Stagnant air advisory covers Magic Valley

By N.S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS – The Idaho Air Quality Bureau issued an air stagnation advisory Friday because of reduced visibility and heavy smoke from forest fires.

People with heart or respiratory illnesses and others irritated by the smoke should reduce physical exertion and outdoor activity, the advisory said.

Those who suffer from asthma or chronic respiratory illnesses should limit activity and stay indoors, said Dr. Carl Bontrager of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Otherwise healthy individuals should have no difficulty but should be careful about strenuous outdoor activity, Bontrager advised.

During an advisory, state law prohibits all open burning.

The advisory was issued at 4:30 p.m. and lasts until Sunday evening. It applies to counties from Twin Falls to the Wyoming border and north to Clark and Fremont counties.

Friday's smoky conditions resulted from a combination of northeast winds that have brought smoke from Yellowstone and other Wyoming fires and a temperature inversion over the Magic Valley. "That acts as a lid and holds the smoke near the ground," said Paul Worth, fire weather meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

A high-pressure system over the northern Rockies of Montana and Wyoming has created the winds that brought the smoke down the Snake River valley, Worth said.

An air stagnation advisory is the first stage of the state's air pollution alert program, said Orville Green, manager of planning and permits of the Idaho Air Quality Bureau. It is a way of informing people of pollution levels that they need to be aware of, Green said.

Air pollution alerts are rare during the summer, Green said. They occur most often in winter because of temperature inversions when cool air is trapped near the ground by warmer air above.

The last alert in the Magic Valley area was last winter, Green said.

Sherrel Hamburger, front seat, and Debbie Milner headed west with their children, ending up in Southern Idaho

For destitute families arriving in the Twin Falls area and facing crisis

Temporary family housing non-existent

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sisters Sherrel Hamburger and Debbie Milner packed their belongings into a rented trailer and their six kids into a station wagon, and while Hamburger's husband slept they left Pine Bluffs, Neb., for good.

A few days later they arrived in Southern Idaho with $10 to their names. They had no food, no friends and no place to live.

The sisters' story is like those of a flurry of destitute families that have found their way to the Twin Falls area recently with no promise of roofs over their heads except in the cars they drove.

Their arrival has dramatically shown the area's inability to provide temporary shelter for families in crisis, said Albert Miller of the state Department of Health and Welfare.

"The problem that we have is the housing," Miller said. "In Twin Falls it's non-existent."

Betty Wooten, acting executive director of the South Central Community Action Agency, said there is a waiting list 326 families long, for low-income or subsidized housing in Twin Falls.

"It's really a sad situation," she said. "I think a temporary shelter needs to be built for people looking for employment or for a home of their own."

Depending on what kind of apartment or home a family is looking for, it could have to wait up to a year to find subsidized housing, said Roberta Mundell of Idaho Housing Agency.

She said the person currently next in line for help applied for the program in June of last year. The waiting list has just been reopened after being closed for four months, Mundell said.

Being in the waiting list is no guarantee an applicant will ever be able to take advantage of the program. Mundell said out of six people who qualify for assistance, only one will receive it.

Of the other five, roughly half have moved away or are simply unreachable by the time they have moved to the top of the waiting list. Others are granted rent assistance but can't use it because they can't find homes to rent.

In another program, the Twin Falls Housing Authority has 56 low-income apartments in town. But it also has a one-year waiting list, Director Charles Capps said.

Mundell said the Twin Falls office will accept applications this month for a new program in which 18 families will be given rent assistance. To qualify, a family must move to Minidoka or Cassia County.

Those programs don't help families in emergency need of shelter, Mundell said.

Idaho fire crews gain but danger stays high

By The Associated Press

Fire bosses on Friday used a second day of light winds to gain more ground against the worst of Idaho's 17 wildfires, but public land managers cautioned that improved weather conditions have not eased fire danger in what is called the most severe fire season in nearly 30 years.

Clearwater National Forest firefighters meanwhile have retreated from the 770-acre Jay West blaze burning west of the Montana border as it pushed through a spike camp area they had struggled to hold for days, said Jerry Chapman, forest spokesman.

With more than 3,000 firefighter and support personnel still battling wildfires burning over more than 75,000 acres from northern Idaho to the Wyoming border, state and federal officials tightened restrictions for recreationists using the backcountry over the long Labor Day holiday weekend.

Damage from the current fires has already exceeded $4.5 million, mostly in lost commercial timber, and is mounting.

A complete ban on firewood cutting for personal use took effect at midnight on the Panhandle, Clearwater and Nez Perce National Forests in northern Idaho and general fire restrictions remained in effect throughout the state, prohibiting all open fires outside established campgrounds.

Chainsaws and vehicle use off-road were barred during the prime burning hours of 1 p.m. to 1 a.m.

"It's not advisable for people just to head out into the woods without checking conditions," Payette National Forest spokeswoman Jeanne Felmy said. "It's so smokey they might not see a fire coming their way."

Near the Wyoming border, fire bosses used a "helitorch" hung from a helicoper to burn out fuels inside the control line on the eastern flank of the 7,330-acre Trail Creek fire in the Caribou National Forest.

That fire has stabilized since earlier this week when flames seared a 2-mile finger to push within just a mile of ranches and grain fields in Star Valley.

Fire bosses called the blaze 87 percent contained Friday night and expected full containment by Sunday afternoon, Caribou National Forest spokesman Dan Pugmire said.

An area closure to campers and hunters has been established on the north side of the fire, Pugmire said. That includes an 11-mile square bordered by McCoy Creek to the north, south to Idaho Highway 34.

"Jay West kind of did its thing on us today," Chapman said Friday night. "We decided the turf we had up there wasn't worth the battle."

Mop-up crews were pulled from the line and elite hotshot firefighters were expected to start all over again on suppression, he said.

The southern flank of the 1,020-acre Opus 7 fire was secured Friday, removing the threat to U.S. 12 just west of the Montana border. But the blaze "slopped over" the line twice and no containment has been considered.

"If we get some wind, that thing is going to blow," Chapman said.

The new break line continued to hold on the southeastern flank of the 8,400-acre Eagle Bar fire near Hell's Canyon on the Oregon border.

That fire has already destroyed the bulk of two major timber sales

Utah clan sentences enrage federal prosecutors

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — A judge Friday sentenced four polygamist clan members to minimum prison terms, enraging prosecutors who said the penalties for a church bombing and fatal police standoff were too lenient and possibly illegal.

Chief U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, amid repeated criticisms of federal mandatory sentencing standards governing bombings and firearms, said he had no choice but to order prison terms of 15 years for clan ringleader Addam Swapp and five years for his mother-in-law, Vickie Singer.

"The sentence imposed is not for what you say, not for, what you believe, but for what you did," Jenkins told Swapp, who was seriously wounded in the Jan. 28 shootout with FBI agents that ended one of Utah's most bizarre church-state confrontations. A state corrections officer was killed.

Swapp's brother, Jonathan Swapp, and Mrs. Singer's son, John Timothy Singer, both 21, each received mandatory 10-year sentences for a pair of firearms charges and five years' probation for two other counts. Prosecutors said the maximum penalty for the four counts was 45 years.

They said Addam Swapp could have been imprisoned for 75 years and Mrs. Singer for 50 years for their parts in the Jan. 16 bombing of a Mormon chapel in Marion and a 13-day siege of their rural stronghold by 100 officers.

Confusion grows in Flight 1141 crash investigation

The Associated Press

GRAPEVINE, Texas — The crew of downed Delta Flight 1141 called out that the jet's wing flaps were in the proper position for takeoff, according to cockpit recordings released Friday, adding more confusion to the crash investigation.

National Transportation Safety Board member Lee Dickinson said at a briefing Friday night that the statements captured by the flight recorder seem to disagree with physical evidence found at the scene of Wednesday's accident, in which 13 people died.

Dickinson said the recording clearly indicates someone making a pre-takeoff call out for flaps and someone responding "15, 15. Green light." He said that would seem to indicate both flaps were shown to be in a matching angle of 15 degrees downward, a normal takeoff position for a Boeing 727.

Flight engineer Steven Judd also told the NTSB team Friday that he also heard the crew's first officer say "15, 15."

Flaps help provide the lift a plane needs to become airborne. The Delta jetliner crashed as it tried to take off from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Officials said they have not determined which voices belong to the specific crew members.

Softening job market gives overheated economy 'cold shower'

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment climbed to 5.8 percent in August as the number of jobless Americans grew by 226,000 and a four-month hiring boom in the nation's factories ended abruptly, the government said Friday.

Stock and bond prices soared on the news, and analysts said the softening job market was the "cold shower" an overheating economy needed. They predicted it will keep a lid on inflation and interest rates through the November elections.

Area rate rises – B1

The 0.2 percentage point rise from July's unemployment rate of 5.4 percent was characterized by 5,000 layoffs in a manufacturing sector that had put 130,000 more workers on their assembly lines in the previous three months in response to surging foreign demand for U.S. exports.

Last month, when factories reported adding 70,000 workers in July despite a slight increase in joblessness from a 14-year-low 5.3 percent in June, the Federal Reserve Board applied the brakes to the economy, raising interest rates one-half percentage point.

"This is a case where bad news is good news for an economy that was running hell-bent toward overheating and creating a very dangerous inflationary environment," Allen Sinai of The Boston Co., a New York economic consulting firm, said of the August jobs report. "A little cold shower here was exactly what was needed."

Richard Rahn, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's chief economist and a frequent critic of the Federal Reserve's monetary policies, said the unemployment figures show that the board "has achieved its goal of slowing the economy."

"They now should reduce interest rates to avoid killing the expansion," he said.

Most other analysts said they doubt that will happen, but they agreed there is now little likelihood that interest rates will be raised again before the election.

A separate survey of business payrolls showed employers adding 219,000 new jobs in August, compared with average monthly gains of more than 325,000 the previous three months.

Firefighters win a round, keep flames out of West Yellowstone

By The Associated Press

Firefighters declared a temporary victory Friday in their battle to keep a forest fire out of a small Montana town, and forest officials warned that more lightning and dry, hot weather were forecast this weekend.

"It's like sitting on a time bomb," said Scott Phillips, recreation officer for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area in central Idaho. "If we can get through this weekend without a conflagration, it will be a miracle."

Forests and rangeland burned Friday in parts of Wyoming, especially in Yellowstone National Park, and in Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, Utah and California.

The Boise Interagency Fire Center, the logistics command for the national battle against forest fires, reported more than 25,000 firefighters, military and support personnel on the lines of more than three dozen major fires in the West.

Fire Center spokesman Arnold Hartigan called it "the most severe fire season in almost 30 years." More than 3.5 million acres have burned, two-thirds of that in Alaska, and suppression costs already exceed $250 million.

"The fire season is anything but over. ... The 30-day weather forecast calls for continued unseasonably hot and dry weather for the Pacific Northwest and northern Rockies," Hartigan said. Record highs were forecast during the weekend in Oregon and Washington, with a threat of lightning.

Forest Service officials asked people to stay out of forests in central Montana and restrictions on such things as open campfires were tightened in Idaho and Washington. Many forests in Oregon were closed to recreational use.

Logging activity was shut down statewide in Washington, on public and private land, because of fire concern. The Weyerhaeuser Co. closed all its timberlands to public access until further notice.

The focus of attention Friday in and around Yellowstone, where some 550,000 acres have been charred, was the small town of West Yellowstone, Mont., just outside the park's west entrance. It was threatened by flames just over a mile away that were spreading from the 118,000-acre North Fork fire inside the park that had grown by nearly 10,000 acres since Thursday morning.

Bulldozers, helicopters and back fires stalled the advance of the fire Friday. But gusty winds swept a swath of flame south of the town and a wind change predicted for Monday raised concerns the blaze could move back toward the community.

"In my judgment this community is very defensible," Denny Bungartz, the North Fork fire's incident commander, told about 60 townspeople.

He said firetrucks had pumped 5,000 gallons of water into dry brush around a warehouse at the park boundary, and 50 fire engines would be in town during the night to hose down buildings if necessary.

To the east and north of town, the Madison [illegible] formed a natural fire break. Firefighters improved on that barrier by bulldozing fire lines and lighting backfires, exhausting the forest's fuel before the main fire could reach the river, as helicopters dropped water on the area.

Residents of the small town, with a year-round population of 750, prepared to evacuate but most stayed put Friday. Most of the people leaving town were tourists.

Curious onlookers filled the streets Friday as afternoon winds blew away the smoky haze.

in the Deep Creek drainage, but it was gradually burning toward a rocky ridge on the northern and eastern flanks where fire bosses hoped to finally stop it. It was listed as 65 percent contained today, up from 50 percent on Thursday.

Some local residents have expressed concern about the effect of bulldozer lines and subsequent erosion on the steep hillsides, Ms. Felmy said. Rehabilitation work already has begun on Haley Ridge and management teams are evaluating the Deep Creek drainage for reseeding.

A road closure in the vicinity of the fire has been set, she said. The area runs north of the community of Cuprum, west of the Seven Devils Mountains and east of the Snake River.

Newspaper reports 9 held in Zia death

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — An air force squadron leader and eight other people were arrested in connection with the plane crash that killed President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, a published report said Friday.

Jang, an Urdu-language daily, quoted "informed sources" as saying the nine were arrested Thursday night at Islamabad Airport, which doubles as a military airbase.

It did not name the suspects, identify them further, say where they were held or detail their alleged involvement in the case. It said one was an air force squadron leader.

Zia's personal C-130 transport plane took off from Islamabad on Aug. 17 to the southeastern city of Bahawalpur, where he watched a demonstration of the U.S. M-1 Abrams battle tank.

The four-engine turboprop exploded after takeoff.

Housing

need it right now," not a year later, Mundell said. In the meantime, they live with family or friends, in their cars, in vacant buildings, in parks or wherever they can find a quiet spot, she said.

Wooten said some families have lived in caves in canyons near Twin Falls.

"There is no immediate assistance for families that are homeless," Mundell said. "It's clear that we need more housing."

Sheila McGary, director of One Stop — a referral agency for the needy, said she has found some landlords less than cooperative in making housing available to the homeless.

McGary said some homeless people have offered to fix up dilapidated rentals in lieu of one month's rent while looking for permanent housing.

"I talked to landlords and they said they didn't want to bother with it," McGary said. "They don't want to take the time."

