Jaggers asks for long prison term

Courtroom request comes during hearing on murder sentence

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Before a courtroom audience that included the son of the woman he killed, 19-year-old Jesse Ray Jaggers asked for a long prison term. "I know I have some problems," Jaggers said in a level voice. He paused, gathering his breath. "Let me put this kind of blunt because I don't know how else to do it," he said. "Myself, I don't feel right now I'll be safe on the outside. I feel I need a lengthy sentence."

Jesse Ray Jaggers could get a life sentence for the Westergren murder several years before the murder, said Boise psychiatrist Michael Estess. Westergren's murder "satisfied his desire to act out that sort of fantasy which he had for several years," Estess said. But it couldn't be predicted, except that Jaggers will probably control his temper when he has to. "He only tends to unleash his anger in the setting he did — the soft underbelly of society," Estess said. In prison, "he will control his anger, I assure you," he said. Jaggers views himself as a victim of his upbringing. "Jesse thinks of himself as an underprivileged, mistreated little boy and thinks the things he does can be justified by that," Estess said. "I think of him as a very pitiful little form of maladaptation."

U.S. economy's growth figures best in 4 years

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy grew a healthy 3.6 percent in 1988, the best showing in four years. That occurred as the country benefited from a narrowing of the trade deficit and a big increase in business investment, the government reported Friday. The increase in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, occurred despite the fact that growth slowed sharply in the final three months of the year, with the GNP rising at an annual rate of just 2.0 percent from October through December. The October-December increase was the slowest quarterly performance in two years and followed increases of 3.4 percent, 3 percent and 2.5 percent, respectively, in the first three quarters of 1988. While the fourth-quarter performance came in below most advance estimates, the figure was generally seen by economists and Wall Street as a good sign that the economy was slowing to a more sustainable pace. Commenting on the GNP report, the Bush administration said that the fourth-quarter slowdown was not a warning that the six-year record peacetime recovery was in danger of coming to an end and should not overshadow the stellar performance the economy

Bush defends wage increase for Congress

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush defended a widely criticized pay raise for Congress on Friday as unquestionably overdue. Making his debut in a fast-paced but easygoing news conference, Bush also said "prudence is the order of the day in dealing with the Soviet Union." "Rounding out" the first week of his presidency, Bush put himself at arm's length with a controversial plan from the Treasury Department to rescue the beleaguered savings and loan industry by imposing a fee on savings accounts. He called it "an option, not a proposal." As for his promise not to raise taxes, Bush said, "I'd like it to be a four-year pledge." Asked if Ronald Reagan was casting in on the presidency by signing a reported $5 million book deal and getting paid more than $40,000 for speeches, Bush said, "There is plenty of tradition that goes with presidents writing memoirs and being paid for it." His voice was hoarse from a cold but Bush seemed confident, relaxed and in high spirits as he fielded questions in the White House briefing room for 43 minutes — a contrast to the 30-minute time limit fixed for Reagan's infrequent news conferences. Whereas Reagan held most of his news conferences in prime-time hours of television, Bush surprised the press with a hurriedly announced session that began at 9:42 a.m. MST. It was broad-

Monitors' numbers still under dispute

The Associated Press

BOISE — Six more people to monitor the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory? Overkill, say some members of the House Environmental Affairs Committee. Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus has requested $205,000 for six new full-time state employees to establish a monitoring program at INEL. But after INEL Deputy Manager Bob Tiller explained current practices at the site to the House committee Thursday, several lawmakers said they saw no reason for as large a program as Andrus envisions or even a program at all. "It hasn't been demonstrated to me as a necessary expenditure," said Rep. Bob Schaefer, R-Nampa. See MONITOR on Page A2

Participants replay Cuba missile crisis

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Americans and Soviets who led their countries through the Cuba missile crisis met Friday to draw lessons from the 1962 incident in superpower brinkmanship, which President Bush called "just the sort of episode we must avoid in the nuclear age." The conference is the first on the topic to bring together representatives of the United States, Soviet Union and Cuba — including former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and former Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Each side has its own version of events of what happened in October 1962, when the Soviets deployed nuclear missiles in Cuba, and the United States imposed a quarantine on the island and demanded and obtained the rockets' removal. In Elko today, smile when you quote those cowboys

The Associated Press

ELKO, Nev. — The 300 cowboys in town this week ain't here to rope steers or whoop it up at a saloon. No sirree, mister, these folks are the biggest bunch of prose-packin', smile-singin', verifyin'-est cowboys you ever saw, and they're here for the annual Cowboy Poetry Gathering. "It ain't all doggie doggerel, and you better smile when you quote 'em, pardner. —Upwards of 7,000 visitors have jammed this northeastern Nevada town of 13,000 for the five day-event, which began Wednesday and wraps up Sunday. The area's 40 motels have been booked for weeks. Ten-gallon hats dot Railroad Avenue and Commercial Street, and more spill out of the Branding Iron Bar. The crowds have come to hear the cowboys recite their bunkhouse ballads, sing soulful songs and tell of hard and high times on the range. The activities have filled every available meeting place in town, from the Elko Convention Center to the bar at the Stockman Hotel.

The buckaroos don fancy duds for the gathering — broad-brimmed Stetsons, silver buckles and handmade pointy-toed boots — but their sunburned faces, calloused hands and faraway gaze tell their tales of hard and solitary lives. One such poet is Waddie Mitchell, who runs 2,000 head of cattle on a ranch near Jiggs. Before he came to the gathering, he had to make a sure there was enough hay put out and find a baby sitter for his five children. Mitchell began writing verse during long winters on the range. Like most cowboy poets, he didn't show his work to many people because poetry didn't fit the cowboy image. But the first cowboy poetry gathering five years ago brought a lot of sagebrush scribbles off the prairie. One of Mitchell's poems tells the plight of Tom O'Dell, found behind a bar with his throat cut. When they got him to the hospital he wouldn't sign a complaint against the fella who done it because he was a friend of his. Mitchell and Baxter Black, who will sing and tell stories at the finale tonight, are big guns in the cowboy entertainment world.

