Soviet sub burns, sinks off Norway

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — An advanced Soviet attack submarine caught fire and sank in the Norwegian Sea Friday, according to U.S. and Norwegian government sources. The nuclear-powered "Mike" class submarine suffered a catastrophic accident involving "major loss of life," according to a U.S. government official who asked not to be identified.

U.S. officials said they did not know what weapons the craft was carrying, but the sub is capable of launching SSN-21 cruise missiles with either nuclear or conventional warheads.

An American official monitoring reports on the incident said the vessel surfaced briefly, then sank. The accident involving the submarine, believed to be the only one of its kind, may provide an intelligence bonanza for the United States and its allies if reconnaissance ships, aircraft or satellites were able to photograph the rare craft as it surfaced.

In Oslo, the Norwegian Defense Ministry said that Soviet ships and aircraft were in the area where the sub was lost in international waters off Spitzbergen Island near the Arctic Circle. The statement said Norwegian military aircraft had flown over the area, some 300 miles from the Norwegian mainland, and had seen the submarine ablaze. Officials said the fire appeared to be concentrated in the stern, or rear of the vessel, where water distillation equipment and propulsion functions are housed.

In an interview broadcast on Britain's Independent Television News, Norwegian Defense Ministry spokesman Col. Gullow Gjestad said that in a flight over the submarine, "I saw at the time two dinghies with the personnel in one dinghy. We saw also a Soviet merchant ship in the area and we know also Soviet aircraft have been over the area."

The Soviets have built only one submarine of this type, according to Jane's Fighting Ships. It entered service in 1984. It is used primarily to test various advanced weapons systems, is believed to be powered by two liquid-cooled nuclear reactors, and has a double hull designed to reduce noise and make it harder to detect, according to Jane's.

The submarine can carry long-range ballistic missiles as well as SSN-21 cruise missiles, according to the Pentagon book, "Soviet Military Power."

If counties don't boost cable TV tax, state will, official says

By KIRK MITCHELL, Times-News writer

GOODING — If Gooding, Jerome and Lincoln counties won't boost property taxes on cable television companies, then the Idaho Tax Commission will do it for them, the state panel's chairman says. "We don't have much choice but to enforce the law," Larry Looney said. The 30-day period in which counties could have appealed a tax commission order elapsed Thursday, Looney said. The Idaho Tax Commission ordered 22 counties in March to raise property tax appraisals by as much as 3,400 percent for cable television companies it contends were undervalued. Looney said he would have preferred to see the three counties appeal the order through legal channels instead of ignoring it. The tax commission sooner or later will see to it that county assessment rolls are changed and new bills are sent to cable companies, Looney said. How that will be accomplished has not been decided, but it may require legal action, he said. In the next few days, the tax commission's attorney will talk with officials in the three counties to try to persuade them to follow the order, Looney said. "I think they will have to institute a lawsuit against us to get us to do it," said Gooding County Commissioner Bob Muffley. He said the tax commission did not respond to a number of legal questions he and fellow commissioners posed about its tax assessment of King Videocable. "We thought we'd at least hear back from them on the points of law," Muffley said. "I think they dropped the ball on that." Gooding County's $110,000 assessment of King Videocable's system was about $3.8 million low.

Sub sole craft in its class

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Mike-class submarine that sources said was on fire Friday off the coast of Norway is one of the most modern nuclear-armed and powered boats in the Soviet fleet, capable of hurling advanced warheads up to 1,600 miles, Western experts say.

The Soviets have only one of the 361-foot-long, titanium-hulled Mike-class submarines in service, according to Jane's Fighting Ships.

It entered service in 1984. It is used primarily to test various advanced weapons systems, is believed to be powered by two liquid-cooled nuclear reactors, and has a double hull designed to reduce noise and make it harder to detect, according to Jane's.

U.S. flays Soviets for consulate bugs

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In an incident sure to add new friction to the superpower rivalry, the U.S. government accused the Soviet Union Friday of planting electronic listening devices in the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad. The Department of State said that the bugs, which apparently had been in place for years, were discovered in February during a security inspection of the facility.

"Such hostile attempts at intelligence gathering — however long ago they may have been initiated — are deeply resented by the American people," the department said in a statement to reporters. The consulate, which opened in 1973, handles relatively low-level diplomacy such as assisting U.S. businessmen and interceding on behalf of Americans who run into trouble with Soviet law. For that reason, the Soviet eavesdropping is considered to be less damaging than electronic surveillance at the embassy in Moscow.

In 1985, the Department of State said that a new embassy building in Moscow was honeycombed with sophisticated listening devices. As a result of the discovery of the bugs, the U.S. government refused to move into the embassy from a dilapidated building nearby.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III is expected to announce soon the steps the U.S. government will take to assure itself that officials conversing in the Moscow embassy will be private. Recommendations range from tearing down the building and starting over to a partial reconstruction of the most sensitive areas of the facility. The cost of demolishing and rebuilding the embassy has been estimated at $500 million.

Officials said they believe the consulate can be made secure without such extreme measures. Although the eavesdropping devices at the consulate apparently were left over from an earlier and harsher period of the Cold War, their discovery now is certain to produce new Washington-Moscow tensions. The Bush administration has already signaled a more wary approach to the Soviet Union than was prevalent in the final years of the Reagan administration.

Nuclear regulators speed up licensing

The Baltimore Sun

BETHESDA, Md. — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission unanimously approved major changes in its licensing procedures Friday that could halve the time it now takes to build a nuclear power plant. But critics of the NRC's streamlined "one-step" licensing say it would deprive the public of opportunities to monitor and influence industry compliance with safety regulations once construction begins. After the scheduled meeting of the five-member commission, Chairman LeDro W. Zech called the action "one of the most significant rule-making this commission has ever undertaken, perhaps in 30 years. It's very important if we're going to have a nuclear energy future." The average time needed to complete a new nuclear power plant is currently more than a dozen years, at a cost of up to $6 billion. No plants have been ordered since 1978, and no plant ordered after 1974 has been built. Although safety concerns after the Three Mile Island accident and a drop in demand for electricity have contributed to that hiatus, the industry places much of the blame on the "two-step" licensing process the NRC has followed for three decades. The one-step procedure involves advance approval of sites and a combined decision on a construction permit and license. • See RULES on Page A2

Jobless rate plunges to lowest in 14 years

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Civilian unemployment fell to 5.0 percent last month — the lowest rate in more than 15 years — even as the pace of job growth slowed, the government said Friday. The report painted a picture of a moderating economy influenced heavily by a tight labor market. Non-farm payroll jobs rose by 180,000, down 100,000 from February. Another indication of moderation: The average manufacturing work week fell from 41.1 hours to 40.9 hours last month. Amid the signs of moderation, however, were indications of increasing inflationary pressures on the economy. • Average hourly earnings rose at a

Area rate drops — A4

5.0 percent annual rate. • Construction jobs fell sharply. The drop was blamed on rising interest rates. • A record 63 percent of the working-age population had jobs, but analysts took that as a sign of possible labor shortages down the road. Some 117.1 million Americans had jobs in March; just 6.1 million were out of work but looking. The March unemployment rate was down from 5.1 percent in February and was the lowest since 4.9 percent in December 1973. Some economists saw in Friday's Labor Department report signs of the "stagflation" that crippled the economy as the decade began.

Military will aid spill cleanup; wind shift, tide threaten fjords

The Associated Press

VALDEZ, Alaska — President Bush called off the military Friday to help clean up the Exxon Valdez spill as forecasts of shifting wind and high tides raised fears the oil might be blown back into the fragile fjords of Alaska's central coast. As the cleanup entered its third week, state officials said they had worked out an agreement between Exxon and the Coast Guard by modifying their request for a complete Coast Guard takeover. Exxon will handle contracts and purchases and the Coast Guard will direct field activity, said Dennis Nelson, commissioner of the Department of Environmental Conservation. It's a resolution of what we thought was a real logjam," Kelso said. So far, only an estimated 16,000 barrels, about 7 percent of the 10.1 million gallons spilled when the tanker Exxon Valdez hit a reef, has been sopped and vacuumed up from the once clear water of Prince William Sound. By Friday, the crude oil had floated over a 3,000-square-mile area. The Good Friday spill has killed thousands of birds and sea-otters along the central Alaskan coast and fishermen have lost millions of dollars. Bush said he directed Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to make military forces and equipment available and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner to coordinate the federal effort. Bush had been under pressure from members of Congress and Alaskan officials to intervene, Alaska Gov. Steve Copper on Wednesday asked the Coast Guard to take over management of the cleanup from Exxon. The president insisted, however, "We are not federalizing this operation," and that

"this should not relieve Exxon from any of its responsibilities or liabilities." Kelso said the military is welcome to pitch in moving equipment, but that there was no need now to line the shore with soldiers. "More people will be needed for shoreline cleanup but that is not what the proper focus should be right now," he said. "We don't intend to change our momentum at all. We don't know how long it (military mobilization) will take, but we're not going to sit back and wait." Copper said he was pleased with Bush's action, although he'd prefer... available

Alaskans work the cleanup before the military. Exxon has flown in 3.5 million pounds of equipment and hired 1,000 cleanup workers. About 160,000 feet of oil containment boom and 29 skimmers are in Prince William Sound, and an additional 120,000 feet of boom and 32 skimmers are en route, said Exxon Shipping Co. President Frank Larost. "If you think about the challenge we've had here, we were told our most important objective was to defend the four fisheries and we've been successful. I guess victory is in the eyes of the beholder," Larost said.

