U.S. economy grows; inflation stays in step

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An improving trade deficit helped economic growth remain strong in the second quarter despite the Farm Belt drought, but inflation was more severe than previously believed, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of the nation's $4 trillion economy, grew at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.0 percent in the April-June period. That was slower than the 3.4 percent expansion rate in the first quarter, but still brisk.

If not for the drought, second-quarter growth would have been a more robust 3.9 percent. Crop and livestock losses for the year are estimated at $13.9 billion and will be even more of a drag on the economy in the third and fourth quarters.

The government said accelerating inflation accompanied the strong growth. One price measure tied to the GNP rose at the fastest pace in nearly six years and was more than triple the first-quarter rate.

"However you measure inflation, we got more of it than we thought in the second quarter and that's bad news for the financial markets," said David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer in New York.

Reacting to the report, the bond market opened weak in light trading. The GNP deflator, which reflects changes in buying patterns as well as prices, rose at an annual rate of 5.5 percent in the second quarter, compared with 1.7 percent in the first quarter. It was the biggest jump since the third quarter of 1982.

The second-quarter deflator had been estimated a month earlier at a somewhat more moderate 5.1 percent. Also, the previous report had showed a stronger second-quarter growth, 3.3 percent instead of 3.0 percent.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater called Tuesday's report good news. "The facts, plus the moderating growth rate, point to inflation remaining under control," he said.

Jones said the acceleration in inflation is a warning sign.

Poll says rural residents fear loss of way of life

Knight-Ridder Service

WASHINGTON — Rural Americans fear a lack of jobs and economic opportunities will erode their way of life, which they view as the bedrock of the nation, according to a new poll released Tuesday.

Three senators who announced results of the national survey predicted Congress will address those fears with enactment next year of rural development legislation that has taken a back seat to farm credit reform and drought relief on Capitol Hill this year.

"Rural Americans see two Americas," said Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "They feel neglected by the federal government."

Leahy said rural America suffers a drought of jobs, educational opportunity and health care.

Although traditional Democratic and Republican approaches to rural development differ, Sen. Thad Cochran, D-Miss., said both parties are committed to enacting new legislation.

Presidential campaigns of both parties are emphasizing the issue, he said, and this year's GOP platform contains a "dramatic shift" in new support for rural electrification, communications and rural "infrastructure."

The nationwide telephone survey of 600 randomly selected rural and small town residents was conducted Aug. 12-18 for Rural Voice, a nonprofit corporation organized earlier this year by Leahy to increase public understanding of problems of 60 million rural Americans.

Rural Voice paid $32,000 to Peter D. Hart Research Associates, Inc. to conduct the poll and an additional survey of farmers to be completed in about a month.

The poll, with a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percent, said 61 percent of respondents rated rural economic conditions as fair or poor and 37 percent rated them as excellent or

Quayle says GOP supports state water rights

The Associated Press

BOISE — Accusing Democrats of wanting to usurp state authority, Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle on Tuesday promised GOP support for continued state authority over water rights issues.

"We are pledged to maintain a 100-year tradition that states will in fact manage water rights," said Quayle in an interview with Idaho reporters. He said Democrat proposals to expand federal control over water on state lands were a breach of tradition and out of step with what we need to do to get good management of water rights."

On an 18-hour campaign swing through Idaho Monday night and Tuesday, the Indiana senator continually stressed the Republican commitment to protecting state sovereignty over water issues.

The man behind that emphasis, Idaho Sen. James McClure, was asked at the close of the visit if he really thought the Bush-Quayle ticket was committed to support states' rights on water matters, or if it were merely campaign window dressing.

"Yes, sir," said McClure. "If that message didn't come through out here, then I don't know how to do it."

He said Quayle didn't know much about western water issues before he came to Idaho, but left the state Tuesday afternoon for a campaign visit to Las Vegas with a good idea of the problems.

"It can relate to the general idea that if you have a system which has worked for 100 years, you don't change it," said McClure.

Quayle stressed the same theme in a noon Statehouse rally that drew a crowd estimated at more than 1,000. He said presidential nominee George Bush made the same promise to protect state water rights, when he visited Idaho last spring.

"Here today, at your state Capitol, I repeat that pledge," he said.

In an 18-minute speech peppered with shots at Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, Quayle said President Reagan and Vice President Bush had restored the role of the West in national policy along with the decision-making authority of the states.

"The governor of Massachusetts thinks he knows better and says that the federal government should have authority over water on public land," said the Indiana senator, flanked by dozens of state Republican officials and candidates. "George Bush and I categorically reject that approach."

Later in the day, Idaho Democratic leaders blasted the Bush campaign for what they said were "outright lies" about Dukakis' position on Western water issues.

Former governor John Evans and Idaho Democratic Chairman Conley Ward said that Quayle purposely falsified Dukakis' position.

"Young Mr. Quayle doesn't have the slightest idea of what he is talking about when it comes to Western issues like our water rights, so someone

'A little world all its own' in close encounter Mars-watchers will focus on red planet tonight

Knight-Ridder Service

Just before midnight tonight, the Earth and our most Earth-like neighbor — the rusty-red planet Mars — will pass closer to each other than any time since 1971.

The two planets will come within 36.5 million miles of each other, almost shoulder-to-shoulder by astronomical scales. By comparison, the orbits of Earth and Mars can take the two worlds as far as 248 million miles apart.

For weeks, Mars has been growing steadily brighter as it nears Earth, until it now outshines everything in the night sky except the moon. Aside from the moon, only featureless, cloud-shrouded Venus ever comes closer to us.

This close encounter — called an "opposition" by astronomers — offers observers in the northern hemisphere the best view of Mars in more than a century, placing it higher in the sky than it has been since 1875.

"You can see that it's a little world all its own," says Mars enthusiast Don Parker.

By day, Parker is a Coral Gables, Fla., anesthesiologist. But Parker's secret nighttime life as a serious amateur astronomer has turned him into one of the world's acknowledged experts on observing the arid, bitterly cold planet.

Because of Mars' eccentric orbit around the sun, Parker and his fellow astronomers won't have such a vivid opportunity again to study Mars until the year 2003, by which time a manned expedition might be under way.

"I hope in my lifetime men will get to Mars," says Parker, 49, whose life-long fascination with Mars began with reading the "Martian Chronicles" stories of science fiction author Ray Bradbury.

Whenever Mars is visible, Parker is at the eyepiece of the massive custom-built 16-inch reflector telescope mounted on a balcony off his bedroom.

"Looking at this planet makes my whole day," Parker says.

Parker's enthusiasm for Mars is contagious. In the mid-1970s, Parker infected Jeff Beish, an Eastern Air Lines flight simulator technician, with the Mars bug.

Beish and Parker are at the center of an international network of more than 75 professional and amateur Mars observers. Their Marswatch '88 effort is designed to keep Mars under 24-hour watch during the months before and after tonight's close approach.

Democrats push minimum wage vote

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats maneuvered Tuesday to force a vote on raising the $3.35 minimum wage for the first time since 1981, stopping just short of accusing Republicans of filibustering the issue in deference to presidential politics.

"We've been discussing the minimum wage since last week and haven't voted on a single amendment," complained Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill. "We are behind the curve. The people in this country realize you can't even hire people at a $3.35 minimum wage."

Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign said Tuesday that Bush likely would not unveil any specific minimum wage proposal until after his debate next Sunday with Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis.

However, Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana, Bush's running mate, came up with some specifics during a campaign stop in Boise, Idaho: "I support increasing the minimum wage over the next two years to $4 an hour and have a youth differential of 80 percent."

The White House said Tuesday that its senior advisers would recommend that Reagan veto any minimum wage increase that does not include a "training wage at a rate approximately four-fifths of the minimum wage for a specified period of time."

Senate Republican leaders, meanwhile, sought to tie action on the minimum wage bill hostage to 30 federal job nominations that they said Democrats are delaying confirmation votes on.

"Unless we see progress with the judges and keep our ability to amend, we're going to be on the minimum wage a long time," said GOP Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming.

Revolt spreads through Haiti's army

The Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Soldiers mutinied and civilian workers in three state-run companies went on strike Tuesday in what appeared to be a popular uprising against the vestiges of Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy's ousted regime.

Radio stations said the revolt spread after the newly installed government of Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril failed to expel army commanders who had been left in place.

Avril, who declared himself president Sunday after Namphy was deposed in a military coup, appointed a new armed forces chief Tuesday and appealed for an end to the unrest.

He said the government was taking steps to satisfy the most urgent demands of the members of the armed forces.

But reports of reprisal killings, demonstrations and military mutinies grew.

"I'm afraid we're on the eve of another insurrection," a government official said privately.

Soldiers around the country mutinied Monday and Tuesday and removed their commanders, many of whom had served under the three preceding governments of Namphy, Leslie Manigat and Jean-Claude Duvalier.

On Tuesday, civilian workers at the state electricity company, port authority and flour mill went on strike to force the removal of their state-appointed managers.

Dukakis proposes health insurance plan while Bush waves the flag

By The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis proposed a broad health insurance program for American workers Tuesday and told Republican rival George Bush "it's about time you came out from behind that flag" and addressed the issue.

Bush draped himself in patriotism, visiting the nation's longest flag manufacturer.

Dukakis, seeking support from working people, said the federal government should enact legislation requiring most employers to provide basic health insurance benefits for employees and dependents. "I think it's time we did something," said Dukakis. He said he wanted to extend health insurance to all Americans, and that the first step would be to provide it to working people through their employers.

Campaign aides said the first phase of Dukakis' program would give benefits to about 22 million people who have none, leaving 15 million or more Americans still awaiting protection under a national health in-insurance plan. Bush's campaign derided Dukakis' plan as "socialized medicine" and "a prescription for financial disaster." Criticizing Bush for what he said was a record of neglect and indifference on health care issues, Dukakis said: "Today he's visiting a flag factory. Mr. Bush, don't you think it's about time you came out from behind that flag and told us what you intend to do to provide basic health care for 37 million of our fellow citizens." With their first face-to-face debate just five days away, Dukakis campaigned in Houston and Bowling Green, Ky., while Bush made a brief campaign stop to Bloomfield, N.J., to visit the Anning Flax Co. "My friends, flag sales are doing well and America is doing well," said Bush, who has stressed patriotism in his campaign and has attacked Dukakis for vetoing a Massachusetts bill that would have required public school teachers to lead students in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance.

Americans have a new economic power, and I'm not going to let them take that away from you," Bush said at a rally outside the plant. He spoke in front of a huge American flag in a state regarded as a key battleground of the presidential race. The vice president returned to Washington in time to swear in fellow Texan Lauro Cavazos as education secretary, the first Hispanic member of the Cabinet.

Hispanics are a key voter bloc, particularly in states such as California and Texas, and both Bush and Dukakis have pledged to put a Hispanic-American at the Cabinet table. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, campaigned in the financially pinched Texas-Oklahoma oil patch, promising that a Democratic administration's energy policy would get American oil wells operating again.

Economy

flation after nearly six years of economic growth is, while troublesome, more moderate than in previous expansions.

The Federal Reserve Board, concerned with signs of overheating in the economy, began an inflation-fighting program in late March by pushing up short-term interest rates. Its goal is to curb demand and slow economic growth to a level that can be maintained without significant inflation.

Analysts differ over whether the economy in the quarter ending this month is responding. Some, pointing to an upturn in unemployment and a slight drop in retail sales last month, growth is moderating. Others see the August figures as more of a pause than a trend.

The government attributed its downward revision in the second-quarter growth to slightly less expansion than first believed in exports and business investment.

Exports of goods and services expanded at 9.1 percent annual rate, compared with the previous estimate of 11.6 percent.

Business investment spending shot up 15.0 percent, compared with last month's estimate of 16.3 percent. However, consumer spending, which represents about two-thirds of all economic activity, was up 3.0 percent at an annual rate compared with the slightly weaker 2.7 percent previously announced.

The various changes left the GNP, after adjusting for inflation, at an annual level of $3.99 trillion in the second quarter, $29.1 billion higher than the January-March period.

In another report, the Commerce Department said that after-tax profits by corporations surged 8.9 percent in the second quarter to an annual rate of $162.7 billion, up from a 2.5 percent annual rate in the first quarter. It was the most profitable quarter since the July-September period of 1983.

good. Among southern and midwestern farmers, 71 percent rated conditions as fair or poor.

By an overwhelming 76 percent, the respondents said cities are better places to find jobs. Of those who rated rural economies negatively, 72 percent said conditions in rural America are worse than they were five to 10 years ago and 59 percent have had someone close to them move to a city recent years.

Sixty-one percent expressed some concern that America could lose a distinctive way of life in the near future.

Despite record spending on farm subsidies, 52 percent feel the federal government pays too little attention to rural areas and small towns. Forty-six percent said the government should help rural areas develop non-farm jobs and industries.

On the other hand, strong positive feelings for rural America were expressed by an overwhelming 90 percent who believe that rural and small-town America is a better place to raise children. Eighty-nine percent say rural and small-town residents have a better sense of community than their urban cousins.

Despite calls for improved services from some of those surveyed and the senators who released the poll, most rural residents were satisfied. Nearly three-fourths said they believe education is satisfactory and 63 percent were satisfied with sewage and drainage systems.

Sixty percent rated services for the elderly as favorable, 63 percent said hospitals and health care are acceptable and 58 percent were satisfied with roads and bridges in their communities.

Mexico flood toll passes 140

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — The number of confirmed dead in a flash flood caused by Hurricane Gilbert rose to 140 Tuesday, and authorities said a fifth passenger bus had been located in a drenched river bed.

"We have recovered 140 cadavers. It's difficult to say how many more there could be. It could be very terrible," said Daniel Dimas, assistant information secretary for the Nuevo Leon state government.

Dimas said by telephone that most of the bodies were being found in the Santa Catarina River about 20 miles downstream from Monterrey.

Earlier, authorities said about 100 bodies had been recovered and estimated that 200 overall may have been killed in the flooding.

Rains unleashed by Hurricane Gilbert in the 14,000-foot-high mountains surrounding this state capital sent waters raging through the normally dry river bed on Saturday. The flash flood swept away five passenger buses and private vehicles that were traveling on roads built in the river bed.

The Santa Catarina divides Monterrey, which has a population of 3 million.

in the Bush campaign must have fed him the lie," Evans said.

Western governors and former governors met with Mike (Dukakis) in Denver a month ago. He specifically told us, both in public and in private, that his administration must respect the primacy of state laws in the area of water rights," Evans said.

"I know exactly what Dukakis thinks about Western water rights," Ward said. "He says it is a local issue and will always be a local issue."

Only a handful of protesters, carrying signs critical of Quayle's Vietnam-era National Guard service, were in the receptive crowd that cheered the nominee's slams at Dukakis and his predictions of Republican victory in November. Idaho has voted for the Republican ticket in all but one election in the last four decades.

"We think America will pick George Bush and Dan Quayle in November because we stand for the best hope of America," he said, declaring that Dukakis' policies are the policies of the past. Our policies are the policies of the future."

After the speech, Quayle walked along the crowd, shaking hands as the Boise State University Marching Band played and thousands of red, white and blue balloons floated through the air.

The rally closed out a morning of campaigning that also saw Quayle attend a $1,000-a-person fund-raising breakfast at a downtown restaurant and a more private fund-raiser for larger contributors just prior to the rally.

Sponsored between the fund-raisers was a tour of an 80-year-old irrigation diversion dam just west of the city that begins a canal system providing water to 167,000 acres in the southwestern part of the state. Without it and other water projects like it, Quayle said, "Idaho wouldn't be the state it is."

With McClure at his side, Quayle said Republicans believed water was primarily under state jurisdiction.

"That's a major difference between us and our opponent, the governor of Massachusetts," he said. "It takes a very different approach that says the federal lands are owned by the federal government. He wants to manage it. We want to keep the 100-year tradition that the states will manage these water rights."

Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, a former Interior Secretary under President Jimmy Carter, has disputed the Republican charges against Dukakis, contending the Democratic nominee's two trips to the West this year show he has an understanding of Western issues like water rights.

But Quayle's comments came as Idaho continues battling agencies within the Reagan administration over control of water in the state, and McClure said simply, "He got his lines just right."

"That tradition of appropriation (for irrigation use) is something that grew up in the West and that easterners don't understand," McClure said.

New tropical storm forms in Atlantic

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Helene formed in the eastern Atlantic on Tuesday and showed potential for strengthening into a hurricane in the next day or two, the National Hurricane Center reported.

Helene is the eighth named storm of the 1988 Atlantic hurricane season and the first since Hurricane Gilbert formed in the Caribbean.

Today's weather Sunny, warmer in showers' wake

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jericho and Gooding: Partly cloudy today with morning fog. Warmer with highs near 70. Light winds. Fair tonight. Lows from 35 to 40. Sunny Thursday. Highs from 70 to 76.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy today with patchy morning fog. Not so cool with highs near 60. Fair tonight. Lows from 25 to 30. Sunny Thursday. Highs in the mid 60s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Mostly cloudy today and Thursday with scattered showers mainly in the west and mountains. Continued cool in the west and cooler in the east. Lows in the 40s and 50s. Highs in the upper 60s and 70s and a few 80s in the south.

Nevada — Partly cloudy through today. Widely scattered rain showers through this afternoon. Snow levels near 8,000 feet. Highs today in the lower 60s to lower 70s. Warmer Thursday with highs in the mid 60s to mid 70s. Lows in the mid 30s to mid 40s.

Summary: A trough of low pressure extending from northwestern Montana through Idaho and into Central California continued to bring rain to parts of Idaho Tuesday.

An trough moves southward, mostly sunny weather will return for the state today, except in the southeast where a chance of showers will linger.

Skies across the state were cloudy Tuesday afternoon except in the southwest where partly sunny skies prevailed. Rain was reported from the Magic Valley eastward and in the Lewiston area. Rain amounts were less than two-tenths of an inch. Amounts as of 3 p.m. ranged from a trace at Milard to 1.6 hundredths of an inch at Lewiston.

Temperatures were mainly in the 50s across the state. At 3 p.m., temperatures ranged from 48 at Haily to 62 at Teton. The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 68 degrees at Parma and Caldwell while Deadwood reported the coldest at 24 degrees.

