this country, Col. Don Hull. The 74-year-old Hull can't seem to stay out of the news, and in 1988, it has been mostly bad.

Possibly the worst news for Hull is that he might not accompany the U.S. Olympic team to Seoul.

The International Amateur Boxing Association (AIBA) has suspended him for alleged financial improprieties and has also denied him a credential to the Olympics. Hull was president of AIBA, Olympic boxing's worldwide governing body, from 1978 to 1986.

Hull also has problems within the USA-ABF — amateur boxing's U.S. governing body — not the least of which is his handling of the 1988 Olympic team's head coaching position, which is to say there is no head coach. Hull is now president of the USA-ABF.

After announcing the suspension of three boxers for failing drug tests on Thursday, Hull offhandedly announced that assistant coach Tom Coulter, a Syracuse, N.Y., tavern owner and longtime amateur coach and the No. 1 assistant coach, would be disqualified.

Leonard said he felt Army coach Hank Johnson should have replaced Adams, also of the Army, who was accused of assaulting a USA-Amateur Boxing Federation staffer May 12 at Colorado Springs. Johnson coaches five of the Olympic Trials champions.

"It is a very sad situation when you have a coach, who allegedly uninvited in public as the No. 1 man," Leonard said. "That was the straw that broke the camel's back."

Coulter, 57, of Syracuse, was accused of urinating in public during a two-week trip with a boxing team to the Soviet Union in March. He denied Ron O'Brien didn't make Greg Louganis what he is today, but he helped him get there. For 11 years, O'Brien, a short, serious man, has been coaching the greatest diver who ever lived. He has watched him "slide into the water" tens of thousands of times. He is one of the few who really knows why Louganis has never fallen from grace in a sport unforgiving of the slightest error.

"A dancer, I'm not sure if it was Nureyev or Baryshnikov, was quoted as saying, 'Dancing is creating the illusion that you're doing nothing.' That's what Greg does on a diving board. He makes it look effortless."

Men and women lift their eyes to the 10-meter platform and call Louganis the one word that comes to mind, "Beautiful." Diver Wendy Williams said, "Greg has been gorgeous for years. It's about time GQ got off their rear ends and put him on the cover." Diver Matt Soogin: "Greg has such great rhythm on the three-meter board, and such beauty and height." Diver Mark Bradshaw: "There's a little certain look to him ethetically when he goes in the water."

Very soon, Greg Louganis will leave diving to perform on other stages. He is 28 now, and it's time for him to move on. But first, he has a couple more gold medals to win.

Has diving legend Louganis lost edge?

One of the most polite apartments around, Louganis won't admit he is a lock to go to Seoul, but most think he is. And if he does make it, and then wins the three-meter springboard and the 10-meter platform events as he did in Los Angeles, he will become only the second person in Olympic history to win both diving gold medals in two consecutive Olympics. (The other was Patricia McCormick, mother of 1984 women's springboard silver medalist Kelly McCormick, in the 1952 and 1956 Olympics.)

Louganis says this will be his last season of competitive diving. He said the same thing in 1984, too, but then he was allowed to set up a trust fund and make money while he competed, so he decided to stick around.

This time, though, he means what he says. Louganis sometimes stands on top of the platform and looks toward the horizon before looking at the water. He desperately wants a career as an actor and dancer. He won't wait any longer. Although he has gotten a kick out of diving, he can't wait for the Olympics to end and for his new life to begin.

"I find myself saying, 'Okay, let's get this diving stuff over with,'" Louganis said recently. "Ron O'Brien keeps me directed on my diving, and that's necessary at this time. I keep telling myself to enjoy my diving — and I still do — but it's only a few more months."

Last October, Louganis made his professional dance debut in Indianapolis. He performed jazz and modern routines to quite good reviews.

When he came out for the curtain call, a half-dozen friends, including officials from United States Diving Inc. and O'Brien and his wife, held up diving judges' cards they had smuggled into the theater.

They all gave him 10s. Louganis has been just about perfect on a diving board for a long time. In 1976, at age 16, he won a silver medal, finishing second to become the head coach. Couler will replace Army Sgt. Ken Adams, who was fired in May after being accused of assaulting a federation staffer at the USA-ABF headquarters in Colorado Springs May 18.

However, Couler is under investigation by the USA-ABF for alleged improper behavior and a possible fight with the team during a one-week tour of the Soviet Union last March by a U.S. boxing team.

The team physician for the trip, Dr. Joseph J. Estwanik of Charlotte, N.C., wrote a letter to USA-ABF Executive Director Jim Fox, complaining about "a total lack of discipline" on the trip, citing several fights that broke out between the boxers, and confrontations between boxers and adults on the trip.

Said Couler, who was the head coach of the Soviet Union tour: "That kind of stuff is normal on a long trip — you're talking about a group of spirited kids on a 21,000-mile trip involving 11 airplanes. Of course you're going to have some petty arguments."

