Hole torn in jet's side pulls 9 to death

The Associated Press

HONOLULU (AP) — A gaping hole ripped open on the right side of a United Airlines jumbo jet carrying 351 people Friday, sucking nine passengers to their death 20,000 feet above the Pacific Ocean. The pilot brought the Boeing 747 back safely for an emergency landing at Honolulu International Airport. Two of the engines had failed, but it wasn't clear whether the failure was connected with the fuselage ripping open. He had to dump fuel, and then fly the return to Honolulu and land that plane safely. We would characterize that as heroic," Lawrence M. Nagin, a United senior vice president, said in Chicago. The Honolulu medical examiner's office said later Friday that "multiple small body fragments and pieces of clothing" were found in the one of the right-side engines. Deputy Medical Examiner Mary Flynn said it was not known whether the fragments were from one or more bodies. Twenty-seven passengers were treated at hospitals and five were hospitalized. Federal aviation investigators had not determined the cause of the hole, but were leaning toward structural failure as the likeliest explanation. Initial reports from the pilot and some passengers indicated they had heard an explosion. "All of a sudden, I could see the sky and feel the wind," said passenger Kaji Yamamoto, 23, of Osaka, Japan. "The roof was breaking. Something was blowing toward us." United's Flight 81, which originated in San Francisco and Los Angeles, had departed Honolulu International Airport with 336 passengers and 18 crew members at 1:34 a.m. (4:34 a.m. MST) for Auckland, New Zealand, and Sydney, Australia. It returned 59 minutes later with a 10-by-30-foot vertical hole in its right side near the front of the craft. "There is an area where there used to be a cargo door and it's not there any more," said Eugene Glenn, special agent in charge of the Honolulu FBI office. But Glenn said it was not known whether the loss of the cargo door was a cause of the accident or a result. The government last July ordered airlines to improve cargo door lock systems on older Boeing 747s, saying the directive was prompted by a lower lobe forward cargo door with damaged lock sectors that partially opened in flight. The summary of the directive did not say what flight or what airline was involved. United spokesman Russell Mack in Chicago said the airline had revised the number of missing to nine, after previously estimating 16. He said six were still hospitalized. A Hawaii transportation department spokesman said the coroner's office was called in to investigate whether one body might still be on board. "We still have no basis on which to discern" • See PLANE on Page A2

'Fore!' in February

Mild February weather has put the bend back into the knees of many area golfers, swinging at the chance to return to the links. Here, Jerry Ferrante takes a shot from the fairway at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course as Roy Gikiu, left, and Don Hutchings watch. The golf course officially opens for the season today, but some holes will be closed by wet conditions. The mild temperatures prompted an early opener this year.

Fed teaching Bush lesson on economics

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Only five weeks into the new presidency, the Federal Reserve Board is teaching the Bush administration a painful lesson.

It doesn't pay to get into a fight with the folks who set interest rates.

Since taking office, President Bush has been suggesting the Fed not choke off the economic expansion by pushing interest rates higher.

The president got the Fed's response Friday. And it was just the opposite of what he had hoped to hear.

The central bank raised its discount rate, the fee it charges for loans to commercial banks, to 7 percent, its highest level in three years.

A boost in the discount rate is the most dramatic signal the board can send of its intentions to push a broad range of interest rates higher in an effort to slow an overheated economy.

Three times since Jan. 20, Bush has brushed away worries about inflation and said he didn't see the need for the Fed to give the economy a dose of tighter credit. Rather, he said, the central bank should worry more about economic growth because he did not see signs that inflation was getting out of hand.

Those comments were echoed Thursday by the administration's chief economic spokesman, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, who said central bank policy-makers were anticipating too

McClure thinks anti-nuclear conspiracy influences Idahoans

By N.S. NORKKENTVED Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's senior senator says local environmental groups may be influenced by a national conspiracy against the U.S. nuclear industry.

"I think there is a broad national conspiracy working in a lot of areas," Sen. James McClure said in a telephone interview Friday. "There is a national effort focussed against all nuclear projects and nuclear weapons."

McClure said he thinks Magic Valley environmental groups are being fed inaccurate and misleading information by professional environmentalists such as the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The senator suggested that the national environmental group Greenpeace had sent paid professionals to Poaceltella to "coach" people testifying at public hearings on the New Production Reactor proposed for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Liz Paul, executive director of the Snake River Alliance, conceded in an interview later Friday that various groups, including Idaho groups, have been involved in a national campaign to stop nuclear weapons production for 41 years. But they are no more a part of a conspiracy than the groups McClure has urged people to form to support activities at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, she said.

Except for the Snake River Alliance, environmental groups operating in the Magic Valley have no paid staff, she said. Though the alliance sponsored workshops in Poaceltella for witnesses at the NPR hearing, Paul said she was not aware of anyone else in the area conducting workshops or coaching witnesses.

The alliance is not affiliated with Greenpeace or any other national organization, though the group does exchange mail with other groups, Paul said.

McClure suggested the alliance's funding comes from "wholly out-of-state" sources. But Paul said half the group's finances come from private donations, mostly

Cleanup cost may exceed estimate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The cost of cleaning up radioactive and toxic wastes at the government's 12-state nuclear weapons complex is likely to exceed the official $83 billion estimate, a senior Energy Department official told Congress on Friday.

Raymond P. Berube, deputy assistant secretary for environment, said a firm estimate for cleanup costs was not yet possible because the department is uncertain how badly the environment has been damaged at many of the weapons plants.

"There's a strong chance that these costs will go higher" than $83 billion, he said, adding that projected costs are likely to escalate as more detailed information is learned about the extent of the soil and groundwater contamination.

"There's a lot of uncertainty at this point," he told a House Armed Services subcommittee.

Berube said that while contamination at some sites could be cleaned up in two or three years, work at the most polluted plants "will require decades to complete."

He cited the Pinellas Plant, near Largo, Fla., which makes electronic components for nuclear weapons, as a likely candidate for speedy cleanup, in part because the vinyl chloride contamination there is less far flung and is not radioactive.

Among the most difficult cleanup jobs will be at the Hanford Reservation, near Richland, Wash., which Berube said is the most polluted site in the entire complex, and the Savannah River Plant, near Aiken, S.C., which produces a highly radioactive gas. There has been extensive contamination of soil and groundwater at these sites, dating back to the early years of operation in the 1950s.

Key elements of the weapons complex, including parts of Savannah River, Hanford and the Rocky Flats plutonium processing plant in Colorado, have been closed.

Spending raises red ink danger

The Associated Press

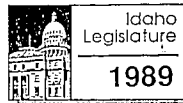

BOISE — The spending spree of legislative budget writers continued unabated Friday, bringing Republican leaders to the realization that the 1990 budget is heading toward a sea of red ink.

Administration officials estimated the financial blueprint for the year beginning July 1 will end up $14 million in the hole after the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee's latest actions that ran budgets for more state operations, including the courts, well over the recommendations of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

But even the governor benefited from the committee's largesse on Friday, winning approval of his priority $100,000 pilot program to help the elderly remain in their homes. It was the first Andrus budget priority outside education that the committee has approved.

With Andrus steering clear of further comments on the budget actions in what aides called "watchful waiting," GOP legislative leaders acknowledged that by their estimates the deficit was probably $10 million and maybe more.

Warning of a Federal Reserve Board induced slowdown in the economy to cool inflation, Senate Republican Floor Leader Boyer Fairchild of Fruitland urged the budget writers to exercise prudence in the rest of their deliberations.

But the committee added more than $22 million to the spending plan it has been fashioning for six days. The surplus, once at $52 million, was depleted earlier in the week with special allocations for education, and the latest actions pushed total continuing budget recommendations so far to over $58 million of the $74 million in anticipated tax revenues for the coming year.

The biggest beneficiary of the committee's free hand on Friday was the state judiciary, which won approval for $4.2 million to install a sophisticated computerized trial court records system in every county of the state over the next two years.

"It's the one item in the budget that will give us some relief in the counties," said Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston.

Court officials also said they needed the entire amount so they could make contracts on the computer equipment at better prices. The panel also approved the governor's plan for a pilot program of offering income care for the elderly as their relatives can get away for a while.

Tower vote ruins debut for Bush

By TERENCE HUNT The Associated Press

TOKYO — President Bush's diplomatic debut on the world stage has been spoiled and his new administration has been thrown on the defensive by a Senate committee's rejection of his choice of John Tower to be defense secretary.

And if that weren't enough, Bush got more bad news from home during his Far East tour Friday when the Federal Reserve Board boosted its key discount rate to dampen inflationary pressures. Bush has been arguing that there is not enough inflation to justify higher interest rates.

With leaders of more than 160 nations assembled here for the funeral of Emperor Hirohito, the politically embarrassing news of Tower's rebuff by the Senate Armed Services Committee was splashed across the front pages of Japanese newspapers.

Back in the United States, television viewers saw reporters bombarding Bush, Secretary of State James A. Baker III and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft with questions about Tower's troubles, not the president's talks with foreign leaders.

All in all, it wasn't the kind of script the White House would have written for Bush's first overseas

Attorney tells of flight's horror

By The Los Angeles Times

Attorney Bruce Lampert had been working marathon hours representing victims of the crash of a Continental jetliner ever since it went down in December, 1979, just outside Denver.

He was tired, so he signed up for a trip to New Zealand and Australia — aboard United Airlines Flight 811.

"I was doing it to get away from all of it," Lampert, 40, said Friday on the telephone from his Honolulu hotel room. "It's ironic. I just wanted time off away from airplanes and these airplane crashes before I start work on the next one."

Lampert, who lives in Denver, is a seasoned private pilot and once important all the more harmful, he said.

McClore also commented on Gov. Cecil Andrus' relaxing of his five-month-old ban on nuclear waste shipments into the state. Though the federal government no doubt could roll over the governor's ban, it isn't looking for a fight with Idaho or New Mexico, McClore said.

The ban was issued in October because of delay in opening the Energy Department's troubled Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, or WIPP, a permanent radioactive waste disposal site, in New Mexico.

The government has bent over backward to avoid conflict, McClore said.

"There is no doubt the government is deadly serious on moving to open WIPP," McClore said.

viewed.

Across from him, he watched two couples fighting the guests that threatened to pull them through two windows that had burst beside them.

