Smithsonian Institute folklorists tour downtown Shoshone as part of a research project to study the town's history

SHOSHONE — Although they carried cameras and wore walking shoes, the 12 people who scouted the streets of Shoshone Monday aren't typical tourists. The visitors are Smithsonian Institution folklorists who will be researching Shoshone's history and traditions for the next two weeks.

"People are really curious," said Alicia Gonzales, director of the institution's Quincentenary programs. "The question they ask is 'Why Shoshone?'" The Smithsonian Institution chose Shoshone as a research site because "the community is a microcosm," said Gonzales. "It's an ideal case study of how farming in North America affects life."

The researchers hope to use information about Shoshone to help profile rural life for the Smithsonian's "Quincentenary" exhibit. The exhibit, which will be displayed in Washington, D.C., during 1991-92, will commemorate the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage.

Another reason Shoshone was selected is because the Idaho Perspective Project, a research project with similar aims, already focuses on Shoshone. The $10,000 Idaho Perspective Project is funded by the Idaho Humanities Council, and will help Shoshone develop its economic and cultural resources.

Under the guidance of a local historian, the folklorists began their research Monday with a walking tour through Shoshone. Cars slowed down and locals stared when they saw the group

"It made the most sense to tie it into the existing program," said Bob McCurt, Idaho Commissioner of the Arts, folklore coordinator.

Reagan hands Republican torch to Bush

NEW ORLEANS — President Reagan summoned the Republican National Convention to George Bush's side Monday night, telling delegates in a poignant farewell address that they must never "let the fire go out" or "quit the fight" for their conservative cause.

"George, I'm in your corner," Reagan said in a prime-time speech that served as highlight of a nostalgia-drenched opening night of the 34th GOP nominating convention. "But George, just one more personal request: go out there and make it one more for the Gipper."

More births, record number of deaths in America during 1987

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans had more babies in 1987 than in any year in nearly a quarter-century, but at the same time the nation recorded more deaths than any year in history.

Last year also saw the lowest marriage and divorce rates in over a decade, according to figures compiled by the government's National Center for Health Statistics.

A slight increase in fertility, coupled with the huge number of women in their prime childbearing years, resulted in an estimated 3,829,000 new arrivals last year, the most since 1964, the center reported Monday in its preliminary statistical summary for 1987.

Millions of people born in the post-World War II Baby Boom are now in their 20s and 30s and, after completing school and launching careers, have begun families.

That has led to a sharp increase in the total number of births in recent years, although the nation's rate of 66.1 births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44 remains at about half that of the late 1950s, when the Baby Boom was at its peak.

Because the recent jump in births is a result of baby boomers producing their own offspring, social scientists have begun referring to the event as an "echo-Baby Boom." The number of women in their childbearing years is expected to continue growing by about 1 percent annually for the next few years, according to Census Bureau estimates.

The births in 1987 were up from 3,731,000 a year earlier.

Deaths in 1987 totaled 2,127,000, up from 2,099,000 a year earlier and the most ever recorded for a single year in the United States.

Record numbers of deaths have become common in recent years with the nation's population growing and including a larger share of elderly people.

The national death rate of 8.7 per 1,000 people in 1987 was unchanged from a year earlier, the report said. Life expectancy at birth was also unchanged at 74.9 years.

According to Census Bureau estimates, the U.S. population at the end of 1987 was 244.4 million, up some 2.2 million from a year earlier when net migration of more than 500,000 is added to balance between births and deaths.

The report disclosed small increases in life expectancy last year for white men and black women, and small declines for white women and black men.

Harry Rosenberg of the center's Mortality Branch said statisticians won't be able to determine a reason for those changes until they have more time to study the detailed figures.

The changes were small and finding the reasons for them could take as long as a year, Rosenberg said.

Governor questions Zaccaro's prison 'cell'

The Associated Press

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Gov. Madeline Kunin has asked for a review of a state corrections program that has allowed John Zaccaro Jr. to spend his four-month prison term for selling cocaine in a $1,500-a-month apartment.

Louis Bernoy, a spokesman for the governor, said Monday Kunin believes the overall program is outstanding but that she is concerned about inequities in state accommodations among participants.

Zaccaro, the son of former Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, was convicted in April of selling a quarter-gram of cocaine to an undercover officer while a student at Middlebury College in 1988. He was sentenced to one to five years in prison, with all but four months suspended.

Zaccaro was deemed eligible for the state Corrections Department's house arrest program, under which non-violent convicts can find their own housing while they remain under close supervision by corrections officials. The program is designed to ease prison overcrowding.

Zaccaro is staying in a luxury apartment with room service and cable TV in a building designed for expense-account business people on short assignments.

"This guy is a drug felon and he's living in conditions that 99.9 percent of the people of Vermont couldn't afford," said Addison County State's Attorney John Quinn, who prosecuted the 24-year-old Zaccaro.

State corrections officials say they have no control over the quality of the living quarters. "The department doesn't provide the apartment," said John Perry, director of planning for corrections. "The prisoner does that. We are only concerned that it meets minimum standards — no drugs, no guns, no college kids hanging around."

"Obviously, some people, Mr. Zaccaro among them, have more money than others, and they can afford a better place. The Agn Khan probably wouldn't think much of his apartment," he said.

"The governor believes people should be treated equally regardless of personal circumstances," so has asked for the review, said Bernoy. He said Kunin had no suggestions for solving the inequities.

There are many problems in trying to regulate the standard of living quarters. For example, some of the participants live at home, raising the question of whether the state would force people from their homes if they seem too luxurious.

Bernoy said it was important to remember Zaccaro "does not have freedom in any sense of the word. He works most of the time, and is restricted to his apartment for the rest of the time, with the exception of one hour a week in which he has to go grocery shopping."

Zaccaro works at a community youth center in Burlington. "He gets a personal visit a day and two phone calls a day from an officer. He is very closely monitored," said Bernoy.

Economists believe Fed set to push rates higher

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve, one week after its dramatic move to boost a key interest rate, is likely to continue pushing rates higher, many economists predicted Monday on the eve of a policy-making meeting.

These analysts believe that the Fed has decided that higher rates are necessary to slow an economy where demand pressures are bumping up against tight labor markets and capacity restraints in the manufacturing sector.

"We are facing the danger of a new wage-price inflationary spiral and I am looking for further tightening steps based on a perception by Fed policy-makers that the economy is growing too strongly," said David James, senior economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer.

Fed policy-makers will convene behind closed doors today to review the economy's prospects and chart monetary policy for the next 18 months.

The meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee comes one week after the Fed, in a surprise move, boosted its discount rate by one-half percentage point to 6.5 percent.

An increase in the discount rate, the interest the Fed charges to make loans to commercial banks, is the most dramatic signal the central bank can send of its intention to push interest rates higher as a way of dampening demand and thus fighting inflationary pres-

Storms ignite fresh fires in Idaho forests

By The Associated Press

High winds and no precipitation prompted Nez Perce National Forest officials to postpone the control of a 2,750-acre Ruby Rapids fire Monday on the Main Salmon River.

Both the Nez Perce and the Payette forests in west-central Idaho expected another round of fire lightning storms to ignite even more blazes.

The Nez Perce National Forest, about 300 firefighters were battling nearly 50 blazes, most of them 10 acres or less. Lightning in the last three days continued to spark fires as officials contended with dwindling manpower and equipment.

"Every night we can count on getting hummered," said Mary Zabinski, Nez Perce information officer.

Blazes up to 30 miles per hour and no rain had pushed back the control time on the 2,750-acre Ruby Rapids fire from Monday to Wednesday.

An incendiary device was found at the fire spot of Higgins and the Salmon River District. While 27 fires were reported in the Challis National Forest over the weekend, quick action had brought the number of manned blazes down to four by Monday morning, said Jim Stone, Forest Service information officer.

fire, about 22 miles southeast of Elk City, Ms. Zabinski said. The Payette National Forest reported 10 new lightning-caused blazes Monday as thunderstorms continued to sweep through the forest, said Dave Olson, public information officer.

About 20 fires were mopped, two dozen smokjumper and 50 firefighters were expected to tackle them while they remained uncontrolled.

While 27 fires were reported in the Challis National Forest over the weekend, quick action had brought the number of manned blazes down to four by Monday morning, said Jim Stone, Forest Service information officer.

Fires force closing of west Yellowstone entry

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — High winds and low visibilities forced Yellowstone National Park officials to close the park's west entrance Monday as hot, dry, windy weather whipped the park's fires back into action following a relatively quiet weekend.

Park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt said the road from the park's west entrance to Norris Junction was closed Monday afternoon, although officials expected the road to open again by Monday evening.

"We're giving (visitors) the option of driving around to the south entrance or, because the closure is expected to be only temporary, allowing them to enjoy our West Yellowstone (Mont.) area," she said.

The road was the second closed during the day, joining the one from Madison Junction to the Old Faithful Geyser area, also closed because of low visibility caused by smoke from the 52,900-acre North Fork fire and concerns over continuing strong winds.

Idaho delegates tout McClure as favorite son choice for VP

The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Sen. James McClure is being touted by Idaho delegates to the Republican National Convention as a "favorite son" candidate for vice president, but few in the delegation are taking the campaign seriously.

Delegates traveled to the convention's opening session in the city Monday morning, but McClure's name was not mentioned in the presidential nominating process.

Blaine Hall, chairman of the delegation and the Idaho Republican Party, said he wouldn't want McClure selected, even if he were a serious contender. If that happened, McClure's successor would be appointed by Democrat Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"We would love having him picked and believe he's worthy of consideration, but none of us want the Democratic governor of Idaho appointing the next person to succeed Jim," said Hall. "We're halfway hoping no one would consider him."

Thunderstorms intensified in Intermountain Monday afternoon, drifting slowly into the southern part of Idaho. A line of thunderstorms associated with the disturbance extended along the western Idaho border from Nevada into Canada.

Low-level squalls of rain and lightning detection equipment showed numerous lightning strikes southwest of Mountain Home and near Jordan Valley.

Sunshine and 10 to 15-mph winds prevailed over the remainder of southern Idaho. Temperatures ranged from a p.m. high of 89 degrees at Idaho Falls to a low of 70 degrees at Coeur d'Alene.

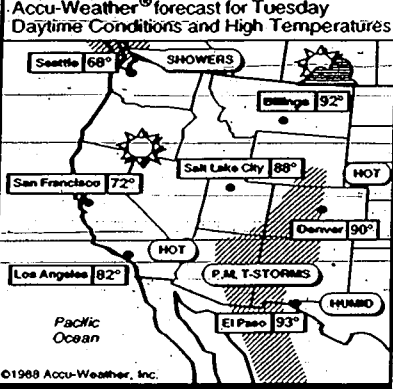

The pollen count in Twin Falls on Monday was 90.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 91 degrees at Salmon. Stanley reported the coldest at 26 degrees.

The agricultural outlook today through Saturday, indicates that deer will move into southern and central Idaho today in the wake of an upper-level low that will have passed through Idaho late Monday night and early Tuesday. A few mountain thunderstorms may continue through the week. Another low pressure area is forming off the Washington coast and will bring some moisture and unstable air to northern Idaho through the week.

Conditions for field work and haying will be good through Saturday as thunderstorms should be confined to the mountains. Evaporation rates will be near normal today and above normal Wednesday through Saturday. Winds for spraying today and Wednesday will be west to southwest 8 to 12 mph.

"Massachusetts" in a speech that a senior Bush aide swiftly disclaimed.

Elizabeth Dole, one of several vice-presidential contenders, said the Democratic platform was long on platitudes and short on specifics. "We're not running against Bentson and Dukakis, and hedges," she said.

Sen. John McCain of Arizona won a standing ovation from the delegates as he recalled his 5 years as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam in chilling detail.

But he and all the rest were merely a prelude to the Great Communicator, making his last appearance as president at a party convention. Delegates erupted in cheers and chants of "four more years" as he and Nancy Reagan made their way to their Superdome seats in advance of his speech.

First Mrs. Reagan thanked the delegates for "all the experiences and memories you've made possible."

Then delegates and thousands of Superdome ticketholders watched a 20-minute videotape mixing praise for Reagan's accomplishments with reminiscences of his eight years in Washington. None of the commercial networks aired the Republican National Committee-supplied production.

Finally, it was his turn to speak to the party that twice turned to him — and that twice he led to the White House.

Reagan recalled the economic chaos that he inherited eight years ago, recounted the change wrought by his revolution and warned against letting the Democrats back in power. "Without George Bush to build on those policies, everything we have achieved will be at risk," he said.

"All the work, sacrifice and effort of the American people could end in the very same disaster that we inherited in 1981."

In his prepared remarks, Reagan mixed political rhetoric with personal recollection. He spoke of "the resistance of these liberal elites who loudly proclaim that it's time for a change... "Don't we know that, if they're elected, their answer will be the one they have relied on in the past — and that is higher taxes," the president said.

The most surprising remarks of the day were a critique of the vice-presidential selection process by a man who was thought to be a prime contender for the No. 2 spot on the Bush ticket.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas told reporters the choice could have been made soon after Democrats finished their convention in mid-July.

Dole said he suspects Bush "already has made up his mind" on a running mate but he didn't know who it was. His words seemed to reflect a judgment that it wouldn't be him.

There was nothing stingy about Reagan's endorsement of his vice president to counter the Democratic portrayal of Bush as a weak, vacillating underdog without firm opinions or achievements of his own.

"George played a major role in everything we've accomplished," the president said. He provided no examples of Bush's closed-door advice.

speech ever since we found out about it," Watkins said in an interview. "You get an idea and put it down and try to find out what to use and what not to use."

"I'll try to stress that we've had some new levels of prosperity and that we've had a lot of problems we've had in the Democratic caucus in the House, Watkins said. "My team is with Bush, Stallings is teamed with Dukakis. That's the difference. That's what I'll stress."

Watkins said he did not request the opportunity to speak, and was shocked when it came.

He was unsure why he was asked, but attributed the invitation in part to an article in the Washington-based publication Campaigns & Issues, which listed Stallings as one of the seven most vulnerable Democrats in the House.

Stallings, who is seeking a third term, spoke briefly during the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta last month, and also had the distinction of receiving three votes for president from Minnesota delegates who liked his opposition to abortion.

Watkins said the speech should be a boon to his campaign to bring the 2nd District back into the GOP fold. The district was represented by Republican George Hansen for eight terms until 1984, when Hansen lost narrowly to Stallings despite his conviction on felony charges he filed false financial reports to Congress.

After losing his appeals, Hansen served nearly 12 months in a federal prison in Virginia.

"It's an honor to be asked to speak. I think they know this is a Republican seat and we're going to get it back. This is a premier race. I can win this race," Watkins said.

The Idaho Perspective Project wants to amass as much oral history as possible. "We want to document the cultural, occupational and generational traditions in the community."

The Smithsonian folklorists are volunteers who each paid $1,100 to join the research team. "I like small towns and old-timey ways," said Linda Olenick, a cultural worker at the project.

The research expedition in Shoshone will be a model for similar Quincentenary projects throughout North and South America.

"This is really a pilot project," said Gonzales. "This is the first time the Smithsonian has engaged volunteers in the research."

The researchers will work in three-person teams and have a hectic itinerary. They will interview farmers, ranchers, business owners and folk artists. They will visit the Gooding County Fair, Mammoth Cave, Magic Dam, Custer, and Malad Gorge, and will see examples of lava architecture.

These interviews and tours will help researchers understand the community's agricultural and recreational patterns. In addition, the folklorists hope to learn why various ethnic groups migrated to Idaho and how they have adapted.

