Bush resumes attack; Dukakis claims a surge

By The Associated Press

George Bush brandished a newspaper headline calling the Massachusetts budget a "mess" on Friday as he returned to the attack in the race for the White House.

Underdog Michael Dukakis proclaimed his Republican rival was "slipping and we're surging" into the homestretch.

There was evidence the hard-charging Democrat might be right. CBS said its latest poll showed the Republican vice president with a lead of seven points nationally, down from 12 only three days earlier.

The new poll indicated as much as 24 percent of voters may not have finally decided, CBS said.

Both campaigns were pouring a fortune into network advertising campaigns over the weekend — $1.3 million was the announced figure for Bush and $375,000 for Dukakis — not to mention additional thousands on both sides for commercials targeted to battleground states.

Bush not only criticized Dukakis. In an interview with The Associated Press, he assailed a longtime associate's public relations firm for trying to capitalize on ties with him.

"I feel strongly about ethics in government," he said.

Dukakis feigned disbelief that Bush had lately begun "talking audiences" he was on their side — the very line that has fueled the gains for the Democrat in some states.

"Who's he kidding?" said Dukakis.

The two men had five-minute back-to-back interviews on ABC's "World News Tonight," and both were asked about the nastiness that has pervaded their race. Bush said his own campaign has been "hardhitting but it's been fair and it's been accurate." He said Dukakis has run his full share of negative commercials, as well.

Dukakis countered that Bush was attacking him to "divert attention from a failed record on the war against drugs; from the kind of sleaze and corruption we've seen in Washington."

Races for 33 Senate seats, a full 435-member House and a dozen governorships were in their final days, as well. Best prospects appeared to be for continued Democratic control of both houses of Congress, with only a handful of incumbents of either party in serious political jeopardy.

CBS said its survey showed Bush leading 51-44 among probable voters polled Tuesday through Thursday, with a margin of error of three percentage points. The margin had been 53-41 in a survey taken during the three days ending Monday.

A survey taken for The Associated Press and Charleston Daily Mail gave Dukakis a 15-point bulge in traditionally Democratic West Virginia, a large gain for him since a survey in mid-October. ABC said its overnight survey of battleground state Pennsylvania gave Bush a three-point edge.

The physical strain was beginning to show

Throng of shoppers browse the booths at the Harvest Time Festival at the College of Southern Idaho's Expo Center Friday. Under the sounds of Christmas music, shoppers are able to buy anything from brownies to pot-pourris at this year's market-of-hand-made items from around the Northwest. The eighth annual event, sponsored by Delta-Epsilon-Chi Mid-Management Association of CSI, continues today and Sunday.

Nation's jobless rate matches 14-year low at 5.3%

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment fell to 5.3 percent in October — matching a 14-year low — the government said Friday, as employers added 325,000 new jobs and floored the accelerator on an economy that had been slowed by the summer drought.

In its last major economic report before Tuesday's presidential election, the Labor Department said the 0.1 percentage point drop from September's 5.4 percent jobless rate was accompanied by 99,000 new manufacturing jobs, the biggest monthly increase in that employment category since February 1984.

Local rate falls — B1

But Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, cautioned that the October pickup in factory employment "may be somewhat overstated" because of a seasonally adjusted increase of 25,000 jobs in canneries and other food processing plants.

Factory jobs had declined by 45,000 in August and September.

The Labor Department said there were fewer fall cutbacks than usual in food industry employment. Following light summer hiring due to the drought.

But even discounting all of the seasonal gain there, payroll growth in October returned to the 300,000 monthly rate it had averaged in 1986, 1987 and the first seven months of this year after falling to 240,000 new jobs monthly in August and September.

The 5.3 percent jobless rate in October matched June's rate as the lowest since May 1974.

Computers back on after 'virus' epidemic

By The Associated Press

Universities and research centers turned computers back on Friday after sweeping out a "virus" epidemic that infected machines across the country, a "royal nuisance" that slowed research but apparently caused no damage.

"Everything seems calm this morning," said Bob Logan, systems manager at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. "It's just a lot of aggravation right now. We want to look and make sure that besides doing what it (the virus) did it didn't leave some little time bomb that's going to go off."

The virus, a sort of rogue program that reproduced in computers and apparently instructed them to send copies of itself to other machines through a research network, ARPANET, slowed computers and used up memory space. But most operators said the biggest problem was the time wasted while eliminating it.

About 1,000 hours of staff time was spent cleaning up some 200 computers at the University of Colorado, said public relations director Pauline Coker.

"There was no real damage. The program is not the big deal — the big deal is that it happened," said Hans Werner Braun, chief programmer for the University of Michigan.

The New York Times reported Friday that an anonymous caller to the newspaper claimed that a graduate student had created the virus as a harmless experiment and became terrified of the consequences when it got out of hand.

Memories of Idaho gambling led to big anti-lottery donation

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ted Burgess, a troubleshooter for Idaho Power Co., wants so badly to get a lottery out of Idaho that he donated $1,185 to the anti-lottery group Consider.

"I remember when we had gambling here," he said. "I saw things it did. People didn't get food put onto the table, including my father. Slot machines were common here in the 1930s and '40s before the Idaho Supreme Court declared them unconstitutional."

Burgess contributed the largest sum to the anti-lottery group Consider of one individual in the Magic Valley, but he had plenty of company. Hundreds of Magic Valley residents were among the more than 10,000 people contributing to Consider.

The group had hit $483,696 by Oct.

Campaign finances — B1

24, when it filed its last financial disclosure report before the Nov. 8 election.

The average contribution was $68.89, but many were far more. Consider spokesman Randy Furness said organizers in the Magic Valley had proposed approaching Cactus Pete's, the largest border casino catering to Idaho customers, but they decided not to accept any money from gambling interests. None was offered, anyway.

However, Cactus Pete's financial vice president, Ken Edmunds, gave $200.

"It was a personal thing, not related to Cactus Pete's," he said. "I don't condone gambling or the lottery." His objection to the lottery stems from religious beliefs, he said.

Several churches donated to the lottery. The Episcopal Church gave $1,000 statewide; and the Reformed Church of Twin Falls gave $600.

The LDS church gave no money as an institution, but many of its members donated.

Former LDS State President David Carter of Kimberly donated $500. From his counseling work, he has found that the people who gamble may be those least likely to afford it, he said.

But his beliefs go beyond that. A lottery would be a financial mistake, he said. Tax dollars would be lost as grocery money goes to lottery sales, and the operating expenses of the lottery would be considerable, he said.

The officers of Consider dwarf those of the pro-lottery groups.

Idahoans for the Lottery received a $2,000 donation from SynTech International Inc., a Nevada gaming com-

Times-News increasing price

Effective Sunday, The weekly price of The Times-News by carrier or motor route will be $2.25 a week. The increase, from $2.00 a week, is the first in two years.

Times-News Publisher William E. Howard said the increase was due to sharply higher costs of newsprint, which have jumped 25 percent in the same period.

The increase still leaves the weekly cost of seven-day home delivery below that of larger newspapers in the region.

Boy may face charges in shooting

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who allegedly shot a bus driver in the head for trying to take him back to school probably won't face criminal charges, an attorney said Friday.

Instead, if the boy is judged to be delinquent at a civil trial he could become a ward of the Texas Youth Commission, which oversees punishment of juveniles, until he is 21, said Roger Fry, an assistant district attorney.

The boy will remain in the Jefferson County Detention Center for at least 10 days, State District Judge Gary Sanderson ruled.

Meanwhile, Russell Jean Hampton, 40, remained in critical condition in a Port Arthur hospital with a gunshot wound to the head.

Rights leader quits TV bowling

NEW YORK (AP) — A free-for-all with white supremacists that left talk show host Geraldo Rivera with a broken nose will be civil rights leader Roy Innis' last television brawl, Innis said Friday.

"Let me say that I, in relation to my wife, I have retired from fighting on television," Innis said on the WWOR-TV program, "People Are Talking."

The latest episode — the second time a television interview involving Innis turned violent — occurred Thursday during the taping of Rivera's talk show.

Racist remarks prompted Innis, chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, to grab a young white supremacist by the neck; other supremacists stormed the stage, and chairs and punches were thrown.

Earlier this year, Innis had a run-in with New York activist the Rev. Al Sharpton, shoving him to the floor on the Morton Downey Show.

Judge rules against conservationists

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major victory for the Reagan administration, a federal judge ruled Friday that a conservation organization was not entitled to challenge the removal of use restrictions on federal land in the West.

U.S. District Judge John Pratt decided that the National Wildlife Federation had not shown enough injury to members to give it standing to sue.

The Bureau of Land Management, an arm of the Interior Department, in 1981 began reviewing restrictions — called "classifications or withdrawals" — that govern almost all the 174 million acres it administers in the 17 western states of the lower 48.

Classifications and withdrawals generally amount to the same thing, they can ban a single activity on a federal parcel, such as mining, may keep the parcel in question from being sold or exchanged; or may impose general restrictions on use.

The federation filed suit in 1985, alleging among other things that the department was violating federal law by proceeding without recommendations to Congress and the president, without preparation of plans to guide its actions and without public involvement.

"Its members' recreational use of the land would be irreparably injured" if the government were allowed to proceed, the federation said.

Pratt subsequently granted an injunction that froze all restrictions pending further consideration of the case. On Friday, he dissolved that injunction and dismissed the case.

Hostage-holders rail against U.S.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The group holding Terry Anderson captive said Friday the Reagan administration is blocking the release of hostages by ignoring its message.

A statement delivered to a Western news agency said Washington would not take "realistic steps" to end the ordeal of the 14 foreigners held-hostage in Lebanon, nine of whom are Americans. It said President Reagan was like "the ostrich that hides his head in the sand so that the hunter will not see her."

The typewritten statement in Arabic signed by Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group loyal to Iran, was in a sealed envelope with a blurry instant photograph of Anderson, the longest-held captive.

It was the 14th photograph released of Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, since his abduction March 16, 1985. He is shown with a mustache, wearing glasses and a white T-shirt.

Cuellar says Iran-Iraq talks 'useful'

GENEVA (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar on Friday met separately with the foreign ministers of Iran and Iraq for U.N.-mediated peace talks and said they were "extremely useful discussions."

The separate meetings follow a face-to-face session of technical experts of both countries Thursday which he praised for doing "some excellent work in terms of clarification" of details.

Perez de Cuellar did not elaborate on his talks with Iran's Ali Akbar Velayati and Iraq's Tariq Aziz, nor on the work of the experts.

"He said he planned to return to New York on Monday." He said he planned to return to New York on Monday.

on the presidential marathons. Dukakis sipped honey-sweetened tea and sucked on lozenges to protect what was left of his voice. The treatment appeared to work, and Dukakis was loud and clear when he addressed a rally after Chicago's traditional Democratic torchlight parade.

In 1960, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson went into that weekend down eight points in the polls," he told an audience that went to his feet more than a dozen times. "We're doing better than that. You can feel that surge and you can feel that excitement."

Joining Dukakis was his wife, Kitty, who was hospitalized earlier this week with a viral infection.

Aides were discussing having Dukakis campaign all day Monday in California, and then flying into Iowa in the middle of the night. After that — perhaps even an election morning appearance in Ohio before going home to Boston.

Bush figured to end up at Houston for a rally on Monday, then make an election-morning appearance in Texas before awaiting the results.

The vice president, in an interview on Air Force Two between campaign stops, suggested that after so long on the road, he'd rather be home, maybe playing horseshoes. "You know we've been doing this a long time," he said in an understatement.

In addition to their weekend advertising plan, each candidate has paid nearly $1 million to buy a half-hour slot on all three networks on Election Eve. Dukakis will make his final appeal at 6 p.m. MST followed by Bush at 6:30 p.m.

Dukakis was making his way from New York to Kentucky and then to Illinois for one of the sacred rites of Democratic politics, a torchlight parade through Chicago.

"I smell victory in the air," he told a rainy rally in Kentucky.

The Massachusetts governor brushed aside Bush and the newspaper headline, telling reporters, "We don't have a deficit. What we have is 10 balanced budgets in a row."

In a made-for-television gesture, he held aloft a copy of Wednesday's Boston Herald, with a front-page headline describing the Massachusetts budget situation: "What a Mess! He accused Dukakis of 'borrowing like mad' and 'kiting checks.'" izations in conformance with laws passed by the Legislature, Thomas claimed that would permit lawmakers to significantly restrict gambling activity.

This amendment has been called a lottery amendment, which it is not, Thomas said. "It is a gambling amendment."

Elsewhere in Idaho politics, Rep. Richard Stallings, the Democratic incumbent in the 2nd Congressional District, came in for some last-minute campaign attention from the National Right to Work Committee.

President Reed Larson blasted Stallings for what he called the incumbent's pro-labor voting record and failure to support right-to-work. Stallings, meanwhile, spent Friday greeting supporters in Rexburg and Idaho Falls at the end of a two-week bus tour designed to take him to all 26 counties in the final days of the campaign.

Larson appeared at a news conference at Boise with Republican Dane Watkins, who is running an underdog campaign for the seat.

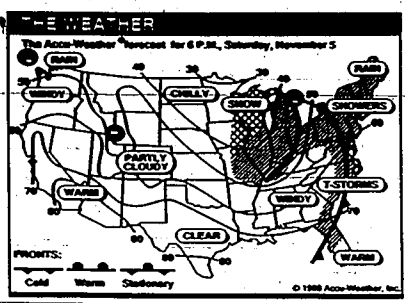

"Idaho voters would be doing both themselves and the country a great service by sending him (Watkins) to Congress to continue his fight for freedom," said Larson.

"Politics of desperation," was the response from Salbo Gasser, Stallings campaign manager.

Reagan signs bill banning genocide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's signature Friday on legislation giving a treaty banning genocide the force of American law marks the end of a 40-year struggle and represents the final feather in the political cap of retiring Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Proxmire delivered more than 3,300 daily speeches over 19 years before the Senate voted on Feb. 11, 1986 to ratify the treaty. That act turned back four decades of opposition by conservatives who contended it would undermine rights of Americans under the Constitution and infringe U.S. sovereignty.

But it took another two-year struggle to win congressional passage of the legislation needed to implement the treaty by making genocide — the deliberate destruction of a specific population — punishable under U.S. law and setting stern penalties for violators.

The Senate version of the genocide implementation bill is officially called "The Proxmire Act" to honor the long crusade of the senator who is closing out a 31-year Senate career.

The treaty was drafted after World War II as a response to the Nazi Holocaust that killed millions of Europe's Jews and other ethnic minorities. It was approved by the United Nations at the end of 1948 and submitted to the Senate early the next year by President Truman.

By the time the Senate acted two years ago, 95 other nations had ratified the treaty. The Soviet Union frequently embarrassed American diplomats by claiming that the U.S. failure to ratify the pact as evidence the United States lacked a complete commitment to human rights.

Reagan signed the genocide bill at a ceremony at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, saying he was delighted to fulfill the promise made by Harry Truman to all the peoples of the world — and especially the Jewish people.

President Reagan signs a bill calling genocide a crime

The president recalled the Nazi death camps that claimed millions of Jews, Slavs, Gypsies and others and said similar atrocities have since taken place in Cambodia, the Ukraine and Ethiopia.

"These events — only renew our rage and righteous fury and make this moment all the more significant for me and all Americans," Reagan said.

Proxmire was not present at the signing ceremony. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he had been invited but was not able to attend.

Addressing the Senate on Oct. 14, shortly before the genocide bill was passed, Proxmire said the treaty was made necessary by the deliberate murder of 6 million Jews.

