People crowded into Twin Falls stores, as in these at Magic Valley Mall, as Christmas shopping began Friday

Holiday shoppers are buyers this year

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — From big chain stores to church bazaar vendors, business boomed Friday for Twin Falls merchants, thanks to a good harvest and recent rainfall that merchants say have put farmers in the mood for Christmas spending.

The farmers set the tone for everybody, summed up Ken Rivers, manager at the Lynwood Center King's. He said sales on the day after Thanksgiving, the traditional Christmas shopping kickoff, were 10 to 20 percent higher this year than on the same day last year. But he said he expects the store's biggest day of the year will be the day before Christmas.

Margaret Cook's booth at the St. Edward's Catholic Church holiday bazaar was selling so much she sent her husband home to replenish their stock of dried flowers and arrangements.

"It was a good harvest — the bean harvest was excellent — and there's a lot more money in the valley," Cook said. Mary Fuchs, the bazaar's organizer, estimated 400 to 500 people

Gifts for 12 days cost less than in '87

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Buying your true love the gifts in the "Twelve Days of Christmas" will cost you more than a song but less than last year.

The 12th day would cost $13,785.63, down 0.6 percent, said Robert Christian, director of economic and fixed income research at a Philadelphia bank.

If you were to buy or hire each item every day it is mentioned in the popular carol, you'd spend a total of $67,745.74, down 1.4 percent from last year.

"This may be due to a decrease in the price of five gold rings, which are down $125, or 20 percent, from a high of $750 in 1987," Christian said.

Besides gold rings, the real deal this year is a partridge in a pear tree — $39.95, down $5 because of lower pear tree costs. Pipers piping and drummers drumming cost more this year, and all other gifts remained unchanged.

This is the fourth year Christian has compiled his CPI, or Christmas Price Index. He consults zoos, importers and the entertainment industry for figures.

Here are the 1988 prices:

- *A partridge in a pear tree, $39.95, down $5.
- *Two turtle doves, $50, unchanged.
- *Three French hens, $15, unchanged.
- *Four calling birds, $280, unchanged.
- *Five gold rings, $625, down $125.
- *Six geese-a-laying, $150, unchanged.
- *Seven swans-a-swimming, $7,000, unchanged.
- *Eight maids-a-milking, $26.90 a day, unchanged.
- *Nine ladies dancing, $1,000 a day, unchanged.
- *Ten lords-a-leaping, $2,000 a day, up $220.
- *Eleven pipers piping, $863.46 a day, up $21.26.
- *Twelve drummers drumming, $535.42 a day, up $22.82.

ple had gone through the parish hall doors — but she was too busy serving food to be sure.

"Life is really very good in the valley right now," said Doug Sharp, The Bon's resident general manager.

"Bush won overwhelmingly, the farmers had a record harvest and commodity prices are up."

Sharp said the moisture has helped give farmers confidence.

"And if the farmers stop spending money, everyone stops spending money," he said.

At 1 p.m. Friday, sales at The Bon were 54 percent ahead of the same time last year. Sharp said the day's spending pace was six times that of a normal day.

Lines seemed the longest at toy counters.

Rivers said radio-controlled cars and old-fashioned dolls were top sellers at King's. He said there really isn't one toy that's outselling the rest as in years past.

Shanna Harvey at The Toy Shop in Blue Lakes Mall said people are buying earlier than usual, and more so.

Producers file liens for beans in warehouse

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
and CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County recorder's office was as busy Friday as any Christmas-crowded department store, as bean producers and their lawyers stood in line to file liens against the Hawkins Co. Ltd.

Since Tuesday, 105 liens have been filed to secure $3.5 million worth of dry beans.

The Hawkins Co. in Filer had its bean warehouse license suspended Tuesday after the company's directors said they had discovered "certain inventory inconsistencies" and asked the state to step in. The state Bureau of Warehouse Control will begin an official inventory and audit of the company Monday.

The company is voluntarily interviewing all its bean producers to check their records against the company's.

Roger Vincent, a grower near Filer, recorded a lien Wednesday on $280,000 worth of beans. It's just one more method of trying to secure what is rightfully his, he said.

"As farmers we're just grasping.

We're still in a state of shock," Vincent said. "But the beans still belong to the growers."

Harry DeHaan, a Twin Falls attorney representing a number of farmers with beans in the Hawkins warehouse, said filing a lien could mean the difference between getting paid and not getting paid if the company is forced to liquidate and there isn't enough money to go around.

According to DeHaan, bean producers who file liens will be ahead of three other sets of people in the pay-out line:

- * Producers who don't file.
- * A secured creditor is way ahead of an unsecured one, DeHaan said. "Secured creditors get paid in full before unsecured creditors get a penny."
- * Lien holders who file later.

"Getting there first makes a difference," DeHaan said. "The moment that lien is recorded may be important."

Priority liens of equal status are paid on a first-filed, first-paid basis.

- * Hawkins Co.'s major creditors, such as its bank.

A fairly recent state law allows agriculture commodity producers to Hospital purchases apartment complex

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — To the tune of nearly $300,000, the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center has purchased a parcel of property due east of the hospital — a 26-unit apartment complex at 128 Martin St.

An orange "Sold" sign has been plastered over the American Real Estate & Appraisal sign advertising the sale of the red brick complex.

The sale does not include all of the units in that complex, said Bob Valentine, chairman of the county hospital board. And it does not include the adjoining lot that contains a large gray auction barn. The medical office to the north of the apartments did not change hands either.

Reached at his home Friday evening, Valentine did not have the exact numbers with him, but he said he thought the cost of the property was $346,000.

"That's just a ballpark figure. But I know it was between $340,000 and $550,000," he said.

The deed to the property was filed late Wednesday afternoon with the county recorder. The Times-News learned of the filing late Friday afternoon.

The sellers are listed as H. Gene Williams and Carol Williams.

Valentine said the board decided to buy the property for future needs and that there are no immediate plans for the land or the apartments.

"Nothing's going to change as far as the apartment complex," Valentine said. "We're not going to take people out. It will stay as is."

Valentine said the property had been in bankruptcy court in Salt Lake City when it caught the board's attention.

"We looked at it and there had been one previous offer on the property that had been turned down," he said.

The board placed an offer that was higher, and it was accepted.

The offer had to be submitted to the bankruptcy court, which only convenes at certain scheduled times.

The board did not go public with the information because it feared someone else would place a higher offer before the court convened again, Valentine said.

"Someone could have placed an offer only $500 higher and gotten it," Valentine explained.

All public agencies have the right to keep real estate matters private until the deal is completed.

Valentine said the board finalized its vote to purchase the land at its Nov. 8 executive session meeting.

He said the board had originally set down earnest money under an assumed name, but that the hospital revealed its true identity to the sellers when the negotiations began, as required by law.

OPEC price pact could hurt American economy

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A tentative agreement by OPEC to curb oil production, still awaiting final approval by Iran, would be bad news for the incoming Bush administration and for the U.S. economy.

It would threaten higher oil prices, renewed inflation, higher interest rates and a worsening trade deficit, analysts said Friday.

"The bulk of the world and the world economy really are losers with significantly higher oil prices," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of The Boston Company Economic Advisors, Inc.

Despite widespread skepticism that the 13 nation cartel will keep to the agreement, crude oil prices erupted upward on European markets Friday in the wake of the decision Thursday to reduce production by 20 percent. With OPEC members talking hopefully of $18 a barrel oil, the price of North Sea Brent crude, a benchmark, rose by $1.75 to $1.85 a barrel in late trading, to $14.50.

If the agreement holds, wholesale prices of gasoline would increase by 3 cents to 5 cents a gallon, analysts said. But they were less certain of how quickly the increase would be passed on to consumers.

Past agreements have foundered as some

OPEC members cheated on the production curbs. There were further concerns Friday night that Iran's Islamic government might renege on the deal, which allows Iraq to produce as much oil as Iran.

The dollar, caught in the crosscurrents of competing economic interests, rose marginally in volatile trading in New York. It was pushed higher by intervention by Japan's central bank and the possibility of an oil price increase, which will hurt heavily oil-dependent countries such as Japan.

Sinai said higher oil prices almost certainly would add to inflation.

Cut subsidies, end farm dole, think tank advises Bush

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One of George Bush's first tasks as president should be to slash agricultural subsidies and "get farmers off the dole," according to a think tank with close ties to the administration.

A forthcoming policy guidebook from the Heritage Foundation argues that farm families generally are better off than their city counterparts, and that those who failed, with few exceptions, are victims of their own "get-rich-quick" fever.

Changes in farm law have moved agriculture closer to "a more market-based orientation and has allowed the prices of U.S. food commodities to become competitive in world markets," writes Charles Grizzle, a former senior official in the Agriculture Department.

Congress and the next administration will have no choice but to deal with the subsidy issue, since the 1986 farm law will expire in 1990. According to Agriculture Department finance officers, commodity price support operations rose to a record $5.8 billion in 1986, the first year of the new law, from $1.7 billion in 1985.

"Despite the media portrayal of the typical farmer as hard-pressed, farm families have had higher incomes than the median American family in every year since 1980," Grizzle said. "More important, the net worth of farm families far exceeds that of the American family."

With few exceptions, he said, the farmers and rural bankers who went broke during the hard times of the early 1980s, or who remain under financial stress today, are those who borrowed and invested heavily in "get-rich-quick speculative fever" of the 1970s.

Robert A. Denman, director of international and public affairs of the National Farmers Union, said he was surprised by the Heritage Foundation's blueprint because "it's the same thing they're always talking about" when it comes to farm policy.

Other recommendations include:

- * At least partial consolidation of some key USDA agencies, including the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, Extension Service and the Farmers Home Administration.

- * Getting the federal government out of the agricultural-credit business, including the sale of FmHA loan assets, which would take congressional approval.

- * Privatization of the Rural Electrification Administration, and private management of public lands.

- * An end to the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program.

Quake rattles parts of U.S., Canada

By The Associated Press

An earthquake rattled eastern Canada and the northeast quadrant of the United States on Friday, but there were no immediate reports of major damage or injuries.

The epicenter of the 4.6 p.m. MST quake was 90 miles north of Quebec City, Canada, with a preliminary magnitude of 6.0 on the Richter scale of ground motion, said U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Don Finley in Washington, D.C.

The quake knocked out power in Montreal and elsewhere in the province of Quebec. Canadian Press reported that the quake lasted about 15 to 20 seconds, and also was felt in Ottawa, Toronto and Quebec City.

A foreshock recorded Wednesday had a Richter magnitude of 4.5, Finley said.

In the United States, the quake was felt from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast, with tremors reported in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

There were no reports of damage to U.S. power plants, transmission lines, dams, and telephone lines.

"It was widely felt and the north-central and northeastern regions" of the United States, said Arch Johnston, director of the Center for Earthquake Research at Memphis State University in Tennessee.

"Some reported feeling it as far south as Washington, D.C."

Police, firefighters, radio and television stations were deluged with calls, officials said. Houses shook, ceilings cracked, dishes fell from shelves and windows rattled in the Northeast.

In New York City, firefighters went to 40 locations where there were reports of tremors but no damage could be found, said fire Lt. Kenneth Murphy.

In the central Vermont community of Berlin, a chimney collapsed but there were no injuries reported.

In Maine, the quake broke windows and knocked pictures off walls. However, the Secret Service in Kennebunkport said the quake was not felt at the weekend home of President-elect George Bush and his wife, Barbara.

Canadian Press said the tremor was felt all over the island of Montreal, along the north and south shores of the St. Lawrence River as well as in the Laurentians and Quebec City.

file beans for their agricultural production. The lien attaches when the crop is delivered to the purchaser. To secure the lien, however, written notice must be filed in the county recorder's office within 90 days of the sale.

A 1983 state law gives commodity producers' liens priority over the liens or security of other creditors. DeHanna said.

He is fairly certain the producers' priority also includes those who haven't sold their beans to Hawkins but have them stored in the warehouse.

As far as he knows, the producers' priority lien has not been tested in court, and other creditors may not like being put behind producers in the payout line.

"We may have a lawsuit with 200 growers on one side and the bank on the other," DeHanna said.

Andy Loggullier, another Filer-area farmer, learned of the Hawkins situation when he returned Tuesday from elk hunting. He talked to a lawyer as soon as possible, and his lawyer filed a lien Friday.

"A guy just doesn't know what to do," he said. "It just makes you sick when you hear it."

Hawkins already had agreed to buy his beans, he said.

"This deal I've got, the lawyer just told me to go down and make them pay me," he said.