They have ben on "The Tonight Show," and Black's records are available anywhere. Western music is sold. Black, a veterinarian from Brighton, Colo., earns a six-figure income from his performances. Tara McCarty of the Western Folklife Center in Salt Lake City, which coordinates the gathering, said one of the center's biggest challenges is keeping the cowboy poetry pure. That's why they've come up with an iron-clad rule: Every participant has to make a living on the range. No "drugstore" cowboys allowed.

BOISE (AP) — State Lottery Commission Chairman James Bruce says the panel is working as quickly as it can to get the new state lottery up and operating.

But Bruce told the Senate State Affairs Committee on Friday the job is a much greater challenge than he thought it would be when he accepted his appointment from Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"You just don't go out and start selling those lottery tickets, especially when you're starting from scratch," Bruce said during his confirmation hearing.

"We'll move as fast as we can, but we're not going to go so fast that we make mistakes," he said. "We want to have the kind of lottery that the people of Idaho, even those who didn't support it, can be proud of in terms of its operation and honesty."

Bruce, the retired chief executive officer of Idaho Power Co., was the last of the six lottery appointees to be considered by the panel. Without debate on Friday, the committee recommended the full Senate confirm director Wallace Hedrick of Boise and commissioners Jay Sheldy of Moscow, J. Allen Jensen of Idaho Falls, Edward Benoit of Twin Falls and Teresa DeShon of Sandpoint.

The governor, Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, said "put some good people on there."

The committee will consider Bruce's appointment on Monday, and the full Senate will vote on all six appointees next week.

On Friday, the Senate confirmed the first of scores of appointments the governor made since the Legislature adjourned last spring, unanimously approving the nomination of former state Rep. Robert Fry, R-Horsehoe Bend, to the state Tax Commission.

Spill cleanup up to hauler under new bill

BOISE (AP) — A bill introduced in the Idaho Senate would send a signal that anyone who spills hazardous waste on the state's roads will pay for the cleanup.

"It's going to make it clear to the transporters that they have to accept the risk," said Monte MacConnell, chief legal counsel for the state Department of Law Enforcement.

The bill, proposed by the agency and Gov. Cecil Andrus, won quick support Thursday from the Senate Transportation Committee, which voted to introduce it.

The measure is in response to a 1987 fungicide spill on U.S. 96 near Riggins that killed thousands of fish in the Little Salmon River. The state has sued the trucking company to recover the money spent on the disaster and as compensation for the damage to the fishery.

The problem is Idaho law does not clearly say the company is responsible. The bill would clarify that and give the state a clear legal path.

Teaching improvement needs outlined

BOISE (AP) — Teaching has about the same questionable professional standing today as medicine did 100 years ago, and the situation may be even worse in Idaho, say two members of the National Certification Board for teachers.

The good news is that there has been a full recognition of the problem, and for the next five years, and perhaps for the next 20 years, we're going to be striving to set things straight," said Arthur Wise, director of the RAND Corp. Center for the Study of the Teaching Profession in Washington, D.C.

He appeared Friday at a news conference along with Sue Hoxey, a Moscow teacher for gifted and talented children and a past chairwoman of the Idaho Professional Standards Commission.

They were in Boise for the Idaho Education Association's fourth annual issues conference. The two-day event was expected to attract about 200 IEA members and guests.

Pharmacists back steroid controls

POCATELLO (AP) — The Idaho Pharmacy Board has endorsed proposed legislation that would make anabolic steroids a Schedule 4 controlled drug and make it legal possession or sale a felony.

Mick Markuson, the board's executive director, said a bill is being drafted and should be introduced during the current session of the Idaho Legislature.

Anabolic steroids sometimes are legitimately prescribed out of medical necessity to increase muscle mass, strength or weight, or as a treatment for leukemia or osteoporosis. But Markuson said they have been used increasingly by teen-agers in recent years to enhance athletic performance and for cosmetic purposes.

More than 80 percent of the anabolic steroids used in Idaho are purchased on the black market, and Markuson conceded legislation requiring pharmacists to maintain detailed inventories of their supplies would do nothing to slow that traffic.

The five-member Pharmacy Board, meeting Wednesday in Pocatello, backed a proposal that would make it illegal for doctors or pharmacists to prescribe, order, distribute, supply or sell anabolic steroids except in the case of medical necessity.

Meyerhoeffer requests increased funding for CSI

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

BOISE — College of Southern Idaho enrollment has boomed in recent years, but state funding has failed to keep pace. College President Gerald Meyerhoeffer told lawmakers on the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee Friday that he expected final enrollment figures for the current semester to show a 10 percent jump over figures a year ago. Preliminary figures show 2,477 academic students enrolled so far this semester.

In the last six years, enrollment at the school has increased 50 percent, while at other state institutions the figure averages only 2 1/2 percent, he said.

In the past seven years, money from student fees has jumped 156 percent and property taxes to support the college have increased 112 percent. Yet the state has increased funding slightly less than 18 percent, he said.

"I think it's evident to you we've done all we can at the local level to help the state," Meyerhoeffer said.

Students are charged $400 a semester more than most junior colleges in the region. A telephone survey of other schools found only one charging more, Meyerhoeffer said.

Dramatic enrollment increases have contributed to the increase in the amount of fees collected, but enrollment cannot be expected to continue rising at the rate of recent years, he said.

Part of that increase has come from opening outreach centers around the Magic Valley, such as the one in Burley with an enrollment of 600 students. Enrollment off-campus has been increasing 2-1 over enrollment on-campus, he said.

Students at outreach centers pay the same fees as students in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, where property taxpayers contribute to college operations. But other counties are expected to pay the college $45 for each full-time student, in addition to the state fee.

The payments have covered the costs of outreach centers, but college officials said they doubted the payments were enough to contribute toward the general college overhead.

Extending property tax collections has been discussed in the past, but Meyerhoeffer said existing counties to vote themselves into a college taxing district would be difficult. The only way other counties are likely to contribute property taxes directly is by legislative mandate, Meyerhoeffer and CSI Dean of Finance Karl Black said.

About 60 percent of the college students are from Twin Falls and Jerome counties, Meyerhoeffer said.

The school has tried to hire part-time instructors to keep up with enrollment increases, Meyerhoeffer said. Full-time faculty are very expensive. But the college has had trouble finding enough well-educated people in the area willing to teach CSI classes.