The agricultural forecast for Southern Idaho: Conditions for field work and haying will be fair to poor today, mainly in the east due to wet fields. Good field conditions and "trying conditions" will return Thursday and continue into Sunday. Mean 4-inch soil temperatures currently in the 50s will rise 3-5 degrees by Sunday. Winds for spraying will be variable under 10 mph today and Thursday.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho shows fair conditions a Friday through Sunday. Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday. Highs mainly in the 70s. Lows mainly in the 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 101 degrees at Proviso, Texas. The lowest was 15 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

Addam Swapp, 27, appeared in court Tuesday with 2 other clan members.

Clan members face charges

COALVILLE, Utah (AP) — Three members of a polygamist clan, already convicted in a church bombing and police standoff, were arraigned on murder charges Tuesday as police investigated possible arson at the same chapel.

About 10 hours before the arraignment, Summit County sheriff's deputies arrested Kevin Gunderson, 34, a man who had been staying the past three weeks at the clan's Marion farm.

Clan leader Addam Swapp, his younger brother, Jonathan Swapp, and John Timothy Singer, charged with second-degree murder in the shooting death of a state lawman, appeared before 3rd Circuit Judge Maurice Jones, who set a tentative preliminary hearing date of Sept. 27.

It was the first appearance in state court of the three defendants, who with clan matriarch Vickie Singer were convicted in May of 23 federal counts stemming from the Jan. 16 bombing of the Mormon Church's Kamas Stake Center and subsequent standoff.

Utah Corrections Lt. Fred House was shot to death when a gun battle ended the 13-day stalemate at the Singer farm in Marion.

Officers responding to an alarm at 11 p.m. Monday at the same church arrested Gunderson for investigation of attempted arson.

Summit County Attorney Robert Adkins said the alarm inside the church alerted sheriff's officers to a break-in. Asked if the case was a possible arson attempt, he said, "There is some evidence there that would indicate that."

Adkins said any charges in the case were pending processing of physical evidence from the chapel. Adkins and Sheriff Fred Ely declined to give more details or to identify the arrested man, but a source close to the investigation confirmed it was Gunderson.

At the Singer farm in Marion, a mile from the chapel, one of Addam Swapp's two wives, Heidi Swapp, declined to answer questions and ordered reporters from the farm.

However, Gunderson's father, Joseph Gunderson, said his son had been staying at the farm for 20 days and had gone for a walk Monday night and failed to return. He said Heidi Swapp had not been looking for him when she returned to find reporters there.

Gunderson said his son was trying to overcome an alcohol problem. "He asked Heidi if she would help him and she said she would try," the elder Gunderson said.

He said he did not believe his son shared the Swapps' polygamist beliefs. "As near as I know he doesn't have any religion," Gunderson said. "He's just trying to dry out. I don't think he's guilty...."

During the arraignment, Jones asked the defendants if they would agree to a prosecution motion to move the preliminary hearing to circuit court in Salt Lake City.

Recall election to take place despite ruling

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — Despite a ruling by a Moscow judge that Idaho's school board recall law is unconstitutional, an election to recall three Mountain Home trustees still is set for Oct. 13.

Organizers of two Mountain Home recall movements and the trustees' lawyer are unsure how the ruling will affect their movement. Both groups are critical of the board's handling of last May's 12-day teachers' strike.

"It's real sad when the legal system ties up the people's right to run their own program," said Jeff Harper, who leads a recall campaign based on support for the teachers' position in the strike.

Last week, 2nd District Judge John Bengtson declared the law, which sets guidelines for recalling school board trustees, unconstitutional. He said it wrongly asks backers of a recall petition to give their reasons for wanting to remove officials.

"It is not unusual for judges to construe or excise statutes," said Ken Nyman, attorney for the three trustees under recall.

The recall of school board trustees differs from other elected officials in that petitions must be reviewed by a magistrate judge to determine that they are valid.

Magistrates or district judges may not be bound by the Moscow judge's ruling, Nyman said; however, they may consider it.

"And the question is if the school board is bound by this decision," he said.

The recent decision arose from an appeal by a Moscow man, whose petition to recall a trustee was denied. Two other recall petitions against trustees were dropped last fall when a nine-day teachers' strike was settled.

But two movements in Mountain Home are trying to recall trustees David Humphreys, Dwan Muiiso and Mary Fran Aguirre. For opposing reasons, the two groups say the trustees mishandled last May's teachers' strike.

Arco police chief shoots, kills man

ARCO (AP) — A 51-year-old Howe man died after he was shot in the Butte County sheriff's office by Arco Police Chief Joe Whilden, authorities said.

The victim was identified as Gerald John Mitchell, Butte County Sheriff Darrell Richards said Tuesday.

Witnesses said Mitchell's wife, Kathleen "Kit" Mitchell, had gone into the sheriff's office Monday to seek help after she and her husband argued at several locations around town.

When Mitchell followed her in, a dispatcher called off-duty sheriff's Deputy Chris Merrill for assistance. Richards said Mitchell assaulted Merrill and then Whilden as they attempted to restrain him.

Whilden shot Mitchell, who was unarmed, once in the chest after Mitchell wrestled him to the floor. He died at about 4 p.m. Monday.

Whilden, 46, was treated at Lost River Hospital in Arco and released. No one else was injured, the sheriff said.

Officials from Jefferson, Madison and Fremont counties, and the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement's Bureau of Investigations were reviewing the shooting, Richards said.

An autopsy was conducted Tuesday afternoon in Pocatello, Richards said.

Mrs. Mitchell said her husband, the father of three, had worked as a ranch laborer. He had lived in Howe for 13 years, and originally was from Shelley, she said.

Whilden, who has headed Arco's two-man police force since January 1987, is being allowed to take time off, said City Councilwoman Laurene Larsen.

"He has not been suspended, she said. "We gave him some time off just because he needed it," she said.

The town of about 1,200 is shocked by the killing. "It's a real sad thing," she said.

FAA delays canyon flight restrictions

PHOENIX (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration on Tuesday announced it will delay until Nov. 1 implementation of flight restrictions for air-tour operators flying over the Grand Canyon.

The restrictions will go into effect Thursday, as scheduled previously, for other types of operators, the FAA's regional office in Los Angeles said.

The delay in implementing the restrictions for air-tour operators is intended to provide sufficient time for those operators to train and certify pilots to fly new tour routes set under the restrictions, the FAA said.

The restrictions, announced by the FAA, may specify minimum altitudes and prohibit flights entirely in the canyon's inner gorge and over some other portions of Grand Canyon National Park.

He was reinstated in July and placed on administrative leave. The three-member panel set a deadline of Nov. 12 to decide whether to reinstate Barton or fire him once more.

The commission has been in conflict throughout most of the 1980s. In 1984, Barton took the place of Ramona Walhof, who was fired as director. Her termination caused picketing at the Statehouse, lawsuits and the disappearance of agency records.

The battle was blamed on friction between the National Federation for the Blind in Idaho and the Independent Blind of Idaho, two private groups serving the sightless.

Recall campaign presents signatures

LEWISTON (AP) — Leaders of a recall campaign against five Lewiston City Council members have filed petitions containing the signatures of more than 3,800 people, including the presidents of two unions representing city employees and the husband of City Councilwoman Lovetta Eisele.

City Clerk Janice Vassar has until Sept. 30 to verify that at least 3,401 of the signatures on the petitions are those of registered Lewiston voters. That is the minimum number required to force a recall election.

Complicating verification of the signatures is a written statement in which Marion Delaney said she actually witnessed the signing of only one of the 91 people who signed recall petitions she circulated.

Police charge man with 2 stabbings

NEPERCE (AP) — A Kootenai man has been charged with two counts of attempted first-degree murder after one man had his throat cut and another was stabbed three times Saturday at a Winchester tavern.

Marylin E. Renee, 49, was being held in the Lewis County Jail in Neperece in lieu of $50,000. He appeared Monday before Magistrate Michael Griffin, who scheduled a preliminary hearing for Sept. 30.

Lewis County Sheriff Donald Fortney alleged in a criminal complaint that Renee tried to kill George Douval of Horseshoe Bend and Jim Moore, owner of the Western Lounge where the stabbings occurred.

Teen dies after accidental shooting

SANDPOINT (AP) — A Bonner County teen-ager died after apparently accidentally shooting himself in the head, authorities said.

Darren Parenteau, whose exact age was not released, was shot in the right side of the head Monday afternoon with a .22-caliber revolver, said sheriff's Detective Sgt. Jim Gallagher.

"We're investigating it as an accidental shooting," Gallagher said.

The detective said several other teen-agers were present when the shooting occurred in a bedroom of the Parenteau home in southern Bonner County.

Barton rejoins commission for blind

BOISE (AP) — Howard Barton Jr. has resumed the job of administrator for the Idaho Commission of the Blind following a unanimous vote by the commission board.

Barton is the agency's interim administrator. The board voted in executive session Saturday to reinstate him.

The board will begin a nationwide search for a permanent administrator, which is expected to be completed by June 30, 1989.

The board had fired Barton June 17 on a 2-1 vote.

No charges will result from 24-vehicle pileup

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — No criminal charges will be filed in connection with the chain-reaction accident that killed seven people on Interstate 5 last month, the Linn County district attorney announced Tuesday.

The 24-vehicle pileup, in which 28 were injured, was blamed on thick smoke that drifted over the freeway from a grass-seed field burn that went out of control.

The accident south of Albany prompted the state Department of Environmental Quality to tighten restrictions on field burning.

A grand jury listened for several hours Monday to evidence from the Oregon State Police investigation of the pileup, but decided against issuing any indictments, said District Attorney Jason Carlile.

"As far as I'm concerned the case is closed," Carlile said. "I'm not going to draw any conclusions. All I'm supposed to do is determine if any crimes were committed, and that process is complete."

Carlile said the grand jury reviewed only evidence related to drivers involved in the accident, while he made the decision regarding anyone else.

"I elected not to file charges against the farmer, the DEQ or other government agencies," he said.

The district attorney said the lack of criminal charges would not prevent civil lawsuits from being filed.

Clerks with the Linn County Circuit Court records office said they have received calls from several attorneys representing the families of those involved in the wreck, but no lawsuits had been filed as of Tuesday morning.

The Aug. 3 accident stemmed from a controlled fire in a field farmed by Paul Stutzman on the west side of the freeway in the Willamette Valley.

The blaze jumped fire lines into an adjacent field and started a wildfire.

Smoke from the wildfire blew across all four lanes of the freeway, concentrating in the northbound lanes about a mile north of the Highway 34 interchange.

In the next few minutes, 24 vehicles, including several tractor-trailer rigs, crashed into one another. Most of the vehicles caught fire.

Navy joins F-16 search

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) — The Navy is helping the Air Force search the Great Salt Lake for an F-16 Fighting Falcon that crashed a week ago, a Hill spokesman said.

A Navy boat equipped with sonar that can scan beneath the waves has joined with Air Force helicopters in searching the lake, said Capt. Jerome Reed of the 388th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Reed said the Navy has been helping since Saturday and is expected to be around the rest of this week.

Navy spokesmen at Salt Lake City said their branch has no boats in Utah. They said they did not know anything about the F-16 search efforts, so it was not clear Tuesday from where the naval vessel was sent.

Two F-16s from the 388th were returning across the northern end of the lake from a routine surface-attack training mission over the Utah Test and Training Range in the west desert.

One of the pilots ejected near the southern tip of Promontory Point just before his plane crashed, Hill spokesmen said.

Detroit's Big Three missing the point again on gas mileage

WASHINGTON — Muscle cars, fabulous '50s flashbacks with everything but the fins, V-8 post- yuppie highway cruisers.

The 1988 car of the year is a full-size station wagon that can haul 2.5 children, a quarter-ton of luggage and a canoe on the roof and still pull a camping trailer over the Adirondacks and back with ease.

It will cruise at 65 miles an hour through smog pumped up to eye-smarting acidity by nitrous oxide that slipped through its catalytic converter. Tromp the throttle and it will climb mountain tops denuded by the air pollution puffing out the exhaust pipe, circumnavigating lakes sterilized by acid rain it helps create. Not to worry: Next year the faithful family Conestoga will haul you all to the beach — if the greenhouse effect hasn't cooked the climate, swamped the shore and turned Atlantic City into Atlantis.

Drive it fast, before the Iranians and the Iraqis make up, before Islamic fundamentalism gives way to fundamental economics and the sultans of OPEC get their act together

Cause if they do, gas could cost so much you'll want to moor that boat in the driveway and buy a three-cylinder Suzuki.

Today, Americans by the millions are taking advantage of the chance to drive through the garage door of opportunity that's been opened by the collapse of OPEC and oil prices. Anything under a buck a gallon is practically giving away gasoline, so we're all driving more, driving faster, driving bigger.

Consumers are buying the big cars the Big Three love to build — Real Cars, old-fashioned and newfangled proud-to-be-an-American automobiles that don't compete directly with imported econoboxes, so many of them that we're producing an embarrassment of riches for the car makers, especially General Motors.

It's not the cars we're buying that are embarrassing, it's the gas that goes into them. Gas guzzling ain't what it used to be back in the days of single-digit MPG ratings. The fuel efficiency of American-made cars has gotten steadily better in the past 15 years, but has hit a plateau in the Corporate Average Fuel Economy, the official government method for keeping score of gas mileage.

Back in 1975 — before regulation became a four-letter word — Congress ordered the auto industry to raise the CAFE standards a little every year so American consumers would have an alternative to imported cars, if not imported oil.

Detroit has always regarded the CAFE standards as the moral equivalent of being forced to eat spinach. They won't admit it might be good for them, and they certainly don't like it.

As deregulation has flourished, so has Detroit's determination to kill the mileage standards. In 1985, Ford and GM persuaded the Reagan administration to roll back the standard from 27.5 mpg to 26 mpg for the 1986, 1987 and 1988 model years. The CAFE standard was supposed to go back up to 27.5 mpg for the 1989 model year, but last month the administration agreed to give Detroit another break. Now the bureaucrats at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration are haggling over how much.

It's a typical Washington regulatory proceeding. The people who have the most at stake — the car buyers — have the least to say in the so-called "public hearing" process.

Long-range issues like U.S. dependence on imported fuels and deterioration of the environment — auto emissions remain a big contributor to acid rain and the greenhouse effect — are taking a back seat to short-term concerns like how many gas guzzlers Detroit can sell before OPEC catches up with us.

Demanding better mileage will cost jobs and will mean that drivers can't buy the cars they really want, says General Motors, which as always argues that what's good for them is good for us. The General says the only way it can meet a 27.5 mpg standard is to stop selling so many big cars and shut down the plants that make them.

In the jargon of Washington debates, this is the old "Shut Down the Washington Monument" play also known as Close the Post Office on Saturday, cut funds for the football team or lock up the national park. It's the oldest game in town.

"You can't swim against the tide" is Detroit's other big theme. People want big cars, so we have to give 'em what they want. Anybody who's seen a car commercial on TV lately knows the Big Three are not merely meeting the demand for gas guzzlers, they're fueling the fire.

Performance sells, so Detroit sells performance. U.S. carmakers not only know how to sell big cars and big engines, they know how to make money doing it. The same obviously cannot be said about their small car abilities. Pushing gas guzzlers lets the industry maintain its sales and profits without competing with imports.

That strategy may work as long as OPEC's inflators keep waving their battle flags and Washington's wimps keep waving the mileage standards, but what is the U.S. auto industry going to do when gas prices go up again?

One more mile-to-the-gallon would bring layoffs today, what would an increase of 50 cents a gallon do to Detroit tomorrow? The automakers' neglect of the small car market will leave the industry up OPEC Creek without a paddle if oil prices go up again.

Detroit doesn't make a car that can compete with the Toyota Corolla, the Honda Civic, the Acura Integra or the Mitsubishi Mirage — let alone the South Korean minicars — in a market, where gas costs $1.50 a gallon.

General Motors executives like to point out that the CAFE figures show the Japanese automakers are getting worse while American mileage figures continue to improve. The implication is that the Japanese are doing the wrong thing and Detroit is right.

Wrong. As usual Detroit is missing the point. The fleet average mileage for Japanese cars is falling because Honda, Toyota and Nissan are importing more big cars, beating Detroit on its home turf, the performance and luxury markets.

The Japanese too are playing the big car game, pushing their own high performance, high-profit gas guzzlers just as hard as Detroit does. But there's a difference: The Asian importers have an extremely profitable small car business to fall back on if gas prices should jump again.

Detroit's myopia about mileage has contributed to our dependence on imported oil. If the petroleum cartel strikes again, we could be dependent on imported cars as well.

Waste storage at INEL now a concern for many Idahoans

I feel compelled to respond to the news release of Lane Allgood, Jim Reed, and the Citizens for the INEL. I find it interesting that the INEL needs a group to try to boost its image.

You infer that it is because of anti-nuclear groups - people "hired" from out of state through classified ads. I would like you to know who it is you are actually sparring with.

I became involved in the campaign to investigate the waste storage at INEL during the SIS hearings in March. Since that time I have met people from all over the state: residents, taxpayers, property owners, voters. None hired - all concerned, like me, about Idaho's future.

We work many long hours and spend money on our own pockets to spread our message: The INEL needs to be cleaned up now! Our information comes not from fabricated propaganda, but from facts obtained largely from the Department of Energy itself.

Anti-nuclear groups didn't shut down Hanford - the Freedom of Information Act did. After documents detailing the DOE's history of secrecy and systematically releasing radioactive contaminants into Hanford's air and water, people began to realize that the deformed animals and children they were seeing and the widespread cancers and other rare health problems in the population surrounding Hanford were not just "God's will," but the Department of Energy's.

Since the release of Hanford's DOE documents - the political environment has become "unfavorable." Hence, the big push of bomb-making projects into Idaho.

Well, thanks to the Freedom of Information Act, we - the taxpayers, landowners, voters, parents, readers and thinkers of Idaho do not want any more favors from the Department of Energy.

We've discovered that Idaho has become the radioactive waste dump for the United States, now holding 75% of all transuranic waste.

As a third-generation Idahoan, I know for a fact that the people of Idaho have never been asked if they wanted this.

What's more, locating the dumping sites on top of Idaho's main water supply, the Snake River Aquifer, is not our idea of careful planning.

Up to this day, the government's way of dealing with radioactive waste has been: dump, cover, and worry about it tomorrow.

Well, tomorrow is here. Instead of a budget whereby the Department of Energy spends 56% on nuclear weapons, 3% on waste management, and 1.7% on conservation and alternatives, a new commitment must be made.