Local bank officials have been getting calls from borrowers who were planning to pay their loans with beans they put in the Hawkins warehouse. Now, through no fault of their own, they may be unable to pay, and they wonder what their fate will be.

"The banks that finance bean production are all concerned," said Pat Hamilton Sr., president of the Farmers National Bank of Buhl. "Both the banks and the farmers know we are relying on the sale of those beans to pay off some operating loans."

Television game show host Bob Barker led 2,000 chanting animal rights activists down Fifth Avenue on Friday in the largest of nationwide protests against the killing of animals for their fur.

"Fur is murder! Don't buy fur!" they chanted, waving signs depicting cute creatures in various stages of annihilation.

"Where's mom?" said the caption on a picture of a baby racoon.

The protest, by Trans-Species Unlimited, was one of more than 60 the group said it held around the country as part of its third annual "Fur-Free Friday."

About 40 pickets protested outside Saks Fifth Avenue and Neiman-Marcus department stores in Beverly Hills, Calif., police said.

In Boston, more than 25 people clutching signs reading "Fur - The Ultimate Sedit Symbol" protested in front of a fur store.

Roxci Moser, 33, who was heckled when she walked by the protesters in a raccoon coat, said: "I noticed they were wearing leather shoes and I assume they ate turkey yesterday for Thanksgiving. If they want to see like that, they should be strict vegetarians and wear only cloth clothes."

In San Francisco, where "Gunsmoke" actress Amanda Blake led about 50 demonstrators in a rally, organizers said some dropped off furs as tax-deductible donations.

Blake explained her own decision 25 years ago to stop wearing real fur by saying, "It's agony for the animals and I don't believe that animals should have to suffer for some dumb broad's vanity - or for some stupid man's vanity, for that matter."

Today's weather

Breezes will keep that snow moving along

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding

Today, considerable clouds and a chance of snow showers. Highs in the mid 30s. Winds south 10 to 20 mph. Sunday increasing rain or snow. Highs in the 30s.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley

Today, considerable clouds and a chance of snow showers. Highs near 30. Breezy. Outlook for Sunday shows occasional snow. Lows in the teens. Highs in the 30s.

Northern Utah and Nevada

Utah - Periods of snow early today. Local heavy accumulation possible in the mountain areas. Decreasing clouds and snow showers this afternoon. Partly cloudy tonight and early Sunday. Increasing clouds Sunday afternoon. Lows tonight in the upper teens to mid 20s. Highs today and Sunday in the mid 30s to low 40s.

Nevada - Partly cloudy today with scattered snow showers decreasing from the west. Mostly partly sunny on Sunday. High temperatures in the 30s to 40s. Lows west to the middle 30s to middle 40s east. Lows in the teens or 20s.

Summary:

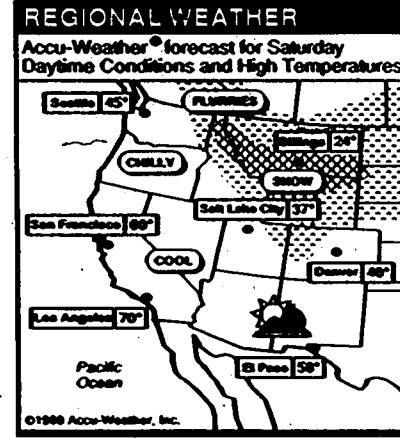

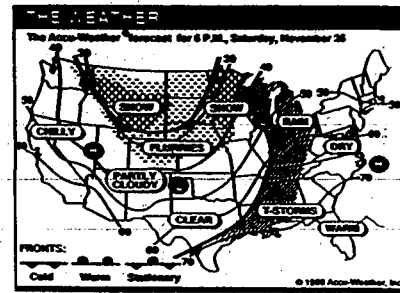

The National Weather Service says another in a series of weather disturbances moved across Idaho Friday.

This system spread a blanket of snow over the southern valleys and added to the snow over the higher ridges. Some improvement is expected today, but another system will move into the region on Sunday as the strong northwesterly winds from the Gulf of Alaska continue to bring cool moist air to the Intermountain region.

As of early Friday afternoon, Boise had received one inch of new snow. Fairly strong winds were blowing over the southern valleys Friday afternoon with Boise recording gusts to 25 mph and Twin Falls gusting to near 30 mph. The upper Snake River Valley was also windy.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho shows scattered snow showers Monday, Dry Tuesday and Wednesday. Areas of valley fog and low clouds, Highs 30s to the mid 40s. Lows mostly 20s west and to the east.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 87 degrees at McAllen, Texas. The lowest was below zero at Jackson, Wis.

Molesters belong in prison, sheriff says
POCATELLO (AP) — Although he supports mandatory sentences for child molesters, Bannock County Sheriff S.R. Gameson says he can't back a suggestion they serve time in county jails rather than the state prison.

The sheriff was among those attending a recent Idaho Association of Counties meeting where Gov. Cecil Andrus' Children at Risk Task Force's recommendations were reviewed. The group calls for mandatory time in jail or prison on a sexual abuse conviction.

Gameson said his jail is full and other counties face the same situation.

"We could not enter into a contract to take any more prisoners that really should be in the state penitentiary," Gameson said. "The need is there, but we just don't have the room for them."

He said his sentiments were echoed by sheriffs in Cassia, Fremont and Lewis counties.

Anti-drug project faces extinction
POCATELLO (AP) — Budget reductions have placed southeastern Idaho's anti-drug Project Crackdown in jeopardy, authorities say.

The program, which received a $129,652 Criminal Justice Support Bureau grant in 1988, will be cut to $87,000 in 1989, said Capt. Lynn Harris of the Pocatello Police Department. The funding request was for $89,000.

That money will just cover the salary and benefits of the program's two investigators, Harris said. But funds are needed for vehicle rentals, a part-time prosecutor and to make the drug buys that lead to arrests.

"With what they've given us next year, we'll have some real difficulty keeping the program going. We're going to be struggling," Harris said.

The board of directors from six counties will look for ways to keep Project Crackdown alive.

Pilot error, weather caused crash

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Pilot error compounded by bad weather caused a 1987 crash of a private plane near Cody, Wyo., that killed three Idaho Falls businessmen, the National Transportation Safety Board has concluded.

The May 20, 1987, crash and fire killed pilot John Chaffin, 49, and passengers Stephen Burggraf, 37, and Gary Cain, 41.

The twin-engine, eight-seat Piper Chryseene was owned by Burggraf's father, Robert V. Burggraf, doing business as Burggraf Construction Co. The men were on their way to Cody from Idaho Falls to attend a construction project bid opening.

Chaffin, who was president of an Idaho Falls automobile dealership, had flown Burggraf officials in the company's plane for about 10 years.

The crash occurred after Chaffin had aborted his initial attempt to land at Cody and was circling to make a second attempt. Witnesses said wet snow was falling at the time.

In a brief probable cause report issued earlier this month, the NTSB makes six findings, three involving weather conditions and three about actions by the pilot.

The report says the three involving decisions or actions by the pilot were the probable cause of the crash, and the three weather conditions were related factors.

Production, weapons are drug trends.

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's new narcotics training coordinator says the two most alarming trends in the state's drug scene are the arming of drug dealers and an increase in methamphetamine production.

Jackie Ailor spent four years as an undercover drug agent before being named to her new state job last summer.

In the last two of those years, Ailor said she saw "a progressive increase in weapons." At almost every bust by the police, guns were confiscated.

"Drug dealers are arming themselves with semi-automatic weapons," she said.

Among those most likely to be heavily armed are makers of methamphetamine. The stimulant known as "crank" can be manufactured in a bathtub and can kill its user with violent convulsions.

Since Idaho still is relatively isolated from the major cocaine markets, Ailor said crank often serves as a substitute for drug users. Its production is skyrocketing in the state.

She said the three drugs law enforcement officers see most often in Idaho are methamphetamine, cocaine and marijuana. To a lesser degree, Ailor said she has encountered LSD, heroin, PCP and nitrous oxide.

Jury selection begins for clan's trial

COALVILLE, Utah (AP) — Nearly 200 potential jurors were ordered to shun the local sections of newspapers and avoid reporters as jury selection began Friday in the murder trial of three polygamist clan members charged in the shooting death of a state officer.

Authorities said 177 potential jurors showed up at the North Summit Elementary School to receive instructions from 3rd District Judge Michael Murphy and fill out a 26-page, 276-question survey that will be used to make initial screenings.

Murphy indicated that the trial will be long, telling potential jurors assembled in the school's auditorium that he wanted the case to be in the hands of the jury by Dec. 20.

Murphy said he didn't want to have to declare a mistrial because a juror read accounts of the case in the newspaper or talked to reporters.

"It is extremely important that you limit your access to testimony that comes from witnesses in this case so that the issues will be decided only by the evidence that comes from that courthouse in Coalville. We want to protect this case so that this case can be handled just once," Murphy said. "You are to confine yourself only to national news."

Addam Swapp, 27, his brother, Jonathan Swapp, 21, and John Timothy Singer, 22, are charged with second-degree murder in the Jan. 28 death of state Corrections Lt. Fred House.

House was fatally shot to death while directing police dogs during an attempt to capture Addam Swapp during a 13-day standoff at the clan's farm in Marion. The standoff was triggered by the Jan. 16 bombing of a nearby Mormon chapel.

Prosecutors contend Singer, who is confined to a wheelchair, fired the fatal shot. Singer has said he was firing at the dogs.

During the standoff, Addam Swapp said the bombing had been ordered by God as a sign of impending collapse of the Mormon Church and all government. He said it would trigger the resurrection of John Singer, the father of John Timothy Singer and of Swapp's two wives.

The three defendants and Vickie Singer, 45, widow of John Singer, were convicted in federal court on charges stemming from the bombing and standoff.

The defendants were on hand for Friday's jury selection proceedings, which were held under heavy security. Potential jurors assembled in the unheated school because there was not sufficient room to seat all of them at the Summit County Courthouse.

In the audience was Anne Swapp, who married Jonathan Swapp in a jailhouse ceremony on Tuesday.

After Murphy's remarks, the potential jurors filled out the survey form, in which they were asked whether they were active members of the Mormon Church, and whether they attended services at the Marion chapel.

The survey also asked whether the potential jurors, their relatives or acquaintances associate with any organized polygamist group.

Jones bars lottery ads - for now

BOISE (AP) — Oregon, Washington and Montana officials will have to wait until Idaho gets its own state-run lottery going before advertising their lotteries in the state, Attorney General Jim Jones says.

An opinion released by Jones on Friday said the legal ban on advertising of out-of-state lotteries will be lifted when ads begin running for Idaho's own lottery, approved by voters Nov. 8.

The opinion, written by Chief Deputy Attorney General Pat Kole, came in response to a question from Boise television station KBCI, Channel 2.

Jones said the station and others in Idaho have been asked by Oregon officials when advertising for that state's lottery could begin running across the border.

Federal law allows the broadcasting of state-run lottery advertisements only in the home state or "an adjacent state which conducts such a lottery," according to Jones' opinion.

It said the law indicated advertising may begin as soon as the state of Idaho, through its lottery commission, begins to conduct lottery operations, such as initiating advertising.

The mere passage of HJR3 or the appointment of the commission and initiation of preliminary planning for the Idaho state lottery would not be "conducting a state lottery," the opinion said.

HJR3, which was approved by 59 percent of Idaho voters in this month's general election, amended the Idaho Constitution to allow establishment of a lottery.

Implementing legislation approved last winter in anticipation of the amendment's approval means Gov. Cecil Andrus is free to begin making appointments to a five-member lottery commission. But he indicated none would be made until after he returns from a trade mission to the Far East on Dec. 8.

Jones said he expects it to be at least six months before an Idaho lottery is up and running, but advertising could begin a little sooner.

Law puts student insurance out of reach

MOSCOW (AP) — A federal law that increases the student health insurance coverage for pregnant students put many out of reach of many on campus, college insurance administrators say.

Last year, Washington State University's student health insurance plan paid $175 toward a pregnancy, a small amount considering the hospital bill for an average birth can cost up to $5,000.

But last summer, Congress passed the Civil Rights Restoration Act to prevent discrimination at institutions receiving federal funds.

The law requires that all federal money be cut off from a school that does not provide the same coverage for pregnancy as it does for temporary illness or disability.

Since schools are not required to offer student health insurance, some have dropped the programs as a result. But most, like WSU, have expanded pregnancy coverage to pay virtually the entire hospital bill rather than risk the loss of all federal funding.

"We could lose millions," said Martha Devereaux, WSU benefits administrator. "No institution even dreams of not complying."