She said one of the women she has been trying to find housing for was evicted from her house when the bathtub fell through the floor. McGary said the landlord didn't think fixing the damage was worth the expense.

McGary said when the poor are in need of temporary housing, community charitible organizations put them up in "dingy" hotels until they find a job or qualify for welfare.

That kind of help lasts only a month. For those who are unable to find a place in that time, McGary sometimes must advise them to sleep in their cars, she said.

Wooten said her office has helped 103 families who were living out of their cars since the beginning of the year.

Wooten also said she knows of 300 families in the Twin Falls area living in housing that does not meet safety codes.

In many circumstances, several families live together in a house.

She said most of the families that are in need are in temporary crises and are not chronically homeless.

Since the beginning of the year, Community Action has helped 285 displaced families, including people who have lost their jobs or have been evicted for failure to pay rent, and cases in which a parent runs off or goes to jail, Wooten said.

Miller said of the seven families he helped in a recent two-week period, five of them have only one parent.

He said none of the seven families planned to make Twin Falls their home when they set out.

"This is where they ran out of food and gas, so this is where they have to stay, Miller said. He called the number of arrivals in recent months "shocking."

"In eight years I've never seen a summer like this one."

Hamburger and Milner, like many other homeless families that contact Miller, were moving west. Hamburger said she wanted to go where her husband would not find her.

"The only way to leave is to leave without him knowing," Hamburger said.

She said she had been sneaking clothes and other possessions to her sister's home over a month's time. As her husband slept on the couch, she sneaked out with her three children, aged 1, 3 and 13.

Milner used her welfare check to pay for the trailer, food and gas. "It took all the means I had to get here," she said.

When they arrived in Jerome on Aug. 11, they were told they could not expect to get immediate help.

"I just broke down and cried," Hamburger said. "We didn't know what we were going to do."

Miller said the two families were more fortunate than others because they were willing to go to an outlying town. He was able to find an apartment for them in Filer the next day.

However, in some cases in which the family has lost its transportation it becomes more difficult to move outside of Twin Falls where the majority of charitable providers are located.

Since going to Filer, the women have been getting food, clothing and furniture from local churches and charitable groups. Hamburger said she has been accepted for welfare and will remain on welfare until her two youngest children are in school.

Eventually, she said, "I want to go back to school so I can get a good-paying job, not a minimum-wage job."

"I think once again that everyone involved in this whole process continues to wonder why it ever occurred," Jenkins told Mrs. Singer, 45, who tearfully implored the judge to free her.

Jenkins said mandatory sentencing laws imposed by Congress "illustrate a crisis of the whole sentencing process whether we judge without knowing anything about the case as a matter of social policy."

The sentences and Jenkins' criticisms of Congress infuriated U.S. Attorney Brent Ward. He said prosecutors planned to appeal the sentences as illegal since Jenkins simply declined to impose penalties on some counts and rendered less-than-minimum terms on others.

"I've heard stronger sentencing comments in a drunk-driving case," Ward said, adding he had never been involved in a case where the sentence was "given with apologies to the defendant and criticism of the Congress."

"There's no case I know of that more clearly shows the wisdom of Congress in imposing minimum sentences," Ward said.

State murder charges in the shooting death of state Corrections Lt. Fred House, killed in the shootout, were expected to be filed Tuesday against an unspecified number of the 15-member clan that included nine children under age 18.

Swapp said the bombing was ordered by God as a sign of the impending collapse of the Mormon Church and all government, and that it would trigger the return of family patriarch John Singer, slain by police nine years before for resisting arrest. The clan maintained Singer was killed in a church-state conspiracy and that the family had been harassed for years by police and neighbors.

"I have to call the state of Utah and the United States to repentance. If they do not repent, they will be destroyed,"

Andrus apologizes for Symms charge

BOISE (AP) – Gov. Cecil Andrus on Friday apologized to John Dukakis, son of the Democratic presidential nominee, for a statement made last week by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, about Kitty Dukakis, wife of the candidate.

Symms said in a radio interview he has heard a photograph will emerge in the campaign showing Mrs. Dukakis burning the American flag in a demonstration during her student days. Later in the week, Symms said he had no substantiation for the rumor.

"Steve Symms continues to let himself be used by the other side," said Andrus, a Democrat. "He was not speaking for the people of Idaho when he said it."

A spokesman for Symms declined comment on the Andrus apology. "The senator has made his statement," aide Phil Reberger said.

John Dukakis was in Idaho for a campaign visit and said he and other family members were "furious" about Symms reporting an unsubstantiated rumor.

"I would say it was outrageous," Dukakis said. "You just don't repeat rumors if you don't know they are true."

"It never happened and it never could happen," he said. "My entire family deserves an apology for that."

Dukakis said he believed Symms was being used by the Republicans as part of their attacks on his father.

"That sort of systematic attack doesn't belong in American politics and it certainly does not belong coming out of the mouth of a U.S. senator," he said.

The younger Dukakis said his father hopes to carry Idaho in November. Lyndon Johnson is the only Democrat to carry the rural, conservative state since Harry Truman.

"We take Idaho very seriously. The West will be won in November," he said.

John Dukakis was pressed for information on who might be part of the cabinet if his father is elected.

He said it was too early for that, but said "there even could be some in this room," when talking about potential candidates.

"I can tell you one who it won't be," said Andrus, pointing to himself. He served four years as interior secretary under Jimmy Carter but has stated repeatedly since then he would not take another job that requires him to live in Washington, D.C.

Former governor John Evans, now a Burley banker, is state co-chairman of the Dukakis campaign and was standing nearby.

"There are few people in this country that my father has more respect for," Dukakis said about Evans.

He said he was not bothered by recent polls showing a drop in the lead once held by his father.

"That makes it clear to our supporters that this will be a difficult campaign," he said.

FCC clears Boise TV station of dispute

BOISE (AP) – The Federal Communications Commission has cleared Boise's KTVB television channel in a disputed broadcast from the McCall Winter Carnival in February.

Nampa's KIVI Channel 6, filed a complaint with the commission Feb. 26 charging that an "Idaho at-Five" Feb. 4 newscast, aired by rival Channel 7, led viewers to believe that taped segments from the McCall Winter Carnival were live broadcasts.

An Aug. 18 FCC letter to Channel 7 states: "It appears that, while segments from ... McCall were pre-recorded, no attempt was made by (Channel 7) to deceive viewers. Therefore ... we will consider the matter closed."

State court says PUC may hike rates if needed

BOISE (AP) – Rates of a long-term contract for co-generated power may be adjusted by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission if there are very strong reasons, the Idaho Supreme Court ruled Friday.

The court reached a 4-1 decision in the latest phase of a long-running battle between Idaho Power Co. and Afton Energy, Inc. The Wyoming company generates electricity that Idaho Power buys under a federal law.

Chief Justice Allan Shepard dissented, without opinion.

The case has been to the Idaho Supreme Court four times previously. Friday's ruling upheld Idaho Power's contention that its contract with Afton Energy was not absolutely fixed, but could be adjusted by the PUC under extreme circumstances.

Under a federal law, utilities are required to purchase power from small power producers and co-generators. Co-generators usually generate electricity as a byproduct of other operations. In Idaho, waste from sawmill operations commonly is used to fuel generators.

Idaho Power signed a 35-year contract with Afton Energy. The cost of power it purchased was supposed to equal the cost a utility could avoid by not having to build new generating facilities.

Afton contended under federal laws, the terms of the contract were to be long term and fixed. Otherwise, the company argued, co-generators could not make long-term financial commitments for facilities.

In a decision written by Justice Byron Johnson, the majority held that the rates listed in the contract "may be adjusted by the commission at any time, if the commission determines that such an adjustment is 'fair, just and reasonable' and 'not inconsistent with federal law to the extent that it may be applicable.'"

In a separate, concurring opinion, Justice Robert Huntley said it is clear that the PUC may change terms of the contract only under "an extreme level of distress" for the utility.

In other decisions released Friday:

– The Supreme Court voted 3-2 against a woman's bid for workmen's compensation benefits for a back injury she said she suffered while working for Bennett Lumber Co., Elk River. Joann Johnson alleged a 1985 accident at work injured her back.

The Supreme Court accepted an Industrial Commission ruling that there was evidence the woman's back problems started earlier.

– The Court of Appeals upheld a 6th District Court order revoking probation for a man who failed to make restitution after admitting embezzling $30,000 from his uncle's estate.

Richard E. Hall was placed on probation after agreeing to repay $300 per month, a figure later reduced to $200 per month when Hall had difficulty finding or holding a job.

District Judge Peter McDermott later revoked probation after the man failed to make payments and ordered Hall to serve up to 12 years in prison.

Hall's appeal cited a 1983 U.S. Supreme Court decision in a Georgia case. It said if the state determines a fine or restitution to be the appropriate penalty for a crime, it can't later send a person to prison solely because he lacks the resources to pay it.

But the Court of Appeals agreed with McDermott's ruling that Hall did not actively seek or maintain employment, thus violating terms of probation.

The court said the Georgia decision held that if a probationer does not make a bona fide effort effort to get a job or borrow money to pay the fine or restitution, that would show "insufficient concern for paying the debt he owes to society for his crime."

Idaho Power plans to ask for rate boost

BOISE (AP) – Still embroiled in legal controversy over the denial of most of its last request, Idaho Power Co. has notified state utility regulators that it plans to ask for a rate increase sometime after the end of October.

The company did not spell out how much it will seek or when it will ask the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for the increase to go into effect, but indicated that changed market conditions since its last rate case were among factors prompting the request.

Under PUC rules, a utility must tell the commission at least 60 days in advance of its intent to file a general rate case.

Idaho Power's appeal of the commission's 1986 decision in the company's last general rate case is pending before the Idaho Supreme Court. In that case, the PUC granted only $3 million, or 1 percent, of a 21 percent, $66 million rate increase request.

In May, the commission approved a $9.6 million, 3 percent surcharge on Idaho Power rates for one year to help the company deal with the effects of two unusually dry years. The utility had asked for a $41.3 million, 13-percent surcharge.

In July, the PUC denied Idaho Power's petition for reconsideration of the surcharge amount, but said the main issue raised by the petition would be considered if the company filed a general rate case.

Idaho Power argued that the commission did not take into account changes in prices for electricity sold to and bought from other utilities. Company officials said the commission assumed in its ruling on the surcharge that Idaho Power could earn more from sales.

Dukakis brings back strategist who distributed Biden tape

By the Associated Press

Michael Dukakis, gearing up for a very tough, very competitive" general election campaign, announced Friday he is rehiring John Sasso, his longtime political strategist who resigned after anonymously triggering events that forced Sen. Joseph Biden out of the Democratic primary campaign.

"It's going to be a battle royal for the presidency of the United States," Dukakis said, announcing that his pugnacious former campaign manager was returning as vice chairman of his campaign.

Sasso's return came as Republican opponent George Bush kept pounding away at the Massachusetts governor and amid polls that showed Dukakis and Bush were locked in a dead heat with the Labor Day campaign kickoff just days away.

Standing on a New Jersey beach on Friday, the GOP nominee accused Dukakis of contributing to its occasional pollution by arranging to have sludge from Massachusetts dumped in nearby ocean waters.

"Almost a year ago, John Sasso made a very serious mistake," Dukakis said in California. "He's paid the price."

Sasso stepped down last year after admitting that he distributed a videotape showing that Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, then a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, had borrowed virtually verbatim excerpts from a speech once delivered by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock. That videotape and subsequent charges of plagiarism forced Biden to drop out of the race.

Sasso, speaking at a news conference in Boston with campaign chairman Paul Brountas and manager Susan Estrich, apologized for the incident and said he did not intend to raise questions about Biden's character.

Dukakis has seen his double-digit lead over Bush in the polls evaporate since the Republican National Convention last month, when the GOP launched a sustained attack on the Democratic nominee.

Nevertheless, Dukakis said Sasso's return was not a reflection of disarray in his campaign.

"It's simply the fact we're looking at a little more than two months of what is going to be a very tough, very competitive campaign," Dukakis said.

Craig Fuller, Bush's chief of staff, said the return of Sasso "speaks for itself." But GOP vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle was more blunt: "I would say that this is another sign that the Dukakis campaign is in serious trouble."

Bush stood Friday before a group of supporters clad in beach attire to keep up his attack on Dukakis' environmental record.

"For almost two years, he fought to allow Boston's sludge to be dumped off New Jersey's shore — the very shore on which he had the nerve to stand and promise clean water," Bush said. "Nice guy — yeah."

Bush spoke on a beach at Belmar, N.J., which has been closed from time to time because of sludge that was dumped off the coast and then drifted ashore.

Dukakis might include Idaho as stop on his campaign trail

BOISE (AP) — It is about 99 percent certain that Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis will return to Idaho for a campaign visit this fall, his son says.

John Dukakis, 30, made a campaign appearance at the governor's office Friday and said it is likely that both his father and the vice presidential nominee, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, will campaign in Idaho.

"We're working at it. We hope to get him here soon. He had a wonderful experience when he came before," he said.

The elder Dukakis stopped in Boise briefly during the primary campaign. He also visited Idaho as part of a governors' conference.

Quayle 'in excellent health,' doctor concludes

States News Service

DAN QUAYLE
In excellent health

WASHINGTON — Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle is prone to getting nosebleed, has a slight case of sun exposure and needs to bring down his cholesterol level, according to his medical evaluation released by his Washington office yesterday.

But, overall, Robert C.J.Krasner, the attending physician of the Congress, said the Republican vice presidential nominee, who would like to be a heartbeat away from the presidency, was in "excellent health without any active problems."

Quayle, 41, went through a physical examination Aug. 1 that concluded his health was satisfactory, "except for a small erosion with a superficial blood vessel on the right side" of his nasal septum that has been the source of past nosebleeds.

To keep himself in shape, Quayle has regularly exercised on a stationary bicycle one to three times per week — a habit that may become extinct as he hits the rigors of the vice presidential campaign trail. Spokesman Jeff Nesbit said the senator now plans to "run" on the campaign trail for exercise. The medical evaluation shows the senator apparently takes no other prescription medication and does not smoke.

The report also details that Quayle used a "topical steroid" to alleviate the symptoms of the seasonal allergic rhinitis, an inflamation of the nasal mucous membrane.

Occassional outbreaks of "actinic keratosis" — a roughening of the surface of his skin on his face — has been attributed to sun exposure. The senator is being treated with liquid nitrogen.