There are Basque, Asian, Portuguese and other European ethnic groups, said Gonzales. "Each group brings a different perspective and something complementary."

Shoshone's lava landscape also interests researchers. How people manipulate it — is very telling, said Gonzales. "It's cursed in some cases, but it's been put to creative uses in the architecture."

Shoshone residents have been looking forward to the folklorists' arrival, said Mayor Tim Riding. "It's a good honor for Idaho and a good honor for Shoshone," he said. "People are more than happy to be interviewed. Everyone likes to share their story, and there are some pretty colorful stories here."

During the year from the disease declined somewhat last year, as it has for the last several years, the report said. There was also a decline in the rate for accidents, other than those involving motor vehicles.

Death rates for other major causes of death did not show statistically significant changes. However, the report for 1987 did include figures for AIDS for the first time, estimating between 12,450 and 13,820 deaths among the causes of death for Americans, although the disease has not been officially included in the numerical rankings, which are based on a list of 72 specified causes of death.

AIDS is included under the category of "all other infectious and parasitic diseases," which showed a growth in deaths from 9,030 in 1986 to 19,160 last year, but such all other reclassified categories were not part of the ranking system. The nation's marriage rate for 1987 was 9.9 weddings per 1,000 people, the lowest since 1977, when it was also 9.9. In 1986, the marriage rate was 10.0 per 1,000 people.

Divorces were also low last year, at a rate of 4.8 per 1,000 people, tying 1986 for the lowest since 1975. It peaked at 5.3 in 1979 and in 1981.

Son of crash victims files lawsuit

BOISE (AP) — The son of a Boise couple killed in the Denver crash of Continental Flight 1713 has filed suit in U.S. District Court against the airline and McDonnell Douglas, the manufacturer of the DC-9.

The suit was filed Friday on behalf of Craig M. Marria of Boise. His parents, James G. Marria and Karen Lynn Marria, owners of Perma Green, were returning to Boise on Nov. 15 when the airliner crashed on the runway at Stapleton Airport in Denver.

Sixty-two people, including Boise and Melba residents, died in the crash. Twenty-two lawsuits have been filed in court in Boise, but have been transferred to a Denver federal court.

Gibb accepts offer from board

MOSCOW (AP) — University of Idaho President Richard Gibb, who is resigning that position next June, has accepted an offer from the Board of Education to become a Distinguished Professor of Higher Education at a salary of $82,000 per year.

The next president of the Moscow school will determine Gibb's status when the board appointment expires May 14, 1990, officials said.

Gibb, 58, will retire as of June 30 and return to teaching. After excluding the public for a closed-door executive session, the board unanimously approved the Gibb appointment.

Gibb's new position begins Aug. 14, 1989. Besides the title of Distinguished Professor of Higher Education, he will receive the title of president emeritus, the same title bestowed on Gibb's predecessor, Ernest Hartung, who retired in 1977.

School district seeks superintendent

ARCO (AP) — School district officials acknowledge it might be "raiding" to close to the start of the school year, but they'd like to find a new superintendent to replace the late Sam Sears.

Sears, 56, died of a heart attack Thursday.

School Board Chairman Eric Aikole said it could be difficult to find a replacement so close to the beginning of a new school year. Most qualified administrators by now are under contract with other districts for the new school year, he said.

He said it might be possible to find an administrator who can pull out of a contract elsewhere. However, he said, "I don't want to be raiding, shall I say, this close to the start of school."

LDS scouts gather at Island Park

ISLAND PARK (AP) — A man's honor is his protection in the changing fortunes of the world, LDS Church President Ezra Taft Benson told 6,500 Scouts and leaders at Encampment 88 in Island Park.

Benson Sunday admonished the Scouts, ranking in age from 12 to 18, to keep the Scout Oath, which begins, "On my honor..."

Benson spoke before one of the largest gatherings ever of priesthood holders in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The number of campers swelled to 6,500 over the weekend from the official registration of 6,100 on Thursday. The Scouts come from 32 LDS stakes in Idaho, Wyoming, Utah and Montana.

Board agrees to settle lawsuit

MOSCOW (AP) — The Idaho Board of Education has agreed to pay $215,000 to settle the final lawsuit stemming from the 1981 dismissals of eight University of Idaho professors who were fired when the UI declared a financial emergency.

The Idaho Supreme Court has since upheld rulings that the board and the school failed to exhaust all other financial options before firing staff when the institution was faced with a mid-year 10 percent budget reduction.

After a closed-door session in Boise Friday, the Board of Education gave its approval without comment to a settlement package worth more than $215,000 to former UI entomology professor Norman Waters of Parma.

Officials reach agreement on Idaho audits

BOISE (AP) — Years of political warfare were laid to rest Monday when "Mr. Democrat" of Idaho, Joe Williams, and Republican Senate President Pro Tem James Risch signed an agreement on how Idaho would conduct audits of state operations.

The pact gives Williams, who has served as a state official longer than anyone else in Idaho history, some control of the post-audit functions. It also specifies how state agencies spent their money and adhered to state law.

"This is a rather historic occasion," said Risch, noting that it ended about 27 years of hantling over who should control the audits.

The whole reason for all this is political," said Williams, 84, who has announced this term, his eighth, will be his last.

He was elected auditor in 1958, taking office in 1959. Legislation that year clarified that the state auditor is the official to conduct post-audit functions.

Williams said sometimes, the Republicans have used those audits for political reasons, and in the future, he would use his veto power to stop such activities.

But really, Williams said, he hopes the agreement settles the dispute.

"It should be a lasting agreement," he said.

Several other officials still have to sign the agreement approved by Risch and Williams on Monday.

"Among other things, it specifies that in the future, there will be no question of the legislative auditor auditing the offices of state officials. If an official consents to an audit, an outside Certified Public Accounting Firm will be hired."

Elected officials shouldn't be auditing other officials," said Williams. "This puts the issue to rest."

Risch said the 1986 Supreme Court ruling wasn't as definitive as it might have been, but since then, Williams and Republican leaders have been negotiating an agreement "in the best interests of the people of Idaho," he said.

The Legislature likes to see how state money is spent. Risch said, but the court ruling specifies that the Idaho Constitution clearly gives the elected state auditor authority to do audits.

Williams said the court ruling was very important to resolving the matter to his satisfaction, and Risch said it was "clarity" to reaching agreement.

As an example of how audits can be used politically, Williams said in the middle 1970s, he used his office computer to prepare a mailing list for the Idaho Diabetic Association. When the legislative auditor uncovered that fact in an audit, he went to the attorney general and local prosecutor in an attempt to file criminal charges against Williams.

"This never would have happened all this time," said Williams.

But Williams finally won a favorable Idaho Supreme Court ruling in 1986. Since then, he and legislative leaders have been negotiating on the agreement signed Monday.

The legislative auditing operation has grown and it takes a $1.9-million annual budget and conducts a detailed inspection of 10 to 12 agencies per year.

Williams said sometimes, the Republicans have used those audits for political reasons, and in the future, he would use his veto power to stop such activities.

But really, Williams said, he hopes the agreement settles the dispute.

"Among other things, it specifies that in the future, there will be no question of the legislative auditor auditing the offices of state officials. If an official consents to an audit, an outside Certified Public Accounting Firm will be hired."

Elected officials shouldn't be auditing other officials," said Williams. "This puts the issue to rest."

Risch said the 1986 Supreme Court ruling wasn't as definitive as it might have been, but since then, Williams and Republican leaders have been negotiating an agreement "in the best interests of the people of Idaho," he said.

The Legislature likes to see how state money is spent. Risch said, but the court ruling specifies that the Idaho Constitution clearly gives the elected state auditor authority to do audits.

Williams said the court ruling was very important to resolving the matter to his satisfaction, and Risch said it was "clarity" to reaching agreement.

As an example of how audits can be used politically, Williams said in the middle 1970s, he used his office computer to prepare a mailing list for the Idaho Diabetic Association. When the legislative auditor uncovered that fact in an audit, he went to the attorney general and local prosecutor in an attempt to file criminal charges against Williams.

Williams said sometimes, the Republicans have used those audits for political reasons, and in the future, he would use his veto power to stop such activities.

But really, Williams said, he hopes the agreement settles the dispute.

"It should be a lasting agreement," he said.

Several other officials still have to sign the agreement approved by Risch and Williams on Monday.

Reagan administration missed chance to mark watershed

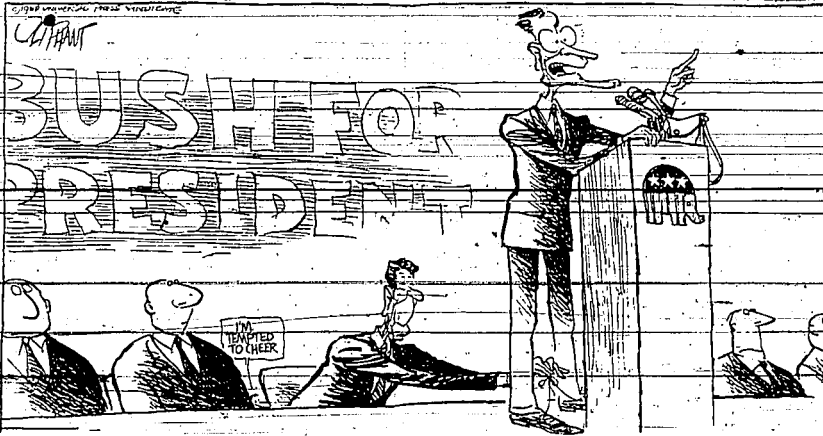

With Ronald Reagan's presidency almost over, American conservatives are having hard second thoughts about the "Reagan Revolution" and the realignment that wasn't. One reason for that is simple. Like Americans in general, conservatives tend to be impatient. Knowing that there are Twelve Labors to be performed, they begin to complain when their hero is stopped at Labor No. 5, protesting, alas, that he is no Hercules. But conservatives also are beginning to reflect on how some of the Reagan administration's own policies may have set back the conservative cause.

Charles R. Kesler

In the first place, there is the fecklessness of our foreign policy, particularly in regard to the Soviet Union. The spectacle of Reagan embracing the general secretary of the Communist Party in the middle of Red Square was bad enough. When that is coupled with Reagan's repeated refusal to blame the communist system for the Soviet Union's cruel limitations on emigration — he chalked them up to the dilatory habits of bureaucracy, much the same on this side as on that side of the Iron Curtain — it becomes clear that the Moscow summit represented a new setback for the cause of principled anti-communism.

The problem is not that Reagan has given away the store. In fact, he has avoided the worst treaty traps that the Soviets have set for him. The problem is that his administration has helped to lay the rhetorical groundwork for the next round of bad treaties — and in the process, unilaterally disarmed Republicans of the anti-communist issue.

On the domestic scene, not a single item of the right's social agenda has been enacted in this administration.

THE LAST TEMPTATION OF RONALD REAGAN

If any progress is to be made on abortion, the role of religion in public life, affirmative action and the like, it will have to come from the federal courts.

More significantly, the right's social agenda has always been removed from, and sometimes in conflict with, its libertarian or economic agenda. Composed of at least two discordant parts, the conservative movement has been held together by its common enemies, by its anti-communism and anti-liberalism. But the decisive argument linking morality and freedom — the common understanding that could positively unite the two camps — has been lacking. Years ago, a prominent conservative editor told me that as a conservative he knew what he was against, but wasn't sure what he was for. That is the conservative dilemma.

That uncertainty about the grounds of its own convictions hobbled the administration's efforts to build a Republican majority. Doubtless that is a strange claim, considering that the Reagan ticket won two landslide victories and the GOP captured control of the Senate for six years. But when the cheering stopped, when the president's popularity filtered, when hard choices had to be made, there was often an awkward silence, a moment of hesitation, a shiver of self-doubt.

Consider, for example, the federal budget. Rather than force Congress to make difficult and partisan choices about spending, the administration has sought compromise after compromise, lately through the improbable mechanisms of Gramm-Rudman. The fiscal result has been that even though tax revenues have grown, spending has so far exceeded them that the federal budget is deeply in deficit. Even worse, entitlement programs continue to swell while the defense budget, perhaps Reagan's best achievement, has ground to a halt. In fact, it has been reversed. Real expenditures on defense have fallen for four consecutive years.

When pressed for a way out of the budget mess, Reagan has not insisted that the Congress act responsibly, instead of calling for the assertion of Republican control over the House and Senate, he has proposed a series of constitutional amendments requiring a balanced budget and granting the president a line-item veto.

In effect, he has sought legal and administrative, not political, solutions to inherently political problems. The line-item veto would not require Congress, and hence the country, to make fundamental political choices about what we wish to do and about what kind of people we wish to be. On the contrary, it would avoid such questions by making the budget even more of an insiders' game than it is already.

The Reagan administration's many policy successes should not and will not blind conservatives to the fact that it threw away the chance to mark a watershed, a real turning point in American politics. The lesson that this administration forgot is as old as Moses, who found that before the children of Israel would keep the tablets of law, he had to break them on the ground — reminding the Israelites that they could not worship both God and the golden calf; that they had to choose; that in fact they had already been chosen by a just but jealous God.

The critical failure of the Reagan administration was that it never persuaded itself, much less the American people, that a time for choosing had come.

Letters/Dorm incident coverage, 'Last Temptation' provoke reader comments

Parents should talk with sons

I am responding to your editorial on Aug. 12 concerning the CSI Dorm incident. In paragraph ten you wrote: "It is also our guess that the reported incident resulted in at least a few gentle conversations this week in homes around the community between parents and their daughters."

It struck me as biased to suggest that this incident may have encouraged parents to talk just with their daughters.

It seems logical to me that parents also may be encouraged to talk with their sons. Sexual values are not just the responsibility of females, but are equally shared by males. In this particular incident, it appears the male was legally responsible due to his age.

Females have long been burdened with the idea that sexual limits and values are their responsibility. In the past, if the female did not say no, then the male was considered foolish to not "take what he could get."

Hopefully attitudes are changing. It seems that both males and females need to be encouraged to take responsibility for their own actions.

A touch of sensationalism

We have subscribed to The Times-News for 21 years and have rarely disagreed with the format. However, within the past several months we've noticed a subtle change in the reporting of the Magic Valley news.

In our opinion the front page headline of Aug. 10 "Officers probing sex allegations against Blocker" with picture, went beyond subtlety. It smacks of blatant sensationalism with underpines of racism beneath the guise of journalism.

A newspaper has the ethic and moral obligation to set the standard for the community. In our opinion you are abusing that obligation and have insulted your readers integrity. You can do better.

Controversy a bit outrageous

I consider the controversy over "The Last Temptation of Christ" a bit outrageous, don't you? For a while now many "Bible thumpers" have been arguing about the viewing of this movie. Don't you all think it's become a little out of hand?

I am a religious person. I haven't been to church in quite a while, which I do regret. All the same, I would like to see this show. From it we could all learn a great deal about ourselves and others. We might also learn about Christ.

If Christ was not subject to temptation, then He must not have been a human. But in the Bible, it distinctly states that our Savior was human. And if He was human, then he was a possibility for temptation.

I am not, however, it may seem, saying that Christ sinned, for I do not actually know. I am saying that He could have if He had wanted to. This movie is simply a Hollywood production

Time to vote for Democrats

Why is Senator McClure so steamed over the ability of the Democrats to keep the FBI offices in Butte rather than move them to Salt Lake City? If Idaho had some Democratic senators maybe we could get something going here.