The impact of the new law has been less pronounced at the University of Idaho, said Carol Grupp, risk management officer. The institution has offered complete pregnancy coverage as part of its optional student health insurance, at a cost of $298 a year.

"We had been including that coverage for several years," she said. "That plan does treat student expenses for pregnancy the same as it would for illness or injury."

Educators and the insurance industry predict premiums could jump by 16 percent to 25 percent as the companies try to recoup their higher costs. Washington State's insurance package has increased $30 from last year.

The insurance firms also may stop providing colleges with student health coverage, fearing it could encourage students to have more babies, in some instances, that is exactly what has happened.

"I've had a few conversations with students who didn't know their pregnancy is now covered, and, needless to say, it changes their tune," Devereaux said. "A lot of them have been really happy. They've got something they weren't planning on and maybe now they won't have to drop out in order to pay to have their baby."

But the higher premium has reduced enrollment in the WSU student health insurance program. Ms. Devereaux contends. The College Health Association claims 19 percent of all college students in the country have no coverage.

Devereaux is concerned the Civil Rights Restoration Act could have the opposite impact by discriminating against students who cannot afford to pay for rising premiums.

Managers to switch insurance carriers

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Managers of a liability insurance pool covering most of Idaho's counties have decided to switch carriers, but they say the change will not affect county budgets.

The Idaho Counties Risk Management Program provides liability coverage for about 40 counties statewide. The insurance pool was established in late 1985 in the wake of a national liability insurance shortage for local governments.

The pool has been insured by PENCO, but that policy is scheduled to expire at the end of the year.

The program originally looked at switching its coverage to the American Risk Pooling Consultants. The Michigan-based carrier promised more than $1 million in premium reductions, said Bannock County Commissioner Tom Katsilometes, an insurance pool board member.

But at a meeting in early November, the insurance pool's board "definitely severed relations with A.R.P.C.O.," said Fremont County Commissioner James Siddoway, another board member.

American Risk contended it did not need a state license since it was acting as an agent and not as an insurer, Siddoway said. In Idaho, however, a license is required, and American Risk could not receive one without meeting several criteria, including an audit.

Siddoway said the company would not agree to an audit.

Anthony Fagiano, director of the state Department of Insurance, said American Risk never applied for a state license. The American Public Entities Excess Pool, a pooling company connected with American Risk, also did not apply for a license, Fagiano said.

He said he was unsure why a license was not pursued, and that his department was willing to speed up its license application to get the company on line.

"American Risk has closed its office in Boise, Siddoway said. Since then, the insurance pool has discussed coverage with Caroon and Black Management, based in Nashville, Tenn.

The new carrier has promised to provide the same type of coverage American Risk offered at what Katsilometes said was only a minimal difference in cost.

If the Caroon and Black coverage costs more than American Risk's, the difference will be paid from the insurance pool's reserves and will not be passed to the counties, Siddoway said.

Home sales fall in October despite easing of rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — In further evidence of a slowing economy, sales of existing homes fell in October for the second consecutive month even though mortgage rates eased, a real estate trade group reported Friday.

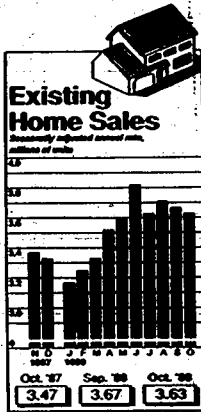

The National Association of Realtors said that existing single-family home sales dipped to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.63 million units last month, down 1.1 percent from the September rate.

It marked the third month out of the last four in which sales declined. They dropped an identical 3.1 percent in September and a striking 4.6 percent in July.

The downturn in October occurred even though mortgage rates were falling, edging below 10 percent in some parts of the country for fixed-rate loans.

Analysts said the October decline in existing home sales, coupled with a sharp 7.8 percent September drop in new home sales, reflected waning economic activity in the second half of the year.

While they did not predict a severe slump in the housing industry,

Analysts said the downward trend is likely to continue, especially in view of forecasts that mortgage rates will turn higher.

The rate on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages rose to 10.39 percent this week, the highest level since early October, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Friday.

Many economists believe fixed-rate mortgages will top 11 percent by early next year.

David Wyss, chief financial economist with Data Resources Inc., said that while rising mortgages would continue to dampen demand, the market for single-family homes should hold steady through the next year.

However, he predicted that construction of multi-family units, already down by more than 50 percent from the peak three years ago, would weaken further.

In a second report Friday, the Realtors group said that sales of apartment condominiums plunged 12.9 percent during the April-June quarter to an annual rate of 339,000 units, compared to the first three months of the year. The drop was blamed on weakness in condominium sales in the Northeast, which accounts for 20 percent of the overall U.S. market.

John Tuccillo, chief economist of the Realtors, said resales of single-family homes sold in all of 1987 because of strong sales in the first half of the year.

The summer rush is over and despite the window of opportunity afforded by low mortgage rates in October, the surge of home sales we saw earlier has run its course," he said. "But the good news is that the sales rate has settled in at a strong level."

The decline in sales was accompanied by a small drop in prices. The median cost of an existing home sold in October was $83,100, down $100 from the September level. However, the price was still 4.1 percent higher than a year ago, when the median-home price was $84,600.

Tuccillo said the price declines that have been seen over past two months reflected in part the slowdown in sales in the Northeast, the region of the country with the highest home prices.

In October, the median sales price in the Northeast was $137,600, down

2.7 percent from the September level. The median home price in the West was $124,400, down 3 percent from the month before.

The median sales price in the Midwest, the lowest-priced region in the country, was $67,600, a 0.9 percent increase over the previous month, while existing homes sold for a median price of $81,600 in the South, up 0.2 percent from September.

The drop in October sales reflected a 2.9 percent decline in the West, which fell to an annual rate of 700,000 units. This offset a 2.2 percent rise in home sales in the Midwest, where the annual rate edged up to $50,000 units. This part of the country has been enjoying a rebound in sales reflecting the boom in export demand experienced by many industries in the region.

Sales in the South were unchanged at 1.39 million units, but this represented an increase of 8.6 percent from a year ago.

Sales in the Northeast were also unchanged at an annual rate of 650,000 units, down 3 percent from a year ago.

President salutes libraries

SANTA BARRABA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan on Friday proclaimed the week of Nov. 28-Dec. 5 as National Book Week, saying a free society "must prize its libraries just as it values its liberties."

"Anyone who doubts the power or permanence of books need only look today at countries around the world where the mere composition, printing, binding and distribution of a book is a prosecutable act of defiance against the state," Reagan said in a proclamation released during his vacation.

"We can all resolve during National Book Week to take stock of our own reading practices and our attentiveness to sharing books with others, especially the young," the proclamation said.

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — A 61-year-old psychiatric patient died Friday and a second person was in intensive care after a Thanksgiving-style turkey dinner that left nearly 100 people ill with food poisoning, officials said.

A total of 26 people were hospitalized after the meal Wednesday at four out-patient centers operated by state-run Rockland Psychiatric Institute, said Nancy McPartlin, Westchester County Health Department spokeswoman.

Fugitive Greek tycoon denied bail

BOSTON (AP) — A banker and publishing tycoon who is a fugitive from Greece was denied bail Friday after his lawyer argued that a $35 million banking scandal carries political overtones so strong the man had to flee for fear of his life.

George Koskotas "is a subject of a controversy in Greece which is of cosmic proportions," said Ron Liebman, a Washington attorney representing the 34-year-old banker.

Koskotas fled Greece on Nov. 6 after being indicted on five counts of fraud and embezzlement alleging he siphoned more than $35 million from the Bank of Crete, of which he was chairman.

Lava flows, El Nino may be linked

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — El Nino, the warming of Pacific Ocean waters blamed for droughts, typhoons and storms worldwide, may be caused by undersea volcanic lava flows, says a study by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The lava from rifts in the ocean floor may bring about the dramatic changes in sea temperature, air pressure, winds and currents that characterize the phenomenon, according to the study the current issue of EOS, the publication of the American Geophysical Union.

Herbert R. Shaw and James G. More of the Geological Survey in Menlo Park speculated that flows erupting through rifts in the earth's crust transfer much of their intense heat to ocean currents flowing around the equator.

According to the theory, the warming of the water causes a drop in air pressure at the ocean surface that in turn weakens or even reverses the normal east-to-west trade winds.

Muggers rob man, set him on fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four muggers robbed a man of $5 before tossing him into a burning trash container Friday, causing critical burns over about 20 percent of his body, police said.

FmHA mails out last delinquency notices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration on Friday mailed out the last of 83,480 delinquency notices to farmers who owe more than $8 billion in past-due government loans.

Agency officials began sending out the notices by certified mail on Nov. 15 telling FmHA borrowers they have 45 days to complete and return the nine forms. Basically, the notices tell farmers about the options they have for settling their debt, including restructuring and write-offs.

Congress ordered FmHA in the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to revise its lending practices, including ways to handle long-overdue debt owed by thousands of farmers. Parts of the law were put into effect earlier in the year but debt write-downs, or forgiveness, kicked in this month.

The purpose of the notices is to give delinquent borrowers an opportunity to let FmHA know how they want to handle their debt under the new law's provisions.

Leland H. Swenson, president of the National Farmers Union, explained: "The new law basically says FmHA must give borrowers whose delinquency was caused by factors beyond their control 45 days to convince the agency that it could recover more by working with them than it could by forcing them out."

Swenson added: "Class 1, the law puts the burden on borrowers to prepare their financial arguments quickly and thoroughly."

If a farmer's response, or application, to FmHA on how he plans to settle the debt is accepted by the agency, the chances of survival are brightened. But if a borrower's plan is rejected — or if a reply is not sent at all — then foreclosure or forced sale of property is likely.

Although agency spokesmen say no hard estimates are available as to how many of the 83,480 delinquents may be foreclosed or forced to sell out, estimates have ranged from around 10,000 to more than 40,000.

Vance L. Clark, FmHA administrator, has said that eventually up to 30,000 borrowers could face foreclosure.

Clark resigned his job earlier this week, according to FmHA spokesmen. He had previously indicated leaving around Dec. 1. Sox Johnson, acting associate administrator, took over the job.

No official announcement was made of Clark's departure, although a farewell party was held in USDA on Tuesday afternoon.

Clark, who spent 42 years with the Bank of America before taking over FmHA more than three years ago, bristled at accusations the agency's notices or program are unfair.

"If anything, I tell my people we're getting ready to jump start thousands of American farmers out there," Clark said recently in Des Moines at a bankers' meeting. "The good news is that the relief measure is being offered. I think it's going to play well."

But there is some pressure on FmHA to extend the 45-day period for borrowers to return their financial forms, including a request from 14 members of Congress.

Rep. Byron L. Dorgan, D-N.D., one of the petitioners, said he was concerned that borrowers may not be able to get all the information and assistance they need before Jan. 1, because many banks and offices may be closed several days for the holidays.

Bush brushes off queries about paring Medicare

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Senate-elect George Bush said Friday he would turn his attention quickly to the problem of cutting the U.S. deficit, but he brushed aside suggestions on reports he may attempt to trim $3.5 billion to $5 billion from Medicare.

"I keep reading in the papers a lot of things I'm supposed to be doing that I don't know anything about," Bush told reporters during a shopping trip while on a four-day Thanksgiving vacation at his family's ocean-side retreat.

Bush indicated he has made no decisions yet on budget cuts. "Don't make judgments based on stories that don't really have any authority behind them," Bush said.

A spokesman, Stephen Hart, said suggestions on Medicare cuts were "completely speculative."

"It's premature for anyone to speculate about the budget," Hart said.

Bush worked for several hours in a small cabin which serves as his office in the family compound, but told reporters he had "no appointments" during the holiday.

Bush spoke with reporters briefly as he and wife Barbara made their morning shopping round, including a stop at a wine and cheese shop named the "Topsy Menu," where he picked up goodies to send reporters at a reception later in the day at their house.

The vice president also visited a video store, where he rented the movie "Broadcast News," and dropped by a hardware store and a golf equipment shop at a local country club.

The Bushes were to have dinner Friday night at their home with Cardinal Bernard Law, the archbishop of Boston.

Toward evening Bush jogged on a dirt road near his home, wearing an "Oak Ridge Boys" sweatshirt.

—Meanwhile, sources close to the vice president, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the selection of a new defense secretary remained up in the air. Key advisers remained deeply divided on the prospect of filling the post with former Senate Armed Services Chairman John Tower of Texas, the sources said.

Bush himself has given few clues,

Proxmire to keep issuing 'fleece'

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Proxmire said Friday he will continue to issue his "Golden Fleece" award despite his retirement from the Senate in January.

