Debate

Watkins repeats contentions; Stallings fends off accusations

POCATELLO — Republican challenger Dane Watkins hammered away at Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings Monday night, calling him a tax-raising land grabber in a debate that saw the incumbent frustrated over his rival's campaign tactics. "I've stuck with the issues in my campaign," Watkins declared, only to be greeted by laughter from the audience at Idaho State University. "The issues are he's raised our taxes, given our water away, promoted a federal land grab," said Watkins, accusing Stallings of questioning his integrity and truthfulness by calling his campaign negative. As he has throughout, Stallings generally deflected the assertions, citing an older woman in one of his campaign advertisements. "My friend says it very well — 'Shame on you Dane Watkins, Stallings said. We have a whole series of issues we could talk about, and we haven't. Mr. Watkins has been making charges and I've been refuting charges and that's no way to run a campaign." Sponsored by the League of Women and Voters and the Idaho Press Club, the debate was the third and last face-to-face confrontation between the two major candidates. It did not include Libertarian Donovan Bramwell because he had not yet gained ballot status when the debate was set up last summer.

The candidates did touch on several issues, including wilderness, rural development and nuclear waste, during the hour-long appearance. But Watkins stole the limelight with his campaign theme: that Stallings is linked to eastern liberals who want to raise taxes and take control of Idaho's resources. The debate, televised live throughout the 2nd District by Idaho's public broadcasting system, came just hours after Watkins reported he had to dip into his own pocketbook again to keep his campaign alive. In the last legislative race to be filed for his Nov. 8 general election, Watkins said $10,000 of his own money was funneled to the campaign in October, bringing his own investment through loans and donations to $35,000. That was nearly 30 percent of the $125,000 spent to oust Stallings, who has put over $228,000 into his bid to become the first Democrat ever to win three straight congressional elections in the conservative southern Idaho district.

INEL officials say gas release no health hazard

The Associated Press. IDAHO FALLS — Officials at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory say they do not believe there was any human health hazard from the accidental release of radioactive gas at an INEL facility over the weekend. Radioactive gas was released Sunday from the stack of INEL's Idaho Chemical Processing Plant at levels far below standards designed to protect the health of workers or the public, INEL authorities said. Ruthenium-106 was released at about 1:10 p.m. Sunday by a chemical reaction inside a waste calcining facility at the ICPP. Less than 0.2 of a curie of the substance, a waste byproduct of the nuclear fuel reprocessing conducted at the ICPP, was released, said Jon Barry, He is Department of Energy-Idaho assistant manager for environmental, safety and health programs. "It was not consequential," he said. "No radiation above normal background levels was detected by off-site detection monitors," officials said. The highest exposure to any INEL workers was about .01 millirems, about one-tenth of the average annual dose of radiation received by citizens on average. Curies are a measure of radioactive decay and 14 curies translate roughly into a dose rate of 0.001 rem over a 50-year period to a person, about 100 times less than the radiation exposure received during a dental X-ray. Barry said. DOE officials responded with a full monitoring effort Sunday because the event was unusual and they wanted to be sure they knew the extent of the release. The ruthenium was released when workers used nitric acid to dissolve residual waste material inside the Waste Calcining Facility. "It reacted a little faster than normal," Barry said. Monitors inside the ICPP stack detected the release, which occurred for only a short time. The calciner was put in a stable condition at that time," he said. Liquid radioactive waste is turned into solid granules in the facility.

GOP ticket snickers as Dukakis cites ties to party's traditions

By The Associated Press. The Republican ticket of George Bush and Dan Quayle snickered in campaign Monday at Michael Dukakis' late campaign declaration of liberalism in the race for the White House. Dukakis said he was running as heir to a great Democratic tradition of caring government — as he struggled to gain ground. "Miracle of miracles," taunted Bush, who has waged a campaign-long effort to depict Dukakis as a liberal outside the mainstream. Quayle said he was glad the Massachusetts governor had resolved his political "identity crisis." Dukakis invoked the names of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and John F. Kennedy, saying those Democrats stood for caring government and caring political leadership. That's the kind of president I want to be. "At his first stop of the day, he did not repeat the 'I am a liberal' statement he made Sunday after dodging the label for months. But he later cloaked himself in the liberal tradition of great presidents" as he made his way through California, and said Bush does not understand "the tradition of being on the side of working families." New polls agreed Bush was the leader nationwide, but differed on the size of his advantage. A Harris survey taken Friday through Sunday made it 52 percent to 45 percent for the Republicans. A Times Mirror-Gallup survey conducted last Wednesday and released during the day gave Bush a national lead of 52 percent to 41 percent. Democrats said their own private surveys showed late gains for their side, but Bush advisers said their man was leading in virtual ly all the large states that Dukakis would need to carry to forge an upset. A state poll of California gave Bush a seven-point margin while another in Missouri rated him a 14-point leader. "One thing was certain — this was a campaign of staggering expense. Republicans reported raising $92 million privately on top of their $46 million federal campaign subsidy," Democrats have said, on top of the $36 million in Dukakis' case, on top of the $40 million that went directly to the candidate. Bush and Dukakis threw themselves into the frenzied final week of campaigning while carpenters were at work outside the Capitol in Washington, erecting the inaugural stand where one of the would-be presidents will stand on Jan. 20 and take the oath of office. The battle of television commercials entered the late phase, as well. Dukakis charged the Republicans with running for the highest office in the land by waging the lowest level campaign in modern history in a five-minute network commercial to be aired Tuesday night. In a bid to steal one of Bush's most memorable campaign lines, he said his virtues — not the vice

Reagan denies charges by hostage

The Associated Press. LOS ANGELES — President Reagan on Monday rejected as "absolutely not true" charges that he and Vice President George Bush made deals with terrorists and deliberately thwarted the release of hostages held in Lebanon. Responding to allegations read by American hostage Terry Anderson in a new videotape released by his pre-trial captors in Lebanon, Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, voiced a statement accusing the U.S. government of preventing his release. The statement also accused Bush of having dealt with terrorists in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner and in the Iran-Contra arms deal, another allegation Reagan denied. Reagan was asked about the tape at a ceremony where he signed legislation that offers U.S. artists and writers copyright protections under an international treaty.

Delta pilot says he should have hit full power, not hesitated

The Washington Post. WASHINGTON — The pilot of the Delta Air Lines jet that crashed in Dallas Aug. 31, told federal investigators that he should have pushed the throttles to full power immediately after his jet got into trouble in flight, instead of hesitating until it was too late, according to documents released Monday. Instead, Capt. Larry Davis, who was at the controls as the Boeing 727 attempted to take off from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, allowed 23 seconds to elapse as he struggled to correct the violently yawing jet before going to full power. "Less than a second later, the jet struck the ground, slid through the grass off the end of the runway and burst into flames. The crash killed 14 of the 102 people on board. Delta Flight 141 had been bound for Salt Lake City on a clear, sunny morning when the accident occurred. Among the survivors of the crash were Wilbur 'Bud' and Bernice Hill of Buhl. They were returning from a visit to Dallas and she was among those injured. "In retrospect, I should have pushed up full power immediately," Davis told investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board. In a written report of that interview, released by the NTSB along with eight other reports from the investigation, Davis described how the plane's control column began to shake seconds after the plane left the ground, warning that the aircraft was about to stall. He said he was aware that the plane's nose was unusually high as he struggled to gain lift, but that he was afraid to fly it out — the usual procedure when attempting to fly out of a stall — because he thought the jet was about to hit the ground. "A transcript of the cockpit recorder showed Flight 141 made a routine roll down the runway and gained the proper take-off speed and climbing power. Two seconds after liftoff, the sound of a snap was heard and then the control column began to shake. "Something's wrong," Davis said, according to the transcript. Two seconds later, the first of five engine compressor stalls was heard, indicating a disruption of airflow into the engines.

Farmers' prices steady; far over '87

The Associated Press. WASHINGTON — Prices farmers received for raw products in October held steady at their late summer level but still averaged 13 percent more than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday. The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said in its preliminary report that higher prices for oranges, milk, lettuce and corn were offset by lower prices for tomatoes, apples, eggs and soybeans. Meanwhile, prices paid by farmers to meet expenses — a figure computed only every three months — rose 1.2 percent from July and averaged 5.5 percent more than a year ago. Farmers paid more for feeder cattle and calves than they did in July, but feed and fuels were lower, the report said. Prices received by farmers for some major commodities are based on mid-month averages and then are revised the following month when additional information is available. The revised figures showed the leveling off actually began in September when the price index held steady at its August average. The preliminary reading for October continued at the August-September level. See PRICES on Page A2

New vaccine for children's ills available

By The Associated Press

An improved vaccine is available to fight a childhood disease that causes meningitis and other deadly infections.

The number of cases and the percentage of deaths from hemophilus B influenza is comparable to the polio epidemic of the 1950s, said Bob Medina, immunization coordinator for Idaho. "It is a very serious disease. It's just a sort of a disease that doesn't get much air time (publicity)."

Each year, about 20,000 cases of hemophilus B infection are reported nationwide, nearly all in children age 5 or younger. About 6 percent of the victims die, Medina said. In Idaho, about 60 cases are reported each year. Last year, five victims, all of them toddlers, died.

In children, hemophilus B, a bacterium, is the most common cause of meningitis, a deadly inflammation of the brain or spinal cord, Boise pediatrician Dr. Jerry Hirschfeld said.

The bacteria also cause two other deadly infections: "Epiglottitis, an infection of the soft cells of the skin, usually on the face; "Epiglottitis, a swelling in the throat that can cause suffocation.

Budget surplus might increase

BOISE (AP) — State tax receipts in September continued piling up at a faster pace than government analysts anticipated, fueling prospects that the $12.2 million surplus already forecast for the 1989 budget will be increased.

The Division of Financial Management reported collections of personal and corporate income taxes and the sales tax accelerated in September from the pace they had recorded during the final two months of summer. The result was that after one quarter of the current budget year, total state revenues were $11.3 million ahead of the Andrus administration's revised forecast that included the $12.2 million surplus.

"This is a reflection of better national and Idaho economic performance than was expected as recently as mid-summer," the analysts said, in their monthly economic update.

State Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, was so buoyed by the economic performance that he predicted there would be a $64 million surplus when the current budget year ends next June 30.

He based that prediction on the growth trend Idaho has posted through much of 1988, saying the state was on the verge of experiencing the same kind of budget surpluses it did in the late 1970s.

But administration economists, while more optimistic about the state's financial outlook than they have been in years, indicated that even under the best of circumstances any surplus could reasonably be expected to total only a third of Risch's projection.

In the new economic update, they pointed out that the growth in sales tax collections was grounded in the continued construction boom and a surge in car purchases, and either can be expected to sustain itself at the current pace through the final nine months of the budget year.

In addition, maintaining the increase in sales tax collections, now running about 10 percent over last year's levels, would require significant boosts in retail activity next spring to overtake the dramatic increases that sector expected since last spring, they said.

Personal income tax payments in September were 16 percent higher than a year ago. But while the analysts credited some of that to a stronger economy, they said most of the increase resulted from taxpayer-withholding adjustments to compensate for underwithholding last year.

The surplus in corporate tax revenues was 21 times greater than the month before, but again the analysts were cautious. They have feared the strength in corporate tax collections over the past year has been the result of accelerated payments rather than better profits.

Appeals court overturns conviction

BOISE (AP) — Delaying the trial of a criminal case because a prosecutor was busy is not a valid reason to deny a defendant his right to a speedy trial, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

The court on Monday unanimously overturned the conviction of Larry Henry Knauft in a Nez Perce County case and ordered the charges dismissed.

The court agreed with Knauft's argument that he was denied his right to a speedy trial because of two prosecution delays.

Knauft was convicted on two counts of conspiracy to commit grand theft and for being a persistent violator. He was sentenced to up to 30 years, to run at the same time as a prison term Knauft was serving in the state of Washington.

Tribes counter gambling statement

FORT HALL (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones' warning that the proposed lottery amendment could open the way for casino gambling on Idaho's Indian reservations has drawn the wrath of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes.

Tribal Business Council Chairman Marvin Osborne said the attorney general's statement last week carried hints of discrimination and racism, and he said the tribes may sue Jones over the comments.

"We know politics are dirty and everybody wants to put out their best lines," Osborne said. "But when you start using Indian people in a derogatory manner, then we become disturbed."

Tekverk is named to geologist board

BOISE (AP) — Raymond W. Tekverk, Coeur d'Alene, has been appointed to the state Board of Registration for Professional Geologists. Tekverk, president of PAYTEK, Inc., succeeds Donald Springer, Osburn, whose term expired.

Tekverk, a New York native, was a geologist for GRC Exploration Co., Kellogg, before coming to Coeur d'Alene. His company provides geological and geotechnical services for property development, waste disposal and land-use planning.

Winchester fire leaves 42 homeless

WINCHESTER (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin gutted the roof of a shelter Sunday morning, leaving 42 people without a home.

The residents of the Winchester Midway Home, none of whom were confined to a wheelchair, got out of the building within minutes of the fire's discovery at about 7:55 a.m.

Some of the Midway residents spent Sunday night in a community center and had not yet been resettled by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Health and Welfare officials said they expected to find housing for all the residents, who are clients of the state, by Monday.

Idaho receives $6.5 million for poor

BOISE (AP) — About $6.5 million in federal funds will be available this winter to help about 35,000 low-income Idaho families pay for home heating.

The Department of Health and Welfare will administer the Low-income Energy Assistance program. Community action agencies will accept applications starting Nov. 7 and continuing through the end of March.

Attacks on Jim Fraley have been unfair

My dad, Jim Fraley, is running for re-election as Twin Falls County Commissioner. As I read the Times-News at the University of Idaho library, I am appalled at the insults, innuendos, and half-truths being flung around by the Democratic candidates for the commissioner seats. My dad has been referred to as "a jerk," "not notable," "hostile," and "arrogant."

His integrity and honesty have been under attack as the Democrats attempt to create issues. His opponent says that he does not communicate with the public, yet when I am home I face a new county jail which was built under the commissioner's direction according to a citizens' committee.