Do we like Utah more than Montana? Sure we do because Utah is the home of dear Sen. Orrin Hatch. Jim and Orrin are closer than two coats of paint. In fact we need McClure and Symms out to pasture and simply give our votes to Hatch.

So long as we insist on sending these "out of step" arch-conservative, Neanderthal type people back to Washington it's a sure thing that nothing constructive is going to happen for Idaho. This year it's time to vote for the Democrats.

Lottery vote not necessary

I would like to offer the following corrections to Bill Bozuto's letter of Aug. 12 supporting the proposed Idaho state lottery:

1) Idaho is not "surrounded by gaming states" as Mr. Bozuto suggests. The Idaho-Nevada border runs through the most sparsely settled region of the state, and Twin Falls is Idaho's only sizeable community with even relatively easy access to Nevada gambling.

2) Mr. Bozuto suggests that an Idaho lottery will "stop the flow of money which goes out of state already, when people cross the state line to purchase tickets." This is a common pro lottery argument, but it is not true. Very few Idahoans buy out-of-state lottery tickets. The number would actually increase with an Idaho lottery as more Idaho compulsive gamblers play for the bigger prizes neighboring states will always offer.

Useless land does have price

Hey, Ebnubbydoo! I don't see how you can be so sure to sell? Like how about for $2,500 an acre, for 80 acres. (That is $200,000.00, son.) Sure end, the Idaho State Highway is looking an ready to buy. Want to install a 50-year, (or longer), rock-crusher/gravel plant.

It raises heck with property values, destroys an area's potential for tourism, makes it a less desirable place to live, thus, alright, alright cut it will save the state money having to haul gravel from some other location.

That's all that is important, money. The people homes near the proposed plant, the health of the people in the area, (mostly elderly), the efforts of the local Chamber of Commerce, all unimportant. Unimportant compared to the money some dude is gonna get for some good land.

'Standing tall' atop IOUs

A resident of Hailey has recently praised the Reagan administration in glowing terms while calling for the November election of George Bush; the presumption is that a Bush presidency would evolve into an extension of Reagan's policies (this despite the fact that it was Bush who coined the phrase "voodoo economics" a short eight years ago).

The Hailey writer cited Reagan's huge successes in reducing inflation and unemployment and in boosting up the nation's defense capability. Apparently he has not had the opportunity to read David Stockman's book.

Ronald Reagan had as much to do with reducing inflation as Warren Harding (or Richard Nixon) had to do with restoring ethics to American government.

Paul Volcker and the Federal Reserve Board reversed the inflationary trend with a tight money policy which the Reagan administration fought every inch of the way.

Care can avoid a tragedy

When the picture of the crumpled bicycle on the Boise street was on TV and in the paper, what a pity the little boy's crumpled body was not taken beside it so some of these negligent parents and their kids could see what could happen when kids run through stop signs and stop lights.

The kids hump over the handle bars and go racing through the signs and lights like bullets, not taking either way. Their safety is entirely up to the motorist.

Now that school is starting, you parents

As for unemployment, the labor force grew at a rate of about 3 percent during the 70's, only about 1.5 percent during the 80's. Even so, many of those millions of Americans who found a "job" under Reagan are frying hamburgers or delivering pizzas; others are toiling at 27-hour-a-week "positions" in "reorganized" supermarkets and variety stores. But the rust-belt steelworkers who lost jobs to overseas labor pools are still waiting for something to "trickle down."

When Reagan took office, world arsenals were sufficient to annihilate the human race 15 times over. Today, thanks to our "defense" spending, we can now kill everybody 30 times.

We can all sleep soundly in the knowledge that we are more secure today than in 1980. Moreover, as a fringe benefit, a spinoff from the massive arms business, street gangs in L.A. have been able to replace their old obsolete zip guns with UZIs. Now there's progress.

The Reagan years have produced a national debt of $2.6 trillion, which figures out to about 60 grand dollars for every man, woman and child in the country; additionally, household or consumer debt has surpassed $3 trillion, and business debt has surpassed $4 trillion. It would appear that we have been living a little too high on the hog, both publicly and privately.

As a registered Democrat, I too would like to urge area voters to vote for George Bush. No Democrat, least of all Mike Dukakis, deserves to inherit this mess. There can only be one final chapter in this disaster-in-the-making, and when it comes, far better to have a Republican in the oval office than otherwise.

The gentleman from Hailey calls for a "going away" present for Ronald Reagan in the form of a Bush victory, and invokes that ridiculous cliché, "standing tall." He's absolutely correct — Reagan should get precisely what he deserves — recognition as the most inept bungler ever to occupy the White House, and a place in history right up there with such rickety funding and U.S. Grant. Everyone appears to be "standing tall" while perched atop a two-foot pile of IOUs.

Watch cleverly baited hook

The people of the United States are being subjected to a massive propaganda barrage designed to convince us that communism has changed. With our own nation's media carrying the bait, and with President Reagan lending his considerable influence, the attitudes being planted would have us believe that communists are (1) moving away from communism toward capitalism; (2) opening up their iron-clad grip on the political process; (3) relaxing their brutal suppression of Afghanistan and other occupied nations; (4) taking steps toward disarmament; and (5) easing the process of emigration for the USSR's dissidents.

If all of these steps are truly being taken, or taken for the right reasons, we would be among the first to applaud. But our long years of studying publicity that has been issued by and created for communism, combined with plenty of evidence that the supposed "new communism" is merely the same old treachery with a new face, forces us not only to hold the applause, but to warn fellow citizens to avoid a cleverly baited hook.

The current flood of propaganda clearly serves long-standing conspiracy goals, first to merge the U.S. and USSR, and then to lead nations into an all-powerful world government. Americans who swallow all of this claptrap about the USSR, Red China, Gorbachev, and a great deal more are either fools, opportunists seeking temporary self-aggrandizement, or downright conspirators.

Much of what is being dished out to Americans today, both as it relates to matters of national or international concern, can be characterized as "merger mania."

The economically straggled USSR will certainly get a boost if Congress passes its new sanctions against South Africa. The bills now being considered will ban all U.S. exports and imports with the long exception being strategic minerals. These can be purchased from South Africa if there is no alternative source.

The only other place our trade obtains many of these important minerals is the Soviet Union, which is a perfectly satisfactory alternative to those pushing for sanctions against anti-Communist South Africa. The result will enable the Soviets to obtain hard currency, and it will also make the United States being considered will ban all U.S. exports and imports with the long exception being strategic minerals. These can be purchased from South Africa if there is no alternative source.

Merger Mania must be exposed for what it clearly is: deadly treachery to our nation and the cause of freedom.

5,000 worshipers await miracle

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — More than 5,000 pilgrims braved heat in the 90s and camped under beach umbrellas Monday to recite the rosary in hopes of a miracle.

Thousands of worshipers began dragging lawn chairs, coolers and blankets during the morning to stake out a spot for an evening outdoor-Mass of the Feast of the Assumption. Monday was the Catholic feast of the ascension of the Virgin Mary into heaven.

By early afternoon, Lubbock Police Col. Ray Huffman estimated the crowd at St. John Newman Catholic Church at more than 5,000. It continued to grow afterward.

The charismatic pilgrim in West Texas attracted national attention after three parishioners began reporting receiving messages from the Virgin Mary this spring.

The three, Mike Siate, Mary Constanckin and Theresa Werner, had said Mary promised miracles on her holy day. However, pastor Monsignor Joseph James said Mary has since told the messengers no messages would come Monday.

"She said this is her day and she will be with us and there won't be any messages," James said.

Phones rang almost constantly in the church office, where volunteers fielded questions from people planning to attend the service. Hundreds of callers requested prayers of healing, said parishioner Ron Tymmel.

On the grounds, parish members and priests laid hands on the pilgrims and prayed. Scores lined up in the noonday sun to recite their confession while others murmured in unison as the rosary was said in Spanish and English. About 50 Vietnamese immigrants from Houston prayed in their own language.

Hundreds of people in wheelchairs and walkers settled on the grassy hillside beneath a 60-foot-long altar built atop the church office.

"I heard that Mary's crown was spinning on the statue inside the church last night, so I believe anything can happen," said Marilyn Oliver as she stepped off a bus with 43 other Catholics from East Texas.

Car pollution worsening, report says

BOSTON (AP) — Automobile-related air pollution, the main cause of ozone smog that makes urban air unhealthy, is getting worse because of an inadequate federal emissions program, concludes a report issued Monday.

Under the Reagan administration, standards for controlling harmful automobile emissions have been steadily reduced, causing alarming pollution levels that will increase if more stringent regulations are not quickly imposed, the report said.

"Unless we deal with the problems now, we are not going to see clean air in our life-time any better than it is today," said Dan Greenbaum, commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

"The federal government has not taken the role it should to control automobile emissions and in general has not taken a strong stand," he said.

The report was prepared for the Northeast States for Coordinated Air Use Management to determine how effectively the Environmental Protection Agency's auto emissions testing programs is meeting the goals set by the Clean Air Act.

The report concludes that the testing program does not meet emission control standards set by Congress because it does not reflect actual driving conditions. Conditions such as cold temperatures, low speeds, high speeds, rapid acceleration, idling and heavy loads are not taken into account in vehicle tests.

"The EPA's current (testing) program is to the advantage of the automobile," said Michael Bradley, executive director of the Air Use Management group. He said auto pollution and evaporating gasoline are responsible for about 60 percent of the ozone problem.

The report recommends a better testing program for new cars taking actual driving conditions into account, tougher tailpipe standards and a larger budget for testing.

Many states have individual inspection and maintenance regulations but the report indicated that such state programs are not enough and must be backed up by stronger federal standards.

California has tougher standards than those set by the federal government because of the number of cars bought in the state.

Error ties up $1.2 billion in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1.2 billion mathematical error by the Reagan administration, in calculating the size of next year's federal deficit, could spark a fight with Congress when lawmakers return to the capital next month.

The mistaken estimate, which under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law cannot be rectified, is preventing the spending of $1.2 billion at a time when legislators are struggling to decide which of several spending bills to pass.

The White House Office of Management and Budget estimates that spending bills for fiscal 1989 passed by Congress so far leave the government with a deficit of about $144.2 billion.

Under the Gramm-Rudman law, if next year's deficit surpasses $146 billion, there will be automatic spending cuts of at least $10 billion.

But OMB officials confirmed that they have pointed out to lawmakers that their estimate of the deficit was in error and should have been $143 billion.

"We don't know," OMB spokeswoman Barbara Clay said when asked how the error occurred.

Some Democrats said that with increasing pressures to spend money on various programs, lawmakers may have to consider raising legislation that would free up the $1.2 billion.

"If it's an error and does not reflect in fact where we stand, it's an option that should be considered," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., who is expected to become chairman of the House Budget Committee next year.

Service for Rep. Udall's wife set for next week

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) — A memorial service is planned next week for Ella Bayston Udall, the wife of Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz.

Udall found his wife's body Saturday in the front seat of her automobile parked in the family garage in McLean, Va., according to Fairfax County Police spokesman Warren Carmichael.

Funeral arrangements were private at the request of the family, according to Blair Adams, a funeral home spokesman. Mrs. Udall, 59, will be buried in Leesburg.

A memorial service will be held Aug. 22 at the First Baptist Church of Washington in the District of Columbia.

Police said they were investigating the death as a possible suicide from carbon monoxide poisoning. Autopsy results were not available Sunday, police said.

Light penalty recommended

Joint chiefs' chairman to concur with report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is likely to concur with the minor disciplinary recommendation contained in an investigative report on the shutdown of an Iranian airliner by the USS Vincennes, defense officials said Monday.

The report, in its current form, recommends the light penalty of a non-punitive letter of censure for the guided-missile cruiser's operations officer, said the officials, who insisted on anonymity.

That officer, Gen. Robert Crowe, would be reprimanded for his role in misinterpreting radar data and leading the Vincennes' skipper, Capt. Will C. Rogers, that the ship was about to be attacked by an Iranian fighter.

Rogers and other crew members would not face any disciplinary action, even though investigators concluded the Iranian airliner was shot down primarily through human error aboard the ship, the sources said. All 290 people aboard the Iran-Air A-300 Airbus died in the July 3 incident.

Adm. William J. Crowe, the chairman of the joint chiefs, received the investigative report a week ago and will forward the document to Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci soon, the sources said.

Crowe has the prerogative of changing the report's recommendations before they are presented to Carlucci, but that doesn't look like it's going to happen, said one official.

"It's hard, because 290 people died. But the Vincennes was on a wartime footing and just coming out of combat when this happened. No system is perfect in war," the official said.

Carlucci, as the final reviewing authority, may accept or reject Crowe's findings.

The recommendation that only one officer be disciplined in the incident was first reported Sunday by The Washington Post, which said disciplinary officer faced a letter of reprimand.

However, defense officials said Monday that the recommendation involved a non-punitive letter of censure, which is a lighter penalty than a letter of reprimand because it won't become an official part of the officer's service record.

The sources also said the special board of inquiry that investigated the incident had not originally recommended any disciplinary action at all.

The recommendation for a letter of censure was inserted by Gen. George B. Crist, the head of the U.S. Central Command, before he forwarded the report to Crowe, the sources said.

Two weeks ago, defense officials disclosed the board of inquiry headed by Rear Adm. William N. Fogarty had concluded the Vincennes attacked and destroyed the Airbus because of human mistakes made under the stress of combat.

Because of the mistakes, Capt. Rogers believed his ship had survived its first combat action with Iranian gunboats only to confront an approaching, "hostile" Iranian F-14 jet fighter, the sources said.

There was no evidence the Aegis radar system aboard the cruiser malfunctioned or that it presented technical data to justify the "hostile" classification, the sources added.

Despite the suspension, the fraternity will recruit members during rush week, which begins Tuesday on this campus where it was formed in 1856. It has 210,000 members nationally and many prominent alumni in this state.

With this going on, who knows how many pledges we will have?" said Bill Smibert, a Tualoosa attorney and SAE member who heads an alumni board set up to direct the chapter about 1 1/2 years ago.

Also on Tuesday, authorities have scheduled an arraignment for three of the four arrested: Chandler Eskridge, 21, of Prattville; William Dodd Roberts Jr., 21, of Memphis, Tenn.; and John Barnett Jr., a junior from Atlanta.

The three were indicted on charges of selling cocaine, said District Attorney Charles Freeman. The case against a fourth student was closed after a grand jury refused to return an indictment.

Two of the four were removed from the fraternity and two were suspended pending the outcome of the case.

Utility files report valves at plant tampered with

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Power Co. has notified the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the FBI that valves at the utility's Clinton-Nuclear Power Station have apparently been tampered with.

Plant officials made the report after noticing a "slightly" increased flow of water over a two-day period from a steam condenser to a drainage tank, said utility spokesman Jim McDonald.

"We determined that five valves had been opened," he said, adding that the system is governed by thousands of valves. "We don't think that could have happened unless somebody opened those valves."

He said that in terms of the plant's operation, the incident was negligible.

He acknowledged that Illinois Power is involved in labor talks with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, but said it would be irresponsible to infer that any possible tampering could be connected with the talks.

Past differences forgotten as Republicans sing praises of Bush

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It wasn't too long ago that they were a pack of bickering rivals, six would-be presidents sniping and squabbling in public over who could best lead the Republicans to victory in November.

George Bush was most often the target of the other five, who never hesitated to list his shortcomings.

But all that is forgotten now, as Bob Dole, Jack Kemp, Alexander Haig, Pat Dugan and Pat Robertson join the Republicans' convention this week in singing Bush's praises.