Proxmire, who has handed out the awards almost monthly to ridicule government spending he found to be wasteful, has been elected to the National Taxpayer's Union's board of directors, and will now issue the "Fleece" under its auspices.

Proxmire, 73, is a Democrat who will end a term of more than 31 years as senator from Wisconsin.

Home sales fall in October despite easing of rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — In further evidence of a slowing economy, sales of existing homes fell in October for the second consecutive month even though mortgage rates eased, a real estate trade group reported Friday.

The National Association of Realtors said that existing single-family home sales dipped to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.63 million units last month, down 1.1 percent from the September sales rate.

Existing Home Sales

Analysts said the downward trend is likely to continue, especially in view of forecasts that mortgage rates will turn higher.

The rate on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages rose to 10.39 percent this week, the highest level since early October, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Friday.

Many economists believe fixed-rate mortgages will top 11 percent by early next year.

David Weiss, chief financial economist with Data Resources Inc., said that while rising mortgage rates would continue to dampen demand, the market for single-family homes should hold steady through the next year.

However, he predicted that construction of multi-family units, already down by more than 50 percent from the peak three years ago, would weaken further.

In a second report Friday, the Realtors group said that sales of apartment condominiums plunged 12.9 percent during the April-June quarter to an annual rate of 339,000 units, compared to the first three months of the year. The drop was blamed on weakness in condominium sales in the Northeast, which accounts for 20 percent of the overall U.S. market.

John Tuccillo, chief economist of the Realtors, said resales of single-family homes should equal the 3.63 million homes sold in all of 1987 because of strong sales in the first half of the year.

"The summer rush is over and despite the window of opportunity afforded by low mortgage rates in October, the surge of home sales we saw earlier has run its course," he said. "But the good news is that the sales rate has settled in at a strong level."

The decline in sales was accompanied by a small drop in prices. The median cost of an existing home sold in October was $88,100, down $100 from the September level. However, the price was still 4.1 percent higher than a year ago, when the median home price was $84,600.

Tuccillo said the price declines that have been seen over past two months reflected in part the slowdown in sales in the Northeast, the region of the country with the highest home prices.

In October, the median sales price in the Northeast was $137,600, down

2.7 percent from the September level. The median home price in the West was $124,400, down 3 percent from the month before.

The median sales price in the Midwest, the lowest-priced region in the country, was $72,800, a 0.9 percent increase over the previous month, while existing homes sold for a median price of $81,600 in the South, up 0.2 percent from September.

The drop in October sales reflected a 2.9 percent decline in the West, which fell to an annual rate of 700,000 units. This offset a 2.2 percent rise in home sales in the Midwest, where the annual rate edged up to 800,000 units. This part of the country has been enjoying a rebound in sales reflecting the boom in export demand experienced by many industries in the region.

Sales in the South were unchanged at 1.39 million units, but this represented an increase of 0.6 percent from a year ago.

Sales in the Northeast were also unchanged at an annual rate of 650,000 units, down 3 percent from a year ago.

President salutes libraries

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, on Friday proclaimed the week of Nov. 29-Dec. 5 as National Book Week, saying a free society "must prize its libraries just as it values its liberties."

"Anyone who doubts the power or permanence of books need only look today at countries around the world where the mere composition, printing, binding and distribution of a book is a prosecutable act of defiance against the state," Reagan said in a proclamation released during his vacation.

"We can all resolve during National Book Week to take stock of our own reading practices and our attentiveness to sharing books with others, especially the young," the proclamation said.

Poisoning kills psychiatric patient

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — A 61-year-old psychiatric patient died Friday and a second person was in intensive care after a Thanksgiving-style turkey dinner that left nearly 100 people ill with food poisoning, officials said.

A total of 26 people were hospitalized after the meal Wednesday at four out-patient centers operated by state-run Rockland Psychiatric Institute, said Nancy McPartin, Westchester County Health Department spokeswoman.

Fugitive Greek tycoon denied bail

BOSTON (AP) — A banker and publishing tycoon who is a fugitive from Greece was denied bail Friday after his lawyer argued that a $135 million banking scandal carries political overtones so strong the man had to flee for fear of his life.

George Koskotas "is a subject of a controversy in Greece which is of cosmic proportions," said Ron Liebman, a Washington attorney representing the 34-year-old banker.

Koskotas fled Greece on Nov. 6 after being indicted on five counts of fraud and embezzlement alleging he siphoned more than $135 million from the Bank of Crete, of which he was chairman.

Lava flows, El Nino may be linked

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — El Nino, the warming of Pacific Ocean waters blamed for droughts, typhoons and storms worldwide, may be caused by undersea volcanic lava flows, says a study by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The lava from rifts in the ocean floor may bring about the dramatic changes in sea temperature, air pressure, winds and currents that characterize the phenomenon, according to the study, the current issue of EOS, the publication of the American Geophysical Union.

Herbert R. Shaw and James G. More of the Geological Survey in Menlo Park speculated that flows erupting through rifts in the earth's crust transfer much of their intense heat to ocean currents flowing around the equator.

According to the theory, the warming of the water causes a drop in air pressure at the ocean surface that in turn weakens or even reverses the normal east-to-west trade winds.

Muggers rob man, set him on fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four muggers robbed a man of $5 before tossing him into a burning trash container Friday, causing critical burns over about 20 percent of his body, police said.

The 34-year-old victim, whose name wasn't released, was able to climb out of the garbage container apparently set afire by the bandits, police Sgt. Alan Bollinger said.

FmHA mails out last delinquency notices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration on Friday mailed out the last of 83,480 delinquency notices to farmers who owe more than $8 billion in past-due government loans.

Agency officials began sending out the notices by certified mail on Nov. 15 telling FmHA borrowers they have 45 days to complete and return the nine forms. Basically, the notices tell farmers about the options they have for settling their debt, including restructuring and write-offs.

Congress ordered FmHA in the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to revise its lending practices, including ways to handle long-overdue debt owed by thousands of farmers. Parts of the law were put into effect earlier in the year but debt write-down, or forgiveness, kicked in this month.

The purpose of the notices is to give delinquent borrowers an opportunity to let FmHA know how they want to handle their debt under the new law's provisions.

Leland H. Swenson, president of the National Farmers Union, explained: "The new law basically says FmHA must give borrowers whose delinquency was caused by factors beyond their control 45 days to convince the agency that it could recover more by working with them than it could by forcing them out."

Swenson added: "Clearly, the law puts the burden on borrowers to prepare their financial arguments quickly and thoroughly."

If a farmer's response, or application, to FmHA on how he plans to settle the debt is accepted by the agency, the chances of survival are brightened. But if a borrower's plan is rejected — or if a reply is not sent at all — then foreclosure or forced sale of property is likely.

Although agency spokesmen say no hard estimates are available as to how many of the 83,480 delinquents may be foreclosed or forced to sell out, estimates have ranged from around 10,000 to more than 40,000.

Vance L. Clark, FmHA administrator, has said that, eventually up to 30,000 borrowers could face foreclosure.

Clark resigned his job earlier this week, according to FmHA spokesmen. He had previously indicated leaving around Dec. 1. Sox Johnson, acting associate administrator, took over the job.

No official announcement was made of Clark's departure, although a farewell party was held in USDA on Tuesday afternoon.

Clark, who spent 42 years with the Bank of America before taking over FmHA more than three years ago, bristled at accusations the agency's notices or program are unfair.

"If anything, I tell my people we're getting ready to jump start thousands of American farmers out there," Clark said recently in Des Moines at a bankers' meeting. "The good news is that the relief measure is being offered. I think it's going to pay well."

But there is some pressure on FmHA to extend the 45-day period for borrowers to return their financial forms, including a request from 14 members of Congress.

Rep. Byron L. Dorgan, D-N.D., one of the petitioners, said he was concerned that borrowers may not be able to get all the information and assistance they need before Jan. 1, because many banks and offices may be closed several days for the holidays.

Bush brushes off queries about paring Medicare

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President-elect George Bush said Friday he would turn his attention quickly to the problem of cutting the U.S. deficit, but he brushed aside suggestions on reports he may attempt to trim $3.5 billion to $5 billion from Medicare.

"I keep reading in the papers a lot of things I'm supposed to be doing that I don't know anything about," Bush told reporters during a shopping trip while on a four-day Thanksgiving vacation at his family's ocean-side retreat.

Bush indicated he has made no decisions yet on budget cuts. "Don't make judgments based on stories that don't really have any authority behind them," Bush said.

A spokesman, Stephen Hart, said suggestions on Medicare cuts were "completely speculative."

"It's premature for anyone to speculate about the budget," Hart said.

Bush worked for several hours in a small cabin which serves as his office in the family compound, but told reporters he had "no appointments" during the holiday.

Bush spoke with reporters briefly as he and wife Barbara made their morning shopping round, including a stop at a "wine and cheese" shop named the Tippy Mouse, where he picked up goodies to serve reporters at a reception later in the day at their house.

The vice president also visited a video store, where he rented the movie "Broadcast News," and dropped by a hardware store and a golf equipment shop at a local country club.

The Bushes were to have dinner Friday night at their home with Cardinal Bernard Law, the archbishop of Boston.

Toward evening Bush jogged on a dirt road near his home, wearing an "Oak Ridge Boys" sweatshirt.

Meanwhile, sources close to the vice president, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the selection of a new defense secretary remained up in the air. Key advisers remained deeply divided on the prospect of filing the post with former Senate Armed Services Chairman John Tower of Texas, the sources said.

Bush himself has given few clues, but in recent days has appeared to discourage suggestions that it would be Tower. In any event, Bush said he has not yet made up his mind.

Asked whether he advocated any cuts in Medicare funding, Bush said only that "My view is I'll address the whole budget problem very soon."

Proxmire to keep issuing 'fleeces'

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Proxmire said Friday he will continue to issue his "Golden Fleece" award despite his retirement from the Senate in January.

Proxmire, who has handed out the awards almost monthly to ridicule government spending he found to be wasteful, has been elected to the National Taxpayer's Union's board of directors, and will now issue the "Fleeces" under its auspices.

Proxmire, 73, is a Democrat who will end a term of more than 31 years as senator from Wisconsin.

What's what

Can't walk backward

A. Up and down.

That big Australian bird called the emu can't walk backwards, either. By either, I mean nor can the kangaroo. For that reason, Aussies find those critters symbolic. They put likenesses of the emu and the kangaroo on their country's coat of arms.

Q. Water in an ocean wave moves only in two directions. What are they?

A. Greenland Eskimos eat more fat than any other people worldwide, and have the lowest rate of heart disease.

CUSHIONY SEAT

In the Ottoman Empire, the Sultan met four times a week with his councilmen. Important then and there as his Divan. Important fellows. They sat on a raised cushioned platform. It took on their group name of Divan. From that, eventually, just about any couch wherever came to be called a "divan."

Is there a grammatically correct sentence beginning with the word "Us"? Put that query to your English teacher. I thought "Us?" all by itself might qualify, but am told that would have to be "We?" Shrug.

How much venom the rattlesnake releases in its bite depends on what said snake wants to accomplish. It can control the flow.

BATS

Only since the end of World War II have people generally known how bats navigate. By their own ultrasonic radar. In 1945, that technique called "echolocation" was finally worked out. Historical footnotes prove a couple of bright fellows in Europe understood it two centuries earlier, but nobody paid any attention to them.

Do Germans have a special knack for bowling? You'd think so, from the roster of bowling champions. A great majority have been men of German descent.

Q. How many heads of state have run Haiti?

A. Forty-three at last count. Six finished full elected terms.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There is a tendency to live in a make-believe world. Fantasies reduce the chance of success in practical matters. It is not a favorable time for business matters which depend on reliability.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Break with conventional routines, and try something different. A short trip to a favorite nature spot would be rewarding. Compliment someone.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A romantic involvement makes for an interesting departure. Schedules and promises may be altered. Intensity your focus on health matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Stay with a friendly group today. The familiar basics (home, family, etc.) will do nicely. Accept invitations to social events.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A scandal may have the phones hot. Don't get involved if it doesn't concern you. Shop for gifts for family members and friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Your creativity attracts you to color and nice things. Buy, but be certain your purchase is functional and will be appreciated later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Good communications come your way. Use them where they can be used to your advantage. Make plans for expanding your education.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Finances improve. Your heavy load lightens. Contact with a relative can be appropriate and rewarding. Romance needs direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Travel plans can be made. Others may be visiting in the future. A thorny problem is settled. Suggest but do not insist on your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Social activities are fun but also more than you bargained for. Keep your expectations to yourself so you are not disappointed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Demands can drive you crazy. Take care of basics, and relax. The immature emotions of others are a test. Be understanding to succeed.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: He or she will have abilities that can help this child make his or her mark in almost any endeavor. Somewhat of a daydreamer, your progeny will be able to shoot a straight arrow into the bull's eye of success. He or she will have the personality to work with others.

