Rep. Richard Cheney, left, answers a question after being nominated by President Bush

Bush nominates Cheney for secretary of defense

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Friday named Rep. Richard Cheney of Wyoming as defense secretary, moving with surprising speed to leave behind the controversy caused by John Tower's rejection by the Senate.

Bush said he would order the FBI to speed up its background checks to get the nomination moving. "Too much time has been wasted here," he said.

The president won a pledge of quick action from leaders of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who praised Cheney and said confirmation hearings would begin next week.

"I know of no impediment to his nomination," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the Armed Services chairman who led the successful battle to kill Tower's nomination.

Cheney, 48, is a six-term conservative congressman who served as White House chief of staff during the Ford administration. His selection was a surprise in view of his relative lack of experience on defense issues.

Appearing with Bush at a hurriedly called news conference, Cheney said he had an "active interest" in defense matters but acknowledged that "obviously there are areas that I need to know and I'll have to work hard on to master."

In naming Cheney, Bush picked the No. 2 man in the House GOP leadership, deploring his party's minority rank there after a post-campaign pledge not to choose anyone from Capitol Hill for his Cabinet.

"This is the exception that proves that rule," Bush said when asked about his earlier declaration.

Cheney said "I did agonize over leaving the Hill, where I have often said he enjoyed his work."

Bush, brushing aside the divisive battle over Tower, said "That's history. That's done." However, Vice President Dan Quayle reignited the furor by accusing Democrats of engaging in "a McCarthyite mud-slinging campaign" against Tower and waging an assault on the powers of the presidency.

Commenting on Quayle's remarks, Bush said, "I can't tell you if he speaks for me. I speak for myself. He speaks for himself."

Tower's nomination was killed Thursday on a near party-line vote of 53-47 in the Democratic-controlled Senate. He was defeated by consensus over his drinking habits, his relationships with women and his work as a

Terrorists suspected in San Diego bombing

Blast, fire destroy van at intersection but wife of Vincennes' skipper escapes without injury

SAN DIEGO — A pipe bomb Friday destroyed a van driven by the wife of the skipper of the USS Vincennes, which mistakenly shot down an Iranian airliner last year.

Authorities suspect it was a terrorist attack.

Sharon Rogers escaped just seconds before the van burst into flames.

"They (the FBI) view this incident as an act of retribution against Capt. Rogers for the incident in the Middle East," said Ted Royster, assistant special agent in charge of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms' Los Angeles field office. He said he assigned six agents to help the FBI.

A Justice Department source in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity said investigators suspect the bombing was the work of terrorists. However, local FBI investigators would not confirm that theory.

"We have no motive at this point in time. Certainly, we have no suspects," Tom Hughes, special agent in charge of the local FBI office, told reporters.

"We certainly do not rule out the potential retribution to Capt. Rogers for his ... command in the Navy," he said. "But on the same token this could have been perpetrated for some other reason unknown at this time."

Mrs. Rogers was uninjured and was taken to a police station, where she was joined by her husband, Capt. Will Rogers III. Rogers was home at the time of the blast and authorities

"She got out just as it blew," said Kurt Lent, a construction worker who witnessed the explosion.

John Christy, owner of a nearby masonry company, said he heard two loud pops followed by a loud explosion. Running outside, he saw the vehicle engulfed in flames and a woman standing near it.

"For what had just happened, she reacted (like) a real strong type of person ... she took it very well," he said. "She just wanted me to call her husband. I called her husband, he came down here maybe about four minutes later. They embraced and went from there."

A message from the Rogers was relayed by Cmdr. David Dillon, spokesman for the Naval Surface Force Pacific Fleet, to which the Vincennes is assigned.

"I talked with Capt. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers this morning at the police station. They wanted to pass on that Mrs. Rogers was fine and in good shape," he said.

Asked about Rogers' reaction to the bombing, Dillon said, "I think he's just exasperated by the whole thing. Obviously, he's concerned about what happened to his wife. They just want to get on to other things."

Scaled-down higher ed bill wins OK

BOISE — The legislative budget committee's Republican majority on Friday endorsed a scaled-down 1990 higher education spending bill, exceeding Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus' proposal but dumping an expensive campus construction plan Andrus had backed.

"We've got it now," Republican House Speaker Tom Boyd of Genesee said after the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee's afternoon session yielded the $116.5 million package of state aid to the four colleges. The vote was 14-10.

Although opposed by all eight Democrats on the panel and criticized by Andrus as less than he had expected, Boyd and Republican Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo of Idaho Falls predicted the bill would clear both chambers and the session could be wrapped up in a matter of two weeks.

The bill, also introduced by Republican Sen. Rod Boyd of Boise and GOP Rep. James Lukes of Moscow, contains $1 million in one-time money earmarked for special work-study program. But the remaining $114.5 million, effectively matching the governor's own recommendation, can be used by the Board of Education as it sees fit.

Andrus recommended the money be used to resolve a $1.3 million inequity in past distribution of state aid among the schools, a 1 percent salary equity hike for college faculty, engineer courses at Boise State and Idaho State and a program for assessing student accomplishments.

Despite that additional $1 million pushing the committee's plan above the governor's proposal, Andrus quickly responded, "Higher education, if that is passed, will receive a great deal less than I'd hoped."

The comment made GOP leaders bristle after they had spent much of the 1989 session trying to engineer a budget compromise that would undo the Democratic chief executive's politically sensitive issue of education support.

"I don't see how he could," Boyd said. "How he can see higher education is going to get less is beyond me. This is more than he recommended."

The new bill had agreed to after 24 proposals were reviewed by budget writers and its earlier $136.5 million plan that included a budget-cutting $29 million campus construction program was narrowly rejected by the House this week.

Jobless rate sinks to 15-year low

WASHINGTON — The American economy continued to grow strongly last month, crushing out 269,000 new jobs and dropping the civilian unemployment rate to 7.1 percent.

That is the lowest level in almost 15 years, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Coming on the heels of a 415,000 increase in payroll employment in January, the report led some analysts to predict that the Federal Reserve would boost short-term interest rates again, since its efforts so far have done little to slow the economy. Other analysts said the central bank, which has raised key short-term rates by nearly 1 percentage point in the past two months, will wait for a while to see the impact of the earlier rapid increases.

"It was a good day for the market," said a Wall Street analyst. "The Fed's move to raise rates by 1 percent in the second quarter. This report shakes me a bit."

The 5.1 percent seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in February, the lowest since 1974, was down from 7.5 percent in January. The rate had risen to 6.3 percent in October of last year.

James L. Newwood, spokesman for labor unions, said the report showed that the economy was still growing, but that the pace of growth was slowing.

That the decline in the unemployment rate could be caused by a shift in the way jobless groups are counted is a possibility, he said.

But the report also showed a drop in unemployment among workers of Hispanic descent, from 8.4 percent to 6.8 percent, and a rise in the number of jobless workers in the national economy, from 10.3 million to 10.5 million.

But the report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the service sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the manufacturing sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the construction sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the retail sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the health care sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the education sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the government sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the nonprofit sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the agriculture sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the transportation sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the information sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the arts and recreation sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the accommodation and food services sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

The report also showed a rise in the number of jobless workers in the other services sector, from 1.1 million to 1.2 million.

Leadership key, ethics panel says

WASHINGTON — With echoes of the bitter John C. Tower debate still in the air, President Bush's ethics commission Friday issued its final report and panel Chairman Malcolm R. Wilkey declared his hope that Washington's current "interest and enthusiasm" will lead to action.

Leadership in ethics, Wilkey told a news conference, "must come from the top ... the president, Cabinet officers and heads of independent agencies." When asked how "tough" the proposals are, Wilkey, a former federal judge, said one measure would be "now much is adopted."

The President's Commission on Federal Ethics Law-Reform offered 27 recommendations with the major proposals, as reported earlier, calling for a government-wide honoraria ban, extension to Congress and the judiciary of a one-year ban on lobbying former colleagues, establishment of a congressional ethics office and the granting of tax relief to persons required to divest assets to avoid conflicts of interest.

Wilkey Friday put new emphasis on the need for the Bush administration to rewrite completely the current executive order governing ethics in government. The current one, which was released 23 years ago by President Lyndon B. Johnson, is "due for revision," he said.

A new executive order, the commission report said, would "emphasize"

Mrs. Rogers, a school teacher, was driving alone to school and was stopped at a red light when the bomb exploded at 7:45 a.m. The pipe bomb was planted on the underside of the white Toyota van, police spokesman Bill Robinson said.

Robinson said pieces of the pipe bomb were recovered. Nevertheless, the FBI was not prepared to confirm the type of device, the type of explosive used or how it was detonated, Hughes said.

Jobless rate sinks to 15-year low

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The American economy continued to grow strongly last month, churning out 289,000 new jobs and knocking the civilian unemployment rate down to 5.1 percent.

That is the lowest level in almost 15 years, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Coming on the heels of a 415,000 increase in payroll employment in January, the report led some analysts to predict that the Federal Reserve would boost short-term interest rates again, since its efforts so far have done little to slow the economy. Other analysts said the central bank, which has raised key short-term rates by nearly 1 percentage point in the past two months, will wait for a while to see the impact of the earlier rapid increase in rates.

The 5.1 percent seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in February, the lowest since May 1974, was down from 5.4 percent in January. The rate had slipped to 5.3 percent in October and November.

Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, cautioned that the decline in the unemployment rate could be reversed because a significant portion of the jobs created are seasonal and volatile. For instance, a sharp drop in unemployment among workers of Hispanic origin from 8.4 percent to 6.8 percent accounted for about two-fifths of the drop in the national rate. Norwood told the Joint Economic Committee.

Area rate rises — B1

But other parts of the report tended to confirm the pessimists' view. The average length of a spell of unemployment fell from 12.7 to 12.1 weeks last month, the lowest level since 1981, Norwood said.

Meanwhile, the 6,284,000 persons unemployed in February were able to find jobs, but not necessarily the best one. The average duration of a job search fell from 11.1 percent in January.

Gramley said the figures indicated that the rapid rise in short-term interest rates "apparently has done little to slow the pace of the economic expansion."

"There were some scattered disappointments in the February report," said Norwood. "But the economy's gains last month were not as strong as in January. Employment fell slightly in mining, construction and manufacturing while rising in the services sector."

Vincennes' captain, wife seemed to have put plane downing behind

Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — If Will and Sharon Rogers' lives were turned upside-down last July, when the U.S. Navy ship under his command mistook an Iranian passenger airliner for a hostile warplane and shot it down over the Persian Gulf, they did their best to fixigle it.

Rogers, captain of the guided missile cruiser USS Vincennes, returned to his home port of San Diego last October, and "offered dockside remarks about the July shooting that killed 290 people.

"Certainly the loss of innocent lives in any combat engagement is a tragedy ... but my absolute responsibility was for the safety of my ship and my crew," Rogers told a reporter and a radio station popular in San Diego's immigrant Iranian community. "It does not mean that we regret it any less and certainly we never considered the Iranians an enemy."

Rogers then left with his wife on his arm for their attractive, two-story home in the Ladolla area of northern San Diego. They have spoken nary a word about the incident since, even among close friends.

In fact, the couple had not been in the news again until Friday, when Sharon Rogers escaped injury after jumping clear of her Toyota van moments before it was destroyed by fire after a bomb went off.

Rogers had returned to a normal, in-port regimen, continuing to command his ship, oversee routine maintenance tasks and participating in short training exercises off the coast of San Diego.

At home — in a favorite neighborhood where they had lived once before — Rogers and his wife have been careful not to mix Navy with neighborliness.

"They're good people. Good people," said George Petrou, who lives directly across from the Rogers' home and who characterized himself and his wife as perhaps their closest friends on the block. "The couple, he said, 'never talk shop.'"

His wife, Mary, remembered how neighbors would watch out for Sharon Rogers' welfare in the wake of the news last July that the Vincennes had knocked a passenger airliner out of the sky because of fear that someone might retaliate against the ship captain's wife.

"We watched her every single day," Mary Petrou said.

The Petrous and other neighbors said Friday there was never any spoken concern about threats against the couple — and certainly no signs of danger. They even laughed at the irony that the first home owned by the Rogers before they moved from San Diego and returned had changed hands twice and is now owned by Iranians.

Mary Petrou watched Friday morning as the couple left their home — Rogers in his uniform, behind the wheel of a blue Mercedes Benz sports coupe, and Sharon Rogers in her Toyota van, headed to her class of fourth-graders at the private La Jolla Country Day School not far away.

the president's commitment to the highest ethical standards for executive branch employees.

Panel members delivered the report to Bush Thursday and scheduled to meet with him Tuesday to discuss the wide-ranging proposals.

"Wilkey said 'the president may or may not agree' with the proposals but they represent 'our judgment on matters as we found them.'"