Gorbachev announces nuclear materials cuts; queen to visit

LONDON (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Friday announced cuts in the production of radioactive material for nuclear weapons and ended a triumphant stop in Britain by inviting Queen Elizabeth II to Moscow.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared Gorbachev's visit "very successful, warm and friendly" but appeared unimpressed by his concessions in the military field.

She said the reductions in weapons-grade material "will have no effect in practice" because "they probably have quite a sufficient stockpile of uranium."

In Washington, President Bush declined to comment on Gorbachev's announcement, saying he had not had time to review its significance.

A Pentagon official said the steps sketched by Gorbachev would not have a major impact on Soviet capability to wage nuclear war.

Although Gorbachev said arms control would stall unless the West dropped plans to modernize its short-range nuclear missiles, Mrs. Thatcher said her belief in a nuclear deterrent remains firm.

Gorbachev insisted NATO had an advantage over the Warsaw Pact in every area but tanks and said: "In short, fears of the 'Soviet military threat' are groundless."

Mrs. Thatcher said East bloc forces still outnumber the Western alliance 2-1.

On a happier note, she said the queen gave "a very definite yes" to the invitation extended during Gorbachev's lunch with Elizabeth at Windsor Palace.

No date was set for the visit, the first by a British monarch since the Bolshevik revolution of 1917. Czar Nicholas II, who was killed by his family, was the Communist, was a cousin of the queen's grandfather.

Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa spent 40 hours in Britain before flying home and ending a six-day journey that also took them to Ireland and Cuba.

Sharp quake jolts Southern California

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A sharp earthquake jolted Southern California from downtown Los Angeles to San Diego on Friday, causing minor injuries and damage in Orange County, where the shaking was strongest.

Mirrors, windows and wine bottles smashed to floors at Fashion Island Shopping Center, the largest outdoor mall in Orange County, said Anita Hill, administrative director. She said shoppers scrambled when the 4.6-magnitude temblor hit.

"Some of them panicked and got in their cars and tried to get out of here," she said. "Some went to the center of the mall to wait and see what would happen next."

Several people were injured by broken glass at R.J.'s Rib Joint restaurant in affluent Newport Beach, a city 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, said police spokesman Bob Oakley.

"We felt a real slight rolling motion, then a real abrupt shake. It felt as if something crashed into the building, it was that sharp," Oakley said. "A lot of alarms are going off in the city. We had to bring in extra personnel in the communications center to handle hundreds of calls."

The earthquake at 2:07 p.m. MDT measured 4.6 on the Richter scale and was centered directly under Newport Beach, according to the U.S. Geological Survey and the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

USGS spokeswoman Pat Jorgensen in Menlo Park said the epicenter was just north of that of the March 10, 1933, Long Beach earthquake, which measured 6.3 on the Richter scale.

Abortion rights message on way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abortion-rights activists said Friday they will carry their message to members of Congress, the Bush administration and the Supreme Court in a videotape designed to counter anti-abortion advocates' trademark video "Silent Screams."

Meanwhile, women's rights advocates were preparing for a weekend march they expect to be their largest ever with tens of thousands of demonstrators traveling across the country to the nation's capital.

March organizers said the demonstration on Sunday will launch a strategy aimed at reshaping the debate on abortion by applying pressure on government agencies and pharmaceutical companies to improve availability of contraception and standing up to Operation Rescue's attempts to close down abortion clinics.

to the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships.

U.S. naval intelligence analysts said it was built as a platform for experiments in submarine design and unique propulsion system. The sub's design reduced both the turbulence and noise that the boat creates when it is moving, making it harder to locate in the cat-and-mouse game that U.S. and Soviet submarines play undersea.

The 361-foot-long vessel, believed to carry a crew of about 95, was launched at Severodvinsk in May 1983. It is powered by twin, liquid-metal-cooled nuclear reactors and has an estimated top speed of 38 knots.

The double-hulled ship is probably made of titanium for weight and noise reduction, according to Jane's. Norman Polmar, an independent American naval analyst, said the stricken submarine could have been carrying as many as six nuclear-tipped torpedoes.

White House Press Secretary Martin Fitzwater said U.S. officials had little information on the incident Friday night.

"There are indications there was a major fire aboard, but we have no details. We understand there has been a loss of life but we can't confirm how many," Fitzwater said. "We express the sympathy of the United States government to the Soviet government for any loss of life notified of the incident," Fitzwater said.

The area where the accident took place in the Norwegian Sea is the site of many naval exercises by both Eastern and Western forces and is considered a potential battleground in a future large-scale future conflict.

tion permit and operating license before a utility commits billions of dollars. It incorporates standardized reactor designs that would eliminate many of the safety problems inherent in the custom-built, one-of-a-kind nuclear plants in the United States.

"We should be able to build a plant in six years or less in this country" with the new process, Zech said, although the full NRC report cautions that "the Commission is not out to secure, single-handedly, the viability of the industry."

The U.S. Council for Energy Awareness — a Washington-based trade group that represents nuclear utilities — reacted cautiously to the NRC action.

"This is what we need, standardization and licensing reform," said spokesman Scott Peters. "We consider this a good-faith effort to create a process that has been needed for a long time."

But Peters expressed concern over a provision that allows for an additional, narrowly defined public hearing to decide if licensing conditions have been met, a remnant of the two-step system that the NRC retained to avoid the need for congressional approval of the rule change.

Cable

the state ruled. The increase means taxes could reach about $62,000, or $43 for each of the company's 1,385 subscribers, County Assessor R. Doyle Purgstie said.

The step increases stem from a Tax Commission decision that cable companies should be assessed by their actual market value — not just by the value of their assets.

Jerome County Prosecuting Attorney John Horgan said Jerome has notified King Videocable that its assessment has been increased from $550,000 to $4 million, but until a legal battle involving Ada County is settled it will not bill the company for increased taxes.

"We just want to know the right way to go about it before we do," Horgan said.

Ada County has appealed the tax commission's mandate in 4th District Court.

Horgan said if Jerome County did increase King Videocable's taxes, the resulting increase in revenue would significantly offset obligations commissioners to lower property taxes countywide.

"However, if the county does that, and Ada County later wins its case against the state, then eventually Jerome County likely would be required to give King Videocable its money back, he said.

At that point, the county would have to increase its taxes to the level it was before, Horgan said.

"It's really quite a quagmire," he said. "It screws us up."

The July deadline for assessing 1989 taxes is fast approaching and until court cases are resolved, the county is unsure how to assess King Videocable's taxes.

Canadian bus hijacker gives up

Western forces practice keeping Soviet submarines away from Atlantic shipping lanes, while Soviet vessels patrol there to keep track of Western ships.

With the vessel burning and disabled on the surface, Western intelligence analysts hoped to get their first look at some of the sub's secrets.

One analyst said before sinking the submarine could have unleased its ballast, causing the boat to pop up high on the surface of the ocean and exposing some of the sub's undersea.

"This really could be an intelligence coup," said one American naval analyst. "When a disabled Soviet Victor submarine surfaced off Newport, R.I. in the mid-1980s, analysts reaped a harvest of valuable intelligence about the sub."

The latest incident would be the fourth sinking of a Soviet nuclear-powered submarine.

OTTAWA (AP) — An armed hijacker surrendered and freed all hostages unharmed Friday after he freed a New York-bound Greyhound bus to drive 100 miles from Montreal to Parliament Hill and kept police at bay for more than five hours.

All six people on the bus were detained when they emerged. Five were spread-eagled against the bus, and police freed one man to kneel on the ground.

Police later explained this was a precautionary measure and only the kneeling man, identified as Charles Yacoub, 36, of Montreal, was arrested as the hijacker. Police said he made demands for a Lebanese organization they were not sure even existed.

