Rescued from fire

Yvett Abreu cuddles her puppy "Duke" after Twin Falls firefighters rescued the dog from Abreu's home at 1240 Sunburst St. Tuesday. Also rescued were 27 of 30 pet hamsters. The fire caused $40,000 in damage to the house's interior but caused no major structural damage, said

Battalion Chief Fred Webb. No one was injured in the fire, though one firefighter slipped and fell on the ice outside. Firefighters responded at 11:08 a.m. and had the fire out within 15 minutes, Webb said. Temperatures reached 2,000 degrees. The fire's cause is unknown.

INEL chief hopes waste ban may be eased soon

The Associated Press

BOISE — A top Department of Energy official hopes information he will provide the Andrus administration later this week will convince Gov. Cecil Andrus to ease up on his three-month old ban of radioactive waste shipments for temporary storage in Idaho.

"I think we can demonstrate on all the various check lists that we are meeting the commitments we made," Idaho National Engineering Laboratory Manager Don Ote said Tuesday.

Ote, briefing the state Senate Transportation Committee on hazardous waste transport to and from INEL, said he would provide information to Andrus aide Marc Johnson when the two meet in New Mexico on Thursday.

At the same time, Andrus will be in Washington, testifying before the Senate Committee on Government Operations about the issue of clean-up and modernization of Energy Department facilities like INEL.

Legislative news — A3

"It is clear to me that the future of DOE facilities across the nation is tied directly to the priority the federal government — the administration and the Congress — places on cleaning up problems of the past," Andrus said.

Earlier Tuesday, Andrus hinted that some progress was being made in negotiations over waste clean-up with the federal government. He told the Greater Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce he was "on the verge" of reaching agreement with the government on accelerated clean-up of buried waste at INEL.

Ote and Johnson will travel to the Carlsbad area where the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is located for the first of what Ote said is the first of monthly meetings promised Andrus, Colorado Gov. Roy Rohmer and New Mexico Gov. Garry Carruthers during summit meeting on the waste storage problem last December.

Andrus banned further shipment of transuranic and low-level waste from out-of-state for temporary storage at INEL on Oct. 19 after the federal government again failed to make good on its repeated promises to open the New Mexico facility where the waste is to be permanently stored.

The ban halted shipments of waste from the department's Rocky Flats plant in Colorado, creating a serious storage problem at that nuclear weapons production facility that had been sending all its waste at INEL for decades.

Andrus said he would not lift the ban until the New Mexico facility opens and the government began work on removing not only the 2 mil-

Bundy confession clears Gem slaying; 2nd not corroborated

The Associated Press

BOISE — Police said Tuesday they apparently have cleared one unsolved murder because of the confessions of mass murderer Ted Bundy, but they cannot corroborate a second slaying Bundy said he committed in 1974.

Over the weekend, before he was executed Tuesday, Bundy confessed to dozens of murders of young women and girls. State and local law enforcement officers said Bundy was not a prime suspect in a 1976 killing at Pocatello, and they were not even aware of a second killing he said he committed near Boise in September 1974.

But on Tuesday, Attorney General Jim Jones and Pocatello Police Chief Jim Benham said they were reasonably certain Bundy was the man who abducted Lynette Culver, 12, from her Pocatello-junior high school on May 8, 1976, and killed her. The body never has been found.

Russ-Reneau, the state investigator who interviewed Bundy over the weekend in Florida, said Bundy confessed killing the girl and throwing her body into a river.

"We've been following up sightings of Miss Culver as far away as Denver in the last 13 years, none of which ever have proven out," Benham said.

From the description, Benham said it appeared to be the Snake Riv-

Florida finally executes Bundy for girl's death

The Associated Press

STARKE, Fla. — Ted Bundy, a charming law school dropout who ended years of denials that he was a killer with emotional confessions to the gruesome slayings of 20 women in four states, was electrocuted Tuesday for murdering a 12-year-old girl.

Bundy's last words, before a black-hooded executioner pulled a switch at 5:06 a.m. MST sending 2,000 volts through his body, were to his lawyer and a minister: "Give my love to my family and friends."

More than 100 proponents of the death penalty waiting in a field across from the Florida State Prison cheered, lit sparklers and set off fireworks at the signal that 42-year-old Theodore Robert Bundy had finally been put to death for a crime committed almost 11 years ago. Three earlier execution dates were stymied by appeals.

"Burn, Bundy, burn!" some shouted. A group of about a dozen people paraded an old tune by singing "On top of old Sparky" — a reference to the nickname for Florida's oaken, three-legged electric chair.

Only about two dozen people opposed to the death penalty turned up to keep a vigil in the field.

"The people of Florida today administered justice," Gov. Bob Martinez said 1½ hours after the execution. "If there's ever been any question on Florida's death row that deserved the electric chair, Ted Bundy was that individual."

Bundy had been quick-witted,

Bush launches budget-drafting efforts with friendly Congress

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Bush, telling congressional leaders "we want to deliver," set in motion the administration's budget-drafting machinery Tuesday while a heightened spirit of cooperation still exists between Congress and the White House.

Moving to get down to the business on several fronts, Bush also met with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar and announced that he would visit Canada on Feb. 10. The trip would be his first out of the country since becoming president, and would precede by two weeks his scheduled journey to Tokyo for the funeral of Emperor Hirohito.

Bush, who failed to meet his campaign pledge to name his budget negotiators on "Day One" of his administration, spent much of Tuesday morning in meetings with Democratic and Republican leaders of the House and Senate, proposing that they begin conferring each week on a spending plan with senior officials of his administration.

The congressional leaders of both parties discussed in the 2½ hours of talks how to work out a new budget blueprint by the April 16 deadline set by the deficit-reduction law.

"It was all sweetness and light," said the House Republican Whip, Rep. Richard Cheney of Wyoming.

Today, Bush plans to meet with Secretary of the Treasury Nicholas Brady, budget director Richard G.

Derman, and White House chief of staff John Sununu for his first venture into the details of the $1.15-trillion budget submitted Jan. 9 by President Reagan.

Bush has said he will present his proposed revisions to Congress within three weeks. Anticipation is mounting as to how Bush might fulfill his pledge to create a "kinder, gentler" America while significantly trimming the current federal budget deficit and refraining from new taxes.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, told reporters at the White House after the meeting that the congressional leaders promised to give Bush's budget proposal "our immediate, urgent, full attention."

On day of Virginia Westergren's murder in Twin Falls

Jagers downed 30 caffeine pills, wine

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After swallowing about 30 caffeine tablets and a bottle of fortified wine, 18-year-old Jesse Ray Jagers visited Virginia Westergren to ask for work.

When he left, Westergren lay dead or dying, her throat cut and four stab wounds in her stomach.

Jagers says he's uncertain what happened May 13, 1988, in Westergren's Buchanan Street home. He says he remembers feeling angry, then frightened.

Thursday, Jagers will walk into 6th District Judge Daniel Meehl's Twin Falls courtroom for a two-day sentencing hearing. Jagers pleaded guilty in September to first-degree murder during an attempted rape of the 79-year-old Westergren. He also pleaded guilty to robbery in a plea bargain where prosecutors agreed to drop several other felony charges.

Court documents filed Tuesday by Jagers' attorney, James Meservy, for the first time disclose Jagers' account of the crime and details of his life-for-the-year-before-Westergren's-murder-part of it spent as a prostitute on the streets of New Mexico.

Meservy filed two psychological reports to support his 20 pages of arguments for leniency.

Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter, who will argue the case for the state, declined Tuesday to reveal her sentencing recommendation. She said she will not file a sentencing memorandum as Meservy did.

Previously disclosed juvenile records portray an adolescent Jagers tormented by a quick temper and lack of social skills. He spent 2½ years in and out of state juvenile programs, but left state custody one year before Westergren's murder with optimistic recommendations from counselors.

In 1987, he left a federally funded farm job in Idaho to live with his father in Bluewater, N.M. — angry, depressed and irritable for no explained reason. But he wasn't happy in New Mexico, either.

He had a "great deal of conflict" with his father's live-in girlfriend, according to Dr. Lawrence E. Banta, a psychiatrist who wrote one of the reports accompanying Meservy's memorandum. Jagers' father and his girlfriend accused him of stealing from them and asked him to leave the house.

Jagers lived on the streets and earned money from homosexual prostitution.

Eventually, he found his way back to Twin Falls. He had problems finding a job and became even more angry and irritable.

Although Jagers was having problems sleeping, he was taking large doses of Viovan, a type of caffeine tablet.

He thought of suicide, but not murder, according to Banta's report.

Jagers visited Westergren because she and her husband, Al, had hired him for yard work before. Al Westergren was visiting relatives in Portland, leaving his wife alone in the house.

Before the visit, Jagers took the 30 caffeine tablets and drank a bottle of MD 2020, a high-alcohol wine sometimes called "Mad Dog."

Jagers became angry, possibly because of something Westergren said. His next memory is

Job seekers swamp employment office

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state Job Service office was swamped Tuesday with people applying for jobs that don't exist yet.

Sears Manufacturing Co., a California plastic pipe-fitting maker, announced Monday it has purchased the former Tupperware plant in Jerome and will hire 400 workers in the next three years.

"People reacted with awe speed. 'We were busy all day,' said Lon McDonald, labor analyst at the Job Service. 'Our people had trouble keeping up.'"

Sears isn't hiring yet, he said. But when it does, applicants will come from a pool at the Job Service.

"We haven't gotten a job order from them yet, but we are told we will," he said.

McDonald recommended that people still planning to apply should call for appointments rather than dropping in, because they must have interviews in addition to filling out applications.

"For the most part it has been former-Tupperware people coming in," McDonald said. "A group of them he talked to expressed pleasure and optimism about the arrival of Sears."

To identify people with skills needed by Sears, the Job Service has set up a new job classification code for plastics production workers. The first Sears applicants will be selected from that class.

Board lifts trimester moratorium

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Board of Education has lifted its informal moratorium on allowing more school districts to use a trimester scheduling system, citing its flexibility and increasing popularity.

At its meeting Tuesday in Boise, the board voted unanimously to allow local districts the option of using the trimester or the traditional semester scheduling system beginning next fall.

"I think it's an idea whose time has arrived, and I really don't think we can stand in the way," said board member Colleen Mahoney of Lewiston.

In recommending the change, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans cited the growing number of districts requesting permission to use the trimester system.

Eight districts currently use the system, and a report conducted by Idaho State University last year indicated students, teachers, administrators and parents in those districts generally favored it over the semester system.

Along with ending the moratorium, the board adopted Evans' recommendation that it lift a requirement that school districts schedule six class periods per day.

The trimester system calls for only five class periods each day, but for each class to be longer so the total time of instruction does not change. Splitting the school year into three parts rather than two also gives students the opportunity to take more elective classes during a school year while still completing required courses, Evans said.

However, he acknowledged that more use of trimester scheduling could reverse a trend the state has experienced in recent years of fewer students requesting permission to graduate from high school early.

Board member Barbara Fields of New Meadows said that was troubling since it could undermine the board's stated goal of increasing the amount of classroom time students receive.

Mrs. Fields said she envisioned a time when some areas of the state would have districts with predominantly trimester scheduling and others would have semester schedules.

Board member Gary Fay of Twin Falls also added a provision calling for ongoing comparisons of standardized test scores for students in semester and trimester systems.

lion cubic feet of waste temporarily stored above ground at INEL but also the 2 million cubic feet buried on the site.

But after the December meeting in Salt Lake City, Andrus said he had been convinced by national security arguments to allow some waste in benign moving back into Idaho for temporary storage once he believed the government was making good on the commitments it made to open the repository and clean up the buried waste.

Ofte said the government is finalizing the award of $400,000 for state environmental oversight at INEL, committing $6 million over the next two years for cleanup at the site and moving ahead toward opening the repository.

After providing Johnson with all the details, Ofte said he would request a meeting with Andrus at the earliest possible date to make his case for at least a partial lifting of the storage ban.

Johnson declined to offer any specifics about a possible change in the governor's position.

"I can't characterize this with a date and time, but stay tuned," Johnson said.

MX warheads lifted after fall

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Air Force late last year removed nuclear warheads from five MX strategic missiles after one of the 800 missiles fell from moorings inside an underground silo in Wyoming, senior Defense Department officials revealed Tuesday.

The removal of a total of 60 warheads, a tenth of all warheads deployed on MX missiles, was aimed at preventing additional damage to the weapons.

The missile accident is the latest in a series of problems to afflict the MX, a controversial weapon that forced the centerpiece of the U.S. strategic nuclear modernization during the Reagan administration.

Bundy could describe the victim only as a girl between 16 and 18 years of age, about 5-foot-7, with light brown hair. She had a large, green backpack, Renuau said.

He described where he ditched the backpack and if it can be found, it might provide a clue to the victim's identity, Renuau said.

In the meantime, officers have been unable to match up anyone reported missing at the time. Investigators will have to go back to files in archives to reopen the inquiry, Renuau said.

Of the interview with Bundy, Renuau said, "He was very deliberate in his responses, his statements to us. At times during the interview, he appeared to be emotional."

"When I say emotional, he was not crying. He told me it was difficult for him to discuss parts of the incidents he was describing."

"He was very slow, very deliberate in every answer he gave us and he thought a long time before he answered us," Renuau said.

When asked why he killed, Renuau said Bundy answered "only obliquely. When we asked him why he made that trip (to Pocatello) he said it was because of the madness. He did not elaborate on that."

Benham said the girl's parents, Edward and Carol Culver, were notified Bundy probably killed their daughter. The parents no longer live in Pocatello.

The chief said the parents were interested in the facts Bundy provided which corroborated his confession.

Bundy said the girl told him she was about to move to a new home, which she parents confirmed, the chief said.

"In the early 1980s, we attempted to make contact with Mr. Bundy. Of course, at that time, he was denying any involvement with anything, and we were basically told not to bother wasting our time trying to interview him," Benham.

Renuau said Bundy said he made an overnight trip to Pocatello to murder someone.

"He said he was here for a specific purpose, and that was to commit a murder," he said.

Renuau said Bundy was asked if he had made any unsuccessful murder trips to Idaho and he said no. He said Bundy used no notes or written information when providing information about the Idaho slayings, but thought carefully about each answer.

"He was very specific in terms of details he provided on the Pocatello case. He was much less specific on the other case," Renuau said.

Renuau said early in the interview, Bundy made it clear he was not providing the information in an effort to escape the death penalty. "He was fully committed to the fact that he was going to die," he said.

Bundy did indicate he would like to have more time "to clear up more incidents," Renuau said.

Bannock County Prosecutor Larry Echohawk said although it was not an absolute certainty that Lyette Culver was Bundy's Pocatello victim, it was probable. Followup investigation continues, he and Benham said.

known for his cockiness and arrogance; a handsome, blue-eyed charmer. He was the subject of five books and a television miniseries, "The Deliberate Stranger."

But he recently claimed to "feel God's presence," and was reported at the end to be remorseful about his bloody trail of kidnappings, sadistic sexual mutilations and slayings in his home state of Washington, and in Utah, Colorado, Idaho and Florida.

His execution for the murder of sixth-grader Kimberly Diana Leach of Lake City, made him the 20th man put to death in Florida and the 106th in the United States since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed states to reinstate the death penalty in 1976.

Kimberly was kidnapped from the grounds of her junior high school Feb. 9, 1978, three weeks after the killings of two women at Chi Omega sorority at Florida State University.

Until near the end he had insisted he was innocent, although he had been suspected of as many as 36 killings and disappearances.

One of Bundy's final acts was to permit James Dobson, a California psychologist to videotape an interview to be broadcast later. Dobson described Bundy as "feeling great remorse." He quoted Bundy saying his crimes "should serve as a warning to of becoming frightened and fleeing to Las Vegas.

Frantic efforts to cover his trail failed. On May 23, two Twin Falls detectives arrested Jaggers on the Las Vegas strip.

The two psychological reports say Westergren's murderer can be rehabilitated.

Banta contended Jaggers couldn't form criminal intent at the time of Westergren's murder. Jaggers was operating in an altered state of consciousness during the murder, Banta said.

The other report, filed by psychologist Steven Thurber, indicates Jaggers' psychological problems could be solved.

Meservy uses the reports to bolster his argument that Jaggers should be sentenced to between 10 years to life in prison. Meservy recommends minimum prison terms of 10 years on the first-degree murder charge and five years on the robbery charge. He says the maximum sentence should be determined by the parole board and both sentences should run at the same time.

"There is no evidence in the record that the defendant... cannot be rehabilitated and cannot, at some point in time, conform his conduct to the requirements of the law," Meservy argues.

Jaggers is a victim of his upbringing, Meservy says. He was molested at age 4, and he lived with a mother who had "a serious history of alcohol abuse" and "moved from one abusive relationship to another," the memo-random says.

"This is not a young man who has had it all—and gone bad," Meservy said. "Jesse Jaggers has been exposed to most of the bad things of the world, very little of the good."

"It would be very difficult for anyone to make correct choices if exposed to sexual abuse, drug and alcohol abuse, and a disruptive and abusive family lifestyle," Meservy argues.

While Meservy says he doesn't intend to trivialize or diminish the nature of Jaggers' offense, he argues that Jaggers is apologetic.

"He is sorry and has expressed remorse for his actions which took the life of Virginia Westergren," Meservy said. "Nothing can be done to bring Mrs. Westergren back to life to comfort and care for her family or contribute to the community."

Baxter said the sentencing hearing will start at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. After routine court matters, Banta will testify.

On Friday, prosecution psychiatrist Michael Estess and defense psychiatrist Thurber will testify, starting at 9 a.m.

