Bankruptcy judge rejects Hawkins' operating plan

By The Times News and the Associated Press

BOISE — A federal bankruptcy judge has rejected the Chapter 11 bankruptcy petition of Hawkins Co. Ltd., along with the interim operating plan the bean warehouse had proposed.

Hawkins' attorney urged U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Alfred Hagan at a hearing Friday to approve the 40-day operating plan. He acknowledged it was not perfect, but said it was the best and quickest way available to settle this messy, expensive problem.

But after hearing from more than a dozen attorneys for growers and other creditors during the 90-minute hearing, Hagan said the financial protection provisions were too uncertain for him to accept the Hawkins proposal.

He also said it was too soon to decide whether the company should be turned over to a federal bankruptcy trustee for liquidation.

The ruling means Hawkins has lost its chance to control its liquidation, said Lloyd Walker, a Twin Falls attorney representing several growers.

"Hawkins is out of it completely now," Walker said. "They won't even get attorneys' fees paid."

Hagan gave the Idaho Department of Agriculture approval to proceed with a hearing scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Monday before 8th District Judge Daniel Meehl. Richard Rush, director of the department, is seeking to place the company under state receivership.

Even if the request is approved, Rush will not have the authority to liquidate the company's buildings, assets and the approximately 194,000 hundredweight bean inventory until after the next bankruptcy hearing, which Hagan scheduled for Jan. 23 to review progress in the case.

The Filer bean warehouse is being pursued by more than 400 creditors, including hundreds of growers claiming rights

Idaho death sentences may be overturned

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

JEROME — A recent Idaho Supreme Court decision to hear more arguments in a Jerome County murder case could lead to a decision overturning every death sentence in the state.

The court this week mailed a notice ordering Jerome attorney Greg Fuller to prepare briefs arguing the issues raised in a recent 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision that overturned an Arizona death-penalty statute similar to Idaho's.

If the Arizona decision stands or if the Idaho court agrees with the decision, all of our death sentences will be voided, said Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones. That's the long and the short of it.

Jones had already offered help to Arizona to appeal the 9th Circuit's decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. The case's potential impact on Idaho seemed to be on hold until the Idaho Supreme Court ordered new arguments in the death-sentence appeal of Jaimi Charboneau, a former rodeo cowboy convicted of killing his ex-wife.

Fuller said that if Idaho agrees with the 9th Circuit, all death sentences would be converted to life, or the convicted murderers might have to go back for resentencing in front of a jury.

"These guys have a constitutional right to it," Fuller said. "I really believe that."

But Jones argues that judges — rather than juries — can more consistently apply the complicated judicial rules surrounding death-sentence decisions.

The court ordered arguments on all issues raised by the Arizona decision that overturned the death sentence of John Harvey Adamson. Arizona's death-sentence statute is similar to Idaho's.

Idaho Power seeks rate boost

The Associated Press

He declined further comment.

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. asked the Public Utilities Commission on Friday to order an immediate 8.8-percent rate increase as directed by the Idaho Supreme Court in a December decision favoring the utility.

The company said the utility is losing revenue it is entitled to, and is prohibited by law from trying to collect the money retroactively.

The company said any money it collects, which later is determined to be improper, could be refunded with interest.

Commissioner Perry Swisher said the PUC plans a hearing on the request for Monday, Jan. 23.

If approved by the PUC, the requested rate increase would add about $5 per month to the average residential power bill, said Jack Miller, manager of the Twin Falls office of Idaho Power.

The Supreme Court on Dec. 2 ruled 3-2 for Idaho Power in a dispute with the PUC centered on whether the utility should be allowed to "put into its rate base most of its investment in a northern Nevada coal-fired generating plant."

In 1986, the PUC rejected most of Idaho Power's request for a 21-percent rate increase, saying the utility continued to invest in the Valmy II plant in Nevada after it

Exposure limits set for 164 substances

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government greatly expanded its role in protecting workers from hazardous materials Friday.

It set exposure limits for 164 substances for the first time and tightened limits for 212 more in changes officials said could save 700 lives a year.

"This is a monumental job," Assistant Labor Secretary John A. Pendergrass said in announcing the standards, which he said should significantly reduce the risk of illness to 21 million Americans who work in general industry and may be exposed to toxic or hazardous materials.

About 4.5 million workers now face exposures above the new limits, the Labor Department said in completing a two-year project that represents the first large-scale changes to exposure standards in nearly two decades. Employers have until September to comply.

"We are literally taking a 20-year technological leap," said Pendergrass, head of the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration. "This is the biggest action OSHA has taken in its history."

OSHA estimated that in addition to preventing about 700 deaths a year, the tighter limits should prevent 55,000 illnesses and 600,000 lost workdays each year attributed to workplace exposure to hazardous and toxic materials. Rough estimates provided by the agency indicated the new standards could cut exposure-related deaths by one-fifth, illnesses and lost workdays by one-fourth.

The reductions in maximum exposure limits cover some of the most commonly used industrial materials and byproducts, including acetone, carbon monoxide, carbon disulfide, chloroform, hydrogen cyanide, perchloroethylene and styrene.

Substances regulated for the first time include wood dust and grain dust, acrylic acid, butane, gasoline, paraffin wax fumes, tungsten and welding fumes.

Some substances are known or suspected carcinogens; others can have narcotic-like effects on humans. Still others are blamed for

Tax overhaul of '86 may reduce revenue

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional analysts on Friday disputed the Reagan administration's projection that the 1986 tax overhaul — which was supposed to have no effect on the federal deficit — will actually worsen the red ink by nearly $91 billion over five years.

Nevertheless, the Congressional Budget Office did acknowledge its own forecasts show that rather than being "revenue neutral" the sweeping law will lose $24.4 billion during the same five-year period ending in 1992.

Comparing other time periods shows a similar disagreement between the administration's tax experts in the Treasury Department and those of Congress, who work for the Congressional Budget

Office and the Joint Committee on Taxation.

"The argument means nothing as far as reducing the deficit is concerned, since the revenue figures are already built into the president's budget."

However, the disagreement is likely to make government officials and the public think twice the next time they hear anyone attempt to estimate tax revenues far into the future.

Meanwhile, Joseph Wright Jr., Reagan's budget director, said he did not expect the size of the revenue losses to be anywhere near the levels being estimated in the president's formal budget.

"This is a static analysis done by the Treasury Department that does not take into account any other influences on the economy. It needs to be taken with a grain of salt," Wright said. He said the analysis failed to take into account faster economic growth that the administration contends is likely to occur in response to the reduction in tax rates.

Shortly after Congress passed the 1986 law, Treasury and the Joint Committee on Taxation estimated it would be essentially revenue neutral — lose only $300 million — from 1987 through 1991.

They forecast a sizable revenue increase in 1987, because taxpayers would act to avoid a scheduled rise in the tax on capital gains; losses in 1988 and 1989; and then increases into the future.

At this time a year ago, Reagan proposed a budget that forecast a $20-billion drop in collections during the same five years. The budget that came out this week more than doubles that projected decline, to $48.5 billion for the period, and increases it to $90.9 billion for the 1988-92 period.

'Powerless' judge dismisses criminal charges against North

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The judge in the Iran contra case dismissed major charges against Oliver North on Friday, saying "the court is powerless" to do otherwise.

White House lawyers, meanwhile, moved to stop North's effort to force President Reagan and President-elect Bush to testify.

In trying to keep Reagan and Bush from being called as witnesses by North, the administration raised the threat of a constitutional battle of "potentially major dimensions" and said it has been offering to respond in writing since last Sept. 23 to any "reasonable written questions" the former White House aide might ask as part of his defense.

The spectacle of a former or sitting president being subjected to peremptory judicial process may chill foreign governments in the way they deal with the President now and in the future," the government said in a motion to quash the subpoenas for Reagan and Bush to appear at North's trial.

Twelve criminal charges remain against North, and the issue of dealing with classified information in open court contines to be a problem. Attorneys for both sides met privately in the judge's chambers after Friday's open session to discuss matters relating to the Classified Information Procedures Act.

North's lawyers have subpoenaed Reagan and Bush to testify at the trial, now set for Jan. 31; but no sitting president has ever testified in person in court.

Disclosure of White House willingness to answer questions in writing came in a 27-page brief by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, who said that North "has not identified any of the issues on which he wishes to examine the president or president-elect and has not demonstrated the need for their testimony."

"Until he does so," wrote Thornburgh, "there can be no justification for precipitating constitutional litigation of potentially major dimensions by compelling an in-court appearance by a sitting or former president."

He said Reagan "will consider furnishing appropriate information in writing in response to reasonable written questions, if limited to material subject matter." He said Bush "joins that offer."

North's lawyers, meanwhile, served the Justice Department with subpoenas for Reagan and Bush to turn over various personal papers for use by the defense, said department spokesman Lyle Miller.

The administration filed its motion to quash the subpoenas for Reagan's and Bush's personal testimony four hours after U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell declared at a hearing that he had no power to stop the government's abandonment of conspiracy and theft counts against North.

Soviet media question story of quake survivor

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — The Soviet news media cast serious doubts Friday on reports about a sensational rescue of six men from the rubble of an apartment building 35 days after the Armenian earthquake.

The official Tass news agency, which had reported the rescue Thursday, issued a rare follow-up story saying it had been unable to find a single witness to confirm "the miracle of Leninakan." The story was also challenged by the government newspaper Izvestia.

"We journalists find ourselves in a difficult situation," Izvestia said.

"The experience of the past days has taught us that there is a great, a very great wish for a miracle."

Thursday's Tass story quoted Aikaz Akopyan, a 50-year-old electrician in Leninakan, a city devastated by the Dec. 7 earthquake, as saying that he and five companions had managed to survive in the apartment building's basement after finding stores of canned vegetables, stewed fruit and pickles. Accounts of the apparently miraculous escape were prominently reported by Soviet and foreign newspapers, including The Washington Post.

But Soviet journalists failed Friday to find any other witnesses to corroborate the account of Akopyan.

Libya returns pilot's remains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The individual whose remains were turned over to the United States on Friday by Libya has been identified as the pilot of an F-111 bomber which took part in the raid over Libya in 1986, Pentagon sources said Friday night.

The officials said Libya had been wrong in tentatively identifying the remains as those of Capt. Paul Lorence, 31, of San Francisco.

Rather, the remains have now been positively identified as those of Maj. Fernando Ribas-Dominici, of Utao, Puerto Rico.

Ribas-Dominici, who was 33 at the time of his death, was pilot of the lone F-111 bomber lost in the bombing raid on Tripoli. Lorence was the other airman in the lost plane.

Hawkins

Continued from Page A1 to the beans inventory. The interim proposal was the first of three steps the company planned to take to complete liquidation by late spring, said Jerry Jensen, Hawkins attorney.

Hawkins was shut down Nov. 22 after inventory shortages were discovered, and later determined to be more than 114,000 hundredweight sacks of beans. The company asked the Department of Agriculture to step in. Mehl issued a seizure and protection order in December.

About two dozen attorneys for Hawkins and its creditors appeared at Friday's hearing, along with about 100 farmers. They heard Jensen outline an interim operating plan calling for the company to secure financing through First Security Bank and other sources to operate for 40 days.

That would have allowed Hawkins to fulfill a lucrative, pre-existing contract to mill and sack 10,000 sacks of certified bean seed for the Alberta Wheat Pool in Canada.

But attorneys for individual growers opposed the plan. They objected to allowing Hawkins to handle the beans in any way and said the estimated $10-per-hundredweight cost of milling for the Canadian contract was at least double what other local bean warehouses would charge to do the job.

The plan as proposed is risking these growers' beans without risking anything of Hawkins', said Russell Kvanig, an attorney representing 27 growers. Another issue raised by growers' attorneys was that while growers have a clear claim to beans stored at the Hawkins warehouse, their claim to any cash receipts from the liquidation of that inventory is not certain.