Marcos says he feels betrayed by American system

HONOLULU (AP) — Deposed 67-year-old Marcos, who remained in a wheelchair during the interview, says he feels betrayed by the American system he once admired and worries more about his health than going to jail.

"I am not afraid to go to jail," Marcos told The Associated Press in an interview at his home Thursday. "I would probably be dead by the time the trial is over. I'm feeling in pain every day."

Mrs. Marcos pleaded innocent to the charges in "New York" on Monday, but her husband's arraignment was delayed pending the report of a government physician who examined him Monday.

Marcos, who seemed tired but alert during the interview, said he would comply with a federal court order requiring him to submit fingerprints, palm prints and handwriting and voice samples to the FBI by Wednesday or face contempt charges.

"I'll take my destiny, whatever that may be, but I'm going to fight for my dignity and my honor," Marcos said in his first meeting with the press since being indicted.

"They've offered me nothing," Marcos said of prosecutors. "For guidance, I turn to God. I pray for the best and expect the worst."

A staunch U.S. ally during his 20 years in power, Marcos said he held no animosity toward President Reagan.

Audit shows Pentagon paid extra for parts

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force logistics center in Georgia paid an estimated $104 million for spare parts that did not meet contract specifications, amounting to 89 percent of its inventory, according to a Pentagon audit.

A draft copy of a Pentagon Inspector General's report concluded the Air Force did not receive the quality parts it paid for.

A spokesman for Air Force Logistics Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, took sharp issue with the draft report, which was obtained from the Pentagon and distributed by the Project on Military Procurement, a private watchdog group in Washington.

"The figure is very misleading," said Air Force spokesman Ken Perrotta. "They tested a sample and made projections," he said, challenging both the methods and the calculations used by the Inspector General's office.

He was unable to offer an alternative estimate of the percentage or value of the spare parts that did not conform to contract specifications. He said that detailed calculations were likely to be included in a report that was being prepared at Air Force headquarters at the Pentagon in response to the draft Inspector General's report.

The center is one of five maintained by the Air Force around the country.

Contractors bill Pentagon for outside consultants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest defense contractors are routinely billing the Pentagon for hundreds of millions of dollars spent on outside consultants, frequently without justifying or explaining the work they perform, a special audit has found.

The Defense Department is itself partly to blame because its procurement regulations are so vague, according to the report released Friday by the Defense Contract Audit Agency.

But the internal business discipline one would expect at a large company for hiring outsiders is, "in most cases, non-existent," the auditors added.

In a review of 12 of the top 100 defense contractors, the auditors labeled as "questionable" claims for $43 million out of the $236.5 million charged to the government over the past year for consultant services.

Photographer jailed in Spain to be transferred to U.S. custody

jailed in Spain on cocaine-trafficking charges that U.S. officials say stemmed from his setup by drug smugglers will be transferred to American custody Monday, Spanish officials said Friday.

Helga Soto, spokeswoman for the Spanish Embassy, said Conan Owen of nearby Annandale, Va., would be released from a Barcelona prison and turned over to U.S. authorities. She could not provide any further details on the release.

Reagan shows disappointment over Soviet troop decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan registered disappointment Friday over a Soviet decision to suspend troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

Administration officials called the move disturbing and accused Moscow of raising tensions in the war-torn country, but they stressed that the Soviets could still meet their commitment to pull out by Feb. 15.

During a political campaign stop in Chicago, the president noted that the Soviets had renewed that pledge even while announcing the suspension in Moscow.

Magazine reports secret space shuttle will carry intelligence-gathering satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The secret space shuttle mission scheduled later this month will carry an intelligence-gathering satellite that will cover 80 percent of the Soviet Union, an industry magazine reported Friday.

When fully deployed, the spacecraft will have a span as large as 150 feet, Aviation Week and Space Technology reported. "It has the characteristics of an imaging radar or optical reconnaissance involving digital imaging, or both."

The radar transmission is designed to penetrate cloud cover and would be valuable in both ocean and land surveillance," the magazine said in its Nov. 7 issue, available Friday.

Because of the military nature of the mission, NASA and the Pentagon have refused to disclose most details about it. NASA processing director Conrad Nagel said the agency was aiming for launch Nov. 28 or 29.

The publication said the shuttle Atlantis and its five-man crew will be launched into an orbit that will cover most of the Soviet Union. At least three of the 27 earlier shuttle missions flew over the same Soviet territory.

The magazine said the satellite will be dropped overhead by an astronaut using the craft's 50-foot robot arm, stowed in the cargo bay. Two astronauts are prepared to take a space walk in case there is trouble deploying the satellite, said sources who asked not to be identified.

Aviation Week said estimates of the cost of the satellite, filled with advanced technology equipment, range as high as $500 million. It said the spacecraft could be retrieved on a later shuttle mission and returned to Earth for improvements.

Letters/Sandy, Peavey race generates reader comment

Peavey has good track record
There are 18 legislative seats in the eight county Magic Valley area and only half of the positions are being contested. All but one of the 18 seats are held by Republicans. That lone exception is Sen. John Peavey of District 22.

Peavey has done an outstanding job of representing the district, the valley and the state. Having been awarded the coveted "most effective legislator" title is proof that he deals with legislative matters in a fair and non-partisan manner. We need his leadership and experience in the Legislature.

He is always willing and able to help anyone who has a problem. The voters in Lincoln, Blaine, Camas and Gooding Counties should give favorable consideration to John Peavey for the State Senate.

Voters in the districts where there are contests should examine the qualifications, other than party affiliation, of the candidates and vote Democratic for a change. We might all benefit from a better balanced legislative body.

ARLYNE KISLING

Hoodwinked by Peavey
I was one of the original people who John Peavey hoodwinked into signing the 1977 complaint to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission which started this whole mess over all of our water. John Peavey told me that Idaho Power had preferred customers who were paying less for their irrigation power than I was and that we were going to put a stop to it.

I'm sure sorry I listened to him. The whole deal came right back in my face. Not only didn't we get the rates changed, but it wound up costing me and everyone else a lot of money.

I have regretted since the day the lawsuit was filed that I was taken in. Peavey just plain got into something that turned into a runaway. He told me that we were going for a rate change, but look what happened.

I know one thing, something like this will not happen again. I'm voting for John Sandy.

Neibaur wishes Sandy luck
Dear John Sandy:
It is my hope that you are elected by the people of District 22 this term.

Our district needs to be more unified in Boise. Water issues were not addressed last session because Senator Peavey changed his tune.

Also Senator Peavey's main thrust for agriculture was an arbitration bill and debt forgiveness. Help is also needed in fair spending and taxation. The priorities of our district do not get the attention needed. I need someone to work with. Good luck.

Peavey wants to help kids
I was interested to hear on the radio that Sen. John Peavey was supported by Kid Pac for his work on behalf of the children of Idaho.

I was impressed that after all the hard work he has put into supporting education and the health and welfare of kids throughout the state, he was at last being recognized for that effort.

I was an abused child and had no where to turn for help. It was especially moving for me several years ago, to see John Peavey lead the fight to help frightened children who were calling the Health Department in alarming numbers. The Appropriation committee refused to spend $250,000 requested by the Department to provide the counselors needed to respond to these cries from all over the state.

For over a week Senator Peavey stood up in Committee and on the floor of the Senate urging his colleagues to correct this budget on behalf of the children who couldn't lobby for themselves. When this legislative negligence became known by the public, letters of outrage poured in. The Appropriations Committee met again and added the money to the Health and Welfare budget.

What if there were no one in Boise willing to speak out? What support would there be for children in trouble? Senator Peavey is a lawmaker who makes things happen for us. I hope you can support him, as I will be doing, on election day.

Peavey didn't act alone
Recent political ads imply that Sen. John Peavey acted alone in his effort to protect the Snake River from new, large diversions in the complaint he filed in 1977.

In fact a number of farmers and business people signed that complaint including myself, John Faulkner. The reason I did this was to protect our grazing lands in the Sailor Creek area from encroachment from desert land entry filings which would have removed lands from grazing and replaced them with expensive, high lift irrigated farms.

This would have diverted enormous amounts of water from the Snake River. Today, many of the early farm ventures undertaken before the complaint was filed are lying vacant.

I signed the complaint in 1977, and I would do it again today.

JOHN FAULKNER

Sandy should complain less
I am not a fan of anyone who complains for the sake of complaining. That goes double for politicians. The "King Complainer" of this election appears to be John Sandy.

He complains repeatedly about the Snake River Basin adjudication only after it has become a fact of life.

Where was John Sandy when ALL the Magic Valley legislators, the governor, attorney general, the Farm Bureau and others developed the adjudication agreement? For all his complaining, I have never heard Mr. Sandy once explain how he would have protected our water rights at all. Then how can he complain about anyone acting to save Idaho's water for Idaho's future?

Complaining sure is easy, but it's no substitute for positive solutions to difficult problems. Shouldn't our leaders lead rather than complain about things after the fact?

I think so. That is why I am voting for Senator John Peavey. His leadership and honesty are well-known. His experience and dedication are well respected. His reputation as a forward thinking and independent legislator is well deserved.

Sandy letters mask reality
Letters to the editor provide members of the general public with an important forum. It is no place for paid political ads, but on Thursday that is what in essence happened.

JOHN SANDY
Challenging in District 22

It is unfortunate that two letters were submitted regarding the copy from John Sandy's paid political ad. How ironic that their theme was "appearances should match reality."

The content of those letters (and the political ads they mimic) equally "mask reality." Contrary to the "appearances" created in these letters, Senator John Peavey is well known for his leadership and support of our farms and businesses.

Respected for his thoughtful independence, Senator Peavey is not a rubber stamp for anyone. He knows no political organization or special interest group has a corner on the market of wisdom. Unbelievably, Mr. Sandy implies such intelligence and independence are wrong.

By those ads and letters, Senator Peavey is criticized for voting against raising the property taxes on your home. I support that vote and do not believe it is anti anything, despite Mr. Sandy's claim.

In fact, it was a responsible vote for the people of Idaho. Through negative campaigning, Mr. Sandy has masked his position on such issues from the general public. Recently, Mr. Sandy pledged to raise the property taxes on your home.

I am voting for Senator Peavey because he is thoughtful, independent and always speaks his mind. He has proven that he looks out for our district with his leadership, dedication and experience. Senator Peavey gets things done. This is in stark contrast to Mr. Sandy.

Snake adjudication necessary

There has been a lot of misrepresentation and confusion over the Snake River adjudication process recently, which may have caused some bitterness on the part of water users forced to refile on their claims. I heard complaints while waiting to file on my water.

If someone does not understand the reasons for this adjudication, they might think it was a lot of expensive baloney or an annoyance at best, to keep something that is already theirs.

Unnecessary baloney? Absolutely not! It is essential to protecting the rights of all of us who count on using Idaho's water whether for home consumption or for agriculture. That's why all Magic Valley legislators supported the measure calling for this re-filing.

The adjudication will determine all water rights on the Snake River by priority date, place of use, type of use, and amount of diversion and consumption. Once the process is complete, the State for the first time will have a thorough inventory of our water.

The need for adjudication is not a political issue. Therefore, it is unfortunate some candidates are now trying to make it a belated campaign issue. In fact, it was a bipartisan agreement, supported by the Governor, Attorney General, Idaho water users, Farm Bureau and many, many others. It was approved by an overwhelming majority of lawmakers.

Our right to keep our water for our own use is threatened by unknown federal claims, potential demands to divert water to other states, and other competing interests known and unknown. The only way for Idaho to defend its water is through an extensive and thorough adjudication of the entire Snake River Basin.

There is no doubt any paper work is always too much paper work. The Idaho Department of Water Resources has tried to expedite domestic and stock well from the adjudication process recognizing the burden it places on those with small claims. However, the federal government refused to cooperate, indicating that without this information the inventory would be incomplete.

Adjudication is key to Idaho's future. Without it, information about competing water claims and the amount of water available for future agricultural development would remain a mystery. With it, existing water users will be assured that their claims are protected and that the people of Idaho will act as the watermaster for the benefit of future generations.

Legalization of marijuana needs clarification

As the wife of a candidate, I hear about everything Bill Chisholm says and does especially if people don't like it or misunderstand it.

I have been hearing from some people about Bill's stand on the legalization of marijuana.

So for those I have not seen and who don't understand... let's talk about drugs.

1. Many people believe that marijuana leads to harder drugs such as cocaine and heroin. Alcohol is much more addictive than marijuana but doesn't get this same labeling. Why? I believe it is because marijuana is illegal. Once a person makes the choice to purchase or indulge in an illegal substance that choice has been made for any other illegal drug. Therefore, it is not the drug itself that leads to dangerous addiction but the fact of it being illegal.

2. Having school children sign anti-drug oaths and bring them along with their parents to the shopping mall does not promote a drug free society; it promotes shopping.

3. Drug testing is a serious violation of our civil rights. You may think that it is no problem because you don't take drugs anyway. Let me run through a few scenarios for you that might help you to see what an infringement it could be.

Let's say that you work for a company and you find out that your immediate supervisor has done something illegal or against company policy and he finds out that you know. Suddenly your name comes up for drug testing and somehow your test comes out positive. What do you do? It's your word against his.

Or, you are a woman and your employer has been engaging in subtle but disturbing sexual harassment. You choose not to play his little game or worse yet threaten to report him. Oh oh it's drug testing time again.

A chemist I know contends, after much research, that the drug tests most affordable to employers are unreliable. Also things you may have eaten can cause a positive test, such as poppy seed cake. Also how many employers when testing a prospective employee will bother with a second more expensive test if the first one comes back positive? You may never know why you did not get the job.

Drug tests test for all kinds of drugs. Your employer will know if you are on anti-depressants, valium or birth control pills.

What about pilots and air traffic controllers you might ask. Reflex tests using computers could and should be used in situations where the public safety is involved.

I don't want a pilot flying me around that is high on pot, hung over from alcohol or coming down with the flu or even who had a fight with his wife and is distracted. It would be far more encompassing than a drug test in its ability to assure air safety. There are other ways to test performance than peeing in bottles.

I recently read an article on addiction. It stated that substance abusers are primarily seeking wholeness. It went on to say that drug addiction may well be a metaphor for a larger affliction pervading our society. Professor of Addiction Studies, Andrew Weir, of the University of Arizona states "We are a drug using culture. The idea of a drug-free society is a fantasy. We have never been drug-free and never intended to be."

He goes on to cite our use of chocolate, caffeine, alcohol, tobacco, prescription and non-prescription medicines, a whole range of socially approved drugs. To stigmatize marijuana and make its users criminals is hypocritical and senseless. It has only been in the fairly recent past that it was made illegal.

We do not have a TV. We have chosen to not pollute our minds with it. I saw an ad in the newspaper the other day for a mini-series that said, "Tonight — A Ruthless Seduction. An unspeakable weapon. An unthinkable cover-up." The problems in our society stem not from marijuana but from a preoccupation with greed, lust and violence.

Prohibition does not work and neither does censorship. I do not demand that they make laws to keep such garbage off of TV even though I believe that it contributes to our social problems which in turn affect all of us. I just make the conscious responsible choice not to watch it. A healthy society makes healthy free choices.

There is much to be concerned about with drug abuse. I know better than most the agony and tragedy of addiction. But we mustn't in our fear and good intentions get carried away and give away our rights to privacy or unreasonably punish some people. This problem deserves scrutiny and action to help those with problems.

Bill Chisholm does not advocate drug abuse or abuse of any kind for that matter. But he does advocate freedom.