"That just means he can't go out and play golf without suntan lotion," Nesbit said.

Krasner said Quayle "should be re-evaluated periodically and continue to use sun screen when out in the sun."

Quayle's internal organs appeared to be functioning normally, including a clean chest X-ray and EKG (electrocardiogram) to evaluate the smooth rhythm of the heart.

The doctor's probing detected a "small rectal fissure" which was not active during an examination. The Senator was advised to have a routine screening sigmoidoscopy to check for cancer, or other complications, during the next year.

To help bring down an increased level of cholesterol, Quayle was advised — as many Americans are — to observe a healthful diet. Quayle had a cholesterol figure of 228.

Quayle eats a light lunch and watches what he eats for breakfast, his spokesman said.

Specific test data, provided as part of the physician's report, does show various bodily chemical levels in excess of what is considered normal, although none was considered to be far enough out of line to warrent discussion in the report.

Judge reimposes fines on Yonkers

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge Friday reimposed potentially bankrupting fines against Yonkers for defying a court-ordered housing desegregation plan, then unsuccessfully tried to reach a settlement in informal discussions.

U.S. District Judge Leonard Sand, who found the city guilty of racially segregating housing for 40 years, reinstated the fines which were upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday night.

Sand said the Supreme Court decision "does not alleviate in any way, indeed one might agree it intensifies, the fiscal crisis that confronts the city of Yonkers."

He added that although the nation's highest court blocked fines and jail terms for four defiant city councilmen "they (the councilmen) still have a responsibility to the citizens they represent who will bear the brunt of these fines."

Because Monday, Labor Day, is a court holiday, Sand ordered the city to pay $192,000 on Tuesday. As previously promised by Sand, more than $85,000 of the money due will be earmarked for Yonkers public schools and to guarantee the payment of interest on city bonds. The balance of the $192,000 will go to the U.S. Treasury and is non-refundable.

Sand then called on lawyers for all parties to immediately meet with him privately "to explore informally some ideas we have for a possible solution of this crisis." The talks ended after about an hour.

"It was not successful," Mayor Nicholas Wasicsko told reporters.

Michael Sussman, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said there was no progress and called it a "hostile discussion."

"I haven't changed my position. I will do what I have to do," said Henry Spallone, one of the councilman opposed to the desegregation plan.

On Aug. 1, the council voted 4-3 against incentives to build 800 units of middle-income housing throughout the city as part of the desegregation plan ordered by Sand.

Men hold 4 hostage at Nashville bank

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four hostages and heavily armed police SWAT teams spent several tense hours Friday waiting out two holdup men, until the hostages safely made a break for it and police discovered the pair had fled.

The hostages spent 3 1/2 hours inside a closet believing the holdup men were still in the bank, then dashed from the building in a bid for freedom, police said. No one was hurt.

Heavily armed officers had spent the morning assuming the four bank employees were being held hostage. After the four ran out, officers fired two rounds of tear gas into the bank, searched it and found no one inside.

"It's ironic the way it worked out," said Officer Douglas R. Anderson of the Metro Police Department. "We were here to play it gut, until the end. We don't feel silly."

An all-points bulletin for two men was issued when police came out of the downtown bank branch around noon without the suspects.

The four hostages — three women and a man — were being debriefed Friday afternoon at police headquarters.

Police did not know how the two burglars were able to enter the Third National Bank through a broken rear window without triggering an alarm.

The bank employees told police one man carried a sawed-off shotgun and the other had a knife, Anderson said.

Defense consultant admits to payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defense consultant at the center of an unfolding Pentagon fraud investigation acknowledged Friday he paid other consultants for "technical information" on contracts but denied he made payments to government employees.

William Parkin, a former top Navy contracting official who retired in 1983 and set up his own consulting firm, said he began making monthly payments to consultant Fred Lackner in late 1986 for information on a pending Navy contract for special aircraft equipment.

Parkin said he paid Lackner between $15,000 and $18,000 and that he then provided the contract information to his client, Hazeltine Corp. of Long Island, N.Y.

"I will say it wasn't secret material," Parkin said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "It was technical information."

The Justice Department has asserted in an affidavit for a search warrant that wiretapped conversations showed Parkin "served as a middleman who paid government employees for inside information and sold it to contractors."

"I deny vehemently that I made payoffs to government officials," Parkin was quoted as telling the Wall Street Journal in an article published Friday.

L.M. Boyd — What's what

Equal Rights

Those who talk Equal Rights don't have much to say about Teddy Roosevelt. Maybe his time was such he couldn't do much about it. Still, he was the first man to take a lady into Harvard's Porcellian Club. His senior thesis was titled, "The Practicability of Equalizing Men and Women Before the Law."

On growing bald, none other than William Shakespeare, who knew something about it, said, "What He hath scanted men in hair, He hath given them in wit."

When you meet a Sert on a street in Turkey, he strokes his beard instead of tipping his hat. If you, too, are a Sert, he does. If you're not a Sert, he probably ignores you. Serts don't have much truck with strangers.

ENDORSEMENT

Q. Who was the first celebrity to endorse any product?

A. Baseball great Honus Wagner. In 1905, he let his autograph be imprinted on a Louisville slugger bat. That started it. He was the Father of Endorsement Advertising.

Q. Most of the World War II veterans were white males, right?

A. 92 percent white, 97 percent male.

In the list of actors on a stage play program sometimes is the name George Spelvin. But there is no George Spelvin. When an actor plays two roles, that's the name credited for the second role.

GESTURES

Even from a great distance, you can tell how fast a person talks by looking at said talker's hands. Gestures accompany the conversation, marking a sort of tempo. Studies show women gesture a lot more quickly than men.

Military generals tend to be better educated than corporate executives, but far less interested in the arts. Test scores suggest that.

Isn't "indivisibilities" a unique word? With seven i's, I mean?

The higher the window on the wall, the more light it lets in. Got that?

Q. What's the average age of people worldwide?

A. 23.

Prime Minister Thatcher looks forward to first grandchild

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is looking forward to having a longtime wish come true: She's to become a grandmother next spring.

A spokesman at Thatcher's 10 Downing St. office announced Friday that the prime minister's son Mark and his Texan wife, Diane, "broke the news this week that they are going to have their first baby.

The spokesman said Mrs. Thatcher and her husband, Denis, "are delighted and quite thrilled." The prime minister, 62, has often said in interviews that she longs to become a grandmother.

Mark Thatcher, a 35-year-old auto executive and onetime racing driver, married 27-year-old Diane Burgdorf, daughter of Dallas millionaire auto dealer Ted Burgdorf, in London on Feb. 14, 1987. They live in Dallas.

The prime minister's other child, Mark's twin sister Carol, a journalist, is unmarried.

JOE COCKER
No longer a wildman

Singer Joe Cocker changes image

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Joe Cocker swears he's no longer the wildman of rock.

He says audiences expecting the wild exploits of the past when he arrives for appearances in Australia later this month will be disappointed.

"There have been times when I've come to Australia and not been 100 percent," Cocker said by telephone from the United States in an interview with The Australian Associated Press.

"I still like the odd drink, but Im not half as crazy as I used to be. You can only do so much of it," he said.

And the reason for the change is none other than middle age.

"I'm 44 years old now and you have to learn to pace yourself better," he said.

Cockers' eighth Australian visit is part of a worldwide tour to follow up his latest album, "Unchain My Heart."

Town holds party for new princess

BEATRICE, Neb. (AP) — Princess Beatrice, the newest member of Britain's royal family, will be always welcome in Beatrice.

Residents of the city of 13,000 threw a king-sized baby shower Thursday for the daughter of Andrew and Sarah, the Duke and Duchess of York.

The princess received in absentia a regal array of gifts, from a college scholarship to a library card and a key to the city of 13,000. Beatrice, born Aug. 8, is fifth in line to the throne.

The party was the idea of the Gage County Visitors Committee, said Chairman Randy Baynes. "We wanted to celebrate something we had in common with her," Baynes said.

Some residents dropped off cards, including one from a girl who wished Beatrice the best of luck and added, "I hope you find a handsome prince to marry."

Olson loses case against 'A-Team'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ernest Olson took on the "A-Team" and lost.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Thursday upheld a judge's ruling that NBC had not copied the action-adventure series from an Olson screenplay called "Cargo."

Olson's script involved three Vietnam veterans who had conducted scams during the war and were looking to continue them in civilian life over the opposition of their former superior officers, who had become corrupt drug agents.

"The A-Team" involved the adventures of four Vietnam vets, three of whom were unjustly court-martialed in Vietnam, escaped from prison and were on the run.

A federal jury in Los Angeles found that the series was similar to "Cargo" and that NBC had access to Olson's work before putting on "The A-Team." But the judge overruled the jury.

Disabled Air Force cadet faces dismissal

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — An Air Force cadet who lost part of a leg in an auto accident faces dismissal from the academy because of a rule prohibiting amputees in the service, officials said.

Cadet Second Class Dan Korslund, 20, of Tacoma, Wash., has asked that he be allowed to continue his studies and graduate with the Class of 1991 with a bachelor of science degree even though he can't receive an Air Force commission.

A medical review board is studying the case, and an official recommendation has not yet been made to Air Force Secretary Edward Aldridge, said academy spokesman Will Ketterson.

But Air Force regulations prohibit anyone "who has lost a limb, including a foot, leg or thigh," from military service, and therefore from academy enrollment, Ketterson said.

"It is very unlikely Cadet Korslund will return to the Air Force Academy," Ketterson said.

Korslund was injured in an accident June 21, and his right leg was amputated 8 inches below the knee. He was a promising defensive tackle on the academy's football team.

His possible dismissal drew criticism from a handicapped rights group, which staged a protest Thursday outside the academy's chapel.

Members of American Disabled for Accessible Public, many in wheelchairs, handed out leaflets protesting "the hypocrisy of the U.S. government and the Air Force."

They cited the 1973 Rehabilitation Act that prohibits any discrimination against the disabled by any agency receiving federal funds. They carried signs reading: "USAF Academy Discriminates," "Disabled and Ready to Serve" and "Be All You Can — Except Disabled."

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., also has asked the Air Force to let Korslund stay.

Rebellion against Israel inspires new baby names

BETHLEHEM, Occupied West Bank (AP) — The nearly 9-month-old rebellion against Israel has inspired new parents among the Palestinians to give their babies such names as Uprising, Revolution, Victory, Struggle and Sacrifice.

An official at Al Ittihad Hospital in Nablus, one of the West Bank's largest hospitals, said that of 247 births in the last two weeks in July, 20 infants were given names connected with the uprising.

He cited Freedom and Liberation as other new names being given Palestinian children, noting Liberation had been used for both boys and girls.

But the official, who asked not to be identified, said some parents were hesitant for fear the names would not be allowed when they went to register births with Israeli authorities.

Atef Hajouj, of Bani Naim in the occupied West Bank, said he ran into trouble when he named his daughter "Intifadeh," the Arabic word for uprising. He said officials at the Interior Ministry told him the name was illegal.

"They told me to change her name or I will be fined," Hajouj, 24, said in an interview. "One intifadeh is enough, they said."

Hajouj's wife, Yussrah, insists the name is perfect for the child, now 5 months old. "It's very simple. She was born in the victorious intifadeh and she deserves to be named Intifadeh," Mrs. Hajouj said.

Interior Ministry spokeswoman Tova Elinson said Israel has no policy of preventing Palestinians from naming their children whatever they wish.

"Everyone is allowed to register newborns, no matter what his name," Ms. Elinson said. "Some names may not be recorded when several are recorded at once, but that's only because the computer abbreviates them."

In Bethlehem, 4-month-old Ansar Abed is named for the prison where her father, Yasser, was jailed when she was born.

Soviets expand bases on island, Syrian port

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Soviets are expanding naval facilities in the Syrian port of Tartus and the neighboring island of Arwad to counter the U.S. presence in the Mediterranean, Israeli analysts said Friday.

Soviet installations in Tartus, including submarine and surface ship maintenance facilities, constitute the largest Soviet naval base in the Mediterranean, said Dore Gold of Tel Aviv University's Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies.

Aharon Levran, editor of The Middle East Military Balance published this week by the center, said the facilities extend to Arwad island and include recreation facilities for Soviet crews.

Gold said no declassified information was available on the current or planned size of the Soviet base, but that the general and continuing trend has been expansion since 1987.

10 Palestinians injured in West Bank clashes

JERUSALEM (AP) — The West Bank's top army commander chastised Jewish settlers Friday for being too quick to use their weapons after one settler accidentally wounded two soldiers.

Palestinians and soldiers fought in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, and hospital officials said 10 Palestinians were injured.

Brig. Gen. Amram Mitzna warned the settlers in a 90-minute closed-door meeting to obey army regulations on the firing of weapons, Israel radio reported.

Settler leaders contended Gedalia Becker was obeying army policy when he opened fire Wednesday after a Palestinian demonstrator threw a firebomb at his car on a West Bank road south of Bethlehem.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin recently gave Israeli soldiers and civilians permission to shoot at firebomb throwers. But Mitzna told the settlers they could open fire only to extricate themselves from immediate danger, the Itim news agency said.

Lawmakers finish work on new constitution in Brazil

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Lawmakers early Friday finished work on a new constitution that replaces the authoritarian charter drawn up two decades ago by military generals.

The new constitution failed to make major social or economic changes, such as land reform and curbing the role of the military, but it legalizes strikes, abolishes censorship, strengthens Indians' rights and environmental laws, and lowers the voting age.

"Brazil is a new country. This constitution will protect the weak and punish those who abuse power," the constituent assembly's speaker Ulysses Guimaraes said.

The lawmakers completed the document shortly before 2 a.m. They had begun work in February 1987, two years after civilian rule returned to Brazil after 23 years under the military.

Strikers asked to return to work

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa on Friday pleaded with holdout strikers to return to work at a mine where a wave of labor unrest began 18 days ago. Poland's prime minister made a similar mission to a nearby mine.

In Szczecin, 1,800 dockworkers and 600 bus depot workers offered to end their strike as soon as job security is guaranteed for the bus workers, said Interfactory Strike Committee member Artur Balasz. He said strikers idled since Aug. 17 were awaiting management's response.

The end of the Szczecin strikes would leave the July Manifesto mine in Jastrzebie in southwestern Poland the only facility in the country still on strike. Workers there left their jobs on Aug. 16.