Sportswriter Sharon Robb of the Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) News, who accompanied the team on the entire trip, also said there were discipline problems.

"All the problems were due to the fact that no discipline was imposed on the boxers," Robb said.

Robb said that at one point in Moscow, on the way to a team workout, Couler asked a driver to stop the team bus, in traffic. Couler, Robb said, left the bus and arrested in public. The incident was confirmed by another adult member on the trip.

Couler denied the charge. "Nothing like that happened," he said. "I've made a lot of international trips with boxing teams and one thing I'm very careful about is (not) doing anything that would embarrass the United States."

When asked about the charges against Couler, Fox said: "The matter is being investigated, and that's all I'm going to say about it now."

Hull dismissed the charges against Couler with a wave of the hand, saying: "That's all inconsequential. We all agreed last October that if anything happened to Adams, Couler would become the head coach."

Another potential problem is that Couler is white, and Adams is black. The top administrative officers of the USA-ABF are all white, and generally from the eastern United States.

Many federation staffers believe the Olympic team should have a black head coach, since at least 10 of the 12 boxers on the Olympic team — and maybe all — will be black. "All things being roughly equal," said it's important we have a black head coach," said Rolly Schwartz of Cincinnati, in his 50th year as an amateur boxing referee-judge.

A late entry in the coaching picture was Army Coach Hank Johnson, who is black. He could wind up with five of his boxers on the Olympic team.

"Hank Johnson is a dandy," Schwartz said. "I've been on international trips with him — he's up at 6 a.m., doing road work with these kids and his work habits are impeccable."

Hull indicated that Johnson could be added to the Olympic team coaching staff as the second assistant coach, under Couler.

John Under, a 19-year Army man, has been coaching Army boxers since the early 1970s. In 1972, he was a national champion light-middletweight.

When Adams took the Olympic job, Johnson replaced him as the Army's head coach. For the past six months, he has trained the Army boxing team at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Said one non-Army boxer, a black athlete who is still competing for an Olympic team berth: "A lot of us have problems with Couler. Johnson has shown what kind of coach he is. If he doesn't get the head job, there's going to be a very unhappy Olympic team."

Hull sits squarely on top of this problem, as he does on several others. He's the chairman of the USA-ABF's Olympic Committee, which makes coaching assignments.

One federation staffer, Woody Gregory of Charleston, S.C., voted against a proposed piece of Hull legislation at a recent USA-ABF meeting. Shortly thereafter, Gregory's plane ticket was pulled and he was forbidden to attend the Olympic trials and boxoffs.

One who does speak out against Hull is his predecessor, Loring Baker, of Atlanta.

"Hull is a vindictive," said Baker, federation president from 1980 to 1984.

"In 1986 and 1987, the East German boxing federation wanted a home-and-home boxing series with us. They were to come here, and we were to go to Leipzig, in late '87 or early '88. ABC wanted to televise it. But solely because Hull had a personal animosity problem with Karl Heinz Wehr (an East German boxing official who is now AIBA's general secretary), it never came off."

"What I'm saying is, that because of Hull's personal problems with Wehr, our Olympic boxers and coaches will go to Seoul with no recent competition under their belts against the East Germans."

such a series. USA-ABF staffers, however, say a USA-East German series was at one point under discussion.

Now, there is the case of Sugar-Ray Leonard.

Hull, against the advice of virtually everyone in the USA-ABF, named Leonard, a 1976 gold medalist, as a special adviser to the Olympic staff last March.

Federation staffers feared Leonard would use the position to recruit amateur talent for his pro boxing stable. Said Hull at the time: "Ray has assured me he will not use the position to recruit boxers."

Last week at the 96-boxer Olympic trials at Concord, Calif., Leonard and his entourage were openly recruiting talent. Super-heavyweight Robert Salters, heavyweight Ray Mercer and featherweight Ed Hopson were among many under Leonard's full-court press.

In addition, Leonard had T-shirt stands ("Sugar Ray Leonard Boxing Club") set up at every trials session.

Said Bob Surkein, USA-ABF president from 1976 to 1980: "I love Ray Leonard more than any one kid who ever came out of the amateur program. But the fact is that since he won his gold medal at Montreal, Ray hasn't lifted a finger to help the federation... never lifted a finger."

"For Hull to give him that position is outrageous. And when I saw on the telecast of the trials that Lou Duva (a prominent pro boxing trainer) was working (light-welterweight) Todd Foster's corner, I hit the ceiling. That's a disgrace."

Responded Hull: "I've been told Leonard was recruiting at the tournament, but I have no firsthand knowledge of it. If he was, perhaps he could have used better taste. I do know that Leonard and everyone in his organization are dues-paying USA-ABF members."

Surkein said he once tried to fire Hull but couldn't.

"Hull worked for me, as my executive assistant, when I was president of the AAU boxing committee," he said. "Everything he touched went wrong... he couldn't do anything right. I tried to get him fired, but I couldn't because he was too politically strong with top people."