Baxter said that Mehl won't issue a sentencing decision until the next week.

Optimistic budget forecast prompts ed funding request

BOISE (AP) — The optimistic revenue forecast that has bolstered Republican legislative hopes for a non-combative budget debate won't be whining approval in the Idaho House Tuesday as presidents of three state colleges pressed for major spending hikes.

Without opposition, the revenue projection of $748.8 million for the budget year that begins July 1 was sent to the Senate for final action.

The projection, $8.6 million higher than that offered by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, also included an estimate placing the state's one-time revenue surplus at about $41 million, $11 million higher than the governor's estimate.

Although Andrus was optimistic about the outlook for Idaho's future economic growth when he issued his $763.4 million budget, the House-Senate panel that conducted its own economic review saw an even rosier future.

The higher legislative forecast effectively ended the debate over the governor's renewed proposal for repeal of the controversial $12 million investment tax credit, revenue he needed to balance his budget with his lower revenue projection.

Some leaders of the Republican majority, which fought off Andrus' repeal efforts the last two sessions in often bitter partisan battles, have now said they want to outstep the governor in the politically sensitive area of education while still preserving the tax credit which many claim is critical to continued economic expansion.

In fact, Rep. Myron Jones, R-Malden, introduced legislation Tuesday to increase the tax credit from 7 percent to 5 percent, which would cost the state another $4 million in lost business taxes. But Jones maintained the move would actually generate higher tax revenues because of the additional business activity the break will generate.

Earlier in the day, the presidents of Lewis-Clark State College, Boise State University and Idaho State University continued the campaign to cash in on anticipated legislative largesse.

For the second day of presentations on education spending before the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, they effectively ignored the Andrus proposal in favor of the request for even higher increased state support for the four colleges from the Board of Education.

"You have an executive recommendation before you," Idaho State University President Richard Bowen told budget writers. "I'm talking about the board's request, which is more generous."

Bowen and his colleagues, emphasizing the achievements made possible by past budget hikes, pointed out the $122 million budget request from the board was already pared down from the initial requests of the four colleges.

"The budget request is reasonable, it's justifiable, and it is needed," Lewis-Clark President Lee Vickers told budget writers.

In his own budget blueprint, Andrus recommended $114.3 million in state support for the four schools, backing the board's request for money to compensate for past inequitable distribution of state aid and support for assessing student accomplishments and improving engineering courses at BSU and ISU.

But the governor rejected millions of dollars requested for expanded research and new and improved campus programs.

Gas storage rules could imperil several dealers

BOISE (AP) — An eastern Idaho legislator says new federal regulations on underground petroleum storage tanks could bankrupt most dealers in her area.

"In my area, we're putting everybody out of business," said Rep. JoAnn Wood, R-Rigby. She said small retailers in her area will not be able to meet the costs.

Mrs. Wood was among members of the House Environmental Affairs and Transportation and Defense committees briefed Tuesday afternoon on new Environmental Protection Agency regulations on underground storage tanks.

The new rules aren't good. Petroleum industry spokesman Kent Johnson said the federal government estimates that when the regulations take full effect in 10 years, they will put 43 percent of the gas stations and wholesalers out of business.

"A number of things are required and all of them are expensive," he told the lawmakers.

As of last month, all new tanks must have leak detectors, corrosion protection and spill-overflow protectors.

Depending on their age, existing tanks must meet new requirements that Johnson said will prove to be prohibitively expensive.

For example, he said, existing tanks can get by with monthly monitoring for a while. But that can be expensive, even for small operations.

Full monitoring and testing for leaks costs $750-$800 per tank. For a typical gas station with three storage tanks, the bill will be between $2,000 and $3,000 per month.

The new EPA regulations are designed to guard the environment against petroleum spills, leaky tanks and underground corrosion.

But Johnson said the industry estimates meeting the new rules will cost the industry $3.5 billion, $3,000 to $10,000 per station.

And he said most petroleum retailers simply can't meet that sort of cost and will be forced out of business.

Panel ponders public TV funding

BOISE (AP) — Some members of the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee are pondering the dilemma of funding something many in Idaho cannot see.

Idaho Public Broadcasting's television signal does not reach some parts of the state, but Rep. Kitty Gurnsey, R-Boise, co-chairman of the committee, said the answer could be expanding facilities so that it can be a truly statewide service.

"It really would be great if we could," Gurnsey said, after hearing the TV operation's budget request.

For about $700,000, a series of translators, satellite stations and other equipment could "plug up" all the holes that it's practical to plug up," said Jerry Garber, general manager for Idaho Public Broadcasting.

The plan was not recommended for funding in Gov. Cecil Andrus' budget, but the committee has not yet set its figures.

"It does strike me as terribly unfortunate that some folks are second-class citizens by accident of geography," Garber said.

In a report to the committee, Garber and his staff estimated the costs of serving areas throughout the state that now get poor or no reception. The cost per potential new viewer ranged from more than $65 in the Lowman area to about 71 cents in parts of Cassia County.

Craig vows to return pay raise; Symms, McClure uncommitted

By AMY GAMERMAN States News Service

WASHINGTON — Republican Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho Falls, who last month became Senate president pro tem, this week will briefly become governor.

Crapo acts as governor for a while

BOISE (AP) — State Sen. Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, who last month became Senate president pro tem, this week will briefly become governor.

Gov. Cecil Andrus is flying to Washington D.C. to testify before the Senate Committee on Government Operations about waste cleanup at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, and Lt. Gov. Ruch Oster is out of the state on behalf of his employer, the J.R. Simplot Co.

Crapo will take over as acting governor about 11 a.m. today, but will have to give the job back to Andrus Thursday night when he returns, said Andrus' spokesman Marc Johnson.

returning the 50 percent raise, which would boost congressional salaries to $136,000. The raise will automatically go into effect unless rejected by both houses of Congress before Feb. 8.

Craig originally condemned the pay raise but stopped short of a commitment to return the money. After receiving a large volume of mail from his district, however, he took his position a step further.

"I've received 400 letters both specific to this and in part to this, and several hundred phone calls," Craig said, describing his decision as a sign that "representative government still works."

Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings would use the increase to fund a scholarship fund he created in 1986 with the last raise, a spokeswoman said Monday.

Republican Sens. Steven Symms and James McClure have both opposed the pay increase recommended by a presidential commission in December, but neither has committed himself to returning the money should it be approved.

Leaders of the House and Senate support the increase, so there is a chance the issue may not come to a vote in both houses. If that happens and the pay raise is automatically enacted, legislators who loudly opposed it may find themselves in a sticky position over what to do with the money.

The publicity generated by Symms' announcement of an eye-catching "balance the budget bonus" plan — a proposal to tie pay raises to Congress' ability to reduce the federal deficit — could work against him if he accepts an approved increase.

Still, the senator has not committed himself to returning any money. "I don't know that how much you return of your pay has ever been a determinant of how good a senator you are," said Symms-spokesman Bill Jarrill.

Symms reported making more than $29,000 in silver and soybean commodities and U.S. Treasury bonds in 1988, according to a report published Tuesday in the Washington Post.

McClure has been more guarded in public statements against the increase than his colleague, and refused to comment on the issue Tuesday. A McClure spokesman said the senator supports some aspects of the pay raise package, such as higher salaries for federal judges and the abolition of honoraria, or speaking fees.

Bush verges on 'wimp' image with inaugural speech

WASHINGTON — Not since Jimmy Carter's one of his high school teachers by name in his 1977 inaugural address has there been a presidential homages to a presidential killer. As George Bush delivered last week — indeed, in terms of the intimacy — if not the narrowness — of its imagery, there has never been an inaugural address like it at all.

The president not only saluted his fellow citizens intimately as "neighbors" — an inaugural precedent, by the way — he filled out his portrait of a communitarian America with vivid scenes and even implied dialogue. In Bush's neighborhood, people eschew "a bigger car, a bigger bank account," pausing instead "to ask if a sick child has gotten better" or "to trade a word of friendship." Its valued members include "the older fellow who will throw a salute by himself when the flag goes by, and the woman who'll tell her sons the words of the battle hymns."

The legacy these good neighbors seek to bequeath is a sense of what it means to be a loyal friend, a loving parent, a citizen who leaves his home, his neighborhood and town better than he found it.

Bush denied that he was being sentimental, though that is exactly what he was being. Of course, the politico who doesn't blush sentiment whenever possible is rarer than pork rinds at a lobster fest. What stands out about Bush's imagery is that it was concrete and vivid only when it was sentimental.

Charles Paul Freund

Bush's speech lacked, for example, a sustained international dimension. The "day of democracy" that sort of thing. What any of this may have had to do with the specific policies of the Reagan-Bush administration during the last eight years was a connection Bush avoided. We are not given power, he said, "to make a great show in the world."

Even his description of improved U.S.-Soviet relations as "a triumph of hope over experience" seemed to attribute the warming as much to a benevolent and prayer-answering Providence as to the muscling-up of American force under Reagan.

Bush's comparative vividness, even near-eloquence, when describing matters of neighborhood and community stands in undeniable contrast to the narrowness, the equanimity of his styles and metaphors of power. These "power" images included a "door" to freedom and a "door" to prosperity; freedom like "a beautiful kite" and good faith in international relations as "a spiral that endlessly moves on."

Bush's central motif, "a new breeze is blowing," had the same disembodied quality. It was an evasion, and a potentially revealing one. So many of Bush's formulations stepped around cause and effect; his remarks were devoid of chest-thumping — military, diplomatic or economic — though he had as much or more excuse for it than most men assuming the presidency.

What we heard on Friday was political self-effacement, a rare exercise in American rhetorical politeness.

We do not now know, of course, how much of Bush's address was his own and how much was crafted by speechwriter Peggy Noonan or others. But the reflex of avoiding cause and effect, when doing so will result in public self-aggrandizement, is observable in Bush when he speaks extemporaneously.

This is, after all, the man who sought help drafting a victory statement last election night, but who felt he could see his way alone through a concession of defeat.

Similarly, Bush's ease when talking about community and domesticity seemed genuine, explainable at least in the context of his upbringing and the noblesse oblige that is said to survive in his social class. The problem is, if this is actually the rhetorical face Bush is most comfortable presenting, then his inaugural address may be a presentation of political difficulty.

Bush's rhetorical weaknesses in this opening speech occurred when he addressed matters of power; they are, in the traditional division of such things, "masculine" subjects. His successful images were all matters of kindness, gentleness, hearth and home; they are widely associated with the "feminine." This was surprising from a politician who spent the entire summer campaign overcoming a debilitating "wimp" image. Why did he wander back on to the same dangerous ground on day one of his presidency?

Some see leadership as high drama, and the sound of trumpets calling. Bush said, waving all that aside. As for him, he has already characterized his presidency in advance as "small and stately." We'll see. Americans like to say they identify with appeals to sacrifice for the common good. Frank Capra built a successful film career on this notion, but the last president to buy into it was Carter.

Letters/Readers discuss gun control

Tougher gun laws won't stop the mentally ill

Stockton, Calif. — Toll: five children dead and 30 injured.

Before this issue is lost in the back pages, I'd like to throw a little light on it. Maybe before we're finished with it, we'll all see a little clearer.

This problem has many thorns about it, and like most problems we're easy to untangle. If children are so important in our world, then this problem must be addressed, not just passed over.

It came to a head when a semi-automatic AK-47 (Chinese version) was wielded against hundreds of southeast Asian kids in Stockton.

I'm led to believe that there are people who actually hunt animals with these semi-automatic AK-47s. I can imagine them decked out with field boots, knife, gun, and military camouflage outfits, portraying the superficial "Rambo" stereotype.

The AK-47 used in Stockton was purchased in an Oregon gun store. The transaction took all of five minutes to complete. The felony form was filled out erroneously, and probably ended up in a dead drawer. At this point the kids were already dead in his mind. All that remained was the spark to light his fuse.

Recently, I checked in Rupert on the ease and availability of procuring a semi-automatic rifle. It would be about the same as in Oregon.

I think there're several things that could be done immediately to affect this problem.

1. There could be a five-day waiting period on buying these semi-automatic weapons.
2. The federal form on felonies could be picked up by a federal agency and checked out within the five-day period stated above.
3. Or the assault rifles could be banned, which has to be done on a state-by-state basis. This would surely bring out the NRA and its gun lobby.

I realize there's little that our open society can do about a deranged mind of this sort. Though we may not be able to stop them, we can sure slow them down with new laws.

In school, kids should be trained to hit the dirt and play dead if they think they hear a shot. Today's paper reported that there's a significant rise in the sale of AK-47s. Great!

When prisoners riot, they should have to live in it, and fix it at their expense and labor. I don't feel sorry for them one bit. I'm sorry to hear about their poor TV reception. That would be extremely cruel to deprive them of watching the Super Bowl.

DENNIS MURPHY

We'll lose many rights if guns are banned first

We would like to express our disagreement with your editorial of Jan. 19, as to who is responsible for tragedies such as the one in Stockton, and what should be done about them.

You're absolutely right that there is a national paralysis of will to do what is needed. What you are wrong about is that society's ills will be solved by the addition of stricter gun laws; most of which are difficult to enforce at this time.

What we do not agree with everything that you say is just as extreme and much more dangerous to all Americans. As a check on the excesses of government, "the right to keep and bear arms" is second only to our right to "freedom of speech." It was guaranteed to all of us by the Constitution, as a protection for our vote.

You may not choose to own a gun, but without that "right" you would very quickly lose the "right" to publish what you wish in our newspaper. To give up that right in order to prevent a few criminal acts, would be nothing short of social suicide.

If we don't begin to look at why a 24 year old man suddenly decides to murder a group of innocent school children, we will continue to see more of that type of behavior.

We are living in a world that is very different from the one many of us grew up in during the 1950's. We are crowded together into enormous cities, thousands of us jobless, homeless, and without families.

Many people react to the frustration by drinking, driving too fast, taking drugs, or, like our killer, getting involved in a life of crime. They end up in and out of crowded jails, run by a criminal justice system that is overwhelmed by an appalling number of people who just don't seem to have a place in a supposedly civilized society.

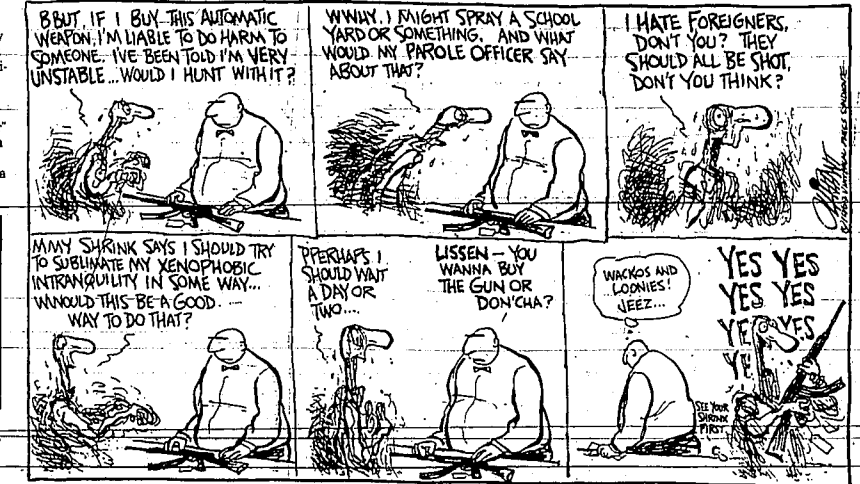

For these people, the easy availability of a firearm, whether on the street or from a gun store, is just one of the many circumstances leading to their last, desperate act.

The media attention they know they will receive, serves, very well, to convey the frustration and untappiness they have found in an increasingly impersonal and unaring society.

Yes, we have a serious problem. But it has very little to do with guns, specifically, and everything to do with the breakdown of our society.

Now, we can either blame all these incidents on one small group of Americans, or we can take an honest look at what the real problems are, and begin to do something about them.

Letters/Embezzlement, politics prompt reader comments

Courtney's attitude too flippant

After re-reading the two articles Jan. 20, on the embezzlement of funds by city employees, I feel compelled to ask, what is going on here?

The issue of embezzlement is really secondary to the much more serious matter — the flippant and irresponsible attitude of Tom Courtney, the City Manager.

In at least two quotes from Courtney, he expressed his concern about the city and city officials being treated differently than businesses.

Am I to understand that Tom Courtney has managed the affairs of our city for these several years without knowing that there is a difference?

I am particularly appalled by the comment that, we (the City) are in as good a financial condition as anyone in the state. What does financial condition have to do with this?

In short, Tom Courtney believes the fiscal affairs of the city, and probably everything else in city government, are matters of business management rather than public policy and an execution of that policy which reflects the trust of citizens of this community.

Mr. Courtney's views disturb me. City government is not his personal fief, though his statements betray such a mindset.

Nixon precipitated one of the rare constitutional crises in our history with his conviction that acting above the law and trust of the citizenry was acceptable if national security was at stake.

We have a microcosm of that problem in Twin Falls. The City Council needs to be awakened to these rather strong hints that all is not well here.

Tom Courtney may be a good manager but with his attitude he's in the wrong line of work. He should be managing some business as a sole proprietor.

'Young Democrats' seek teens

About a year and a half ago, I wrote an article on "Politics Need Teen-agers and Young Adults." It's been two years now, and we've done nothing about it.

Now, I feel that if we can get some kind of organization going, then maybe we could help the teen-agers and young adults of the Magic Valley!

See, this program would help the young adult/teen-agers out. It would teach them how our government really works. This organization would be called "The Young Democrats."