Briefly

W. German Parliament elects president

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Parliament on Friday elected a new president of the federal legislative body to replace Philipp Jenninger, who resigned after creating a furor with a blunt speech about the country's Nazi past.

Lawmakers voted 360-93 for Rita Süssmuth, 51, previously head of the federal Ministry for Youth, Family, Women and Health matters, to replace Philipp Jenninger.

Jenninger resigned Nov. 11 under heavy criticism for his parliamentary speech commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Nazis' Kristallnacht pogrom against German Jews.

Jenninger stirred up national and international outcries of rage with his address, in which he reminded his audience that many Germans viewed Adolf Hitler as a hero when he came to power in 1933. Jewish leaders and other critics said Jenninger should have balanced his comments with stronger condemnation of Nazi atrocities.

ANC claims it will not attack civilians

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The guerrilla-backed African National Congress on Friday told South African church leaders its policy is not to attack civilian targets in their homeland.

ANC President Oliver Tambo, exiled head of the main black nationalist movement fighting the white-led Pretoria government, acknowledged some guerrillas hit at civilians because they were "inspired by anger at the regime's campaign of terror."

But he told a news conference, "agents of the Pretoria regime have been known to carry out attacks to sow confusion."

President P.W. Botha's government blames the ANC for the more than 160 bombings since it declared a state of emergency June 12, 1986. Most casualties are black civilians. Tambo spoke to reporters after a daylong meeting with South African church leaders headed by Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the Nobel Peace Prize laureate.

Red Cross hopeful of prisoner exchange

GENEVA (AP) — The Red Cross said Friday it is hopeful a 10-day air shuttle can repatriate more than 1,500 disabled Iraqi and Iranian prisoners as planned, although the exchange started with fewer prisoners than expected.

On Thursday, the first day of the exchange, each side sent back fewer than half the number of prisoners envisaged under an accord they signed earlier this month with the Red Cross.

Red Cross officials said they were working with both sides to resolve the problems in the first major exchange of prisoners since a cease-fire Aug. 20 ended fighting in the 8-year-old war between the Persian Gulf neighbors.

Castro plans to attend inauguration in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro will attend the inauguration of Carlos Salinas de Gortari, returning after 33 years to the city where he planned the Cuban revolution, officials said.

FIDEL CASTRO Will attend inauguration

Cuauhtemoc Cardenas, a leftist leader who lost a July presidential election, he contends was fraud-ridden, said Salinas invited Castro and other foreign leaders to the Thursday inauguration to legitimize his victory.

Castro will probably arrive in Mexico City the day of the ceremony, according to Salinas' office.

Castro, 61, lived in the capital from mid-1955 until he and 81 fellow rebels sailed for Cuba on Nov. 25, 1956, from Tuxpan on the Gulf of Mexico. He has not been back to the capital since.

During his Mexican exile, Castro set up clandestine guerrilla training camps, raised funds, stockpiled weapons and put the finishing touches on his plans for the revolution that overthrew dictator Fulgencio Batista in January 1959.

Castro has been to Mexico only since 1956. He held talks in the resort at Cancun in 1979 with then-President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Iran renews offer to work for release of hostages

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran on Friday renewed an offer to work for the release of nine American hostages in Lebanon if the United States would make the same efforts on behalf of Iranian hostages there.

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani made the offer in a Friday prayer sermon broadcast on official Tehran radio. Other Iranian officials have made the same suggestion in the past.

If you are interested in having your people held hostage in Lebanon released, then tell the Phalangists to release our people who have been in their hands for years, and of whom we do not have any news," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying in the broadcast, which was monitored in Nicosia.

Three Iranians — Ahmad Motevasselhan, Hussein Musavi and Kazem Akhavan — were kidnapped by right-wing Christian Phalangist gunmen in northern Lebanon in 1982. Their Lebanese driver, who had an Iranian passport, also disappeared. The four are widely believed to be dead.

Rafsanjani alleged in his sermon that the United States backed the Christian Phalangists in Lebanon and thus could not claim it had no influence among them, the radio said.

If the United States helps free the Iranians, Rafsanjani said, "we will also suggest to our well-wishers and friends in Lebanon to release any hostages they may have."

Fourteen foreign hostages, including nine Americans, are being held in Lebanon by pro-Iranian Islamic fundamentalists. In addition, a Swiss Red Cross official was kidnapped in the southern port of Sidon on Nov. 17, but no one has claimed responsibility.

The longest-held foreign hostage is Terry A. Anderson, 41, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Rafsanjani also condemned former U.S. President Jimmy Carter for trying to link resumption of U.S.-Iranian ties to the hostage issue.

Korean students demand arrest of president

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 1,000 radical students and Buddhist monks hurled firebombs at riot police Friday, demanding that disgraced former President Chun Doo-hwan be arrested on corruption charges.

"Arrest Chun Doo-hwan," shouted the protesters in the streets of the capital. They threw hundreds of firebombs at police, who responded with tear gas.

The protesters also denounced President Roh Tae-woo, accusing him of trying to protect Chun, an old friend and former associate. Roh is scheduled to appear on national TV at 10 a.m. Saturday

(8 p.m. EST Friday night) to appeal for public mercy for his disgraced predecessor.

In a nationally televised speech Wednesday, Chun apologized for corruption and abuse of power under his authoritarian government. He said he was surrendering all of his personal property, worth $24 million, and going into exile in the country — a traditional path for disgraced former leaders.

Chun has denied any personal corruption, but some of his relatives and associates have been convicted of or charged with embezzlement and other offenses.

British judges hold mock trial on London earl was Shakespeare

LONDON (AP) — De Vere or not de Vere?

That is the question before three British judges Saturday in a mock trial about whether Edward de Vere, the 17th earl of Oxford and Elizabethan dandy, was really William Shakespeare.

moot court debate in Washington 14 months ago, and ruled the evidence insufficient to ascribe Shakespeare's plays and poems to de Vere.

But Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens expressed some uneasiness about the Bard's identity, and this has emboldened a 23-year-old descendant of de Vere to try again.

Officials seek baby's medical background

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Welfare workers are asking that the parents of a recently abandoned newborn provide medical information that could help their baby have a healthy life — with or without them.

"We need to know the (baby's) genetic background to see if medically the boy is likely to have problems," said Willard Abbott, regional director of the state Department of Health and Welfare.

The blue-eyed, blond-haired baby, called Matthew by nurses at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, was in good condition Friday afternoon in the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit.

Matthew was found Sunday afternoon on a restroom floor at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome. The 4-pound, 12-ounce baby, believed to have been born Nov. 18 or 19, was wrapped in a T-shirt and a blanket. His umbilical cord was neatly tied with string, Abbott said.

"We have no idea what the birth situation was. We have to assume this is a mercy abandonment," he said. "Whoever abandoned him apparently didn't want him to die."

Matthew could have been born in a car while traveling down the interstate — with Jerome the nearest exit — or in the home of a teenager who panicked, he said.

"Only one or two infants a year are abandoned in Idaho, he said. "It's very rare," he said.

Wendell schools say no to drugs

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — School officials and parents in Wendell want to be prepared for any drug abuse problems the district may have.

Recent developments include programs on drug awareness, a committee organized to look at any problems and, for the future, training teachers to identify abuse.

"What we're trying to do is address it before it becomes a serious issue here," High School Principal Doug Skinner said.

School Board Chairman Clayton Pope said the trustees endorse the work of the committee. "We really think it's a top priority," he said.

The school district last year received a $2,200 Title V "Nancy Reagan" grant that was spent mostly on audiovisual materials about drug awareness, Skinner said. The school also helped sponsor a drug awareness performance called "Just Say No," staged by the Wendell Community Arts Council.

This year, Skinner said the school is expecting $2,300 from Title V. A drug education committee, with two parents of elementary students, two parents of secondary students, two principals and two counselors, met in October to decide how this year's grant money could best be spent.

Diane Dallman, representing the committee, told the School Board last Wendell has few problems now but that the school still needs to set up an active program.

Uncovering fingerprints is just one of a list of investigative duties detective Dennis Chambers performs at the police lab

Lab gives police an extra edge

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Detective Dennis Chambers spends his days etching with acid, fuming with iodine, analyzing latents, interpreting blood-spatter patterns and identifying lands, grooves and twists.

He also reads a lot. He has to, if he hopes to keep up with the ever-accelerating world of criminalistics, or scientific crime detection.

As head of the city's police laboratory, Chambers must daily apply the principle first asserted by the great French criminalist Edmund Locard: The criminal always leaves a piece of himself at the scene of a crime, and he always takes a piece of the crime scene with him.

About five years ago, a robber in Twin Falls learned that the hard way when he left behind a torn note demanding money.

Police stopped the robber at a roadblock. Inside his car, they found a stenographer's notepad. Using that and the note, they were able to connect the man to the robbery in four ways.

The notes' tear, or "fracture" pattern, matched that of a ripped page found in the notepad. Impressions found on the

'I have to dabble here and dabble there. By doing that I pick up on a lot of different tricks.'

- Dennis Chambers, head of Twin Falls police laboratory notepad's next page matched writing on the note. The note's handwriting matched other writing found in the notepad. And the man's fingerprints matched those found on the note.

Oh, and police searching the car also found the stolen money. "All in all, we had him pretty good," said Chambers, whose business card has a fingerprint on the front and a ruler on the back.

Colleagues say Chambers is one of the best. Chambers, who worked 10 years in the department's patrol and traffic divisions, says the same of his lab.

No other police lab in the state can equal it, according to Chambers, and that's saying something considering its humble origins.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said the lab in the police department's old building was roughly 6 feet by 12 feet,

"and everything in it was homemade."

Even when Chambers began working in the new crime lab six years ago, it still had but two pieces of technical equipment — a laminating press and a comparison microscope for firearm identification.

Since then, however, things have changed dramatically, due primarily to federal grants and the efforts of Qualls and Chambers, who jokingly calls himself the department's "catalogue reader" and "chief harasser." Equipment with esoteric, polysyllabic names now laces the lab, which is supplemented by two dark rooms and an evidence room.

The department, which performs lab work for numerous other area agencies, has also made plans to start doing its own marijuana testing and to buy a new, $24,000 comparison microscope.

It's an expensive business, Chambers said, but to save money he buys in bulk and uses book formulas to mix his own chemicals.

Chambers' favorite fields are fingerprint analysis, firearm identification and photography, but with only one part-time assistant, Detective Les Howells, he can't afford to specialize.

"I have to dabble here and dabble there," he said. "By doing that I pick up on a lot of different tricks."

But that's just fine with Chambers, whose office is overrun with an array of reference manuals.

"I don't get bored with it," he said. "I get frustrated with it occasionally, but I don't get bored with it."

Part of the frustration stems from trying to keep up with the profession's developments while simultaneously applying what is already known.

"It's terrible. I don't have time to read," said Chambers, whose professional education comes from FBI classes and self-teaching. "I basically will have to come in here, slam the door and say 'I'm tired of this — I have to read.'"

Frustration also accompanies the attempt to explain his work to jurors, who are guaranteed to be stupefied when told that a Smith & Wesson barrel has five

Area mental health services in funding crisis, official says

By LORAYNE ORTON SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mental health services are at a crisis point in the Magic Valley because of lack of state funding, according to the administrator of Canyon View Psychiatric Hospital in Twin Falls.

Ken Deibert, speaking at a Mental Health Association meeting this week, said lack of staffing has forced both Idaho State Hospital South at Blackfoot and Region 5 Mental Health Center in Twin Falls to cut back on the number of clients they can treat.

"The Idaho suicide rate is atrocious," he said. There were eight suicide attempts in one Magic Valley High School this fall, and hospital emergency staffs throughout the area report continuing cases of juvenile suicide attempts.

"The system can no longer meet the demands," Deibert said.

The irony, he said, is that at both state and community levels, mental health facilities are adequate, but without adequate funding they cannot hire enough workers to handle the need.

Area state legislators were guests at the meeting, held in conjunction with the Regional Mental Health Advisory Board.

Two of those attending, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, said cutbacks in recent years for mental health funding came from a core group in the Legislature who "didn't see the need."

State funding for regional mental health services is approved separately by the Legislature, not as part of the overall Department of Health and Welfare appropriation, said Phil Grover, director of Region 5 Mental Health Services.

