Quayle insists he broke no rules

The Associated Press

HUNTINGTON, Ind. — Sen. Dan Quayle insisted Friday that he broke no rules to get into the Indiana National Guard fairly during the Vietnam War, but acknowledged that he sought help from a former guard commander who worked for his grandfather and assumes calls were made on his behalf.

The Republican vice presidential nominee said he would do the same thing again.

At an outdoor news conference at his hometown, Quayle portrayed the chain of events leading to his enrollment in the Guard as a normal occurrence given his relationship with his family and their friends.

"I got into the National Guard fairly," he said. "I did not ask anyone to break the rules and so far as I know no one did."

The Indianapolis News had reported Thursday that its former managing editor, Wendell C. Phillippi, had been asked about entering the Guard by Quayle. Phillippi was a former commander of the state National Guard.

"I wanted to get into the National Guard and I hope that he helped me and I think he did," Quayle told reporters. "I would hope that he helped me and I expect that."

Quayle said he initially called his parents to discuss his desire to enter the National Guard when he was about to lose his college student deferment upon graduation.

SEN. DAN QUAYLE Says he'd do it again

Asked why he did not just go down and fill out papers if his entry into the Guard was as routine as he suggested it was, Quayle said:

"I do what any normal person would do at that age. You call home. You call home to mother and father and say 'I like to get into the National Guard.'"

He said his conversation with Phillippi was brief. "I told him I wanted to get into the National Guard. I would assume calls would be made. I talked to Mr. Phillippi very briefly. I hope that he helped me and I think he did."

Quayle said he saw nothing wrong with that.

Asked to assess the way he proceeded as a 22-year-old, he said, "I would not have done anything differently." If he had known he would be running for

Report clears Vincennes' crew, blames Iran in airliner downing

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Crew members of the U.S. Navy cruiser Vincennes made several understandable mistakes under the fog of war before the ship blew an Iranian airliner from the sky last month, but none was negligent and no disciplinary action is warranted, Pentagon leaders said Friday.

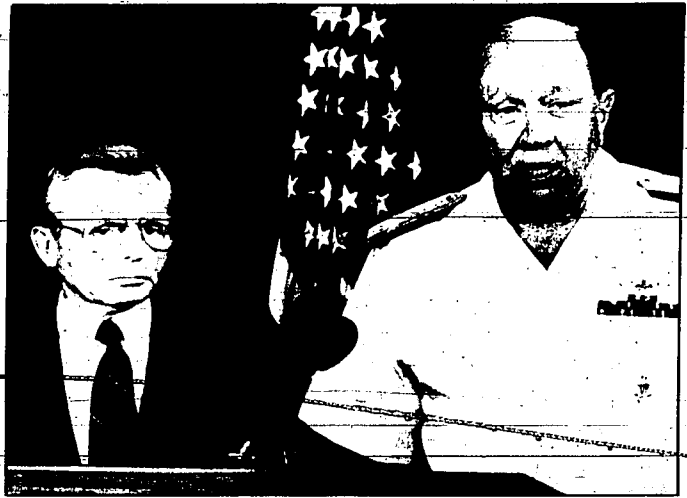

The stress of combat probably contributed to the crew's inability to positively identify the aircraft as a commercial flight, which approached the ship in the midst of a surface battle with Iranian gunboats, said Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci and Adm. William Crowe, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as they released findings of a board of inquiry.

Carlucci said the investigation would lead to a number of changes in operations, including modifying the devices that display critical information on approaching targets in the cruiser's tracking operations of their Aegis air defense systems to psychological testing to ensure they are ready for combat.

Both men said the mistakes, by crew members who weren't about to take any chances with their own ship's safety, did not flow from negligence and Iran bears a heavy responsibility for the shootdown of Flight 655 and the deaths of the 290 aboard. As a result, no Navy officers or sailors will face any disciplinary action in the affair.

Carlucci said a nonpunitive letter of censure previously issued to one officer already has been withdrawn at his direction.

Crowe declared that "By any measure, it was unbecomingly (for us) to ignore the repeated warnings of the United States and to permit an airliner to take off

The Vincennes was literally in the midst of fighting with several small Iranian gunboats when its radar system detected the Iranian airliner taking off from Bandar Abbas, where a large military airfield is located, Crowe and Carlucci said. "It was only prudent for Capt.

(Will) Rogers to assume that the (radar) contact was related to his engagement with the Iranian boats until proven otherwise," Crowe said.

"The proof never came," Crowe said. "Given the time available, the commanding officer could hardly meet his obligation to protect his ship and crew and also clear up all of the possible anomalies or ambiguities."

"I believe that given the operating environment, Capt. Rogers acted reasonably and did what his nation expected of him in the defense of his ship and crew."

The destruction of the airliner was "a by-product of the Iran-Iraq war," the admiral concluded.

At the United Nations, Iranian Ambassador Mohammad Jafar Mahallati said the U.S. Navy's

Americans have become more religious in their beliefs but attend church less often and give a smaller portion of their incomes to church causes, according to recent surveys.

In the last decade, the nation's churches have made no headway in narrowing the gap between what pollster George Gallup Jr. calls "believers" and "non-believers."

A survey released by the Gallup Poll indicates that an estimated 78 million U.S. adults are "unchurched" comprised of 61 million reported in 1978. But

American adults who believe Jesus was and not enough with spiritual concerns up from 78 percent in 1978. In addition, the survey found widespread support (76 percent) for the view that a person can be a good Christian or Jew without attending a church or synagogue.

Those who left their church, for specific reasons were most likely to cite the church's excessive concern with money and narrow religious beliefs, Gallup found.

In the past 10 years, the number of Americans who say churches are too concerned with organizational matters and spiritual concerns, Gallup and Jim Castelli said in a report released Friday on Gallup's study, called "Unchurched Americans 1988." And a growing number feels that the morality being taught by churches is too restrictive.

The poll defined "unchurched" adults as those who either are not members of the most frequent religious groups, have not attended services for six months, exclusive of religious holidays or other special occasions.

The $163,000 survey was conducted for Congress '88, a national evangelism conference involving 22 Protestant and

Roman Catholic organizations held near Chicago this month. Meanwhile, figures released Friday by the U.S. National Council of Churches, covering 220 religious bodies, showed that church membership in the United States remained essentially unchanged for the second year in a row. The total membership of 142,799,662 for 1986 — the most recent figures provided in the 1988 Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches — indicated that the proportion of Americans who are religiously affiliated continued to hover near 60 percent.

Meanwhile, losses continue that are moderating, said Constant H. Jaquet, the information spokesman for the National Council of Churches' Office of Research and Evaluation. "At the same time, the trend toward gains in some conservative churches is also moderating. On balance, the statistical picture has flattened out."

The 367-page yearbook shows that per capita giving by U.S. church members rose to $544.42 in 1986, compared to $521.77 the year before. When the increase is adjusted for inflation, it amounts to an increase of $5.01 per member.

AIDS virus may infect 3 million Americans, private study finds

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The AIDS virus may have infected twice the number of Americans now estimated by the federal government, and the infection rate may be three times higher than estimates for the heterosexual population, according to a private study by the Hudson Institute.

Kevin R. Hopkins, a Hudson mathematician, said Friday that a study using "realistic" assumptions not used by the federal Centers for Disease Control, suggests that in 1987 there were up to 3 million Americans infected with the human immunodeficiency virus which causes AIDS.

The Atlanta-based CDC, which is the primary federal agency monitoring the spread of AIDS, estimates there are as many as 1.4 million HIV infections.

"The actual number of people carrying the HIV virus in the United States (at end of 1987) was not the 900,000 to 1.4 million the official sources estimate, but probably more than twice that number," the Hudson report said.

There were between 2 and 3 million people infected with the AIDS virus, with the most likely total of infections probably close to 2.4 million."

