Admission fees at Twin Falls' new pool double old charges

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The new city pool's entrance fees for most age groups will be twice what the old Harmon Park Pool charged when it closed in 1983, city officials say.

Under a newly approved rate schedule, general admission will cost 50 cents for children 5 and under, $1 for 6 to 12-year-olds, $1.50 for 13 to 17-year-olds and $2 for adults.

General admission fees at the Harmon Park swimming pool were 50 cents for children under 12, 75 cents for children from 12 to 17 and $1 for adults.

"We're going to experiment with those rates and see how they work," said Mayor Doug Vollmer. "We just want to break even with this. We know from the onset it wouldn't be a money maker."

If the rates prove to be too much, then adjustments can be made, Vollmer said. The City Council would consider adjustments for needy families.

lies; the rates are not meant to exclude anyone, he said.

"I'd like to hear from the people and see what they think," he said.

Under the new rates, season passes will cost:

- Age 6 to 12: $30.
- 13 to 17: $45.
- Adults: $60.
- Swim team members: $30.
- Twenty-pass coupon books will cost:
- Age 6 to 12: $15.
- 13 to 17: $22.50.
- Adults: $30.

Family passes will cost $100 for families with five or fewer members, and an additional $25 for each additional person.

Swimming lessons will cost $10 per child per session.

The rental fee for private parties on Sundays from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. will be $150. Participants in swim meets will pay $1.

The pool is tentatively set to open June 1 and to stay open for 90 days.

Vollmer, however, said he expects it to stay open for five or six months.

Daily hours will be as follows:

- Special classes: 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.
- Swimming lessons: 9 a.m. to noon.
- Lap swimming: noon to 1 p.m.
- Recreational swimming: 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

City officials are seeking bids for a concession stand that will sell hot dogs, popcorn, soda pop and candy at the pool, said Chad Browning, the city's parks and recreation director.

"We want a full concession stand," he said. The city will try to keep prices affordable for children, Browning said. A percentage of the concession stand's profits will be donated to the city.

Idaho a step closer to oversight at INEL

The Associated Press

BOISE — In a flurry of environmentally related actions, the Senate has moved the state a step closer to independent oversight of operations at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

On a unanimous vote Tuesday, the Senate sent the House legislation directing the governor and his staff to prepare a detailed program for the state to evaluate the environmental impact of operations at the sprawling Department of Energy research and weapons production facility in eastern Idaho.

The chamber also approved without objection and sent to the House creation of a 17-member ground water quality council to develop a comprehensive statewide program to protect Idaho's ground water. By June 1990 and legislation aimed at preventing industry in other states from using Idaho as the dumping ground for potentially hazardous wastes restricted in their own states.

The INEL oversight legislation, the product of a bipartisan four-member panel on the Senate Resource and Environment Committee, sets out the policy and guidelines the governor will follow in developing the detailed plan for legislative consideration next year. Legislative budget writers have already approved over $500,000 in state and federal money to begin work on the monitoring scheme.

Sparked by mounting concern over the radioactive wastes both buried and stored above ground at the facility,

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said with independent state involvement "the citizens of our state can have confidence in the operations and our environment can be secured as those activities take place."

Public concern over operations at INEL was underscored last October when Gov. Cecil Andrus banned further temporary storage of radioactive waste from other states until the federal government opened a permanent waste dump and began cleaning up buried waste.

Sen. John Hanson, R-Idaho Falls, a member of the drafting subcommittee, said state oversight would protect the integrity of INEL "instill in the public confidence that the activities at INEL are environmentally safe, which they don't have because of some of the things that have happened at other DOE facilities."

The only caution has come from Republican U.S. Sen. James McClure.

Zinser accepts Idaho job

The Associated Press

BOISE — After weeks of negotiation, Elisabeth Zinser accepted the Idaho Board of Education's offer on Tuesday to become president of the University of Idaho.

She will become the university's 14th president, and the first woman to lead the land grant institution at Moscow. But recruiting her meant raising the compensation package for the position from about $81,000 to $115,000 per year.

Zinser, 48, also was a top contender for chancellor of the University of Kentucky's Lexington campus. But Rayburn Burton, executive director of the Idaho board, said she was asked to either accept or decline the Idaho job on Tuesday.

Her appointment ends the search for a successor to President Richard Gibb, who is retiring to return to teaching June 30.

The board discussed the role and salary of the UI presidency with Zinser on Monday via a teleconference to North Carolina, and board President Charles "Tiny" Grant received her decision by telephone Tuesday at his office in Rexburg.

However, in a telephone interview later Tuesday, Zinser said she was sure the board would have given her more time if she had asked.

"I know that had I insisted on an additional week, it would not have been unreasonable," she said. "I believe they would have given me a week, not happily, but they would have done it."

Zinser, currently vice chancellor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, said her decision to take the Idaho position over a probable job offer from Kentucky next week came down to the support and encouragement she received in the form of

Senator levels new drinking charge

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Democratic senator said Tuesday he will press Defense Secretary Francis Pickens to order an investigation into the drinking habits of the military.

Sen. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said he will introduce legislation to require the defense department to conduct a study of the drinking habits of its personnel. Edwards said the study would be conducted by the General Accounting Office.

Motel room on fire, window shattered

Eclipse brings out sunspots

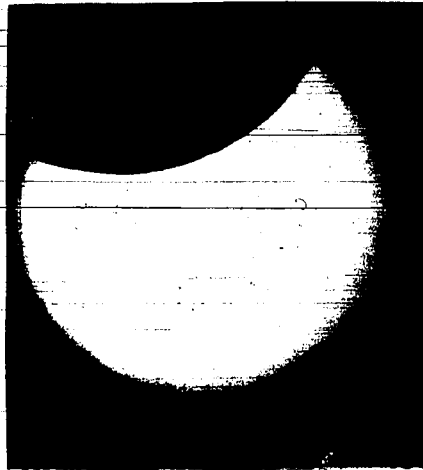

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Solar telescopes yielded views of flare-producing sunspots and silhouetted mountains on the moon Tuesday as crowds gathered to watch a partial solar eclipse visible across western North America.

"There was a childlike delight with the wonder of nature," said Ed Krupp, director of Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles, where 600 children and at least 400 other people watched the moon block out 37 percent of the sun's surface at 9:50 a.m. MST.

"It was certainly a lively crowd," he said. "There was a festival atmosphere."

As the moon passed between the Earth and sun to cause the partial eclipse, those watching through Galilei's telescopes could see mountains on the edge of the moon silhouetted against the sun. Also visible were gas jets on the sun's surface and a giant group of sunspots that on Monday produced the most intense solar flare — a burst of heat and radiation — since 1984.

"There was a stunning view of that large sunspot group," Krupp said. "The eclipse was visible to at least some extent west of a diagonal line stretching roughly from Mazatlan, Mexico, northeast to Dallas and

Partial eclipse as seen from Los Angeles observatory

Chicago. Views were best farther west and north. But because the eclipse was partial most people didn't notice the slight dimming of sunlight.

Several people viewed the eclipse through welder's helmets in downtown Anchorage, Alaska, where the moon obscured 30 percent of the sun at 9:13 a.m. AST.

In San Francisco, the moon eclipsed 46 percent of the sun at 9:52

a.m., but the event wasn't visible because of clouds that were so thick they delayed arriving flights at the airport.

A slight dimming was noticed in Seattle, where partly cloudy skies allowed a glimpse of the 56 percent eclipse at 10:10 a.m. PST.

The percentage of the sun blocked out and time of maximum eclipse at other locations included: 52 percent at 11:28 a.m. MST in Edmonton, Alberta; 46 percent at 11:09 a.m. MST in Boise, Idaho; 36 percent at 11:10 a.m. MST in Salt Lake City; 35 percent at 9:58 a.m. PST in Las Vegas; 25 percent at 11:17 a.m. MST in Denver; 15 percent at 12:42 p.m. CST in Minneapolis; and a moon 3 percent at 12:44 p.m. CST in Milwaukee.

In the Magic Valley of Idaho, rain clouds blocked the eclipse from view. Total solar eclipses are visible from any single location roughly once every 400 years.

"I have not seen him inebriated to the extent he could not perform his duties," replied DeConcini, who said later he had seen Tower "under the influence" several times.

But Tower, in a statement, denied the charge, saying, "I have never been inebriated on the Senate floor."

Bush, in a session earlier Tuesday with White House reporters, repeated his oft-stated insistence that no senators had first-hand information that Tower was hampered by a drinking problem.

"I haven't had one single senator — not one — (who) served with him over the years, say, I have seen him. My first-hand evidence is this man is inebriated because of his consumption of spirits," Bush said.

Mitchell said that despite the decision Monday of Southern Democrat

Howell Heflin of Alabama to support Tower, the nomination will lose.

"I believe that when the vote occurs the nomination will be rejected and it is obvious if the Republicans had the votes they would now be demanding the vote take place," Mitchell told reporters.

"I frankly see no benefit to anyone in unnecessarily and needlessly prolonging this matter," he said.

But Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said, "This has just barely started."

He left open the possibility of asking the Senate to let Tower answer the charges against him on the floor itself. But he seemed to concede it would be a last-ditch attempt to stave off defeat, and Democrats said Tower had ample opportunity to defend himself before Nunn's committee.

notes from students and faculty members, and telephone calls from legislators and even Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The thing that really turned my head toward Zinser, and my heart toward Idaho, is that the state feels to me so ready for a new, fresh perspective on things, both at the campus level and at the state level," she said. "And they have really embraced me as someone they want to be a part of their community. That is no small resource to someone wanting to come in and be effective in leading."

Barton said Zinser would be in Moscow for a formal announcement of her appointment on Thursday, and on Friday would visit with Andrus, key legislators and UI alumni leaders in Boise.

"I think it's safe to say we have secured one of the finest people in higher education today to serve as the next president of the University of Idaho," Grant said in a prepared statement issued by the board's office in Boise. "Dr. Zinser clearly has the abilities and the vision to guide the university into the 21st century."

Zinser received national attention last March when she was named president of Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C. She resigned after five days amid protests from students, faculty and alumni who wanted a hearing-impaired administrator, but was praised for her handling of the situation.

Zinser was the overwhelming favorite of faculty members, community leaders and others at the University of Idaho after her visit to the campus last month. But she also was the only remaining candidate for the job after three other finalists dropped out before or during the final interview process.

Summit talks in May likely

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III met with the Soviet foreign minister Tuesday and agreed to visit Moscow in May, where they will discuss prospects for a Bush-Gorbachev summit.

His two-hour meeting with Eduard A. Shevardnadze in Vienna took place the day after they outlined their governments' positions at a 35-nation conference on reducing conventional military forces in Europe.

Baker's plane stopped in Shannon for refueling on the way home.

In Vienna after the meeting, Baker told reporters the United States "is not ready to set a date" at this point for a summit between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

stand's earnings will be paid to the city, he said.

The city has already hired Wendy Davis to manage the pool and has hired five lifeguards. Two more lifeguards and a cashier are yet to be hired, Browning said.

Before the pool is completed, a few more details remain, including landscaping, installing machinery and training city workers to use the equipment, City Engineer Gary Young said. Construction is essentially completed and contractors will seek payment by the week's end, he said.

Today's weather

Rain will continue to march across Idaho

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Today and Thursday mostly cloudy with rain likely. Highs both days lower to mid 50s. Lows today night mid to upper 30s. South winds 10 mph.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley:

Today mostly cloudy with showers likely. Snow level 7000 feet with new accumulations 3 inches. Highs mid to upper 40s. Tonight and Thursday showers likely. Snow level 7000 feet. Lows upper 20s. Highs mid to upper 40s.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Utah — Today cloudy with a chance of rain showers early. Clouds and showers decreasing in the afternoon.

Nevada — Local "south" winds 10 to 20 mph. Highs in the low 60s. Tonight and Thursday, partly cloudy with a slight chance of showers, mainly near the mountains. Lows in the low 40s. Highs in the low 60s. South winds 10 to 20 mph Thursday. Probability of measurable rain 40 percent early today decreasing to less than 20 percent tonight and Thursday.

Nevada — Forecast not available.

Summary:

A nearly stationary low pressure area off the West Coast will continue to influence Idaho with a mild and moist southwesterly air flow for the next several days.

The weather conditions of the past few days are expected to continue through the end of the week. However, temperatures will become warmer as the week progresses. Skies across Idaho Tuesday were cloudy in most of the state except for the areas west of Twin Falls where mostly sunny skies prevailed. Precipitation was mostly less than a few tenths of an inch across the state. A few stations receiving more than this were Powell with .36 inch, Lowell with .39 and Dixie with just over a half inch and four inches of wet new snow fall at Dixie. Low temperatures were generally in the 20s and 30s. The low for the state was 25 degrees at Milad. Afternoon temperatures averaged in the lower 50s in the southwest and central valleys and lower to middles 40s elsewhere in the state.

The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 60 degrees at Hallegrom. Bear Lake and Milad reported the coldest at 25 degrees. The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Friday through Sunday, scattered showers. Continued mild at first then cooler on Sunday. Highs upper 40s and low 50s through the week to lower 50s Sunday. Lows mid 30s to mid 30s in the east, mostly 30s in the west.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 91 degrees at Yuma, Ariz. The lowest was 19 degrees below zero at Cornub, Maine.

Bill leads to agreement

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature has agreed to a plan to raise the state's 13,000 workers' pay by 4.5 percent, a move that would cost the state about $11 million more a year.

House Speaker Dan Claitor said after the vote that the measure would be a "win-win" for everyone involved.

Idaho
Legislature
1989

The measure, which would raise the pay of state workers by 4.5 percent, was passed by a 29-11 vote in the Senate Tuesday.

On a 29-11 vote Tuesday, the Senate endorsed the House-passed plan to underwrite $11 million in merit pay raises for the state's 13,000 workers.