The hospital is thriving, the fair is great and last time I flew out of the Twin Falls airport, I even had a flight attendant serve me peanuts and a coke. The commissioners are communicating with someone about all these issues.

My dad's opponent also complains that the commissioners sit elevated in their offices. I've been there many times, and dad's chair is on the same level as all the others in the room. Maybe his honesty, integrity and hard work make him seem head and shoulders above the rest. I know that he's always stood a little taller than five feet, eleven inches in my eyes.

I plan to return to Twin Falls some day to repay my community, in part, for that it has done for me. I trust it will still be the same great place that I left over a year ago — a place where people think for themselves and aren't swayed by biased journalism and absurd accusations.

I've already cast my absentee ballot. I voted for a man I truly believe in — my dad. Please remember Jim Fraley when you cast your ballot on Nov. 8.

Alvie Jones' presence would be felt in Boise

It's about election time again and for whom are we going to vote for president of the U.S.?

I'm not very impressed with either our Democratic nominee or our Republican nominee.

I, personally, would like to see the Libertarian candidate, Ron Paul carry a good percentage of the votes. Maybe it would wake up both the Democrats and Republican party that the "party" is over.

It is sure hard for me to believe that the huge national debt is good for the country. Why can't both the Democrats and Republicans get busy and do something which is good for the country as a whole instead of just what is good for the party. After all aren't we all supposed to be U.S. citizens. Sometimes I wonder if I weren't some totally different breed of cat — let's just put party aside and get this huge debt lowered, and I think these foolish spending would be a big help.

We have a Democratic candidate running for State Representative, Mr. Alvie Johnson. I have known Alvie for about 23 or 24 years and I'll say this — he may not get his goals across but he will sure let the legislators at the state house know he was there. That is the least a good representative can do. Good luck Alvie.

Please take advantage of citizens' right to vote

Several weeks ago, I walked into the county courthouse and with deep pride, I registered to vote in this upcoming election. I felt so proud to become a member of the electorate of the State of America. What a privilege it is to know that my opinion counts and is welcomed as an American citizen.

As statistics show, my involvement in American democracy is rare and getting more rare. Only 22 percent of young people ages 18-24 vote. Such information seems contradictory, considering that only about one decade ago, young people my age worked so hard to get the voting age lowered to 18 years of age.

If democracy was so important to them, why should it be any less important to us today? Should we just accept America as it is, and not care enough to determine who stands on our side of the issues and get them elected?

So often we take freedom for granted, we exist in our own little world, with no thought to the millions of people just like us, who live in a land not like our own. They would give anything for the opportunity to vote.

Don't let America die of apathy. Your vote counts. Do a favor for yourself, for America and for Idaho. Share the joy and pride of the American spirit and our Constitution: vote.

Roberts still attempting to speak with McClure

On 21 December 1987, 16 February 1988, 6 May 1988 and 24 August 1988 your newspaper has published three separate letters and a story concerning my attempt to speak "personally" with Sen. James A. McClure (R-Idaho). To this date I have not yet heard a thing from Senator McClure. After "picketing" the senator's local Twin Falls field office from 2 May to 2 August 1988 I came to the conclusion that certain "self-serving" members of the senator's Idaho staff don't want me to speak with the senator.

I would very much like to know what excuse the senator's staff members that are involved in this attempted cover-up of my attempts to speak with Sen. McClure personally are going to use when I am again "picketing" this time in front of the State Capitol Building in Boise?

Print positive stories about area junior highs

In the Friday, Oct. 21, issue of the Times-News, there was a short article on the fights that broke out during the Stuart/O'Leary football game. However, there was nothing in the Sports section on the actual game. Nor was there anything in the Saturday or Sunday issue.

I have not seen one positive article about either of the junior high schools this year, in the Times-News. But this first negative thing that has happened, there was an article. Plans to picket activities have been taken place at both jr. highs this year. Stuart and O'Leary both have excellent football teams. This year's freshman class is the best class since 1988's graduating class. A large majority of the students are good students who don't cause trouble, and are good citizens. I believe that the Times-News should spend more time giving recognition to those students who really deserve it.

As a native Idahoan, I thought I knew everyone in Magic Valley. Somehow I'd never met Norma Blas until she announced her candidacy last spring for Twin Falls County Commissioner.

Since her primary election win, Norma has displayed her willingness for hard work, her eagerness to learn, and her commitment to a job well done.

Norma's background of experience in management will be a valuable tool for the position of county commissioner. Her honesty and integrity will be an advantage to every citizen in Twin Falls County.

Norma has the support of her husband and children in this first venture into public office. We are fortunate to have this capable lady offering her services to our county. Please join me in voting for Norma Blas for county commissioner.

Stallings should be re-elected

Recently voters in the Second Congressional District received a letter from Oscar Field. The return address listed Field's past affiliation with Idaho Farm Bureau in a size equal to the Idaho Republican Party address from which it was actually sent.

The current Idaho Farm Bureau Federation Executive Director, Bill Brown, has said, "These ads were deceptive ... Brown further stated, in an Oct. 14, press conference, "These letters were mailed out by the Idaho Republican Party even though the Watkins campaign team, even Dane Watkins himself, knew full well of our opposition to using the Farm Bureau in this matter."

Yes, Oscar Field, as you claim in your apology, you do have every right to voice your own opinions. But when you lie to farmers and ranchers and all Idahoans, all the while using a past affiliation after you have been asked to cease using that affiliation, then you overstep your right.

Field's assertions in the letter are untrue. Interested landowners are encouraged to contact me for a copy of the legislation, and a list of projects presently funded by this money. Idahoans, do not be deceived by campaign trickery; reelect Representative Richard H. Stallings.

Information in stories has been inaccurate

It has come to my attention several times that your paper has printed erroneous information in regards to the location of events or happenings in the area south of Hagerman. The latest was a bit about a woman trapped in a truck rollover which you said happened according to the Chief Deputy of the Gooding Sheriff's Department just north of the "Owseye Bridge." The wreck happened just in front of my house which is located just north of the "Griddley Ridge."

The bridge across Snake River that is on U.S. Highway 30 is named the Griddley Ridge in honor of one of the pioneers in the area who had to sacrifice his homestead on Griddley Island for the sake of progress and safety and convenience of the traveling public. The old bridge, built of steel, further down the river, is still named the Owseye Bridge in honor of other pioneers who ran a ferry at the site until the traveling public demanded a bridge and put them out of business.

It would seem that the media would try to get accurate locations of principal features of the area so that their stories would convey true information. If the error was with the sheriff's department, it is even more serious since the location of an emergency should be a priority item for them. Precious minutes could have been lost simply because someone was not correctly informed about the landmarks in the area.

Tom Lancaster cares about people

Tom Lancaster is a candidate for county commissioner from the West End. But, Tom Lancaster will be a commissioner for all residents of Twin Falls County. You need not be a friend or neighbor to get his attention; concern and interest because Tom Lancaster cares about people, his home county and his state.

Tom Lancaster has served the Filer Highway District with honesty, integrity and cost consciousness recognized by his peers state-wide and resulting in his being chosen for president of the Idaho State Association of Highway Districts.

So, Tom Lancaster has represented the interests of all the Highway Districts of Idaho in negotiations with the Transportation Committee of the Idaho Legislature and the State Dept. of Transportation for support of the needs of local highway districts. As a consequence a significant portion of the Idaho gasoline tax is divided among the State's Highway districts.

Few people know that this year Tom Lancaster received a three-year appointment to the 13 member Idaho State Highway Safety Commission. This is not a simple advisory group but rather one responsible to assess and prioritize highway hazards and allocate federal funds for their correction. Tom is overly modest about personal recognition but obviously one known for his capabilities and integrity.

Likely today you will drive on a road that has benefited from the attention, concern and interest of Tom Lancaster. Considering his association with public funds and funding, legislators and legislative advisors and committees and state offices, and the confidence shown by his fellow highway district committee members state-wide, the voters of Twin Falls County would be hard-pressed to identify an individual more qualified and with more performance potential for the office of county commissioner than Tom Lancaster.

Blaine County needs Walt Felming

My wife, Barbara, and myself, would like to urge the people of Blaine County to vote for Walt Felming for Sheriff.

Walt is a fine man, extremely honest, and the son of a retired FBI Agent. He has shown not only strong leadership in the position, but good management skills as well; and he has a positive attitude, good temperament, and is open and willing to listen to new ideas.

I'm sure a great many of you think of the Sheriff's Office in connection with law enforcement only. While law enforcement, i.e., investigations of crimes in the County, assisting other officers in Blaine County's towns; family disputes in the county; are very important, there's far more than just that. There's the patrol of subdivisions; crime prevention; coordination of search efforts in the event of a missing or presumed crashed plane; lost hunters; lost skiers; accidents (traffic or otherwise); the care, including feeding and transportation of prisoners; upkeep of the jail facilities; delivery of both civil and criminal paperwork; issuance of drivers' licenses; continued officer training of all officers in Blaine County, as well as volunteers, in both shooting skills and changes in existing law. All are part of the makeup of the Sheriff's Department as well.

Gambling had hand in worst cities

Reno and Las Vegas are the worst places to live in the United States according to a new study reported in the Times-News Oct. 25. Atlantic City, San Jose and similar ranking in another investigation a month or two ago. Reno, Las Vegas and Atlantic City differ in population, geography, and climate, but they have one thing in common: legalized gambling.

Gambling undoubtedly is a major factor in the crime, suicide, child abuse, alcoholism, drugs and divorce that make these cities the "worst." Perhaps we should keep that in mind when we vote on HJR-3, the amendment to set up a lottery and high stakes gambling for "charities" and Indian tribes.

Remember when we tried gambling many years ago? It was a disaster! We got rid of it because of all the problems it caused. These same problems and more are waiting for us if we are foolish enough to try gambling again.

Idaho's way of life is unique. We have every thing to lose and nothing to gain by letting gambling interests re-write our constitution for their own profit. I'm voting NO on HJR-31.

Watkins is answer for change

I would like to respond to recent articles in your publication regarding Richard Stallings and Dane Watkins, which appeared to me to favor Mr. Stallings.

Let me say at the outset, that I do not dislike Mr. Stallings. I believe he is a good person and a fine educator. The first thing he did that made me feel he was the wrong man for the job in Washington (from my perspective), was his support for Tip O'Neill, speaker of the House. Secondly he emphasized his stance with his support for Jim Wright as O'Neill's successor.

I began to realize that Stallings of political necessity, was marching to the drum of the eastern liberal leadership and that no change in Washington would be accomplished through his efforts.

If you like things in Washington the way they are, Stallings is your man! If, like me you pray for change, Dane Watkins is your only alternative!

Kids endorse mom for senate

We are writing in regards to the upcoming election for the Senate Seat, District 22B.

We are going to endorse our mother and would like to take this opportunity to let everyone know why we are doing so.

Our mother is a very hard working person. She is open minded and has always been willing to listen to both sides of the issue. We know from many years of living with her and being close to her that she is the best mother, wife and grandmother a woman could be. Because of the time, dedication and love she has always shown us, we believe she is the best person possible for the Senate Seat of Twin Falls County. Our mother has always put 110 percent into every task she has been involved with and we are certain she will do the same for her constituents when elected.

If you are wondering who this outstanding mother is — we are proud to tell you, it is Joyce McRoberts and would urge you to vote for her in the upcoming election, Nov. 8, 1988.

Sportsmen should vote for Stallings

So Dane Watkins doesn't like the American Heritage Trust Fund Sportsmen should remember that on election day and vote against Dane. Richard Stallings is for it, as is every legitimate sportsman's group in Idaho and the nation. Formerly it was called the Land and Water Conservation Fund. It pays for city parks, swimming pools, tennis courts, and every state park in southern Idaho. And guess where the money comes from? Offshore oil and gas leases!

But Dane doesn't like that. He calls it a "Federal Land Grab" when in fact it is just the opposite, designed to allow cities and counties, with the requirement that 50 percent of the money be spent on State and local projects by private means.

As with all other sportsman's issues (SPORT PAC rated him the worst of 126 legislators), Watkins doesn't understand them, and doesn't care. Remember that on election day, sportsmen, and vote for your community and environment. Vote for Stallings, who helped pass the Land and Water Conservation Fund!

Blaine County needs Walt Felming

My wife, Barbara, and myself, would like to urge the people of Blaine County to vote for Walt Felming for Sheriff.

Walt is a fine man, extremely honest, and the son of a retired FBI Agent. He has shown not only strong leadership in the position, but good management skills as well; and he has a positive attitude, good temperament, and is open and willing to listen to new ideas.

I'm sure a great many of you think of the Sheriff's Office in connection with law enforcement only. While law enforcement, i.e., investigations of crimes in the County, assisting other officers in Blaine County's towns; family disputes in the county; are very important, there's far more than just that. There's the patrol of subdivisions; crime prevention; coordination of search efforts in the event of a missing or presumed crashed plane; lost hunters; lost skiers; accidents (traffic or otherwise); the care, including feeding and transportation of prisoners; upkeep of the jail facilities; delivery of both civil and criminal paperwork; issuance of drivers' licenses; continued officer training of all officers in Blaine County, as well as volunteers, in both shooting skills and changes in existing law. All are part of the makeup of the Sheriff's Department as well.

Reno and Las Vegas are the worst places to live in the United States according to a new study reported in the Times-News Oct. 25. When this bill reached the Senate, Dane Watkins promised us that he would vote for the subordination to protect agricultural as well as private and municipal water rights. Much to our amazement, on April 8, 1983, Dane voted against the subordination bill. This bill lost by one vote!

Again in 1984, another subordination bill was passed by the House and sent to the Senate, Dane was conspicuously absent when parliamentary maneuvering tabled the bill, thus effectively killing it. This second defeat of the water users led to the Swan Falls compromise between the State and Idaho Power. The aftermath of this has been instigation of an adjudication of the Snake River costing the state and the water users, both for irrigation and domestic, millions of dollars, and effectively stopping further development of our water resources. (Every homeowner with a well must pass a $25-filing fee!) The Rexburg Golf Course can't even get a permit for a well to water the golf course.