What we learn about Bill Chisholm from his answer to the reporter's question (he did not make it a campaign issue) is that we know that he will not give away our civil rights in times of hysteria and that he will not change his principles or lie just to win. We can trust him.

I hope this will help clarify the situation and assist you in making your choice on November 8.

What's his name is Mr. Tom Lancaster, an honest candidate for county commissioner, District 1. The lady from Kimberly must have been listening to a radio talk program a few days ago.

Idaho already has gambling
I don't think the question with the lottery is do we want it, or don't we want it, as we have already voted that we want it.

But I think the question is do we the voters of Idaho want to let these anti-lottery groups who are receiving support money from people out of state who aren't even residents of Idaho tell us what we can have, and what we can't have, or what is good for us, or what isn't good for us.

I for one don't feel that Idaho should be opened up to casino type gambling, but we already have horse racing and betting and if this isn't a form of gambling I would like to know what it is. So what is wrong with having a lottery?

So come on people. Are we the people of Idaho going to let these anti-lottery groups and people from other states who aren't even residents of Idaho tell us what Idaho can have and what it can't have? Come on let's get out and vote.

Twin Falls County deserves to be represented in the Idaho House of Representatives by a person who honestly believes in the message he has brought to the people during this campaign. Alvie has lived and worked in Twin Falls County for most of his adult life, and he recognizes the needs of its people and the values they treasure for a decent quality of life. Alvie has vowed to work for the best interest of the people of Twin Falls County and the State of Idaho, and he is a man of his word.

Gold doesn't know county

Everyone is very concerned at this time with the re-occurring turnover and low wages of our law officers in Jerome County. Some people seem to think a vote for Larry Gold is going to solve this problem. How can one man, who has never served in our county long enough or even lived here for a lengthy period of time, know to understand these problems? Maybe he is just going on certain informers and tidbits here and there to get him along.

Our county already has an officer that has been working for these so-called low wages for quite some time now. He knows what changes need to be made and knows where to start with them.

Darryl Cameron has flowed along with the punches, has listened to his character be insulted and still takes it all in his best behavior. He's always been honest to his word and has been there when anybody needed him... no matter how large or small the problem. He's been from capturing criminals to rescuing cats out of trees. He is sincere and very trustworthy and would be a breath of fresh air as our new county sheriff. It is up to us, as voters, to weigh the facts as to who really understands the needs and problems of this county.

I believe we need someone who can think for himself and if given a chance, Darryl Cameron will, once again, prove his integrity and loyalty to the service of his people.

And East-end people you say that you do not have an East-end deputy patrolling your area anymore? I'm sorry, but you're wrong. Who do you think has been anybody needed him... no matter how large or small the problem. He's been from capturing criminals to rescuing cats out of trees. He is sincere and very trustworthy and would be a breath of fresh air as our new county sheriff. It is up to us, as voters, to weigh the facts as to who really understands the needs and problems of this county.

Let's study qualifications of both Cameron, Gold

I would like to congratulate the two candidates for Sheriff of Jerome County for running a clean and up-beat campaign. However, one facet of the race that I find disturbing is that some people say they will not vote for Larry Gold because he is an "outsider."

Our county is growing rapidly and we have many new people moving into Jerome County contributing not only to the financial growth, but also to our schools, churches, cultural activities and charities.

I would like to encourage all Jerome County residents to set aside the "Good Ole Boy" and "Outsider" theories and study the qualifications and leadership abilities of both candidates and elect a Sheriff that will be able to give our growing county the best protection and service that our tax dollars can buy, not only for now, but also for the future.

Barnes, Ash deserve much closer looks

In reference to your editorial endorsing Lee Barnes as a Legislative representative for Twin Falls county, I must write to tell you that either you are blind to the facts or you are purposely misleading the voters in your circulation area.

Number one: Lee Barnes was not jailed because he lobbied against a law prohibiting "dentistry," he was jailed because he repeatedly broke the law.

By his own admission, he made denures directly for the public for over 25 years. The Idaho Code prohibited anyone without a license to perform any act in or around the mouth, just as the laws prohibit anyone to cut or arrange the hair without a license. M.D.s have to have a license.

Dentists, Pharmacists, Optometrists have to have a license. Barbers and Beauticians have to have a license. All whose work effects change in the human body have to have a license to protect the public from harm.

Barnes broke the law, that is why he went to jail, and you are endorsing someone who has no respect for law and order?

Number two: The law was changed because of an initiative, not because of his lobbying efforts. The facts are he failed miserably every time he went through the legislative process.

The legislators could see that the lab technician was not qualified to work in the mouth any more than the medical technician should be allowed to work on the body and through the legislative debate process denied his efforts to arrange the law for his own self-serving purposes.

So the national organization, the same one that was successful in Oregon the year before and in Montana the following year, went the initiative route (which is the way all outsiders go when they can't force bad law on Idahoans through our Legislature.)

Finally, I hope that the women in Twin Falls county will take offense to your patronizing remarks about Virginia Ash, the sweet little "compassionate individual" and show up in large numbers to vote for honesty and integrity.

In my mind, these two qualities far outweigh "the ability to work against the odds to accomplish a (self-serving) goal." Working on human service projects for the betterment of others is an attribute to be rewarded not put down as you so rudely did in your endorsement.

Vote for Virginia Ash, honesty, integrity, knowledge...but most of all, a truly earned respect!

Mueller not really new to the political arena

I have only known Walt Mueller for approximately seven months, but in this short period, I have learned to respect and admire him. He really is not new to the political arena, just new to seeking public office.

Walt has worked with national level politicians in making them aware of the growing problems for farm credi. He was one of several area farmers who joined together to request protection for farm crops from rights.

He serves as a board member of the National Save the Family Farm Coalition Credit Committee and President of Idaho Rural Council. He has served his community in other ways, such as past member of the Clover School Board; charter member and past president of the Hollister Fire Department; and involved in the administration of his church.

Recently, The Associated Press carried a story where Walt explains how federal policy is forcing Idaho farmers to grow more on less acres which causes massive use of chemicals being incorporated into the soil. He has the vision to realize that if this policy continues it will dramatically affect our groundwater. His environmental concerns go beyond this issue as he realizes the problems facing Idaho at the INEL and the proposed SIS, and the need to develop reasonable policies to preserve Idaho's natural resources.

In addition, Walt understands the needs for quality educational programs, protection and preservation of our water rights, development and growth for all sectors in our economic base, effective strategies which will deal with our drug problems, and vigorous legislation to protect and preserve the family farmer, the farm workers, and the communities they serve.

I want to encourage the voters of Twin Falls County to seriously look at the two candidates in this race for State Senate, and I believe they will draw the same conclusion I have: Walt Mueller is the only candidate who has demonstrated that he has the experience, qualifications, and requirements to genuinely serve us.

After study, Mueller seems best choice

I am new to the Twin Falls County area, so I have been earnestly learning about the candidates running in this year's election.

After studying several written articles and viewing some of the forms, I have decided to vote for Walt Mueller for State Senate.

I have reviewed his stands on the issues and feel I can identify with his positions. I feel his opponent does not have any issues, she basically repeats the same old campaign rhetoric with lack of substance.

Also, after I have heard and read about some of the legislators activities in Boise, I feel it is time for a change in some of the candidates from our area. I believe in a two party system, and I feel we need to have both parties represented to strike a balance.

I certainly urge the electorate to get out and vote for Walt. I feel he will really represent the people of his district.

Stop saying your vote doesn't count for much

Well its that time again and I would like to make one last appeal to the voters of Twin Falls County, and wherever else this paper reaches.

You hear every day someone say, "my vote doesn't count, so why bother?" But, let me ask this, when was the last time you voted? Your vote can't count if you don't use your right to cast it, and vote. I've only been exercising my right for eight years now, and I may not vote right every time, but at least I'm using my right, and I intend to use that right from now on, unless I loose that right.

What I mean by that is, I've been in a position to see more of the details that are going on in the governmental process. Things that the average citizen don't see, and that's only because they don't get out and look. Believe me, if they did some of the things they would see would literally scare them to death.

One of the things I can see is that if you don't start using your votes, you're coming closer and closer to losing that right, a right which was fought hard for by both men and women. It's time we fight back and use those rights.

Express your opinions by voting, not only in the up coming election, but in all elections. Don't give up and let a handful of rich and powerful people rule you and make your decisions for you. Rich or poor, alone we are nothing, but together we stand tall.

ACLU attitudes are reason for moral decay

In an article in the Times-News reviewing the book "Changing American Family and Public Policy," it states the book tries to find the blame for social decay. They missed the real reason for the problems. We are drifting away from the teachings of God and the Bible.

Lately a lot has been said about the American Civil Liberties Union. Here are a few of their goals.

- "Laws banning sale and distribution of Pornography, including child pornography should be declared unconstitutional. Child Pornography is a form of free speech protected by the first amendment."

- "The words 'under God' in the Pledge of Allegiance are unconstitutional and should be forbidden."
- "Churches and synagogues should be denied their tax-exempt status.

- "All drugs should be legalized, including crack and angel dust."
- "Prostitution should be legalized, including street solicitation."
- "School officials should be denied the right to search lockers of high school students for drugs."
- "Homosexuals have a Constitutional right to marry, operate bathhouses, become foster parents, and become a Big Brother and engage in street solicitation."
- "There are 270 separate issues the ACLU has endorsed."

Between the powerful ACLU and The People for the American Way, who have similar goals, is it any wonder there is social and moral decay in our country?

Johnson has proven himself a manager

Alvie Johnson, a farmer, a rancher, a community minded man, and I hope soon to be our next state representative from District 23D.

Alvie is a man who will represent his district fairly, honestly, and with dignity. He has proven his ability to manage by operating his family farm successfully for several years. He is a conservative man who will watch the government purse carefully and in a trustworthy manner.

Idaho workers, family farmers, and the small businessman need a man like Alvie in the legislature because he knows the difficulties they face daily in making a decent living. Put Alvie in the House, he can make a difference for Idaho.

Cameron has right stuff to help Jerome County

We'd like to share with Jerome citizens our association with a very special man. We met Darryl Cameron a few years ago and knew immediately that he was a choice person.

He possesses very special traits that impressed us. Darryl is very intelligent, understanding, and easy to relate to. He is dedicated to his job and works hard. But more than this, he makes a point to communicate with others. He handles himself in a professional manner.

He is a leader. Even when some have tested his integrity he maintains a positive attitude. We are proud to know Mr. Cameron and urge others to elect Darryl Nov. 8. You will be making a wise choice.

Lancaster would bring much needed change

We view with scorn the take over or snuffing out of small companies by corporate giants, big stores freezing out the little ones. Politically we have a monopoly type of situation here, the dominance of one political party and the clout that goes with it.

Recently, I heard our good Congressman Richard Stallings speak of the value of a two party system. In this case we need to elect a dynamic, sincere and honest gentleman Tom Lancaster to the office of County Commissioner.

Some time ago some of we concerned citizens met with the county commissioners wanting to restore our polling place which had been moved to another part of town, causing inconvenience and travel problems, particularly for the aged and the infirm.

This meeting was pretty much of a harangue and nothing was accomplished. The commissioners acted as a clique or you might say like a swarm of bees not wanting to be disturbed.

That stubborn stance was changed with the presentation of many pages of signed petitions and a judge's order to restore our polling place.

A change is very much needed in our city and county commissioners offices.

Ash protests apparent office mismanagement

Dear Mr. Yursa, Chief Deputy Secretary of State:
Nov. 2, the Twin Falls Times-News reported that my financial disclosure had not been received at your office on the due date of Tuesday, Nov. 1. I knew I had mailed it so I called your office and the woman who answered looked for it and found it in a file.

Last night, after a radio candidate airing (KTFI), my Republican opponent, Lee Barnes, asked me if I wanted to see something he had in his folder. He thought it was funny, but I didn't when he showed me a copy of my financial statement, stamped Oct. 28 receipt, which he had requested and received in the mail at Buhl on Tuesday, Nov. 1, from the Secretary of State's office, the very same day Craig Lincoln was told it hadn't been filed.

For eight years I've learned to expect stuff like this out of Washington, D.C., but not my own statehouse.

Change of heart

A Connecticut woman a decade ago told interviewers she'd be glad to live on less money if only her husband didn't have to go into the city every day. It followed her husband left his payroll job and took contracts to do similar work on a computer at home. By coincidence, interviewers queried her again. She said she'd be glad to live on less money if only her husband would go into the city every day.

Congressional pay amendment item on ballot not all it seems

BOISE (AP) — Tired of hearing about the state lottery with all that nasty name-calling and rancorous rhetoric?

There's another little item on the Idaho ballot that looks harmless enough.

In one sentence, 43 words, voters will be asked Tuesday whether the Idaho Legislature should ratify a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution, limiting congressional pay increases.

Seems cut and dry, right? After all, who can argue with putting a lid on the power of those big salaries back in Congress to raise their own salaries?

It even has the support of all four members of Idaho's congressional delegation. This clearly is an idea whose time has come.

But remember the adage about things that seem too good to be true?

It turns out Senate Concurrent Resolution 132 is a little confusing, long in the tooth and possibly unconstitutional.

"People don't understand what it's doing," said Penny Yauris, administrative secretary in the elections division of the Idaho secretary of state's office.

For the record, SCRI32 says: "Shall the Legislature of the State of Idaho ratify the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States: 'No law varying the compensation for the services of Senators and Representatives shall take effect until an election of Representatives shall have intervened?'"

It's an advisory vote designed to let state lawmakers know what the people think about prohibiting sitting members of Congress from raising their own pay, which now is $89,500 a year. The average annual wage in Idaho is about $18,000.

Enactment of the amendment would force members of Congress to wait until after the next general election for a raise, as long as two years, with the possibility that they won't be back to enjoy the extra money.

At least 18 other states have ratified the proposed amendment. The most recent was Utah in 1966.

But it needs the approval of 38 states to become part of the Constitution. At the rate it's been going, that should be sometime in the 2190s.

The measure was one of 12 original amendments proposed by the first Congress in 1789. The 10 that were ratified by at least three-fourths of the 13 states, became the Bill of Rights. An 11th dealing with reapportionment of congressional districts, long ago was relegated to the scrap heap of arcane history.

The congressional pay measure was ratified by six states, but then went nowhere until Ohio jumped on the stalled bandwagon in 1873.

Even Jack Barlow, staff historian for the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, said he was not familiar enough with the proposal to know why it failed to win early ratification or has languished for almost 200 years.

But the relatively recent push for curbs on runaway federal spending and for greater government accountability convinced Republican state Sen. C.A. "Skip" Smyser of Parma that the time was ripe for ratification in Idaho.

The amendment cruised through the Senate 39-1 during the 1987 session. But the House decided to observe a 1975 state law, passed in the heat of the Equal Rights Amendment controversy, requiring lawmakers to first submit any proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution to a nonbinding general election vote.

The 1988 Legislature agreed to put the question on the November ballot, unanimously in the Senate and with only three dissenting votes in the House.

Apparently ignored was an August 1986 opinion from the office of Attorney General Jim Jones that an advisory vote would be unconstitutional since the 1975 law represents "a state-imposed limitation upon the federally created right of our Legislature to ratify."

Smyser said the law was passed to "try and slow the process down and ensure there's full public input."

But the opinion, written by then-Deputy Attorney General P. Mark Thompson, said Article V of the U.S. Constitution gives the Legislature the power to ratify and the supremacy clause in Article VII makes it clear that the Legislature's ratifying function may not be abridged by a state.