"The wives were sitting next to the blown-out windows," Lampert said. "Both husbands just grabbed their wives, held them, pulled them as far away from the windows as possible. I've never seen such looks of terror... The women were being held by their husbands for dear life. It was like a hug of death."

For Lampert and others in the full top compartment, there was incredible noise and a constant wind-stream rush of debris. It was almost, he said, "like airborne fiberglass" hitting them. Flight attendants, trying to give instructions to the passengers, shouted to be heard above the din but it was useless.

"They had to do everything by hand signals," Lampert said. It was like a pantomime... a pantomime of horror."

Even worse, there was the uncertainty: Was this a bomb blast? And would they survive whatever it was?

"The horror of it was we didn't know... if the remaining skin on the airplane was going to hold or not."

From Idahoans. The other half comes from foundation grants.

Though McClore agreed it is important for people in a democratic nation to question their government, it is important for them to have accurate information. It is particularly important in light of the Energy Department's "inept" handling of problems at its various nuclear weapons plants across the country, he said.

The Energy Department and DuPont, its contractor operating the troubled Savannah River Plant, covered up safety problems at the plant in an effort to get the New Production Reactor project, McClore said.

"I condemn that practice," he said. The INEL has a much better record, but other Energy Department foibles have built distrust, he said.

"That, however, makes misleading information all the more harmful, he said.

Correction

A story Friday incorrectly stated that Martha Mead, Idaho's Mother of the Year, had worked as a probation officer and that the national convention for American Mothers Inc. would be in Coeur d'Alene.

Former Mother of the Year Helen Henderson — not Mead — was a probation officer. The convention will be in Spokane.

The Times-News regrets the errors.

Plane

"Whether the damage was caused by a bomb, or whether it was structural damage caused by some internal failure," said Rep. James L. Oberstar, D-Minn., chairman of the House aviation subcommittee after consulting with federal officials investigating the incident.

He said he thought the "likeliest explanation" for the damage was stress failure, perhaps compounded by maintenance problems. The ripping away of the fuselage skin appeared to have occurred along rivet lines, he said.

The Seattle Times, citing Federal Aviation Administration records, reported that United Airlines filed a "service difficulty report" in January 1977 on the 18-year-old jet after mechanics found cracks and corrosion around the pylon of the No. 3 engine. The plane is the oldest 747 in United's jumbo jet fleet.

Bobbie Mardis, an FAA spokesman in Oklahoma City where the agency's safety files are kept, said the aircraft's history also included an engine fire in 1988.

But Lawrence M. Nagin, a United senior vice president, said the craft underwent a four-day complete inspection 88 days ago, and a less intensive check on Feb. 16.

"It has no history of maintenance problems. This aircraft had a routine maintenance history," Nagin told reporters in Chicago.

FAA spokesman John Leyden in Washington said the pilot reported losing power in one right-side engine nine minutes after takeoff and, after turning to Honolulu, eight minutes later radiated he had lost power in the other right-side engine.

United said the pilot was David Cronin, 55, a 34-year veteran, based in Los Angeles.

The FBI sent bomb experts to the investigation, but a determination of whether it was a bomb has not been made," said FBI spokesman, Harold Frymer.

At least 14 suffered minor injuries. Six remained hospitalized, according to a United spokesman. A 49-year-old woman was in guarded condition in intensive care at Queen's Medical Center with cervical and abdominal injuries.

Coast Guard spokesman Dave Goss said search aircraft found debris in the search area in the Pacific Ocean about 100 miles south of Honolulu. However, he said it was not known if it was parts of the damaged plane. A Coast Guard vessel was en route to recover the debris, he said.

"As far as I know there have been no bodies found by the Coast Guard," said Nagin.

Passengers and crew offered differing characterizations of the incident.

Being spokesman John Wheeler in Seattle said the plane, a 747-100 delivered November 1970, was "designed for long structural life."

Fed

He likened the Fed's efforts to combat inflation by raising interest rates to shooting at a duck.

"When you're aiming at a duck, you can miss it. You can aim too much ahead of it or too much behind it," Brady said, adding that the administration would like the Fed to "aim a little closer to it."

Brady did not even try to sugarcoat the message by adding, as Bush had, that he did not believe he and the central bank were all that far apart.

While disputes between the central bank and a president are not uncommon, some members of Congress were taken aback by Brady's apparent disregard for the threat of inflation, especially given the barrage of bad news on the price front in recent weeks.

Labor costs, wholesale prices and consumer prices have all been headed higher. The government reported Wednesday that retail prices shot up at their fastest pace in two years last month, an annual rate of 7.2 percent, almost double the 4.4 percent increase recorded in 1988.

"I'm disappointed that the administration is not more serious about this problem," Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., lectured Brady during his appearance before the House Banking Committee.

What concerns many observers is that the Fed may be forced to boost interest rates higher and more quickly than it had intended to dispel doubts in financial markets about the central bank's resolve to fight inflation because of the administration's verbal sniping.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, a longtime Republican strategist and close friend of Bush, has gone out of his way to emphasize the central bank's political independence even though he and the other six board members were all appointed by former President Reagan.

Recognizing the dangers of a public dispute with the Fed, Bush budget director Richard Darman took the unusual step on Friday of telling his colleagues in the administration to cool it.

He said disputes between an administration and the Fed were "extremely unhelpful" adding, "It tends to be unsettling to the (financial) markets, unsettling to foreigners and confusing to people who are trying to plan and none of those things is good for the economy."

Darman's unspoken fear is that foreigners, who finance an increasing share of America's borrowing needs, might suddenly decide to dump their dollar-denominated assets because of fears that the Fed had responded to political pressure and abandoned its inflation-fighting campaign.

Many economists believe such a "dollar strike" is the most likely way the next recession will be triggered. Fears about the intentions of foreign investors helped trigger Black Monday, the 508-point drop in the stock market of October 1987.

With the increase in the discount rate, the central bank hopes to demonstrate its resolve and keep the economy headed toward a soft landing, the process whereby gradual increases in interest rates are enough over time to slow economic demand and thus relieve inflationary pressures.

journey as president.

The selection of Tower has been a near-constant problem for Bush more than two months, even before the nomination was announced in January. There have been repeated questions about excessive drinking, womanizing and possible conflict of interest involving defense contractors.

Dismissing the allegations as rumor and gossip, Bush has steadfastly defended Tower and taken the political heat.

"I'm going to strongly continue to back Sen. Tower and I do not believe he is going down the drain," Bush said. He vowed to carry the fight to salvage the nomination to the Senate floor.

White House chief of staff John Sununu was on the telephone to Washington throughout the night trying to devise a workable strategy. Bush made some calls to influential senators, but to no avail.

The 11-9 vote against Tower, split solidly along party lines with the Democrats holding the edge, dealt a blow to Bush and the song of bipartisan cooperation he has been singing since his inauguration a month ago.

Putting the best possible face on the situation, Bush said, "The honey-moon's still going fine and I'm not going to let total agreement on every issue..."

However, he acknowledged that considering he wants Tower confirmed as his Pentagon chief, "I can't say it's a pat on the back."

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said it would be a "kick in the teeth" to the president if the full Senate rejected Tower. Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, said the committee's party-line vote against Tower would make it harder to forge a bipartisan defense policy.

Here for the funeral of Emperor Hirohito, the president held separate talks over the past two days with the leaders of 17 nations. By all appearances, the sessions went off without a hitch, although the stakes did not seem very high.

In advance of the trip, Sen. Tower had and the meetings would not delve into substantive issues, nor would they yield any decisions.

White House press secretary Martin Fitzwater said the problem with Tower did not come up in any of Bush's meetings.

Some dealers won't sell assault rifles

LEWISTON (AP) — Tired of the uproar over white supremacists and survivalists in the area, some northern Idaho gunshop dealers say they refuse to carry assault rifles on their racks.

Moscow's Husky Sport Shop carries semi-automatic rifles that some consider bordering on assault rifles. But the real article, such as Russian AK-47s, have no place in the shop.

"I think they're a different customer who's looking for those and I don't think they're really interested in carrying that kind of gun," store manager Steven Lyle said.

Given the region's reputation among some for harboring survivalists and supremacists, Lyle said, staying away from military-style weapons also distances the store from the wrong elements, keeping more to pleasant or deer hunters.

"We kind of like to keep away from those people in our store," he said.

Several factors convinced Gordon Hoeder that Lolo Sporting Goods in Lewiston was not the place for true assault rifles.

Hoeder got the feeling shortly after he returned from lunch one day. Several high quality Heckler & Koch rifles were kept at the end of the rack. When he came back one was in the garbage can at the end of the counter.

"I kept trying to figure out who was in the store when I went to lunch that day. But I never could figure out who did it. They were all good old customers," Hoeder said.

"Somebody just sort of told me we didn't need them in here," Hoeder added. "I'm a gun lover. I just don't think that's something the average citizen needs to have in his hands unless he's a military collector."

"I have suppliers who always want to sell me those kinds of guns. They just won't believe I won't sell something like that," he said.

PUC approves US West rate cut

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved US West Communications' proposal to cut basic phone rates about $1 per month in return for regulators dropping an investigation into alleged overcharges by the company.

But the three-member commission, at Friday's continuation of a decision meeting began Wednesday, expressed some apprehension about the potentially revolutionary nature of the plan.

"I see it as a miniature version of the shock of the AT&T divestiture," Commissioner Perry Swisher said. "It's that kind of turf we're walking on."

The plan calls for US West to give up about $8.5 million a year in basic telephone charges and includes a revenue-sharing provision in which some profits from increased business could further reduce rates.

50-state quilt took 3 years to make

BOISE (AP) — A 50-state quilt took three years in the making, but is worth it for Boise Basin Quilters.

They presented their 1985 National Governor's Conference Quilt on Thursday to Gov. Cecil Andrus in the Statehouse rotunda.

The group had asked for quilt segments from quilt guilds in each state to sew together with strips signed by the 50 governors attending the conference three years ago when John Evans was governor.

"It took months and on a few occasions a year or longer to even hear back from some of the guilds," said quilter Ann Weatherwax. Included among the signatories are former governors George Wallace of Alabama and John Sununu of New Hampshire, as well as Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis before he ran against George Bush.

The quilt is on display in Andrus' office until the end of the legislative session. It then will be displayed by other guilds around the nation before returning to the Idaho Historical Museum.