Several of the recommendations appeared to be related to ethics problems that arose during the Reagan administration and the recent Senate confirmation debate over Tower's nomination to be secretary of defense, although Wilkey denied those events colored the panel's thinking.

Cheney

paid defense industry consultant after leaving government service.

Bush praised Cheney as a "widely respected man of principle" and predicted his nomination would "go very fast" and "have smooth sailing."

Democrats and Republicans alike saluted the selection. Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole quickly hailed the appointment in a barbed comment that reflected the bitterness lingering from the "Tower confirmation struggle."

"He's tough. That's what we wanted. A tough, tough, tough guy," he said of Cheney. "This time it will be a confirmation, not an execution."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine said Cheney had served "with distinction" in Congress. He promised to work with Nunn to ensure the nomination gets "prompt consideration" by the committee and the full Senate.

Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., said, "He's a very able and impressive person ... He's one of the smartest people in Congress."

"An excellent choice," said Sen. Charles Robb, the freshman from Virginia who was one of the last Democrats to announce his opposition to Tower.

In a joint statement, Nunn and Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, said Cheney "is well known and highly respected by the members of the Senate." He worked with him on many issues involving national defense and intelligence matters.

Almost immediately after Tower's defeat, the White House turned to Cheney.

Eastern tries to fly; patrons left confused

MIAMI (AP)— Eastern Airlines fought back against a crippling strike Friday by packing its North-east Shuttle with passengers at $12 a head and announcing restoration of 80 flights a day, mostly Latin American and top domestic routes.

But thousands of angry and confused Eastern ticket holders trying to get refunds or fly on other carriers learned they would have to pay more or put in their claims in U.S. Bankruptcy Court, where the carrier filed for Chapter 11 reorganization on Thursday.

A judge in New York extended his order barring commuter railroad workers from honoring any picket lines thrown up by Eastern's striking Machinists union.

On Friday, lawyers for the Machinists said they would ask the bankruptcy court to unfreeze striking workers' final pre-strike pay checks, since Judge Burton R. Liffland on Thursday allowed Eastern to pay nonstriking employees.

"It seems not coincidental that the timing of the bankruptcy was intended to deny these employees the wages for the work they performed," said attorney Robert Clayman. The 8,500 Machinists are owed about $7.5 million dollars.

"We are going to rebuild this airline in prudent, sensible increments and get our men and women back to work so they can support their families," Eastern President Phil Bakos said Friday. "This is the beginning of a new, smaller, restructured and viable Eastern Airlines."

Eastern said the more than 140 daily flights, including 62 shuttle flights connecting Boston, New York and Washington, would be operated with picket line-crossing employees who have been with the company since before the start of the strike.

Looking back at the handling of Tower's nomination, Bush said, "I may have made a mistake" by holding it back pending FBI checks of allegations against Tower. "There may have been some other tactical things that went wrong, but please remember that when the nomination went up there, it was very well received generally."

In response to reporters' questions on Star Wars and a series of other defense issues, Cheney said, "I have extensive views on defense policy but I don't believe I'll share them today."

Bush was asked about his past declarations that Tower was the best qualified candidate to head the Pentagon.

"I said that on December whatever it was and now we're in March whatever it is. And as of today Dick Cheney is the best and proper choice," the president said in an appearance before reporters shortly after his departure for a weekend at Camp David.

Bomb

Investigators went to the Rogers' home to check for other bombs, and authorities investigated a report of a vehicle following Mrs. Rogers.

"There was a vehicle that was observed in the area at the time of the detonation, and we're looking into that right now," said FBI spokesman Ronald Orrantia. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

The Navy increased its security at the San Diego Navy base and other facilities, Navy Chief Craig Huelser said. Other Vincennes crewmembers and their families were notified.

The Vincennes, a guided-missile cruiser based in San Diego, returned from its six-month Persian Gulf deployment last October. It remains in port and Rogers remains its skipper.

As the Vincennes exchanged fire with Iranian speedboats last July 3, Iran Air Flight 655 appeared on the U.S. warship's high-tech radar. After the plane failed to respond to warnings on civilian and military channels, Rogers gave the order to fire.

The decision, he said later, was in defense of his ship and crew. But what Rogers feared was an Iranian F-14 fighter actually was an Airbus A-100 with 290 people aboard, all of whom died. The Reagan administration defended the decision but also decided to compensate the victims' families.

After the shooting, Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called for an all-out war against the United States. Speculation after the December destruction of a Pan-Am jetliner over Lockerbie, Scotland, focused on whether that bombing was in retaliation for the Vincennes action.

FBI special agent Gene Riehl said investigators were not ruling anything out in Friday's bombing.

"The fact that she is the wife of the captain of the Vincennes, you could draw your own conclusions about whether it's a random bombing or there's some connection," he said. "We're not making any suggestions."

In Washington, Navy officials at the Pentagon said they were unaware of any threats against Rogers or his family, but were awaiting additional reports from San Diego.

After the Vincennes returned to San Diego, Rogers expressed regret over the deaths of the Iranian passengers.

Skies were generally fair through the morning portion of the state with mostly cloudy skies in the panhandle. All stations reported light winds.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 73 degrees at Hagerman. Ketchikan reported the coldest at 27 degrees.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho shows scattered rain showers Monday through Wednesday, dry, except snow showers over the higher mountains. A cooling trend with partial clearing at times. Most highs will be in the 40s Monday and in the upper 30s and low 40s Tuesday and Wednesday. Most lows will be in the 30s Monday and in the 20s Tuesday and Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 97 degrees at Tucson, Ariz. The lowest was 1 below zero at Houlton, Maine.

McClure announces Mike Field nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has announced he will nominate Mike Field, his longtime aide and director of state office operations, to become the Idaho director of the Farmers Home Administration.

W.C. "Bill" Norberg, the current state F.H.A. director, told McClure on Friday that he intends to retire May 6 from the post he has held for eight years.

McClure, who also nominated Norberg for the job in 1981, said it would be at least one month until his nomination of Field is approved by President Bush.

Until then, Field, 38, will continue to work in the senator's Boise office. "Mike's personal and professional background in agriculture, as well as his knowledge of the state, make him a fine candidate for this position that is so important to Idaho agriculture," McClure said in a news release. "I'm confident that his nomination will be approved."

Field has overseen operations of McClure's six district offices in Idaho for the past two years. He was state director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in 1986, and before that worked for McClure in a number of capacities, including field representative and district director for the 2nd Congressional District.

A native of Grandview, Field is married and has three children. His mother, Frances Field, is a state representative and his father, Oscar, is past president of the Idaho Farm Bureau.

House defeats measure to tax Indian businesses

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House voted 67-27 Friday afternoon against legislation imposing state taxes on Indian reservations.

House members were urged to impose the taxes, in effect repealing a tax exemption granted five years ago, because Indian-operated stores are competing against privately owned stores that must pay taxes.

But members were urged not to penalize Indians for what the state wants them to do, move toward greater self-reliance and funding. "We are complaining because they are successful. We are beating them over the head because they are successful at what we asked them to do," said Rep. Phil Childers, R-Boise. "This bill should have been killed in committee."

The bill attempted to impose state sales taxes on sales at Indian-operated stores on reservations. It also imposes the state 18-cent per package of cigarettes.

It came mainly because of complaints of non-Indian merchants at Kamiah, which is on the Nez Perce Reservation. They allege they are not being treated fairly because they have to pay taxes and an Indian convenience store does not.

Besides the Kamiah convenience store, the Kootenai Tribe operates a motel, restaurant and lounge at Bonners Ferry, the Coeur d'Alene Tribe has a store and the Shoshone-Bannocks have a complex of shops on the reservation adjacent to Interstate 15.

The House adjourned for the noon cess without reaching a decision. The measure was the subject of perhaps the most intensive lobbying this legislative session. The House Revenue and Taxation Committee earlier voted 10-8 to send the measure to the floor for a vote.

Ever since, several Kamiah businessmen spent weeks in Boise working—to pass the bill. Representatives of several of the Indian tribes have been working just as hard against it.

The tax bill was sponsored by Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, and Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise. Reid told House members sales at Indian shops are soaring, and they are costing the state huge amounts of tax revenue.

He estimated taxing Indian sales would bring in at least $6.6 million per year, a figure disputed by others. "We want to treat people fair," said Reid, noting that non-Indians have to pay all the taxes for services enjoyed by everyone.

He said the Association of Idaho Cities, The Idaho Association of Counties, the Idaho Farm Bureau, Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, Idaho Retailers Association and other groups back taxing Indians. Since 1985, Reid said, known sales of cigarettes on Indian reservations have increased more than 330 percent.

He said there is "no comparison" between the tax exemptions the Idaho Legislature grants to farmers and other groups and those enjoyed by the Indians.

The farm exemptions are used by everyone, Indian and non-Indian, alike, he said.

"If we believe in fairness in taxation, we need House Bill 319," said Reid. "The longer we wait, the greater the problem is."

Opponents of the bill said the money earned by Indian operations goes back into the reservations and it could cost the state far more if it had to cover the costs. Officials of the Sho-Bans testified earlier that reservation problems—of high unemployment, drunkenness and welfare have been caused by running a store providing a couple of hundred Indian jobs.

"I think helping the Indians is worthwhile," said Rep. James "Doc" Lucas, R-Moscow. "It's time to smoke the peace pipe."

He said Americans should realize they are being invaded by foreign competitors. "The Indians are old hands at being invaded, and maybe we will need their help," he said.

Loveland said Indians could get long without the tax advantage. "They can be competitive and still help meet their funding responsibilities to the state," he said.

Childers said in his experience, asking Indians to be fair always means asking them to give something up.

It is an ambush," said Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon. "It is going to get us into a tight spot that it's hard to get out of."

But Rep. Dean Haagenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, said, of the committee's accomplishments, "All they have done is sit around the table. They keep saying they will take care of the problems."

Panel rejects building code bill

BOISE (AP) — By a vote of 11-10 Friday, the House State Affairs Committee has rejected legislation adopting uniform statewide building codes and requiring communities to use certified inspectors to enforce them.

Paul Aston, Burley, a building inspector, said the code would have provided statewide uniform standards. "Most industry-related professionals support it," he said.

In response to criticism that the measure was too restrictive, Aston said, "Is it too restrictive to put two exits in a restaurant seating 300 people? Or is it restrictive to require a building to stand up long enough in an earthquake for people to get out." Marie Mayer, Buhl city councilwoman, said the proposal would be "hazardous to local communities" by imposing too many restrictions.

She said building codes could require that when an existing building was remodeled, it would have to be brought up to new standards. "That makes it prohibitive to restore buildings," she said.

Park Service OKs price for Indian Rocks site

MCCAMMON (AP) — The National Park Service has approved the appraisal price of Indian Rocks State Park near McCammon, paving the way for the closed park to be turned over to the Boy Scouts of America.

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation was notified of the Park Service's approval this week, said Bill Dokken, chief of operations. The park, located just west of McCammon, has been appraised at $4,000. The federal approval was necessary, even though the park is a state facility.

The Boy Scouts are interested in Indian Rocks as a possible overnight campsite and training facility. Dokken said he plans to meet with Boy Scout leaders soon to discuss options for turning the park over to them.

He said in order to close the deal with the Scouts, the Park Service requires that the state acquire comparable park property elsewhere.

Indian Rocks was closed in 1980 because of a tight budget and because it attracted few visitors. A private contractor opened it in 1983, but the venture shut down a year later.

The park has a main building, 50 campsites, a picnic area, restrooms, showers and two nature trails. But it has been heavily vandalized and has fallen into disrepair.

Dokken said the park could be turned over to the Boy Scouts under a lease agreement for a minimal fee, or by deeding it to the Bureau of Land Management, which has authority to give it away.

Skinheads won't be able to parade

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A northern Idaho white supremacist leader will not legally be able to stage a parade of neo-Nazi skinheads here next month because a deadline for obtaining a parade permit expired.

Richard Butler said Friday he decided against holding the parade because he is afraid young neo-Nazi skinheads would come into contact with AIDS-infected human rights demonstrators from Seattle and San Francisco, where there are large homosexual populations.

"I didn't want our boys to get mixed up with them," Butler said.

Butler, leader of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations), had earlier said he would stage a parade to coincide with a meeting of skinheads at his farm near Hayden Lake on April 21-23.

The city, which has banned parades on its main street through May because of construction, requires that requests for parade permits be filed 45 days before the event.

Butler's organization advocates establishment of a whites-only homeland in the Northwest, where minorities and homosexuals would not be allowed.

U.S. says Egypt acquiring plant with chemical arms capability

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Egypt is acquiring the elements of a plant that could be used to produce poison gas being assembled at a military-industrial complex north of Cairo, U.S. officials said Friday.

The officials privately confirmed a report in Friday's New York Times that despite Egyptian government denials, the United States has reliable intelligence indicating that chemical equipment acquired from a Swiss engineering firm, Krebs A.G., for the ostensible purpose of manufacturing pharmaceuticals has a dual-use capability that could be diverted to making chemical weapons at the Abu Zaabal complex.