The math and science departments may be feeling the pinch most acutely. A demand for technically trained graduates has prompted more students to enroll in those classes, Meyerhoeffer said.

During the college's last accreditation review in 1984, the college was found to be short on lab space. The problem has only grown worse, Meyerhoeffer said. Math faculty are carrying as much as half again the normal class load, he said.

The governor has recommended an increase from $15,735,000 in fiscal year 1989 to 17,210,600 in fiscal year 1990, to be divided between CSI and North Idaho Community College.

That includes $150,000 in one-time money for such needs as equipment replacement, library services and support, physical plant maintenance, student advising, accreditation and remedial education.

The college receives about 40 percent of its funding from the state.

Audit: No more city hall embroilment

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City officials announced Friday that

Mayor Doug Vollmer said Friday the audit will be reviewed but he expects no changes embroilment within the finance department did not extend beyond the one employee who has already been charged.

"We feel there are no more employees involved with this money, and there's no more money missing that we know of," said Public Safety Director Tim Qualls, whose office has wrapped up its investigation Thursday.

The announcement came at a brief press conference Friday afternoon. Several city officials answered questions after Mayor Doug Vollmer read a short statement, but the only significant development was the finding that the employees were not involved.

As part of a plea-bargain arrangement, Donna Fabey pleaded guilty Tuesday to a misdemeanor count of petty theft. Fabey, a finance department employee for more than seven years, cooperated "quite extensively" with the city's investigators, Qualls said.

"It's possible that she was borrowing the money, but that she got in so deep that she couldn't repay it," Qualls said.

An audit report by Skamson, Bancroft, Smith & Cook, P.C., showed that $7,194 disappeared from a water deposit fund since September 1988.

Fabey was admitted taking money only in 1988, when $4,469 disappeared and in her plea she admitted guilt only for taking $100 on Dec. 9, 1988. However, she has paid $6,000 in restitution.

Vollmer said the audit's findings may be reviewed once more, but he expects no changes. He added that "within monetary reasonableness," city officials have taken corrective measures to prevent future occurrences.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Bardoer said Friday that the only unfinished business is Fabey's sentencing, scheduled for next month. City officials approved of the plea agreement, and to further, more serious charges will be filed, Bardoer said.

"I have been advised that they are totally satisfied with the charges that have been filed, and that they have received restitution," she said.

Library plans due for public review

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — A library panel has done its homework and is ready to discuss library space problems and possible solutions with Twin Falls residents, officials say.

"Several problems of major significance exist at the present time in the library," a pamphlet-written by the Library Expansion Advisory Panel says.

Mayor Doug Vollmer on Friday pronounced February Twin Falls Library Appreciation Month to spotlight the library and help make people aware of library needs.

The advisory panel that was formed last year to study alternatives for meeting the library's growth for the next 20 to 25 years will hold several forums in February to explain what it has done and to get feedback.

The month's activities will culminate in an open house from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 26, which will include library tours and a slide presentation.

"Given the library's development over time, ... now is the time to look to providing an expanded facility for the library," according to Library Planning Associates, a consulting firm that recommended the city double the library's present size.

The panel's site selection committee and cost analysis committee have already recommended keeping the library where it is and adding about 20,000 square feet.

That would cost about $1.1 million. Refurbishing the old building would mean additional costs, according to Mike Meyers, chairman of the cost analysis group.

He said there are three separate heating, air conditioning and ventilation systems in the old building. Replacing the inefficient systems would cost between $50,000 and $65,000, Myers said.

The advisory panel also says the library needs an additional 64 seats, including lounge seats; a conference room for 12; a children's programming area for 50 and a public meeting room for 50.

Budget laws apply to hospital, says attorney general

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The county hospital must abide by state laws governing county budgets, according to an attorney general's letter, that includes budgeting planned capital improvement expenditures and equipment purchases.

"The gist of the problem has been that here's all this money that nobody knew about because its spending wasn't recorded," said County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman.

The letter, released Friday, came in response to a query from state Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, one of several people who have raised questions about hospital expansion plans.

The letter apparently will have no impact on those plans this year, because hospital officials already have planned a budget amendment to cover the expansion costs.

In future years, however, it will force the hospital to budget specific figures for capital expenditure plans.

Both hospital and county officials said the informal advisory was no surprise and reacted with positive comments.

"I think it'll be helpful in providing some direction," said Kent Taylor, the hospital's Board's lawyer.

"It doesn't surprise me a bit," Hempleman said. "I read the law the same way."

The hospital has always submitted a budget report to the county commissioners, Hempleman said, but it hasn't included anything about capital outlay.

Hempleman cited the upcoming cancer treatment center expenditures and a recent land purchase as examples of projects not listed in the facility's 1989 budget.

Hospital Administrator John Bingham said one problem has been that the county's budget forms are not in the format hospital accounting is done in.

Taylor said he thinks the forms probably will change next year to accommodate the hospital's unique financial circumstances.

For instance, said Taylor, most county departments don't have a carry-over of funds as the hospital does. In those departments, any leftovers simply go back into the county's general fund.

Hempleman admitted that part of the problem may have been a lack of an explanation on how the forms should be used.

"Our position is that whatever the forms ask us to provide, that's what we're going to complete. We want to comply with the law," Bingham said.

Hempleman and Taylor both noted that expenditures

Commerce director sings praises of local business expansion, prosperity

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Business in the Twin Falls area is expanding and prospering, and the state economy has never been better, the Idaho Commerce Department director said this week.

"I've been termed a hard-nosed optimist," Jim Hawkins said, and he shared the compliment with

'We're going to do what you want to do, what the state wants to do. For the Magic Valley and the state of Idaho, the best is yet to come.'

— Jim Hawkins, Commerce Department chief chamber members in his speech at the annual Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday.

In the two years since the Department of Commerce was created, it has helped bring 16 new businesses or expansions to the area that have brought more than 1,000 new jobs, he said.

"In the same time, there have been only five such projects in Boise — proving that 'I don't work for the state of Boise,' he said.

The Twin Falls/Jerome area has also received $3 million in federal block grants in the past two years.

The state as a whole is operating in the prosper mode too, he said. Employment is at an all-time high.

The jobless rate that was 6.7 percent two years ago is 4.7 percent today.

The state has a revenue surplus, and the net population loss has reversed.