"I don't think Hawkins has any more right to sell those beans than if they were storing my car and wanted to sell it to pay my attorney fees," Walker said.

Attorney James Melanson of Buhl, representing 17 growers of certified bean seed, said his clients objected to the proposed method for financing the milling operation in the interim plan. The cash collateral Hawkins would be offering "First Security Bank of Idaho would have to come from the sale of growers' beans," he said.

"First Security is the primary commercial lender among Hawkins' creditors. The banks' attorney, Thomas Manschreck, said First Security has loaned the company approximately $21 million since last July.

First Security favored Hawkins' interim operating plan for the most part, he said. The bank agreed to provide financing for the plan after Idaho First National Bank dropped out of an agreement with the company to provide the financing the eve of the hearing, Jensen said.

The only purpose of the interim plan was to transfer more of the bean proceeds to First Security and thereby help pay off the debts the Hawkins owners personally guaranteed with that bank, Walker said.

Walker asked First Security attorneys in court whether they would give up their claims to the beans and proceed. They refused to answer.

Several growers' attorneys asked Hagan to appoint a bankruptcy trustee to liquidate Hawkins and distribute the receipts. But David Whitney, an attorney for the California Bean and Farmers Cooperative, said growers he represents want no part of any liquidation.

Whitney said his clients had contracted with Hawkins to store certified seed beans, and that they now want the beans returned for use as seed stock. He also challenged the 40-day length of the proposed interim operating plan, saying the 10,000 hundredweight Canadian contract could be filled within two weeks.

"We question whether the fox should be left in the henhouse," Whitney said.

Jensen said the Hawkins plan was aimed at avoiding a lengthy court fight that would result in most of the assets of the company ending up in southern Idaho law firms.

The proposal was a good-faith effort to settle the problem since there was no way the company could satisfy all the creditors with claims against it, he said.

"If there were enough beans to do that, we wouldn't be here, would we?" Jensen said.

Appeal

Two issues in the circuit's Arizona decision could affect Idaho: The court ruled against having a judge, not a jury, sentence a convicted murderer to death. The 9th Circuit also ruled against allowing judges justify their death-sentence decisions by deciding the murder was especially heinous or outrageously evil.

The circuit called that term unconstitutionally vague.

The Idaho court has consistently upheld Idaho's death-sentencing scheme in 3-2 decisions.

In Arizona, the 9th Circuit's opinion commuted 80 death sentences to life, said Jack Roberts, an Arizona assistant-attorney general. In Idaho, 15 prisoners await execution.

"It could have been disastrous," Roberts said of the Adamson decision. But it won't be, he asserts, because he's certain the U.S. Supreme Court will overturn the 9th Circuit's opinion, provided it agrees to hear Arizona's appeal.

"I don't believe for one minute they (the U.S. Supreme Court) will uphold it," Roberts said.

Roberts is frustrated by what he terms the 9th Circuit's belligerence over death penalties. Prosecutors in the circuit complain the court is slow, and Roberts said the circuit has been dead wrong in its opinions on the subject.

Roberts already has written a petition to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Charboneau is one of the few death-sentence cases pending before the Idaho Supreme Court. Fuller, appointed to represent Charboneau, argued the case in November, but the court hasn't issued a decision.

The 9th Circuit's December decision to overturn Arizona's death-sentence statute voided Adamson's death sentence. Adamson was convicted of planting a car bomb that killed newspaper reporter Donald Bolles.

The federal decision in Adamson's case came just when the Idaho Supreme Court appeared to be firmly in favor of the state's death-penalty statute.

When Justice Charles Donaldson died last year prosecutors were worried that a new justice could alter the court's slim death-penalty majority and overturn the state's statute. Those worries escalated when Gov. Cecil Andrus appointed attorney Byron Johnson to Donaldson's position. Johnson had been a member of the American Civil Liberties Union.

But those worries apparently evaporated with a cryptic note in a recent court decision after Johnson came on board.

Justice Robert C. Humley, one of the two judges consistently arguing that Idaho's death-sentencing scheme is unconstitutional, gave up the fight in the footnote.

Jones is upset by the Idaho court's apparent haste to decide the issue, almost as much as by its reconsideration of what seemed to be a settled issue.

The court ordered the state and Fuller to file briefs by Jan. 25 and reply briefs within seven days of that deadline. Oral arguments are planned by the end of February.

Rates

became apparent power from that source would not be needed until at least the early 1990s.

But the Supreme Court ruled that was " hindsight and accepted the company's arguments that the PUC itself approved construction of the Nevada facilities because its electricity appeared to be needed at the time.

In its ruling, the Supreme Court said any further delays in allowing Idaho Power the higher rates would amount to confiscation of private property, because the utility could not collect the money retroactively.

It ordered the rate increase into effect immediately, after the PUC verified the numbers.

But the PUC did not follow the order and the commission and three other intervenors petitioned the court for rehearing.

Written legal arguments on that point have been submitted to the Supreme Court. The court can either reject the petitions for rehearing or call for further arguments in the case.

Idaho Power said since parties in the case have asked for rehearing, it has no idea how long that will take, and meanwhile, it is losing considerable revenues the court, in its initial decision, said the utility was entitled to.

Idaho Power said state laws allow utilities to impose new rates, subject to refund.

kidney, liver, heart and respiratory ailments while some are major skin and eye irritants.

The limits cover the maximum amount of a substance a worker can be exposed to at any given time and during an eight-hour workday.

OSHA said it needed to conduct further review before setting limits for exposure to asphalt, fibrous glass dust and mineral wool. Those substances had been subject to new standards under the agency's draft regulations, but conflicting data presented during public hearings prompted OSHA to delay final decisions.

The new federal guidelines will require 23 states and the territories of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to check OSHA-approved local standards. They have adopted to make sure they meet the new regulations.

Those states are: Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and Wyoming. Affected to a lesser extent are Connecticut and New York, which have state exposure standards for local government employees.

The changes announced Friday could cost employers on average $6,000 a year for each affected workplace, though that would vary greatly, the government said.

Legislative briefs

Andrus won't put trust in Jones

BOISE (AP) — Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus has defended his proposal for an attorney in his office, claiming he simply cannot trust a potential political opponent like Republican Attorney General Jim Jones for legal advice on the most sensitive matters.

"When can you trust your legal counsel to give you proper advice, and when is the knife going between the second and third ribs," Andrus said Friday during the taping of KTVB-TV's "Viewpoint" show for airing this weekend. "He wants to destroy me, take my job."

Jones has been at odds with Andrus over a number of legal matters in the past two years and has indicated an interest in challenging the governor in the 1990 campaign.

Legislative Council vacancies filled

BOISE (AP) — Republican senators from Eagle and Idaho Falls have been appointed to vacancies on the Legislative Council, the body that manages legislative affairs when the House and Senate are not in session.

Sens. Herb Carlson of Eagle and Lee Staker of Idaho Falls will replace former Sen. Jerry Sverdsten of Cataldo, who was defeated in last November's election, and Sen. Jerry Thorne of Nampa, who has become chairman of the Education Committee.

Rancher already knows lottery ropes

BOISE (AP) — Members of the House State Affairs Committee got a briefing on the new state lottery Friday, although Director Wallace Hedrick said he really didn't know much about lotteries and gambling.

When Rep. Wayne Sutton started to ask Hedrick questions about the lottery, Chairman Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, interrupted him.

"He already knows a lot about gambling and taking chances. He's in that business. He's in agriculture," Mrs. Bengson quipped; about Sutton, a Midvale rancher.

Man cleared in murder charge

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Bingham County Prosecutor Tom Moss said a through investigation in 1987 cleared Kevin Buchholz of any involvement in the murder of Stacy Baldwin, for which Paul Ezra Rhoades has been sentenced to death.

"We had totally eliminated him as a suspect prior to the arrest of Paul Rhoades," Moss said Thursday.

Rhoades' attorneys raised Buchholz's name during an appeal hearing Wednesday in 7th District Court in Idaho Falls.

"I don't believe anything involving the three slayings for which Rhoades has been convicted," Rhoades, 31, is seeking a new trial on his conviction and sentence of death for killing special education teacher Susan Michelbacher in March, 1987.

He also has been sentenced to death in Bingham County in the murder of Mrs. Baldwin, and is under two life sentences in the death of Nolan Haddon. All three were shot to death in early 1987.

A Bingham County jailer testified that Buchholz confessed to the Feb. 28, 1987, murder of Mrs. Baldwin when he was in the Bingham County jail two weeks after her death.

"This isn't the first time he (Buchholz) has done this," Moss said. "He's pleaded guilty to things when he's drunk, then he's recanted the next day when he's sobered up."

Rhoades' Bonneville County public defenders have said evidence linking anyone else to any of the three slayings would support Rhoades' request for a new trial in the Michelbacher case because investigators believe the same person committed all three murders.

Judge Larry Boyle will rule later on the Rhoades motions.

Stephen Hart, a defense attorney during Rhoades' Idaho Falls trial, said the defense did not know details of Buchholz's confession to the jailer before the trial.

But under cross-examination by Bonneville County Prosecutor Kimball Mason, Hart acknowledged that before the trial the defense was given a Blackfoot police report mentioning the confession.

McCall teacher will have to wait for shuttle mission

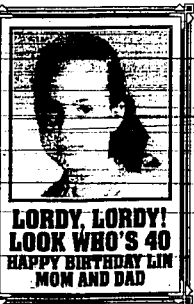

HOUSTON (AP) — McCall teacher Barbara Morgan may not take part in a space shuttle mission in the foreseeable future after NASA's announcement on Thursday.

"We're going to be supercautious and not let people indiscriminately on the space shuttle," NASA spokesman David Garrett said in Washington, D.C. "We're not going to do it until we have absolute confidence in the system and we're sure it's safe."

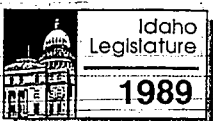

The new policy, 21 years in the making, was initiated in the wake of the January 1985 Challenger explosion that killed seven crew members, including schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe. Mrs. Morgan is considered the first teacher-in-space candidate to be allowed on a future mission.

"Space flight participants" are a new category, including teachers, journalists, poets, musicians and others once deemed appropriate for bringing the experience of space flight back to earth.

NASA is taking a harder look at putting such people through the possible dangers involved in a shuttle mission, Garrett said the policy effectively cancels the journalist-in-space program, but did not say when the next teacher will take part.

Senate Demos unveil 9-point ed proposal

BOISE (AP) — Senate Democrats have outlined a nine-point proposal to improve Idaho's educational system — a plan that Republican leaders say is similar to their own education agenda to be detailed early next week.

These are recommendations for activity by the Republicans, who are the majority, and for comment and discussion with Schools Superintendent Jerry Evans and the governor, Assistant Democratic Floor Leader Gail Bray of Boise said Friday.

The proposal, that included financing merit pay for teachers and smaller classroom sizes in kindergarten through third-grade, was endorsed by the entire 19-member Senate Democratic Caucus, leaders said.

Senate Republican President Pro Tem Michael Crapo of Idaho Falls said the education agenda House and Senate GOP leaders will unveil next week likely will include most items cited by the Democrats and others.

And while the leadership agenda may not have the support of every Republican lawmaker, Crapo said it would represent the issues — many discussed in previous sessions — that should at least be considered during the coming three months.

"We can all agree we want accountability and we need to focus on the non-salary issues," Crapo said. The Democrats said they had no price-tag on the cost of implementing their program, but Floor Leader Bruce Sweeney of Lewiston said the focus would be more on redirecting existing money than increasing budgets to accomplish its goals.

