Twin Falls 4th graders know their Idaho

Morningside pupils best Blue Lakes Rotary Club members in breakfast history quiz

By JENNIFER KAUTH Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A quartet of Morningside Elementary School fourth graders gave their elders a lesson on Idaho's heritage Tuesday. With teacher Diana Guess acting as moderator, the kids competed with a group of Blue Lakes Rotary Club members to answer Idaho trivia questions such as which of Idaho's county is largest (Idaho County) and what Indian became one of Idaho's first missionaries (Spokane Garry).

Though the fourth-graders missed the Spokane Garry question, they answered every other question correctly. Meanwhile, Rotarians Ron Silvers, Jim Love, Dan Brizee and Bruce Bacon struggled for answers and shook their heads in defeat. Although the grown-ups answered with ease basic questions such as the Bonneville County seat (Idaho Falls), the state bird (Mountain Bluebird), Idaho's highest mountain (Mount Borah) and the state gem (the "star garnet"), they

TWIN FALLS - To test your knowledge of Idaho trivia, here are some questions that stumped the Rotarians Tuesday but didn't fool the fourth-graders:

- 1. What is the oldest permanent town in Idaho?
2. How many states are larger, geographically, than Idaho?
3. Who was both a territorial governor and an elected state governor?
4. Who was the first leader of the Catholic missionaries in Idaho?
5. Who was the first governor of Idaho Territory?

Minimum pay bill now faces veto by Bush

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Senate Tuesday approved a Democratic plan to raise the hourly minimum wage by $1.20 to $4.55 over the next three years but fell short of the votes necessary to prevail in what is shaping up as the first veto confrontation between Congress and President Bush.

The Democratic-sponsored proposal was approved by a vote of 61 to 39 as eight Republicans joined all but two Democrats in supporting the outlines of a minimum-wage plan that was approved on a similarly partisan basis by the House three weeks ago.

After adopting the Democratic plan, the Senate voted 58 to 41 to reject a smaller Bush-backed alternative to raise the wage floor to $4.25 and allow employers to pay $2.48 to $1.71 House passage of the bill indicate that the Democrats lack the two-thirds vote necessary to override a veto.

Under a compromise designed to win the support of conservative Democratic Southerners, the Democrats accepted the concept of a lower wage for new workers for the first time but sharply limited its application. Workers who have never held a job before could be paid at 85 percent of the wage floor for no more than 60 days so long as they did not displace other workers and did not constitute more than 25 percent of an employer's work force.

With two dozen amendments to the minimum-wage legislation still pending, the Senate is not expected to complete action on the bill until Wednesday or Thursday. But Tuesday's votes were the critical ones, setting the stage for a veto confrontation that Bush is expected to use to try to prevent the Democratic-controlled Congress from seizing the initiative on social policy in the first months of his administration.

Bush, who pledged during his campaign to support a modest increase in the minimum wage, has refused to bargain over a possible compromise and vowed to veto any legislation that goes beyond his proposal, a stance that was reaffirmed after Tuesday's Senate vote by White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. The Senate vote and the 248-to-171 House passage of the bill indicate that the Democrats lack the two-thirds vote necessary to override a veto.

But many Democrats, including some Southern conservatives, indicated Tuesday they were inclined to reject Bush's training-wage proposal even as a last resort, raising serious doubt over whether the roughly 4 million workers who earn the current minimum wage of $3.35 an hour will get a federally mandated increase this year. It has been eight years since the last increase in the wage floor.

Idaho's driving age goes to 16 Sept. 15

The Associated Press

BOISE - Effective Sept. 15, Idaho's legal driving age goes from 14 to 16.

Gov. Cecil Andrus on Tuesday signed the legislation into law, ending a long debate in the Legislature over whether 14-year-olds should be allowed to continue to drive.

Until Sept. 15, Idaho will continue to license 14-year-olds for daylight-only driving. After that date, a young driver must obtain a special license, good only for work or school purposes. Fifteen-year-olds can get a new learner's permit, good for driving instruction with a licensed adult in the front seat.

Andrus said the main reason he signed the bill was his concern for highway safety.

"It would be my hope that the move to increase the driving age bring with it a corresponding reduction in highway deaths and injuries," the governor said.

"If lives are saved and injuries avoided, the effort will be worthwhile," he said.

The governor also signed the last of 426 bills he approved from the 1989 legislative session. He also vetoed eight bills, two from the Senate and six from the House. The two ve-tos while the Legislature was still in session both were sustained.

But as he signed bills designed to improve water quality, the governor notified legislative leaders that they failed to provide the necessary funding. It would take more than $1.2 million to carry out the directives, the governor said.

"I congratulate the Legislature for its accomplishments in environmental protection, and I am eager to have these important water quality initiatives in place and functioning," Andrus said.

He said he has directed the state agencies and advisory councils to do what they could to enter out the new requirements without proper funding.

"I believe I have gone far as possible without setting the totally unacceptable precedent of having state agencies take on obligations without sensible funding," the governor told House Speaker Tom Boyd and Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo.

The governor also signed a bill making permanent the Idaho Commission on Hispanic Affairs, and a measure boosting bonding authority of the Idaho Housing Agency to $90 million.