When they turn 18, they'll know how the government works, but not well enough. This way when voting time comes around in the Magic Valley we could help out the rest of the Democrats by handing out balls, or encourage people to vote for whoever is running.

This would also help them in their schooling. It would be for the ages 12-18 years. If "We the People" of the Magic Valley would try hard enough, then maybe this would work.

If you have any questions, comments, or even any suggestions feel free to write me at: 348 Third Ave. West, Twin Falls, 83301.

'Pledge' has changed over time

In reply to Nancy Geisler's letter of Jan. 22, I would like to recite the pledge of allegiance to her.

The way it was first written in 1892, "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

In 1924 "the flag of the United States of America" was added to it.

In fact, 30 years later, "Under God" was added to it. And this has been changed four times, and Nancy, if our country is not a democracy, you should let our president know for he should not be kept in the dark.

WILLIAM HAFNER

Let's vote on seat belt issue

Did you happen to see the Associated Press news release regarding Idaho drivers' non-use of seat belts? That article is pretty revealing as to the way people react under certain circumstances.

There is an old adage that comes to mind to the effect, that "you can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink."

This is clearly indicated by the 8 percent compliance rate in Salmon which is a very opinionated little group of people.

On the other side of the picture is the fact that when the mandatory portion of Oregon's seat belt law was eliminated, compliance went up to 48 percent or almost half!

I have a theory that people are quite a bit like a band of sheep where the old Judas ewe can lead them anywhere, even to their own destruction; but you can't drive them any place, by force.

Please Idaho State Legislature, give us, the voters, a chance to vote on this issue. We are entitled to express our preferences!

Latham ads intrude on quietude

I shouldn't have to give my reasons for being a "couch potato" as Mr. Beard has chosen to tab me, but all I have been asking is just what he has so openly said in his letter "Be quiet!" Why does Campo feel he has to yell?

We have 51 years of marriage, lost one baby, raised three fine kids, loved and baby sat 12 grandkids and have been so proud of our 13 great-grandkids: I've had 16 operations (want to compare scars?); been off on crutches for 10 years when I was young and now in my older years have high blood pressure, have to wear heart patches and as of last October I have had my eighth slight stroke which has affected my left side.

Let me add, I still help keep my house, cook the meals and I crochet afghans, read, do crossword puzzles, etc. The heavy work is done by my husband.

Owners should vote on bonds

I am writing in reference to HJR2 which proposes amendment to the Idaho Constitution to allow approval of general obligation bond issues by 60 percent of those voting, not two-thirds.

I would be in favor of this proposal if only people who own property or can prove that they are increased due to passage of a bond election, were allowed to vote on the bond issue. I do not feel that I should have the right to vote on a bond issue that would raise someone else's taxes.

The future demands open-minds

With some exceptions, most letters to the editor deal with variations of two basic themes: money — and the problems connected with making it, or "I'm right; you're wrong" about religion, politics, morality, education, freedom, national security, and money.

It probably doesn't often happen than the mind of a polarized person is changed by listening to an opposing point of view, but I'm sure some readers have had their thought processes realigned because of something they read on this page. So, in the spirit of stimulating thought and discussion, I'd like to offer the following ideas:

Things begin to go wrong when we believe that what's OK for us is OK for everyone. Our pursuit of money, for example, does not mean it's good or proper that whatever we do to obtain it is worth the consequences. Our view of God may be totally wrong for others.

Our sense of morality may stem more from our personal mental and spiritual problems than from divine inspiration. Our talk of freedom too often is concerned more with selfishness than liberty. Our view of learning may be driven by a desire to officially confirm our own misconceptions. National security could be a smokescreen for paranoia, greed, crime and egoism. And our political dogma could be too narrow to cover all the problems posed by any or all of the foregoing.

Maybe the reason nothing important really seems to change in national affairs is because our attempts to solve problems are rooted more in mythology than reality, in fear instead of courage, or in personal gain over general benefit.

There's a sense of change today, indications that what we've been taught, or always believed, may not be entirely true. Old ideas are being debated. We can either retreat into what's been comfortable for us, or face the prospect with enthusiasm, participating in, rather than watching, the process, with open minds instead of fear.

Senators proposing gas weapon penalties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to penalize nations that use chemical weapons and private companies that help produce them will be introduced this week, Republican and Democratic senators said Tuesday.

The proposed action was announced at a hearing in which senators cited reports that the West German government had looked the other way while German industries helped Middle East nations obtain chemical warfare capability. A U.S. official said West Germany is now addressing the situation.

Senators also were told that the Soviet Union is stockpiling biological weapons in violation of a 1972 agreement banning them worldwide.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he will soon introduce a bill to require U.S. diplomatic and economic sanctions against any nation using chemical or biological weapons. He said the legislation will ask other nations to do likewise.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he will sponsor companion legislation to invoke sanctions against companies of any nationality which supply chemical warfare equipment and technology to Third World nations.

Helms and other members of the Foreign Relations Committee complained about reports that West German officials ignored the situation while German chemical firms helped Libya build a chemical plant that has been alleged to be capable of producing poison gas.

William F. Burns, the retired Army major general who heads the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, testified that about 20 nations have the capacity to produce chemical weapons. He said about five or six are known to have used or stockpiled them.

U.S. invokes treaty to resolve dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today invoked a treaty between the two governments to resolve a long-running dispute over the extradition of a Chilean spy.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he will sponsor companion legislation to invoke sanctions against companies of any nationality which supply chemical warfare equipment and technology to Third World nations.

Helms and other members of the Foreign Relations Committee complained about reports that West German officials ignored the situation while German chemical firms helped Libya build a chemical plant that has been alleged to be capable of producing poison gas.

William F. Burns, the retired Army major general who heads the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, testified that about 20 nations have the capacity to produce chemical weapons. He said about five or six are known to have used or stockpiled them.

35 demand pay raise face a vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-five House members wrote Speaker Jim Wright on Tuesday to demand a vote on a proposed 50 percent congressional pay raise "out of respect for the American taxpayer."

Idahoan Larry Craig, a Republican, was among those signing the letter.

The raise would become effective automatically Feb. 8 unless the House and Senate defeated it in separate votes.

The letter, written by Rep. Robert C. Smith, R-N.H., was signed by 30 Republicans and five Democrats.

Wright, a Democrat from Texas, has been noncommittal about a vote, and his office had no immediate comment on the letter.

Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, has promised a vote on the pay plan.

The plan would give rank-and-file lawmakers $135,000 a year, instead of $89,500; allow the speaker to earn $175,000, instead of $115,000; and pay $150,000 to the president pro tempore of the Senate and the House and Senate majority and minority leaders of both each house, all of whom now earn $99,500.

The prospect of an increase in congressional salaries has prompted a broad range of comments, but there is one theme that is constant, the letter said. "The American people are firm in their conviction that regardless of the legislative form, there must be a vote on this enormous pay raise."

A vote would most likely come on a resolution of disapproval, which could be written to strike down only the congressional portion.

Signing the letter were:

Democrats Mike Synar, Oklahoma; G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, Mississippi; W.J. "Billy" Tauzin, Louisiana; Timothy J. Peenny, Minnesota; and Peter A. DeFazio, Oregon.

Republicans Thomas J. Tauke, Iowa; Robert F. Smith, Oregon; Cass-Ballenger, North Carolina; Howard C. Nielson, Utah; Jim Courter, New Jersey; Robert C. Smith, New Hampshire; Jim Bunning, Kentucky; Bob Stump, Arizona; Peter Smith, Vermont; Olympia J. Snowe, Maine; Bill Emerson, Missouri; John J. Rhodes, III, Arizona; James M. Inhofe, Oklahoma.

Also, Republicans Helen Delich Bentley, Maryland; Dan Schaefer, Colorado; Clyde C. Holloway, Louisiana; Norman D. Shumway, California; Jim Leach, Iowa; Larry E. Craig, Idaho; Patricia F. Seiki, Hawaii; Virginia Smith, Nebraska; Lamar S. Smith, Texas; Craig T. James, Florida; Michael Bilirakis, Florida; Chuck Douglas, New Hampshire; Denny Smith, Oregon; Thomas J. Ridge, Pennsylvania; Hank Brown, Colorado; Robert J. Lagomarsino, California; and Benjamin A. Gilman, New York.

Half million elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are more elected public officials than bank tellers in America, with more than a half-million people holding elective offices — most of them men.

The Census Bureau reported Tuesday that there were 504,404 elected officials across the country in 1987, up from 490,807 a decade earlier.

"It's quite a statement about the extent of democracy, particularly the grass-roots democracy, in the country," said Diana Cull, a census statistician who compiled the figures.

What makes up a "perfect meal"? One combination of comestibles has been so declared at least twice, according to files at hand. First, during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, Second, in the early 1960s. It's bread, cheese and beer.

You don't find many words like "uh-ers" with four "personal" pronouns in succession. Us, she, he, her.

Q. How'd New York City come to be called The Big Apple?
 A. This line was in the jazz vernacular several generations ago: "Lots of apples in the tree." Meaning opportunities were plentiful. For work, romance, whatever. To get a highly desirable gig in New York City, and a few, was to "apple" the "big apple." To drum up business, convention sellers later publicized the big-apple nickname.

Pianist Van Cliburn to perform in Philadelphia

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Pianist Van Cliburn will perform June 19 with the Philadelphia Orchestra, for his first major concert in more than a decade.

A spokesman at the Van Cliburn Foundation said Monday that Cliburn, 64, will resume an active concert schedule with the concert in Philadelphia with conductor Stanislaw Skrowaczewski.

"I'm very happy that Van is coming back to his career," Skrowaczewski said. "Everyone has been very sorry that he wasn't playing."

Cliburn, a native of Shreveport, La., spent his boyhood in the east Texas town of Kilgore and rocketed to international fame in 1958 at 23 when he won first prize at the International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow.

He performed regularly for two decades until he quietly entered a period of sabbatical in 1978. He moved to Fort Worth and bought a home in 1985.

Singer Lynn Anderson to write apology letter

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music entertainer Lynn Anderson has agreed to write a letter of apology if a waitress drops malicious mischief charges she filed against the singer last fall, authorities said.

The charges stemmed from an incident Oct. 19 at the home of Miss Anderson's former boyfriend, songwriter Mentor Williams.

Miss Anderson, 41, country music's Female Vocalist of the Year in 1971, left the General Sessions Courtroom on Monday when her attorney, William T. Ramsey, announced that Linda Gail Bowers had agreed to drop the charges in exchange for a letter of apology.

Ms. Bowers obtained the warrant against Miss Anderson after the singer came to Williams' home in suburban West Meade, allegedly broke into Ms. Bowers' car, took some of her belongings and made threats against her.

These charges have absolutely no merit," Miss Anderson said in a statement at the time.

Attorney Tom Kitzler Jr. said his client chose to drop the charges rather than make everybody go through a protracted legal process.

Soap opera cast to film at university

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — For actress Jensen Buchanan, a trip to school seemed like a vacation.

LYNN ANDERSON
Will apologize

She and other cast members of "One Life to Live" are at Duke University this week, filming episodes of the ABC-TV soap opera to be broadcast next month.

"I'm trying to look at it like a vacation," Miss Buchanan said. "There's a lot of pomp and circumstance for a little bit of action."

In one episode, a gargoyle topples from a clock tower, narrowly missing Bo and Sarah, played by Miss Buchanan. Was the gargoyle intended for Bo or Sarah or for both?

Miss Buchanan said she thought the gargoyle was intended for Bo, played by Bob Woods. "They haven't told us yet, but I think it's his life. In the story line, about a week before this, there was a car explosion that he narrowly escaped. Now a gargoyle, it gives you the idea something is up."

Miss America says brains are important

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — When she was crowned Miss America four months ago, Gretchen Carlson said her selection showed that the pageant is interested in brains and talent, not just looks.

"It shows that I'm not a bimbo, that I do have intelligence and that I do represent what every woman wants to be in this society, which is a career woman, and be respected for her intelligence," said Carlson, a Stanford University junior from Anoka.

Carlson appeared at a school in Minnesota and the Children's Hospital of St. Paul on Monday. When she met Marcus Jackson, 15, at the hospital, he looked at her hands and said, "Miss America with no fingernails?"

"I know, isn't that refreshing?" Carlson said, displaying her close-trimmed nails.

A violinist can't have long nails, said Carlson, who had just returned from President Bush's inauguration in Washington. "I put on fake ones for the inauguration, but as soon as I got back to Minnesota I ripped them off, because I had to practice."

Evangelist pleads guilty to charges

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — An evangelist whom Jessica Hahn said she turned to for solace following her sexual encounter with ousted PTL leader Jim Bakker pleaded guilty Tuesday to two of 18 counts against him.

The guilty plea by Long Island minister Eugene Profeta came as his trial on state tax evasion, perjury and witness-impairing charges was about to start in state Supreme Court.

Profeta pleaded guilty to offering a false instrument for filing, his 1986 tax return, and to tampering with a witness, Hahn. Under the plea-bargain agreement, he will be sentenced to six months in jail and five years probation. He'll also be fined $5,000 and ordered to pay $13,000 in state taxes.

As part of the deal, Profeta also was ordered not to have any contact with Hahn, his former church secretary.

The surprise plea ended a suppression hearing being held to determine if transcripts of taped telephone conversations between Profeta and Hahn, made with her consent, could be used at the trial.

Revelations about Hahn's 1980 sexual encounter with Bakker led to his ouster by the religious group. On Monday, a New York state investigator testified that Hahn told him she had a cocaine habit and had received $12,000 in "rush money" from the PTL ministry in what "sounded like extortion."

Hahn said she used $7,000 to buy cocaine sometime after getting two payments from the PTL ministry, said Richard Friedman, an investigator for the state attorney general's office.

RATINGS

The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows.

G. General Audiences, all ages admitted.

PG. Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13. Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.

R. Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

X. No one under 17 admitted.

Well-known art can be found in little-known museum in rural town

JENNINGS, La. (AP) — A Van Dyke self-portrait seems to be looking down his nose at his unlikely surroundings in a little-known museum tucked away in an old house in this rural south Louisiana town, not too far from grazing cows.

"A lot of people come in here with (a puzzled) expression," said Delores Spears, director of the Zigler Museum. "They want to know how all of this got to the middle of nowhere."

The Van Dyke is in good company, just down the wall from a Rembrandt, a Whistler, a Sir Joshua Reynolds and dozens of other works by noted artists dating from the 17th century.

Just off Interstate 10, 40 miles from the southeast Texas border, Jennings is the home of Fred and Ruth Zigler, who had a "fortune" and "no heirs. They decided to leave a legacy to the area they loved."

Zigler's father had moved from the landlocked Dakotas at the turn of the century and made millions in shipbuilding, real estate, oil and gas and other interests.

The Zigler legacy included a museum foundation and a separate founder who grants full college scholarships each year to deserving students — one from each high school in the area. That foundation also provides grants to charitable organizations, including the museum foundation, which has a smaller endowment.

Since 1960 when Fred Zigler died, the education foundation has granted $1 million in scholarships. Grants to other organizations total $3.5 million.

"That's really an economic boost when you take into account what has happened in this parish," said Richard Boisture, a member of the museum foundation. "The parish once fat and sassy from oil, gas and shipbuilding, fell on hard times in 1960 with the decline of the oil patch. Unemployment is over 13 percent."

"The money helps the kids, the community and all I can say is thank God for the Zigers," said Boisture.

Before she died in 1974, Mrs. Zigler left the old family home to the museum foundation. Two wings have been added to the two-story columned mansion to handle the growing collection, which now totals more than 150 pieces of art.

"Thanks to the education foundation, the museum was able to purchase the Van Dyke in 1984 for about $125,000."

"We took it out of the crate and it was almost an emotional thing," said Boisture. "His hair, looks like you could touch it and feel the softness. He looks like he's almost glancing back with disdain at someone."

One of the best buys, said Spears, was "Morning" by Helen Turner, which cost relatively little years ago "but it's in six figures now. We've loaned it to a New York museum."

Spears says her favorites are a shoreline canvas by George Inness and "The Little Mother," painted by Charles Sprague Pearce in the 1880s.

"A lot of school kids tour through here and if just one in each group leaves with an interest in what he's seen, this museum is a success," said Boisture. "Middle of nowhere or not."

Fire Capt. Robert Friel said last week that the campaign began after inspectors noticed increased use of candles and flaming lamps in crowded restaurants.

The ordinance also covers churches and synagogues, but Friel said inspectors would not try to ban open flames in places of worship.

Campaign to ban candles halted

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The city's top safety official said fire inspectors are backing away from a campaign to enforce a ban on candles in restaurants.

"It would seem we've given this a high priority than necessary," Public Safety Director Glenn Cannon said Monday.

Cannon said he and fire Chief Charles Dickinson had been unaware that fire-prevention inspectors were cracking down on the use of open flames. The campaign met criticism and defiance from restaurateurs.

Prince brings Lockerbie condolences

LOCKERBIE, Scotland (AP) — Prince Charles, bringing condolences five weeks after the crash of Pan Am Flight 103, gave an extra hour Tuesday to a town that felt snubbed by the royal family in its time of grief.

The heir to the throne listened and talked to relatives of the 11 people killed in Lockerbie Dec. 21 and laid an elaborate floral tribute at the town hall. He charmed children and paused for a whiskey before leaving more than an hour behind schedule — but with new admirers.

"It says a lot for him that he had the courage to come. It is a great honor," said store manager Robert Devlin.

Charles visited the crater gouged by the falling Boeing 747 in the Sherwood Crescent neighborhood, where all of Lockerbie's victims lived.