Rex Furness of Rigby was the lone Republican opposing the merit plan. He was joined by Mrs. Calabretta and fellow Democrat Michael Blackbird of Coeur d'Alene, Michael Burckett of Boise, H.J. Christensen of Aberdeen, Karen Cooke of Priest River, Brian Donesley of Boise, John Peavey of Carey, Mary Lou Reed of Coeur d'Alene, John Stocks of Coeur d'Alene and Claire Wetherell of Mountain Home.

Republicans Larry Anderson of Twin Falls and Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot did not vote.

A departure from past pay plans, the legislative proposal guarantees no worker any pay hike, leaving it up to supervisors to decide which workers merit any kind of increase, and it has drawn criticism from some state employee leaders.

The governor's plan, costing about $1 million less than the Legislature's, would have increased the payline under the state's complex Hay Plan payroll system by 4.5 percent. It would have guaranteed at least a 5 percent pay increase to all but 1,200 state workers — those determined by the payroll system to already be earning the same or more than workers in similar jobs elsewhere.

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature's alternative to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus' state employee pay increase has gained final approval.

School may gain ISU branch status

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Consultants to a state Board of Education committee are recommending that Eastern Idaho Vocational Technical School be made a branch campus of Idaho State University.

The committee studying the higher education needs of the Idaho Falls area heard an oral report Monday from Carol Krause, commissioner of higher education in Montana, and Charles Hardwick, professor in the School of Business at the University of Houston-Clear Lake.

The two consultants recommended several alternatives to improve higher education delivery in the Idaho Falls area, but said the option that makes most sense is turning EVTS into a branch of Pocatello-based ISU.

"Right now I see everything going over EVTS head," said Krause.

Eclipse brings out sunspots

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Solar telescopes yielded views of flare-producing sunspots and silhouetted mountains on the moon Tuesday as crowds gathered to watch a partial solar eclipse visible across western North America.

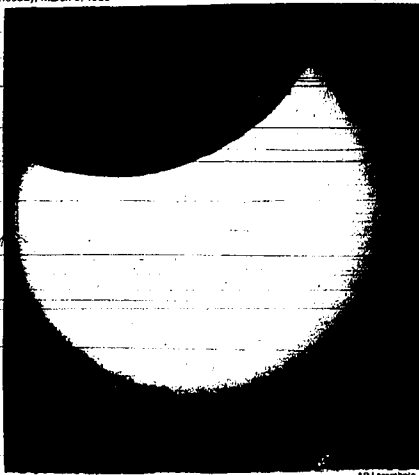

"There was a childlike delight with the wonder of nature," said Ed Krupp, director of Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles, where 600 children and at least 400 other people watched the moon block out 37 percent of the sun's surface at 9:50 a.m. MST.

"It was certainly a lively crowd," he said. "There was a festival atmosphere."

As the moon passed between the Earth and sun to cause the partial eclipse, those watching through Caltech's telescopes could see mountains on the edge of the moon silhouetted against the sun. Also visible were gas jets on the sun's surface and a giant group of sunspots that on Monday produced the most intense solar flare — a burst of heat and radiation — since 1948.

"There was a stunning view of that large sunspot group," Krupp said.

"The eclipse was visible to at least some extent west of a diagonal line stretching roughly from Mazatlan, Mexico, northeast to Dallas and

Partial eclipse as seen from Los Angeles observatory

Chicago.

Views were best farther west and north. But because the eclipse was partial, most people didn't notice the slight dimming of sunlight.

Several people viewed the eclipse through welder's helmets in downtown Anchorage, Alaska, where the moon obscured 80 percent of the sun at 9:13 a.m. AST.

In San Francisco, the moon eclipsed 46 percent of the sun at 9:52

a.m., but the event wasn't visible because of clouds that were so thick they delayed arriving flights at the airport.

A slight dimming was noticed in Seattle, where partly cloudy skies allowed a glimpse of the 56 percent eclipse at 10:10 a.m. PST.

The percentage of the sun blocked out and time-of-maximum-eclipse at other locations included: 52 percent at 11:23 a.m. MST in Edmonton, Alberta; 48 percent at 11:09 a.m. MST in Boise, Idaho; 36 percent at 11:10 a.m. MST in Salt Lake City; 35 percent at 9:58 a.m. PST in Las Vegas; 25 percent at 11:17 a.m. MST in Denver; 15 percent at 12:42 p.m. CST in Minneapolis; and a mealy 3 percent at 12:44 p.m. CST in Milwaukee.

In the Magic Valley of Idaho, rain clouds blocked the eclipse from view. Total solar eclipses are visible from any single location roughly once every four centuries.

Tower

"I have not seen him inebriated to the extent he could not perform his duties," replied DeConcini, who said later he had seen Tower "under the influence" several times.

But Tower, in a statement, denied the charge, saying, "I have never been inebriated on the Senate floor."

Bush, in a session earlier Tuesday with White House reporters, repeated his oft-stated insistence that no senators had first-hand information that Tower was hampered by a drinking problem.

"I haven't had one single senator — not one — (who) served with him over the years, say, I have seen him. My first-hand evidence is this man is ineligible because of his consumption of spirits," Bush said.

Mitchell said that despite the decision Monday of Southern Democrat

Howell Heflin of Alabama to support Tower, the nomination will lose.

"I believe that when the vote occurs the nomination will be rejected and it is obvious if the Republicans had the votes they would now be demanding the vote take place," Mitchell told reporters.

"I frankly see no benefit to anyone in unnecessarily and needlessly prolonging this matter," he said.

But Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said, "This has just barely started."

He left open the possibility of asking the Senate to let Tower answer the charges against him on the floor itself. But he seemed to concede it would be a last-ditch attempt to stave off defeat, and Democrats said Tower had ample opportunity to defend himself before Nunn's committee.

Summit talks in May likely

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III met with the Soviet foreign minister Tuesday and agreed to visit Moscow in May, where they will discuss prospects for a Bush-Gorbachev summit.

His two-hour meeting with Eduard A. Shevardnadze in Vienna took place the day after they outlined their governments' positions at a 35-nation conference on reducing conventional military forces in Europe.

Baker's plane stopped in Shannon for refueling on the way home.

In Vienna after the meeting, Baker told reporters the United States "is not ready to set a date" at this point for a summit between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

notes from students and faculty members, and telephone calls from legislators and even Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"The thing that really turned my head toward Idaho, and my heart toward Idaho, is that the state feels to me so ready for a new, fresh perspective on things, both at the campus level and at the state level," she said. "And they have really embraced me as someone they want to be a part of their community. That is a small resource to someone wanting to come in and be effective in leading."

Barton said Zinser would be in Moscow for a formal announcement of her appointment on Thursday, and on Friday would visit with Andrus, key legislators and UI alumni leaders in Boise.

"I think it's safe to say we have secured one of the finest people in higher education today to serve as the next president of the University of Idaho," Grant said in a prepared statement issued by the board's office in Boise. "Dr. Zinser clearly has the abilities and the vision to guide the university into the 21st century."

Zinser received national attention last March when she was named president of Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C. She resigned after five days amid protests from students, faculty and alumni who wanted a hearing-impaired administrator, but was praised for her handling of the situation.

Zinser was the overwhelming favorite of faculty members, community leaders and others at the University of Idaho after her visit to the campus last month. But she also was the only remaining candidate for the job after three other finalists dropped out before or during the final interview process.

The offer finally accepted by Zinser includes a one-year contract with a state-funded salary of $100,000, plus $15,000 from the University of Idaho Foundation, the university's philanthropic arm, which will be invested in a deferred compensation plan.

She currently makes about $97,000.

At the University of Idaho, she also will become a tenured faculty member in her field, educational psychology, if the board's recommendation is accepted by the university's faculty.

Other benefits will include a home on the UI campus, moving expenses and an automobile for official use.

sign stand's earnings will be paid to the city, he said.

The city has already hired Wendy Davis to manage the pool and has hired five lifeguards. Two more lifeguards and a cashier are yet to be hired, Browning said.

Before the pool is completed, a few more details remain, including landscaping, testing machinery and training city workers to use the equipment, City Engineer Gary Young said. Construction is essentially completed — and contractors will seek payment by the week's end, he said.

Today's weather

Rain will continue to march across Idaho

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Today and Thursday — mostly cloudy with rain likely. Highs today 40s, lower to mid 50s. Lows today night mid to upper 30s. South winds 10 mph.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley:

Today mostly cloudy with showers likely. Snow level 7000 feet. High accumulations 3 inches. Highs mid to upper 40s. Tonight and Thursday showers likely. Snow level 7000 feet. Lows upper 20s. Highs mid to upper 40s.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Utah — Today cloudy with a chance of rain showers early. Clouds and showers decreasing in the afternoon. Local south winds 10 to 20 mph. Highs in the low 60s. Tonight and Thursday, partly cloudy with a slight chance of showers, mainly near the mountains. Lows in the low 40s. Highs in the low 60s. South winds 10 to 20 mph. Thursday — Probability of measurable rain 40 percent early today decreasing to less than 20 percent tonight and Thursday.

Nevada — Forecast not available.

Summary:

A nearly stationary low pressure area off the West Coast will continue to influence Idaho with a mild and moist, southwesterly air flow for the next several days.

The weather conditions of the past few days are expected to continue through the end of the week. However, er temperatures will become warmer as the week progresses. Skies across Idaho Tuesday were cloudy in most of the state except for the areas west of Twin Falls where mostly sunny skies prevailed.

Precipitation was mostly less than a few tenths of an inch across the state. A few stations receiving more than this were Powell with .36 inch, Lowell with .28 and Dixie with just over a half inch and four inches of wet wet snow fall at Dixie. Low temperatures were generally in the 20s and 30s. The low for the state was 25 degrees at Malad. Afternoon temperatures averaged in the lower 50s in the southwest and central valleys and lower to mid-40s elsewhere in the state.

The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 60 degrees at Hagerman. Bear Lake and Malad reported the coldest at 25 degrees.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Friday through Sunday, indicates a continued trend of mild at first then cooler on Sunday. Highs upper 40s and 50s cooling into the 40s to lower 50s Sunday. Lows mid 20s to mid 30s in the east, mostly 30s in the west.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 91 degrees at Yuma, Ariz. The lowest was 19 degrees below zero at Caribou, Maine.

Release names of juvenile offenders

The idea will strike some as unfair and even a bit draconian, but we like the proposal of Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, to lift the current restrictions on release of the names of juvenile crime suspects.

Under current law, authorities are prohibited from releasing the names of juveniles who commit crimes under the theory that publicity at an early age makes it more difficult for young people to recover and lead a normal, productive life.

There is no restriction on publication of juveniles' names, by the way, if news organizations such as The Times-News learn the names independently. From time to time, we have done that when we thought the public interest in publication outweighed our normal rule of withholding the names.

Also, we have published juvenile names, and facts of juvenile crime records, when they have been supplied to us by a judge. Occasionally, Magistrate judges in the area have opened records when they have thought the public interest warranted it. That was done, for example, in the cases of juvenile murderers Jesse Ray Jagers and Kirby Anthony, but in both cases the defendants were no longer juveniles.

Neibaur's proposal is not without dangers. Some juveniles are, indeed, simply young people who have temporarily gone astray and for whom publicity of minor criminal acts would be devastating.

But in the case of repeated offenses, we think there is something to be said for the idea that publication of the names would be beneficial to the public.

As the case today with adult crime, news organizations would continue to be selective in which cases are given more coverage. Serious crimes would continue to merit the most, as we think it makes sense to do.

But young people who are thinking about a dishonest or illegal act as a "lark" would likely think twice if they knew there was at least some chance their names would wind up in the paper. Neibaur is right about the deterrent value.

'Negligible risk' carcinogens may prove dangerous

As conservationist William Reilly takes over as Environmental Protection Agency administrator, the agency embarks on a new policy which throws open the leaking floodgates of the nation's food supplies to carcinogenic pesticides.

Announced in the waning days of the Reagan administration, this policy gives the EPA broad discretion to allow contamination of food with "negligible risk" residues of carcinogens.

The recent EPA decisions allowing continued use on fruits and vegetables of the carcinogenic growth regulator Alar and the fungicide captan reflect this discretion to set tolerances for "negligible" cancer risks.

Prior to the new EPA policy, carcinogenic pesticides in food were regulated under dual standards of the 1956 Federal Food Drug and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA).

In deliberate violation of the Delaney law, EPA has failed to ban residues in processed foods of most carcinogenic pesticides.

Reflecting such violations, besides sensitivity to industry pressures, the agency resolved its dilemma by adopting the new standard allowing "negligible risk" tolerances uniformly for all carcinogenic pesticides on all foods.

The new policy trivializes cancer prevention at the expense of a marketplace definition of pesticide "benefits." "Negligible risk" is narrowly targeted to residues of "active" ingredients of individual pesticides on individual foods.

Without reference to substantial additional risks from undisclosed carcinogenic inert pesticide ingredients, contaminants and carcinogenic pesticides in the total diet, and their widespread contamination of water and air.

The "negligible risk" policy also ignores risks from carcinogenic food additives, coal tar dye colors, animal feed additives including hormones, food wrapping chemicals and contaminants.

More fundamentally, the "negligible risk" policy is based on

Samuel Epstein

quantitative risk assessment which attempts to estimate cancer risks to humans from animal tests. Quantitative risk assessment, however, is at best a pseudo-science and at worst a smoke screen for the generation of rubber numbers to prop up politically predetermined decisions.

Finally, the new standard is a powerful disincentive to reducing the current one billion pounds annual agricultural pesticide usage and to the development and application of integrated pest management or organic farming methods.

EPA's failure to implement pesticide food safety law must be corrected and not rewarded by emasculating the law. Instead, the Delaney law must be strengthened and uniformly applied to all carcinogenic pesticide ingredients in processed foods. Tolerances on raw agricultural commodities must be progressively reduced without alleged benefit considerations, but with a mandated short-term zero goal. Until then, state and local initiatives must be developed to protect consumers against carcinogens in food.