It's not the requirement of an advisory vote itself that raises "serious constitutional concerns," but the delay it causes.

Autumn rain, snow put out fires deep in Gem forests

BOISE (AP) — Fall rain and snow are finally doing what scores of fire crews could not — extinguish the drought-fueled wildfires that scorched some 400,000 acres of Idaho backcountry this year.

"I think this will do 'er for this year," Salmon National Forest dispatcher Jess Bowen said. "It's really pouring hard."

A half dozen huge wilderness fires had smoldered through one of the driest Octobers ever until this week's precipitation.

But Payette National Forest fire management officer Gene Benedict said the most intense areas of some blazes could simmer in underground roots and beneath the forest floor duff through the winter until spring rain extinguishes them for good.

Statewide, the fire acreage was not the worst ever, but both he and Nez Perce National Forests set records for burned acreage, accounting for over half the overall Idaho total.

Fires also forced closure of some key summer recreation areas, costing the state's outfitters and guides more than $500,000 in lost business.

Attention now has focused on fall and winter precipitation needed to restore some of the moisture the state has lost after two straight years of drought. The moisture content of large forest fuels has dropped in many areas of southern Idaho to below the moisture contained in kiln-dried lumber.

The Payette National Forest alone has built up a 27-inch deficit in snow and rainfall during the drought.

"That's a lot of water," Benedict said. "If you're two feet down, you've got a lot to make up."

And without significant snowfall this winter, he said, "We have the potential for another tough season."

Nationally, wildfires covered over 4 million acres, although nearly half of that was in remote country in Alaska. But the government spent $500-million to fight the blazes.

Ada County inmates eat by evening

BOISE (AP) — Most Ada County Jail inmates who embarked on a hunger strike up after a cigarette ban have given it up after they became hungry.

Protesting they have a right to smoke behind bars, about 30 prisoners in opposition to Sheriff Vaughn Killen's cigarette ban which began in July. But by 8 p.m., about two-thirds were eating.

Killen's order to clear the air in the 182-inmate jail is aimed at reducing potential fire hazards and protecting non-smokers from second-hand fumes.

Inmates began their fast by refusing lunch-time sandwiches. The jailers retaliated by removing stockpiled candy bars and potato chips from cells. The prisoners then showed away a dinner including chow mein, bread, salad and cake.

By 8 p.m., 20 of the 30 inmates were eating sandwiches, Undersheriff Dee Pfeiffer said. The strike is nothing more than an attempt to exert pressure on Killen, who is seeking re-election Tuesday, he said.

In a letter to The Idaho Statesman, the prisoners said some individuals are pleading guilty and paying fines just to get out of jail and light up. They accuse detectives of using cigarettes to get information on cases. And they are worried that lighting smuggled cigarettes on electric outlets is dangerous.

Authorities said the same ban is in effect in a number of county jails in the West.

Since July, Pfeiffer said everything from pencil shavings to apple cores have been smoked in desperation.

Twin Falls man helps restore WWII planes

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — John Lang Jr.'s life pursuit has been preserving the glory years created by his father, a World War II fighter ace.

Lang, who has helped rebuild more than 50 WWII aircraft, has recently established the Airpower Unlimited Aviation Museum in a hangar at the Twin Falls Sun Valley Regional Airport.

John Lang Sr.'s uniforms, awards and memorabilia are displayed along with memorabilia of other local war heroes in a room reminiscent of the early 1940s, complete with a jukebox-stocked with big band-era records.

At the museum is a rare astro compass once used to navigate bombers by looking at the stars through a plastic bubble atop the aircraft, a ball-out oxygen bottle needed while parachuting at high altitudes and a beveled buffalo nickel used as a makeshift shim to mount a rear gun sight on a B-25 bomber.

"We just started to get people to bring the stuff in," Lang said.

Lang's copy of the book "American Fighter Ace" is also kept in the museum, filled with the signatures of such wartime heroes as Poppy Boyington, famous commander of the "Black Sheep" squadron who recorded 28 kills, and Medal of Honor winner Joe Foss.

Lang and his wife, Nancy, encourage local residents with WWII memorabilia as well as histories to bring them to the museum, either as gifts or as loans.

People can best appreciate history if their parents helped shape, said Lang, who idolizes his own father's achievements.

Lang Sr. was credited with seven kills of Japanese Zeros, which he shot down while flying three different Lockheed P-38s in the South Pacific, but he likely shot down as many as 15.

Cameras mounted on the fighter's nose between a quarter of four 50-caliber machine guns and a 20-millimeter cannon did not always make accurate recordings of kills, Lang said.

A picture of Lang Sr. standing on the wing of Thunder II, the P-38 he flew when he downed three Zeros, shows a striking likeness to the younger Lang — who has been as dogged about restoring historic airplanes down to the property placed rivet as his father was at pursuing Japanese fliers.

Lang's latest projects include an F4U-1 Corsair fighter commissioned by the Museum of Flight in Washington and an SNJ-6, a training aircraft commissioned by a Michigan collector.

The Corsair was recently recovered from the bottom of Lake Washington east of Seattle, where it has lain for 33 years after a midair collision.

Although Lang would not divulge the price of the three-year project, he said it is high.

The plane was completely dismantled, with each part marked and photographed before it was trucked to Twin Falls.

Lang and his three full-time workers replace each overly corroded part with one machined and fabricated in their own shop.

Missing parts unavailable elsewhere were reproduced from photographs of the parts in other planes and a good idea of their purpose and how they should fit, he said.

"You can't believe some of the stuff we've built from nothing," Lang said. "Everything is done by hand, which is much more personal."

He said the work is intended to preserve the aircraft for the next 100 years.

Only a few instrument panel parts were farmed out to an Eastern company, Lang said.

Lang has restored Japanese, British and German fighter planes, which have proven challenging because parts and blueprints are rare and more machining of parts is necessary.

However, the project that would be most challenging and rewarding would be the complete restoration of a P-38, the plane his father flew and which he later learned to fly.

"It's so smooth," he said. "It's like riding on velvet."

Lang said he once wished he had been born 50 years earlier and had flown a fighter plane in WWII. But he realizes that being limited to one type of aircraft — might not have been as rewarding as the dozens he has worked on and flown in for 21 years.

Restoring an old plane is like resurrecting a dead person," he said. "A real living legend has reappeared."

Vigils set to call attention to INEL

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Candlelight vigils are set for Sunday in Twin Falls, Burley and Ketchum to call attention to unresolved nuclear waste problems at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and plans to develop two nuclear weapons production plants there.

FOCUS, an environmental group based in Burley, initiated the vigil idea.

Citizens groups in each community, and Boise and Pocatello, have organized the vigils to remind Idahoans of upcoming hearings on the U.S. Department of Energy's plan to develop its New Production Reactor at the INEL. The public hearings will begin Thursday in Twin Falls, moving to Idaho Falls on Nov. 14, Boise on Nov. 16, Pocatello on Nov. 18, and Spokane, Wash., on Dec. 1.

The NFR would produce tritium for nuclear weapons. Also, construction is scheduled to begin in 1989 on the DOE's Special Isotope Separator, a new technology employing lasers to refine fuel-grade plutonium into weapons-grade plutonium.

The Snake River Alliance, an Idaho environmental organization, is coordinating opposition to the weapons plants and calling for an immediate moratorium on the hazardous nuclear waste that has accumulated at the INEL since the 1950s.

The INEL has a tremendous problem already with the wastes stored there, wastes that are threatening the groundwater for most of southern Idaho, said Mike Sullivan, INEL organizer of the Ketchum vigil. Before any other nuclear waste is introduced, that has to be cleaned up.

Sullivan also questions why the government should build a multi-billion dollar weapons plant while it is negotiating with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear weapons.

"The government is ignoring our concerns, so it's important that as many citizens as possible keep the pressure on and attract more attention to this problem," Sullivan said. "That's the purpose of the vigil."

Judge calls award against Port of Hope 'shocking'

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

COEUR DALENE — The judge who overturned a jury verdict last week against Twin Falls-based Port of Hope called the jury's $164,000 award "unconscionable" and "shocking."

The attorney who sued Port of Hope on the case in front of Coeur d'Alene jury only to see the judge take away his client's award called the decision uncommon.

"I was surprised," said Corey Cartwright, who represented Turning Point.

Turning Point, a Northern Idaho substance-abuse treatment center, lost a lucrative state contract to Port of Hope in 1986 and accused Port of Hope of using inside information to win the contract. A jury agreed unanimously in February and awarded damages to Turning Point.

First District Judge Gary M. Haman disagreed a week ago.

The jury heard no evidence to justify awarding damages to Turning Point, Haman wrote in an opinion The Times-News received recently.

Haman said even if all of Turning Point's allegations were true, Port of Hope would have won the contract.

"No act or omission... in any way affected the process by which the bid was awarded," Haman wrote. "The evidence admits of only one conclusion, i.e., (Turning Point) was not awarded the contract because of its failure to submit a program for the provision of detoxification services."

Haman said that although Turning Point asserted the bid process was full of secrets and collusion, the evidence didn't support those claims, and the Port of Hope would have won the contract anyway.

Turning Point's attorney said he was uncertain what, if any, action he will take.

"I was obviously disappointed," Cartwright said. "No further action has been decided upon."

"We're very pleased," said Barry Meyers, Port of Hope's executive director. "I feel that the judge's rulings

Sandy, Peavey raise over $26,000

Candidates report contributions

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

BOISE — State legislative campaigns north of the Snake River have attracted the most money this election year.

Republican John Sandy and incumbent Democrat John Peavey together have raised $26,719 in their race for Senate Seat A in District 22. Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties comprise District 22.

But Sandy and Peavey haven't matched their 1986 pace, when $28,983 went into their campaign coffers.

Peavey won the race in 1986, both in votes and in the amount of contributions. He's winning the contribution race again this year, with $17,548 in his campaign war chest. Last year, he raised $18,588.

Sandy has received $9,171 for his bid to unseat Peavey. In 1986, the Hagerman rancher raised $10,395.

The pair has spent $26,779 on the campaign this year.

The race for House Seat 22A is also a costly campaign. Democrat Gene Sullivan is outpacing Republican Tom Morrison in a campaign that has topped the $10,000 mark. Sullivan has raised $7,778 from his own pocket and the Idaho Education Association and Morrison has raised $3,851.

Tuesday was the deadline for pre-general election finance reports listing contribution information up to Oct. 24. Candidates were required to have postmarked their forms by Tuesday, and mail-in reports trickled in through the week.

In contrast with the four-county District 22 races, the eight-county floral district has been a low-key, inexpensive campaign. Incumbent Republican Larry Anderson raised $1,750 and spent only $200 by Oct. 24. His opponent, Democrat William Chisholm, received $852 in contributions and spent $432.

Republican Celia Gould, running against Democrat Joe Gulick for House Seat A in District 23, is operating on a $3,819 war chest. Gould received $3,400 of her campaign money from businesses and political action committees.

The secretary of state's office hadn't received Gulick's disclosure report by Friday and was in the process of notifying Gulick, a clerk said.

Likewise, Sally Gulick's report hadn't been filed by Friday. Sally Gulick opposes Ron Black for House Seat 23A.

That campaign manager is so slow," Sally

Bonnie Hunsaker, Gulick's treasurer, said the report is going in the mail today. She said she was too busy to get it in the mail earlier.

However, Sally Gulick said she had raised $265 for her campaign against Black, and had spent $171. Black received $1,587 by Oct. 24 and had spent it all.

Democrat Virginia Ash is running her campaign for House Seat 23C out of her own pocket. She had spent $872 of her $994 in contributions by Oct. 24. Of that total, she donated $319 herself.

Her opponent, Republican Lee Barnes, is one of the heavier campaign spenders in this year's election. Barnes raised a total of $5,287 and spent $4,717 by Oct. 24. However, much of his money — $3,100 — was loaned to his campaign. He loaned $1,100 to his campaign and banks loaned $2,000.

In the east end of Magic Valley, Republican Lynn Tomingna is receiving contributions at a 13.1 pace compared with Democratic opponent Dick Russell. Tomingna raised $2,900 to Russell's $216. However, Tomingna spent only $445 by Oct. 24. Russell spent $66.

Unemployment rate in Magic Valley drops from last October

The Times-News and Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley seems to have weathered the demise of Tupperware's Jerome plant, and unemployment rates are on the decline.

In October, the rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties was 5 percent.

"That looks pretty darn good, particularly since the closure of Tupperware," said Fred Friel, labor analyst for the Idaho Department of Employment. "It looks better than expected."

The three-county area experienced a projected .3 percent drop in its unemployment rate from last year for October. Last year's rate was 5.3 percent, the same rate as September of this year.

Idaho's labor force and total employment soared to record highs in October, propelled by an economic surge that some officials believe has put the state on the verge of a boom comparable to the 1970s.

A dramatic expansion in the work force pushed the total number of Idahoans wanting jobs to 441,700, and for the first time ever 422,700 workers were on the job throughout the state.

The unseasonably mild weather played a significant role in setting the employment record as outdoor work continued in construction, logging and agriculture. Department of Employment analysts said.

But in the three-county area the state labels as Magic Valley, declining numbers of people working dampens the party somewhat. Last October, 32,239 people were working in seasonally adjusted numbers. This October, the department projects a seasonally adjusted figure of 31,990, a decline of 259 workers.

Although "that's something to be concerned about, that's not as bad as it would appear, particularly with loss of employment from Tupperware," Friel said. "That's better than we feared."

Friel said good crop prices and a larger work force in food processing kept Magic Valley unemployment low.

State analysts cited employment gains during the past year in all sectors of the economy in Idaho for the improvement in Idaho's overall employment picture.

Total employment last month was just 600 below the entire job force of October 1987, and more than 21,000 more people were at work around the state last month than a year before.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate remained at 4.3 percent, matching the September rate that was revised upward a notch from the preliminary estimate.

But October unemployment was still eight-tenths of a point below October 1987, marking the 22nd straight month that current monthly unemployment rates have run below year-earlier levels. It was the sixth consecutive month the jobless rate has been under 5 percent, and the identical October-September rates were the lowest since August 1983.

The actual number of Idahoans off the job rose slightly from September to 19,000, but even with that October was only the third month the total number of unemployed has been at or below 19,000 since 1973 when the overall labor force was 100,000 smaller. The other two months were September and June 1988.

Nationally, the unemployment rate fell a notch to 5.3 percent as the economy created 325,000 jobs, a third on Americas assembly lines to more than recover the loss in manufacturing jobs over the two previous months.

The Idaho workforce exploded by 7,300 from September while total employment increased 6,900. It was the second largest one-month jump in total employment in a quarter century. The largest was jump was a month earlier at 7,800.

"It's no one thing as you might suspect," chief department analyst Jim Day said. "It's

Stallings' son located after 3-hour search

RUPERT — About 40 people searched for more than three hours Friday before finding Congressman Richard Stallings' 13-year-old son, who disappeared while his father was campaigning in downtown Rupert.

Police found Dan Stallings around 8 p.m. about three blocks from the city's downtown square, where his father had earlier held a political rally, said Debbie Hildreth, dispatcher with the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office. The youth, reported missing at 5 p.m., told police that he became disoriented and lost after walking to a nearby convenience store.

After authorities issued a statewide search-to-locate bulletin, about 40 people contributed to the search for Stallings, Hildreth said. The search party included Minidoka County sheriff's officials, Rupert police, reserve officers, civil defense officials and private individuals.

Residents asked not to use 911 for non-emergency calls

TWIN FALLS — City public safety officers are again asking residents not to use the 911 system for non-emergency calls, Commander Bill Stonemetz said Friday.