"With this legislation we estimate

Police tie mass grave to satanic drug cult

The Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Texas - Police found a mass grave just south of the Mexican border Tuesday containing the bodies of a dozen people who were the victims of human sacrifice by a satanic cult of drug smugglers, officials said.

"It was horrible," Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez told a news conference in this border city. "It was like a human slaughterhouse."

Mexican federal police arrested four people, said Sheriff's Lt. George Gavito, Gavito said the suspects were U.S. and Mexican citizens, but did not identify them further.

The dead found by the federal police included 21-year-old University of Texas student Mark Kilroy, who vanished during his spring break last month while in the Mexican city of Matamoros, Gavito said.

Kilroy apparently was chosen at random by drug smugglers who hoped human sacrifices would protect them from harm, Gavito said. He was taken after the cult members "were told to pick one Anglo male that particular night," the lieutenant said.

The cult had been involved in human sacrifices for "about nine months, he said, and prayed to the devil -- so the police would not arrest them, so bullets would not kill them and so they could make more money."

Authorities would not comment on the other victims, and would not say whether any were U.S. citizens.

The 12 bodies were found Tuesday morning in a field about 20 miles west of Matamoros, along with evidence of voodoo or magic, Gavito said.

"I've been an investigator 15 years and it's one of the worst things I've ever seen," he said.

Kilroy, a pre-medical student, vanished from a crowded Matamoros street shortly after 2 a.m. on March 14 while on a drinking foray with a group of friends in Matamoros.

Sea, wind spare Kodiak from oil

The Associated Press

VALDEZ, Alaska - Rough seas that helped stall and break up some of giant oil spill from the Exxon Valdez became calmer Tuesday and winds shifted away from fish-rich Kodiak Island, the Coast Guard said.

"Kodiak still seems to be saved," said Jim Hayden, the state of Alaska's cleanup coordinator.

Coast Guard spokesman Ken Freeze said the spill appears to have stalled and is breaking into tar balls. "That's better than oozy, gooey oil," he said.

Equipment continued to pour into the area aboard military transports. About 67 tons of material, everything from containment booms to absorbent pads, were scheduled to arrive Tuesday.

A huge Soviet oil-shipment vessel, the Vay Dapursky, was expected to arrive Saturday, state officials said. The ship can skim 200,000 gallons an hour and store 2 million gallons of oil on board, according to the officials. But it remains unclear how effective it might be against the Alaska spill.

Despite the favorable weather, a light sheen of oil seeped into the Kenai Fjords National Park at scattered inlets and fjords, Freeze said. With a thickness measured in molecules, the sheen does not threaten serious environmental damage, he said.

The operator of the trans-Alaska pipeline said it had complied with a state order for an around-the-clock, 12-person oil spill emergency response crew, and had purchased a supply of oil dispersant.

Alyaska Pipeline Service Co. has been criticized for disbanded the emergency response team and for not having enough dispersant on hand to combat the 10.1 million gallons of crude that spilled.

Poor growing poorer, more numerous, particularly in rural U.S.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The poor are getting poorer, especially those living in rural areas of the nation, and there are more of them, according to a private study released Tuesday.

"In spite of the common perception of poverty as an urban phenomenon, poverty rates are higher in rural areas than urban areas," said the study by the Center for Budget and Policy Priorities.

Analysing census data on poverty from 1978 to 1987, the center's researchers found that "the rural poverty rate rose from 13.6 percent to 16.9 percent" while the poverty rate in metropolitan areas rose from 10.4 percent to 12.5 percent. Metropolitan areas include suburbs and outlying communities as well as the central cities.

But in central cities, where metropolitan poverty is at its worst, the rate climbed from 15.4 percent to 18.6 percent during the same period, similar to the growth of poverty in the rural areas.

"What's most striking is that the rate of poverty in rural areas is almost as high as in central cities," which most people associated in their minds with poverty, said center director Robert Greenstein in an interview. Figures in the study show more than one in six people in rural America fell below the federal poverty line of $9,056 for a family of three in 1987 while the rate was one in eight for residents of metropolitan areas during that year.

"In fact, the rural poverty rate for 1987 - the fifth year of an economic recovery - was as high as the rate for 1976, the deepest recession year of the 1970s," Greenstein said in testimony before a hearing of the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families.

The center, a nonprofit organization which conducts research and analysis on a range of public policy issues, concerning low-income families and individuals, found the urban-rural poverty dichotomies consistent among most racial, ethnic, age and demographic groups.

Although the rural poor is more likely to be white because there is a lower proportion of minorities in non-metropolitan areas, "more than two-fifths (44.1 percent) of non-metro blacks were poor in 1987, compared to one-third (33.3 percent) of blacks living in central cities," the study said.

There also were more poor elderly people living in rural than urban areas, the study said.

In the only segment of the rural poor smaller than its urban counterpart was children. According to the study, 23.1 percent of rural children were poor while 29.6 percent of the children in the central cities were poor in 1987.

The report noted that rural poverty is likely to occur in two-parent families where one or both parents work.

"Nearly two of every three poor families living in rural areas contained at least one worker in 1987. Nearly one quarter had at least two workers," the study said.

That was demonstrated in emotional testimony from Sharon Whitford of Charlotte, Mich. and Myssse Green of Bethel, N.C. describing their families' struggles against poverty through the loss of a family farm and a disabling job-related injury.