In addition to providing some financial commitment to the so-called career-ladder — merit pay plan — for teachers, the Democrats proposed:

- Incentives to encourage consolidation of small school districts while keeping consolidation an option.
- Review of options on extending the school day and school year to better utilize education facilities while offering more learning opportunities.
- Enhanced academic requirements for school administrators.
- More scholarships to encourage students to train for high-need, low-salary professions like nursing.

- Reduced student teacher ratios in kindergarten through third grade when the learning capabilities of children are best nurtured.
- Expansion of programs for gifted and special needs students.
- Increased financial support for programs combating drug and alcohol abuse among children.

The proposal also calls for development of a long-range plan for the education system with a special legislative committee monitoring spending.

"The plan we are talking about will ensure accountability," Sen. Michael Burkett, D-Boise, said. "The business community is getting very excited about education. These business leaders want these things run like a business."

Senate introduces Andrus' child abuse package

BOISE (AP) — The first three pieces of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus' legislative package to combat child abuse have been introduced by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bills were among nine introduced by the panel on Friday, including legislation from Attorney General Jim Jones to block disclosure of the names of victims of sexual crimes.

That bill, similar to one Jones proposed last year in his bid to protect victims' privacy, quickly drew the fire of Steve Hargren, managing editor of the state's Twin Falls Times-News and spokesman for the state's daily newspapers.

A year ago, Hargren said, "it was the understanding that the attorney general's office would attempt to draft a statute that was not overly broad but which met reasonable objectives. Unfortunately, I don't think this measure as proposed meets that standard."

There was little discussion of the bill before the committee since a full-scale hearing will be held in the next few weeks. But Hargren said it would effectively stop the reporting of sexual offenses in the state because law enforcement agencies will without all information on a sexual assault since any information would tend to identify the victim.

"I think that's a very poor public policy because it will give people the impression that sexual crimes are not occurring in Idaho when, in fact, they are safer than they really are."

In proposing the confidentiality bill a year ago, Jones publicly accused a northern Idaho newspaper of publishing the name of a sexual assault victim only to find out that such an incident never occurred.

The fact of the matter is there has not been a case in Idaho where the press has held someone up to a privacy violation on a sexual assault case, Hargren said. "The practice is that newspapers and broadcast outlets do not use the names of sexual assault victims."

Oregon closes I-84 because of snow

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP) — Interstate 84 was closed between La Grande and Baker Friday because of blowing snow, Oregon State Police reported.

Eastbound traffic was halted east of Pendleton at Meacham, while the entire highway was closed between La Grande and Baker, State Highway 237, an alternate route through Cove and Union, also was closed.

Lt. Gerald Hays of the state police in La Grande said no major accumulations of new snow were reported in that area of Eastern Oregon, but that high winds were whipping up snow already on the ground, reducing visibility to zero.

"It's just the wind blowing so darned hard up there," he said.

The state Highway Division reported winds gusting to 40 mph in Ladd Canyon.

"It's like a whiteout up there," said Julie Hicks of the division's district office in La Grande.

The interstate was closed about 11 a.m., Hays said.

"It's not an emergency situation yet," he said. "If we continue to keep it shut down ... we'll have the same problem as we did before."

Several weeks ago, the highway was closed for more than 24 hours because of a winter storm.

Couple accused of abandoning 7-year-old waive extradition

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Idaho authorities are expected sometime next week to pick up a man and wife accused of having abandoned their retarded and battered 7-year-old son in a Boise area rest stop.

Both Edward Donald Tuimman, 29, and his wife, Deborah Tuimman, 28, have waived extradition from Utah to Idaho, where they are wanted on a felony charge of child abandonment.

During a brief hearing Friday morning before 3rd Circuit Judge Michael Hutchings, Tuimman signed extradition waiver papers. In return, Salt Lake County attorneys dropped a theft of services charge against Tuimman.

On Thursday, Mrs. Tuimman waived extradition and prosecutors also dropped the theft of services charge against her.

Hutchings said Friday that Idaho authorities would have until Jan. 23 to pick up the Tuimmans. They are being held without bail in the Salt Lake County Jail until then.

Bud Ellett, chief of the county attorney's Justice Division, said the theft of services charge could be refilled if necessary, but it wasn't expected to be.

Bush goes after bonefish

ISLAMORADA, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Bush, seeking to "clear the mind for the decisions that lie ahead," went fishing off the Florida Keys on Friday after blaming refugee problems on tyranny in Nicaragua.

Bush was spending the weekend in splendid isolation pursuing "the wily bonefish" with a pack of fishing buddies including Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady and Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

The three-day vacation is his third hunting or fishing trip since the election, but Bush said he has no plans for a winter White House here. In fact, he said, "There will be no winter or summer White Houses anywhere."

Bush, who takes the oath of office Friday, told reporters after alighting from Air Force Two in Marathon, Fla., that he hopes to get to his ocean home in Kennebunkport occasionally.

"But the president is so beautifully taken care of with Camp David and other arrangements that I have no intention of building something else," he said.

Bush completed naming his Cabinet on Thursday and said he still has work to do. But he says he went fishing to "clear the mind for the decisions that lie ahead after I become president."

"I love sports. I'm one of the classic fishing conservationists," said Bush, who doffed his coat in the warm sunshine. "We're going to prove that over the next eight years by going fishing and demonstrating my own personal interests in going after the wily bonefish, or the elusive tarpon or the redfish or the snook that may be lying up under that branch in the river up the Everglades."

At the brief news conference, Bush was asked about a strain on schools and hospitals from an influx of refugees from Nicaragua and replied, "This is a sorry commentary on what's happening in Central America and in Nicaragua."

"When I become president, we're going to take a hard new look at the immigration policies. ... The final answer is democracy and freedom in Nicaragua," he said.

"When people are fleeing tyranny, the United States has to be generous, but no one community can suffer an overload without some support," he said.

Libyans return remains of U.S. flier shot down in 1986 strike

ROME (AP) — Libyan authorities Friday gave the Vatican a body they said was that of an American pilot killed in a U.S. raid on Tripoli in 1986, then flew the flag-draped casket to Rome.

The body, believed to be that of Capt. Paul Lorence, was examined by U.S. and Italian medical specialists. American officials said it probably would be sent to the United States in coming days.

Italian authorities took possession of the gold-trimmed white coffin in a simple ceremony at Rome's Ciampino Airport. A Libyan soldier in green fatigues gently laid a wreath of red flowers atop the casket before Italian air force officers carried it to a mortuary van.

Libyan officials presented the body to the Vatican earlier Friday in the rubble of the former headquarters of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi, a target in the 1986 raid, the official Libyan news agency JANA reported. The Tripoli site was never rebuilt after the raid.

JANA said Thursday that the government was releasing the body in the framework of the humanitarian initiatives to which Libya devotes a fundamental interest.

The gesture came during a period of international debate over a Libyan plan that the United States claims can produce chemical weapons, and nine days after U.S. fighters shot down two Libyan jets over the Mediterranean.

The Libyan news agency, monitored in Rome and London, said a Libyan Airlines plane flying to Istanbul on Tuesday was buzzed by U.S. fighter planes. The Pentagon said it had no information about the incident.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman welcomed the return of the remains and said the action was part of Libya's humanitarian obligations. He said

Bernice Kröger holds photo of son, Capt. Paul F. Lorence

The United States appreciated the role played by Italy and the Vatican in the transfer.

Mark Dillen, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Rome, said the body was examined at the Legal Medicine Institute at the University of Rome. After confirmation of the identity, U.S. officials would then go through Italian legal procedures and arrange to send the body to the family, Dillen said. It would not be sent before Saturday, he added.

Lorence, 31, of San Francisco, and Fernando Ribes-Dominicci, 33, of Utuado, Puerto Rico, were killed during the April 15, 1986, U.S. raids on Tripoli and Benghazi.

Year in jail, fine for subway gunman

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz, who shot four young black men on the subway and was convicted of illegal gun possession, was sentenced Friday to one year in jail and fined $5,000 after a judge noted he had shown no remorse.

"I do feel this case is really more about the deterioration of society than it is about me," Goetz told the court before the sentence was pronounced. "Society needs to be protected from criminals."

Goetz's lack of remorse "gave me concern he might recidivate in possessing a firearm," said state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane in Manhattan. Supreme Court is New York state's trial-level court.

The now-famous defendant, who faced one to seven years, decided to go ahead with his sentencing, even though he has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review his case, because he wants to get the jail time over with, said his attorney, Mark Baker.

"He's resigned to the fact that he's going to jail," Baker said.

Under a one-year prison sentence, Goetz gets credit for nine days he already served immediately after his arrest, and becomes eligible for parole in 51 days.

Union leaders see easy approval of contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union leaders on Friday predicted easy approval of the first labor contract for air traffic controllers since President Reagan fired 11,400 of them during a strike eight years ago.

The new three-year contract with the Federal Aviation Administration will help ensure air safety, said R. Steve Bell, president of the year-old National Air Traffic Controllers Association. It gives controllers guaranteed breaks, limited immunity in reporting system errors and participation in accident investigations and some FAA decision-making.

The tentative agreement signed late Thursday in Baltimore does not cover salaries, which are set by Congress and range between $19,000 and $55,000 annually.

But Bell said new FAA-union professional councils would be set up. He added that such labor-management cooperation could lead to increased compensation, better working hours and more health benefits.

Both sides described the talks as evidence of vastly improved relations between the FAA and its 13,000 controllers since the 1981 illegal strike.

Firemen hose the wreckage of a British Tornado fighter near Bremen Friday

British, German fighters collide

BREMEN, West Germany (AP) — A British warplane strayed into a squadron of West German jet fighters Friday and collided with two of them, killing two British fliers and injuring a German pilot, officials said.

Opposition political leaders quickly responded with demands for a reduction in the number of military flights over West Germany, where more than 100 people died last year in military-related crashes.

A spokesman at the West German Defense Ministry in Bonn said the British Tornado jet flew into a group of eight German Alajet fighters that were preparing to land at Wittmund air base near the northern town of Wiesmoor.

The spokesman said the Tornado hit two of the Alajets. One crashed into a Wiesmoor field after the pilot ejected, and the other managed to land safely at the nearby military airbase, he said, speaking on condition of anonymity. He said the West German pilot who ejected was hospitalized in good condition.

A spokesman at the British forces headquarters in Rheindahlen said the two-man British crew died when the Tornado crashed outside Wiesmoor.

Ruediger Schad, commander of West Germany's 43rd Fighter-Bomber Squadron, said the British and German aircraft were on unrelated training missions.

NATO, Warsaw Pact endorse human rights, security accord

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — NATO, the Warsaw Pact and 12 other European nations on Friday informally accepted a landmark human rights and security accord designed to enhance freedom in the Soviet bloc and boost East-West contacts.

But a lingering dispute between Greece and Turkey continued to block final agreement on a mandate for new East-West arms talks.

Diplomats trying to resolve the dispute between the two NATO allies reported no firm progress Friday, and scheduled their next session of NATO-Warsaw Pact talks for Saturday.

The U.S. ambassador to the talks, Stephen Ledogar, said Secretary of State George Shultz will not come to Vienna next week to wind up the 35-nation Helsinki review conference and formally approve the final document unless the Greek-Turkish dispute is solved.

Shultz could decide at any moment that the U.S. could wait no longer, Ledogar told reporters. "Time is running out."

Greece and Turkey are arguing over whether to include a strategic triangle of Turkish territory close to the Syrian border and the disputed port of Mersin in new East-West talks on reducing conventional forces in Europe.

Ledogar said Greece and Turkey will have to share the blame if their dispute unravels the arms talks and Helsinki conference agreements.

Shultz and the foreign ministers of the 34 other nations in the conference are scheduled to end the meeting in a three-day session next week. The meeting opened in Vienna on November 1986.