Hopkins said the study by Hudson, a privately financed public policy research organization with headquarters in Indianapolis, used basic CDC data on the number of cases of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome. But he said Hudson used different computer models and more sophisticated statistical analysis techniques to estimate the rate of HIV infections.

He admitted that "we're all in a guessing game" when it comes to estimating the number of people infected with the AIDS virus. Nonetheless, he said he believed the Hudson method is a more "realistic" model or mathematical estimate of the situation.

"The CDC may be right and we may be wrong," Hopkins said. "Until a national seroprevalence test is conducted, we will not know."

"The main conclusion is that we cannot be complacent about his disease," he said.

Dr. Timothy Donndoro, chief of a CDC branch studying the spread of AIDS, said that after reviewing the Hudson data, "we do not feel a change in our data is appropriate."

He said that for the Hudson model to be correct, about 2 percent of the young adult population in the United States would have to be infected with HIV. Yet, he said, "their figures are consistently high within segments of populations for which there are test results."

Odds against a quick recovery from drought soon 1,000 to 1

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The chances of the nation recovering from the drought in the next couple of months are a real long shot, say federal weather experts who put the odds as high as 1,000-to-1 against it in some areas.

Rain could provide short-term relief here and there, but meteorologists say the prospects of getting enough rain to return moisture to normal levels are very slim.

"Calculation of the probabilities associated with the precipitation required to end the drought ranged from 1 in 500 for central Iowa to 1 in 1,000 for the Cascades in Washington," said the weekly drought advisory of the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C.

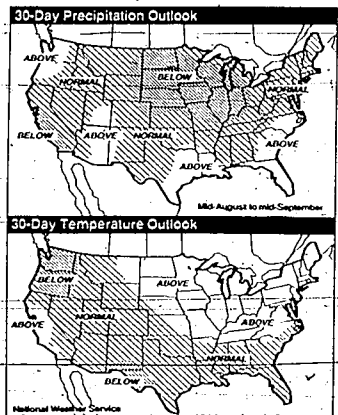

Even those odds may be optimistic, if history is a guide.

Never in the nearly 100 years that records have been kept has rainfall in August, September and October been enough to end a major drought of the current magnitude, the center said.

The center found the outlook bleak in four drought areas it examined this week.

In central Iowa, it said, the amount of rain needed by Oct. 31 to end the drought totals 22.42 inches. That much rain in August through October can be expected only once in 500 years, it said.

UN observers in position for gulf war truce

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Hundreds of U.N. observers moved into position for a cease-fire Saturday morning that will bring at least a temporary halt to an 8-year-old war that cost Iraq and Iran more than a million casualties.

Women dressed in abayas, the traditional Arab robes, sprinkled red petals on the U.N. men in blue berets as their convoys left Baghdad. Their posts were on the 730 miles of border that begins in the southern marshlands and snakes north to the rugged mountains of Kurdistan.

A frustrated questioning Iraqi motives, Hashemi Rafsanjani, parliament speaker and military commander, said the Iraqis may not want peace but will find Iraq much stronger if they renew the war.

Rear Adm. Muhammad Malekzadeh, the navy commander, said Iraq will stop ships to search them for war material until a final peace agreement is reached. This comment was reported by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus.

Iraq's general command exhorted all Arabs to "express joy and celebrate the victory achieved by Iraq's sons" as the cease-fire took effect at 7 a.m. Saturday (9 p.m. MDT) Friday.

"The government of President Saddam Hussein said it was reopening the airport in the battered southern port of Basra, which was the target of repeated Iranian offensives that took tens of thousands of lives.

Officials said two Iraqi merchant ships would sail into the Persian Gulf, the first to do so since early in the war.

About 100 U.N. officers of the U.N.-Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group fanned out along the Iraqi side of the border Friday. Tehran radio, monitored in Cyprus, said 200 U.N. observers were either on their way to the Iranian side or already there.

In New York, an official in the U.N. peace-keeping office said 95 percent of them "are on the ground, and we're receiving excellent cooperation from both sides."

president in the gulf was to blame for the tragedy.

"One should conclude that the mere presence of such highly dangerous equipment, which cannot be controlled even by trained American personnel, is the source of low-level danger," he said, calling for the U.S. fleet to withdraw from the region.

Carlucci and Crowe appeared at a special press briefing Friday to unveil the findings of the board of inquiry headed by Rear Adm. William M. Fogarty. They released an unclassified, 63-page version of the investigative report.

Carlucci said President Reagan had been briefed on the report and concurred with the findings.

The Vincennes, one of the Navy's most sophisticated Aegis air-defense cruisers, shot down an Iranian A-300 Airbus on July 3 while on patrol in the Persian Gulf after misidentifying the plane as an Iranian F-4 fighter.

The United States has apologized and informed Iran it will offer compensation to the victims' families. Iran, which is scheduled to begin a cease-fire in its long war with Iraq on Saturday, has accused the United States of deliberately shooting the plane down.

The investigative report dismissed that charge, stating:

"The USS Vincennes did not purposely shoot down an Iranian commercial airliner. Rather, it engaged an aircraft the commanding officer believed to be hostile and a threat to his ship and to the (nearby) USS Montgomery."

In reviewing the evidence and computer tapes of the combat, however, there was a "sense of inexorability" that the airliner would be shot down, Carlucci said Friday.

There was "one target making its decreasing range, refusing to respond to not responding to all of (12 radar) challenges," Carlucci said.

"The question is not whether mistakes were made," the defense secretary continued. "The question is whether the mistakes were critical and whether they were due to culpability or negligence, and the finding is that they were not."

Crowe, in reviewing the findings, faulted some of the mistakes on the part of the Vincennes' crew. Among them:

— A conclusion the civilian Airbus was descending rather than ascending as it approached the Vincennes, falsely suggesting the plane was preparing for an attack.

— A conclusion the jetliner had transmitted a radio signal at one point identifying it as a military aircraft.

— A report the plane was outside a commercial air corridor crossing the Persian Gulf.

Despite such mistakes, it is hard to second-guess the Vincennes because of the war-time fog that was operating on, Crowe insisted.

"For example, even if a crewman had not reported detecting the identification signal sent by military aircraft, the plane would have remained designated 'unidentified, assumed hostile' and would have been treated as a potential threat by the captain and the

Explosions in sewers chase 200 from homes

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A series of underground explosions ripped through this seacoast city Friday, damaging two houses and forcing 200 people to evacuate their homes and businesses, authorities said. No one was injured.

"I heard a loud explosion, I looked out the sewer manhole cover or blew off the ground," said merchant Patricia Genest. "None of us knew what was going on at all. People were running away from sewers and manhole covers."

"It sounded like bombs going off. It was one manhole right after the other," said gas station owner John Curley. The explosions took place in a quarter mile from the city's downtown and not far from a famous statue of a fisherman.

The explosions apparently were caused by gas in the sewer system, said Fire Chief Barry McKay.

Mayor William Squillacca declared a state of emergency at 3:30 p.m. MDT-but-lifted it about two hours later.

Authorities suspect the explosions were set off by the removal of a gasoline tank from a petroleum products-distribution yard, McKay said.

There was a company removing a gasoline tank upstream of the sewer system," he said. State and federal investigators will try to determine whether the gasoline was the source of the explosions and how it might have entered the sewer system, he said.

vice president one day.

Questions about the circumstances surrounding Quayle's enlistment in the National Guard in 1985 continued to overshadow charge Bush's presidential campaign and dot Quayle just a day after he was nominated for the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

Quayle said he did not offer to have Bush withdraw his name for the vice presidential spot on the ticket, saying he did not think there was any reason for that.

Bush and Quayle had just concluded their first joint campaign rally on the front steps of the courthouse when the vice president walked away and Quayle approached reporters standing behind a rope line.

Quayle took a combative, hard line with reporters, during an extraordinary 20-minute impromptu news conference on the courthouse lawn.