Apartment fire kills 7 children, 2 moms

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Fire swept through an apartment house early Tuesday, killing seven children and two young mothers, and investigators were seeking to question a visitor who left the building shortly before the fire broke out.

The three other occupants of the building were injured, two of them seriously.

Fire Chief G. John Parker said the cause remained under investigation and authorities were focusing on a gas heater near where the fire started. Parker said that based on an initial investigation, authorities did not suspect arson and he stressed the man being sought was not a suspect.

The blaze started about 2 a.m. on the first floor and had engulfed the two-story, wood-frame structure by the time firefighters responded.

The fire was just blazing all of a sudden. ... I can't remember hearing (noise) or anything," said Rhonda Tracy, a relative of several of the victims who lived across the street and was first to call the fire department, at 2:20 a.m.

"I had never seen people come out burned like that," she continued. "I was just hysterical."

Police and fire authorities, aided by arson investigators from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, were examining the rubble in a working-class neighborhood in this central Illinois city of about 130,000.

Smoke detectors were found upstairs and down, Parker said, but the downstairs detector was connected directly to the building's wiring and electricity service had been cut April 4 by Central Illinois Light Co. He was uncertain about the upstairs detector.

Three families, consisting of four adults and eight children, lived in the house, and had moved there last year, officials said.

Police Capt. Mary Dunlavy said Carl Wells, who was treated at St. Frances Medical Center and released, was the only survivor to have been interviewed.

"He woke up, went down the stairs and it was hot and he had to go, of course, back upstairs and try to wake the others," she said. "And then he went out the window onto the roof and was rescued by the fire department with a ladder."

Chevron blast cuts production

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An explosion and fire at Chevron's huge east San Francisco Bay refinery cut the plant's gasoline and jet fuel production by 25 percent, the company said.

Monday's blast sent towering clouds of sooty smoke boiling into the sky from the 4 1/2-square-mile Richmond plant and injured eight workers and firefighters.

Firefighters decided to allow the blaze to burn itself out and residual packets of fuel continued burning Tuesday.

The burned unit, a cracking column which separates crude oil into its various components from light fuels to heavy lubricants, produced about 10 percent of the West Coast's oil requirements, the company said.

Chevron spokesman Glenn Weaver could not say if the production shortfall would cause any retail increase at the pumps in the western states, but that Chevron planned to compensate by dipping into inventories and increasing production at other refineries.

"It's hard to isolate what the movement in prices ... might be; one thing we know is our costs will go up," he said.

House OKs limits on children's TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee on Tuesday approved legislation to reimpose limits on commercials in children's TV shows and require broadcasters to inform and educate their young audiences or lose their licenses.

The House Energy and Commerce Committee, on a voice vote, sent the Children's Television Practices Act to the full House, where it was expected to pass easily.

Congress passed the same bill last year but then-President Reagan let it die without his signature. A companion measure has been introduced in the Senate by Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J.

The Bush administration has not taken a public position on the bill. Authors of the measure said it was designed to stop the "overcommercialization" of children's TV shows in the wake of a 1984 decision by the Federal Communications Commission to lift limits on TV ads in shows aimed at youngsters.

Quayle plans visit to the South Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle will visit Australia, Singapore, Indonesia and Thailand over a 10-period from April 26 to May 5, aides said Tuesday.

Quayle will represent President Bush at this year's celebration of Australian-American Friendship Week, which symbolizes the historically close relations between the two countries and commemorates the Battle of the Coral Sea during World War II.

Official thinks aging airliners may need new safety rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government may have to impose stricter repair and inspection requirements for aging airliners, beyond new maintenance standards expected to take effect soon, the chairman of the Senate aviation subcommittee said Tuesday.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., commenting after his panel began hearings on the subject, told reporters he believed Congress should consider requiring the Federal Aviation Administration to force an increase in the frequency of inspections of older aircraft, require replacing certain parts rather than examinations of them, and set training and experience standards for airline inspectors and mechanics.

"Our prodding has caused them to do some things in the past," Ford said of the FAA.

Attention has been focused on aging airliners since the roof of a 19-year-old Aloha Airlines Boeing 737 peeled off over Hawaii last April, sweeping a flight attendant to her death.

Since then, nine people died in December when a 19-year-old United Airlines Boeing 747 broke open over Hawaii; a 22-year-old Eastern Airlines Boeing 727 landed without casualties after a hole opened in its fuselage while flying over West Virginia; and an 8-year-old Piedmont Airlines 727 lost an engine during takeoff from Chicago.

Letters/Racism prompts readers to comment

Racism has no place in a Christian world

A few years before moving to this wonderful state of Idaho I had lived amongst Negroes all of my life; and to call a black person a nigger is an insult, just as calling a person of Italian descent a dago is also a very nasty slur.

Did God, who created us all, give us the right to say what race is the better; do you suppose God, who created us in his own image, could be black. Wouldn't that surprise these sanctimonious biased people. Some of my friends, black in color, have M.A. degrees and are in the salary classification of the very rich. I have never noticed them being lazy, rather the exact opposite.