Japan scandal claims 3rd minister

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Economic Planning Agency chief resigned Tuesday, becoming the third Cabinet minister in less than two months to fall victim to a major stock-trading scandal.

Ken Harada stepped down after news reports said he had received regular political donations from Recruit Co., the company at the center of the stock scandal.

Harada's resignation was a serious blow to Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, who had reshuffled his Cabinet on Dec. 27 with a pledge to restore public trust in political ethics.

The Japan Socialist Party, the largest opposition group, quickly called for Takeshita and the rest of the Cabinet to resign. Opposition criticism of the administration also was expected to lead parliamentary debate in coming weeks over the fiscal 1989 budget.

Harada, 69, had chaired a special parliamentary committee examining the stock-trading scandal until he was made the country's chief economic planner in the Cabinet reshuffle.

French space agency plans big order

PARIS (AP) — Arianespace, Europe's commercial space transport company, plans to order 50 Ariane-4 launch vehicles worth about $3 billion from its industrial partners next month, it was announced Tuesday.

The Ariane-4 rockets will be used to put satellites into orbit between 1991 and 1993.

France's state-owned Aerospatiale SA is one of the major partners in the Ariane-4 project with a 20.4 percent share. Other major partners include state-controlled Societe Europeenne de Propulsion and Matra SA with shares of 21.1 percent and 8.7 percent respectively, and MAN and ERNO of West Germany with 9.3 percent and 5.1 percent respectively.

Fumes block mine rescue efforts

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Toxic gas and smoke blocked rescuers Tuesday from reaching at least 100 trapped miners, and the mayor said there is little hope they're alive.

Officials said at least three miners were killed and 100 trapped Monday when a fire ate through wooden supports, collapsing tunnels in a rundown gold mine in southern Peru.

"The smoke has poisoned any air inside. They cannot be alive," Police Lt. Juan Robles said by telephone Tuesday.

He said heavy smoke, toxic gas and fallen earth stopped rescuers from entering Sol de Oro, a private mine near coastal Nazca, 230 miles south of Lima.

Hours after the cave-in, Robles said 100-300 miners were trapped. But he reduced that estimate Tuesday to about 100.

MOSCOW (AP) — Mountain villagers in "endless" funeral processions Tuesday buried their dead from the Tadzhikistan earthquake that killed up to 1,000, and rescuers slogged through muddy rubble in a desperate search for survivors.

New warnings were issued for more possible landslides caused by thawing snow in the Central Asian republic 1,800 miles south of Moscow that was hit by Monday's predawn earthquake.

In northwestern Armenia, which was devastated by a Dec. 7 quake that killed 25,000 people, a powerful aftershock was reported Tuesday. An Armenian official said the population had been warned and no casualties were reported.

Rescuers reportedly found one survivor from the Tadzhikistan quake, although an official spokesman denied it.

A 40-second tremor, which U.S. seismologists registered as 5.4 on the Richter scale, hit before dawn Monday. It loosened layers of mud that cascaded onto mountain villages in a rural area about 20 miles southwest of the republic's capital of Dushanbe.

Workers using shovels and bulldozers continued digging for survivors, Tass said, but a local official said the efforts might be in vain.

"There is little hope because of the flood of dirt and mud," Erkin Kasymov, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry of Tadzhikistan, said by telephone. "But while there is any hope, the rescuers will keep digging."

In one village, Sharora, more than 100 bodies have been hauled from the mud and wreckage, Tass said. It said rescuers found only one survivor, Sergei Muratov, 27.

Muratov, reported to be in grave condition, was rushed to a hospital, where "surgeons are fighting for his life," Tass said.

However, Vitaly Zhukov of the republic's official news agency and chief of a press information center set up in the wake of the tragedy, told The Associated Press no survivors were found during excavations Tuesday.

Zainiddin Nasreddinov, editor-in-chief of the news agency, estimated that about 80 people, or about Sharora's entire population, had been killed in the village.

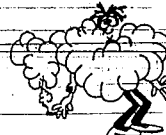

Tass on Monday estimated that 1,000 people had been killed, and official reports said more than 100 people were hospitalized in Dushanbe.

The predominantly Moslem villagers buried their dead, and "the funeral processions seem endless," the Tass news agency said.

Zhukov said 11 people died overnight in hospitals. Late Tuesday, amid reports that casualties might not be as high as initially reported, he said the preliminary estimate remained at 1,000 dead.

He added, however, that it was still too early to determine how many people had been buried in the slide.

Sharora and three other villages located at the quake's epicenter — Okuli-Bolo, Okuli-Poyen and Khisor are now wreathed in the smoke of bonfires and field kitchens, Tass

Argentine troops control army camp

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Armed civilians surrendered to the army Tuesday after a one-day assault on an infantry base in which at least 21 people were killed and scores wounded, the government said.

Officials said troops had tracked down snipers and searched bunkers at the 3rd Infantry Regiment camp at La Tablada on the capital's outskirts, which the armed group assaulted Monday.

Captured weapons included sophisticated machine guns from the Soviet Union and China, military officials said.

Government spokesmen said 15 to 20 commandos were killed and estimated 23 were taken prisoner.

Rush wants to change commodity indemnity law

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Agriculture Department Director Dick Rush said the state needs a commodity indemnity account to protect farmers, but Tuesday he gave legislators back their law, recommending that several changes be addressed.

He wants:

- Licensed warehouses and dealers to contribute half of the fund.
- Only 80 percent of delayed price contracts paid.
- An additional staff person to keep watch on warehouse finances.
- Elimination of a $10,000-per-farmer cap.
- Farmer-owned cooperatives exempted.

Last year lawmakers approved creation of a warehouse indemnity fund to protect farmers from warehouse failures, such as the Flier Hawkins Co. Ltd. bankruptcy.

Farmers would be charged 0.2 percent of the value of their product to create a sort of insurance account. If the warehouse holding their product failed, the Agriculture

Bill may save Hawkins lien holders cash

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The House Agriculture Committee agreed Tuesday to consider emergency legislation that would relieve each of the approximately 400 Hawkins Co. Ltd. lien holders of a nearly $800 postage bill next month.

Idaho law now requires growers to send a copy of their lien filings to all other lien holders by certified mail at a cost of about $2 a letter. The Department would immediately reimburse farmers from the fund and then the state would attempt to collect from the company. The theory was that farmers would have their money soon enough to buy seed for the next year's crop and would avoid legal bills.

liens are only good for six months and then must be refiled again. For most of the farmers who had liens in the Flier warehouse, that means re-filing and repeating the mailing next month.

"All the local attorneys and growers are certainly aware of the claims. There is no need to go through this again," said Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, who is sponsoring the legislation.

"It is really a burden on people down there," Rep. Celia Gould, R-Buhl, said. "The cost is overwhelming."

Jones is asking that the proposed law be given emergency status. If passed, it could take effect soon enough to prevent the February mailings.

The bill would also make changes in filing procedures. All liens against a company would be filed in one courthouse, depending on where the company's principle office is. Lien less Tuesday.

The cost of the commodity indemnity account should not be paid solely by the producer," Rush said. "I recommend that at least half of the account be funded by an assessment on the licensed warehouses and dealers in Idaho."

Lawmakers were concerned last year that warehouses required to pay into the account would simply drop state licensing and apply for federal licensing. Only Idaho-licensed warehouses would be covered by the indemnity fund.

However, U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings is co-sponsoring a bill that would allow states to require federally licensed warehouses to participate in local indemnity funds, Rush said.

Legislators had also questioned the legality of requiring warehouses to make payments, based on an Illinois case, said Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer.

The proposal drawing the most objection Tuesday was limiting payment for delayed price contracts, but paying 100 percent for other stored grain claims.

Fish hatchery, state to renovate Crystal Springs Lake

By N.S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After years of neglect that has left Crystal Springs Lake nearly filled in, work will begin this week on a face-lift.

"We'd like to develop this area as a recreational resource for the entire Magic Valley," said Dennis Coyle, regional manager for the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department.

That development will be a cooperative effort among three state agencies and the Crystal Springs Trout Co. The change will be primarily aesthetic, but toilets will be put in and a cleaned-up shoreline will improve access.

The trout company will kick things off by starting construction of two projects at a cost of nearly $100,000. The company will rebuild the flume that pours hatchery effluent into the lake's upper end. The new outlet will simulate the way water would naturally enter the lake, cascading over rocks.

The trout company also will build a dam at the lake's outlet to control the water level. The dam would raise the lake about five feet, to its traditional level. The higher water level will increase the lake's size and improve its looks.

"This lake can be a tremendous fishery for people of this area," said Larry Cope, president of Clear Springs Trout Co.

The two projects should be completed in a month to six weeks depending on the weather, Cope said.

Meanwhile, the state Division of Environmental Quality will be cooking up a grant application for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's clean lakes program, said Tim Litke, water quality compliance officer with the division.

Officials from the three agencies first will try to determine what needs to be done, whether dredging

Larry Cope, president of Clear Springs Trout Co., right, and Dennis Coyle of the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department discuss matters while looking over Crystal Springs Lake, which will be rejuvenated in a cooperative effort.

the lake is necessary and how much it will cost. An EPA grant would supply half the cost of the lake restoration. The other half would come from the agencies, the two trout company projects and perhaps some from the Legislature.

The state Parks Department will work on cleaning up the shoreline, improving access to the lake and installing toilets, Coyle said.

Over the years, the lake has been reduced to a wide stream fed mainly by hatchery effluent. Areas that used to be more than 12 feet deep are choked with cattail marshes that have grown out from shore.

Leakage from the trout company's collection works, structures that trap most of the water of the Crystal Springs, forms several small freshwater streams that also feed the lake. These streams add about 60 to 100 cubic feet per second to the lake and could be enough to maintain the lake if the hatchery outlet were shut off or diverted directly into the Snake River.

In years past no restrictions were placed on the hatchery effluent, which contributed to filling in the lake. In recent times, however, the hatchery has cleaned up its effluent to keep up with changing EPA regulations.

The effluent meets EPA standards, but it's not drinkable and you can't swim in it, said Grant Christensen, chief of engineering for the state Fish and Game Department.

"Water quality is not the issue," Cope said. "We acknowledge that the nature of the lake has changed since we started diverting the water."

Raising the lake level will be a strong aesthetic improvement, he said.

Water from another diversion at Crystal Springs feeds the Army Corps of Engineers' Magic Valley Hatchery across the river. Water from that diversion has never contributed much water to the lake, Christensen said. Two state legislators have said the corps' hatchery must dump water into the lake when not used to raise fish.

Christensen said overflow from the corps' collection works now flows into the far end of the lake. The remaining flow from the west end of Crystal Springs never flowed into the lake, he said. It used to flow into a series of pools about a quarter mile west of the lakes outlet and then into the river.

Adding the excess water from the corps' diversion would not help the lake, Christensen said. The present flow from the small streams would be enough to maintain the water quality of the lake once it is cleaned up, he said.

Malad River

Minimum stream flow procedure gets under way

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Now that water users have been assured that their rights are not threatened, the long procedure to set a minimum stream flow on the Malad River will begin.

About 20 people attended a public hearing Monday in Gooding to comment on a proposed minimum flow for the Malad River. Several said they were concerned about their established water rights further upstream.

Frank Sherman of the Department of Water Resources said setting a minimum stream flow on the Malad would not threaten any existing water rights on the Big Wood. All previous filings on water flowing into the Malad would have senior rights, he said.

As the Big Wood River flows under Interstate 80 south of Bliss, its name changes to Malad River.

The Water Resources Board filed for the water rights at the request of the Department of Parks and Recreation. The filing is for an annual 400 cubic feet-per-second minimum stream flow from Idaho Power Co.'s upper diversion to the lower diversion. From the lower diversion to the Snake River, the board applied for 200 cfs minimum flow annually from March 1-Oct. 31 and 30 cfs for the rest of the year.

Everyone attending the meeting voted in favor of the proposed minimum flow.

Water Resource Board member Dave Rydalsch said the approval is needed for the board to proceed with its filing. He said final granting of the requested minimum stream flow may take several years, with additional public hearings to give everyone "a chance to put in their

City employee pleads guilty to theft

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A city employee who admittedly took money from a city water deposit fund perhaps dozens of times pled guilty to one count of petty theft Tuesday in a plea arrangement with the county prosecutor.

trate Judge Charles P. Brumbach. The charge involves $100 that she took on Dec. 9, 1988.

"This was not an isolated incident," Brumbach said. "It happened over a period of time."

No sentencing date has been set. Although Fahey was summoned to court and charged, she was not arrested, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxley.

"I never thought of it as stealing the money," said Bonna L. Fahey. She said she was only borrowing the money and always intended to repay it.

Fahey, who worked in the city finance department for 7 1/2 years, entered the plea Tuesday before Magis-

Darrington proposes guidelines to make child support more fair

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Women who don't work would receive less child support, and the poor and the rich would also pay less child support under guidelines proposed by Senate Judiciary and Rules Chairman Denton Darrington, R-Deer.

The federal Welfare Reform Act requires states to come up with child-support guidelines or lose federal welfare funds. Now, judges may consider suggested rates developed by a state court committee, but the federal law would require them either to abide by the new guidelines or to provide a written explanation why not.

The law could affect more than future child-support decisions, Darrington said. The courts would be required to review existing agreements every three years.

Darrington's proposal "considers the income of both spouses when figuring child support payments. The spouse without the children is required to pay the percentage of the support amount equal to the percentage he or she makes of the combined salary." If a non-custodial father makes 50 percent of their combined income, he would pay half the recommended child-support payment.

Payments start at $31 for a couple with one child and a combined income of $500 a month. A combined annual income of $24,000 a year would require $334 of child support for one child; $36,000 would require $441; and $72,000 would require $771.

The amount increases for each additional child, but each costs less: At a combined income of $24,000 a year, payments start at $334 and increase to $518 for two children and up to $853 for six children.

In addition, the parent without the children is required to pay a percentage of day-care costs.

Brothers accused of shooting Jacobson want a delay

SANDPOINT (AP) — Two brothers accused of killing a U.S. Forest Service agent asked for a delay in their preliminary hearing Tuesday so they could hire their own lawyers, and one of their court-appointed attorneys was temporarily jailed for refusing to represent his client at the hearing.

The scheduled two-day hearing on Bonner County felony charges against James Pratt, 23, and his brother Joe, 27, began with their request to replace their court-appointed lawyers. Magistrate Debra Heise denied the request, but lawyer Jonathan Cottrell said he could not continue since James Pratt refused to accept him as his counsel.

Ahor Cottrell defied Heise's order to continue representing James Pratt until he hires another lawyer, and magistrate found Cottrell in contempt of court and ordered him held in the Bonner County Jail. After half an hour in confinement, Cottrell agreed to comply with Heise's order, returning to court as the hearing continued Tuesday afternoon.

The Pratts are charged with first-degree murder and several other felonies in the Jan. 12 shooting death of Forest Service law enforcement officer Brent "Jake" Jacobson.

two cents' worth."

Responding to concerns of some attending the hearing who have water rights on the Big Wood, Sherman said the minimum flow is not a guarantee for water in the Malad. Water rights with earlier priority dates fill their needs before the minimum streamflow. In a drought year or one with below normal flows, these earlier diversions could legally reduce the amount of water in the Malad to below the minimum, he said.

Dennis Coyle, manager of the Malad Gorge State Park, said the minimum flow, if approved by the Legislature, would mainly protect the 2 million acre feet per year of spring water that comes up in the canyon of the Malad.

Recently, he said, the Idaho Power Co. apparently did not renew old filings on that water.

Coyle said that the Department of Parks and Recreation decided to file to keep the water from being diverted for commercial use since the water now may be available to whoever files on it first.

"The way it is now is the way we'd like to see it maintained," he said. "We feel the best use (for that water) is to leave it in the canyon."

If a commercial user filed successfully for the unclaimed spring water, Coyle said, much of it might be piped from the Malad canyon to flat areas near Highway 30 and used to supply new fish hatcheries.

"A minimum streamflow is one in which water is not diverted and used, as is the case with most other water rights in Idaho. Instead, it remains in a given reach of a river channel or in a lake to protect fish and wildlife habitat, aquatic life or the water quality of the stream. It can also be used for navigation, transportation, recreation and aesthetic beauty."

Under Idaho law, non-diverted uses can become valid water rights, which the Idaho Water Resource Board holds in trust for the people.

Only the board may file for a minimum stream flow. However, any person, association or government agency may request the board to file an application for a minimum flow right on any stream in the state.

The filing must meet four conditions to be approved:

- It must be in the public — not the private — interest.
- There must be unappropriated water not used by earlier, established water rights with older priority dates.
- It must be the minimum streamflow or lake level necessary to obtain the stated goal, not the ideal or optimum flow or level.
- It must be capable of being maintained and must be necessary to preserve the fish and wildlife habitat, aquatic life, aesthetic beauty, navigation, transportation or water quality of a stream.

The Department of Fish and Game already has a 30 cfs minimum flow established on the lower reach. Coyle said that is the minimum flow needed to support fish life there. An additional 30 would add to the recreational and aesthetic value, he said.

Another minimum flow already granted is for 300 cfs on springs just below the Devil's Washbowl in the Malad Gorge State Park.

State updates road report 4 times
BOISE — The statewide winter road report is being updated four times daily with the addition of a 7 p.m. report, a spokesman for the Idaho Transportation Department said.

Winter road conditions are updated at 6:30 a.m., 9 a.m., 3 p.m. and now at 7 p.m. on weekdays. On weekends, the report is updated at 5:30 a.m., 9 p.m. and if the weather warrants, again at 7 p.m., said Jeff Stratton, public information officer.