The give-and-take was broadcast to people at the rally site with an amplifier system, and Quayle supporters cheered his answers and boomed reporters seeking to question his military past.

Quayle said he planned to make his military records available, but didn't say when. He also said he did not believe he deceived Bush campaign organization officials when questioned about this during the screening process that preceded his selection for the ticket.

"I can assure you that I asked no one to break any rules, and that I broke no rules," he said.

"I was an active duty for six months," he said. "I could have been called to Vietnam" as many Indian units were, and if I had been called, I would have gone," he said.

Quayle said he had reservations about the Vietnam war, as many people of his generation did, but would have served if called.

Jacquet said that means people are giving more to their churches and the per capita increase is "not always asking for money, but apparently it is not translated into social concerns to a degree that they're satisfied with," she said.

"People like to see the church alive and need, not just maintain current operations."

The 1988 Church Yearbook shows that although fewer people are giving, the overall dollar amount contributed to religious organizations has increased. But the empty tomb study shows that most of the churches have had to use those additional donations for current operations rather than reaching out beyond local programs.

Gallup, in releasing Unchurched Americans 1988, said many respondents expressed concern that the churches are not living up to their responsibility. Only 35 percent of the unchurched, compared with 58 percent of the church, agree that "most churches and synagogues today have a clear sense of the real spiritual nature of religion," according to the poll.

Paul Benjamin, director of Congress '88, the evangelism conference, agreed. "There's a tendency in the church to go along with business as usual," he said. "What these people want is a congregation that has warmth and... a biblical emphasis."

"I think churches are going to have to come down their blatant fund-raising and realize that people are more important than things."

Today's weather

Expect evening thundershowers

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:
Today and tonight, fair except for a few afternoon and evening thundershowers. Highs mid 70s. Lows mid 40s. Sunday, sunny but breezy and cooler. Highs mid 70s.

Idaho Falls and Wood River Valley:
Today and tonight, fair except for a few afternoon and evening thundershowers. Highs low 70s. Lows mid 40s. Sunday, sunny but breezy and cooler. Highs low 70s.

Northern Utah and Nevada:
Utah — Mostly cloudy through this evening with scattered thundershowers. Turning cooler with decreasing clouds and showers late tonight. Sunny on Sunday. Lows both nights 55 to 65. Highs today in the low 90s. Highs Sunday in the low 80s. South wind 15 to 25 mph with higher gusts when showers today, becoming northwesterly tonight and Sunday.

Nevada — Mostly sunny west and partly cloudy east with widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers central portion today. Mostly sunny and cooler Sunday with isolated afternoon thundershowers central portion. Highs today in the mid 80s to mid 90s. Lows tonight in the mid 40s to mid 60s. Highs Sunday in the 80s.

Summary:
The National Weather Service says an upper level trough of low pressure along the Pacific Coast will move inland over the weekend and progress eastward. This will increase the chance of showers in the Idaho Panhandle.

An area of moist sub tropical air was continuing to move northward through eastern Nevada and Utah and was spreading into southern Idaho Friday night and Saturday, bringing a slight chance of showers or thundershowers. Southwestern Idaho should remain mostly dry but a little cooler and occasionally breezy.

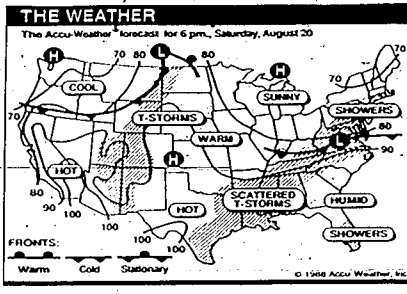

Low temperatures in the state Friday ranged from the low in the state of 25 degrees at Starbuck to the warm overnight reading of 52 degrees at Boise and Lewiston. Early afternoon highs were mostly in the upper 70s and 80s with Challin the hot spot at 90 degrees.

The only precipitation reported was in the extreme north. Skies were mostly clear except for a few areas of high thin clouds and winds were light.

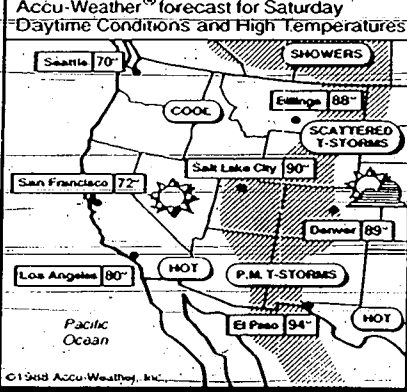

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was degrees at Starbuck. Stanley reported the coldest at 25 degrees.

The pollen count in Twin Falls Thursday was 125 particles per cubic meter of air.

The agricultural outlook for Southern Idaho — Conditions for field work and haying will be very good.

REGIONAL WEATHER

the period. However, widely scattered afternoon thundershowers in the east portion today through Monday may cause slight delays. Temperatures will be cooler than normal Sunday and Monday, then warmer than normal Tuesday and Wednesday. Winds today and Sunday will be from the west 15 to 20 mph.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho — Widely scattered thundershowers in the east portion Monday, otherwise fair with a warming trend through Wednesday. Highs 75 to 85 Monday, warming to the mid 80s to lower 90s by Wednesday. Lows in the 40s to lower 50s Monday, warming to the 50s by Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 116 degrees at Laughlin, Nev. The lowest was 35 degrees at Truckee, Calif.

Drought

end of October were twice as long — one in 1,000 — in the other three areas studied.

These were said to be the northern Montana near the North Dakota border, where 10.36 inches of rain would be needed; the eastern slope of the Cascades in Washington, where the shortage is 13.21 inches, and in Arizona, which would require 21.98 inches.

Only once in 1,000 years can these regions expect that much rain in August, September and October, Heim said.

Not in any previous year since records were first kept in 1895 have any of the four regions received as much rain as they need to break the current drought.

The center's calculations are based on a drought index which compares water available from precipitation and stored soil moisture to water consumed by humans, plants, evaporation and runoff and the amount needed to replenish lakes, reservoirs and parched soil.

If water supply balances usage, the index reading is zero. An index reading of minus 4 is considered a severe drought. Index readings currently read minus 7 or 8 in some of the hardest hit areas of the country.

Besides dry soil conditions, it could take years to restore rivers and streams to normal water flows in some areas, officials say.

The National Weather Service's hydrologists said that to return the Missouri River basin to normal will require "two to three years of above-normal winter precipitation over the mountainous headwaters of the basin followed by above-normal snowmelt runoff for each of the years."

In California, it said, "one year of normal winter precipitation followed by normal spring snowmelt runoff would do the job."

The Ohio and other Mississippi river basins could be restored to normal by a series of major low-pressure systems producing at least 8-12 inches of rain over much of the Ohio River basin over a two-to-four-week period," the agency said.

Technicians seal shuttle engine leak

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A gas leak in a steering engine compartment was sealed by technicians Friday, another step toward clearing the space shuttle Discovery for launch in late September or early October.

Working in cramped quarters in Discovery's up-ended cargo bay, the workers bolted a clamp-like device on a one-inch diameter fuel line that was detected leaking nitrogen tetroxide gas more than a month ago.

Once the 2-inch clamp was in place, the technicians filled it with a sealing compound. Then they subjected the line to pressure tests, and NASA spokesman Karl Kristerson reported initial data indicated the leak had been plugged. He said the seal would be monitored for several days to be sure there was no additional leakage.

If the seal holds as expected, and if initially encouraging results of a solid fuel booster rocket test in Utah hold up, the space agency may set a date next week for launching Discovery on the first shuttle mission since Challenger exploded and killed its crew of seven on Jan. 28, 1986.

Officials have been considering a launch in late September or early October, with Sept. 29 listed as an internal planning date. An intentionally flawed booster was fired for two minutes Thursday at the Morton Thiokol plant in Utah in the fifth and final pre-flight test of the redesigned rocket. A faulty joint in a booster was blamed for the Challenger accident.