The white race is certainly a more cruel race than the black race. We definitely proved that during the slavery years, to take human beings and treat them like animals, when God created us in his own image, seems to me a mockery of the Almighty. The good Christian whites says they teaching the heathens how to live and pray and learn about the true God. Well in my estimation chaining, beating, cutting off parts of the anatomy, raping girls and women and in general treating them like animals was not showing them that God created all men equal.

Lazy, oh my! Have you been in the big cities lately and seen the lazy whites. In Idaho the indigents are composed of, guess what, not blacks; isn't that hard to accept. Look at what we spend on the indigent program in this state and find out how many are minorities. How can people go to church and call themselves Christians yet at the same time put themselves on a level with the God they pray to and judge people because their skin is a different color to their own. The Good Book also says something about no separate rooms in Heaven.

Anti-ignorance rally seems to be in order

The letter (April 6) from Daisy Rice confirmed my belief that not only do we need an anti-racism rally, but also an anti-ignorance rally.

The act of putting people in their "place" is dangerous to us all. To quote Pastor Martin Neimaller (victim of the Nazis):

"First they came for the Jews and I did not speak out — because I was not a Jew.

Then they came for the Communists and I did not speak out — because I was not a Communist.

Then they came for the trade unionists and I did not speak out — because I was not a trade unionist.

Then they came for me — and there was no one left to speak out for me." It is time to speak out.

Our place, Daisy Rice, is all of us together, hand-in-hand, working to make this world better. There is no place for racism.

Let's follow the example of Martin Luther King

There is a question that is running through my head that should be running through the heads of every person who read the anti-racism article in Thursday's Times-News. That question is: How can someone say that they are not biased when every sentence they have written is dripping with prejudice.

I believe that it is well and truly time for an anti-racism rally in the Magic Valley. All young children, high school students and adults should know that racism is not something we are without in this area. We should all know that Martin Luther King, Jr. was not a communist, he was an extremist — an extremist for love and equality. He did not want to stir up hate and cause bloodshed. M.L. King wanted peace and equality for his people; he wanted this so badly he was willing to sacrifice his own well-being to bring blacks and whites together, to show that there are no differences between them.

Let me quote a passage of one of his most famous speeches:

"I say to you today, my friends, that in spite of the difficulties and frustrations of the moment I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream.

"I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal.'

"I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slaveowners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood."

I hope you will all think about these things and remember that we are all one people no matter what color our skin is.

Letters/Taxes and tourism draw comments from readers

Local control has been lost

Like the horse and buggy, perhaps we have progressed beyond the need for county government.

Whenever this subject is approached the usual reaction is "we need local control." We started losing local control several years ago when our county representatives to the state legislature were taken away from us and the state was divided into districts. We now have several counties in our state that do not have any representatives living in their county.

Whenever you approach the county commissioners with a controversial problem, the stock answer is "we are mandated by the state to do that way." This appears to be the case in most county government functions. The recent cable TV appraisal controversy summed it up by the quote of Larry Loney, tax commission chairman, "it's hard for me to understand why (counties) would spend taxpayers' money to oppose the state. We've made our judgment and we're prepared to stand by it in court."

Perhaps it is time to do some serious thinking about giving up county government and turning the functions over to the state.

If you attend a county commissioners meeting you will find when the indigent cases are presented for payment the public is excluded from the meeting. This is a county taxpayer assessment, however, the state welfare dictates what we will pay; and the taxpayer does not have the right to know who or where.

The county assessor must assess our properties according to state-mandated regulations. The property within the county must be appraised by a county appraiser at least once every five years with 20 percent accomplished each year. The property has to be assessed within 90 percent to 105 percent of neighboring counties. Most of the PUC-controlled property is assessed by state appraisers. If we do not follow these guidelines our share of the fuel and sales taxes, which incidentally are collected by the state, are withheld until we do comply.

Campgrounds drain taxpayers

There are about 65,000 R.V.s in the state of Idaho and each one has to be tagged. The cost of these tags varies, but the money goes into a fund. This fund is now huge, approximately $700,000; and the Idaho Parks and Recreation Board want to take this money and build full-service campgrounds.

These campgrounds would not be self-supporting, but subsidized by the state taxes. Your taxes! All you R.V.ers, you one-in-a-while campers and those who have never camped will be supporting these campgrounds.

We, as a private campground, support ourself. When something breaks, we repair it out of our pockets.

I believe this money should go toward tourism, road repair, signs or information centers. Look at the commercials for Utah and Texas. How about Idaho advertising. I know it's expensive, but the money is there.

We don't want tourists you say! People, the more money we bring to the state, the more it benefits everyone.

The bulk of our tourists is for approximately five months a year, but these campers need doctors, dentists, new tires; gas, repairs, vets, beauticians, hospitals, restaurants, churches and many more services.

By bringing in more tourists, more summer jobs will be opened for our young people. True, it's only for summer work, but it's experience, money for car insurance, college funds of just spending money.

Tourism costs too much

You've got to give our legislators credit for slipping one over on all of us, their pay raises, while we were concentrating on the pay raise for our Congress. They really aren't as dumb as some of the things they do while in Boise, as this proves.

I'm afraid our tourism is turning into a nightmare. The mighty dollar is even ruining this great idea. Everyone wants to put in resorts which destroy the pristine qualities surrounding them. One can see what has happened to the Sun Valley area, what is happening to the Coeur d'Alene area, houses everywhere, destroying our wildlife's wintering areas, our trees etc.