As an example of the need for mental health services, Deibert said 1,200 people have been treated at the privately owned Canyon View hospital since it opened here four years ago.

"And at $400 to $450 a day, people were not there for the fun of it," he said, adding that when the private facility opened many people questioned its need.

The most glaring example of facilities being unused is at State Hospital South, where a new wing, dedicated this past summer, stands empty for lack of personnel to staff it, Deibert said.

Grover said that in August the hospital had to release several patients earlier than they should have been to make room for people who had been committed by the courts and were "at risk both to themselves and other people."

He said at other times individuals committed by local courts for institutionalization have had to be either kept in jail or placed in Canyon View Hospital.

The hospital administrator also pointed out because of reduction in staffing levels, only the most chronic and severely emotionally ill can be treated locally through the state-supported mental health system.

Grover said he has 18 staff members to serve the Magic Valley, compared with 27 when the regional mental health services began in 1974, and he will have to cut several more positions this year to balance his budget.

This means people needing marital counseling or suffering mild depression or anxiety have to be turned away.

Edna Kuiken, Mental Health Association member and a Twin Falls elementary school teacher, said teachers constantly see problem children coming from homes where mental health counseling is needed, but they aren't "crazy enough to qualify for services."

"A mother may not be disturbed enough to get attention, but she's disturbed enough to upset her five children who are headed for

Buhl adopts less-restrictive code

By MIKEL BENTON
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The Buhl City Council has adopted a new building code, which council members feel will be better suited to Buhl's size and the better its buildings.

The new code is basically the 1985 Uniform Building Code without a number of optional regulations the old code contained, Bill Block of JUB Engineers, said. "It's mainly just less restrictive," Council President Marie Maizer said.

The code was adopted as part of an effort by Mayor Tom Tippen and the council to use a set of regulations more in line with Buhl's needs. City residents have complained that the previous code was too restrictive and strictly enforced.

The new code no longer requires: Fire safety features for agricultural buildings, including sprinkler systems, for those more than one story, and 60-foot barriers on agricultural buildings.

A specific number of exits for buildings.

Fire hose inlets into basements for buildings without sprinkler systems.

Actions to lessen the impacts of sounds.

Earthquake detection devices in every building more than 10 stories.

The new code will no longer require permits for the following types of projects:

Patio covers for buildings not connected to homes.

Single-story detached accessory buildings, such as garages or sheds.

Fences less than six feet high. Walks and drives less than 30 inches above a grade.

Also repealed were the 1985 Uniform Building Code, the Code for the Abatement of Dangerous Buildings, the 1981 Edition of the National Fire Protection Association's Life Safety Code, the One and Two Family Dwelling Code and the Guideline for Manufactured Housing Installation.

Many of the requirements of these codes are covered under other regulations the city must follow, Ken Hartell, of the Department of Labor and Industries, said.

Idaho has no state regulations regarding building codes and many towns in the state have no code at all, Hartell said.

Club to join Jackpot water system

By KATHY VITEK
Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT — Barton's Club 93 will join Jackpot's water system, bringing bad news in the short run but probably good news in the long run.

The Elko County commissioners have approved an arrangement whereby the county will forego some hook-up fees to get Barton's on the town's system. In return, Jackpot gets a high-volume water user that will increase the overall efficiency of the town's water delivery system.

"In the short run, however, Jackpot's need for a fifth well now becomes a necessity, Jay Snyder, liaison to the county commissioners, said.

The Jackpot Advisory Board has discussed for some time needing a new well, mostly due to slow but steady population growth. More water is needed for the summer months, when the town can use as much as 2 million gallons a day, much of that for the golf course and irrigation. Water use averages 288,000 a day in other months, Snyder said. This past summer a reserve well had to be used.

With the addition of Barton's, a new well is almost a necessity by the coming summer, Snyder said. "We have reached to the point for the need of a fifth well," he said. "I imagine within the next two or three months we'll let out bids for a new well."

Jackpot will credit Barton's about $20,000 worth of hook-up fees before it begins charging the casino complex to come onto the water system. The $20,000 figure is about what the casino has paid the town for fire protection it has never used.

Hook-up fees are $250 a unit. Due to ground frost conditions the club may not get on the system fully until spring.

In other matters: The town will have a single remote radio instead of four due to the cost.

Board members have discussed putting in four remote radios to enhance the town's dispatch system. But it was decided to use one remote that could be easily used by three offices in the municipal building. Four remotes were estimated to cost $2,102, while a single unit will cost the city $600.

A remote control weather station will be located with the radio.

A bid of $17,800 was accepted from Ruby Dome Construction to dig a new trench at the landfill. The company currently is working and should be finished soon.

Four bids were received for the project, Snyder said. The current trench was dug five years ago.

Sister of man shot to death publicly forgives accomplice

DRAPER, Utah (AP) — The sister of a man shot to death in a bar brawl surprised the Board of Pardons by publicly forgiving an accomplice to the murder.

"I want everyone to understand and learn from this. I don't hate the people who killed my brother, but I don't condone what they did," Debra Lutz said Wednesday during a parole hearing for convicted killer Savelio Fuga.

The board nevertheless refused to set a parole date for Fuga, choosing instead to rehear his case after he has served five years at the Utah State Prison.

Fuga is serving 1 to 15 years for attempted murder and two 0-to-5-year terms for aggravated assault. He will not appear again before the board until March 1992.

Lutz was the sister of Silver Spur tavern bouncer Michael Ray Brown, 31, who was shot and killed Dec. 20, 1987.

Addressing Fuga directly during the hearing, she said: "I know you're going through a lot of pain. We're going through a lot of pain. But sometimes things happen that you can't control. I know my brother is forgiving you because he was that kind of a person. But most of all, you have to forgive yourself."

"Your remarks certainly demonstrated the variety of responses to human tragedy — and yours are on the higher end of the scale," said board Chairwoman Victoria Palacios said.

"I'm moved as well as the fact you've shown as a victim," said Board member Gary Webster. "We don't often hear comments of this nature."

Fuga, 28, and two other Provo men, Lene Malae Tuailili, 22, and Ranale Mane, 27, were all originally charged with capital murder.

Mane did the actual shooting, killing Brown and wounding two customers with a handgun. Tuailili went into the bar beforehand and apparently scouted out the situation for Mane. Fuga supplied the weapon and drove the getaway vehicle.

The shooting apparently stemmed from an argument with a bar employee earlier in the evening which ended with Fuga and Mane being ejected from the premises.

Mane returned at about 1 a.m., apparently gunning for bouncer Tom Tromley. Brown, who was not working at the time of the original altercation, was shot when he stopped between Mane and Tromley.

Fuga said only he went along with Mane because Mane threatened him.

"He overpowered me," Fuga told the board. "He said he was going to kill somebody, and said he would kill me, too."

Tuailili, serving 1 to 15 years for parole board earlier this month and will be reheard in December 1994, after seven years in prison.

Mane, who was convicted by a jury of second-degree murder, has not yet appeared before the parole board.

$36 million to go into highways

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Northern Utah road construction and improvement projects will receive more than $36 million in state and federal highway funds over the next 18 months, says a Utah Department of Transportation report.

More than $19 million will be spent to complete the final 13.8-mile stretch of Interstate 15 in Box Elder County between Tremonton and Plymouth, according to an updated work program approved recently by the Utah Transportation Commission.

The remaining $17 million will go to highway rehabilitation, road construction, bridge replacement and traffic signal projects in Davis, Weber, Morgan and Box Elder counties, the commission says.

More than $25 million will be spent during the remainder of fiscal year 1989, and UDOT officials indicate several major projects — including four contracts to complete I-15 — will go out for bid by spring.

The other $11 million will be spent during fiscal 1990, including $3 million to widen and resurface Hill Field Road in Davis County between U.S. 89 and State Street in Clearfield.

UDOT spokesman Kim Morris said the 18-month plan is to meet northern Utah's most pressing needs, although some projects must be deferred until funding becomes available.

To complete the only unfinished portion of I-15 in Utah, UDOT engineers plan to put two contracts out for bid by spring. Each will call for paving and the construction of bridge structures on two 3.7-mile sections of new interstate.

Woman faces additional abuse charges

OREGON CITY, Ore. (AP) — New charges of assault and criminal mischief were leveled Friday against a defendant charged earlier in the killing of Dayna Lorea Broussard, daughter of Watts Christian Center leader Eldridge Broussard Jr.

Constance Z. Jackson was arraigned in Clackamas County Circuit Court before Judge Patrick D. Gilroy on nine counts of first-degree assault and criminal mischief.

Jackson, 37, was allowed to remain free pending a trial next month on a manslaughter charge in connection with the girl's death.

Dayna Broussard, 8, was beaten to death Oct. 14 east of Sandy at a rural house used by the Watts Christian Center.

Four people, all associated with the Watts Christian Center, were charged with manslaughter. Two, including Jackson, were released from custody last week while two others remain in custody at the Clackamas County jail.

After the girl's death last month, Oregon officials took custody of 53 children found at the Sandy house.

All of the children remain in state custody, although one has been allowed to stay with her grandparents, who live in Oregon.

Officials have alleged that the children were subjected to systematic beatings and other abuse.

The latest indictment alleges Jackson abused nine children under her care at Watts Christian Center.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Habit creates the appearance of justice; progress has no greater enemy than habit." - Jose Marti.

Today's South played the trumps as any average player might and he won't see. Nevertheless, the clues were there for him to make the winning play.

West led the diamond king and continued with the queen. East following with the four and eight (knowing that South could not ruff East's low-high signal). West, switched to the heart queen. Dummy's ace won, and a diamond was ruffed in an attempt to drop the ace, but there was no luck there. South's last chance was to play the trump two trumps; the spade diamond and South had little left to do but complain about luck.

An analysis of the bidding should have alerted South to the location of the trump queen. West had doubled as dealer and later doubled one spade for takeout. The play revealed that West held the three top diamonds and the Q of hearts (12 HCP). He had also started with the spade queen, he would have had a mandatory opening bid. And since he didn't open, the spade queen was clearly in East's hand.

Pavelec enjoys more success in Canada

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

CALGARY, Alberta — Cinderella arrived a little ahead of schedule for Mike Pavelec.

"I really thought when I got here last year that this might be possible," said Pavelec, a Twin Falls native who was the starting offensive tackle on the University of Calgary football team that won the Vanier Cup, the national championship of Canadian collegiate football, last weekend. Calgary had won the Vanier Cup the year before I got here, so there was a great tradition. But last year, it didn't work out. This year, we had a group of guys who had played together for a year and we were ready."

Pavelec and his teammates defeated St. Mary's University of Halifax, Nova Scotia, 52-23 last Saturday on the national title game, capping an 11-0 season. Pavelec was named to the all-Western Intercollegiate Football League team, the conference that covers football-playing colleges in western Canada, last month.

"I've got two more years here and I'd like to play on two more Vanier Cup teams, make the all-Canada team and maybe play in the East-West Shrine Game (the annual charity all-star contest in Palo Alto, Calif.)," he said. "Two Canadians are picked to play in that game each year, one from the east and one from the west, and because of the quality of backs and receivers in the states, they're almost always linemen. After that, maybe the pros — but that's a long way off."

If those seem like overreaching aspirations for a 20-year-old sophomore, consider that Pavelec, a 6-foot, 6-inch, 270-pounder who played at about 245 at Twin Falls High School, didn't receive a football scholarship offer when he graduated from TRHS in 1986. He spent a few months at the U.S. Air Force Academy, quit at mid-year and walked on the following spring at the University of Calgary in his mother's home town. After a summer on a U.S. Forest Service fire-fighting crew in central Idaho, he went back to UO at about 260.

"He earned a starting position last year, but he spent the year learning the position," said his head coach, Peter Connellan. "I think the biggest difference between this year and last year is that experience, plus the off-season in the weight program. He came in last summer at about 276."

By Canadian collegiate football standards, that's huge. And Pavelec says he's still growing.

"I think that size — we averaged about 265 on our offensive line — was one of the things that was responsible for our being successful this year," he said. "Most teams in Canada can't match up with that."

As a result, the aptly named Dinnooson saw more than their share of stunts and blitzes.

"The biggest guy I had to go up against was about 6-4, 260 from the University of Saskatchewan," said Pavelec. "He's very physical, but most defenses we see try to beat us with quickness."

Pavelec said his biggest weakness in his freshman year was his pass blocking, an area he has worked hardest on improving.

"We throw the ball about 50 percent of the time, but when we throw it's from a sprintout or rollout," said Connellan. "Our linemen don't need to pass block in the classic sense very often, but Mike does it as well as he runs blocks now. He's really progressed."