Accused teacher to return to class

COTTONWOOD (AP) — Before a standing ovation of some 600 Cottonwood area residents, schoolteacher Gerald Richardson has been returned to his duties following allegations of sexual misconduct.

"Mr. Richardson will return to the balance of his teaching duties tomorrow," said School Board Chairman Lee Rehder on Thursday night.

—A teacher in the district for the past 14 years, Richardson had been the target of sweeping allegations of sexual misconduct with students.

While such claims usually are discussed in closed executive session by a school board, they were detailed and made public in a trustee recommendation on Feb. 15 for discharge handed down last week.

After meeting in executive session for some three hours Thursday night, board members convened in the gymnasium of the Cottonwood Middle School and announced they were withdrawing their recommendation for discharge.

Court denies death sentence appeal

BOISE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court on Friday refused to block the death sentence imposed on an Idaho slayer, Donald Kenneth Fetterly.

But Fetterly's attorney, Van Bishop of Nampa, announced that he is preparing a U.S. District Court appeal and will file it with the court in Boise next week.

The Idaho Supreme Court was advised Friday that the Supreme Court rejected Fetterly's appeal from an Idaho order refusing to block the execution.

Bishop said the U.S. Supreme Court did not immediately rule on a second petition, asking review of the Idaho proceedings. It said the Idaho proceedings are improper, because an accomplice, convicted of the same slaying, did not receive the death sentence.

Van plans to file next week an appeal, partially based on an appeals court ruling in an Arizona case. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held earlier in the Arizona case that a jury, not a judge, must decide whether the death penalty shall be imposed in a first-degree murder case.

Board says UI search not 'anti-press'

BOISE (AP) — A state Board of Education member's statement that the search for a successor to University of Idaho President Richard Gibb has been "too public" stemmed from frustration rather than a penchant for secrecy, board executive director Rayburn Barton says.

Board member Diane Bilyeu of Pocatello said last Tuesday that intense media coverage of the search for a new president at the Moscow school had made the process difficult for both candidates and board members.

But Rayburn Barton, the board's executive director, said Friday that while some information must remain confidential, there has been no attempt to shut the public out of the search process.

"I think the comment by Mrs. Bilyeu and some of the others that have been made by board members are not out of a feeling of anti-press," he said. "I think it just grows out of frustration with some of the things we've experienced."

Barton made his comments during taping of KTVB's "Viewpoint" weekly public affairs program.

He said negotiations by the board were continuing with the only remaining presidential candidate, Elisabeth Zinser, academic vice chancellor of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro.

She was among four finalists for the position, but the other three dropped out before and during the final interview process. They gave various reasons, including dissatisfaction with the relationship between the board's executive director and the institutional presidents in Idaho's higher education system.

Barton said the problem was partly the result of confusion over an organizational chart he designed outlining the relationship between university presidents, his position and the Board of Education.

The chart indicated no direct link between the presidents and the board, implying that they would report directly to Barton. He has called that "a mistake," and on Friday reiterated that it was only intended to reflect changes made by the board last September to strengthen the position of executive director.

The changes were aimed at allowing the person in that position to deal more effectively with systemic issues, to participate more in recruitment and evaluation of presidents, and to improve communications within the system, Barton said.

"Idaho is not operating under a chancellorship," he said. But he acknowledged that the issue was included on a list Zinser submitted on Thursday of "things that she's interested in."

"The board will be discussing those with her in the next few days,"

Barton said. "I think it's going to be at least another week before we have a definite answer."

No formal offer has yet been extended, but Barton said the job is Zinser's for the taking.

"I can assure you that regardless of these (other finalists) dropping out ... the end result would be the same," he said. "The person that the board wants to hire for Dr. Gibb's successor is Elisabeth Zinser."

But to do it, Barton said some concessions will have to be made, including an enhanced compensation package for the UI presidency to make it more attractive to candidates from higher-paying systems.

Zinser currently makes about $96,000. The UI position pays less than $82,000, plus the use of a house on campus and a car.

"It is a fact that if we are able to recruit her, we are going to have to make some changes within the salary at the University of Idaho," Barton said.

Lottery director doesn't want tax

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's lottery director says it would be adding "insult to injury" if the state tried to tax lottery winnings, after taking up to 35 percent of the gross proceeds.

"The idea is to make it exciting and enjoyable and lucrative as well," said Lottery Director Wallace Hedrick.

He appeared before the House State Affairs Committee on Friday, as the panel voted "do pass" approval for legislation which will clear the way for adoption of lottery rules and regulations.

Once the regulations are adopted, Idaho's state lottery will begin. Officials estimate it will be in the second half of this year, but the exact date is uncertain.

Deputy Attorney General Pat Kolt told committee members House Bill 213 makes required changes in legislation approved last year to start the lottery.

Jerome may get recreation center, second pool

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - The city of Jerome may soon be faced with the problem of keeping two swimming pools afloat.

City Attorney Rob Williams told the City Council this week Spears Manufacturing Co. wants to donate the Tupperware plant's pool and recreation center to Jerome or the Jerome County Recreation District.

"If this works out, it would be great for Jerome's residents," Public Works Director Lanny Sloan said. "We are talking about a complete recreation center, with a pool, a gym, a playground, two concrete tennis courts, a ball field area and a cafeteria/snack bar."

The recreation district could move many of its programs and offices to the site, he said.

"From a general standpoint, this would be a real plus for Jerome, especially since we increase our programs each year and would like to add other programs," district Director Mike Pepper said.

Peppers would lease the facility to the city or county for one year, with the stipulation that the company be named co-insured on the liability policy, according to Williams. At the end of the year, the company would then donate the facility to the city or county.

The decision facing the city is whether it wants to keep the current pool, in need of major repairs, or take the Spears offer. The costs of operating a pool will prohibit the city from owning two, Public Works Director Lanny Sloan said.

Pepper agreed. "Swimming pools do not pay for themselves," he said. "There is no way you can charge enough in fees."

The city pool, in fact, has been operating at a loss for years, Williams said. Pepper said city and county officials want to meet with Spears about the offer. In the meantime, the group plans to look at all possible courses of action, he added. "The opportunity to house our offices out there would certainly eliminate the rent money we pay out of tax dollars," Pepper said.

The city and county plan to hold a joint work session Monday afternoon to begin looking at some of the double-pool issues. Any agreements reached would be taken back to city and county sessions for votes.

Sloan said there has been some talk of closing down the city pool and running a free shuttle to the pool on South Lincoln, because that pool would not be as accessible to most people.

Meanwhile, Councilman Rocky Jackson continues to work on ways to raise money to repair the city pool in the event that the city decides to keep it open. So far, he has reruited the local Optimist Club to remove old filters and find people to rebuild shower rooms and donate money. He has also come up with several ideas on ways to cut heating costs at the pool. Until now, the city had considered holding a bond election to raise the $25,000-$30,000 needed to repair the city pool. Plans for that election are now uncertain.

Sloan said he would like to hear how citizens feel about the issue. "We have sought public response, but we have only heard from three or four residents on anything concerning the pool, which is very disappointing," he said. "I guess if they walk up someday and the gates are locked, they might say something then."

Noh withdraws bill denying certification authority to ICIA

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

BOISE - When the Idaho Crop Improvement Association was ordered to pay a $125,000 judgment for falsifying seed certification information, the association's troubles may not have ended.

The case caught the attention of Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who has taken a get-tough stance of seed issues this year as vice chairman of the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee.

"It appeared the Crop Improvement Association was not serious about correcting problems," he said, referring to an informational talk to lawmakers earlier in the legislative session.

He responded by introducing a bill that would take away the group's authority to certify seeds' purity and productivity. The responsibility would be shifted to the state Department of Agriculture.

Thursday, however, he withdrew that bill. Now that he has the attention of the University of Idaho and the association, he'll give a study committee one year to come up with a solution, he said.

Yet Noh doesn't sound altogether convinced that stripping the Idaho Crop Improvement Association of its authority may not ultimately be the best solution.

The ICIA is privately owned and operated by Idaho seed growers. Although the University of Idaho is responsible for the certification process in Idaho, it contracts with ICIA to do the work.

ICIA ran into trouble this fall with Rupert farmers Doug Grant and his sons Chad and Duane. They successfully sued ICIA for ignoring Potato Virus X tests that showed contamination as much as 1,100 times the allowable limit and then listing the contaminated seed as virus-tested certified in the Idaho Potato Seed Directory.

ICIA officials said they did not want seed growers to lose money because of a new, more sensitive testing method that showed one-third of seed potatoes not meeting certification standards.

Noh believes that part of what went wrong was the result of unclear lines of authority and responsibility for ensuring seed quality. No one appeared to feel responsible for decisions made, he said.

The Legislature gives the authority to certify seed to the state Board of Education, which delegates it to the University of Idaho, which passes it to its College of Agriculture, which contracts with the Crop Improvement Association, the people who grow the seeds.

The matter is further muddled by conflicting state statutes. One section of Idaho Code gives responsibility to the state Department of Agriculture, but the state follows another section giving the university system responsibility. The department, however, runs the pure seed lab and sends inspectors to the fields.

Noh says ultimately the solution may still be to give the Department of Agriculture responsibility for certifying seed. However, in an agreement reached with university officials, he has organized a study group, to analyze the problem and propose solutions no later than the next legislative session.

"Based upon this sincere commitment, I prefer not to pursue SB 1291 at this time," Noh wrote in a memo to Senate Agricultural Affairs Chairman Herb Carlson, R-Eagle.

The study group will include UI College of Agriculture Dean Larry Brennen, Agriculture Director Dick Rush, State Board of Education Executive Director Rayburn Barton, the state board's attorney, and two lawmakers from Senate and House agriculture committees.

Noh said the compromise was reached in a meeting with Burton, Brennen and Gary Lee of the College of Agriculture. Noh said the group agreed that the law gives no clear lines of responsibility now.

It also agreed that a strong, university-based foundation seed program is critical to Idaho's seed industry - but there was concern that too bright a light focused on the problems may damage Idaho's ability to compete with other states, Noh said.

The study group will also consider the importance of high-quality, improved seed varieties developed through university programs. As the seed industry becomes concentrated in the hands of a few international firms, university seed breeding creates competition and makes seed available to farmers at a reasonable price, Noh said.

One other bill has been introduced in the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee related to seed certification.