"We're ready to fly; it looks like an absolutely great test from top to bottom," said Royce Mitchell, NASA's solid rocket booster project manager.

However, officials said that while initial results looked great, it would take several days to thoroughly analyze the test data.

To reach the nitrogen tetroxide leak, workers Wednesday used an electric router to drill holes through the rear wall of Discovery's 60-foot-long cargo bay and through the adjoining hull of a steering engine compartment.

The tiny leak was 12 inches from the newly drilled access panels, on a fitting in a vent line. When the leak was discovered more than a month ago, officials at first feared they might have to move Discovery off the launch pad to a hangar for repairs, a move that could have delayed the launch for as much as two months, into November.

Firefighters battle 27,000-acre forest fire

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Firefighters struggled Friday to encircle a 27,000-acre forest fire that had destroyed 10 houses, forced evacuations and killed cattle in rugged terrain before wind-steered flames away from other houses.

The leading edge of the 10-day-old Warm Springs Creek fire moved out of the Elkhorn Mountains toward the small town of Winston, about 15 miles southeast of Helena. But that area of flames did not threaten houses or other buildings, and no more evacuations were expected, said Art Howell of the Inter-agency Fire Dispatch Center.

"There's no more homes in the way," he said Friday. "But that depends a lot on the weather and the wind's a big factor."

Elsewhere, a helicopter involved in firefighting efforts in Wyoming's Bighorn National Forest crashed Friday, killing one person and injuring three others. Firefighters also battled fires in California, Idaho and Utah.

The Warm Springs Creek fire grew by 7,000 acres Thursday night, despite the efforts of 1,700 heavily equipped firefighters. But on two fronts, the fire took turns that could help suppress it, said fire information officer Bob Krepps.

Judge commits suicide in courthouse hallway

SEATTLE (AP) — A judge who killed himself in a deserted courthouse hallway after he learned details were being published about his alleged sexual misconduct felt hounded by the press and unable to bear it anymore, a friend says.

King County Superior Court Judge Gary M. Little was found dead Thursday night of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, officials said.

In the past six years, Little had been officially criticized or disciplined over improper contacts with juvenile defendants.

But rumors persisted of more serious sexual misconduct, leading to a political challenge. In June, those contacts in a campaign issue this year, and reporters from several news organizations to pursue reports Little had used his influence to coerce young men into sex.

Little, 49, a judge since 1980, announced last month that he would not seek a third term, acknowledging that "innuendo" about his work with teenage boys was the reason. He said he planned to move to California and work outside law.

Little shot himself about an hour before the presses at the Seattle Post-Intelligencer started printing Friday's editions, which contained more than three full pages outlining allegations by five men — three of them former students of Little's — that he had coerced them into having sex with him.

The Seattle Times also reported Friday that it had been investigating Little, and had interviewed more than 80 people.

Budget deficit surges in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit surged to $22.9 billion in July after posting a rare surplus the previous month, the Treasury Department reported Friday.

The July deficit followed a $9.3 billion surplus in June, when quarterly income tax payments by businesses and individuals put the government's ledger books into the black.

For the first 10 months of the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, the federal deficit totaled $142.0 billion, virtually identical to the $142.9 billion deficit recorded during the same period last year.

The Reagan administration is projecting the deficit for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, at $152.3 billion. That is slightly higher than the $146.7 billion deficit estimate the administration made in February, but below the $157 billion estimate made by the Congressional Budget Office at the beginning of the year.

However, the CBO revised its figures Friday to project a $155 billion deficit for the current year. James L. Blum, acting director of the congressional agency, said stronger economic growth than expected for the first half of 1988 was responsible for the lower forecast.

Blum said the CBO is not expecting — any — across-the-board spending cuts to be triggered this month by a law calling for a balanced budget by 1993.

New jail right on schedule

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Each Friday morning, Sheriff Jim Munn marches to the roof of the Twin Falls County Courthouse, draws his camera, takes aim and shoots the new county jail, under construction since March 31.

The snapshots, dating from April 1, are mounted chronologically in Munn's office. Next to the snapshots, a massive blueprint of the jail is spread out on a table. Next to the blueprint, a couple of graphs detail the county's rising jail population. Next to the graphs, on an adjacent wall, a plaque provides samples of the new jail's interior finishes, including a swatch of carpet.

Jim Munn, Twin Falls County sheriff

Open house — Aug. 27,

since 1974, is ripping ready for that jail. "I got glassy-eyed every time I go out there," he says, and he goes out there often. Munn and other county officials won't have to wait much longer for completion of the $8.3-million jail, whose name has been stretched to 13, tortuous syllables: the Twin Falls County Criminal Justice Facility. Construction is right on schedule — ahead of schedule, in fact, if the timetable referred to is the county's.

"We got until the first of April, but we should be finished by the end of February," said Stan James, managing superintendent with Russell Corp., the Boise contractor building the jail.

James said the company has experienced "no problems costwise" and hopes to have all concrete and block work completed by the end of this month. Workers will then begin roofing the building, located across from the city park on Shoshone Street.

County officials are so pleased with the jail's progress that they have scheduled an open house, "open jail" for Aug. 27 from 10 a.m. until noon.

"It will just give people a chance to walk through it, at this stage and see what they're paying for," said Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton, who will conduct tours along with fellow commissioners James Fraley and Marvin Hampleman.

Twin Falls will get 'attractive' facility

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Question: What's home — tastefully accented by beige stucco — has a sprinkling of pink rooms, a stylish exterior that fans toward the city park and a collar of rolling green dotted with pine and juniper trees?

Answer: A county inmate's — in about six months. "We want it to be as attractive as possible — for a jail," said County Commissioner Judy Felton, referring to the Twin Falls County Criminal Justice Facility, under construction since March 31.

The jail, which figures to be an intriguing tangle of pods and sod, is already drawing kudos for its architectural design.

"It's going to be a real nice facility," said Jim Munn, Twin Falls County sheriff. "I'm looking forward to the day we can make the transition."

That day should come toward the end of February, according to Stan James of Russell Corp.,

the Boise contractor building the jail.

Located on Shoshone Street next to the county courthouse, the jail will house a maximum 141 inmates inside its mostly double-bunk cells, which run to the gamut from minimum to maximum security. Munn said officials have found 13 different ways to segregate inmates, both men and women.

Two or three cells, commonly referred to as "drunk tanks," will be painted pink. Munn said that, in proper dosage, the color can have a calming effect on inmates.

A control center will be positioned in the vortex of the building, which will come complete with indoor-outdoor exercise rooms, a car sally port, laundry room and kitchen. Four cell blocks, or pods, will fan out toward Shoshone Street and the city park.

A holding cell and security corridor will connect the jail and the courthouse's judicial annex, so inmates shuffling to

Humane society looks for support

By DORIS WOODLAND
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The vast majority of respondents to a survey said they would support with time and money a humane society, which they said the area needs.

The survey is the most recent effort by the recently formed People for Pets Humane Society of Magic Valley to gather support toward its eventual goal of establishing an animal shelter in the Twin Falls area.

The society also has visited local schools and is trying to set up a special fund that would help find homes for animals in the city pound.

But the society may not get a shelter — at least under its current plan — unless it can show a solid financial footing.

The society would like to assume control of the city pound and turn it into a county-wide facility, Society President Laurie Simonds said.

Society members have met informally with City Manager Tom Courtney to discuss the matter.

Courtney said the city is interested in the arrangement if the society can give the council some assurance that it can financially support a shelter.

"We would want to make sure they have a track record as an organization before we would be willing to contract for the operation of the city pound," Courtney said. "Our biggest concern is that it's an organization that will stay in the community for a time and one that will not just be here today and gone tomorrow."