Hull's problems with AIBA are serious, sources say, and Hull himself indicates they are headed toward litigation.

"If they deny me an Olympic credential, I'll make them pay for it through the nose," Hull said, referring to a possible lawsuit.

In addition to charging Hull with failing to turn over 1978-1986 AIBA financial records, the new AIBA president, Anwar Chowdhry of Karachi, Pakistan, accuses Hull of making AIBA-TV deals after he left office.

At a recent AIBA meeting in Havana — at which Hull participated by Telex from his home in Cresskill, N.J. — Chowdhry said he'd only recently learned of TV deals Hull had made with ABC after he said, Hull's term as president had expired.

"AIBA was not a party to those negotiations, and Hull signed a contract without AIBA authority," Chowdhry said in a recent issue of the AIBA quarterly publication.

"We consider the contract void," Hull was asked to suspend all AIBA financial operations as of Dec. 12, 1986, which he has ignored.

"It was proposed that AIBA general secretary Karl-Heinz Wehr go to Cresskill, N.J., and take charge of all AIBA office papers and records, but this was rejected by Hull. I have asked Hull by Telex that all records and files not be destroyed, but he transferred to (the AIBA offices in) East Berlin... and we have asked that all AIBA 280s as a date, name, amount and credit cards be handed over to us, and he has refused."

Hull said the amount of money in question in the AIBA dispute is $11,000.

"Their accusations are absolutely false," he said. "I long ago transferred the bulk of the money... There is a small residual sum, $11,000, that (my) accounting people told me to hang onto, to take care of some (late) expenses."

To the charge that he negotiated a TV contract after leaving the AIBA presidency, Hull said: "That's false. What happened was, Barry Frank of International Management Group, who negotiated the contract for AIBA, told me his secretary made a typographical error on a letter to AIBA, typing 1988 as a date, when it should have been the 18th."

"On the 18th of November, 1986, I was still president. I wasn't on the 28th."

Hull is also accused of nepotism and cronyism by AIBA and USA-ABF officials. When he was AIBA president, Hull's son was executive director. His daughter was the AIBA bookkeeper.

Hull's daughter is an accountant, with offices in New Jersey and Ohio. Hull explained: "When I started out with AIBA, she told me, 'Daddy, I'll keep your books for free.' I told her that if I could ever get AIBA to a point where it made money, I'd see that we'd pay her something. We did, and I did."

"Let me make this: If the AIBA continues to make these wild charges, I'll take them to court."

three-time Olympic platform champion Klaus Dibiasi (Italy). After the Montreal Games, Dibiasi and Louganis took over. He also certainly would have won two gold medals in Moscow. He won his two in L.A. He has won nine world championships and 43 U.S. titles. He is the only diver to receive perfect scores of 10 across the board from seven judges on a single dive.

Tens are common scores for him, but not always.

"Greg hits the water straight in, vertical, almost every dive," said Bradshaw, one of his top competitors on the springboard. "If he dives the way he can, he's hard to beat. And he dives the way he can 95 percent of the time."

The Eastern Bloc boycott diluted competition in many sports in Los Angeles, but not in diving. The Americans and Chinese were there, and they were the best. On the platform, Louganis dove last. A strange thing happened: when he stepped onto the board for his final dive, he had more points in nine dives than any of the other divers had in 10. He had landed the field. He could have done a cannonball and still won the gold medal.

On rare occasions, Louganis really has botched a dive. The last time was in 1986, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Trying a reverse 3 1/2 twist, Louganis clipped the platform with his foot and dropped, spinning out of control, into the water. He doesn't remember anything about the dive, what he saw on his way down or how he hit the water. But he regrouped and continued on with the competition as if he had finished his dive. Amazingly, he still finished fifth.

"That's one of those Duke things," he said. "I didn't concentrate."

At the ITH Classic II in Annapolis, Md., a tussle for the 1988 Olympic trials, Louganis dove poorly — for him — and finished fourth on the platform. After one dive ended with a big splash and scores of 4s and 5s, Louganis walked back to the bench where his sat between divers, looked toward friends Megan Neyer and Jim Babbitt, and laughed.

"I find some things humorous. I went up there and blew a few dives. I can't afford to do that, but I did it. When people say I'm unbeatable, that's why I disagree. I've always been beatable. I never know how I'm going to dive. There's always that little question mark. Can I do it on this dive? It's fun because you never know until it's over."

Some wonder if Louganis might not be slipping a bit. Last year, he placed second in the one-meter, three-meter and 10-meter events at the U.S. indoor nationals. And, every year after he finishes diving, Louganis straps a wrist brace on his left arm.

to five, but only once has he placed in the top three at the annual U.S. Athletic Congress (TAC) nationals. That was in 1984, but Hyde says he believed the field was weakened due to the '84 trials being held so close to the TAC meet that year. Consequently, the country's premier steeplechasers chose not to run in the TAC nationals.