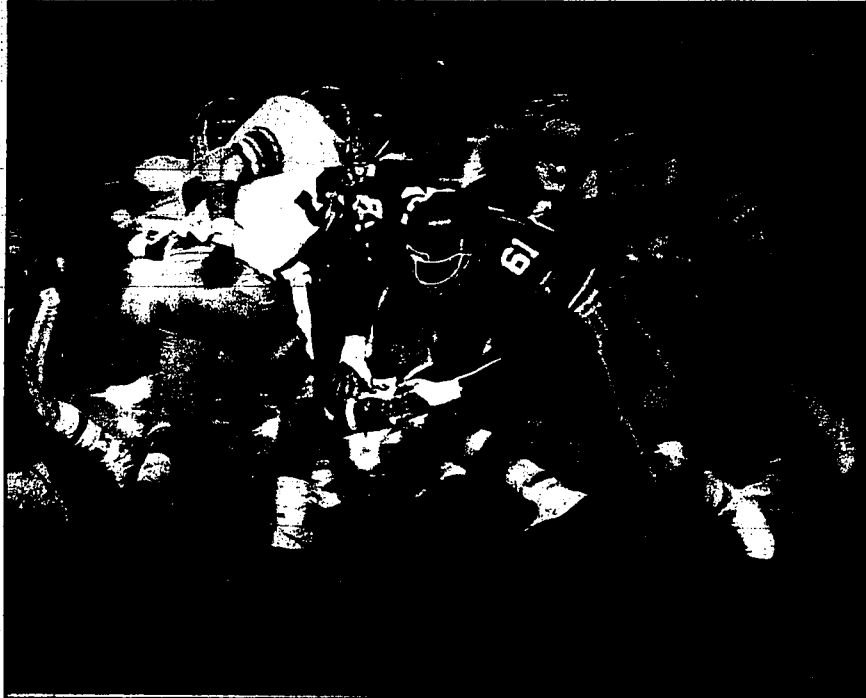

Pavelec's biggest deficit now, according to Connellan, is quickness.

"Quickness comes with strength and conditioning, and that will improve if he continues to work as hard as he has in the last year," said Connellan. "He just needs to concentrate on building up his strength."

"I came back last fall in a lot better shape," said Pavelec. "That's been the biggest difference between this year and last year — conditioning and hard work."

Pavelec, who is majoring in psychology and becoming a Canadian citizen, will resume pumping iron Monday at a week off.

"It'll be like a vacation," he said. "During the season we practice 41 hours a day."

Boise State-Northwestern State Demons may feel a chill

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Northwestern State Sports Information Director Tom Wancho stood on the blue turf of Bronco Stadium Friday watching his fingers turning blue to match.

"This is crazy," said Wancho, who resides in Natchitoches, La. "Most of our guys have never seen snow, except on TV."

The snow blew and the wind chill factor dipped into the sub-zeroes Friday as the Demons went throughout the preparations for today's NCAA Division I-AA first-round playoff game against the Broncos.

"We played the last two weeks against North Texas State and Stephen F. Austin in mud, but we never played in snow," said Northwestern coach Sam Goodwin. "If I had a choice, I'd rather play in snow than mud, but our players aren't used to these kinds of temperatures. That's got us worried."

Take the case of Northwestern wide receiver Floyd Turner, who has caught 37 balls for 680 yards this season.

"He's got an infection in one of his eyes that is aggravated by cold weather," explained Wancho. "If he plays in cold weather, he has to wear an eyepatch, and he's wearing one today."

Kickoff time is 1 p.m. As of Friday afternoon, the game was not a sellout and hence will not be televised. It will be broadcast in the Magic Valley by Boise radio station KBOI-AM.

The winner advances to a quarterfinal-round showdown against the winner of this afternoon's Montana-Idaho game.

Bronco coach Skip Hall, whose team lost the Big Sky Conference championship to Idaho last week but gained an at-large berth in the playoffs by virtue of its 8-3 record, doesn't think the cold will do much to put the Demons' blazing speed on ice.

"They'll be just as fast if it's 10 degrees and they will at 40 degrees," said Hall. "Nothing's going to slow them down unless it rains or snows, and I'm not sure that would. They've played in mud the last two weeks and this week they're playing on turf."

The Demons, who are 9-2 for the season and seeded eighth in these 16-team playoffs, are an option team that mixes the run and the pass equally, according to Hall.

"They average 200 yards a game passing and 200 rushing, and they have very, very good speed at running back, quarterback and receiver," he said. "The option presents problems for us. We don't see it that often in this league."

The last team the Broncos faced an option team, Montana State, they lost 51-7.

"When you don't see it that often, you don't work on it, and when you don't work on it, you have a lot tougher time containing it, especially against a team with such great speed in the skill positions," said Hall.

Hall added that not only are the Broncos inexperienced against the option, they're just plain inexperienced.

"We're going to get some kind of NCAA record tomorrow," he said. "We're going to be"

Idaho-Montana Vandals play 1 at a time

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho's football team traditionally doesn't fare much better after Thanksgiving than its average turkey.

So can the Big Sky Conference champion Vandals, 9-1 and newly installed as the top-seeded team in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs, shake those holiday blues when the University of Montana comes calling this afternoon for a first-round game?

"You take them one at a time," said Vandal coach Keith Gilbertson, 0-2 in postseason. "You see how good you can be and don't worry about who's next on the brackets. When you start looking ahead, you're about to get hammered."

Kickoff time is 2 p.m.

MST. Because it will be played at the same time as the USC-Notre Dame game, there will be no live television broadcast, although Nampa TV station KIVI plans to tape-delay it at 8:30 p.m. MST. Twin Falls radio station KEZJ-FM and Burley's KBAR-AM will broadcast it live.

The winner of today's game will advance to a second-round matchup next week against the winner of today's Boise State-Northwestern State contest.

As a school, Idaho is 1-4 in the I-AA playoffs, rather grim considering that the Vandals have played three of those games in the Kibbie Dome. The traditional explanation is that Idaho gets so worked up about its regular-season-ending showdown with Boise State that the playoffs become an afterthought. Indeed, in the four seasons the Vandals have advanced to postseason, they are 4-0 against the Broncos.

"Last year at this time we were running around trying to find enough guys to practice," said Gilbertson, whose Vandals lost ugly — 59-30 — to Weber State in the first round of the playoffs here a year ago. "We came under some real heavy criticism as a staff and as a program by not having a good game in the first playoff game. We did all we could do. This year is different. We are in relatively great shape for this game. We're excited about being in it."

Truth be told, much of the excitement is probably in the rematch — Idaho lost its first and last Big Sky Conference game to Montana 26-19 in September in a 94-yard interception return by free safety Greg Nygren with 1 minutes and 34 seconds remaining.

"I have no idea that we will go out and play good," said Gilbertson. "I don't know if it will be the best game we've played; it might be the worst. But I can tell you this: there will be some concise, exact preparation on our part for this game and that we will be anxious to play this game. Regardless of what happens, people will not be saying Idaho doesn't look like they want to play."

Montana coach Don Read, whose halfclub got into the playoffs despite a regular-season-ending 21-10 loss to Division II Portland State, is still trying to convince the critics that the Grizzlies should be here. Montana is 8-3, but there were I-AA teams with better records who didn't

Trenkle's double D-C theory gives CSI win, 116-79

OCALA, Fla. — Coach Fred Trenkle's double D-C theory about playing basketball on the road again stood College of Southern Idaho in good stead Friday night as the Eagles zipped into the finals of the Pepsi-Cola National Invitational junior college tournament.

Clinging to a 64-62 lead with just over 12 minutes left, the Eagles' D (depth and defense) and C (conditioning) shattered the stubborn Santa Fe Saints, 116-79 to gain the finals against host Central Florida.

Those two will square off at 6:30 p.m. (MST) today with CSI playing under the knowledge that Central Coach promised retribution after his team lost to CSI in the K and T Steel Tournament finals last year.

What happened in Friday night's semifinal was that Santa Fe, winner of a tough game against highly-regarded Chowan N.C., couldn't play two hard games in a row. CSI could.

They absorbed some foul adversity at the outset of the second half when Santa Fe, behind George Fillmore and Richard Brown, cut an 11-point lead to two by hitting 12 of 14 free throws, including four straight by Gilmore on a pair of technical fouls against the CSI bench.

At that point, CSI's top gun, Cliff Martin with 17 points, was on the bench with two quick fouls that raised his total of four. Sophomore Kenny Jarvis, foulless at halftime, had three.

But that depth and conditioning then started paying off as freshman Anthony Williams came on to hit five points — he wound up with 16 in the second half — and David Henderson reeled off six straight points and Corey Williams had a fastbreak slam.

In a six-minute span, CSI outscored the Saints 19-3. It went to 90-69 and then Williams hit three straight three-pointers and Jose Jube had five CSI points.

By this time CSI was stealing the ball most of the time or getting it back on turnovers from the tired Saints. In the last 12 minutes, CSI outscored the bring Saints 52-17.

"We really had to play our ears off for this one, especially over the first 30 minutes," Trenkle said. "Those first two games (in the tournament) are really going to help us get ready for Snow and Dixie (in Region 18-count games) next weekend because these were two excellent teams."

"Tomorrow night we go against a team with an 8-1 record, last night it was 8-0, tonight it was 6-4. Hey, this is still like the opening weekend for us and the guys are playing well. We are going into tomorrow night's game with a positive outlook but I can see the jet lag working on our players now, and the humidity is simply unbearable."

Looking toward Central Florida, Trenkle said "I actually feel in many respects the two teams we've already played are better but we know that Central is home. But these other

Notre Dame, Southern Cal may battle for championship

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame, 10-0 and ranked No. 1, vs. Southern California, 10-0 and ranked No. 2.

Notre Dame, whose 659 victories are second only to Michigan's 632, vs. Southern Cal, which ranks ninth with 536.

Notre Dame, whose 756 winning percentage is the best in college football history, vs. Southern Cal, which stands fifth at .711.

"This game is what college football is all about," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz says. "It could very well determine the national championship."

"This promises to be one of the great games of all time. It's a classic national championship game," Southern Cal coach Larry Smith says.

"It isn't strictly for the national championship from the standpoint that no matter which team wins, it will still have to win its bowl game (Notre Dame against West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl, Southern Cal against Michigan in the Rose Bowl). It's the next biggest step to the national championship."

College football

Notre Dame and Southern Cal aren't the only contenders for the national title. Third-ranked Miami, which still nurtures hopes of repeating its 1987 championship, meets No. 8 Arkansas on Saturday; fourth-ranked West Virginia wound up an 11-0 regular season last week; No. 5 Florida State entertains Florida in a Saturday night game; and No. 6 Nebraska has finished an 11-1 regular season.

The 9-through-13 teams — UCLA, Oklahoma, Michigan, Oklahoma State, Clemson — are idle. Houston, No. 14, entertains winless Rice, No. 16 LSU plays host to Tulane in a night game and Georgia Tech visits No. 20 Georgia while No. 15 Wyoming, No. 18 Washington State and No. 19 Syracuse are off.

Notre Dame will be trying to snap a budding jinx that has seen the No. 1 team lose the last four 1-2 showdowns. The Irish also are trying for their first 11-0 regular season.

"USC may be the best football team in the country," Holtz said. "They don't appear to have a weakness, no matter how hard you try to find one. (Quarterback) Rodney Pede is as talented as any player in the country. He throws with tremendous accuracy, and he can get away from the rush.

"Beating the Southern Cal blockers is one thing, trying to tackle Rodney Pede after you get there is another thing."

"They just seem to have tremendous chemistry with this group. They just have a team that is fundamentally sound in every area."

"It's the best in the East against the best in the West."

Southern Cal, off to its best start since the 1972 team went 12-0 and won the national championship, owns college football's longest-regular-season winning streak at 14 games.

"The Rose Bowl is one of our goals, and getting there was done with a great team victory over UCLA," Smith said. "All three phases of our team — offense, defense and special teams — contributed to the win. And we had some outstanding individual performances. Now we have to kick it up several notches against Notre Dame."

Smith called Pede's 16-of-28, 189-yard passing performance against UCLA several days after he was hospitalized with the measles "one of the greatest I've ever seen. It was a superhuman effort — gutsy, classy, full of big plays. If that wasn't a Heisman performance, I don't know what is."

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson hopes his team won't be complacent against Arkansas, a team it walloped 51-7 last year, after last week's 44-3 trouncing of LSU.