Recent food industry opinion surveys have revealed high levels of consumer concerns — 75 percent of the public regards residues in food as a serious health threat.

The nation is losing the war against cancer which has reached epidemic proportions, now striking one in three. Consumers nationwide will expect Congress and the Bush administration to take early and vigorous action to ensure that we can eat safely while reducing our substantial risks of cancer.

Samuel Epstein is professor of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, University of Illinois Medical Center. Jay Feldman is national coordinator of the National Coalition Against the Misuse of Pesticides, Washington, D.C.

'Crazy Years' have arrived after all

Ken Finkimbinder

For those who have been waiting this time with anticipation or dread, the Crazy Years have finally arrived. The confusion and frustration that's been lurking at the back of your mind is shared by most of us, with the exception of those few people we all know who are certain of everything.

The openness which was thrust upon us during the sixties should have allowed us to look at other life-styles and viewpoints with the idea of discovering the truth about certain things, and deciding what really would be the best way to run a country. Instead, we've been told that there is no "best" way to do anything and that we have to respect our neighbor's opinion, for no other reason than that it's his, no matter how stupid or damaging it is.

Our government has been made a victim of this "openness," and they in turn have made victims of the majority of the American population. The reason for any form of government, and especially one with the ideals that this country was founded on, is to protect the greatest number of people as much of the time as is possible. In their desire to legislate equality and justice for the hundreds of minority groups in this country, the government is failing to look after the welfare of the general public.

Every government attempt to protect some supposedly weak or defenseless segment of society has effectively stolen some of the strength from the silent majority. The result is a general breakdown in the way this society is functioning.

Our public education system, which was originally an example for the rest of the world to emulate, is now just an enormous day care system. Nearly one-third of our students drop out before graduating, while at least another third are receiving diplomas while still functionally illiterate.

Our welfare system, which promised to help a few people get by when things were tough, has created a vast subculture of broken families who are unable to pull themselves out of the system and gain some stability and self respect. Our economic system is a disaster. Each new administration promises a balanced budget, which does nothing about the huge federal deficit which we all know will come crashing down on us any day now. What we need is a budget designed to reduce the federal deficit over a number of years.

One of the most dangerous problems we face today, though, is the failure of the criminal justice system in its ability to protect the public welfare. The system has been so concerned with protecting the rights of accused criminals that they seem to have forgotten those of us out there who are still being raped, robbed and murdered.

What's difficult for many to understand is that there are sufficient laws on the books to get criminals off the streets and keep them off. Why aren't these laws being enforced?

We've all heard too many stories of criminals being let loose for some reason, only to go out and commit more crimes: it is obvious to the majority of American citizens that the police cannot protect us, and the courts will not.

These people recognize that it is their own responsibility to protect themselves, their families and their communities. It is frightening then, for those citizens, to hear that some members of Congress, and certain state leaders, wish to "solve" the crime problems by taking from all of us the only method we had of defending ourselves from the criminals.

One might be led to wonder if there were some method to their madness. This not-so-subtle infringement on our right to keep and bear arms has ramifications far beyond the idealistic theory of taking dangerous weapons away from criminals.

A disarmed populace has no "right" to complain about the way in which things are being run. While some of those leaders may claim to be well-meaning, it behooves us all to take a close look at their motives. If we allow them to encroach on "any" of our rights we will have no one to thank but ourselves when we are no longer enjoying this republican form of government. Think about it.

Ken Finkimbinder, Richfield, describes himself as the director of The Thunder Bird Society, "an educational organization... lobbying to stop all governmental restrictions on citizens' constitutional rights."

Islam has no science of religion yet

are hypostatized. They become sacred texts. Their historical origins are forgotten. The Bible becomes the infallible Word of God. The Koran becomes the "uncreated" Koran. Only a scientific revolution can restore the texts to their original status as the inspired writings of inspired human beings.

Every Islamic scholar knows that Mohammed incorporated in an early version of the Koran a few verses that accepted at Allah, al Manat and al Uzza, traditional goddesses of the Quraysh tribe, as intercessors between human beings and Allah. When Mohammed realized that his acceptance of the goddesses was compromising his own authority as spokesman for Allah, he expunged the verses and wrote in their place: "Say: O unbelievers, I serve not what you serve and you are not serving what I serve, nor am I serving what you are serving what I serve. To you your religion, and to me my religion." (Sura 109:1-5).

The expunging of the so-called satanic verses, and their replacement by the verses quoted above, is attested to by al Tabari, whose early 18-volume commentary on the Koran is acknowledged as authoritative by all Islamic scholars. Mohammed himself, in the official version of the Koran, states plainly that he can change the Koran as he discerns more clearly the will of God. "And for whatever verse We abrogate or cast into oblivion, We bring a better or the like of it; knowest thou not that God is powerful over everything?" (Sura 2:100ff.).

Yet one of the crucial battles taking place in Islam today is over the authorship of the Koran. Rushdie has broached the notion that Mohammed authored the Koran, that it is created, not uncreated. The Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who rose to power in Iran on the doctrine of the "uncreated Koran," has seized on Rushdie's novel with a vengeance born of desperation and made it the immediate symbol of Western apostasy and liberalism.

Islam is here to stay as a major, powerful world religion. It is not, intrinsically, any more "fundamentalist" than any other major, powerful world religion, and is very likely on the threshold of the rediscovery of its own human origins. Like all world religions, however, Islam is susceptible to fundamentalist influence, especially when it is backed into a corner. The misunderstanding of Islam in the West is appalling and tragic, and wholesale criticism of Islam merely prolongs its tenure of Islamic fundamentalism.

The solution to Islam's "problem" over the nature of the Koran and the character of Mohammed lies in Islam itself, not in criticism of Islam from some supposedly "enlightened" perspective. Rationalistic attacks on Judaism and Christianity served no purpose; Jewish and Christian Scriptures were opened up by scholarship from within.

Those who know Moses and Jesus and the Bible the best are Jews and Christians, not secularists. Those who know Mohammed and the Koran the best are and will be Moslems.

John Crossley is an associate professor of religion at the University of Southern California.

Letter/Legislature prompts comment

'Red Ink' invariably leads to more

We will have "Red Ink" more and more, the longer those "air heads" are up in the Idaho Legislature at Boise. Don't you all realize that no matter how much we give to education, they will never be satisfied and will always want more, more.

That is the way everything is, once on the "public welfare line" they are never able to take less. We are already in debt, and I'm afraid we are way past a cure. Too many getting too much at the expense of a too few who are getting fewer every day, with the inflation going up everyday and it is, regardless of what we're told.

Isn't the fiasco up at Yellowstone Park a complete disaster — allowing a fire to burn and destroy wild habitat and animals. Now that the animals are starving they aren't fed, and if they leave the Park to find food they are shot.

I've been told the park rangers even try to keep them from coming back for safety except for starvation. Maybe if less people visited the Park because of its blackened areas and scarcity of animals, they might wake up, for the dollar is all that matters in this world today.

After the Egan-Hamer road was allowed, our stockmen friends didn't stick to their agreement. Perhaps if instead of a fine of a paltry $300, they should have had their range rights cancelled. Am sure this punishment would be more deserving.

Bush counters charges his administration is stagnating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports that the Bush administration is off to a stumbling start are common in the nation's capital, but the president said they haven't reached Lubbock yet and he won't be upset until they do. "A lot is happening," said the president Tuesday, obviously nettled by commentaries that very little appears to be going on in his administration. "Not all of it is good, but a lot is happening," Bush told an impromptu White House news conference. At the top of the list of the not-so-good things happening for the new administration is the prolonged fight over the nomination of former Texas Sen. John Tower to be secretary of defense. But that was not all. Critics have also said the administration is moving very slowly in filling other posts. Bush said that was a bad rap and offered some numbers to make his case. He noted that eight years ago, as President Reagan was forming his administration, "at this juncture 55 names, as of March 6th, had been announced. On the Bush-Quayle administration; 87 have been announced. So it's not bad. We're a little bit ahead in terms of announced names." David Gergen, a former Bush adviser and Reagan White House aide who now is editor at large of U.S. News and World Report, put the numbers in a different perspective in an article published last weekend in the Washington Post. Gergen said the president had nominated people for only two of 41 Pentagon slots that require Senate confirmation. Gergen used similar figures for other Cabinet departments — two of 17 at Transportation, two of 20 at Energy and one of 18 at Interior. Perhaps more telling than the numbers was the perception that Bush was not matching his own rhetoric. "The day after his election victory, Bush said, 'I will, for the most part, bring in a brand new team of people from across the country that will revitalize the process.' So far, the new team has a familiar look about it. To head the 14 Cabinet departments, Bush stuck with three holdovers from the Reagan administration and chose three others who had held Cabinet-level jobs in the preceding eight years. Four appointments went to veteran Washington hands who had served in Congress, including Tower and former Reps. Jack Kemp, Manuel Lujan and Edward Derwinski. "One outsider nominated was Robert Moe-bacher, very much a Bush insider from Texas. The other three outsiders were Louis Sullivan, James Watkins and Samuel Skinner. Gergen started some Washingtonians with such observations as, 'There is a deepening sense in Washington that something is badly amiss in this (Bush's) administration.'

Senators say S&Ls 'have no credibility'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate Banking Committee on Tuesday bluntly told savings and loan officials "you have no credibility" after the executives asked Congress to reduce the industry's contribution to its own rescue. The presidents of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the industry's largest trade group, and the National Council of Savings Institutions said the plan proposed by President Bush threatens the health of solvent S&Ls.

"We seek to make our contribution at a level that will not be so burdensome as to weaken our institutions and thus exacerbate further the current... crisis," said league president Barney R. Beckman. He warned that a "lynch-mob mentality" is rampant today, unjustly threatening the innocent majority of S&Ls along with the handful of scoundrels.

However, members of the committee told the lobby groups that their influence had waned.

Sen. Richard Shelby, D-Ala., saying the league had in the past tried to play down S&L problems, told the executives, "you have no credibility here today."

"I'm sure you all have lots of friends here, but less than you used to," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. Bush last month proposed spending about $150 billion over 10 years — half of it from taxpayers — to close or sell insolvent S&Ls. The plan would require remaining S&Ls to pay higher premiums for their deposit insurance and force their owners within two years to invest more of their own money as a cushion between future losses and government deposit insurance funds.

Sub-minimum wage now OK with Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, said Tuesday he would accept some type of sub-minimum wage for newly hired workers along the lines the Bush administration is proposing.

The comment appeared to boost chances for a hike in the $3.35 hourly minimum wage. Kennedy, a Massachusetts Democrat, said any sub-minimum wage provision should be accompanied by provisions for training and education for the affected workers.

"The concept of an educational component to the minimum wage, coupled with real training, is not unappealing," Kennedy said in his qualified acceptance of the proposal. Kennedy's committee is scheduled to meet Wednesday to draft legislation calling for the first increase in the minimum wage in eight years.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, the ranking Republican on the committee and a longtime opponent of the minimum wage in any form, said he too will support an increase if Democrats agree to a training wage.

The comments in interviews, and statements by another key Democrat and the AFL-CIO softening objections to the training wage, raised chances Congress will pass a minimum wage proposal Bush will sign.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell has said he wants a vote on the minimum wage this month.

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, carrying a veto threat from the president, last week gave the panel an administration plan to raise the rate 30 cents a year for three years, to $4.25 an hour by 1991. But she said the hike would be contingent on finding a second tier for all newly hired workers, who could be paid $3.35 an hour for six months before being covered by the full minimum.

Mrs. Dole said President Bush would veto any bill providing for more than the administration wants.

Discovery to launch Monday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Engineers Tuesday replaced a failed electronic part on Discovery with one borrowed from sister ship Columbia, and NASA said it hopes to launch the space shuttle and its five astronauts on Monday.

"We're still pressing ahead toward a Monday launch at 8:07 a.m.," said space agency spokesman Dick Young. But he said a firm date might not be set until Wednesday, after the replacement part had been thoroughly checked out.

The launch, which will deploy a $100 million communications satellite, had been set for Saturday after three earlier postponements. But it received another setback on Monday with the failure of a system that commands separation of the two booster rockets and the external fuel tank from the shuttle in flight.

Engineers replaced the unit with one from space shuttle Columbia and began the testing of it on the launch pad Tuesday.

The unit detonates explosives in flight to separate such things as the spacecraft from the launch pad and the booster rockets and fuel tank from the ship.

NASA has said if Discovery is not launched by March 18, it might have to yield the pad to space shuttle Atlantis, which is set for liftoff April 28 on a high-priority mission in which it will propel the Magellan probe toward Venus.

Streep aids fight against pesticides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Meryl Streep joined forces with a public interest group Tuesday in launching a nationwide campaign to focus attention on concerns about the health effects of pesticides on young children.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, a private environmental group, recently gained widespread attention when it issued a report claiming the Environmental Protection Agency does not adequately take into account the relatively high consumption of fruits and vegetables by children when setting limits on cancer-causing pesticides.

The EPA has denied the allegations and said that children are not exposed to an unusual health risk because of the pesticides.

Ms. Streep said she hoped the campaign would put pressure on the government to re-examine its methods of setting pesticide standards on fruits and vegetables and promote the shift to organic farming so that such pesticides could be eliminated.

"As parents, we care passionately about our children. We shouldn't have to worry about the safety of the food we feed them, especially fruits and vegetables that are essential to our children's health," said Ms. Streep, who has three children.

She is co-chair of "Mothers and Others for Pesticide Limits," which was formed to coordinate the campaign. Ms. Streep also agreed to take part in a television advertisement cautioning parents about the use of pesticides on fruits and their potential effects on children.

The group has bought time on a Washington television station for the ad and plans to distribute it.

Bush stays away from strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Tuesday virtually ruled out intervening in the Eastern Airlines strike, saying "man-to-man negotiation" is preferable to a government-imposed settlement.

While he didn't flatly rule out stepping in to end the walkout, Bush said his policy "will hold firm" despite pressure in some congressional quarters to force him to act.