So many out-of-staters will soon make our forests and lakes like the ones they are trying to get away from. I believe the price is too great to pay for the benefits to our grazing forces.

This depredation program is another slap in the face. How many true statements will be received on these counts, or will the mighty dollar triumph, even in this area.

Our government buy outs are also beginning to be a bit ludicrous. Why should those who do without have to pay the bills for those who spend and spend on every new gadget that appears. Someone has to pay for this type of larceny, so why make the people who keep their bills paid pay for these people, too.

One thing President Reagan did do for this country. He dispensed with the middle class. We now have the poor, who pay all the bills, and the rich, who just keep getting richer. I'm sure this is something to be proud of. It has to be an accomplishment for someone. I'm glad it isn't me.

According to Mr. Hoovey, it is still possible that our public lands could be transferred to the private ownership of livestock owners. I hope we are not all so brainwashed we will allow this to happen to "our" public lands.

It might be a good idea to make ranchers pay depredation claims to the sportsmen for damage caused by their livestock by overgrazing on public lands, causing our wildlife to be shortchanged by having no grazing and having to have feed purchased for some. Tit for tat.

'Cry Freedom' shows the truth

South Africa, Angola and Namibia. Why is it that when we get news of Southern Africa, it is always the news of Botha's government? If you want to see how he and his government and police lie, and more facts about what's going on in that area, then watch the video "Cry Freedom," at local video stores. It is the true story of Steven Biko and the wealthy white newspaper editor who leaned the truth about the police, government and African people.

You can also call the Washington Office on Africa for a 50-cent taped recording which is updated every two weeks. 1-202-546-0408. You have seen our own government officials lie.

In Namibia, if 169 rebels were killed and only six territorial police, then who did the attacking? If the rebels attacked, wouldn't they have had the advantage and, therefore, killed more police?

Thousands of citizens (many under 18) are being held, by Botha's government, in prison without charges. Several senators and congressmen here know these things and are fighting for all-out sanctions to stop apartheid. Sanctions can have an effect! Look what happened to Madonna and the Pepsi commercials because of the threat of sanctions by the Catholic and Christian organizations!

In closing, I ask you again to view the video "Cry Freedom."

Letters/Readers comment on a variety of issues

Visit old friends in town

Two old friends met several weeks ago quite by accident rather than design and resumed a friendship that goes back some 60 years. A sudden rain squall caught me some distance from my car so I sought refuge beneath the facade of this address "Mainstreet Belle." Standing resolutely and proud as she has for live, those 2nd St. Sa., Lending dignity to the sobriquet "The Id," one can only assume that she still maintains her motto, "if it isn't right, bring it back."

I knew her first when, as a small boy, I accompanied my father into her cool interior and down into the basement once every month during the depression years to count our blessings at "Eleanor's Commissary," as papa called it. Dried beans, dried milk, dried prunes; and by all means let's not forget the slab of salt pork that always wound up as another of "Grace's Murtaugh Flambeaux."

Do any of you remember (please say you do) the big white scales that stood on her first floor near the shoe department? Wasn't that a work of art? There she stood year after year accepting the weight and girth of all comers without once hiding behind an "out of order" sign. Seems small folks looked up while tall folks looked down and slim folks looked relieved while fat folks looked all around. And the drinking fountain close by, be honest now, did you ever see anyone take a drink of water before they stepped on the scale? But the most fascinating thing of all was the way the clerks could put money into those small cylinders and send it whisking through pneumatic tubes up to the change and receipt. Hart Schaffner and Marx, Florsheim, Levi Strauss; Oshkosh Bygodish; Ladies Fracks by Daniels (oh yes, women wear dresses in those days) and Sarco. Old names like old faces seem to have a way of turning up in the strangest places.

The rain has stopped, and it is time to go; and as I wipe some moisture from my eyes please permit me if you will one last thought, or perhaps plea. Hurry folks, hurry and get your order to Donna Selt for your copy of the Idaho Centennial Book in time for Christmas. There are so many great stories about this city of ours; what a pity if you lose out.

Tell complete nuclear story

I find it somewhat perplexing that a Free Press (excellent as it is at providing accurate information about public events, crime and other related events) is so unable to allow accurate and adequate information on nuclear science filter through to the public.

What does eventually reach the public is mostly good at selling print (i.e. "deadly radiation" and "horrible nuclear disasters"). Three Mile Island for example: "America's worst nuclear disaster" had a total death toll of zero, an injury toll of zero and a diseased toll of — yes, zero. The radiation that was released to the immediate residents around T.M.I. wouldn't amount to the equivalent of watching color TV for six months.

I found it odd that the most important point of my last letter was "edited out." I nuclear age by two billion years. At the Oklo uranium mine in Gabon, scientists have discovered that approximately two billion years ago nature deposited uranium at 92 percent purity (pure as the fuel in modern nuclear power plants).

The major point I made, which didn't filter through, was the fact that the fission products remained in place during and after this natural reactor's lifetime. A 2-billion experiment by nature demonstrated that even an impure shale was suitable for all forms of non-gas nuclear waste.