While Bush is the undisputed star of the GOP unity fest, the other five are no means shrinking violets during the week's activities.

Two are busily keeping themselves at the front of the vice-presidential sweepstakes; three will be prominently featured in prime-time slots at the convention, and all five are making the rounds with delegate speeches, media interviews and receptions in their honor.

Each of the former candidates was in an spot to address the convention hall, du Pont and Haig shortly after the opening.

and the process I enjoyed what I was doing, I'd love to still be doing it. But George was a little stronger this year.

Du Pont, in an eloquent version of the message he has been delivering since his diurnal showing in the primaries, said Democrats are looking to the policies of yesterday while Bush and the Republicans are willing to explore, examine and put new ideas to work.

"You have to feel a little wistful," the former Delaware governor said in an interview when asked about seeing Bush dine as our party has ever put forward.

"We're in New Orleans to unify our party, to endorse our worthy nominee George Bush," he told the delegates Monday.

Haig, the former secretary of state who has served under seven presidents, said he will join Bush's surrogate speaking team and "do everything I can to get George Bush elected president."

Haig, who often directed the most pointed bars at Bush during GOP primaries, said in an interview Monday that Bush "is as well qualified a candidate as our party has ever put forward."

Dole, the senator from Kansas and Kemp, the New York congressman, have been dining "around town" from breakfasts to receptions to luncheon speeches to interviews and TV shows.

Both are said to be on Bush's short list as he deliberates who will be his running mate and both have said they would accept the job.

Convention officials plan 4-days of building candidate's image

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — War hero, Family man, National leader.

If those phrases don't bring to mind George Bush, wait until Republican convention officials wind up four days of prime-time image building.

"I'm confident that when all is said and done with this convention, the American people are going to feel very good about George Bush," says convention producer Mark Goode.

Goode derides last month's Democratic convention as "long on platitudes and short on substance" and maintains his own production is not "some sort of Madison Avenue job."

Nevertheless, planners are leaving little to chance in their efforts to highlight what they say is the true nature of their standard-bearer.

"What people will see in their living rooms will be an individual who has very selflessly given himself over many, many years in a variety of public service positions," said Goode. "A very committed husband and father; an experienced public servant; a decorated war hero; and a loyal vice-president who worked very hard behind-the-scenes to help create a lot of the Reagan legacy."

Goode said there will be "an entire host of speeches" about Bush's life and career, including one Wednesday night in Spanish by his Mexican daughter-in-law.

The speeches were honed to consistency with the convention themes. An early podium sample from Max Fisher, a Detroit real estate magnate and chairman of the National Jewish Republican

GEORGE BUSH
Family man, war hero...

12-year-old grandson. He'll lead the Pledge of Allegiance on Tuesday.

Young George's parents — Jeb and Columba Garnica Bush, a native of Leon Guanajuato, Mexico — will be speaking Wednesday. And later that night, during the roll call, son George Jr. will announce from his spot among fellow Texas delegates the 111 votes clinching the nomination for his father.

"To have his son of the same name put him over the top speaks about family and the commitment of our family to work hard for the person we love," George Jr. said in an interview. Bush's five children are all convention delegates.

The Bush presence, a healthy 60 counting cousins, siblings and other relatives, culminates Thursday night with a speech by Barbara Bush, the candidate's wife of 40 years, the Ailes film about Bush, and Bush's acceptance speech.

"What will he say? 'What we are trying to do (in the speech) is have George Bush define where he wants to take the country in the next four years,'" Goode said. He called Bush's plans "very specific."

The best-laid plans of convention organizers are still subject to the whims of the network television executives who determine whether anyone outside of cable viewers actually will see their careful orchestrations.

The Bush film is a key thematic element.

Condition: "He's not only a war hero, he's a peace hero."

Roger Ailes, Bush's masterful media adviser, produced a film about the vice president scheduled for Thursday night. Expect to see lots of frolicking with the grandchildren, underscoring the family man theme.

But don't expect a camera tour of the 11-acre family vention compound on the coast of southern Maine. Advisers reportedly were concerned about showing evidence of Bush's wealth.

Something else viewers won't see: Bush with Ronald Reagan, the near-mythical man from whose shadow he must emerge, Reagan's farewell, with all of its attendant drama and emotion, will be long over as the spotlight shifts to Bush and his family.

The first Bush to mount the podium will be George Prescott Bush, the prospective nominee's

South African army to build electrified fence along border

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The army plans to erect a 14-mile electrified fence along a section of the Botswana border following renewed complaints of guerrilla infiltrations.

Military headquarters said the fence would be built near the Ponder station in far-northern Transvaal, a province north of the border with Mozambique. The fence is to be built in a 14-mile section of the border between South Africa and Botswana.

There have been several encounters in the area between South African security forces and alleged guerrillas of the outlawed African National Congress, including a shootout in which a suspected guerrilla and a policeman were killed.

The government has reiterated charges that Botswana is a major infiltration route for guerrillas entering South Africa to carry out sabotage and bombings.

South Africa two years ago erected an electrified fence along a section of its border with Mozambique, primarily to cut down on the number of Mozambicans entering South Africa illegally. Through February, 46 people had been killed trying to scale the 35-mile, high-voltage fence.

Six people have been killed in contact with a shorter electrified fence.

Soviet inspectors leave West Germany

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A team of Soviet missile experts left Frankfurt on Monday after spending the weekend inspecting U.S. nuclear rocket sites in West Germany, a spokesman for the U.S. Rhein-Main Air Base said.

The Soviet team of 40 inspectors arrived in West Germany on Friday and visited four U.S. nuclear bases on Saturday and Sunday.

The inspections are part of the treaty signed in December by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Under the pact, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to allow on-site inspections of their missile bases to ensure compliance with the terms of the treaty.

The Soviets inspected U.S. Pershing 2 bases at Neu-Ulm and Neckarsulm, both in southern Germany. They also visited a Pershing 2 storage site at Weilerbach, west of Mannheim, and a missile maintenance site in Hausen, a suburb of Frankfurt.

It was the second Soviet on-site inspection in West Germany.

In July, a team of 19 Soviet missile specialists visited a Pershing 2 site in Muttlangen and a cruise missile base in Hesselbach.

There are six bases in West Germany with a total of 220 medium and shorter-range missiles covered by the treaty.

Rangoon quiet after last week's violence

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Rangoon was quiet Monday and Burmese crowded in front of a hospital to search for names of friends and relatives on a list of the casualties in last week's violence, a Western tourist reported.

There were calls for more protest, and Thai officials said Burmese authorities closed a crossing between Thailand's Rangoon province and the market town of Victoria Point in Burma's southernmost province of Megu.

Last week, security forces in Victoria Point, were said to have turned against the authoritarian military government and allowed thousands of protesters to march unhindered.

Analysts said they doubted the new Burmese leadership expected to be chosen Friday will make dramatic changes in the one-party system Ne Win instituted 26 years ago.

Hard-liner Sein Lwin resigned Friday as Burma's president and chairman of the Burma Socialist Program Party after five days of rioting in Rangoon and two dozen other towns and cities across the Southeast Asian nation.

State-run Rangoon radio said the party and legislature would meet on Friday.

Ne Win resigned last month and was replaced by Sein Lwin, whose 47 days in office produced a popular uprising against the quarter-century of repression, economic disaster and isolation.

South Korean police use tear gas to disperse students

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Riot police used tear gas and live bullets Monday to disperse thousands of student protesters trying to march to the border for unification talks with North Korea. At least 1,300 were arrested.

President Roh Tae-woo told the nation his government will not tolerate violent campus protest. He said unchecked student activism would endanger the Olympic Games, which open Sept. 17 in Seoul.

Officers were seen taking away hundreds of protesters who tried to march from Seoul to the border village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of the capital, for talks with North Korean student leaders.

Witnesses saw dozens of protesters and policemen injured but no injury statistics were available. Authorities said they arrested 1,300 students but released many after warnings.

Riot police fired tear gas at Yonsei University in western Seoul and charged into a crowd of students. They kicked protesters, beat them and dragged about 200 away.

In a speech marking the 43rd anniversary of Korea's independence from Japanese colonial rule, Roh said: "We cannot any longer tolerate activities which destroy free democracy, our way of life."

He said the Olympics will bring East and the West together, and "prayers around the world are pressing for the success of the Games. Therefore, the people and the government will not forgive anyone who spoils the festival through mob action or the throwing of firebombs, no matter for what plausible cause."

Roh delivered a similar warning Friday, accusing radical students and dissidents of siding with North Korea and trying to overthrow the government.

In his speech Monday, he also proposed a summit with President Kim Il-Sung of North Korea to discuss the future of the peninsula, which was divided at the end of World War II.

Japanese emperor marks anniversary of World War II

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito told a ceremony marking the anniversary Monday of the end of World War II that his heart still hurts when he thinks of the victims of the war.

In a national radio broadcast 43 years earlier, he urged the Japanese people to accept unconditional surrender to the Allies, following the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. It was the first time that most Japanese ever heard his voice.

Now 87 and the world's longest surviving monarch, Hirohito shuffled slowly Monday to the microphone in front of an altar decorated with thousands of white and yellow chrysanthemums, but spoke in a firm voice.

Today, on the day to honor the war dead and pray for peace, I think of those who died in battle in the last war and their bereaved families, and it still hurts my heart," he said.

"Time flies fast, and in the 43 years since the end of the war, the country has developed due to people's efforts. However, looking back on these days, I have quite profound feelings," he said.

The emperor, the only major wartime leader still alive, underwent surgery last year so doctors could perform a bypass a growth in his pancreas. Since then, he has made few public appearances.

Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, who also attended the government-sponsored ceremony at a large martial arts hall near the Imperial Palace, said Japan should learn from the "noble sacrifice" of those who died in the war, and pledged the country would do all it can to achieve world peace.

About 7,000 people attended the ceremony, including relatives of war victims and Cabinet members.

In cities around Japan, a variety of religious and citizens groups held rallies against war and against visits by Cabinet members to Yasukuni Shrine, a Shinto shrine in Tokyo dedicated to Japan's war dead.

Among the 2.4 million war dead at the shrine, financed by the government until the end of World War II, are 14 major war criminals, including wartime Prime Minister Hideki Tojo.

Israeli defense minister warns of crack down

BUREIJ, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Monday his order confining 650,000 Palestinians to their homes under a military curfew was a clear message that "Israel was cracking down on protesters."

In the occupied West Bank, Israeli troops shot and killed a Palestinian, bringing the Arab death toll in more than eight months of anti-Israeli violence to 245, according to United Nations figures.

The around-the-clock curfew was imposed indefinitely on the seaside strip Sunday evening following a violent weekend in the occupied lands in which three Arabs died. Troops shot and wounded 25 people in Gaza on Sunday, according to Arab reports.

It was only the third time the army had sealed off the Gaza Strip since the uprising began Dec. 8, Rabin said. The curfew, which kept about 50,000 Gazans away from jobs in Israel, would be in effect "as long as it is needed."

Some Israeli sources speculated the move was related not to resurgent violence but to an effort to put economic pressure on the 650,000 residents of Gaza.

In Arab east Jerusalem, Palestinian protesters threw rocks at police and at an Israeli bus.

Lefebvre followers hold procession in Paris streets

PARIS (AP) — Roman Catholics loyal to the Vatican and followers of rebel archbishop Marcel Lefebvre organized competing processions Monday, each attracting about 5,000 faithful to renew France's 500-year-old vow of consecration to the Virgin Mary.

Carrying statues and banners of the Virgin, and chanting "Hail Marys" — the logist group in French, the traditionalists in Latin — the two sets of marchers added color to downtown streets on the Assumption Day holiday, one of the quietest days of the year in France.

Parisians and tourists at sidewalk cafes turned to watch the processions and puffs of incense.

This was the third year of dueling processions on Aug. 15, but the competition was sharpened this year by the recent schism and excommunication of Lefebvre for consecrating bishops without permission from Pope John Paul II.

It also drew added attention because Monday was the 350th anniversary of King Louis XIII's vow of France's loyalty to the Virgin. It is celebrated on Assumption Day, which marks the day Mary was received into heaven.

Kremlin says it won't tolerate more Pakistani aid to guerrillas

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin said Monday it will not tolerate more Pakistani aid to Muslim guerrillas in Afghanistan, who increased pressure on the Soviet-sponsored government by capturing a district near Kabul, the capital.

Foreign Minister Gennadiy Gerasimov said in Pakistan that guerrilla successes in the field may cause the Soviets to rethink their troop withdrawal ahead of the Feb. 15 deadline. He said his forces had captured Shindand.

He said the Soviet government must resolutely declares that the continuation by Pakistan of its obstructionist policy vis-a-vis the Geneva accords on Afghanistan cannot be further tolerated," it said.

Jerome to sever arrangement with sheriff

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The city police and sheriff's department here will soon end part of their joint law enforcement arrangement.

The City Council, which Monday notified the county of the change, is expected to make the split official tonight at its regular twice-monthly meeting.

Specifically, the city plans to move the police department to the old Lincoln Building on South Lincoln, where Councilman Gerald Ostler estimates the department will have about 2,500 feet of space — more than double the existing space. Council had been considering renting the building to the Jerome Chamber of Commerce.

The city will continue its joint dispatching agreement with the county at a cost of $28,946 a year. The city will also pay $30 a day per prisoner to continue using the county jail.

Currently, the police and sheriff departments share dispatchers, office equipment and jail space. Police will be moved out of the courthouse by Oct. 1, according to a letter to the commissioners from the city. A daily rental charge imposed upon the city and county will be paid if the department is not out by that date.

The action was prompted by the county's request two weeks ago that the city begin paying more than the current $53,000 for the joint arrangement.

Some councilmembers and Mayor Ralph Peters said then they were unhappy with the size of the increase. The county suggested the city pay an additional $24,915 to help pay for two new jailers hired in June and begin contributing to the juvenile detention center east of town.

The letter outlining the city's plans was delivered to commissioners during their meeting Monday. It was written following an Aug. 4 city-county work session, after which both city and county officials said they felt a compromise might be possible.

But Ostler said Monday the city has been unhappy with the limited space police had under the joint agreement.

"The problem is not only a financial one," Ostler said. "We are also unhappy about putting up with 1,000 feet of police office space that is downstairs and not easily accessible to the public."

Ostler said the move is not a result of personality conflicts between city and county employees.

County commissioners said they were disappointed the city decided to sever part of the arrangement without pursuing further negotiations after the Aug. 4 work session. The commissioners have said all along the figures given were not firm but were intended as a starting point.

"It was my understanding that the city knew we were willing to negotiate," Commissioner Veronica Lierman said. "It seems to me this will cost both the city and county taxpayers more money."

Ostler said that the new arrangement will not cost city taxpayers any additional money because the city will not increase costs beyond the $53,000 total figure it now is paying to support the joint law enforcement arrangement.

"We are simply trading dollars," Ostler said. Also, the change will not decrease the law enforcement protection in Jerome," he said.

Mayor Ralph Peters and Police Chief Gregory Will are on vacation and unavailable for comment.

Peters earlier told the commissioners the city might not be able to pay an additional $25,000. He said he felt the city should not agree to pay the full increase because city residents already pay county taxes.

HEYBURN — From their navy blue ties to their "French blue"-trimmed trousers to their black leather boots, Heyburn's four police officers are sharp-dressed men.

At least that's the conclusion reached by the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers & Distributors. Last week the association awarded the department Honorable Mention in its annual best-dressed police department competition.