For lack of a subordination bill, the compromise agreement had to be ratified by the national congress. This let the door open for the Federal Government to get it's nose in our water matters. The record is clear. Dane had his chance to protect our water in 1983 and he chose to renege on his promise to protect our water rights by supporting the big corporate interests over those of the people of Idaho.

 the rest of their lives?
 What happens when the bills have to be paid for professional help to ease the mental pain these youngsters have to deal with, not to mention what their parents are going through.
 Being a mother and grandmother I find the terms of the plea bargain appalling. Who is going to oversee this man and make sure he doesn't leave the house alone or have contact with children for the next ten years?

How many more children could be mentally and physically damaged because an attorney and prosecutor agreed to a plea bargain. Would they want this same plea bargain if their children had been molested.

As far as I'm concerned, anyone that sexually molests a child falls into the same category as a rapist, murderer, or drug dealer and deserves the death penalty. It's about time that our judicial system reverted to the time when the criminal received a severe punishment for such a heinous offense instead of a mere slap on the wrist. Maybe if our courts would start imposing stiffer punishments, the crime ratio would decrease.

Plea bargain an outrage
 As I read the article in Thursday's Times-News concerning David Chadwick, and the charges brought against him for sexually abusing children, I am outraged at the leniency shown him in the courtroom. You would think he was the victim.
 He was allowed by the judge, the prosecuting attorney and his own attorney to plea bargain down from 20 counts of Lewd and lascivious conduct down to one. This is justice? These offenses took place for the last three years, yet Mr. Chadwick says he has no recollection of them, and did not do it. He realized the evidence would convict him so he pled guilty. I find that amazing. I hope the children he molested will be able to forget it just as easily.

 He received a 15 year prison term, suspended. He will serve 180 days in a local jail, or maybe Cottonwood, or maybe the state penitentiary, or maybe even a residential treatment program. Is this man going to go to jail or not?
 He is also to be placed under house arrest and be on probation for ten years. He is to have no contact with minors without permission of his probation officer. This all sounds good, but do you really think the next time he gets the urge to sexually molest a child he will call his probation officer and get his okay?
 He is supposed to join a sex offenders program in Twin Falls. Come on. This man will not admit to his crimes, how can he change or be rehabilitated?

I feel compassion for Mr. Chadwick because he is physically ill. However, he is a grown man responsible for his actions. I feel society has the right to expect, no, to demand that the courts stop this man before he hurts more children. The only way to guarantee this is to put him in prison for the rest of his life, not so much to punish him, but to protect society from him.
 After all, if the courts will not stand up and say "we will not allow this to happen to our children." Who will? Mr. Baxter, prosecuting attorney. I was deeply offended when you wished Mr. Chadwick - Good luck David. You are supposed to have the reputation of "going after" child abusers who prey on children. Live up to it.

Defense attorney Greg Fuller said it was hard putting all this "terrible stuff" in the public eye. Yes, it is terrible. Yet this type of crime thrives on darkness, secrecy and shame. The children pay the price. We must bring it out into the open and talk about it, and fight against it.

The Twin Falls judicial system just sent a message to all of us. And that is: The crimes that are committed against your children are worth only 180 days. After that, the criminal is free to seek more victims.

Vote yes for Idaho lottery

Vote yes for the lottery! I believe that everyone deserves to have hope in their life and a chance of winning one million dollars certainly gives hope for financial security to millions of people across the country. So what if the odds are 14,000,000 to 1 - someone has to win and it might be me. Come on, Jim Jones, don't think we are naive enough to respond to you, "scare" talk that a lottery can open the door to casino gambling. How many states that have a lottery also have casinos? None - except the two that had casinos prior to lotteries.

If lotteries are so bad, why do all the states that have them continue with them?

If the anti-lottery group is successful in their attempt to legislate their version of morality, let's be sure to eliminate the existing gambling of church, school, organization raffles; church, service club bingo; pari-mutuel race betting; and all drawings. Aren't these things different from lottery by only a matter of degree?

We have already had an expression of the voters on this issue. What if the "anti" group wins this time - so for two out of three? KENNETH J. NEWMAN

Forbid the power to the hairy ones

It's time to acknowledge the truth behind the virtual disappearance of Jesse Jackson since the Democratic convention. Notwithstanding excuses about his "ultra-liberalism" and inexperience in elected office, Jackson has been shunned by Democratic power-brokers for one reason and one reason only: the mustache.

Indeed, Jackson is the only contender of recent memory to have both a hairy lip and a successful national career. That a Democrat should do so is ironic for it was the country's first Republican presidential candidate, John C. Fremont, from the rough new state of California, who broke the beard barrier in 1856.

It remained for the next election to spawn our patron saint of facial hair: Grace Bedell; a savvy 11-year-old adviser to Abraham Lincoln, provided the seminal inspiration. "All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husbands to vote for you and then you would be president." Even so, Lincoln wisely waited until after the election to sprout his growth.

 In the wake of Lincoln's assassination, things got out of hand. Martyrdom of the Whiskered One emboldened such fuzzy-faced extremists as War Secretary Edwin Stanton, who nearly engineered the ouster of Vice President Andrew Johnson as Lincoln's successor.
 The subsequent election of Ulysses Grant ushered in a veritable one-party state. Seven chief executives in a row bore facial hair. And the first smooth-skinner to emerge, William McKinley (read: long-hair), which opened the door to the mustachioed Teddy Roosevelt.

Now, unfortunately, the pendulum has swung as far the other way. Since 1912, the Oval Office has not been gained by anyone bearing so much as mutton chop, goatee or fu man chu. And it's been 40 years since the other-party has even nominated a facially hirsute candidate.

 What's more, the bias cuts across ideological and party lines. Jackson might have been undercut, but so, too, was Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork; he would have been the first beard-bearing justice since Charles Evans Hughes.
 All in all, it's a sad commentary on the zeitgeist that our nation shows so little tolerance to those of the hair-freighted persuasion.

FOUR-YEAR ITCH

It's during the fourth year of marriage that a couple is most likely to divorce, if ever. That matrimonial dissatisfaction long known as the "four-year itch" is well founded, say the statisticians.

Q. Isn't the heart beat always faster in active animals than in sluggish animals?

A. Not quite always. Heartbeat of the active hare, 64 per minute. Of the sluggish rabbit, 200 per minute.

You're in Egypt and you want to

FISHING

People who fish for food are backward. I didn't say that. A fisheries professor did. Fisher folk, he claims, are of two kinds: hunters and farmers. As every student of evolution knows, hunters came first. Then farmers. They'd been hunters, but got smart. Trout farmers are advanced, he says, but hunters who put out to sea for halibut are throwbacks to a more ancient age.

Court enters whistleblower act feud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday stepped into a simmering feud between Congress and President Reagan by agreeing to review legislation limiting presidential authority to withhold classified information.

The justices, in a case to be decided by July, agreed to consider reviving a whistleblower-law-decreased-uncannability by a lower court. The legislation was designed to restrain the president's ability to keep national security information from Congress.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who had breast cancer surgery 10 days ago at Georgetown University Hospital, was back on the bench as she and her fellow justices returned from a two-week recess.

In other action, the court:
 • Killed a lawsuit against the government stemming from the World War II mass detention of Japanese-Americans in U.S. prison camps. The action bars a suit for property losses by veterans of the internment camps, but legislation was enacted this year that permits each detainee to receive $20,000.

• Agreed in a case from Virginia to decide whether states must continue to provide lawyers for indigent death row inmates after they have lost their initial round of appeals.

• Ruled, 7-2, that police in Pennsylvania did not violate the rights of a man suspected of drunken driving when they failed to read him so-called Miranda warnings when he was stopped for questioning.

• Left intact Kansas laws permitting people to use deadly force to defend their homes or personal property even when they are not threatened with death or great bodily harm.

• Let stand an Illinois law that bans the possession of child pornography.

• Allowed public school officials in California to ban leaflets and school yearbook advertisements that promoted a student-run, lunch-hour Bible study group.

• Refused to overturn a $75,000 libel award to a Virgin Islands restaurant that had the same name as a bar featured in erotic fiction in an adult magazine, High Society.

Officers arrest 8 for drugs

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Authorities engaged in an extended, multi-department investigation arrested four people in Twin Falls and four in Gooding on an assortment of drug-trafficking charges this weekend.

All of those arrested were directly or indirectly associated with each other, so it shows there has been some drug traffic between the Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Wendell areas," said Merrill Kelley, regional director of the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics.

The arrests were made Friday afternoon and evening, Kelley said. In the process, authorities seized four vehicles, one in Gooding and three in Twin Falls, and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Four adults, three from Twin Falls, were charged in Twin Falls Magistrate Court Monday with selling cocaine to a state undercover officer, according to court records.

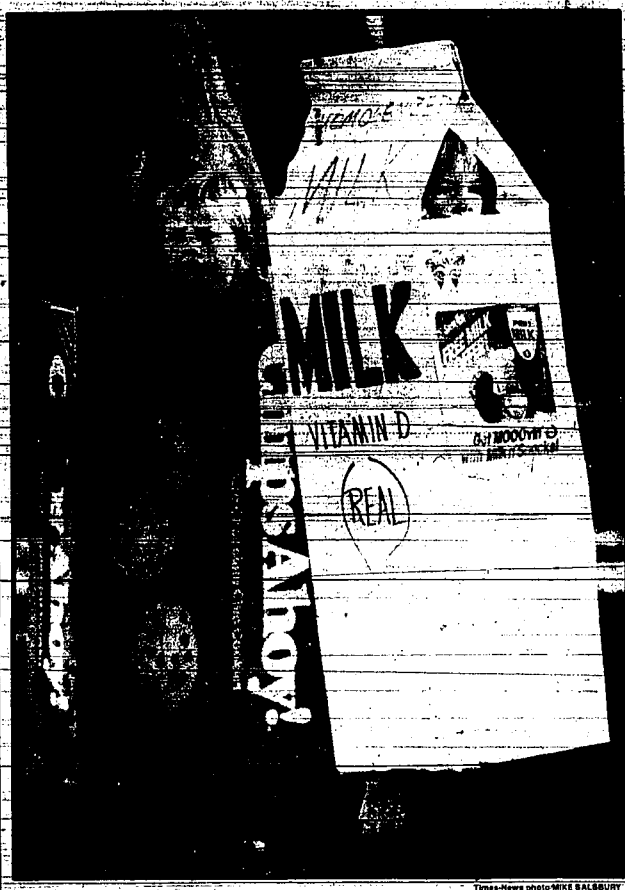

Kevin Parks, 20, of Twin Falls, and Marvin Scott, 24, residence unknown, were charged with two counts each of delivery of a controlled substance, according to court records. Roger Myers, 33, of Twin Falls, was charged with one count of delivery of a controlled substance, and Susie Carlton, also known as Susie Wilson, 31, of Twin Falls, was charged with delivery of a controlled substance and manufacturing of a controlled substance, according to court records.

Bail for each defendant was set at $10,000.

Authorities allege in court records that each of the four defendants sold cocaine to an undercover narcotics bureau investigator. The alleged transactions occurred between February and October of 1988, and the amounts of money involved ranged from $250 to $500.

The sites at which the alleged deals were made include several Twin Falls parking lots, including

Transplant fund reaches $5,400

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — While 19-year-old Tracie Gorman listens for the sound of her beeper, people around the valley have been responding generously to a call for help in raising money for her liver transplant.

Almost $5,400 has been donated through the Twin Falls Bank & Trust to the Magic Valley Children's Medical Fund, which has accepted both Gorman and a 14-year-old Kimberly girl, who also needs a new liver, as beneficiaries.

Pam Dowd, coordinator of the fund, said that one person donated more than $1,000.

"I can't believe how generous people have been," said Don Packard, Gorman's mother.

She said her daughter's spirits are still high and that they are going on with life as usual, waiting for the high-pitch beeping that will tell them the University of Nebraska

Energy programs exist to help needy

By N.S. NORKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The snow hasn't started falling yet, but the cold nights portend the winds of winter and those dreaded heating bills.

But there are ways to soften the blow.

Most energy suppliers have programs to help customers cope with high winter heating bills, and a federal program helps low-income families.

"Under no circumstances may a regulated utility shut off power to homes with children 18 or younger, elderly 62 or older, or anyone legitimately ill or incapacitated," Public Utilities Commission spokesman Gary Richardson said.

Others who can't pay, however, should inform their utility to make arrangements to prevent interruption of their heat source, Richardson said.

Idaho Power Co.'s Winter Payment Plan goes into effect today. The plan, which runs from Nov. 1 through March, spreads payments out over the year. Monthly payments would be based on yearly costs averaged over 12 months, said Marge Gary, customer accounts supervisor at Idaho Power.

She said customers are encouraged to contact the company to work out arrangements to pay high winter heating bills. When bills are 60 days past due, Idaho Power sends out notices and tries to contact the customer before shutting off power.

Intermountain Natural Gas Service has a similar policy to spread payments over the year. But cus-

Idaho Supreme Court comes to Twin Falls to hear local cases

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Supreme Court will hear oral arguments this week in local lawsuits ranging from rape to chemical spills.

Hedger faces an appeal on eight issues. Hedger is challenging in-court jury selection procedures, the use of testimony allegedly violating clergy-parishioner privilege, evidence about criminal activity and several other issues.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt sentenced Hedger in November 1986 to between 15 and 20 years in prison on his conviction on charges of rape, robbery, kidnapping and aggravated assault. A jury convicted Hedger based on accusations he entered his former wife's home, raped her and forced her to drive to Jackpot at knifepoint.

Oral arguments on Hedger's appeal will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

The Supreme Court will also hear the appeal of a pre-trial decision by 5th District Judge J. William Hart to let a lawsuit by police officers over a Rupert chemical spill go to trial. Hart denied a request for a summary judgment, which would have ended the lawsuit.

Several officers responded to the chemical spill. They sued Donald Ray Frasher, Helen Frasher, and American Farmland Inc., all in-involved in the manufacturing and transportation of the chemical. The Frashers and American Farmland argued that the firm's rule barred public safety officers injured while working from suing for damages. Oral arguments of the case will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The plaintiffs in a Twin Falls malpractice lawsuit against Dr. James Hall will argue their case at 10 a.m. today. Rayola Hildon and two children, who sued Hall, question whether a new trial should be granted and whether improper jury instructions were given.