The mandate for the new arms talks is supposed to be included in the final document of the conference. NATO and the Warsaw Pact gave provisional agreement to the final document — minus the mandate for arms talks — on Friday after the 12 neutral and non-aligned nations at the conference worked late into the night to resolve outstanding differences.

Western diplomats hailed the final document as a major advance on human rights, but noted the key test was whether the Soviet bloc would stick to it.

The 1975 Helsinki Final Act, signed by the Soviet Union, the United States, Canada and all European nations bar Albania, contained commitments to free travel, information and other rights that the East bloc often violated. The Vienna document refined and defined the humanitarian undertakings in far greater detail than ever possible before.

German firm faces criminal inquiry

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A prosecutor on Friday ordered a criminal inquiry into a West German firm Washington says helped build a suspected poison-gas factory in Libya, further compounding embarrassment for the Bonn government.

The inquiry into the export activities of Imhausen-Chemie, a Black Forest chemical firm, was announced eight days after the government said the firm appeared to have no link with the suspected chemical weapons plant.

Werner Botz, chief prosecutor for the Offenburg region, told The Associated Press his report "will" investigate after reading an extensive report on the issue in this week's Stern magazine.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the U.S. government is pleased the West Germans "took a look" at the evidence supplied by U.S. officials and investigated the matter.

In another embarrassment Friday, Chancellor Helmut Kohl's spokesman conceded at a news conference that intelligence sources told the government in October that West German companies may have helped build the plant south of Tripoli, the Libyan capital. A government spokesman said earlier that Bonn knew nothing of alleged West German complicity.

Beirut car bomb kills 7, wounds 15

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in south Beirut on Friday minutes after thousands of pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems marched by in a demonstration against their Syrian-backed rivals.

Seven people were killed and 15 wounded, police said.

The blast occurred on the sixth day of fierce fighting between the mainstream Amal militia and the fundamentalist Hezbollah for control of south Lebanon's Apple Province and the country's 1 million Shites.

The Mercedes-Benz blew up on Roweis Street, a residential area in the Bir el-Abad district. It touched off several fires and blasted a crater in the street six feet deep and more than seven feet across.

The force of the explosion catapulted a flaming car onto a power pole.

At least 10 cars were destroyed. More than 16 buildings suffered considerable damage in a one-mile radius around the blast. At least nine shops were destroyed.

Broken power cables dangled on streets littered with glass shards and uprooted pine trees. Police said the dead were civilians who lingered after thousands of Hezbollah protesters passed by minutes before.

Teen-agers die in clash

JERUSALEM (AP) — Arabs rioting in the West Bank city of Hebron on Friday after Jewish settlers began an armed patrol, Israel radio and Arab reports said. Two teen-agers were reported killed by a gun fire in separate clashes.

In Jerusalem, assailants believed to be Jewish militants smashed a monument to fallen Arab soldiers.

Israeli soldiers killed a 15-year-old Palestinian during a clash at the Dheishe refugee camp near Bethlehem, a doctor said. They said the bullet hit Nabil Mohammed Abu Lahan in the shoulder and then pierced his heart.

According to an Arab reporter, the youth was shot when dozens of Arab youths hurled stones at troops, who responded with tear gas, rubber bullets and, finally, live ammunition. He died at a Bethlehem hospital.

The army said it was checking the report.

Earlier Friday, a 15-year-old Arab died of wounds sustained in a clash with Israeli troops a day before, officials at Mukassas Hospital in east Jerusalem said.

They said Mohammed Yaqub Shalhoub was shot in the head during a confrontation in the Nuseirat refugee camp in the occupied Gaza Strip.

An army spokesman confirmed the death and said the boy was shot when troops who pursued stone-throwers found themselves in a dangerous situation. The spokesman, who cannot be identified under military rules, did not elaborate.

Actress Candice Bergen leads bi-continental lifestyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Candice Bergen, star of the successful new CBS series "Murphy Brown," has a lifestyle that is not just bi-continental, it's bi-continental.

While filming the show, Bergen lives in Los Angeles with her 3-year-old daughter, Chloe.

But the rest of the time, she and her husband, film director Louis Malle, live in New York and Malle's estate in the south of France.

"It's the kind of place where the most exciting thing is to watch the tomatoes grow," Bergen said in the February issue of Vanity Fair, referring to a stay in France last summer during the writers' strike.

"But it was such an important summer for us because of how much that house now means in terms of a legacy."

Bergen, the daughter of the late war correspondent Edgar Bergen, said "I come from this tiny, shrinking family, but when we get together with Louis' family there are so many cousins and even great-grandchildren. There are 30 of us and it's wonderful."

49ers-quarterback is still playing. "I frankly felt he would have done himself in by now," Arthur White said Thursday. "It's amazing, simply amazing."

But White, in an interview in the (Oakland) Tribune, also said he fears advancing arthritis is putting the Super Bowl-bound Montana closer to an injury that could end his football-playing days.

Montana, 32, who had a ruptured disk removed in September 1986, is "eating up the years really fast," said White, medical director of the Spine Care Medical Group in Daly City.

Montana said last summer he wanted to keep going for five more seasons.

But Montana's back shouldn't affect his play in Super Bowl XXIII on Jan. 22, and he is not in any more danger of serious injury than any other player, the doctor said.

Morton Downey Jr. may buy casino

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Confrontational television talk show host Morton Downey Jr. wants to buy a New Jersey casino to make it "the casino capital of the blue-collar crowd."

"I love Atlantic City," he said Wednesday. "And I'd like to see blue-collar America have its own castle." Downey insists that he and his investment group are financially capable of making the deal for Del Webb's Claridge Casino Hotel, Downey declined to say how much he has bid or to identify other members of his investment group.

Downey said if he is selected as buyer, he would move to the 24th floor of the hotel with his bride-to-be, Lori Krebs, and would tape many of his syndicated talk shows in the hotel.

Claridge President Roger Wagner said the Del Webb board of directors "has requested that I don't discuss any negotiations or bids for the purchase of the Claridge."

Tracey Ullman to star in new comedy

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — British actress Tracey Ullman will play a woman who repeatedly tries to kill her husband in a black comedy based on an Allentown case, according to the movie's production company.

The starring role in "Love You to Death" will be the first for Ullman, a versatile actress who had a supporting role in the movie "Plenty." She now has a weekly half-hour comedy show on the Fox Network.

The casting was confirmed Tuesday by Chestnut Hill Productions, which plans to begin shooting the film in April in North Carolina, Oregon and Washington state.

Directed by Lawrence Kasdan, the film also will star Kevin Kline.

Kline and Ullman will play Tony and Frances Toto.

Mrs. Toto repeatedly tried to kill her husband by having him shot in the head, and when he survived, the heart. After each attempt, she fed him homemade chicken soup laced with barbiturates.

"Ito immediately forgave his wife, but the authorities did not. The couple was reunited in February after she served a four-year prison term.

Randy Travis plans to release cookbook

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Randy Travis, a former short-order cook, is putting out a book containing his favorite recipes, his spokesman says.

"He does cook a lot and there are certain things he does well," publicist Evelyn Shriver said. "He likes to barbecue a lot and he likes to make spaghetti."

Travis was cooking at a Nashville nightclub 31 years ago when he was discovered and signed a recording contract. Since then, he has sold 6 million records, including "Forever and Ever, Amen" and his current "Deeper Than the Holler."

Interview with Nancy Reagan set for Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan says in an interview to be broadcast Sunday she found it "frightening" when some people suggested the possibility President Reagan might be impeached because of the Iran-Contra crisis.

Asked by Mike Wallace of the CBS News program "60 Minutes" if she had worried about the possibility of impeachment, Mrs. Reagan said, "No, well, no. I never entered my mind until somebody said it on television, and then that word is a frightening word."

"It's like — it's like having somebody say cancer to you. You know, you freeze."

Mrs. Reagan did not say who it was she heard discuss the possibility of impeachment. No impeachment moves were made against the president, who has denied swapping arms to Iran "for hostages or knowing of the diversion of funds from the sales to help Contra rebels in Nicaragua."

Mrs. Reagan also said in the interview she believes John Poindexter, who lost his job as the president's national security adviser because of the Iran-Contra affair, "should have told Ronnie" about the diversion of profits to the Contras.

Asked if she disagreed with her husband about his description of Poindexter aide Oliver North as a national hero, the first lady replied, "Sometimes we disagree."

Wallace's interview with Mrs. Reagan, and a separate interview with the president, will be broadcast Sunday. He interviewed the president in the Oval Office and then Mrs. Reagan in the White House living quarters, and then talked with both of them together in the residence.

The president repeated his position on the Iran-Contra affair, saying, "We were never trading arms for hostages, and, 'I still, in spite of all the congressional inquiry, I don't have the answers to some questions."

National Geographic unveils 35-foot globe for exhibit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Geographic Society on Thursday unveiled a massive 35-foot globe, the centerpiece in Geographica, a high-tech multi-media science and geography exhibition two years away from being finished.

Lady Bird Johnson pressed a button to turn on the 1,350-pound globe, repeating her effort 25 years ago, when she helped dedicate the original globe and display in Explorers Hall at the magazine's headquarters.

Mrs. Johnson congratulated the society for its efforts to "illuminate our understanding" that the entire world is one society.

The new globe, with a circumference of 35 feet, is composed of 54,789 square inches of epoxy resin and Fiberglas cloth painted in painstaking detail by artist John Bonner, who spent 3,127 hours highlighting vegetation, deserts, national boundaries and undersea features.

The globe is lifted on a cushion of air and can be rotated so any portion can face the audience. Lights display the movement of sunlight and shadow around the world.

Occasionally work had to be abandoned and changed in progress, Bonner said. For example, a visiting Indian official who saw the work informed the society that an area shown as a swamp had dried up into a salt lake — so it was changed.

And the configuration of the Antarctic ice shelf had to be redone after a giant iceberg broke off.

Geographic officials did take one precaution to save work in the event of political changes: National boundaries were applied with automotive pinstripe tape so that they can be relocated if necessary.

Panel opens inquiry on judge who called victims 'queers'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state Commission on Judicial Conduct Friday took up a complaint against a Dallas judge who said he gave a killer a lenient sentence because the victims were "queers."

The closed-door inquiry could result in dismissal of the complaint against Judge Jack Hampton or in sanctions ranging from a private warning to the appointment of a special master to hold a hearing on his removal from the bench.

Commission chairman Judge William E. Junell said that the 11-member panel of judges and private citizens would begin by hearing a staff investigative report on the matter.

Last month, Hampton said he gave 18-year-old Richard Lee Bednarski 30 years in prison instead of the maximum of life in part because the two victims were homosexuals. He said the victims were "cruising" for teenagers.

Gay rights and civil liberties organizations filed a complaint with the commission asking for Hampton's removal. He later apologized for a "poor choice of words."

Junell said Hampton might be asked to talk to the commission.

Boise pianist receives Grammy nomination

BOISE (AP) — "I'm on cloud nine" was all jazz pianist Gene Harris of Boise had to say after receiving the first nomination of his career for a Grammy award. Best Jazz Instrumental, Big Band.

Harris, who tours nationally and internationally but is a regular at the Idahoan Hotel in Boise, was named in the Best Jazz Instrumental, Big Band, category.

He was nominated for The Gene Harris All-Star Band Tribute to Count Basie, a record featuring jazz greats like Ray Brown.

"We're going nuts," Harris' wife Janie said from their Boise home. "That's all there is to it."

Wholesale price rise rate doubles for '88

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rate of increase in wholesale prices nearly doubled in 1988 to 4 percent.

That is the worst pace since Americans began recovering from double-digit inflation at the beginning of the decade, the government said Friday.

Although inflation is still a far cry from 1979 and 1980, when wholesale prices posted back-to-back increases of 13 percent and 12 percent, many economists said they are worried about the trend.