Calls that have improperly been placed through the system include requests for phone numbers and the time of day, prank calls and questions about burning permits and how to get shelter for the night.

"These are not emergency calls," Stonemetz said. "These are getting so heavy that we're going to have to inform the callers that it's not an emergency call and to politely hang up on them."

The non-emergency phone number that is available for such calls is 733-0850.

Tominaga says voting record is better than opponent calls

PAUL — Republican Sen. Lynn Tominaga says his voting record is far better than his Democratic opponent Dick Russell alleges.

According to figures he compiled from Legislative Data Center records, he missed 20 out of 225 House Senate bills and 21 of 312 House bill votes, he says. That comes out to a better than 90 percent voting record.

Votes he did miss were when he was excused from the Senate floor to present testimony in the House on bills he was carrying. He did not miss major votes, however, he says.

"To make a decision which is more important," Russell, running against Tominaga for District 24 Senate seat, B. covering Cassia, Jerome and Minidoka counties, has accused him of missing more votes than almost any other senator.

Paul man suffers injuries in 2-car accident

BURLEY — A Paul man suffered back and neck injuries in a two-vehicle accident about 30 miles east here Friday, Idaho State Police said.

Luis Munoz, 22, was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released, officials there said.

The accident occurred about 4:32 a.m. on Interstate Highway 86 east of Burley, police said. Munoz, driving a 1977 Plymouth two-door, was hit from behind by a 1987 Ford pickup driven by Todd Zeller, 21, of Hazelton.

Police said Munoz was caught when his Plymouth stalled in the lane of traffic. No other injuries were reported.

Police arrest woman wanted for escaping New Jersey prison

TWIN FALLS — Police Friday arrested a woman wanted for escaping from a New Jersey penitentiary, according to police reports.

Linda Reidenbaker, 22, was arrested at 1:50 a.m. at a Twin Falls bus depot after police discovered an outstanding warrant for her arrest through the National Crime Information Center, said Bill Stonemetz, commander with the Twin Falls Department of Public Safety.

Reidenbaker signed a waiver of extradition, telling police that she was on her way back to New Jersey anyway, Stonemetz said. New Jersey authorities told Twin Falls police that they would pick Reidenbaker up by Wednesday.

Reidenbaker had been convicted in New Jersey of first-degree armed robbery, according to police reports.

Nampa woman is teacher of the year

BOISE (AP) — A Nampa High School English teacher who calls teen-agers the "most resilient, interesting, fresh, complex, entertaining segment of society" is Idaho's 1988 Teacher of the Year.

Jennifer Boyd will represent Idaho in the National Teacher of the Year Runners-up chosen from among the 21 nominees submitted by Idaho school districts are: Cheryl Rumsey, Spanish and English teacher at Marsh Valley, Arimo and Brenda Kay Walter, English teacher at Bonners Ferry High School.

State schools superintendent Jerry Evans said Friday the guidelines seek nominations of teachers who are "oriented to their communities as well as to their classrooms, and who have the respect and admiration of students, parents and colleagues."

Ms. Boyd received a bachelor's degree from Pasadena College, completed a fifth-year program at Boise State and a master's degree from UCLA University.

After teaching in California, she started at Valluue Junior High School until joining Nampa High School in 1984.

She is chairperson of the Nampa District Professional Growth Plan Development Committee and serves on the editorial board of the Idaho English Journal.

Committee to recommend funding for children's program

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A legislative study committee will recommend that the 1989 Legislature put up $2.5 million for a new program to aid disadvantaged preschoolers, with another $3 million in reserve in case more children need the services.

Sen. John Hansen, R-Idaho Falls, and Rep. Doug Jones, R-Twin Falls, committee cochairmen, said Friday estimates are that 8 percent of the Idaho population ages 3-5 need special education services for mental or physical problems, learning disabilities or speech or hearing impairment.

Department of Education officials estimated at a study committee meeting this week that up to 4,200 children might need the services, but stressed it would be a cost-effective program. Studies indicate $4 in public costs could be saved for each $1 spent on early assistance, they said.

Some committee members said they were concerned that the cost might escalate. Jerry Evans, state schools superintendent, said although the startup cost was estimated at $2.5 million, it easily could be $5 million per year once the program was fully operational.

Rep. Ralph Steele, R-Idaho Falls, and Sen. William Ringert, R-Boise, authored a motion to recommend funding for the program, with $3 million to be held in reserve.

The $3 million could be appropriated on a carryover basis, Hansen said, so if it is not needed in one year it could be carried over to another.

Pocatello officials unveil plan for economic development

POCATELLO (AP) — Pocatello city officials have unveiled an ambitious plan to acquire and spend $9 million on economic development and urban renewal projects next year.

Stuart Bullington, community development analyst for the city, told the Pocatello City Council the plan calls for $6.7 million to be spent on economic development, $1.3 million on downtown rehabilitation, $670,000 on low-income housing improvements and $380,000 on neighborhood development.

The city hopes to finance the projects with state and federal grants, private and local contributions and funds from the Eastern Idaho Economic Development Corp.'s revolving loan program.

Bullington said the $6.7 million for economic development would go toward such projects as renovating the former Zweigart meat packing plant, which will house the new Domea Farms fish processing facility.

The $1.3 million earmarked for downtown rehabilitation would finance restoration of the Chief Theater and the Center Street underpass, completion of the Simplex Square pedestrian mall project and conversion of the upstairs of Hudson's Shoe Store for low-income housing.

Other objectives are to obtain funds for a low-income housing rehabilitation, rental housing improvements and to acquire more housing for the homeless, Bullington said.

In a related matter, the city council voted to expand the 42-block downtown area designated "blighted and substandard" to include the 50-year-old Center Street underpass. That will allow the city to apply for $140,000 in state Community Development Block Grant funding for the rehabilitation project.

Officials rule bathtub drowning accidental

PRESTON (AP) — Franklin County authorities have ruled accidental the death of a Preston teen-ager found drowned in the bathtub at her home.

Franklin County Coroner Doug Webb said Sarabeth Nielson, 14, daughter of Maurice and Bonnie Nielson, was found about 8 a.m. Thursday by her mother.

Webb said the girl had been in the tub about 15 to 20 minutes. "Resuscitation efforts failed," he said.

The girl's body was examined by a pathologist, but no autopsy was performed and there were no physical signs of bodily injury, the coroner said.

Although Frame had resigned from Turning Point, he agreed to help the Mormon Church will make no endorsements

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church Friday reiterated that it is making no political endorsements this election year.

Church spokesman Richard Lindsay made the statement in response to questions about political articles in The Latter-day Sentinel, a privately owned publication aimed at Mormons in Utah, California and Arizona.

The publication recently ran an "LDS Voters' Guide on Moral Issues," which contains responses from candidates on various issues.

"Any actions by the publication reflect only its own editorial policies and interests," Lindsay said. "Voter guides and surveys sponsored by this or any other publication are in no way endorsed or advocated by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Furthermore, we reiterate that the (Mormon Church) does not favor one political party over another, has no candidates for political office, and does not undertake to tell people how to vote, be added.

Church spokesman Don LeFevre said that although the church opposes gambling, it has not told its members in Idaho how to vote on a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a lottery in that state.

"The church's statements on gambling have never mentioned a particular state," LeFevre said. The church has not issued a statement telling residents of any state how to vote on a particular issue. But the institutional church is opposed to all forms of gambling."

Inmates may get job of asbestos removal

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Board of Correction has decided to move ahead "as quickly as possible" with a proposed program to allow selected minimum-security inmates to remove asbestos from state buildings.

The board on Friday directed Mel Johnson, director of Correctional Industries, to coordinate the specifics of a proposal calling for establishment of one or two eight-man inmate teams to contract with the state Division of Public Works on asbestos removal jobs.

It also voted to send a letter to Gov. Cecil Andrus asking for his support in obtaining financial backing to the program started.

Johnson said information from similar programs in other states, including Utah, indicated the teams could perform the jobs for about half the price charged by private companies.

Besides reduced labor costs, he said the main savings would result from the absence of any requirement that the state provide workmen's compensation insurance for the inmates involved.

"The amount of work that's out there is just staggering," Johnson told the board. "If we had two or three crews, we couldn't touch 10 percent of the work that's out there."

Besides the savings to the state, Johnson said the training and certification required by the EPA for people who work with asbestos will help inmates get good jobs after their release from prison.

Board member L. James Koutrik said he had discussed the idea with Andrus, and that the governor seemed enthused about both the savings and inmate training opportunities.

"I think you've got a green light from the governor's office on this," he said.

Corrections director Al Murphy said he would like to see 30 percent of the money paid for inmate labor, which usually is returned to the state, instead earmarked for a vocational training fund.

Briefly

Payette woman receives probation

BOISE (AP) — A Payette woman, Jentina Rose Nelson, has been placed on five years probation and must repay the federal government $13,441 after pleading guilty to making false statements on a federal loan agreement.

She was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Marion Callister on Friday and must pay court costs of $50.

She was charged with making false statements between 1984-87 that she was the only adult living in her household. The maximum penalty for the offense is five years in prison and a fine of $250,000.

Legislators say they changed minds

BOISE (AP) — Nine state legislators who voted to put a constitutional amendment allowing a lottery on the Nov. 8 ballot say they've changed their minds.

In a flier being mailed to more than 300,000 households by the anti-lottery group Consider, the lawmakers urge Idahoans to vote against the amendment.

"We didn't realize at the time, but we now know that wording similar to (the amendment's) has been used in other states to allow professional gambling. We don't think Idaho needs that type of gambling," the flier reads.

Board refuses to set release date

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Commission for Pardons and Parole has refused to set a release date for Steven Wolf, who is serving a 30-year prison term for the 1976 slaying of Enrico Flory, Boise's "Cat Man of Bella Street."

Wolf, 28, will have another hearing in October 1989, said Olivia Craven West, executive director of the parole commission.

He was charged with first-degree murder in September 1976 and pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in November 1978, more than two years after the June 3, 1976 death of Flory.

Prosecutors alleged Wolf led a group of teen-agers who robbed and killed Flory, 77, in his North End home.

Mrs. West said among the commission's considerations in deciding not to set a release date for Wolf was his sentence for crime in an additional year in prison after pleading guilty to a drug possession charge at the penitentiary.

Balla claims sentence is not legal

BOISE (AP) — Walter "Bud" Balla is asking the Idaho Supreme Court to release him from prison, arguing that he is being held on an illegally extended sentence.

The 44-year-old prisoner maintains in a petition filed Thursday that Idaho Corrections Department officials have incorrectly subtracted "good time" from a second sentence that was taken away in the first. He maintains filing his case through 4th District courts could take years to resolve, given an almost-certain appeal by the state Department of Corrections.

Balla contends he should have been released Oct. 4, but Idaho State Penitentiary officials added another 329 days to his sentence stemming from three 4-year-old prison disciplinary hearings.

Under the new calculation, his release date is Aug. 29, 1989.

Hodel's entry into road fuss draws attack

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — For the second time in two years, Interior Secretary Donald Hodel has intervened in eastern Idaho's Egin-Hamer Road dispute, and opponents contend the move is political.

Hodel said Thursday he would take jurisdiction from the Interior Board of Land Appeals over an appeal on the farm-to-market road filed by the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes and several environmental groups.

The appeal urged the Bureau of Land Management to withdraw its right-of-way for the 8.8-mile gravel road that runs through winter range for a herd of about 2,000 elk.

The appeals board issued a preliminary ruling earlier this year expanding the winter closure on the road from Dec. 1 to March 31 to Nov. 1 to April 30. It also required the BLM to expand its monitoring effort.

Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, asked Hodel to intervene at the request of Fremont County officials, who built the road with Jefferson County.

Edwin Stockly, executive director of the Idaho Natural Resources Legal Foundation, which joined the tribes in the appeal, said Hodel's intervention ensures the decision will be political rather than on the merits of the case.

"I think his decision is predictable coming just a couple of days before the election," Stockly said Friday. "Hodel is obviously doing this to put down the environmentalists and the tribes to help George Bush and probably Dan Watkins, the Republican challenging Democratic 2nd District Rep. Richard Stallings."

Hodel intervened in the road controversy in 1986 at the request of then Lt. Gov. David Leroy, who was running for governor. Hodel asked the BLM to review the decision of former Idaho Falls BLM District Manager O'dell Frandsen.

Dow loses 24 points Friday, down 4 for week

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market fell Friday in subdued trading, pressured by new unemployment data that showed surprising strength in the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 24.54 points to end at 2,145.80, its lowest point of day. That gave the blue-chip indicator a net loss for the week of 4.09 points.

In the broader market, declining issues outpaced advances by about 5 to 2 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,003 issues down, 450 up and 522 unchanged.

Stocks started off sharply lower in response to the government's report that unemployment fell 0.53 percent in October, the lowest level in 14 years, as the economy created more than 300,000 jobs.

The unexpectedly low jobless rate fueled concern that the economy could be heating up, and the Federal Reserve could move to rein in inflation by nudging interest rates higher.

Stock prices were a quick recovery in the morning but later slid back, in what analysts said was a close tracking of bond prices. Activity remained dampened, as it has through most of the week, by anticipation of next Tuesday's presidential election.

But a recent slide in the dollar raised concern that the Fed could nudge interest rates higher in order to bolster the U.S. currency. The dollar steadied late in the week, but the fear of higher rates was rekindled by the unemployment figures — the final economic report before the election.

Volume on the floor of the NYSE totaled 145.58 million shares, down from 152.96 million on Thursday's session.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trading at regional exchanges and on the over-the-counter market, totaled 173.76 million shares.

California firm buys out troubled New Jersey S&L

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal regulators announced Friday that a financially troubled New Jersey savings and loan institution was being acquired by a California institution. Officials said the acquisition of Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Westfield, N.J. resolved this year. Lincoln Federal is being acquired by First Nationwide Bank of San Francisco. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures deposits at savings and loans, said it was providing assistance totaling $147.5 million, including $40 million in cash, as part of the announcing the acquisition, officials said. Lincoln Federal began experiencing problems when the institution invested in out-of-state commercial loans, mortgages and consumer loans, many of them concentrated in Texas, Oklahoma and Colorado, regions of the country which have been hit hard by depressed conditions in the energy industry. Lincoln Federal operates 15 branches in New Jersey. The branches will conduct business as usual and depositors will experience no interruption in service, FSLIC said. Federal regulators said all accounts will continue under the same terms and conditions with depositors' continuing to be insured to the maximum $100,000 by FSLIC. Including this transaction, FSLIC has merged 11 troubled S&Ls with healthier institutions. The agency has liquidated 22 other insolvent S&Ls and has helped to recapitalize when the institution invested in out-

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

"Perseverance is a lowly virtue whereby mediocrity achieves an illustrious success."

Ambrose Blyer

Today's East plugged away at his own suit until it was established. The problem with that line of defense was that he had no entry to his good ribbed suit.

West led his top spade and East overtook with his nine, ready to continue the suit as soon as South ducked. Intent on knocking out South's ace, East continued his assault until South won his ace. By that time, West was out of spades. South was able to knock out the heart ace, and the only issue that remained was whether West cashed out to save the overtrick.

A more effective defense sinks the precarious game. East should overtake West's eight of spades, but not to continue the suit. Instead he shifts to the club 10 at South ducks the first spade. South's jack loses to West's queen and the spade seven is led to East's 10. Once again South must duck, and once again the club shift pierces South. Regardless of what South does, the defenders can win three clubs, two spades and the heart ace, down two against a game defense.