Norman E. and Helen Arrington argue that Hurlbutt erroneously granted a summary judgment, deciding a general contractor was under no duty to comply with U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations and that he was liable for Norma Arrington's injuries as a subcontractor. Their oral arguments will be at 1 p.m. today.

Two defendants who lost a lawsuit over an automobile accident in Blaine County are appealing a decision by 5th District Judge James May to add $14,000 to a $118,000 jury verdict. Dennis Lee Fultz and Jack Johnson's appeal is scheduled for 3 p.m. today.

On Wednesday the court will hear appeals from Houston Walters, who suffered an industrial accident in 1979. Payments from an insurance company ceased in 1987, and further worker's compensation benefits have been denied. Walters will argue at 9 a.m. that the statute of limitations doesn't bar him from pursuing damages.

A decision by Hurlbutt to grant a summary judgment against Walter Roberts' landlords will also be considered. Roberts died in a fire at his Buell apartment, and his daughters filed a wrongful death complaint against his landlords.

Hurlbutt granted a summary judgment, ending the case in favor of the defendants, Tom and Gloria Fleming, the Sport Shop and Mark Grimes.

The daughters' appeal will be heard at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Tominaga: Important to respond to public

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

PAUL — Sen. Lynn Tominaga is serious about his job, he says.

"My constituents know I am responsive to their needs and I try to vote the way the people in this area want me to," says the 34-year-old Republican senator in District 24.

His Democratic opponent, Dick Russell, however, has a different view. He says Tominaga has missed more votes than almost any other senator.

"It's possible I may have the worst voting record," Tominaga said. "But I carried a lot of important legislation. You have to make a decision which is more important."

He said he missed a lot of votes because he was often excused from the Senate floor or from his committees to present testimony in the House on a bill he was carrying. The times he was called on to present a bill often conflicted with his Senate voting duties, but he didn't miss major votes, he said.

The campaign in District 24, which takes in Cassia, Minidoka, and Jerome counties, has gotten off to a slow start. Tominaga's is the only contested race in the district.

"Actually, I've been waiting for (Russell) to campaign," Tominaga says. "When he starts, I'll start. Well, I've been waiting and waiting."

Russell has failed to appear at a number of joint appearances sched-

Tominaga said his main emphasis in the Legislature has been water law. He said he's been involved in most of the water legislation in the state the last three years.

In the Wild and Scenic Rivers law passed last year, Tominaga added an amendment protecting agriculture from more restrictive use.

He also carried a resolution con-

Russell: Opponent's voting record dismal

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Sen. Lynn Tominaga has one of the worst voting records in the state Senate, says his opponent for re-election, Dick Russell. "Tominaga was absent during a great many votes and that is not to represent the people in his district, he says."

Russell is running as a Democrat against Republican Tominaga for the District 24 Senate seat, which takes in Minidoka, Cassia and Jerome counties.

"He doesn't represent us worth a hoot," Russell says. "Tominaga is very well qualified, but he doesn't use it. I'll listen to the people. Tominaga doesn't."

Russell, a 65-year-old Rupert resident, has been self-employed for 28 years, first owning a dairy and a meatpacking business, then a restaurant and bar — The Blue Room in Rupert.

If he is elected, he said he will concentrate on the following issues:

- Getting cheaper insurance for Idahoans.
- Tougher laws against child abuse and sex offenders.
- Improving education and giving teachers more control in their classrooms.
- Protecting the family farm.

"Family farms need to be protected because, as corporate farms take over, the American public will pay more for food," he says. "This will come if we don't help save the family farm.

The state can help by promoting Idaho agricultural products and by opening up new markets in other states and overseas.

He thinks the lottery issue should be decided by the voters.

He strongly supports Gov. Cecil Andrus's move to stop additional radioactive waste from being stored in Idaho.

"The INEL waste storage should be cleaned up before we even consider the SRS," Russell said.

County returns proposal to P & Z

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS - County Commissioners have remanded back to the zoning board a proposed development that opponents said was creating a new city.
 In a notice signed Monday, commissioners said they agreed in concept to a plan to build an RV park, convenience store, gas station, restaurant, mini-warehouse, park and wagon barn, but said each project should be considered separately when owner Jerry Lee Young is ready to build them.
 Planning & Zoning should have taken application one step at a time, according to commission records.
 Commissioner Jim Praley said he could not justify giving Young a blank check for development that may not occur in 10 years.

Twin Falls attorney Paul Smith objected to the application because he said it did not include a plan, construction or completion dates.
 Smith represents Helen Young and Justin Mills, owners of gas stations in Hollister and Rogerson.
 The planned development would be around the Idaho Heritage Museum, Jerry Young's private museum of Indian artifacts and stuffed animals a few miles south of Hollister.
 Commissioners took the issue under advisement two weeks ago after an appeals hearing.
 The zoning board earlier approved the special use permit application.
 Young, however, said the zoning board's action is not final approval. Before he could put up any building he would have to get detailed permits from the county and state, he said.

Police suspect report of burglary was false

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls woman who reported that her apartment was burglarized was arrested this weekend on a charge of filing a false police report.
 Darla Lewis, 32, was arrested at the Twin Falls police station Saturday evening, according to police reports.
 The day before, Lewis reported that her apartment at 1289 Kimberly Road had been ransacked and more than $1,000 in cash, checks and jewelry stolen, according to police reports. She also named a suspect, a woman who had baby-sat for her children Thursday evening.
 Police allege that Lewis made the story up to get revenge on the baby-sitter, who had earlier reported Lewis to the Department of Health & Welfare for child neglect, according to police reports.

Sheets pleads innocent to fraud and embezzlement charges

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Former Utah businessman J. Gary Sheets has pleaded innocent to 34 federal charges of fraud and embezzlement involving $1.8 million dollars.
 Sheets, whose wife and former business partner were killed by confessed pipe-bomber Mark Hofmann, now lives in Leucadia, Calif., where he sells insurance.
 Sheets entered the plea Monday before U.S. Magistrate Ronald Boyce, who ordered him released on his own recognizance.
 Because at least two federal judges have recused themselves, a trial date could not be set until a judge could be found to hear the case, officials said.
 Sheets, 64, had no comment following the proceedings. The indictment on Oct. 19 related to three business enterprises in which Sheets allegedly misappropriated financial resources, diverted pension funds and promised "impossible" returns to investors, U.S. Attorney Brent Ward said.

Half of Three Mile Island reactor core melted in accident

WASHINGTON (AP) - At least half of the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor core melted during the 1979 accident, a government scientist said Monday as he revealed a higher percentage than most previous estimates.
 "Many of you may not be aware that at least 50 percent of the core melted during the accident," James Broughton, manager of the TMI-2 Accident Evaluation Program at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, said at a conference of the American Nuclear Society.
 The material that melted included fuel and the tubes in which the fuel was contained, he said.
 In the accident at the Pennsylvania plant's Unit 2 reactor, uranium fuel was allowed to lose the vital cooling water that normally covers it, causing temperatures to rise dangerously in the core.
 Broughton's estimate, based on an updated scenario of the accident, was higher than the 35 percent figure presented to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on April 15, 1987, by Donald McPherson of the Department of Energy.
 As late as several years after the accident, it had been uncertain even whether any of the fuel had melted.

Franklin Standerfer, who has directed the plant cleanup for GPU Nuclear, the plant operator, said in an interview that there was guesswork involved in estimating the core damage.
 "It's not a science. They're just estimated numbers," Standerfer said. In 1986, he said, a scientist estimated that 70 percent of the core material liquefied - a figure Standerfer said was too high.
 However, Standerfer said researchers had a better picture of the core now than ever before.
 Half the core clearly ended up as rubble, just undefined material, he said. "What's important is that with the core damaged as badly as it was, it was maintained entirely in the reactor vessel."
 Broughton presented his remarks during a session in which executives of GPU Nuclear and former members of the NRC convened to review lessons from the accident.
 The TMI session was held as cleanup workers continued removing damaged fuel from the plant and performing other decontamination work in anticipation of mothballing the crippled Unit 2 reactor at the end of 1993. Its twin, Unit 1, continues to produce power.

Salt Lake City posts record high temperature

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The temperature in Salt Lake City Monday set a record for the warmest Halloween in Utah meteorological history, the National Weather Service said.
 Bill Alder, chief meteorologist at the NWS Salt Lake International Airport station, said the mercury climbed to 73, beating the previous record temperature of 72 set in 1962.
 The normal high temperature for Halloween is 69, Alder said.
SPOKANE (AP) - Vandals who ransacked a Mormon church in the Spokane Valley over the weekend scrawled "Satanic messages" during their rampage, sheriff's deputies said.
 Damage to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was estimated at $11,000. Lt. Norm Nickerson said.
 The word "Satan" was scratched into a piano, and the message "Lord Satan, there is no other" was written in chalk on a door, Nickerson said.
 He said the vandalism apparently occurred sometime between late Friday night and early Saturday when a church member discovered it.

Spud varieties confuse shoppers

BURLEY (AP) — When is an Idaho potato not an Idaho potato? When it is some variety other than the Russet Burbank that people expect when they purchase a spud labeled as grown in Idaho, says the Idaho Potato Commission.

The commission is considering a new regulation requiring Idaho bags of potatoes to be identified with the variety involved. A hearing on the proposal is scheduled Nov. 17 at the commission office in Boise.

The concern stems from several new varieties, such as Nokota, recently released on the market that appear similar to the Russet Burbank.

The potatoes look alike but their cooking qualities are different, which may confuse consumers, Mel Anderson, executive director for the commission, said.

"We don't want the consumers to think they have the same cooking qualities," because they don't," Anderson said.

Idaho is noted for the Burbank and when the consumer is given a Nokota it is an Idaho potato but it is not the same, Curtis Biggs, owner of Burley Fresh Pack, said.

"All this is going to do is cause confusion with the consumer," Anderson said. "The consumer believes they are all Russet Burbanks — so this is to keep our consumers informed."

The regulation has been on the books for years without enforcement,

Anderson said. Requiring labeling, if it occurs, will be until next fall so the change will have the least impact on growers and packers, he said.

Biggs said he doesn't see much impact on the potato packing industry. "I think most all customers know the kinds of potatoes they're buying."

Anderson said the commission tries to start the change last spring, but met with grower and packer resistance because the season's spuds already were planted. The commission wants to make the change as easy as possible.

"We don't think we can wait any longer to address it," Anderson said.

Racing apparently causes shooting

EAGLE (AP) — An Eagle man was fatally shot Sunday after he apparently raced up and down a quiet street in the middle of the night, and angered a neighborhood resident.

Jerry Mangum, 24, died at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center about 2:55 a.m. of multiple gunshot wounds to the chest, according to Lynn Bowerman, chief deputy coroner for Ada County.

Ada County deputies arrested the angrier resident — Eugene Meier, 25, of 2393 Dunyon St., Eagle — but did not charge him in connection with the death. Meier was held in the Ada County Jail on Sunday night on a charge of possession of a controlled substance, amphetamine.

Lt. Dan Doughty of the Ada County Sheriff's Department said Meier and Mangum got into a verbal altercation on a street just off State Street near Eagle, about 1:30 a.m. Mangum apparently had been racing past Meier's trailer, making noise.

The argument moved onto Meier's property, Doughty said, and Mangum and another man, John Weaver, 28, also of Eagle, confronted Meier.

Meier was held in the Ada County Jail on Sunday night on a charge of possession of a controlled substance, amphetamine.

Homeowners are urged to contact the company if they have difficulty meeting high heat bills. The gas company also is governed by PUC regulations barring shut-off to homes with elderly or infirm people or children.

Companies supplying fuel oil are not covered by PUC regulations. Customers should contact their supplier to find out what policy the supplier has to relieve high winter bills.

Help for about 35,000 Idaho low-income families is available this winter with the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program. This federal program has about $6.5 million to help Idaho families.

The assistance program is administered by the Department of Health and Welfare in cooperation with local community action agencies. In the Magic Valley that is the South Central Community Action Agency's Energy Assistance Program. Applications for the program, which starts Nov. 7 and runs through Mar. 31, will be taken by appointment only.

An individual or household may apply only once during a heating season.

The applicant must present a current heating bill, income verification for the previous 90 days and Social Security numbers for all household members over 16.

The income cutoff to qualify for help under the low-income home energy assistance program is $625 for an individual and $1,262 for a family of four. It increases by $212 for each additional household member.

those at Warmart, the Golden-Griddle and the Holiday Inn, according to court records.

The drug-manufacturing charge filed against Carlton stems from a July 31, 1988, report of a domestic battery at her Twin Falls residence, according to court records. Authorities allege that they found an 18-inch tall marijuana plant in one of the residence's basements.

Carlton told police that she was "growing, I fit for looks," according to court records.

Meanwhile, four Gooding-area residents were also charged Monday with various drug-related offenses.

Charges of conspiracy to distribute cocaine and delivery of cocaine were filed against Andres Felix Vega, Tony Funk and Lori Ries, authorities said.

Vega was also charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Reina Ariza was charged with being at a place where drugs are being sold, authorities said.

Kelley said more arrests are expected. A cluster of law-enforcement agencies contributed to the investigation, including the Twin Falls Department of Public Safety, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, the Jerome Police Department, the Wendell Police Department, the Gooding Police Department and the Gooding County Sheriff's Office.

"I don't think we need to raise any more taxes," he said. "Not when this economy hasn't turned around."

When half the farms in Lincoln County are being foreclosed on, he says, that is not the mark of a booming economy.

He believes the sales tax is the most fair way to raise state revenue. The state income tax has, too many loopholes, he says, letting the wealthy escape paying their share.

Lawrence Freese, a Russell supporter, says, "He'll look out for the little fellow like he does here. If a guy is down and out, all he has to do is come to Dick and he'll help him."

surgery.

In addition to the individual donations, two fund-raisers have been planned for the weekend after Thanksgiving.

The Elks club and Sears employees who work with Tracie have organized a golden oldies dance for Nov. 26. The dance will be held at the Elks Lodge, 205 Shoshone Ave. North, beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets are available for $7.50 at Judi's Book Store, Sears Roebuck and Co., Video West Inc. or at the Elks Club.