The city wants to avoid a repeat of the previous humane society, which took over the pound about 20 years ago and shortly after had to relinquish control due to lack of funds.

Simonds said the society is working to raise the funds to take over the shelter. Once operating, it would be funded through a combination of donations, fund-raisers and city and county funds, Simonds said.

Currently, society members are selling dog biscuits to help raise funds.

Although the society eventually wants to have an animal shelter, it now is concentrating most of its efforts on educating the public about abused and neglected animals.

Volunteers last school year visited about 1,500 Twin Falls and Kimberly elementary and high schools to teach students how to be responsible pet owners. They used a film and gave out information on licensing, spaying and neutering pets. The society plans to expand to other schools in the Magic Valley the coming school year, Simonds said.

Simonds said the society would like such education programs integrated more into school curriculums.

Society members also want to speak to parents-teachers organizations on the causes of dog bites, how to prevent them and how to respond to confrontations with a vicious dog.

About 350 surveys have been distributed to local veterinarians' offices asking people how they feel about a humane society. Just two of the 110 respondents who returned surveys said they saw no need for a society, People for Pets President Laurie Simonds said.

All respondents said they felt there are abused and neglected animals in the Magic Valley. And all but two said they would be willing to support through time and money a humane society, Si-

Jerome prepares for agriculture museum

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Thursday night, southeast of here at the crossroads of Interstate 84 and Highway 93, three men grubbed out a squarebrush with an old-fashioned piece of grubbing equipment. It was a symbolic first step.

If all goes according to plan, that site will house the Magic Valley Living Agricultural Museum by the Jerome Historical Society to tell the story of agriculture in the Magic Valley and the role it played and plays in the history of the area. Society President Noréne Andrus said.

But that's a way in the future, yet the society has just begun its drive to raise $100,000 for the project.

"We will be doing some fund-raising among both corporate organizations and individuals," Andrus said. "And there are some grants that we can request." The center will be built in land the Farm Bureau bought from Bureau Land Management and gave to the historical society.

The ag center will be built near the proposed "Crossroads of 93" plaza, a truck stop, motel and recreational vehicle park which Andrus said "should be completed about the same time as the ag center.

The museum will begin as a large building that can be added onto in future years, Andrus said. "And there will be a complete farm on the property, with barn, house, pig pen and chicken coop," she said. "The society hopes to have railroad cars in the center, along with machinery, crops being grown and harvested the old-fashioned way, and fish and game in their natural habitats. Andrus envisions a visitor's center and nature walk too.

"This is really a celebration of farming and the farm family," Andrus said of the project, which has been discussed by the society for about five years now. "We're just so excited because it has been our dream for so long," she said.

Others attending the groundbreaking ceremony were representatives from the BLM, the Farm Bureau and the Crossroads of Idaho Development Organization, along with a number of interested citizens. Walt Bentzinger is serving as museum chairman.

The project has the support of the Magic Valley Chambers of Commerce, the Jerome Centennial Committee and the Idaho State Centennial Commission.

'Bare-bones' Hailey budget gets little reaction at hearing

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — A plea for an additional $8,500 to keep the library from closing its doors drew the only public response during a hearing last week on Hailey's proposed fiscal 1988-89 budget.

The City Council approved a budget of $649,950, up only 3.6 percent over the current budget of $626,856. "To me it looks like a bare-bones budget, one more so than last year," Mayor Pascal Drake said at Tuesday's budget hearing. The council agreed, passing the proposed budget totals, but allowing room to shift the totals for the line items around before the final budget is approved prior to Oct. 1.

While there are no major changes within the budget, the most noticeable differences in the increased spending are due to a 5 percent salary increase for all city employees, an increase in the number of hours worked by City Planner Emily Laven and the additional costs incurred to print the revised Hailey Zoning Ordinance.

To accommodate these increases, the City Council completely eliminated its contingency fund, which last year was earmarked at $147,762.

Estimated requests for fiscal year 1988-89 remain about the same, but show slight increases in the amounts to be collected for the property tax levy, penalties and interest, beverage licenses and sales tax. The Highway User Revenue is expected to increase by $7,000.

A substantial increase in city income is anticipated with an estimated revenue of $29,000 for building permits and inspection fees. This is up 27 percent over last year's estimated revenue of $16,000.

However, the city also shows a significant decrease in funds collected from the state liquor-distribution fund at $3,600, compared with $8,220 last year.

Friends of the Library President Stefanie Marvel asked the council to reconsider their library budget.

The council budgeted only $9,431 of tax money from the general fund to pay for the salaries of the part-time head librarian, an assistant librarian and a janitor. These salaries total $14,184.

Further, $17,931 would be needed to pay salaries and operational expenses and make minor purchases, Marvel said. "I'd like to know if we're going to close the library, or keep it open," said to the council.

"I have no problem giving her the funds," Drake said. "I don't see it in here."

Marvel and her husband Jon suggested to the council that she establish a mill levy to support the city-owned library by creating a specific library budget. The library currently receives money from the general fund.

Marvel said an annual levy of three mills, or $30,000, would be sufficient to maintain and operate the library.

Drake said City Attorney Steve Crabtree will look into the possibility of a levy, but added that it probably is too late for the coming fiscal year.

Marvel said the Friends of the Library, a non-profit group organized last December to draw community support for the library, are applying for five grants to upgrade the library. An additional $9,500 from the city's budget would be

O'Connor favors reducing caseload

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — To reduce the massive federal caseload, judicial districts should look into several possible and alternative ways of resolving disputes, Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor told federal judges Friday.

To cut back on the number of death penalty cases, Chief Justice William Rehnquist has proposed a one-year statute of limitations on filing certain types of appeals to the high court after state court appeals are exhausted, O'Connor told the 9th Circuit judicial conference.

Earlier, a panel of legal experts concluded the U.S. Senate should look into a Supreme Court nomination, legal news, but questions about how the justice will vote are inappropriate.

O'Connor, chief justice of the federal court circuit comprising the western states, said appointing more judges to federal benches would be the simplest solution to handle the crush of federal appeals cases. But it would be "unrealistic to think Congress would approve" the number of new judges it would take, she said.

She said she also doubts Congress would be inclined to adopt the British rule, which makes the loser of a lawsuit pay the costs. However, some recent legislation has included provisions to make the loser pay costs, which could reduce the number of cases filed, she said.

Instead of hoping for relief from Congress, federal courts should experiment with specialized ruling panels of judges and attempt to resolve legal disputes before they reach the appellate level, she said.

Thieves strike Buhl auto dealership

BUHL — More than $2,000 worth of items were stolen during a break-in Thursday night or Friday morning at Dave Munroe Chevrolet in Buhl, police said.

Sgt. Richard Floyd of the Buhl Police Department said someone forced the door to the business at 220 Broadway Ave. North.

Approximately $1,000 worth of damage was also done to a privately owned vehicle in the dealership's repair shop, Floyd said. The car's dashboard was torn and the stereo stolen.

"They worked it over pretty good," Floyd said.

Police have "a couple of suspects" but have not made any arrests yet, Floyd said.

Woman allegedly tries to bite officer

TWIN FALLS — An Ohio woman allegedly rear-ended a car Thursday evening, driving away, was stopped, tried to run from police, and — when that didn't work — tried to bite them, according to police records.

Jo An Chilson, 27, was being held Friday on a $2,400 bond. She has been charged with fourth degree assault; driving under the influence, leaving the scene of an accident; resisting arrest and driving without insurance.

Chilson, of Delaware, Ohio, was driving a gold Plymouth Duster west on Falls Avenue when her troubles began around 5:50 p.m. Thursday, according to police records. In the "avenue's 500' block," Chilson allegedly drove into the back of a Datsun 1320 driven by Grant Shepherd, 36, of Hollister.