Business bankruptcy filings have dropped an incredible 49 percent in the last year.

"And folks, we're just getting started. We're going to do what you want to do, what the state wants to do," he said.

"For the Magic Valley and the state of Idaho, the best is yet to come."

Also at Thursday's banquet, the chamber membership installed Russ Kvanvig of Stephan, Slavin, Kvanvig & Greenwood as the new chamber president, and Peggy Henderson of Canyon Springs Inn, was named volunteer of the year.

The Business Plus program is right on schedule, Dave Cooper said. Firms totaling $282,000 have come from 15 percent of the membership. The average pledge size from the 93 contributing businesses is $3,000 over five years.

Cooper said that is enough money to pay off the chamber's debt on the Trust Joist building, which the organization bought and then gave to Trust Joist for its new window-plant. The chamber has earmarked $20,000 a year for economic development and community promotion.

Kemp gives homelessness top priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cabinet nominee Jack Kemp told Congress on Friday that easing the "appalling problem" of homelessness would be his highest priority as secretary of housing and urban development.

Kemp's Senate confirmation hearing was filled with bipartisan praise for the secretary-designate but was interrupted by a brief protest demonstration by housing activists.

Kemp, a former congressman from New York and a 1988 Republican presidential candidate, pledged to be an advocate for increased federal efforts on housing for the poor.

He avoided committing himself on most specific spending questions, but said the Bush administration would review former President Reagan's proposal for the Housing and Urban Development Department's spending in fiscal 1990, which begins Oct. 1.

He promised to seek full funding of legislation passed by Congress to provide emergency shelter for the homeless, called the McKinney Act, and said he favored expanding it in some areas.

"I acknowledge that it is a very severe problem — it is an appalling problem," Kemp said of homelessness.

"It is an emergency problem, and I'm willing to treat it as the highest priority, immediately, of my new leadership at HUD," Kemp said.

Kemp said he visited privately with leaders of Miami's riot-torn Overtown and Liberty City areas last weekend when in that city for the Super Bowl. He said, if confirmed, he planned to visit blighted inner cities, and to visit homeless people in New York City and elsewhere.

The Senate banking committee took no vote on Kemp's nomination, but no opposition was voiced on the panel and he is expected to win confirmation easily. A committee vote may come next week, after Kemp answers additional written questions.

His appearance was interrupted briefly by six demonstrators from the Community for Creative Non-Violence, a Washington advocate for the homeless. Two stood up holding a large sign saying "Housing Now," while they and others shouted and turned on a noisemaking machine.

"There are people sleeping on the streets right now and you are directly responsible for it," one woman shouted.

The four women and two men were taken from the hearing room by Capitol police and security personnel. They were arrested and charged with disrupting a committee of the Congress and demonstrating within a Capitol building, charges that carry a maximum $500 fine and six-month jail term.

"I wish they'd stayed and heard my remarks," Kemp said of the protesters.

Sen. Don Riegle, D-Mich., points Kemp to confirmation

Kemp is a conservative Republican who has allied himself with liberal Democrats on some urban issues, but also voted against major housing legislation as a member of Congress. He said he would "transcend all ideological differences" to look for ways to help deal with urban problems.

Judge: Bush, Reagan could be forced to testify

Knight-Ridder Service

WASHINGTON — The judge in the Oliver North cover-up case said Friday that he has the power to force former President Reagan and President Bush to testify. But he said he would exercise that power during North's trial only "as a last resort."

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, declining to rule on the Justice Department's request that he throw out North's subpoenas of Reagan and Bush, said he would wait and see whether their testimony becomes essential.

Gesell said he had "no doubt of the naked power" he has to compel the testimony of Reagan and Bush.

But, he remarked, "That power is to be exercised with great deference to the office of the president ... and not to be exercised except as a last resort."

"If anybody wants to go to the court of appeals, they better go now," Gesell said, noting that the appellate judges have "very little power" to stop a trial that is under way.

North is accused of lying to Congress and presidential investigators, destroying documents and obstructing their efforts to find out about the secret government plan to provide military assistance to the Nicaraguan rebels, partly with profits from the sale of weapons to Iran. The trial begins Tuesday.

North's lawyers have subpoenaed Reagan, Bush, dozens of other officials and hundreds of government and congressional documents, and parts of Reagan's diary in an effort to show that North's secret operations at the National Security Council were known to members of Congress and authorized by top officials.

The Justice Department and the House of Representatives have objected to the breadth of the subpoenas, but they have produced numerous documents for use at trial.

Gesell agreed that many of the defense-requested White House papers have "nothing to do with the case."

Moreover, he promised to prevent interrogation of House witnesses — such as Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., former chairman of the House Intelligence Committee — about their political motives. This is not a political case, the judge said.

Neither will North's spiral notebooks become part of the case. Gesell ruled that prosecutors are not entitled to the notebooks, in which North recorded his activities at the National Security Council from 1983 to late 1986.

Prosecutors who sought to subpoena the notebooks had failed to show they were government property and were unable to say what they contained, Gesell wrote in a memorandum.

Bush: Backs departure from Afghanistan embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, offering a dim assessment of the situation in Afghanistan as Soviets troops withdraw, said Friday that U.S. Embassy officials have been ordered out of the war-torn country to save their lives.

"It is a prudent policy to protect a handful of American lives," Bush told an impromptu White House news conference.

Bush queried about the reason behind Secretary of State James A. Baker III's decision to close the Kabul embassy, said: "I think there's a lot of uncertainty. There's enough uncertainty that the secretary of state was taking prudent action in this regard."

Iran could aid hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asserted Friday that Iran could influence the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon and such a step could help revive U.S.-Iranian ties.

"I don't want to think that the status quo has to go on forever," Bush said of the defunct relationship between the two countries. Speaking at a White House news conference, Bush said, "There was a period of time when we had excellent relations with Iran. At one point, Bush said he wanted to make 'a broad appeal, transcending Iran, to anybody that can be helpful to get the hostages out.'"

Stays cool toward Aráfat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday he would keep U.S. talks going with the Palestine Liberation Organization but was skeptical about direct overtures to chairman Yasser Aráfat.

In contrast to the warm reception the barnstorming Palestinian leader is receiving on a support-seeking tour of Western Europe, the president was reserved.