"I really think our uniform program instills pride in our officers and I think they have a good feeling that comes across to the public," said Robert Vasquez, chief of the Heyburn Police Department. "It really enhances our professional image, which means a lot to us."

This was the first year Heyburn entered the 11-year-old competition, whose winners are featured in Law and Order magazine and, occasionally, on the Late Night with David Letterman show.

Letterman, however, has yet to contact anyone in Heyburn's police department about scheduling a shooting date.

"Maybe we should call him instead," quipped Michael Lance, one of the department's three patrol officers.

Vasquez said the department has gradually changed its uniform throughout the years, but settled on its current design about eight years ago. A Utah company supplies the navy blue uniforms, which have a patch of the U.S. flag on one sleeve and a departmental patch on the other.

Jaggers' defense hints suppressing police evidence

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The first-degree murder and attempted-rape trial of 18-year-old Jesse Ray Jaggers probably will be scheduled for December or early January.

Prosecutors have accused Jaggers of slashing 78-year-old Virginia Westergren's throat with a 16-inch knife after forcing her to disrobe in her Twin Falls home. They also have filed a slew of other charges against Jaggers for the May 13 crimes.

At a hearing Monday, a trial schedule was discussed and the possibility that the defense might move to suppress some police evidence was raised.

Deputy Prosecutor Joel Horton said he needed 15 days for trial and suggested trial dates in December or January.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl told lawyers on the case to work their schedules around his trial dates.

"Because of the urgency of this case, the court will have to set a date and counsel will have to work out their conflict," he said.

Meehl set another hearing for Sept. 12 when a trial date will be formally scheduled. He also gave defense attorneys more time to prepare pre-trial motions and to complete psychiatric exams of Jaggers.

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies whisked Jaggers, clad in an orange jail jumpsuit with handcuffs, waist and leg chains, to jail after the suspenseful hearing. Jaggers was a resident of Twin Falls, living at the Cactus Inn at the time of the slaying.

Idaho law requires trials within six months of being formally charged with the crime, which occurs after a magistrate judge orders the defendant to stand trial in district court.

The specter of a challenge to police evidence was raised for the first time at Monday's hearing. Jaggers, who originally was assigned the public defender's office, is now being represented by the law offices of Fuller & Meservy, with attorney James Meservy doing the bulk of the work.

Attorney Dan Mink, who works with Meservy, represented Jaggers at Monday's hearing.

Meservy asked the court late in July for more time to prepare pre-trial motions. At Monday's hearing, Horton said he expected Meservy to ask to suppress some of the evidence police gathered in their investigation.

The defense has been tightly guarded. Jaggers and his attorneys decided against forcing prosecutors to present their case at a preliminary hearing, and prosecutors haven't filed documents saying what evidence they have in court files.

In addition to murder and attempted rape, Jaggers faces charges of robbery, second-degree burglary and three counts of grand theft. He is also charged with three counts of using a deadly weapon while committing a crime.

Prosecutors allege Jaggers forced Westergren to disrobe at knifepoint and tell him where to find money and a Visa card in her home.

Police say Jaggers also stole a 1983 Buick Century and a videocassette recorder from Westergren's husband, Al Virginia Westergren, who was found dead in their home at 460 Buchanan St., across from Mayor Doug Vollmer's house.

Al Westergren, now retired, was a former publisher of The Times-News.

Cause of air crash remains unknown

By MARK PRATTIER

TWIN FALLS — The flaps were lower than expected on a Horizon Air training flight that crashed at Twin Falls Sunday morning at Regional Airport, a pilot-observer on the flight told federal investigators.

But a recently issued National Transportation Safety Board report on the Sept. 24, 1987, accident draws no conclusions about its cause. That information will be available within the next year.

Capt. Randall W. McMoran said he noticed the flap position as he exited the damaged aircraft that crashed in a field at the southeast end of the airport. Part of a wing of the Fairchild Metro III lodged in a 10-foot radio tower after clipping the structure.

Before impact McMoran saw a red light passing by the window and heard a loud bang off the right wing.

McMoran said he didn't recall hearing the position of the flaps read on a before-takeoff checklist, aircraft instruments and systems.

The checklist requires flaps be lowered one-quarter before takeoff, but federal investigators noted the flap control lever was in the one-half position after impact.

Flaps increase takeoff lift on the Fairchild Metro III aircraft. On landing they are used to increase the angle of descent.

Horizon vice president of operations. "We don't know where the flaps were," he said. The flap lever could have been moved by the impact of the crash, Bagley said.

Capt. Paul R. Shephard, the pilot-in-command, was the one-quarter position, Bagley said.

Shephard was receiving his sixth-month proficiency check from Capt. Leslie McClure at the time of the accident. It was Horizon Air's first crash.

Shephard and McMoran received minor injuries. McClure sustained head injuries and underwent brain surgery following the accident. McClure told investigators he could not remember the crash.

The accident occurred shortly after McClure simulated an engine failure on takeoff. Shephard was to demonstrate how to keep the aircraft under control during this emergency.

After McClure reduced power on one of the aircraft's two engines, Shephard said it seemed to take more than normal rudder and aileron pressure to keep the aircraft tracking the centerline of the runway.

During the training flight, McMoran occupied a seat in the cabin just behind the cockpit.

"Shortly after raising the gear, I heard a loud bang from the right wing," McMoran told investigators. "As I looked out the window I saw what I thought to be a red light pass by. The aircraft immediately increased its rate of bank to the right. I looked forward to the cockpit and noticed Leslie McClure looking out the

City passes ordinance increasing sign sizes

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Message centers on signs can now be up to 75 square feet, partly because of hard economic times, Twin Falls city leaders say.

"It wasn't so bad years ago when businesses were getting all the traffic they wanted, but with things as they are today, (sign visibility) has an impact," said Mayor Doug Vollmer.

The council unanimously passed the ordinance amendment recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission that will allow message centers to be up to 75 square feet.

"We've had quite a diversity of opinion especially on the message center and we finally came up with this compromise," said LeMar Orton, director of community development.

Message centers are limited to 50 square feet unless a business' street frontage is greater than 400 feet and then the message center can be up to 75 square feet as the length of frontage increases.

Magic Valley Mall officials have said they want to build a 73 square foot electronic message center.

Until now the amendment message centers were limited to no larger than 25 percent of an entire sign and not more than 50 square feet overall.

The ordinance also allows schools and churches to have message centers by special use permit.

It limits schools to operate the message centers between the hours of 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. unless stipulated in their special use permit.

Councilman Richard Carr said the time limitations are not needed in the amendment if the time can be reset in the special permit hearing. "It means nothing."

"It puts people on notice that the intent is to limit message center time of operation in residential areas," said City Manager Tom Courtney.

The signs at schools can only be illuminated with non-incandescent bulbs. The amendment prohibits message centers at elementary schools.

The ordinance also allows signs to be built larger in general depending on the type of sign and the size of street frontage.

"This is as good an ordinance as we're going to get and I would recommend passing it," said Councilman Arthur Frantz.

He said the biggest opposition to the amendment, which had been tabled twice by PEZ, was early proposals allowing signs to be as big as 100 square feet.

"The planning and zoning commission addressed that," Frantz said.

Council hires director for city development

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A man city officials hope will keep the flow of new businesses and jobs coming to town and strengthen those in existence has been hired.

The Twin Falls City Council Monday approved the appointment of Dave McAlindin of Boise to be the new economic development director. He begins work Sept. 6.

The council also approved a measure to seek a $860,000 federal grant for sewage treatment plant expansion and accepted a $13,000 bid to build a pond at the golf course.

McAlindin is currently the director of development of the Idaho Youth Ranch. He previously served as special assistant to Democratic Gov. John Evans from 1984-87 and was the principal program analyst for the state Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

A panel including Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President Jack Miller, Southern Idaho Economic Development Advisory Council President Roy Raymond, Mayor Doug Vollmer, Personnel Director Susan Harris and Manager Tom Courtney unanimously voted to recommend McAlindin for the post.

McAlindin wrote the Idaho Industrial Revenue Bond Handbook and co-authored Idaho County Profiles.

He has experience in business recruitment, development finance and industrial revenue bonds. He also has conducted numerous statewide "international trade workshops" and the principal contact with the Idaho Department of Agriculture in coordinating international trade and negotiated for the Idaho International Trade Administration office.

McAlindin received a bachelor's degree in political science at Monmouth College in New Jersey.

Also at the meeting, Courtney said the city has passed the first phase in its application to the Economic Development Administration for help in financing a $3.5 million wastewater treatment plant.

He said the city has a good chance of getting the grant now that the application has passed the preliminary stage.

"It's a matter of us meeting the requirements," Courtney said.

The project is designed to increase the city's waste treatment capacity by 50 percent. It will be done by building an anaerobic treatment facility near United-Frozen Foods. UFF requires 70 percent of the city treatment plant's biological

Rural counties struggle with juveniles jail law

BOISE, (AP) — Idaho's financially strapped rural counties are struggling to get juveniles out of their jail by December 31.

But one official predicted it will cause a jump in the number of juveniles placed in the county's 40-bed juvenile detention center by surrounding counties. He said he expects the numbers to rise from an average of 16 per day to nearly two dozen.

Elsewhere in the state, the deadline is proving much more troublesome. Fifteen eastern Idaho counties are in the process of contracting to place juvenile offenders in an expanded Idaho State Youth Services Center in St. Anthony, starting in the fall. In the meantime, some of them will be housing juveniles in the former Fremont County Jail.

In the Panhandle, where no juvenile facility exists, counties are studying a similar regional pooling arrangement. But officials say they need state funding. A private juvenile center in Jerome, which opened a year and a half ago, is gearing up to handle additional demand anticipated from surrounding counties. Currently, three-quarters of the 40-bed American National Detention Center Inc. facility is unoccupied, according to state licensing officials.

As a result, Sheriff's Capt. Roy Holloway said there will be "no impact at all" in Ada County. But one official predicted it will cause a jump in the number of juveniles placed in the county's 40-bed juvenile detention center by surrounding counties. He said he expects the numbers to rise from an average of 16 per day to nearly two dozen.

Soviet arrives to witness nuclear test

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (AP) — A high-ranking Soviet diplomat arrived at the secret Nevada Test Site on Monday as the countdown continued to Wednesday's historic joint U.S.-Soviet nuclear weapons test.

Igor M. Palenych, who headed the Soviet delegation during the arms control talks in Geneva, was taken to the remote desert site 65 miles from Las Vegas, where final preparations are under way for a test that will mark a milestone in the atomic age.

Palenych's arrival was not announced in advance. The nuclear test, known officially as the Joint Verification Experiment, comes nearly four years after President Reagan first proposed such a project in a speech to the United Nations. It is designed to measure each country's ability to monitor the size of the other's test. Verification could lead to ratification of treaties limiting the size of nuclear tests, which were signed in 1974 and 1976 but never ratified.

Scientists from the United States and the Soviet Union will be measuring the explosive punch of a thermo-nuclear device encased in a steel canister buried 2,050 feet beneath a picturesque mesa.

The canister, painted red, white and blue, is 8 feet tall, 88 inches in diameter, and weighs 7 1/2 tons. Soviet scientists were allowed to look at the canister, but only after the nuclear device had been sealed inside. While the test will measure the size of a blast, it is not directly related to a possible test ban. However, scientists and diplomats say Wednesday's experiment is a crucial first step. Energy Department spokesman Chris West said Palenych's counter-part at the Geneva talks, U.S. Ambassador C. Paul Robinson, is scheduled to arrive at the test site this week.

"The weather looks good and from a technical standpoint, everything's in place," West said Monday afternoon. "We're just making last minute checks and double-checks. Both sides want to make sure it goes like clockwork."

Robinson, who helped forge the historic agreement, called the test unprecedented and said it was the result of a "breakthrough in negotiations."

Idahoan receives POW medal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho's first Prisoner-of-War Medal will be presented to Boise resident Edgar Jensen, who was held captive by the Germans in World War II, Congressman Larry Craig has announced.

Jensen was expected to receive the medal from Craig Tuesday at Boise's Veterans' Park. Jensen was serving in the U.S. Air Force when he was shot down near the Austrian Alps and held prisoner in Nuremberg, Germany for about three months.

Spending a year in the hospital and undergoing a double amputation, he was awarded two Purple Heart medals. Jensen attained the rank of staff sergeant.

The Prisoner of War Medal is the first presented in Idaho, and Edgar Jensen is a very worthy recipient, Craig said. The award was authorized by Congress for anyone who served honorably as a prisoner of war after April 5, 1917.

Police arrest man in church break-in TWIN FALLS — For Robert Peace — a police officer responding to a reported church break-in late Sunday night — opening the pastor's office door was like stumbling into the intermission of a bad puppet show.

Upon the desk were two dirty socks, mismatched from having been used as gloves. Under the desk, hidden from the police officer's view, was one Gerald Shane McConnell, according to police reports.

McConnell, 23, of Twin Falls, was arrested shortly after midnight at the Church of the Nazarene, according to police reports. He was charged Monday.

Nothing was reported stolen. According to police reports, the quick arrival — triggered by a phone-in burglar alarm — prevented the burglar from absconding with any property.

between the United States and the Soviet Union. The test will mark the first time nuclear scientists from either country have been allowed on the other's highly sensitive test sites. As many as 45 Soviets will be on the secret Nevada Test Site to monitor Wednesday's blast, scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT.

A like number of U.S. scientists, who conduct nuclear testing programs for the U.S. and Great Britain, will be on hand for a Soviet test at Semipalatinsk sometime next month. On Wednesday, the two superpowers will be testing their own monitoring systems. The United States will be using a system known as COR.

day with first-degree burglary, and bail was set at $1,500.

The socks, labeled as white and dirty, were seized as evidence. Police believe McConnell wore them on his hands while breaking into the church, police reports said.

The burglar entered the church by throwing a brick through a window and then stepping onto an upside-down trash can to reach the opening, according to police reports.

Nothing was reported stolen. According to police reports, the quick arrival — triggered by a phone-in burglar alarm — prevented the burglar from absconding with any property.

RTX — continuous reflectometry for radius versus time experiment — which determines the yield of a nuclear explosion by measuring the shock waves from the blast.

The Soviets will be testing similar systems to see if they obtain the same data. The data for both sides will be recorded in trailers hundreds of yards from the blast. No one will be allowed within 15 miles, except for helicopter-mounted site with television cameras.

Soviet and American scientists, along with selected reporters, will monitor the blast from a control point 30 miles away.

Systems to measure the size of an explosion are considered a key in ratifying the 1974 Threshold Test Ban Treaty and the 1976 Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty. Both limit nuclear tests to 150 kilotons and both sides have accused the other of exceeding those limits.

The Soviet scientists are based at Mercury, a tiny community on the remote desert-test site. They are allowed to move around at will in Mercury, but are taken under escort to all other areas of the test site.

Public comment sought on waste

BOISE (AP) — Public comment is being sought on a proposal by Environmental Services of Idaho to store toxic waste at its Grand View dump on a permanent basis.

Environmental Services currently receives hazardous waste on an interim permit. It seeks a final permit to store such chemicals as pesticides and acids.

An informational meeting into the permit is scheduled for Sept. 15th at Rimrock High School near Bruneau. A public hearing will hold there on Sept. 29.

Written comment will be accepted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or the state Division of Environmental Quality.

Advertisement: RINGING UP HIGH NUMBERS. There is no question that the breakup of the large telephone conglomerates has benefited mostly everyone. Competition has fostered the production of a wide variety of phones, many of which have sophisticated features.