"The severity of the winter and the public's increased usage of the road report convinced the department to expand this valuable service," Stratton said.

Travelers can gain the latest in road conditions by calling 336-6600. The report is available 24 hours a day.

INEL tour signups being taken
TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents have until Friday to sign up for a tour of the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Sponsored by the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and Friends of the INEL, the two-day tour, Feb. 6 and 7, includes the INEL facility and non-nuclear research and development labs in Idaho Falls. Technical personnel will be on hand to answer questions.

Four members will join members of the Idaho Falls business community for dinner.

Cost of the tour, including accommodations, is $60 per person, single occupancy, or $45 per person for double occupancy. For information or reservations, call the chamber at 733-3374.

UFF schedules annual downtime
TWIN FALLS — Universal Frozen Foods has scheduled its normal winter maintenance downtime during February and will temporarily lay off 200 workers.

The downtime is used to perform major maintenance and modification work to the production machinery that cannot be done while the plant is operating.

In the past, winter maintenance has coincided with the Christmas and New Year's holidays and has involved the entire production facility and work force.

This year, only one portion of the plant will be overhauled and 20 percent of the work force, most of whom have temporary status, will be laid off. Company officials expect to recall all of them by March 1.

The remaining 80 percent of the workers will remain on the job during the maintenance break.

Money

$7,194 in funds missing from a water deposit fund.

When Brumback asked Fahey why she wanted to plead guilty, she replied in a shaky voice, "Because I did take some money."

Although an audit report by Seamans, Bancroft, Smith & Cook, P.C., shows funds had been missing from the water deposit account since September 1986, Fahey has only admitted to taking money in 1988.

The audit shows a string of deposits that were late, missing or less than records showed they should have been. However, it shows that only $4,469 disappeared in 1988. Fahey did not explain in court why she agreed to pay the $6,000.

Baxter said she has not ruled out the possibility that someone else was involved. If Fahey is telling the truth, someone else took some $2,785 that the audit showed missing before 1988.

According to the audit, the method of taking the money did seem to change in 1988.

City Finance Director Rick Thompson has said that starting in February 1988 it appeared the method of taking money was more obvious than before.

Starting in November 1986, bank deposits matched water deposit receipts, but the deposits were made later in each successive month until no deposit was made for September 1987's $2,600 receipts.

The process began again, and in January 1988 no money was deposited after $1,276 in water deposits were paid.

But starting in March 1988, there was a discrepancy every month of as much as $600.

Baxter said at this time she knows of no other suspects.

"She (Fahey) had complete control of the account that took care of those deposits" longer than the 23-month period that funds were found missing, Thompson said.

Baxter said she had a number of reasons for filing only one charge, including the city's unwillingness to press for prison time or heavy fines.

A grand theft embezzlement charge, a felony, could bring a penalty of up to 20 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine. Petit theft brings a maximum penalty of one year in jail and up to a $1,000 fine, Baxter said.

City officials were mainly interested in getting their money back, Baxter said.

To charge Fahey with a felony, Baxter said she would have had to prove that Fahey decided to commit a crime and to continue to do it over a long period of time. That would enable Baxter to combine all the money taken into one charge.

Fahey maintains that she never took more than $125 at a time — $25 short of the minimum for a felony.

Baxter said she doubted whether a jury would convict Fahey.

A separate misdemeanor charge could have been filed for each time Fahey took money, but that wouldn't necessarily ensure a stiffer penalty, Baxter said. Brumback knows the circumstances of the case and can sentence accordingly, she said.

Fahey admitted that she took the money when she balanced deposits, which was done twice a week, Baxter said. If she took money each opportunity she had, then it would have been 96 times, Baxter said.

She said there was also some legal question over whose money was taken. The deposits were held by the city on behalf of water users who would eventually get their money back. The money was kept in a separate bank account from other city funds, Baxter said.

Other mitigating circumstances were Fahey's remorse, her willingness to cooperate and her repayment of what she took, Baxter said.

Brumback told Fahey she should consider getting counseling to help her stop stealing.

Authorities identify murder victim's body

PRESTON (AP) — The body of a murder victim found at an eastern Idaho rest stop in April 1986 has been identified as a San Jose, Calif.-area woman, Franklin County Sheriff Don Beckstead said.

The woman was Monica Hibbs, 25. Her parents reported her missing after she left California with a male companion, Beckstead said.

The woman died of multiple stab wounds and her body was found wrapped in a plastic bag. Her body remained unclaimed in a Pocatello mortuary for several months while authorities attempted to identify her. After exhausting all efforts, she was buried in the Preston city cemetery.

A delay in identifying the body was due to incomplete information provided on the woman by California authorities at the time the initial nationwide computer search was being conducted, the sheriff said.

He noted that it was by chance that Colorado authorities recently told him they had seen a California missing-persons description that closely matched their unidentified woman.

The original description said her left leg was shorter than the other, but it hadn't mentioned a butterfly tattoo on her thigh. The second description was right on target," Beckstead said.

Beckstead said identification was made last Friday, based on fingerprint comparisons and identification of a sketch by the woman's parents.

Beckstead said Mrs. Hibbs' companion currently is in a California jail serving time for armed robbery. He will be questioned in connection with her disappearance.

"We'll start retracing her steps now to conclude where the homicide occurred. We think she was killed elsewhere and then dumped in the (Western) canyon area," the sheriff said.

holders would then be able to find all additional liens against the company without checking each county in which it does business.

Now Idaho law specifies that the producer has to file the lien. Jones is proposing that the person who farms the land — rather than an absentee landlord — be allowed to file the lien.

The proposed changes come as a result of problems at the Hawkins bean warehouse. The warehouse is in bankruptcy proceedings and the company has been under state control since inventory shortages were discovered and the owners' warehouse license was suspended Nov. 22.

The Agriculture Committee voted to have the bill printed for discussion along with the following bills:

- Legislation sponsored by Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, that makes clear feed mixed with another substance such as molasses remains classified as feed rather than a manufactured product. The bill is intended to protect farmers' feed lien rights.
- Legislation requiring licenses for dealers who sell general use pesticides other than those labeled for garden use. Now only those selling restricted-use pesticides are licensed. The bill includes a 0.1 percent sales fee.

analyze financial data from warehouses. Now the department concentrates on inventory checks except for requiring an annual financial statement.

"Additional financial reviews would provide an early warning system for potential problems," Rush said.

Rush would exempt farmer-owned cooperatives from paying into the fund if the farmers vote not to participate. Cooperative memberships were most opposed to the account, he said.

He explained the proposed elimination of the $10,000 payment cap, saying large producers should not pay less for their protection than smaller producers.

Senate Agriculture Affairs Chairman Herb Carlson, R-Eagle, cut short the discussion, saying legislators would need more time to consider the five recommendations.

The other recommendation that drew comment was strengthening the regulatory program.

"On the surface it appears the (program) is less than adequate," said Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, referring to Hawkins Co.

Rush said on the whole department examiners were doing a good job. But he said the department needs a staff person to review and conduct business, and the elimination of all risk makes the insurance provided by the indemnity account very expensive and could encourage unhealthy speculation," Rush said.

But Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, argued that delayed contracts can be good business. Farmers may want to delay receiving payment for their crop for tax reasons or to get a better price. The practice is not necessarily risky if the farmer is dealing with a reputable dealer, he said.

Only paying 80 percent of the delayed contract is "fairly arbitrary," he said. Instead, the Agriculture Department should decide if each delayed contract was made at a legitimate price and with a legitimate company.

Pocatello principal gets Kennedy Center arts award

POCATELLO (AP) — A Pocatello secondary principal is one of five in the United States to be awarded the 1989 Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts School Administrator Award.

Gail Sieman, Hawthorne Junior High School principal, was honored for his commitment to high quality of arts education. He was nominated by Denise Girardi, head of the arts department at Hawthorne and president of the Idaho Arts Association.

"His school has an excellent model arts education program that includes music, visual arts, dance and drama," said Vivian Chen of the education department of the Kennedy Center, Washington, D.C.

"In a medium-sized school district, he attempts to offer comprehensive arts programs taught by specialists who are experts in their field."

Sieman will receive the award at the Feb. 24-26 conference of the National Association of Secondary School Principals in New Orleans. He has just received approval from the district to attend the meeting.

Lost skier survives 2 nights in woods

BOISE (AP) — A lost skier who survived two cold nights in the Idaho mountains walked to safety Tuesday, "tired and dirty" but unharmed.

Air Force Col. Mark Siefert, 45, of Redmond, Wash., had been the subject of a massive search that began Sunday after he disappeared while skiing with a friend at Bogus Basin ski resort northeast of Boise. About 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Siefert found his way to a chairlift at the base of the resort's Superior run, where he met two ski patrol members.

"I missed the trail and created my own and ended up down a ravine," Siefert said. Realizing he was lost and that he would not be able to find his way out before dark, he decided to spend the night in the ravine and found shelter under a large log.

With temperatures dipping into the low teens at night, Siefert woke up at least once an hour and did exercises to warm himself. He credits his survival, in part, to skills he learned as a Boy Scout.

Meanwhile, up to 90 searchers, including local and National Ski Patrol members and Mountain Search and Rescue, combed the area with the help of snowmobiles and a helicopter from the Idaho National Guard. Siefert said helicopters passed over him several times during the two days, but they could not see him in the trees and he had no matches to build a fire to signal them.

Siefert was adequately clothed, but Brown said he had been concerned that the cold weather lessened his chances of survival.

"The next morning, he saw what he thought was a building on Morris Mountain north of the resort and spent most of the day hiking toward it, only to find it was a large rock, he said.

From there, he was able to get his bearings, but realized he could not get out by dark, so he decided to spend another night in the ravine before walking out Tuesday.

"I wasted Monday, but by doing that I knew what my alternatives were," he said.

Simmons had said Monday that Siefert was in good condition and was an excellent skier.

Siefert said that after a night's sleep he planned to head for Sun Valley, where his son will be racing. But the experience will probably alter his skiing habits somewhat, he said.

"I think I'll be less likely to ski in the powder, out in the trees and off the runs," he said.

Idaho Falls unveils political action policy for employees

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — City officials here have answered employee questions — and avoided a possible legal pitfall — with a new policy on political activity.

The City Council approved a new policy making it clear what political activity is allowed for municipal employees.

"I'm not sure that the policy we had was constitutional," Municipal Services Director Craig Lords said Monday.

Lords said he was concerned with sections of the old policy banning employees from seeking or accepting city office and taking election day off.

The new policy still bars city employees from holding an elective city office. If an employee is elected, he or she would have to resign from a city job, to avoid conflict of interest, Lords said. The new policy allows Idaho Falls employees to use sick days or vacation time to take election day off.

The new policy prohibits workers from using their positions with the city to influence municipal campaigns. City workers can campaign as private citizens, but not as city workers or officials, Lords said.

many judges have used for the past two years, the custodial parent's income is not considered — under Darrington's plan, not only is it considered, but the potential income is too.

"It's so the burden won't fall entirely on one (parent)," Darrington said.

If a mother with custody of the children is not working, the court would still consider the income she is capable of contributing to the support of her children under the proposed plan, and her ex-husband would be required to pay less.

That usually happens when a former spouse remarries, said Pat Linford, chief of the Child Support Enforcement Bureau of the Department of Health and Welfare.

Parents who don't work because they have children under 2 would not be affected.

Another difference between Darrington's proposals and the guidelines now sometimes used is a tapering off of the increase at the upper income levels. Under Darrington's proposal the payments would not continue to steadily increase.

"I believe support payments should not be punitive," Darrington said. "They should support the child at an accurate and reasonable level, but not enrich the child. It shouldn't be a situation where the child accumulates large sums of money at the expense of the non-custodial parent."

While children's standard of living should not decrease because their parents are divorced, there comes a point when large child-support payments become a form of alimony, Linford said.

In Idaho, however, overpaid payments are usually not the problem.

A 1986 census study of child support found the average court-ordered payment to be $159 a month for an average of 1.8 children. However, according to studies by Thomas Epeneshade, a national authority on child support, $159 a month is only a quarter of the average amount spent monthly on children in two-parent, middle-income families. Other national studies find $450 to be the median cost per month of raising a child.

Before the court developed suggested guidelines two years ago, payments of $50 or $75 a month were not unusual, Linford said. The standard amount was $125.

Payments under the suggested court guidelines start at $85 a month for one child if the parent without custody makes $6,000 a year. Under Darrington's proposal they start a $31 a month for parents with a combined income of $6,000 a year.

"My point of view is no matter how little they make, there should be some obligation," Darrington said.

The proposed bill should be discussed in the Health and Welfare Committee this week.

Spartans hold off late Highland surge

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans stayed alive in the chase for the top seed in Region III with a runaway turned-nail-biting 83-74 boys basketball victory over the pacesetter Highland Rams Tuesday night.

The Spartans saw a 20-point fourth-quarter lead melt to four points as the game turned into a free throw shooting contest as Minico won that on sheer number of attempts.

The Gem-State-Conference victory also figured into the eventual home sites for the Region III tournament next month. If Minico can beat Burley and Pocatello on the road while Highland beats Pocatello and Twin Falls this weekend at home, the No. 1 seed — home court for as long as the team lasts in regional — will come down to a tie-breaker.

The game went from very well played to a complete deterioration of fouls in the closing quarter when it took 27 minutes to play the final 6 minutes, 12-42 of the clock.

Trailing 62-42 going into the last quarter, Highland led behind by another point in the first minute and then started coming back. With Ralph Obray — back for his first action in seven games — pacing the rally largely on free throws — the Rams trimmed the deficit to 74-70 when Jason Qualls hit a three-point shot. That came with 2:10 remaining. But Travis Schow then hit three free throws and with 1:07 remaining stole the ball and turned it into a crumple to ice it at 79-70.

"We made a gallant comeback — but I don't like comebacks because that means you're behind," said Highland coach Jim Ferguson.

"It's too bad it turned into a free throw shooting contest at the end," said Minico coach Craig Dexter. "Early I thought we passed extremely well and were finding where the ball should go. At times against their press I thought we were giving a passing clinic. At other times, not a clinic. But I thought we did a great job against the press."

In that first quarter the Spartans broke away from a 16-6 draw into a 20-12 lead. Throughout the second half Minico managed a couple of 12-point leads but usually Highland was staying eight to 10 behind.

"As far as I'm concerned we lost it in the first quarter," Ferguson said. "I thought we were intimidated by Minico's pressure defense."

But if there was a turning point it

came three minutes into the second half when Highland appeared to have stopped a Spartan fast break by slapping a shot out of bounds. To everyone's surprise, the Rams were hit with a goal tending call. That seemed to unsettle the Rams for a few moments and Minico immediately capitalized on a turnover and tip-in by Jeff Ennen and a field goal by Jeff Hall. In the next couple of possession exchanges, Minico pushed ahead 51-

34 and Highland never fully recovered. Although he protested the goal-tending call at the time, Ferguson tended to shake it off afterward. "We just didn't have a very good defensive effort — we allowed them too many seconds shots and too many easy buckets. It just seemed Minico wanted it more than we did when the game was still in the balance," he said.

Although he was pleased with the 20-point leads, Dexter wasn't that pleased with the way his charges handled it. "In the second half we lost our intensity. Just exactly what you can't do with a big lead," he said. "Highland put together a good run and comeback on us very well." The play of Obray in his return pleased Ferguson who noted "we just wanted to get him used to playing again, bring him along as quickly as his conditioning will allow. He did a good job of picking up our offense tonight and he made his free throws; all our kids made their free throws," Ferguson said. For the night Minico hit 28 of 39 attempts from the line while Highland was redhot with 26 of 30. The loss was just the third in 14 games for Highland and boosted Minico's season record to 8-6.

CSI tops BYU, 94-70

The Times-News
PROVO, Utah — Freshman Corey Warner scored all 13 of his points in the closing 10 minutes — including nine straight at one stretch — to help College of Southern Idaho post its 20th victory of the season — 94-70 non-conference decision over the Brigham Young University junior varsity.
Warner's scoring spree picked up the Eagle offense which teetered in the second half after opening up a 46-24 halftime advantage. Twice the Cougar javees trimmed the deficit to 13 and trailed just 61-45 with 12 minutes left despite six straight points from Engle Cliff Martin.
But Warner then hit a follow shot and scored on the next possession. He added a three-pointer the next time downcourt and then gave way to Anthony Williams for another field goal that returned the CSI lead to 25 points. He and Williams and Sergio Gomes then scored the points that kept it there.
The victory returns CSI to the homecourt tonight when they will entertain the Treasure Valley Community College Chukars in a battle that will count in Region 18 standings. The women's teams will lead off at 5:15 p.m., followed by the men at 7:30.
CSI currently co-leads the league with Utah Valley at 8-1 while Treasure Valley remains solidly in the hunt for a spot in the regional finals, which will be held at the home of the northern division champion in March. The region 18 champion also will host the bi-regional playoff with Arizona with that winner advancing to nationals.

released Tuesday while Powell jumped to the 12th spot. CSI hosted another ranked-teams showdown last week when Utah Valley, falling to 14th this time, was rated ninth and CSI eighth.
BYU brought down just one player off the varsity who didn't play in the javee showing in Twin Falls before Christmas. That was 6-3 guard Mark Heslip. The Cougars kept their taller reserves with the varsity for the Western Athletic Conference battle with Air Force on the same court later Tuesday night.
The Eagles dominated the first 15 minutes of the game, turning on its strong defense to take leads up to 28 points in the half.
Kenny Jarvis and Martin opened up a 7-0 lead before BYU got on the scoreboard and Martin continued to dominate inside with 13 points as the margin expanded. Consecutive field goals by Williams and a David Henderson three-pointer created the lead at 44-16 but BYU outscored the Eagles 8-2 coming to the halftime buzzer.
BYU went to pressure in the second half and had some early success as Paul Briggs and Al Hansen did most of the scoring. Consecutive steals for layups by Briggs made it 56-41 and a trading of baskets led it to 15 points. Martin then sandwiched field goals around one by Hansen before Warner took over to end all suspense.
"We lost out intensity in the second half which you don't like to see but you can understand," said Coach Fred Trenkle. "You've got a 22-point lead at halftime which lets you concentration wander and then you're playing in a 23,000-seat arena with only a handful of fans watching. It's a lot like a practice. It's a good win for us because the last two years we had to fight to the wire to win here."