The rise in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods, one stop short of the retail level, was the worst since 1981, when it shot up 7.1 percent.

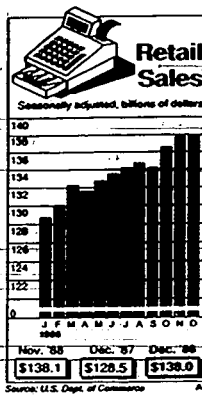

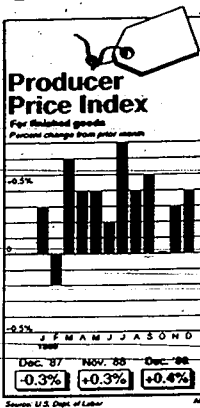

The index rose 2.2 percent in 1987. A year before that, it recorded a rare decline, of 2.3 percent.

"I don't like the sound of a doubling of inflation, but we have to put 4 percent in perspective," said Robert Brusca, an economist with Nikko Securities Co. International Inc.

"It's not that bad, but it's not that good either. If we were at 4 percent and moving down, I wouldn't worry about it. But, we're heading up. What concerns me is the potential for further acceleration," he said.

Meanwhile, in a separate report, the Commerce Department said retail sales in December rose a lackluster 0.2 percent, following strong increases in October and November.

Economists said that figure, if it is not re-estimated in subsequent the second quarter, to 4.6 percent in the third to 3.3 percent in the fourth.

"Inflation watchers should not be concerned," he said.

Much of the impetus for wholesale price increase last year was provided by a drought-induced 5.7 percent increase in food prices, the steepest since 1980. They had showed no change in 1987.

Meanwhile, energy prices, which had soared 11.2 percent in 1987, fell 3.4 percent in 1988. However, with the production agreement reached by the OPEC nations in November, analysts expect higher oil prices this year.

All other finished goods in 1988 rose 4.3 percent.

In December, food prices fell a slight seasonally adjusted 0.1 percent and energy costs edged up only 0.2 percent. Everything else jumped 0.6 percent, the biggest increase since September.

This is the third consecutive month of good news for grocery shoppers. Prices were unchanged in November after a 0.1 percent decline in October. However, that period of stability was preceded by seven consecutive months of increases from every spring through the summer.

There were gains of 3 percent for beef, 2.5 percent for chicken, and 1 percent for dairy products.

Fuel oil in December soared 8.5 percent and natural gas rose 3.3 percent. Gasoline prices, however, fell 3.5 percent.

DNA print clears accused

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) —

A man who spent six months in jail facing rape charges was released Friday, cleared by a DNA print test that showed he could not have been the attacker.

"We're so happy," said Sammie Scheff's mother, Mary Miller. "It's been so bad. I know he didn't do it. ... Now we can get on with our lives."

State Supreme Court Justice James Cowley signed an order dismissing the charges against Scheff, 26, of Greenburgh, after his DNA tests cleared him.

In an unusual move, the district attorney's office made the dismissal motion, heking a motion Scheff's attorney had planned to make.

"It's about time," said Scheff, who headed back to his job as a carpenter's assistant.

The dismissal came a day after a hearing during which experts declared that the DNA tests proved Scheff could not have raped the 21-year-old woman outside a convenience store.

Teledyne, 6 men enter innocent pleas to counts

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — An electronics company and six men, the first group indicted in the Pentagon purchasing investigation, pleaded innocent Friday to charges they paid or took money for inside information about a multimillion-dollar defense contract.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Williams set a trial date of March 27 for Teledyne Electronics of Newbury Park, Calif., a division of Teledyne Industries; for three Teledyne employees: George H. Krub; Eugene R. Sullivan and Dale Schnittjer; for two private consultants, William Parkin and Fred Lackner, and for a Navy purchasing official, Stuart Berlin.

The defendants were released on $10,000 personal recognizance bonds. The charges, which range from conspiracy to bribery, are contained in a 27-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury last week.

They are the first resulting from the federal government's two-year-old investigation into allegations that private consultants paid bribes to defense employees for information about contracts let by the Pentagon's $150-billion-a-year purchasing office.

At the arraignment, each defendant pleaded not guilty to all counts against him. All face charges of conspiracy and bribery and some face other charges.

Teledyne's attorney, Thomas Patten, asked Williams to postpone the trial "because we have a daunting task in front of us."

Fair board drops Latham as rodeo sponsor

By MARTA CLEAVELAND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After five years of sponsoring the Twin Falls County Rodeo, Latham Motors is hoping mad about it. The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo board informed the Twin Falls Dodge dealer in a letter Wednesday that it was seeking a different sponsor, and that "some changes were needed in an effort to make (the rodeo) more financially successful."

But the board wasn't seeking a different sponsor; it has already found one. The board has a tentative arrangement with a group of Magic Valley General Motors dealers to replace Latham as the 1989 official rodeo sponsor, acknowledged Dan Peters, fair director.

'We are the sponsor for five years. All of a sudden (Theisen Motors owner Harrison) became the chair of the board and this happens. I'm not saying he's responsible, but it looks suspicious.'

— Bob Latham, owner of Latham Motors

Although the board voted to seek new sponsorship in September, Peters didn't tell Latham sooner because "I didn't want to scare off one sponsor without having another one."

And when he asked for an explanation for his dealership's fall from grace, the reasons they gave were "trivial," he said.

"I'm hurt. They never came to me to say there was a problem," he said.

Latham said five offenses were cited during a visit to him Friday from Peters and board member Gary Grindstaff:

- * Latham employees parked cars in a handicapped space at the fairgrounds the whole week of the fair. Latham said to his knowledge that happens only once, and he was unaware of it at the time.
- * Latham employees parked in the fire lane while Johnny U, a singing spokesman for Dodge, was performing in the Latham tent. Latham says that is probably true.
- * Latham wanted too many free passes to the fair and the rodeo as part of his sponsorship, and his employees abused the privilege. Latham said last year he was given only 20 free passes. He paid for the rest of the passes he needed, he said.

* Latham employees were abusive to ticket takers, and one resorted to profanity. Latham said he was not aware of the incidents.

* Latham had too many people wearing the red Dodge jackets out in the arena at the end of the rodeo. Latham said, again, he was unaware of a problem.

"These things are so trivial," he said. "I asked them, Why didn't you come to us and tell us we were bad boys and let us correct our mistakes?"

Former area resident dies in line of duty

The Times-News and Associated Press

SANDPOINT — Described as highly respected and well-liked, former Twin Falls resident Brent Jacobson died in the line of duty Thursday during a shootout near Dover.

Jacobson, a Forest Service lawman, was asked by the Bonner County Sheriff's Office for support during an all-day chase of two men being sought in a botched house robbery that reportedly netted $12, authorities said.

BRENT JACOBSON Dies in Dover shootout

A Forest Service law enforcement officer, fire management technician and skills management specialist, Jacobson, 41, was born in Provo, Utah. He moved to Twin Falls with his parents in 1967, where he attended grades one through 12, said Bob Blake, Jacobson's brother-in-law.

As a boy, Jacobson spent time exploring the Rock Creek and Snake River canyons, Blake said.

Jacobson graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1985 and attended the College of Southern Idaho for one year. He enlisted and was a member of a U.S. Navy underwater demolition team stationed in the Philippines.

When he returned from the Navy, Jacobson attended classes at Idaho State University and Utah State University, Blake said.

During his college years, Jacobson worked for the Forest Service fighting fires in Idaho.

He went to work full-time for the agency in 1974. Recently, he helped battle the fires that raged through Yellowstone National Park.

Blake described Jacobson as an "incredible hunter and fisherman, considered by most who knew him as excellent."

Planning and Zoning has ordered George Zimmers to close his wrecking yard east of Buhl after he failed to landscape, fence property

Lack of fence, landscaping prompts action by county P&Z revokes wrecking yard's license

By KIRK MITCHELL Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A wrecking yard must stop its operation after failing to landscape and build a fence, the county Zoning Board has ruled.

The County Planning and Zoning Board on Thursday revoked George Zimmers' conditional-use permit to operate a wrecking yard three miles east of Buhl on Highway 30.

"They're very hard core," said Helen Phipps, county planning and zoning administrative secretary, referring to the Zoning Board. "They're not going to be shown to be paper tigers."

The board referred the case to County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter.

In other matters, the board approved Northwest Co. Inc.'s conditional use request to operate a gravel pit about seven miles south of Hansen and Jerry Young's conditional use application for expansion of his Idaho Heritage Museum to include a gas station and recreation vehicle campground.

The board granted Zimmers a conditional-use permit in September for his wrecking yard but he failed within a 90-day limit to build an 8-foot-high fence and plant bushes and trees around the wrecking yard as required by the board.

Several neighbors and passersby complained that the wrecking yard was an eyesore.

Lee Taylor, planning and zoning administrator, said Zimmers two years ago bought the six-acre property that has been operated as a wrecking for several years, but never came in to obtain a conditional use permit as required by county zoning ordinances until threatened with legal action.

Several attempts to reach Zimmers by phone for comment were unsuccessful.

In other business, Young was granted his permit on the condition that he meets county zoning codes for recreation vehicle parks, that he receives district approval from the highway department and that he receives approval from the South Central Health Department. Finally, the zoning administration must approve his plans.

Young's application, which included plans for a convenience-store gas station, a recreation vehicle park and a rest room, was a scaled-down version of plans that the County Commission rejected in an appeal brought by area gas station owners in November. Dropped from the plans were a lake and a second museum.

Twin Falls Attorney Paul Smith, who represents Helen Young and Justin Mills, owners of gas stations in Hollister and Rogerson, said the development is an example of spot zoning and should not have been allowed outside the county's commercial zones.

"I think the board approved it in violation of their own comprehensive plan," Smith said.

He said his clients have not decided whether to seek an appeal yet, but if they do, their chances would be good to win an appeal with the County Commission or in court.

The board awarded Northwest a conditional use permit, but limited the area that can be mined to 34 acres in the northeast part of a 92-acre plot and placed several other conditions on its use.

Neighbors of the gravel pit said there are already too many pits in the area and that they produce dust and have driven their property values down.

"We don't need another gravel pit in the area," said Dorothy Long, who lives near the proposed gravel pit. "We can't live with the dust."

Northwest officials said the gravel at the new location is a high grade that is not found except several miles away. A gravel pit is the best use for the property, said John Doerr, attorney for Northwest.

The board's additional requirements for the permit include:

- * Magnesium chloride must be applied to the gravel to keep dust down.
- * A gravel crusher can only be used 400 feet away from the nearest home.
- * Work can only be done during the daylight.
- * A green belt, including shrubs and trees must be grown around parts of the property.

Northwest must reapply with the board before developing any more of the property and must reclaim the first 34 acres a year after it is mined.

City answers suit of adult bookstore

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A city zoning ordinance under fire by an adult bookstore is perfectly valid, the city argues in a brief filed Friday.

"It is clear that the city... has sought to make some areas available for adult entertainment business, preserving the quality of life in the community by preventing these businesses from locating in other areas," wrote City Attorney Fritz Wenderlich.

The city has sued Visions West Book Club for violating a recent zoning ordinance limiting where adult entertainment businesses can locate.

But the bookstore, while admitting it violated the ordinance, has challenged the ordinance. The bookstore says the ordinance effectively bans adult entertainment businesses from the city.

Such a rule is overbroad and a violation of the First Amendment, the bookstore says.

But Wenderlich pointed out in his brief that 85 acres, or more than 14 percent of the land in city limits, is open to adult entertainment businesses.

"The ordinance is designed to preserve the integrity and character of residential neighborhoods and to deter the spread of urban blight — not to suppress the expression of 'opinion' views," Wenderlich argued.