"I haven't given any thought at all to a meeting of the chairman, Mr. Aráfat, with an American official," Bush said at a news conference. U.S. talks with the PLO were opened last month by then-President Reagan. The U.S. ambassador to Tunisia, Robert Pelletreau, was designated as the only official channel.

Supports pay raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday that members of Congress are "overdue" for the 50 percent raise recommended by Ronald Reagan and joined congressional leaders in proposing that the raise be linked to strict limits on fees members may accept from special interests.

Bush told a news conference "I do support" the recommendations of Reagan and a presidential commission for the raises for Congress, federal judges and top executive branch officials.

Bush said "some elements" of the proposed increase bothered him, but pointed out that Congress' procedure on pay raises leaves us with either the commission recommendation or nothing. "The ball is clearly in their court," Bush said of the lawmakers.

Hills gets committee's approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee recommended Friday that attorney Carla Hills be confirmed as U.S. trade representative after she assured lawmakers she would fight to open global markets "with a crowbar if necessary."

We have to have our agreements enforced," said Mrs. Hills before the Senate Finance Committee voted 18-0 to recommend confirmation. "And where our partners are violating our agreements we must take action," she added.

President Bush's nomination of the Washington attorney and former housing and urban development secretary now goes to the full Senate for a vote on confirmation. No date has been set.

Mrs. Hills would succeed Clayton K. Youtter, who has been tapped by Bush for secretary of agriculture, in the job of top U.S. trade negotiator.

What's what

Handicap of genius
Rarely, if ever, does a genius make a good teacher. Unless you're talking about a teacher who is a genius at that job — but those "phenoms" in music, math, poetry, science, chess, the specialists, they don't seem to be able to teach their specialties. They can execute. But not explain.

Maybe you didn't know that renowned football player George Gipp, "The Gipper," also played Bridge. For money.

Give me a five-letter word for "What bargain hunters enjoy." And a three-letter word for "boy." And a four-letter word for "An Animal of prey." These — "sales," "lad," "lion" — were three of the 31 words in the first U.S. crossword puzzle. Composed by journalist Arthur Wynne. And printed in 1913 by the New York World.

POOR BESS
A born housewife was Bess. Pretty little thing, but no head for business.

In 16th century England, she married her first husband when she was 12, then through widowhood, three more. She was 70 when the last died. Each left her much wealth. When finally alone, though she already owned 10 great estates, she elected to design one she really liked. It was Hardwick Hall, maybe the grandest country home ever built in England.

In that matter of mothers-in-law, the China of bygone times worked this pattern: The husband's mother was in charge. The wife's mother was an outsider.

MURDER
Half the murders, about, are unpremeditated. Committed in frenzy. TV's fiction uses few such. TV prefers planned killings for profit. Add that to your list of all those things that make TV unreal.

Q. What's the difference between "coco," "cocoa" and "coca"?

A. Coco, the coconut palm. Cocoa, the chocolatey bean of the cacao tree. Coca, the cocaine shrub.

2 plead guilty in defense corruption investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men pleaded guilty Friday to making illegal campaign contributions to members of Congress in the latest development in the government's wide-ranging investigation of Pentagon corruption.

Robert D. Barrett, a former executive at Unisys Corp., a giant computer company that does work for the Defense Department, and Joseph E. Hill, a consultant paid by Unisys, agreed to cooperate with prosecutors as part of the plea arrangement.

Also pleading guilty before U.S. District Judge Claude A. Hilton was Jack Sherman, a civilian purchasing official with the Marine Corps.

Sherman, 52, admitted he accepted bribes in exchange for providing confidential information on pending contracts to consultants and companies.

He could face up to 20 years in prison and a fine of as much as $500,000.

The pleas are part of the federal government's two-year-old investigation into the Pentagon's $150-billion-a-year procurement practices. The case includes allegations that private consultants, hired by defense contractors, bribed Pentagon officials to obtain inside information that gave companies an edge in securing contracts.

Earlier this month, a federal grand jury here indicted a Navy employee, five other individuals and the defense contractor Teledyne Electronics on a variety of charges including conspiracy, racketeering and bribery. The same day, Hazeltine Corp. and five men pleaded guilty to a different set of charges.

Barrett, 55, pleaded guilty Friday to conspiracy to defraud the United States and to aiding and abetting in making false statements to the government. He could face up to 10 years in prison and a $500,000 fine.

The government charged that Barrett, who first worked for Unisys' predecessor, Sperry Corp., in the Washington suburbs, was involved in a complicated scheme in which $2,000 was funneled to the election campaign of former Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla. Chappell chaired the House defense appropriations subcommittee until his defeat last November.

LaRouche gets 15 years, calls it nonsense

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Defiantly declaring his innocence, political cult leader Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. was sentenced to 15 years in prison Friday for scheming to defraud the Internal Revenue Service and deliberately defaulting on more than $30 million in loans from his supporters.

Chief U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan also imposed lesser prison terms and fines on six LaRouche aides who were convicted last month on 85 counts of mail fraud and conspiracy for their roles in the fundraising effort.

While Bryan was handing down the sentences in Alexandria, government prosecutors dropped all charges in a related case against LaRouche, six associates and five political organizations in U.S. District Court in Boston.

That case, involving charges that LaRouche's 1984 presidential campaign had raised more than $2 million through credit card and loan fraud, ended in a mistrial last May. A new trial had been slated to begin Feb. 23.

In a petition filed in the Boston court Friday, the U.S. attorney's office said the criminal convictions against LaRouche and others on Dec. 16 had served the government's interests "from the point of view of both deterrence and punishment," and that further prosecution was not warranted.

While about 60 followers sang, chanted and picketed outside the Alexandria courthouse, LaRouche told Bryan in a presentencing appeal that he was the victim of a government campaign to "eliminate me from the political scene."

Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr., center wearing cap, was sentenced to 15 years in jail on Friday

But the judge scoffed at such claims by LaRouche, a three-time fringe candidate for president, and the other defendants. "I reject that asarrant nonsense," Bryan said.

Undaunted, LaRouche said "the vital interests of the United States have been put in jeopardy" by his trial and conviction, and that "it is time for this evil and reckless prosecution to be brought to a halt before further damage is done."