In 1985 and 1986 however, Hyde proved he could finish with the best, placing fifth both years in TAC nationals. In 1987, he suffered a setback only days before nationals, a setback that denied him the opportunity to qualify for the Pan American Games. He made the finals, but finished dead last.

Hyde's setback was a mysterious back strain that he concludes resulted from sitting in a cold, air-conditioned room during the day, prior to working out that evening. "For some reason, when I ran that evening, I cramped up," he says. "I basically couldn't relax."

This year, Hyde finished a disappointing seventh at TAC, but he appears confident that his performance next week will be better, and his chances for making the team are "50-50," with "six suits" Captain Hyde just fine.

"I usually say 50-50. I know I'm not one of the top three favorites," he says, however. "I do think things are going real well for me right now."

"Getting to the finals in the hardest part," Hyde continues. "Once you're in the finals, it's 12 guys. I know I can beat nine of them on any given day."

Nine is exactly how many Hyde will have to beat and Schul says Hyde can do it only if he can control the tempo of the race. Schul and Hyde make no bones about Bret's lack of speed. According to Hyde, on average, a steeplechaser is around 5-foot, 10-inches tall and about 150 pounds. Hyde stands 6-4, but weighs a lean 175 pounds for that height. And although Hyde is not fast, he is strong, very strong, according to Schul.

Schul says Hyde's strategy, if he makes the final will be relatively simple: Get out in front and set the pace for the race.

"They'll (Bret's competition) have to use their speed against his strength," Schul says. "If he can wear them down and tire them out, they won't be able to sprint at the end of the race."

Hyde's strength is certainly coveted by steeplechasers. It is a 3,000-meter (1.86-mile, or 7-1/2 laps) on a track event with four three-foot barriers and one four-foot barrier with a 12-foot long water-hazard situated at even distances apart from any another.

"For some reason — one that excluded Schul for years — the barriers seem to help Hyde," Schul adds that in normal situations, a steeplechaser would run quite well in the 5,000. The barriers, he says, increase endurance.

Hyde, however, is not a "good" 5,000 runner, according to Schul, "which is interesting. For some reason, you put him in the steeplechase and he excels. "Schul continues, "Somehow, by breaking up the race, he (Hyde) does well."

The weather may also play a key role in Hyde's success at the trials. Both Hyde and coach are hoping for 90-degree heat and substantial humidity and Indianapolis is the perfect place to provide such conditions.

"Hyde figures on a time of around 8 minutes, 20 seconds to be sufficient to be in the top three. His personal mark is more than five seconds shy of that mark at 8:25.49."

"If I run 8:20, I think I'll do it," Hyde says. "Especially in the heat and humidity."

Hony Marj, the dean of American steeplechasers, held the American record of 8:03.17. Olympic gold medalist Henry Bond of Kenya set the world record of 8:05.4 years ago.

If Hyde does make the team it culminates years of hard work that began when he was introduced to the steeplechase as a freshman at the Air Force Academy 10 years ago.

"If you would have told me then that I would be running the steeplechase 10 years from now, I would have told you you were crazy," Hyde says. "But I'm still working at it."

"I was a pretty good runner in northern Idaho. I stood out as a good runner," he adds later, "but I never dreamed I would go this far."

Leonard's comments.

Commenting on the bickering, Couler said, "I'm really glad it's happening now prior to the team being selected."

"This is something I have pondered for a while now," a misty-eyed Leonard said of his resignation at a news conference, which he accepted no questions.

"It shouldn't be a shock to the people who appointed me to be an advisor. He also was annoyed by criticism of the sale of his T-shirts at the Olympic

"This is my first love — amateur boxing — but my expertise was never used."

Leonard also was plagued by allegations that he was using or would use his position to recruit boxers for his professional stable. He scoffed at the charges.

Price takes 2nd round lead in British Open

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

LYTHAM, England — Nick Price took advantage of relatively calm morning conditions Friday to compile a 4-under-par 67 and wrest the second round lead from windblown Steve Ballesteros in the 117th British Open golf championship.

Price, a native of South Africa who now lives in the United States, saved a 1-shot advantage with a 20-foot par putt on the final hole and completed two trips over the Royal Lytham and St. Annes Golf Club in 137, five under par.

"I'm putting very solid. That's the reason I'm under par this week," Price said. "I haven't missed any I should have made.

"When you're putting well from 30 feet, that takes a lot of practice off."

And when the sun is out, the winds are down and the cold has abated — as it was for Price and the other players who had morning tee times — that helps, too.

"Maybe one shot. Maybe two shots," said

Ballesteros, the Spanish ace who played in more difficult afternoon conditions and had to work hard to match par 71.

"It looked like it would be a very nice day, but the wind came up and blew very hard," Seve said. The change took place about the time Price and the morning group was finishing and Ballesteros and the afternoon starters were getting away.

"It was very tough out there this afternoon," Ballesteros said.

The scoreboard confirmed that analysis. Of the first eight men on the leader board at the tournament's halfway point, only Ballesteros and Bob Tway played in the gusty afternoon winds.