When the opponents are accommodating enough to miss their unbeatable game (four-headers), the defense should be alert enough to exact the maximum price.

L.A. beats Dallas in NBA opener

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — It's a new NBA season but the same old Los Angeles Lakers. James Worthy and Magic Johnson produced clutch plays in the final 30 seconds Friday night as the Lakers opened defense of their title with a 116-113 victory over the Dallas Mavericks.

The Mavericks, who had extended the Lakers to seven games in the Western Conference finals, owned a six-point lead with 2:34 to play but it was when it counted. Worthy's layup off a Johnson feed with 24 seconds left gave the Lakers the victory.

"We made the plays when we got down six points. It was the way we have won some championships in the past. It was a struggle but we win," said Lakers coach Pat Riley.

"We knew there was still time with two minutes to play. Our defense was great," Worthy said. "On my basket the play was designed for Magic on a pick-and-roll — and he was double-teamed. That created a gap I was fortunate to find one."

"It's not the first time we've been in that situation," Johnson said he and Worthy had worked the pick-and-roll many times before.

"I wanted to get some movement going on James' basket," he said. "James cut toward the basket and I found him. We've used that play a lot of times before. Sometimes I keep the ball but they double me."

"When we were down six, we could have packed it in but we picked up the defensive intensity."

Dallas guard Derek Harper summed up the Mavs' frustration:

"If you let down even just a little bit against the Lakers they will capitalize on it. We didn't execute and they did."

Cochman-MacLeod said Dallas did a lot of good things "but we didn't have coordination down the stretch. We had the game in hand. Now we have to learn how to finish it up."

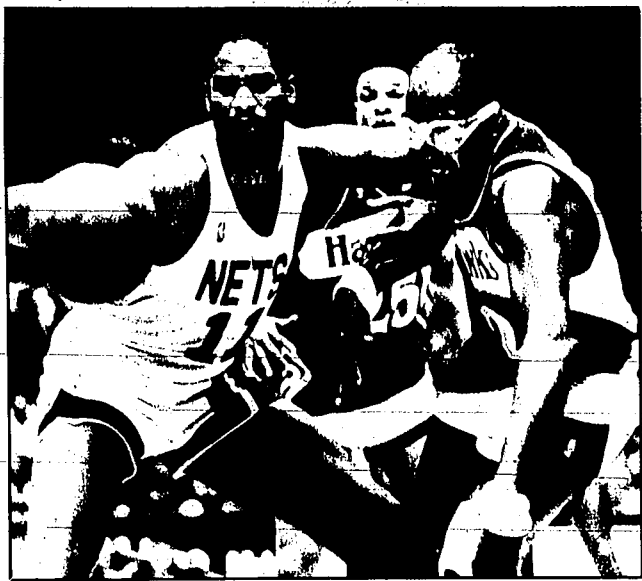

Johnson scored 21 points and Byron Scott added 18 as the Lakers got their season off to a rousing start in their effort to become the first club to win three successive NBA titles since Boston in the 1960s.

Rolando Blackman led Dallas with 24 points as the Mavericks sought revenge for their seventh-game defeat in the Western Conference finals at the hands of the Lakers in June. Dallas won all three games here in that series.

Mark Aguirre scored 28 points for the Mavericks.

Dallas led 112-106 with 2:34 to play but baskets by Mychal Thompson, Johnson and Scott tied the game with 45 seconds left.

Roy Tarpley's free throw gave Dallas a one-point lead, but Johnson and Worthy took over in the final 30 seconds.

Leonard ready for 3rd comeback

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — As he heads into Comeback III, Sugar Ray Leonard believes he has lost none of his desire to win.

"People have been questioning my motivation since my first official retirement," said Leonard, who is coming out of his third retirement to fight Donny Lalonde on Monday.

"My motivation is I enjoy winning more than losing," Leonard conceded, though, that he once suffered a lapse.

"The only time I questioned my motivation was against (Kevin) Howard," he said.

"That was four years — but only two fights — ago for Leonard. He was knocked down for the first time over in that May 11, 1984, bout, but came back to stop Howard in the ninth round. Afterward, Leonard said he was re-joining, for the second time, explaining, "It just wasn't there. There's no sense feeling myself, that's it."

But it wasn't. Leonard, who announced his first retirement when he had surgery for a detached retina in 1982, returned for a second time to take a 12-round decision over Marvelous Marvin Hagler in their middleweight title fight.

Big Sky Conference: Vandals try to break Reno jinx

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

Every Big Sky Conference football team has at least one place where it does not do well and for Idaho it is Reno, Nev.

"Historically, we have not done well there," said Idaho's Keith Gilbertson. "Two years ago we went in there against the No. 1 team in the country and fumbled one at the end of the football game that could have given us victory."

The Vandals have never won at Reno. If they lose today, they'll fall from the top of the Big Sky standings with a 4-1 record — 6-1 overall — into potential trouble in the final two weeks of the season. As it stands this morning, three other Big Sky teams have two conference losses, including Boise State, which Idaho plays in two weeks.

"It's a place where it's a hostile environment. Your team has to be very mature and not let the crowd dictate to you how to play. You just have to go in there and play a solid football game," Gilbertson said.

Kickoff is 2 p.m. MST. The game will be televised live in the Channel 6 by Nampa station KIVI, and Channel 7 Twin Falls radio station KEZJ-FM and Burley station KBAR-FM will broadcast it live.

Reno is out of the conference race with a 2-3 league record, but still has a shot at an at-large berth in the NCAA playoffs if the Wolf Pack can win the rest of their games.

"In some ways their defense is better than last year's," said Gilbertson. "Their defensive front is much quicker. Blake, Bill, Bonnell weren't totally healthy when we played them last year, but he's full speed now. They've solidified themselves at linebacker at a little bit and their secondary is always full of great athletes."

UNR running back Charvez Foger, a four-year starter, has 764 yards and eight touchdowns and wingback Tony Logan has seven 37 passes for 757 yards and eight scores, but the Pack's offense has struggled when it has had to come from behind. Compounding the problem, UNR is on a three-game losing streak; no Chris Ayler team has ever lost four in a row.

Elsewhere in the Big Sky today, Boise State, 4-2 in Big Sky and 6-2 overall, travels to Pocatello to play Idaho State.

The winless Bengals, 0-8, doubtless will be fired up by the prospects of derailing Boise State's championship hopes — much the same as last year when ISU pulled out a 35-32 victory with a last-minute 96-yard kickoff return.

Northern Arizona defeated visiting Northern Iowa 26-12 in a non-conference game switched to Thursday night to accommodate national television.

In other Big Sky games, Montana State, 4-2, is at Montana, 5-2, and Weber State, 2-3, is at Eastern Washington, 2-4.

The Pocatello game will match a young and surprising Boise State team against ISU, which has serious problems on offense.

Doris Sams is first woman to enter Baseball Hall of Fame

By TOM SHARP
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Doris Sams knows what it's like to play baseball seven days a week, twice on Sundays. But unlike other star professionals, Doris Sams knows what it feels like to slide into second base wearing a skirt.

And Saturday she will know the ultimate thrill for a baseball player, that of seeing her name in the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., when an exhibit dedicated to women in baseball is unveiled.

Sams, of Knoxville, was one of the best players in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League, which flourished in the 1940s and 50s. That league will be the centerpiece of the exhibit, which is not permanent but is expected to be on display for several years.

"I can hardly wait to get up there and listen to all these lies we'll be telling each other," Sams said in this week. "We had a reunion in '83 and I never saw so many gray hairs and wrinkles and different shapes in my life."

There were as many as 13 teams in the women's league from 1943-54 in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. About 550 women played in it at one time or another.

Sams played professionally for eight years, first as a pitcher with the Muskegon Lassies.

"Then I started hitting the ball so they put me in center field," she said. "I played both positions for about three seasons; then I said — Give me two salaries or something like that, so I ended up just playing center."

The league existed at a time when many males were in the armed services, reducing the quality of major league baseball, and also when gasoline was rationed, reducing travel.

"We were in these factory towns where the people were making good money, but they had gas rationing and couldn't go anywhere, so we drew the whole family," Sams said. "After the war they went other directions, which is understandable, but we entertained them for a while."

"Apparently they were pretty good at it, too. 'Honest to Pete, some of those girls could make any catch you ever saw a man make. We just had some awfully good caliber players all around,'" Sams said.

As a pitcher, Sams once pitched a perfect game, a considerable accomplishment in anybody's league. "I got lucky," she says.

Sams was on the All-Star team five times, four times as both a pitcher and an outfielder. She was the Player of the Year in 1947 and '48, when she won the batting title with a .301 average. She also set the league record for home runs with 12 in 1952.

Marijuana found on Olympians

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Marijuana use was found among a small group of Olympic athletes in Seoul, but no penalties were imposed, the International Olympic Committee's drug chief said Friday.

While marijuana is illegal in most parts of the world, it is not among the more than 100 substances banned by the IOC and the committee's medical commission head said the problem was seen more as one of society than sports.

"We had a few positive tests for marijuana," Prince Alexandre de Merode, the official, said after addressing the annual meeting of the General Assembly of International Sports Federations. "It was not anything like a dramatic situation. We are studying it further."

Merode said less than 10 of the 1,601 athletes who were tested for drugs showed signs of marijuana use.

He refused to divulge any details of the test results, including the names of the athletes, their countries or sports. He said none of their names had been turned over to their national olympic committees, international sports governing bodies or local authorities.

It was not known if any marijuana by athletes took place at the Games, where 10 athletes were banned for using banned substances. Urinalysis generally can detect drug use going back several weeks or even months.

In his speech, Merode called for international sports to cut back on competition schedules so athletes would not have to resort to drugs to get their bodies in shape.

He also urged the federations to order drug tests during training, and said the IOC was studying the possibility of setting up a mobile drug laboratory that could be loaned to events where accredited labs don't exist.

The meeting also heard from a top expert on AIDS, who urged sports to join the fight against the fatal disease but not to jump at radical prescriptions such as universal screening of all athletes.

Dr. Jonathan Mann, an American who is director of the World Health Organization's special program on AIDS, said existing tests for the virus were imperfect and costly, and could do more harm than good.

The IOC tested for marijuana in Seoul at the request of several unidentified members, who felt use of the drug might be a problem, Merode said.

"It was nowhere near as dramatic as members from some areas suspected," he said. "We said we were going to test before the Games, and we wanted little publicity about the results. It was a question of education of the people."

As if also said beforehand, the IOC took no action against those found using marijuana. A Merode said.

"Our view is it is not a problem of sport, as cocaine is," he said. "It is more a social problem." Cocaine is on the banned list as a stimulant.

In his address to the federations, Merode said big-money contracts and crowded competition calendars were key factors in athletes turning to performance-enhancing drugs, such as anabolic steroids and stimulants.

"The multiplication of international competitions is tiring on the athlete, to the point where some gradually wear down and try to go beyond the limits of the human body," he said.

College football: Rice, top-ranked Notre Dame take on winless Rice

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Winless Rice has unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Notre Dame to contend with Saturday. Notre Dame, on the other hand, has Rice — in more ways than one.

They Rice already has rushed for 492 yards this season, more than any other quarterback in Notre Dame history. Rice University's leading ground-gainer, fullback Lorenzo Cyphers, has 329.

And Rice's passing has improved. After completing only five of 21 passes for 90 yards in the first two games, Rice is 47-for-82 for 724 yards in his last six.

The other Rice is 0-7. But, comeback

William McClay put it this way: "How often does the last-place team in the Southwest Conference get to play the No. 1 team in the nation? It's an opportunity to make up for four years of bad luck and missed chances."

Saturday's schedule lists three games between members of the Associated Press Top Twenty — fifth-ranked Florida State at No. 16 South Carolina at night, No. 8 Oklahoma at No. 12 Oklahoma State and No. 13 LSU at No. 18 Alabama.

Elsewhere, second-ranked Southern Cal entertains California, No. 3 Miami plays host to Tulsa, No. 4 West Virginia is at Cincinnati, No. 5 UCLA at Oregon, No. 7 Nebraska at Iowa State, Independence Bowl host Southern Mississippi at No. 9 Auburn and Texas-E Paso at No. 10 Wyoming in a Western Athletic Conference showdown.

In the Second Tier, Colgate Bowl-bound No. 11 Arkansas is at Baylor, Minnesota at No. 14 Michigan, Navy at No. 16 Syracuse, North Carolina at No. 17 Clemson, No. 19 Georgia Florida at Jacksonville, No. 20 (tie) Brigham Young at San Diego State under the lights and No. 20 (tie) Indiana at Illinois.

Rice has lost five straight close games to SWC opponents and Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz's crying towel is wringing wet.

"Rice's record is extremely deceiving because they haven't been out of a single one of their five conference games," Holtz said. "Texas A&M really had to work to beat them by 14 points and Arkansas had everything it could handle (21-14 last week). They had 642 yards total offense in the loss to Texas Tech. So don't think this isn't a very capable football team."

Southern Cal leads the Pac-10 with a 5-0 record (UCLA is 4-1) and Coach Larry Smith's biggest chore is trying to keep his team from looking down the road to games with UCLA on Nov. 19 and Notre Dame the following Saturday.

The conference race and the national rankings are far from being over, Smith said. "The key to where you finish is how well you can focus each week and how well you can improve as a team so that you're really playing your best football down the stretch."

Cleveland hands Charlotte first regular-season loss, 133-93

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — It was the roughest of welcomes for an expansion team as the Charlotte Hornets embarked on their initial season in the NBA and the Cleveland Cavaliers made the first journey a rough one.

Sparked by a runaway in the second period, the Cavaliers started their progress toward improving on a poor record last season with a 133-93 victory to spoil opening night for the Hornets.

"Give them credit, they came out and played hard," Cleveland coach Larry Wilkens said. "We were just a little flat in the first quarter. We're a good defensive team. We just worked hard on defense and tried to cut down on the mistakes and be patient with our offense. If you do that, good things will happen and that's what we want."

Playing before 23,338 NBA-starved fans, the Hornets held a 24-22 lead after Kurt Rambis scored on an inside move at 2:10 of the first quarter. The score was tied at 26-26 at the end of the period.

The last time the Hornets held the lead, Tim Kampton's layup at 8:41 resulted in a 34-32 edge. Then, the Cleveland onslaught began.

"We settled down in the second quarter. They were pumped up, and we kept our poise," Cleveland forward Larry Nance said.

Nance's jump hook tied the score at 34-34 with 8:20 left. Cleveland ran off the next nine points before Tyrone Bogues broke the string with two free throws with 5:55 left before halftime.

On the strength of their defense against the visiting Hornets, Cleveland went on another tear. 22-6, that gave the Cavaliers a 66-42 lead at halftime. It was a big boost for a team that won just 11 of 41 road games in the 1987-88 season.

"When we took over, we wanted our team to become competitive. We wanted them to play well at home so no one could walk in there and think that they were on R and R, and we wanted to be competitive on the road," Wilkens said. "We accomplished two of those things last year. Now we're working on the third. I feel like we're going to be a better team on the road this year."

Seattle 104 Utah 97

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Dale Ellis scored 46 points and Xavier McDaniel his two key baskets in the closing minutes Friday night, leading the Seattle SuperSonics to a 104-97 victory over the Utah Jazz in the NBA opener for both teams.

Ellis' total was one short of his career-high.

Karl Malone led Utah with 36 points and Thurl Bailey added 26. The game was tied at 95 when McDaniel, who had only 10 points, scored two baskets within 40 seconds to put Seattle ahead for good.