The proposed law would create an arbitration council to settle disputes between buyers and sellers of seed. The council would have the advantage of investigating problems while crops are still in the field. Supporters said crops are usually long harvested by the time disputes reach court.

But the committee postponed action until next week after Noh pointed out that the people who would decide the crop disputes were in many instances the people responsible for certifying the seed was good - university and seed association officials.

Police arrest 3 on drug charges

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Two Arizona men and one Mexican national have been arrested on drug-related charges involving 12 ounces of cocaine worth $12,000, law enforcement authorities say.

Jorge Lopez Gallegos, 23, of Mexico, and Benito Robles Morrieta, 27, and Diego Lopez Sandoval, 25, both of Phoenix, were charged Friday in 5th District Magistrate Court with delivery of cocaine and conspiracy to deliver cocaine, said Mindok County Prosecutor Charles Creason.

The felony charges carry possible penalties of life imprisonment and $25,000 fines, he said.

The three were being held Friday in the Mindok County Jail. Bond was set for each at $50,000, Creason said.

State drug enforcement officers assisted by several law enforcement agencies arrested the three after an undercover narcotics officer bought cocaine at the Budget Motel in North Burley late Thursday, said Bill Overton, spokesman for the state Bureau of Narcotics.

Additional drug and weapons charges for the three will likely be filed later, Overton said.

The investigation is continuing and more people are expected to be arrested, he said. Also involved in the investigation are the Cassia County Sheriff's office, the Mindok County Sheriff's office, the Rupert Police Department, the Heyburn Police Department and the U.S. Border Patrol, Overton said.

Overton declined to discuss the arrests further while the investigation is continuing.

Sears plans major shift in marketing strategy

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Don't expect to go shopping at Sears, Roebuck and Co. this Tuesday.

But after that, look for a brand-new approach in the store at 401 Main Ave. W. Sears is reducing prices on 50,000 items, keeping the store "permanently on sale," says Tom Farrell, store manager.

The Twin Falls store is one of hundreds nationwide reducing prices overall instead of promoting occasional sales on certain items.

The 102-year-old retail chain calls the marketing change the biggest change in its history - a guarded shift toward emulating such discount retailers as K mart and Shopko.

"The Twin Falls store will close its doors at 6 p.m. Monday and open again at noon Tuesday and a re-brand opening," Farrell said.

Customers will find reduced prices on all the store's items and new national brand-name merchandise. And no more promotional sales, partly because Farrell promises the store won't be undersold on dominant retail items, such as Levi's jeans.

"We feel it's going to be a profitable thing, but probably through stimulation of sales," Farrell said.

A local investment representative said the financial community considers the move wise but is taking a wait-and-see attitude.

"Don't get too excited until you see it work," said Gene Sturgill, of Edward D. Jones & C.

F.W. Woolworth Co. took its retail stores in the same direction two or three years ago and the marketing change is just now starting to pay off, Sturgill said.

INEL naval facility corrects waste estimate

By NS. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The Naval Reactors Facility at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory has underestimated by one-fifth the amount of radioactivity it has buried at INEL, the facility disclosed Friday.

A recent review of records at the naval facility shows that low-level waste transported to INEL's Radioactive Waste Management Complex since 1976 contained 1 million more curies of radioactivity than previously thought.

A curie is a measure of radioactivity that represents the decay of 37 billion atoms per second.

The material, structural parts of spent fuel assemblies, contains 5 million curies but was previously thought to contain 4 million curies. That figure, however, does not account for decay that would lower those numbers, according to a Naval Reactors Facility news release.

The metal waste is highly corrosive resistant and does not present any 'readable' environmental pathway of radioactive material to be transported from its current location before its radioactivity can decay away," the news release said.

All materials involved were handled in properly shielded containers, the news release said. No regulations were violated and no corrective action will be taken, it said.

Further information was not available Friday. Facility officials by policy refuse to speak directly with reporters.

Hansen seniors pick new graduation speaker

The Times-News

HANSEN - The senior class has decided to ask Gail Ater to be its guest speaker at graduation ceremonies in May, reversing an earlier choice.

The majority of Hansen's 21-member Class of '89 voted Feb. 16 to nominate Ater, a school graduate, according to a letter given to the School Board last week. Ater works at the Walker Center in Gooding and spoke to this school last year about drug and alcohol abuse. The students would like former Hansen teacher Leola Seefeld Ater, unable to speak.

The School Board has final say on whether the speaker will be.

The class earlier this month asked that Curtis Sower, a former teacher now living in California, be the guest speaker.

The nomination raised some controversy. The administration said the cost of bringing Sower to Hansen would be too high - possibly as much as $300.

Student Body Vice President Rich Wright said Sower has offered to pay his own way and that the former Hansen coach and math teacher was special to students.

"Our class fell in love with Mr. Sower as a teacher and as a personal friend," Wright said. School officials said they felt obligated to pay a speaker's expenses and also expressed concern over naming graduation speakers from outside the area, rather than looking for people closer to home.

Twelve Hansen seniors attended the school board meeting Tuesday to nominate Ater and "apologize" for a Times-News article on the controversy. "We, as a class, were ashamed of the content of the article, and sincerely apologize for the remarks made toward all parties involved," states a letter, signed by 20 of Hansen's 21 seniors.

Class members attending the meeting declined to comment to the Times-News on the letter.

Superintendent Richard Smith complimented the seniors for the way they handled the situation. "We're proud of you," Board Chairman Bill Allen said.

Board member Gene Walker told the students Ater is a good choice. And Stacey Miller, who presented the class recommendation to the board Tuesday, said the students feel Ater will be able to relate to them.

If Ater is unable to attend the ceremony, Sasaki will be asked. He is a former Hansen fifth grade teacher who teaches at Valley View in Nampa.

In other matters, the board took no action on custodian Tiny Mothershed's employment probation, thereby restoring him to normal employee status.

Board member Jeanne Gibson told Mothershed to keep up the good work.

TWIN FALLS — Issues of waste cleanup and future oversight of activities at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will be dissected today at a forum sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The fellowship, a local interfaith group whose concerns include environmental issues and social justice, has brought together panelists that include some of the key players behind the new INEL monitoring and oversight bill.

Abortion protesters appeal convictions

Pilot faces charges of flying while under the influence

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) — A fighter pilot has been grounded and relieved of his squadron command by the Air Force pending investigation of an allegation that he flew an F-16 under the influence of alcohol.

The relief of Lt. Col. Thomas L. "Waldo" King was a precaution until military due process is complete, said his commander at the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Although Winebarger emphasized King is considered innocent, he said the matter is serious and conceivably could result in court-martial.

There is no tolerance for what it looks like it could be," the general said.

After hearing "flying-under-the-influence" rumors in the wing, Winebarger said he went to King.

Marie Osmond testifies at trial

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Singer Marie Osmond testified Friday that financier J. Gary Sheets had her sign an undated signature page for a financial transaction, then took $30,000 from her pension fund without her knowledge.

Prosecutors contend he misrepresented financial resources, diverting pension funds and promised impossible returns to investors.

Osmond testified she was on tour in Bloomington, Minn., in June 1985 when Sheets called her and said "I was sending me some papers that he needed me to sign and not date."

Osmond was divorced from her first husband, Steven Craig, but since has remarried.

Singer Marie Osmond, with husband Brian Bloss, leaves the court after testifying against financial advisor Gary Sheets.

Assist. U.S. Attorney Stewart Walz contends Sheets withdrew the $30,000 from the fund and dated the signature page approving the transaction after the fact.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Peter Striba, Osmond said that she frequently had advisers and attorneys prepare papers attached, and that she learned late that year from her attorney that Sheets had taken the money before she signed the papers.

Walz also produced an entity purchaser questionnaire — used by financial advisers to explain their choice of investments for a client — but Osmond said she had never discussed that questionnaire with Sheets.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Peter Striba, Osmond said that she frequently had advisers and attorneys prepare papers attached, and that she learned late that year from her attorney that Sheets had taken the money before she signed the papers.

Stallings urges INEL monitoring

BOISE (AP) — Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings is urging Idaho lawmakers to get ahead with their plans for an independent program monitoring operations at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Stallings said Friday that the program under review in the state Senate will help assure public support for the federal weapons-production and research facility in eastern Idaho.

While there have been no major problems at INEL to contribute to that, he said, "There are people in Idaho who question. The only way we can restore that credibility is to have good oversight."

IHA makes funds available for low-interest loans

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Housing Agency's sale of tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds has made available $82 million in funds for qualified Idaho home buyers.

The 1989 mortgage funds go for an interest rate of 8.31 percent. Conventional rates are in the 11 percent range, said A. Wayne Mittleider, IHA executive director.

program under which state experts would analyze and evaluate all the statistical information that various state and federal agencies are collecting about the environmental impact INEL operations have.

Stallings said Friday that the program under review in the state Senate will help assure public support for the federal weapons-production and research facility in eastern Idaho.

When you get the state involved, the people will have reason to believe in the integrity of reports on the environmental and health impacts of the agency.

IHA's successful sale of these bonds demonstrates the agency has followed through with its pledge to continue to make low-interest rate mortgage funds available in our state and to make affordable housing an attainable reality for Idaho families.

Parents face additional charges alleging assaults on their son

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — Yakima County prosecutors on Friday secured arrest warrants for Edward Donald Tuniman and his wife, Debra Tuniman, for alleged assaults on the little boy they have been charged with leaving at a freeway rest stop near Boise, Idaho.

Even if Sears' move is in the right direction, there's still a question whether Sears can pull it off.

Mittleider estimates that about 700 households can take part in the current program.

But McClure said earlier this month that the state was running the risk of restrictions on other sectors of its economy by imposing a higher level of scrutiny on INEL than it does elsewhere.

The senior senator suggested that if such a monitoring program is imposed at INEL, it would eventually be forced on businesses like agriculture, which would not be able to withstand such intense inspection.

Both Tuniman, 29, and his 28-year-old wife have already been charged with abandoning their son at the Idaho rest stop. Both are in jail in Ada County in Idaho awaiting trial.

Bishop continues fight for poor

NO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Archbishop Braz Camara has turned 80, an age at which many clergymen slip into retirement. But the human rights crusader of the 1960s and 1970s remains an outspoken defender of the poor at the request of Pope John Paul II.