With enough weapons in storage to destroy the world many times over, can we now consider the job covered. It is time to put the money, resources, and great scientific minds available into solving what may be mankind's most serious problem...discovering a way to effectively deal with radioactive waste.

The 6 million cubic feet of it at the INEL sites would be a good place to start. And since you all feel it is so safe, I'm sure you won't mind doing the cleanup. I see this as a very long term project that would keep you 9 to 11 thousand employees from being laid off.

Ask yourself who is for and who is against further continuation. Ask yourself what motivates Jim Reed (labor coordinator for the INEL) and what motivates those who live, farm and drink the water downstream: We are not safe, and you know it.

You cannot explain away the many cancers, rare diseases, and birth defects that are already present near the site and downstream.

Eventually we must all wake to the knowledge that we have to contain or neutralize these toxic elements before the damage becomes irreversible. Given the dollars and commitment to scientific research,

The INEL could play a major role in this research. And research should be the focus of the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, not bomb making.

Letters/Dukakis' visit to Yellowstone satisfies an area resident

But where was George?

It was with great satisfaction that I saw where Governor Mike Dukakis had made a fact finding tour of Yellowstone National Park this last Thursday to assess the damages caused by the monstrous wild fires that have raged basically unchecked there for most of the summer.

I think it is particularly important for the people in this area to know that the Governor (Mike Dukakis) cares for what happens here and the impact it can have on the economy of the area.

He knows that when the nation's oldest and largest national park has about 2/3 of its total area devastated by these fires that the best way to assess the damages and perhaps the benefits is on the spot observation and discussions with not only the leaders such as Governor Andrus; but with businesses and people directly affected with this disaster.

When the final assessment and reassessments of how to handle these fires have been made, he will be in a position to know the implications of these policies and be able to make decisions on how to implement them.

He will know how they affect the local businesses and the long term affects they will have ecological changes created by these fires. He will also have a first hand knowledge of what the needs may be in the future to protect wild life, promote the tourism for the area, and how to protect the devastated areas from erosion.

To me this is the mark of a leader who is interested in all aspects of our American life, economy and culture.

It also seems very strange to me that our senior Senator from Idaho has made light of this tour calling it a dog-and-pony show. It is obvious to me that, in making light of this visit, he is trying to politicize and denigrate every move made by the Governor.

In so doing, he has shown his lack of understanding and interest in the consequences of these fires. I would ask one question of the Senator, namely, where was George?

Improper parking irks her

Being handicapped, I get upset when a non-handicapped person parks in a handicapped zone. Then to have a business, like Latham Motors, fill all but two spaces in the Handicapped Parking Zone at the Fair, Thursday afternoon, was an outrage.

Of the other two cars, one had a U.S. Government plate, the other a Canadian.

We complained to the parking attendants, they informed us they didn't have the authority to do anything about the parking.

I informed the Fair office about Latham Motors parking in the handicapped zone; they promised to look into the matter at once. Friday morning, Mr. Dan Peters, the fair manager, was contacted by phone. He informed me other complaints were received on this problem. A meeting was held at 10 a.m. that morning to rectify the parking problem, I certainly hope it was, so other handicapped people didn't have to walk or be pushed in a wheel chair for a block and a half to get to the admission gate over corrugated ground.

Mr. Peters was very apologetic, he invited me to return as a guest to the fair, and personally see that I was able to visit all the exhibits. I thanked him, but declined his offer.

In closing, I believe there is more to being a good American than flying Old Glory.

ALBERTA DEARL

Editor's note: The policy of The Times-News with respect to consumer letters is to ask the parties involved to attempt to work out their disagreement between themselves. It is also our policy to ask businesses for a response when a consumer letter is received.

In this case, Fair Manager Dan Peters confirmed that there had been a problem. He said that it was the Fair's position that handicapped spaces should not be occupied by others. Bob Latham, Sr. of Latham Motors also responded to the complaint. His letter is printed below:

Auto dealer offers apology

In response to Alberta Dearl's letter regarding one of my employees parked in a handicapped parking area at the Fair.

After investigating this incident, I plead guilty. We had a big display at the Fair and the people involved did, in fact, park one of our vehicles in a handicapped parking area. They were unloading some tables, chairs, etc.

To me, this is no excuse. I will personally take the blame, however, as they do work for me. I promise, Alberta, that it will never happen again.

Alberta Dearl, please accept my most humble apology. If you will bring your car into Latham Motors, I will fill your car with gas for the inconvenience you had.

California fires prove tough

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Anxious firefighters watched the winds Tuesday as they worked to create a blackened dirt barrier to hold a 4-day-old arson fire at a road outside city limits.

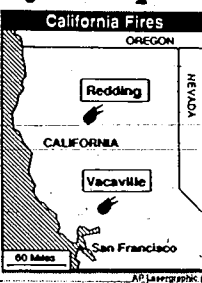

Firefighters ordered the evacuation of 500 people along a 10-mile stretch of Pleasant Valley Road, just west of city limits, fearing that afternoon winds could fan the blaze toward scattered homes near the road. But they expressed optimism that the fire would not go into the town itself.

The Miller fire, named for the canyon in which it began, has burned 20,000 acres since it started Saturday. Seven homes were destroyed Sunday. It is one of two major California blazes that have destroyed 31 homes and about 26,000 acres of wildland, brush and timber since the weekend.

Elsewhere across the West, however, the situation was improved as the worst summer for fires in three decades wound to a close. In all, nearly 70,000 fires have been lialled, blacking more than 41 million acres, about half of them in Alaska.

"I think fire season is just about over here," spokeswoman Madelyn Kempf said Tuesday as crews broke camp and began departing from the 34,500-acre Red Bench fire in Montana's Glacier National Park. It rained "almost all last night," she said. Some 200 firefighters also left Oregon's Willamette National Forest on Tuesday, although others remained behind to finish firefighting efforts there.

In Yellowstone National Park, "things are very calm," said spokeswoman Maralita Karle. Officials Monday released 1,000 soldiers who had spent more than 30 days battling flames that blackened nearly half the 2.2 million-acre park.

Outside Vacaville, Bill Morgan watched as firefighters burned brush around his $675,000 Pleasant Valley Road home as part of their attempt to stop the fire at the road.

"We just moved in. What a heck of a housewarming," said Morgan, 42.

"I hope they catch the sucker that started this, put him in jail for a hundred years and throw away the key," said Fred Shaw, 18, another Pleasant Valley Road resident.

John Ferreira, a captain with the California Department of Forestry, said firefighters were optimistic that the blaze wouldn't jump the road, but said afternoon winds could push the fire to the homes west of the road. The fire is 60 percent contained, or surrounded, at midday Tuesday.

"If today goes well for us, we should have 100 percent containment Thursday," Ferreira said.

The fire Monday came to within one-half-mile of the Vacaville city limits, but did not threaten the populated area of the city of 51,000 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The 7,800-acre Fern fire near Redding, 220 miles north of San Francisco, was 75 percent contained Tuesday morning, but winds were hampering firefighters there, too.

"I'm looking at the flag and it's standing straight out," said forestry department spokesman Richard Just.

Six people have been injured in the Fern fire, including a man listed in critical condition.

Panel OKs veterans' claims bill

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — When the House Veterans Affairs Committee last week approved its bill creating a new court to handle veterans claims, Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., spoke as if he could see an end to one of the most divisive veterans issues in a decade.

The time has come to resolve the matter of judicial review and, in the spirit of compromise, I have come a long way from my original position, said Montgomery in announcing that his committee had approved creating the new court by a vote of 29 to 4.

But opponents and supporters of Montgomery's bill agree that it is unlikely to end years of fighting over proposals that would give veterans a way to challenge decisions of the Veterans Administration outside the agency.

"It's stillborn," said Michael Leavek, a spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans of America, a small, but vocal group that has been one of the leading proponents for granting veterans the right to take claims against the VA into federal district courts.

Leavek predicted that Montgomery's bill will die without a floor vote before Congress adjourns next month, probably in the House Judiciary Committee.

Spokesmen for the major veterans groups, which support Montgomery's bill, acknowledged in interviews that, if the Judiciary Committee gets the chance to review the bill before it goes to the House floor, prospects for its passage this year are slim.

"This is a big question mark," said Rick Heilman, national legislative director for the Disabled American Veterans. While Heilman and spokesmen for the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion, the big three veterans groups, promised to lobby for quick enactment, most agreed that even if the House endorses the measure, the Senate poses a major obstacle.

"The Senate has passed five bills that would allow court review, only to see them die or, in the latest case, undergo a radical transformation, in Montgomery's committee. A spokesman for the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee spoke of a "wide chasm" between Montgomery's bill and what the Senate committee has approved.

"I have seen reconciliation proposals that were substantially more different than those, but I would have to say that the odds are against it," said the official.

Wright blasts CIA covert work

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said Tuesday the Central Intelligence Agency has admitted using undercover operatives in Nicaragua to stir up public protest, hoping the leftist Sandinista government will overreact.

"We have received clear testimony from CIA people that they have deliberately done things to provoke an overreaction on the part of the government in Nicaragua," Wright, D-Texas, told reporters in answer to a question at his daily news conference.

In a subsequent interview, Wright said agency personnel, under questioning from members of Congress, said they had sought to generate vigorous demonstrations... Agents of our government have assisted in organizing the kinds of anti-government demonstrations that have been calculated to stimulate and provoke arrests.

CIA spokeswoman Sharon Basso declined to confirm or deny Wright's information. "We do brief Congress, but wouldn't discuss that publicly," she said.

Wright said he did not know whether a July 10 demonstration at Nandaime, south of Managua, that resulted in some 40 arrests, was a result of the U.S. provocations. The anti-Sandinista Contra rebels are asking for release of those prisoners as a gesture of good faith before resuming high-level peace talks with the government.

David Holliday, a spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee, said the committee held two days of hearings the week after the Nandaime unrest and was satisfied that there had been no U.S. government involvement in that particular protest.

Managua expelled the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, Richard Melton, and seven other diplomats on July 11, charging they were engaging in "state terrorism" and were trying to undermine the government.

Wright said it is clear that the CIA has been behind some of the public unrest in Nicaragua.

NASA pursues false testing culprits

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA's inspector general said Tuesday he expects more indictments charging aerospace manufacturers with certifying falsely that bolts used on the space shuttles had been properly tested.

Bill Colvin said he had been assured by engineers that there are no defective bolts in critical areas on the shuttle. Discovery, which is to be launched Sept. 29 from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

"We are looking at false certification," he said. "That does not necessarily mean they are defective."

The Los Angeles Times quoted Darrell Lee, president of Lee Aerospace Products of Simi Valley, Calif., as saying his company is one of many under investigation.

Colvin said it would not be appropriate for him to discuss Lee Aerospace. No charges have been filed against the firm.

"At this point in time our interest is in fasteners," Colvin said. "I would expect more indictments." Ron Bledsoe, chief of the quality engineering division at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., said the false certifications were uncovered during an audit in February and March.

determined there was no safety issue.

Bledsoe said the shuttle's right booster contains 614 Lee bolts and the left booster has 599 and that Lee bolts account for 60 percent of the 2,000 bolts inside the rockets.

"Even with those bolts that were in there, I couldn't say we would have a problem with them," Bledsoe said. "But they just didn't meet all the requirements we have. We want to assure ourselves all bases are covered."

Arthur O. Sammons of Canoga Park, Calif., was indicted Sept. 9 by a federal grand jury in Birmingham, Ala., on 26 counts of making false statements to NASA and 17 counts of mail fraud involving shuttle bolts made by Lawrence Engineering and Supply of Burbank, Calif.

In the Sammons case, federal authorities said the cost of identifying and removing the suspect bolts was $1 million, an estimate that Colvin called conservative. Sammons faces up to five years in prison and a fine.

Warning labels on alcohol may become reality

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee unanimously approved a bill Tuesday that for the first time would require warning labels on alcoholic beverages.

The label would state that alcohol could impair driving abilities and cause birth defects and other health problems.

"This is the first bill in the history of Congress that calls for labeling on alcohol," said Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the committee. "We know from labeling tobacco that it has worked. Labeling is realistic, it will work, and I think we can move this bill through Congress this year."

The bill is a result of a compromise by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who has sought it for the past 19 years, and Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., whose state is a major producer of whiskey. It would require a single warning on bottles and cans of distilled spirits, beer and wine and prohibit states from requiring additional warning labels.

"This compromise boils it down to the two warnings that are most critical," said Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., referring to pregnancies and driving. The measure was approved by the committee on a voice vote.

Expert: Limit social security, defense budgets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's budget deficit problems will not be solved without reductions in Social Security and defense spending, a co-chairman of the National Economic Commission said Tuesday.

Washington attorney Robert Strauss said the commission, which he heads with former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, is not underestimating the formidable challenge facing the group. The commission was created by Congress to recommend ways for the next president to balance the federal budget.

While Democrat presidential candidate Michael Dukakis has indicated a willingness to listen to the group's recommendations, Republican George Bush has vowed to ignore expected calls for a tax increase.

Strauss said that such politically potent government programs as Social Security benefits, Medicare and other entitlement programs and defense spending will have to undergo cuts, since they account for 68 percent of federal spending.

"We have to go to Social Security, Medicare and entitlements generally, and we have to go to defense," Strauss said, saying the commission realized the political firestorm such suggestions will create.

"That means you are withholding money from the sick, the elderly and the defense of the nation," he said.

Strauss said the group probably will recommend a four- or five-year plan to eliminate the deficit.

First-time ever: Programmer guilty of planting computer 'virus'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former programmer has been convicted of planting a computer "virus" in his employer's system that wiped out 168,000 records and was activated like a time bomb, doing its damage two days after he was fired.

Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney Davis McCown said he believes he is the first prosecutor in the country to have someone convicted for destroying computer records using a "virus."

"We've had people stealing through computers, but not this type of case," McCown said. "The basis for this offense is deletion."

"It's very rare that the people who spread the viruses are caught," said John McAfee, chairman of the Computer Virus Industry Association in

DONALD BURLESON
Damaged company's records

Santa Clara, Calif., which helps educate the public about viruses and find ways to fight them.

"This is absolutely the first time for a conviction," McAfee said.

"In the past, prosecutors have stayed away from this kind of case because they're too hard to prove," McCown said Tuesday. "They have also been reluctant because the victim doesn't want to let anyone know there has been a breach of security."

Donald Gene Burleson, 40, was convicted Monday of charges of harmful access to a computer, a third-degree felony that carries up to 10 years in prison and up to $5,000 in fines.

A key to the case was the fact that State District Judge John Bradshaw allowed the computer program that deleted the files to be introduced as evidence, McCown said. It would have been difficult to get a conviction otherwise, he said.

The District Court jury deliberated six hours before bringing back the first conviction under the state's 3-year-old computer sabotage law.

Burleson planted the virus in revenge for his firing from an insurance company, McCown said.

Jurors were told during a technical and sometimes-complicated three-week trial that Burleson planted a rogue program in the computer system used to store records at USPA and IRA Co., a Fort Worth-based insurance and brokerage firm.

A virus is a computer program, often hidden in apparently normal computer software, that instructs the computer to change or destroy information at a given time or after a certain sequence of commands.

The virus, McCown said, was activated Sept. 21, 1985, two days after Burleson was fired as a computer programmer, because of alleged personal conflicts with other employees.

"There were a series of programs built into the system as early as Labor Day (1985)," McCown said. "Once he got fired, those programs went off."

The virus was discovered two days later, after it had eliminated 168,000 payroll records, holding up company paychecks for more than a month.

The virus could have caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage to the system had it continued, McCown said.

The defense argued during trial that Burleson was set up by someone using his terminal and code. Burleson's attorneys tried to prove he was vacationing in another part of the state with his son on the dates in early September when the rogue programs were entered into the system.

But prosecutors presented records showing that Burleson was at work and his son at school on those dates.

Defense lawyer Jack Beech maintained Burleson is innocent and but said his client might not have enough money to appeal.

Besides, Beech said, Burleson is likely to get the minimum sentence of two years' probation.

McCown said he is hoping for a stiffer sentence.

Ben Vereen survives death of his daughter, Naja

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — On Jan. 1, singer-dancer-actor Ben Vereen was co-host of a New Year's Day television show.

Off camera, he had turned to alcohol and drugs in an attempt to dull the pain of losing a daughter killed in an auto accident just weeks before. By New Year's Day, Vereen was considering suicide.

"On New Year's Eve, I was wishing the world a happy New Year's and I was dying inside," Vereen said. Vereen's 16-year-old daughter, Naja, was killed in an auto accident weeks before.

He said in a recent interview that he found help from a friend, writer-producer Stephen J. Cannell, who had lost a son a few years earlier.

"He gave me work when I really needed it," Vereen said. "Everyone on 'J.J. Starbuck' helped me to survive. Vereen also checked into a drug rehabilitation center.

Firm sues Scott Baio in film contract flap

ATLANTA (AP) — Actor Scott Baio has been sued by a Union City entertainment company, which contends he misrepresented his box-office clout and refused to live up to an agreement for a movie.

Seals Communications Corp., which says Baio's actions caused it to be unable to obtain financing for the movie, is seeking $2.6 million from Baio, who starred in the television series "Charles in Charge."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Atlanta, says Seals hired Baio to star in "The Stand Out" mainly because of the exposure he said he would receive in another movie, which never was released.

Seals paid Baio advances totaling $35,000, and the actor was to begin physical training and developing a Georgia accent for his role as a college football player, according to the suit.

Baio later decided he wanted to play a different role in the film, the suit said, and he agreed to assist in the development of the script and to learn about motorcycle racing to prepare for that role.

Baio, the suit charges, "failed and refused to perform pursuant to the agreements."

Baio then agreed to do a national radio and television campaign for safe sex, a project which violated the agreement with Seals, according to the suit.

The Webbs thrown back out on street

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Charles

Webb, author of "The Graduate," says he and his ex-wife Fred had no idea nudism would so distress the woman who had opened her house to them, but now they're home-hunting again.

Marcelle Hall recently invited the couple to stay in her home after reading they had little money and no permanent place to live.

"It's not fair to say she threw us out," Webb said. "There was just a difference of opinion on the nudism. She got really upset. We didn't realize nudism was such an upsetting thing, compared to other things that go on in the world."