Visions West opened its bookstore in November at 711 Shoshone St. S., near the Singing Bridge. The city sued in December, saying the bookstore is located too close to some restaurants and a church.

The ordinance passed last summer prohibits adult entertainment businesses within 2,000 feet of schools, restaurants and churches and within 500 feet from residential areas, city parks and other public places.

It leaves open for adult businesses land in the Magic Valley Mall area and in a few locations on Kimberly Road.

Dairy farm owner files suit against city

By KIRK MITCHELL Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The owner of a dairy farm that city officials are trying to shut down has sued the city in District Court.

Twin Falls attorney Jeff Stoker, who represents dairy owner Keith Jones, filed the suit in 5th District Court Thursday, seeking reversal of a City Council decision not to allow feed lots and dairies in the city's agricultural zone.

Jones is also seeking compensation for attorney's fees and court expenses.

Jones declined to comment on the lawsuit and Stoker was unavailable.

The City Council in October turned down a request by Jones to allow the feed lots and dairies by special-use permit in the city's area of impact, an area outside the city limits but zoned for urban growth.

Jones owns a 17-acre dairy just north of the Lower Line Canal on Blue Lake. Boulevard and Jones has been leasing the property to Mike Vierstra, who has operated a 180-cow dairy on the property since May.

City ordinances allow no more than 85 cows on a 17-acre farm. A farm is considered a feed lot or dairy when it has more than five animals per acre.

LaMar Orton, community development director, said the land was used as a dairy with grandfather rights before Jones bought it, but the rights were lost because the land was not used as a dairy for over a year.

The city has filed its own suit against the dairy, alleging zoning and building code violations. It is asking the court to order Jones to stop operating a dairy. The suit also asks the court to prevent Jones and Vierstra from adding improvements to the farm or adding cows while the action is pending.

Jones' repeated attempts to have the zoning ordinance changed were turned down by the Planning and Zoning Commission in September, by the City Council in October and by the Board of Appeals of the city's impact area in November. All of the decisions followed heated public hearings.

Jones withdrew another appeal to the City Council in which he requested a zoning amendment that would have changed jurisdiction from the city to the county for any property over 15 acres. The county does not limit the number of animals on farms.

The zoning commission rejected the proposal in December. A public hearing previously scheduled for Monday has been canceled.

Andrus optimistic over nuclear waste storage

By N.S. NOKKENTVED Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Speculations about Rocky Flats nuclear weapons production being moved to Idaho are premature, says Gov. Cecil Andrus.

A government report on modernization of the nation's nuclear weapons production facilities lists INEL as one of three possible sites for the relocation of the U.S. Department of Energy facility at Rocky Flats in Colorado.

"The conclusions drawn in the report are not at this point specific recommendations," Andrus said Friday in a prepared statement.

"They only offer a number of alternatives. I think it's important to note that the Rocky Flats Plant closing is several years away. We are still saying within the next decade, and speculation about that is very premature."

"I would simply say those of us in Idaho will make the final decision about what will be located in the state. I would also add that before anything is agreed upon we are going to have a complete understanding concerning the handling of existing and future waste," Andrus said in the statement.

Don Ofte, the Energy Department's manager-at-INEL, said the report was very important. It fills a need by helping to define the department's long range plans.

"It's not just another paper study," he said. "It forces you to think, to make a reasonable projection of what the nuclear weapons complex should look like in the year 2010."

The growing populations on both sides of the Rocky Flats eventually will force the Energy Department to move the plant, which manufactures plutonium triggers for nuclear weapons.

The Savannah River Plant in South Carolina and the Pantex Plant in Amarillo, Texas, also were

"He was the only guy who went pheasant hunting and came back with a deer," Blake said.
"He was a highly respected individual and very well-liked," said Art Bourassa, Forest Service district manager. Bourassa said Jacobson was highly respected as well. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Along with Jacobson, four other deputies were fired upon and returned fire, said Deputy Geri Kloupenstein.

"The younger Pratt was booked into the county jail in Sandpoint. Both face charges of first-degree murder, kidnapping, burglary and assault.

Man sues Morrison-Knudsen for mental problems

BOISE (AP)—A Boise man has filed suit alleging that a series of construction deaths at the Lucky Peak Dam hydroelectric project near town caused him severe mental problems.
Mark Koppes, 48, with his wife, LuWayne, filed the suit this week in 4th District Court in Boise. It seeks an unspecified amount of damages from two Morrison-Knudsen Corp. subsidiaries — M-K Engineers and M-K Co. Inc. — and Treasure Valley Concrete Inc.

In one accident, an employee of Treasure Valley Concrete was crushed when his truck plunged into a pit. Koppes, a construction worker there, said he suffered "severe psychiatric impairment" after he helped extricate the body of David Barnett of Nampa.
In January 1987, Robert K. Campbell Sr. was decapitated after a crane cable snapped, dropping a 190-foot boom.
Campbell's family has filed a lawsuit.

Abuses by Latham employees have existed for years, Peters said.
"No matter how trivial they were, they weren't handled," he said.
The fair board dealt with national Dodgo representatives directly when a problem arose and they said they would take care of the matters, Peters said.
Then last year, some fair personnel — ticket takers and parking attendants — got so fed up with verbal abuse from Latham employees that they were ready to quit, Peters said.
Latham considers the grievances against him so minor that he is suspicious the real reason for dropping him is a personal vendetta of the new board Chairman Emmett Harrison, a who owns "Theisen Motors, a Twin Falls Lincoln Mercury and Honda dealership. Harrison is Latham's previous employer as well as his competitor.

"We are the sponsor for five years. All of a sudden he became the chair of the board and this happens. I'm not saying he's responsible, but it looks suspicious," Latham said.
But Peters said Harrison was not involved in the board's discussions or the vote taken last September.
"He has held himself back from the discussions," Peters said.
For five years, Latham has provided $2,500 to the fair board, and $800 to pay certain rodeo employees' salaries. In exchange for the recognition of being the official rodeo sponsor, Dodge, and its dealers sponsor hundreds of rodeos nationwide.

The new tentative agreement with local GM dealers will provide $5,000 to the board along with the same $800 to pay rodeo personnel, Peters said.
"We lose about $5,000 on the rodeo every year," he said. "We'd like to get closer to breaking even."
Latham has been invited to the next fair board meeting in February to discuss the situation, Peters said. Latham said he would like to do so

Nez Perce may export raw logs if price is right

LAPWAI (AP) — Despite concerns that exporting raw logs out of Idaho would hurt local economies, the Nez Perce Indian Tribe says it will agree to foreign sales if the price is right.
"We want the flexibility and ability to go wherever markets are available, whether it be foreign or domestic," tribal Forest-Enterprise Board Chairman Elliott Moffatt said.
The tribe is one of the largest non-corporate timber landowners in Idaho, controlling more than 40,000 acres of forest land.
Gov. Cecil Andrus has derided the export of raw logs from the state, claiming those sales take valuable timber-processing jobs with them, and he is again proposing legislation that would restrict export from state-owned timberland.
"As we become more involved with the local and regional economy, we are going to take that into consideration," Moffatt said. "But we are not going to limit the scope-of-our-market opportunity because of economic concerns that are not documented as they relate to employment."
"We cannot base our decision on a feeling that it may have been happening," he said.
In addition, the outgoing administration of President Ronald Reagan has also proposed allowing the export of raw logs from National Forest lands.
The tribe just opened a new timber yard at the Port of Clarkston in Washington state that will handle about 30 to 60 truckloads of logs a day.
Moffatt said he had no figures on how much foreign timber is sold unprocessed to foreign countries, but he speculated that it was not a great deal. The tribe is, however, looking at market possibilities in the Pacific Rim.
Meanwhile, tribal members are seeking the ouster of Forest Products Enterprise manager Vincent Corrao for an alleged conflict of interest and failure to file annual reports.
Tribal official Dal White said the issue of a conflict of interest, involving Corrao's ownership of a forestry company in Moscow, has been investigated by tribal attorneys and determined to be unfounded.
The tribe's executive council is reviewing the ouster petition.

Hagerman hosts twins fund-raiser
HAGERMAN — The community of Hagerman is having a fund-raising benefit for the newborn twins of David and Clarissa Ruyana. The twins, a boy and a girl, were born prematurely in Twin Falls on Jan. 1. They have remained in hospitals in Boise and Twin Falls.
The benefit is from 6-8 p.m. today at the American Legion Hall in Hagerman. The public is invited to this open house for refreshments and live entertainment. There will be a money tree and all donations will be put into a trust fund for the babies.
Antone recovering from heart attack
BOISE — Rep. Steve Antone, 67, was up and walking Friday at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center after suffering a heart attack Wednesday.
Antone, a Rupert legislator, was still in fair condition Friday, said Rita Ryan, the hospital's spokeswoman. But he has been moved from the special coronary care unit to a regular room.
Ryan said Wednesday's heart attack was small and there was no sign of heart failure.
Antone underwent angioplasty surgery, performed to clear the lawmaker's arteries, on Wednesday and is expected to be released the middle of next week.

Utah, Colorado parks enjoy gains in visitors

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — National parks and monuments in western Colorado and eastern Utah scored big gains in the number of visitors to tour the federal properties last year, government spokesmen said Friday.
The Colorado National Monument near Grand Junction set a visitation record for the third straight year, and records also were set at Canyonlands and Arches National Parks near Moab, Utah, and Mesa Verde National Park near Durango. Dinosaur National Monument in north-west Colorado recorded its second-highest mark.
However, visitation was down last year at the Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument between Montrose and Gunnison.
Canyonlands spokesman Larry Frederick said the forest fires in Yellowstone National Park diverted people south to other national parks this year, so it wasn't surprising to see record years in 1988.
Rick Noland, assistant chief ranger at the Colorado National Monument, suggested sites for the relocation of Rocky Flats. The decision to pick one of the three sites, or a different site not listed, would include the environmental-impact assessment process required by federal law and would take two to three years, Oile said.

From a study done in the early 1980s, the Energy Department concluded it would take 20 years and more than $3 billion to move the plant. Though all the functions of Rocky Flats may not go to the same new location, the plutonium functions would go together, Oile said.
Locating the proposed Special Isotope Separator, a laser-driven plutonium refinery, at INEL would not necessarily make the relocation of Rocky Flats an INEL anymore likely, he said. All three sites recommended in the report have their own advantages — and disadvantages, which an Energy Department selection committee will weigh.
Adding the Rocky Flats operations to INEL would add several thousand jobs, Oile said. But there is plenty of room. The selection committee also will look at the current work load at the various sites, as well as remoteness. Other projects at INEL might weigh against selecting it, while its remoteness could be in its favor.
INEL is probably the most remote location with the required kind of infrastructure within the Energy Department, Oile said. That area, however, won't cinch the relocation, he said.
Rep. Richard Stallings, D-2nd, called the 2010 Report a "beginning point," and said the possible future closing of the Rocky Flats Plant would be a "political decision" that would be hard to accomplish. The cost to close and move the plant would be about $3.3 billion, while the cost to upgrade and clean up the existing facility would cost about $2.8 billion, Stallings said.
In addition, Colorado's Congressional delegation would most likely oppose the closing, he said.
"Stallings also said the waste cleanup problem is significantly larger than the 2010 report indicates. The report suggests a budget of $2.8 billion for an environmental cleanup. A recent government report, however, suggests the cost may be as high as $150 billion to $200 billion.
The cleanup problem won't be solved by just throwing money at it," Stallings said.

Amtrak train stuck 16 hours

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — Passengers on an Amtrak train were stuck in Eastern Oregon for almost 16 hours behind a derailed freight train, a railroad spokesman said Friday.
"We are giving away a lot of food and liquor," Amtrak spokesman John Jacobsen said in Washington.
The train got rolling again at 10:50 a.m. Friday, bound for Salt Lake City and Chicago.
It left Seattle on Thursday, but ground to a halt behind a Union-Pacific freight train that derailed about 30 miles west of Nampa, Idaho, Jacobsen said.