In Zurich, the Krebs firm announced that while it believed its equipment was intended for pharmaceutical manufacture, it was ending its tie to the Egyptian project on the advice of the Swiss government.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who was in Brussels Friday, told a news conference there, "We are not building any plants... We are against all chemical weapons."

The situation poses a delicate problem for the United States, which has tried to stave off a leading role in halting proliferation of chemical weapons but which also counts Egypt as its most important ally in the Arab world and recipient of $2.3 billion in U.S. military and economic aid this year.

Reflecting this complex relationship, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman Friday responded warily to questions about the Egyptian plant. His roundabout responses contrasted sharply with earlier blunt U.S. demands that Libya dismantle a chemical warfare plant allegedly being built there.

Redman acknowledged that the United States "has concerns about the possible uses of this (Egyptian) equipment." But he added: "Concerning Egyptian intentions for the equipment, that I could not confirm."

He emphasized that chemical weapons proliferation is a global problem, that the existing laws of individual countries are insufficient to deal with it and that there must be greater international cooperation "to control this dual use production technology."

Redman said that was why Secretary of State James A. Baker III, speaking Monday in Vienna, proposed, in conjunction with Australia, a new international conference that would bring together representatives of the chemical industry, together with governments... to prevent either industries or governments from inadvertently being involved in the spread of chemical weapons.

Other U.S. officials said privately that the United States would like to see international negotiations produce a world-wide list of firms that would be certified as legitimate producers of pesticides or pharmaceuticals or other chemical products and that would be able to buy equipment and materials for their production on world certification would require these firms to submit to inspections.

U.S. offers plan to ease debt burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, in a policy shift one week after riots in Venezuela, outlined a new plan Friday to slash the crushing Third World debt burden that threatens Latin American democracies.

The recipe for easing the debt crisis, while portrayed by officials as an extension of existing policy, eases away from the 1985 "Baker Plan" that had favored new lending instead of debt forgiveness.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady unveiled the proposal at a conference on foreign debt attended by members of Congress, the heads of major banks and international lending institutions.

Arguing that the problem is international in scope and so complex that "no one nation can provide the solution," Brady called for a "great cooperative effort" among all nations.

"Our objective is to rekindle the hope of the people and leaders of debtor nations that their sacrifices will lead to greater prosperity in the present and the prospect of a future unclouded by the burden of debt," Brady said.

The new Bush proposal endorses voluntary efforts on the part of commercial banks to forgive part of the $400 billion they are owed by the largest debtor countries such as Brazil, Mexico and Venezuela.

To encourage the banks, the administration called on the 151-nation World Bank and its sister organization, the International Monetary Fund, to help provide guarantees for the remaining debt owed by the poor countries.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. estimates that the foreign debt of the 15 principal borrowers, including 10 Latin American countries, rose to $505 billion last year, with interest the countries had to pay totaling $32 billion.

The debt owed by all Third World countries totaled $1.92 trillion at the end of 1988, up from $800 billion in 1982.

The largest debtor country is Brazil, with $110 billion owed, followed by Mexico with $107 billion.

McFarlane describes warning to Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North's former White House boss testified Friday that James A. Baker III suggested to then-President Reagan in 1984 that he could be impeached for allowing solicitation of money from other countries for the Nicaraguan Contras.

The suggestion by Baker, then Reagan's chief of staff and now President Bush's secretary of state, "was strongly countered by other top officials at a meeting with Reagan," with the conclusion that Baker was wrong, testified former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane.

Still, Reagan said "we'll all be hanging by our thumbs" if word got out that McFarlane or other administration officials were indeed seeking help from abroad at a time that Congress had forbidden direct U.S. aid to the Contras, according to minutes of the meeting read into the court record.

McFarlane, testifying at North's trial, said Reagan knew in 1984 that arrangements had been made to get $1 million a month from Saudi Arabia for the U.S.-backed rebels in Nicaragua.

"I told the president, I told Admiral Poindexter, Colonel North knew of it," McFarlane testified. John Poindexter later moved up to succeed McFarlane as national security adviser.

There was no visible interplay between McFarlane, who is testifying for the prosecution, and North when McFarlane walked into the courtroom with his attorney.

McFarlane's face reddened at the start of his testimony when he was asked by chief prosecutor John Keiser, "Did you try to commit suicide?"

"Yes," said McFarlane, looking at the jury. "On Feb. 9, 1987." That was shortly before release of a White House-ordered report on the Iran-Contra affair and the beginning of congressional hearings.

McFarlane told, too, of pleading guilty to four charges of withholding information from Congress and of being sentenced to two years probation, 200 hours of community service and fines of $20,000.

Despite obvious nervousness at the start, McFarlane testified in a strong voice, appealing to the jury in manner of a professor lecturing a class.

During a June 25, 1984, discussion of allowing money to be solicited from other countries, McFarlane said, Baker suggested Reagan could be impeached.

As INS starts deporting Central Americans Tension high at detention center

BAYVIEW, Texas (AP) — Tensions are high at the overcrowded immigration detention center where Central Americans, except Nicaraguans, are being deported under strict new political asylum measures, officials said.

More than 2,000 undocumented aliens were crammed into dormitories and tents Friday at the Immigration and Naturalization Service's minimum-security Port Isabel Service Processing Center, 20 miles northeast of the border city of Brownsville.

"I think there is an increase in tension," said INS spokeswoman Virginia Kice. "Our (detainees) population has increased fivefold in the past two weeks."

Mark Schneider, an immigration attorney, said evidence of the tension includes fistfights and ethnic slurs among the detainees.

Earlier this week, INS officials stopped allowing reporters and photographers into the 315-acre compound to avoid increasing "the level of excitement," Ms. Kice said.

"Our population is high, and our first responsibility is the welfare of our detainees and personnel," the INS spokeswoman said; but added there had not been any violence at the center.

The detainee population for months remained below 450 at the rural facility before the crackdown on asylum applicants took effect. On Feb. 21, the INS started a speeded-up procedure in which asylum-seeker applications are processed quickly and those denied refugee status are arrested and detained. Unless they appeal their denial of asylum, detainees face quick deportation.

Schneider, who visited clients at the center Thursday night, said: "The atmosphere is tense. People are vocally demanding more food and medicine."

"The overcrowding and the lack of information are making people nervous," he said.

Seventy Central Americans who were rejected for asylum here under the new measures and did not appeal have been flown back to El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras since Sunday when the deportations began, Ms. Kice said.

"We have not deported any Nicaraguans," she said. The Meese directive still stands.

Former U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese in July 1987 issued a directive calling for special treatment of Nicaraguan political asylum cases.

Sullivan pledges 'human face' for department

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Louis Sullivan said Friday that under his tenure, the Department of Health and Human Services will have a "human face... a gentle touch."

At his formal swearing-in ceremony attended by President Bush, the new HHS secretary pledged to find better ways to serve the nation's poor, continue research towards a cure for AIDS, help rid the nation of drug abuse, develop preventive health strategies and maintain the Social Security and Medicare programs.

"Health and Human Services is the hub of a vast wheel whose spokes radiate out to touch all Americans," Sullivan said. "During my tenure, the offices of the department will have a human face, the regulations promulgated will carry a gentle touch."

Sullivan is a personal friend of Bush and his wife, Barbara, who also attended the ceremony. Mrs. Bush is on the board of trustees of the Morehouse School of Medicine in Atlanta, which Sullivan founded and served as president. While at HHS, Sullivan, a blood specialist, is on an unpaid leave from the school as a professor of medicine.

Bush said Sullivan has his "complete confidence and my full support" at the helm of the department that spends the largest portion of the federal budget and "affects the lives of every American."

Sullivan was sworn in right after he was confirmed by the Senate last week. Friday, he took the oath again in a formal ceremony.

Initial B-2 flight delayed again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The B-2 stealth bomber, unveiled last fall after more than a decade of secret work, will not fly for the first time before late spring or summer, the Air Force said Friday.

Acknowledging recent reports that the schedule for the first flight was in jeopardy, the service said that because of an aggregation of minor system checkout problems, the B-2's first flight is now expected to be in the late spring or early summer time frame.

Routine systems checkout of the first B-2 Advanced Technology Bomber is continuing at the Air Force added. "After first flight, the B-2 will undergo extensive testing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif."

When the Air Force made its first announcement last summer about an unveiling for the unusual "flying wing" plane, it confidently predicted the aircraft would be ready for its first flight in the fall of 1988.

The plane was ultimately shown to the public for the first time Nov. 22 at an Air Force plant in Palmdale, Calif.

Air Force and Pentagon officials said at the time they were not going to rush the initial checkouts of the sophisticated night systems, but that they still expected the plane to fly before the end of the year.

Maj. Pat Mullaney, an Air Force spokesman, said Friday the problems encountered by technicians all had been relatively minor.

The Pacayo Volcano, 15 miles from Guatemala City, spews a plume of ash

Guatemalan volcano erupts

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The Pacayo Volcano spewed lava, ash and sand on Friday, destroying coffee plantations in the path of the molten rock, seismologists said.

The lava was moving at about 4 yards per hour over its south slopes, said Eddy Sanchez, assistant director of the Seismological Institute.

No injuries have been reported and there was no estimate of damage.

"It's a spectacular but not dangerous eruption," Eduardo Valquez, the institute's director said.

The display from two new craters that opened on the 8,420-high mountain was visible from the capital city 15 miles away on Thursday night. Hundreds of people drove to the area to get a better look.

About 255 people were evacuated from the villages of El Caracol and El Patrocinio after the volcano became active Tuesday. They were being cared for by the National Emergency Committee in a town on the slopes of Pacayo, 15 miles from the capital.

Other villages in the area were watching it closely and feared the flow could turn to the north, where communities were affected in a June 1987 eruption.

USSR complains of expulsion

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States will be responsible for any consequences arising from the expulsion of a Washington-based Soviet diplomat accused of spying on U.S. computer operations, Soviet officials said Friday.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov called the expulsion of Lt. Col. Yuri N. Pakhtusov a "gross provocation."

In Washington, the Soviet Embassy lodged a "resolute protest" with the State Department.

The Soviets did not announce any retaliatory action, but Gerasimov said: "In taking the decision to expel Pakhtusov... the U.S. is assuming all responsibilities."

"What we have here is an intentional, preplanned action against a Soviet diplomatic employee who did not carry out any actions incompatible with his diplomatic status," he said at a news briefing.

Pakhtusov, a military attaché at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, was ordered home Thursday after the FBI said it caught him receiving sensitive information Wednesday night on how the U.S. government protects computer secrets.

A U.S. source identified the 35-year-old Soviet as a member of GRU, the Soviet military's intelligence arm.

Repeatedly asked by reporters whether Pakhtusov was a spy, Gerasimov said: "He did not violate diplomatic status with whatever he did."

"Violating diplomatic status" is a euphemism for spying.

U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock

called Gerasimov's remarks "nonsense."

Matlock later met with the Soviet deputy foreign minister Vladimir F. Petrovsky. A senior U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified further, said the meeting was arranged before the expulsion.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the men discussed "questions on global problems and on the activity of international organizations."

Embassy spokesman Richard Gilbert said the U.S. mission in Moscow had received no notice of any Soviet retaliation for the expulsion, "nor do we expect any."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said: "The reason for our actions is very simple. He was caught red-handed with the goods and no amount of verbiage can change that."

Rafsanjani: Burn all copies of 'Verses'

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's parliament speaker said Friday "The Satanic Verses" had created history's strangest crisis, and he offered a simple solution: Burn all existing copies of the book and ban it forever.

A dispatch from the official Iranian news agency did not say whether Hashemi Rafsanjani commented on Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's order of Feb. 14 that his followers kill the author, Salman Rushdie, for blaspheming Islam.

Unless the novel is destroyed and banned, Rafsanjani said during Friday prayers at Tehran University, "it will remain forever a source of rebellion and it would be impossible that peace would come between real Muslims and the supporters of this book."

He said the solution to "the strangest and rarest crisis in history is to issue a strict order to seize all copies in the entire world and burn them," the Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Rushdie, a naturalized citizen of Britain, was born to Muslim parents in Bombay, India, but has said he no longer practices religion. The 41-year-old author went into hiding after the Khomeini pronounced the death sentence and Iranian religious leaders added a reward of $5.2 million.

Mothers say a scene in "The Satanic Verses" in which prostitutes take the names of Mohammed's wives, and suggestions that the prophet wrote the holy Koran rather than receiving it from Allah, blaspheme Mohammed and Islam.

Most nations in the Middle East have banned the book, as have Asian countries with large Muslim populations. At least 19 people were killed in riots about it in India and Pakistan.

Iran broke diplomatic relations with Britain on Tuesday because Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government refused to suppress the novel.