Walesa urged strikers at July Manifesto to give up their strike in exchange for a government promise to begin national talks on legalizing the trade union Solidarity.

Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner turned up unannounced at the neighboring Borynia coal mine to discuss workers' concerns, Polish media said. The mine, within sight of July Manifesto, went on strike from Aug. 20-24 and labor tensions have persisted there.

Walesa began talking to strikers at the July Manifesto mine immediately after arriving in the morning with an aide.

Amnesty concert kicks off in London

LONDON (AP) — Swaying in rhythm with a lineup of rock stars, tens of thousands packed Wembley Stadium on Friday for a concert that kicks off a global tour launched by Amnesty International in the cause of human rights.

Bruce Springsteen, Peter Gabriel, Sting and others opened the six-hour concert with a rendition of "Stand up for Your Rights," by the late reggae singer Bob Marley.

Rain cleared shortly before the start of the concert and the stars began belting out their songs from a podium surrounded by a blue and green map of the world embossed with "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" in red letters.

The concert at the 100,000-capacity stadium begins a six-week world tour which hopes to reach 20 cities on five continents, to mark the 40th anniversary of the human rights declaration by the United Nations.

Amnesty International, which monitors human rights worldwide and won the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, launched the $23 million extravaganza to stir the consciences of the young.

The finale, with all the performers joining in, was "Chimes of Freedom."

Telescope begins operation

CULGOORA, Australia (AP) — The first big radio telescope array in the Southern Hemisphere began operating Friday, opening a new window on the little-explored southern sky.

"We'll be looking at the center of our galaxy because it passes goes right above our head in the Southern Hemisphere," said Dr. Ron Ekers, the director of the instrument named the Australia Telescope. "Much of the galaxy and the nearest neighboring galaxy, the Magellanic Cloud is not visible to observatories in the Northern Hemisphere."

Ekers, who for seven years was director of the 27-dish, Very Large Array radio telescope in western New Mexico, said the telescope will study black holes and pulsars.

Jury finds for the defendants in malpractice trial

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A jury spent less than three hours Friday deciding a former Twin Falls physician and K mart's pharmacy weren't responsible for a Twin Falls man's bleeding ulcer in 1986, which landed him in the hospital and required more than 40 pints of blood.

The jury's short deliberation ended a three-week trial that scrutinized not only the physician and pharmacy, but also a cancer-treatment drug.

The plaintiffs, Freda and Chester Lawrence, argued that Dr. Miles Humphrey, his professional practice and K mart were negligent during a series of events in late 1985 and early 1986.

That series of events led to Chester Lawrence taking an improper dosage of a chemotherapy drug, which Humphrey had prescribed for his rheumatoid arthritis. His stomach wall burst, piercing an artery. His attorneys and wife say he now suffers from depression, loss of memory and loss of the use of his hands.

Humphrey, who has left his Twin Falls medical practice for specialized training as an obstetrician-gynecologist, said he feels sympathy toward the Lawrences.

"I'm happy with the outcome, of course," Humphrey said. But, "it's hard on them, and hard on everybody involved."

Freda Lawrence, who sat through the trial without her husband, showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

Attorneys for the Lawrences and K mart declined to comment.

During closing argument, Boise attorney Howard Humphrey asked the jury for $450,000 in damages for the Lawrences and $40,000 for medical bills.

"What we're trying to do is establish just compensation for Freda and Chester," Howard Humphrey said.

During 2 hours of closing arguments Friday, attorneys argued over the credibility of expert witnesses in the trial.

Andrew Brassey, Dr. Humphrey's attorney, said his witnesses, physicians from Twin Falls, could best determine the standard of care in the area. Standard of care is an important factor in determining medical malpractice.

"Can we really know how difficult it is for a physician to come in and testify against what is basically their own?" Howard Humphrey asked over Brassey's objections. "Especially on opinion questions?"

But Brassey also argued the drug, Methotrexate, didn't cause Lawrence's ulcer. Methotrexate is a drug more commonly used for chemotherapy treatment of cancer. However, it is used occasionally on rheumatoid arthritis and psoriasis, though it lacks formal federal approval for arthritis. Methotrexate works by attacking rapidly producing cells, such as cancer.

Methotrexate has side effects other than ulcers that Lawrence didn't suffer, Brassey said. "Ladies and gentlemen, he's got peptic ulcer disease," Brassey said.

Lawrence had suffered from rheumatoid arthritis since the early 1970s. Doctors prescribed several treatments for his condition before he went to Dr. Humphrey in late 1985. Dr. Humphrey prescribed Methotrexate to be taken two days a week.

But when the Lawrences switched pharmacies to K mart early in 1986, the prescription somehow was filled with directions to take the drug every day. Even so, Lawrence didn't start taking the drug every day until mid-February. About one month later, he suffered a bleeding ulcer and went to the hospital.

Lancaster criticizes recent suspension

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Democratic candidate for county commission has called the recent suspension of the commissioners' secretary "unbelievable."

Filer resident Tom Lancaster said the commissioners' actions center on the secretary's role in distributing what is clearly a public document.

"The whole thing smells of cover-up and would rival the mess we have in Washington," Lancaster said in a prepared news release Friday.

Lancaster's Republican opponent, Norma Blass of Filer, said she doesn't have enough information to comment on the situation. "All I have read is what was in the paper," Blass said. "I don't see how they could release any more information."

The commissioners' secretary, Diana VanHooser, was suspended with pay in mid-August, apparently for her alleged role in providing a letter from the county treasurer to The Times-News. The letter attributed controversy over the cancellation of a county worker's taxes to poor communication and different accounting procedures.

County Treasurer Bonnie Bruning maintained the document was secret until Wednesday, when she provided a copy to The Times-News.

The Times-News had received and returned a copy of the document in mid-July. VanHooser was suspended after the incident and apparently is being investigated by Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter.

Stallings: Surgery needed on deficit

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Both the current Congress and the president are to blame for the federal deficit, according to 2nd District Congressman Richard Stallings.

Stallings, a two-term Democratic incumbent, visited the Magic Valley Thursday and Friday.

The next federal administration will be required to perform a tricky balancing act to both trim the deficit and prevent the spending cuts from wreaking economic havoc, he said.

Now about 30 percent of the federal budget goes to the military. Another 30 percent goes to entitlement programs, such as Social Security and veterans' payments, he said. About 15 percent goes for interest payments. The final 25 percent pays for all other federal payments, he said.

If military expenditures are kept sacred, and entitlement payments are kept sacred, that leaves only a quarter of federal programs that can be considered to tame the federal deficit, he said.

He believes that all areas of the budget will have to be cut if it is to be balanced.

He has said that he will not support a tax increase, but he may not have a lot of choice, he said. He will consider a tax increase only if spending is cut across the board first and there are no other alternatives, he said.

President Reagan has doubled the federal deficit over the past eight years, Stallings said. "He has submitted tremendous deficits."

But Congress is also to blame, he said.

"Congress takes (this proposal) and says, 'Ahah, the president has legitimized the deficit,' he said. It cuts the proposal from $180 billion to $170 billion and say money has been saved, he said.

"The American people say, 'Hogwash,'" he said.

"I pledge my support to whoever wins" the presidency, if the winner cuts the deficit, he said.

Stallings, running for re-election against Republican Dane Watkins, a former state legislator, also discussed his stands on nuclear and farm issues during his campaign swing through the Magic Valley.

He plans to co-sponsor a bill to fight the greenhouse effect in the next session, he said. The bill will call for additional spending for smaller, uniform, high-temperature gas nuclear reactors. Some scientists believe that fossil-fuel and other pollution is preventing the earth from reflecting solar heat back into

Jobless rate on the rise

By The Times-News
and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Layoffs in the farm and food sectors sent the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in three Magic Valley counties up .2 percent in August to 6.9 percent. The survey area includes Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties.

"Added temporary layoffs at Universal Frozen Foods was one reason for the increase in the rate," said Lon McDonald, labor analyst with the Job Service in Twin Falls.

Also, August traditionally has a lull in agricultural employment, after the weeding and most of the watering are done and before the major harvesting begins, he said.

The rate was .3 percent higher than last August's 5.6 percent level.

"The rate is up a little bit, but I expect it will come back down in September," McDonald said.

Last month, 33,445 people were employed and 2,179 were unemployed in

Gas prices up for Labor Day

By RACHEL HARRELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite high gas prices and fire danger, there are still plenty of activities to welcome summer's end this Labor Day weekend. The expense of travel has increased, as gas prices are up since the Fourth of July. According to the American Automobile Association, the statewide average cost is $1.113 per gallon. That's 4.4 cents higher than the price of gas over Independence Day weekend, but still seven-tenths of a cent lower than the national average.

AAA also reports, however, that more than 25 million Americans, 10 percent of the population, will drive 100 miles or more from home this weekend. Westerners will do more traveling this weekend than residents of any other region, with 13 percent of them on the road, according to a national telephone survey of travel plans.

With this increased travel in mind, the state Transportation Department is, as usual, warning against drunken and reckless driving. It also commends the public for a marked improvement in driving habits: Although eighteen people have died as a result of traffic accidents during the past three Labor Day weekends, only one of those 18 was in 1987.

Sawtooth National Forest officials are urging people to be careful with fire in area parks and forests. No open campfires are permitted except in existing fire rings and designated areas, chain saws may only be used from 1 a.m. to 1 p.m., and motorized vehicles are permitted off roads and trails only between 1 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Bethine Church speaks out against Symms' tactics

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The wife of the late Sen. Frank Church says the tactics Sen. Steve Symms used in a radio interview last week are familiar.

"If this were an isolated event with Sen. Symms, I might be tempted to let it pass without comment," said Bethine Church. "However, I feel compelled to speak out because Symms used similar tactics against my late husband in the 1980 senatorial campaign."

Symms should be called to account for his "tawdry" campaign tactics, and Vice President George Bush "in the name of decency should repudiate these despicable tactics," she said in a prepared statement.

Last week Symms told a Blackfoot radio audience, "I haven't seen this, but I heard that there are pictures around that will surface before the elections are over of Mrs. Dukakis burning the American flag while she was an anti-war demonstrator during the '60s."

His comments about Kitty Dukakis, wife of the Democratic candidate for president, circulated nationwide. They came at a time when Republicans were struggling to deflect attention from Republican vice presidential running mate Dan Quayle's military history.

"My concern is that the Kitty Dukakis allegation was not a foot-in-the-mouth, isolated occurrence with Steve Symms," she said. "Rather it reflects a deliberate tactic of accusation without foundation in the belief that the correction never catches up with the allegation."

Church made her comments in a telephone call to The Times-News Friday from her Maryland home.

In Symm's successful 1980 challenge of four-term Democratic incumbent Frank Church, Symms and the National Conservative Action Political Action Committee campaigned "by innuendo, statements dropped and never even pursued," she said. "It just went on and on like that."

Just as he did with Kitty Dukakis last week, Symms made statements questioning the patriotism of Frank Church eight years ago, she said.

Symms accused her husband of making Idaho more vulnerable by emptying the Mountain Home Air Force Base missile silos, she said. In fact, her husband voted to replace the obsolete missiles there, she said. "He got a citation in the war (World War II). He had a fine Army record."

Church also denied that her husband had revealed the identity of a Central Intelligence Agency station chief who was later assassinated, as Symms alleged.

"As with Kitty, there was not a scintilla of evidence to support this charge," she said.

"In the current incident, Symms "evidenced a casual cynicism," she said.

When the Dukakis campaign denied that Kitty Dukakis ever burned an American flag, Symms said if an "enterprising reporter comes up with a picture, then I'll rest my case. Otherwise, I'll rest my case now."

"This unfortunately reflects a pattern of false charges being spread without any trace of evidence to support them," Church said.

1-car accident kills Buhl woman

BUHL — A Buhl woman was killed in a one-vehicle accident north of here Friday afternoon, authorities said.

Josephine Smith, 73, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, said Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn.

Her 74-year-old husband, Phillip, was taken to the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center where he was treated and released.

The accident occurred around 2:25 p.m. on Crystal Springs Road north of Buhl, Munn said.

Philip Smith was driving west in a 1971 Ford Bronco when the vehicle apparently lost the tread from its right rear tire. The vehicle swerved to the left, went off the shoulder and rolled twice, coming to rest on its tires.

The accident occurred about a half mile east of Clear Lakes Road.

Officials suspect arson in 2 hay fires

FILER — Sheriff's officials suspect arson in two separate fires which destroyed more than 140 tons of hay and straw near Filer early Friday morning.

The first fire, reported around 1 a.m., destroyed about 32 tons of hay owned by Filer resident Warren Stroud, said Harold Jensen, chief deputy with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office. The haystack was about two miles west of Filer, on County Road 2000 East.

The second fire was reported 10 minutes later by Sam Lancaster, who lives about two miles southwest of Stroud. Jensen said that fire destroyed about 90 tons of hay and 20 tons of straw.

Per ton, hay sells for roughly $70 and straw $50, according to Jensen, so the two fires' total loss would be almost $10,000.

Jensen said Lancaster heard and then saw a vehicle near the haystack a few minutes before the fire started. "Almost for sure it was arson," Jensen said.

The first fire was reported by an unidentified man, in his mid-20s, who stopped at a nearby house to call authorities. Jensen said sheriff's officials would like to talk to that man and are asking that he call them.

Firefighters from the Filer and Buhl fire departments extinguished the blazes.

Utilities plan to add radios to vehicles

TWIN FALLS — Local utility companies hope to improve public safety by equipping their vehicles with two-way radios for emergency communications, officials have announced.

Idaho Power Co., Intermountain Gas Co. and US West Communications are participating in the project, called "Radio Alert." With the help of local law enforcement agencies, the companies' drivers are being trained in proper procedures for reporting emergencies through their radio dispatchers.

"What it does is increase the eyes and ears out there," said Dile Monson of Idaho Power.

Once contacted by a roving driver, utility company dispatchers have a direct line to area law enforcement agencies.

Monson, an electrical superintendent, said the service could be used whenever drivers see an accident, fire or suspicious activity, or when a driver is flagged down by somebody who wants to report an emergency. "Radio Alert" decals will be placed on each of the approximately 100 participating vehicles throughout the Magic Valley.

The program is similar to one launched earlier this summer in Ada County.