Chilson allegedly drove away from the accident, and 10 minutes later, her car was spotted by police in the 700 block of Washington Street North, according to police reports. Police stopped the car, after which Chilson allegedly tried to flee on foot.

Public Safety Officer Daniel Chatterton caught Chilson, who allegedly began struggling when he handcuffed her. She also allegedly tried to bite police officers while being transported to the police station, according to records.

Court records allege that a breathalyzer test administered to Chilson produced a blood alcohol content of 0.26, higher than the legal limit of 0.10.

may have more money coming in its coffers than it realizes.

Animal control officer Judy Dyck told the council the city has not received a payment of $7,500 from Blaine County to cover its share of the cost of providing animal control service for county residents.

A contract between Hailey and the county stipulated the cost of the Animal Control Department be split evenly, with each entity paying $7,500, the county supplying gasoline for the truck and

"We're going to do some extraordinary things with landscaping," said Felton, who plans to conduct tours during an "open house" at the jail Aug. 27 between 10 a.m. and noon.

The landscaping design includes plans for planting several different types of bushes and trees along the jail's perimeter. The lawn, dubbed by berms, should roll rather than sit flat.

And the jail's location? Well, according to Felton and Munn, there has been some concern expressed about having it built County taxpayers approved a 10-year tax increase in May 1987 to finance bonds for the jail; which was initially projected to cost $2.8 million.

Aided by ideal weather, construction on the jail has progressed smoothly throughout the last four months.

"That thing is like a beehive. You never see anyone standing around," Munn said. "The only thing standing around are Bill Thurgood and I when we go over there. The biggest is the county's jail administrator.

James, speaking at the site this week while surrounded by mounds of cinder block, brick and dust, said the only problem Russell Corp. has encountered has been finding enough local construction workers.

"There are a lot of people in this area with professional experience who are now in Nevada or Boise," he said. "And we've lost between 15 and 20 people who have gone to higher paying projects in other places, like Coeur d'Alene and California."

The project had 46 workers at the site Wednesday, its highest number so far.

Meanwhile, next door at the courthouse, the sheriff's office has had no difficulty rounding up enough people to stock its cur-

Coeur d'Alene Indians go on 110th pilgrimage to celebrate Assumption

CATALDO (AP) — With singing, dancing and drumming, Coeur d'Alene Indians have celebrated their 110th annual pilgrimage to the Cataldo Mission to celebrate the Feast of the Assumption.

"The Indians have returned to their homeland to celebrate the feast since Congress reduced the size of their reservation by one-third and relocated the tribe to DeSmet," said the Rev. Tom Connolly, pastor of the Sacred Heart Mission in DeSmet.

"The Feast of Assumption celebrates the Virgin-Mary's ascension to heaven. The two-day event began Sunday when tribal members set up their tipis among nearby trees for a two-day camp at the Old Mission State Park.

On Monday, a procession traveled to the cemetery to pray for the dead before celebrating Mass with Idaho Bishop Sylvester Treinen at the Cataldo Mission.

A noon dinner featured venison, fry bread and other Indian foods before dancing and drumming was scheduled. "They plan on feeding everyone that's here," Connolly said.

Graham film ministry seems doomed

Los Angeles Times

BURBANK, Calif. — Although denied officially, it may be the end of a era for the Rev. Billy Graham's feature film ministry.

His World Wide Pictures, which premiered its first crude film in the Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles three years after the 1949 Los Angeles tent crusade that made the evangelist famous, has shut its Burbank studio and dismissed more than a dozen employees.

World Wide Pictures, whose studio was built about 25 years ago, only a couple blocks from NBC's Western headquarters and the Walt Disney Studios, vacated the premises at the end of May, according to former president Bill Brown.

The step was part of a consolidation and cutting back process for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association also being felt at the Minneapolis headquarters. Graham will be 70 this year and, according to associates, does not want to saddle his organization with obligations it cannot meet once he dies.

No feature film is planned and World Wide's future is under consideration, said John Cortis, chief executive officer of the evangelistic association. "We really do intend to make more pictures, but we didn't think the facilities were being used enough to keep the studio," Cortis said.

Coincidentally, the halt in World Wide's steady production of inspirational feature films came at the moment the community was citing Universal Pictures' "The Last Temptation of Christ" as an illustration of "anti-Christian" bias in Hollywood and was bemoaning the scarcity of traditional family films.

Religiously, however, World Wide Pictures was not directly competing with major studios. It stuck to the formula of gradual, city-by-city distribution, working with local churches to use film as an evangelistic tool. The film ministry also worked under the rarely breached requirement that Graham and his crusades be worked into each movie's story line.

The greatest critical and popular success was scored by "The Hidden Place," a 1975 movie about Dutch Christians sheltering Jews during World War II. The $1.7 million film was based on the biography of a young Corrie ten Boom, who, at 83, appeared at the close of the film.

But some other films, including "The Prodigal" (1983) and the last two, "Cry From the Mountain" (1986) and "Caught" (1987), garnered modest praise, especially for the work of director James F. Collier, who also did "The Hiding Place."

Producer Ken Wales, who did "The Prodigal" for $2.1 million with a full union crew, said that the rising costs of making a major, professionally done film while using the Graham formula for distribution was hampering the film ministry.

"They would book a film in movie houses for only a week or two at most, not allowing for any word of mouth," Wales said. "They would then take three years to distribute the movie, city by city. His suggestion to issue 'The Prodigal' simultaneously in major cities along with nationwide publicity was turned down, he said.

For instance, the $1.7 million production "Caught," starring Jill Ireland, is being reared for showings this fall in selected Canadian cities for the first time. Graham officials emphasized that each film's value was measured largely by how much it cost but how many people it "reached" in bringing audience members to an evangelical faith — responses that are measured through cards, letters and other means of tabulation.

World Wide's start was not promising. "Mr. Texas," a story about a tough cowboy who turned tender when touched by Christ, was made in 1952 on a $25,000 budget. An overflow audience at the Hollywood Bowl, including Cecil B. DeMille and other celebrities, strained to see the 60-millimeter film in between breakdowns of the projector. Daily Variety panned the movie as "off-

Mormons build Oregon temple

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (AP) — A striking white marble Mormon temple resembling a medieval castle is rising out of the woods along Interstate 5, attracting tourists months before its expected completion.

More than 150 people a day stop by the construction site, many drawn by the stark outlines of the 170-foot spires that can be seen from the freeway in this affluent suburb south of Portland.

"It's gorgeous," said Beverly Shakespearo of Mesa, Ariz., a volunteer at the Mormon temple there who stopped by to view the Oregon construction while on vacation with her husband.

Private vehicles are barred within several hundred feet of the temple, but passers-by seem content to walk up to the chain-link fence surrounding the site and take a look.

The $20 million temple, faced entirely in white marble with a green slate roof, is scheduled to be completed next spring at the earliest.

To Mormons, the temple is one of the holiest sites in the world, as two inscriptions on the east of the building indicate: "Holiness to the Lord, The House of the Lord."

A 13-foot-high statue of the angel Moroni, covered with gold leaf, faces one of the temple's six spires, sounding a trumpet to proclaim the restoration of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Mormons believe the angel in 1823 led Joseph Smith, the founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, to golden tablets containing the Book of Mormon, one of their faith's sacred texts.

Groups plan to defy Israelis.

BEIT SAHUR, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Leaders of local committee said Friday they will defy Israeli attempts to stamp out the 9-month-old Palestinian uprising.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin declared the "popular committees" illegal on Thursday and threatened to deport prominent activists.

On Friday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said: "These committees incited disturbances and brought a lot of suffering upon the (Arab) population. We had to stop their activities."

Burmese civilian takes power

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Burma's attorney general took power Friday as the nation's first civilian leader in 26 years, but the students whose protests led to the ouster of his predecessor rejected him and called for a nationwide strike.