She and her foreign minister, Sir Geoffrey Howe, said they realized Rushdie's book offends Muslims but insisted Khomeini's execution order be revoked and freedom of expression respected.

The dispute opened a new rift between Iran and the West, to which more moderate elements in Tehran had looked for trade and assistance in rebuilding from the eight-year war with Iraq.

Cleanup of oil spill ends in Antarctic

PALMER STATION, Antarctica (AP) — A multimillion-dollar international cleanup effort is concluding at the site of a wrecked Argentine supply ship that still holds about 63,000 gallons of diesel fuel, U.S. and Argentine officials said.

Authorities interviewed this week said little more could be done with the half-sunken ship, the Bahia Paraíso, before winter sets in. "The mission is practically completed," said Capt. Heberto Tubatino.

Lhasa stays tense; martial law prevails

BEIJING — Armed soldiers and police patrolled the streets of the Tibetan capital Lhasa Friday as the city remained under martial law on the 30th anniversary of a bloody 1959 anti-Chinese rebellion.

As Chinese police continued to arrest pro-independence Tibetan activists Friday, the Dalai Lama, the spiritual head of Tibetan Buddhism, warned of a "slaughter" of Tibetans by police.

In an interview with the British Broadcasting Co. from his exile in Dararamsala, India, the Dalai Lama called for immediate negotiations with China and for the intervention in the Tibet crisis by Chinese senior leader Deng Xiaoping.

Ukraine court convicts activist, reports source

MOSCOW (AP) — A human rights activist said a court in the Ukraine on Friday found a religious activist guilty of organizing an unauthorized meeting, and that people who surrounded the court were attacked by police.

Anatoly Dotzenko, a spokesman for the recently formed Ukrainian Helsinki Society, said Irina Kalenets was found guilty of helping organize a gathering of thousands of people Feb. 26 dedicated to Ukrainian national poet Taras Shevchenko.

MIRROR MIRROR
When a decked-out man stands in front of a full-length mirror, he judges for himself how he looks, and lets it go at that. When a gussied-up woman stands there, she not only judges for herself how she looks, but considers how she looks to others. Women much more so than men can imagine another's point of view. They're better able to see themselves as others see them. Such was the claim of the eminent Theodor Rikik.

Producer hopes to recreate Motown sound at Detroit studio

DETROIT (AP) — The Miracles, the Spinners, a former Supreme and an ex-Temptation are among the singers a British record producer hopes to gather for a recording session next week to recapture the legendary Motown sound.

Ian Levine, who owns and operates London-based Nightmarc Records, said Thursday he expects about 21 former Motown acts for the session at Detroit's United Sound studio.

"The performers will record new songs instead of 'regurgitating the same old stuff,'" he said. In addition to the Miracles and Spinners, participants will include the Marvlettes, the Velvettes, former Supreme Mary Wilson, ex-Temptation David Ruffin and Junior Walker, he said.

Motown, founded in Detroit by Berry Gordy, has been sold and now is based in Los Angeles.

Dutoit will be summer conductor of orchestra

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Swiss-born conductor Charles Dutoit has been named artistic director and principal conductor of both the Philadelphia Orchestra's summer concert series and its summer residency orchestra.

Dutoit's tenure at the summer program at the Mann Music Center in Philadelphia's Fairmount Park and the summer residency at Saratoga Performing Arts Center in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., will cover 1990 and 1991, with an option for 1992.

Dutoit, 52, has been music director of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra since 1977. He will also hold the title of artistic director and principal conductor of the summer sessions of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association.

Peck receives Lifetime Achievement Award

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "You can never really go as far or go as deep as you would like to. So there's always something else to try for," actor Gregory Peck told the star-studded crowd that had turned out to salute him.

Peck, 72, who joked that he was "entirely too young" for the honor, was given the American Film Institute's Lifetime Achievement Award Thursday night.

The tribute will be telecast on NBC on March 21.

Jane Fonda, who stars with Peck in "Old Gringo," which has not yet been released, told the audience, "I may not be his first leading lady or his last, but I certainly got him at his ripest."

Audrey Hepburn, who co-starred with Peck in "Roman Holiday," was host of the black-tie event at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, which attracted such stars as Lauren Bacall, Virginia Mayo, Dorothy McGuire, Liza Minnelli, Jennifer Jones, Charlton Heston, Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra.

Jessica Hahn recalls ambition to preach

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Jessica Hahn, whose 1980 tryst with television evangelist Jim Bakker brought down the PTL ministry, says her childhood dream was to be a preacher, not a Playboy centerfold.

"I never thought about modeling, Hahn, a former church secretary said of her early ambitions. "I thought my whole life was being in the church."

"I eventually saw myself preaching, but not the way you see preachers preach. The people I always wanted to reach were teenagers," said Hahn, now seeking work as a disc jockey after a brief stint at a Phoenix radio station. She was in prison lower Michigan Wednesday for a radio station promotion.

Hahn, 29, said she is bothered by criticism of her appearances in Playboy and a suggestive music video with screaming comic Sam Kinison.

"What really disturbs me is when people criticize me for taking chances or taking advantage of opportunities," she said. "When people are given a chance in life, I believe God is opening the door and you have to walk through it."

Queen confers honor on son Prince Edward

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II gave her youngest son, Prince Edward, a special 25th birthday present Friday — his first royal honor.

The queen made him a Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, an order of chivalry instituted in 1896 by Queen Victoria to reward services to the royal family. Edward is now entitled to use the initials CVO after his name.

Edward, who works as a production assistant for Andrew Lloyd Webber's Really Useful Theatre Company, was spending his birthday working in the company's offices at the Palace Theater on its production of Lloyd Webber's new musical "Aspects of Love."

His older brother, Prince Andrew, the Duke of York, was made a CVO by the queen in 1979 to mark the start of his career in the Royal Navy. He is now a lieutenant.

Arab students plan to read from 'Verses'

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — An Arab students group says it will ask all Muslims follow Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini prepared Friday for a public reading from "The Satanic Verses," the book that has infuriated many followers of Islam.

So far, that furor has not spilled over to the University of Iowa campus. Bill Fuhrmeister, director of security at the Iowa City school, said he didn't expect any trouble during the reading or panel discussion to follow Friday night at the Iowa Memorial Union.

Many Muslims are incensed over Salman Rushdie's book because they say it blasphemes Islam by insinuating that Mohammed wrote the Koran himself rather than receiving it from God, and by portraying prostitutes who take the names of Mohammed's wives.

Rushdie, who was born into a Moslem family in India and now lives in England, has been in hiding since the Khomeini government in Iran offered a $5.2 million reward for his death last month.

Sarah Simawa, a member of the University of Iowa Arab Students Association who organized the reading, said it is intended to demonstrate that not all Muslims support that threat. Each of the 25 readers taking part gets to choose a part of the book to read.

Also co-sponsoring the event are several other student associations including ones representing Palestinian, Indian and Pakistani students, and the university's Writers' Workshop and International Writing Program.

"Fascism is always an aspect of insecurity," Simawa said. "I read the Koran, I respect the prophet. I think Islam is a great religion if taken personally. Once you are going to impose it on others, it is very dangerous."

"The Koran is not fragile. It is not a (blade) of grass that you can destroy it by a book. It is a living book," said Simawa, a doctoral student from Iraq studying English and African-American studies.

Mahmoud Rizig, president of the Iowa City Islamic Society, said he has urged his group's members to attend the reading and carry protest signs, but no disruption was planned.

"According to Islamic law, anyone who 'slanders' any prophet or his wives or mothers has to be killed, no matter if he is a Moslem or non-Moslem," said Rizig.

He said he agreed with the death penalty because "it's part of my belief. I cannot accept part of the religion and reject the other."

"We believe in freedom of expression, but we don't believe in obscenity," he said.

Frank Conroy, director of the Writers' Workshop, said the group was participating in the reading to order of Khomeini's "proposed murder" of Rushdie, which he called "a direct assault on First Amendments rights, freedom of expression, that democracy is based on."

Racy assembly causes principal's suspension

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Joe Clark, the high school principal who became famous for his no-nonsense discipline, has been ordered suspended because he arranged a school assembly at which four strippers performed officials said.

Thursday's action marks another episode in the turbulent tenure of Clark at Eastside High School, part of which led to the new film "Lean On Me," which depicts Clark as a well-intentioned administrator whose tough tactics arouse controversy.

The suspension was ordered by Paterson's superintendent of schools, Dr. Frank Naper, according to Robert G. Rosenberg, attorney for the board of education. The five-day suspension is due to begin Monday.

Dr. Naper has stated that Mr. Clark failed to supervise his building on this particular day," Rosenberg said.

The school assembly included an act by dancer Wanda Dee in which she stripped male dancers down to their G-strings. School officials on hand stopped the show right away. Rosenberg said there were at least three male dancers.

Clark was not at the school the day of the assembly last month and has said he never expected the dance group he hired to lapse into lasciviousness.

He also called the school officials "puritanical demagogues" for taking action against him. In an interview Thursday with the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette before a special hearing at Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania, Clark said the suspension is to last five days "if the kids don't tear the building down."

"I'm not questioning the inappropriateness of the act," he said. "But for them to get sanctimonious on me..."

"They were going to suspend somebody," he said. "So I said, 'You want to suspend somebody, suspend me. I need a rest. I'm tired and you're going to pay me to be ratified by the school board,' which will meet Thursday. Rosenberg said Naper is empowered to suspend employees in advance of formal ratification by the board, and he said board members were likely to tell of Naper's decision before it was announced. He also said Clark was not expected to fight the suspension.

In Paterson earlier Thursday, Clark, toting his trademark bullhorn, led a group of more than 500 students across city streets to the Board of Education offices to plea for more bilingual teachers in the school system.

Naper said he met with the students and discussed ways in which he could recruit additional bilingual teachers.

As a result of the meeting, a committee of school officials and students will be formed to help recruit additional bilingual teachers, Naper said.

SEN. LAIRD NOH
Co-chairs Senate committee

Senate reluctantly OKs chemigation bill

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Imposing more restrictions on farmers was not popular with some senators, but faced with the alternative of federal regulation, a chemigation safety law easily passed the Senate Friday.

Under the proposed law, farmers who apply fertilizers or pesticides through their irrigation systems would be required to be licensed by the Department of Agriculture and to install safety equipment to prevent the backflow of chemicals into irrigation systems.

"I don't like it but I see the handwriting on the walls," said Jerry Twigg, R-Blackfoot. Without the state law, the Environmental Protection Agency would determine what rules and regulations would apply and what standards safety equipment must meet, said Sen. Lynn Tomingao, R-Rupert.

The agency would also impose penalties, said Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, co-chairman of the interim committee that developed the legislation. The state is proposing farmers operating without proper safety equipment would first receive a letter-of-warning. A second violation would result in a misdemeanor charge and a third violation within three years could be punishable by a fine of up to $10,000.

"The federal government, however, would start with the fine, Noh said.

"Often the agriculture community and the chemical companies are charged with being lax in regard to the environment," Noh said. "This piece is not from the environmentalists but the farmers, ranchers, the Water Users Association and the chemical companies."

The EPA is undergoing a major re-evaluation of farm chemicals to determine which are most likely to contaminate groundwater, Noh said. Chemical companies want the legislation to protect the reputation of their products and keep them from being blacklisted as the result of a chemigation accident, Noh said.

"As a farmer, I'm going to be selling my product for a good many years," said Sen. George Vance, R-Parma. "I want people to know my products are good and my management sensitive to the environment."

Adding the safety equipment has been estimated to cost $700 to $1,000 per system for the many that already have some of the safety features. The chemigation license would cost $25 with a $5 annual renewal fee.

The vote to send the chemigation law to the House was 32-6.

Magic Valley jobless rate rises slightly

By The Times-News and Associated Press

BOISE — The Magic Valley's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose half a percent to 6.3 percent in February.

The increase was caused by a seasonal layoff at Universal Frozen Foods and unusually cold weather that prevented some businesses from operating, said Lon McDonald, labor analyst for the state Job Service in Twin Falls.

The rate in February last year was 6 percent.

This February, the Magic Valley — which the state Department of Employment regards as Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties — had 33,410 people working and 2,760 people unemployed.

At the state level, economic expansion continued to fuel growth in the labor force last month, and new job seekers outpaced new jobs to send the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate up a notch.

The Department of Employment said Friday its preliminary estimates put the jobless rate for February at 5.7 percent, up a tenth from January as 28,600 Idahans were off the job.

But last month's rate was still a full percentage point below Idaho's rate in February 1988, marking the 22nd straight month that unemployment rates have run below year-earlier levels.

The economy created another 5,400 jobs during the month, the eighth straight that total employment has increased, to hit a record 469,800. But the number of workers looking for jobs jumped by 600 as the total labor force pushed over 498,000 for the first time ever.

"With unemployment rates staying below last year and increased hiring in many industries, 1989 presents a very positive outlook for employment growth in Idaho," department analysts said.