A jukebox and a group of folksingers who are donating their time will provide the music.

The Junior Muskrat Playhouse tentatively scheduled a benefit Christmas concert for Nov. 25, although the group is still looking for a building where it can hold the evening performance. The variety show will feature a special song that was written by Dowd and will become the theme song for the Magic Valley Children's Medical Fund.

Anyone with a lead of a building can call Vera Redman at 734-6311.

Dowd has also written a letter to Gov. Cecil Andrus asking him to coordinate a state system of standby jobs to carry transplant patients to surgery quickly.

She said pilots are on 24-hour standby around the nation to fly donated organs to hospitals, but there is no system to transport the patients.

Gorman's mother said she is trying to come up with more options for getting her daughter to Omaha, where she is on an organ waiting list. When the beeper sounds, she must get to Omaha in six hours or less.

What we need right now is a plane that can fly from here to Omaha in all weather," Dowd said.

Tominaga

denning the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for taking away states' water rights.

Tominaga serves on the Education, Agriculture, Resource & Environment and Local Government & Taxation committees in the Senate.

"It keeps me busy," says the Paul area farmer.

Tominaga wants more funding for education, and the money should come from growth in the state's economy rather than from new taxes.

"He favors a merit pay system for teachers. Teachers who work harder and put in more hours should be rewarded for it."

"He says creating some negative incentives to encourage school consolidation is a possibility.

"Consolidation should be voluntary. If you force it on them, they will fight you tooth and nail."

"Tominaga agrees that in some cases closing the school would mean killing the spirit of the town. But, tough is a classic example," he said.

"If you closed the high school you would kill Murtaugh."

Conversely, the optimum high school size is between 400 and 600 students, which offers a balance between a broader course offering while maintaining specialized attention, Tominaga said.

He is opposed to the lottery. It is not going to raise large amounts of money for schools, and the fund levels will fluctuate too much to count on.

If the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory can take care of its current waste disposal problem, then the Special Isotope Separation project would be OK, he says.

"He has been looking at opening international markets to Idaho products with the Idaho Department of Commerce, particularly Idaho beef to Japan."

The best way to improve the economy is to improve the transportation system to the markets, especially to the Port of Lewiston, he says. He wants the state to start construction on Interstate Highway 95 from Boise to Coeur d'Alene now instead of waiting for federal money that is supposed to be coming in four or five years.

He is one of a number of Republicans who want to consolidate a number of state departments into one Department of Natural Resources. The current departments of Fish and Game, Lands, Parks and Recreation, Water Resources, and portions of Health and Welfare would be dissolved into the new comprehensive department.

If he is re-elected, Tominaga says he will concentrate on water quality issues, creating foreign markets for agricultural products, getting merit pay for teachers and keeping control of Idaho's water away from the federal government.

Will he win? "In rural communities, as long as people know you and know you are doing a good job," Tominaga says, "they will tend to vote your way."

The University of Idaho's Bruce Harris leads the Vandals in rushing with 652 yards

UI's Bruce Harris leads Vandals' running attack

By COLIN MULDOON
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho's 27-24 victory over Weber State here a week ago guaranteed the 6-1 Vandals their seventh straight winning season.

So what else is new?

Plenty: These are not the same run-and-shoot Vandals that prospered under now Washington State coach Dennis Erickson. Gone are the days of Kenny Hobart. This is a new-look Idaho team not so reliant on the pass anymore, despite having possibly the best quarterback ever to wear the silver and gold in junior John Friesz.

Present coach Keith Gilbertson did his homework when he arrived in 1986 and he's built a balanced offensive attack that not only is a devastating power in the air, but on the ground as well.

Vandal running backs have accounted for 1,350 yards rushing in seven game this season. An average of 168.7 yards per game. These are freshmen and sophomores.

The bulk of this surprising prolific production on the ground is the credit of Bruce Harris.

Friesz said before the season began that the running back situation was "up in the air," but Harris quickly quelled any doubts, rushing for over 90 yards in the Vandals' opener against Portland State. He then put together three consecutive 100-yard-plus games, including 162 in Idaho's 36-26 victory over Pacific Sept. 17 and 160 in the 26-17 heart-breaking loss to Montana in Missoula the following weekend.

Suddenly an unlikely Harris was leading the BSC in rushing. Ahead of Weber's Fine Ungu and Nevada-Reno's Charvez Foger, commonly regarded as the finest backs in the conference.

In the past three weeks, the 5-foot, 11-inch, 175-pound sophomore has dropped to third in BSC rushing behind Ungu and Foger due to a shoulder strain Harris suffered in the 41-24 Vandal victory over Montana State Oct. 8 and a bruised thigh that has limited his action. Harris is leading Vandal rushing with 652-yard, a 93.1-yard-per-game average.

Harris' effectiveness and that of fellow backs Damon Daniels and Devon Pearce has been surprising the rest of the Big Sky Conference, but not Gilbertson.

"That's why I recruited 'em," he said. "We know enough about what we're doing that when we watch a high school player we'll be able to play (at the college level) or not. And I think that's evidenced by the depth in the program; how the young players have had to play earlier than maybe anticipated have come in and played well."

This certainly was the case in regard to Harris and Daniels. The two sophomore were called upon before the season began to fill the shoes of 1987 starters Todd Hoiness and Larry Leverett. Hoiness is restarting this season due to recurring injuries and Leverett will miss his entire junior year as the result of major reconstructive knee surgery in 1987.

Harris says he has been pleasantly surprised with his success but he also gives credit where credit is due.

"No, I really wasn't expecting to do this well, but I was just trying to come-out and play hard on a day-to-day basis," he said.

"With the situation of Larry and Todd gone," Harris added, "that kind of put pressure on me and Damon Daniels, you know being sophomores, to come in and get the job done."

"I couldn't even run the ball if I didn't have an offensive line, basically," he says. "I give my credit to those guys because without them, I couldn't do anything."

Indeed, most of the credit this year is going to the Vandal offensive line, whether it be from Harris, Friesz or Gilbertson. There hasn't been a powerful running attack in years gone-by because there hasn't been a powerful line.

In 1986, this group of guys (the present offensive line) were all redshirt freshmen and sophomores," Gilbertson said. "Now they're all seniors and juniors. It took them a while to mature. I took us a while to build a running game because your offensive line has got to be able to block somebody."

Gilbertson says he recruited Harris from John F. *See HARRIS on Page C2

Irish atop AP poll for 1st time since '81; UCLA drops to #6

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

For the first time since early in the 1981 season, the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame are on top of the college football world.

And since Monday's Associated Press poll finds Southern California right behind Notre Dame, it sets up what would be the 24th meeting between No. 1 and No. 2 when they meet on Nov. 26 in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"Before that can happen," however, Notre Dame, 8-0, must defeat Rice on Saturday and Penn State on Nov. 19 while Southern Cal—7-0, has to beat California, Arizona State and UCLA the former No. 1 team, which slipped to sixth in the wake of Saturday's 34-30 upset at the hands of Washington State.

Notre Dame, a 22-7 winner over Navy—received 44 of 58 first-place votes and 1,144 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The Irish had been second behind UCLA the last two weeks. Southern Cal, a 41-20 winner over Oregon State, received 11 first-place votes and 1,097 points in climbing from third place to second.

Since the AP poll began in 1936, Notre Dame has won seven national championships, more than any other school. But the Irish haven't won a national championship since 1977 and were last ranked No. 1 after opening the 1981 season and the Gerry Faust era with a 27-0 victory over LSU. Notre Dame lost to Michigan 25-7 the following week and haven't been higher than fourth until beating Miami two weeks ago.

Notre Dame became the fourth team to be ranked No. 1 this season. Florida State was No. 1 in the pre-season poll but lost its opener to Miami 31-0. Miami became No. 1 for six weeks before losing to Notre Dame 31-30. That made UCLA No. 1 for two weeks.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz was something less than ecstatic to learn number one on September 1.

Following the sluggish victory over Navy, Holtz said Notre Dame was "not a really good football team right now."

"When Holtz succeeded Faust following the 1985 season, he said his motto was, 'First will be the best, then we'll be first.'

"And I don't think we're the best yet. We're first before we're the best."

"This team has done an incredible job this year but it's like building a house — it looks good and it hasn't fallen down yet, but it hasn't had a big storm yet either."

Although the Top Ten in this week's poll are the same 10 teams as last week, there was reshuffling.

Miami's defending national champions moved from fourth place to third with one first-place vote and 2,041 points following a 31-7 triumph over East Carolina.

West Virginia leaped from seventh to fourth by routing Penn State 51-30. The Mountaineers, 8-0 for the first time in their 97-year football history, received the other two first-place votes and 950 points. West Virginia was as high as No. 4 twice during the 1983 season.

Florida State was "idle" but rose from sixth to fifth with 886 points, followed by UCLA with 847 points; Nebraska dropped from fifth to seventh with 835 points after struggling past Missouri 26-18.

The rest of the Top Ten remained the same. Oklahoma "trounced" Kansas 63-14 and held onto eighth place with 739 points, Auburn blanked Florida 14-0 for its third straight shutout and remained No. 9 with 715 points and Wyoming is again 10th with 658 points after routing Colorado State 48-14.

The Second Ten consists of Arkansas, Oklahoma State, LSU, Michigan, South Carolina, Syracuse, Clemson, Alabama, Georgia and a tie between BYU and Indiana.

Last week it was Arkansas, Oklahoma State, LSU, Michigan, Clemson, Syracuse, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Oregon.

Oregon fell out of the rankings by losing to Arizona State 21-20. BYU, 7-1, made it for the first time this season by crushing New Mexico 65-9 and Indiana, which dropped out after losing to Michigan last week, moved back in with a 45-34 victory over Iowa. The Hoosiers are 6-2-1.

The Top Ten (top in the Associated Press college football poll) with first-place votes in parentheses, through the season of Oct. 27 and points based on 25,000 fan poll.

1. Notre Dame (44)	2,091 (1,144)
2. Southern Cal (11)	1,958 (1,073)
3. Miami (11)	1,958 (1,073)

L.A.'s Griffin files for free agency

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Alfredo Griffin, the shortstop of the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers, was among 11 players who filed for free agency on Monday, raising the total to 50, the Major League Baseball Players Association said.

Griffin batted .199 this season in 119 games and 27 runs batted in. He hit 160 with three RBI in the National League playoffs and .188 in the World Series.

Griffin is a career .256 hitter in 10 major-league seasons. He drove in a career-high 60 runs for Oakland in 1987.

Fred Claire, the Dodgers' executive vice president, said he now has imposed a deadline of Friday mid-night for signing the seven Dodgers still eligible for free agency.

They are Steve Sax, Mike Marshall, Mickey Hatcher, Alejandro Benes, Jesse Orsoso, Mario Soto and Griffin.

Around the major leagues, pitchers filing on Monday were Charlie Lea and Dan Schatzeder of the Minnesota Twins, Mike Flanagan of the Toronto Blue Jays, Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros, Javy Sorenson of the San Francisco Giants and Ozzell Jones of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Others filing were designated hitter Darrell Evans of the Detroit Tigers, third baseman Jim Morrison of the Atlanta Braves, catcher Alex Trevino of the Houston Astros and outfielder Greg Gross of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Eligible players have until Friday to file.

NFL: Dickerson scores 4 times to decimate Denver, 55-23

By STEVE HERMAN
AP sports writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Eric Dickerson rushed for 159 yards to go over 1,000 yards for an NFL record-tying third consecutive season and scored a career-high four touchdowns as the Indianapolis Colts stunned the Denver Broncos 55-23 in the first Monday night football game at the Hoosier Dome.

The Colts, scoring on seven of their nine first-half possessions, forced four fumbles, sacked Broncos quarterback John Elway three times and didn't let Denver cross midfield until its seventh possession, five minutes into the second quarter.

By that time, Indianapolis led 31-0 on Dickerson's four touchdowns and the first of two field goals by Dan Bissucci. The Colts built the margin to 45-10 at halftime, four points short of the NFL record for points in a half. The mark is held by Chicago against Philadelphia in 1941 and Green Bay in 1983 against Tampa Bay.

Quarterback Gary Hogeboom, replacing starter Chris Chandler whenever the Colts went to a wishbone offense, threw a 53-yard touchdown pass to Bill Brooks in the second quarter. Bissucci got another field goal in the third quarter and Albert Bentley rushed for a fourth-period touchdown as Indianapolis evened its record at 4-5 with the most points ever scored in a Monday Night game.

The loss before a Hoosier Dome record crowd of 60,544 — many in Halloween costumes — left the Broncos 4-5.

Dickerson, the NFL rushing leader, rushed 21 times in the game. He had 124 yards in the first half and was used sparingly in the final two periods. He raised his season total to 1,038 yards, joining Franco Harris and Walter Payton for the most consecutive 1,000-yard seasons. Dickerson, however, became the first to do it in his first six years in the league.

Dickerson, who came to Indianapolis in a trade with the Los Angeles Rams on Halloween a year earlier, broke the Colts record of three rushing touchdowns in a game he previously shared with Alan Ameche, Lenny Moore, Tom Matte, Don McCauley and Randy McMillan.

His first touchdown came on a 12-yard run early in the first quarter. The Colts' only punt of the first half ended the next drive, but Chris Gooden's recovery of a fumble after a pass reception by Pat Kelly and a personal foul on Denver's Clarence Kay gave the Colts possession at the Broncos 10-yard line.

After a take start by Indianapolis, Dickerson ran twice, scoring again from the 12.

Denver's next two possessions also ended in fumbles, one by Mark Jackson after a pass reception and another by Elway on a bobbled snap from center Tony Dorsett, the only active runner in the NFL with more career yardage than Dickerson, also fumbled in the second quarter on a hand hit by Fred Young.

After Jackson's fumble, it took Indianapolis five plays to score — all on runs by Dickerson, and his one-yard dive put the Colts ahead 21-0 with 16 seconds left in the first quarter.

Bissucci kicked a 31-yard field goal three plays after Elway's fumble, and it took only one play for the Colts to score again after consecutive sacks of Elway forced a Denver punt from its

CSI Coaches' Club luncheon is today

TWIN FALLS — The first College of Southern Idaho Coaches' Club luncheon of the current season will be held today at the Canyon Springs Inn. The no-host lunch will be held at noon, at a cost of $6 per person, including tip. All of the CSI coaches will be in attendance and the public is invited.