BISHOP HELDER CAMARA
Fights poverty in Brazil

Following the pope's instructions, I will not hang up my spade," the Roman Catholic leader said.

In accordance with church laws, Camara — known worldwide as Dom Helder, of the Portuguese title for the high clergy — had to retire at 75 as archbishop of Recife and Olinda on Brazil's northeast coast but maintained his title.

"I'm as busy now as I ever was," said the short, slight prelate, seeming even smaller in a voluminous black cassock adorned with a simple wooden cross. The interview came amid a heavy schedule of speeches and celebrations marking his 80th birthday Feb. 7.

During a right-wing military regime in the world's largest Catholic nation from 1961 to 1985, Camara denounced torture and human rights abuses in the face of death threats and a machine-gun attack on his parish house.

The generals branded Camara the "Red Bishop" and banned his name from news broadcasts. His supporters nominated him for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Those dark days have ended, but Brazil's chronic poverty persists with the collusion of powerful economic interests, he says.

"The forces behind these conditions are well-known. Large multinational corporations create great problems here," he said.

Courier says North gave tactical advice Friday nuclear test successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man who shuttled between Central America and Washington for Oliver North testified Friday that North gave Nicaraguan rebels tactical advice after Congress banned U.S. military aid and once suggested the Contras mount a suicide air raid on the Managua airport.

Robert W. Owen, 35, said at North's Iran-Contra trial that he made so many trips ferrying information between North and Contra leaders that he signed memos with the initials "T.C." meaning "the courier."

Despite their extensive dealings, Owen testified, North told him he had told Congress the two had only a passing relationship.

"To my best recollection he said he met me a couple of times, I met you a couple of times, I knew you were an activist supporting the Nicaraguan resistance," Owen quoted North as saying.

Owen told jurors he actually met with North 80 to 100 times between July 1983 and August 1984 on Contra matters.

Among the charges against North is an accusation he lied to the House intelligence committee by saying he had only casual contact with Owen.

On at least three occasions, Owen said, he carried maps and photographs from North to Nicaraguan rebel leaders at meetings in Honduras, including one in November 1981. The documents he carried showed details of the airport in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, and also included details of terrain and specific Sandinista emplacements.

Also among the 12 charges for which North is being tried are allegations that he lied to Congress by denying reports that he was giving tactical and procurement advice to the Contras in defiance of the ban which took effect in October 1981. He was a Marine lieutenant colonel and a top National Security Council aide at the time.

In 1985, Owen testified, he took part in efforts to open a "southern front" along Nicaragua's Costa Rican border. At North's direction he flew to Costa Rica to view possible sites for an airstrip that eventually was built for the effort to resupply the Contras.

He said he also, reluctantly, accepted $1,000 in traveler's checks from North as a wedding present. The government charges that that money was part of $4,300 that North is accused of embezzling.

Owen said that in March 1986 the role of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord — who he said was running the secret arms resupply network for North — was being exposed. "What you had hoped to keep quiet is now being openly discussed on the street," Owen wrote to North in a memo. Secord also faces criminal charges in the Iran-Contra affair but has yet to come to trial.

That same month, Owen testified, North asked him to fly to Honduras aboard a plane loaded with humanitarian supplies, then to supervise loading of weapons to be dropped to the rebels. Owen, who then was working with a U.S. government humanitarian relief effort, protested his contract barred him from delivering weapons.

"He said, between the two of us, I would fly down on NIAO (Nicaraguan Humanitarian Assistance Office), put on my Robert Owen private citizen hat, and fly with the ammunition," Owen testified.

He said when he got to Honduras there was no ammunition to be loaded.

Prosecutors questioned Owen for nearly five hours Friday. North's lawyers will cross-examine him Monday.

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear device was detonated 1,300 feet beneath the desert Friday in the second nuclear test announced this year at the Nevada Test Site, the federal Energy Department said.

The 9:15 a.m. MST test, which was weapons-related and code-named Kawich, "was very successful from all standpoints," department spokesman Jim Boyer said. No ground motion was felt at a control point 15 miles from ground zero.

The device was buried beneath Yucca Flat.

Snow, cold chill Dixie, East Coast

By The Associated Press

The Deep South shivered Friday with unaccustomed temperatures only in the teens that coated highways with ice and froze early spring blossoms, and a "nor easter" lashed the East Coast with wind and snow.

Temperatures dropped to record lows from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico as arctic air surged southward. Miami hit a record low of 37, equalling the temperature at Minot, N.D.

Slippery roads were blamed for hundreds of accidents and schools were closed from Georgia to New Jersey. Three weather-related deaths were reported.

"All the roads are covered, we've got ice, and people are wrecking right and left," said Officer Dennis Anders of the Alleghany County, N.C., Sheriff's Department.

Temperatures fell into the teens across parts of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia — with wind chills below zero — just over a week after record highs in the 70s and 80s brought peach trees and daffodils into premature bloom.

Record lows included 16 degrees at Birmingham, Ala., 19 at Mobile, Ala., on the Gulf Coast, and 28 at New Orleans. Atlanta tied its record of 17. Grand Rapids, Mich., hit a record 9 below zero.

Shelters in Birmingham, Ala., opened their doors to people needing a warm place for the night. "Anyone can come" as long as they don't cause problems," said police community service officer Alton Morgado.

Tourists in Florida should be happier after a warming trend begins Saturday. It is expected to push temperatures into the 70s statewide by Monday, said the National Weather Service.

In addition to the cold, a low pressure system that formed off the coast of the Carolinas threw snow from North Carolina to New Jersey. The cold threatened some crops in the South.

At Plant City in central Florida, where an annual strawberry festival is planned to open March 2, farmers struggled to shield their plants.

Peach growers in Alabama burned tires and coal in orchards during the night to protect trees against the cold, but said it was too early to determine the extent of damage.

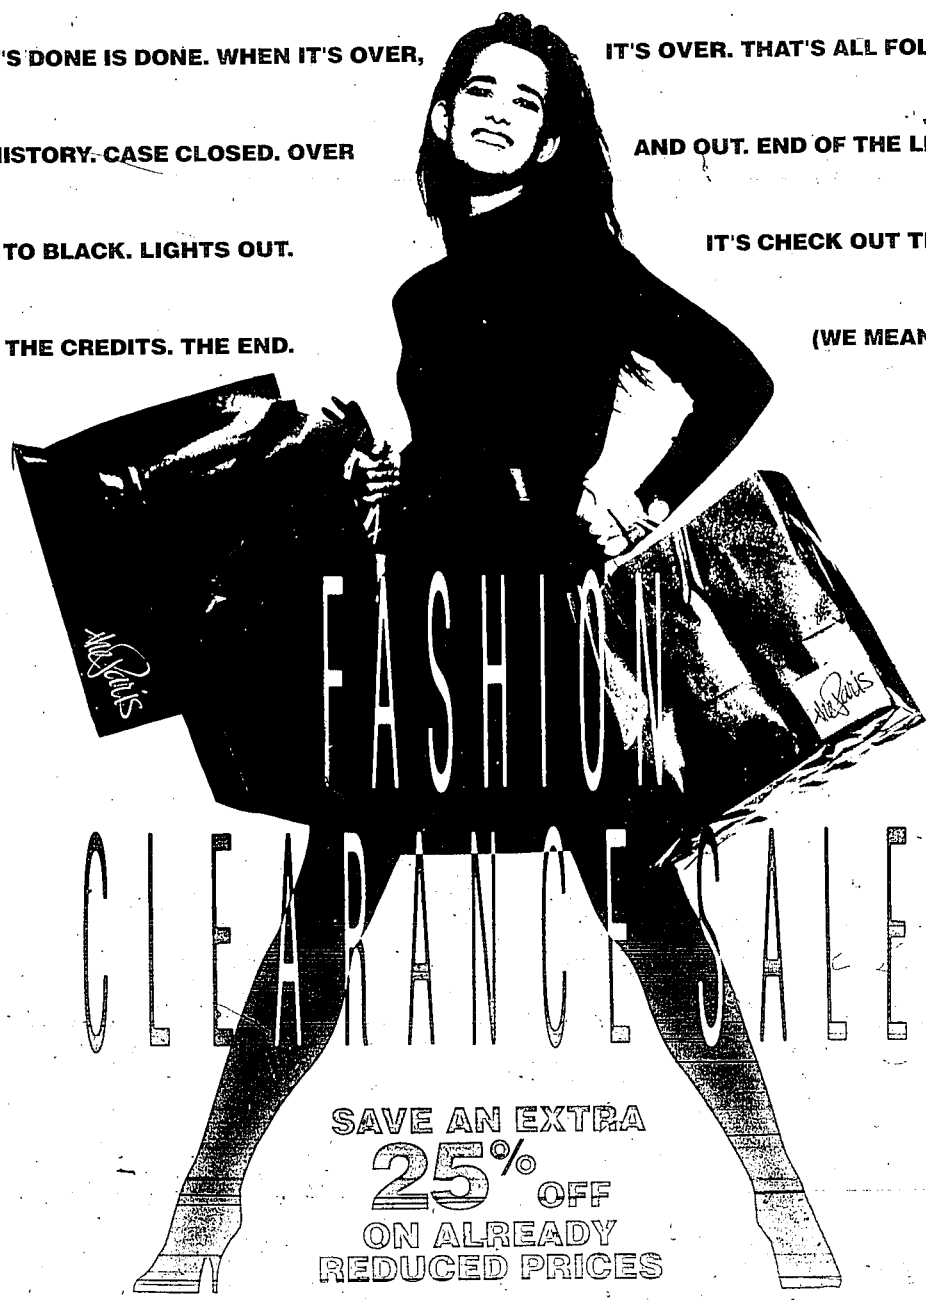

Citrus growers in central Florida reported no problems Friday.

Swiss firm, drug money tie linked

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. authorities said Friday that a Swiss-based currency trading company may have been involved in a massive money-laundering scandal involving drugs in the United States.

The U.S. Embassy said in a statement that the possible role of the Lebanese-controlled Shikarchi Trading A.G. of Zurich was revealed during the largest drug money laundering investigation ever conducted by U.S. law enforcement agencies.

Among many aspects revealed by this investigation in New York was the fact that a bank account maintained there by the Shikarchi Trading Company in Zurich may have been involved in transactions with some of the "targets" of the probe, the statement said.