Maung Maung, a U.S.-educated lawyer who is seen as a figurehead for the military, was appointed chairman of Burma Socialist Program Party in an emergency party session. The People's Assembly elected him president, state-run Radio Rangoon said in a broadcast monitored in Bangkok.

Crash investigation continues

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A grave for President Muhammad Zia ul-Haq was dug Friday in the lawn in front of the world's biggest mosque, and investigators continued the search for what caused his military plane to crash.

Police in two-toned blue uniforms, rifles slung at their sides, lined the broad boulevards of Islamabad as foreign dignitaries began arriving for Zia's state funeral Saturday at the soaring, snow-white Faisal Mosque.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz landed Friday night with Robert Oakley, designated to replace U.S. Ambassador Arnold Raphel, who died with Zia in the crash.

North and South Korea's meeting fails to ease tension

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The first meeting in 2 years between delegates from North and South Korea failed Friday to ease tension or resolve the communist nation's demand to be a co-host at the Olympics.

The only agreement reached was to hold a second meeting Saturday.

Piece lawmakers from each country ended Friday's nearly three-hour meeting at this truce village 35 miles north of Seoul without any agreement, but the second session could clear the way for full talks on the Sept. 17-Oct. 2 Olympics and a non-aggression pact proposed by North Korea.

Rep. Park Joon-kyu, the chief South Korean delegate. Before it is too late, we should resolutely terminate the mutual distrust and confrontation which has persistently characterized our relationship.

The talks began around a wooden conference table so wide their chief delegates could not reach out for ceremonial handshakes. The two sides began with small talk but turned somber as they failed to reach agreement.

Walesa threatens new strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa on Friday threatened a strike at the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk if the government refuses demands of thousands of striking coal miners and dockworkers to "regularize" his outlawed union.

Strikes spread to one more mine in the economically vital coal fields of Silesia in southern Poland, bringing the number of job actions confirmed by both workers and mining officials to six.

Streetcar drivers, meanwhile, joined striking bus drivers in the Baltic coast city of Szczecin, where dockworkers have paralyzed Poland's second busiest port since Wednesday.

Walesa said Lenin Shipyard workers are prepared to stop work Monday if their demands are not met.

Ex-Bruins try to become Viks

By The Times-News

EDEEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Former Twin Falls High School star and University of Montana All-American Mike Rice is still in the running for a spot on the Minnesota Vikings roster, but Twin Falls Lance Sellers' future with the NFL team is in doubt following a knee injury.

Rice, who has had prior NFL stints with the New York Jets and the Washington Redskins, is among a group of four punters on the Vikings' roster, none of whom has asserted himself yet, according to Vikings spokesman Meryl Swanson. "The coaches really aren't satisfied with what they've seen from the punters," said Swanson. "We're bringing in guys off the waiver wire and taking a look. We cut one guy yesterday and we signed another this morning."

Rice-punted three times in the Vikings' 28-21 exhibition game victory over the Chicago Bears in Goteborg, Sweden, last Sunday for an average of 29.2 yards.

"My guess is that it will come down to close to the (regular-season) opener before the coaches make a decision," said Swanson.

Rice, a 1983 graduate of TFHS, has also been used as a wide receiver, although he hasn't caught a pass as a Viking.

Slowed by injury

"I'm sure the coaches view him as a guy who would have potential of playing wide receiver and being a punter," said Swanson.

Minnesota was among the NFL's worst punting teams last year. Greg Coleman, a 10-year NFL veteran, averaged 39.7 yards per kick.

Rice, the only player in Big Sky Conference history ever to be named first-team all-conference at three different positions in a single season, was selected by the Jets in the sixth round of the 1987 NFL draft. He was first team NCAA Division I-AA All-American punter as a junior at Montana in 1986. Sellers, an inside linebacker who signed a "free agent" contract with Minnesota last winter after stints last year with the Miami Dolphins and the Cincinnati Bengals, injured his knee in the Vikings' exhibition-season opening loss to the New Orleans Saints on July 27.

The Vikings say Sellers' status is "day-to-day." He underwent arthroscopic surgery this week and will not work out with the team.

Sellers injured his knee last year while playing for the Bengals during the NFL strike.

Nicklaus on verge of making five millionth golfing dollar

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus advanced through second-round play Friday at the International Golf Tournament, all but assuring that he will reach the $5 million mark in career earnings this weekend.

Nicklaus, 48, was among the 54 players who won their way into Saturday's third round of the unique tournament, which is being conducted under a modified Stableford scoring system.

Only 18 of the 54 players Saturday will advance to Sunday's final round. Nicklaus, however, needs to beat only three of those 54 to become the first player to reach $5 million in career earnings.

Nicklaus now has $4,997,450. The prize for $1 is $2,460.

"Any milestone is nice," said Nicklaus, who also was the first to reach $2 million, $3 million and $4 million.

"It would be nice to be first. But $5 million, as relates to the purses we're playing for today, isn't going to mean much. In five years, there'll be five players with $5 million," he said.

Nicklaus moved through second-round play with a total of eight points under the scoring system that awards five points for an eagle, two for a birdie, zero for par, minus-1 for bogey and minus-3 for double bogey or higher.

JACK NICKLAUS
Nears another milestone

Points are not carried forward, however, so Nicklaus and all other survivors will start again from scratch.

"I played pretty well," said Nicklaus, who played the buck of the Castle Pines Golf Club, which he designed, in 32. "I wasn't playing well all when I got here, and it's gotten a little better each day."

Fred Couples, Joey Sindelar and D.A. Weibring led the way with 11 points apiece to win $7,500.

Couples and Sindelar finished with consecutive birdies. Weibring, who had to come back from minus-5 after seven holes of the first round to reach Friday's play, made a big move on the back with 13 points in seven holes. He capped it with a 20-foot eagle putt on the 17th.

Mark Calcavecchia had to make a comeback of a different kind. He broke his putter when he angrily threw it at his bag after 3-putting from three feet for double bogey on the eighth.

Using a one-iron on the greens, he birdied the next hole, then made three more birdies on the back side and advanced with five points.

Jeff Sluman, who scored his first career victory last week in the PGA, also moved into third-round play with two points.

Paul Azinger, the runner-up in the PGA, did not make it. He was eliminated after finishing with zero points after a final-hole bogey.

Fuzzy Zoeller was another casualty. He was minus-2 playing the final hole and had to make birdie to have any chance of advancing. After his long putt missed, he swiped the ball into the gallery, put an "X" on his card and left.

Louganis heads for 4th games

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Greg Louganis, the defending Olympic gold medalist in springboard and platform diving, qualified for his fourth U.S. Olympic team and Mark Bradshaw won an intense battle for second place in the men's springboard competition Friday at the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Louganis scored 717.72 points in the finals to finish with 1440.60. Bradshaw battled Kent Ferguson for the other position on the U.S. team and captured it with 1375.65 points, delighting a group of about 40 blue-shirted relatives that strongly cheered him after each dive.

Ferguson, who took a 18.06-point advantage over Bradshaw into the 11-dive finals, dislocated his shoulder on his first dive. The shoulder was quickly relocated by the medical staff and Ferguson continued to dive after saying he was experiencing no pain. He finished third at 1363.95 to become an alternate.

Ron Meyer was fourth at 1294.38, followed by Pat Jeffrey at 1240.77 and Bruce Kimball at 1227.39.

Louganis, who has captured a record 47 national championships, was in command all night. Louganis, who won an Olympic silver medal in 1976 when he was 16, got four 9.0 and three 8.5s on his first two dives to turn the attention of the crowd to the battle for second between Bradshaw and Ferguson.

Pack ties Chiefs; Miami nips Broncos

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Green Bay quarterback Randy Wright led two fourth-quarter scoring drives as the Packers and Kansas City Chiefs played to a 21-21 tie in an exhibition game Friday night.