Defending champion Nick Faldo of England and American Craig Stadler, who shared third at 140, both played in the morning.

Stadler, whose last victory came in 1984, had a 68. Faldo, who received a warning about slow play, got in with a 69.

Andy Bean was next at 141 after a 70 that included a birdie-birdie finish and a 32-over the back nine, by two shots the best score of the tournament on that side. He, too, played in the morning.

So did Fred Couples and Masters champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland, tied with Tway at par 142.

Couples, the man called "Boom Boom" by his fellow pros, moved up with a 68. Lyle had a 69 that included scrambling pars on the last two holes. Tway, playing in the worst of the wind, matched par 71.

PGA champion Larry Nelson, with a 70, and Chip Beck, 71, were in a large group at 143.

Lanny Wadkins had a 71 and was at 144. Jack Nicklaus, the 48-year-old Golden Bear, and now a part-time performer, declared himself still in the title hunt after scoring an eagle in a round of 70 that left him at 145.

"When you're not playing much, it's harder to play the first two rounds than the last two," Nicklaus said.

"If I shoot 67 tomorrow, I'm at 212, one under, and you can win from there."

Ben Crenshaw, 73; Tom Kite, 71; Fuzzy

Zoeller, 74; and Tom Watson, 72; all were at 146.

U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange improved 10 strokes to a 69-but was 11 shots back at 148, the figure needed to qualify for play the final two rounds.

Lee Trevino missed the cut with a 74-149.

Price, 31, admits to some confusion about his nationality. He was born in South Africa, lists his home country as Zimbabwe, is a veteran of the Rhodesian air force, carries a British passport and lives in Orlando, Fla.

"Take your pick," he said.

Price, who led the 1982 British Open slip from his grasp when he played the final six holes four over par, scored his biggest victory in the 1983 World Series of Golf, his lone victory on the American tour where he now plays most of his golf.

Starting the day's play three strokes back, he made his big move with a 35-foot putt for an eagle-3 on the sixth hole.

He followed with a two-putt birdie-4 on the seventh, then dropped a 15-footer on the eighth, completing a string of three holes played four under par.

Price matched another birdie against his lone bogey on the tough back nine, then made a critical save on the final hole.

He missed the green, then suffered a lapse in concentration as he addressed the little chip.

"I was distracted by a radio, a walkie-talkie in the gallery," Price said. "It was my own fault. I should have backed off."

The chip was weak and very short. But he dropped the 20-footer that saved his lead.

Ballesteros, who scored the first of his two British Open victories on this same course in 1979, made his only birdies of the day on the consecutive par-5's on the front, the sixth and seventh. Each came on a two-putt.

He bogeyed the third from a bunker and the 14th after driving into the rough. One-putt pars on the final two holes kept him close.

"I have more confidence now," Ballesteros said. "I feel my putting is getting better. So far, everything is on my side."

Football player charged with fraud

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah (AP) — A former Brigham Young University football player charged with prescription drug offenses has been charged with two counts of prescription fraud, a Bountiful police officer says.

Steve Sanders, 23, was arrested Wednesday at a residence in Pleasant Grove on charges stemming from two separate incidents in a Bountiful pharmacy on June 29 and July 5, said Detective Steve Gray.

Sanders, a linebacker for the Provo school from 1983 to 1986, when he suffered a knee injury, had twice been arrested previously on similar charges.

He was charged with prescription fraud on Sept. 28, 1986, following an incident at an Orem pharmacy. Court records indicate he pleaded guilty to obtaining a controlled substance by fraud and was fined $500 and placed on probation.

The probation later was revoked and Sanders was sentenced to 30 days in the Utah County Jail following a subsequent conviction on another charge.

He was scheduled to appear in 4th District Court to review that matter on Friday.

Sanders was arrested again April 9, 1987, and charged with prescription fraud stemming from an incident at another Orem drug store.

In that case, he pleaded guilty to one count of attempting to obtain a controlled substance by fraud. A zero-to-five-year sentence at the Utah State Prison was suspended, but Sanders was ordered to serve 30 days in the Utah County Jail, fined $500 and placed on probation until February 1989.

In December 1986, Sanders and two other BYU players entered a drug rehabilitation program at a Provo hospital for addiction to Percodan, a painkiller.

Three tie for lead in men's golf tournament

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

NEW MEADOWS — The Kimberland Meadows golf course is not popular with the championship flight of the Idaho Men's Amateur Golf Tournament.

The layout plays to an adjusted 71 par and is in a beautiful central Idaho setting. The problem is that nine out of 10 players in the championship flight of this tournament do not feel this course is a test of golf because of its domed, virtually unapproachable greens.

"It would be nice to play on a golf course for the Idaho state championship," said four-time champion Scott Masingill of Payette. "But courses of this design have ruined golf in the state."

That could be a rather harsh indictment of what is going on here because, from an ideal standpoint, seldom has the state championship been determined in a better spot.