Nationally, the jobless rate went the other way, plunging to 5.1 percent and its lowest point in 15 years as 229,000 new jobs were created.

Twin Falls company submits low bid to repair overpass

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls construction company has submitted the low bid for repair work to a U.S. Interstate 84 overpass that was damaged by an overheight truck, a state transportation official says.

C. L. Heilman Co. bid $79,270 for the project. The state had estimated the job would cost about $150,000 before officials determined it would require less work than initially estimated, said Loren

Thomas, district engineer with the Idaho Transportation Department.

"The bid will be awarded in about three weeks provided the state determines that Heilman is a qualified bidder, Thomas said.

Two I-84 overpasses that cross U.S. Highway 93 north of here were damaged in January when a southbound truck hauling a backhoe scraped their undersides. Damage to the eastbound overpass was minimal, but tension cables in three of the westbound overpass six stringers were severed.

Thomas said one span will be sawed in half and three new stringers will be put in place. He said construction could begin May 1 and be completed by July.

"It should be a fairly easy repair," he said.

One highway lane beneath the overpass in each direction will be kept open, Thomas said. Traffic will be slowed, but there should not be any significant delays, he said.

A $102,000 bill for repairs, engineering fees, emergency repairs and maintenance will be sent to Yanke Machine Shop & Fabrication, the Boise company for which the driver worked, Thomas said.

The accident occurred when Tracy Irish, 29, of Jackpot, clipped the overpasses with the boom of a backhoe he was hauling from Bellevue to Jackpot. No one was injured, although the impact sent chunks of concrete crashing to the ground.

Police cited Irish for driving an overheight vehicle.

Gooding commissioner blasts cable TV tax hike

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state Tax Commission's edict to 22 counties to adjust cable property tax assessments was a power play and possibly illegal, says a county commissioner from one of the affected counties.

"We feel that what they have done is order us to go against certain portions of the state code which we are regulated by," Gooding County's Bob Muffley. "I think it's a flagrant misuse of power."

The Tax Commission on March 3 ordered Gooding County to increase its 1988 assessment of King Videocable Co. by 3,400 percent within 10 days. That was after the county already increased the company's taxes by 163 percent over 1987.

The 10 days will expire Monday, but the county commission will likely not comply with the state's order until officials justify its legality, Muffley said.

"The state's order came after the taxing year expired, Muffley said. He declined to mention other laws the order could also be violating.

Gooding County's $110,000 assessment of King Videocable's system was about $3.8 million low, the state ruled. The increase means taxes could rise to about $62,000 or $43 for each of the company's 1,335 subscribers, County Assessor R. Doyle Pugmire said.

Chris Talkington, manager of King Videocable, said the latest tax hike could mean a monthly subscription rate increase of $1.85 in Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls counties sometime this year.

"It's very frightening," Talkington said. "If things do not change we may be forced to do that."

He said Gooding County's willingness to stand up to the Tax Commission is heartening, and he hopes it will encourage other counties to do the same. It may mean his company will take Gooding off its list of counties targeted for lawsuits, Talkington said.

"It's hard for me to understand why (counties) would spend taxpayer's money to oppose the state. We've made our judgment and we're prepared to stand by it in court."

— Larry Looney, tax commission chairman

However, before the company files lawsuits, it will first file tax assessments to the state, Talkington said. He said the company has 30 days to appeal after receiving the new tax notice.

Twin Falls County on Friday sent out its updated King Videocable appraisal, which is $96,000 more than before, bringing the company's total taxes for 1988 to $171,000.

Tax Commission Chairman Larry Looney said it makes more sense for cable companies to appeal the rulings than for counties to fight the state.

"It's hard for me to understand why they would spend taxpayer's money to oppose the state," Looney said. "We've made our judgment and we're prepared to stand by it in court."

He declined to comment on what action the state would take if Gooding county flouts the ruling.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Looney said.

Jerome County Assessor John Wurst said although the state's assessments, completed in about three weeks, were too hurried to be reliable, he will comply with the order and let the state defend its position in court.

"The Tax Commission has the right to throw me in jail and Chris Talkington doesn't," he said.

He said the state's assessments — which look about a day per county to complete — were done by officials who never saw the systems they were appraising.

Talkington said if state officials had come to Gooding County they would have found a 25-year-old system that needs to be replaced in about two years. That will cost about $110,000, not $4 million, he said.

Bingham County Assessor Heber Hanson said if the state taxed newspapers the same

The survey also asked where they regularly shop for clothing and what they like and don't like about their favorite stores.

Court orders wage payback

KETCHUM — A Ketchum contractor has been ordered by a U.S. District Court judge to pay $4,968 in back wages.

Ronald Radabaugh was ordered to pay overtime wages to 19 employees. The back wages are the result of violations of the federal Fair Labor Standards Act and represent the difference between the amount of wages paid the employees and the amount they should have been paid in overtime wages, plus liquidated damages.

The decision follows a suit filed by the U.S. Labor Department following an investigation by its Portland District office.

USFS raises prices of maps

OGDEN, Utah — The Forest Service is raising the price of Forest Visitor Maps and Special Area Maps.

maps that Forest users want."

All Forest Visitor Maps and a number of special maps of wilderness and wild and scenic rivers that are printed on regular paper will sell for $2. Wilderness and wild and scenic river maps, printed on waterproof paper will go to $4.

Discounts of 25 percent are available for purchasing maps in quantity.

Castleford may get its own butcher shop

By DIANE SCHORZMAN
 Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD - The town of Castleford, population 213 - more or less - may soon have its first new business in more than 10 years.

Carol Glander, Castleford, and Denny Stewart, Buhl, are interested in opening a butcher shop in town. The 40-by-100-foot shop would be built on two lots owned by Glander on Main Street next to City Hall.

"We feel there is a need for this out here," Stewart told the City Council Wednesday. Glander and Stewart have previous experience in the business.

The council indicated support for the idea and said it would grant the pair a building permit.

They hope to open a butcher shop for wholesale and retail sales and custom cutting. They also may handle wild game.

The business would provide the town with its first butcher shop since last fall when the new owner of the town's only grocery store eliminated custom-cutting. The store offers a limited selection of meats.

Stewart said Friday they still are checking into the feasibility of the business.

In other matters, John Crowley will be sworn in as new council member at next month's meeting. Crowley replaces Corbin Runyon who resigned last month to take a job out of state.

Crowley is employed by Blick Brothers in Castleford.

The council members, Mayor Richard Schlund, Police Chief Brig

Vulgamore, Fire Chief Dan DeBoer, and City Clerk Patsy Kinyon, all signed a letter to be sent to the Senate in support of Senate Bill 1250, co-authored by Sen. Joyce McRoberts, R-Twin Falls.

The bill would release volunteer firemen from civil liability if they were performing their duties in a responsible manner. There currently is no legislation that protects volunteer firemen.

The council stated in the letter that - Castleford - depends on volunteers, and "our volunteer firemen have a lot to lose should this bill be defeated."

"We also feel, if the bill is defeated, we would have a difficult time recruiting volunteer firemen. These people risk their lives, share their time and contribute so much to our community."

In other business:

- City water fees will remain the same this summer: $7.60 per half lot and $15 for a full lot.
- The council again will lease out 30 shares of unused city water this summer. Anyone interested may deliver a sealed bid to City Hall. The bids will be opened at the April 11 council meeting.
- The city ordered two hand-held radios and eight pagers for the City Fire Department at a cost of $4,890.
- The Garden Men's Club and other area businesses have donated funds to be used toward the purchase of the equipment.
- Jamie Runyon will organize and chair Johnny Horizon Day in Castleford this spring.

Prison water contaminated

BOISE (AP) - Bacterial contamination has forced officials at the Idaho State Penitentiary and adjacent minimum-security South Idaho Correctional Institution to shut off the drinking water.

Penitentiary Warden Dave Paskett said the Idaho Army National Guard has agreed to bring in tanker trucks of water for almost 900 inmates until tests by the state Department of Health and Welfare confirm the contamination is cleared up.

The water was shut down about 9 p.m. Friday after state Corrections Department officials received the results of tests from water samples taken the day before.

Paskett said the penitentiary's well is clean and the contamination apparently is located somewhere in the water-transmission lines to the prison.

Jobs

weather-prompted reductions in the logging and construction sectors, were blamed for the slight rise in the Idaho jobless rate.

Growth in the service industry partially offset those declines and the expanding labor force, as employment jumped in recreation activity such as ski resorts and lodging, and in education with the opening of the college spring semesters.

Regionally, only Canyon County and the Magic Valley posted jobless rates above those of a year before, apparently reflecting the layoffs in food processing.

February's figures were only the second set of monthly statistics calculated under a new formula that analysts said will provide a much more accurate employment picture for the state. The impact of that new formula, however, has been to push the state's adjusted jobless rate above the national rate.

The adjusted rates for the seven major regions of the state for February 1988 were:

- Panhandle, 7.5 percent, 7.7 percent, 9.7 percent.
- Lewiston area, 5 percent, 5.2 percent, 6.9 percent.
- Canyon County, 6.7 percent, 6 percent, 9.1 percent.
- Ada County, 3.7 percent, 3.4 percent, 5.6 percent.
- Pocatello area, 6 percent, 5.4 percent, 8.1 percent.
- Idaho Falls area, 4.9 percent, 4.8 percent, 6 percent.

Cable

way it taxed cable companies, they would arrive at a value of $5,000 for each newspaper carrier's bag.

"I'm not an advocate for cable TV," Hanson said. "I'm an advocate for treating everyone fairly."

Although Hanson says the state is being unfair to cable companies, he and three other Magic Valley assessors do not dispute the state's right to adjust appraisals. However, Hanson said the issue will be resolved in court.

"If they (cable companies) take me to court, I'll say I agree with the appellant," Hanson said.

Talkington said the state's appraisal of its Gooding system, which only includes a head-in tower and about 38 miles of cable, is not nearly worth a fifth of its Twin Falls system with more than 10,000 subscribers. The state has ruled.

"Alice in Wonderland would have a problem making that relationship," Talkington said.

What has happened is that the state has assigned part of the company's Twin Falls assets to Gooding County, Pugnire said.

Taxes that would have paid for Twin Falls services will go to Gooding County, he said.

"I don't mind stealing a little value - but $4 million?" Pugnire said. The state's order followed its controversial directive in September for county assessors to make sure cable TV companies were appraised at full market value, taking into account income potential.

Pugnire said in the process, counties were asked to assign value to intangibles including good will, the number of subscribers and management and advertising skill.

Muffley said Gooding County Attorney Lynn Nelson is researching the issue and will report his findings to the county commission Monday. After which commissioners will decide whether to send a refusal-to-comply letter to the state.

Vatican condemns divorce, contraception

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A senior Vatican theologian condemned divorce and contraceptive practices in the United States in a speech Friday that targeted Planned Parenthood, feminism and the entertainment industry, especially the TV series "Dallas."

Cardinal Edward Gagnon, president of the Pontifical Council for the Family, told U.S. Roman Catholic bishops it was crucial that Americans follow church teaching on sexuality, since they influenced Europe and the developing world.

During the meeting with the U.S. Catholic hierarchy, Italian Cardinal Alvaro Silvetti also criticized U.S. marriage tribunals, saying their methods apparently were "not fully in conformity with church law."

The Vatican officials spoke on the third day of an extraordinary four-day meeting called by Pope John Paul II to discuss the 52 million American Catholics, one of his largest, wealthiest and most powerful flocks.

Friday's discussion reflected concern in the Vatican about the many U.S. Catholics who dissent from church teachings on birth control, divorce and other issues.

Gagnon told the 35 American prelates gathered in the underground stone Old Synod Hall that the Vatican also was concerned about homosexuality, the use of sterilization by American Catholicism and feminism, which he said "has a deleterious influence on the family."

He said theologians were increasingly recognizing "the social and moral disaster a contraceptive mentality can lead to."

A particular challenge, he said, was presented by Planned Parenthood's efforts to set up school-based birth control clinics.

"Planned Parenthood programs of sex education in no way resolve the problem of teen-age pregnancies, but rather increase it by encouraging promiscuity," he declared.

He also accused the organization of trying to undermine Catholic teaching that the only permissible birth control method is "natural family planning," in which a couple abstains from sex during the woman's fertile period of the menstrual cycle.

In Chicago, the president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, David J. Andrews, said Gagnon "is absolutely right" in suggesting that the group opposes the church's

Elisabeth Zinser criticizes rejection of proposed improvements at U of I

BOISE (AP) — The incoming president of the University of Idaho said Friday that a $20 million campus construction package rejected by lawmakers because it was too rich would have represented only a minimal investment in the state's aging university system.

Elisabeth Zinser said the capital improvement measure shot down in the House and narrowly rejected again by legislative budget writers on Friday was "a very, very modest enhancement in the coming year, knowing that particularly the University of Idaho is a very old campus."