Captain upset by reprimand

Los Angeles Times

SUBIC BAY NAVAL BASE, Philippines — Capt. Alexander G. Balian thought he was "headed for good things" in the Navy after 26 years that had brought him a purple heart, two bronze stars and a stack of glowing evaluations. Not too many months ago, promotion to rear admiral seemed to be in sight.

But on Friday, Balian found himself trying to explain what appeared to be the end of the line for his Navy career. The culprit, he said, are the Navy legal system in general and a young prosecutor in particular, along with unidentified Navy officials and an incompetent crew on his ship.

CAPT. BALIAN
Unhappy with treatment to keep from starving.

"I don't like failure," Balian told reporters. "And this is failure."
A court-martial had just found Balian guilty of dereliction of duty for failing to give adequate assistance last June to a group of Vietnamese refugees adrift in the South China Sea. He provided them with food, water and directions to the nearest land but decided not to take them aboard his ship, the amphibious transport DuBuque.

The refugees drifted for another 19 days before they were rescued by Philippine fishermen. They said they resorted to cannibalism

The six Navy captains who heard the case ordered that Balian be given a letter of reprimand, the mildest punishment short of none at all. Still, the conviction itself is enough to derail a Navy career, and Balian was angry.

Shortly after the penalty was announced, Balian entered a room crowded with reporters and talked for more than half an hour before stopping to take questions.

With his wife and daughter sitting behind him, Balian talked about his love of commanding

Police kill up to 12 during 'Verses' protest

By The Associated Press

Police in Bombay, India, fired on mobs of Moslems protesting publication of "The Satanic Verses" on Friday and killed up to 12 people, and an Iranian leader said the novel might cause a "vast battle" between Iran and the West.

In London, officials said Britain had asked Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to press Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to renounce his death threat against the novel's author, Salman Rushdie.

The Bombay march by about 5,000 people followed Friday prayer services and left 40 injured, 11 of whom were police officers, the Press Trust of India news agency reported. Police arrested 300 demonstrators.

The protesters ignored a ban on the assembly of more than five people in public places Friday — Islam's holy day — and set fire to several state-run buses and other vehicles, and attacked police, a police spokesman said.

Police impeded the ban after some Moslems announced plans to demonstrate against the book, which they say is blasphemous.

Reports of the death toll conflicted. Press Trust said 12 people were killed, United News of India put it at 10, and Police Commissioner S.M.

Shangari said eight had died. Two deaths initially attributed to the violence were caused by unrelated road accidents, he said.

Demonstrations also were reported in the Indian cities of New Delhi, Calcutta, Darjeeling, Varanasi, Patna and Siliguri. No violence was reported.

In New Delhi, about 400 Moslems marched to the British Embassy, and the city's 32-officer police force was put on alert.

India banned Rushdie's book in November, fearing it could spark sectarian unrest. More than 90 million Moslems live in India and make up about 11 percent of the nation's population of 880 million. The novel also is banned in Pakistan, South Africa, Bangladesh, Iran and Egypt.

Rushdie was born into a Moslem family in Bombay in 1947. Now a British citizen, he has been under police guard in England since Khomeini first ordered Moslems on Feb. 14 to kill him. Iranian clerics have put a $5.2 million bounty on Rushdie's head.

In demonstrations Feb. 12-13, one person was killed in India and six died in Pakistan, where police opened fire on a crowd that attacked a U.S. diplomatic office.

Iran's parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, urged Western countries to state clearly if they agree with the contents of Rushdie's novel. Rafsanjani said Moslems want to know if Western governments support what the book says about Islam "so that we know what our duty is regarding those who are a partner in cursing the prophet."

"The ground has been laid for a vast battle between Islam on the one hand, and paganism and arrogance on the other," Rafsanjani said in the prayer sermon in Tehran, broadcast by the official Islamic Republic News Agency and monitored in Cyprus.

British Foreign Office sources said Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe had written Shevardnadze urging him to tell Khomeini that "the Soviet Union shares the international community's wish to see Iran respect international obligations and renounce the use of violence."

Shevardnadze, on a 10-day Middle East tour, will meet with Khomeini on Saturday in a rare audience with the religious patriarch.

The Soviet Ambassador to London, Leonid Zamyatin, said the controversy "clearly shows the need for respect for religious feelings and traditions as well as tolerance for the politics and values of others."

The 12 nations of the European Economic Community have recalled their envoys from Iran, and London has shut down its mission in Tehran. Iran pulled its ambassadors out of the Common Market nations.

Nearly 2,000 Moslems rallied in Manchester in northern Britain on Friday and called for Rushdie's book to be withdrawn from library shelves. They waved placards and ripped a cardboard effigy of Rushdie to pieces.

Britain's home secretary, Douglas Hurd, said his country's 750,000 Moslems were entitled to protest "peacefully and with dignity" against a book "which they believe denigrates and insults the prophet of Islam."

"But to turn such protests toward violence or the threat of violence is wholly unacceptable," he told a meeting of Moslems in Birmingham.

Howe, in Tokyo for the funeral of Emperor Hirohito, was threatened with death by a man who called Britain's Guardian newspaper.

Bush, Chinese to discuss Taiwan, trade and Tibet

BEIJING (AP) — The "U" issues — Taiwan, Tibet, trade and technology transfer — are on the table when President Bush sits tea with Chinese leaders this weekend.

Bush's two-day visit to Beijing, starting Saturday, was to stress positive aspects of Sino-American relations that have developed since the two nations established diplomatic ties 10 years ago.

Bush, who headed the U.S. liaison office in Beijing for more than a year in 1974-75, was to be given an effusive welcome as an old friend of China.

But the first bilateral summit since President Reagan visited in 1984 also offers both sides a chance to vent some touchy issues, and discuss the quickly improving ties between China and its longtime adversary, the Soviet Union. "They'll be lightly skipping over a number of issues rather than boring in on one issue," said one U.S. official.

Estonians raise their own flag

MOSCOW (AP) — Estonians celebrated their independence day Friday by hoisting their national flag at a medieval castle in the capital of Tallinn and relegating the Soviet flag to a museum, the Tass news agency said.

Estonia proclaimed itself independent on Feb. 24, 1918, in the wake of the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917. It became part of the Soviet sphere in 1940 following the signing of the 1939 protocol between Germany and the Soviet Union.

The decision to proclaim Feb. 24 as the day of Estonia's independence and to raise the blue, black and white national flag on the Gherran tower on that day is an important step toward restoring the Estonian people's dignity and recognizing their genuine history," the Estonian Communist Party said. The flag-raising ceremony was attended by communists, clergymen and representatives of nationalist movements.

Writers claim Gorbachev's support

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev met Friday with Ukrainian writers pressing for cultural, economic and environmental reforms, and participants said he expressed support for their efforts.

Hours after Gorbachev left, police dragged away people who gathered near a downtown square where rallies against the Ukrainian Communist Party chief had been allowed nightly since Sunday, the eve of Gorbachev's arrival.

They hauled off anyone who stopped at October Revolution Square and put them in vans. It was not clear what happened to those who were detained.

Dmitri Pavlychko, head of the newly formed Ukrainian Language Society, which seeks to make Ukrainian the republic's official language, said the group had a "beautiful discussion" with Gorbachev in party leader Vladimir V. Sheberstov's office.

Eagles clinch No. 1 seeding

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The nation has proclaimed College of Southern Idaho No. 1, the standings will confirm it, mathematics make it absolute and there is a possibility that even the Region 18 executive committee might now begrudgingly agree.

The Eagles apparently — emphasize apparently — choked the last legislative recourse of the council off Friday night by smothering second-place Dixie College 109-90.

The Eagles play their final regular season game of the season tonight, hosting Snow College. The women's game will begin at 6:15 p.m. and the men's at 7:30.

Friday's win means that CSI now is 29-1 overall, 16-1 in the regional standings, has the host designation for the Region 18 eight-team finals that will open in Twin Falls next Thursday noon and — the toughest of all — the No. 1 seeding for that tournament.

The council earlier this week had proclaimed that the head-to-head and ladder tie-breakers were not the major considerations. The council said if the host team was tied, it must go into the tournament as the second seed regardless of the other tie-breakers enumerated in the by-laws.

"I would like to have anyone find those by-laws and come up with that interpretation," fumed CSI Athletic Director Karl Kleinkopf before the game. "It simply doesn't say that. Paul Conrad (Colorado Northwestern athletic director) was the only one who agreed with us and he doesn't have a vote. It was 4-0 against us."

"We now demand," said CSI Coach Fred Frenkle after the game, "that interpretation be sustained for at least two more years. It was designed to work against us. Next year it can help us."

"The loss apparently will do is put Utah Valley and Dixie in a tie for second — which gives the council the opportunity for more interpretations.

But things political usually don't show up on the floor and that was the case Friday night.

A lot of the CSI worry abated in the opening seconds when sophomore

TWIN FALLS — It's win or tie for the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagle women as they head into their final game of the season this evening.

Couch Ben Stroud's crew saw that to Friday night with an 82-57 first over the Dixie College Rebels.

They will be entertaining the Snow Badgers at 5:15 p.m. today at the CSI gymnasium while co-leading North Idaho will be hosting third-place Hicks in Coeur d'Alene, CSI, which whipped Snow 92-28 in the regional opener, will take the title and first-seed in the Region 18 playoffs opening in St. George next week if Hicks can pull off the upset and the Eagles maintain their homecourt mastery.

"We're one game away and it feels pretty good to be within a win of our first co-championship at least," said Stroud.

Stroud said he felt his charges had played "a little flat and that surprised me because we were the team with the most riding on the line. We had to win to keep our title chances alive and they basically were lodged

Declo Hornets sting Filer; force playoff

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Defending champion Declo continued its resurgence through the District 4 Class A-3 tournament here Friday night with a 79-76 white-knuckler over the previously undefeated Wildcats Friday night, forcing the tournament into an extra championship game tonight.

Both teams will advance to the state A-3 tournament in Hilly next week, so nothing more than the title and the bracketing placement remain up in the air.

Tipoff time tonight is 8 o'clock in the Wendell High gym.

Kowitz sealed the victory with a free throw with one second showing.

"They want to win," said Declo coach Ron Knowles, whose Hornets have had to walk a tightrope through the tournament consolation bracket after losing to Valley in the second round last week. "We're excited to be playing for the championship again on Saturday. And there's little extra incentive to win it — the loser from our district has to play (three-time defending state champion) Lapwai."