Fielding questions for more than 40 minutes in the White House briefing room, he insisted that "there isn't malice" in his administration because of the drawn-out fight over confirmation of Defense Secretary-designate John Tower.

"A lot is happening," the president said. "Not all of it good, but a lot is happening. ... We're on track."

Bush defended his chief of staff, saying John Sununu, the former New Hampshire governor, knows his way around Washington and is doing his job well.

Immigration chief may face dismissal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration will replace Alan C. Nelson as head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, an administration source said Tuesday.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, who recently received a department audit that criticized management and operations of INS, is searching for someone to take over the agency, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The source confirmed a report in Tuesday's editions of the Los Angeles Times that Nelson would not be kept as INS commissioner or in the Bush administration.

It has been long presumed by department watchers that Nelson, along with most other political officeholders in the Justice Department, would be replaced.

Nelson, a San Francisco lawyer close to former Attorney General Edwin Meese III, became INS commissioner in 1982.

He was criticized by immigrant rights advocates for being slow to implement the provisions of the 1986 immigration reform law, which provided for massive amnesty for illegal aliens.

INS became embroiled in a number of lawsuits charging that it was improperly making it difficult for illegal aliens to obtain legal status under the new law.

East recovers from snowstorm

By The Associated Press

Road crews plowed and pedestrians trudged through the slushy remains of a snowstorm that canceled a presidential visit Tuesday in the Northeast, closed Missouri's Legislature for a second day and caused a 20-mile backup in Texas.

"It's history now," meteorologist Ray Williams of the National Weather Service in Paducah, Ky., said of the storm blamed for 28 deaths. "Fortunately it's March and it will start turning back to warmer weather."

Before the storm moved from the Midwest across the Eastern Seaboard, it tangled the morning rush hour in Baltimore and Washington and knocked out electricity to 40,000 customers at Annapolis, Md., and along the Eastern Shore from Georgetown, Del., to Salisbury, Md., and thousands more in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Utility workers battled ice, strong winds and frigid temperatures to restore power lines. Schools closed in several states.

In southern Illinois, where winds of 16 mph made temperatures in the low 30s seem like 5 to 10 degrees, temperatures were expected to reach the 60s by Saturday. Forecasters in Oklahoma, where up to 16 inches of snow fell, predicted 80s later this week.

A backup on Interstate 35 in northern Texas prompted about 100 truck drivers to park their rigs in Marietta, Okla. Police Chief Charles Dunn said. About half needed tow trucks to get on their way again Tuesday, he said.

Briefly

Israeli troops kill Palestinian

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops Tuesday shot and killed a Palestinian who ignored orders to halt, U.N. officials said. Baton-wielding troops dubbed 25 people in a Gaza Strip clinic.

The incidents occurred during widespread clashes between stone-throwing Palestinian demonstrators and Israeli troops in the occupied territories after the deaths of three Palestinians on Monday. In addition to the reported beatings Tuesday, at least 34 Palestinians were shot and wounded, most in the occupied Gaza Strip. Arab hospital officials said. Tin of the gunshot wounds were reported in Gaza's Jabaliya refugee camp, where the medical clinic was raided.

Chemical ban draws support

LONDON (AP) — Industrialized nations committed themselves Tuesday to banning chemicals destroying the ozone layer, but they reacted coolly to Third World demands for money to find substitutes.

China, India and other populous developing nations embarking on mass production of consumer goods containing chlorofluorocarbons reason that since the West invented and produces most of the ozone-destroying chemicals, the West should pay to replace them.

Despite the split, the 123 countries at an international conference on the ozone layer agreed pressure is on scientists and industry to find safe alternatives before more damage is done to the fragile atmospheric shield.

William Reilly, head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said the three-day conference that ended Tuesday sparked as much public discussion as any international environmental issue since the 1985 Chernobyl nuclear accident in the Soviet Union.

Iran breaks ties with Britain

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran broke relations with Britain on Tuesday because it refused to suppress "The Satanic Verses," whose author is under a death sentence by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for blaspheming Islam.

Khomeini's fundamentalist Shiite Moslem regime, which has put a price of $5.2 million on novelist Salman Rushdie's head, said it was determined to defend Islam against foreign insults.

Britain said the 88-year-old patriarch's order that his followers kill Rushdie, a British citizen, violated the principles of international relations and the diplomatic rupture was "entirely of Iran's making."

Moslems object to Rushdie's portrayal of the prophet Mohammed's wives as prostitutes and his implication that Mohammed wrote the holy Koran rather than receiving it from Allah. Rushdie says the novel, published last year, is a secular study of good and evil that is not meant to offend Moslems.

Soviet reformers began in 1983

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet reformers began planning their economic program two years before Mikhail S. Gorbachev came to power in 1985, Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov said Tuesday, and he implied they molded communist ideology to fit.

"We had to find theoretical foundations for all the actions that we wanted to pursue afterward," Ryzhkov said.

In a rare news conference that offered an unusual glimpse of the personality of a Soviet leader, Ryzhkov also revealed he is a workaholic who loves to read, misses the smell of newly machined metal from the factory where he spent 20 years, and is frustrated at the slow pace of reform.

"We have to have a lot of patience to implement what we have decided, because the scale of the country is so vast," he told 33 women journalists gathered in ornate St. Catherine's Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on the eve of International Women's Day.

Tibet capital under martial law

BEIJING (AP) — China imposed martial law on the Tibetan capital of Lhasa, and an American tourist said thousands of soldiers flooded the city early Wednesday to begin a massive crackdown on three days of bloody protests.

At midnight Tuesday, jeeps carrying loudspeakers sped through the city ordering residents to stay inside and informing them martial law had begun, said the tourist, contacted by telephone from Beijing.

Soon thereafter, 31 trucks carrying soldiers of the People's Liberation Army sped into the city, said the American, who is from New Orleans.

The soldiers were deployed at "designated places," the official Xinhua News Agency said early Wednesday.

Panel rejects key parts of curbs on child abuse

The Associated Press

BOISE — After a marathon, seven-hour committee meeting, members of a House committee, without dissent, rejected key parts of a package of bills designed to curb child abuse.

Gov. Cecil Andrus, Attorney General Jim Jones, Bannock County Prosecutor Larry Echo Hawk and a parade of other witnesses urged the Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee to approve bills calling for tough, mandatory prison terms for those who sexually abuse children.

But committee members voted 10-3 against a bill calling for mandatory five-year prison terms for adults convicted of aggravated sex crimes against children, such as instituting prison terms while committing the act.

Also rejected was a measure calling for a minimum of one year in jail for adults convicted of certain crimes against children.

Also held in committee was a bill requiring prison sentences for lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor child to be served consecutively, not at the same time.

Jail funding plagues officials

By The Times-News and the Associated Press

BOISE — Twin Falls County officials aren't sure where they'll get the money to operate their brand-new jail, now that a state tax bill they begged for is dead.

On Tuesday, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee rejected a proposal for a county justice fund that would have allowed property tax levies outside current limits. This time the vote was 10-8 against sending the proposal to the full House for a vote.

Chairman Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said the bill would be held indefinitely — usually a killing motion. It's the second time the committee has nixed the proposal.

Last month, Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said the county may have to close the jail Oct. 1, when current court-ordered funds expire. Tuesday, Hempleman said the county will have to ask for a court order to keep the $3.4 million jail open.

Renting jail space — B3

"The first choice is to go see the judge," Hempleman said. "Because Oct. 1, the monies we're running on now will be gone. If he doesn't agree with us, then I don't know where we'll go."

A 1986 agreement capped the old county jail's population at 30; forcing the county to ship its prisoners to other counties. A related court order allowed the county to levy extra property taxes, totaling $365,000 this year, to pay for the transportation. Even though transportation costs will be lower now that the new jail is open, the county still must come up with the money to cover increased maintenance costs, Hempleman said.

Sheriff Jim Munn expressed confidence on that score.

"I've been informed the jail will maintain running, one way or another," Munn said. County officials urged the revenue committee to pass a new state law separating spending for the justice system from other county operations. That would have allowed the counties to get around current limits on property taxes which they say are putting them into a crunch to provide mandated services.

"I'd hate to see the jail close that I worked so hard to get built," said attorney Greg Fuller. Fuller's lawsuit on behalf of jail inmates led to the population cap and eventually to the bond election to finance the new jail.

"Though that suit was slated for dismissal now that the jail is open, Fuller said he's considering asking 5th District Judge Daniel Harbuit to keep the suit alive, if that's the only way the county can keep the new jail open.

The legislative proposal rejected Tuesday called for putting the costs of jail operations, sheriff's offices, juvenile detention, prosecutors and the courts into a separate tax fund.

Therapist offers help to parents

By MIKEL BENTON
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Many parent-child relationships are based on destructive patterns — but patterns that can be broken, a family therapist told a packed auditorium at O'Leary Junior High School.

Parents often respond to their children in ways that serve as "roadblocks" to effective communication, such as threatening, ordering, evaluating, labeling and interrogating, Jo Ann Larsen, a therapist and columnist from Salt Lake City, said.

"These kinds of responses don't work well on anyone," Larsen said. "The only reason we keep doing them is we don't know what else to do."

Larsen joined Jill Chestnut, a nurse at Magic Valley Medical Center who spoke on substance abuse, at a forum Monday sponsored by the Twin Falls School District, the Twin Falls County Child Protection Team and the Pediatric Center.

Larsen recommended that parents concentrate on listening to what their children are saying rather than focusing on their own feelings.

"Envision yourself as a radio receiver," she said. "A radio takes in signals; it doesn't change them at all."

Rather than taking over the problem, the parent should reflect or paraphrase the child's words, allowing both parties to better understand the underlying feelings.

"If you look at troubled families and categorize their response patterns, you find that there are few or no listening responses in those families."

Parents also should pay attention to what is happening in their

Baby Matthew disappears from public scrutiny

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

JEROME — Baby Matthew, who won the public's sympathy and his nurses' hearts, has sunk into the protective obscurity guaranteed all such wards of the state.

The blue-eyed, blonde-haired baby boy was found Nov. 20 in a rest room in St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome, dressed in a T-shirt and wrapped in a blanket.

Health and Welfare Department officials labeled the case an abandonment.

Some 3½ months later, officials site confidentiality rules in refusing to talk about what has become of the boy. But all indications are that they have taken steps to allow Baby Matthew's adoption by new parents — just as they promised late last year.

"Confidentiality, in cases like this, is geared toward protecting the best interests of the child," said Kurt Friedenauer, acting Region IV director for the Health and Welfare Department.

"From my perspective, this is to allow the child to have an opportunity to grow up in a healthy environment without the potentially negative stigma of family members coming into the picture later," Friedenauer said.

In late December, Health and Welfare officials said they would be taking the initial step toward terminating Baby Matthew's natural parents' rights to him by placing a legal notice in The Times-News.

Such a notice appeared three times in January, advertising an evidentiary hearing for terminating parental rights in the interest of "Baby Boy Doe." The hearing, closed to the public, was held last week.

Experts expect near-normal runoff

The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's snowpack figures slipped a notch or two during a dry, cold February, but forecasters are still predicting near-normal stream flows for this summer.

In general, the month was below normal (precipitation) because of the arctic air mass," said Jerry Beard, a snow conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, who released the March 1 snowpack figures Monday.

"But everything still looks... real promising for a near-normal runoff, barring some unforeseen catastrophe."

A record-setting cold front moved over Idaho in early February, creating inversions in the valleys and warding away the storms. But precipitation for the month in Boise was 1.07 inches, compared to the normal 1.15 inches.

The burst of rain and snow during the past week puts the state back on track for normal or above-normal runoff, Beard said. Some stations received 2 inches of moisture in the past five days,

Spring weather will be the major factor determining how the snowpack converts into runoff, Beard said.

If the weather is cool, the melt will be slow, and much of the moisture will soak into the soil before running off into streams. But warm weather means a rapid melt, and more of the snowpack will run off immediately into streams and reservoirs, he said.

Library board takes closer look at operating costs

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Before a library committee sends the City Council its recommendation for a $1.7 million expansion, it wants a closer look at how the project will affect operating costs.

"I just think it pays off to be open and forthright from the beginning," said panel member Jan Hartgen.

The 30-member Library Expansion Advisory Panel on Tuesday put off until March 17 a decision on its proposal to the council, which will eventually decide whether to put expansion plans to a public vote next fall.

Panel member Lee Wagner said people could be suspicious of a planned doubling of the library's size that is not accompanied with requests to hire more workers.

The draft proposal calls for a 20,000-square-foot library addition.

Wagner said it would not set well with people once the addition is made to come to them and say, "We didn't quite tell you this but we need two more people."

Library Director Arlan Call said the 50-page draft recommendation states a current need to hire 1½ more workers regardless of expansion.

"The demand is there today and we're not meeting it," Call said.

He said more space does not necessarily require a bigger staff. The panel isn't hiding any costs, he said.

"I think we can look anyone in the eye and say this is what we are targeting," Call said.

He said adding staff is more likely to become necessary as more people use the library. Hiring more people is a situation faced by any city

Burley rejects rescue mission plan

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Burley City Council rejected a proposed ordinance that would have been needed to establish a rescue mission on the corner of Main and Oakley.

Mayor Ken Fronk broke a tie council vote killing an ordinance amendment that would have allowed a mezzanine ceiling to be one inch shorter than building code requires. Fronk cited a letter submitted by City Attorney Bill Parsons encouraging the council to vote against the ordinance change as his reason for denying the amendment.

"You are trying to perform a needed and valuable service to the area and the fact that the mezzanine is getting in the way is unfortunate," Fronk told those at the meeting behind the mission idea. "We certainly wholeheartedly support you in your efforts to establish this rescue mission."

Councilman Derlin Taylor said, "I would hope that you people could find a way to get this project done."