Bears coach complains of rough play

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Another player intentionally twisted the knee of Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon, Bears coach Mike Ditka said Monday by announcing he would file a report with the National Football League.

"It was illegal, somebody twisted his knee after he was hit," Ditka said.

McMahon suffered the injury in the second half of Sunday's 30-7 loss to New England and could be out from four to six weeks, his doctor said Monday.

McMahon did not suffer any torn cartilage and will not need surgery as previously feared, said team trainer Fred Catto.

Catto said Dr. Clarence Fossier would make another examination Tuesday and that the knee would be treated conservatively.

The linemen who were in on the tackle denied they intentionally injured McMahon.

McClusky picked for state program

BOISE — Twin Falls High School junior David McClusky was recently selected to participate in the Idaho State Olympic Development Program Team for both under 17 and a-half years of age.

The two-day training and selection camp was conducted in Boise under the direction of David Goldstein, the Idaho state coach for the development program. One hundred eight-eight players from through the state participated in the camp.

Nordic association sponsors potluck

HANSEN — The High Desert Nordic Association will sponsor a bonfire and potluck at Magic Mountain on Sunday, Nov. 6.

The club's first event of the ski season will start at 3 p.m. and the ski lodge will be open for refreshments. All cross-country skiers and friends are invited.

The group will also hold its final trail clearing of the year to get cross-country ski trails in the area ready for the season.

The club's regularly scheduled meeting on the second Tuesday of the month will not be held in November because that falls on Election Day.

Further information can be obtained by phoning Blaine Billman at 734-3316.

4 locals qualify for world rodeo finals

EL PASO, Texas — Brian Tubbs of Twin Falls, Mike Johnson and Ron Goicoechea of Richfield and Todd Webb of Wendell have qualified to compete in the 1988 Coors World Finals Rodeo here next week.

More than 700 contestants from the United States, Canada, Mexico and Australia will compete for more than $250,000 in cash awards and prizes.

The event is sanctioned by the North-American Rodeo Commission. It is a professional region rodeo consisting of 26 regional and statewide associations, including the Idaho Cowboys Association and the Eastern Idaho Rodeo Association.

Webb, a calf roping, Goicoechea and Johnson, both bull riders, and Tubbs, a saddle bronc rider will begin competition on Saturday.

own end zone, Dickerson, matching his longest run of the season, raced 41 yards through the middle on the first play for his fourth touchdown.

Denver finally scored on the next series, with passes of 23 yards to Vance Johnson and 35 to Jackson taking the Broncos to the Indianapolis 2.

Elway hit Steve Sewell on the next play for the touchdown.

Rich Karlis added a 27-yard field goal a minute before halftime, but the Colts countered immediately.

Bentley returned the kickoff 40 yards to the 45, then Chandler passed 16 yards to Matt Bouza and 40 yards to Clarence Verdin for the touchdown.

Denver's last two touchdowns came in the final six minutes on passes from backup quarterback Gary Kubiak of seven yards to Johnson and 48 yards to Sewell.

Chandler finished 10-of-13 for 167 yards, while Hopeboon's only completion in two attempts was the 53-yard touchdown.

Harris

Kennedy High School in Seattle — in addition to the other person — Vandals — because he knew the program and coaching staff. Gilbertson described Harris as a "natural talent," but adds that there's room for personal improvement.

"Well, one of the things the guy's (Harris) gonna have to do to become a little bit more 'lough-n' is to get the 'ability' factor," Gilbertson said. "One of the things I've noticed about great running backs is that if you confer to the top back in the conference, then you have to be durable enough to carry it 18, 20 times a game. Game after game after game. You don't get shoulder injuries and you don't get a quad contusion (bruised thigh) a lot of that has to do with your physical condition. He has to get a lot stronger physically. He has to spend a lot more time in the weight room. He has to get a lot stronger and that will offset all (injuries)."

"He (Harris) has all the natural talent. You know, in a way, he has a lot more of this than some other guys," Gilbertson said. "It's whether he wants to spend the time in the weight room between now and the next season and the next after that. To become the kind of runner he's capable of being, I feel the same way about Damon Daniels.

Harris has already shown what he is capable of doing and if his success continues, his abilities will make him into a professional football player. But Harris, business-marketing major, isn't holding his breath for that prospect.

"I would always look for a pro shot," he says, "but if it's not there, that's why I have school to fall back on. If it comes, I'll take the opportunity but if it doesn't, I won't be sad about it."

Harris' attitude is down-to-earth, despite his sudden celebrity. When asked what he might say to a young budding running back from his hometown high school for encouragement, Harris' philosophy was simple: there's more to life than football.

"I'd tell him first of all, to concentrate in school, 'cause school's more important than football. And if he really wants to pursue that football career, he should work hard everyday in practice and try to make himself better."

Words to live by.

Juvenile crime rate concerns Farnworth

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — For Eugene Farnworth, 50, Blaine County senior deputy sheriff, young adults are a major concern of his campaign for sheriff.

Farnworth, a Democrat, said he is concerned about the rising juvenile crime rate in Blaine County. Much of the problem, he says, could be eliminated if the young adults had a place to go that was free of drugs and alcohol.

"We need to sponsor activities in existing facilities that are kid-oriented and directed in an environment free of drugs and alcohol," he said. But eventually, he said, he would like to establish a new gathering place. "A real teen center is my ultimate goal," he said.

At the beginning of his campaign, Farnworth made a commitment he still hopes to keep. He hopes to stand on the doorstep of every constituent in his district to acquaint them with his candidacy. "I'm at 3,000 visits as of today, and my goal of 100 percent is still a possibility," Farnworth said.

In these front porch conversations, Farnworth outlines his program, with the enforcement of the current drug laws his top priority.

Felming would focus on drug problem

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Incumbent Sheriff, Walt Felming, doesn't hesitate when asked his top priority if he's re-elected to his post.

Seventy percent of all crime in this county is drug related, and drugs are my major focus," he said.

Felming, 31, a Republican, said he has helped establish the Blaine County Drug Task Force, a cooperative effort to fight drugs and related crimes in the area. A $40,000 grant to this organization provided assistance, and Felming points to 26 drug arrests since March "as proof-of-the-group's effectiveness."

"We also need to reach the local schools with drug education programs," he said.

Echoing his Democratic opponent Eugene Farnworth, Felming also sees the need for additional manpower. "Despite the communi-

5 Magic Valley residents arrested at demonstration

BOISE (AP) — Sponsors of an anti-abortion demonstration at a Boise abortion facility Monday said they hoped they saved the lives of 10 unborn fetuses scheduled for abortion that day.

Boise police arrested more than a dozen protesters — including five Magic Valley residents — after they blocked entrances to a Boise abortion clinic Monday morning.

The protesters arrived at the Women's Health Care clinic, believed to be one of two facilities in Boise performing abortions, and sat down in entrances.

Dr. J. Edward Hayes, a local spokesman for a pro-life organization, tried to negotiate a compromise, but the protesters would not budge.

Finally, police started arresting the protesters when they refused to move, and would not allow police inside the building to leave. Some of the protesters walked to waiting police cars but others were carried away by officers. Those arrested were handcuffed.

Among them were Cora Lee DeWitt, 45, of Twin Falls; Lisa Ann Schain, 24, of Jerome; Dikara Ann Hodge, 24, also of Jerome; Robert Carlton Cummins, 44, of Hailey; and Nancy Jean Thorpe, 36, of Bellevue.

Dozens of other demonstrators remained outside the clinic for a short time, singing hymns.

Clinic Director Marsha Bittiker declined comment on the demonstration started. But she said it was not unusual for the facility to be picketed, usually by two to four people.

The protesters said the effort was called Idaho Operation Rescue.

The other place where abortions are performed is St. Luke's Regional Medical Center. But the hospital recently adopted a new policy restricting abortions to medical necessity.

Police said most of those arrested were expected to be charged with trespassing.

Twin Falls council awards contract for plant's roof

TWIN FALLS — The City Council, as part of agreements that brought Norco Windows to town earlier this year, has awarded a $394,658 contract to rebuild the window plant's leaking roof.

Modern Roofing & Insulation, Inc. of Pocatello, Idaho underbid other construction companies by $90,000, said City Engineer Gary Young.

The council unanimously approved the bid at a special meeting Monday, after Young recommended they do so with the stipulation that Modern Roofing submit a maintenance agreement and a 15-year written warranty.

Construction could begin within 10 days once the state approves the project, Young said.

After the roof is completed, Modern Roofing will maintain the roof for $5,000 a year for 10 years.

Young said the leaky roof has saturated insulation.

The contract to build the 2.7 acre roof will be paid through an Idaho Community Development Block Grant, Young said. Funding for the project had to go through the city, which contributed only administrative costs.

Norco Windows occupies the former Kelwood Building on Washington Street south of the city, Young said the city's role in the project was part of an inducement to bring the company to Twin Falls.

District judge overturns jury verdict of $164,000 against Port of Hope

COEUR D'ALENE — A $164,000 jury verdict against Port of Hope for using inside information in a Northern Idaho bidding war has been overturned.

First District Judge Gary M. Haman decided Monday to overturn the verdict, said Chuck Hosack, Port of Hope's attorney.

That means the case is over unless Turning Point, a rival substance-abuse center, decides to appeal and wins.

Given Dr. Jackie's pattern, I suspect he will take further actions," Hosack said. "I have no way of knowing. Turning Point and its owner, Milan Jeklic, sued Port of Hope and alleged the Twin Falls-based center used inside information from a former Turning Point employee to undermine the bidding process.

A Coeur d'Alene jury agreed with Turning Point last February, unanimously granting Turning Point's claims and $164,000.

The dispute started in 1985, when Port of Hope decided to bid for a state contract for indigent substance abuse treatment.

Blaine County parents suggest improvements for area schools

HAILEY — Parents of Blaine County students have suggested a number of ways to improve area schools.

About 45 people met last week with school officials to discuss involving parents more in Blaine County schools.

School Board Vice Chairman Bob Werth suggested the group split into two groups, one for secondary schools and one for elementary schools, to discuss the issues.

After about an hour the groups returned and discussed their findings, the primary of which was that parents must become more involved with their children's school activities. Among the suggestions were:

- Developing a countywide program for parents as volunteer help in the classrooms. Senior citizens should be used also.
- Utilizing a Big Brother and Big Sister program.
- Using high school students as tutors for elementary students.
- Utilizing parent-teacher conferences, providing child-care.
- Beginning a peer counseling service for students.
- Organizing group discussions for parents.
- Improving playground facilities at some schools.

Some of these suggestions were taken up by individuals at the gathering. They were asked to contact school board members or the school this week to give an update.

Parents interested in participating in the program should contact the school district office at 788-2296.

4 break-ins no way out weekend in Hansen

HANSEN — Attempted or actual break-ins were reported this week, end at two Hansen businesses and the junior high school and the post office, sheriff's officials said.

The most valuable item taken from any of the sites was a telephone worth $185, said Dan Mort, deputy with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office. Other than that, only soda, candy and loose change were taken.

The places burglarized were Reed Grain and Bean Co., the L.W. Moore warehouse and the junior high school, Mort said. An attempted break-in was reported at the post office.

Sheriff's officials believe the four incidents are connected, Mort said. The break-ins, all reported Monday morning, are still under investigation.

Juvenile crime rate concerns Farnworth

By ROBERT DOYLE Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — For Eugene Farnworth, 50, Blaine County senior deputy sheriff, young adults are a major concern of his campaign for sheriff...

"We need to sponsor activities in existing facilities that are kid-oriented and directed in an environment free of drugs and alcohol," he said.

Felming would focus on drug problem

By ROBERT DOYLE Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Incumbent Sheriff Wayne Felming doesn't hesitate when asked his top priority if he is re-elected in his post.

"Seventy percent of all crime in this county is drug related, and drugs are my major focus," he said.

"We also need to reach the local schools with drug education programs," he said.

gram, with the enforcement of the current drug laws his top priority. Farnworth would also conduct a training program for his deputies, familiarizing them with the entire county while rearranging patrol assignments to provide greater service to outlying areas.

"We have to make those adjustments to give 24-hour coverage," he said. "The area has grown dramatically and two additional deputies are a high priority."

Farnworth is a graduate of Carey High School. He has been a Blaine County deputy since 1977. For 12 years prior he was a radar instructor in the military. He has attended special schools in fingerprinting and homicide and was on the Blaine County Search and Rescue Board of Directors and the High School Rodeo Association Board of Directors.

The Blaine County Sheriff makes $27,800.

ty's rapid growth," the department hasn't grown in eight years," Felming said.

He said the department needs additional training and an upgraded computer system to help in investigations.

Felming said he feels the department has developed a good working relationship with other local law enforcement agencies during his 18 month tenure as sheriff, but feels his focus on apprehending drug offenders has most benefited the community.

5 Magic Valley residents arrested at demonstration

BOISE (AP) — Sponsors of an anti-abortion demonstration at a Boise abortion facility Monday said they hoped they saved the lives of 10 unborn fetuses scheduled for abortion that day.

Boise police arrested more than a dozen protesters — including five Magic Valley residents — after they blocked entrances to a Boise abortion clinic Monday morning.

The protesters arrived at the Women's Health Care clinic, believed to be one of two facilities in Boise performing abortions, and sat down in entrances.

Dr. J. Edward Hayes, a local spokesman for a pro-life organization, tried to negotiate a compromise, but the protesters wouldn't budge.

Finally, police started arresting the protesters when they refused to move, and would not allow police inside the building to leave. Some of the protesters walked to waiting police cars but others were carried away by officers. Those arrested were handcuffed.

Among them were Cora Lee De-tweiler, 49, of Twin Falls; Lisa Ann Sabine, 24, of Jerome; Debra Ann Hahn, 24, also of Jerome; Robert Carlton Guimaraes, 44, of Halley; and Nancy Jean Therpe, 36, of Ballouville.

Dozens of other protesters remained outside the clinic for a short time, singing hymns.