"Every year that the state gets behind in keeping up with the capital program the more it's going to cost the state in the long run to put these facilities into working order," she said. "So I do hope that there will be a way for the state to re-evaluate its resources and re-evaluate its programs."

Zinser's comments came during taping of KTVB's "Viewpoint" public affairs program in Boise.

It was one stop on a whirlwind itinerary of private meetings and public appearances in Boise on her first trip to Idaho since the state Board of Education gave her the job on Tuesday, effective July 1.

She was welcomed warmly earlier Friday at brief appearances before the House and Senate Education Committees and the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee. She then met with state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans and state Commerce Department director Jim Hawkins.

meeting and news conference with Gov. Cecil Andrus and receptions with legislators and UI alumni came later in the day. Friday night, Zinser planned to attend the University of Idaho's game against the University of Montana in the semifinals of the Big Sky Conference basketball tournament.

She had planned to leave Boise on Saturday, but promised to extend her visit if the Vandals made it to Saturday's Big Sky title game.

During the KTVB interview, Zinser defended the state Board of Education's decision to offer her $100,000 a year to succeed outgoing UI President Richard Gibb — who makes less than $82,000 — as recognition of the importance of higher education in Idaho.

She will get another $15,000 per year in deferred compensation from the University of Idaho Foundation.

"I hope this sets the tone for, gradually, as the economy permits, having individuals on the faculties of the various institutions and others to have increases in their salaries so we can continue to recruit the best and the brightest in the state of Idaho," Zinser said.

She stressed the need for improved cooperation between Idaho's colleges and universities, and for each institution to more clearly define its role so legislators understand the individual funding needs.

"To do that, Zinser said, the institutions' presidents need to discuss the particular strengths of their schools and how their individual programs can best meet the overall higher education needs of the state.

"The more distinction that can be drawn among the different institutions, the greater the probability is that resources will be used wisely and that those institutions will be more comfortable operating in a cooperative way," she said.

"I have some good experience in developing cooperative relationships with other institutions in such a way that it gets us out of the zero-sum phenomenon into better use of resources for the people of Idaho."

Zinser was named president of Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C., last March, but resigned after five days amid protests from students and faculty members at the school for the deaf who demanded a hearing-impaired administrator.

"This time, she stands out because she is the first woman president of any university in Idaho. But Zinser said gender is "not particularly relevant." Eventually, she said, she will be evaluated based on her job performance as a person, not a woman.

"But I recognize that the fact that I am a woman coming into a situation being the first woman in this position is something that provides a sense of role model," she said. "I think that can be mined as a special resource to inspire women to positions of leadership."

Zinser said one of her goals as

Hatcher seeks political asylum at Soviet Union's consulate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Fugitive Indian Eddie Hatcher, wanted on 14 kidnapping charges in Robeson County, walked into the Soviet consulate in San Francisco and asked for political asylum Friday.

"The people in the United States are always crying about human rights violations in the Soviet Union," Hatcher said in a telephone call from the consulate to The Associated Press in Raleigh. "I want them to know about the human rights violations in this country against the Indians and the poor."

Hatcher said Soviet diplomats were studying documents and news articles he submitted in his request for his asylum. He said he had been told it would take several days for his request to be considered.

"I see no alternative," Hatcher said. "The U.S. government is not going to be happy until they have me back in their hands and back in Robeson County."

"I'm tired of being persecuted for winning the federal case," he said. "This shows how the governments want to persecute us, yet people like Ollie North ... can be looked on as a hero. That's because he's one of the boys."

Hatcher, 31, and Timothy Jacobs, 20, held up to 20 people hostage in the offices of The Robesonian newspaper on Feb. 1, 1988. The two Tuscarora Indians said they took over the newspaper to draw attention to their claims of law enforcement in violation in drug trafficking and official corruption.

The 10-hour siege ended when Gov. Jim Martin agreed to form a state task force to investigate their charges. The task force, in its report, found no evidence to support the claims and Martin later said they were based on "rumor and gossip."

A federal jury last October acquitted both men on federal hostage-taking and firearms charges after a three-week trial.

But the Robeson County grand jury in December indicted the two Indians on the kidnapping charges. Hatcher was arrested in Pembroke, but Jacobs fled the state and sought sanctuary at the Onondaga Indian Reservation near Syracuse, N.Y.

ELISABETH ZINSER

Off to fast start as president president will be to increase the expansion of programs at the University of Idaho to people throughout the state, but not at the risk of infringing on the roles and missions of the other institutions.

She said she was "pleased that the engineering school at the University of Idaho is cooperating with Boise State in bringing an enhanced presence to technology education in this region. I think that's entirely appropriate."

But she stressed that while the availability of engineering courses should be expanded in the state's largest and fastest-growing urban area, the center of engineering education in the state will continue to be Moscow.

Polygamists to be resented

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge Friday set April dates for the resentencing of three members of a polygamist clan convicted of bombing a Mormon chapel.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins said clan patriarch Addam Swapp, his brother Jonathan Swapp, and mother-in-law Vickie Singer will be given revised prison terms during hearings April 3-4.

Following their convictions last May on 20 of 23 federal counts stemming from the Jan. 16, 1988, bombing of the Kamas Stake Center, the three were sentenced to terms that were less than required by federal sentencing guidelines, which Utah federal judges and others across the country had declared unconstitutional.

Addam Swapp was sentenced to 15 years, while his brother and Singer received 10-year terms.

The resentencing was ordered after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in January that the challenged guidelines were legitimate.

position on birth control.

Andrews said Gagnon's speech reflects "the desperation of a church trying to come to grips with the issue of sexuality and with the fact that people the world over rely on effective methods of birth control and want to keep abortion services safe and legal."

Archbishop John Quinn of San Francisco made no mention of artificial birth control in a companion speech to the family.

But talking to journalists later, Cardinal John O'Connor of New York said "it is time for us to teach all over again" the church's position on contraception. "I find Catholics sick of contraception."

An estimated 70 percent of American Catholics use artificial birth control, and U.S. Catholic bishops suggested in a draft pastoral letter in April that the church should be more responsive toward them.

The Rev. John Lynch, secretary of the U.S. National Conference of Bishops, said no U.S. bishop criticized Vatican policies during discussions Friday.

He said several of them noted "a high level of acceptance of Catholic social teaching but not the same level for the church's moral teachings."

Gagnon also urged the bishops to increase their vigilance over Catholic marriage tribunals and said some forms of U.S. ministry to divorced Catholics had "degenerated into dating services."

He warned too many annulments could support "the prevalent divorce mentality" that conflicted with Catholic belief, in lifelong commitment.

Speaking after Gagnon, Silvestrini said that of 45,632 annulments granted worldwide in 1985, 36,180 were in the United States.

Several U.S. bishops defended their tribunals as careful and hard-working. Archbishop Roger Mahony of Los Angeles also said that Vatican statistics did not include the many annulment cases which courts refused to hear.

He said that in his diocese last year, the courts accepted 1,000 cases but refused to consider 13,000.

Gagnon told the U.S. prelates that Catholics around the world looked to their leadership in the fight against abortion and the spread of pornography.

Specifically, he said the bishops should do something about "more subtle pornography" — that is, the degrading of moral values veiled by cinema and TV shows which pretend to depict normal American life.

Singling out the TV series "Dallas," known for its portrayal of adultery, greed and cruelty — Gagnon said bishops in other countries would like us to reflect on what we export can do to the conscience of their people.

SkyWest to move shop to Salt Lake City

PCOATELLO (AP) - SkyWest Airlines, a major computer carrier serving Pocatello, announced it will move its aircraft maintenance shop and 25 full-time employees to Salt Lake City about June 1.

cannot stress that enough," Reber said. "We are streamlining our maintenance and flight officer operations and because our hubs are in Salt Lake, Portland and Palm Springs, Pocatello is no longer the ideal or logical location for the facility."

The relocation is "pure economics," Reber said, since it will put the airline in a better position to offer more convenient flight times to customers.

Councilman Earl Pond said SkyWest's announcement was "not unexpected" since the carrier has been considering relocating its maintenance operations to Salt Lake City for several months, he said.

On to Hutchinson: Eagles win by 55

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With 15 minutes, 26 seconds left in the first half, it was tied at 11. Just 55 seconds later it was over.

That quick 11-point explosion signaled the start of a school-record tying offensive performance that carried the College of Southern-Idaho to a 135-80 bi-regional men's junior college basketball victory over Northland Pioneer College of Holbrook, Ariz., Friday night.

It means nationally top-ranked Golden Eagles, the champions of Region 18, will advance to the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament in Hutchinson, Kans., for the 11th time since 1970. They will go against Hagerstown, Md., in the tournament opener at noon CST Tuesday.

With a full house looking on, the Eagles remained a picture of consistency after seizing the lead on the first of two Dave Henderson three-pointers. Caio DaSilveira followed with a bucket off a steal and his own steal led to an old-fashioned three-point play with 14:31 left on the clock.

After that was a matter of CSI continuing to mount the margin against the thinner and tired Region 1 champions until it crusted at 60.

In the end, Coach Fred Trenkle gave his graduating sophomores one last moment in the spotlight, taking them out of the game one-by-one so the fans could express their appreciation for two years' effort with applause.

"And that was the only reason, I hope Northland understands that: We didn't put a couple of sophomores back in to score points, just to come out one last time. Not too worry. Coach Brian Crowder wasn't thinking of that."

"This is the finest junior college team I've ever seen and I've been to three national tournaments — one JC and two small college," he said.

"We were comparing apples to oranges tonight," he said. "They've got the great crowd, the fine facilities and the rich tradition. Our program is in its first year — but we hope to have the same thing some day."

Browder said CSI's depth was the overpowering part. "We lost three starters over the year," he said of his own bench strength, "but this is the same starting five that won our region a week ago. We're very proud of them."

"We played awfully well on both ends of the court tonight," Trenkle said. "We started the small team because we wanted to push the ball at them. But I thought really our defense just smothered them."

"It was rough," said sophomore Cliff Martin, who afterward verbally announced his intention of accepting athletic aid at University of Idaho next year. "At the beginning they hung with us until we started realizing what they were doing. We broke it open five minutes into the game and we could see it was over then because they were tired."

"This feels good," chimed in sophomore Kenny Jarvis. "We're finally going where we wanted to be all year. For me, the last two years."

Henderson, who may be announcing his four-year school intentions before leaving for nationals, tried to make his contribution to the victory sound easier than it was.

"It was 11-11. It was too close for me. You know I like to see CSI on Page D-3"

Idaho gains championship game

Vandals wear down Montana to win easily, 77-56

By TIM KELLY
The Associated Press

BOISE — When the shots weren't falling, at least the Idaho Vandals were grabbing the rebounds, and Coach Kermit Davis said that made the difference.

"If we hadn't rebounded, we'd have been down 12 or 14 points in the first half," Davis said after his team rolled over Montana 77-56 Friday night to reach the championship game of the Big Sky Conference postseason basketball tournament.

Idaho on Saturday night will take on the winner of Friday night's other semifinal between Weber State and top-seeded Boise State. The Vandals, 24-5, owned a 44-25 edge on the boards and exploded in the second half as Riley Smith and Mauro Gomes ignited a 27-4 run.

Smith scored 21 points, with most of his buckets coming on offensive rebounds or assists from Gomes, who had 11 points. Raymond Brown had six of his 14 points in the run, and Ricardo Boyd, who came off the Idaho bench to score 16 points, hit a pair of 3-pointers and capped the spree with a fastbreak layup.

Davis said Gomes and Boyd were effective in attacking Montana's zone, as Idaho finished the game shooting 33-for-67 from the field for 49 percent. The Vandals led 33-30 at halftime despite shooting just 38 percent in the first half compared to 54 percent for Montana.

Davis said Idaho's transition game wore down the Grizzlies, 20-11, who had been extended—in an overtime win—against Montana State the night before.

"I think they were feeling the effects of their game last night," Davis said. "Our transition game was making them run the floor every time, and that made a difference."

Montana Coach Steve Morrill wouldn't blame fatigue for the lopsided defeat.

"Idaho's awfully good, I know that," Morrill said when asked if his team ran out of gas. "We simply could not board against their athletes. They've got two all-league post men (Smith and Brown), and they have a good outside shooter (Gomes) and a lot of depth."

"That is a team that could compete in a lot of leagues... Idaho is one of the most talented teams we've had in the Big Sky," Morrill said.

K.C. McGowan scored seven of his 16 points early to spark Montana to a 16-8 lead. Wayne Tinkle scored nine points in the first half but finished with only 12, and Tony Reed added 10 for the Grizzlies.

McGowan said Montana was hoping for an NIT bid to "redeem ourselves and show we're not that bad of a team."

Burley jumper 1st at NCAA

The Times-News

INDIANAPOLIS — Burley's Paula Pettinelli John, a senior at Weber State College, won the women's high jump title at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships here Friday.