He had claimed to have dynamite, but no explosives were found, police said.

Depredation claims against state begin

BOISE (AP) — Howe rancher Russell H. Mays has submitted the first claim for state payment of his damages for wildlife depredation last winter, and it's a big one.

At 3:17 p.m. Friday, Mays delivered his claim for $123,287 in damages from wildlife between July 1 and the end of 1988.

State Auditor J.D. Williams immediately sent a copy to the Fish and Game Department to begin verifying the loss.

The 1989 Legislature approved $500,000 in Department of Fish and Game funds to be doled out to landowners who present valid claims that deer, elk and antelope damaged their crops, fences or machinery between July 1, 1988, and June 1 of this year.

On Thursday, Williams announced the claims process that will be used. Within hours, he received the first claims by telephone, and by Friday afternoon, Mays delivered his claim, complete with his estimates, a sworn statement by a neighbor backing him up and other supporting documents.

Mays, who farms 6 miles east of Howe, said thousands of head of antelope have poured onto his property in recent winters, from the nearby Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and desert land. Mays said the antelope destroyed hay and barley, battered and damaged fences and consumed forage he planned for 211 head of cattle.

Mays' claim asked for $88,100 for the loss of 1.03 tons of hay per acre from 806.6 acres, at $100 per ton; $18,868 from loss of barley on 367 acres at $5.05 per hundredweight; $3,600 for 2,800 pounds of alfalfa seed needed to repair range damage and $10,700 for the loss of 51 days worth of pasture for his cattle.

Mays also said about 4 1/2 miles of fence will have to be replaced at a cost of $3,222.

Even before the first claim, Williams said he was fielding calls from people apparently confused by the process.

"One man at Salmon asked whether, if he accepts state money for damage, he would have to open his land to hunters and fishermen," Williams said.

There's nothing in the statute that says that, so Williams said he told the Salmon man he would not have to open his lands.

Claims must be received by May 1 for 1988 damage. The deadline is June 1 for claims for 1989 damage. Williams said claims will be sent immediately to Fish and Game for verification by field conservation officers.

He said verification shouldn't take longer than a week or 10 days.

And Williams noted that it is a felony to submit a false claim.

The legislation states that 1988 damage will be given first claim on the $500,000. Yet to be decided is whether claims will be paid on a first-come, first-served basis, or pro rata with all valid claims getting at least some of the money.

That's to be decided by the Board of Examiners, which is made up of Gov. Cecil Andrus, Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa and Attorney General Jim Jones.

Aides said Andrus and Cenarrusa were leaning toward paying the claims on a proportionate basis. Jones said Thursday he hasn't considered the matter yet. Williams is handling the claims because he is secretary to the board.

Witnesses testifying during legislative hearings on the process said it could become very costly. In Colorado, which has a similar law, more than $7 million in claims have been submitted in recent years, witnesses said.

Rep. JoAn Wood, R-Nigby, who spearheaded the drive to compensate landowners, said ranchers in the Howe area alone suffered $210,000 damages.

EPA assurances don't satisfy Symms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Sen. Steve Symms says written assurances from the Environmental Protection Agency that the potato pesticide aldicarb poses no health risk are not enough.

A week ago, the EPA's top official in the Northwest Robie Russell assured Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus that the agency had no evidence that the chemical used in the commercial pesticide called Temik was a threat to public health. Russell said that would still be the case even if a preliminary EPA test report suggesting a possible health threat to children proved true.

On Friday, Symms got the same kind of written assure from Deputy EPA Director John Moore, but the Republican senator demanded more: from agency Director William Reilly.

"If his agency has given Temik a clean bill of health then he had better hold a press conference right now and yell it out loud and clear for everyone to hear," Symms declared.

Andrus named a friend of education

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus has received the "Friend of Education" award from the Idaho Education Association, as IEA President Peggy Park said he has "a lifetime of advocacy for public education."

"He started as an advocate of education" when he first ran for public office in 1960, Ms. Park said, "and he still is a advocate of education."

Andrus received the award Friday at the 96th IEA delegate assembly in Boise. Election of a new president to succeed Ms. Park, who has served two years, was on the agenda for Saturday.

Officials plan lottery preparations

BOISE (AP) — Officials of the Idaho lottery will make recommendations to the Lottery Commission at an April 18 meeting on contracts for printing tickets, supplying a management computer and security systems and advertising for the lottery.

Lottery officials on Friday received and opened proposals for two contracts critical to the start of the state lottery.

The Idaho lottery is expected to start late this summer, after the Lottery Commission adopts the necessary rules and regulations.

Sexual misconduct charges withheld

COTTONWOOD (AP) — No charges will be filed against a Cottonwood teacher accused of sexual misconduct with students, but Gerald R. Richardson has agreed to counseling and will make a public statement about the allegations against him next week.

Idaho County Prosecutor Greg Fitzmaurice made those announcements in a prepared statement Thursday, adding that Richardson and Cottonwood School District officials had taken "appropriate steps" to ensure the situation will not be repeated.

Fitzmaurice said he reviewed an investigative report from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare before deciding against filing charges against Richardson, who has taught at Cottonwood for about 14 years.

Rupert officials write TV show in protest

RUPERT — City officials have written to the USA Today television program, protesting a segment last week on some local residents' cancer concerns.

The letter, signed by Mayor Bill Whitton, describes as "irresponsible" the program's piece on "Cancer Ridge," an area northwest of the city where residents fear incidences of cancer may be the result of groundwater contaminated by the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The letter in part protests street scenes of Rupert and the city water tower as suggesting the city lies within "Cancer Ridge."

"Although the show reported that the incidence of cancer in the area in question is lower than the state average and the state average is lower than the national average incidence of cancer, the show left the impression that Rupert is an unsafe place to live," the letter says.

Repair work on bridge will restrict I-84, U.S. 93 traffic

SHOSHONE — Repairs to the damaged U.S. 93-Interstate 84 interchange bridge will restrict traffic on both highways beginning Monday, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

Southbound U.S. 93 vehicles will be detoured during daylight hours on the northbound lane, creating two-way traffic for approximately one mile, Bill Merritt, resident engineer, said.

The restriction will last six weeks. Westbound Interstate 84 traffic may also be detoured on the on- and off-ramps while beams are being removed and replaced.

The structure was damaged in January when a truck with an over-height load hit the bridge. Workers will remove half of the damaged bridge span in the westbound lane and replace the concrete beams, deck and curb.

Rogerson Hotel furnishings available for immediate sale

TWIN FALLS — The dishes, towels, sheets, furniture, lamps, glasses, mirrors and a whole lot more of the things that made the landmark Rogerson Hotel a home away from home for almost 80 years are up for sale.

Owner William H. Munger decided to hold a liquidation sale because the building was being vandalized repeatedly in the past three months, said his brother, Richard Munger, who is organizing the sale.

The hotel, at Second Street East and Main Avenue, has been closed to guests for several years.

"This hotel has been an institution in this town since 1910," Richard Munger said.

Many of the items are still in the packages. Additional goods will be on sale each day as more items are brought down from the rooms, he said.

Idaho First National Bank now calls itself West One

TWIN FALLS — West One Bank officially became the new name of Idaho First National Bank today.

A reception is planned for area employees this morning at the Westin Plaza, where the bank's new logo and graphics will be introduced. The new colors are dark blue with a red accent.

"Nothing has changed but our name," said Bill Babcock, vice president and manager of the Twin Falls branch. "Customers can use their existing checks, check protection and bank cards."

The institution has operated in Idaho for 122 years.

The bank's holding company, Moore Financial Group, will also change its name on April 21 to West One Bancorp, pending shareholder approval.

Kraft's closure in Pocatello won't affect Rupert plant

RUPERT — The closure of Kraft Foods' Pocatello plant will not affect its Rupert operation, according to a company official.

"Even though they're in the same state, there will not be any effect," said Kathy Knuth, Kraft spokeswoman. The Rupert plant makes cheese and the Pocatello plant cuts and wraps cheese, but the Rupert plant doesn't supply Pocatello, she said.

Kraft announced Thursday it will phase out its Pocatello plant, eliminating 416 jobs. Kraft employs 96 in Rupert, Knuth said.

Magic Valley jobless rate takes dive

By The Times-News and the Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped dramatically in March to 5.3 percent.

A year ago the rate stood at 6.3 percent, so the drop makes the state's present economic health look "quite good," said Lon McDonald, labor analyst for the state Job Service in Twin Falls.

Although the unemployment rate dropped 0.9 percent from 6.2 percent a month earlier, that decrease likely had less to do with economic improvements than with seasonal factors. Unemployment claims in February were unusually high because of the cold weather, McDonald said.