"This is not a political case," retorted U.S. Attorney Kent Robinson.

"This was a case of theft," Robinson urged Bryan to impose a harsh sentence, or "they just might do it again."

LaRouche's 15-year term was substantially less than the maximum possible penalty of 65 years in prison and fines totaling $3.25 million for his conviction on 13 counts of tax and mail fraud and conspiracy.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Markham said LaRouche will serve at least five years before he is eligible for parole.

Veterans group asks Bush for MIA files

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veterans' advocacy group said Friday it had asked President Bush to declassify files on Americans missing in action in the Vietnam War.

A Pentagon spokesman said no purpose would be served by such a move.

Ted Sampley of Kingston, N.C., chairman of the National Steering Committee for American War Veterans, said the request to Bush was in part a response to a report from the State and Defense departments just before the Reagan administration left office that U.S. agencies "have yet to find conclusive evidence of the existence of live prisoners."

Meanwhile, in another development, Bob Dumas of Canterbury, Conn., speaking for the Korean War Veterans Association, said a delegation from that group would meet North Korean officials in New York seeking an invitation to visit North Korea for discussions on returning the remains of U.S. soldiers killed there.

The Pentagon still lists 2,383 Americans as missing or unaccounted for in Southeast Asia or nearby waters. Dumas said remains of "probably several hundred" Americans were in North Korea as a result of the 1950-1953 Korean War.

On Monday, the Vietnamese government turned over remains believed to be those of 23 Americans killed there.

Sampley, in his group's letter to Bush, said, "Use your powers as president to help us liberate the truth... Mr. President, you cannot just wish that the issues of the Vietnam War will go away."

He said he was responding to the president's inaugural address and Bush's references to a "new breeze blowing."

Sampley's group has long maintained that Americans are in captivity in Southeast Asia.

NASA focuses on future on 3rd anniversary of Challenger crash

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With space shuttles flying again and a busy launch schedule ahead, NASA workers focused on the future Friday as they paused to remember the seven astronauts killed in the Challenger explosion three years ago.

"We won't forget the sacrifices made by these seven fallen heroes," Forrest S. McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center, told 17,000 workers in a brief televised message one day before the anniversary of the accident.

"We promised them we'd push on in the years to come, to fly the space shuttle again, to continue the exploration of space as they wanted us to."

"We're fulfilling that promise," McCartney said. "Yes, the dream is alive... The memory of the 51-L (Challenger) crew will always be a beacon to guide us as we continue to dedicate ourselves to the future."

He delivered the anniversary message a day early because most workers will be off on Saturday.

Those who will be here Saturday will remember the tragedy again when flags are lowered to half-staff at 11:38 a.m., the moment Challenger roared off launch pad 39B on Jan. 28, 1986. For 73 seconds, the duration of the fatal flight, all activity will stop.

On the second anniversary a year ago the shuttle fleet was still grounded and the first post-Challenger flight was eight months away.

Educators pessimistic about beefing up school security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Educators are taking a new look at school security in light of the latest student shootings, but most say even the tightest precautions won't shield pupils from would-be killers in all cases.

"You can set up the procedures; you can have detection systems; you can reinforce the rules for entering a school building. But still it's very difficult to offer the kind of airtight protection that students need," said Gary Marx, a spokesman for the American Association of School Administrators.

Some officials are calling for greater restrictions on sales of weapons, particularly automatic rifles, after last week's killings in a Stockton, Calif., elementary school yard. A gunman, Patrick Purdy, murdered five children and wounded 30 people using an AK-47 assault rifle before killing himself, police say.

"It's not fair to say there's nothing you can do," said Bill Honig, superintendent of the California school system. "But it's pretty hard to do something about this kind of guy. He was going to get into the school somehow. Even with an armed guard, he would have just shot past him."

He added: "The crime is that these weapons are around... How many more innocent children are going to have to die before you decide to do something about the availability of weapons of war?"

Nevertheless, Honig said school personnel have been told to "beef up vigilance" and he said he expects Gov. George Deukmejian to sign a bill this year requiring every school to have a safety plan. He vetoed it last year on cost grounds.

Overloaded boats sink, 16 dead

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Two overloaded boats sank in a southern bay, killing 16 people and leaving dozens missing, news reports said Friday.

The boats sank Wednesday in the bay of Inhambane about 180 miles north of Maputo, Radio Mozambique said. It was not clear if the vessels had collided.

The national news agency, AIM, said one boat carried 47 people. It did not say how many were on the second boat.

AIM said neither boat was authorized to transport passengers across the bay, which is served by ferry boats.

Czechs to ban sale of alcohol

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Authorities plan to ban sale of alcoholic drinks at sports events and other public gatherings to combat alcoholism, an official report said Friday.

The ban will be included in a law expected to be adopted in March, an official of the city's largest anti-drug research center said.

"This law has been discussed ever since the late 1970s, but each time there was somebody who didn't like it," the official said on condition of anonymity.

The ban will include sale of alcoholic beverages at cultural events and dances, according to the official CTX news agency's broadcast Friday.

Minister calls for talks with PLO

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Cabinet minister on Friday called for opening talks with the PLO, and a newspaper said an aide to Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin met with a Palestinian leader on how to end the uprising in the occupied lands.

The Hebrew daily Maariv said Rabin adviser Shmuel Goren visited Faisal Husseini, who is imprisoned at the Kfar Yonah prison in central Israel, and that the two held a series of secret meetings on political initiatives for restoring calm to the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Defense Ministry spokesman Eitan Haber refused comment on the reported meetings, which would mark a shift in the government's policy of not talking with the Palestine Liberation Organization. It considers the PLO a terrorist organization.

Rebels blow up Colombian pipeline

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist rebels blew up part of Colombia's biggest oil pipeline and forced it to close, the state oil company Ecopetrol said Friday.

The pipeline, which was attacked Wednesday, will be shut through Saturday, the company said.

The pipeline takes oil 500 miles from the Canon Limon field along the Venezuela border to the Caribbean port of Coveñas. It pumps about 220,000 barrels a day.

Tower arrives for NATO session

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — John Tower, the U.S. defense secretary-designate, arrived Friday for a strategy session with NATO allies in which he will warn of a possible Kremlin ploy to weaken the Western alliance.