The couple said they moved into a $43-a-night motel in Danbury on Saturday. Destitute by choice after giving away most of their property, they have only $150 left, they said.

"We've got another two nights at the motel," he said. "We're just sort of stunned at this point. She was generous to invite us into her home. But there were so many things (they disagreed about). We just feel sort of rocked."

The Loves honored as upholders of West

DENVER (AP) — Former Gov. John A. Love and his wife, Ann, have been named the 1988 "Citizen of the West" by the National Western Stock Show and the Roundup Riders of the Riders.

The award, honoring those "who uphold and perpetuate the traditions of the west," will be presented in January, Love, 72, and his wife will be the 11th recipients of the award.

Ann Love — a past president of Historic Denver and a trustee of the Historic Paramount Foundation, — is the first woman to be so honored with the award launched by the Roundup Riders.

Candidate Bentsen's son gets divorce

HOUSTON (AP) — Luan G. Bentsen, son of Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen, must pay his former wife and 9-year-old daughter $150,000 each within 10 years under a divorce decree.

The final decree, approved Monday by State District Judge John Montgomery, gives Bentsen time to improve his finances, according to lawyer Tom Alexander.

Luan and Lynne Bentsen were married 10 years ago. Mrs. Bentsen was awarded custody of their daughter, Skyler.

Hamadi trial continues

Witness describes diver's death

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Navy diver "never made a sound" as he bravely endured savage beatings by the hijackers of a TWA jetliner, flight attendant Uli Derickson testified Tuesday.

Mrs. Derickson said Mohammed Ali Hamadi, on trial for air piracy and the murder of Navy diver Robert Stethem, also threatened to blow up the airplane.

The German-born woman, now a naturalized U.S. citizen and the subject of a U.S. television movie earlier this year, said Hamadi held a gun to her head shortly after the Athens to Rome flight took off on June 14, 1985.

But in the most emotional testimony of the trial, the 44-year-old Mrs. Derickson described the suffering endured by Stethem.

The hijackers "took him up to the cockpit and started to brutally beat him. They beat on him as long as he stood," Mrs. Derickson told the court.

"When Mr. Stethem collapsed, one of the hijackers took the armrest of a seat — it still had the screws sticking out of it — and beat on him," she said in German. Mrs. Derickson said that after the beating Hamadi turned to her and said: "Look at him now, he thinks he's so strong."

Fighting back sobs, Mrs. Derickson said: "Mr. Stethem was a very courageous man. He never made a sound."

Mrs. Derickson, who is credited with shielding passengers whose names she would identify by hiding their passports, also said Hamadi asked her to translate while the hijackers questioned Stethem.

"Mr. Stethem was taken to the last row of first class. He was asked where he was from and what he did. He said he was a Navy diver. I tried to translate the word Navy for Hamadi," Mrs. Derickson said.

She said Hamadi was confused because the German word for navy is "marine." Other witnesses have testified the hijackers shouted "marine," as they beat Stethem. "I tried to convince him that Stethem was not a U.S. Marine, that his job was underwater welding," she said.

Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite Muslim who lived in West Germany from 1982 to 1984, speaks German but very little English.

Mrs. Derickson told the court that shortly after Stethem was slain at Beirut airport, Hamadi had a pistol in his hand and began beating another U.S. Navy diver, Clinton Suggs.

Maung forms government

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Coup leader Gen. Saw Maung formed a military-dominated government Tuesday, and state radio reported that security forces killed 59 people, primarily looters of government warehouses.

A reporter also heard gunfire in downtown Rangoon late Tuesday, one day after troops killed more than 100 anti-government demonstrators.

In all, more than 200 people have been reported killed since Saw Maung seized power Sunday from Maung Maung, Burma's first civilian leader in 26 years.

Top opposition leaders issued a statement Tuesday calling for talks with Saw Maung to resolve the country's political and economic crisis and criticizing the military's bloody crackdown on dissenters.

Saw Maung, who took power after weeks of protests against one-party rule, holds the defense and foreign affairs portfolios, in the Law and Order Restoration Government of nine ministers announced by state-run Radio Rangoon.

Only one minister was a civilian, Minister of Health Pe Thein.

At least six of the new ministers were among the 18 senior officers who mounted the coup with Saw Maung. The broadcast also said local military leaders will serve as government officials in their areas.

The broadcast did not name a president or prime minister, and the fate of Maung Maung was not known.

Saw Maung, a hardliner, is the right-hand man of toppled President Sein Lwin who was widely hated for brutal suppression.

Bomb kills 3

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb killed three people in east Beirut on Tuesday as Christian lawmakers met to choose a presidential candidate to challenge the nominee favored by the United States and Syria.

Police said 25 people were wounded in the blast at 9 a.m. in east Beirut's densely-populated Dora district. Among the wounded was former Information Minister Joseph Skaff, 50, who was heading in a motorcade through Dora for the conclave of Christian parliament members.

A police spokesman said Skaff, a Greek Catholic, did not attend the meeting and was admitted to a hospital in east Beirut for treatment for minor cuts and burns in the head and neck.

Parliament is scheduled to meet Thursday to pick a successor to President Amin Gemayel, whose 6-year term ends Friday.

Failure to elect a new president would plunge Lebanon into a constitutional crisis that could trigger a new round of violence in the nation's 13-year civil war.

Gunman fires on adviser

BOON, West Germany (AP) — A masked gunman fired Tuesday at a car carrying one of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's key advisers in an apparent attempt to disrupt an upcoming meeting of financial experts in Berlin, authorities said.

Hans Tietmeyer, state secretary for the Finance Ministry, was not injured in the assassination attempt, carried out as he was traveling to work in his chauffeur-driven Mercedes through a Bonn suburb.

Security officials said they suspect that leftist militants carried out the attack, possibly with the help of West Germany's notorious Red Army Faction terrorist gang. No group claimed responsibility.

Tietmeyer was heading to work Tuesday morning when shots rang out from a wooded area, authorities said.

Armenians stage protest

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of striking Armenians gathered in Yerevan's central square Tuesday to protest the violence in Nagorno-Karabakh and demand their government renew annexation plans for the disputed territory.

Azeriform, the official news agency in Azerbaijan, said a 61-year-old carpenter injured when Armenians and Azerbaijanis shot at each other died Monday in a hospital. At least 25 others were reported injured in Sunday's unrest in the southern Soviet region near the Turkish-Iranian border.

The Tass news agency said residents in Armenia and Azerbaijan are demanding "that law and order be enforced everywhere."

Finns want Nobel to go to Reagan, Gorbachev

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — A majority of Finland's Parliament members appealed Tuesday to the Norwegian Nobel Committee to award the 1988 Peace Prize to President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The petition, signed by 140 members from all parties in the 200-member Parliament, praised "the unique realism and the exceptionally open-minded attitude of the two superpower leaders when dealing with bilateral questions."

It cited the agreement the two leaders signed in December to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear weapons from the U.S. and Soviet arsenals.

Reagan and Gorbachev reportedly were nominated before the Feb. 1 deadline for this year's prize. The committee never confirms who the candidates are.

Markus Aallonen, chairman of Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee, initiated the petition.

Hansen School Board to reinstate 'Tiny'

By LYNDA BOODY
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — A popular school janitor, dubbed "one of the good guys" by a student, has been reinstated in his job two weeks after being fired by the School Board.

The board late Monday evening voted 3-1 to rehire high school and junior high janitor Alton "Tiny" Mothershead after hearing a stream of testimonials in his behalf.

A crowd of more than 30 people waited until about 11 p.m. in Room 24 at the high school as the board discussed privately whether to rehire him.

The board met behind closed doors for about an hour before it returned to the school room. Trustee Jeanne Gibson moved that the board reinstate Mothershead, reassign him to the elementary school and place him on probation for three months.

Criteria for job performance will also be instituted.

'You can't employ someone for 15 years...and all of a sudden throw that down the drain.'

— Jeanne Gibson,
Hansen school trustee

The board voted Sept. 6 to fire Mothershead for "the inability to perform custodial duties and other assigned tasks in an acceptable manner," according to a letter he received a few days later.

Gibson said a number of factors contributed to the board's decision to reconsider its actions.

The crowd cheered and clapped as the motion passed 3-1. Trustee Kenny Johnson voted against the motion. Mothershead, 59, stood against a wall and looked relieved.

Gibson, the sole trustee who had voted earlier this month against the firing, later said she was pleased with the reversal and that Mothershead deserves a second chance.

"You can't employ someone for 15 years... and all of a sudden throw that down the drain," Gibson said.

She agreed with other board members that an inspection in early August of the junior high revealed some custodial work was not done properly. But the performance guidelines that will be set up for Mothershead will help him improve," she said. "I he would improve, that's a good way to go."

Johnson is less optimistic. He said the district has periodically for about two years, been unhappy with Mothershead's job performance.

"We've talked with him more than once," Johnson said. "It will change for a little while and then back to the same thing. For Tiny's sake I hope this shakes him up."

Johnson, 39, a farmer and Hansen native, said he took no pleasure in his vote. "I've never fired a person in my life," he said. "This was hard for me. But I've been on the board for three years and this has gone on for two years."

Ten local residents spoke to the board before the executive session regarding Mothershead's character and ability to perform his job.

"They described Mothershead as a loyal and dedicated employee of 15 years who has become a fixture at the school."

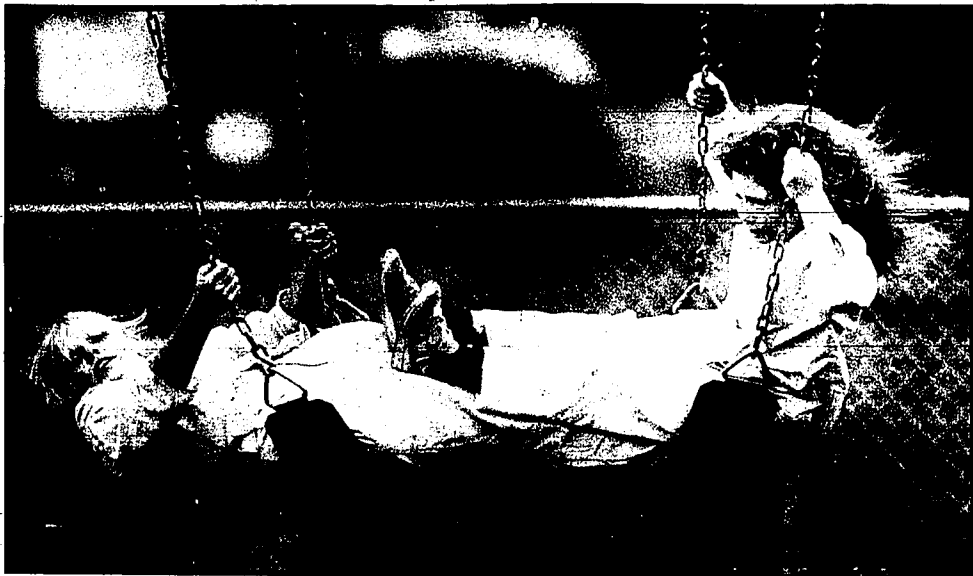

Carol Davison, a vocal opponent of the district in the past, said she attended the meeting at the request of her daughter. Mothershead is "one of the good guys," Davison said her daughter told her when she heard the "man" was fired.

Frances Mothershead-Alton's wife, showed the board a 1979 school yearbook dedicated to Mothershead, saying it showed the appreciation the students have for her husband.

Susan Shouse said Hansen students rely on Mothershead as a confidant.

"It's the students' school," she said. "Don't

Rain showers help relieve the doldrums

The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — The rain that hit the Magic Valley Monday and Tuesday did little to help crops but was a welcome change from the dry summer for many.

Fire restrictions on national forest land below the Salmon River were expected to be lifted as a result of the rainfall.

As of 6 p.m. Tuesday, .61 of an inch of rain had been reported in Twin Falls. It was the first measurable rainfall in Twin Falls since July 27, said meteorologist Steve Hughes of the National Weather Service.

The rain, however, will have little effect on crops.

"It has to stay cool and damp for two, three or four days before really doing any damage," said Jim McLaughlin, director of the Twin Falls office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. If it clears up today it won't hurt that badly, he said.

"It's put off beet digging for a couple of days, but as long as it's been since it's rained, I'll take it," said farmer Bill Loughmiller.

"It's coming at the wrong time," McLaughlin said. "Ideally, we want the rain after the harvest is done."

Many farmers are in the middle of cutting and drying beans, McLaughlin said. If they stay on the ground too long, they start to mold, he said. And if the farmers have to turn the beans, they'll lose some that fall out of the pods, he added.

Stallings comments on let-it-burn policy

RICHARD STALLINGS
Returns from Yellowstone

By N.S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, said Tuesday he agrees with the national park "let it burn" policy, but not with its timing.

"I don't have any problem with letting nature cleanse the forest," Stallings said. Visiting Twin Falls only hours after viewing destruction in Yellowstone National Park, he said Interior Secretary Don Hodel's policy of letting naturally caused fires burn in wilderness areas was a good idea — but not in a drought year.

"You ought to apply those policies with some wisdom," Stallings said. "If you have a dry year you don't apply a let it burn policy."

Suit threatens status of rural firefighting

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A trial that may jeopardize rural fire protection in Twin Falls County is more likely after a judge's decision Tuesday.

"If Twin Falls Mutual loses this suit, the most likely result will be that they simply cannot afford to help the various volunteer fire departments out like they have been," said Leon Smith, who represents Twin Falls County Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt denied a motion by the insurance company to dismiss the lawsuit spurred by a winter 1985 fire. Though a settlement still is possible, Hurlbutt's decision killed the last major attempt to stop the case before trial.

The fire that spurred the lawsuit caused more than $300,000 of damage to the home of Charles and Doris Woodland six miles south of Kimberly.

Kimberly firefighters responded to the Woodlands fire shortly before 5 a.m. Jan. 11, 1985. They left close to 4 a.m. the next day, but the fire apparently rekindled later that day and substantially damaged the Woodland home.

Twin Falls Mutual sells fire insurance to rural residents and provides equipment to the fire departments. If the equipment is used to fight a fire for an uninsured home, the homeowner is billed for the service.

At issue is whether Twin Falls Mutual had some sort of agreement to suppress the fire that winter day, either implied or otherwise. Twin Falls Mutual argues it only provided equipment, such as tanker trucks, to the Kimberly fire department. Those trucks are crucial for rural fires away from underground water lines.

Because the company provides only equipment and money for equipment, the insurance company had no contract with the owners of the house to provide firefighting expertise, the company says.

However, the plaintiffs in the suit argue that Twin Falls Mutual employed the firefighters and is guilty of negligence. The plaintiffs are two insurance companies that settled a previous lawsuit by the Woodlands over an allegedly defective fireplace. The Woodlands are rent parties to the current suit.

The two insurance companies, Farmers Alliance Mutual Insurance Company and North Pacific Insurance Company, filed the suit in December.

Smith said if Twin Falls Mutual loses, it probably will have to quit buying equipment for volunteer fire departments, "and those country folks won't have any protection or will have to organize

CSI considers geothermal water offer

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A church offered Tuesday to sell the College of Southern Idaho its geothermal water rights that were involved in a three-year lawsuit filed by CSI.

At a CSI board meeting, First Church of the Nazarene spokesman Howard Conrad said his church has decided to sell the rights to artesian water. The 500-gallon-a-minute well is located across Washington Street from CSI.

"We hope you'd pass a motion and pay us today," Conrad joked, but the board only promised to consider the offer.

The Nazarenes would like to start building a new church this year, he said, and they want to finance it with money from selling the hot water, Conrad said.

The church has drilled, capped and is monitoring its well, Conrad said. The 98-degree water, although it would have to be piped across Washington Street somehow, could be used for heating the CSI campus.

CSI already heats much of its campus with hot water and plans to retrofit the rest of the campus in the next few years. In 1985, it sued several permit holders over the declining pressure in its wells, saying the geothermal aquifer was overallocated. That lawsuit, which named the Nazarene church as a defendant, was recently settled.

But Meyerhoffer said the college may not need the church's hot water, unless it buys it for future building "down the road."

"We think it's important to preserve the resource," Meyerhoffer said.

"It's quite an offer" and the board will consider accepting, said Board Chairman LeRoy Craig Jerome.

Conrad, a Martzbaugh resident, even said the church is willing to pursue federal grants for CSI to help the college purchase the water.

Also at the meeting, President Gerald Meyerhoffer said the college has submitted its proposed budget to the State Board of Education. In its first step in a long process toward getting a budget approved by the Idaho Legislature, Meyerhoffer said, the college has asked for an increase of about 15 percent.

The board also put the building projects it originally planned to finance with a property-tax levy into the hopper to compete for state building fund financing. Voters turned down CSI's levy Sept. 6 by a resounding margin.

CSI plans to conduct follow-up research to find out exactly why voters so adamantly opposed its $7 million, seven-year levy proposal, Meyerhoffer said.

Tuesday night the trustees canvassed the votes from the failed election.

The final total showed only 21.3 percent, or 1,468 of the 6,901 voters, cast yes ballots. By voting place, the tally ran:

Buhl Senior Citizen Center: 69 yes votes, 575 no votes, a 10.7 percent

Castleford Red Barrel: 14 yes votes, 161 no votes, an 8 percent approval.

Filer High School: 86 yes votes, 496 no votes, a 14.7 percent approval.

Hansen City Hall: 26 yes votes, 173 no votes, a 13.1 percent approval.

Hollister Grange Hall: seven yes votes, 121 no votes, a 5.5 percent approval.

Buhl selects economic development advisor

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

BUHL — A former schoolteacher and principal apparently will be Buhl's new economic development coordinator.

George Shannon is the choice of the five-person committee that interviewed candidates for the position.

The job is being funded as part of an economic development block grant awarded by the Northwest Area Foundation to CSI, along with its partner institutions, Idaho State University and Region IV Development Association.

Shannon's mandate will be to help the citizens of Buhl, and other interested surrounding communities, to promote economic growth and community development. Technically, he will be a CSI employee because his salary, in the range of $15,000 and $16,000, will be paid through the college.

"Buhl is eager to pursue some direction that will stimulate business and create jobs," Shannon said. "Economic development is something all small towns are talking about. Those that survive will be the ones that do something about it."

Buhl has had an active economic development task force for some time. Shannon will work closely with its members.