"In March claims dropped by a third," he said.

"Placement activities rose significantly."

But this spring has also seen businesses hiring earlier as an upbeat mood about the economy and the prospects for a good agriculture season spreads. Only agricultural hiring has lagged because of an unusually wet March, McDonald said.

In March, 34,677 people were employed in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties. That's 351 fewer people unemployed than last year and 1,646 more working.

The state totals showed the March seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropping to 5.5 percent, the Department of Employment reported Friday.

"Employment activity in Idaho remains positive, unemployment rates have remained below last year and hiring is reported up in most industries and areas," department analysts said.

To an extent, the Idaho situation mirrored the nation's. The nation's unemployment rate fell to a 16-year low of 5.6 percent last month as the economy cooled. Only 180,000 new non-farm jobs were created across the country, the lowest monthly total since last August.

The decline in the Idaho jobless rate marked the 23rd straight month that current unemployment rates have run below year-earlier levels, fueling the optimism of government economists that the state has a solid financial future.

Friday's figures, however, did not reflect the looming impact of the announcement that Kraft Foods will close its Pocatello bulk cheese plant, where some 480 workers have been employed. That shutdown will occur in phases over the next year.

Still, the Idaho employment picture as winter ended was relatively bright. Although the total labor force and the number of Idahoans with work slipped back from February's record levels to break an eight-month string of advances, the total number of workers at the job was also down by 1,600 from February to stand at 27,000.

Regionally, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rates for March, February and March 1988 were:

- Panhandle, 7.9 percent, 7.5 percent, 8.7 percent.
- Lewiston area, 5 percent, 4.9 percent, 6 percent.
- Canyon County, 6.2 percent, 6.2 percent, 6.2 percent.
- Ada County, 3.5 percent, 3.7 percent, 4.2 percent.
- Pocatello area, 5.5 percent, 6 percent, 7 percent.
- Idaho Falls area, 4.7 percent, 5 percent, 5.4 percent.

Manager 'out of control,' Erkins says

By KRISTAN WATKINS
Times-News correspondent

HAILLEY — On his third consecutive day of testimony, Robert Erkins told jurors that by September 1985 a mushroom farm he helped start was in "severe financial straits" with a general manager who was out of control.

Erkins testified that throughout 1985 he and Kamal Hyder, named in January that year by the board of directors as general manager, disagreed on a number of policies and decisions.

The testimony came after a lengthy discourse on the farm's condition in 1985 during which Idaho First National Bank attorney Walt Bithell attempted to show the farm was mismanaged.

Idaho First is suing Bliss Valley Foods, claiming it defaulted on loan payments. Robert Erkins and Thomas Walker Jr., who began the farm, countersued, claiming the bank forced the operation into default.

Erkins said one disagreement was over the validity of a California consultation that grew mushrooms and wrote a letter to Walker critical of the farm's operations.

Erkins said the consultant based his observations on his experience with growing button mushrooms, not the oyster mushrooms growing at Bliss Valley. "I concluded that he did not know what he was talking about," Erkins said.

Using copies of correspondence between Hyder and Erkins, Bithell showed the jury a copy of a letter written to Erkins from Hyder stating, "Bliss Valley Foods is under severe financial burden, and compounding on a daily basis."

Bithell asked Erkins, "Given the situation now, that you were in severe financial straits and your general manager was out of control, did you go to your shareholders?" Erkins said no, he did not.

Despite Erkins' reservations about Hyder, that summer while Erkins was away, the farm's board of directors reorganized the operation and named Hyder president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board.

Erkins said he had no knowledge of this until he returned. He testified earlier this week the bank would not name him general manager.

Bithell showed more correspondence between Erkins and Hyder from summer 1985 and that November stating the farm was having problems, and that the growing conditions were not ideal.

Bithell asked Erkins, "What did you think of the problems he described to you?" Erkins replied, "I thought Mr. Hyder didn't have the slightest comprehension of what we were trying to achieve."

Hyder left the operation in January 1986, Erkins said.

The documents exhibited during Friday's testimony are the first in a staggering amount of paperwork in a review in this trial. More than 1,000 exhibits are listed so far to be submitted as evidence.

Jack Flaherty plants some of the nearly 1,000 trees of caramelized cream puffs on the mountain.

Schussing chefs to test their mettle

By BARBARA NEUWERT
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — What do you do when the best ski racing chefs from across the country converge on Sun Valley to compete for top prize? Treat them to a spectacular pastry replica of Bald Mountain, of course.

It sounds easy. Just build a six-foot mound of fluff and move it mid-way up the snow-covered slopes of the real thing. No problem.

Easy, however, is not a word Sun Valley Co. pastry chef Jack Flaherty says comes to mind. "We all lost some sleep over it — it's an ambitious project," Flaherty said.

The replica will be the icing on the cake to a four-day fundraiser in which chefs will ski in traditional uniform for the honor of fastest chef on ski. The race is the national championship of the Grand Mariner Chefs Ski Race tour, a fund-raiser for hunger programs across the country.

The six-foot-high pastry mountain is as much a work of art as it is a food delicacy. The sculpture is a modification of a croque-bouche pastry, a French term meaning "eaten with the mouth" or "melt in the mouth."

The whole process, including planning and building the frame of wood and wire, took about three weeks, the efforts of seven pastry chefs and the talented hand of Flaherty.

Once the frame was complete, an estimated 150 pounds of Flaherty's own white royal icing were spread over the top, giving an excellent "snow" base for the sculpture.

Once the icing was in place and the ski lifts and runs cut in, Flaherty began planting nearly 1,000 trees of caramelized cream puffs filled with a delicious Grand Mariner pastry cream. Powdered sugar snow was sprinkled over the tops at the last minute.

The new quad ski lifts are small Grand Mariner bottles with SUN VALLEY — Spectators can watch 40 top California chefs representing restaurants from Maine to California race today for the title of Fastest Chef in America.

The event will raise funds for regional organizations fighting hunger across the country, with proceeds matched by the sponsoring Grand Mariner Foundation, a philanthropic organization founded by Michel Roux, the liquorier U.S. importer. More than $100,000 has been raised this year.

Today's finals will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Lower Warm Springs. The pastry replica of Bald Mountain will be on display. There is no charge.

chocolate crossbars to hold the lift cable. Lift shacks and the warming hut are solid chocolate with sliced almond roofs. The race course is carved out of the frosting and has slalom gates and S&R racers complete with tiny chef's hats.

The total weight of the sculpture is about 300 pounds, Flaherty says. He's confident the frame is strong enough but he's less secure about moving the replica up the Warm Springs run on Bald Mountain.

Early today Flaherty was scheduled to supervise moving the sculpture first to the back of a truck and onto a trailer attached to a Snow Cat. The Cat will climb up the ski slopes to the finish gate for the race. Flaherty and his assistants are taking plenty of extra icing to "touch-up" if necessary.

The cream puff trees, which line the bottom of the slopes will be eaten by the chef's racers, but anyone skiing Bald Saturday

Society aims to complete work before July 1990

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome County Historical Society hopes to put up a fence soon where its agricultural museum will be built and already has one of the displays constructed. All in anticipation of completing the $100,000-plus project by July 1990 for the state's 100th birthday.

The society wants to build the Idaho Farm History Agricultural Museum, dedicating to the role agriculture plays in the Magic Valley.

President Norene Andrus said the society has already raised funds for the project but would not say how much. She did say she feels "very secure" the museum will be built in time for the Centennial.

Plans are to fund the museum through donations, corporate grants and possibly a grant from the Idaho Centennial Committee, Andrus said. Society members will travel to Boise April 20 to present the plan to the committee, she said. The Farm Bureau already has pledged a donation, she said.

The group currently is waiting for dry ground to put up a fence at the 99-acre site at the intersection of Interstate 84 and Highway 93. The society has a sign ready to mark the site.

As soon as we secure the site and stake off where everything will be, we want to have an open day out there for the public with pioneer farmers standing by some of the old-time machinery we have been given," Andrus said.

The first museum display has already been constructed at the county historical museum. "It's a display conveying the story of irrigation through pictures and maps," Andrus said.

Other plans for the museum include a replica of a typical Cary Act farm as it progressed to modern machinery over the years.

Chamber, CSI to host conference on trade

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Just because a business is small and in the Magic Valley need not keep it out of the international trade arena.

Owners of small Idaho businesses selling products overseas, an international marketer and others will teach business owners how to break into the export business at a statewide conference in Twin Falls next month.