Tower took a break from Senate confirmation hearings to address the 28th annual conference of policymakers from the 16 NATO members. He is expected to be confirmed.

"I find this to be a very interesting and productive conference because of the frankness of the exchange of views," Tower told The Associated Press upon arrival.

Americans prepare to pull out of Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The few remaining staff members locked the U.S. Embassy's gray steel doors Friday and plan to evacuate before the Red Army leaves the ravaged Afghan capital.

One Western diplomat said the decision to close the embassy was a surprise and indicated lack of confidence in both the Soviet-sponsored government and the insurgents, to whom the United States provides arms.

A Soviet official called it "psychological warfare" intended to undermine the government and get other nations to do the same.

Britain and Japan announced Friday they also would shut their Kabul missions. France said its embassy would be closed "provisionally."

In Washington, President Bush said there was

"uncertainty about what follows" the Soviet departure and the embassy was being closed to protect American lives.

When asked when the embassy would be formally closed, Jon D. Glassman, U.S. charge d'affaires, said: "That's not information we are giving out."

The State Department said Thursday the remaining Americans would leave in a few days. Dependents and all but 11 diplomats and security guards already have been evacuated.

A battle for Kabul, which is surrounded by insurgents, is expected after the last Soviet forces withdraw Feb. 15 under a U.N.-mediated agreement. The embassy is in the heart of the capital next to the state radio and across from secret police headquarters, both prime targets for the guerrillas.

A dispatch from Kabul by official Soviet news agency Tass said five rockets fired by "extremists from among the intransigent opposition" hit residential areas of Kabul on Friday, killing a child and damaging several buildings.

Moslem guerrillas have rejected Soviet and government proposals for a political settlement. They began fighting after a communist coup 11 years ago and Soviet soldiers entered Afghanistan in December 1979.

An estimated 115,000 Soviet troops were here when the withdrawal began May 15 and the last 50,000 are to be gone by Feb. 15.

They leave behind a conscript Afghan army plagued by desertion, with compulsory service young men flee the country to avoid.

British aviation pioneer who designed Sopwith Camel dies

LONDON (AP) — Aviation pioneer Sir Thomas Sopwith, who gave Britain its finest fighter planes in three wars and designed the aircraft that brought down Germany's infamous "Red Baron" in World War I, died Friday. He was 101.

"The genius of flight is dead," said a headline in London's Evening Standard newspaper.

"Tommy Sopwith died in his sleep in his mansion near Winchester in southern England. He really he died of old age, but he had a marvelous innings (life)," said his son, Thomas.

Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith was born Jan. 18, 1888, into a wealthy engineering family. He was the first son after seven daughters.

He was an accomplished race car driver, yachtsman and balloonist when he taught himself to fly in 1910. The Wright brothers had made the first powered flight in 1903 in the United States.

After walking away from several crashes, Sopwith was given the 31st aviator's license issued in Britain.

Sopwith used money from American flying prizes to set up the Sopwith Aviation Co. in 1912, producing the Sopwith Pup, Snipe and Camel planes.

The Sopwith Camel, single-seat fighter, shot down 1,291 enemy planes in World War I, the most kills for any aircraft in that war. Germany's legendary "Red Baron," Manfred von Richthofen, was shot-down by British pilot Roy Brown in a Camel.

After the war, Sopwith founded the Hawker Siddeley company, along with his Australian mechanic and test-pilot Harry Hawker and friend Ered Sigrist. The company made him a millionaire by the 1930s.

When the Air Ministry couldn't make up its mind in 1935 about a new breed of fighters, Sopwith ordered his factories to build 1,000 of the rugged monoplane eight-gun Hurricanes designed by Sydney Camm.

The Air Ministry bought them and the Hurricane formed the air force backbone in the 1940 Battle of Britain. In that battle, it destroyed more enemy planes than all the rest of the air and ground defenses combined, including the faster Spitfire.

Sopwith was knighted in 1953.

In the 1960s, Sopwith's team developed the Harrier vertical takeoff fighter, which Britain used against the Argentine air force in the 1982 Falklands war. The Harrier is one of the U.S. Marine Corps' favored aircraft.

Sopwith said the Harrier's "high technology" made it the favorite of all his planes.

Steeler defensive genius to lead Browns

The Associated Press
CLEVELAND — Bud Carson, the architect of Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" defense during the late 1970s, was named Friday as head coach of the Cleveland Browns...

of his contract, though a source said the first year would pay Carson about $400,000... Carson said he had no qualms about accepting a job upon which Modall had placed certain strict conditions...

tor George Seifert was on his way to Cleveland for an interview before being called back and hired as the 49ers head coach... Carson said he would hire a defensive coordinator. The Browns plan to interview former Pittsburgh defensive coordinator Tony Dungy for that job next week...

Carson noted that rules changes have given advantages to offenses over the past 10 years, so offensive coaches have been more likely to move up... "The Lindy Infantes and those types of people were getting jobs," he said...

Majors balk on balk rule

NEW YORK — The balk rules that bogged down baseball last season have come to a discernible stop... The changes that led to a record 924 balks — up from 366 the previous year — are being dropped...

No longer will pitchers be required to make a "discernible" stop in the set position, although they still must come to a complete halt... Pitchers no longer must have "both feet on the ground when they set."

The Major League Baseball Players Association, which has the right to approve or veto such changes, opposed the newer language...

"We thought that the change, both in enforcement and language, was inappropriate and likely to force changes in the game that nobody wanted," Don Fehr, executive director of the union, said...

The balk rule is to be enforced in 1989 as it was in 1987 and in earlier years, Fehr said... "I expect that to be good faith... But the squawking about balking might continue."

"They took the word 'discernible' out, but you still have to come to a complete stop... Ed Vargo, supervisor of National League umpires, said: 'It's going to come down to judgment from the umpires. I guess we enforced it before.'"

Marty Springstead, supervisor of American League umpires, said this week's change "doesn't really mean much."

"I think at the end of the season, they will be pretty much coming to a stop... That's the way it was meant to be anyway," he said.

Bill Murray of the commissioner's office and chairman of the rules committee said: "I'm sure the umpires will call what they see."

"There was a noticeable decline in the number of balks during the second half or the last-third of the season," Murray said... "The pitchers became used to what the umpires were calling."