The Packers had three possessions and the Chiefs two in overtime. The deepest penetration came on the Chiefs' first drive, when they reached the Packers' 32-yard line before a 10-yard holding penalty thwarted the drive.

The Packers trailed 21-7 entering the fourth quarter when Wright, their third quarterback of the game, led a rally.

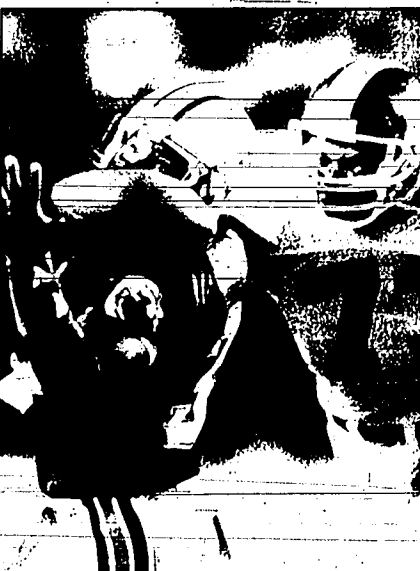

He hooked up on a 43-yard touchdown pass to rookie Sterling Sharpe with 7:13 to go, setting Green Bay within 21-14.

After a two-yard Kansas City punt, Wright took Green Bay on a 62-yard scoring drive. Rookie Keith Woodside carried one yard for the tying touchdown on a fourth down with 1:20 left.

The drive was aided by two penalties on the Chiefs, one for a personal foul after a 12-yard reception by Woodside and another on a holding penalty.

Before the fourth quarter, Kansas City had rendered Packers quarterbacks Marc Wilson and Don Majkowski ineffective. The Chiefs intercepted Wilson twice and held Majkowski to one completion in seven attempts.

The Chiefs took a 21-7 halftime lead as quarterback Bill Kenney led two long scoring drives.

Miami's Ron Davenport drops a pass under pressure

MIAMI (AP) — Fuad Revez kicked a 48-yard field goal with 4:10 left in overtime Friday night, capping a 52-yard drive and giving the Miami Dolphins a 16-13 victory over Denver in a preseason game.

One play before the kick, James Pruitt fumbled after catching a pass, but two Broncos overran the loose ball, and Miami tackle Mark Dennis recovered at the Denver 32-yard line.

Denver received the kickoff to start the overtime, and Cary Kubik quickly hit Warren Marshall for a 30-yard gain to the Miami 48. But three plays later the Broncos had to punt, and quarterback Ron Jaworski marched Miami to the winning score.

In the fourth quarter, Denver rookie David Treadwell kicked a 51-yard field goal with 1:01 left to tie the game 13-13. Treadwell slipped on the wet field as he kicked the ball, but it easily cleared the crossbar.

Jason Johnson's 44-yard kickoff return to the Denver 49 set up the score.

Revez kicked a 34-yard field goal with 5:33 left in the fourth quarter to give Miami its first lead, 13-10. Linebacker Jerry Beasley intercepted a Kubik pass at the Denver 48 to set up the kick.

Miami's Troy Stadford dove into the end zone from the 1-yard line with 10:10 remaining in the fourth quarter to tie the score 10-10. The touchdown capped an 11-play, 82-yard drive.

Cassia Rodeo records four new event leaders

BURLEY — Each dollar won in prize money by professional cowboys equals one championship point and represents another step toward a coveted spot in the National Finals Rodeo.

On Friday, those incentives spurred four competitors to establish new bests in this year's Cassia County Rodeo.

Raymond Lewis, a 16-year veteran of the sport, led the parade with 80 points in saddle bronc. Former world champions Dee Pickett and Allen Back followed in the team roping event with a quick dally and Bonnie Gieve shaved four-tenths of a second off Thursday's time in taking over the barrel racing average.

In addition to Lewis' performance three other riders caught the spark to move into contention for added money. Joe Elsner, a former College of Southern Idaho bronc rider picked up 77 points followed by Brady Ripple and Willie Fraser with 73 and 68, respectively.

Tonight's championship round begins one-half hour later than on the previous two nights with action beginning in the arena at 8:30 p.m.

Lewis may decline to run on U.S. 400-meter relay

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Carl Lewis cast doubts Friday on whether he will run the 400-meter relay at next month's Olympics while Steve Craig of Britain's 1,500-meter ace, swept away any doubts on his ability to win in Seoul.

Lewis, who easily dominated the 100 meters in 10.04 seconds, said Friday he was barred by U.S. relay coach Russ Rogers from competing in the 400-meter relay at the Van Damme Memorial track meet because "he had not proven himself."

Asked if he would still run the anchor leg in the Olympics after Friday's dispute, Lewis said: "At this point, no. At this point, I am just going to focus on the three individual events, and not the relay."

On Wednesday, Lewis beat archival Ben Johnson of Canada in 9.93 seconds, the best time of the season. "He said that 'was' proof enough he should be on the team," Lewis said. Rogers also told Joe De Louis he could not run in Friday's relays, despite the assurances of U.S. head coach Stan Huntsman.

"Rogers was acting like a junior high school coach," said Lewis. He also had a conversation with his personal coach Tom Teller, who told him "not to focus on the relay anymore."

Huntsman, reached at the U.S. Olympic training camp at the University of California-Santa Barbara, said no final decisions about the relay team have been made.

"As far as running on the team, no one will be kicked off unless I do it. It will be up to Russ and myself, but there's no way he can drop anyone off the team," he said.

Huntsman, who returned to the United States after a meet in Zurich, Switzerland on Wednesday, said Lewis was supposed to run once with the U.S. relay team this summer in Europe, according to the Olympic team manual. He did run a race in Europe, but did so with the Santa Monica Track Club.

"It was my understanding that Carl was going to run in Brussels," Huntsman said, adding that Lewis called him from Brussels to give his side of the story and that Rogers would not return to the United States after next week's Grand Prix meet.

Second rodeo session wipes out early leaders

GOODING — Thursday may have been the night for Idaho cowboys and cowgirls, but Friday night, the out-of-staters showed fans here at the Gooding County Fairgrounds what pro rodeo is all about.

In virtually every event, the top score or time was eclipsed in the second of three go-arounds.

Tonight, the final go will get underway at 7:30.

Butch Small of Dubois and Jo Talburt of Winchester, Ore., were the only participants from Thursday's first go to hang on to their first-place positions.

Small tallied a 76 in the saddle bronc and Talburt recorded a 75 in the bareback competition.

John W. Jones of Morro Bay, Calif. showed why he has earned over a half million dollars in his rodeo career. Currently fifth in the world in steer wrestling, he had to beat 5.5 to move into first-place and did with an electrifying 4.2 run.

Jones proved equally as formidable in the calf roping by recording a 9.5 time; good enough for first place overall, edging out former Twin Falls High School rodeo standout Tim Van Ostran's time of 9.8.

But it was an eleven-year-old who

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

"The stiffest tongue can be the truest friend."
— Euripides.

South had enough clues to pick up today's trump suit. Unfortunately he was relying upon what he could see instead of what he didn't hear.

The defenders took two hearts and shifted. To diamonds. Dummy's king won and a low trump was led to South's king. East playing the nine and West following suit with a drowsy deuce. Dummy was re-centered in clubs and another trump lead brought East's trey. South studied momentarily and then mis-guessed, his queen losing to West's ace. East later scored his trump jack and the game went one down.

Now he wasn't playing high-low in trumps, so he showed an ability to ruff something, so I thought he was giving me the business," explained South.

East's trump plays were a mystery but there was no mystery about East's failure to overcall one heart over one diamond. Had he held five hearts to the A-Q as well as the ace of spades, surely he would have overcalled. Since he didn't overcall, South should have played West for the trump ace and inserted the spade 10 on the second trump lead from dummy.

Why not on the first lead? Why lose two trump tricks if West had been dealt a doubleton A-J?