Stolen car ends up in irrigation ditch

TWIN FALLS — A thief who stole a 1985 Trans Am Thursday night promptly lost control of the car, skidding across a lawn, hitting a trash can and landing in an irrigation ditch.

The thief apparently fled on foot, according to police reports. No arrests have been made.

The car, owned by Bob Burkhardt, of Twin Falls, was stolen at approximately 9:38 p.m. from in front of 346 Diamond Ave., according to police reports. The Trans Am, a white T-top model, was parked with its engine running.

The thief jumped in the car and drove east on Diamond Avenue to Lang Street, where he turned south. The thief then lost control of the Trans Am, skidding across a lawn and striking a trash can.

The car was abandoned in an irrigation ditch behind 388 Diamond Ave., according to police reports.

Damage to the lawn and trash can was estimated at $200. No damage was reported to the car.

Man charged with theft of sport coats

TWIN FALLS — Authorities have charged a Twin Falls man with stealing three sports coats from Mr. Mac on Main Avenue South.

Manuel Coronado, 45, was charged with grand theft, a felony. He allegedly grabbed three coats Thursday afternoon off a rack at Mr. Mac and left the store without paying for them, according to police records.

The three coats, taken together, were estimated to be worth more than $150, the dividing line in theft cases between what is considered a misdemeanor and a felony.

the three counties.

Unemployment at the state level drew a similar picture.

There too, layoffs in the farm and food sectors sent Idaho's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate up another notch to 4.6 percent in August, the second straight month the jobless rate has risen, the Department of Employment reported.

But even with the slight increases, the August rate stood at just 4.6 percent, a tenth higher than in July but still nearly a full point below the rate a year ago, according to the department's preliminary estimates. The June rate was revised from 4.7 percent to 4.4 percent.

It was the 20th straight month that the current jobless rate has run below year-earlier levels and the fourth straight month it has been below 5 percent.

At the same time, however, both the statewide labor force and total employment slipped from previous decade-highs, falling to their lowest levels since last October.

"I'm not at all surprised or too disappointed that the rates have leveled off," chief department analyst Jim Day said. "I don't think it signals a trend or anything. In agriculture they're just winding up the year earlier they have. The crops matured earlier and the water has run out."

Total employment dropped by 4,400 to 407,500 as some 4,200 people left the labor force, mostly due to migrant farm workers moving on to other states.

The upward movement in the state unemployment rate since June's 19-year low mirrored the job situation nationwide as unemployment across the country rose two-tenths of a point to 5.6 percent. The increase in workers off the job was nearly double the rise in new employment.

The impact of Idaho's second straight year of drought on food processing and farm work was underscored by the rise in the jobless rates for much of southern Idaho, where much of the annual harvest is processed.

"Summer crops were harvested earlier this year, causing more and longer agricultural layoffs than usual," department spokesman Bob Cooper said. "A reduction in acreage planted due to the water shortage also reduced demand for agricultural workers. The combination of unusual harvest times and the water shortage were major contributors to the increase in the unemployment rate."

The fall harvest should put many of those workers back on the job, although that development could well be later than normal, Cooper said.

The decline in those sectors, he pointed out, was partially offset by the opening of the new greyhound dog racing track in northern Idaho, continued strong construction activity in several other areas including Boise and the presence of thousands of firefighters across the state even though their battle against wildfires is only temporary.

Even with the increase in the jobless rate, the number of Idahoans without work in August was still below 20,000 for the third straight month. That is the longest period under that psychological plateau since 1973 when the labor force was nearly 80,000 workers smaller.

Based on the jobless rates for the first eight months of this year, unemployment in 1988 is averaging 6 percent. That is seven-tenths of a point below the 1987 12-month average, bolstering prospects that this year's average rate will hit or fall below January projections of 5.3 percent. Last year was the first of the decade that the jobless rate was below 6 percent.

But state figures also show that while total employment has recovered this year to pre-1980 levels, there has been a significant shift in the type of jobs available. The number of higher-paying resource-industry jobs has declined dramatically while lower-paying jobs in the trade and service sectors have increased. Those jobs now account for 46 percent of all-non-farm employment, up from 42 percent in 1979.

Regionally, the jobless rates for August compared to July and August 1987 were:

— Panhandle, 6.3 percent, 6.5 percent, 7.1 percent.

— Lewiston area, 4.6 percent, 4.9 percent, 6.3 percent.

— Canyon County, 5.9 percent, 5.1 percent, 5.8 percent.

— Ada County, 3 percent, 3.2 percent, 3.8 percent.

— Magic Valley, 5.9 percent, 5.7 percent, 5.6 percent.

— Pocatello area, 5.2 percent, 4.4 percent, 5.9 percent.

— Idaho Falls area, 4.2 percent, 4.7 percent, 4.2 percent.

"It is particularly distressing to me that Symms apparently believes the tactics of deliberate misrepresentation that worked so well for him in the 1980 campaign against my husband can again sell in Idaho and throughout the country," she said. "It's sad to say that in a election such techniques may provide the margin between victory and defeat."

In 1980, Symms beat Church by a margin of less than 1 percent, despite Reagan's landslide vote in Idaho.

The memories of the 1980 campaign are no longer painful, she said, "but I would not like to see it replayed."

"If we do not react vigorously now to call Mr. Symms to account — and anyone else who stoops to such methods — then I feel they will come to be accepted as a standard part of this and future campaigns."

on Labor Day, but there's still plenty to do. Many shops will be open, including the Magic Valley Mall, or you might take to the hills.

This is the last weekend for activities at the Redfish Lake Visitor Center in the Sawtooth National Forest. Ranger-led bird walks, beaver walks and a Junior Ranger Program will take place Saturday and Sunday, and programs are scheduled in the amphitheater at 9 p.m. Friday and and Saturday.

Friday's program will be "Mountain Music," and Saturday's is "Birds of the Sawtooths."

A "History of the Wood River Valley" will be presented at 9 p.m. Saturday in the Wood River Amphitheater at the Wood River Campground.

Inlet Campground at Alturas Lake has been re-opened and now sports 40 camping units. The North Shore Campground at Alturas is closed, but Forest Service personnel will be available at the Sawtooth National Recreation Area Headquarters to suggest alternate sites, including dispersed camping along the north fork of the Big Wood River, the Salmon River, or Smiley Creek Road in the Upper Sawtooth Valley. In the Burley Ranger District, a new section of the four-mile hiking trail to Independence Lakes has been completed.

For further information on fire closures, campground availability, and travel routes, contact the nearest Forest Service office.

If the outdoors doesn't excite you, there is always the Wagon Days Parade in Ketchum, starting at 1 p.m. today, or the national off-road bike championship today through Monday on Dollar Mountain and Galena Summit, above Sun Valley.

space and is dangerously heating the earth's temperature.

He also repeated his commitment to clean up nuclear waste at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

On the subject of farm issues, he said the federal crop insurance program needs to be revamped to suit the needs of Western farmers, in addition to Midwest farmers. Now some crops grown in the West are not covered, and proving damages can be difficult, he said.

If farmers were encouraged to purchase more effective federal insurance, less disaster aid would be needed, he said.

"Farmers are not excited about going to the federal government for help every time there is a disaster," he said. "They want to help themselves."

"Baxter, leave the lady alone," Lancaster said. "Investigate the commissioners. They broke the law, because tax information is public. Nobody should be fired for making public public information."

Blass said she could not comment based on just a newspaper article. "I think it would be really irresponsible, reading something in the paper and expressing an opinion," she said.

Lancaster praised Bruning's actions and argued for a two-party commission to balance power in the county. All three current commissioners are Republicans. Blass and Lancaster are running for the seat being vacated by Chairwoman Judy Felton.

Bishop Treinen retires but will continue to serve

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — When Sylvester Treinen was a Catholic priest in North Dakota he hoped and prayed he would never be picked to be a bishop, anywhere.

"I didn't think I was qualified," he says, for such a lofty post, which entails administering the church bureaucracy as well as ministering to tens of thousands of souls.

Like a bolt from the heavens, he was asked by the Vatican in 1962 to be bishop of Idaho.

The loyal priest decided if "the church wishes (and) God wants, well then, that's fine with me," he related shortly after his retirement Aug. 17.

It's hardly a retirement. He will continue in his duties, as "apostolic administrator" until a replacement is chosen by the pope months from now.

By several accounts, he has served the church more than a quarter-century remarkably well, in a difficult post as head of the second-largest religious denomination in Idaho, with 75,000 members.

He has had to steer his traditionminded flock through the modernization mandated by Vatican Council II, including holding services in English instead of Latin and opening up decision-making to some degree.

Looking back, the diocese could have been split, said the Rev. Bill Taylor, pastor of St. Charles Parish in Hailey.

"It is such a conservative group that it could have been unbelievably painful," Taylor said. "Somehow, in a gentle sort of way, he pretty well moved the whole diocese without creating any big gaps and chasms."

> Many Idaho priests are 'convinced he's been the best bishop in the Northwest and certainly one of the best bishops in the United States.'
> —Rev. Bill Taylor, St. Charles Parish, Hailey

One of the troublesome moves he considered making seemed innocuous enough on the surface: renovation of St. John's Cathedral in Boise.

But in May 1978, the bishop was confronted by a petition with 1,280 signatures opposing moving the altar to the center of the church and other remodeling. Relocating the altar from the front was a symbolic sstep away from hallowed church tradition.

Treinen, as became his custom on other issues, sought parishioners' input to the point of holding a public meeting at the cathedral before ultimately deciding to remodel it.

"Within a year, practically every Catholic in town felt that it was just a beautiful thing and the way to go. And they wondered why they objected," he said.

Treinen, 70, has been described as a "very holy guy" by the Rev. Paul Waldschmidt, auxiliary bishop of Portland, Ore. In the view of many, he is also a very humble guy.

He lives in a modest duplex on the Boise bench. He travels his far-flung diocese in a compact 1984 Chevrolet Cavalier.

For an interview, he was dressed in shortsleeved black clerical garb. He looked so trim and fit that it's hard to believe he suffered a massive heart attack in 1981.

He rose nimbly at one point to straighten a picture on the wall of Pope John XXIII, the pontiff who made him a bishop at the time of Vatican II.

"I can tell you (of) a few people who would say it's about time I retired," he said, when told of the high praise given his tenure. "In your office you have to disappoint people. You've got to make decisions."

But the Rev. Taylor said many Idaho priests, based on their assessments of other dioceses, are "convinced he's been the best bishop in the Northwest and certainly one of the best bishops in the United States."

Treinen brought the church "into a whole new way — much more open, much more compassionate, much more human," Taylor said.

In contrast, Taylor said, other dioceses, especially in the East, are very rigidly structured and "still struggle with how to show a human face."

The Catholic Church obviously is not a democracy, but Treinen said he emphasized "collegiality" — shared responsibility — in which lay people and the clergy are consulted before decisions are made.

While Treinen describes himself as a "very orthodox" exponent of church teachings, he is liberal in certain of his opinions on worldly matters.

This February, in line with church teachings, he publicly opposed abortion and contraception as topics considered for a sex educationm course in the Boise schools.

Yet three months later he wrote a letter of testimony opposing as immoral the plutonium refinery the U.S. Department of Energy wants to build at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

He has supported controversial Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen of Seattle, an old friend, some of whose powers were temporarily stripped by Rome.

Hunthausen calls Treinen "truly a prophetic church leader" who combined "realism and vision. A man acutely aware of the needs of the poor, underprivileged (and) those suffering from injustice and inequality."

Treinen is "very pastoral and really concerned with the people of Idaho," added the Rev. Roger LaChance, a Pocatello priest.

Clearly one of the most influential men in Idaho as well, Treinen infrequently speaks out. But he can make things happen, as when his testimony in the Idaho Legislature kicked free a bill requiring toilets in the fields for farm workers.

He has reached out to Hispanics, who form a major component of the diocese.

Treinen observed he has been pulled by extremes in the church: a "small segment of very conservative people who would like to go back before Vatican II." And then we have a small group of those who are more forward looking and anxious to open up more and to change things."

World Council of Churches marks 40 years of unity

NEW YORK (AP) — "We intend to stay together." So declared representatives of 147 mostly North American and West European Protestant denominations 40 years ago.

"Christ has made us his own, and he is not divided," said that 1948 founding assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. "In seeking him we find one another."

Their pact has grown to include 307 denominations of virtually all Christian traditions of every race and continent, East and West, totaling more than 400 million members.

Its formation amid the ruins of World War II raised an ecumenical landmark in the cause of Christian unity. "It is the great new fact of our time," said the late Archbishop of Canterbury William Temple.

That mid-century coming together of Christians signalled a reversal of more than 400 years of church fragmentation, antagonism and rivalry in the West and 1,000 years of uncommunicative separation from churches of the East.

Results have "overcome centuries of indifference and even hatred among Christians," affirming that "we are one people," says the Rev. Emilio Castro, council general secretary.

Now actively allied, they jointly probe their differences, dissolving mutual misconceptions and prejudices, contributing to one another's insights, working on many fronts in partnership.

Marking the council's birthday, old-timers and newcomers to the cause gathered Aug. 20-21 in Amsterdam, site of the founding asembly, to recall that pivotal event and eye its future.

"The conviction that unity is real, and division unreal, steadily grows... over the 40 years," says the Rev. John Deschner, moderator of the council's doctrinal commission on faith and order.

Deschner, a United Methodist theologian of Dallas, says that "beneath the disagreements we find an agreement in a unity which drew us together and will not let us go."

Among the Amsterdam celebrants was the Vatican's Christian unity emissary, Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, whose church spurned the ecumenical movement in its early years.

But Roman Catholicism plunged into it after the church's reforming 1962-65 Second Vatican Council. Although not a full council member, the Vatican participates through a joint working group and in various subunits.

That teamwork contrasts to the previous antagonism, such as at *the council's second general as*sembly in 1954 in Evanston, Ill., when Chicago Cardinal Samuel Stritch forbade Catholics from visiting or heeding it.

Other Catholic branches, including European Old Catholics, are full members, along with most every other confessional family — Anglican, Eastern Orthodox, Baptist, Lutheran, Methodist, United, Reformed, Disciples, Brethren, Congregational, Moravian, Pentecostal, Quaker and Mennonite.

Its constitution calls it "a fellowship of churches which confess the Lord Jesus Christ as God and Savior according to the Scriptures and therefore seek to fulfill together their common calling to the glory of the one God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit."