The waste did not migrate to the water table at Oklo — it didn't migrate an inch. Waste buried at INEL will not migrate either.

Every time waste at the INEL is mentioned the public is reminded that it is buried "over the aquifer." It might just as well be buried on the moon, inasmuch as it will ever pollute our aquifer — it is physically impossible.

Best leave the hornets alone

I don't want to make anyone mad at me, but if I do, I don't want to know. Just tell it to the Lord; he will take care of it.

We have been hearing a lot of controversy in the papers lately over racism. It amounts to one thing; religion. Look at our world religion, the incarnation of it. Religion does not fight for God, it fights to be a god; it is the cause of all our wars — I believe it or I believe that — and the light begins.

I would like to say to the Jerome kids, when I was a boy about 10, we went to my uncle's at Golden, Colo. He lived below a mountain, and a road ran along the bottom.

One morning we saw a lot of little holes on the side of the road with yellow jackets flying in and out of the holes. My uncle gave us a stick and said, poke it in the holes; but our mom said, don't do that or you will stir up their nest and you will get the worst of it; they will sting you good.

I see The Times-News handing you a stick in their paper. Leave it alone, or it will just cause more trouble. Your school board and law were wise, let them take care of it, for that is their job.

And to the teachers I would like to say, the schools should not be teaching religion, but the three Rs and leave the religion to the parents.

So, kids, don't stir up the hornets' nest. Leave well enough alone and remember religion is someone trying to use the truth without the divine guidance of God.

Prophets didn't know it all

Many Moslem people are offended when someone belittles their prophet Muhammad, so it is little wonder the book, Satanic Verses, has caused so much uproar.

It is no different than the movie "The Last Temptation of Christ," for it, also, upset many Christians.

Most all religions are built upon prophecies given by certain prophets. Jesus claimed he was a prophet, he told the people they and their fathers always spoke well of the false prophets, but persecuted and killed the prophets God sent them.

OLIVER NORTH
Says he didn't violate code

North defends honor, efforts for Contras in exchange

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North defended his efforts for the Nicaraguan Contras Tuesday, testifying at his trial that he knew a pivotal letter his boss sent Congress on the subject was false but regarded it as a "political problem," not a fraud.

"Did any moral bells go off in your head?" asked prosecutor John Keeker.

"It wouldn't be proper to describe it as a moral bell," North said, and then he turned his focus to the cut-off of U.S. Contra aid that led to his secret efforts.

"I thought it was extraordinarily immoral to have put a force in the field, to have fed it, armed it, equipped it and then leave it in the lurch," said North. "It was heinous. I happened to be right smack dab in the middle of it."

All through his fourth day as a witness at his Iran-Contra trial, North defended his honor as well as his efforts on behalf of the Nicaraguan rebels, meeting a fusillade of suggestions from Keeker that he violated the code he was taught at the Naval Academy.

Keeker accused North of telling "a flat-out, 100 percent, old-fashioned, All-American lie" when he was instrumental in getting President Reagan to send thank-you notes to a fund-raiser and a major donor to the Contras. Keeker read from a document which quoted North as giving an assurance the two were "not involved in raising private funds for the Contras."

Other questioning concerned a letter sent by National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane on Sept. 5, 1985, to Rep. Leo Hamilton, D-Ind., then the chairman of the House Intelligence Committee. That letter, denying news accounts that the National Security Council staff was soliciting donations and offering tactical advice to the Contras, is at the heart of several charges concerning lying to or obstructing Congress.

"I recognized it to be false because I had gone to some lengths since 1984 to get his (McFarlane's) approval for and keep him apprised of what I was doing," North said of the letter. "It denied the things he sent me off to do."

Didn't he see the letter as a fraud on Congress? the prosecutor asked.

"To me a fraud means to break the law. I did not recognize it as breaking the law. I recognized it more as an increasing political problem," North replied.

But, he said, "I'm not proud of this... I didn't think it was unlawful, but I didn't think it was right."

He said he had urged McFarlane to assert executive privilege and refuse to reply to Hamilton and, failing in that argument, attached "talking points" to McFarlane's draft to discuss before the letter went out.

Asked why his insistence on executive privilege did not show up in attached notes, North said by that point he felt he had lost the argument.

"What is not in the notes is anything about fund-raising," said Keeker.

"Surely, he and the president had done it," North said. "He (McFarlane) had authorized me to go to the Taiwanese; I had arranged for the Peoples Republic of China to get missiles; he knew I had arranged air drops of weapons and intelligence and recoilless rifles (to the Contras). He knew all of those things, none of which was in those letters."

"I believe McFarlane's letter was false to the point of being deceptive," North said.

Keeker asked North about a recommendation, approved and forwarded by McFarlane, that Reagan sign thank-you notes to fund-raiser Carl Channell and to Barbara Newington who had contributed $250,000. A document introduced by Keeker said White House counsel Fred Fielding approved the recommendation.

House panel votes to gut bailout bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House banking panel, shrugging off the threat of a presidential veto, voted Tuesday to gut the key provision of the Bush administration's plan to reform the savings and loan industry.

By one vote, the House Banking subcommittee on financial institutions voted to delete a requirement that would have forced S&L owners to back loans with more of their own capital.