Seattle moved to a 27-26 edge in the first period, when Ellis had 19 points. The Sonics increased their lead to 60-47 at the half, but Bailey, with 12 points in the third quarter, sparked a Utah comeback that gave the Jazz the lead 78-76 at the end of three periods.

Ellis finished off 85-80 early in the final quarter, but Malone and Bailey sparked an 8-0 Jazz run. With seven minutes remaining, Utah had a three-point lead.

Denver 120 Houston 117

DENVER (AP) — Alex English scored 39 points and Fat Lever added 27 as Denver rallied from a 15-point halftime deficit to beat Houston 120-117 Friday night in the NBA opener for both teams.

The Nuggets trailed from the early stages of the second unit until Danny Schayes scored on a drive with 1:05 to play, giving Denver a 116-115 lead.

Houston's Akeem Olatunju, who tied English with 39 points, hit a free throw to tie it 12 seconds later. But Schayes made two free shots with 37 seconds to go to put Denver ahead for good, 118-116.

Buck Johnson hit one free throw and missed one with 27 seconds left to help Houston within one point. Lever scored on a corner jumper with three seconds to play to finish the scoring.

For most of the night, the contest was a scoring duel between Olatunju and Otis Thorpe, who had 28 points for the Rockets, and English and Lever.

Olatunju had 20 points in the first half to help the Rockets to a 64-49 lead. But Schayes quickly pulled Denver back into contention at the end of the third period, when a 21-7 Nuggets run brought Denver within 71-70.

Detroit 107 Chicago 94

CHICAGO (AP) — Adrian Dantley scored 22 points and Joe Dumars 20 as the Detroit Pistons took a first-quarter lead and stifled the Chicago Bulls 107-94 in an NBA season opener Tuesday night.

Michael Jordan, last season's league MVP, led the Bulls with 28 points. Sam Vincent added 16, John Paxson 15 and Bill Cartwright 14.

Detroit outscored Chicago 8-2 to open the third quarter and led 82-64 at the end of the period. The Bulls got no closer than 10 points after that.

The Bulls, who finished 50-32 last season, jumped out to a 12-4 lead with 7:53 left in the first quarter. But Detroit tied it 17-17 at two Dantley free throws with 3:05 left and dominated the rest of the first half.

The Pistons took the lead for good on Dantley's layup 21-20 with 1:21 left in the first quarter.

The Pistons led 62-42 at halftime after shooting 68 percent from the field to the Bulls' cool 37 percent in the second quarter. Dantley had 10 points and Vinnie Johnson nine at the half.

Boston 122 New York 115

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird scored six of his 29 points in an overtime surge sparked by rookie Brian Shaw Friday night as the Boston Celtics opened their 43rd season with a 122-115 NBA victory over the New York Knicks.

Shaw, a No. 1 draft pick from California, Barbara, passed to Bird for two baskets and to Dennis Johnson and Kevin McHale for another pair as the Celtics outscored the Knicks 15-8 in the extra session.

Bird-energized the Celtics to celebrate in Jimmy Rodgers' debut as the 10th coach in Boston history by tying the score 107-107 with two free throws with 14 seconds left in regulation.

Kevin McHale hit 25 points, while Robert Parish had 21 and also grabbed 22 rebounds, collected three assists and blocked three shots.

The Celtics withstood New York's aggressive ballhawking tactics and spoiled a comeback by the Knicks' Patrick Ewing, who had only four points while plagued by three fouls in the first half.

Milwaukee 117 Indiana 103

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ricky Pierce came off the bench to score 11 of his 28 points in the second half as Milwaukee beat Indiana 117-103 in the season-opener for the NBA teams Friday night.

Terry Cummings contributed 26 points for the Bucks and Chuck Person led the Pacers with 23, including 11 in the first quarter.

Indiana, which led only once, had its hopes for a comeback victory fade as it went more than four minutes without a field goal down the stretch.

Pierce had his team's first six points in the fourth quarter, twice giving the Bucks their biggest lead of 16 points. Training 94-78, the Pacers got four points each from Reggie Miller and Vern Fleming in a 14-2 spurt that pulled Indiana within 92-92 with 5:56 remaining.

A Pierce basket and two by Cummings built Milwaukee's advantage to 102-94. Indiana never seriously challenged as it had only five free throws within a three-minute period, falling behind 108-99.

Moving the ball inside easily, the Bucks shot 64 percent to lead 31-23 after one quarter.

Philadelphia 129 L.A. Clippers 110

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley scored 33 points and Olympian Hershey Hawkins added 20 points in his NBA debut as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 129-110 Friday night.

Hawkins, the nation's leading collegiate scorer last year at Bradley, hit two field goals and two foul shots during a 13-4 run that extended Philadelphia's lead from 65-49 to 68-53 at halftime.

Barkley scored 17 points in the third quarter to help Philadelphia hold off a Los Angeles surge that saw the Clippers pull to within 76-70 on a jump shot by Ken Norman with 6:48 left in the period.

After Norman's shot, Barkley scored the next four points, and the Clippers never threatened after that.

Norman paced the Clippers with 22 points.

Olympian Charles Smith of the Clippers had 15 points, including 11 in the second half, in his NBA debut during the season opener for both teams.

Atlanta 113 New Jersey 105

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Dominique Wilkins scored 16 of his 35 points in the final period to revive a sleeping Atlanta offense and lead the Hawks to a season-opening 113-105 victory over the recently revamped New Jersey Nets on Friday night.

The victory was the Hawks 14th straight over New Jersey dating to February, 1986. This one did not come easy over a Nets team that had only four players from last year's 19-63 squad.

The difference, as usual, was Wilkins. The All-Star forward snapped the final tie of the game by banking in an 8-foot shot in the lane for a 98-96 lead with 2:52 to go.

Moses Malone, the free agent center the Hawks signed after last season, then fired in a 15-foot shot to stretch the margin to four points.

John Bagley sank two foul shots to get New Jersey within two points with 2:04 left.

But Wilkins sank a running one-hander from the left side and a foul shot. Spud Webb scored on a breakaway layup and Wilkins followed with a basket off a rebound and a foul shot.

Atlanta suddenly was ahead 108-100 and never got in trouble again.

Girls' basketball: Shoshone Indians come back to beat Wendell, 44-41

SHOSHONE — Jackie Gwenchea and Raylene Duffin scored a field goal each in overtime Friday night to HR the Shoshone Indians past the Wendell Trojans 44-41.

Wendell led Trojans most of the first half but Shoshone started coming back in the third quarter and then assumed control of the boards early in the fourth period when Rachelle Schraft and Heidi Houpe fouled out.

Still Wendell stayed close and forced the overtime when Cami Newton scored.

But in the extra session, Gwenchea and Duffin picked up crumbles and Linda Helely hit one of her throws while Wendell could manage just two-for-four from the foul line.

Wendell took the opener 36-33.

Jerome 46 Mountain Home 37

MOUNTAIN HOME — Liz Gilbertson fourth-quarter scoring and a late spread of defense carried the Jerome girls to a 46-37 basketball victory over Mountain Home Friday night.

Robert hit 10 of her 19 points in the fourth quarter when Jerome was expanding a six-point lead to the final margin. Her scoring put Jerome in position to use the spread and criss-cross and hit a couple of backdoor crissles and hit free throws coming to the wire to stay in front.

Mountain Home took the preliminary 28-19.

Clark County 26 Richfield 34

LEADORE — The Richfield girls picked up the winning margin in the second quarter Friday night to tip Clark County 26-26 and climb into the championship of the Leadore basketball tournament.

The Tigers will take an Leadore in Saturday night's championship battle.

Leading 6-2 after a slow start, Richfield pushed ahead 18-10 in the second period, that scoring largely provided by Melinda Ward who canned seven free throws in that span. Ward's penetration caused Clark County to commit a lot of fouls all night.

Buhl was ahead just 26-22 at intermission but behind the pressing and the nine-points of Jami Corte, had things easy after Filer failed to score in the third eight minutes.

Buhl's way also was helped by the rebounding of Regina Wray and Shannon Cate. Buhl's jayvees took the opener 33-29, leaving both Indian teams at 2-0.

McNeil wins 2 in Wightman Cup

LONDON (AP) — Lori McNeil rallied to win her singles match, then teamed with Betsy Nagelsen to win the doubles Friday as the United States retained the Wightman Cup by taking an unbeatable 4-0 lead over Britain in the best-of-seven series.

McNeil overcame Sara Gomer 6-7 (6-7), 6-4, 6-4 to give the Americans a 3-0 lead, then teamed with Nagelsen to beat Gomer and Julie Salmon 6-3, 6-2 to give the Americans their 50th win in 60 meetings. Britain hasn't won since 1978.

McNeil and Nagelsen, doubles partners on the women's pro tour, had wasted several chances to put the first set away early.

Gomer and Salmon saved three set points in the eighth game and four more in the ninth before the Americans finally won. In the second set, McNeil and Nagelsen raced to a 4-0 lead and coasted to the victory.

As Nagelsen won the final point, a forehead down the middle, American supporters in the mainly pro-British crowd at the Royal Albert Hall waved their flags and cheered wildly.

"It's excellent to win. I feel great. The atmosphere was unbelievable," McNeil said. "I was a little nervous since I hadn't played here before."

Three more matches, two singles and a doubles, will be played Saturday.

In the first match, McNeil, ranked 12th in the world, took advantage of an ankle injury to Gomer to wear down her opponent after Gomer's spirited serve-and-volley game took her to the brink of an upset.

"I wasn't playing my best and just pulled it out. That made it even more pleasurable for me," McNeil said. "Sara played better than I've ever seen her play before. Winning that match took a lot of pressure off the doubles."

McNeil, who came close to beating top-ranked Steffi Graf in a tournament at Brighton last week, needed 2 hours, 17 minutes to outlast Gomer, who used a strong serve and good approach shots to win the first-set tiebreaker and take a 3-1 lead in the second set.

McNeil rallied to even the match on her fifth set point. But Gomer, ranked 52nd in the world, took the initiative in the final set. She broke McNeil to take a 3-2 lead and needed only to hold serve to win the match.

Cochran leads Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Russ Cochran compiled another 7-under-par 65 Friday and took a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $600,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"No question about it, that's the best back-to-back rounds I've ever had," Cochran said after reaching the halfway point in 130, 14 under par.

"I'm not going to play much better than that," said Cochran, a left-hander who has yet to win in six seasons on the PGA Tour.

South African David Frost was second at 132 after his second 66 on the TPC course at San Pasa.

"The magic of TPC did not put a whole lot of fear in the hearts of the players today," wryly commented veteran Hale Irwin, who had a 65 and failed to gain on the leader.

He remained four strokes back at 134.

"It's difficult to believe that you shoot seven under par and don't make up any ground. But that's the nature of the Tour today," Irwin said.

John Cook and Don Pooley were next at 135. Pooley shot a 65 and Cook had a 68.

Tom Purtzer made the biggest move with a 10-under-par, career-best 62 that put him in a seven-way tie at 136.

Purtzer, a Phoenix resident, said he seriously considered not playing in this tournament because early-week commitments prohibited a practice round.

"I don't like to play a tournament cold. I actually flipped a coin Tuesday night to decide if I'd play," he said.

Purtzer, who started from the 10th tee, had nine birdies, an eagle, one bogey and seven pars.

The eagle, which came on a 50-foot, double-breaking putt on the fifth hole, came after a string of six consecutive birdies and put Purtzer 10-under for the day with four holes to play.

At that point, he needed three more birdies to become only the second man to shoot 59 in PGA Tour competition.

"I didn't realize I was 10-under for the day right away, but we had a wait on the next tee and all of a sudden I'm really golly,"

"I really wanted to make three birdies on the next four holes," he said, but he parred them all and really didn't have a birdie opportunity.

He was tied at 8-under with U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange, Corey Pavin, Curt Byrum, Mark O'Meara, Howard Twitty and Bryon Wrenn.

Twitty had a 65, Wrenn a 66, Strange and Byrum shot 68s, O'Meara had a 69 and Pavin shot a 70.

Bedrosian signs 3-year, $4 million contract with Philadelphia

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Bedrosian, the 1987 National League Cy Young Award winner, agreed to a three-year contract for $4.5 million with the Philadelphia Phillies on Friday instead of filing for free agency.

Bedrosian, who had 26 saves this season after saving 40 in 1987, will get $1.45 million in each of the next three years. He made $925,000 this year.

Pitchers Rick Honeycutt of Oakland and Dennis Lamp of Boston did file for free agency according to the Major League Baseball Players Association, raising the total of free agents to 73, but several other players agreed to new contracts with their present teams.

Shortstop Alfredo Griffin, who filed for free agency on Oct. 31, agreed to a two-year, $2-million contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He gets a $200,000 signing bonus and $900,000 each in 1989 and 1990. The Dodgers have an option at $900,000 in 1991.

Outfielder Glenn Wilson, whose $350,000 option was not exercised by the Pittsburgh Pirates, agreed to a two-year contract for $1.5 million.

Catcher Don Slaught agreed to a two-year contract with the New York Yankees for $1.3 million and pitcher Gene Nelson agreed to a two-year contract with Oakland.

Also, pitcher Dan Petry agreed to a one-year contract with California while the Minnesota Twins exercised the option for 1989 in a contract of pitcher Shane Rawley, whom they acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies. And Carmelo Martinez, who led the San Diego Padres with 18 homers, filed a demand to be traded.

Late Thursday, Mickey Hatcher agreed to a one-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers for $450,000 and Alejandro Pona, who had filed for free agency on Wednesday, agreed to a two-year contract with the Dodgers for a guaranteed $2.15 million.

Pena gets a $200,000 signing bonus, will earn $775,000 next year and $875,000 in 1990. Los Angeles has an option for 1991 at $1 million but must pay him a $300,000 buyout if the option is not exercised.

Several players eligible for free agency did not file. Pitcher Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays and outfielder Mookie Wilson of the New York Mets have options in their contracts. Toronto has until March 15 to decide on Stieb and the Mets have until Nov. 15 to decide on Wilson.

Others not filing were pitcher Bert Blyleven, acquired by California from Minnesota on Thursday, second baseman Tom Herr of Philadelphia, infielders Glenn Hubbard and Tony Phillips of Oakland, infielder Ted Simmons of Atlanta, outfielder Jerry Mumphrey of Chicago, first baseman Leon Durham of Cincinnati, infielder Tommy Herr and pitcher Kent Tekulve of Philadelphia and catcher Bob Brenly of San Francisco.

Pat owner's stadium bid unsealed WBC forbids South African athletes from joining

BOSTON (AP) — Victor Kiam's bid for Sullivan Stadium and one from a competing group were unsealed Friday by a federal bankruptcy judge in the latest effort to settle ownership of the New England Patriots' home.

Kiam, who formally purchased the Patriots from team founder William Sullivan on Oct. 28 for $85 million, is trying to buy the 61,000-seat stadium in suburban Foxboro. Sullivan and current team minority owner Fran Murray also are involved in the deal.

They are competing against Boston businessman Robert Kraft and Steve Karp.

Kraft's bid unsealed Friday involved $25 million cash, an increase of $2.4 million from a previous bid, said Robert Caporale, the attorney for bankruptcy trustee Stanley Miller.

The Kiam group's bid was $27 million, but only $19.85 million was in cash. The rest involves a waiver of claims held against the stadium by William Sullivan and Fran Murray, Caporale said.

Sullivan Stadium, which was controlled by Stadium Management Corp., owned by Sullivan's son, Charles, was placed in bankruptcy in March. At the time of the filing, creditors were owed $56 million.