While some Eastern Orthodox branches were council members from the start, the large Ortho*dox churches of the East-bloc* Communist nations did not join until 1961 at the council's third assembly in New Delhi, India.

In the council's early years, it was assailed by critics as a would-be "super-church," aiming at monolithic conformity, although that was repudiated from the outset, and in this 1950 declaration of the council:

"It is not and must never become a super-church. It is not the world church. Each church retains the coisstitutional right to ratify or to reject actions or utterances of the council."

Formation of the council brought the confluence of three preceding streams of partial cooperation, — in doctrinal dialogue, in influencing and improving conditions in the world, and in evangelism and missions to win commitment.

Those three fields of activity now are now carried on through the various council sections, coordinating work on mission fields, serving refugees and social betterment projects, as well as probing doctrinal variations.

One of its most controversial efforts, the Program to Combat Racism, was launched in 1970 to help groups struggling against racial injustice.

Judge sentences polygamists for church bombing, standoff

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge on Friday sentenced polygamist clan ringleaders Addam Swapp and Vickie Singer to minimum prison terms for a church bombing and police standoff that ended in a lawman's death.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, who decried federal mandatory sentencing laws governing bombings and firearms, imposed terms of 15 years for Swapp and five years for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Singer.

"The sentence imposed is not for what you say, not for what you believe, but for what you did," Jenkins told Swapp, who was seriously wounded in a Jan. 28 shootout with FBI agents that ended one of the most bizarre church-state confrontations in state history.

Swapp's brother, Jonathan Swapp, and John Timothy Singer, Mrs. Singer's son, both 21, were to be sentenced later Friday.

"I think once again that everyone involved in this whole process continues to wonder why it ever occurred," Jenkins told Mrs. Singer, 45, who tearfully implored the judge to free her.

Federal prosecutors, unhappy with the lenient sentences, said Swapp could have been imprisoned for 75 years and Mrs. Singer for 50 years for their parts in the Jan. 16 bombing of a Mormon chapel in Marion and a 13-day siege of their rural stronghold by 100 officers.

"There's no case I know of that more clearly shows the wisdom of Congress in imposing minimum sentences," said U.S. Attorney Brent Ward.

Libertarian Party nominates candidates for November slate

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Libertarian Party has nominated an unprecedented number of candidates for their slate in the November election, including one candidate for the presidential electoral college with a name more familiar in Republican circles.

Linda Symms, the daughter-in-law of Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, joins Larry Fullmer, Jay Sorensen and Marian Dalton as the Libertarian presidential electors nominated Thursday at the party's quickly organized state convention at a Boise home.

Also nominated were one candidate for Idaho's 2nd Congressional District seat and 16 for positions in the state Legislature.

But the nominations do not automatically translate to ballot positions. The candidates still must submit filing fees and declarations of candidacy. Still, said Libertarian spokesman Jack Dalton, who hosted the convention, "I'm very proud that we have this many candidates for office."

The party has had to move quickly because it was certified for ballot status, by submitting enough petition signatures, only on Tuesday. It has one more week for all its candidates to verify that they want to run for office.

Donovan Bramwell of Roberts was picked to challenge Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, in November.

Symms suggests capital punishment for sexual offenders of children

LEWISTON (AP) — No punishment is too severe for those who sexually abuse young children, says U.S. Sen. Steve Symms, who suggests capital punishment for sexual offenders.

The Idaho Republican, who toured the North Idaho Children's Home at Lewiston Thursday and later addressed its 80th annual board of directors meeting, received his most enthusiastic response when he suggested capital punishment for molesters.

During his visit, Symms learned many of the 75 children under care at NICH at Lewiston and Nampa had been sexually traumatized.

"I think we should all band together to see that we stiffen the support for young people who are sexually abused and make the laws tougher, support our judges to give (abusers) a fair trial, if you will, and then, if they're guilty, hang them," he said.

The comment provoked some laughter, but Symms maintained the death penalty would be warranted in cases of repeat offenders.

"Don't think that won't be a deterrent because a lot of them have been repeat offenders," Symms said.

Symms' appearance symbolized the NICH move toward more private support. The private agency operates with a $4 million budget, including a $2 million payroll.

Atlanta Power Co. requests rate boost

BOISE (AP) — Three years after returning electrical service to the remote Elmore County mining town of Atlanta, its power utility says it needs to boost rates to stay in business.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission held hearings in Atlanta on Wednesday and Boise on Thursday on Atlanta Power Co.'s request that the commission reconsider its May order, which established metered rates.

In 1985, Atlanta Power spent about $200,000 to rebuild a hydroelectric plant on the Middle Fork of the Boise River. The plant had provided power to the town for 77 years, but was destroyed by fire in 1983.

Developers had hoped that a gold mine would be operating there by now, but it still is in planning stages.

Lynn Stevenson, a partner in the company, told the PUC Atlanta Power needs the rate increase to keep operating as a public utility serving about 50 customers.

"The company is in effect saying, 'If you don't give us the additional revenue, we can't stay in business and we're going to have to give up our certificate (as a public utility),'" Gary Richardson, information officer for the PUC, said.

California fugitive to face charges

BOISE (AP) — A California fugitive accused of killing his estranged wife has agreed to return to face criminal charges following his arrest in Idaho.

James Lee Jenson, 30, a Navy master-at-arms based in San Diego, waived extradition at an identification hearing held Thursday in Ada County Magistrate Court.

Judge Thomas Neville found probable cause to believe Jenson was the man sought by San Diego police on first-degree murder and kidnapping charges after reviewing the arrest warrant and criminal complaint.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Alan White said Neville granted Jenson "a reasonable time to get his affairs in order" before he is taken back to Southern California. Jenson is being held without bond in the Ada County Jail.

He is accused of stabbing to death his wife, Tina, inside a mobile home at Miramar Naval Air Base in San Diego, where their children were staying.

San Diego homicide Detective Bill Nulton said Mrs. Jenson, 30, a Boise native, testified against her husband on a kidnapping charge shortly before the Aug. 22 slaying.

Tribes show concern over hospital

BOISE (AP) — Members of the Shoshone-Paiute Indian tribes are concerned the conversion of their remote hospital on the Idaho-Nevada border to a day clinic will leave them without emergency care.

Plans to close the Owyhee Community Health Facility, located at the Duck Valley Indian Reservation, will be officially announced Sept. 8, said Winona Manning, finance director for the tribes.

U.S. Indian Health Services, which owns the hospital, believes it is being underutilized, she said.

Coors to provide bottled water for use in Salmon schools

BOISE (AP) — The Coors Brewing Co. has agreed to provide 26,400 quart bottles of water for use in schools at Salmon, which is battling a problem with its water purification system, Gov. Cecil Andrus says.

The water should be enough to last for 90 days, the governor said Friday. Two semi-trailer trucks carrying the bottled water are scheduled to arrive in Salmon on Saturday.

Problems with the city's water system recently forced Salmon residents to start boiling domestic water supplies. Salmon is a community of 3,308 population in the heart of southern Idaho's mountain area.

"This is a generous contribution that will be much appreciated in Salmon," Andrus said.

Andrus said his office has been working with Salmon officials to find a permanent solution to the city's water problems.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® BOBBY WOLFF

"If you would be a real seeker after truth, it is necessary that at least once in your life you doubt, as far as possible, all things."
— Rene Descartes.

When you hold nine trumps missing the queen, the odds usually favor a play for the drop. However, you might better the odds if you delay your trump play until after you've learned more about the deal.

If South wins the club ace and plays for "eight ever, nine never," he cashes the top trumps and winds up losing a trick in each suit. He can point the finger at the popular bromide, but the fact remains that he could have played more carefully.

A better line of play is to win the club ace and try the diamond finesse. This must be taken sooner or later and it can't hurt to find out where the diamond king is. When the finesse wins in dummy, South leads back a spade to his queen and West's ace. West cashes the club jack and exits with the spade jack to dummy's king. South is now in a much better position to play the trump suit accurately.

West is known to have held the A-J in spades, the Q-J in clubs and the diamond king. Had he also held the heart queen, he surely would have opened the bidding. And instead of playing for the drop in trumps, South confidently cashes the trump ace and finesses against East's queen to score his game and rubber.

Twin Falls running back Alan Heck leaves Centennial defender Matt Stoppello with a handful of jersey after spinning out of his grasp Friday

Twins Falls squeezes by Centennial 19-14

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A last-play 18-yard pass was knocked loose in the end zone just after a Centennial Patriot appeared to have made the catch and the Twin Falls Bruins inched out a 19-14 decision Friday night.

"Believe, believe, believe," the Bruin bench chanted as the defensive unit almost self-destructed a couple of times as the Patriots rolled from their own 4-yard line to the Twin Falls 18 for that last play — which became untimed after it appeared the clock had run out as the Patriots were trying to get it off.

The victory evened Twin Falls' season record at 1-1 and gave the Bruins a leg up on their Class A-1 Division I playoff pod. Centennial fell to 0-2.

"We learned last week (losing 33-30 to Jerome) that if you think you can, you can; if you have self-doubt you can't," said an elated Coach Jon Jund. "We preached that all week."

Twin Falls appeared to have reached its usual close-but-no-cigar comfort zone in the first three quarters when Centennial thrice held inside the 5-yard line.

A J.T. Eller interception gave Twin Falls a chance at a first and goal at the 3-early — but a poorly thrown pass bounced off a lineman, up in the air and Centennial picked off the deflection.

Late in the first quarter, Centennial held on third-and-five and Dave McClusky came on to boot the first of two field goals, this one a 24-yarder. But that lead lasted quickly as Curt Clifford returned the ensuing kickoff 90 yards and Russ Ferguson converted.

On their next possession, the Bruins moved to a first and goal at the 2 — and came away empty and a loss of three yards four plays later.

It was rather a replay of two early chances against Jerome last week and the lesson wasn't lost on Jund.

"We've taken two goal-line plays out of our offense now," he said of two passing plays. "And we're pretty well convinced that because we are kind of small, we'll be using our biggest fullback and a three-back set in goal line offense from now on."

But the drama was all saved for the second half when Twin Falls' held Centennial without a first down for three possessions and racked up 58 in two drives of its own. The last one led to a 29-yard field goal by McClusky after Twin Falls made a first down at the 13 and again was stopped.

Three plays into the quarter, it really started popping. Junior quarterback Mark Auchampach overthrew a glance in near midfield and Eller leaped for his second interception, put it away and romped 41 yards to shove the Bruins ahead.

Immediately, the Bruins couldn't hold the Patriots, however, and Auchampach took them 65 yards in seven plays.

Twin Falls replied with a drive of its own, Lylo Hudelson got the big play, ripping off 28 yards on a counter and adding 12 more on a face-mask penalty. That carried to the Centennial 12 and three plays later quarterback John Horner rolled out for the final two yards and the clinching points.

The defense then lifted and lowered Bruin fans the rest of the night, stopping the ensuing runback at the 19 but giving up a first down on fourth and one. A penalty nullified a big Centennial gain and a flare pass seconds later resulted in an 11-yard loss. A motion-penalty moved the ball back to the 4. Centennial then tried a pitchto the fleet Curt Clifford and he responded with a 16-yard romp but Twin Falls contributed a personal-foul penalty and instead of fourth and 16, Centennial had it third and six — and immediately clicked on a 42-yard pass to the Bruin 20.

Eller made a tackle for a loss on an option play but was flagged for face masking and Eller then almost blew his own head off when he dropped a third interception that probably would have been the easiest of the night. After Clifford was nailed for a two-yard loss and Centennial absorbed a motion penalty, the Patriots tried the alley-oop into the end zone where the Bruins just barely turned it back.

"This was a huge win for us, for our fans, for our players and especially for me," Jund said with a giant sigh. "It proves to our players that we can play with the Boise schools if we're willing to make the extra effort."

Jerome rolls past Gooding 47-29

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

GOODING — Lon Ruhter, in his second year as Jerome's starting quarterback, cranked up his passing arm Friday in leading the Tigers to a 47-29 non-conference high school football win over Gooding.

Trailing 13-7 with nearly half of the second quarter elapsed Jerome began to live up to preseason expectations. Ruhter found tight end Scott Lee for 34 yards and Scott Walter followed with a kick, evening the contest.

Following a punt on Gooding's next possession the Tigers moved deep into Senator territory from their own 36-yard-line before a penalty set them back near midfield. Undaunted by the penalty Ruhter hooked up for all 48 yards with wide receiver Randy Lance on the next play for the go ahead points.

The Senators ran just two plays on the ensuing possession before fumbling the ball away to Tiger linebacker Jeff Pedrow. That set the stage for Ruhter to Lance once more — this time to the Gooding 8 — and two plays later Allen Enos ran across his team's second TD in a span of less than two minutes.

"That was the turning point," affirmed first year Jerome Coach Greg Trenary. "We scored two quick touchdowns late in the half then went into the locker room and sat down and adjusted things defensively. We had a few things haunting us from last week and we wanted to take care of those."

Despite the final tally Jerome, ranked first among A-2 schools in the latest Associated Press prep football poll, was slow to recover from an early defensive lapse.

Gooding's Mike Johnson fielded the opening kickoff, found a wall of blockers and sailed straight up the middle for 90 yards. Scott Hocklander's conversion put the Senators on top 7-0.

"It was one of those things that happen," said Trenary. "It came at the one time we went to sleep out there."

It required a five-minute drive in which they registered five first downs — four via the airways — for the Tigers to score the first points of a still young season against the Senator defense.

Enos scampered 12 yards for a first down and Ruhter, who found his target on 11 of 14 first-half passes for 219 yards and a pair of touchdowns, moved his team into striking position with passes in succession to Randy Lance, Lee and senior wide receiver John Gourley. Clark Baumgartner bowled over from one yard out but the point-after try sailed wide.

Gooding extended its lead back to seven at the end of its longest sustained drive of the night 1½ minutes into the second quarter when senior quarterback Michael Simis kept for the final yard. Not until the midpoint of that period could the Tigers catch up.

Ruhter, who finished the evening with 15 completions in 18 attempts for 287 yards and three touchdowns while being intercepted just once, then found Lee to set up the break-away.