Eagles move up to No. 7

The Associated Press
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team has moved up a notch in the latest National Junior College Athletic Association poll.
The Eagles, 20-1 after Tuesday night's victory over the Brigham Young University junior varsity, are ranked seventh this week, up from eighth in last week's poll.
Utah Valley College is the only other Region 18 team ranked this week, in 14th place, down from ninth last week.
CSI defeated Utah Valley, 102-97, in Twin Falls last Saturday.

Kansas City Chiefs hire Schottenheimer

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Marty Schottenheimer, one of the NFL's winningest coaches the past four years, was named coach of the Kansas City Chiefs Tuesday.
Schottenheimer, 45, tied the Cleveland Browns into the playoffs the past four years before resigning in a dispute with owner Art Modell. He is the seventh coach in Chiefs' history.
Schottenheimer is without doubt the most qualified and proven coach available in the NFL today, said Carl Peterson, Chiefs president, said. "His availability at this time is both timely and fortunate for the Kansas City Chiefs."

Schottenheimer succeeds Frank Ganz, whose firing Jan. 5 completed a clean sweep of the leadership of the Chiefs.
The Browns made the playoffs in the four full years that Schottenheimer was coach, losing the AFC wild card game this year to the Houston Oilers. Cleveland narrowly lost the AFC championship game the previous two years.
Ganz was hired to coach the Chiefs two years ago when John Mackovic was fired after taking Kansas City to its first playoff game in 15 years. Ganz had records of 4-11 and 4-11-1.

Chewers show signs of cancer

By THOMAS H. MAUGH II
Los Angeles Times
SAN FRANCISCO — More than half of all professional baseball players use or have used chewing tobacco and snuff, and more than half of those who do use it regularly have abnormalities in their mouths that could eventually lead to cancer, University of California, San Francisco researchers said here Monday.
The researchers surveyed and examined 1,109 major and minor league players from seven professional teams — including the California Angels, the San Francisco Giants, and the Oakland Athletics — last March during their spring training season.
Of those players, epidemiologist Virginia L. Ernster told a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, 39 percent had used smokeless tobacco within the previous week and 4 percent within the previous month; another 13 percent were former users.
The smokeless tobacco of choice for 75 percent of those who used it was snuff, which has been closely linked to oral cancer.
The only good news in the study, Ernster said, was that few of the players smoked and none of the lesions had yet turned cancerous.
Overall, "this terrific group of role models for young men" are

Wrestlers pin hopes on Jerome tourney

By RON GATES
Times-News writer
JEROME — It will be a beehive of activity in the Jerome High School gymnasium for just about 10 hours today as Magic Valley grapplers battle to earn their way into state tournaments to be held in Moscow early next month.
The 1988 Class A-2 and A-3 District 4 High School Wrestling Tournaments will run concurrently in the "Tiger" gym. While the depth of the host team is expected to keep the A-2 team championship in Jerome, five of seven squads are capable of claiming first place among A-3 schools.
Preliminary rounds open in the A-3s at 10 a.m. with the larger schools slated to begin at the conclusion of that round, approximately 11 a.m. If things stay on schedule championship rounds are to start at 6 p.m. in A-3 and one hour later in the A-2 classification.

Tom Sluder, Wood River's once-beaten senior 189-pounder, heads a Wolverine club holding top seeds in six of 13 contested weights.
Joining Sluder at the top are junior 112-pounder John Pascoe, freshman Brad Toelman, Tom Richmond, a senior, and Justin Larsen, from 125 through 135, respectively, along with Jim Carpenter at 152 pounds.
"We've got a bunch of good ones," says Wood River coach Tom Goicochea. "But we don't have the second ones. Jerome will win it again. We'll have seven or eight kids qualify for state and Jerome will have a bunch in there too."
Tiger wrestlers fill five of the remaining favorite spots including Doug Stuhler (119), Richard Egbert, a two-time state medalist at 140 pounds — this time going at 145, Lon Rubter (152), defending 160-pound state champ Allen Enos — unbeaten this year — and Maurice

Unlikely semifinalists compete in Melbourne

Los Angeles Times

MELBOURNE, Australia — For Wednesday's women's semifinals of the Australian Open tennis tournament, these are the contestants:
• A forehand basher from West Germany.
• A backhand basher from Argentina.

becoming the odds-on favorite to win the final Saturday.

Later Wednesday, two-time champion Stefan Edberg withdrew from his Australian Open quarterfinal against Austria's Thomas Muster because of a back injury he suffered during a fourth-round victory over Pat Cash.

The walkover moves Muster, the 11th seed into the semifinals, where he will play the winner of the Ivan Lendl-John McEnroe match.

Edberg, the fourth seed, hurt his back near the end of his 6-4, 6-0, 6-2 win over Cash Tuesday. The Swede managed to finish the match after receiving treatment, but was bent over and wincing in pain as he left the court.

"I was so stiff this morning I couldn't move," Edberg told a packed news conference Wednesday. "I couldn't even put my socks on."

Edberg, who was X-rayed at a hospital Wednesday morning, said the preliminary diagnosis is a strained ligament in his lower back.

"At least there's nothing wrong with my disc," he said. "That's the good thing about it."

The 1988 Wimbledon champion said he's not sure how long he will be out of action, but he will definitely miss Sweden's first-round Davis Cup match against Italy next week.

"I could take two weeks or four weeks or more," he said. "I've never had a back injury before, so I don't know what I'm coping with."

• A big-serving former piano student from Czechoslovakia.
• Somebody from New Zealand. Come again?
In order, they are Steffi Graf, Gabriela Sabatini, Helena Sukova and Belinda Cordwell.

For those who really thought Sukova would be there instead of Martina Navratilova, or that Cordwell would be there at all, they have probably been spending too much time in the hot Australian sun.

Navratilova's absence was dictated by a stunning 6-2, 3-6, 9-7 quarterfinal loss to Sukova, which prompted some soul-searching by the world's No. 2 player.

"This was a tough one," Navratilova said. "The French (Open) is not until June. So I've got five months of misery working hard for what? To lose in the quarterfinals again?"

"Right this moment, it's very difficult for me to get excited about tennis. But I'm sure I'll be back, but I don't want to think about it."

"I mean, there's five months ahead of me and if I can redeem myself, that's a long time."
The top-seeded Graf will play the third-seeded Sabatini in one semifinal, with the winner automatically

Briefly

Smoker benefits CSI spring athletics

TWIN FALLS — The third annual Rocky Mountain Region smoker, pitting Colorado Southern Idaho rodeo team members against all comers, will be held at 8 p.m. Friday at the CSI Expo Center.
Shawn Davis, CSI rodeo coach, said his charges would be meeting a challenger from Utah State and another from Utah Valley. Three Flier High School rodeo club members also will be participating.
For the most part, however, the CSI cowboys will be taking on baseball and track team members from the same school.
Davis said the event, which has drawn 1,500 the past two years, will include 17 three-round matches and should be completed in about two hours.
All proceeds are used to defray expenses of CSI spring athletics.

AL rejects attempt to buy Rangers

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward L. Gaylord's attempt to purchase majority interest in the Texas Rangers was rejected Tuesday by the American League, Rangers owner Eddie Charles said.
Gaylord owns about one-third of the Rangers' stock and wants to buy an additional 58 percent. Baseball owners reportedly have opposed Gaylord's bid because they do not want another team owned by a broadcasting company.

Giants, Orioles trade catchers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants swapped starting catchers with Baltimore on Tuesday, acquiring Terry Kennedy from the Orioles in exchange for Bob Melvin.
The trade gives San Francisco another left-handed hitter and added experience behind the plate while Baltimore sheds Kennedy's $850,000 salary for a younger catcher known for his defensive skills.

Pocatello may not get I-AA title game

POCATELLO (AP) — Prospects appear dim that Pocatello will be able to host the NCAA Division I-AA football championship game for the third straight year.
Idaho State Athletic Director Tom Jewell, a member of the sponsoring Pocatello Sports Committee, said Monday about 6,000 tickets remained unsold of the 10,000 Pocatello has to sell by Wednesday afternoon to land the game. Idaho State's Holt Arena has hosted the I-AA championship games the last two Decembers. This year, Statesboro, Ga., home of Georgia Southern, has made a bid to host the game.

Hershiser-named Male Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Orel Hershiser, a picture of perfection on and off the field, was named The Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year on Tuesday, finishing far ahead of his Olympic competition.
The Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher became the first non-Olympian to win the honor in an Olympic year since Denny McLain in 1968. Hershiser, who set a record with 69 consecutive shutout innings, is the 22nd baseball player to win in the 69-year history of the award and the first since Dwight Gooden in 1985.
Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders, who set all-time college records for rushing yards and touchdowns, was third with 207, followed by Olympic swimmer Matt Biondi with 162, NBA star Michael Jordan with 91 and Olympic diver Greg Louganis at 69.

Vanderbilt coach goes to Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Vanderbilt basketball coach C.M. Newton today was named athletic director at Kentucky, his alma mater.
Newton, who played basketball at Kentucky's 1951 national championship team, will take over the job April 1.
"I'm excited and eagerly get on with it," Newton said after the Kentucky's Board of Trustees approved his appointment in a unanimous vote.

Maxwell tested positive, says doctor

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Vernon Maxwell, Florida All-time leading basketball scorer, tested positive for drug use three times before his senior season, but school officials failed to enforce a university policy calling for a suspension from play for a year, a newspaper reported Tuesday.
Dr. Richard Shaara said that Maxwell, now guard for the San Antonio Spurs, was suspended for only three games because the doctor and Athletic Director Bill Arnsperger wanted to help the star player.

Super Bowl could be 3rd most-watched

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's final national ratings for the Super Bowl, up about 4 percent over ABC's 1988 numbers, could make it the third most-watched show in the history of television, the network said Tuesday.
With a rating of 43.5 and a 68 share, San Francisco's 20-16 victory Sunday over Cincinnati could meet or exceed NBC's expectations of reaching 120 million viewers, NBC spokesman Doug Kelly said. "We won't know for sure until more results are in," Kelly said. The most-watched show in history was NBC's 1986 Super Bowl between Chicago and New England, seen by an estimated 127 million television viewers.

Bradshaw, Blount join Hall of Fame

The Associated Press

CANTON, Ohio — Just two days after a team for the decade was crowned in the Super Bowl, two more players from a team for the ages were selected for Pro Football's Hall of Fame.

Terry Bradshaw and Mel Blount, who helped the Pittsburgh Steelers win an unprecedented four Super Bowls in the 1970s, were chosen Tuesday in their first year of eligibility.

Also selected were Art Shell of Oakland and Willie Wood of Green Bay.

"It's like winning a Super Bowl, the 40-year-old Bradshaw said. "That's because I know this is the last award and the last honor that I'll ever get as a player."

"Now Blount and Bradshaw are in and Art Rooney (the late-Steelers owner) is in heaven looking down, saying, 'My boys! My boys! I told you you'd make it.'"

Blount, a cornerback, joins two other members of Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" defense in the hall. Tackle Joe Greene was enshrined two years ago and linebacker Jack Ham last year, also in their first year of eligibility.

Steelers wide receiver Lynn Swann was among 15 finalists this year. Shell played offensive tackle for the Raiders from 1968-1982 and participated in eight AFL or AFC title games and two Super Bowls.

He recalled walking through the Hall of Fame a decade ago, prior to a Raiders exhibition game at Canton.

"I had no idea I'd ever be in there," he said. "You never think in terms of like that. I was in awe walking through that building and reading about the people enshrined. It is hallowed ground. To walk through it is almost too much to believe."

Wood spent 12 seasons as a defensive back with the Packers, who won five NFL titles and the first two Super Bowls, in 1967 and 1968.

"I was selected as a finalist a couple of years ago, but I wasn't chosen then," Wood said. "I started thinking that so many Green Bay Packers had gone in, maybe they might have used up their quota."

All will be inducted Aug. 5.

Bradshaw and Blount each spent their 14 professional seasons with the Steelers, who with four Super Bowl championships are still one ahead of the San Francisco 49ers — winners over Cincinnati in one of the most dramatic Super Bowls ever Sunday.

"This is a particularly good feeling because Terry and I came in together, we retired together and now we go into the Hall of Fame together," said Blount, 30, the director of player relations for the NFL. "The only thing I need now is to make the money that Terry's making."

The former quarterback, now a broadcaster for CBS Sports, played for Louisiana Tech and the 1970 NFL draft. Bradshaw completed 2,025 of 3,901 passes for 27,989 yards and 212 touchdowns and also rushed for 32 touchdowns in his career. He was MVP in the Steelers 1979 and 1980 championships and holds Super Bowl records with 932 yards passing and nine touchdown passes. Bradshaw played in six AFC championship games and four Super Bowls, in addition to two Pro Bowls.

He said this year's inductees were representatives of the best teams of the '60s and '70s.

"It speaks well for what athletes are taught. Athletes are told to win and they are judged on how many games they win. It's not personal accomplishments or statistics that matter most. America loves winners," he said.

Blount, a graduate of Southern University, missed only one game in his career. He led the NFL in interceptions in 1975 with 11 and had by far his career — seventh all-time.

TORTILLA SOUP

Makes about 2 quarts
 1/2 pound lean ground beef
 1/2 cup fresh bread crumbs (1 slice)
 1 egg, slightly beaten
 1/2 cup chopped onion
 1 (4-ounce) can chopped mild green chilies, drained
 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
 6 cups water
 1 (14 1/2-ounce) can tomatoes, undrained and broken up
 1 tablespoon beef-flavor instant bouillon or 3 beef-flavor instant bouillon or 3 beef-flavor bouillon cubes
 1 tablespoon chicken-flavor instant bouillon or 3 chicken-flavor bouillon cubes
 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
 2 corn tortillas, cut into 2-inch strips, fried if desired
 Shredded cheddar cheese
 In medium bowl, combine meat, crumbs and egg; mix well. Shape into 1-inch balls; set aside. In large saucepan, cook onion, chilies and garlic in margarine until tender. Add water, tomatoes, bouillons, chili powder and cumin. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes. Gently drop meatballs into soup; simmer 10 minutes longer. Just before serving, add tortilla strips. Serve immediately with cheese. Refrigerate leftovers.

PANTRY CIOPPINO

Makes about 3 quarts
 1 cup chopped onion
 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
 1/2 cup vegetable oil
 3 cups water
 1 (8-ounce) bottle clam juice
 2 (28-ounce) cans whole tomatoes, undrained and broken up
 1 tablespoon chicken-flavor instant

bouillon or 3 chicken-flavor bouillon cubes
 2 (6 1/2-ounce) cans chopped clams, drained, reserving liquid
 2 teaspoons sugar
 1 teaspoon basil leaves
 1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
 2 (4 1/2-ounce) cans shrimp, drained and soaked as label directs
 1 (6-ounce) can crabmeat, drained. In large kettle or Dutch oven, cook onion, green pepper and garlic in oil until tender. Add water, clam juice, tomatoes, bouillon, reserved clam liquid, sugar, basil, oregano and bay leaf; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes. Stir in clams; shrimp and crabmeat. Heat through. Remove bay leaf. Refrigerate leftovers.

CHICKEN CORN CHOWDER

Makes about 1 1/4 quarts
 4 slices bacon
 1/2 cup chopped onion
 1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves
 3 tablespoons flour
 3 cups half-and-half or milk
 1 1/2 cups cubed cooked chicken
 1 (10-ounce) package frozen whole kernel corn
 1 medium potato, pared and diced
 2 cups water
 2 tablespoons chicken-flavor instant bouillon or 5 chicken-flavor bouillon cubes
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 In large saucepan, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. In drippings, cook onion and thyme until tender; stir in flour until smooth. Add remaining ingredients except bacon; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer 30 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring occasionally. Garnish with bacon. Refrigerate leftovers.
 Tip: 2 (6- or 6 1/2-ounce) cans chunk chicken can be substituted for cooked chicken; add last 10 minutes of cooking time.

GOLDEN CLAM CHOWDER

Makes about 7 cups
 1/2 cup chopped onion
 1/4 cup margarine or butter
 1/4 cup unfluffed flour
 2 cups water
 1 (8-ounce) bottle clam juice
 2 (28-ounce) cans chicken-flavor instant bouillon or 2 chicken-flavor bouillon

Highlight a meal with savory soup

The Baltimore Sun

Perhaps it is the can that killed the soup, that changed its image in our minds from an incredibly rich, savory and sustaining meal into last-minute, second-rate fare.

Yet it was not so long ago that soup was the center of a meal and everything revolved around it. "Who would not give all else," wrote Lewis Carroll in "Alice in Wonderland," "for two pennyworth only of beautiful soup?"

And Thomas Fuller, back in 1732, announced, "Of soup and love, the first is the best."