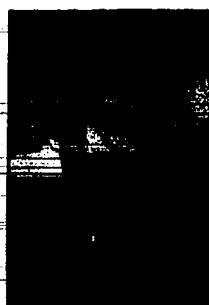

Following the meeting, representatives of the citizen's group, Bill Williams, Rupert, and Vince Frank, Paul, said they have no plans on how they will proceed. "We'll just have to find another building," said Frank.

The group approached the council at a previous meeting to request a variance in the Uniform Building Code which requires ceiling heights to be at least 7 feet 6 inches. A mezzanine floor in the older building has a 6-foot-6-inch ceiling. The council had originally approved a variance to the code that would allow the operation of a rescue mission in the building, but was later informed by Parsons it did not have the authority.

According to Parsons, the council can allow a variance to zoning laws, but cannot grant a variance on the

Tracie O'Gorman out of ICU

TWIN FALLS — Liver transplant patient Tracie O'Gorman was listed in fair condition Tuesday afternoon and had been moved out of the intensive care unit at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

"She's in a regular hospital room and doing real well," said Monica Foster, a hospital spokesperson.

O'Gorman, 19, of Twin Falls, flew to Omaha early Thursday morning to receive a new liver. She's been at the hospital's liver transplant list since September.

Co-Ad public hearing tonight

BURLEY — When federal education officials come to Idaho next fall to review the state's special education system, they will view a video of parents' complaints and complaints.

All parents of school-age children who have handicaps are invited to put their comments on record at a public hearing tonight in Burley. Sponsored by the Coalition of Advocates for the Disabled (Co-Ad), the hearing will begin at 7 p.m. in the Keybank building (the old Idaho Bank and Trust building), 1301 Overland Ave.

The U.S. Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs audits the state every four years to make sure schools are in compliance, said Co-Ad's Kay Pufall.

For more information, contact Co-Ad at 232-0922 or 1-800-632-5125. The hearing will be accessible and interpreters will be available upon request.

Bills encourage consolidation

BOISE — The House Education Committee has approved a pair of bills giving small school districts four incentives to consolidate.

The incentives are:

- If the consolidation plan calls for a new school building, the state would pick up interest payments. The program would be limited to a 15-year, $5 million debt.
- Combined school districts would be guaranteed funding for seven years at the rate the separate districts were funded before consolidation.
- The state would pay for consolidation feasibility studies and plans.
- Existing bond debt would remain with the original, unconsolidated districts.

The bills will now be sent to the floor of the House.

Nuclear activist to speak at lunch

TWIN FALLS — A former crane operator at a nuclear power plant will address a Thursday luncheon.

Michael Lowe, the director of the Greenpeace Southeast Nuclear Campaign in South Carolina, will give a talk titled, "When They Want to Build a Bomb Plant in Your Backyard," at 12:30 p.m., following an 11:30 a.m. luncheon at the China Garden.

The no-host luncheon is sponsored by Citizens Against a Radioactive Environment in cooperation with the Snake River Alliance.

Lowe is a native of South Carolina, the home of the federal Department of Energy's Savannah River Plant. According to Lowe, the plant has leaked, spilled and released radioactivity and chemical pollutants turning the surrounding land into a "national sacrifice zone."

Lowe's presentation will give a view of events at the Savannah River Plant.

Police save boy from possible hanging

TWIN FALLS — A 6-year-old boy who nearly choked to death while on a slide in Harmon Park was rescued by police Tuesday evening, officials say.

David McLaughlin was playing with a younger brother on a 7-foot slide when his neck got tangled in a rope-like strap that he had tied to the top of the slide, said police Sgt. Danny Crafton.

David's mother saw him dangling on the slide and called police, who responded in less than a minute, Crafton said.

Officer Chuck Dudley first responded at the scene, untangling the boy from the strap. Officers gave David oxygen from a machine, which cleared his throat, Crafton said.

"He started breathing better right away," he said. "He had a close one but he is going to be okay."

The boy was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center where he was in fair condition Tuesday night, said Pat Koerner, hospital house supervisor.

Couple files multimillion dollar civil suit against man

POCATELLO (AP) — A Pocatello couple, Dale and Julie Carson, have filed a multimillion-dollar civil law suit in 6th District Court against James Hudson, who last month was found innocent of aggravated battery and attempted rape charges.

Mrs. Carson, 28, suffered extensive head and chest injuries when she was run over by a vehicle on the south fork of Mink Creek Road on Aug. 6, 1988.

Hudson, 41, also of Pocatello, was charged with the assault but was acquitted by a jury.

department that sees an increase demand for its services, he said.

A more spacious library would solve problems related to cramped conditions, resulting in fewer people needing help to find materials, Call said. He also said expansion planning has taken up staff time; once the project is completed, the staff would be better able to cater to patrons.

City Councilman Jim Vickers, a panel member, said the panel could give the council alternative plans for satisfying existing and future staff shortages.

Wagner said the final report would emphasize to the City Council the need to publicize how the addition will affect spending.

Panel members also were concerned about additional costs of heating, lighting and maintaining the bigger building.

The panel's cost analysis committee has estimated that operational costs would rise by $17,000 a year, to about $360,000. That's not counting the 1½ positions Call says he needs.

Vickers said if people approve a $2 million expansion, the increased operational costs would likely be expected and not be objectionable.

"It don't see it as a problem," Vickers said. "I think it's available."

Panel members said they have been approached by a number of people who praised the panel's extensive planning and efforts to spread that information.

"I feel very enthusiastic about this," said Councilwoman Mary McCluskey, also a panel member.

Construction would raise property taxes on a $60,000 house by $13 a year, based on 15-year bonds at 7 percent interest, the panel's cost analysis committee said.

Matthew. But no other such legal notices have been published in the Times-News since late December.

Terminating parental rights legally frees the child from his parents and allows for adoption, Friedenaue explained. Friedenaue would only talk in general terms about the process — not about Baby Matthew's case.

At such a hearing, if nobody shows up to contest terminating parental rights, the judge seals the case and the child is placed in an adoptive home, Friedenaue said.

Police, meanwhile, have given up actively searching for Matthew's natural parents. Jerome Detective Don Magley said all tips regarding the case have checked out negative.

The case will remain on file, Magley said: "It just won't be sitting out on my desk as a work file."

The newborn, believed to have been born Nov. 18 or 19, was dubbed Baby Matthew by nurses at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. He was transferred there from Jerome because of his small size.

After his release from the hospital, Matthew was placed with foster parents.

Health and Welfare received many phone calls last fall from people wanting to adopt the child, but an official said parents would be chosen from those already on an adoption waiting list.

State wants county to house inmates

By The Times-News
and The Associated Press

BOISE — The state Board of Corrections has taken an initial step toward forming legal agreements with counties to hold the growing population of prison inmates overflowing into the local jails.

The proposal comes just as Twin Falls County, with a new jail open for business, can finally rent space to the state for its convicted felons. Since 1986, the county has been renting space from other counties because of a court-ordered population cap on its old jail.

children's lives and watch for openings to create a positive atmosphere, Larsen said.

"We tend to enforce the behaviors that we don't want," she said, adding that children may prefer negative attention to none. "Focus on what you're getting, rather than what you're not getting," she said.

Larsen said parents should monitor every word out of their own mouths, making sure to add emotional courtesies and not forgetting to apologize when needed. "Quite often we are not well-mannered when we talk with our children," she said.

Chestnut talked about substance abuse among adolescents from a personal viewpoint — her son's problems with alcohol.

"I have seen what decreased communication can do to a family," Chestnut said, saying she is neither a specialist in adolescent behavior, nor an expert in drug and alcohol use. "I am a mother that has actually been there."

Chestnut described the problems she and her husband faced when their son began to drink at the age of 14. Seven years ago, she said, little information was available regarding teen alcoholism and few resources for parents. Alcoholism was perceived as something that did not happen in "normal, everyday" families. "It was something that

When the jail bond issue passed, county officials considered renting space to state felons to help pay for maintenance costs.

But now, Commissioner Marvin Hempleman isn't excited about the prospect of the state renting jail cells.

"The problem is, the Legislature won't appropriate enough funds to house those prisoners," Hempleman said. Even if it did, the state's rental rates give counties only a "dollar or two" in net revenue per prisoner each day, he said.

Sheriff Jim Munn said he's not sure the 14-bed jail will have room for state prisoners.

"I would hate to contract with the Board of Corrections for so many beds and not be able to perform the contract," Munn said.

The jail's population is between 60 and 80 prisoners, Munn said. But the county faces a backlog of work-release prisoners and uncertainty over whether judges will begin sending more criminals to jail, Munn said.

The Corrections Department recently sent a draft memorandum of understanding to the county sheriffs about the requirements the state insists upon when its prisoners are kept in county jails.

The Correction Board voted Monday to start the process of offering a legal agreement to the counties to hold the inmates. It also tabled a proposal to send some of the prisoners to Wyoming facilities to handle the Idaho population.

happened mainly to other people, and in other states," she said.

Statistics, however, indicate that alcohol use among Idaho's young people is higher than the national average, Chestnut said.

Chestnut listed possible signs of substance abuse. Some of the things to look for are changes in achievement, changes in attendance and discipline problems," she said. "You might start to see changes in friends. Changes in behavior or dress, erratic behavior and decreased predictability may also indicate problems."

Chestnut said such signs "could often be subtle and may seem typical of teen-agers in general. Changes in mood may be the result of hormone changes, pre-menstrual syndrome or insecurities," she cautioned, but added that awareness and open communication could help parents diagnose the problem.

"Be involved in your kids lives and have them be involved in yours. Be aware and look at early prevention," she said.

Chestnut shared a letter from her son, now a college student. He recommended challenging kids.

The only committee members voting for the tough sentencing bills were Republicans L. Ed Brown of Pocatello and Sheila Sorensen of Boise and Democrat Jim Hansen of Boise. Boise Republicans Gary Montgomery and Pam Bengson left the seven-hour meeting before a vote was taken on the key bills.

Those who voted against the bill said they wanted to leave discretion for sentencing sex offenders with the judges, although the attorney general said Idaho has "weak and gutless" judges who won't hand down tough sentences.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, whose brother is a district judge, disputed that the proposals would lead to more plea bargains and thus fewer trials at which child victims would be forced to testify.

"When you have mandatory sentences, there will be trials," she said.

"We don't want to do something that won't be good for the victims," said Rep. Celia Gould, R-Buhl, who headed a subcommittee that recommended against the bills.

"We want to leave discretion with the judges and not leave it with the prosecutors," she said. "There are a lot of misconceptions out there."

Earlier, the governor told a Statehouse rally it is time to act on the bills. Similar rallies were held at Lewiston, Sandpoint, Kootenai and Coeur d'Alene by supporters of get-tough legislation on child abusers.

"We want these bills passed this year. We are not going to tell our children to wait another year," the governor told a gathering of about 150. The committee approved most of the other bills in the package, which includes 11 bills which cleared the Senate earlier but which have been bottled up in the House committee.

Most made procedural changes in the child-abuse laws, but Jones and Deputy Attorney General Pat Kolo called the sentencing laws the most important proposals.

Chairman Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise, farmed most of the bills out to a subcommittee, which has been meeting for weeks.

Andrus urged those attending the rally to attend the committee meeting and put pressure on for passage of the measures. He was particularly critical of the five-member subcommittee.

Uniform Building Code once it is adopted by the city. Parsons said the council would have to amend the ordinance adopting the code before the rescue mission could use the old building.

The council voted on such an ordinance, with Taylor, Clay Handy and Wendell McMurray voting in favor and Vern Jackson, Leonard King and David Gibbons voting against.

Some council members have said they are concerned about the strength of the ceiling. A sleeping ward was planned for the second floor. Building Inspector Keith Bryan again said that partitions the group planned to install under the floor would provide enough stability.

In other action, the council asked for grant information before it makes any decision on allowing the moving the Senior Citizens Center to the Soroptimist Building.

Burley resident Bruce Young asked the council to give seniors permission to use the building as a new location for the center. The building is located north of Gem Memorial Cemetery and the seniors would have to do some remodeling.

Taylor expressed concern about making any plans for the building due to zoning problems with the land. Questions about the zoning of the plat surfaced some months ago when Smith's Food King began to show interest in buying some of the land to build a new store.

The council has since initiated steps to rezone the land, but ran into a snag because law requires the city to notify property owners of the plan. Because a portion of the plat is a cemetery, it has been impossible to identify and locate all the owners of the burial plots.

The council decided to allow a group of pilots to lease land at the airport to build a hangar in the tie-down area. The council had previously given permission for construction of the hangar in a different area of the airport property, but the pilots' group has checked into the cost of putting in asphalt and found it to be too cost-prohibitive.

The council members had previously been concerned about the loss of the tie-down space, but after hearing testimony from several airport users, voted to allow the change in location for the hangar.

Several members of the pilots' group addressed the council and asked them to make more of a commitment to the Burley airport and to apply for grant money to improve the airport and runways. They cited the economic importance in the city of a good airport.

Brown leaves big shoes to fill at Idaho

By COLIN MULDOON
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho's basketball team has won 42 games since Raymond Brown joined the varsity two years ago.

It's no coincidence. The Vandals hadn't won that many games in the preceding four years.

"Oh yeah, it's hard to fill a guy like that," said Idaho coach Kermit Davis, said following practice on Tuesday. "We're recruiting a couple of players that we think can help us out in Raymond's spot. We've just got to find a 6-8 active athlete that has perimeter skills to play with (6-8

'You have to have heart. If you haven't got heart, you can't play the game.'
— Standout Idaho senior Raymond Brown

(toward) Riley (Smith) next year."

There it is in a nutshell.

The Brown-Smith connection turned Idaho from a good team with a 19-11 record a year ago to Big Sky Conference co-champions this season at 23-5. With the addition of the junior transfer Smith, Brown has been able to come out to the perimeter and hurt opponents with the 15- to 18-foot shot or the dish ball back into Smith for the easy inside bucket.