The panel still faced long hours drafting other provisions of the bill, but members agreed that the central reform accompanying President Bush's proposal to spend $50 billion to "close or merge failed S&Ls was the tougher capital standards.

Seven Republicans joined 17 Democrats in supporting the change. They were opposed by 11 Democrats and 12 Republicans, making the vote 24-23.

"It really, really guts this bill... I would have to say it surrenders to the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the industry's chief lobby group," said Rep. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, urged panel members before the vote that "we ought to have a little backbone" and said that the president would veto any legislation with weak capital standards.

Bush wants to increase S&L capital requirements by June 1991 from 3 percent of assets to 8 percent, contending that the more capital S&L owners have at risk, the less likely they will be to take undue risks and the greater the buffer standing in front of the government deposit insurance fund.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan, in a letter Tuesday, warned the panel that relaxing capital rules "invites continuation of the conditions that have led to the present crisis."

"Such amendments raise the specter that additional public resources may be needed to correct the situation in the future," Greenspan said in a letter to the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill.

Wreck blamed on track work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators on Tuesday blamed "inadequate track inspection and maintenance procedures" by the Burlington Northern Railroad for the derailment last summer of an Amtrak passenger train in Montana.

The train, which was bound from Chicago to Seattle, derailed Aug. 5 near Saco, Mont., when it struck track that had been warped by temperatures near 100 degrees. The accident injured 165 people, about a dozen of them seriously.

The National Transportation Safety Board in its report on the accident said Tuesday it was caused by shifting of track just ahead of the Amtrak train. The board said the shifting was caused by the intense heat, but that track conditions and the danger of such buckling should have been apparent to Burlington Northern.

The derailment caused five of the train's cars to topple after leaving the tracks. The 12-car train was carrying 375 passengers and about a dozen crew members.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECASTS

IF APRIL 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, have a tendency to scatter finances, possess sense of humor and fitness. You are very much aware of body image, have intellectual curiosity, are capable of loving more than one person and you regard your constant "enemy," as tendency to gain weight. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. Burden is lifted in May. Older female, possibly mother, gets good health report regarding chest or stomach area. October will also be memorable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Just 24 hours ago you felt you "lost power." Now you regain it, in a moment. Spotlight on authority, promotion, gesture of good will from older individual, possibly employer. Capricorn involved.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Close relative who claimed you "loved something" will relent. You gain greater freedom, your influence will be more perceptible. Spotlight on romance, creativity, communication, possibility of travel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Those who thought you had "lost count" are in for surprise. Emphasis on fresh start, vigor, style, ability to get to heart of matters. Taping everything, you could locate missing article.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Circumstances, at first, puzzling, will finally reveal your efforts. Emphasis on timing, Ammer, marital status. Family dispute regarding direction, purpose, motive will be amicably resolved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Sudden inspiration provides sought-after answer. Accent on publicity, popularity, the way you look to people who are important. You'll be more aware of body image. Secret meeting dominates scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Individual who expresses doubt concerning your ability will be proved wrong. Allies appear almost from nowhere. Focus on ability to successfully renew contacts, revise mid-year Scorpio representation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Shake off doubts concerning communication from relative who apparently has inside information. Changes that occur will definitely favor you. Member of opposite sex will be at your side, an ally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll be involved in "spiritual counseling." Focus on ability to resolve dilemma. Loved one says, "I always knew I could rely on you!" Attention centers on domestic adjustment, money, gift.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Financial status of one close to you commands attention. Element of deception is involved. Accounting procedures require revisions. Client-side arrangements covered more than was on surface.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You "bounce back" from recent period of adversity. Legal problem will be successfully resolved. Emphasis on justice, dividend, intensified relationship. Cancer native plays key role.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Promise is kept regarding work methods, basic issues. Relative is involved. Focus on cooking, sewing, repairs. Break from past patterns will prove beneficial. Arnes will figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Question is, "Should I do it?" Answer is affirmative. Take the chance, make the start, give love opportunity to blossom. What seemed longed less than 48 hours ago will no longer suffer.

Scott apologizes for his part in feud with Gumbel

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — NBC weatherman Willard Scott, saying his rift with "Today" show colleague Bryant Gumbel is behind him, has commemorated the lesson he learned by establishing a Common Sense Scholarship at a college.

"I was trying to find a way, some way, that I could show a little bit of my regret for keeping a little feud that is so stupid going," Scott told a crowd of about 2,000 on Monday at Mississippi College, a Baptist school in Clinton, Miss. "It's a feud that should never have gone more than two days at the most."

Scott donated his speaking fee of about $12,000 to start the scholarship, and said he would contribute for the next two years to benefit a Mississippian "who needs assistance, someone who has displayed some simple act of common sense."

He then went on to Knoxville, where he again apologized for the feud during an appearance at the city's annual Woodrow Arts Festival.

"It was unfortunate. I talked too much and I am going to keep my mouth closed," he said.

On March 11, it was reported that Gumbel sent a confidential memo to the "Today" producer, complaining that Scott "holds the show hostage" with his "bad taste." At the time,

Customs officers seize Liza Minnelli's pooch

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Customs officials seized entertainer Liza Minnelli's dog, charging she brought it into Sweden illegally.