"When companies say they are too small to get involved, we say that's not true," said Stephen Thompson, an international trade specialist for the U.S. Department of Commerce, at a Friday press conference.

Take Truck Tracks of Rexburg, Essentially a one-man, one-product company, it sells rubber covering for tandem wheels that allows trucks to cross rough terrain. Its customers include the Israeli and Greek armies.

"From our perspective, our greatest impact is on small to medium firms," Thompson said. "With a company like Truck Tracks, a small seed company or a small machine manufacturer, they need counseling and advice to get into the market."

The conference, called Internationalizing Idaho, should give business owners confidence that overseas marketing is within their reach and take a small step toward shrinking the trade deficit, Thompson said.

The Fortune 400 companies are active, but the small and medium companies need to pick up the slack," he said.

Hagadone to control gondola, ski hill

KELLOGG (AP) — Promising a major expansion in tourism activity, Panhandle businessman Duane Hagadone announced Friday he had reached agreement with city officials to take control of Kellogg's Silverhorn ski area and new gondola.

"This is another great day in the continuing expansion of our organization," Hagadone said during the formal announcement of the deal at Kellogg City Hall.

Under the agreement, Hagadone Hospitality Co. of Coeur d'Alene, will assume all operational control of the gondola and ski hill once the gondola is completed. Hagadone also will be responsible for promoting the ski area.

A marketing study to come up with a new name and logo for the ski area and gondola, Hagadone said, but the anticipated influx of tourists once the project is completed will require the company to improve other facilities if it wants to capitalize on it.

"We can get the people here, but we can't force them to stay," Hagadone said. "If there's nothing to do, they aren't going to stay."

The American subsidiary of Von Roll Transport of Switzerland will remain responsible for the actual gondola construction and ski basin improvements.

The $12 million project will connect the ski area's base with downtown Kellogg on a three-mile aerial tram, the longest such ride in North America. Groundbreaking is set for April 20.

"It is scheduled to be operational in time for the 1990-1991 ski season. Silverhorn ski area will be closed next winter while the gondola is constructed.

Hagadone will not be paid for the work, and the city will remain responsible for expenses and ski area payroll.

"The consideration for this agreement is in the expected increase in economic well-being of the region," the document said.

The three-year contract calls for Hagadone to prepare annual budgets for the ski area and gondola subject to city approval and pre-approval of the city on the hill, oversee and promote the facility and control employees there.

Gondola construction is being financed by a $6 million federal grant and a matching amount of money loaned to the project by Von Roll. Kellogg taxpayers are liable for the interest on $2 million of Von Roll's construction loan.

The announcement ended a month of speculation that Hagadone would attempt to merge the marketing aspects of his Coeur d'Alene Resort with promotion of the ski area to boost wintertime tourist use of the hotel.

Kellogg had only about $80,000 to manage and market the gondola and ski resort in its budget. City leaders said that would not be enough to properly promote the facility.

The gondola's base station will be about 40 minutes from Kellogg's resort over the newly reconstructed portion of July Pass, placing it much closer to the hotel in terms of travel time than Schweitzer ski area in Sandpoint.

Kellogg's pursuit of the gondola to replace lost smelter jobs with a tourist economy took nearly four years. Several federal agencies denied the city loans of grants to build the project before Congress appropriated the funds in 1987.

The project has hit one recent snag. Residents of the tiny town of Wardner, over which the gondola must pass, are protesting that the gondola is a violation of their airspace.

Kellogg has offered to purchase private properties beneath the gondola's route but will seek condemnation proceedings against those who refuse to sell.

Potato Growers reject contract proposed by J.R. Simplot Co.

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Potato Growers of Idaho, the association which represents most Idaho potato growers, says members have voted to reject a contract offer from the J.R. Simplot Co. for next season.

Association spokesmen said the offer, averaging $3.96 per hundredweight, is about 10 cents per hundredweight better than last year but lower than the average contract price from 15 years ago.

"Idaho growers are looking for an increase in the contract price this year to offset rising costs of potato production in the state," the association said Thursday, in a statement.

The contract offer from Simplot was for 1989 pre-season processed potato contracts. PGI growers who contract with Simplot unanimously rejected what was termed a final contract offer in a ballot earlier this week, the association said. Non-PGI members attending the session also rejected the Simplot offer in a separate ballot.

The Simplot final offer included ceilings on specific gravity and bruise-free incentives and penalties for high sugar content, specific gravity and dark ends. The association says these provisions pose further problems for growers.

PGI said several weeks ago, its members rejected a final contract offer from Universal Frozen Foods, Twin Falls. That offer represented a 2.5 percent increase over the previous year based on five-year bargaining averages. The Simplot offer was a 2.85 percent increase.

PGI said it is continuing negotiations with other potato processors in Idaho.

Potato Growers of Idaho is a non-profit association representing most growers in the nation's leading potato-producing state. The 1988 crop of 10 billion pounds was valued at more than $450 million.

PGI negotiates pre-season contracts for processed potatoes with processors. PGI also provides marketing services for potato growers.

Because of last year's drought in other major producing states, Idaho's 1988 crop has been bringing extremely high prices on the open market.

Prime makers have been selling for up to $27 per hundred pounds and even No. 2 spuds have been going for up to $8 per hundred pounds.

UI students want to vote on fee hike

MOSCOW (AP) — Tina Kagi is demanding that University of Idaho students vote on whether to ask for an increase in their student fees.

The UI student body president and several other student leaders are working to gather enough signatures to put the measure on the student election ballot next Wednesday, despite a majority of student senators rejecting the idea this week.

"We need 800-some signatures by April 11," Ms. Kagi said Thursday.

The main argument by the student leaders who opposed putting the question of a fee increase on the ballot was the lack of time to properly inform students.

"I argued against that as strongly as I could," Ms. Kagi said. "I think the information is and has been available to the students who are interested. I think that's a very weak argument."

The Idaho Board of Education shut the door on any statewide student fee increase last month despite pleas from the four institution presidents to leave that option open. Board members said the request came as a surprise and did not give students enough time to comment.

MOUNTAIN HOME — Idaho Timber Corp. will not rebuild its Mountain Home sawmill destroyed by a Jan. 2 fire, company officials said.

Meanwhile, Elmore County authorities are investigating the fire as arson.

Larry Williams, president of the Boise-based wood products company, said the U.S. Forest Service estimates that fewer than 10 million board feet of timber will be available for logging in nearby forests during the next several years, which is not enough to justify rebuilding the sawmill.

The fire, which gutted the main sawmill and idled 41 workers, caused an estimated $2 million in damage. The company has posted a $2,000 reward for information that will help them determine the cause of the fire.

will get a chance to see the sculpture.

The idea for the replica came from Michel Roux, the importer of Grand Marnier liqueur to the United States. Last year, when the finals of the Grand Marnier Chefs Ski Race were at Snowmass, Colo., an eight-foot sculpture was created, qualifying for a spot in the Guinness Book of World Records.

While race organizers are not attempting to achieve another record with the Bald Mountain replica, Roux did want something "dramatic to end the 1989 chefs racing season," said spokeswoman Maria Light. "The sculpture was an adventurous 'a fun, big, dramatic, adventuresome thing' to finish the season.

Study disputes psychiatrists linking religion to problems

NEW YORK (AP) — Psychiatrists rarely examine their patients' religion objectively, tending to assume it only induces problems, a new study says. But it finds the negative assumptions don't hold up when tested. Patients with major depression and anxiety disorders contained the lowest percentage of believers in God, the study says. "At the very least, we can say that depression is not correlated with greater religiousness." The researchers urge more enlightened studies in this area, citing evidence of the importance of religion to most people, and pointing out that psychiatry generally has not considered the religious factor. "That aspect has been largely ignored," says psychiatrist Jerome Krull of the University of Minnesota. "But things are beginning to change, but at a slow degree," says Lyda C. Krohn, an associate psychiatrist, William Sheehan, recently completed a study pointing up the relative disregard of religion by mental health specialists compared to patients and people generally. "We've been overlooking an impor-

Bomb suspects withdraw pleas

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The state bombing trial of two white supremacists is scheduled to begin Monday after the pair, without guilty pleas during a sentencing hearing.

First District Judge James Judd set a hearing for today to consider the defendants' motions to change their pleas to innocent.

The trial of David R. Dorr and Edward Wade Hawley is set for Monday at Boise. Both are charged in connection with a series of bombings in Coeur d'Alene in 1986.

Dorr, 38, and Hawley, 25, withdrew guilty pleas to three counts each of exploding a building in First District Court on Thursday after learning they might not get credit for time already served.

Judd had sentenced Dorr to a five-year sentence, to run concurrently with a similar federal conviction, but warned him that Idaho law may not allow credit for the 21 years he already has already spent in jail.