Chronic Director Marsha Bittiker declined comment once the demonstration started. But she said it was not unusual for the facility to be picketed, usually by two to four people.

The protesters said the effort was called Idaho Operation Rescue. The other place where abortions are performed is St. Luke's Regional Medical Center. But the hospital recently adopted a new policy restricting abortions to medical necessity.

Police said most of those arrested were expected to be charged with trespassing.

Twin Falls council awards contract for plant's roof

TWIN FALLS — The City Council, as part of agreements that brought Norco Windows to town earlier this year, has awarded a $394,656 contract to rebuild the window plant's leaking roof.

Modern Roofing & Insulation, Inc. of Pocatello, Idaho underbid other construction companies by $90,000, said City Engineer Gary Young.

The council unanimously approved the bid at a special meeting Monday after Young recommended they do so with the stipulation that Modern Roofing submit a maintenance agreement and a 16-year written warranty.

Construction could begin within 10 days once the state approves the project.

After the roof is completed, Modern Roofing will maintain the roof for $5,000 a year for 10 years.

Young said the leaky roof has saturated the roof.

The contract to build the 2.7 acre roof will be paid through an Idaho Community Development Block Grant, Young said. Funding for the project had to go through the city, which contributed only administrative costs.

Norco Windows occupies the former Kelwood Building on Washington Street south of the city. Young said the city's role in the project was part of an inducement to bring the company to Twin Falls.

District judge overturns jury verdict of $164,000 against Port of Hope

COEUR D'ALENE — A $164,000 jury verdict against Port of Hope for using inside information in a Northern Idaho bidding war has been overturned.

First District Judge Garry M. Haman decided Monday to overturn the verdict, said Chuck Hosack, Port of Hope's attorney.

That means the case is over unless Turning Point, a rival substitute center, decides to appeal and wins.

Turning Point and its owner, Milan Jackle, sued Port of Hope and alleged the Twin Falls-based center used inside information from a former Turning Point employee to undermine the bidding process.

A Cour d'Alene jury agreed with Turning Point last February, unanimously granting Turning Point's claims and $164,000.

The dispute started in 1985, when Port of Hope decided to bid for a state contract for indigent substance abuse treatment.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

To most men, experience is like the stern lights of a ship, which illuminate only the track it has passed. - Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Had today's hand been played in the average game, it's likely that South's butchery would have gone unnoticed. It was actually played in the Epsom Worldwide Tournament held last June. The largest global card game ever played, the Epsom attracted 84,358 players at 2,500 sites in 94 countries. Those who misplayed this hand didn't get away with it - A comprehensive booklet analyzing all deals played was distributed to each contestant at the ceremony. South won his spade ace and cashed dummy's ace and jack of trumps and the club ace. The club jack was led from dummy, but when East ducked, South put up his king. Luckily for him, West couldn't ruff, so South ruffing up a club and made the game, losing one trick in each side suit. The analysis provided after the game criticizes this line of play with good reason. Had West ruffed South's club king, the game would have gone down. South losing a club, a better plan is to allow the club jack to ride. Had it lost, the game would still have been safe (four hearts, four clubs and two aces). In the actual case, the safety play would have produced an overtrick.

Ah soaps: the doom, despair and so on

I first became interested in daytime soap operas when an auto accident laid me up for a while.

There wasn't much to do except cry out in pain and worry about how much they'd jack up my insurance rates, so I started following one soap religiously.

The plot was kind of complicated, but basically it centered on a guy who was seeing his girlfriend's best friend on the side.

The girlfriend's best friend's boyfriend, meanwhile, was a drug dealer who was doing time in prison. Only he was about to be paroled, and because he packed an Uzi and knew about the liaison between his girlfriend and her best friend's boyfriend, anxiety levels were rather high all around.

Plus—I should have mentioned this before—the guy in prison's girlfriend was pregnant. And no one knew exactly who the father was, since she was seeing about the same number of guys as you would find in the crew of the USS Tyconderoga.

There was also an outlaw biker, a

Campaign king for president

MILAN, Ohio (AP) — Now they're touting the king for president.

Two songwriters from this village are promoting the late Elvis Presley, often called the king of rock 'n' roll, for the nation's top political office, maintaining in their lyrics that no one can "rock us" like Elvis.

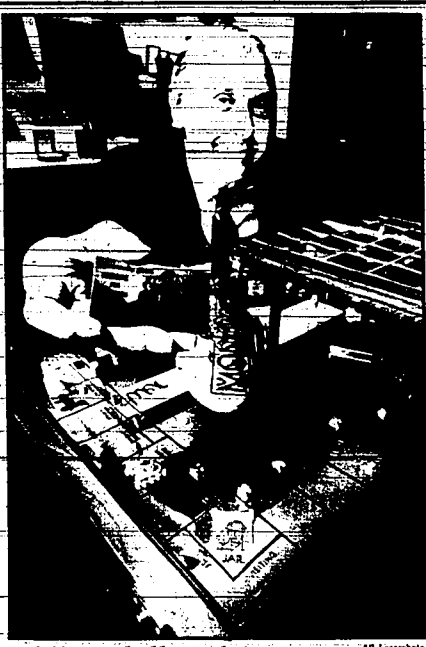

Randel Porter and Mark Hancock have written and recorded the song, even though Presley died in 1977. Of course, some fans maintain he may have staged his death and may be alive.

The professional songwriters recorded the song "Elvis Presley for President" in Cleveland and released it earlier this month.

According to the lyrics: "He ain't no politician. He's only a musician. But I think he ought to run 'Cause Bush could never rock us. Neither could Dukakis."

Porter and Hancock had been writing love songs. But they said they recently decided to release satirical songs involving social and political issues.

Since the timeliness of "Elvis Presley for President" is limited, the pair are also promoting the flip side of the single, "It Came From West Covina," a science-fiction love song.

Fergie's return sets Britain's tabloids in hot pursuit again

By R.C. LONGWORTH
Chicago Tribune

LONDON — Dog days are closing in on Britain's breathless tabloid newspapers: The Duchess of York is coming home soon.

The duchess has been in Australia since Sept. 21 as part of a royal tour with her husband, Prince Andrew. She then stayed on to visit her sister and to spend some time with her husband, a naval officer, while his ship is docked at Australian ports.

The visit itself has been uneventful — a handful of the dry official appearances familiar to Britain's royal family, plus some relatively discreet nights on whatever town the couple was in.

But out of this dusty adventure has come what one British press critic called "some of the most vicious, sneering headlines I can remember."

The duchess, after all, is the former Sarah Ferguson, a free spirit better known to millions of British headline readers as Fergie. The prince is the former Rindy Andy, whose own escapades as a bachelor with a soft-porn movie actress made life more fun for tabloid writers of that era.

Now married for two years, Andy and Fergie are the parents of a 3-month-old daughter, Beatrice, whose headline name is Baby Bea. (Her parents' desire to name her Annabel was vetoed by Queen Elizabeth, aware that this was also the name of a nightclub favored by the Fergie Set.)

When Fergie decided to leave Baby Bea, then 6 weeks old, to fly off to Australia for the royal tour with Andy, the tabloids exploded in scandalized self-righteousness. When she decided to stay on for a vacation as long as Andy's ship was in Australian ports, the journalistic megalomania tripled.

"You're a national disgrace, Fergie," the Daily Express said of "this irresponsibly self-centered woman who has abandoned her daughter like an unwanted doll."

The Sun, whose contribution to journalistic standards is its daily publication of a bare-breasted young woman on page 3, ran a column by a writer named Fiona Macdonald Hull that called Fergie "the Dreadful Duchess," "Frightful Fergie," and "a fat frump."

"What I'd like to know," inquired the Sun columnist, "is why the Palace bothers to make excuses for this awful woman when we know how ghastly she is anyway?"

Most Americans would be startled to find this sort of thing even in suburban areas and the play yard.

neo-Nazi parole officer and a sensitive-yet-troubled Wall Street analyst lurking in the background, although you got the impression that all three were too busy to have helped conceive this baby.

As I said, the plot was kind of deep; you really couldn't follow it without flow charts and maybe a Univac 1600 to track character development.

But I was hooked. Every day I would swallow a couple of painkillers and limp out to the TV for another day of pathos, gloom, and despair.

In fact, I remember thinking: If I can still afford electricity after the insurance settlement, maybe I'll watch some other soaps. Or maybe I'll just watch an orphanage burn down, as the despondency effect would be the same.

I say this because the basic premise of every soap opera is that life is a constant, howling crisis.

Certainly, there is no such thing as a "normal" day. You never see a leading character wake up, pour a bowl of corn flakes, go off happily to work, stop at the cleaners on the way home, and spend the evening watching TV with the kids.

Hell, no one on a soap has the time to do any of this. They're all too busy jumping into bed with their bosses or dying of some horrible disease or getting arrested for an axe murder, or cutting the black sheep of the family out of a lucrative inheritance.

Even a simple run to the grocery store becomes fraught with intrigue and danger.

Either some Marxist sociopath jumps the character from the shadows and precipitates a hostage situation, or the grocer, an ex-green beret with a crack habit, goes berserk and tries to stab him with an overly healthy zucchini.

One piece of advice I would give any young actor aspiring to soap opera fame: You'd better know how to cry on cue. You also have to know how to weep, sob, wail, whine and gnash your teeth, heavy on the whimpering in my opinion.

You know how Scarlett O'Hara was driving everyone crazy with her whining in "Gone with the Wind"? Well, following a soap opera is sort of like being stuck in an elevator with Scarlett for a week.

The point is, people spend a lot of time watching soap operas.

Gorillas sheepish over mating project

The Associated Press

GULF BREEZE, Fla. — Colossus and Muke have stopped fighting, but they haven't started much else, zoo keepers said Sunday on the third day of a breeding project for the two oversized gorillas.

"They pretty much just sit on opposite sides of the yard," said Lori Layfield of The Zoo in this Panhandle city. "They haven't had much contact."

But she said keepers were pleased that there's been no repeat of a first-day fight and that there were signs Colossus, a 600-pound male on his first date, and Muke, a 250-pound female, are at least interested in each other.

"He peeps at her and she peeps at him. If she moves out of his sight, he'll move around until he can see her, and she does the same," Ms. Layfield said.

Overall, keepers who didn't know what to expect are "thrilled" by the gorillas' first weekend together, she said.

Colossus, who has been in the zoo since June, and Muke, (pronounced moo-key) there since March, got their first look at each other Friday.

Colossus, the largest gorilla in U.S. captivity, charged and flipped literally head over heels in an apparent attempt to injure Muke. He came away with a mouthful of fur and a 5-inch gash in his neck delivered by Muke.

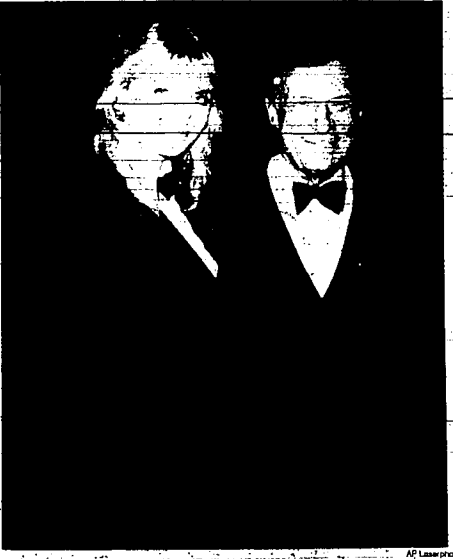

"That was a good introduction," said Pat Quinn, the zoo's president and director. "It was the first time he has touched another gorilla since he was an infant over 20 years ago."

Both gorillas are age 22. Colossus stands at 6 feet, 2 inches. Muke is believed to be one of the larger female gorillas in captivity.

Officials hope the breeding project, which will last indefinitely, will shed new light on how gorillas mate in captivity. Colossus' genes could be important because he is not related to any other zoo gorillas, Quinn said.

The two gorillas live in a new complex that includes air conditioning, sleeping quarters, an observation area and the play yard.

The bunny who finally stole Hef's heart

Playboy Hugh Hefner and fiancée Kimberley Conrad at a fundraiser

By JEANNINE STEIN
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — They're as gooey and mushy as any lovebirds.

"After 10 months, it just gets better," she sighs.

"She's getting more and more beautiful," he coos.

He likes animals. She likes animals. They finish each other's sentences. They like to putter around the house.

It's enough to send a person into insulin shock.

But that's the kind of relationship Hugh Hefner and his fiancée, Kimberley Conrad, have. The 25-year-old Canadian Miss January got the 62-year-old founder of the Playboy empire to actually utter the "m" word.

The man who elevated bachelorhood to a state near nirvana says that he has found "the one" and is ready to settle down.

"When? Next year. Have they set a date?" "Well, we're not talking about it. It'll be sometime next year," says Hefner.

"We can't let the date be known yet," adds Conrad.

They sit on a worn sofa in the library of the Playboy Mansion West, in the posh neighborhood of Holmby Hills, close enough so he can rub her thigh and she can rest his shoulder.

They have just finished posing for a photograph next to the wishing well where Hefner popped the question last July during a stroll on the property. The picture-taking over with, they quickly revert from street clothes back to their natural state: he in teal silk pajamas and a paisley robe, she in white shorts and a black sweat shirt decorated with the bunny logo. Conrad is half-obscured by Hefner whenever he leans forward, set to go on a rambling tangent while sipping a Diet Pepsi. Occasionally her blood head bobs up and she stares cautiously with tremendous blue eyes, as if she wants to trust you, but not sure if she should.

"I knew I was going to propose that night," Hefner recalls, "but I didn't have the notion as to where. As we came out of the game house, the wishing well was there, and I just took her by the hand and said, 'Take a little walk with me.' I think I simply said, 'Will you marry me?'"

"We had talked around and about marriage together and with friends over the last several weeks," he explains. "And at one point she said to me, 'I don't want to hear any more about marriage...'"

"I said, 'I can't give you an answer unless you give me the question,'" says Conrad, mocking her own exasperation.

"And then I said to Kimberly, 'Do you remember the last time that we stood by this wishing well? And she said, 'This is what I wished. And I said, 'This is what I wished, too.'"