Bellevue decision helps feed elk

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — Man and beast will benefit from a City Council approval Thursday to use the city's snow removal equipment for two projects.

As advocate and spokesman for HOWL (Help Save Our Wildlife), Mike Ivey, asked if the city's plow might be used to clear a section of Muldoon Canyon where more than 120 elk are wintering. The elk could be fed there on donated hay for up to 90 days since the heavy winter and man's encroachment have limited the elk's natural feeding areas.

Stephen Carlisle, a spokesman for Ski-Two-Hails, then asked if that same snow could be used to clear an area just south of Bellevue for a winter barbeque and picnic. This outdoor luncheon would be the culminating activity for a cross-country ski trek scheduled for Jan. 21, when skiers would leave Hulén Meadows north of Ketchum and ski some 30 kilometers to Bellevue. Their route would follow the old Union Pacific railroad which is now being developed as a bike trail in summer and a cross-country ski trail in winter, thanks to a bond election this fall which provided the necessary construction funds.

Local pilots Al Crittenden and Chuck Crego, members of "Friends of the Airport," outlined that group's position concerning flights in and out of Hailey's Friedman Field.

The local airport commission had originally restricted flights so that planes could not land or depart from 11 p.m.-5 a.m. The commission last week rescinded the ordinance after a large public outcry, much of it from the "Friends" group, and voted to bring the review again. An ordinance using decible restrictions is one suggestion a special subcommittee will look at.

Council member Gary Peak said he was not as concerned about decible levels as much as he was about the possibility that the present airport would expand to runways, right up to the Bellevue City limits, and then what's to keep big commercial jets from coming in here?

The runway configuration cannot accommodate such aircraft, Crego said his group was "happy" with the present size of the airport. "If we put in a jetport we'll have another Aspen and the Californians will buy us out so none of us can live here," Crego said.

Peak pointed out that during all of the proceedings surrounding the airport and its use, the city which is directly in the flight path of most entering and departing planes, Bellevue was never consulted.

"In other matters the council:"

• Heard from Mike Reynolds of Sun Valley Cablevision that rates would increase by 5 percent. This would raise the cost of basic service from $11.90 to $12.50.

• Received a breakdown of city insurance costs from insurance agent Sandra Brown.

Kimberly Lions Club begins helping town

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Kimberly now has its own Lions Club.

"We began meeting in November and should receive a charter for our group in May," club President Joe Shaw said.

Currently, the club has 21 members, just one more than the minimum required for a charter. "We would like to have between 30 and 35 members," Shaw said.

Lions clubs, which are part of an international organization, are usually identified with programs to help the blind, but have expanded their focus to serve the hearing impaired, those with diabetes and drug eradication programs in the community,

Shaw said. Each individual club identifies the greatest need in its community and then plans ways to meet that need. The new Kimberly group is still working on identifying and prioritizing community needs and determining which one should be given priority. "We would like to find out which projects in the community would benefit the most people," he said.

Possibilities are improving the city park or other city-owned property, especially if they will benefit youth or make the city more attractive. "We might begin by fixing up our park baseball diamond or tennis courts," Shaw said.

The Twin Falls Lions Club is the sponsoring organization for the Kimberly chapter. Kimberly had a Lions Club 20 years ago it no longer exists.

Twin Falls club President Ray Stroberg and region Chairman Mike Gibson have been working for the past six months to form the new Kimberly club. "Lions clubs are traditionally very active members of the community," Gibson said, "and we expect that this group will make Kimberly a better place to live."

The club's first priority is to increase membership and then begin fund raising. "Any money we make in the community goes back into the community," Shaw said. "That money does not go to pay administrative costs.

The Kimberly Lions Club meets the first and third Tuesday each month at a 6:30 a.m. breakfast meeting at the United Methodist Church. Dues are $35 a quarter and include breakfasts. The group is open to men and women, in the town as well as outside, interested in bettering Kimberly. The group has no female members at this time and tentative plans are to begin an auxiliary Lions group. Other officers are Bruce Stradley, first vice president; David L. McKinlay, second vice president; Barry Watson, third vice president; Richard Hayes, secretary; Jim Sorenson, treasurer; Dale Metzger, lieutenant; George McAdams, tailwaster; Max Osborne, director; and Jesse Posey, director.

He said the members of the canal companies will end up playing for the release of water.

Estimated cost of the improvements is $7 million. He said the FERC license cost about $1.2 million to obtain, with Idaho Power and irrigators sharing the bill. Eakin said irrigators need every drop of water available for growing crops. Drought years like the last two demonstrate that need can be critical for farmers to stay in business, he said.

Oakley OKs garbage ordinance

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

OAKLEY — It's garbage business as usual in Oakley, as residents begin to reflect on the outcome of Tuesday's garbage referendum vote.

Stormy Anderson, who worked for nearly a year to overturn the city's mandatory garbage ordinance, was faced with defeat this week when the vote totaled 173 in favor of retaining the ordinance and 114 to repeal it.

"We lost, and we won't fight this issue any more," Anderson said. She said her committee is glad the people were given the opportunity to vote on the matter. "We said we would go with the majority, and this is evidently what the majority wants."

The Oakley City Council certified the referendum election on Wednesday. "It was a fair election, and the best thing about it was that we had such a wonderful turnout," Councilwoman Robin Fehlman said, referring to the 86 percent of registered voters who voted.

The city's garbage ordinance, as a result of the vote, remains in effect. It gives residents service for $5 a month and requires them to sign up for the service.

Anderson said she believes some people originally opposed to the ordinance voted to retain it because they mistakenly thought overturning it would cause the city to lose the service completely.

Lawmakers enjoy ski visit to Park City

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Lawmakers skiing in the 3rd Annual Senator's Ski Cup here Friday praised Utah's slopes and Sen. Jake Garn for his effort to raise money for Salt Lake City's Primary Children's Medical Center through the event.

In all, 17 senators and two members of President-Elect George Bush's cabinet skied under pristine blue skies in the Cup's time trial runs.

"We drove up from Zion's National Park) and Bryce Canyon on our way here. We had no idea Utah was this beautiful. Jake's done a great job," said Sam Nunn, D-Georgia, chairman of the Senate Arms Services Committee.

Joseph Biden, D-Delaware, an early contender in the 1988 race for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination, said that after seven months in an intensive care unit, he's ready to ski competitively.

Biden was hospitalized with several aneurysms in his brain.

"I'm going to try like hell to win," Biden said.

Informed that he was the favorite in Saturday's ski race, Biden dismissed the odds. "That's what they said about the Democratic nomination," he said.

New Jersey Democrat Frank Lautenberg said he has an interest in both medical research and skiing.

Man sentenced for 'savage' rape

BOISE (AP) — A Boise man convicted of raping a 23-year-old woman at knifepoint has been sentenced to life in prison by a judge who labeled the attack "savage."

Douglas Jay Parker was sentenced to minimum of 10 years for rape and first-degree burglary on Thursday.

"We don't condone savage, willful, obscene conduct as we have seen here," 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse said at the sentencing.

Parker contended that the victim, a resident of the same city apartment complex, had enticed him by wearing revealing clothing. He was convicted raping her at knife point.

Prices rally for another post-crash high

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market chalked up another gain Friday to set fresh new highs since the crash nearly 15 months ago.

But the day's progress was small and tentative, coming on volume that lagged far behind Thursday's pace.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.75 to 2,226.07, finishing the week with a net gain of 31.78 points.

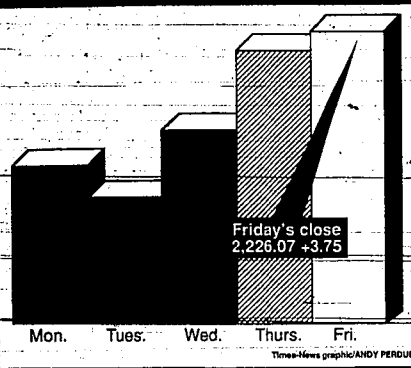

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 836 up, 615 down and 640 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 132.32 million shares, down from 183 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 158.11 million shares.

The Commerce Department reported that retail sales increased 0.2 percent in December, a gain much smaller than most analysts had estimated. Stock traders seemed uncertain at first how to respond to the news.

In the bond market, investors reacted positively, sending interest rates lower on the report's suggestion that economic activity was a bit less robust than had been thought.

But the dollar declined in foreign exchange after the figures were made public.

Brokers said blue-chip stocks also were faced with some selling to cash in on the gains that have recently carried the market to its highest levels since the October 1987 crash. Among actively traded blue chips, USX gained 1/2 to 3 1/4, Merck rose 1/2 to 6 1/2, General Motors added 1/8 to 32 1/2, and American Telephone & Telegraph was down 1/8 to 26 1/2.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 316.93, up 53.

Journal article discussed warning signs of Smithkline Beckman's ulcer drug Tagamet and described the company as a takeover candidate.

Abbott Laboratories rose 1/4 to 47 1/2. The company reported fourth-quarter earnings of 99 cents a share, against 84 cents in the like period a year earlier.

Champion Spark Plug climbed 1/2 to 15. The company said it knew of no reason for the activity.

Key jewelers posted one of the day's biggest percentage losses, falling 2 to 13 1/4. Kay said it would have a charge against its fourth-quarter earnings as a result of the planned writedoff of a significant number of receivables.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market increased 52.22 billion, or 0.19 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained 33 to 169.59.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose .82 to 328.81, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .70 at 209.67.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market edged up .08 to 387.69.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 316.93, up 53.

Del Monte chief expects sale

Knight-Ridder Service.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — The chairman of Del Monte Foods said Friday he expects the food company to be sold to help pay for the $25 billion takeover of its parent, RJR/Nabisco.

Emphasizing it was his opinion and not that of RJR/Nabisco, Robert J. Carbonell told a Chamber of Commerce group here that it is likely "Del Monte" would go on the block after Kohlberg, Kravis Roberts & Co. completes the biggest takeover in corporate history next month.

Since a takeover battle ensued last year between KKR and a management group headed by RJR/Nabisco's chairman, there has been much speculation that one or more of the company's food properties would be sold to pay for the acquisition.

Del Monte established its headquarters in Coral Gables last year after RJR/Nabisco decided to make Del Monte independent of Nabisco. Until then, Del Monte had operated as a subsidiary of Nabisco. Last year's sales were in the $2.5 billion range and pretax profits about $250 million.

"No decisions have been made by KKR on what to do with the food operations as possible but it is likely Del Monte will be one of the companies that will be sold," Carbonell told the business group that KKR's immediate financing needs have been met, but $8 billion more will be needed within the next 18 months. $5 billion of debt plus taxes and other costs — to help pay for the purchase.

Carbonell predicted that because Del Monte has operated successfully since it became independent and long-term prospects are bright, whoever buys the firm would have to pay a "good premium." He didn't speculate on what the price tag might be.

Carbonell said it was possible Del Monte might end up in the hands of a European or Japanese company.

GM leads U.S. auto sales falloff

Los Angeles Times

DETROIT — Led by a drastic decline in sales at General Motors, new domestic auto sales fell 3.1 percent in early January, the U.S. automakers reported Friday. Analysts said that the sales decline came in the wake of a selling frenzy in late December.

"In the last 10 days of December, GM was really terrific, and in the first 10 days of January, GM was really terrible," said David Healy, an automotive analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert.

Idaho economy expected to grow in '89

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho's robust economy should continue to grow in 1989, although at a more leisurely pace, First Security Corp.'s Kelly Matthews says.