After a lengthy consultation, Dorr's attorney, Chuck Lempsis of Post Falls, told Judd his client wanted to withdraw his "Alford" plea and proceed with trial. Under an Alford plea, a defendant does not admit guilt, but concedes the state has enough evidence to get a conviction.

Under the agreement with state prosecutors, Dorr and Hawley each would plead guilty to the bombings in exchange for five-year sentences, to run concurrently with their federal sentences.

Both men pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in October to federal charges including counterfeiting, racketeering, bombings and illegal possession of automatic weapons.

Dorr received a 20-year prison sentence and Hawley was sentenced for eight years.

Federal and state prosecutors alleged Dorr and Hawley and their wives participated in a series of crimes in August and September 1986 aimed at advancing their white supremacist group, known as Bruder Schweigen Strike Force II, or Order

II. The home of a local civil rights activist was bombed, as was the Coeur d'Alene Federal Building and a local store. Another bomb was found unexploded. Prosecutors alleged the bombings were part of an aborted plan to rob a bank and a National Guard armory.

The Order II was an offshoot of the militant, right-wing group The Order, which got its start at the Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations) at Hayden Lake.

A federal grand jury in Seattle indicted 23 people in 1985 on racketeering charges stemming from operations of The Order. The 10 who stood trial were all charged with racketeering and conspiracy to racketeer.

Individual defendants also faced additional counts in the 21-count indictment, charged with crimes ranging from armed-car holdups and transporting stolen money, to weapons possession and harboring a fugitive.

Kraft got started in Pocatello in 1924

POCATELLO (AP) — Kraft Foods, which announced Thursday it is closing its Pocatello plant, eliminating 480 full and part-time jobs, has been a fixture in the community since 1924.

The company announced Thursday afternoon it will start phasing out operations at its 500,000 square-foot Pocatello facilities, with final shutdown scheduled in 12 months.

Kraft operations in Idaho started in the early 1920s when J.L. Kraft, a wealthy Chicago cheese tycoon, promised Idaho dairy farmers he would buy all the milk they could produce.

Kraft made the promise when he made a trip to Idaho at the invitation of the state's governor, looking for development capital.

In the 1920s, Idaho was heavily agrarian with emphasis on alfalfa and potatoes, but its farm economy was severely depressed.

Kraft recognized that alfalfa and dairy cattle would make for a good mix of milk. A year later, his cheese plants started springing up throughout Idaho, especially the state's southeastern portion. They were located in Arco, Malta, Rockland, Carey, Rupert, Moreland, Blackfoot, Ririe and Aberdeen.

Kraft reached peak employment at Pocatello in 1981 at 600 workers. It still has operations at Rupert, Blackfoot and Carey and company spokesmen declined comment on the impact of the Pocatello shutdown on the other facilities.

A 1984 report showed Kraft spent $75 million in Idaho on milk, wages and salaries, taxes and Public Utilities Commission fees.

Protesters question costs

BOISE (AP) — Eight Boise abortion protesters have filed appeals seeking to overturn their trespassing convictions and an order to pay police and prosecution costs.

Defense attorney John Keenan said Thursday that Ady County Magistrate Thomas Morden went too far by ordering each defendant to pay $177.25 cents to cover costs usually imposed only when a case is frivolous, with no opportunity for acquittal.

Judge Morden's decisions were clearly wrong, according to the law, Keenan said. "That's really got me fired up." The protesters, affiliated with Operation Rescue, also were fined up to $226.50 and received jail terms of up to 10 days, all refused probation, which would have suspended some of their sentences.

What's what

Healthy gossip

Gossips tend to be the healthiest people emotionally. Those who don't make a full-time job of it. So says a family doctor. Gossip is a dandy way of "talking it out," she says. A plaque on her desk reads: "Tell your sister."

Could you get by on a breakfast of one berry? How about a watermelon? That's a berry.

In a Portuguese bullfight, performers zig-zag into a bull's neck, inflicting pain. As you've read, they then turn six cows into the arena to calm him down completely. Our Love and War man says this show a normal bull is less ferocious than a normal man. Sir, could six females calm you down completely after teasers stick numerous darts in your neck? Not likely.

GLASS PIBER

A glass marble less than an inch in diameter can be drawn into a fiber more than 50 miles long.

A serious horse player is not a social follow. He's a loner. So says a student of the track. Maybe you only see him in crowds. But mostly, in his dream world of tin sheets and calculations, he is solitary, largely unaware of the people around him. Ask the gambler in your family, if any, whether this sounds true.

One out of every 1,000 couples, married 40 years, gets divorced

Sir, if you're 65, note this: More than 300 U.S. truck manufacturing businesses had already started up and shut down even before you were born.

MARRIAGE

China's tradition permits marriage between a son and daughter of two sisters, but not between a son and daughter of two brothers.

Just by looking at a boy baby the day he's born, you can tell whether he'll start to grow old early or stay young man. Or at least, some doctors say they can tell. Inherited boldness pattern is evident then, they say.

Somebody asked Albert Einstein what was the most difficult thing of all to understand, and he said income tax. Those who knew him contend he wasn't kidding.

Q. Where in the Bible does it say, "God helps those who help themselves?" A. It doesn't. One Almerdon Sidney first came up with that one.

North admits lying; says he was a 'pawn'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North conceded Friday he lied to congressmen who came to the White House to question him, but he said he didn't think it was unlawful because the things he was hiding, "I was told, could not, should not be revealed."

"I felt like a pawn in a chess game being played by giants," he testified.

The courtroom as his criminal trial was packed and long lines formed in the hallway outside as the former National Security Council aide spent his second day in the witness chair, undergoing gentle examination by his own lawyer, Brendan Sullivan.

At the White House, meanwhile, President Bush, citing concern about "endangering the trial," refused to answer questions about his own role in aiding the Contras, as disclosed in a lengthy "admission of facts" introduced by North's lawyers on Thursday.

The court statement, agreed to by both the government and North's lawyers, said Bush got several North memoranda regarding the secret operation to aid the Contras and also flew to Honduras to tell that nation's president of expedited U.S. aid which was aimed at inciting Honduras to help the Contras as well.

In court Friday, the jury was read a "Dear Ol'ie" note that Bush, then vice president, sent North at Thanksgiving in November 1985.

"One of the many things I have to be thankful for is the way in which you have performed under fire in tough situations," said the note, written on the back of a picture. "Your dedication to the hostage issue and Central America gives me cause for great pride."

Trial suggests more Reagan involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Reagan and top officials of his administration were more deeply involved than previously disclosed in efforts to encourage other countries to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels, new trial evidence shows.

A statement of facts introduced in Oliver L. North's trial on Thursday — in a document agreed to by the government — indicated Reagan, former Secretary of State George Shultz and former Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger played key roles in providing incentives for such aid.

The three-member Tower Commission, appointed by Reagan to investigate the Iran-Contra affair, said in its Feb. 26, 1987, report that it had found "no evidence to suggest that the president was aware of North's activities in the 1984-86 period on behalf of the rebels opposing the Nicaraguan government."

Direct government assistance by the United States was prohibited by law at the time.

The statement of facts says that in mid-August 1984, one of North's superiors, then-Deputy National Security Adviser John Poindexter, discussed with Reagan and others a proposal ascribed to Shultz that would allow Congress to "wink" at lethal support for the resistance.

Under the plan, the document says, the United States "would provide military aid to El Salvador, which in turn would provide lethal aid to the resistance." Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, who was a member of the Senate's Iran-Contra committee, said Thursday that such an arrangement would be "clearly inappropriate, possibly illegal."

Shultz testified that in seeking aid for the Contras, "it seemed to me not a particularly good idea to go to countries with which we had a big military or economic assistance relationship."

U.S. science education called uncompetitive

SEATTLE (AP) — American science education is becoming uncompetitive and uncompetitive, but the new president of the National Science Teachers Association says its overhaul represents a new frontier that Americans will conquer.

"It has always been acceptable to say, 'I never really understood science,' and until we change that attitude and expect that everyone will learn science, we won't move forward," said Hans Andersen, professor of science and environmental education at Indiana University at Bloomington.

"In spite of lots of poor science teachers, we have a lot of teachers who are really making a significant difference with students.... This is a time for great optimism, and I believe that this is a wave that is not going to do anything but get larger."

Andersen made his comments in an interview Thursday at the association's 37th annual conference. As many as 11,000 people are attending the Seattle gathering, which runs through Sunday.