Shannon, 47, was most recently the principal of St. Edward's Elementary School in Twin Falls for three years. Before that he was a teacher in the Twin Falls public school system for six years. He has lived in

2 CSI board seats available in December election

TWIN FALLS — Two positions on the College of Southern Idaho Board of Trustees will be up for re-election in December.

The election is Dec. 20. CSI will advertise the positions before the election, said Karl Black, CSI dean of finance and secretary of elections.

The two trustees up for election are Robert Blastock Jr. of Filer and William E. Babcock of Twin Falls. Both said they had not decided whether to run for re-election.

A prospective candidate must get a nominating petition from CSI and have seven or eight qualified voters sign the petition, Black said. The candidate must file for a specific trustee position and return the signed petition to CSI about three weeks before the election, Black said. He wasn't sure yet of the deadline, or of the exact number of signatures needed.

The trustees are elected at large in Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

Watkins, Stallings still sniping

IDAHO FALLS (AP) In a race that has increasingly been marked by sniping between the candidates, the charges and rebuttals are continuing between Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings and Republican challenger Dane Watkins.

Stallings, seeking a third term from the conservative southern Idaho district, has told supporters he believes two incumbents are emerging in the campaign one that he says is the real Richard Stallings and one that Watkins has created in his bid to capture the seat.

Last week saw a scuffle last week over the political health of the controversial Special Isotope Separation facility for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory that Watkins appeared to lose. Now the challenger has taken the incumbent to task for supporting catastrophic health insurance.

"He says that vote was advocating socialized medicine," Stallings said. "Well, the president signed that bill. If I'm for socialized medicine, then what does that make the president?"

Watkins, who had to backtrack on his charge that Stallings had killed the lucrative INEL project, acknowledged he had not researched the issue. But he said insurance premiums for senior citizens have gone up as a result of that legislation.

Still, Watkins stopped short of criticizing President Reagan for signing it.

"I'm sure he had his reasons," Watkins said. "But my race is not against Ronald Reagan, it's against Richard Stallings."

Stallings has tried to find a way to respond to Watkins' allegations and campaign tactics, but the congressman said he has nobody on staff who can produce comic books or is willing to distort Watkins' record.

"What we've chosen to do is ignore him," said Stallings, who has refused Watkins' challenge for a series of district-wide debates and agreed to one televised confrontation prior to the election.

Watkins has also revived the issue of some questionable loans Stallings issued from his campaign funds, which Stallings and an aide quickly repaid.

Although the congressman was rebuked by the House Ethics Committee for the action, he does not believe Watkins is gaining any headway on the ethics issue the one he used to win the seat in 1984 from Republican George Hansen who had been convicted of ethics law violations.

On his way from Yellowstone to a fund-raiser Tuesday night near Shoshone, Stallings stopped in Twin Falls to meet with reporters and receive campaign endorsements from the American Nurses Association, Political Action Committee and the Ethanol Fuel Association.

Cheryl Juntunen handed Stallings a campaign contribution of $1,000 and said the Nurses Association endorsed him because of his "significant record on health-care legislation."

"I'm very pleased to have an endorsement of people of the quality of nurses," Stallings said.

James T. Clancy of Boise and Terry Miller of Rupert, representing the Ethanol Fuel Association, expressed their support of the Stallings campaign for a third term in Congress.

"Ethanol can have an important impact on Idaho farmers," Miller said. Ethanol produced in Idaho is made from potatoes, primarily at two J.R. Simplot plants in Caldwell and Heyden. It also can be used in farm equipment, offering an alternative fuel for farmers, Clancy said.

Nearly 10 percent of the gas used in the United States is an ethanol blend, Clancy said. It is available locally from independent gas stations, he said.

take that away from them."

Motherhead has contended he was given no specific reasons for the discharge. Hansen residents made similar arguments.

Shouse asked the board how someone can improve if no specific problems are stated.

Davison, who switched her daughter about 1 1/2 years ago to Kimberly due to concerns with Hansen schools, asked the board to consider the potential reaction to its decision.

"Hansen's reputation has gotten worse and worse," she said.

In asking the board to reconsider, she said, "It will be a lot easier to swallow a pill now than later on when gachers momentum."

Davison, who has taken a lead role in opposing School Board actions in the past, said she is encouraged by the board's decision to reinstate Motherhead.

"They really listened," she said.

"On the positive side, McLaughlin said the rain will help replace the moisture the soil has lost and will help the pastures.

"I always like rain," Loughmiller said. "It's better than the drought." However, he added that how welcome the rain is depends on how long it continues.

"If it goes on for a week I'll get nervous, but for a couple of days I'll enjoy it," he said.

Rain helps Yellowstone firefighters

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—Yellowstone National Park officials Tuesday welcomed rain that fell across most of the park, resulting in low fire activity that allowed firefighters to continue their work to contain fires involving about 1.1 million acres in the park.

Rain fell on the park most of the day, allowing no growth in the fires that have plagued the park since July.

"It's been a fairly quiet fire day in terms of fire activity," said park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt. "We've still got crews out there working on line construction and mop-up efforts."

About 5,500 firefighters remained on fire lines by Monday and officials planned to begin releasing about 1,000 soldiers from Fort Lewis in Washington this week.

Temperatures in the park reached only the 40s Tuesday and fire behavioralist Bruce Freet said as long as cool, wet weather continues, the outlook for containing the fires will improve.

Forecasts for later in the week called for temperatures to warm to the 60s and 70s by Friday, although officials were also looking for more moisture by the weekend.

Freet said despite the precipitation in the park, fuel is dry enough that two days of dry weather could spell a return to the active burning seen two weeks ago.

Of the 13 fires burning in the Greater Yellowstone Area involving about 1.6 million acres, only three remained uncontained Tuesday, Vanderbilt said.

She added the North Fork is 50 percent contained and officials expect full containment by mid-October.

Hurlbut ruled the two sides' versions of the facts are too conflicting for him to end the case before trial. He said he couldn't rule on whether an employment contract existed between Twin Falls Mutual and the firefighters because no clear, uncontested evidence was presented to bolster either side's argument.

Smith said he expects the case to go to trial.

"I thought we had good, solid grounds for summary judgment," he said. "There'll be procedural motions, but this was the last substantive motion having to do with the right to bring the suit at all."

The Times-News was unable to reach Jacqueline Wakefield, who represents the plaintiffs.

Hailey residents bitter over uninsured hit-and-run incident

By BARBARA NEWEIRT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — It looked like a scene straight out of a slapstick comedy, but a recent hit-and-run episode has left its victims feeling more like characters in a tragedy.

Ninety seconds was all it took to rack up $18,000 in damage to five automobiles on First Avenue, by a hit-and-run driver who reached speeds of 55 to 60 mph. No one was seriously injured.

A man was seen fleeing the scene, police and a neighbor in the area said.

Blaine County resident Gary Casey, 20, turned himself in to authorities the next day, Sept. 14, and was charged with one count of reckless driving, one count of failure to carry liability insurance, two counts of leaving the scene of an unattended motor vehicle accident and one count of leaving the scene of an attended motor vehicle accident, Assistant Police Chief Dean Biggs said.

Casey has been released on $1,600 bond.

An unidentified passenger who fled the scene is still at large but police said they have a good lead.

"We think we probably know who it is," Hailey Chief Dan Norton said.

The Firebird traveled four blocks, ran a stop sign at the corner of First Avenue and Spruce Street and hit the front end of a 1982 Audi driven by Hailey resident Dave Cropper.

Tuesday. He said the department will have to investigate a bit more before an arrest is made.

Biggs said the accidents happened about 10:25 p.m. Sept. 13. A 1981

Pontiac Firebird was speeding north on First Avenue when it hit a parked Toyota pickup owned by Joe Evans, in front of Evans' house at 100 North First, Biggs said.

At that point, a passenger got out and ran away, he said.

According to the police report and witnesses, the driver rapidly backed up his damaged car and drove on.

The Firebird traveled four blocks, ran a stop sign at the corner of First Avenue and Spruce Street and hit the front end of a 1982 Audi driven by Hailey resident Dave Cropper. The force of the impact spun the Audi around once, shearing off the car's entire front end.

The Firebird careened off to the side of the road and hit two cars parked in the driveway of the William Bentz home at 515 First Ave. N. The cars, a 1980 Ford Fairmont and a 1981 Volkswagen Rabbit, were pushed some 40 feet across the yard. The Firebird came to rest after it plowed into a group of small trees only seven feet from the Bentz home, Biggs said.

LeAnn Bentz, owner of the 1981 Rabbit, was upset about Casey's apparent lack of liability coverage.

The victim gets the bad end of it ... and that's not fair at all," Bentz said.

She said that while she carried full coverage on her car, her father's car, which was totaled, had only liability coverage. Due to illnesses in the family and large medical bills, replacing the car will be a hardship.

Cropper, who walked away from the accident stunned and bruised, also was angry at the hit-and-run driver.

"I'd like to have a good talk with him and let him know how lucky he and I are to be alive," Cropper said. "He didn't even stick around to find out if he killed somebody."

Cropper's anger extends to the state. He holds the state responsible for not enforcing the mandatory liability insurance law. Cropper suggests the state deny license plate or driver's license renewals to anyone who does not have auto insurance paid up for a year.

Police nab parole violator in Idaho

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A man tied to the white supremacist Aryan Nations and wanted in Texas for federal parole violation has been arrested in northern Idaho.

Foster Jamie Graham II, who had been using the alias Sean Mahoney, was arrested Friday after a joint investigation by the U.S. Border Patrol and the FBI, authorities said.

Graham, 38, had been living near Athol, Idaho, with Betty Jean Yarborough, wife of former Aryan Nations security chief Gary Lee Yarborough, authorities said.

Gary Yarborough is in prison for his part in a series of crimes committed in 1983 and 1984 by members of "The Order," a violent splinter faction of the Aryan Nations. The crimes included firing shots at FBI agents in October 1984 at a home near Sandpoint, Idaho.

Border Patrol investigators initiated a probe several weeks ago when a man saying he was Mahoney applied for a job in Sandpoint. Mahoney had claimed Canadian citizenship, but when that claim could not be verified, he was arrested on suspicion of violating immigration laws, FBI Special Agent Rich Wold said Tuesday.

In studying Graham's fingerprints, FBI agents discovered his true identity as Graham and that he was wanted in Texas on the federal parole violations from a charge of impersonating an Army officer.

Federal agents arrested Graham at Garwood, Idaho, a short distance from the Aryan Nations church compound.

Castleford gets interim mayor to replace Sample

By DIANE SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — There has been a changing of the guard at Castleford.

Robert Sample, Castleford's mayor for the last 10 years, resigned his position to accept a job at the Marginal Mine in Nevada, near Valmy, about 50 miles east of Winnemucca.

Sample, a lifetime resident of Castleford, said he felt the new job was an opportunity he could not pass up.

Sample was appointed to the mayor's position in 1978 when Mayor Delbert Alexander resigned the position because of health problems. Sample then was re-elected for two consecutive terms.

Richard Schlund, current chairman of the council, has been appointed mayor until the next election in 1991. Schlund, a farmer, has been a resident of Castleford for 14 years. He originally was appointed to the council to fill a vacated term.

"Robert did a fine job, and I hated to see him leave," Schlund said. "Robert will be very sorely missed."

City Clerk Patsy Kinyan said. He was also the city's fire chief and he helped with police work and kept the water, sewer and irrigation systems running.

Council member Mary Pinkston was elected new chairman of the council since 1986. Her late husband was a former mayor of Castleford.

Pinkston, a retired Castleford school teacher, has known Sample since he was in her first grade class.

"I really think he did a good job," Pinkston said. "He knew everybody and he was always willing to help."

Sample was serving his second term on the Castleford school board and was a former chairman of the board.

Dan DeBaer of Castleford will be the city's new fire chief and the council has appointed Ray Pabela to finish Schlund's term on the council and to act as assistant police chief. Pabela is employed by Blick Trucking in Castleford.

PUC investigates US West problems

BOISE (AP) — Prompted by several recent complaints, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission said it has begun investigating possible changes in the deposit and telephone disconnection policies of US West Communications.

The commission said it received complaints from US West customers last month alleging they were improperly disconnected or threatened with disconnection for high long-distance charges.

In each case the customers allegedly were told by the telephone company to pay charges which had not yet appeared on their billing statements. In one case, US West demanded payment of a $20 reconnection fee and a $550 deposit before restoring service, the PUC said.

Under commission rules, a telephone company operating in Idaho may disconnect only after contacting a customer toll-free to determine that it is unlikely the company will be able to recover the charges.

LDS official condemns beer consumption

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Stiffer regulation of beer sales will contain the "rampant" consumption, widespread availability and epidemic problems" caused by America's favorite alcoholic beverage, a Mormon Church spokesman says.

Richard Lindsay, in a speech to the annual meeting of the American Council on Alcohol Problems, commended efforts at baseball stadiums, beaches and other public places to control the sale and consumption of beer.

"From ball-parks to beaches, new laws and rules have slowly been emerging to better control this beverage and its consequences," said Lindsay, managing director of public communications for the church.

Biondi wins 3; U.S. basketball team on a roll

AP Sports Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Matt Biondi became the first triple medalist at the Seoul Olympics on Wednesday, a day of retribution, retaliation and revenge for America's team.

Retribution for Biondi: He stopped swimming about 10 meters from the wall in the 200-meter freestyle and got bent by 31 seconds by an unknown swimmer from Surinam. He settled for silver in that race, then came back two hours later to anchor a world-record 800-meter freestyle in which the Americans won a stirring duel with the favored East Germans.

Retaliation for the U.S. basketball team: The Americans won their third straight game, scoring a 102-87 victory over Brazil, which stunned the United States for the title at the Pan American Games last year. The victory assured the United States of a spot in the medal round.

Revenge for boxer Michael Carbajal: He moved his team another step farther from oblivion with a mean-fought victory over a South Korean who beat him last year in a dual meet in Seoul.

Biondi thus continued his quest for seven swimming medals at the Olympics, and Dave Wharton of Warrington, Pa., also won a swimming silver as the United States began to assert itself at the Games.

Tamas Darnyi set a world record of 4 minutes, 14.75 seconds to win the men's 400 individual medley, with Wharton 2' seconds behind. Silke Horner of East Germany set another world record when she swam the 200 breaststroke in 2:26.71.

While the Soviets continued to run away with the medals race, the Americans and East Germans both came on strong Wednesday. The wounded hero Greg Louganis and worried warrior Kenneth Gould got the Americans going the day before and, with more swimming medals, America was tied with East Germany and China for third in medals behind the Soviet Union.

The Soviets now have 13 medals, six gold, to eight for East Germany, the United States and China, East Germany has four gold, the United States three and China one.

At the same time, Said Aouita of Morocco sent ripples of disbelief through the world of track and field. Now, it appears he may try for an Olympic triple in the 800, 1,500 and 5,000 — even though the two longer races will be run 20 minutes apart on the "next-to-last" day of the Games. Aouita is the world record-holder at 1,500 and 5,000 meters.

He's a fabulous athlete, but his schedule would be absolutely phenomenal," former British running great Steve Ovett said from London.

The U.S. basketball team used a defensive pressure that has become the trademark of Coach John Thompson of Georgetown to wear down Brazil. Brazil led 39-37 with 7:34 to play in the first half, but that's when the United States defense went to work. J.R. Reid led the Americans with 16 points, 14 in the first half, and Danny Manning and Dan Majerle had 12 each.

Brazil's Oscar Schmidt had 31 points, but that was nine off his Olympic average, and Thompson said his players were sick of hearing about the Brazilian star.

"This team was Oscarred to death," the coach said.

It was a big victory for America's littlest boxer when Carbajal, of Phoenix, Ariz., defeated Oh Kwang-soo of South Korea 3-2 in a 105-pound matchup, giving the U.S. team two straight victories.

Oh, considered a prime gold medal candidate, scored with the harder punches, but Carbajal jabbed and countered well, often scoring with big flurries in a fight marked by a lot of holding and wrestling.

"He's the hometown hero," the 21-year-old Carbajal said. "I had to fight hard because of the crowd."

Kenneth Gould advanced on Tuesday in the 147-pound division after two stunning U.S. losses — a first-round knockout of Kellee Banks and the loss by walkover of Anthony Hembreck.

Gould was camped on the floor of the gymnasium long before his 147-pound bout started. He might not win, but he was going to be there — especially after what happened to Hembreck the day before. Hembreck showed up too late for his bout after a coach misread the schedule.

"It doesn't matter if it's three hours, you just got to get here before the bout starts," Gould said.

Gould, a world champion, outpointed Joseph Marwa of Tanzania.

Anthony Nesty, the only swimmer from Surinam here, finished the men's butterfly in an Olympic record time of 53.00, beating the mark of 53.08 Michael Gross of West Germany set four years ago and giving Surinam its first ever Olympic medal. Biondi was timed in 53.01, and Andy Jameson of Great Britain won the bronze in 53.30. Gross finished fifth.

Swimming the last of four legs, Biondi brought the relay team home in 7:12.51, breaking the record of 7:13.10 by West Germany in 1987. East Germany finished in 7:13.68, and West Germany won the bronze.

As NCAA investigates school's basketball program Kentucky president criticizes 'rumors'

By MIKE EMBRY
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — University of Kentucky President David Roselle said Tuesday that "rumors and newspaper reports" about the NCAA investigation of the school's basketball program have implicated some innocent people.

"There's been a lot of innuendo and semi-allegations made in the form of rumors and newspaper reports," Roselle told reporters after a Board of Trustees meeting. "We need to separate these from the allegations."

The NCAA informed the university of one allegation on July 22 — that an assistant coach sent money to a recruit's father — and said that about 10 more allegations would be forthcoming.

"Some people have been implicated by rumor and not implicated by the allegations," Roselle said.

But he added, "I don't know specifically who has been wrongly associated with the investigation.

In an address to the University Senate on Monday, he said, "I believe people are concerned that they might be named in the allegations. I think frankly some of the concerns that I've heard — there's no chance that they will be named in these particular allegations."

Roselle said the university has not received any date for when the investigation would end.

In the letter of inquiry, the NCAA said the additional allegations could be expected in about 30 days.

"I don't know what the holdup is," he said, speculating that the NCAA was trying to get the allegations in order before presenting the complete official inquiry.

"We would like to have the allegations as soon as possible," Roselle said. "I think we'll have them before too long. The important thing is that they do everything well."