At the end of the first round of the men's state championship, no one had equaled par and three men, including Twin Falls' Jason Meyerhoeffer, were tied at one over.

Meyerhoeffer, who made the second hole-in-one of his career during the practice round Thursday, stood at 72 along with Steve Smede of Eagle and Bill Wullman of Nampa.

That trio was followed at 73 by Rick

Spaeth of Boise and Glenn Kushlan of Caldwell. Former champion David Molitor of Pocatello was tied with Ron Hays of Boise and Mark Spaulding of New Meadows at 74. Another trio was tied at 75: Larry Bull and Tim Richardson, both of Boise, and Warren Vickers of Lewiston. At 76 were Jim Gaumer of Eagle, Joe Malay of Weiser and Masingill.

The focus of the tournament apparently will come on the last four holes. These are not only dangerous, three of them carved out of the pitey woods, but offer little hope for stopping approach shots.

The most pronounced of these is No. 17, on which the golfer tees off over a ridge approximately 160 yards away on a downhill fairway that culminates in a green without backing. With perhaps an 8-to-12-foot landing area, the 17th green injects little hope into the field.

"I really got the steers on those back four," said Burley's Terry Spakman. "I hit my drive on to the downhill portion of the fairway and thought I would just roll an eight-iron on to the green. I stubbed it, and still had to try to chip on."

He ended up with a 77.

Another who felt that steering became the dominant part of this game was Meyerhoeffer, who said he started trying to guide on No. 15 and saw the thing unravel to a point where, "I thought I hit an eight-iron out of bounds on 18. Fortunately, it stopped in the middle of the road and saved me two strokes."

The 18th has been modified from a par-3 to a par-4 by Idaho Golf Association Executive Secretary Wayne Berry, and is now an iron-iron, dog-leg right.

Final Flight — 1. Bill Thompson, Nampa 73. 2. The Carl Kuhn, Nampa and James Brown, Boise both 74. 3. Bill Swadlow, McCall, 74. 4. The Denny Simpson, Heston and John Chevrolet, Howe both 75. 5. 'Casey' marks anniversary

By STEVE HARVEY
Los Angeles Times

This year marks the 100th anniversary of "Casey at the Bat," Ernest Thayer's tale of baseball's most famous failure.

The poem, which first appeared in the San Francisco Examiner, drew scant attention until a Shakespearean actor named De Wolf Hopper recited it at a performance honoring the 1888 New York Giants.

"Casey" became such a staple of the vaudeville stage that, in time, even Thayer said he was tired of hearing it — possibly because he received only $5 from the Examiner.

In any event, if Thayer were writing the poem today, he would find that baseball has changed in some ways. "Casey" might have read like this:

The outlook seemed hopeful for the Mudville nine that day.
The boys led 3 to 2 with an inning left to play.
And when Reggie struck out, and Jones popped to Burroughs.
A sickly silence fell upon Mudville's chastened foes.
For Flynn was scheduled next, followed by old Jimmy Rangel.
The former just out of rehab, the latter an ex-Angel.
So within the rival's dugout, grim melancholy set.
No chance of catching Mudville on this last at-bat.
But Flynn let drive a double with his new corked club,
And Rangel, the windmill, reeled on an overcast top-sun-club.
Two more shots upon the Astor turf then spilled.
And suddenly it was 3 to 3 with all the bases filled.

Then from 30,000 throats, there rose some lusty squalls:
They rambled through the valley, they echoed in the malls.
They soared beyond the freeways, far above the ground.
For Casey, the mighty reliever, was advancing to the mound.
There was ease in Casey's manner as he trotted from the pen:
There was sandpaper in his pocket, and his face wore a grin.
And when responding to the cheers, he fingered each gold chain.
No stranger in the crowd could doubt that Casey'd save the game.
Sixty-thousand arms performed the wave, as he clambered up the hill.
Thirty-thousand tongues wagged, as he moistened up the pill.
And when the cooey-hurler ground the ball into his hip.
The Little Leaguers in attendance made sure they got the tip.
And now he took his stretch, and glanced at each runner.
And now he cut loose his split-fingered hummer.
The batter stood transfixed as the sphere by him sped.
"Ball" was the call, "Let's see your glove," the ump-said.
From the bleachers to the suites, there went up a

Tyson names next opponent

By RONALD BLUM
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Mike Tyson may not know who his manager is, but the heavyweight champion has named his next opponent.

Tyson, who "retired" after his June 27 pummeling of Michael Spinks, has decided to go ahead with his scheduled Sept. 3 title defense against Frank Bruno, Tyson's lawyer and his manager said Thursday.

Michael Winston, Tyson's attorney, said the fight will proceed even though Tyson, the undisputed heavyweight champion, is attempting to break his managerial contract with Bill Cayton, who arranged the fight.

Cayton said an agreement had been reached with Winston, hired by Tyson and his family to break the contract. Winston wouldn't comment on whether arrangements had been worked out. But Cayton did.