John, a 1984 graduate of Burley High School who was competing in her last meet for Weber State, cleared 6 feet, beating Hailey's Lisa Bernhagen, a Stanford University senior, on fewer misses. Bernhagen also cleared 6-0.

Twin Falls' Amber Wolty just year's NCAA outdoor high jump champion, finished eighth with a jump to 5-10.

"My goal was to equal or go 6 feet without misses to go my PR and then go for 6-2," said John. "I had two good attempts at 6-2 without making it."

Ironically, John has frequently finished second to Bernhagen; the two competed in the same high school division and the same district in high school. They finished 1-2 in the girls' Class A-2 high jump in the 1983 and 1984 state track meets.

"All my life I was second, but today I'm first. This is my last meet."

Maryland stuns Wolfpack

By DON MARKUS
The Baltimore Sun

ATLANTA — The University of Maryland basketball team took a season's worth of frustration and defeat out on North Carolina State during an afternoon of joyful disbelief Friday in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament at the Omni.

The Terrapins, who many thought would merely go through the motions against the top-seeded Wolfpack, pulled off what was being called the biggest upset in the tournament's 36-year history, crushing North Carolina State, 71-49, to advance into Saturday's semifinals.

It was the first time since the elimination of opening-round byes for the ACC's regular season championship 26 years ago that the bottom seed had beaten the top seed. It also was the second year in a row in which the Terrapins upset a heavily favored opponent in the opening round.

"We've been through a lot this season," junior center Tony Massenburg said after Maryland's first victory since beating Clemson State on Feb. 7. "A lot of this victory goes to our emotional side. The pressure isn't on us. We just had a career attitude. We had a good time out there."

But the smiles soon disappeared, replaced by looks of worry when Maryland head coach Bob Wade complained of a tightness in his left side shortly after the game. Wade was administered to by team physician Stan

Lavine and trainer Bill Saylor.

Lavine diagnosed Wade as suffering from dehydration. After being attended to by paramedics, Wade was put on a stretcher and taken by ambulance to Georgia Baptist Hospital, where he was later admitted overnight for observation. A determination will be made Saturday morning as to Wade's availability for Saturday's game.

Maryland (9-19) is scheduled to play ninth-ranked North Carolina (25-7) in the first semifinal. The fourth-seeded Tar Heels, with five players scoring in double figures, jumped out early on fifth-seed Georgia Tech (20-11) and beat the Yellow Jackets, 77-62, in the second game of Friday's afternoon doubleheader.

"We look forward to playing Maryland," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "They certainly gave us a close game in College Park, so we must be ready."

Obviously, North Carolina State (20-8) wasn't ready to play Maryland. It might have had to do with the fact that the 17th-ranked Wolfpack had beaten the Terrapins by 23 and 17 points in the regular season.

In a stretch of 10 minutes midway through the first half, Maryland used a patient, spread offense to score on 15 of 17 possessions, including eight straight at one point, to turn a 9-6 deficit into a 32-14 lead with five minutes remaining.

A matchup zone defense by Maryland also seemed to bother the Wolfpack, which missed 17 of its first 23 shots from the field

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Stacey Augmon played a spectacular second half and scored 10 of his 29 points during a 12-0 run that boosted No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas to a 99-83 victory over Fullerton State Friday night in the semifinals of the Big West Conference tournament.

Nevada-Las Vegas advances to Saturday's championship game, the sixth time in seven years it has played for the league's automatic NCAA berth. UNLV, 25-7, has been the No. 1 tournament seed in both the seven years it has belonged to the league.

Fullerton State, the No. 4 seed which got 31 points and 16 rebounds from Cedric Ceballos, ended the season 16-13.

Augmon, the Big West Player of the Year, had only seven points at halftime, when UNLV led 46-38, but matched that total in the first 4½ minutes of the second half.

Fullerton State stayed close early in the second half, as Mark Hill's baseline shot cut the UNLV lead to 53-47.

With UNLV leading 69-59, Augmon converted a three-point play with 1:016 remaining to start the 12-0 run, which carried the Runnin' Rebels to an 81-59 lead with 8:28 left.

Augmon added a 3-point shot, then showed his quickness with two steals that he turned into fast-break slam dunks. In between Augmon's stuffs, Anderson Hunt added two free throws.

Augmon made a long jumper and a 3-point shot, which gave UNLV its biggest lead, 88-65 with 6:35 left.

No. 2 Oklahoma narrowly gets by Colorado -- in 2 overtimes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Even without Mookie Blaylock, second-ranked Oklahoma figured to breeze by Colorado in the Big Eight tournament.

Instead, the Sooners barely got by the last place Buffaloes.

Playing without their second-leading scorer and best defensive player, the Sooners needed two overtimes Friday to beat Colorado, 95-87 in the first round of the Big Eight Tournament.

"We missed him a lot," Coach Billy Tubbs said of Blaylock, who was suspended for one game following his arrest last weekend for public intoxication.

"I'll put it to you guys in a way you can understand — it's like losing your quarterback," Tubbs said. "But what happened to us today didn't have so much to do with Mookie not being there as it did the great effort and strategy that Colorado had."

The Buffaloes, who lost twice during the regular season to Oklahoma by an average of 27 points, used a patient, halfcourt offense that held the Sooners to a season-low 31 points in the first half.

At the other end, Colorado frustrated the league's player of the year, Stacey King, with an aggressive defense that limited him to five points in the opening 20 minutes.

"These kids played their hearts out. I'm very proud of them," said Colorado coach Tom Miller, whose team wound up 7-21.

King, who wound up with 28 points, scored 10 of the Sooners' final 13 points in regulation including two free throws with 15 seconds left that made the score 68-62.

But a 3-pointer by Steve Wise brought Colorado within 68-65 with nine seconds left. Wise finished with 30 points.

After Terrence Mullins, who played point guard while Blaylock watched from the bench, missed the front side of a one-and-one chance with seven seconds left, Colorado's Reggie Morton made a 3-pointer at the buzzer to force the first overtime.

"They've been hot lately," King said of the Buffaloes, who lost to 10th-ranked Missouri by just a point last week. "Coming in here we didn't think it was gonna be a blowout game."

Oklahoma overcame a six-point deficit in the first extra session, eventually tying the score at 77 on a 3-pointer by Tyrone Jones with 1:23 left. Jones wound up with 19 points.

The Sooners had a chance to win at the buzzer, but Skeeter Henry's jumper from the left wing rimmed out.

"We didn't want to lose to Colorado," said King, who scored only one bucket in the first overtime. "When we step on the court, we don't expect to lose. Whether it went into five overtimes, we were gonna come out on top."

His help made sure that happened by scoring Oklahoma's first five points in the second overtime, and seven of the Sooners' first nine. After falling behind 87-80, Colorado got no closer than four.

Shawn Vandiver scored all 15 of his points in the second half and grabbed 17 rebounds as Colorado won the battle of the boards, 62-42.

We felt rebounding would be the key. We came out determined to kill them on the boards," said Vandiver. "When you get beat on the boards 62-42 and you don't have a big difference in your favor in turnovers, then there aren't any good things that are going to happen for you," said Tubbs.

"All day long, they took it to us on the boards. They played great."

UTEP 89

New Mexico 57

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Tim Hardaway scored 28 points and his 3-pointer ignited a 13-7 run to open the second half as Texas-E Paso ran away from New Mexico 89-57 in a Western Athletic Conference tournament semifinal Friday night.

The Miners, 24-6, will play for the tournament title Saturday night against the Colorado State or Hawaii, who played in Friday night's late game. UTEP, which will make its fifth appearance in the championship game in the tournament's six-year history, led 44-34 at halftime, largely on a 14-0 run over a four-minute stretch in the first half.

The Miners, who survived an 88-81 double overtime win over Wyoming in Thursday night's game, were ready to play Friday night.

They extended their 10½-point half advantage with a run to open the second half, started by Hardaway's home run shot.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Eric Knox scored 27 points as Oregon State defeated California, 79-66, Friday in a Pacific 10 Conference tournament game.

62-54, Friday to advance to the semifinals.

Gary Payton, Oregon State's All-Pac-10 point guard, scored 21 points and passed off for eight assists before fouling out. Payton scored Oregon State's first 10 points to help the Beavers get off to a 18-2 start.

Knox took charge after Cal shut down Payton with a box-and-one defense in the second half.

Cal, which missed its first 11 shots, got into the game with a 17-4 second-half run to cut the deficit to 39-35 with 10:56 to play.

But Knox made a crucial four-point play, hitting a three-point shot and adding a free throw with 10:30 remaining and Cal never recovered.

North Carolina 77 Georgia Tech 62

ATLANTA (AP) — J.R. Reid scored 17 points to lead five North Carolina scorers in double figures Friday as the No. 9 Tar Heels dominated Georgia Tech 77-62 in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

North Carolina will meet Maryland in one semifinal Saturday. The Terrapins shocked No. 17 North Carolina State, winning 71-49 in the tournament opener earlier Friday.

In Friday night's other first round games, No. 7 Duke faced Wake Forest and Virginia met Clemson.

The Tar Heels, 25-7, seeded fourth after finishing tied for second during the regular ACC season, led 39-25 at the half.

Reid scored 13 of his 17 points in the second half, expanding North Carolina's margin to 24 points at 60-36.

Seton Hall 74 Connecticut 66

NEW YORK (AP) — Ramon Ramos scored 21 points, and No. 11 Seton Hall took advantage of some foul problems encountered by Connecticut's leading scorer, Cliff Robinson, for a 74-66 victory Friday in the first round of the Big East tournament.

Seton Hall, 25-5, will meet the winner of Friday's game between No. 5 Syracuse and Providence in its second straight trip to the semifinals after never having advanced that far in the first eight years of the tournament.

Both teams shot terribly in the first half. Seton Hall 37 percent on 10-of-27 and Connecticut 28 percent on 10-of-26.

Seton Hall led 46-43 with 8:17 to play, but Robinson, averaging 19.9 points per game for Connecticut, had four fouls. And Seton Hall took advantage of his horrible shooting streak to open a comfortable lead.

Syracuse 79 Providence 76

NEW YORK (AP) — Freshmen David Johnson and Billy Owens combined for 21 points during a decisive second-half split as No. 6 Syracuse held on for a 79-76 victory over Providence in the Big East tournament quarterfinals Friday.

The win was the 21st straight for Syracuse over Providence in the 10 years the Big East has existed. The Orange, 25-4, will meet No. 11 Seton Hall, a 74-66 winner over Connecticut, in Saturday's semifinals.

Johnson, averaging only 3.8 points this season, scored 13 of his 18 points during the 29-17 run that turned a 41-41 tie with 15:33 to go into a 70-58 lead with 4:58 remaining.

Owens, the more celebrated of the freshman pair, scored eight of his 18 points during the spurt, most of which came with Derrin Coleman on the bench with four fouls.

Providence, which was led by Cal Foster with 17 points, closed the gap to 74-73 with 15 seconds left on a jumper by Matt Palazzi. But Owens made two free throws for Syracuse, which shot 56 percent from the foul line, to make it 76-73 with 36 seconds to go.

A 3-point attempt by Palazzi and a free throw by Abdul Shamad-Dennismann, Johnson then clinched the victory with a dunk and free throw with 14 seconds left.

Sherman-Douglas' eight points in seven minutes carried Syracuse to a 33-27 edge late in the first half, but a 3-for-10 performance at the free-throw line kept the Orangemen from pulling further ahead than 35-31 at halftime.

Douglas finished the game with 16 points and Delman 13 before fouling out with 2:55 left. Johnson had 14 points for Providence, which at 18-10 is still hopeful of an NCAA tournament bid.

Arizona 62 Washington State 54

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Anthony Cook scored 19 points and Sean Elliott led a late Arizona rally Friday to top-ranked Arizona, which had a 62-54 victory over Washington State in a of the Pacific-10 Conference tournament quarterfinal.

But Moore answered with seven consecutive points in a 36-second span, including a reverse layup, a slam dunk and a three-point play that moved Southern Cal ahead 66-46 with 14:10 to play.

Washington State 78 Oregon 56

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Brian Quinnett had 18 first-half points and Harold Wright scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half to carry Washington State past Oregon 78-56 Thursday in the opening game of the Pacific-10 basketball tournament.

Brian Wright added 14 points, 12 on 3-point shots for the Cougars, who improved to 10-18 overall and 6-14 in the Pac-10.

Oregon, which finished the season at 8-21 and 3-16 in conference play, was led by Randy Grant with 23 points.

After Brian Wright's 3-point shot gave Washington State a 39-28 margin with 1:33 gone in the second half, Keith Reynolds led Oregon on a 9-2 run with a pair of 18-foot jumpers. The second one cut the Cougars' lead to 41-37 with 14:06 left to play.