With the proper use of these phones, Cordless phones, in particular, may pose the risk of partial hearing loss if they are used incorrectly. Many of those phones have their ringer located in the earpiece. If a person fails to switch from "standby" to "talk" mode, the phone will ring directly into his ear. Some of those phones ring at sound levels exceeding 120 decibels. Even a short ring at this level is enough to cause a partial hearing loss.

Loud noises, both at home and on the job, can damage your hearing. This concern is presented as a community service by HEARING AID COUNSELORS, 1038 Blue Cross Blvd., N. (733-0601). Dozen jolts hit Utah on Monday

PRICE, Utah (AP) — A dozen or more aftershocks, the largest measuring 3.5 magnitude on the Richter scale, rumbled through central Utah Monday, the day after three earthquakes jolted the region. On Sunday, a series of earthquakes rocked central Utah and western Colorado, triggering rockslides, causing minor property damage and startling Utahans as far north as Salt Lake City. No injuries were reported.

The epicenter of Sunday's shakers was placed 34 miles south of Price in the San Rafael Swell area. As of 9 a.m. MDT, eight aftershocks were recorded by the University of Utah Seismograph Stations in Salt Lake City, and several more — none larger than 3.1 magnitude — occurred later in the day. U of U seismologist Jim Pechmann said an exact count of aftershocks Monday was unavailable.

The largest of Monday's aftershocks occurred at 8:50 a.m., said the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo. No injuries or property damage were reported. The NEIC said the tremors should taper off by mid-week, but Pechmann said it was too early to say when the aftershocks would end. "They may (taper off by mid-week), but they could go on for weeks or even months," he said. On Sunday, the quakes began with a 12:59 p.m. MDT foreshock that measured 3.5 magnitude. The third quake was measured as 5.4 magnitude by the University of Utah Seismograph Stations, but Dr. Robert Smith said the slight variance in readings was due to technical differences between Richter scale monitors used by the university and NEIC.

1 dead in 2-car wreck in northern Idaho

BOISE (AP) — A Caldwell man is dead and another man is in critical condition following a two-car accident near Worley in northern Idaho. The driver of the Volkswagen was killed at about 2:30 p.m. MDT Saturday when a Volkswagen apparently ran a stop sign at the intersection of U.S. 95 and Highway 58, and struck Barnes' vehicle broadside, Idaho State Police Cpl. Marshall Thompson said. The driver of the Volkswagen, identified Antonio Pavezlah or

Judge considers delaying waste-to-energy plan

SPOKANE (AP) — A Spokane County Superior Court judge is to hear arguments Tuesday on whether he should delay progress on a proposed $120-million waste-to-energy project while environmental issues are settled. Attorneys for Citizens for Clean Air will try to convince Judge Marcus Kelly that an environmental impact study is inadequate and should devote more attention to recycling. Without a favorable decision in the lawsuit, the city would be unable to sell revenue bonds to finance plans needed for final building and health permits. City Manager Terry Novak said. Proponents say the incinerator about would burn as much as 800 tons of garbage a day, creating that an environmental impact study issued two years ago does not give enough attention to recycling, as required by state law. The project may actually discourage recycling, they claim, because the city and county must pay penalties if they do not supply minimum amounts of trash. Officials say minimums could be met with a recycling program.

Police determine death a suicide

KANAB, Utah (AP) — A California man whose charred remains were found in his car at a remote, southern Utah scenic spot earlier this month apparently committed suicide, authorities say. Kane County Chief Deputy Jeff Banfill said the body of a man believed to be Thorald Slade Gould, age 54, of Santa Barbara, was found in his burned out car on Aug. 7, near the Grayson Arch, about 30 miles north of the Utah-Arizona state line. A 20-gauge shotgun was located in the car.

Medal count looks good for U.S. swimmers

By CHRISTINE BRENNAN
The Washington Post

AUSTIN, Texas — The U.S. Olympic swimming team certainly won't win as many medals as it did in 1984, or as many as it did in the glory days of men's swimming in 1976, but it could do better next month in Seoul than the Olympic head coach thought possible a week ago.

Matt Biondi probably won't win seven gold medals, but he should win three or four. Janet Evans, who turns 17 at the end of the month and will take homework with her to Seoul, is expected to win three golds and perhaps break several world records. The U.S. women seem to be doing better than many thought and are beginning to wonder if the East German juggernaut might be beatable after all. And several U.S. men, most notably backstroke David Berkoff and breaststroker Mike Barrowman have come out of the woodwork to become gold-medal contenders.

Richard Quick, head coach of the Olympic swimming team, is aware of the popular perception that the United States has the world's best swimmers. He knows people will be counting U.S. success in terms of gold, silver and bronze medals won in the Olympic pool. And he is one Olympic official who isn't apologizing in advance for medal counts.

"We'll be measured by the number of medals we win, and that's as it should be," Quick said Sunday after Saturday's conclusion of the trials at the Texas Swimming Center. "We have an outstanding team, but what the men's team did in 1976 was unbelievable (winning 12 of 13 gold medals in an unboycotted Olympics).

"We're not that strong. We're a very exciting team, but when you compare teams, you also have to compare the competition, and the competition is much tougher now. We're better, but so is the rest of the world. We'll have our best team ever, but it's going to be tough."

Quick was thrilled with two surprising performances: Berkoff's world record in the 100-meter backstroke and Barrowman's U.S. record and best time in the world this year in the 200-meter breaststroke.

"At the beginning of the year, I was concerned about the backstroke, but we look good now with David and Jay Mortenson," Quick said. "And I thought the 200 breaststroke was a weakness. Now, with Mike Barrowman, we're in the gold-medal area in that event."

Berkoff became the curiosity of the trials: he swims nearly one-third of the 100 meters underwater. After pushing off from the wall, he swims 30-35 meters underwater before popping up to take his first breath. The submarine start allows Berkoff to use a powerful dolphin kick until he comes up for air. Then he begins his regular backstroke motion with his arms and legs. Berkoff's technique is perfectly legal and is considered to be a harbinger of swimming strategy in the 90s.

If Berkoff was a sensation, Biondi was a superstar fighting off high expectations. He has been treading water over the seven-gold-medal issue for months now. Mark Spitz did it in 1972, but that was a different era for international swimming. Now, says swimming spokesman Jeff Dimond, "get ready for a geography lesson."

Others expected to do very well in Seoul include Tracy McFarlane in the 100 and 200 breaststroke, Mary T. Meagher in the 200 butterfly, Angel Myers in the 50 and 100 freestyle, Matt Celnicki in the 400 and 1,500 freestyle, Rich Schroeder in the 100 breaststroke, and David Wharton in the 200 and 400 individual medleys. Evans' events seem to be locks for the United States: 400 IM and 400 and 800 freestyle.

U.S. Olympic trials prove heartbreaking for Morales

By TRACY DODDS
Los Angeles Times

AUSTIN, Texas — As joyous as the meet was for some, last weekend's U.S. Olympic Swimming Trials were heartbreaking for others. Many here believe most of the third-place finishers could be finalists in their events in Seoul. Pablo Morales, who won one gold medal and two silver medals in Los Angeles, finished third twice and 12th once and failed to make the team.

"Some people come here and just try too hard," said Michael Quick, coach of the U.S. Olympic team. "My guess is Pablo will swim much better in two weeks, but we picked our Olympic team this week."

Law school at Cornell was put on hold. Morales wanted a year, an entire year, unhindered, to prepare for the Olympics.

He had taken off one semester at Stanford to prepare for the 1984 Games in Los Angeles, where he won two silver medals in individual swimming events and one gold medal on a relay team.

"Not bad for a first try. But Morales was putting more effort into it this time. That's just the way he is."

It really was a sacrifice to put school off for a year. Law school at Cornell means a lot to a guy whose parents emigrated from Cuba and made a lot of sacrifices of their own to send him to the best private schools so that he could one day handle Stanford and Cornell.

But the Olympic Games meant a lot to him, too. He has been swimming competitively for more than 16 years. He is driven, perhaps by the example of his parents, although they never preached to him about what they expected him to achieve. They certainly never pressured him about his swimming.

As his mother, Blanche, put it, "I only wanted him to learn to swim so he wouldn't drown."

An admitted perfectionist, Morales kept at it until he was a world record-holder.

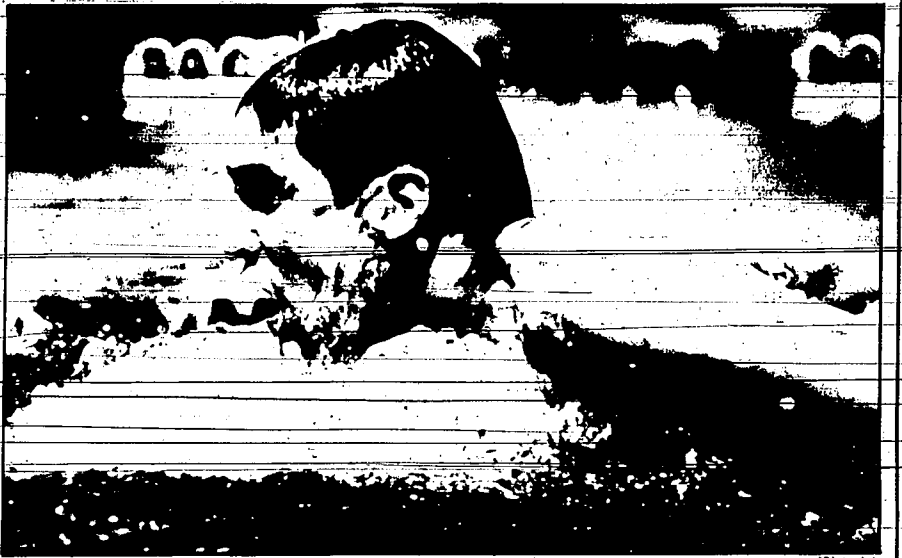

Morales holds two world records, in the 100-meter butterfly and in the 400-meter individual medley. But that did not guarantee him a spot on the U.S. Olympic team.

No one gets a guarantee.

Pablo Morales won't forget watching Bill Barrett slowly swim the width of the pool to congratulate him after the 200-meter individual medley at the 1984 Olympic swimming trials in Indianapolis. Barrett, who had been denied the Olympics by the boycott in 1980, was also the U.S. record-holder in the event. But he was not one of the top swimmers in that race, so he did not qualify for the '84 Games.

Morales saw the pain in Barrett's eyes. Morales understood, then, the finality of the numbers on the scoreboard. The rules are clear and not subject to interpretation.

Los Angeles Raiders release Plunkett from team

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — The comeback attempt of 40-year-old quarterback Jim Plunkett came to an end Monday when the Los Angeles Raiders released the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner.

Plunkett, who was the oldest active player in the NFL, learned of his release after breakfast Monday when first-year coach Mike Shanahan, nearly five years younger than Plunkett, told him he didn't fit into the Raiders' plans.

"Jim Plunkett was one of the greatest players of all time," Shanahan said. "There aren't enough adjectives to describe what he has accomplished and meant for this organization. He's what I consider a prime example of what I would call a man's man."

Plunkett competed in his last official game for the Raiders in December of 1986 when, despite a torn rotator arm in February 1987 and didn't play last season, spending what turned out to be his 17th and final NFL year on injured reserve.

Plunkett got his last chance to make the Raiders in the second half of Saturday's 27-17 preseason loss to Dallas, but he appeared tentative and uncomfortable in the club's new offense.

He completed 8-of-19 passes for 80 yards with one interception and a long gain of 18 yards. But the Raiders offense netted only 97 yards in the half and didn't score.

"This was no big shock," Plunkett said, showing little emotion. "I just didn't think it would be this quick. It's unfortunate, because I really wanted to be a part of this club."

Asked if he planned to pursue any possible career options elsewhere in the NFL, Plunkett laughed and said,

"I don't think there's too much demand for 40-year-old quarterbacks." Plunkett didn't play in the Raiders' preseason opener, a 24-10 loss to San Francisco.

"Jim was not going to be in our No. 1 or our No. 2 quarterback rotation," Shanahan said Monday. "Therefore, we were going to go in another direction."

"Jim came into camp in excellent shape, as good as you can possibly ask (in terms of) his endurance and arm strength. But anytime you're in a camp that throws as much as we do, it's hard to maintain the velocity that you have at a younger age. He lost a little zip on the football, and that was one of the reasons he will not work in our No. 1 or No. 2 rotation."

In his NFL career, Plunkett had 1,943 completions in 3,701 attempts for 25,882 yards with 164 touchdowns and 198 interceptions. He quarterbacked the Raiders to a 38-19 record in 57 regular-season starts and an 8-2 mark in postseason games.

Asked about the emotions of being released by the Raiders after 10 years with the club, Plunkett said, "Obviously, I would rather berate. I just came to give it another shot."

"But I have no regrets about my 10 years here. They were a lot better than my first seven (at New England and San Francisco)."

Plunkett joined the Raiders in September 1978 after spending the 1976 and 1977 seasons with the 49ers.

He was the first man picked in the 1971 NFL draft by New England after winning the Heisman Trophy during his senior year at Stanford.

Plunkett led the Raiders to two Super Bowl victories, after the 1980 and 1983 seasons.

Hulsey cut by Dolphins

By The Times-News

MIAMI — Jerome's Gary Hulsey, signed as a free agent by the Miami Dolphins last spring, was cut by the National Football League team on Monday.

Hulsey, a 1988 graduate of Utah State University, was listed as a third-string defensive end on the Dolphins' roster prior to Miami's game against Washington last Saturday. He had played in part of all three of the Dolphins' preseason games.

Hulsey, 6 feet, 4 inches and 270 pounds, was not taken in last spring's NFL draft after undergoing knee surgery in his junior season at Utah State. Although a defensive tackle at Utah State, he was used as a defensive end with the Dolphins.

Miami on Monday also waived Boise State University graduate Eric Andrade, a wide receiver. Two former Big Sky Conference players, former Idaho State kick returner

NCAA committee may change rule for possible extra points

By HERSCHEL NISSONSON
The Associated Press

College football coaches have this little chant that tells them when to kick an extra point and when to go for two.

Now, thanks to what Homer Rice, chairman of the NCAA Football Rules Committee, calls "one of the most drastic rules changes in several years," they may have to decide whether to go for one or two or none.

Picture this: A team scores a touchdown for a 6-0 lead and lines up for the conversion. A few seconds later, instead of 7-0 or 8-0, the score suddenly becomes 6-2.

The new rule gives the defensive team a chance to score two points on a conversion try by the offense. The points would be awarded for returning an interception or a mid-air fumble or a blocked kick for a "touchdown."

"That rule, in my opinion, was made by somebody who had too much time on their hands. I think it's a silly rule," said Tennessee coach Johnny Majors.

"There hasn't been overall acceptance of it at all," concedes Dave Nelson, the Rules Committee's secretary rules editor. "A lot of people like it, but there are more who don't."

So why put in an unpopular rule?

"Coaches are against change because they don't want any more problems," Nelson said. "The conversion kick has been 95 to 98 percent successful the last four to five years. It just hasn't been a competitive football play."

"And the reason it's been so successful is the unlimited substitution rule. You've got a specialist to snap it, a specialist to put it down, a specialist to kick it and seven fat guys up front. It's the responsibility of the Rules Committee to keep a balance between the offense and the defense."

Syracuse Coach Dick MacPherson says that "what they have done is try to put some excitement back in the extra point and what they have done is caused a problem for the coaches."