"I will remain manager, of course, in all senses of the word," Cayton said. "The contracts will be worked out with me as the manager."

Cayton said that Jarvis Astarue would be promoter for the bout scheduled for Wembley Stadium outside London. A source who asked not to be identified said Tyson would receive $5 million and Bruno "approximately $1.67 million.

Bruno, a winner in 32 of his 34 professional bouts, has not fought since his eighth-round "knockout" of Joe Bugner last Oct. 24 in London. Bruno is the top-ranked challenger of the World Boxing Association and the mandatory WBC defense for Tyson, 35-0 with 31 knockouts.

"His managers have built him up to be King Kong. But he's a human being like you and me," Bruno said after watching Tyson knock out Spinks in 93 seconds.

Cayton said he believed the arrangements with Astarue, a British promoter, would be worked out shortly that the fight would be formally announced "within a day or two."

Winston said that the decision to go ahead had been made by Tyson's new advisors, whom he would not name.

"We're still negotiating, but we're agreed that the fight go ahead," Winston said.

Donald Trump, the only one of Tyson's new advisors who has been publicly identified, said Thursday through a spokesman that the fight should take place.

Trump has advised Mike Tyson that he should continue to fight, including the September 3 Bruno fight in England, and that Tyson should otherwise live up to the terms of his contract until such time as the courts rule on whether it's valid, spokesman Dan Klores said.

It will be the third bout in Tyson's $26-million, seven-fight contract with Home Box Office. Bob Greenway, HBO's vice president for sports programming, said Thursday that if the fight happens, the cable network would televise it live. Another HBO official confirmed later Thursday that the fight was on.

Cayton, who became Tyson's sole manager when partner Jimmy Jacobs died last spring, had made the arrangements for the fight last winter. Cayton gets one-third of Tyson's earnings under the contract.

AL: Key beats flagging A's

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jimmy Key pitched a two-hitter for his fourth straight victory since coming off the disabled list and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Oakland Athletics 4-0 Friday night.

Key, 6-1, struck out three and walked two in his first shutout and complete game of the year, facing just 18 batters in the final six innings. In his comeback from elbow surgery, the left-hander has allowed only 17 hits and two runs in 32 innings.

The loss, combined with Minnesota's win over Baltimore, cut the A's lead in the American League West to 4 games.

In his latest victory, Key bested Oakland ace Dave Stewart, 12-8, who, allowed 10 hits in his eighth complete game. Stewart had not lost to Toronto since 1985, winning his last seven decisions against the Blue Jays.

George Bell drove in the game's only run with a single in the third inning and he also threw out a runner at the plate.

Minnesota 4 Baltimore 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gary Gaetti hit a two-run home run and Charlie Lea won for the fifth time in six starts Friday night as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles 4-2.

Gaetti gave Minnesota a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his 20th home run, a line drive over the left-field fence off Jeff Ballard, 4-7.

Lea, 6-4, allowed nine hits in 6 1/2 innings. The right-hander who failed to win a major league game for three full seasons in 1985-87, when he was recovering from a rotator cuff injury) has allowed nine earned runs in his last 40 innings.

Keith Atherton pitched 1 1/2 shut-out innings, then Jeff Reedon got his 24th save by pitching the ninth.

Ballard lost his third consecutive start. After giving up two runs in each of the first two innings, the left-hander retired 14 in a row from the third inning until Greg Gagne

California 6 Detroit 4

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Jack Howell hit a three-run homer in the first inning Friday night as the California Angels built an early 6-0 lead and held on for a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers, their seventh straight win.

Mike Witt, 7-9, survived the Tigers' comeback to go 2 1/2 innings, allowing eight hits, for his first victory since June 25. Brian Harvey finished up for his 10th save.

Johnny Ray and Brian Downing were on base with singles when Howell lined his sixth homer off Doyle Alexander, 8-5.

Jim Eppard followed Howell's two-run homer with a triple and scored on Tony Armas' single. The four-run inning was the Angels' most productive first inning of the season.

New York 5 Chicago 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Mattingly had three hits, including a home run, and scored three times, leading the New York Yankees to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

Claude Washington drove in two runs with a bases-loaded walk in the two-run third inning and a fifth-inning sacrifice fly. Mattingly capped a two-run first with a solo home run, his eighth of the season.

Rick Rhoden, 5-6, was the winner with relief help from Pat Clements, Tim Stoddard, Dave Rigetti and Ceciliano Guante, who earned his 11th save by striking out Ken Williams.

Rickey Henderson led off their first with a single and stole second for his 43rd steal this season and 744th of his career. That moved him into a tie with Harry Stewart for fifth place on the all-time career list.

Seattle 8 Cleveland 5

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Valle sparked a four-run seventh inning with a bases-loaded, two-run double as the Seattle Mariners rallied Friday night to hand the Cleveland Indians their sixth straight loss 8-5.

Jim Gott retired the last five Giants for his 12th save.