Skyline shuts out Minico 35-0 Friday

By BILL BIGHAUS
Special to the Times-News

IDAHO FALLS — Junior quarterback Trent Rose rifled two touchdown passes and ran for another Friday night as Skyline carved out a 35-0 victory over Minico in Gem State Conference play.

The victory in the game, which was the opener in the Class A-1 Division II playoff pod that both teams share with Idaho Falls, Madison, Blackfoot and Rigby, left the Spartans 0-2 for the season. Skyline is 1-1.

The 6-foot, 3-inch, 183-pound Rose, who played sparingly in the second half, wound up completing five of nine passes for 196 yards. He hooked up with Bill Koller on a 90-yard scoring strike in the first quarter and flicked a 40-yard TD to tight end Eric Bowen on the final play of the second quarter.

"Their defensive backs were playing up close on our receivers so we decided to run deep, quick patterns," said Rose, who also had a three-yard scoring run in the second quarter.

Skyline, which has only lost to Minico twice since 1968, led 28-0 by intermission.

"We definitely feel we improved this week (following a 34-33 loss to Pocatello)" said Skyline Coach Dale Guilford. "We hope we can improve some more."

While Rose found success upstairs, Skyline running back Scott Hawker caried 14 times for 133 yards. Hawker, a 180-pound senior, scored the Grizzlies' only touchdown of the second half — a 32-yard gallop with 4 minutes, 27 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

Hawker chalked up 77 of his yards during the third period.

Skyline's veer offense racked up 349 total yards — 274 of it coming in the first two quarters.

Minico managed 84 yards total offense.

Idaho Open set for weekend

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

KETCHUM — Lee Galway will try to cap his summer in style, while Tracy Binder will be looking to add some luster to her tennis career this weekend at the Idaho Open Tennis Championships.

Preliminary matches in this, Idaho's largest tennis tournament, got under way Friday night at the Warm Springs Tennis Club and at the Sun Valley Tennis Center. The tourney will run through Monday, with the men's open singles title to be decided at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Warm Springs and the women's open singles at 9 a.m. at the same site.

In contrast with the past four years, it's basically an all-Idaho tournament this year. Neither of the defending open singles champions, Rob Fought of Ogden, Utah, and Ruth Ann Stevens of Salt Lake, are entered, and of the top seeds in the two open singles divisions, all are from the Gem State.

There will be competition in all of the U.S. Tennis Association's rating divisions, in both doubles and singles.

Galway, the Boise State University senior and Warm Springs assistant pro who won the Warm Springs Open here earlier this summer, is the top seed in the men's open singles, followed by Warm Springs head pro Chris Langdon, Woodside Racquet Club pro Mark Scribner of Hailey, head pro David Parker of the Boise Racquet and Swim Club, the Twin Falls Open champion; and Kevin Debellius of Boise, a junior at Ohio State University and a member of the Buckeyes' tennis team.

Binder, a Boisean who plays college tennis in California, is the top seed on the women's side, followed by Idaho Closed champion Jane Chi of Meridian, Lynette Schulsmeier of Meridian and Tracy Carpenter of Boise.

In men's open doubles, Galway and David Tibbets, another BSU player, are the No. 1 seeds, followed by Parker and Langdon, Scribner and Dar Walters of Boise and Tim Crist of Boise and Rick Matheson of Caldwell, the Idaho Closed singles champion.

In women's open doubles, Idaho state high school champion Becky Clayton of Boise and Carpenter are the No. 1 seeds, followed by Binder and Schultsmeier.

By The Times-News

OAKLEY — Valley intercepted two passes, recovered two fumbles and didn't let top-ranked Oakley closer than the 25-yard line here Friday en route to a 20-0 non-conference high school football victory.

The loss was the first of the season for the Hornets, ranked No. 1 by the Associated Press among Class A-4 schools. Valley is off to a 2-0 start for the first time since 1984.

The victory marked the first time the Vikings have beaten Oakley since 1982.

Quarterback David Black accounted for all three of Valley's touchdowns, hitting Brian Hardy with a 69-yard scoring pass in the first quarter and following up with another scoring strike to Hardy from 25 yards a few minutes later. Bernard Mussmann kicked both PATs.

Darling blanks Dodgers on 5-hitter

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets, who are doing just fine in the present, got a glimpse of their future double-play combination Friday night.

Shortstop Kevin Elster hit two home runs and second baseman Gregg Jefferies added a solo shot as the Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-0 behind Ron Darling's five-hitter. It was New York's ninth victory in 10 games with the Dodgers this season.

Elster, who has struggled on offense all season, teamed with Jefferies to help give the Mets an 8½-game lead over second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, remained 6½ games up in the NL West over Houston, a 2-0 loser at St. Louis.

"Gregg has given the offense a shot in the arm," Manager Davey Johnson said of Jefferies, who was called up last Saturday from Class AAA Tidewater.

In the last four meetings between the National League division leaders, the Mets have yielded three runs to Los Angeles.

"It's amazing," Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda said, shaking his head. "Everything's been going great for them and nothing's going right for us. They haven't been playing well in the month of August."

scoring was Skyline's 36-yard line, midway through the first quarter.

Skyline won despite 14 penalties for 115 yards. The Grizzlies had one touchdown called back due to penalty, while Minico had 40 yards in penalties.

The Grizzlies, who last lost to Minico in 1983, took the lead when Rose and Koller joined forces on that 90-yard pass play with 3:48 left in the first quarter. The wide-open Koller sprinted down the sideline and Rose delivered a perfect strike.

Following an onsides kick, Skyline went 52 yards in four plays for its second score. Christian Stephens took a pitchout from Rose for the final 12 yards.

Running back Mike Yelverton and quarterback Travis Schow accounted for nearly all of Minico's yardage. Yelverton carried 11 times for 40 yards while Schow hit seven of 16 pass for 47 yards.

"They were real tough up front," added Trenary of his foe's young, but sizable line. "We kept them out as far as the blitz and pass rushing goes and capitalized on their one-on-one coverage. We have a lot of talent out there and when someone draws double coverage another rises to the occasion."

"I bet the Jerome kids are pretty impressed with some of our kids," said Gooding Coach Jeff Jeffries. "The difference came in their speed. They have six kids faster than any of ours. If you take the passing game out I'll bet the game was dead even."

The Jerome advantage crested at 40-13 in the third quarter on a three-yard gallop by Enos, who had 95 yards rushing for the night, and a 21-yard bomb from Ruhter to Gourley.

NFL shelves All-Pro Bruce Smith

NEW YORK (AP) — All-Pro defensive lineman Bruce Smith of the Buffalo Bills and wide receiver John Taylor of the San Francisco 49ers were suspended for 30 days by the NFL Friday for violating the league's substance abuse policy.

Smith and Taylor, the 13th and 14th players suspended this summer, were placed on their clubs' non-football illness list for at least 30 days.

Both were instructed to remain out of their team's training facilities until Oct. 2.

Smith, the first player chosen in the 1985 draft, was the Most Valuable Player in last season's Pro Bowl.

Jerome wins at CSI

TWIN FALLS — The Jerome Tigers proved there indeed is strength in numbers as they won both the boys' and girls' races at the College of Southern Idaho cross-country invitational Friday.

In the boys' race, Twin Falls placed in the second, third and fifth spots, but Jerome slipped in runners before the Bruins placed another runner to win by three points.

In the girls' race, only two teams competed and Jerome easily outdistanced Twin Falls placing four runners in the top five finishers.

Jerome's Matt Dixon and Barbie Lloyd got honors in the race while Twin Falls' John Conover and Robin McLinn each placed second in the boys' and girls' competition respectively.

Agassi, Connors win

NEW YORK (AP) — While Andre strives to become a giant, Jimbo just keeps on rolling.

Andre Agassi, the hottest player in tennis, and Jimmy Connors, the oldest player at the U.S. Open, advanced to the third round Friday. They are the old and new of American men's tennis. Both appear primed to do some damage here.

Connors, twice as old as Agassi, celebrated his 36th birthday with a 6-0, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Gilad Bloom of Israel. Agassi, seeded fourth, won his 20th straight match in official events, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 over Rick Leach.

"I've played here the last 19 years on my birthday," Connors said. "That's good. As long as it's my birthday and I'm still playing, it means I'm still in the tournament."

It was an easy day for three-time defending champion Ivan Lendl, who won his 23rd successive Open match. And it was a distressing afternoon for Yannick Noah — the seventh seed from France had to retire while trailing 18-year-old Jason Stoltenberg of Australia.

More of same for A-4; A-3's wide open

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series previewing Magic Valley Conference volleyball.

Prep volleyball

By CHARLOTTE HOWARD
Times-News writer

Things probably won't change much in Class A-4 high school volleyball in the Magic Valley this fall, but they probably couldn't be much different in A-3.

Defending District 4 and Magic Valley Conference champion Shoshone and defending Northside Conference champion Dietrich, last year's runnerup at district, are the consensus favorites in small school volleyball. But Kimberly, Declo and Filer, clubs that were rebuilding in 1987, will be the teams to beat in the A-3 Canyon Conference.

Canyon

Wendell

Losing three starters to graduation, fourth-year coach Jerry Allen has six seniors back from last year's District 4 championship team.

"We will have good depth," says Allen, whose ballclub finished 10-14 a year ago en route to a trip to the state A-3 tournament. "We have a lot of second-year starters and we have good height with our blockers."

Heidi Hope, a 5-foot, 5-inch senior, and Jennifer Thaemant, a 5-3 senior, are outside hitters. The setters will be Rebecca Lindsay, a 5-5 senior, and Cami Newton, and Cami Newton, a 5-5 senior.

Vying for positions will be a large group of newcomers. Jennifer Andrews is one of the best, according to Allen. The 5-8 junior will be filling in at the net as a middle blocker. With a variety of others, the Wendell team could be at the top this year, Allen believes.

"We still have difficulty with the transition from offense to defense," says Allen. "This will improve as we get more practice."

Kimberly

"Kimberly has a very solid team, especially in the areas of spiking and serving," says returning coach Kathleen Slette.

The Bulldogs, 14-9 a year ago, have four returning starters. Two returning for positions as hitters are Kenna Vincent, a 5-6 senior setter-hitter, and power-hitter Andee Pilant, a 5-10 senior. Setting for these two will be 5-5 Kami Bird. Laura Stark, at 5-7, and newcomer Becky Stark, 6-0, will be playing middle blockers.

"Team unity is another of the team's strong points" predicts Slette, whose team was 14-9 last season. "Our weakness right now is transition from offense to defense."

Gooding

"Seven returning players, five being starters . . . and the desire to win" will make the Senators tough this season, predicts Coach Joleen Toone.

Toone, in her 12th year at Gooding and with three state championships to her credit, predicts it will be a "horserace" for the teams of the Canyon Conference.

As for the Senators — 10-13 a year ago — height seems to be a similarity each of this years starters share. Jill Skabronski, a 5-8 senior middle blocker, and Michelle Conrad, a 5-11 senior middle blocker, will start on the front row. Anne Thompson, a 5-9 senior hitter, and Darcie Brown, a 5-6 senior hitter, are both returning starters.

Newcomers Jenny France, a 5-6 senior, and Aimee Vestal, a 5-4 senior, will be trying for positions as setters rotating in for starting setter Patty Ricks, 5-6. The Senators "play well as a team" according to Toone, but she worries about quickness and new players adjusting to the offense and defense.

"Our weaknesses right now are new transitions in our offense and defense, service receive and learning confidence in themselves and in the team," she says.

Valley

Marguerite Astorquia will have to overcome a scarcity of returning players this year.

Jana Depew, a 5-8 senior hitter, and Kara Huettig, a 5-7 senior hitter, will be the only returning players.

The newcomers are Karin Baker, a 5-1 junior hitter-setter, and Amber Jones, a 5-6 junior hitter-setter. Ambur McLain, a 5-6 senior hitter, is vying for a position along with a number of juniors and sophomores.

"Our biggest weakness will be a very young team," says Astorquia, whose team finished 13-8 a year ago.

Glenns Ferry

Hitters are topping five-year coach Debra Shrum's list of players.

This year's team will have three returning starters and four top juniors to fill in the open spots the graduates of last year's 2-13 team.

Heidi Labrum, a 5-6 senior, and Vela Shank, a 5-8 senior, are back to help the Pilots as starting hitters. Judy Hernandez, 5-4 senior, is also returning to the position of defense specialist. Liz Zabala, a 5-9 junior; Rachel Johnson, a 5-3 junior; and Cathy Dilworth, a 5-2 junior, are newcomers who will add fuel to the Pilots fire as bolth setters and hitters. Diana Garza, a 5-3 junior, is another defense specialist to fill in for Shrum. "They are aggressive players who aren't afraid to go after the ball," says Shrum, "but they have a lack of experience playing together."

Declo

After a 15-5 record last season, Declo — with the best record overall in the conference — is the frontrunner this time in the Canyon Conference.

"They are willing to work hard and have fun," says Coach Lynn Payne. "They will have to work hard because they have lost many of their players to graduation."

Payne has three returning seniors this year. Angie Tanner, a 5-7 senior, and Melissa Jenkins, a 5-7 senior, will be back to take the hitter positions. Senior Melanie Jenkins, also 5-7, will be the primary setter. The trio should see plenty of action this year.

Juniors Kim Darrington, a 5-7 hitter; Kristen Heward, a 5-5 setter; Shalise Turner, a 5-9 hitter, and Amy Knowles, a 5-9 hitter, are the top newcomers to the Hornets. Darrington, Heward, and Turner will all be vying for the substitute hitter positions, while Knowles hopes to set the ball for each of her teammates.

Filer

The reason for optimism at Filer is five returning starters.

Middle blocker Tearsa Nelson, a senior, is back to play with teammates Angie Chandler, a senior hitter-setter, and Kammie Coon, a senior hitter.

They will be teaming up with returning starters Lisa Blakeslee, a junior hitter, and Erin McCabe, a junior hitter-setter.

Junior newcomers Brenda Pettinger, a hitter-defensive specialist; Allison Lindholm, a middle blocker, and Anna Parrott, a junior setter-defensive specialist, will see a lot of playing time along with Tamara Moon, a junior middle blocker, and Heidi Barnes, a junior hitter.

"Strengths of this season will come from the ability of this group of girls to work together in all levels of practice and competition," says Coach Vicki Leach, in her eighth season at Filer. "The weakness may be that there are only three seniors on the team."