So for a moment put all thoughts of can openers and convenience out of your mind and imagine instead a glorious table set all in white and silver, and at one end a huge tureen filled with a deep golden-bisque, a savory bouillabaisse, a vivid red borscht, a creamy New England chowder or even a rustic and flavorful white bean soup topped with a basil-garlic pistou.

Each bowl served and passed along fills the room with wonderful aromas and gently warms winter-chilled spirits.

Prepared with care and served with ceremony, soup can be elegant enough to carry a dinner party.

Make the choice of soup complex enough to eliminate the entree — or else just keep the entree something light. And let the other elements — the bread, the salad, the dessert — carry enough weight to balance it.

Rich whole-grained breads are usually thought too heavy or too assertive for a sophisticated company dinner, but this is a case where a round, rustic herb bread would be wonderful.

Served with a creamy soup, bitter greens would be perfect for the salad; mix in endive, Belgian endive, arugula or radicchio. And dessert can be a rich cake or pastry or fruit tarts.

With this menu plan, dinner can be relatively easy on the cook. Prepare the soup — or at least a portion of it — a day ahead of time and rely on bakeries or carryouts for both the bread and dessert if you like. Then the day of the party, you will only need to fix the salad, finish the soup and slice the bread.

Look in the markets for inspiration from seasonal vegetables. Potatoes become elegant in-leek and potato soup. And an ordinary butternut squash becomes grand in a butternut shrimp bisque.

Here is the recipe:

BUTTERNUT SHRIMP BISQUE

1/2 cup unsalted butter
 1 cup diced onion
 1/2 cup flour
 5 1/2 cups chicken stock or water
 5 cups peeled, diced butternut squash (3 pounds)
 1 cup dry white wine
 3 bay leaves
 1/2 teaspoon curry powder

COOK'S PROFILE - LEONA TATE

Soup can be time saver for any busy cook

By JOAN BEAN
 Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Preparing good soup is an everyday thing for Leona Tate. She makes it through the week for patrons of Tommyknocker's — a restaurant she co-owns. On weekends she makes soup at home for her family.

In her home kitchen, soup is a real timesaver. "It's easy to get together," Tate says. "I don't have to be standing there the whole time."

To add more flavor to her soups, Tate saves vegetable scraps — celery tops and bottoms, carrot peelings, etc. She combines these scraps and simmers them for a day or longer (refrigerating overnight) and adding to it from time to time. After straining this, she uses it as a soup base.

Stew is on her restaurant menu once a week, and just about as often at home. Tate says she makes a thick gravy type of stew; usually flouring the meat before browning it, which generally gives it enough body. If not, she thickens it with a little cornstarch.

The following soup recipes, which Tate serves with sandwiches, are tasty and easy to make.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

(Makes one gallon)
 8 ounces butter
 8 medium onions, sliced
 1 gallon water

3 packages Schilling-Au-Jus mix
 4 cups beef drippings or 2 cans beef consomme
 1/2 cup red wine
 1/2 cup vermouth
 1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
 Salt and pepper, to taste
 Melt butter in a good-sized soup pot. Sauté onions in the butter until transparent. Add remaining ingredients, and simmer until the flavors blend — about 30 minutes. When ready to serve, add grated Swiss cheese and croutons.

BROCCOLI SOUP

 1 small head broccoli; cut into medium-sized pieces
 1/2 cup chopped celery
 1 small onion, chopped
 2 cans evaporated milk
 1 teaspoon minced garlic
 White pepper and salt, to taste
 1 cup Swiss cheese, grated
 1/2 cup cornstarch
 Cold water

To the broccoli, celery and onion, add enough water to cover. Cook until tender. Add evaporated milk, and bring to a boil. Add garlic, pepper and salt. Add grated Swiss cheese, and bring to a boil. For thickening mix cornstarch with enough water to make a thick paste, and add to soup.

And next a ...

HAMBURGER STEW

1 pound ground beef
 2 medium carrots, chopped or grated

3 potatoes, chopped or grated
 1 tablespoon shortening
 1 onion, chopped
 1 tablespoon flour
 1/2 cup milk
 Pie dough — enough for one crust, or unbaked biscuits

In a cast iron skillet, brown the ground beef with the onions in the shortening. Add potatoes and carrots and just enough water to cover. Cook until vegetables are crisp tender. Mix flour and milk, and add to soup to thicken. Cover with unbaked piecrust and cut a slit in it. Unbaked biscuits may be substituted for the piecrust, if desired. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes.

At times, when she is using hamburger in a stew (other than the above), Tate will just cook it along with the rest of the ingredients, without browning it first. She says this brings out more of the flavor.

Salmon adds to pasta salad

WARM SALMON PASTA SALAD

- 1 can (15 1/2-ounce) salmon
- 8-ounce dry macaroni pasta
- 1 package (16-ounce) favorite frozen vegetable mix
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1/3 cup toasted silvered almonds
- Warm Pasta Dressing
- Drain salmon reserving 1 tablespoon liquid;

flake. Cook pasta as directed on package; drain and set aside. Sauté frozen vegetables in oil until thoroughly heated.

WARM PASTA DRESSING

- Combine 1/4 cup vegetable oil, 3 tablespoons each soy sauce and rice vinegar, 2 tablespoons grated gingerroot, 1 tablespoon reserved salmon liquid and 1/2 teaspoon sugar; mix well. Makes about 1/2 cup.
- Large shell pasta can be substituted.
- Preparation time is about 30 minutes.

High nutritional value helps make Italian food trendy

By PATRICK ERCOLANO
The Baltimore Evening Sun

Look what they've done to our food. Man.

Something has happened to Italian food in recent months. No longer merely the hearty, easy-to-fix staple of countless American homes and restaurants, Italian fare has become in-to trendy.

I confess this development tickles me. My three brothers and I grew up on 'Italian' food — lasagna, spaghetti, about a dozen other pasta dishes, meatballs, eggplant Parmesan, cannoli, etc. — lovingly and masterfully prepared by my mother. It strikes me as peculiar that this food — our food — has suddenly become so, how you say, hot, better-than-hot, I've-got-to-die-for, hotter-than-hot, I've-got-to-die-for, better-than-hot TRENDY.

For various reasons, most notably the ease and low cost of its preparation and the high nutritional value of its ingredients (low-fat olive oil and carbohydrate-rich pasta, to name two), Italian food has entered the realm of tempore food. Call it hearty food with a Neapolitan accent.

Indeed, all things Italianate seem to be enjoying a spell under the glaring spotlight accorded most modern trends. Why? Probably because it is the Italians' turn. Next year may bring a fascination with all things Huguenot.

To wit: Italian fashion has been the subject of more than usual interest, and the language itself is experiencing a boom. Berlitz International Inc., the language school, reported that enrollments in Italian classes rose 26 percent during the first four months of 1988, compared with the first quarter of the previous year.

Total exports from Italy to the United States, everything from furnishings to food, grew from $5.8 billion in 1983 to $11.7 billion in 1987. The number of Italian restaurants in the United States increased to 5,142 in 1987, up 1,000 from two years before, according to a national restaurant consulting organization. In addition, a National Restaurant Association poll found that Italian fare is the most popular ethnic cuisine among American restaurant-goers.

Not only have the people spoken, but so have the pros. At the National Conference on Gastronomy given by the American Institute of Wine and Food last year in New York, the attendees noted that the prominent cooking style of today is no longer French but Italian.

This goes beyond pasta salads, of course. Top-rank chefs in American restaurants are, so to speak, Italianizing their menus with traditional tomato sauce entrees as well as more arty creations, such as veal in tuna sauce and Southwestern pizza made with chiles and grilled shrimp.

Finally, to wash down all this fine Italian fare, what better way than with an Italian beer? To the rescue comes Peroni, the top-selling brew in Italy and newly arrived to American shores.

At any rate, writing about Italian food is an OK way to pass time, but it pales tragically next to eating the stuff.

HOMEMADE TOMATO SAUCE

- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 small onion, chopped fine
- 1 clove garlic, chopped fine
- 1 (28-ounce) can crushed tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon tomato paste
- 2 cans whole tomatoes (to be pulsed by hand)
- Dash of basil
- Salt and pepper to taste

Four oil into a large pot. When it's hot, add onion and garlic. Brown them, being careful not to burn them. Add crushed tomatoes and paste, then stir well. Add pulsed whole tomatoes and stir well. Stir in basil, salt and pepper. Turn gas to low and let cook for about an hour.

Stir occasionally, especially the bottom of the pot. Taste during cooking to see if the sauce is too tart; if so, you may want to add a little sugar.

After an hour, if the sauce seems too liquidy, let it cook longer till thicker.

Leftover sauce can be put in jars and refrigerated for a few days. If put in freezer, jarred sauce should keep for months.

(Option: After browning the onion and garlic and before adding the tomatoes, you may want to brown a piece of pork in the mixture. This will give the sauce a meaty flavor.)

STUFFED PASTA SHELLS

- 4 eggs
- 2 pounds ricotta cheese
- 8 to 12 ounces mozzarella cheese
- Fresh chopped parsley
- Black pepper to taste (salt is optional)

1 package large pasta shells
1 tablespoon oil or margarine
Tomato sauce (about 1 jar)
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Beat eggs in a large mixing bowl. Add ricotta, mozzarella, parsley and pepper, then mix by hand until well blended. Meanwhile, boil a gallon of water for pasta (adding a tablespoon of oil or margarine so that shells won't stick together while cooking).

Cook shells al dente. Drain them and then place them on paper towels, with the open section of the shell facing down. When they're cool, stuff shells with the cheese mixture.

Coat the bottom of a large baking dish with tomato sauce, then lay in shells. Pour more sauce and Parmesan cheese over shells. Bake in oven for about 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve hot, with more sauce and Parmesan to taste.

Leftover filling can be frozen and used later in any type of baked pasta dish.

(Option: Browned ground beef and/or a package of chopped spinach can be added to cheese mixture during blending process.)

PASTA PISELLI (PASTA WITH PEAS)

- 5 slices raw bacon, chopped into small pieces
- 1 large onion, chopped fine
- 2 cups peas (frozen or fresh)
- 1/2 cup water
- Chopped parsley
- Black pepper

About one pound pasta (any type, though usually tubes or shells with this dish)

Brown bacon and onion in a large pot. Add parsley (to taste) and water. Mix. Then add peas and mix. Let cook until peas are done, about three to five minutes. Meanwhile, cook pasta according to instructions on package.

Drain bacon mix and then add to pea and bacon mixture in pot. Stir everything together so the pasta picks up the flavor of the mixture. Serve hot.

Techniques to put you a cut above

By Los Angeles Times

Recipes often instruct you to cut ingredients into a variety of sizes and shapes. Understanding the terminology can affect the way ingredients combine, cooking times and end results.

All the techniques may be accomplished by using a knife; some can be done with other sharp tools such as food processors, blenders and choppers.

Cube: To cut with a knife into uniform pieces one-half inch or larger on each of four sides. This is easy to do when foods are square or rectangular, a little trickier for those that are round or oddly shaped. In the latter case, begin by cutting a thin slice from one side or end. Then using the straight side as a base, make horizontal cuts a half-inch apart. Repeat with the same size vertical cuts.

Dice: To cut into small cubes, usually one-eighth to one-fourth inch on each side, using the technique described to cube.

Chop: To cut food into small irregularly shaped pieces about the size of a pea. Chopping may be done by holding the blade of a chef's knife in one hand and using the other to guide the blade end. Bring the blade up and down in a rocking motion over the food to be chopped, keeping the knife point on the chopping surface. Occasionally the cutter shears the pieces together so the cut size will be uniform.

A food processor, blender or chopper may also be used for this technique, following directions from the manufacturer.

Finely chop: Implies chopping into smaller pieces by the same techniques used to chop.

Mince: To chop into very tiny pieces, again using chopping techniques.

Julienne: To cut with a knife into fine, match-sticklike strips about 1/8-inch thick. The length may vary, but two inches is fairly standard.

Tomatoes in rusted cans safe to eat if seams aren't damaged

The Los Angeles Times

Q: We have several cans of tomatoes that have become rusted on both ends—not swollen, but rusted. Apparently, my storing them in a bath pail was not a great idea. I was going to toss them out, but my husband insisted that I write to you because he and a neighbor think the contents are still safe to use. Would appreciate your help.

A: We checked with the Canned Food Information Council in Chicago and learned that they agree with your husband and neighbor. As long as there is no damage to the seams and no leakage from the cans, the ingredients should still be safe to consume. In the future, however, it would be best to store canned goods in a place with less humidity.

Q: Do the new reduced-cholesterol eggs react the same as regular eggs in baking?

A: Yes, according to Helen Bauch, Food Technologist for the California Egg Commission, the reduced-cholesterol eggs are used exactly the same as regular eggs.

For those unfamiliar with the reduced-cholesterol eggs, Rosemary Farm, a Santa Maria, Calif.-based company has achieved a 50 percent reduction in the cholesterol content of eggs by providing hens a specially designed feed. The eggs contain approximately 126 milligrams per egg and are priced about 60 cents more per dozen, according to an Oct. 26 article in the Los Angeles Times.

Q: I would like to know how to make candied kumquats like you see at Christmas in fruit packs. I have a tree that is loaded with the fruit.

A: This recipe is adapted from "Fancy Pantry" (Workman Publishing; 1986) by Helen Witly.

CANDIED KUMQUATS
2 pounds bright-skinned, firm kumquats
5 cups sugar
3 cups water
Superfine sugar, optional

Rinse kumquats and remove any stems. If skins have any small rusty spots, scrub with small stiff brush to remove as much of discoloration as possible.

Piece kumquats in saucpan and add enough cold water to cover fruit by 1 inch. Bring to boil, partially cover pan, and simmer for 10 minutes. Drain kumquats in colander.

In same saucpan, combine sugar and water and bring to boil. Boil syrup 5 minutes, then add well-drained kumquats. Bring fruit just to boil over medium-high heat, then lower heat—and simmer kumquats uncovered, 10 minutes. Pour fruit and syrup into shallow bowl and let stand overnight, covered with cloth. Return kumquats and syrup to saucpan; bring to boil and simmer 20 minutes, or until fruit is translucent and tender when tested with cake tester or thin skewer. If syrup should become very thick and may scorch before fruit is done, add small amount boiling water and continue cooking.

When kumquats are tender, remove pan from heat and cool fruit in syrup. Lift kumquats from syrup one at a time and arrange over wire rack set over baking sheet. Let drain and dry at room temperature until kumquats are no longer sticky to touch, from 1 to 2 hours to overnight, depending on level of humidity.

If weather is damp and fruit dries slowly, set rack in oven set at lowest or keep warm temperature and leave, with oven door ajar, until no longer sticky. Roll kumquats in superfine sugar and store in airtight container at room temperature. Roll again in superfine sugar just before serving. Makes 2 pounds.

Idaho Beef Cook-Off offers cash prizes to winner

WINNERS OF THE 1989 Idaho Beef Cook-Off will receive cash prizes ranging from $500 to $1,000. The contest is open to all Idaho residents who are 18 years of age or older and who live in Idaho. The contest is open to all Idaho residents who are 18 years of age or older and who live in Idaho.

Any Idahoan, 18 years of age or older who does not earn money from any form of cooking can enter an original beef recipe. The recipe can be made with any cut of fresh beef, including variety meats. The recipe should indicate whether it is a recipe awarded in the conventional, microwave or barbecue divisions. Recipes prepared on a conventional range will be entered in the Idaho Beef Cook-Off, while microwave and barbecue recipes will compete at the regional level. The recipe will be judged according to taste, ease of preparation, appearance and originality.

To enter, on a plain piece of paper print or type your recipe on one side and on the other side include your name, address, phone number and how the recipe was developed. Official entry blanks are not necessary, but can be found at the Frankenstein in your local grocery store.

Be specific about the ingredients but do not use brand names. State the number of servings and approximate total preparation time. Recipes must contain at least 1 pound of beef and not more than 5 pounds. Each serving must contain 3 ounces of beef. Beef must be the only meat or meat product used in the recipe. Cooking time should not exceed four hours.

Ten conventional recipes will be selected to compete in the May 19, Idaho Beef Cook-Off to be held in Boise. Microwave and barbecue recipes will be sent directly to the national selection committee who will choose one winner in each category to represent the North-

The Idaho Beef Cook-Off contest is sponsored annually by the Idaho Cattle Women, Inc. (formerly the Idaho CowBelles) in cooperation with the Idaho Beef Council. For more information contact the Idaho Beef Council at 842-2331. Send your recipe entry to the Idaho Beef Cook-Off, 189 Airport Way, Boise, Idaho 83705. All entries must be postmarked no later than March 1.

Soup

• 2 (6½-ounce) cans chopped clams, drained, reserving liquid
• 2 carrots, pared and thinly sliced
• 2 medium potatoes, pared and diced
• 2 cups (1 pint) half-and-half

3 cups (12-ounce) shredded mild cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 onion in kettle or Dutch oven, cook onion in margarine until tender; stir in flour. Gradually stir in water then clam juice, bouillon, reserved clam liquid, carrots and potatoes; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add clams, half-and-half and cheese.

Cook and stir until cheese melts and chowder is hot (do not boil). Add parsley. Refrigerate leftovers.