Prep poll Undefeated Boise takes over top spot in A-1

By The Associated Press

Boise became the fourth team this season to occupy the top spot in The Associated Press' big-school high school football ratings, supplanting Pocatello, a team the Braves beat last weekend.

Boise, at 3-0 the only undefeated team in Idaho in Class A-1 Division I, got 12 of 14 first-place votes cast by the state's sportswriters and broadcasters and 65 of a possible 75 points. Pocatello (3-1) which lost 13-9 to Boise last Friday in a battle between the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the poll, dropped to third place behind 3-1 Highland of Pocatello. Meridian, 3-1, advanced from fifth to fourth this week, while Coeur d'Alene, 2-2, dropped into a fifth-place tie with Centennial of Meridian, also 2-2.

The leaders remained the same in the other five divisions, four of them by unanimous vote.

In A-1 Division II, 4-0 Idaho Falls received all 14 first-place votes. Sandpoint, 4-0, advanced from third to second in the rankings replacing Moscow, 3-0-1, which was tied by Pullman, Wash., last weekend. The Bears dropped to third place, followed by Blackfoot, 2-1, which advanced from fifth to fourth, followed by Skyline of Idaho Falls, 2-2, which moved back into the ratings in the No. 5 spot after a two-week absence from the rankings. Caldwell ranked fourth last week, dropped out the ratings.

In A-2, undefeated Jerome got all 14 first-place votes, followed again by Weiser (3-1), Bishop Kelly of Boise (3-1) and Vallivee of Caldwell (3-1). Lakeland of Rathdrum, 3-1, which was tied with the Falcons for fourth place last week, dropped to fifth this week.

In A-3, unbeaten Homedale received 13 of 14 first-place votes and 68 of a possible 70 points, followed again by Grangeville (4-0), Fruitland (4-0), Teton of Driggs (4-0) and Firth (4-0). Sugar-Salem, which was tied with Firth for fifth place last week, dropped from the ratings.

In A-4, unbeaten Rimrock of Bruneau got all 14 first-place votes, followed again by Oakley (3-1) and Wilder (4-0). Castleford, 3-1, made its first appearance of the season in the rankings in the No. 4 spot, followed by 2-2 Mackay, which was ranked fourth last week.

In eight-man, 4-0 Garden Valley got all 14 first-place votes, followed by Richfield, 3-1, which moved up from fifth in last week's rankings. Council, 3-1, advanced from fourth to third, followed by Highland of Craigmont, 2-1, which dropped from third to fourth. North Gem of Bancroft, 2-2, moved back into the rankings in the No. 5 position, while Canins County of Fairfield, last week's No. 2 team, dropped from the rankings after losing to North Gem.

Here's how the state sportswriters and broadcaster rank the state's high school football teams this week (first-place votes in parentheses):

Mets use power to trim Phils 6-4, cut magic number to two

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl Strawberry snapped a six-inning tie with a long three-run homer and Kevin McReynolds hit two homers as the New York Mets defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 6-4 Tuesday night, reducing their magic number for clinching the National League East to two.

It was the Mets' sixth straight victory and increased their lead to 12 games over Pittsburgh. The Pirates played later at St. Louis. David Cone, 18-3, allowed six hits and struck out one as the Mets won for the 21st time in 26 games. With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Mookie Wilson doubled with one out to extend his hitting streak to 11 games. One out later, McReynolds, was intentionally walked by left-hander Shane Rawley and Strawberry followed with his league-leading 35th home run, a shot off the bottom of the scoreboard in right field.

Cincinnati 7, San Diego 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul O'Neill had four hits and drove in three runs Tuesday to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-2 victory over the San Diego Padres. Left-hander Norm Charlton, 3-4, scattered seven hits, struck out six and walked three before leaving with one out in the ninth.

San Francisco 7, Atlanta 4

ATLANTA (AP) — Brett Butler drove in the go-ahead runs with his second double of the game and later hit his sixth home run to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 7-4 victory Tuesday night over the Atlanta Braves.

The Giants trailed 2-1 in the fourth inning when Butler doubled to give the Giants a lead they protected for their seventh victory in eight games.

Roger Samuels, 1-2, the Giants' third pitcher, got credit for his first major-league win, pitching 3 1/3 innings of one-hit relief.

Braves starter Kevin Blankenship, 0-1, making his first major-league appearance, walked the bases loaded in the fourth before Butler doubled off reliever Ed Olwine's first pitch to score Jose Uribe and Kirt Manwaring.

Chicago 5-1, Montreal 4-9

CHICAGO (AP) — Randy Johnson, the tallest player in major-league history, pitched a six-hitter Tuesday night and Tracy Jones drove in four runs to lead Montreal to a 9-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs and give the Expos a split of their doubleheader.

Chicago won the opener 5-4 on Jerry Mumphrey's two-out, bases-loaded single in the 11th inning. Johnson, a 6-foot-10 left-hander, struck out 11 and ran the record to 2-0 in his second major-league appearance after being recalled from Indianapolis a week ago. Johnson struck out the side in the third inning and retired 11 batters in a row at one point. Cubs starter Calvin Schiraldi, 8-13, lost his fifth straight win.

Mike Fitzgerald hit a two-run homer in the sixth and Jones added a three-run shot in the seventh to pace the Expos. Jeff Huson, Jones and Dave Martinez added RBI singles and Andres Galarraga had a run-scoring double.

Pittsburgh 5, St. Louis 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — R.J. Reynolds and Andy Van Slyke hit two-run singles to give a five-run rally in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates kept their fading hopes alive in the National League East with a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Two Cardinals errors helped Pittsburgh rebound against St. Louis starter Scott Terry, 9-4, who had won his seven previous starts. Terry, who retired the first 15 Pirate batters, struck out five and allowed just three hits in 7 2/3 innings. He also collected three hits and scored the Cardinals' lone run in the third on a groundout by Ozzie Smith.

Sid Brant started the Pirates eighth with a single to right, only the second hit off Terry. Glenn Wilson sacrificed and was safe on first baseman Tony Pena's error. The Pirates then loaded the bases when Rafael Belliard attempted a sacrifice and Pena, trying for a force at third, threw there late.

Reynolds followed with his single to give the Pirates a 2-1 lead. After Barry Bonds was intentionally walked, Jose Lind hit a sacrifice fly and Van Slyke greeted St. Louis reliever Ken Dayley with his two-run

Boston thumps Jays 13-2

TORONTO (AP) — Wade Boggs became the first player this century to get 200 hits in six consecutive seasons as Roger Clemens and Boston trounced Toronto and maintained their lead in the American League East.

Boston, in beating the Blue Jays for only the second time in nine tries this season, began the day with a five-game lead over Milwaukee, which played later at California. New York stayed 5 1/2 games back with a victory over Baltimore while Toronto fell 8 1/2 behind.

The Red Sox have won 12 of their last 16. Miami Greenwell's two-run double highlighted a four-run first inning and Boston scored seven times in the fifth, including Jim Rice's three-run homer.

Detroit 3, Cleveland 1

DETROIT (AP) — Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer, in the ninth inning that popped into the left field seats of Dave Clark's glove to lift Detroit over Cleveland.

With one out, Darrell Evans, who earlier hit his 400th career homer, singled, and Scott Luscader ran for him before Lemon sent his line shot to left. Clark apparently caught the ball but it popped into the stands when he collided with the fence.

New York 7, Baltimore 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Rader pitched a five-hitter and Jack Clark and Ken Phelps connected for consecutive homers during a five-run fifth inning Tuesday night as the New York Yankees kept their American League East hopes alive with a 7-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Texas 4, Chicago 1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bobby Witt threw a five-hitter and Cecil Espy chose the go-ahead run on a seventh-inning fielder's choice Tuesday night, lifting the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Witt, 7-10, overcame six walks to complete his 12th game and break a personal two-game losing streak.

Raft River, Shoshone stay tied for loop volleyball lead

HANSEN — Shoshone and Raft River stayed in a deadheat for the Magic Valley Conference volleyball lead Tuesday night.

Shoshone visited Castleford to collect an 18-15, 15-1 decision behind the serving of Linda Helsey. The Wolves made it tight in the first game as the serving of Ken Lot.

Raft River boomed past Hansen 15-9, 15-7. While Shoshone's jayvees won their match 15-4, 15-8, Raft River bowed to Hansen 15-5, 15-18, 16-14.

Declo 15-15, Kimberly 5-3

KIMBERLY — The Declo Hornets put on an strong all-around performance Tuesday night in sweeping past the Kimberly Bulldogs 15-5, 15-3 and stay in a Canyon Conference contention.

Valley 15-15, G. Ferry 11-4

HAZELTON — The Valley Vikings had some problems in beating Glenns Ferry 15-11 in a Canyon Conference dual but dominated the second game 15-4 Tuesday night.

Hagerman 5-15-15, Murtaugh 15-6-7

MURTAGH — In the third Magic Valley conference match of the night, the Hagerman Pirates spotted Murtaugh the first game 5-15 and then snapped to with a strong team showing to pull out the victory 15-6, 15-7.

Hagerman's jayvees posted their second win of the year 15-6, 5-15, 15-15.

Bruins bow twice

POCATELLO — Twin Falls went on the road for a pair of critical region III matchups and lost both outings. Pocatello trimmed the Bruins 15-10, 15-8 in the opener and Highland, after Twin Falls blew an all-around spike that would have won the other game 15-13, then polished off the Bruins 10-15, 15-7, 16-14.

Wendell sweeps

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans, getting strong net play from Lisa Whitehead and Rachel Schaeffer, beating Gooding and Jerome in a triangular meet Tuesday night.

Wendell beat Gooding 12-15, 15-13, 15-13 in one that goes in the Canyon Conference standings and then dropped Jerome 15-11, 18-16 in a non-league go.

Gooding beat Jerome in the other game 15-5, 15-10.

Wendell won both jayvee matches with Jerome taking the odd match.

TFCA, Sun Valley split two games

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Christian Academy and Ketchum-Sun Valley traded victories Tuesday.

Kevin Goren scored a goal about five minutes into the game to give the Twin Falls team a 1-0 scoring decision.

Sun Valley's girls rebounded in volleyball to win 15-10, 5-15, 16-14.

After suffering years of abuse, Oakland A's get more respect

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Carney Lansford remembers when other American League clubs looked forward to playing the Oakland Athletics.

No longer. The A's, who clinched the AL West title Monday night on their 151st straight day in front, are now one to baseball's best record. They need seven victories in their final 11 games to become the division's winningest team ever, surpassing the 1977 Kansas City Royals (102-62).

But as Lansford-whipped it up in the A's champagne-drenched clubhouse after the pennant-clinching 5-3 victory over Minnesota, the numbers meant less than respect. The A's hadn't gotten much since he arrived in a trade from Boston six years ago; their last winning record before this season was in 1981.

"It seems like it's been a long time coming," the third baseman said. "It used to be we couldn't win a game on the road," he said of a team with a 46-29 record, best in the majors. "Here come the A's, we're going to walk all over them. Now we get respect all around the league."

Lansford, who was on a division winner at California in 1979 and won a batting title with the Red Sox two years later, said the A's are easily the best team he's played on.

"We don't have any weak spots," he said. Oakland relievers have amassed a league-record 59 saves, with Dennis Eckersley contributing 42. It has reversed the club's fortunes in close games.

"I've been on good offensive teams before, but never a team that had a good bullpen, too," said the 41-year veteran, who was on a division winner with the Cubs in 1984.

The A's, who had lost more one-run games the previous three seasons than any other American League team, are 29-17 in one-run games and have won their last six. From 1985-87, they were 63-80 (.441) in one-run games.

They also are 13-5 in extra innings after going 21-25 since 1985.

The team's rise has mirrored that of third-year slugger Jose Canseco, who turned into a .300 hitter. Canseco hopes he will cap the season with the first-ever 40-40 double (homers and stolen bases). He already has 40 homers and needs three stolen bases.

"We knew in spring training that we had the ability to dominate the AL West," Canseco said. "In the future I think we're going to be a contender, too."

Another blossoming player, catcher Terry Steinbach, said he didn't realize the A's would be so dominant so soon. "For us to have it happen this fast is something," said Steinbach, the MVP in the All-Star game. "We're still young. Tony told us in spring training that we'd need to win between 90 and 100 games to win it, and here we are."

Designated hitter Don Baylor has hit only .218 with six homers and 28 runs batted in in limited action, and is not guaranteed a spot on the play-off roster.

Buffalo Bills win close games they formerly would have lost

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills have scored only two touchdowns in three games and outscored their opponents by a total of eight points. Yet they are one of three unbeaten teams in the NFL.

But Coach Marv Levy says you need more than favorable bounces don't insure victory.

"When you come off a game that's very tight like that and you win, you say, 'Boy we had some lucky things happen,'" Levy said. Scott Norwood's field goal with 11 seconds left gave Buffalo a 16-14 victory over the New England Patriots Sunday.

"Nevertheless, you have to do something with the luck when it comes your way. You have to do something to capitalize on the good fortune and a good team does."

By that definition, the Bills, who could match the four wins they got during the first half of 1984, are 1-0 with a victory this week against the Pittsburgh Steelers, qualify as a good team.

The break for the Bills Sunday against the Patriots was a questionable holding penalty on New England's final drive that negated a first-down run by the Patriots' John Stephens.

The call on Willie Scott made it third-and-long for the Patriots, who were subsequently forced to punt on fourth down. The Bills got the ball with 1:50 left to play and no time outs and still drove for Norwood's winning field goal from 41 yards out.

It was the kind of penalty that the Bills would have gotten during their bleak period from 1984 to 1986, when the team's record was 8-40.

Many thought the holding call was questionable, and while Levy said the call "was a tough break," he added, "We still had to do a lot to win that game."

He added, "If you're not good enough, you can get that break and then don't do a damn thing about it. You fizzle out."

That may be the biggest difference between the Bills during their recent good years and this season. All three Bills victories could have gone to either team; three years ago, they almost certainly wouldn't have gone Buffalo's way.

With their offense scoring only 38 points this season, the Bills defense, along with Norwood's eight-for-nine field goal accuracy, has to be considered the main reason why the Bills are defying their past tradition and winning games they used to lose.

That's despite losing All-Pro defensive end Bruce Smith, who was suspended by the NFL for four games for substance abuse just before the opening game.

The Bills defense yielded two quick touchdowns passes to New England's Steve Grogan just before the half but recovered to shut down the Patriots in the second half. Before that, they limited the Dan Marino-led Dolphins to six points and the Vikings to 10 points.

"It's a different feeling this year," said veteran nose tackle Fred Smerlas. "Every time something bad happens, we say, 'We've been through this before. We're going to stop them.'"

The reason these Bills are winning, according to Levy, has more to do with upgraded talent than mental attitude.

"The games that the Buffalo Bills use to lose by close margins were not a reflection of lack of character. They lost them on merit," Levy said. "They were that much short and maybe we're getting enough better that we can win a good share of those games."

The players aren't so sure. Linebacker Cornelius Bennett, who joined the team midway through last season, says the toughest part of the Bills turnaround is over. "We've got the winning attitude right now and that's hard to lose," he said.

Briefly

Golf association plans scramble

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Men and Women Golf Association will conduct their annual scramble (special format) Sunday at the Municipal Golf Course.

Contestants must be signed up by 1 p.m. with a $30 entry fee.

Entry fee is $4 per player. Immediately following play, a potluck lunch will be served, the women furnishing salad or dessert and the men's association cooking hamburgers.

Golf tournament signup Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Entry deadline for entering this weekend's Canyon Springs left-two-man best ball tournament is 7:30 p.m. Thursday, reminds host Professional Del Ericson.

Ericson said the tournament committee is hopeful of having at least four flights with the championship prize being paid in merchandise prizes for both gross and net and the other flights in net only.

Finnish national team cancels

TWIN FALLS — Just a couple days after finalizing an exhibition game in Twin Falls against College of Southern Idaho, the national Finnish basketball team has decided to cancel its tour of the U.S. this fall.

CSI Athletic Director Karl Kleinkopf said he was informed of the cancellation Tuesday. No reasons were given by the Finns.

Game film will be shown today

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls coaching staff will show the game film of the Twin Falls-Burley game at 8 p.m. today at the Sodbuster Restaurant.

Blue Lakes wins women's golf series

TWIN FALLS — Blue Lakes came from three points back to overtake Jerome and repeat as the team champion of the Magic Valley inter-city women's golf association series.

Blue Lakes picked up 11 of a possible 15 points to cap the rally and relegate Jerome to second place by three and one-half points. Bull claimed third place followed by Twin Falls and Canyon Springs tied for fourth. Gooding was sixth, followed by Rupert and Burley.

The individual for the final match at Canyon Springs was Burley's Sergene Sorenson with an 81, Jackie Anderson, Blue Lakes, had 84 while Diana Gules, Burley, and Dan Hatch, Twin Falls, had 85s.

In net, Peggy LeMoyné, Bull, was tops with 67 with Phyllis Taylor, Dot McClain, Sue Langdon and Grace Bennett all at 69.

A fun day tournament will conclude the group's season Oct. 4 at Rupert Country Club. Those participating should contact the pro shop as soon as possible. There will be a 10 a.m. shotgun start.

Stram leaves hospital after surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There was no pain, Hank Stram recalled. Just a shortness of breath and some dizziness.

The next thing he knew, he was lying on the sidewalk as paramedics worked on him. Even then, Stram said, he didn't realize how serious his condition was.

"I told the doctor I must have had some bad potato soup," said Stram, 65, who was released from Methodist Hospital on Tuesday, a week after undergoing open heart surgery for a severely blocked aortic valve.

Stram, a CBS football analyst and former NFL coach, collapsed on Sept. 10, a day before he was to have broadcast the Indianapolis Colts' game with the Chicago Bears.

"It's been a congenital thing. About five years ago, I had to have a physical examination for an insurance policy," said Stram, talking to the news media for the first time since the surgery. "I went to a doctor, a friend of mine, who said I had an aortic valve problem and to be sure to check it from time to time."

"The ridiculous thing about this was I was supposed to see him in Phoenix the day after this game (in Indianapolis). I had no idea that this was the problem," Stram said.

Suns make Robinson assistant coach

PHOENIX (AP) — The Phoenix Suns have hired one of their former players — Len Truck Robinson — as a part-time assistant coach to work with the NBA team's forwards and centers, club officials said Tuesday.