"Lawyers for creditors will analyze the proposals over the weekend, and then it will be taken up on Monday morning by Judge James Gabriel in U.S. Bankruptcy Court," Caporale said.

Gabriel will hear objections on file and will determine if any of them will be withdrawn. He then could seek a recommendation from attorneys for the trustees and then decide the next steps, said Caporale.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — During the final session of its 25th annual convention, the World Boxing Council on Friday approved a motion forbidding South African athletes to join the WBC even if they personally oppose that country's policy of racial separation.

The WBC's medical commission also delivered a report alerting boxers, trainers and promoters to the danger of AIDS.

"We can't suggest specific measures" for boxing commissions to follow when they discover a boxer carries the AIDS virus, "but we should follow the medical advice of all we know," the report said.

The report said folders of information about acquired immune deficiency syndrome would be distributed to boxing gymnasiums throughout the world to help young athletes understand the need for caution.

On Wednesday, the WBC approved a similar campaign against drug use.

The medical report also discussed the possibility of lengthening the rest period between rounds, currently at one minute, but concluded there is not yet sufficient medical evidence that that would reduce injury or improve boxing.

A motion by the African Boxing Federation seeking WBC affiliates to exclude boxers and other South African athletes was passed.

"We have information that (South African) athletes, trainers and promoters are trying to join the WBC. It is not sufficient that they are opposed to apartheid as individuals," the motion said.

The WBC also ordered a super flyweight rematch between Juan Carazo of Puerto Rico and Santos Laciara of Argentina after approving a protest by Laciara's handlers over a decision favoring Carazo in an Oct. 9 fight at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Carazo is ranked as the No. 1 challenger to titleholder Gilberto Roman of Mexico, and Laciara is ranked No. 2.

An eight-member commission reviewed a video of the fight and voted 7-1 in favor of Laciara's protest.

"It was an incident to bring this protest to the convention," Yamil Chaded, one of Carazo's managers, said, adding that the decision discredits the judges who gave Carazo the fight.

The date and site of the rematch have not been set, but Chaded said he wanted to have it within the next four months.

President Reagan calls ailing Ditka

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan called hospitalized Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka from his stateroom aboard Air Force One on Friday and told him, "You continue to be in our thoughts and prayers, Mike. Take it easy."

Before departing Chicago's O'Hare International Airport after a treaty-signing ceremony, Reagan called Lake Forest Hospital, where Ditka is recovering from a mild heart attack Wednesday.

"I just happened to be in the area, Mike, and wanted to give you a call," said the president.

Ditka asked: "Do you have enough votes for Tuesday?"

Reagan, on a campaign swing for Vice President George Bush, replied: "I hope so. And I hope you're feeling better and will be back on the sideline soon."

Hearns wins bout after near KO

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Thomas Hearns, fighting desperately after nearly being knocked out in the fourth round, rallied in the late rounds Friday night to win a majority decision over James Kinchen in a 12-round super middleweight fight.

Hearns barely kept alive his hopes of a rematch with Sugar Ray Leonard by capturing many of the late rounds to win a decision that was widely booed by the crowd of 7,623 at the Las Vegas Hilton.

Leonard, who meets Donny Lalonde Monday night at Las Vegas, stopped Hearns in the 14th round of their Sept. 1981 welterweight title fight.

In earlier bouts on the card, Robert Hines battled back from two early knockdowns to capture a unanimous 12-round decision over previously unbeaten Matthew Hilton and win the International Boxing Federation junior-middleweight title. And unbeaten Michael Nunn knocked out Argentina's Juan Domingo Roldan in the eighth round to retain his International Boxing Federation middleweight title.

Future could be bitter for distance runner Salazar

NEW YORK (AP) — For distance runner Alberto Salazar, the memories are sweet. The future, however, could be bitter.

Salazar, the American record-holder in the marathon, was at the peak of his career during the early 1980s, when he won the New York City Marathon from 1980-82 and the Boston Marathon in 1989.

He ran five of the 10 fastest times ever by an American and was the last American to break 2 hours, 10 minutes, running 2:09:21 at Fukuoka, Japan, on Dec. 4, 1983.

In recent years, however, Salazar has been hampered by a series of leg injuries, two of which required surgery, and there is serious doubt he ever will return to his old form.

Worse yet, he might never race again.

"Whether he does, depends on whether he can regain some of his former speed. He has set goals of 1:35:45 for 5,000 meters and 28:30 for 10,000 meters — distances at which Salazar used to hold the American records."

"I will not run until I am completely ready," said Salazar, 30, who is in town to watch Sunday's New York City Marathon, in which John Treacy of Ireland, Steve Jones of Wales and Wodajo Bulli of Ethiopia are considered the favorites, with first-time marathoner Mark Menow of the United States a longshot.

"It would be embarrassing to run slower than the 'target' times. It doesn't do me any good."

"I do hope to run again."

To prepare for his comeback, Salazar had been running about 50 miles per week under the guidance of Bill Dollinger, his former coach at the University of Oregon, but now has decreased the distance to 30 miles. He doesn't think long mileage does any good, until he can run fast.

"I've got to get the speed I once had, even though it was not great by any standards," Salazar said. "I'm continuing to push."

On his way home to Eugene, Ore., from this trip, Salazar plans to stop in Houston and work with Tom Tellex, coach of Carl Lewis, the two-time Olympic 100-meter champion.

"We will work on sprint technique, do as well as I did before," he said. "If I can't, I'm not smart enough."

"My basic conditioning is great. It's just a matter of getting the legs running faster. If by a month ago, they (the muscles) were not normal, I would have been finished. Now, I feel I'm at about 97 percent full strength."

Salazar said he has given himself a deadline to return to his old form.

"If by the fall of next year, I don't show significant improvement, if I can't do the things I want, I will retire," he said.

Meanwhile, he will watch Sunday's race with great interest.

"The top women contenders are 1984 Olympic champion Joan Benoit Samuelson of the United States, eight-time New York City Marathon winner Grete Waitz of Norway; defending champion Priscilla Welch of Britain and 1988 Olympic fourth-place finisher Tatjana Polovinskaya of the Soviet Union."

Cuba announces it will be at Barcelona Olympics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba will participate in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain after boycotting this year's games in South Korea.

The official Cuban news service reported Friday.

Fernando Latorre, monitored in Mexico City, said Friday that Cuban officials hope their athletes will return from the Barcelona games with as many as a dozen gold medals.

The news service said Cuban runner Alberto Juantorena told Japanese journalists his nation's athletes are expected to excel in baseball, boxing, fencing, wrestling, weightlifting and volleyball during the 1992 games.

"It is difficult to predict this far ahead, but the goal will be within our athletic possibilities," said Juantorena, who won two Olympic gold medals and is now the vice president of the Cuban National Sports Institute.

The runner said Cuba's goal had been to win as many as a dozen medals in Seoul this year, but "the denial of co-hosting of the Olympics prevented the participation of Cuban athletes," according to Prensa Latina.

Cuba won eight gold medals during the 1980 Olympics in Moscow, but boycotted the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles along with most Soviet-bloc nations.

that it be allowed to co-host the Games.

Solicitor questions ex-S. Carolina grid player's drug allegations

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Solicitor James Anders said Friday he's starting to question the truthfulness of allegations by ex-South Carolina football player Tommy Chaikin concerning drug use on the team.

Meanwhile, Chaikin said SLED, the top law enforcement agency in the state, and the University of South Carolina were trying to prosecute him and that he didn't know what the investigators wanted from him.

Investigators have said they need to talk with Chaikin and any others who were involved to confirm that their public comments were indeed accurate.

Anders also said in an interview that Chaikin had fired attorney Lawrence Richter of Charleston, who had served as Chaikin's lawyer for only about one week.

Anders and Richter were scheduled to meet Friday in Columbia to discuss a preliminary probe by the State Law Enforcement Agency into the charges by Chaikin.

"Chaikin, in my opinion, is avoiding any contact with my office or any law enforcement officer," Anders said. "I am greatly disturbed at his apparent willingness to help us clean up the system in the beginning and his now most unavailable position."

Anders said he was beginning to concern himself about his sincerity and his truthfulness in his allegations.

Chaikin told The Greenville News last week that he was willing to cooperate with SLED. But SLED has not been able to question Chaikin, according to the solicitor.

"We're going to persist in meeting with him, and I certainly hope he has an attitude change," Anders said.

In an interview with The Associated Press on Friday, Chaikin at first did not want to discuss the matter and then said everything he knew about drug use by players at the school was in his Sports Illustrated article.

"Well, I'm willing to cooperate with them, but I mean I don't know what else they want to know because everything that I said is in the article," Chaikin said in a telephone interview from his Bethesda, Md., home. "I don't know what else I can tell them. I don't know what they're trying to get at."

"We think it's just ludicrous that the university or the law enforcement agency down here is trying to prosecute me for things that happened."

Asked if he would consent to be questioned by SLED, Chaikin said: "I'll just have to wait to see what happens at this point, see what goes on."

Chaikin said there was no specific reason he fired Richter.

Cincinnati tries to keep up spirits despite ruling

CINCINNATI (AP) — Seniors on the University of Cincinnati are trying to keep their spirits up despite learning that penalties for university violations of NCAA rules will keep them out of postseason play in 1988-89.

Before the season had even begun, the Cincinnati seniors learned Thursday that they have no chance of making the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament and no hope of playing in the Metro Conference tournament.

The NCAA levied the punishment and other penalties, including limits on the numbers of scholarships that may be distributed, because of university violations in administering its football and men's basketball programs. The penalties also include the football team out of postseason play this year.

But senior center Cedric Glover said he still will play hard this season for the Bearcats. He said the team will treat each of the 27 games on its schedule this year as championship games.

"I think it will actually fire us up," Glover said. "I look at this as an opportunity to go out and leave the public thinking, 'What if?'"

The NCAA penalties included a cutback in the number of scholarships that Cincinnati basketball coach Tony Yates can offer for the next two seasons.

For the 1989-90 season, the Bearcats will be limited to 11 scholarships instead of the normal maximum allotment of 15. With 18 scholarship players on the squad this year and four seniors leaving into the NBA.

Yates has just two scholarships to offer next season. In 1990-91, the Bearcats will be limited to 12 scholarships.

Yates refused to comment on the NCAA findings and the sanctions imposed on his program.

Hoop coach feels pressure for 19 losing seasons

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — The upcoming basketball season could mark the end of an astounding survival story in college sports. How else can you describe the saga of a coach who has lasted 19 years at the same Division I school with a 184-313 record?

"They're not known for firing coaches at New Hampshire," Coach Gerry Friel said.

But even at a state university where academics always comes before athletics, it is difficult to swallow consecutive basketball seasons of 4-24 and 4-25.

Interim men's athletic director Lionel Carbonneau said Friel has met with UNH president Gordon Haaland "and I think he understands what the president has told him."

"I think the president has felt some pressure from the alumni. They're saying, 'How long is it going to take? It's been 19 years and there is a question whether Gerry is the guy to turn it around.'"

In his first 18 years at UNH, Friel worked on one-year contracts under Athletic Director Andy Mooradian, who felt Friel did as well as possible with a meager recruiting budget.

But Mooradian retired last year, and 8-49 can be embarrassing.

"There's no problem if we win, I'm sure," Friel,

45, said of a change. "If we don't win, that remains to be seen. I'm not so naive to think if you have a whole new operation that they may not be thinking that way."

The outlook isn't bright this year after Friel failed to recruit a big man. Coming off the last two disastrous seasons and 7-22 and 11-18 seasons before those, Friel enters his 20th year without a center taller than 6-foot-7.

"He's caught in a very difficult situation as far as the recruiting," Carbonneau said. "It's difficult when you're in a losing program to get people to come."

Wyoming standouts have different NBA openings

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — Fennis Dembo and Eric Leckner, the dynamic duo behind Wyoming's fan-pleasing seasons the last two years, have had differing experiences with their forays into the NBA.

Leckner is living up to the hopes the Utah Jazz had for him when they made the 6-foot-9 forward their top draft pick this year.

In eight exhibition games, Leckner averaged 18.6 minutes, 7.6 points, 3.5 rebounds, shot 45 percent from the field and blocked three shots.

He had a high of 16 points against Indiana, scored 11 points in an overtime loss to Golden State and scored 13 points in a victory over Philadelphia.

"He was the talk of that game" against Philadelphia, said Salt-Lake-Tribune writer Steve Lahm.

But Dembo's guaranteed contract may be the only reason he's been able to hang on to his spot with the Detroit Pistons.

"Poor old Fennis is lost," said Corky Meinecke, the Pistons' beat writer with the Detroit News. "He's been in a funk from Day 1 (of professional training camp). He's really having trouble making the switch from small forward to big guard."

Known as "Electric" Fennis at Wyoming, the 6-foot-5 Dembo scored 2,251 points as a Gowby forward.

"He doesn't have an outside shot, and he isn't able to create a shot," said Meinecke. "He's having a heck of a time trying to defend anybody."

In becoming the school's career scoring and rebounding champion, Dembo incited crowds and rivals with first-waving, camera mugging, opponent taunting, and other outbursts of emotion.

Now his play inspires a seat at the end-of-Coach-Chuek-Daly's-bench.

Winning Colors leads pack at Breeders' Cup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's the first Saturday in November, not May, but many of the best races in the world will run at Churchill Downs nevertheless.

Two of them once starred on the most famous first Saturday in American racing — the first Saturday in May — Kentucky Derby Day.

Winning Colors returns to the Downs six months after she won the Derby to challenge unbeaten Eteson at Epsom in the $1 million Breeders' Cup Distaff.

Alysheba is back 18 months after he won the Derby and is favored to win the $3 million Classic.

It will be his third shot at a Breeders' Cup title — he finished third in the 1986 Juvenile and second in the 1987 Classic. A victory would push him past the retired John Henry ($6,491,860) into first place on the all-time money-earnings list.

Julie Krone returns 10 years after she galloped a horse as a 15-year-old at Churchill Downs.

Krone will become the first woman to ride in a Breeder's Cup race in the five-year-history of the $10 million, seven-race series. Forty Niner chased Winning Colors home in the Derby.

"The sun shines bright on my old Kentucky Home," the song says, and it usually does on the Derby field.

Breeders' Cup horses, however, will compete in shadow. The weather forecast calls for a cloudy, windy day with 50 percent chance of rain and temperatures in the mids-50s.

The NBC telecast runs from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. EST, and posttime for the Classic is 5:30 p.m.

Irish, W. Virginia might play in Gator

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Gator Bowl officials say they're close to putting together a $6 million package aimed at luring top-ranked Notre Dame and undefeated West Virginia to the Jan. 1 game.

"We're very bullish on making this thing happen. We've got a few details to work out concerning what we think is the amount of money it will take to put this game together, but we feel that will be accomplished by the middle of next week," Gator Bowl President John Bell said.

Each team has three games left, and the $3 million offer per team would stand regardless of whether either suffers a loss.

Bowl bids cannot be extended until Nov. 10.

"Obviously, it's something we would like to have happen. It's something we think may happen," said Loren Matthews, vice president of ESPN, the cable television network which has the broadcast rights to this year's Gator Bowl.

Matthews admitted that the $3 million per team offer might be glib, but he said his network "is willing to roll the dice."

The Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., is also angling to get Notre Dame and West Virginia for its game, set for Jan. 2. The Gator Bowl is the only bowl game being played on Jan. 1.

Bell said he couldn't reveal who put up what parts of the financial package, but he said the Gator Bowl has some advantages weighing in its favor.