MVC

Oakley

If anybody in the MVC is to make a series run at ending Shoshone's two-year domination of the league, it will probably be the Oakley Hornets.

Coach Marva Strauss returns eight players from a team that finished third in the Southside Subdistrict tournament last year, including a pair of 6-footers.

The most prominent of the incumbents, however, is Stephanie Hale, a 5-6 senior setter who emerged as one of the preeminent players in the conference last year.

She'll be joined by Ruth Van Tassell, a 5-4 senior setter; Robyn Wyatt, a 6-0 senior middle hitter; Jennifer Hardy, a 6-1 junior middle hitter; Daine Schaeffer, a 5-10 junior hitter; Jennifer Smith, a 5-10 senior hitter; Lesia Gorringe, a 5-6 senior hitter, and Lori Judd, a 5-5 senior setter. All started at various times for the Hornets last year.

They'll be joined by three juniors who'll see a lot of playing time: 5-10 hitter, Cheyenne Lowe; 5-5 setter Jermee Roundy and 5-7 junior Kami Woodall.

Murtaugh

After having a 1-16 record last season, second-year coach Douglas Wright hopes to improve his record with "three returning three-year varsity starters."

Chantel Stastny, 5-7 senior setter; Karrie Andersen, 5-5 senior hitter, and Tiffany Ward, a 5-6 senior hitter-setter, have been playing since their sophomore seasons and are back to start for the Red Devils.

Three newcomers have made an impression on Wright and will see plenty of playing time this season. Leah Holstine, a 5-6 junior hitter; Kari VanLeuven, a 5-7 junior hitter, and Robbie Ann Jardine, a 5-7 junior hitter-setter, will be making "strong serving will be one of our strengths this season," says Wright.

"We have good movement," he says. "Our weakness are lack of height and lack of a strong attack capability."

Hansen

A trio of starters from last year's 2-11 team will lead the Huskies this season.

"My hitters are performing better this year, and a returning, experienced setter helps," says eighth-year coach Renea Remaley. "They have a good chance to achieve their goals this year."

Christie Mort, a 5-6 senior, and Kristi Johnson, a 5-10 senior, are returning hitters. Kathi Johnson, at 5-5, has perfected her sets and will also be a starting senior for the Huskies.

Newcomer Kari Burton, a 5-4 junior, has shown her talent to be in the passing field.

"The team has determination and team spirit," says Remaley. "But the height of my team has always been a disadvantage, although it's better than last year."

Raft River

Dennis Lee inherits a Raft River team with eight returning starters from last year's 9-7 ballclub.

Heather Higley, a 5-8 senior; Corrine Harper, a 5-8 senior; April Ward, a 5-8 senior, and Shelia Tracy, a 5-8 senior, will give the Trojans good size.

Just an inch behind at 5-7 are seniors Amy Knudsen and Lisa Ward.

Four juniors will also be seeing some action on the court this season. Brandi Hutchison, a 5-2 setter; Nancy Smith, a 5-7 spiker; Heather Carpenter, a 5-2 setter, and Jerina Teeter, a 5-4 setter will be used often as substitutes.

"Our spiking is coming along very well and the kids are working hard on their overhead sets. Our bumping and ball control are very good," says Lee. "But our overhead sets need some work, as well as our serving."

Castleford

The Castleford Wolves, 9-13 in 1987, have lost all of last year's starters to graduation, but coach Laurie Gandiaga feels she can make a start with four substitutes from last year's team.

Seniors Joan Heath, a 5-10 hitter, and Brenda Vincent, a 5-10 middle blocker, will bolster the middle.

Setter Rhonda Crowley, a 5-7 setter, will be there for returning hitter Kera Lott, a 5-7 hitter. Junior Angela Wisecar, at 5-7, is the top newcomer to the team and will be there as a hitter.

"I have seven returning seniors — all having varsity experience from lat year," says Gandiaga, in her third year at Castleford. "But we're still learning new positions and court coverage and control of the ball."

Hagerman

First-year coach Jerry Diehl will be starting four returning seniors in his first year as coach of the Pirates, but it's a quality group. The Pirates finished 14-2 a year ago.

Laura Thompson, a 5-10 senior outside hitter; Kim Fryhover, a 5-5 senior setter; Nicki McCammon, a 5-9 senior inside blocker, and Cindy Shaffer, a 5-7 senior outside hitter, are back.

"The Pirates have set high goals for the season," says Diehl. "Our best skill is serving and best attribute is teamwork."

Newcomers to watch this year will be Mary Henslee, a 5-3 sophomore setter, and Julie Thompson, a 6-0 sophomore inside blocker.

Shoshone

Since stepping over from the Canyon Conference three years ago, the Shoshone Indians have dominated the Magic Valley Conference, and this year should be no exception.

"The leadership of our senior starters should be instrumental along with the ability and desire of three promising sophomores," says Larry Messick, who has coached the Indians for 10 years. "A good defensive team is our biggest strength. We can put a fairly quick team on the floor."

Veteran hitters Shelli McClure, a 5-3 senior; Emily Stimpson, a 5-3 senior, and Linda Helsley, a 5-9 senior, will be back along with Jackie Guenechea, a 5-3 senior setter. Tammy O'Maley, a 5-3 sophomore setter; Angie Hubbard, a 5-6 sophomore hitter, and Heidi Stimpson, a 5-4 sophomore setter, top the list of newcomers.

"Lack of height and a very inconsistent hitting attack could be a very young and inexperienced team at times on the floor," says Messick.

They will all be trying to top the 1987 season record of 24-3 and a third-place finish in the state A-4 tournament.

Northside

Dietrich

Dietrich has a new coach this year and lost two starters off a team that went 20-2 in 1987, won the Northside Conference and subdistrict championships, finished second in District 4 and advanced to the state A-4 tournament. But the Blue Devils shouldn't miss a beat this time.

The reason is the return of four starters who may be among the Magic Valley's best: junior hitter Becky Southwick, senior hitter Kim Bowman, junior hitter Natalie Hubert and senior hitter Wendy Southwick.

"Overall, I feel our strongest point is having six good hitters and two very consistent setters," says incoming coach Jackie Nye. "I feel we have a very competitive and enthusiastic team this year."

Nye also has a large group of underclassmen from which to choose. They include Tara Conant, a junior setter; Debbie Southwick, a sophomore hitter; Heather Hubert, a sophomore setter; Monica Dilworth, a junior hitter; Nancy Power, a junior setter, and Diana Riegal, a senior hitter-setter.

Camas County

All of those sophomore and juniors who started for Camas County a year ago have returned, and with them a team that should be very competitive in the Northside.

"They're a group of hard workers," says first-year coach David Shirts, who came to Camas after five seasons at Nez Perce. "There's lots of room for improvement. Our weakness, really, is inexperience in some positions."

The incumbents are Tina Reed, a 5-2 senior hitter; Tiffany Dalin, a 5-7 senior hitter; Jennifer Dugan, a 5-7 junior hitter; Maria White, a 5-8 junior hitter, and Micki Miller, a 5-5 sophomore setter. They will be joined by two newcomers, sophomore Joy Jones, a 5-7 hitter, and Heather Madden, a 5-5 setter-hitter.

Bliss

Fifth-year Bliss coach Diane Butler is looking for good things from her ballclub this year, which returns five starters from a team that finished 19-9 last season.

"Our serving and backcourt play will be a strong point," says Butler, "along with our ability to keep the ball in play. Our weakness will be height, or the lack of it, and our kill percentage will be low due to height."

The returning starters are Shannon Renscoter, a 5-5 senior hitter; Candida Baker, a 5-4 junior hitter; Becky Bendorf, a 5-4 junior hitter-setter; M.E. Sears, a 5-2 junior setter-hitter, a Rachelle Owsley, 5-1 sophomore setter-hitter.

They'll be joined by newcomers Anisha Cenarrusa, a 5-3 junior setter-hitter, and Melissa Davis, a 5-3 sophomore hitter.

Twin Falls tops Buhl in non-league match

By The Times-News

Prep volleyball

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' setters, led by middle blocker Chris Mueller, helped stake Twin Falls to a 15-11, 15-3 non-conference high school volleyball victory over Buhl here Thursday.

The victory improved Twin Falls' season record to 2-1.

The Bruin JVs also won their match, 15-5, 15-6.

Minico splits pair in I.F.

IDAHO FALLS — Minico split a pair of Gem State Conference matches here Thursday night, losing to Idaho Falls and beating Bonneville.

The Spartans dropped a 3-15, 15-3, 8-15 match to the Tigers, then beat Bonneville 15-12, 11-15, 15-6 behind the play of Allison Andrew and Amy Christensen.

The Minico junior varsity lost both matches, falling to Bonneville 7-15, 8-15 and dropping a 8-15, 13-15 to Idaho Falls.

Kimberly 15-15 Gl. Ferry 9-4

KIMBERLY — The all-around play of Kenna Vincent and the hitting of Andee Pilant helped Kimberly keep its Canyon Conference record perfect here Thursday night with a 15-9, 15-4 victory over Glenns Ferry.

The Bulldogs won the JV preliminary, 15-12, 15-8.

Castleford 12-15-15 Richfield 15-3-6

CASTLEFORD — Castleford rallied from a 12-15 first-set victory, beating Richfield 15-3, 15-6 to take a non-conference high school volleyball match.

The Wolves also took the JV preliminary, 15-12, 15-10.

Filer 15-15 Wendell 1-6

FILER — The Filer Wildcats showed no mercy whipping conference rival Wendell, 15-1, 15-6 in Canyon Conference high school volleyball action Thursday.

Allison Lindholm's serving made the difference in the game.

The Filer junior varisty also won, but needed to go three games with the Trojans.

Valley 15-16 Hansen 7-14

HAZELTON — The Valley Vikings won their first game of this young season topping Hansen 15-7, 16-14 in a non-conference high school volleyball game.

In the second contest, Valley trailed 11-0, but the Vikings outscored the Huskies 16-3 to win the second game.

The serving of Jayna Depew, setting of Candy Shindle and the spiking of Ann Holland was to much for Hansen.

Hansen won the junior varisty game 15-9, 7-15, 15-4.

Raft River 12-15-15 Murtaugh 15-10-10

MURTAUGH — Raft River used a good floor game and good serving from Carrie Anderson to beat Murtaugh 12-15, 15-10, 15-10 here in a Magic Valley Conference volleyball game.

It was anybody's game through all three sets, but the Trojans dominated the net in the final two games.

Raft River also won the preliminary game 16-14, 15-12.

ment.

But that was then, this is now.

"We have an awful lot of potential," says first-year coach Suzi Byng. "(Six-foot senior hitter) Jessica (Davis) with a height will be a good hitter, possibly the best in the league. (Junior setter Stephanie) Fryberger (will be No. 1 or No. 2 in the league. Our weakness is that we're still learning, and I'm still learning as a coach."

In addition to Davis and Fryberger, the returning starters are Alison Irch, a 5-4 senior hitter, and Tria Katz, a 5-5 senior hitter. They're be joined by first-year players Amy Hermann, a 5-7 sophomore setter; Allyson Duvall, a 5-5 sophomore hitter; Michelle Eberhling, a 5-4 senior setter, and Nina Jongs, a 5-5 sophomore hitter.

Carey

Seventh-year Carey coach Barbara Berg has three starters returning from the team that compiled a 12-6 record last year and finished second to Dietrich in the Northside Conference.

"We have a lot of determination," says Berg. "We have potential freshmen with possible varsity material, but we will have to make up for lack of experience in hustle."

The incumbents are Nicki Eldredge, a 5-8 senior setter-hitter; Kim Wellard, a 5-6 senior hitter, and Bobbi Whitby, a 5-8 senior hitter who won't play for awhile due to knee surgery.

"We're a young team with very little varsity experience," says Berg. "We lost most of our height from last year and probably will not peak until October. We're down in numbers from previous years; we only have 17 out for varsity and JV."

The newcomers are led by Michelle Kesley, a 5-6 junior hitter.

Richfield

Richfield struggled through a 1-14 season a year ago, but things are looking much brighter this time.

"Our hitting should be the strong point of this team," says Jim Thomas, who has coached the Richfield program since its inception. "However our passing and setting skills are real weak. If this team shines, it will be later in the season."

Back from last year are Cheryl Jensen, a 5-7 senior hitter; Tasha Maestas, a 5-5 senior setter; Anji Wilson, a 5-4 senior setter; Shannon Schoolcraft, a 5-7 junior hitter, and Michelle Gines, a 5-9 junior hitter.

They'll be joined by newcomers Malinda Wood, a 5-6 sophomore hitter-setter; Cresta Sage, a 5-4 junior setter, and Brenda Leguineche, a 5-4 junior setter.

Jobless report spurs Dow's sharp gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rolled up its sharpest gain in more than three months Friday, inspired by new statistics on employment that suggested a slowing of economic growth.

Falling interest rates in an enthusiastic bond market helped to keep the rally going.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 52.28 to 2,054.59 for its biggest one-day advance since it rose 74.68 points on May 31. The average finished the week with a net gain of 37.16 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 4 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,197 up, 296 down and 439 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 159.84 million shares, up from 144.09 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 183.57 million shares.

Before the opening, the Labor Department reported that the unemployment rate rose to 5.6 percent in August from 5.4 percent the month before.

In accompanying data that are watched especially closely on Wall Street, the department reported smaller-than-expected increases in payroll employment.

The news was widely seen as evidence that economic growth was slowing, reducing prospects for heightened inflationary pressures and giving the Federal Reserve more leeway in its credit policy.

The figures got a rousing welcome in the bond market. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, climbed more than $20 for each $1,000 in face value.

Analysts said it was also a healthy sign that stock trading volume stepped up to its highest level in more than two weeks, even with many traders presumably getting an early start on the long Labor Day weekend.

All 30 of the stocks that make up the Dow Jones industrial average posted gains.

Among actively traded blue chips, American Express gained 1¼ to 29⅛; International Business Machines 3¼ to 114; Exxon 1 to 46⅞; General Electric 1 to 40⅞, and American Telephone & Telegraph ⅝ to 25.

Redman Industries jumped 1¾ to 10. The company said it agreed to be acquired by an investor group for $10 a share.

Nantucket Industries, traded on the American Stock Exchange, rose 2 to 8⅜. Integrated Resources made an $8.50-a-share offer for the company.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market increased $47.60 billion, or 1.84 percent, in value.