Jimmy Johnson, coach of the defending national champion Miami Hurricanes, doesn't see the new rule "being much of a factor, really."

"It gives you some thought, but I don't see it coming into play very much. Teams are still going to be successful 96 percent of the time, and when you miss an extra point it's usually a bad kick rather than a bad snap or a fumbled snap," he said.

The Rules Committee also added a rule that ends the opportunity for PAT tries if any offensive player other than the player who fumbles recovers the ball. The rule is intended to prevent intentional fumbles by the offensive team.

Briefly in Sports

Elliott, Licht waived

The Washington Post

Arizona all-America forward Sean Elliott and Stanford guard Todd Licht were released from the U.S. Olympic team Monday, leaving Coach John Thompson with two more cuts to make from a squad that now has 14 members.

In a first statement issued Monday night, Thompson said, "Due to the fact that we are overlaid with players in their position, respectfully we had to release Sean and Todd today."

In another statement from University of Arizona, spokesman Butch Henry said that Elliott said he was confused about his role and had difficulty adjusting to the way Thompson worked. "He usually doesn't have enough time to tell us what he expects us to do," Elliott was quoted as saying.

Elliott and Licht are primarily thought of as offensive players for their respective college teams, but both struggled badly with their shooting in three exhibition games against select teams of NBA players over the past eight days. Although Thompson's philosophy stresses defense first, it couldn't have helped Elliott to miss seven of nine shots he took in the three games or Licht to miss all four shots he took in those exhibitions.

Tyson may not fight Bruno

CLEVELAND (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson said Monday he has not yet committed to fighting British boxer Frank Bruno at London's Wembley Stadium in October.

"We really haven't decided if we're fighting him or not," Tyson said during a city Hall visit with boxing promoter Don King and City Council President George Forbes. "We still have to talk and negotiate a couple more dollars."

Tyson stopped in Cleveland, at King's invitation, to meet Forbes and to visit with children in a couple of local neighborhoods.

Twins' Viola beats Tigers 2-1 for his 19th victory

DETROIT (AP) — Before Frank Viola chases Cy Young, he wants to chase the Oakland Athletics. Viola became the first 19-game winner in the major leagues and John Moses went 4-for-4 with a tiebreaking home run in the seventh-inning Monday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Detroit Tigers 2-1.

Baseball

The victory moved the Twins to within eight games of the Athletics in the American League West, something Viola wants to concentrate on for the time being.

"That (Cy Young Award) doesn't mean anything right now," Viola said. "I'll take it at the end of the season. If I look back and I say, 'Hey, I did pretty good,' then that will come into play."

"The most important thing we ever achieved was the world championship last year. We know how to do it. We're just trying to give ourselves a chance again. All the individual stuff will be great — after the season."

"Baseball's a team game. Right now we've eight games out and we still have 45 games left. We want to go get it again."

Viola, 19-4, gave up seven hits and lowered his American League-leading earned run average to 2.36. He struck out seven and walked one in his sixth complete game.

"He's got to be the best lefty in the league," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "He kept them off balance."

Like Viola, Kelly wants to give the Twins a chance to repeat as world champions.

Kansas City 12 Texas 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Willie Wilson tripled and hit two doubles and George Brett had a two-run homer Monday night as the Kansas City Royals routed the Texas Rangers 12-3.

Danny Tartabull, Frank White and Kurt Stillwell each hit two-run doubles. The Royals had six doubles in a 11-hit attack.

Charlie Leibrandt, 7-11, gave up seven hits in seven innings. Paul Hogue, 9-11, walked Stillwell and Fred Taylor in the first inning and both scored on Tartabull's opposite-field double.

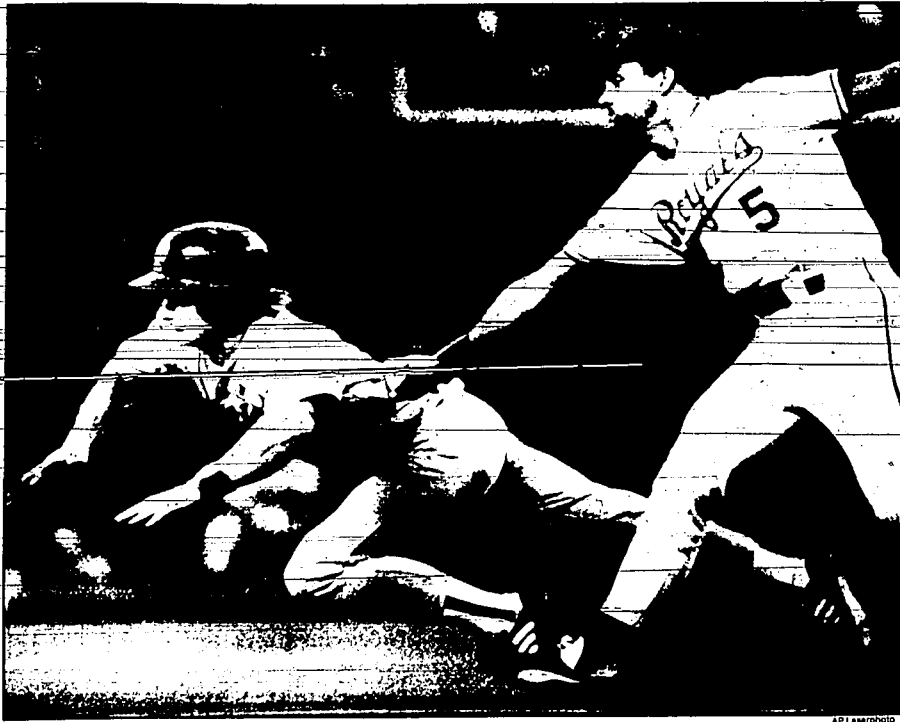

Wilson led off the third with a double and Stillwell walked again. Wilson advanced on a forceout and scored on Kilgus' wild pitch. After Tabler walked, Craig McMurtry relieved Kilgus and walked Tartabull, leading the bases.

White hit a two-run double to left and Bill Peota had a sacrifice fly. Wilson's triple in the fourth was followed by Brett's sacrifice fly for a 7-0 lead.

The Rangers got two runs in the fifth on Jeff Kunkel's two-run single that Steve Buechele, who walked, and Bob Brewer, who doubled.

Wilson's two-out double in the sixth was followed by Stillwell's RBI single and Brett's 20th home run. Peota and Larry Owen singled in the seventh and both scored on Stillwell's double.

An error by second baseman Brad

Texas' Scott Fletcher dives for second base to avoid the tag from Kansas City's George Brett Monday night.

Wellman enabled Texas to score in the seventh.

Houston 7 San Diego 3

HOUSTON (AP) — Gerald Young and Terry Puhl hit two-run singles in the seventh inning Monday night, and the Houston Astros rallied to beat the San Diego Padres 7-3.

Nolan Ryan, 9-10, won for the first time in four starts since July 27. He allowed nine hits in seven innings, striking out two and walking two. Danny Darwin finished with two innings of two-hit relief.

With the score tied 3-3, Denny Walling opened the seventh with a single off Andy Hawkins, 10-10. Rafael Ramirez singled, Craig Biggio sacrificed and pinch-hitter Craig Reynolds was intentionally walked, loading the bases.

Young broke the tie with his two-run single, chasing Hawkins. After Casey Candaele grounded out, Puhl hit a two-run single off Dave Lelper.

Tony Gwynn's run-scoring single in the first gave San Diego the lead before Glenn Davis put Houston ahead with a two-run homer in the bottom of the inning, his 23rd but his first since

Milwaukee 4 Baltimore 1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Teddy Figueroa pitched five-hit ball for eight innings and Jim Adduci delivered a two-run double Monday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers over the Baltimore Orioles 4-1.

Higueroa, 9-8, struck out nine — including five straight at one point — and walked none. Dan Plesac struck out two in the ninth to earn his 28th save.

The Brewers scored three runs in the fourth off Jose Bautista, 6-11. He allowed five hits and struck out seven. Figueroa gave up a third-inning single to Joe Orsulak, who was thrown out stealing as Brady Anderson struck out. The left-hander then retired 11 straight batters.

Jeffrey Leonard and Robin Yount singled to begin the Milwaukee fourth. Greg Brock grounded to second baseman Billy Ripken, who got the ball stuck in his glove and then threw low to second for an error, allowing Brock to score from third.

Adduci, who hit his first major league homer Sunday, then doubled to right center.

Pete Stanicek opened the Baltimore seventh with a single. Stanicek moved to second when Billy Ripken's grounder to first was misplayed by Brock and he scored on Cal Ripken's single to center to make it 3-1. But a double play and struck out Mickey Teufelton for the third time to end the threat.

Atlanta 4 Pittsburgh 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ken Oberkfell doubled and scored in the sixth, then put Atlanta in the lead with a two-run triple in the seventh inning Tuesday night as the Braves rallied and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3.

Charlie Puleo, 3-3, pitched 4 1/2 scoreless innings, allowing four hits and striking out five. Ed Owing got the final out for his first save since Aug. 21 last year, also against Pittsburgh.

Bob Walk, 11-9, lost his fifth consecutive start since July 20, allowing six hits in 6 1/2 innings as Pittsburgh fell 5 1/2 games behind — idle — National League East leader New York.

Andy Van Slyke was 2-for-4 with a double, triple, two stolen bases and an RBI.

Pittsburgh led 3-2 in the seventh when Terry Blocker and Ron Gant singled and Oberkfell greeted reliever Morris Madden with a two-run triple. Madden was making his first NL appearance since being brought up Sunday from Buffalo of the Class American Association.

Los Angeles 1 San Francisco 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tim Belcher won his fifth consecutive game and Franklin Stubbs hit a fourth-inning sacrifice fly Monday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 1-0.

Belcher, 9-4, is undefeated in eight starts since June 12. He gave up six hits in 7 1/2 innings, including three to Bob Melvin. Belcher struck out three and walked one.

Jesse Orosco got the final five outs in order for his seventh save. Don Robinson, who in his last start pitched a one-hitter against Houston for his first shutout in eight years, allowed five hits before he hit for in the eighth. Robinson, 4-3, struck out three and walked none.

The Giants lost their third of four games to the Dodgers and fell 4 1/2 games back in the National League West.

Guerrero-for-Tudor trade in the works

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers are negotiating a trade that would send slugger Pedro Guerrero to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for veteran left-handed pitcher John Tudor, Guerrero's agent confirmed Monday night.

"We're in the process of talking about this right now," attorney Tony Attanasio said. "I'm waiting for a phone call about if I'll be going on for the next couple of days before it's finished." Guerrero, 32, will be a free agent at the end of the season, so the Cardinals probably want to negotiate the guarantee of a contract extension before a trade is consummated.

Guerrero, hitting .298 with five home runs and 35 runs batted in, earns $1.2 million, third on the Dodger roster behind Fernando Valenzuela and Kirk Gibson. He was on the disabled list for 62 days this season with a pinched nerve in his neck.

A source in St. Louis said that the Cardinals have been interested in Guerrero, an acquisition that would solve their need of power hitters to replace Jack Clark, who went to the New York Yankees via free agency after last season.

The Dodgers have expressed a desire to acquire a left-handed starter because of the uncertain status of Valenzuela. They have scouted Toronto Blue Jays left-hander Mike Flanagan and apparently showed an interest in Philadelphia's Don Lirman and Chicago's Rick Sutcliffe, a right-hander.

Tudor, 34, is a veteran of eight seasons who helped pitch the Cardinals into the World Series in 1985 and 1987. Tudor, represented by agent Steve Fryer, is signed through the 1989 season. He earns $1,050 million this season and will make $1.1 million in 1989. Tudor said that he will retire after that season.

Tudor has a 6-5 record this season with a 2.29 earned-run average in 145 innings.

Fred Claire, the Dodgers' executive vice president, would not comment about any specific trade negotiations. Claire, however, did say that he is actively looking for pitching help. Claire said that, were he to make a trade, he would like to complete it before Sept. 1, the roster deadline for playoff and World Series eligibility.

"I would say we've had serious discussions," Claire said. "We've had discussions with a lot of ball clubs. Nothing has changed from the last few days. I've had discussions for awhile, and any time I talk to a team I consider it serious."

Malone close to agreement on contract terms with Hawks

HOUSTON (AP) — Three-time NBA Most Valuable Player Moses Malone will sign a contract with the Atlanta Hawks on Tuesday, according to reports by a Houston television station.

The Hawks and Malone's Washington-based agent, Lee Fentress, declined comment.

KRIV-TV quoted a source close to the negotiations in its Monday night report and The Constitution attributed its report in a Tuesday edition to "reliable sources close to the situation."

The Constitution reported a source close to Malone said the 10-time All-Star center and Fentress will be in Atlanta for a news conference at 1 p.m. MP Tuesday.

"We have no comment," said Bill Needles, spokesman for the Hawks. Fentress also would not confirm the

Pro basketball

Malone, a former All-Star center at Houston and Philadelphia, played the past two seasons at Washington before becoming an unrestricted free agent.

Malone, 6-foot-10, and 255 pounds, led the NBA in rebounding six times, most recently in 1985.

The Hawks also had been holding talks with Detroit Pistons center James Edwards, who will re-sign Tuesday with the Pistons, said Reggie Turner, Edwards' agent.

Turner told The Constitution that he believed the Hawks decided not to pursue Edwards because they were more interested in Malone.

Morales

Continued from Page C1 sentimentality or even better judgment. Hit the electronic touchpads at the ends of the lanes first or second in the final heat of the Olympic trials, or stay home.

Morales was 19 at the time, and although he had not been expected to earn his way into the 200-meter individual medley competition, he had already made the team twice by winning both the 100-meter and 200-meter butterfly titles.

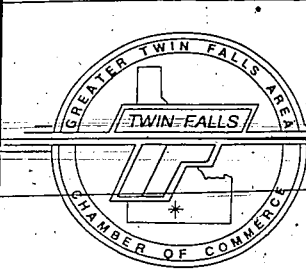

He wasn't one of the real surprise entries on the roster such as, say, Matt Biondi. But he was young enough to speak for the youngsters who were beating out the likes of Bill Barrett. At those trials four years ago, Morales said, "There was a whole new wave of swimmers waiting to break through. The worst thing that could happen is for someone to go unchallenged year after year. We need to keep the competition up. Being unchallenged doesn't help the person on top."

So how does he feel about it now that he has Olympic gold to defend? Now that he's a world record-holder?

"There are a lot of people who second-guess our system because it pays no special regard to world record-holders," Morales said.

The Chamber is Looking for Potential Leaders

Potential leaders are needed for the 1988-89 class of Leadership Magic Valley, the Chamber's leadership development program.

Leadership Magic Valley is designed to identify and motivate potential community leaders. Since its beginning in 1985, 93 people have graduated from Leadership Magic Valley. Participants in the two-year program attend nine full-day sessions during the first year, for an intensive course in community issues, operations, and problems. In the second year of the program participants plan the full-day sessions for the incoming class.

Applications for Leadership Magic Valley are available from the Chamber office and will be accepted through the end of August. Leadership Magic Valley is open to all applicants from all sectors of the community, including business, education, non-profit organizations, and government. Membership in the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce is encouraged, but not required.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"To solve a problem it is necessary to think. It is necessary to think even to decide what facts to collect."

Today's hand was presented as a problem in the annual Intercollegiate Contest some years ago. See if you can find a successful plan, one that many contestants missed.