"There's a good chance that turning around science education is the next great frontier for this country.... Throughout our history, Americans have risen up to conquer frontiers, and we can do it again, and will," Andersen said. Only 7 percent of students who graduate from American high schools have enough science to continue in a college program.

Wright aide claims bring quick denial

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright asked a former aide to help him put out "by signs" sworn statements that the aide volunteered to work on Wright's book and had done so after working hours, according to testimony to the ethics committee studying the speaker's finances.

The aide's account, disputed Friday by a Wright spokesman, is the latest revelation to emerge from a series of alleged improprieties by Wright that has tarnished his reputation and threatened his leadership of the chamber.

Sources familiar with the deposition of the former aide, Matthew Cosolotto, said he told the committee that Wright also asked aides, at a morning staff meeting early in 1985, to help think of ways to sell the book, "Reflections of a Public Man."

Mark Johnson, Wright's spokesman, dismissed Cosolotto's account as that of a disgruntled former employee.

The committee, which began investigating Wright last June, has narrowed its focus to charges that Wright used bulk sales of the book to increase income from speaking and writing fees, and charges that he improperly accepted gifts from a Fort Worth business partner who had an interest in legislation before Congress, according to sources familiar with the probe.

The committee wrapped up its second week of deliberations Friday and expected to reach some conclusions in the next few days. But there were indications the panel's work might be far from over.

Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said the panel was seeking to extend the contract of its special outside investigator, Chicago attorney Richard Phelan; to July 1. That would allow the panel, should it decide to seek disciplinary action against Wright, to retain its counsel during the period the rules allow for defense motions and committee action on them.

But both Dixon and the panel's senior Republican, Rep. John T. Myers of Indiana, cautioned reporters "don't read anything into" the extension of the contract.

Sikhs charged in Gandhi's slaying

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government Friday charged five Sikhs with conspiracy in the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1984, which it said was part of a plot to establish a separate Sikh nation.

One defendant, Rattan Singh, was killed by rival Sikh militants in 1985, the government said. The others are Simranjeet Singh Mann, a former senior police officer; Atinder Pal Singh, a well-known militant; and college lecturers Dalip Singh and Jagmohan Singh Tony.

All five are accused of waging war against the state, sedition, criminal conspiracy, murder and attempted murder. The charges carry the death penalty.

Chinese dissident on plane to U.S.

BEIJING (AP) — A Chinese dissident was put on a plane out of the country and headed for the United States on Friday after Hong Kong officials refused to let him enter the colony, the dissident's wife said.

Jonny Holdaway, a British citizen, said her husband, Chen Jun, boarded a Singapore Airlines jet for San Francisco when Hong Kong officials refused to let him out of the Hong Kong airport transit area.

Palestinians riot outside mosque

JERUSALEM (AP) — Thousands of Palestinians rioted and stoned police Friday outside Al Aqsa Mosque after midday prayers on the first day of Ramadan, the Muslim holy month.

Police responded with rubber bullets and tear gas. At least five policemen, three Palestinians and several journalists were hurt.

The hour-long battle on Temple Mount was the worst violence in a year at the third holiest site of Islam. Clashes of tear gas rose from the hallowed Jerusalem's Old City dominated by the Al Aqsa and Dome of the Rock mosques.

At least 37 Palestinians were arrested. Police commander Yusef Yehudai said most were from the West Bank and Arab east Jerusalem.

S. Africa vows to crush Namibia guerrilla forces

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — South Africa said Friday it will deploy as many troops as needed to crush an incursion by black nationalist guerrillas, further jeopardizing a U.N. independence plan.

Louis Pienaar, the South African-installed administrator of Namibia, said it may not hold independence elections the United Nations scheduled for November.

There now is a "de facto suspension" of the United Nations plan, which also calls for combatants to be confined, said Pienaar.

"It has become impossible to contemplate such elections under the prevailing circumstances," he said.

Pik Botha, South Africa's foreign minister, said he has informed U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar of the decision to activate an unspecified number of additional soldiers.

A major reason, Botha said, is that some guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization are approaching areas where white farmers live.

The South African army said it ordered out its warplanes for the first time, and reported SWAPO has brought its first tanks across the border from Angola. Spokesman Col. Japie Dreyer said four jet fighters fired on SWAPO positions Thursday.

killing 17 guerrillas.

Botha flew into Windhoek for emergency talks Saturday with officials from the United Nations, Cuba and Angola. Senior U.S. and Soviet diplomats will observe.

The fiercest fighting seen in the 23-year confrontation raged across northern Namibia on Friday, a week after a U.N.-supervised truce was to end the war.

At least 281 SWAPO guerrillas and 28 security force members have been killed since Saturday, South African police officials said.

Haiti unrest continues

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Rebel soldiers demanding the ouster of Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril seized control of a radio station Friday, and youths supporting them built barricades of burning tires along a main street.

The rebel soldiers in a statement on Radio Soleil accused Avril of "war crimes."

The U.S. ambassador, meanwhile, offered Washington's support for Avril's 6-month-old government, which foiled a coup attempt Sunday but has been unable to quell the mutiny.

Rebels rode through the capital in jeeps, pickup trucks and motorbikes, shooting in the air and warning people to go home, witnesses said. Youths set fire to tires along the five-mile route of Delmas Avenue, a main artery in the capital, and then burned them.

Stores, schools and offices in the capital were closed under a state of emergency.

U.S. Ambassador Brunson McKinley met with Avril at the National Palace in the third day of the standoff.

Bruins sweep Jerome at track meet

By LARRY HOVEY
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the first time in awhile, Twin Falls High School swept both ends of a track meet Friday afternoon.

The Bruins, who've been struggling to beat people in the boys' division, had missed the first two outings this spring because of the Jerome girls. This time, Twin Falls was able to outscore the distaff Tigers.

"It's nice to see our runners coming off spring break in good condition and improving," said Bruin coach Duane Stands. "We've fallen a little short the last couple of times but we didn't lack desire. All our athletes showed that today."

The girls ended the short undefeated boast of the Jerome girls 147-113. They were followed by Mountain Home at 83, Buhl 77, Capital 67 and Burley 32.

In the boys division, the Bruins had 197 points, followed by Jerome at 109, Mountain Home 97, Capital 87, Burley 46 and Buhl 18.

Stands said he was pleased with the overall depth of his girls, offsetting Jerome's awesome point production in the distances. With Barbie Lloyd winning the 3,200 meters and the 800 meters, Jerome took double points out of the half and mile and four places in the two-mile.

But the Bruins had a big point scorer in junior Christy Mueller who had three seconds and won the triple jump.

"She is going to help us like that in practically every meet this year," Stands predicted. "And then we had girls like Suzie Strubert who came up with a third in the 1600 and Robin McLina who was second in the 3200 and 1600 and helped to split of Jerome's points there."

Switching to the boys, Stands noted "I think that $2.9 (second-place) today by (senior Ron) Marsh in the 400 today in this wind proved that he's someone the rest of the state is going to have to reckon with. And we were pleased with our hurdlers (junior Ryan Bailey and Lisa Pockoc. But really, just about everyone performed well today, better than they did last time. They seem to have the attitude and enthusiasm that indicates they will get better every week."

Jerome girls' coach Skip Andrew was philosophical about the first setback, noting overall we're not disappointed with our showing considering the number of people we don't have today' due to injury.

The Jerome coach said senior speedster John Gouvier, a two-time state sprint champion, still is nursing a high hamstring muscle pull and probably will hold out of sprinting competition for at least one more week.

Twin Falls, Buhl, Jerome and Burley will take part in the Magic Valley Classic next Thursday and Friday in Jerome.

$10 million contract shoots Moon to the top

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Quarterback Warren Moon signed a five-year, $10 million contract Friday with the Houston Oilers that he said will make him the highest-paid player in the NFL.

After the contract signing was delayed for about four hours, Moon and agent Leigh Steinberg emerged from a meeting with Oilers general manager Mike Holovak to announce that the contract had been signed. "I was the highest-paid player in Canada, and I was the highest-paid when I came here and I guess now, I'm the highest-paid player again," Moon said.

Steinberg said Moon will receive a $1 million signing bonus and a $500,000 salary in 1989. Moon will receive a $1.5 million salary in 1990, 1991 and 1992 and $4 million in 1993.

The entire contract is guaranteed and there is no deferred money involved, Steinberg said.

Denver's John Elway, who earns $2.1 million a year, is currently the highest-paid NFL player, but some of the money is deferred. Asked if Moon was the highest-paid NFL player, Steinberg replied, "Yes."

Moon said the signing was delayed to give all parties a chance to read through the complicated document.

"I proved I could play in Canada and I've proved myself in this league. Now I want to complete my goal by taking this team to a Super Bowl," Moon said. "My greatest opportunity for success is with the Houston Oilers."