Declo, the defending champions of this district, assumed its biggest lead as the third quarter ended on two Kurt Steadman free throws, a Jay Hamilton three-pointer and Shane Osterhout's field goal at the buzzer. But Filer opened the final eight min-

Bengals lose to Bobcats; postseason hopes fade

The Associated Press

FOCATELLO — Alonzo Stephens scored 21 points in the first half en route to a game total of 26 to lead Montana State over Idaho State 79-75 in Big Sky Conference action here Friday night.

The loss virtually eliminated the Bengals from the running for the sixth and final spot in the postseason Big Sky Conference tournament. The top six teams in the regular season make the tourney.

Mike Fellows scored 18 points and Ron McCarty added 13 to help the Bobcats break its six-game conference losing streak and improve their record 12-14 overall and 4-10 in league play.

Steven Garrity scored a career high 31 points to lead Idaho State, which saw its four-game winning streak come to an end.

Butch Mettinger added 11 points and Todd Peterson scored 10 as the Bengals fell to 9-15 and 4-9.

The game was close throughout the first half until MSU broke a 20-all tie with a 17-4 scoring surge, with Stephens scoring 15 of the 17 points. Mettinger then answered with eight points of his own to help ISU pull within two points, 37-35, but Stephens hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to make it 40-35 at intermission.

Garrity scored ISU's first eight points in the second half, but MSU kept pace.

Indians repeat A-4 title

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

JEROME — Jim Messick and the Shoshone High School Class of '89 made it a clean sweep here Friday night, beating Camas County 62-48 and claiming their fourth straight District 4 Class A-4 boys' basketball title.

Messick, a 6-foot, 3-inch senior forward, scored 24 points as the Indians, ranked third in the state by The Associated Press, won their third game and four days, coming back from a semifinal loss to Murtaugh in last week's District 4 Class A-4 Southside Subdistrict tournament.

"We let down a little bit emotionally after subdistrict," said Coach Larry Messick, referring to his team's 65-52 win over Murtaugh in the Southside championship game Wednesday night that sent the Indians to the state tournament for the fourth straight year. "We really didn't have a very good practice Thursday, but after beating Murtaugh we were a little drained and the kids are tired. It'll be nice not to have to play for six days."

Shoshone's district championship in the one-game playoff between the champs of the Northside and Southside subdistricts extended what has become the Magic Valley's longest-standing boys' basketball dynasty. Shoshone was moved from Class 3-3 to A-4 by the Idaho High School Activities Association four years ago and has won all four district titles since then.

"They get tougher every year," said Coach Messick.

First-year Camas coach David Shirts, whose ballclub got into the state tournament by winning the Northside Subdistrict title last Saturday, said his team had a hard time taking advantage of its superior size against Shoshone.

Tyson expected to brutalize Bruno; odds over 7-to-1

By ED SCHUYLER
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Mike Tyson isn't a 22-year-old champion with a sense of boxing history. Frank Bruno is a 27-year-old challenger, who could make boxing history.

They tangle Saturday night at the Las Vegas Hilton in a scheduled 12-round heavyweight title bout, which will be televised by HBO at about 8:25 p.m. MST.

Tyson is a prohibitive favorite to cement his claim to being the world's best fighter and to invite further comparisons to past boxing greats he isn't compared to.

"I'm not saying I'm the most skillful fighter in the world, I'm just saying I'm the best," Tyson said.

Not only would a Bruno victory be a major upset, it would make him the first British fighter to win the world heavyweight championship in this century.

A victory by Bruno would come 11 years and 10 days after Leon Spinks, 3-1 underdog, won the heavyweight title on a 15-round split decision over Muhammad Ali at the Las Vegas Hilton.

The odds favored Tyson at about 7-1 in man-to-man betting.

"This is a peak time to beat Mike Tyson," Bruno said. "What he is going through — I don't think his mind is 100 percent on the job."

Tyson ended his stormy marriage to actress Robin Givens with a divorce on Valentine's Day. He says manager Bill Dixon to break their contract. He's being paid for $10 million by trainer Kevin Rooney, with whom he has split.

There have been other problems, and the fight has been postponed five times.

Shoshone

 nament in Ligny at 8:20 next Thursday night, the opponent will be determined in an inter-district playoff to-day. Camas will meet District 5-6 champion North Gent of Bancroft at 2 p.m. Thursday in the first round at state.

Shoshone outscored Camas 9-2 in the first three minutes of the game, but the Musershers stanchied what looked like a runaway on the outside shooting of sophomore Eddie Harness. Harness scored Camas' first 10 points and after teammate Eric Freystenson out the deficit to two points at 15-13, Harness tied the game at 15 with a jumper from the top of the key with 6 minutes and 22 seconds left in the second period.

Jim Messick put the Indians ahead to stay with a three-pointer 18 seconds later. After Joe Messick picked the pocket of a Camas player and took in the cripple to make it 20-15, Jim Messick connected again from three-point range to make it 23-15.

Camas got the deficit back to six on two occasions, but never closer. It was 29-22 Shoshone at halftime and 46-32 after three quarters. Jim Messick had six three-pointers in the game, including three in a 2:55-span of the third quarter.

The most telling statistic was rebounding, where Shoshone held a 14-7 edge in the first half. The Indians outboarded the Musershers just 22-20 for the game, but denied Camas second shots, especially in the first half.

Camas was 9-for-23 from the field before intermission and 40-for-46 for the game.

Richard Shimer scored 14 points for Shoshone, which shot 42-for-27 in the first half and 22-for-46 for the game. Harness topped the Musershers with 24 points, including three three-pointers.

"Eddie did a nice job for us tonight," said Shims. "He kept us in the game in the first half."

Camas 9-23 from the field before intermission and 40-for-46 for the game.

San Antonio outscored the Indians 31-15 in the first 8:10 of the final period to go ahead by 19, then coasted on their first victory since returning from a dismal road trip in which they won just one of five games.

Minus Ainge, Boston beats Milwaukee

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Kevin McHale scored 26 points and Reggie Lewis regained his shooting touch to lead a key surge in the fourth quarter Friday night as the Boston Celtics beat the Milwaukee Bucks 125-112.

The Celtics outscored the Bucks 31-15 in the first 8:10 of the final period to go ahead by 19, then coasted on their first victory since returning from a dismal road trip in which they won just one of five games.

Lewis, who made just one of seven shots in the first half, scored 11 of his 21 points in the winning run and 14 in the fourth quarter for the Celtics, who were playing their first game since trading Danny Ainge and Brad Lohaus to the Sacramento Kings for Ed Pinckney and Joe Kleme.

Chicago 106 Houston 97

CHICAGO (AP) — Scottie Pippen scored 14 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter Friday and Michael Jordan had 33 points as the Chicago Bulls overpowered the Houston Rockets 106-97 for their fifth straight victory.

Pippen, playing with five fouls, contributed four baskets in a span of 2:47 late in the final quarter and Michael Jordan sank five of six free throws down the stretch.

Golden State 127 Dallas 92

DALLAS (AP) — Chris Mullin hit three 3-point goals and scored 34 points Friday night as the Golden State Warriors snapped a 16-game losing streak.

Portland 91 Richfield, Ohio (AP)

Larry Nance scored 17 of his 28 points in the first half as the Cleveland Cavaliers built a 19-point lead and then held off a third-quarter rally to rout the Portland Trail Blazers 128-91 Friday night.

Miami 111 LIA Clippers 91

MIAMI (AP) — Kevin Edwards scored 22 points and fellow rookie Grant Ladd added 20 Friday as Miami held the Los Angeles Clippers to 29 points in the first half en route to a 111-91 victory.

Damp field precludes CSI opener
 TWIN FALLS — Today's scheduled season-opener for the College of Southern Idaho baseball team has been postponed because of wet grounds.

CSI was scheduled to host the College of Idaho in a non-conference double-header at Frontier Field. That game can't be played today, however, because of the condition of the field.

CSI's next scheduled games are next Saturday at Frontier Field against Treasure Valley Community College. CSI assistant coach Frank Juliano said Friday, however, that CSI will attempt to reschedule the CSI games for sometime next week.

Minico, Mountain Home to face off

JEROME — Minico and Mountain Home will square off here this afternoon for the eighth and final spot in next week's state Class A-1 boys' basketball tournament.

The Sportsmen, 12-13, finished second in the Region III tournament earlier this week, losing 50-48 to Highland in the championship game. Mountain Home, 12-12, defeated Capital 74-69 for third place in the Region III tournament.

Tippoff time is 1:30 p.m. The winner will face Region I champion Post Falls in the opening round of the state A-1 tournament in Boise next Thursday.

 Declo was a 12-5 run to force a tie at 68. It was tied again at 70 before Steve McCandless, who paced all scorers with 23, gave Filer its first lead of the half with 3:22 remaining.

With Filer still leading 76-74 but with its inside defense in foul trouble, the Wildcats yielded a turnaround jumper to Jeff Steadman with 53 seconds left.

While the 6-foot, 5-inch senior didn't convert the three-point play, Filer coach LaRell Patterson saw that as the key.

"I thought our foul trouble hurt us," he said. "Declo was able to play to their inside strengths and got a lot of easy turnarounds. That last by Steadman really hurt."

Knowles praised Turner's effort as well.

"When Steadman scored on that play, it was really something. He had three men hanging on him. And Turner timed his steal just right. He

Jimmy Johnson could be coach of Cowboys if Jones buys team

The Associated Press

DALLAS — An announcement of the sale of the Dallas Cowboys could come as early as Saturday, a spokesman for the NFL franchise said Friday, as speculation surrounding Coach Tom Landry's future with the organization intensified.

H.R. "Bum" Bright, majority owner of the Cowboys, met behind doors for much of the day with Arkansas attorney Jerry Jones, who the Miami Herald said had worked out a deal to purchase the team for $180 million.

A Fort Worth television station, KXAS-TV, reported Thursday night that Jones was buying the team and bringing in University of Miami coach Jimmy Johnson to replace Landry.

The Herald reported the deal had been completed and was awaiting only league approval. Johnson's hiring is also contingent upon league approval, the Herald said in its early Saturday editions.

Any sale would have to be approved by three-fourths of the NFL owners.

KXAS-TV reported Friday night that Johnson had already resigned as head coach at Miami and was putting together a staff.