South ruffs the second spade and draws two rounds of trumps. Next the club ace and the club queen are cashed, bringing a discard from West. How should South proceed?

The solution demands cooperation from the opponents. If South crosses to dummy in trumps to ruff dummy's last spade, he is on the right track. Now if he plays the king and 10 of clubs, he forces East to lead a heart. This line succeeds if East has the heart king, but fails when it's West who has the king.

The superior solution here regardless of where the heart king lies. After ruffing dummy's last spade, South should play his ace and his last heart. If East has the king, he must offer either a fine finesse in clubs or a ruff and discard. And if West has the heart king, a major suit lead assures a ruff and discard.

ANSWER: Two hearts. Introduce the other major. If North has only one spade and four or five hearts, he will surely pass a two-spade rebid. Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 1221, Dallas, Texas 75201, with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Copyright, 1988, United Feature Syndicate.

The Legend Continues... Our Reputation Grows

Rural community gives welcome to former teacher, reopened school

McLEOD, N.D. (AP) — A woman who was once America's lowest-paid teacher is giving up a higher-paying job in Texas to reopen the one-room schoolhouse where she taught for 16 years, and some parents and children couldn't be happier.

"It keeps the community going. We don't want to be dying out here," Peggy Sveum, whose two children will attend the grammar school, said Thursday.

Janice Herbranson, 54, took a job teaching toddlers in Progresso, Texas, near the school, closed in 1986. The school board decided it was not practical to keep the building open for the rural district's one remaining pupil.

With five children through grade 6 living in the district now, Ms. Herbranson — the school's lone teacher for 16 years — will be back when classes begin Aug. 29.

"The whole community feels that something is back to life. It's exciting for all of us," said Ms. Herbranson. Ms. Herbranson said she was happy teaching in Texas but that she considers her home to be McLeod, a community of 45 people set in wide-open cattle country. She maintains a home here and is part owner of the Sand Dune Saloon.

Mrs. Sveum said her daughters, first-grader Erin and kindergarten Lisa, no longer will have to endure a 45-minute bus ride to a school in Lisbon, about 25 miles away, and will benefit from a one-on-one relationship with the teacher.

"They're very much looking forward to it," she said. "They went up while we were cleaning the school and they were playing school themselves, writing on the chalkboard." Five years ago at McLeod, Ms. Herbranson earned the dubious distinction of being the lowest-paid teacher in the nation with a $6,300 salary. The salary had increased to $5,800 when the school closed, but her Texas job paid $25,000. Ms. Herbranson said she did not know how much she would be paid here but that it will be a substantial pay cut from her Texas job. Lief Olerud, school board president, said the board was still negotiating a contract.

"It doesn't cost me anything to live here in comparison to down there (Texas)," said Ms. Herbranson. "It doesn't even out. But it's not a drastic difference."

Ms. Herbranson said she believes the McLeod school has a bright future. With several pre-school children in the district, enrollment is expected to grow, she said.

She said the reopening is a victory of sorts for rural one-room schoolhouses. "It's a good type of education, there's no doubt in my mind."

rain forests. Early reports are that the program is a success, Wagner said.

Similar successes have occurred with the return of black buck antelopes to Pakistan; tamarin monkeys to Brazil; and Arabian oryxes, another type of antelope, to Jordan, he said.

"There is no substitute for nature," Conway said. "We seek, instead, to be a salesman for nature."

Spud

Continued from Page D1 that can deposit four or six rows at once, 4 to 6 inches deep.

Some seedpieces are precut, and are piled in a ventilated cellar and maintained at 60 degrees for 10 days to two weeks.

The seedpieces Matsura planted last week weren't just any seed planted from last year's stocks.

A typical potato crop in the Gem State begins on the University of Idaho campus or at one of a handful of private companies. A tissue culture program produces mother plants that are free from disease. Technicians replicate the mother plant many times in test tubes to produce more plants.

Plants started at UI are delivered in plastic culture dishes to the university's three greenhouses in Teton. Those plants produce minitubers, which are harvested and planted in the field as first field generation, or Nuclear.

The second field generation is called Elite 1, the third, Elite 2, and so on to the fifth generation, which is called Foundation — the most common seed planted in Idaho for commercial use.

The process is monitored by the Idaho Crop Improvement Association, whose laboratory tests at critical stages confirm that the plant material remains free of seedborne diseases. Eventually each seed lot is inspected in the cellar and tagged as certified seed. Today's potato is a far cry from the ancient vegetable that looked more like fat earthworm than an edible vegetable.

Despite Idaho's reputation for being synonymous with potatoes, the tuber is not a native. The earliest known potatoes were discovered in the high mountains of South America. Spanish explorers in South America were the first Europeans to eat potatoes. The Conquistadors introduced them to Europe in the mid-1500s. From there, the vegetable was taken to Scotland and Ireland, and became a principal crop for the Irish.

When the Irish immigrants settled in the New World, white potatoes became an important food crop in North America.

Idaho's first potato grower was not a farmer, but a Presbyterian missionary named Henry Spang, according to "Aristocrat in Burlap," a history of the potato in Idaho published by the Idaho Potato Commission.

Quite by accident, Luther Burbank became the father of the Idaho potato in 1872. He found a seed ball on a plant of the Early Rose variety in his neighbor's garden in Massachusetts.

He sold them to a seed dealer for $150 and the potatoes became the Burbank variety, long, smooth-skinned and white.

In the early 1900s, a russeted mutation of the Burbank was found in Colorado and became the netted gem that made Idaho famous.

"It remained for Idaho growers to make the Russet Burbank variety famous," said Miles Willard, a snack food inventor in Idaho Falls. "Without a doubt, Idaho growing conditions produce a superior potato of any variety. Although our famous baker is fickle and needs tender loving care in every aspect of growing, it certainly is the best potato in the world for baking and processing."

Warts? Sore throat? Try the potato. A booklet called "The Potato: 500 B.C. to Today!" published by Stauffer Chemical Co. of Westport, Conn., reports that in folkore medicine, the potato was thought of as a cure and protection against warts. If rubbed with the potato, warts will disappear as the potato rots.

In Newfoundland, a sliced baked potato is placed in a stocking, which then is tied around a person's neck to chase away a sore throat, according to the booklet.

Bowlers, especially professionals, have known for many years that a potato provides a quick cure for a sore thumb or other raw spots from too much bowling.

The potato may not stand out amid the carrots and lettuce at the grocery store.

But behind that brown, netted skin lies distinction and personality — what some might call potato personality.

smaller ears," Conway said. "But if they like elephants, they may reflect upon the meaning of elephants the next time they tickle the ivory keys on their piano that resulted in some elephant's death."

Zoo association members share endangered animals and technologies. There are special breeding facilities operated in Front Royal, Va., by the National Zoological Park, on St. Catherine's Island, Ga., by the New York Zoological Park, and the Zoological Park of San Diego. The New York society's Wildlife Conservation International sponsors scientists in 35 countries.

There also is a zoo movement in reverse. In November, zoo association members shipped endangered mynah birds back to Bali, where agricultural development had gobbled their native

Construct

This guy is universally hated on any highway construction crew anyway. While everyone else busts his tail in 90-degree heat digging, pouring concrete or spreading blacktop, the flag guy barely breaks a sweat as he waves at you to slow down.

Who does this guy think he is? Why doesn't he just break out a pair of sandals and a beach chair and get it over with?

Come to think of it, why do they even need this guy?

Correct me if I'm wrong, but when you see a thousand orange traffic cones, flashing lights, and a 30-ton backhoe digging up ahead, you're not exactly going to floor it.

So I don't think a $60 million highway renovation project will come to a screeching halt if they let the guy with the flag go.

Certainly, the rest of the construction crew won't start wearing black armbands.

The one question that seems to be on the lips of every motorist caught in a construction delay is: Why can't they do this stuff at night when hardly anyone is on the road?

Well, the answer is very simple. They can't do this stuff at night because the flag guy needs his sleep.

Otherwise he would not have the energy to wave his flag in the bored, desultory manner that we're accustomed to seeing.

A job like that, you have to get your rest.

Handicapped travelers find support under golden arches

DEAR ABBY: All airport terminals, bus and train depots are required by law to have ramps for wheelchairs, but the lavatories in planes, buses and trains cannot accommodate people in wheelchairs. Knowing this, four members of our family (we are all retired) decided to see America by car. My husband is wheelchair-bound. Ted has had both legs amputated above the knee, but he's able to transfer himself from wheelchair to commode (unaided) if he can just get through the bathroom door. We stayed in a brand-new motel in Las Vegas, but the facilities to accommodate the handicapped were not yet completed. After hearing our problem, the manager had the bathroom door removed for us. Most motel builders would do an enormous favor for people in wheelchairs if they would just add 6-inches to the width of the bathroom doors.

However, the answer to all our eating problems from Florida to California was McDonald's. We knew that Ted would be able to get into the bathroom in any McDonald's in the country, so we had breakfast, lunch and dinner at a McDonald's every day!

Please print this, Abby. I believe in giving credit where it is due. You may use my name, and I hope you do.

— EILEEN LOEF, GEORGETOWN, FLA.

DEAR EILEEN: So do I. Here's your letter.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 years old, and I guess I'm physically mature for my age. Well, the other day I brought a summer dress home. It was like the ones they wear in Hawaiian movies, strapless with a wraparound skirt.

My problem is my mother. She won't let me wear it in public. She says it's not suitable for a 14-year-old. I think she is being old-fashioned and outdated. Do you think she's right, or do you think she should be more modern and open-minded, and let me wear it in public?

She told me to write to Dear Abby, and whatever you say goes.

—TIMES-HAVE CHANGED

DEAR TIMES: I agree with your mother. Times have changed, but the standards of appropriate attire for 14-year-olds girls have not. Trust your mother's judgment, honey. She will never steer you wrong.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful 1-year-old son. His father "Boyd" and I were high school sweethearts — but never married. We broke up after Greg was born. Boyd went into the Army right after he finished high school.

I have met a wonderful man "Chuck" and we plan to marry soon. I gave Greg his father's last name because I thought it was the right thing to do. Although Boyd pays child support, he never calls or sends his son a card at Christmas time or his birthday. The boy does not even know this man.

Chuck is crazy about Greg and wants more than anything in the world to adopt him. Boyd says, "No way — he is my son."

Abby, how can a man be so cruel and mean? He wants nothing to do with his son, but doesn't want another man to have anything to do with him. I need your advice.

—CALIFORNIA QUESTION

DEAR CALIFORNIA Q: The state of California will very likely grant adoption under these circumstances after you and Chuck are married. So go ahead with what I hope will be a happy life. If Boyd resists the petition for adoption, you are fairly safe in assuming that his objections will be overruled. Please see an attorney, and let him or her handle it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TACTLESS IN BOZEMAN: Tac cannot be taught. It's a combination of sensitivity, consideration and good manners. O.A. Battista said, "It's the ability to make a person see the lighting without feeling the bolt."

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.99 ($3.99 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage is included).

Wedding

Irish-Brede

TWIN FALLS — Sonya Kathleen Irish and Richard Brede were married June 11, 1988, in the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Norris and Kathleen Irish, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wesley-Brede, Boise.

Marcey Moore, Boise, served as maid of honor with Lisa Smart, Boise; Judy Brede, Great Falls, Mont., and Kim McLaughlin, Twin Falls, as bridesmaids. Shelley Irish, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

James Brede, Great Falls, attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Bernie Thomas, Boise; Bob Newbold, Green River, Wyo., and Steve Hall, Boise. Pyce Irish and John Brede, brothers of the couple, ushered. Jake Wilson, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Canyon Springs Country Club. Jill Brede, sister of the bridegroom, attended the guest book. Lori Irish, Shauna Poulsen, Kelley Montague and Casey Montague served.

Special guests included Edna Myers, Fergus Falls, Minn., grandmother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Quigley, Buhl, great-grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Quigley, Bend, Ore., and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Irish, Buhl, grandparents of the bride.

Following a trip to Canada and Minnesota, the newlyweds reside in Boise.

The bride, a graduate of Twin Falls High School, attends Boise State University.

The bridegroom, who graduated from Borah High School and BSU, is employed by Artisan Design.

Anniversary

The Folkmans

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Folkman, Jerome, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Aug. 1.

Folkman and Jean Chandler were married Aug. 1, 1938, in Sparks, Nev. The marriage later was solemnized in the LDS Temple in Idaho Falls.

He was employed at Tingwalls Department store here for 19 years before retiring and was worked for J.C. Penney Store in Shoshone.

She came to Jerome in 1936 as a cosmetologist and has worked since that time.

The couple has two children, Carma Mathis, Tucson, Ariz., and Alan Folkman, Portland, and nine grandchildren.

L.M. Boyd What's what

Just because he makes fun of him-

Jaycees said no

Maybe you didn't know the Junior Chamber of Commerce started out as a temperance organization committed to universal sobriety? It has changed.

If you cut your tongue, it will heal without scar tissue. Other tissue in the human body regenerates, but not without scarring.

In a vegetable diet, tomatoes get more votes than all the other candidates combined. Surveys repeatedly prove that.

Fusel oil is so slippery it has to be stored in upright containers. If set on their sides, that oil would work its way around their corks, caps, lids of whatever sort.

Any truth to the claim that short people have better physical endurance?

A. Some shorter people, anyway. Most Olympic marathon runners in recent years have been under 5-foot-7. You know those Sierra Madre Indians who could run all day? They averaged 5-foot-3.

WALL FLOWERS

What drives certain business tycoons to milk money, it's said, is what's now known as low self-esteem.

Used to be called inferiority complex. Still works the same. They plan, labor, compensate, achieve. To dominate the doubt. Oftentimes, though, all that goes out the window on a dance floor. Doubt dominates there. Business tycoons are said to be among the world's worst dancers.

New sheet steel crumples like bread, if crushed. Old sheet steel, if crushed, crackles apart, like toast. Blame corrosion. That's why collision experts say that in cars of the same weight, the new one is so much safer than the old one.

Am told a mix of salt, flour and vinegar makes a dandy brass polish.

complicated. Forget the wishes of a stranger.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Use only proven methods in handling business dealings, and get the right results. Try to get more data, and use it wisely on a new project.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Don't try to exchange views with a friend who is apt to be very stubborn today. Tonight everything will seem to fall right into place.

If Your Child Is Born Today: He or she will approach life conscientiously and will need to be with cheerful people in order to keep the spirit's high. Make sure a good education is planned so that a big success can be realized instead of an abject failure. Your progeny can inspire others.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES. The early part of the day finds people apt to be less cooperative than you would like, go on about your own business and affairs until later in the day when most everyone feels like being more cooperative.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Go on with your efforts to improve your environment. Make your home more comfortable. Later you may receive an invitation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): It is a good idea to postpone recreational plans. Handle your correspondence and write reports. Get your wardrobe in order.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Take care of some upsetting situation at home this morning and enjoy some recreation tonight. Be on time for your appointment.

'MOON CHILDREN' (June 22 to July 21): Be alert to find remove stumbling blocks in the path of your personal goals. Avoid a partner who annoys you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Financial affairs go slowly this morning, so handle correspondence that can speed up the process. Go out and visit a good friend this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You had better think twice about handling a personal matter during the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Give much thought to the activities ahead of you so you handle them well later. Don't let your mate's strange mood bother you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be sure you don't overly depend on another person, especially where important matters are concerned. Venting your anger is unwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): It is important that you look into worldly matters more carefully than usual. Try to ask favors of those in executive positions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You believe you can handle a new situation quickly, but it is apt to be more