Personal income, the rate of new jobs and unemployment percentages should remain close to last year's levels, said Matthews, economist for First Security Corp., the parent company of First Security Bank of Idaho.

He spoke Thursday at the 21st annual Business Outlook Symposium in Boise. Matthews forecasts personal income will increase 6.3 percent, slightly below the 1988 rate. Idaho will see about 7,000 new jobs, down from 11,500 last year.

The unemployment rate will average from 4.7 percent to 5 percent this year, he said. The jobless rate hit 4.9 percent in 1988, the lowest in a decade. Non-residential construction in Idaho should approximate last year's strong performance, which reached $190 million through November, an 86 percent leap from 1987.

Total construction was up 43 percent to $551 million in those 11 months. And, Matthews said Idaho agriculture faces its most optimistic year in nearly 10 years.

Fairland values are likely to follow the 1988 increase of 5 percent.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: What is the standard interpretation of responder's bid of the fourth suit when a partnership has bid the first three suits? For example: Opener: 1-4 Responder: 1-4-4-4 Fourth suit forcing, flopping, Texas...

first and then bids spades at the lowest level, it makes it easier for the partnership to stop when game is a poor bet. Dear Mr. Wolff: How much does a passed hand need in HCP to offer a cue-bid after partner makes a two-level overcall? Right Staff, Pocatello, Idaho

ANSWER: The standard interpretation is that the bidding must be kept open for one more round. Some play it forcing to game; others use it as a waiting bid when no other natural bid is available. Opener assumes responder is weak in the fourth suit and should not bid no-trump without a stopper. With a stopper on so in that suit, responder would almost always prefer to bid no-trump himself.

ANSWER: A near-opening bid with a decent fit for partner's suit. The better the fit (with useful distribution), the lower the requirement in high cards (usually 11-12 HCP or equivalent). Dear Mr. Wolff: We have agreed to lead low from three small cards on opening lead. Does this apply to leads on defense made in the middle of play? Card Reader, McKenzie, Texas

Dear Mr. Wolff: What is a one-suit negative double? Tony Chivers, New Orleans, La.

ANSWER: The one-suit negative double allows a partnership to describe a good suit in a fair hand without forcing to game. For example: North: A J 9 7 6 4 7 6 3 8 2 4 6 South: West North East 1 2 2 2 If North bids two spades, it virtually ensures that a game will be reached. If he doubles (negative)

ANSWER: Not usually. Most of the time the lead of a low card in the middle of play is used to signal strength in that suit. There are exceptions, however, and a specific situation may dictate otherwise. (Partner may mean to show when he knows you have a high card.) Dear Mr. Wolff: If to all players, pass, do I get to redeal? Second Chance, North Jersey, N.J.

ANSWER: No, you don't. The deal passes in religion, and you lose your turn to deal.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"You won't skid if you stay in a rut."
— Kin Hubbard.

If you give today's North-South cards to a friend and ask him to play at four spades, the smart money bets that he will go down. And to ensure that you are favorably placed when the fact is best that you take the test first yourself.

Your friend will probably win dummy's heart queen and lead a low trump from dummy to his ace. East's discard brings a frown, but there's still hope. He cashes one more high trump and the heart ace, and then plays three rounds of clubs, discarding a diamond. Unfortunately West holds Q-x-x instead of East holding Q-J-10, and the easy diamond shift adds up to one down.

Your friend made a good try in the club-suit, but it was never more than a long shot hope. A better plan begins with a more flexible play at trick one.

To make the game, South overtakes dummy's heart queen with his ace and cashes two high trumps. Next he cashes dummy's high clubs and ruffs a club. A heart is led to dummy's king and the fourth is led. East covers and South discards a diamond. Boxes is left on play with no safe leads, and the defenders get only three tricks.

Your friend made the game and you didn't! Next time be sure you get to the newspaper before he does.

ANSWER: One no-trump. It's unusual to bid one no-trump with a void in spades. However, if you expect to show another suit, your hand becomes a good one.

Gomes leads Vandals with 22

MOSCOW (AP) — Former College of Southern Idaho guard Mauro Gomes scored a season-high 22 points, including three 3-pointers, as the Idaho Vandals overwhelmed Northern Arizona 91-51 Thursday night in the Kibbie Dome.

It was the largest margin of victory over in a Big Sky Conference game for the Vandals, 12-3 and 2-1 in the league.

The Lumberjacks, 2-11 and 1-2, scored the first four points of the game, but Idaho hit nine of its first 10 shots in surging to a 21-10 lead. The Vandals built their advantage to 40-21 at halftime.

Gomes, a 6-foot, 7-inch senior from Sao Paulo, Brazil, missed just one of his 10 field goal attempts and scored 15 points in the second half.

Idaho center Riley Smith hit eight of 10 field goals and finished with 19 points, and Raymond Brown came off the bench to score 20 points on 8-12 shooting. The Vandals shot 38-65 from the field for 58.5 percent.

College basketball

to a 71-61 Western Athletic Conference victory over Hawaii Thursday night.

The Utes, 10-8 overall and 1-2 in the WAC, led 35-29 at halftime on the strength of 5-for-5 shooting by senior forward Jimmy Madison, who finished with 12 points, all scored in the first half.

Wyoming 81
UTEP 75
LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Robyn Davis scored a career-high 31 points Thursday night to lead Wyoming to a 81-75, surprising victory over Texas-El Paso in Western Athletic Conference play.

The game was the first WAC competition for the Cowboys, giving the team a 1-0 conference record and 9-5 overall. The Texas-El Paso Miners dropped to 2-1 in conference play and 13-2 overall.

Arizona 85
Oregon State 64
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Anthony Cook scored 20 points and Jud Bucher 17 as 12th-ranked Arizona overcame an early 11-point deficit to coast past Oregon State 85-64 Thursday night in Pacific-10 basketball.

Oregon State hit eight of its first nine shots but Arizona led 42-32 at halftime, and the Wildcats' man-to-man defense helped extend the lead to 69-39 with 17 minutes in the first 6:18 of the second half, keyed by three Bucher baskets.

UCLA 67
USC 66
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guard Paul Richardson's 18-foot jumper with 11 seconds remaining lifted UCLA to a 67-66 victory over Southern California in a Pac-10 game Thursday night at the Sports Arena.

California 63

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Sophomore forward Roy Fisher scored 17 points as California held off Washington State for a 63-62 Pacific-10 Conference victory Thursday night.

The Golden Bears, 12-4 overall and 3-2 in the conference, used full-court pressure to build six-point leads several times in the first half, which ended with Cal in front 30-26. But the Cougars, 6-7 and 1-3, scored two quick baskets to tie the score at the start of the second half and took their only lead at 32-31 — California responded with a 7-0 run.

Samuel, Bradley agree to contracts

By The Associated Press

Juan Samuel and the Philadelphia Phillies agreed to a two-year contract for $2.3 million and Phil Bradley agreed with Baltimore to a two-year deal for $2.3 million, rather than file for salary arbitration.

Samuel, a second baseman who hit .243 last season with 12 homers, 67 runs batted in and 33 stolen bases, gets a $200,000 signing bonus, $1.35 million in 1989 and $1.25 million in 1990. He made $1.06 million in 1988.

Bradley, an outfielder who made $905,000 last season with the Phillies, gets a $100,000 signing bonus and a $1.1 million salary each year. He batted .257 in 1988 with four homers and 33 RBI.

Two players did file for arbitration Friday, pitchers Keith Atherton of Minnesota and Sid Fernandez of the New York Mets, raising the total to four. A total of 147 players remain eligible to file by Monday's noon EST deadline.

Wolfpack basketball under scrutiny

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State chancellor Bruce Poulton will conduct an internal investigation into allegations of wrongdoing in the Wolfpack basketball program, the president of the state university system said Friday.

Chancellor C.D. Spangler said there would be no hesitation in pursuing legal action should it become necessary, and that the board would be informed of such a move.

The allegations have been revealed on the dust jacket of the upcoming book, "Personal Fouls," by Simon & Schuster's Pocketbooks division. The dust jacket was obtained by the Raleigh News and Observer and the allegations published last Saturday. The allegations, according to the book cover, include gifts of cash and cars to student athletes, grade changing and suppression of a positive drug test.

Thompson to boycott basketball game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson on Friday said he would walk off the court as soon as Saturday's game against Boston College starts to protest the new NCAA rule on scholarships.

"I don't want to threaten anybody. I don't want to give any ultimatum," Thompson said. "But when the ball goes up, I intend on getting up off the bench and walking out."

Thompson said he may boycott more than one game and said assistants Mike Riley and Craig Esherick would coach in his absence.

Thompson is protesting proposal No. 42, approved at the NCAA convention in San Francisco on Wednesday, which will prevent high school students who meet only part of the NCAA's entrance criteria from receiving scholarships their first year in college. The minimum criteria are a 2.0 grade-point average in a core curriculum and minimum score on one of two standardized entrance examinations.

Rasmussen, Padres sign 2-year deal

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Meridian High graduate Dennis Rasmussen, a left-handed pitcher, has signed a two-year contract with the San Diego Padres, the team announced Friday.

Rasmussen was acquired by the Padres from Cincinnati last June 10 in a trade which sent pitcher Candy Sierra to the Reds.

In 1988, Rasmussen had an overall record of 16-10 with a 3.43 earned run average.

He had been eligible for salary arbitration. Two high school boys' basketball games that were snowed out on Friday, Jan. 6, have been rescheduled for next week.

The Glenns Ferry-Kimberly Canyon Conference boys' contest-contest will be played in Kimberly on Monday at 6:15 p.m. The Wood River-Buhl South-Central Idaho Conference game that was postponed on the 6th has been rescheduled for Wednesday in the Buhl High gym.

Nordic group initiates ski festival

HANSEN — The High Desert Nordic Association sponsored its first annual Nordic Festival last Sunday at Magic Mountain.

Roger Juntunen, Bridget Nawrocki and Scott Kincaid were the winners of the men's, women's and 12-and-under titles, respectively, in the poker tour, while Brian Stutzman and Heidi Stutzman won the men's and women's telemark races. The obstacle course winners were Arlan Turnbull, Heidi Stutzman and Jacob Juntunen in the men's, women's and 12-and-under divisions.

The scheduled timed touring race had to be canceled because of heavy snow.

Verplank leads field in Bob Hope Classic

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — All the other leaders already have played it.

Yes, it gives him an edge," said Peter Jacobsen, one of six tied at 206. "With his length, it's a par-68 for him."

Jacobsen was tied with Lanny Wadkins, Masters champion Sandy Lyle and Jodie Mudd, West German Bernhard Langer and rookie Ted Schulz.

Jacobsen shot a 69 and Wadkins had a 68, both at PGA West. Schulz and Langer had 68s at Eldorado. Lyle and Mudd shot 88s at Indian Wells.

Second-round leader Brad Bryant struggled to a 73 at PGA West and was at 208. Steve Pate, who had a first-round 81, scored a hole-in-one with a 7-iron shot on the fourth hole at Indian Wells.

Verplank, who won the Western Open as an amateur in 1985 and finally scored his first professional triumph last year did not make a bogey in his round at Eldorado.

He completed three rounds in 203, 13 under par, with two days to go in this 90-hole event that is played on four desert courses.

Now Kite and Mark Calcavecchia shared second at 205. Kite had a 68 at the Palmer course at PGA West and Calcavecchia shot 67 at Bermuda Dunes.

Calcavecchia, who has yet to play at Indian Wells, the shortest of the four courses used, could be the man to beat.

"Sure, he has the advantage, going to Indian Wells," Kite said of the unusual format which has the pros playing one round on each of the four courses before the field is out for the final round Sunday at Bermuda Dunes.

Of the four, Indian Wells, at 6,478 yards, is the shortest and the easiest. Calcavecchia goes there Saturday.