"I think they complement each other really well because Raymond is more perimeter," Davis said. "Riley is really a back-to-the-basket guy and what I think makes them really good together is that Raymond has done an excellent job of catching the ball high ... people have to guard him because he's a threat to score from there (the perimeter), but what he does, he's so unselfish from the high post ... he's a very good passer from the perimeter which makes Riley a lot better.

The Atlanta-born Brown, of course, was a big-time college basketball player before he ever heard of Moscow, Idaho.

A two-year starter at Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference, he averaged 11.8 points as a sophomore during the 1986-87 season, placing him 19th on the SEC scoring list. He also averaged 7.5 rebounds and shot 55 percent from the field.

That came after a freshman season during which he averaged 29 minutes, 8.5 points and a team-leading 5.0 rebounds and shot 51 percent from the floor. He was named to two freshman all-SEC squads.

Brown transferred to Idaho when MSU assistant coach Larry Eustachy became former Idaho coach Tim Floyd's assistant in 1986.

A rather spontaneous decision on Brown's part to enroll at Idaho, but according to Brown and Davis, this was the best move for Raymond.

And for the Vandals, obviously.

After sitting out the 1986-87 season under the NCAA's transfer rule, Brown moved into an undersized Vandal lineup as a junior. He earned first-team all-Big-Sky honors, the Vandals' first first-team all-leaguer since 1983. He led Idaho in minutes played, scoring, rebounding and blocked shots. His 16.1-point scoring average was 21st-best in Vandal history, and his 36 blocked shots were fourth best.

This season, with Smith at the post, Brown has averaged 16.0 points, eighth-best in the league, and 7.7 rebounds, which ranks his fifth. He leads the Big Sky in blocked shots (40), ranks seventh in minutes

Idaho's senior center Raymond Brown pulls down a defensive rebound (on average of 32.7), stands 10th in steals (38) and fifth in field goal percentage (53 percent).

Brown's greatest asset, according to Davis, is his work ethic.

"I really think this year, it is his ability to work hard every day in practice. He's really improved over the last two years. He's been a good practice player, but this year he's just been consistent to where he just plays everyday, so he's developed himself as a defensive player and his passing skills are really good." "You have to have heart," Brown said. "If you haven't got heart, you can't play the game. You have to be competitive to play the game. You have to have heart and be competitive."

Big Sky has chance to put 2 teams in NCAA playoffs

The Associated Press

BOISE — If No. 1-seeded Boise State and Big Sky Conference co-champion Idaho meet in the championship game of the league's postseason tournament, the conference might land two bids to the NCAA postseason tournament for the first time in its 26-year history.

The tournament winner gets the league's automatic NCAA berth, but Idaho coach Kermit Davis thinks the league deserves to send two teams to the NCAA party if the Big Sky championship is a Boise State-Idaho rematch.

The tournament tips off Thursday night with first-round games pairing the four teams that hope to knock off the favorites.

The Broncos, 22-5, and the Vandals, 23-5, split their regular-season meetings, with each team winning at home, and finished with identical 13-3 conference records. The conference's tie-breaking criteria, however, gave Boise State the host role for the tournament for the second straight year.

The winner of Thursday's 6:30 p.m. game between Montana, 19-11, and 11-5, and Montana State, 14-14 and 6-10, will advance to a semifinal game Friday against Idaho. Boise State's semifinal opponent will be the winner of the 9 p.m. game between Weber State, 16-10 and 9-7, and Nevada-Reno, 16-11 and 10-6.

Davis, in his first year as head coach of the Vandals, is quick to point out that neither of the favorites will make it the title game if they overlook their semifinal opponents.

"We lost to Montana in overtime at Missoula in the first conference game of the year, and Weber State won at Boise," Davis said. "That shows you how balanced this league is."

Coch Bobby Dye, in his sixth season at Boise State, has guided the Broncos to their third straight season with at least 22 wins.

The Broncos overcame a nine-point deficit in the second half to beat Idaho 73-71 in the teams' first meeting at Boise. That game was broadcast on ESPN, and the network will also televise the tournament championship game.

"I think the national television game against Boise did a lot to help our league," Davis said. "It's a league that you kind of have to root your own horn if you think you're deserving, and I think we have two teams that deserve to be there in the NCAA's."

Montana State Coach Stu Starnes agrees. "Idaho and Boise State both have outstanding records and outstanding teams," he said.

Starnes's Bobcats come into the tournament with a four-game winning streak, and freshman guard Todd Dickson and junior forward Brian Elve are back at full-strength after missing a significant number of games due to injury.

The Bobcats lost both games to Montana this season, but are hoping to repeat last year's tournament performance when they knocked off the Grizzlies after being swept in the regular season.

Nevada-Reno Coach Len Stevens said Montana State might have the best chance of challenging the conference co-champions.

Suspension could keep Owens out of tournament

The Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — Darryl Owens, the Big Sky Conference's leading scorer, apparently will miss the conference tournament that starts Thursday after being suspended following his arrest on a misdemeanor battery charge.

Owens is free on $265 bail after being arrested Monday on the complaint filed by a woman identified as his former girlfriend.

UNR basketball coach Len Stevens announced the indefinite suspension at a news conference, praising Owens' leadership but saying he could not be an exception because of his basketball talents.

"When you've been involved with an individual over the past two years, it's like they become family members," Stevens said.

"But you have responsibilities as a player, as a student and as a member of the community. Our players understand these responsibilities are athletic as well as academic and social," Stevens said.

He said that as he understands it, the charges cannot be dropped and it will be near the end of the month before the case can go to court.

Stevens said that unless he has received bad information, there is little likelihood his decision will be reversed.

The incident involving the woman allegedly took place in the Stead area north of Reno and while few details are available, University spokesman Bob Gabrielli said the woman was not injured.

Battery is defined as a violent act against a person. The misdemeanor carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The suspension comes as a blow to the Wolf Pack's playoff hopes.

Owens is averaging 22.7 points a game this year to lead the Big Sky by a fraction over the 22.5-point average of Weber State's Reno Washington.

Stevens said sophomore guard Kevin Franklin would take Owens' place in the starting lineup Thursday when UNR and Weber State square off in Boise, Idaho.

Just like we've played the Wolf Pack with that six experienced players."

WAC takes BYU charges seriously

The Associated Press

LITTLETON, Colo. — Western Athletic Conference commissioner Joe Kearney says he is not going to ignore Brigham Young's complaints about anti-Mormon remarks allegedly made at a recent BYU-Wyoming basketball game in Laramie, Wyo.

Kearney said Monday he plans to discuss BYU's complaints about the Wyoming game and other alleged incidents at other schools with WAC school representatives as early as Wednesday. Kearney said at that time he will hold his annual meeting with WAC athletic directors in Salt Lake City.

"I'm in the process right now of trying to determine the magnitude of what's happening," said Kearney. "It's not something we're going to ignore."

Officials of the Provo, Utah, Mormon school have complained to Kearney about abusive treatment of Cougars players by fans and players from other WAC teams.

Wyoming athletic director Paul Raach, who also is Wyoming's head football coach, called the complaints a "gross overreaction" and said some of the incidents actually were instigated by BYU players.

The only specific incident mentioned by BYU athletic director Glen Tuckett and school president Jeffrey Holland in their meeting with Kearney occurred during the Wyoming-BYU game in Laramie on Feb. 23.

BYU guard Andy Tolson claimed that after he was knocked to the floor at one point of the game, Wyoming center Clauzel Williams leaned over him and said, "Get off the floor and quit crying, you...Mormon."

Tuckett also claims Wyoming fans shouted religious epithets at the BYU players throughout the game.

"I think what's happening is BYU is having some tough times with some of their teams, and they're a little oversensitive about any incident that might occur," said Raach. "I really think they're overblowing this."

BYU has a history of racial and religious-related incidents with other WAC schools. During the 1987-88 season, the "Mormon church still prevented blacks from attaining leadership positions in the church," a fan threw a Molotov cocktail onto the court during a BYU-College State game in Fort Collins.

Last fall, several black San Diego State football players said BYU players made racially abusive remarks to them when the teams played.

Lewis' representative backs off remarks

By RANDY HARVEY
Los Angeles Times

TORONTO — Upon reflection, Carl Lewis' Canadian legal representative said Tuesday that he did not believe Ben Johnson's coach meant to implicate Lewis in an alleged conspiracy to sabotage Johnson's drug test at the Seoul Olympics.

"If he had wanted to imply something, he would have done it directly," said Tim Dan-son, who had previously represented Johnson.

On Monday, Danson accused Johnson's coach, Charlie Francis, of attempting to malign Lewis in testimony before a federal commission of inquiry into drug use by athletes. Francis had speculated that a stranger in the doping-control area, who could have spiked Johnson's drink before he was tested, had spoken to Lewis in the room.

"If it was an effort to besmirch Carl's reputation, it hasn't been done," Danson said.

"But I don't think Mr. Francis was trying to do that. It would be unrealistic to think that you can have a hearing of this length and not have a slip, an unfortunate combination of words. After four days on the witness stand, he was tired."

Lewis said in a statement Tuesday: "I feel the allegations are ridiculous."

Joe Douglas, Lewis' manager, said in a statement: "Due to the sensitive nature of the proceedings, Carl and I feel it is best not to comment further at this time so as not to risk prejudicing the inquiry."

Danson also said that the commission's co-counsel, Robert P. Armstrong, would interview Lewis in Los Angeles before the end of the month to determine whether the U.S. sprinter would be asked to testify.

They will discuss whether it will aid the inquiry for Carl to give direct testimony," Danson said.

After 41 days and more than 17 hours; the commission's co-counsel, Robert P. Armstrong, completed his questioning of Francis Tuesday morning. In the final hour, he focused on the Canadian Track and Field Association's role in steroid use by athletes.

According to Francis' testimony, Ouellette had at least implicit knowledge of drug use by Canadian athletes since 1981. He made his most damaging allegation against the CTF's chairman of the board, Jean-Guy Ouellette.

According to Francis' testimony, Ouellette offered in 1983 to give advance warning of drug tests to Francis' athletes if the CTF instituted a program of random, unannounced drug tests before the Summer Olympics.

"I deny everything," said Ouellette, who was present during the testimony.

TORONTO — Dr. Arne Ljungqvist, an observer for the International Olympic Committee's medical commission during the 1988 Summer Olympic track and field competition, reacted with amusement to testimony from Ben Johnson's coach that the Canadian sprinter's positive drug test in Seoul, South Korea, was the result of sabotage.

"The whole thing makes me laugh," Ljungqvist said Tuesday from his office in Stockholm, Sweden. "This is more or less routine with positive cases."

In testimony Monday before the Canadian government's commission of inquiry into drug use by athletes, Johnson's coach, Charlie Francis, speculated that an unidentified stranger in the waiting room outside the drug-testing station had tampered with the beer that was provided for Johnson to aid in his production of a urine sample after he had won the gold medal in the 100 meters.

Ljungqvist, who was on duty in the doping control area after the 100-meter final, said the IOC found no evidence to support the charge in an investigation conducted in Seoul as a response to the Canadian Olympic Association's appeal of Johnson's positive drug test for the steroid stanozolol.

Ljungqvist also denied Francis' allegations that there were various other violations of the drug-testing procedure at Seoul.

"The doping area functioned perfectly well," he said. "Once the procedure is over, athletes and accompanying persons are asked whether they had objections. If they are not happy, they can give their reasons on a form. If they are happy, they sign the form. They (Johnson and two authorized companions) signed the form. It's a bit late to come up with other ideas."

In cross-examination Tuesday, Francis was asked by Tim Barber, an attorney for Canada's Sports Medicine Council, whether Johnson had signed the form.

Francis drew a laugh from spectators in the hearing room when he said, "Yes. Some where between one and 10 beers, he signed that document."

Besides Barber, Francis, who testified last week that he has administered steroids to athletes since 1979, was cross-examined by attorneys for the Canadian Track and Field Association and the Canadian College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Attorneys for Johnson and his physician, Jamie Astaphan, are expected to give an indication of their clients' defenses against Fran-

Jo Allen bowls high game as Mike Leazer records high series

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Jo Allen had the high game and Mike Leazer the best series in city league bowling action last week.

Allen, just the third woman this season to record the week's high game, a 261 in the Pioneer League at the Magic Bowl. The 261 was 119 pins over her average.

Allen also had the high women's series for the week, a 603.

Kenny Davis turned in the high men's game, a 258 game in the Valley League, at the Magic Bowl. Mike Leazer had the second-best men's game, a 257 at the Bowldrome.

Bur Leazer's 735 series, which included games of 257, 246 and 232, outdistanced the week's runnerup Cliff Hinkle by 77 pins. Hinkle's 658 came at the Bowldrome.

Theresa Gabica had the week's second-best women's series, a 251 at the Bowldrome. Cheri Freeman registered the second-best women's series, a 598 in the Pioneer League at the Magic Bowl.

Master skiers come to Sun Valley to race

The Times-News

SUN VALLEY — Fog dampened the race course, but not the spirits of 250 skiing competitors in Sun Valley this week for the 10th annual FIS (Federation du International Skiing) International Master's Cup race series.

Some of the world's best amateur skiers age 30 and above competed in a giant slalom course Monday. A new giant slalom course will be set for Tuesday's race, followed by slalom events on Thursday and Friday.

Each ski racer must compete in at least five events staged in Austria, West Germany, Switzerland, France, Italy, Spain and the United States to be considered for season-series awards. Race points are accumulated on the basis of the World Cup point formula.

With 10 divisions for women and 11 divisions for men, Monday's standings are as follows:

Tempting Italian sweets

Tantalizing desserts are easy to make

If the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cookies, heavenly pastries and creams emanating from an Italian bakery has no effect on you, then read no further.

If, however, the scent of wonderful down-home Italian desserts makes your mouth water. If you truly savor genuine Italian cannoli and delightfully rich Italian cream. If, "Yes, thank you. I'll have one of each," pops uncontrollably out of your mouth when a dessert cart, heavily laden with chocolate and cream-filled pastries and fresh fruit, passes by—then read on.