Although Quinnett left the court with his fourth personal foul 51 seconds later, the ninth-seeded Ducks failed to build a lead.

Washington State scored 11 of the next 13 points, including consecutive 3-pointers by Brian Wright and reserve guard Reco Rowe. Harold Wright added a three-point play and John Hodges' layup put the Cougars ahead 62-59 with 7:30 left.

Oregon got no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

UNLV 102 UC Irvine 82

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Stacey Augmon, Greg Anthony and Anderson Hunt made consecutive 3-point shots during an electrifying display of transition basketball and UC 18 Nevada-Las Vegas used a later 22-4 run to bury UC Irvine 102-82 Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the Big West Conference tournament.

Augmon, the Big West Player of the Year, scored 27 points. Anthony had 24 and Hunt 14.

The Rebels, who were upset by Irvine in last year's semifinals, fought back from a seven-point deficit to take a 41-40 lead on two free throws by Augmon with 2:55 left in the first half.

Ricky Butler made one free throw with 2:33 left for a 41-41 tie but Augmon hit a 3-pointer for a 44-41 lead with 2:16 left. Hunt cleared a defensive rebound and fed Anthony for his 3-pointer. Moses Scarry then rebounded an Irvine miss and Hunt hit a long jumper for a 50-41 lead.

Anthony added two free throws and converted a three-point play with one second left to give UNLV a 55-45 halftime lead. Anthony had 16 points in the first 20 minutes and Augmon added 13.

Virginia 90 Clemson 73

The Baltimore Sun

ATLANTA — Clemson suffered its ninth straight first-round loss in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament Friday, falling to Virginia 90-73.

It was the 12th victory in the last 15 games for Virginia (19-9), which will play Duke in Saturday's second semifinal. The seventh-ranked Blue Devils blew out Wake Forest, 88-64, in Friday night's first game.

The Cavaliers, who split the two regular season games with the Tigers by a 27-point margin, took to the court taking leads of 10-2, 16-6, 20-8 and 24-10 and 32-12.

The Tigers, meanwhile, missed six of their first seven shots from the field, and 11 of its first 14. Junior center, Elden Campbell, was nearly non-existent in the first half as he was clogged inside by Virginia's sagging defense.

Despite some poorly conceived jumpers by Richard Morgan, who at one point, was yelled at by teammate John Crotty and pulled off the floor by Cavaliers coach Terry Holland, Virginia was able to build its lead.

After Morgan returned, he seemed to play a bit more under control, and his jumper gave the Cavaliers a 26-12 lead. A free throw by center Matt Blundin, pushed Virginia ahead by 15, 27-12, with a little under six minutes left.

The lead grew to 17, 29-12, on an inside basket by Brent Dabbs, with a little under five minutes left in the half. The Tigers continued to struggle, and Virginia built its lead to 32-12 before Clemson cut its deficit to 17, 34-17, at halftime.

Virginia led by 21, 63-47, before the Tigers went to a 10-0 run that was capped off by a three-point play by Tim Kincaid with 5:37 remaining in the game. After two free throws by John Crotty, Kincaid hit another three-pointer. Following a turnover by Morgan, Campbell made a free throw to cut Clemson's deficit into single digits.

Alonzo Mourning of Georgetown grabs a rebound over several Boston College players

17 of their last 18 games, will face Oregon State in a semifinal game Saturday. The Beavers, 22-6 and seeded fourth in the tournament, beat California 79-66 earlier Friday.

Washington State finished its season with a 10-19 record and was 4-14 in conference play while the Wildcats were 17-1.

Arizona won the two regular season games 76-59 and 74-49 wins.

But this was a lot tougher as Arizona looked like anything but the nation's top-ranked team and Elliott like anything but an All-American and the Pac-10's all-time leading scorer most of the time.

"The Wildcats didn't go ahead for good until Cook's three-point play with 3:28 remaining broke a 48-48 tie after WSU's Herb Delaney had tied the game with a short jump shot 24 seconds earlier."

Brian Quinnett's short hook shot with 3:10 to play cut Arizona's lead to one point. But Elliott, who had 12 of his points in the final seven minutes, made two foul shots with 2:51 left and Ken Lofton hit a three-point shot with two minutes remaining to make it 66-50.

Elliott's layup with 1:06 to go made it an eight-point Arizona lead and clinched the victory.

Duke 88 Wake Forest 64

ATLANTA (AP) — Danny Ferry scored 24 points as seventh-ranked Duke hit its first eight shots and raced away to an 88-64 victory over Wake Forest Friday night in the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

The Blue Devils, 23-6, became the third team to advance to the semifinals. Eighth-seeded Maryland shocked top-seeded North Carolina State in the tournament opener and North Carolina defeated Georgia Tech. The winners of those games will meet this afternoon.

Missouri 78 Nebraska 70

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gary Leonard had 17 points and Byron Irvin came off the bench to score 15 as No. 10 Missouri capitalized on Nebraska turnovers to rout the Cornhuskers a 98-70 Friday a Big Eight tournament quarterfinal.

Irvin, the Tigers' leading scorer with a 19-point average, did not start because of a groin injury. He became the fourth player in Missouri history to score 600 points in a season and now has 603 for the Tigers, 25-7.

Eric Johnson had 15 points for Nebraska, which finished 15-15.

The Tigers outscored Nebraska 23-6 over a seven-minute period of the first half to take a 30-12 lead with 8:06 to play. Nebraska, which made 10 turnovers in the first half, made four straight at one point of the Missouri run.

Ball State 62 Ohio 46

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Keith Stalling and Curtis Kidd each scored 16 points as No. 19 Ball State defeated Ohio 62-46 Friday in a Mid-American Conference tournament quarterfinal game.

Scott Nichols added 10 points for the Cardinals, 26-2, who advanced to Saturday's semifinals.

The game was the second of the day for Ohio, which beat Western Michigan 61-55 in a morning contest to qualify to play Ball State.

Georgetown 82 Boston College 52

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Smith scored 24 points Friday night and third-ranked and top-seeded Georgetown put on an impressive defensive performance in an 82-52 victory over Boston College in the quarterfinals of the Big East tournament.

Georgetown, 24-4, will meet the winner of Friday night's other quarterfinal between Villanova and Pittsburgh in one of Saturday's semifinals. Fifth-ranked Syracuse and No. 11 Seton Hall will meet in the other.

With Smith, the conference's player of the year, leading the way, the Hoyas broke it open early and impressively with tenacious defense and constant intimidation in the lane.

New Mexico State 60 Fresno State 59

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Willie Joseph's five-foot jumper with six seconds left lifted New Mexico State to a dramatic 60-59 victory over Fresno State, which trailed by 16 points early in the second half of the Big West Conference quarterfinal Thursday night.

Kevin Stevenson's desperation 40-foot shot bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

New Mexico State led 31-15 following James Anderson's fastbreak stuff two minutes into the second half but the Bulldogs slowly pulled back into the contest.

A 3-point shot by Wilbert Hooker with 4:30 left pulled Fresno State within 50-41.

Stevenson made a 3-pointer with 55 seconds left to cut the lead to 58-54, after Keith Hill missed the front end of a two-and-one, Wilbert Hooker made another 3-pointer.

Hit missed the front end of another one-and-one, Biju Bai rebounded and fed Jervis Cole, who hit from the key with 23 seconds left to give Fresno State its first lead 59-58.

The Aggies called timeout with 17 seconds left, then worked the ball to Joseph for the game-winner.

Anderson scored 16 points and Johnny Roberson had 14 for second-seeded New Mexico State, 20-9, which recorded a 20-win season for the first time in a decade. The last Aggie team to win more games was the 1978-79 squad which went 22-10.

USC 94 Arizona State 82

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Chris Moore scored 31 points and Alan Pollard came off the bench in the second half to add 10 as Southern Cal beat Arizona State 94-82 Thursday in the opening round of the Pacific-10 Conference tournament.

Trent Edwards scored 28 points for the Sun Devils, who ended their season with a five-game losing streak, finishing at 13-15 overall and a 6-14 in conference play.

The Trojans' victory was their fourth in the last 20 games and ended a three-game losing streak.

Arizona State forward Al Austin hit a layup and a pair of consecutive 3-point shots from the right corner in a 69-second span to trim a 19-point deficit to 50-39 with 17:42 left in the game.

Lowly Orioles beat mighty Dodgers, 3-0

Curt Schilling extended his scoreless spring training streak to six innings, allowing two hits in two innings as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 Friday.

Randy Milligan doubled and drove in two runs for the Orioles, who got a run on three hits and three walks in three innings against Dodgers losing starter, Fernando Valenzuela.

Indiana Pacers eclipse Phoenix Suns, 121-116

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Vern Fleming scored 21 points and made five free throws in the final 29 seconds to help the Indiana Pacers beat the Phoenix Suns 121-116 Friday night.

The setback dropped Phoenix 4 1/2 games behind the first-place Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA's Pacific Division.

The Suns trailed 116-112 on Jeff Hornacek's 3-pointer with 36 seconds left. After Fleming hit two free throws, Hornacek hit another 3-pointer with 22 seconds left to make it 118-115. But Fleming hit three more free throws around one by Hornacek. The Pacers took the lead for good with 16 seconds left in the third quarter, shortly after Coach Dick Versace was ejected for arguing.

The two bi-regional results of Friday put three of the top five-ranked teams in the final quarter of the pool in the upper brackets. CSI is No. 1 and Folk, Fla., is No. 6. But if the rankings are a true harbinger, it would mean CSI would not meet a

Frazier, Gentry tops in city bowling
TWIN FALLS — Dave Frazier and Steve Gentry Sr. were the top individual finishers and Idaho Computer Service and Bowladrome Travelers took the team honors in the 39th annual Twin Falls mens city bowling championships, which concluded earlier this week.

Frazier was the handicap all-events winner with a score of 2,209, outdistancing runnerup Mike Mahler, who turned in a 2,187. Gentry won the scratch honors with a score of 1,913.

Idaho Computer Service, a team made up of Doug Freeman, Curt Brimacombe, Bill Freeman, Rocky Reece and John Brennan, won the team handicap division with 3,398, outdistancing Metals Research Corp. with 3,391.

Bowladrome Travelers won the team scratch division with 2,877. Loren Benner, Greg Hafer, Darrell Cardwell, Bob L. Leazer and Mike Leazer were members of that team.

Other event winners were Dale Brown and Dani Stirton, who won handicap doubles, and Shane Ward and Dave Dellert, who took scratch doubles. Gentry won both handicap and scratch singles. Ward had the tournament's high series, a 724, while Ron Dawson and John Irwin tied for game honors with 258.

Johnson sets 200 mark at NCAA indoor finals

By BERT ROSENTHAL The Associated Press

Track

INDIANAPOLIS — Michael Johnson of Baylor set an American record in the men's 200-meter dash and sprinter Dawn Sowell and hurdler Yunjung-Stanley gave the Louisiana State women's team two impressive victories Friday night in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field championships.

Johnson, 21, a junior from Dallas, set a new American record of 20.69 seconds, clipping 0.1 of a second off the national record of 20.60 set Feb. 26 by Olympic gold medalist Joe DeLoach.

It was the second scintillating race of the day for the fleet-footed Johnson. Earlier, in the 200 preliminary race, he set last year's record of 20.73 set by Florida's Dennis Mitchell in last year's NCAA meet.

That record didn't last long, as Frank Fredericks of Brigham Young broke it, running 20.72 in the preliminary race. Johnson won the second final, after Fredericks won the first in 20.80, the unaffable Johnson came roaring back and won the second section with a brilliant performance.

Frederick, a native of Namibia, wound up second overall and Kevin Little of Drake, the bronze medalist in last week's World Championships, again was third, in 20.90, a personal best.

"I felt like I could run a fast time, I just didn't know what it would be," Johnson said. "After the prelims, Frederick was looking good. After seeing that, I knew I had a lot more in me for the final. My second race is usually my best."

Sowell, the American indoor record-holder in the women's 200, won in 22.99, breaking the meet record of 22.89 set last year by Pauline Davis of Alabama. For Sowell, it was her third solid performance of the day. Earlier, she won her 200 heat in 23.26, the fastest during the preliminaries, and took her 55 heat in 0.67, also the fastest clocking leading up to Saturday night's final.

"It was OK, but it wasn't my fastest time," Sowell said after the 200, in which she set the American record of 22.87 on Feb. 26. "I felt tired mentally and physically going from race to race. It's been a long season."

Davis finished second in the two-section final in 23.12 and Esther Jones of LSU was third in 23.24, giving the Tigers 10 points in their bid to regain the title they won in 1987 and lost to Texas last year. The Longhorns suffered a bad bump in the 200, when sophomore Charlotte Guidry, last year's runner-up, wound up eighth and failed to score.

Stanley also broke an NCAA meet record in winning the women's 55 high hurdles in 7.47, bettering the mark of 7.53 set by Rosalind Council of Auburn in 1986.