"Without question, there will be a tendency for our team to have a letdown," he said. "I am realistic in thinking this team will be somewhat complacent in preparing for Arkansas. There's no way I can expect our team to be as intense as they were a week ago."

Notre Dame, Southern Cal, West Virginia and Arkansas are the four remaining unbeaten-untied teams and the Razorbacks are seeking their first perfect season since the NCAA went to an 11-game schedule in 1970.

Arkansas won 11 games only in 1984 (10-0 plus a Cotton Bowl victory over Nebraska) and 1977 (10-1, plus an Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma). Ironically, Johnson was a captain of that 1984 club.

Florida State trails 22-7-1 in its series with Florida but the Seminoles are 29-0-touchdown favorites over the All American Bowl-bound Gators this time. Florida State has won nine straight since dropping its opener to Miami 31-0.

"This is our second season," FSU coach Bobby Bowden said. "The first 10 games are always our first season. The Florida game is a season in itself. We can never underestimate Florida."

"Their defense is about as good as anybody in the country (No. 2 nationally). When you can play defense like they can, you're always going to be in the game."

Florida's Galen Hall said FSU "presents the biggest challenge we have had this season. I doubt if there is a better football team in the country right now. They have more talent down through the lineup than any team we've seen and there are people on their second and third teams who could start for most schools."

Auburn bolts into Sugar Bowl with 15-10 win over Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Ron Stallworth keyed Auburn's big-play defense with four quarterback sacks, one for a safety, and Lawyer Tillman set up a touchdown with a 53-yard leaping reception as the seventh-ranked Tigers bolted into the Sugar Bowl with a 15-10 victory over No. 17 Alabama Friday.

The victory lifted the Tigers into a share of the Southeastern Conference championship with No. 16

Louisiana State, with Auburn expected to receive the Sugar Bowl bid to face No. 5 Florida State on Jan. 2 in New Orleans.

LSU will head for the Hall of Fame Bowl in Tampa to face Syracuse.

It was the sixth victory in a row for the Tigers, who closed their season at 10-1 overall and 6-1 in the SEC.

Alabama, bound for a Sun Bowl game with Army after closing the regular season at Texas A&M next Thursday night, fell to 7-3 for the year and 4-3 in the league.

It was Auburn's third victory in a row over the Crimson Tide, its longest streak in the series since putting together five in a row in the 1960s — the last four years before and first year of the Bear Bryant era.

Stallworth's 6-yard sack of David Smith in the end zone broke a 3-3 tie with 3:18 left in the opening quarter.

Tillman's catch set up a 1-yard scoring run by Vincent Harris with 2:55 left in the third quarter, staking the Tigers to a 15-3 lead that virtually put the game out of reach.

Tillman leaped up with defender Lee Orzint to spear the 53-yard bomb from Reggie Slack at the Alabama 33. On the next play, Stacy Danley raced 18 yards to the 15 and Harris scored one play after Slack fired a 12-yard pass to Freddy Weigand.

Auburn's other scoring came on field goals of 25 and 22 yards by Win Lyle.

Auburn Coach Pat Dye is held by Smokey Hodge (56), Greg Taylor (16) and Alvin Mitchell (48) after the Tigers beat the Alabama Crimson Tide, 15-10, for probable bowl spot.

Alabama's first score came on Philip Doyle's 20-yard field goal, forging a 3-3 tie with 7:44 left in the opening period.

The Tide got a touchdown with 3:23 to play on Smith's 12-yard pass to Greg Payne.

The SEC crown was the second in a row for the Tigers and their fourth in history.

Lee Trevino says he's ready to play but won't make prediction

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Lee Trevino said he is not in the business of making predictions.

"I must have had a thousand people ask me if I'm going to make another hole-in-one this year," Trevino said before a practice round for the Skins Game, a two-day, made-for-television golf event that begins Saturday.

"I just tell 'em I can't predict things. If I could, I'd be in Las Vegas or the White House — yeah, the White House," said Trevino.

Last year, he had a hole-in-one worth $175,000 on the 17th hole at PGA West and swept all $288,000 on the last nine holes.

"I've had more comment about that than anything I've done in my life. There must have been 200 million people saw it. Even people that don't know golf. I walk through airports and they say, 'hey, that's the guy made the hole in one.'"

"I really wanted to play well in the Skins last year. I'd worked hard getting ready for it. It was important to me."

"This year, sure, I'd like to play well. But if I don't, well, it won't be all that disappointing. I won all that money last year and you can't be greedy about it," Trevino said.

The other members of the foursome chasing

PGA

$450,000 in total prize money includes Jack Nicklaus, the only one to play in all five previous Skins Games, and pair of newcomers to this competition, Ray Floyd and Curtis Stricker.

Strange, winner of four titles this year and the first to surpass $1 million in single-season earnings on the PGA Tour, and the veteran Floyd both had hoped to be invited earlier.

"I felt I should have been invited before this," Floyd said. "This is my kind of game. I want to prove to them that I should have been invited earlier."

Nicklaus, who recently completed a series of consultations with medical specialists about back problems that threatened his career, said "I'm hurting," when he arrived at PGA West Friday morning.

"But I'm OK," he quickly added. "I can play golf."

The format has the foursome playing nine holes a day Saturday and Sunday. Each hole carries an assigned dollar value, $15,000 on each of the first six holes, $25,000 on each of the next six, and $35,000 on the last six.

The man who wins a hole, wins the money. If there is no winner on a hole the money is carried forward.

Soviet to play for Portland Trail Blazers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Soviet basketball star Arvydas Sabonis will be playing for the Portland Trail Blazers next season provided that NBA players obtain clearance to play in the 1992 Olympics, says Yuri Selikhov, the interim coach of the Soviet basketball team.

Such clearance would allow the center to play for the Blazers and still play on the Soviet Union's Olympic team. Olympic officials are to rule in April on whether NBA players can play in the Olympics.

"I think Sabonis will be playing in Portland (next year)," Selikhov told The Oregonian newspaper. Selikhov was in Seattle Wednesday for a game in which his team defeated the University of Washington 102-92.

Selikhov said that if Sabonis is allowed to play for the Blazers, it would benefit the Portland team and would benefit the Soviet team as his play likely would improve with experience in the NBA.

Sabonis, 23, was a first-round draft choice of the Blazers in 1986. He has spent time in Portland for rehabilitation of leg injuries, which have kept him sidelined the last four games on the Soviet trip.

Redskins to start Rypien against the Browns; Williams news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling Doug Williams "a little tired and a little worn down," Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs on Friday named Mark Rypien his starting quarterback for Sunday's game against the Cleveland Browns.

"I think a good breath of fresh air will help Doug," Gibbs said. "I think he'll be fine coming off the bench, but Rip is fresh. I thought it would be best to go with him."

Rypien got his initial NFL start 25 after Williams was placed on the injured reserve list following an emergency appendectomy. Rypien started four games, but injured his ribs against Phoenix on Oct. 16 and lost the job to Williams the following week.

Rypien has relieved Williams twice since then, against Houston on Oct. 30 and two weeks ago in a loss to Chicago. In both games, Williams emerged battered after facing a relentless pass rush.

NFL

"Doug was a little tired and a little worn out," Gibbs said. "It's been a grinding four weeks for him."

Rypien can only hope he fares better against the Browns than Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar did in his debut against Washington.

Kosar, then a rookie, completed only seven of 17 passes for 84 yards. He threw two interceptions, and the 17.4 quarterback rating he got in the game makes it his worst performance in the NFL.

That was 1985. This is now.

Kosar was a mere 21-year-old on that brisk October afternoon. Gibbs expects to see a much different player Sunday at RFK Stadium.

"He's come a long way since the last time we saw him," Gibbs said. "He was in his first year and just getting his feet on the ground. Now he's very established, very sharp, very precise. He knows exactly where to go with the ball."

"He's a totally different guy right now (than in 1985)," Gibbs added. "He's got all the tools, particularly great accuracy and great timing — he usually puts the ball up before his receiver even makes a move."

This was to be the year that Kosar and the Browns stroled through the season en route to their initial appearance in the Super Bowl. Cleveland is still in the running for a playoff berth, but the Browns' season has hardly been a frolic.

It took a turn downhill on Day 1, when Kosar strained ligaments in his right elbow in the opener against Kansas City and missed the next six games.

He returned Oct. 23 against Phoenix and has since led Cleveland to wins in three of five games. Now, with a 7-5 record, the Browns hold their playoff fate in their own hands.

"It's been difficult," Kosar said, referring to a season in which he spent most of his time in street clothes. "But at least we've put ourselves in a position where we can decide our own destiny. We're in a decent position right now."

The same cannot be said of the Redskins, 6-6, who trail Phoenix, Philadelphia and the New York Giants by a game in the NFC East. The defending Super Bowl champions desperately need to beat Cleveland to stay in contention for a playoff berth.

Part of the reason for the Redskins' fall has been injuries. But just as significant is Washington's minus-17 turnover ratio and its inability to establish a running game.

In this Hogs versus Dawgs matchup, the Redskins know they need to improve upon their shortcomings if they are to get back over 500.

Cleveland has an excellent corps of linebackers and some big, physical guys up front," said Redskins center Jeff Bostic. "We've just got to do a better job of running the football and certainly, we've got to stop turning the ball over. That's the big thing for us."

Bostic said the Redskins' biggest concern this week is not necessarily the players who line up across the line of scrimmage.

"I really don't think we can concern ourselves right now with how we prepare for our opponent as much as how we're going to prepare ourselves to play better as a team," he said. "The problem right now is us. We've got to find a way to play harder, be more successful and to win football games."

Yankees sign Sax for 3 years; Randolph now a question

By Rich DePreata Stamford Advocate

Well, owner George Steinbrenner and the New York Yankees outbid all of Major League Baseball for another high-priced free agent.

There was no question that second baseman Steve Sax was the premier everyday player available in this year's free agent sweepstakes.

And, for once, the Yanks signed a player who is in his prime — Sax, a seven-year veteran, will be 29 in January — and is likely to improve over the life of his three-year, $4 million contract.

Sax, a lifetime .282 hitter who had a career-high 57 RBI in 1988, gives the Bronx Bombers a solid No. 2 batter behind the explosive Rickey Henderson.

The combination of Henderson and Sax should set the table for Don Mattingly, Dave Winfield, Ken Phelps and Mike Pagliarulo in the middle of the Yankees' lineup.

Pro baseball

"I did some research," Yankees General Manager Bob Quinn said. "And I found out there were just 15 players — six in the National League and nine in the American League — who had more than 600 at-bats last year."

"And Steve Sax, with just 51 strikeouts in 631 at-bats, was second to Boston's Marty Barrett in strikeout-to-at-bat ratio among the 15. And he was the leader in stolen bases with 42 thefts in 54 attempts."

Sax is a fine contact hitter but he will need time to adjust to the styles and motions of American League pitchers.

The signing of Sax shows that Steinbrenner is willing to let Dallas Green tailor the 1989 Yankees to his specifications no matter what the cost.

With SportsChannel and Madison Square Garden Network fighting over a TV contract that should line George's pocket with nearly $500 million dollars, Steinbrenner certainly can afford the largesse.

This influx of dollars should also keep the Yanks alive in the Bruce Hurst sweepstakes if they want to bolster their pitching staff.

The down side, of course, is that George now has the excuse to fire Green if the Yanks fall short of winning the American League pennant and the 1989 World Series.

"Well, I gave you all the players you asked for," George will wail whenever it becomes most convenient.

While Sax's potential offensive capabilities are unquestioned, this still the same player who committed 30 errors, mostly throwing miscues, in 1982.

Another side to the Sax signing is just what becomes of Willie Randolph.

Del. Yes, Randolph is 34 and a 13-year veteran. And yes, it was obvious last year that the Yankees had no one in their organization, except Bobby Maccham, who could play second base when Randolph was hurt.

But once again, Steinbrenner, who likes to beat Yankees fans over the head about pinstripe pride and Yankee tradition, has callously tossed a true New York Yankee onto the scrap heap.

"When you think of today's Yankees, you think of Willie Randolph," Quinn said. "Willie is a consummate pro. He's meant so much to New York for 13 years. And there's no question he paid through pain last year."

"But the signing of Steve Sax," Quinn continued, "puts negotiations with Willie (currently a free agent) into a doubtful state."

Randolph's value to the Yankees

Steve Sax takes a cut at Dodgers' spring training session on the field was obvious the last two years. New York's 1987 pennant hopes ended in August when Henderson and Randolph both went down with leg injuries. And last season, Randolph elected to play despite a damaged ligament in his wrist when he was told that surgery would keep him out the entire year.