Milwaukee 4 Texas 2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Ted Higuera pitched a five-hitter before leading last-out relief from Dan Plesac and Paul Miller had three hits Friday night as the Milwaukee Brewers dealt the Texas Rangers their fourth straight defeat, 4-2.

Boston 7 Kansas City 4

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Cerone homered in a 7-4 second game win as Boston swept the Kansas City Royals Friday night in Joe Morgan's debut as the Red Sox manager.

Boston had lost eight of its 12 games before the All-Star break, leading to the firing of John McNamara Thursday. Morgan was named interim manager before that night's game against Kansas City was rained out.

Boston 3 Kansas City 1

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens pitched a five-hitter and struck out 16 Kansas City batters for the second time this season, lifting the Boston Red Sox and new manager Joe Morgan to a 3-1 victory over the Royals in the opener of a two-night doubleheader Friday.

Clemens struck out eight in the first three innings and finished by striking out the side in the ninth after George Brett opened the inning with a single.

Reds earn No. 3 seed by defeating Shoshone

By The Times-News SHOSHONE — Jerome nailed down the No. 3 seed in the new western Southern Region "B" American Legion tournament Thursday by routing Shoshone, 26-0.

The Reds exploded for 11 runs in the fifth inning and did their damage on just nine hits, thanks in part to 18 bases on balls issued by Shoshone pitchers.

Scott Burton led the offensive onslaught with a 2-for-5 game for Jerome, including a home run, while Tracy Dixon was 2-for-5.

Right-hander Jim Bos limited Shoshone to just one hit.

Because of a lack of players, the second game of the scheduled twinbill was canceled.

Mini-Cassia 'A' 9 E. Salt Lake 2

POCATELLO — Mini-Cassia's "A" team continued its winning ways in the Rebel Classic American Legion baseball tournament here Friday by routing East Salt Lake, 9-2.

Right-hander Eric Miller tossed a four-hitter at East Salt Lake, while the Sage's 16-hit attack was paced by Jesse Villanueva, 2-for-4 with two doubles, Jason Allen at 3-for-3 and Mike Price with 2-for-4.

The Sage, now 2-0 in the tournament, will take on Buhl this morning at 10 at Halliwell Park, then play the Pocatello "B" team at 12:30 p.m.

Logan 14 Buhl 3

POCATELLO — Cory Eskelsen struck out seven Buhl batters and allowed just four hits here Thursday as Logan, Utah, defeated Buhl 14-3 in the opening round of the Rebel Classic American Legion baseball tournament.

John struck out five Indians, who got half of their hits from Cornelio Hernandez.

Buhl will meet the Mini-Cassia's "A" team in the third-round of the tournament this morning at 10 at Halliwell Park, then play Helter, Utah, at 3 p.m.

Casey

there went up a muffled roar; Like the beating of the storm waves on a stern and distant shore; "Kill him! Kill the umpire!" shouted someone in the stands; And they likely would have, but he found Casey's hands,

With a smile of benign charity, great Casey's visage shone; He stilled the rising tumult, he bade the game go on;

He signaled to his catcher, and once more the cowhide flew; The batsman still refused to offer; the ump said Ball 2.

Next came Ball 3, and the fans cried, "Fraid!"

But one scornful look from Casey and the audience was awed; They saw his face grow stern and cold, they saw his muscles strain;

And they knew that mighty Casey wouldn't miss the plate again; A sneer played on Casey's lip, which speaks of hate not love;

He pounds with cruel violence, the ball into his glove.

And now he tees the rubber, and now he starts his windup;

And even as he lets go, the ump's made his mind up;

Oh, somewhere in this favored land, the sun is shining bright; The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light;

And somewhere men are laughing and children merrily talk;

But there is no joy in Mudville — mighty Casey lost on a balk.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

"To whom you tell your secrets, to him you resign your liberty."

- Spanish proverb.

Today's West was half-fright in his defense. He did make the right play, but by the time he had decided, South had a marked route to the winning line.

West led his fourth-best diamond and South wisely ducked both hands. Back came a diamond to dummy's ace, and declarer led a low spade back to his king.

West studied the problem for what seemed an eternity and finally ducked. This was the correct play, since his spade ace was his only entry to run the diamonds.

What was wrong about the play was the long and revealing study. After that tip-off, South led a spade right up to the ace, and the fall of East's jack ensured an overtrick.

The key to the defense is a smooth duck by West. If he refuses South's spade king with no apparent concern, South is likely to lead a spade to dummy's nine and East's jack.

It's not enough to make the correct play. When secrecy is required, you must not reveal all to an alert declarer.

North-South and South-North bridge hand diagrams with suits and cards listed.

Bridge hand diagrams showing vulnerable and non-vulnerable positions.

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds: A 5 4 2, K 10 6 3, Q J 6 5 4, K 9 3, A Q 4. North: A 5 4 2, K 10 6 3, Q J 6 5 4, K 9 3, A Q 4.