The following are a few of the kinds of desserts that are sure to tantalize your taste buds. Don't be reluctant to try your hand at these deliciously simple, down-home, Italian-style desserts.

Almond Meringue Kisses are a mouth-watering delicacy and they're very easy to make.

Chocolate Cream-Stuffed Pears are another out-of-the-world treat. Pear halves are filled with rich, sweet chocolate and cream cheese.

And what Italian dessert spread would be complete without cannoli? This recipe for Sicilian Carnival Cannoli is as lovely to look at as it is to eat.

Finally, Italian Cream with Berry Puree is a deceptively simple, raspberry-lover's dream. It's good, rich Italian cream ladled onto dessert plates. A knife alternately pushed and pulled through the cream creates the beautiful spider-web design.

Almond Meringue Kisses

2 egg whites, at room temperature
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup finely ground almonds

Combine egg whites, extract and cream of tartar in a bowl. Beat on medium speed until foamy and white. Continue mixing on medium speed, gradually adding sugar until whites are very stiff, about 5 minutes. With rubber spatula, gently fold in almonds. Fill a gallon-size plastic bag or pastry tube with meringue, twist bag above meringue to force towards one lower corner (this helps eliminate air); zip-lock bag or close tube. Snip 1/4-inch of the bag at lower corner with scissors. Pipe meringue onto parchment-lined baking sheet in spiral motion to create a 1-inch diameter dollop with pointed tip. Repeat to use all the meringue, spacing 2-inches apart. Bake in 325 degrees oven, 15 to 20 minutes until lightly browned. Cool; remove from paper and store at room temperature until needed.

Makes about 2 dozen.

Chocolate cream-stuffed pears

1 package (8-ounces) cream cheese, softened
1/4 cup chocolate syrup
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon strong coffee or coffee-flavored liqueur
2 cans (16-ounces each) pear halves, chilled

Beat together cream cheese, syrup, sugar and coffee until smoothly blended. Fill a quart-size plastic bag or pastry tube with cream mixture, twist bag above mixture to force towards one lower corner (this helps eliminate air); close bag or tube. Chill until ready to serve. Drain pear halves and arrange two on each serving plate. Snip 1/4-inch of the storage bag at lower corner with scissors. Pipe chocolate cream decoratively into cavity of each pear half.

Makes 6 servings.

Sicilian Carnival Cannoli

1 cup ricotta cheese
1/2 cup confectioners sugar
1/4 cup (1-ounce) grated semi-sweet chocolate
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon, optional
1/4 cup chopped shelled pistachio nuts

6 cannoli shells
Beat ricotta cheese and sugar together until smoothly blended. Stir in chocolate and cinnamon. Fill a quart-size plastic bag or pastry tube with ricotta mixture, twist bag above mixture to force towards one lower corner (this helps eliminate air); zip-lock bag. Chill until ready to serve. Snip 1-inch of the bag at lower corner with scissors. Pipe mixture into cannoli shells from each end. Decorate filled ends with chopped nuts.

Makes 6 servings.

Try an Idaho-foods-only theme dinner

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho-foods-only banquet served during the agriculture seminar at the College of Southern Idaho recently was so well received, it will be repeated next year.

Phil Maulding, the food service director for CSI saw it that everything went smoothly, but he credits

Dr. Rick Parker with coming up with the idea for the dinner. Parker, who is the division director for the CSI agriculture program said he decided on the Idaho-only theme because the seminar has emphasized alternatives in agriculture in the last three years.

"So we went ahead and invited some of the people who were doing something different having to do with foods, and had them supply the banquet fixings, whether it was the meat or ice cream toppings — all Idaho products, most of them local," he said.

Parker said it was not difficult to put this together; that there was a very broad menu, which included jams and jellies made by Idaho women, rolls prepared with organically-grown flour and potato ice cream. Serving an Idaho grown salad in January was no problem either. Maulding said there were potato and three bean salads to go along with the baron of beef, pheasant, lamb, pork and baked potatoes. To wash it all down, he said there was even some moonwater from Craters of the Moon.

For cooks wanting to serve an Idaho-foods-only style dinner at home, Maulding said the following are scaled down versions of some of the recipes used for the banquet.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Serves four to six
4-7 pound leg of lamb, bone in
1/4 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon rosemary
1/4 teaspoon sage
1/4 teaspoon marjoram
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Rub the leg of lamb with combined spices and place in a roasting pan, fat side down. Bake at 325 degree, for about 15 minutes, uncovered. Turn and roast for another 15 minutes.

Then add to the roasting pan: 6-ounces onions, medium diced 4-ounces carrots, medium diced 4-ounces celery, medium diced 1 quart of lamb or chicken broth Cook for another 20 minutes. For medium doneness, continue to bake until meat temperature reaches about 150 to 160 degrees. Strain vegetables and remove grease. Use stock to make gravy.

Serve with mint-jelly.

PHEASANT FILLETS

2 pheasants
4 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup milk
Seasoned salt, to taste
Pepper, to taste
Garlic powder, to taste
2 cups fine cracker meal or ground up dry bread
Cooking oil

Cut and bone the pheasant into small finger strip fillets. Mix the seasoned salt, pepper and garlic powder into the cracker meal or bread crumbs. Combine the eggs and milk, and dip the fillets into it. Roll them in the cracker meal or crumbs. Then place the fillets in hot oil and cook to a golden brown. Serve with sweet and sour and/or dijon sauce.

SWEET AND SOUR SAUCE

Makes about one quart
1 cup sugar

Take precautions now for healthy bones later on

Mothers often worry about teenage daughters. What clothes to let her wear, when she should be home from a date and what friends to trust her with are just some of the daily concerns you as a mom may have.

But how often do you think about the state of your daughter's bones?

As long as they survive a fall from a bicycle and the rigors of ballet class, bones are presumed to be doing their job. But by the time your daughter is in her 70s, one out of five women her age will have osteoporosis, according to the "California Nutrition Book." She may no longer be able to stand up straight, may be in considerable pain and could join the 30 percent of women who suffer hip fractures. Unfortunately the consequences of porous bones (osteoporosis) that may become evident in your daughter's 70s often start during her teen-age years.

To prevent this complication of later life it is necessary to take precautions now. Up to age 20, girls are building bone with the help of vitamin D, calcium, several minerals, hormones and exercise. From age 20 to 35 that bone can be strengthened by the same means. After age 35 bone can be preserved, but very little additional bone is laid down. If you haven't made sufficient calcium deposits to your bone bank by now, you may not have enough to live on through your retirement years.

After menopause, when estrogen production ceases, bone can be lost rapidly (up to 2 to 3 percent per year according to Peter G. Hickox, M.D., a reproductive endocrinologist at Baylor College of Medicine in an article published by "Consultant").

When 15 to 18 percent of bone mass is lost, fracture risk is increased, Hickox writes. This could happen in as little as five to eight years after menopause. "Modern medicine can do very little to replace bone lost in women over age 35," he says.

While the body's use of calcium is complex, the recipe for keeping

ITALIAN CREAM WITH BERRY PUREE

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups half and half milk
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 package (10-ounces) frozen raspberries in syrup, thawed
24 fresh whole raspberries for garnish
Combine sugar and cornstarch in saucepan; stir in half and half or milk. Cook and stir over low heat until mixture is hot but not boiling. Beat yolks in mixing bowl. While stirring, gradually add hot cream mixture to yolks, then return entire mixture to saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened and just beginning to boil.

Remove from heat; stir in butter and vanilla. Transfer to bowl to cool. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Drain thawed raspberries, push fruit through a fine mesh sieve into a small bowl to extract seeds. Ladle chilled cream onto six dessert plates.

Fill a quart-size plastic bag or pastry tube with smooth raspberry puree, twist bag above puree to force towards one lower corner (this helps eliminate air); zip-lock bag. Snip 1-inch of the bag at lower corner with scissors.

Pipe puree onto cream in two concentric circles. Draw a pick or knife tip through cream, creating each stroke with push-pull motion, to create a spider web design on plate (see illustration). Garnish plate edges with whole raspberries.
Makes 6 servings.

1 cup water
2/3 cup vinegar
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup ketchup
5-ounces cornstarch
1/2 cup water
Combine the sugar, 1 cup water, vinegar, soy sauce and ketchup, and bring to a simmer. Mix the cornstarch in 1/4 cup water. Add to first mixture, and stir until it thickens.

If desired, add diced beef or pork, pineapple tidbits, shaved carrots or green peppers.

DIJON SAUCE

5-ounces margarine
5-ounces flour
5 cups milk

5 tablespoons dijon mustard
1 teaspoon Tabasco
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons white wine

Melt the 5-ounces of margarine. Add flour to the melted margarine, and cook for about 5 minutes. Add milk to the above, and stir until it thickens. Mix in the remaining ingredients. Keep warm.

in balance is relatively easy; adequate calcium intake and exercise throughout life with estrogen replacement after menopause for susceptible women.

Those who are susceptible to osteoporosis have several things in common. They are frequently small-boned and of Northern European ancestry. They may have had an early menopause or an early hysterectomy with inadequate estrogen replacement. Frequently they smoke and drink alcohol, exercise little (or excessively) and have diets high in fat. Many have been chronic dieters who drink little milk. Their mothers and nannies may have a history of hip fractures.

Milk is the ideal source of calcium because it also contains vitamin D and lactose, which help the body use calcium.

Children, adolescents and women should be drinking milk. If children drink milk with meals they have their recommended daily amount. If adolescents drink milk with meals, three-fourths of the day's requirement is down. A 1-ounce serving of cheese or 8-ounces of yogurt would finish out the requirement. Adult women are currently advised to consume the equivalent of four to five glasses of milk per day.

You can avoid the high fat content of dairy products by using 1 percent butterfat or skim milk. Another bonus for skin is that it has slightly more calcium than whole milk.

All cheese is not high calcium, but most cheese is high fat. Do not rely on cheese to provide all your calcium. Parmesan has the highest calcium per ounce (about equal to a glass of milk) while cream cheese has about 7 percent that amount and 88 percent fat. Besides Cheddar, ricotta and Swiss are calcium rich, while American cheese has only two-thirds as much calcium. Low-fat cottage cheese has about half as much as an equal amount of milk.

Try substituting up to 1/3 cup of powdered skim milk and 2/3 cup sugar for each cup of sugar called for in baking. This boosts the calcium of the recipe by the equivalent of 1 cup of milk.

Fish with bones, like salmon and sardines, are rich sources of calcium—but you must eat the bones to get the calcium.

Vegetables and grains contain calcium but oxalates and phytates as well. Both bind calcium into a less usable state. If you were to get your daily requirement for calcium from broccoli it would take a whopping 4.5 pounds.

Many people do not like or cannot tolerate milk. Lactose-free milk is available in the grocery store now or you can buy the enzyme (Lactaid and Lactrase) at a pharmacy and add it yourself.

Some prefer to take calcium supplements. One extra-strength Tums contains the calcium equivalent of one glass of milk. Most authorities advise avoiding dolomite, oyster shell or bone meal as sources of calcium because they may contain lead or other heavy metal contaminants. If you choose to take a supplement try to find one that contains calcium carbonate, the kind most easily absorbed. Also, chewable forms are better absorbed than swallowed forms, which may pass through your intestinal tract undigested.

If you do decide to take a calcium supplement remember that the maximum amount recommended for women is 1500 milligrams per day. Taking more than that will cause your body to absorb less. At 2000 milligrams per day, you absorb only about 20 percent. Supplements can cause constipation and gas, but increasing your fiber and fluids will counteract this. If you have a history of kidney stones discuss with your doctor which type of calcium is most appropriate for you.

The usefulness of vitamin D supplements is controversial. Be aware that more than the recommended daily amount can be toxic. The amount of vitamin D in most multivitamins is adequate.

A high fiber diet can cut down on your body's ability to absorb calcium, but most of us do not eat enough fiber to interfere.

Your body's ability to absorb calcium can be affected if you are on certain regular medications, take diuretics or swallow aluminum- or magnesium-containing antacids. Arthritis sufferers who are on long term prednisone therapy are especially susceptible to osteoporosis. Ask your doctor for details if you are taking any of these medicines and you are at risk for osteoporosis.

Five minutes of summer sun on your face and arms are all that is needed to activate the vitamin D in your skin into a form needed to help use calcium. Our northern winter sun will not do it. Tell your husband this is another reason you need that trip to Mexico or Hawaii, but consult your accountant before trying to claim your trip as a medical deduction.

Remember, you can help make your teen-age beautiful to the bone by paying attention to her calcium intake and exercise level. If you are approaching menopause yourself, ask your doctor if you should consider estrogen replacement.

March, April are best months to prune trees and shrubs

March and April are the best months to prune most trees and shrubs. It is easiest to see where to make pruning cuts while plants are dormant. The new growth that follows will quickly heal over the wounds made in pruning.

Pruning can be done any time day temperatures are above freezing — which is most of the time from now on.

The major exception to pruning now is flowering shrubs. Flower buds are all ready to burst into bloom. If pruned now, some would be removed. By waiting until after bloom, all the flowers can be enjoyed.

Occasionally certain trees, such as maples, will lose an excessive amount of sap from pruning wounds if pruned just before new growth starts. If you see sap flowing from pruning wounds, wait a week or two and try again.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain
gardening

There are a number of reasons for pruning plants. All plants occasionally need to have a broken branch removed. Many plants need very little pruning other than shaping growth or reducing size. Fruit trees should be pruned every year if they are to produce the best quality of fruit on branches that are relatively easy to reach.

Pruning is not a difficult art if you understand a few principles. One of the most important is to prune just above a bud or branch. A dead stub is not only unsightly but can be a source for insect or disease infestation.

When pruning cuts are made will make a great deal of difference in the resulting regrowth. So it is important to have a goal in mind for each plant before beginning. Do you want the plant to grow more thickly than it is now? This is usually the case for upright evergreens and hedges.