There were 253 balks in April, 190 in May and 142 in June... In September and October, a total of 105 were called.

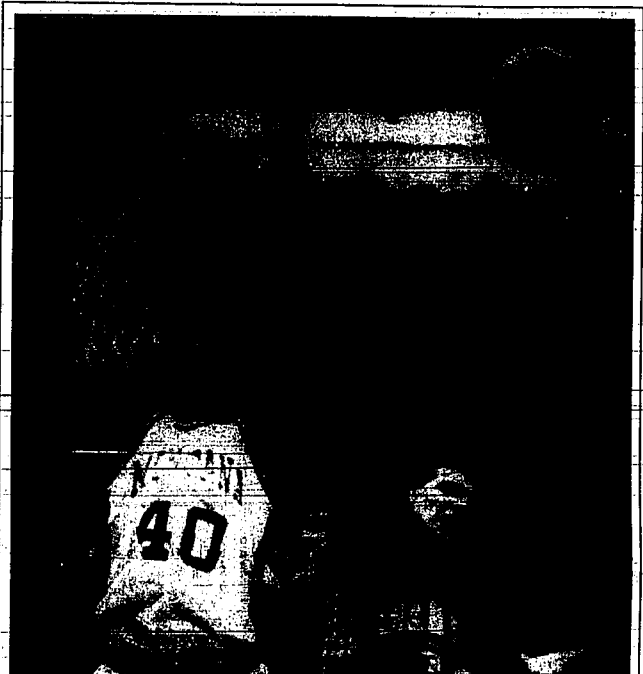

Overall, 558 balks were called in the AL and 366 in the NL... Dave Stewart of Oakland set a single-season record with 16 balks. Teammate Bob Welch was next with 13.

Minico, Pocatello look to upend Highland matmen

By RON GATES
TWIN FALLS — A trophy, representing regional wrestling supremacy in the high school A-1 classification for 1988, stands on display in the hallway of Minico High School...

When the 1989 Region III state-qualifying wrestling tournament opens this morning at Twin Falls High School, the defending champion Spartans, along with the Pocatello Indians, will be looking to dilute the power of Highland's unbeaten (11-0) Rams...

Session one — 216 contested matches in all — begins at 10 a.m. with championships to be decided in 13 weight classes starting at 5:30 p.m.

NJCAA hits Salt Lake CC with probation, losses

SALT LAKE CITY — The National Junior College Athletic Association has placed the Salt Lake Community College basketball program on a year's probation and ordered the team to forfeit five victories, a school spokesman confirmed Friday...

Barker said... Barker said details were sketchy, but someone besides Stagers had taken the GED test... She said Stagers, a 6-foot-4, 206-pound prep all-American, had been recruited heavily by University of Texas-El Paso of the Western Athletic Conference, but was unable to attend because he lacked a high school diploma...

player Simon O'Donnell of Australia $1,000 for a plane ticket to the United States last summer... Barker said O'Donnell had been registered in the 1988 summer quarter, but had left school after that... The loan has not been repaid, she said...

Minico, Pocatello look to upend Highland matmen

children 6-12-years-old... Six Highland wrestlers, including 1988 state placers Shane Bell (119), Scott Keller (112), Chris Wehrli (125), Darrin Allen (171) and heavyweight Marty Frazzura, carry No. 1 seedings and those six boast a combined record of 108-15 in individual matches...

So dominant was Minico in last year's event that, bolstered by pin and advancement points, the Spartans assured themselves of the team title before the championship round had begun... "We've got a shot," says Minico coach Brad Cooper of the team title... "Based on seedings, the Spartans should place five more wrestlers in the final round including favorites Roy Villaseca (19-3) at 103, Mark Serf (17-31) at 140 and 145-pound Jared Bacon (19-4)..."

New free agency to begin

By The Associated Press
The NFL's latest experiment with free agency begins Wednesday, when more than 600 players from the bottom of the NFL's rosters will become totally free to sign with any other team... Under the system, designed to satisfy U.S. District Court Judge David Dole, who is presiding over the antitrust suit filed by the players union at the conclusion of the 1987 strike, national star players will be included...

expired — like All-Pro defensive end Bruce Smith of Buffalo... They would be subject to compensation under the old system that netted Chicago two first-round picks when Wilber Marshall signed last year with Washington... But while there will be some big names among the unprotected group, they'll be the lame, the halt, the elderly and the overpaid...

They'll see Super Bowl players, Pro Bowl players, very big names," says Tom Schrann, president of the Dallas Cowboys... But there will be reasons for them — they'll be bad medical risks, they'll be older. A lot of them will be getting good salaries, own homes in the area, things like that...

Barbara May sets lift mark

OKLAHOMA CITY — Barbara May set a national record and was joined in the U.S. weightlifting championship by Halley's Kim Lane in the national weightlifting contest here Friday...

May, a resident of Twin Falls, won the 123-pound class with a total of 787.7 pounds, both a personal and a national record... Lane was the 114-pound class national champion with a 716-pound total.

Business

Prices bull ahead; Dow up 31.79

The Associated Press
NEW YORK — The stock market capped off a week of big gains with another strong advance Friday in the heaviest trading in seven months.

Analysts said investors, especially professional money managers, continued to scramble after stocks to get aboard an unexpectedly sharp and durable rally dating back to late November.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 31.79 to 2,322.86, bringing its gain for the week to 87.60 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board reached 264.87 million shares up from 212.25 million Thursday and the heaviest total since a 264.41 million-share day last June 27.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 299.97 million shares.

Before-the-market opened, the Commerce Department estimated that the U.S. gross national product grew at a annual rate of 2 percent, after adjustment for inflation, in the fourth quarter of last year.

The quote came in well above estimates on Wall Street, and provided a fresh bit of evidence for the case that the economy was slowing to a sustainable, not-very-inflationary pace.

Bond traders welcomed the news by bidding up prices of long-term government bonds.

That, in turn, provided fresh momentum for an advance in stock prices that has already been gathering steam of late.

Brokers said a strong dollar in foreign exchange also helped stir up investors' enthusiasm for stocks.

Hopes for a return of individual investors in significant numbers sparked broad gains in stocks of brokerage firms that rely heavily on dealings with the public.