Robinson, 36, joins a staff of new head coach Cotton Fitzsimmons and full-time assistants Paul Westphal and Lionel Hollins, both former NBA All-Star guards.

The 6-foot-7, 239-pound Robinson played parts of four seasons with the Suns (1978-82) and also played for the Atlanta Hawks, Utah Jazz and New York Knicks.

Robinson, an All-Star in 1981 when he averaged 18.8 points and 9.6 rebounds per game, has lived in Phoenix since his retirement three years ago.

The Suns began informal workouts here Monday with training camp scheduled to start Oct. 7 in Upland, Calif.

"I asked Truck to come to camp with us and he'll assist us from time to time during the regular season, Fitzsimmons said. He came to me and said this is something he wanted to do and I think Truck has something to offer to our young big men, particularly in camp where we want them to get individual attention."

Jerry Krause, Chicago Bulls general manager, poses with Jordan after the signing

Bulls will pay Michael Jordan $25 million over next 8 years

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan, the frequent-flying guard who helped revive basketball in the Windy City, signed a new contract Tuesday with the Chicago Bulls that will reportedly pay him a reported $25 million over the next eight years.

Neither Jordan nor team officials would disclose the monetary terms of the deal, whose terms were reported by the Chicago Sun-Times, but General Manager Jerry Krause said: "Michael is among the highest-paid players in the history of professional basketball."

"It shows a commitment by the Bulls ownership to go out and get the very best and keep the very best and build toward a world championship," Krause said.

Krause said the pact restructures portions of Jordan's current contract and extends the agreement. And Jordan said he was satisfied.

"It's something you take as a completion," said Jordan, entering his fifth pro season. "I'm happy. I think it makes me work harder and earn what I'm getting paid — not that I wasn't earning it already."

And how. Last season, Jordan was the league MVP, Defensive Player of the Year and MVP of the All-Star Game, while leading the NBA in scoring with a 35-point average.

The previous season, he became only the second player in NBA history — Wilt Chamberlain did it three times — to score more than 3,000 points in a season as he averaged 37.1 points.

Bulls Chairman Jerry Reinsdorf said he and Jordan sat down at a Japanese restaurant more than a year ago to discuss the future.

"We decided after that dinner that we would try to work something out," Reinsdorf said. "Michael said he wanted to play here the rest of his career."

"We didn't have extensive negotiations day in and day out," he said. "We met in Atlanta once, we met in Washington, we met in Chicago. ... It was something we did in a very leisurely way."

Asked when he thought Jordan deserved a raise, Reinsdorf replied: "First time I saw him play."

The Bulls stressed that Jordan, unlike many other athletes in pro sports, has never demanded to have his contract renegotiated, despite rewriting parts of the record book in only four NBA seasons.

Chicago has made the playoffs each year since Jordan left North Carolina after his junior year in 1984 to join the team.

"When I first joined the team," Jordan said, "I felt that they were at a low and the only way we could go up was I feel that we're getting close. Last year we showed that we were a lot closer than most people expected us to be."

"It could be the next year," he said of winning an NBA championship. "It could be the year after that. We're on the right path to getting there."

NCAA probes football program at the University of Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is investigating the University of Cincinnati football program for possible rule violations, university officials acknowledged Tuesday.

"The NCAA may be examining possible infractions involving recruiting and player eligibility," The Cincinnati Post reported. The newspaper gave no message for its information.

Carl Meyer, UC athletic director, told Meyer, an NCAA investigator has been under way for about a month. He would not disclose details.

"The only thing I can tell you is that we've been asked to look at some things," Meyer said. "When you get into what is potentially a legal situation, you can't make any comment."

David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA, said Tuesday he would not comment on the investigation. He referred questions to Meyer and university president Joseph A. Steger. Steger was said to be out of town Tuesday and unavailable for comment.

The NCAA has a four-year statute of limitations on investigative matters, Berst said. That would mean the alleged infractions occurred during the tenure of current football coach Dave Curry, in his fifth year at Cincinnati.

Meyer would not say if the investigation concerns a possible major violation. "I hope not. But we really don't know at this point. It's much too early to determine," he said.

If infractions are discovered, Cincinnati's football program could face penalties ranging from warnings to probation.

Curry confirmed that an investigation is under way, but would not elaborate.

"Anything I do know I'm not privy to say," Curry said. "It would be premature at this stage to say anything. Over the course of years, they come in and look at everything. It's a total university audit."

Curry characterized the investigation as "routine" until they come up with something that's a problem. "That's what worries you. It's the unknown."

The NCAA conducted an investigation of the football program last winter after it was determined that three players accepted improper financial aid during the 1986-87 school year when they failed to meet minimum academic standards for freshman participation. The players had to forfeit a year of eligibility.

Those three players still have not been identified. The university has appealed the loss of eligibility.

Meyer said the investigation into the football program is not related to the basketball probe.

New York bagels can hit home in Idaho

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

New York is also the unofficial food capital of the world. You can satisfy any culinary yen, round the clock. We dined and ate and snacked. I noticed they even stamped our luggage "heavy" when we left — lord knows what was stamped on our personal tickets!

When youngest daughter returned from her summer in Manhattan in August, she brought us fresh, baked-that-same-day bagels. Now we finally can get bagels in this part of the country, but they don't really taste any different like those from New York City.

Bagels are a good food (that means healthy — usually only about 60 calories) for today's diets. They are not fried, rather simmered in water and then baked in an oven.

How to top a bagel is almost as big a controversy as how to make a good one. The traditional topping is cream cheese and lox (sliced, smoked and cured salmon) with optional sprinkles of sliced onions, green peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes, capers, etc. But today tradition is being fast thrown out of the window and you could even use peanut butter and jelly or go the California Fresh Cuisine way and use cream cheese, mashed avocado, alfalfa sprouts and a thin slice of onion.

Some people have even made mini-pizzas using a sauce and pepperoni, but that's pretty farfetched in my book!

Okay, now that I've convinced you that bagels are it, here is a good recipe. It's not by a third-generation pro, but it turns out pretty good.

PLAIN BAGELS

2 cups warm water (110 degrees)
1 teaspoon sugar
1 package dry yeast
½ cup gluten flour (find it at your health food store)
4½ cups all-purpose flour, or as much as needed (I found I used more at our altitude)
1 tablespoon coarse (kosher or sea) salt

In a small bowl, combine ½ cup of the warm water and the sugar and yeast. Mix well and let stand for 10 minutes or until foamy.

Dazzling dinners sure to impress

Most cooks agree that the essential elements for festive meals are show-stopping elegance and easy preparation. For all your upcoming special dinners, home economists have created a medley of dazzling new dishes. Each calls for white or wild rice. The recipes are designed to make ahead and chill or to prepare on the spur of the moment when time is short. With impressive eye appeal and an easygoing elegance, each sets the stage for celebration.

CAJUN BARBECUED SHRIMP

With Pepper Wild Rice
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon paprika
¾ teaspoon rosemary, crushed
¼ teaspoon ground red pepper
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
2 cups water
1 package (6½-ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice mix
1½ pounds medium to large shrimp, shelled and deveined
1 small red bell pepper, cut into short, thin strips

inch pieces)
Combine 1 tablespoon of the butter, oil, garlic, paprika, rosemary, ground red pepper and, if desired, salt in 10-inch skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat 1 minute, or until bubbly. Combine water, remaining 2 tablespoons butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Cover tightly and simmer until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. While rice simmers, add shrimp to skillet; increase heat to medium-high. Saute shrimp until cooked through, stirring frequently, about 5 minutes. Remove shrimp with slotted spoon to serving dish. Stir pepper strips and onion into rice; serve alongside shrimp. Makes 6 servings. ▶

CREAMY TARRAGON CHICKEN

With Wild Rice
6 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves, pounded to ½ inch thickness
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
4 to 5 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups water
1 package (6½-ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice mix

Colorful rice salads are sure to make any meal memorable

Cajun barbequed shrimp or veal cremolata are easy to prepare

2 cups (8-ounces) fresh green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ cup minced shallots or onion
¼ cup vermouth or brandy
¼ cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon or ½ teaspoon dried ½ cup diced red bell pepper

Salt and freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon olive oil
¼ cup vermouth or dry white wine
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup halved pitted ripe olives
¼ teaspoon shredded lemon peel
Sliced plum tomatoes (optional)

Dredge chicken with combined flour, salt and pepper. Heat 2 tablespoons of the butter in 12-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Saute chicken until lightly browned and cooked through, about 3 minutes per side. While chicken cooks, combine water, remaining 2 tablespoons butter, contents of rice and seasoning packets and green beans in saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Cover and simmer until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. When chicken is cooked through, remove to serving platter. Add remaining tablespoon of butter to skillet if needed. Saute shallots 2 minutes. Add vermouth, cream and tarragon to juices in skillet. Increase heat to high. Cook, stirring occasionally, 2 to 3 minutes or until desired consistency. Pour over chicken. Stir red pepper into rice; serve alongside chicken. Makes 6 servings.

Combine parsley and garlic; set aside. Combine water, 2 tablespoons of the butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Cover tightly and simmer until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. While rice simmers, sprinkle veal with salt and pepper to taste. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons butter and oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Quickly saute veal (in batches if necessary) until lightly browned, about 2 minutes per side. Remove to serving platter; keep warm. Add vermouth and lemon juice to skillet; increase heat to high. Cook until sauce is reduced to ¼ cup. Stir in parsley mixture and immediately pour over veal. Stir olives and lemon peel into rice; serve alongside veal. Garnish with tomatoes, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Korean cuisine is more than dog stew and earthworm soup

By CHALYNE VARKONYI
Baltimore Sun

Back in the days when Hawkeye Pierce and Trapper John were doing their thing at the fictional 4077th MASH unit located a few miles from the front lines in wartime Korea, TV viewers got a somewhat skewed view of the native cuisine.

When the food was mentioned at all, it was the butt of cruel jokes. Suspected bomb sites often turned out to be buried pots of the infamous kimchi — a fiery, fermented pickle of cabbage, turnip, cucumber and other seasonal vegetables that Koreans consume with every meal.

These jokes were the closest many of us ever came to the food of the country also known as "The Land of the Morning Calm." But now as we turn our attention to the XXIV Olympiad taking place in Seoul, South Korea, through Oct. 2, Korean food is in the spotlight.

Both bulgogi (a traditional marinated beef dish) and kimchi will be dinner selections for the athletes during the Olympics. In fact, about 6 percent of the dishes served to the athletes will be Korean. Visitors to the Games will be exposed to native cuisine minus some of the more controversial traditional delicacies. The Seoul government has banned the sale of earthworm soup and dog stew from the city's main streets near the Olympic facilities.

Americans are learning that Korean food is more than just kimchi and bulgogi. It's a cuisine where many of the dishes seem to criticize the boyfriends of China and Japan, but the food has a luster, more potent flavor than that of its Asian neighbors.

pray for virtue because they are used partly to wish for health," writes Cho Joong Ok in "Home-Style Korean Cooking in Pictures," one of the few Korean cookbooks available.

It is the spices and seasonings that make this cuisine unique, according to Ok, not the cooking methods, which include everything from stir-fry to broil, braise, barbecue and steam.

Korean restaurants

Americans have embraced Chinese food, Japanese food, even fiery Thai food. Two decades after the war in Vietnam, we are flocking to Vietnamese restaurants. Why have we been so slow to accept Korean food?

"It may be that Americans object to the more gutsy heartiness of Korean food," says Barbara Hansen, food writer with the Los Angeles Times and author of "Barbara Hansen's Taste of Southeast Asia." Hansen has written about Korean food in Korea and in Los Angeles, the home of 500,000 Koreans.

"Americans love Korean barbecue but the rest of the cuisine is not well-known." And Koreans haven't helped the cause much. Often the packaging in Korean grocery stores contains no English and the clerks often speak only Korean. And few Korean cookbooks are available in English.

Visit Korean restaurants in cities with large Korean populations and you will notice that many of the eateries have made few compromises to the American palate.

Oktoberfest merriment hits Ketchum

KETCHUM — Bavarian food and drinks will be the order of the day on Saturday for Ketchum's Oktoberfest '88. Activities will begin at noon and continue until 11 p.m.

Sponsored by the Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber of Commerce, the event will be held at the Tyroler Lodge.

Food and craft booths will feature chocolate treats from Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory, custom wreaths and flowers by Kathy Hansen, souvenir beer steins and other Bavarian theme souvenirs. Pony rides and hot air balloon adventures will be included in the activities as well as music by the Twin Falls German Band and performances by several dance groups. An 118-foot-long Alphonso arch will be demonstrated.

German delicacies will be available including Perry's blackforest sandwiches, Stephanie's pastry delights, roast chickens, kartoffel-salad from Atkinson's, bratwurst and knackwurst sausages complimented by Michelob beer, Sun Valley Ale and Paul Maeson wines.

Peter's Restaurant will serve a special sit-down dinner from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. under the big tent. The menu will feature Gemischter Salad and roast pig or lamb served with fresh vegetables, red cabbage and dumplings. For dessert, Wiener Applestrudel will be served in a vanilla cream sauce.

Peter Weisz, owner and chef of Peter's Restaurant in Ketchum, was born and raised in Kitzbuhel, Austria. Peter studied at Schoneg, a chef's school, in Innsbruck, Austria, before coming to Sun Valley at the age of 19. He spent several years in San Francisco before leaving for San Francisco, where he worked for two years both managing and as a chef.

Cost of the dinner is $18 per person. Reservations are required, as seating is limited. Call 726-9515.

Hailey plans annual Basque dinner

HAILEY — The public is invited to a traditional Basque Dinner on Saturday in the Parish Hall from 5 to 9 p.m.

The 37th annual Basque event will be in the Parish Hall from 5 to 9 p.m. The hostesses for the evening are Janet Kimball and Sandy Ovard. Organizers say this colorful affair will feature the best cookery anywhere, traditional Basque music and dancing with special decorations, so that all the senses are piqued.

Again this year Julie Stevens is general chairperson with members of the committee being Bill and Renee Bozzuto and Margaret Malane. The dinner cooked to perfection by Jo Head, Dorothy Anotegui and Pilar Harris will consist of: Roast Lamb, Spanish Rice, Basque Beans, Parsley potatoes, green salad, home baked bread, pie and a special Basque treat. Plan. Prices are $10 for adults and $6 for children under 12.

A raffle will also be held. Prizes include: $500 Airfare Certificate, Scott Mountain Bike, $50 Beef Certificate and $25 Beef Certificate. The chairperson for the raffle is Mary Lou McGonigal. Jim Jassuru and his orchestra, along with the Oinkari Basque Dancers will perform at the dinner, with special shows at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. in St. Charles Church.

Lambs for the feast will be provided by Louis Cenarusa, Mike Cenarusa, Louis Oneida, John Faulkner, Kyle Guffy, Bud Purdy and Lawrence Kimball. Chairperson for soliciting lambs is Rose Mallory. Wine will be provided by Louise Malane. Potatoes and beans by John McGonigal, Beef Certificates by Robert Gardner, Mountain Bike by Scott Judy McAuley and Lorna Kolsh will set the mood for the dinner by decorating the hall. Waitress chairpersons are Theresa Bergin and Jean Guffy. Chairperson for the buffet table is Mary Lou Caldera.

For more information call 788-3024.

 Sampling the kimchi, which is like putting lighted firecrackers in your mouth, is not for wimpy palates. Even those who are used to the fire of Szechwan and the hottest Thai food may shrink from its potency. The squeamish also may recoil from the little dried fish with their heads on.

Many Japanese dishes have become part of the Korean kitchen and most of the restaurants will bill themselves as Korean and Japanese. Korean menus usually contain raw beef and fish sashimi, shrimp and vegetable tempura and some sort of sushi.

Wherever Korean food is served, the key elements remain the same: Short-grain rice is the base for many of the dishes. The best known of the rice-based dishes is bibimbap — a pile of steamed rice topped with meat, cooked vegetables, a fried egg or shredded egg decoration and a spicy sauce.

Noodles and dumplings are also an important base for main courses and soups. Spicy dumplings are often served as an appetizer with the traditional dipping sauce. This vinegar soy sauce also known as chojang is made by mixing together 4 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 tablespoons vinegar and 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Before serving, the sauce is sprinkled with 1 teaspoon of finely chopped pine nuts. Cooking technique is fairly simple. The most difficult chore is proper chopping. Staple seasonings, such as green onions, garlic and ginger, are either minced or cut into thin strips. Scoring (the process of cutting lines into the meat) is important to allow the marinade to penetrate the meat and shorten cooking time.

Following are some easy introductions to Korean food.

CHICKEN SALAD

 Makes 4 servings.
 (From "Home Style Korean Cooking in Pictures" by Cho Joong Ok.)
 1-pound chicken wings
 10 green onions
 Seasoning mixture:
 3½ tablespoons soy sauce
 2 tablespoons minced green onions
 1 teaspoon minced garlic
 ½ teaspoon minced fresh ginger
 1 dried red pepper, shredded
 1 tablespoon prepared sesame seeds (see recipe)
 2 tablespoons sesame oil
 dash of pepper

Steam chicken wings in a steamer about 10 minutes or until cooked. Cool, then tear meat into thin strips with your fingers. Wash green onions and cut into 2-inch strips. Combine chicken, green onions and ingredients from seasoning mixture. Serve immediately; the dish gets soggy if it sits too long.

 Prepared sesame seeds: Heat sesame seeds slowly in a dry pan. Watch carefully and remove from the heat as soon as they become brown and start to pop. Grind the seeds with either a sesame seed grinder or mortar and pestle.

BARBECUED BEEF

(Bul kogi)
 Makes 4 servings.
 (From "The Korean Cookbook" by Judy Hyun.)
 2-pounds sirloin steak
 3 scallions
 4 cloves garlic
 5 tablespoons soy sauce
 2 tablespoons sesame oil
 ¼ cup sugar
 2 tablespoons sherry
 ½ cup beef stock, optional
 ½ teaspoon black pepper

Slice the steak very thin on the bias. Score each piece with an X. Chop the scallions and crush the garlic. Combine these ingredients with the remaining seasonings in a bowl. Add the meat to the marinade and mix well until all the sides of the steak are coated.

The meat may be grilled or broiled immediately. The best results are obtained if the steak is marinated for two hours.