Moon, 32, completed a contract that paid him $5.5 million over the past five years at the end of last season. He came to the Oilers in 1984 after a career in the Canadian Football League.

Trevino, Nick Faldo share Masters lead

By MAL FLORENCE
 Los Angeles Times

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The wind howled, the scores soared and Lee Trevino is still in the hunt to win the Masters, the only major championship to have eluded him.

Trevino, who shot a 67 Thursday for the first-round lead, faltered to a 74 Friday but still held a share of the lead with Britain's Nick Faldo.

Faldo, who was paired with Trevino, had a four-stroke lead over the 48-year-old veteran after 10 holes.

But Faldo then bogeyed the 11th, 16th and 17th holes, and Trevino put a birdie at No. 12 and then maintained a par pace.

It rained during the night, but the Augusta National course was playable because a persistent, cold wind of about 20 mph dried the greens somewhat.

The wind was such a factor that only seven players are under par after 36 holes. Trevino and Faldo, who shot a 73, lead the way.

They are followed by Ken Green, Mike Reid, Seve Ballesteros, Ben Crenshaw and Scott Hoch, all at 143.

Green had the low round of the day, a 69. In fact, he was the only player who shot lower than 71.

The wind was blowing pretty good, but the rain helped a lot to soften up the greens," Trevino said. "It didn't dry them out completely. I was just trying to figure out which way the wind was blowing. I knew it was going to be a tough day. I figured that par would be about 75, and if I shot a 75, or 76, I'd be OK."

The closest Trevino has come to winning the Masters, a tournament that has frustrated him for 20 years, was a share of the lead in 1978 after 36 holes.

CSI run-rules Ricks College at Eagle Invite

By STEVE CRUMP
 Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — That's Eagleball, said College of Southern Idaho coach Jim Walker with a smile Friday night.

The Eagles had just run-ruled Ricks College 11-0 in the second round of the CSI Invitational Baseball Tournament, winning their fourth game in a row and evening their season record at 11-11. It was the first time since March 16 that the Eagles have been at 500.

"I said earlier in the year that these guys might have to go through a real bad spell before they snapped back," said Walker. "That happens sometimes with young teams with some talent."

Earlier, Ricks hammered the Lewis-Clark State junior varsity 12-4 and Treasure Valley Community College whipped the Warrior JVs 9-4. That left CSI with a 3-0 record through the first two days of the tournament, while TVCC is 2-1, Ricks is 1-2 and the Warrior JVs are 0-3.

4-team field set for today's renewal of Andrus Memorial meet

The Times-News
HAZELTON — A small but strong field of four Class A-3 schools will vie for the Montey Andrus Memorial track and field championship at Valley High School Tuesday and Wednesday.

Field events and such preliminaries as may be required will begin at 10:30 a.m. with the running finals slated for 1 p.m.

But the difference in this meet will be the first showing of Kimberly, hence an unknown quantity.

I know Kimberly has some good individual girls. I don't know about their depth," said host Valley coach Marguerite Astor. "But DeLo is just so deep they would be very hard to outscore."

Valley defeated Declo in the boys division of a meet recently but the margin was rather close and there was one other ramification: The pole vault wasn't run in that competition and Declo traditionally is one of the better vaulting schools around because that was a specialty of Coach Mike Matthews.

Girls placing for Minico were Allison Andrew with first at 33-feet-1 inch in the triple jump, first at 5-2 in the high jump, and second in the 100-meter hurdles hurdles at 16.3.

Jana Culley was third in the 800 at 2:54 and the 1,600 at 7:00.2 while Kena Kovitz had 78.2 and 28.8 for TVCC and Ricks will square off in the opening game of today's final round at 11 a.m., while CSI will meet the Warriors at 2 p.m. The winners of the two early games will play for the championship at 5.

TVCC beat Ricks 10-1 in Thursday's opening round, while CSI defeated L-C State 5-1 on Thursday.

The Eagles hammered 10 hits off a pair of Ricks pitchers, ending the game in five innings under the tournament's eight-run rule.

Sophomore right-hander Rob Kuhla limited the Vikings to a single hit in five innings of work and struck out two.

"I made an adjustment today and got our guys putting their weight on the front foot, and it seemed to help," said Walker. "We weren't swinging at bad pitches like we have been, but the second guy (Ricks reliever Eric Larson) wasn't getting the curveball often."

Walker was particularly pleased with CSI's 10-run, eight-hit third inning, during which the Eagles sent 14 batters to the plate.

"Maybe it is sign we're snapping out of it," said Walker. "I hope so."

After CSI scored a run in the second on Brian Avram's double and Jessie Torres' single, the Eagles pushed five runs across in the third before Ricks got an out. Leadoff batter Stacey Ayers reached base when Ricks' first baseman Trent McAuley dropped the throw from third baseman Steve Davis on Ayers' ground ball. Troy Hymas followed with a single, and John Greene drove in both runners with a booming double to right field.

Lonnie Reiber singled to drive in Greene and Butch Nolan in the second on Brian Avram's double and Jessie Torres' single, the Eagles pushed five runs across in the third before Ricks got an out. Leadoff

Paul Murphy greeted Larson, the Vikings' reliever, with a single to drive in Avram and Ayers followed with a single, driving in Torres. Hymas collected his second hit of the inning, loading the bases, and Greene drove in Murphy and Ayers with a double. CSI's final run of the inning scored when Reiber grounded to shortstop and Greene was caught in a rundown as Hymas scored from third. Greene, Hymas and Torres had two hits apiece, with Greene driving in three runs.

Twin Falls, Highland eye region showdown

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor
POCATELLO — An early-season confrontation between the defending state Class A-1 high school baseball champions and the defending Region III champions here today is drawing opposite reactions from the two coaches.

"Anyone you play Highland, it's an important game," said Twin Falls High coach Bill Ingram of today's 11 a.m. doubleheader at Halliwell Park. "But we're not playing these games up because we have a long way to go before regionals."

that game and since we got a few games under our belt, we're playing better."

The Bruins hammered Orbray and reliever Doug Hagler for 13 hits in that game, the second time in three outings that the Bruins have beaten the big right-hander.

"I look for two tough games," said Ingram. "Orbray's tough and they have a pretty good nucleus of kids. The key for us is keeping (center fielder) Paul EchoHawk off the bases. He's their leadoff hitter and he was 3-for-4 or 4-for-4 against us in Burley."

Ingram will send junior right-hander Chris Smith (9-0, 1.21 earned run average) to the mound in the opener against Orbray (1-1, 3.00 ERA). Twin Falls senior right-hander Jody Bryant (1-1, 11.38 ERA) will face Highland senior right-hander Craig Hagler (1-0, 1.05 ERA) in the second game.

"Twin is just a great hitting ballclub," said Simmons. "From the top of the batting order to the bottom: Even the outs we got in Burley were tough outs. They hit the ball hard and they don't make mistakes in the field."

In fact, both ballclubs are hitting the ball hard. The Bruins are hitting .351 as a team, led by Bryant with a .455 average, three home runs and 13 runs batted in. Senior second baseman Boomer Walker is hitting .472 and junior outfielder Shawn Hayden .531.

Junior catcher Shane Quenell, who broke his finger 10 days ago and probably won't be back before the regional tournament, was hitting .462.

"These two are pretty important," said Highland coach Zané Simmons, whose ballclub has lost four of its last five meetings with Twin Falls. "We know if we lose Saturday, the odds are pretty good we're going to be playing the regionals in Twin Falls, and that's the last thing we want to do."

The defending state champion Bruins are 8-2; this season including an 8-4 romp over Highland in Burley March 24 in the second round of the Mini-Cassia Easter Baseball Tournament. That was the Rams' only loss of the spring; they have won their other five games.

Highland is 1-0 in Region III games; this is Twin Falls' regional opener.

"I don't think that first game was indicative of the kind of ballclub we are or of the kind of pitcher Ralph (Highland senior Ralph Orbray);" said Simmons. "Ralph has pitched very well since

Jobless rate gives tech stocks a boost

The Associated Press
NEW YORK — The stock market staged a mild rally Friday following what analysts described as an ambiguous report on employment.

Technology issues led the advance in a session of moderate activity. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 12.83 to 2,304.80, closing out the week with a net gain of 116 points.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 166.95 million shares, against 146.53 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 184.23 million shares.

A smaller-than-expected gain of 180,000 in nonfarm payroll employment, providing some support for the view that the economy has been slowing since early this year.

The fiscal quarter ended March 31, citing increased sales of International Business Machines and Apple Computer products.