He lets out a high-pitched giggle and squeezes her hand.

"I wished that we would be together forever, not necessarily the marriage thing," says Conrad, "because I didn't believe that Hef would get married. But you know what's funny? Whether or not we would get married, I just knew in my heart that we would be together forever. And I wanted to spend my life with

Surfer escapes shark by a leg

CANNON BEACH, Ore. (AP) — A 21-year-old surfer said Monday he had to pull his leg out of a great white shark's mouth when he was attacked about 30 yards offshore.

Wyndham Kapan of Cannon Beach was resting at home Monday after receiving 21 stitches in his right knee at Seaside General Hospital, said his mother, Jan Kapan.

"He's very lucky he didn't lose the leg," his mother said, adding the shark "had his leg up to the knee" but let go.

Before the attack, there had been at least three sightings of great white sharks off the Oregon Coast in the past six weeks.

Last Thursday, a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter crew on a routine training flight spotted a great white shark, estimated to be about 10 feet long, close to shore off the Yaquina Bay jetty. The crew used flashing lights and a bullhorn to warn two surfers they were in danger.

Kapan said he did not see the shark before it attacked him. He estimated the shark's length at 8 to 10 feet.

Great white sharks usually are seen off the coast between August and December, said Bruce Mate, a marine mammalogist with the Hatfield Marine Science Center in Newport. The animals are drawn to areas where there is a large population of seals and sea lions, their favorite prey.

permarket scandal sheets. But it is daily fare for part of Britain's press, in a nation that regards royals watching as a leading spectator sport.

Of London's 11 major daily newspapers, five are class publications — including the Times, the Financial Times and the Independent — devoted to straightforward and sometimes first-rate news coverage and commentary.

The other six — including the Sun, Mirror, Express and Mail — are the "mass" papers, penny-dreadful for whom no headline is too big, no innuendo, too snide and no fact-worth checking.

For these papers, the domestic life of the royal family is catnip. The suggestion that a royal mother might be neglecting her child is guaranteed to generate columns of journalistic umbrage, aimed squarely at a readership of Ordinary British mums pushing their prams through the nation's parks and shopping malls.

For a while, their main target was Princess Diana, Prince Charles' wife.

time with tears in their eyes on the soaps.

I don't know whether they hang around the set watching old footage of the Bhopal disaster or Baby Jessica being rescued from that Texas well, but these people can cry up a storm once they put their mind to it.

Another thing I've noticed about soaps: No one ever talks to another person face to face. They always talk to the other person's back.

I thought a soap the other day where one of the leading characters was looking out a window and whining about how depressed she was because her lover was about to have a sex-change operation.

And I thought: "Who's she talking to, the fire escape?"

But it ends up she was talking to another person, who also had her back turned. It was beautiful. No wonder they couldn't hear each other.

I'm not saying it has to be like "The McLaughlin Group," where you're right in the other person's face. But, please, at least occasionally glance at the person you're talking to.

Not that it really matters to me, as I'm trying to keep my car on the road now.

Kevin Cowherd writes for the Baltimore Evening Sun.

WORKING FOR RURAL IDAHO

Congressman Stallings is recognized as a leading advocate for family farms and western rural values.

- As a member of the House Agriculture Committee Richard Stallings has used his leadership position to:
  - introduce or co-sponsor twenty pieces of major agricultural legislation which have become law
  - play an influential role in developing the Farm Credit Act, including an amendment authored by him to create a secondary market for agriculture real estate
  - assist hundreds of individual farmers in working out their credit problems
  - participate in the development of drought legislation for livestock and crop producers
  - defend the multiple use concept for public lands
- fight to save the current U.S. sugar program
- sponsor hearings, town meetings, and seminars on farm issues, including alternative crops
- visit farmers and ranchers to see and hear first hand about their specific needs
- stand at the forefront of tax reform for agriculture; to repeal the diesel tax and the "heifer" tax; and to restore income averaging for farmers
- advance the development of ethanol and other alternative markets for agricultural products

Oakland ice cream is sweeter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Tom Bradley, digging into some of the ice cream he won in a World Series baseball bet with Oakland Mayor and Lionel Wilson savored the victory, declaring "How sweet it is!"

Flanked by two ice cream carts and standing before a wall-length banner boasting "World Champion Dodgers," Bradley spooned a bite of vanilla ice cream into the mouth of Dodger executive Tommy. The Hawk Hawkins.

"Today I partake in the ultimate ice cream. Here's to 1989," Hawkins said during a City Hall victory party Friday.

Bradley made the bet with Wilson Oct. 12, the day Orel Hershiser pitched a shutout, leading the Los Angeles team to a 6-0 National League pennant-clinching win over the New York Mets.

If the Dodgers lost the series to the Oakland Athletics, the American League champs, Bradley said he would send Wilson a crate of Southern California oranges. But if the Dodgers won, Wilson said he'd deliver a crate of Oakland-made Dreyer's ice cream to City Hall.

A sad good-bye

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who keeps a 700-pound pig in the front yard of her inner-city home faces up to a $200-a-day fine if her pet porker isn't moved to the country. City officials say they'll enforce an ordinance against Victoria Herberta, who has kept pigs at her home since 1984.

Herberta, who calls her pet pig Jeffrey Jerome, has a Dec. 8 court appearance after animal control officers delivered a citation to her this week.

"He's not just any pig," she says. "His mother saved a human life and look how I'm being rewarded."

Robert Armstrong, head of the city's animal control office, "But we don't have to live next door to a pig."

And the gold goes to...Farmer Chang

Knigh-Riddor Service

BEIJING — Some of the fastest farmers on Earth are in town this week for the First Peasant Olympics, one of those only-in-China events that tests the limits of reality.

The official mascot of the Games is a water buffalo. His name, roughly translated, is "Yellow Whiskers." Winners — there are six in each event for some reason — get gold, silver, bronze, and bronze and bronze medals that are really made out of steel.

Broken glass dosage vials can be seen on the ground, but there are no steroids at these meets, as proved the case at the Seoul Olympics. Instead, the athletes power up on ginseng and royal jelly extract.

There are no official Peasant Olympics souvenirs, and the gift shop at the newly renovated Altar of Agricultural Progress Stadium on the south side of town was selling blankets, enamelled mugs, cigarettes and high-proof "bai ju," a potent, sorghum-based liquor: necessities, no frumpies.

Tickets are plentiful. Response to the games seems to be well muted. Although a crowd of 30,000 showed up for the opening ceremonies last Sunday and the games were lunched by Premier Li Peng, things have become quieter in the days since then. At the track and field finals Wednesday, there were almost more competitors than spectators: 200 onlookers at most, the merest sprinkle of flesh in a huge ellipse of empty seats. A dusty, blustery north wind was screaming through the stadium, knocking over judging tables, snatching hats, flapping banner advertisements for Ou Qi Toothbrushes, Li Sheng Sporting Goods and Heavenly Happiness Plastic Ware. Chinese audiences tend to be restrained. This one was catatonic, with the exception of some wild southerners from Yunnan province, led by Mr. Hua Eryu.

"I'm just one of the 'Old Hundred Names,'" said Hua, using the Chinese expression for "common people." "This is my first trip to Beijing. Beautiful place. I came just for the Olympics. It will cost me 1,200 yuan (about $225) but we're all rich in China now, haven't you heard?" His friends hooted happily.

Hua had come to cheer a local boy, Mu Shijun, in the 10,000-meter race and he was doing it in Naxi dialect, one of the most obscure-minority languages in China.

"Goh-zuh, goh-zuh, goh-zuh! Shuh-ka-mer! Shuh-ka-mer!" (Hurry up! Do your best!) Hua shouted.

Rumer Mu looked it him in amazement. After all, how many racers get rooted for in Naxi? Mu lost anyway. A farmer from Shandong province beat him.

"The purpose of these games is to show the fine development of rural conditions in China," said Wang Junsheng, vice chairman of the China Football Association and one of the organizers of the games.

Today the Chinese peasant no longer has to struggle to feed himself. His life is greatly improved. He can make enough to live on and still have something left over for spiritual and physical development.

Because four of five Chinese are either farmers or make their living directly off the land, the Peasant Olympics is intended to show that most of China has grown new muscle between its skin and bones.

him. "I still don't believe it," she says, blinking her eyes. "No, I believe it. It's just too good to be true 'cause we're so happy together."

Their bliss is obvious to friends, including director Richard Brooks, who says that, pre-engagement, he noticed an increased intensity on the part of Hef's romanticism. And here's a man who created a kind of new life for gentlemen with Playboy, and wouldn't it be interesting if people took up his new frontier: Why not get married and make your wife your playmate?

For Hefner, it's a drastic change. He has made no secret of his disdain for matrimony since his 1949 marriage to Mildred Williams, which produced a daughter, Christie, and a son, David.

"Marriage is the death of hope," he is often quoted as saying, echoing a Woody Allen line. Instead of marriage, there was a succession of women and relationships with playmates that lasted years: Sondra Theodore, Barbi Benton, Shannon Tweed. All now have children, are pregnant, or both.

His engagement comes as Hefner gracefully slips into his "September years," three years after a stroke and shortly before he officially turns over control of Playboy Enterprises to the 35-year-old Christie, who will most likely be elected chairman and CEO, succeeding her father.

Hef continues to lord over the magazine and the social doings at the Tudor-style mansion with its heavy, masculine furnishings, immaculately manicured lawns and menagerie of exotic birds and primates.

Ho's also working on his autobiography.

Conrad and Hefner met when she was staying at the mansion while shooting her Miss January 1988 centerfold layout last summer. They talked but didn't date at first.

The timing of her arrival was right; two weeks earlier, Hefner and former centerfold Carrie Leigh had called it quits. According to Hefner, that infamous relationship was all ready in a downward spiral, culminating in Leigh's $35 million palmo-ny suit, followed by Hefner's countersuit, followed by a slander suit filed by Leigh and attorney Marvin Mitchelson. All suits were eventually dropped.

When Leigh was finally out of the picture, Hefner pursued Conrad, unsuccessfully at first. She dodged his invitations to movie nights and kept a girlfriend close by so he wouldn't find her alone.

"In contrast to what a lot of people might assume, I'm rather shy," says Hefner, the man of a thousand bunnies. "In other words, if I don't get encouragement ... I don't come on to the ladies because I've always found it very tasteless."

Eventually he caught up with her. "I said, 'Would you like to spend some time with me?' And she said, 'Well, I don't really know you.' And he said, 'How are you going to get to know me if you don't spend some time with me?'"

Conrad and Hefner spent the next three hours together "just yakking," she says.

Hearing IT ALL
by Jack Warberg

WHAT'S ALL THE NOISE?
Lately, hearing experts have been drawing our attention to the fact that exposure to loud noise can lead to hearing loss. One accepted noise-exposure limit, set by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), calls for a maximum of 10 decibels of sound over an eight-hour period. This is equal to roughly the sound of a loud shout over the extended 8-hour period. Of course, as the noise level rises, the ear can only handle "cups" with "it" for increasingly shorter periods. From a practical standpoint, however, how does one know when one is exposed to too much noise? In general, if a person cannot converse with another person within three feet without having to yell, an unhealthy amount of noise is being received. Prolonged exposure can harm hearing.

If you spend time in a noisy environment, consider wearing ear protection. We can advise you as to which type will be most effective. ## Mother was wrong to abandon child

DEAR ABBY: As I was leaving the second floor of a major department store yesterday, I saw a little boy around 3 or 4 years old screaming hysterically as he ran blindly and all alone across the floor and onto the escalator right behind me.

Halfway down the escalator, he was still alone and screaming. His little face was contorted and purple. That was bad enough, but a woman ahead of me — all the way down at the bottom of the escalator — turned around and yelled: "No, I don't want you! You're a bad boy!"

Abby, I am a mother, too, and I can't begin to describe how much I hurt for that boy. I could never dream of pretending, even for a second, to abandon a child. I might have given him a tongue lashing, or threatened to spank him, but never would I say, "I don't want you," and I surely would never have taken my eyes off that kid in a large department store, never mind turning my back and leaving him!

Later I was sorry I didn't give that

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

woman a royal blasting. What would you have done?

— HUMAN, TOO, IN BOSTON

DEAR HUMAN: I would not have given her a royal blasting — that would serve only to embarrass and humiliate her, and she'd probably take it out on the child when she got him home.

I would have approached her as inconspicuously as possible and quietly told her that I knew she was upset ("I'm a mother, too, and I know how you feel..."), then suggested that she get some kind of counseling to help her deal with the difficult job of parenting.

Of course, you would risk being told in no uncertain terms to mind your own business. But it would be to your own to pay if it would cause an out-of-control mother to seek the help she needs.

DEAR ABBY: A white back someone wrote to you complaining because she got too much attention while shopping in a department store. (She said she wanted to just "look" without having a salesperson pounce on her and stick to her like glue.)

Abby, what planet does this person live on? The last time a salesperson stuck to me like glue was 20 years ago. If I'm lucky enough to find someone to wait on me, I stick to her (or him) like glue!

Last winter I was looking for a flannel shirt, and when I asked the salesperson if she had any she looked at me like I was crazy. Then she asked me what "flannel" was!

Last month, my favorite department store eliminated two cashiers' counters, and there was one woman frantically trying to help the line of customers waiting for her.

So, dear "Too Much Attention," the next time a salesperson sticks to you like glue, give 'em a big kiss for me and count your blessings.

— MARGARET MORRISON,
LOS ANGELES

DEAR MARGARET: I'm glad you wrote in response to that letter. I suggested that the salesperson approach the customer who appeared to be looking-and-say, "Take your time, and if you find something you want, let me know — my name is Maggie."

Well, management in retail instruct their salespeople never to turn their backs on a customer who appears interested in any piece of merchandise he or she can touch. The millions of dollars worth of merchandise shoplifters steal would blow your mind!

— And who are the shoplifters? The last ones you'd suspect. A young mother with a child in a stroller and another in her arms, or a well-dressed, middle-aged woman wearing a full coat and carrying an oversized purse or shopping bag.

"HJR-3 is one of the worst proposals to come before the people of Idaho in my lifetime. It is an open door to high stakes casino gambling across the state and on Idaho's Indian reservations."