Meal

• 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper, or 6 drops of hot sauce
• 1 cup whipping cream
Salt
Freshly ground pepper
Whole fresh chives or chopped parsley, for garnish
1 pound small uncooked shrimp, cleaned and deveined
Melt the butter in a large, heavy Dutch oven over medium heat. Add onion and cook until transparent, about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.
Add the flour and stir for 3 minutes. Add the stock and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add the squash, wine, bay leaves, curry powder and cayenne pepper or hot sauce and simmer until the squash is very tender, about 10 minutes.
Blend in the cream. Season with salt and pepper. Remove the bay leaves.
Puree soup in a blender. (Up to this point, the soup can be prepared one day in advance. Cool completely, cover and refrigerate.)

½ pound tiny green snap beans, or larger beans cut into 1-inch pieces
½ cup small pasta such as ditalini
Freshly ground pepper
Wash and finely slice zucchini; set aside. Wash and grate spinach; set aside. Heat the butter and 1 tablespoon oil in a large saucpan. Add carrots, leeks and onions and saute for 5 to 10 minutes or until wilted. Add potatoes, shell beans, water and 1½ tablespoons salt. Bring the water to a boil, reduce heat and cook gently, uncovered, for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, make the pistou. In a mortar, or with a knife, mash the garlic with 1 teaspoon salt until pureed. Add the basil and mash together. Peel, seed and chop the tomato and add to the mixture, alternating with the cheese until the basil mixture is totally pureed. Gradually beat in the olive oil. You will end up with 1 cup of a smooth mayonnaise-like pistou. Cover and set aside.

(Up to this point, the soup and pistou may be made ahead of time and refrigerated.)

When the soup base is ready, add the spinach, snap beans, zucchini and pasta. Bring soup to a boil, reduce heat and cook gently until the vegetables and pasta are tender. Season with salt and pepper. Either stir the pistou into the soup or serve it on the side and let guests add it to their bowls. Serves six to eight.

This recipe for leek and potato soup with port and Gorgonzola comes from "Cooking for a Crowd" (Harmony; hardcover, $24.95) by Susan Wylor.

LEEK AND POTATO SOUP
2 large bunches of leeks (1½ to 2 pounds)
1 to 2 onions, coarsely chopped (optional)
½ pound (1 stick) unsalted butter, quartered
½ cup port, such as Croft Distinction
1 large can (46-ounce) chicken broth
4 cups water
4 large baking potatoes (2½ pounds), peeled and diced in large pieces

1½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
½ cup heavy cream
½ pound Gorgonzola dolce latta cheese
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Trim off the tough dark green parts of the leeks. Quarter the white part and tender green part lengthwise and rinse well in a bowl of cold water; leeks can be very sandy. Slice the leeks into large discs, put in a bowl and add fresh cold water to cover. With your hands, transfer the leeks to a colander. Measure the leeks. If there are less than 6 cups, add coarsely chopped onions to make

Check seed booklets for vegetables that grow well here

While you are looking through your seed catalogs, look for some of these new vegetable varieties that did well in the Ricks College trials last summer. They are well adapted to Intermountain growing conditions.

Slenderax is a bright golden yellow wax bush bean that tastes good as it cooks. It is one of the new generation of beans that does not have any fiber even when you let the pods get overmature.

Buffalo is an extra early maturing yellow Spanish onion that is great in our short growing season. It also stores better than most early onions.

Allen Wilson

Green Magic II is an improved hybrid zucchini squash that is dark green and uniform in shape. It is early and has open, compact plants for easy picking.

Three new cauliflower varieties were outstanding in last summer's trial. All three have good wrapper-leaves that help keep the heads pure white until they are almost ripe. Montana is my favorite because it is the earliest and most uniform. Ravella is a few days later than Montana, and Starbrite Y is the largest and latest of the three.

We usually can't grow brussels sprouts very successfully in the Intermountain area because the growing season is often not long enough. However, Oliver is a new extra-early variety which matures a lot of sprouts, even in a 100-day growing season. Of course brussels sprouts are very cold hardy and can usually be harvested for a month after the first fall frost.

I have become quite partial to the new Sugary Enhanced or Sugar Ex-tender sweet corn varieties. They are not only sweeter than normal sweet corn, but also have more tender kernels. They are not quite as sweet as the more widely known sh-2 Sweet, Super or Extra Sweet types. However, they are a lot more tender and do not have to be isolated from other varieties to avoid losing their sweetness, like the Super Sweet types.

Sugar Buns is only 3 years old, but it has become the standard for early yellow sweet corns. Summer Flavor 65Y is equally as early as Sugar Buns. Summer Flavor 79Y is a late variety. Tuxedo is about 10 days later than Sugar Buns and has long beautiful ears. Miracle is the latest of the group but still matures in Rexburg. The best of the bicolor corns was Tri-Sweet. Platinum Lady is an excellent, mid-season white sugar tender sweet corn.

New vegetable varieties are typically most readily available from nurseries and seed catalogs. I have prepared a list of mail order sources for these varieties and the salad vegetables in a previous column that performed well in last summer's trial. If you would like a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Allen Wilson, P.O. Box 343, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Look through catalogs for Victorian replicas

By BETH SHERMAN
Newsday

When Warren Forman began restoring a 100-year-old brownstone in Brooklyn, he never dreamed it would turn into a major studio production. But it did.

"It was difficult to find anything from that period on the market," said Forman, who regularly scoured flea markets, antique shops and hardware stores for Victorian-style fixtures and furnishings.

Help came from an unlikely source: the U.S. mail.

Through mail-order catalogs, Forman located ceiling moldings, brass hinges and storm doors that reproduce the ornate fussiness of Victorian designs.

His latest purchase — a white porch swing with graceful slats — looks as if it belongs on a gabled cottage overlooking the English Channel.

The passion for Victoriana — those things produced in the mid-to late-19th century when Queen Victoria ruled England — is stronger than ever today. To meet the growing demand, a host of mail-order companies are offering everything from clawfoot bathtubs to scrolled brackets, cedar shingles, chandeliers, embrodered curtains, wicker settees and tin ceilings are manufactured all over the country and shipped directly to your home. You can also send away for blueprints to build a Victorian-style house, complete with turrets, verandas, stained-glass windows and plenty of fancy gingerbread trim. Prices range from about $12 for an antique lace sachet to $3,900 for a queen-size bed embellished with carved roses and silk tassels.

Many of the mail-order companies are small family-owned businesses, run by people who have translated their love of Victoriana into a thriving cottage industry. Six years ago, when Victorian Homes magazine was first published, it featured six pages of mail-order ads. Today, there are 20 pages of ads, and about 10 new companies promote their wares in each quarterly issue.

"Why the revival?" said Carolyn Flaherty, the magazine's editor. "In the Victorian era, everything was overdone, with ribbons and lace all over the place. The 1980s aren't much different, when it comes to design. People are more self-indulgent today. There's a real appreciation for the detail in old houses — the moldings, the plaster, the woodwork."

People who don't want to restore an old Victorian can build a new Victorian from scratch. Larry W. Garnett & Associates offers house plans for Victorian homes that combine nostalgic-19th-century exteriors — with mansard roofs and sloping gables — and decidedly modern interiors. (A catalog showing 18 Victorian styles costs $12. Floor plans cost between $110 and $300. To order, write to 3515 Preston Rd., Suite 200, Pasadena, Texas 77505. Phone: 713-487-0427.)

"Real Victorian houses aren't very functional," said Garnett. "They rarely had closets and the bathrooms were tiny. We've added more windows, because the originals tended to be dark and dreary, and we've incorporated large kitchens and game rooms."

On a somewhat smaller scale, there is Sun Designs' catalog, called "Gazebos and Other Garden Structures," featuring drawings of gazebos, enclosed swings and sandboxes, arbors and birdhouses. Some of the gazebos are screened by a delicate wooden lattice. Others feature peaked roofs, capped with a weather-vane. Still others are octagonal in shape, with circular staircases and built-in benches. (The 96-page catalog costs $7.95, plus $1.50 for postage and handling. To order, write to P.O. Box 206, DeLafayette, Wis. - 58018. Phone: 414-567-4255.)

Several companies supply architectural ornamentation for the inside and outside of Victorian houses. Vintage Woodworks manufactures all sorts of gingerbread trim in pine or birch. Used on porches, balconies, cornices and fences, the decorative trim is loaded with carvices, fan designs and frilly tendrils. (The catalog costs $2. To order, write to 513 S.

Adams - Fredericksburg, Texas 78624. Phone: 512-997-9513.)

At Cumberland Woodcraft Co. Inc., the catalog features 400 items, including carved capitals, a carved winged griffin and a luscious-looking garden seat that looks like an oversized wedding-cake decoration. The company will also custom design bars in oak, poplar, mahogany or cherry. Some models are quite lavish, with fluted columns, raised paneling and acanthus-leaf moldings. (The color catalog is $3.75. To order, write to P.O. Box 609, Carlisle, Pa. 17013. Phone: 717-243-0063.)

Adaptations of 19th-century furniture are available in many forms. Green Enterprises carries swings, benches and picnic tables patterned after Victorian styles. They are available in natural oak or in maple that has been painted white. (A brochure costs $1. Prices range from $298 for a 4-foot swing to $1,448 for a five-piece picnic-table set. To order, write to 43 South Rogers St., Hamilton, Va. 22068. Phone: 703-338-3606.)

Majority votes to discontinue solicitations by telephone

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your column about telephone solicitation, and agree it is sometimes a nuisance. But I am chairman of the fund-raising committee for a local symphony orchestra, and we could never survive without telephone solicitations. We write letters first, but some people ignore letters, so we resort to telephoning—and we do not give up until we have made five telephone calls.

I do not like to call people, and I can understand their irritation if they are interrupted in lovemaking or some other pleasurable activity. However, lovemaking can be resumed later—a dead symphony orchestra is not easily revived, so I continue to call.

Abby, any advice that can free me from having to call people to beg for money is welcome.

LARS B. LOFGREN, M.D.
TALENT, ORE.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR DR. LOFGREN: Believe me to understand your problem, but I still maintain that the telephone is in the home for the convenience of the person who pays for it.

Read on, please.

DEAR ABBY: The problems created by aggressive telephone solicitation can be more than merely disturbing.

Not long ago, my wife, who is undergoing chemotherapy treatments for cancer, received a phone call from a local cemetery, telling her that she had "won" a cemetery lot worth $500!

She replied, "Thank you, but I am not ready to die yet!" She was visibly upset and wondered aloud if perhaps the American Cancer Society might have given them her name. Of course they had not, but it is apparent that some controls over telephoning people to solicit business are desperately needed.

— ANGRY IN MANSFIELD, OHIO

DEAR ANGRY: My stand on telephone solicitation for any reason, which includes consumer researchers who want only to ask busy homemakers what kind of soap or cleanser they use, met with some angry responses from professional researchers. For example:

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Market researchers should find another way to gather information: Some people sleep at odd hours; others may be ill and don't want to be disturbed."

Abby, that response was the most uninformative response I have ever read in my adult life. Maybe it's time you considered stepping down to let a more rational, knowledgeable person give advice to the public.

Dr. George Gallup Sr. years ago reported that the most genuine responses are recorded in an anonymous telephone interview.

National companies need to know what consumers really think. Their survival depends on quality information. Our client list of manufacturers, retailers, banks and dentists are most interested in gathering information so they can better fulfill consumer needs. To say that market researchers should find a better way to gather information reflects your total ignorance of what telephone research really does.

I, too, grew up in Iowa, and it is obvious that you have lost the common-sense perspective associated with Midwesterners.

By the way, we get many more positive comments than negative ones from people our company has interviewed. It is with much sadness that I read your poorly thought-out column.

— PROFESSIONAL RESEARCHER, CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR RESEARCHER: Sorry, I stand by my original opinion: Telephoning the general public either to sell something or to gather information for whatever purpose is an invasion of their privacy and should be abolished. Furthermore, my mail is running 100-to-1 in favor of my view. So, sue me.

Letters of thanks

Board thanks bank for use of facilities

The members and Board of Directors of Mud Creek Water User's Association wish to thank J. P. Hamilton and staff of Farmers National Bank, Buhl, for their help and use of bank facilities during our transfer of water shutters and preparation of adjudication water filings.

School group thanks recycling center for help

The Robert Stuart Jr. High School Science Department recycling drive was a big success. We raised $1,279 by taking in over 93,000 pounds of recyclable items in the "Idaho is Too Great to Litter Educational Program." We also won $400 by placing first in the state. The Science Department will purchase a computer with the money.

I would like to thank Herb and Tamara Harney at American Recycling for all of their help, the Times-News for advertisement, S. Rose Interiors for the use of their truck, and all the businesses and individuals who helped contribute to the recycling drive. Not only did you help raise money for us, but you've also helped to save our landfills and natural resources.

Koutnik family thanks local media for comments

Our thanks to The Times-News, KLDX, KMVT-TV, and all newspapers, radio and TV stations in the area—and state—for your kind words and reminiscences of our husband, father and grandfather. He had been involved in so many worthy public and civic activities that we couldn't remember all of them at the time. We appreciate all the articles and comments, although there were some inadvertent inaccuracies. Two, I will correct: L. James attended the College of Idaho, not CSI; and he received the Air Medal (S-4 unit citation, I believe), not the Distinguished Flying Cross.

We thank the College of Southern Idaho, the Twin Falls Police Dept., Mountain Home Air Force Color Guard, publishers, musicians—Helen Connolly, Mary Mead and Larry Curtis Band—Father Fred Elwood, and Jerry Holman.

A special thanks goes to Curtis H. Eaton for his remarks. Jim would have been proud.

The delicious food, beautiful flowers and cards, and the generous contributions to Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital and other charities and worthy causes are gratefully appreciated.

Our heartfelt thanks to all.

Scholarship applications now available

TWIN FALLS — Applications for 1990-1991 Rotary Foundation scholarships to be awarded worldwide are now available from local Rotary clubs.

The scholarships provide for one academic year's study abroad in one of the 164 countries and geographical regions where Rotary clubs are located.

Five types of Rotary scholarships are available: graduate, undergraduate, vocational, teacher of the handicapped and journalism.

Applications for graduate scholarships must be between 18 and 30 years old; for undergraduate scholarships, between 18 and 24; for vocational, journalism and teacher of the handicapped scholarships, between 21 and 50.

Interested persons should contact Robert L. Hendren Jr., of the College of Idaho, Caldwell, who is the local district awards committee chairman. His phone number is 459-5501.

Scholars receive round-trip transportation, all academic fees, room, board and necessary educational supplies as well as funds for limited educational travel and expenses.

Formal charges filed against Drexel

NEW YORK (AP) — The government filed formal fraud charges Tuesday against Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., the investment giant that agreed to plead guilty to the accusations and pay a record $650 million in fines and restitution.

The procedure at Manhattan federal court marked the first time since the plea-bargain settlement was reached last month that specific details of the six felonies were disclosed. But other key details of the settlement spelling out what Drexel must do weren't made public at Drexel's request.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani told a news conference he believed the public had a right to know details of the agreement and the work that federal judges to reveal more details of the settlement Wednesday. The government charged Drexel with participating in a litany of criminal acts ranging from insider trading to stock manipulation in some of the biggest U.S. takeover targets of the 1980s.

The charges also implicated a senior employee of Drexel, identified only as "John Doe." People familiar with the case concluded the employee was Michael Milken, the senior Drexel high-yield bond financier who is expected to be indicted shortly on fraud and racketeering charges.

Five of the charges mirrored accusations leveled against the firm and Milken in September by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which said they schemed with Ivan F. Boesky, the now-imprisoned inside trader who has snatched on many prominent securities figures in exchange for lenient treatment.

The charges were contained in a See DREXEL on Page D3

Brady: Debt-financed takeovers must end; government may act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady suggested on Tuesday that unless the investment community stems the tide of debt-financed corporate takeovers, the government will step in.

However, his testimony was the clearest indication yet that the administration views the multibillion-dollar debt-financed takeovers as a possible threat to the U.S. economy and is willing to take action to stem them.

High-interest, high-risk junk bonds, come up with evidence that the resulting debt burdens are not harmful, or else that they suggest proposals for addressing them.

Brady told the Senate Finance Committee the new Bush administration favors eliminating or reducing taxes on corporate dividends as a way to reduce leveraged buyouts or LBOs.

He acknowledged that the federal budget deficit likely precludes that.

White companies acquired through leveraged buyouts often lack the cash flows to pay interest on the junk bonds that financed the deals, the bankers, underwriters and fund managers in the transactions make millions of dollars in fees, Brady complained.

Brady said he would prefer that the gladiators in the arena, the investment bankers, corporate and insurance executives and pension fund managers who issue and trade in

24-page information, a legal document used in cases where a defendant waives the right to indictment and agrees to plead guilty.

Drexel manipulated securities prices, engaged in insider trading and unlawfully facilitated merger and acquisition activities, said a statement from Giuliani's office.

Drexel's guilty plea to the charges are an essential part of the agreement that capped an unprecedented probe into the inner workings of one of the nation's most powerful investment firms.

Under that deal, Drexel must cooperate in the government's criminal prosecution of Milken and other individuals ensnared by a federal crackdown on Wall Street corruption that began more than 2 1/2 years ago.

Today's filing of an information charging Drexel Burnham Lambert is in accordance with the preliminary agreement reached with the United States Attorney on Dec. 21, 1988.

We believe that this settlement is in the best interests of our firm, its employees and clients.

The settlement also said the settlement, when final, will protect Drexel from further prosecution relating to the matters which are part of the U.S. attorney's office's continuing investigation.

Under federal criminal procedure, Drexel's attorney Thomas Curran entered plea of "not guilty" before U.S. Magistrate Nita Gershon.

The firm also was accused of fraud in connection with a transaction in which it conspired with a now defunct investment partnership, Princeton Newport Partners, to cheat a Drexel client, C.O.M.B. Co.