KXAS said Johnson was bringing in Dave Wannstedt, now with the Miami Dolphins, as defensive coordinator, and three members of his Hurricanes staff — Rich Davis to coach the offensive line, Tony Wise to coach the defensive line, and Hubbard Alexander to coach receivers.

The Herald said Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich interviewed assistant coach Gary Stevens as a possible replacement for Johnson.

"If there's some truth to all the rumors, sure I would love to be the head coach here," Stevens said Friday. "This is where I want to be."

University of Miami President Edward T. Foote said he spoke briefly with Jankovich on Friday.

Although CSI hit the first four points and was never tied or trailed, the Eagles took a while putting the Bulldogs away. The major reason for that was Becky Robinson who canned 25 points.

But after watching an 11-point lead of 22-11 melt to 26-20 in the middle minutes of the first half, CSI went on a separation binge that includes some inside scoring by Sandy Rowland and Marein Yostering and two howitzers by Hettie DeJong.

That helped the Eagles into a 40-28 halftime lead and the game got out of reach when Monica Gustin hit four points and Kim Epron two to begin the second half. Rowland's short jumper gave the Eagles their first 20-point lead at 62-41 with 9 minutes and 6 seconds remaining.

CSI had 11 points in the second half, including a 10-0 run in the final 10 minutes. The Bulldogs' comeback was limited to 10 points in the second half.

Duran decisions Barkley

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Roberto Duran knocked down Iran Barkley in the 11th round and won his fourth world championship title Friday night with a split decision that meant at least "uno mas" for the ancient warrior.

Duran, 37, showed flashes of the brilliance that carried him to the lightweight, welterweight and junior middleweight titles before he quit the ring in 1985, and in a war of arrogance versus hatred, the sheer determination of Duran won out.

The man tagged as a quitter when he threw up his hands and walked away in the eighth round against Sugar Ray Leonard in 1980 forever, and always erased the "no mas" memory with his courageous victory over Barkley.

Puffing and trying to catch his breath in the middle rounds, Duran summoned his last reserves in order to wrest the World Boxing Council middleweight title from Barkley. Duran won the 10th round with a left to the body, two lefts to the head and a right at the end of the round, and he stood head to head, toe to toe with Barkley to start the 11th.

The two traded punches evenly until the end of the round.

 CHI rebounding and Sergio Gomez hit his first field goal seconds later. And that was one more point and an equal amount of rebounds. These two managed in that one-point win over Dixie in St. George's in December so any thought of a jinx was gone.

Within five minutes CSI had rolled up a 22-11 lead and the Eagles pushed that to 32 at 8:50 when Dixie threw in the second unit with 10 minutes left in the second half.

When they threw in the reserves I knew what they were trying to do. On our intensity and make us re-said Trenkle. That's exactly what they did and I guess it worked because they took it from 36 down to 19 at the end.

"But I felt our defense was superb when it had to be and offensively we put the ball where we wanted it most of the time. They are a great rebounding team and I felt we held our own. We worried about their guards but we were able to contain Bobbie James pretty well, at least make him shoot that three-pointer a step or two deeper, and while Raichel did put us up and get a couple of inside baskets, I was pleased. Trenkle said.

"I was happy for Martin and Sergio and our team. We had a good game. Martin had 14 and a lot of rebounds and Sergio had a good overall game, but big points but big rebounds, a couple of great passes and he slowed their down a couple of times by taking charges," the coach said.

"I just think it was an excellent effort against a fine team," he concluded.

BOISE (AP) — Boise State rode to the top of the Big Sky Conference basketball standings Thursday night with a tense 63-61 victory over Idaho.

Wyoming 72 BYU 65

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Robyn Davis provided the firepower with 29 points and Kenny Smith added the free-throw accuracy Thursday as Wyoming beat Brigham Young 72-65 in Western Athletic Conference action.

Davis, who had 11 points in the first half, erupted in the second half, hitting six of seven shots during one stretch.

The win improved Wyoming to 13-14 overall and 5-8 in the conference. Brigham Young, which had a three-game winning streak snapped, fell to 12-13 and 5-8.

UCLA 101 Washington 78

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roy Walker scored 18 of his career-high 22 points on 3-point shots and became UCLA's all-time leader in that department Thursday night as the Bruins routed Washington 101-78 in a Pacific-10 Conference game for the Bruins' 1,200th basketball victory.

The Bruins, who also got a season-high 22 points from Pooh Richardson and 17 off the bench from Charles Rochefin, were coming off the worst defeat in school history, a 102-64 loss Saturday to the No. 2 Arizona Wildcats in Tucson. The 101 points were a season-high for UCLA.

The lead see-sawed through much of the second half, with UNLV pulling ahead 72-64 on a driving layup and free throw by Greg Anthony with 51 seconds remaining.

The Runnin' Rebels then squandered their lead with a series of turnovers and Fresno State closed to 73-71 on a 3-point jumper by Jervis Cole with 28 seconds remaining.

The victory was the fifth in Utah State's last six games and improved the Aggies' conference record to 9-6 and their overall mark to 11-3. San Jose State fell to 1-15 and 0-5 overall.

The match-up was touted for three days as The Nightowl Special in a midweek triple-header on ESPN, the cable sports network.

When the game proceedings were finished, Big Sky Commissioner Ron Stephenson said with a straight face, "next time we get on television, we're going to have to get a better game."

UNLV 75 Fresno State 71

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — David Butler scored 19 points and No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas escaped with a 75-71 victory over Fresno State Thursday night in the Big West.

The lead see-sawed through much of the second half, with UNLV pulling ahead 72-64 on a driving layup and free throw by Greg Anthony with 51 seconds remaining.

The Runnin' Rebels then squandered their lead with a series of turnovers and Fresno State closed to 73-71 on a 3-point jumper by Jervis Cole with 28 seconds remaining.

The victory was the fifth in Utah State's last six games and improved the Aggies' conference record to 9-6 and their overall mark to 11-3. San Jose State fell to 1-15 and 0-5 overall.

Stanford 54 Oregon 50

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Scott Meinert scored Stanford's only three field goals in the last nine minutes Thursday night as the 16th-ranked Cardinal beat Oregon 54-50.

Oregon trailed by eight but closed to 47-46 on Eric Dunn's basket with 4:45 left. Meinert scored with 4:25 left and 2:00 to go, boosting Stanford's lead to 51-46.

Arizona 109 Arizona State 74

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Seniors Sean Elliott, Anthony Cook and Ken Lutz combined for 53 points in their McKale Center finale as No. 2 Arizona clinched a tie for its second straight Pacific-10 Conference title Thursday night, beating Arizona State 109-74.

BYU's John Fish avoids Wyoming forward Clauzell Williams.

Colorado State 81 UTEP 68

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Pat Durham scored a career-best 32 points Thursday as Colorado State beat Texas-El Paso 81-68 to give the Rams a share of the lead in the West-Sky Conference basketball Thursday night.

Colorado State set a school record with a fifth-straight WAC win. The team is now 9-4 in the conference, and 17-8 overall. UTEP fell to 9-5 in the conference and 20-6 overall.

Webster State 82 E. Washington 73

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State's Rico Washington scored 25 points and the Wildcats held off a late Eastern Washington rally as they defeated the Eagles 82-73 in Big Sky Conference basketball Thursday night.

The Wildcats did not score a field goal in the late 5:32, but used 10 free throws to nail down the victory that improved their records to 16-8 overall and 9-6 in the conference. EWU fell to 7-21 and 4-10.

Stanford 54 Oregon 50

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Scott Meinert scored Stanford's only three field goals in the last nine minutes Thursday night as the 16th-ranked Cardinal beat Oregon 54-50.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Seniors Sean Elliott, Anthony Cook and Ken Lutz combined for 53 points in their McKale Center finale as No. 2 Arizona clinched a tie for its second straight Pacific-10 Conference title Thursday night, beating Arizona State 109-74.

Colorado State 81 UTEP 68

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Pat Durham scored a career-best 32 points Thursday as Colorado State beat Texas-El Paso 81-68 to give the Rams a share of the lead in the West-Sky Conference basketball Thursday night.

Colorado State set a school record with a fifth-straight WAC win. The team is now 9-4 in the conference, and 17-8 overall. UTEP fell to 9-5 in the conference and 20-6 overall.

Webster State 82 E. Washington 73

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State's Rico Washington scored 25 points and the Wildcats held off a late Eastern Washington rally as they defeated the Eagles 82-73 in Big Sky Conference basketball Thursday night.

The Wildcats did not score a field goal in the late 5:32, but used 10 free throws to nail down the victory that improved their records to 16-8 overall and 9-6 in the conference. EWU fell to 7-21 and 4-10.

Stanford 54 Oregon 50

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Scott Meinert scored Stanford's only three field goals in the last nine minutes Thursday night as the 16th-ranked Cardinal beat Oregon 54-50.

Oregon trailed by eight but closed to 47-46 on Eric Dunn's basket with 4:45 left. Meinert scored with 4:25 left and 2:00 to go, boosting Stanford's lead to 51-46.

Arizona 109 Arizona State 74

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Seniors Sean Elliott, Anthony Cook and Ken Lutz combined for 53 points in their McKale Center finale as No. 2 Arizona clinched a tie for its second straight Pacific-10 Conference title Thursday night, beating Arizona State 109-74.

Where We Make Quality And Value Affordable

1243 Blue Lakes Blvd. No., Twin Falls.

BUY A 1989 CHEVROLET S-10 "EL" PICKUP AND RANDY HANSEN CHEV-Geo WILL GIVE YOU ONE OF THE FEW THINGS THAT GOES EVEN FASTER.

Think of it. A $500 cash-back rebate to use for the down payment, or anything else your heart desires.

No matter how you spend it, though, or how fast, what's going to last and last is all the fun you'll have in a S-10 "EL" Pickup.

So step on it. March 6th is your last chance to drive out in a brand-new 1989 S-10 "EL" Pickup with $500 in your pocket.

We've got a tremendous selection of these babies in stock, rarin' to go, and more on the way. All you have to do is stop in and say S-10 "EL". "Quick!"

We'll give you top dollar for the car or pickup you're driving now, and then we'll help you finance the difference. Even if you're a first time buyer without a credit rating to your name. It's just what you would expect from Randy Hansen Chev-Geo.