Perhaps you want to retain the same natural shape and thickness, but only reduce the size. This is usually the case for plants that have overgrown a sidewalk or window.

Occasionally you want to open up a plant and reduce the thickness of the branches. This may be why you prune a shade tree to allow more light for lawn or flowers growing underneath.

This is also the major goal in pruning fruit trees. If sufficient light does not reach the lower branches, eventually there will be very little if any fruit set there. Without sufficient light, fruit is small and has poor color.

Another goal of fruit tree pruning is to reduce the number of fruits so size will be increased. If pruned just above a bud, usually three or more new branches will grow where one has been shortened. This results in a thicker growth. If pruned just above a side branch, which is smaller than the one pruned, normally one branch will grow to replace the one that has been cut off. This will retain the natural shape and thickness.

If a branch is removed entirely by cutting back to the larger branch from which it grew, the plant will be thinner and more open than before. I have prepared a leaflet on pruning with sketches showing how to prune fruit trees, shade trees, junipers and deciduous shrubs. For a copy, send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Allen Wilson, P.O. Box 343, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Outdoor plants can supply indoor enjoyment

By Garden Ideas Magazine

While snow still covers the ground, Garden Ideas and Outdoor Living magazine reports outdoor plants can supply fresh blossoms for enjoyment indoors.

By bringing branches of flowering trees and shrubs indoors and forcing them into early bloom, homeowners will be rewarded with the first colorful and fragrant signs of spring.

Trees and shrubs that respond beautifully to indoor forcing include forsythia, pussy willow, honeysuckle, crab apple, flowering quince, cherry and flowering plum.

While outdoors enjoying the first days of above-freezing weather, check the branches of flowering trees and shrubs. Swollen buds, stimulated by warm temperatures, indicate that the branches are ready to clip for forcing. Branches brought indoors while they're still dormant will respond poorly to the sudden exposure to heat.

For best results, use sharp pruning shears or loppers to avoid tearing the bark on the portion of the branch that is left on the shrub or tree. Avoid removing any branch that contributes to the desired shape of the shrub or tree.

Forcing branches into bloom is a snap if they are given the proper temperature and moisture. To help the branches absorb water more easily, make a 3- to 4-inch lengthwise slit from the base of each branch, then pound the ends with a hammer. Next, place the branches in a vase filled with warm water. All buds beneath the water level should be removed.

To prevent the flower buds from drying out before they open, mist the branches regularly or wrap the branches above the water level with layers of damp newspaper until the buds open.

For the longest floral show, display the branch bouquet in a bright, cool room; avoid placing it in direct sunlight. Keep the vase filled with water. Adding a cut-flower food to the water will also lengthen the flowers' lives.

Bright colors dominate home decorating schemes

By BARBARA MAYER
The Associated Press

Those who prefer the bland can rest assured that there will always be beige. But play-it-safe neutrals and monotone color home decorating schemes are about to be superseded by more daring, brighter colors.

"We believe neutrals will be playing a supporting, not a stellar role," said Vera Hahn, a designer who for the past eight years has been presiding over color forecasts made by DuPont Corp.

"We eliminated this year's neutral range in our 1990 color forecast," according to Deborah Hancock, color forecaster for Cotton Inc., the promotional arm of American cotton growers.

Next year's recommendations by Cotton Inc. for basics around which to build a color scheme include some neutrals such as dark gray, a creamy off-white and straw. But they also encompass deep red as well as green, grayed purple and mauve.

As the two designers readily admitted on separate occasions, predicting color is definitely in the crystal ball category. Yet each year there is a surprising degree of unanimity among forecasters.

"That's because we all look at the same products and same influences," explained Hancock.

The purpose of predicting which way the color winds are blowing is to guide designers and manufacturers of home furnishings products, rather than to attempt to tell anybody what colors to choose, both said.

If forecasting colors is such an inexact science, why don't a few color stylists simply meet in a back room and make their pronouncements each year?

For one thing, it just doesn't work, said Hahn, noting that the unwritten pages of home furnishings history are filled with examples of color trends that failed, even though virtually every editor in the country promoted them.

"You can't foist colors on American consumers. Therefore, I try to find out what consumers are ready to accept," she said.

Hahn is not predicting a massive rejection of neutrals. On the contrary: "Neutrals are the workhorse colors of the home furnishings palette and low-contrast color schemes with pale, light colorations are easy to assemble, especially for amateurs. The effect they create is serene and relaxed. They make small rooms look larger."

Schemes that glorify contrasts will replace bland low-contrast schemes.

Husband tells tragic story of abuse

DEAR ABBY: I am getting tired of reading all the letters about battered women. Yes, I know it must be a terrible experience for a woman, but nobody ever mentions the battered man. It's even worse for them because they are so embarrassed and ashamed, they never tell anybody. I know. I was raised never to hit a woman—even in self-defense. Many times my ex-wife would throw things at me, and come at me with her fingernails, drawing blood from the scratches she would inflict on my face and neck. She even broke my arm and ribs when she threw a heavy chair at me. I always made up some kind of lie when I had to go to the emergency room of the hospital after she beat me up.

I stayed in this terrible marriage as long as I could for the sake of our child. When I finally couldn't take it any longer, I divorced her. She fought the divorce, but I was firm and made the break.

She retaliated by filing charges against me, stating that I had sexually abused our child! I had to endure some humiliating questioning, and it cost me nearly $10,000 in legal fees to prove my innocence. It's a long and very ugly story, but my ex-wife was finally found to be clinically psychotic and paranoid with multiple personality disorders. Meanwhile, the accusations were devastating.

Abigail VanBuren

I'll be surprised if you print this because you usually favor women. But every word I have written is true.

— NO NAME OR LOCATION, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Surprise! Your case is not unusual, and from the mail I receive, I can attest to that. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I have a big problem that is getting worse with time. I have a friend I've known for four years. Within the last year, her husband has been making advances toward me. This is not just my imagination. I know when a man is coming on to me. (I am not married.)

If I stay away, my friend is going to ask me why I don't come over anymore. What should I do?

FRIENDSHIP IN DANGER

DEAR IN DANGER: When you are at your friend's home, keep your distance from her husband. If he makes a move toward you, tell him to please cut it out because he makes you feel uncomfortable. If he persists, tell him that you would hate to stop visiting their home because you value his wife's friendship, and if she asks you why, you would be forced to tell her the truth. That should cool him down.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a young woman who has a 2-year-old son from a man she never lived with, but had a brief encounter with. The man pays child support, but he makes no effort to see his son or have any kind of relationship with him. My wife sends this man gifts for his birthday and Christmas, and says they are not from her—they are from her son. She says she wants her son to know his father.

I say, she should wait until her son is old enough to decide whether he wants a relationship with his father, then he can send him gifts if he wants. What do you say?

— SOMEWHERE IN THE USA

DEAR SOMEWHERE: Perhaps the boys father is paying child support because the court demanded that he do so, but he has no real interest in knowing his son. Time will tell. Meanwhile, if your wife wants to keep the lines of communication open between her son and his father, two gifts a year as small reminders that the relationship exists can do no harm. And it may do some good. Don't discourage it.

U of Idaho reception for high school students

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—The University of Idaho is sponsoring a reception for high school students from Idaho and its outlying areas. The reception will be held at the University of Idaho, 1000 S. State, on Thursday, March 9, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. The reception is open to all high school students who are currently attending high school in Idaho or its outlying areas. The reception is a free event and is intended to help students get acquainted with the University of Idaho and its resources. For more information, contact the University of Idaho, 1000 S. State, Twin Falls, Idaho 83402. Phone: (208) 733-0577.

Letters of thanks

School district thanks Elks lodge for flags

On behalf of the Twin Falls School District No. 411 and the Board of Trustees, we wish to thank the Twin Falls Elks Lodge No. 1183 for the generous contribution of the United States flags to be distributed to schools for display in our classrooms.

We are truly fortunate in Twin Falls to have organizations such as yours take such an interest in our schools—not only in helping in a financial way, but, also, in promoting patriotism. The schools in District No. 411 appreciate our patrons and their dedication to better education.

Group appreciates those who helped with dance

The Gooding Basque Association would like to express thanks and appreciation to some very important people that helped make our Benefit Dance a big success.

To all those that bought lamb and donated money for our lamb auction. To Marian and Mary Onicks for donating some beautiful hand-crafted items for our auction. They put a lot of time and work into these, and we really appreciate their generosity. To Gary Osborne for doing a great job as our auctioneer. Our auction was very successful, thanks to him. Also, we would like to thank all of those who donated their time and work to make our Benefit dance a big success. A big thank you to our Euskadi Basque Dancers for a great performance.

These people put in a lot of time and hard work to perform for different organizations, and we really appreciate what they do to carry on our Basque traditions and heritage. We would also like to thank the public for coming and supporting our event. We hope everyone had a good time and will plan to attend our next event.

Mother thanks hospital staff for help in crisis

For the past few years I have worked with families who have children with life-threatening medical problems. I have assisted them with their arrangements for housing, meals and out-patient care. As you help others, a person can only admire parents who must deal with very frightening circumstances.

Ten days ago I faced a serious situation with my husband. He was placed in ICU at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center with heart pains and palpitations. The following day he was transported by ambulance to St. Luke's. I am grateful for the care he received here in Twin Falls and in Boise. We returned home two days later.

Needless to say, I was not prepared to enter my own beloved daughter in Magic Valley Regional Medical Center the following day. How do you explain to a 6-year-old child that she has diabetes? How do you explain the need for shots twice a day and blood tests four times a day? How do you get the courage to give your baby shots when needles have always petrified you?

Soroptimists thank others for Chocolate Affair

In behalf of Soroptimist International of Twin Falls, I would like to thank all who were involved with Chocolate Affair '89. The "Affair" was a huge success.

Special thanks to BID, Main Street Treasures, Blip Printers, Gem Lined Supply, Barton's Club 53, The Sandpiper, Holiday Inn, Canyon Springs Inn, Wenzon Jewelry and The Paris.

The help and support of everyone who participated enables Soroptimist to contribute to its community projects.

ROXIE SIMCOE
Chairman, Chocolate Affair '89

Conservation group thanks supporters

Education is of major importance to the North Side Soil Conservation District. Every person in our society needs to be aware of the importance of conserving our soil and preserving our water quality.

A program has been adopted by the district in which every student in Jerome County in grades 4-12 is involved in some type of conservation education. To sustain this program, the district invites businesses in the area to become Supporting Members of the district by making a donation.

The North Side District would like to thank those who became Supporting Members in 1988 and contributed to our education program. They are Moore Business Forms & Systems Division, Twin Falls Bank & Trust Company, Producers Livestock, First Security Bank, McDonald Insurance, Western Farm Service, North Side Board of Realtors, C.J. Marshall, Herman and Lenore Huetting and Vic and Marcia Jaro.

Anyone who is interested in contributing to this program for 1989 may contact the North Side SCD at 704 South Lincoln in Jerome or phone 324-2501.

God gave me a strength I did not know I had but it is still so hard to keep. For the explanation to my child, I depended so strongly on Dr. Paul Miles, Joan Huston, RN and Susan Greathouse, dietician. The time spent in talking to a frightened little girl and her equally upset parents can never be repaid in money. And, folks, it is dedication to the job that causes such people to allow a little girl to practice giving shots on them. The nurses on the floor gave her excellent care, taking time to explain each new thing as it came along. She left the hospital with good feelings about all the staff and the wish to be a nurse.

It is so easy to complain about our hospital (when things don't go just exactly our way, it is easy to do) but I want to publicly express my gratitude and thanks to the special people who made those days easier.

Thank you from my heart, Dr. Paul Miles, Dr. John Gibney and all the staff at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The figures were more than double the 1988 Japanese investment to $1.7 billion reported last week by Salomon Bros., a New York investment bank.

Susan R. Jordan, an analyst at Salomon Brothers, said its estimates were lower chiefly because the firm does not include projects under construction until they are completed. Leventhal counts them when ground is broken.

Both the studies, however, found that Japanese investors have expanded outside the Los Angeles-New York-Honolulu triangle. "The Japanese are becoming increasingly familiar with U.S. markets and expanding their investment horizons beyond trophy-type Class A office buildings," said Jack R. Rodman, managing partner in Leventhal's Los Angeles office.

As a result, Japanese investment in the core states of California, New York and Hawaii declined in 1988 to 62 percent of the total from 68 percent in 1987. Moving up, based on acquisitions and construction of major hotels and office buildings in Chicago, was Illinois.

While Japanese investors have snapped up major office buildings in New York and Los Angeles in previous years, they found heavy hunting for this type of trophy in Chicago last year. Japanese investors acquired the Hyatt Regency hotel for $300 million, First National Plaza for $254 million and Madison Plaza for $235 million.

Among the secondary cities where the study found active Japanese investment were Anaheim, Atlanta, Boston, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington. Office buildings remained the primary focus; of Japanese investors, while spending for hotels and resorts declined from 1987.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

A moment's insight is sometimes worth a life's experience. — Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

If all finesses work, South can make 12 or 13 tricks with today's North-South cards. That's not enough reason to go full speed ahead.

Dummy's heart ace wins. East playing the deuce, and the trump finesses loses to West's king. West shifts to diamonds and the defenders get two more tricks. Later South must take the club finesse, and when that loses, the potential of 12 or 13 tricks shrinks to nine. It's a result that would not be too uncommon in many circles.

When Esta Van Zandt of Houston held the South cards, she aimed at the best chance to ensure 10 tricks, forgetting about overtricks. At trick one, she won her king of hearts instead of dummy's ace and banded down the trump ace. When no trick appeared, she ran the club 10 to East's king. East was now stuck. Regardless of what he led, Esta was able to cash two clubs to discard a diamond. A second low diamond was won on another high club while West ruffed, but go home was done. Esta lost only one spade, one diamond and one club to make the treacherous game.

Esta's plan was a farsighted one. Had Esta held the trump king, the contract was better in her hand. And if West held the trump king, the game was safe as long as West had three or more clubs.