 Lamb "Tyrolean." The recipe serves four.

RACK OF LAMB "TYROLEAN"

4 lamb racks, preferably domestic Idaho lamb
 1 cup red wine
 1 cup pomegranate juice
 1 tablespoon tarragon
 2 tablespoons olive oil
 1 teaspoon garlic, fresh minced
 1½ teaspoon salt
 ½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper dash of rosemary
 Use salt, pepper, garlic and rosemary to rub lightly on the lamb. Let set for ½ hour at room temperature.
 Mix red wine, pomegranate juice, tarragon and olive oil. Pour over lamb racks and marinate for 24 hours.

 Cook lamb over moderately hot barbecue for 8-10 minutes on both sides for medium rare lamb. (May also be sautéed on stove at medium high heat.)

One of the Oktoberfest food booths will feature Elife, owner of Stephanie's Restaurant in Ketchum, preparing knockwurst and bratwurst accompanied by sauerkraut as well as apple strudel and pastries such as Poppyseed Cake. She says the cake "is easy and sooo good."

POPPYSEED CAKE

 2 eggs

¾ cups milk
 8-ounces whole wheat flour
 8-ounces finely ground poppy seeds
 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder
 ¼ teaspoon vanilla
 Little bit of rum, about 2 capfuls
 Beat together butter, tofu, eggs, vanilla and rum.

Mix flour, poppy seeds and baking powder together. Add a few spoonfuls of the flour mixture to butter mixture. Add milk; keep blending until everything is mixed together.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Check for doneness with thin knife, blade will come out clean. If not, bake 5 minutes more.

 er, combine the gluten flour, 2 cups of the all-purpose flour, the salt and remaining 1½ cups warm water. Add the yeast mixture and beat for 5 or 6 minutes on medium to low speed. Cover the dough right in the bowl and let it rise until it collapses, about 2 hours.

You'll be able to see the higher levels of the dough on the sides of the bowl to know it has collapsed.

Now stir 2 more cups of all-purpose flour gradually into the dough. Spread the remaining flour on a flat working surface and turn the dough out. Knead until smooth and shiny.

Now place the dough in an ungreased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk, about an hour more. Punch down the dough, turn out onto a board and cut into 12 equal pieces. Cover these with a dry towel, then a damp one and let rest about 10 minutes.

Remove one piece of dough at a time and begin making the bagel shapes. Roll each into a "snake" about 8-inches-long and moisten and overlap the ends then pinch them together firmly.

The bagel should be a circle with a hole at least 1½-inches in diameter. As each bagel is shaped, place it on a dry towel. When all are formed and on the towel, place another dry towel, then a damp towel over them and then let them rise for about 30 minutes. They should be puffed-up but not doubled in size.

Preheat your oven to 425 degrees. In a large kettle combine 4 quarts of water with 4 tablespoons of sugar and 2 tablespoons of coarse salt and bring to a simmer.

When the bagels are risen, but not doubled, drop about three at a time into the simmering water. Cook each bagel about a minute on each side. Don't let the water boil, just keep it simmering.

Remove the bagels with a slotted spoon to drain the excess water and place them on an ungreased baking sheet.

Bake in the center of the preheated oven for about 10 minutes. The bagels should be set but not browned. Turn them over and return to the oven for about 5 more minutes. They will brown during this final baking.

Cool on a rack and store in refrigerator or freezer.

Enjoy!

Coreopsis Early Sunrise towers above as top new flower

Eighty-seven new flower varieties were planted in the Ricks College Research and Demonstration Garden this year. Here is a brief report on some of those which performed best under our Intermountain growing conditions.

We reviewed eight new flowers selected as All-America award winners for 1989. These will be available for the first time next year.

Coreopsis Early Sunrise is a well deserved Gold Medal Winner. It has double golden yellow daisy-like flowers and grows about 18- to 24-inches high. It has bloomed continuously since early summer. It is perhaps the outstanding new flower I have seen in several years. Coreopsis is usually perennial. If this new variety survives

Allen Wilson

our harsh winters I will consider it even more outstanding.

Dianthus Telstar Picotee grows about 8- to 10-inches-high and has serrated rose red flowers with a white edge blooming since early summer. It too will be an outstanding perennial if it lives over. Golden Gate is a large flowered French marigold which grows about a foot high. Two-inch flowers are deep gold with red accent. Petunia Orchid Daddy is a large flowered lavender with deep burgundy veins. It is a little lighter in color than Sugar Daddy, but with deeper veins. All three of the above are also All-America award winners.

Another outstanding marigold is Garfield, a dwarf orange with red accents. It has smaller flowers than Golden Gate and only grows 8- to 10-inches-high. Several new dwarf single marigolds are very bright and showy. The Disco series is available in several colors. Viva (yellow) and Ole (orange) are very similar to the Discos. All grow about a foot high and have 2-inch flowers.

Three of my favorite new pansies are pastel shades. Cream Crown is a pleasing creamy yellow. Yellow Lip Crown has flowers with a very light yellow combined with deeper yellow shades. The Crown series of pansies is one of the best with many large flowers on dwarf plants. Delft is a combination of creamy yellow with lavender, a very unusual combination for pansies.

Petunias with deep colored veins are becoming very popular. In addition to Orchid Daddy, there are varieties with light salmon and rose pink flowers. Electra Pink Vein and Ultra Peppermint are two of the best new pinks.

Zinnias usually are not as well adapted as some other flowers in our climate. Three new hybrids have been outstanding in our warmer than normal summer. Dreamland Mix has large 3½-inch flowers on 16-inch plants. Red Lollipop has two inch flowers on 8-inch plants. King of Hearts has red 4½-inch flowers on plants almost 3-feet-high.

Several varieties have proven to be excellent cut flowers. In addition to Zinnia King of Hearts, a tall Ageratium named Blue Horizon, a tall feather celosia named Chief Mix and a tall Gomphrena named Strawberry Fields have grown very well. Perhaps the best surprise of all for cutting is orchid colored Verbena Bonariensis. It can also be dried for everlasting bouquets.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College. His column appears every Wednesday in FoodHome.

1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon red pepper flakes
1½ cups instant rice
1 cup (4-ounces) halved fresh pea pods
2 tablespoons peanut or vegetable oil

2 tablespoons soy sauce
1½ tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sesame oil (optional)
½ pound cubed cooked rare roast beef
¼ cup roasted peanuts
¼ cup sliced cucumber, each slice halved (optional)
¼ cup red bell pepper strips
Combine broth, ginger and pepper flakes in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil. Stir in rice and pea pods. Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed. While rice is standing, combine oil, soy sauce, vinegar and, if desired, sesame oil in medium bowl. Add beef and toss with oil mixture. Add rice mixture; toss well. Stir in peanuts and, if desired, cucumber. Cover and refrigerate until serving time. Transfer to serving platter, if desired. Sprinkle with red pepper strips. Makes 4 servings.

PRIMI RICE SALAD
1 bag Boil-in-bag rice/family serving
1½ teaspoons salt (optional)
1 cup sliced asparagus (1-inch pieces) OR 4-ounces sugar snap peas, halved if large
2 tablespoons olive oil
1½ tablespoons red wine vinegar

1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup shredded fresh basil or 2 teaspoons dried
2 plum tomatoes, cut into wedges
¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan or Romano cheese
Cracked black pepper
Bring water to a boil in medium saucepan. Submerge bag of rice in boiling water. Add 1 teaspoon of the salt, if desired. Boil gently uncovered 7 minutes. Add asparagus; continue boiling 3 minutes. Remove bag from water; drain and cut open. Empty into serving bowl. Drain and add asparagus, oil, vinegar, remaining ½ teaspoon salt, if desired, and garlic; toss well. Stir in cheese just before serving and sprinkle with pepper to taste. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Canning time brings thoughts of jellyspeak

WENDELL — The following poem was submitted to The Times-News by Charles Rodriguez of Wendell. Since it is canning time, we thought we would share it with our readers:

Talkin' Jelly

By Charles Rodriguez

Tis the time of our life when things get swift,
When the sun in the morning, with a chill it does lift.
When tomatoes need be covered,
so they do not freeze.
And when talkin' jelly, comes with great ease.
Yes it's busy and frantic and hectic we know,
With who will drive the truck,

Will it be Bill or Joe,
And every wife's kitchen is filled with the glow,
of all the fine things that she can show.

There's peaches, and pears, and green beans galore,
Jellies and pickles, need I say more.
A time when country living is blessed and beloved.

When all our cares and worries,
To the side can be shoved.
When a recounting of goodness can be put on shelves,
Thanking God daily, we can't do it ourselves.

When grandma's kitchen is so sweet and so smelly,
For this is the season, that we're all talkin' jelly.

Letters of thanks

Doctor's new affiliation pleases Goding parents
 I am so excited to hear of the association of Dr. David W. Becker with the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital. I am very aware of the dedication Dr. Becker has towards plastic and reconstructive surgery. His work is seen every day in my son and I am still so amazed at what plastic and reconstructive surgery can do. Dr. Becker, I'm sure will be a great asset to our community. Thank you, Dr. Becker, I would like to thank Dr. Miles, Dr. Maxwell and all the many people involved with the Crippled Children's Services.

Former patient extols state hospital services

As a consumer of mental health services from the State of Idaho since June of 1981, and continuing through the present time I would like to give credit where credit is due:
 I spent three weeks in the Arizona State Hospital in Phoenix in 1965 and one month as a patient in State Hospital South in Blackfoot in 1982. Both state hospitals shared a similar problem - underfunding. Both hospitals, in my opinion, provided custodial care only, with the exception of drug therapy.
 Depression does pass with treatment and time.
 The outpatient care I have received from Dr. Richard Worst, Bob Snow, Scott Williams and my current therapist Lela Patteson has been excellent. I have been helped through some very difficult situations by these mental health professionals.
 I would recommend Rich Donovan, Director of the Dept. of Health and Welfare, to appeal for sufficient funding from the Idaho Legislature. Prompt and proper care of the mentally ill could save lives and tax dollars in the long run.

Winner appreciates fun of 'Super-Zuk' contest

I would like to take this time to thank you both for organizing such a fun contest this summer. The whole Magic Valley seemed to respond well with such an overwhelming turnout at your "Super-Zuk" contest.
 Let's praise the Lord for such a good, clean, wholesome, family oriented fun! Our family had as much fun designing our zucchini as we did entering him - "Our Farmer Zuk!"
 As far as the competition went, there were hundreds I felt that deserved to be in the finals as I was. I bet being a judge was an extremely tough job. I am honored to have won the contest and the lawn mower. Your contest had such a community involvement that I look forward to seeing if next year doesn't bring out the "Zuk" in all of you.

 Thank you,

Carey resident mourns death of Kevin Monroe

Twice in the past month sections of Carey have been subjected to fires that have destroyed property and caused much human suffering to say nothing of the medical expenses and labor costs for the injured. Whatever the cause of the fires they still add up to untold less for all involved.
 Now we are in a state of mourning for the young man who lost his life while helping his fellow men and somehow there just aren't words enough or right enough to make his family understand that we do feel their loss and mourn with them. He came to our community to help us when we desperately needed help. It was a terrifying thing to open your door and see a mountain of flames not far from your home and wonder if your local fire department will be able to protect you.

 You are told to prepare to evacuate and take only those things that you feel are important and you walk around your house that you have lived in for 50 years and wonder what you should take and what you should leave in case the fire continued its descent down the hill. No way could our local department have controlled such a blaze.

It was only when our friends from Bellevue and Hailey and the BLM came that it could be brought under control, for it had spread over such a long front and dry brush and high winds kept it moving. As the wind ceased and the trucks kept hauling water to the fireline it was finally brought under control, but not until Kevin Monroe had paid the ultimate price and given his life.

 There is a phrase that goes like this: "Never have so many owed so much to so few." It was true during the first fire that spread through the south part of town endangering homes, crops and other property but this sacrifice was one that leaves emptiness in homes and humbleness in our hearts.

People should appreciate efforts of the U.S. Postal Service

DEAR ABBY: I wish people would quit knocking the U.S. Postal Service. We have the best service and the cheapest rates of any country in the free world.

It costs the equivalent of 46.5 cents to mail a letter in Japan. It costs 38.3 cents to mail a letter in France. And in the United Kingdom, it costs 31.9 cents to mail a letter.

The U.S. Postal Service delivers Monday through Saturday to any place in the United States, whether it's a remote spot in Alaska or an apartment in New York City for the same price.

When a letter isn't delivered, it's usually the fault of the sender who has used an incorrect address, wrong ZIP code or insufficient postage.

—VICKI DUKE, LAKE CHARLES, LA.

DEAR VICKI: Three cheers for the red, white and blue. You can lick our automobiles, but you can't lick our

Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby

postage stamps! Now, let's hear it from a carrier:

DEAR ABBY: I've been a mail carrier for a year, and after hearing so many complaints about the Postal Service, I would like to air a few of my own to the public:

- Why isn't your house number clearly visible on your mailbox or on your house?
- Why is your mailbox hidden behind bushes and fences?
- Why do you park in front of your mailbox when your driveway is empty?
- Why is your dog out roaming the streets?

- When you moved, why didn't you file a change of address with the post office, and also send individual change of address cards to your utility and credit card companies, your magazine

- subscriptions, banks, etc.?
- Why do you send mail with incorrect addresses (i.e., incomplete street numbers, no apartment/suite numbers, misspelled names, etc.)?

Normally, a regular carrier has memorized several hundred names of residents and businesses on his route. However, if a new carrier, or even an experienced carrier unfamiliar with a route, cannot be expected to know all these names. Unlike the regulars, we substitute carriers take much longer to sort out, route and deliver the mail. We do not always have the time to check carefully the forwarding lists to see who has moved. Supervisors constantly pressure us to work faster and carry more mail than we can handle, in order to avoid having to pay us overtime. We can't perform 100 percent under such stress.

I am not passing the buck. The Postal Service needs to improve. However, before people criticize the postal employees, they should make sure that they haven't contributed to the problem. Thank you.

—CALIFORNIA CARRIER

DEAR ABBY: Maybe this is why some folks haven't been getting their mail: A postal inspector in Pensacola, Fla., used a front-end loader to remove the last five tons of undelivered mail found piled at the home of a rural mail carrier.

An estimated 500,000 pieces of mail up to 3 years old were discovered.

—MAGNOLIA, KENTUCKY

DEAR MAGNOLIA: Now I suppose a lot of folks will be saying, "Your check was in THAT mail."

Wedding

Anna and Donald Ritchey
Culver-Ritchey

TWIN FALLS — Anna Marie Culver became the bride of Donald James Ritchey on Sept. 3 at the Christian Center in Twin Falls.

The Rev. Fred Brodine officiated, Jane Ellen Shew was organist and Rick Kahn was soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Lawrence and Phyllis Culver, Twin Falls, and the parents of the bridegroom are Rick and Dixie Ritchey, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Dena Chapman was maid of honor with Treana Quaintance as bridesmaid.

Matthew Ritchey, son of the bridegroom, was best man; Fred Culver and Jeff Sharp ushered.

Lori Saunders attended the guest book and Rhonda Culver and MaNaw Bowman were gift attendants.

A dinner was held at the Turf Club following the ceremony. The newlyweds rode to the reception in a 1927 Model T car furnished by Russ Smedley.

The couple was also honored with a reception Sept. 17 in Vancouver, where they will make their home.

Stocks recapture some lost ground

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a modest gain in lethargic trading on Tuesday, recovering some of the ground lost in the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 17.07 points on Monday, bounced up 6.40 points to close at 2,087.48.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 862 issues up, 603 down and 500 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the NYSE came to 142.22 million shares, up from 135.77 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trading at regional exchanges and on the over-the-counter market, totaled 167.39 million shares.

Jack Baker, head of institutional trading at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., said the gains reflected a technical rebound from Monday's sell-off.

Traders remain skeptical about the direction of the economy. The fear is that if the economy accelerates, inflation may rise as well and the Federal Reserve will feel pressure to push interest rates higher.

In its latest economic report, the government lowered its estimate of second-quarter economic growth from its estimate a month ago.

Kruger led the NYSE list of most actively-traded issues, climbing 3 1/2%. The investment firm Kohlberg, Kravis Roberts & Co. proposed a buyout at $58.50 a share in cash and securities. The Haft family had previously proposed a buyout at $65 a share.

Schlumberger rose 1 1/2% to 34 1/2%. The oil-service company announced late Monday that it would repurchase 30 million shares of common stock.

Among the blue chip issues, American Telephone & Telegraph was up 1/4% at 26 1/2%. General Electric was up 1/4% at 45 1/2% and American Express fell 1/2% to 28 1/2%.

Time tumbled 10 1/2% to 106 after gaining 19 1/2% in the past two sessions.

The company said after the close of trading on Monday that it isn't considering a leveraged buyout or any other transaction.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market rose $8.983 billion, or 0.34 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed stocks rose 0.52 to 152.44.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose 1.02 to 309.47, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 0.91 to 269.73.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.96 to 298.63. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 384.10, up 0.66.

Bankruptcy judge approves Triad settlement

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has approved an agreement in which Saudi Arabian businessmen Adnan and Esam Khashoggi are to pay $32 million to creditors of Triad America Corp.

Judge John H. Allen on Tuesday approved the agreement between the Khashoggi brothers and R. Todd Neilson, the court-appointed trustee for Triad America.

Triad—America, the Khashoggi-

U.S. holding company, and eight affiliated companies filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in January 1987, listing liabilities of $197.5 million and assets of $9.5 million.

The agreement, which was completed Sept. 15 after months of negotiations, calls for the Khashoggi brothers to pay $32 million to a bank account of Neilson's choosing by Oct. 31 if several conditions are met, including the approval of the court.

Neilson has selected Key Bank to receive the money. However, in order to receive the money, Neilson must obtain releases from 14 creditors — including seven Salt Lake businesses — saying they and several of their companies have no claims against Neilson for money creditors may believe is owed to them.

The language of the releases says the businesses will not seek to get any money from the Khashoggi, Triad International Corp. or its subsidiaries and Elk International Corp. or its subsidiaries.

If the companies sign the releases and relinquish the right to sue the Khashoggi, they instead will have to queue up with scores of other creditors for a piece of the $32 million.

If any one of the 14 companies refuses to sign the releases, the Khashoggi has the right to call off the agreement, which could force a lengthy, international court battle.