Minnelli was forced to send her cairn terrier, Lilly, to Paris early Tuesday, while she stayed on to perform, said Customs Inspector Stig Thelberg.

Minnelli, on a world tour with Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., was reported to be distressed.

"Liza is guilty of smuggling and the case will be taken to court as in all other cases where someone tries to smuggle animals to Sweden," Thelberg told The Associated Press.

Minnelli brought her dog with her on a bus in which she traveled from the Netherlands.

Her hotel said she was not available for comment. But Minnelli's press agent in New York, Allen Eichhorn, said "that dog has been all over Europe and all over the world. If officials hadn't informed her or they didn't know in advance, who's to suspect it's illegal."

Swedish laws require dogs be put in quarantine for four months to guard against rabies.

Divorce filed by wife of Anthony Newman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The third wife of actor-composer Anthony Newman filed for divorce, seeking undisclosed support payments for herself and the couple's two children.

Darrah Newley cited irreconcilable differences as the reason for the breakup of the nine-year marriage, according to a Superior Court petition filed Monday.

Newley, 57, who rote "Candy Man" and "What Kind of Fool Am I" and appeared in 40 films, was previously married to actress Joan Collins, with whom he had two children. His first wife was Ann Lynn.

Newley became an international star with the hit musical, "Stop the World, I Want to Get Out."

'Gypsy' revival debuts soon, ready for tour

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A Broadway-bound revival of "Gypsy" starring Emmy-winning actress Tyne Daly will debut in May in a newly refurbished theater, the theater manager said.

The 30-member cast will rehearse for two weeks, then perform for five days before starting a 14-city national tour on its way to a Broadway opening in November, David Johnson, manager of the Tivoli Theater, said Monday.

"Gypsy" is a revival of the 1959 Broadway musical about stripper Gypsy Rose Lee. Ms. Daly is best known for her role as policewoman Mary Beth Lacey on the television series "Cagney & Lacey," which won her four Emmy awards.

Johns Hopkins names school for Paul Nitze

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johns Hopkins University trustees have honored an arms reduction negotiator by renaming the international studies school The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies.

Dean George R. Packard said the vote Monday was not sought by Nitze, a co-founder of the school in 1943. The school, located in Washington, is a graduate school of international affairs affiliated with the Johns Hopkins Foreign Policy Institute, conceived in 1957 by Nitze.

The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G. General Audiences, all ages admitted
- P.G. Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- P.G. 13. Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.
- R. Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian
- X. No one under 17 admitted.

Agents arrest escapee from Leavenworth

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A prison escapee and suspected bank robber who underwent plastic surgery to look like actor Robert De Niro was captured Tuesday with a large amount of cash in Florida, federal officials said.

Robert Litchfield, 40, was grabbed by agents of the U.S. Marshals Service, which had assigned a special task force to him after he escaped last month from the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

"It appears he is a creature of habit. There was no doubt he was going back to bank robbing and he would go back to a hot part of the country," said Kent Pekarek, the U.S. marshal for Kansas.

The marshal said Litchfield had black, puffy eyes, "which indicated he had just received plastic surgery of his eyes and ears to alter his original appearance."

"Robert De Niro is his idol. ... He said he altered his appearance so he would look like Robert De Niro," Pekarek said.

When he was arrested, in Pensacola Beach, Fla., he carried papers identifying him as a lawyer and a probation officer. A weapon was found in a vehicle he had purchased, Pekarek said, but it turned out to be a pellet gun.

Litchfield, the first escapee from Leavenworth in a dozen years, passed himself off as an employee and walked out the front door of the prison to a waiting cab March 10. He was allegedly spotted in various parts of the Kansas City area for a few days before he dropped from sight.

Litchfield was serving time for bank robberies in Florida. Pekarek said he has a criminal record dating to a 1969 burglary conviction in Colorado Springs, and that he had other convictions in Clayton, Mo., Texarkana, Texas, and in Pennsylvania and Florida.

Pekarek said Litchfield is a suspect in the March 24 holdup of Georgia Federal Bank in Tucker, Ga., where a man posing as a utility worker investigating a gas leak fled with about $38,000 in cash.

When Litchfield was arrested Tuesday, he was carrying a briefcase containing what Pekarek characterized only as "a large sum of money" and had about $2,500 in his pockets.

Twin Falls Canal Co. plans water delivery

By MARTA CLEVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The beginning of next week is probably the earliest Twin Falls Canal Co. shareholders can expect to begin receiving water, a company official said Tuesday.

A break in the canal bank near Hansen last week has put off the delivery date originally set for two days ago. A new delivery date has been set for this Saturday, but that probably is too optimistic, said Jack Eakin, the canal company manager.

Even so, shareholders probably won't have to do without needed water, he said.

"Only a few farmers are going to need it immediately," he said. Sugar beet farmers will need it first.

The canal company accepts no responsibility for the canal break that caused flooding in part of Hansen and damaged about a dozen homes, he said.

Because the canal bank gave way right where a Chevron Pipeline Co. pipeline that passes under the canal had been repaired recently, the responsibility is Chevron's, Eakin said.

"If it had broken somewhere else, we would have jumped right in," Eakin said. But a quick repair was hampered because Chevron doesn't allow others to work near its pipelines, he said, explaining the canal company's seeming lack of involvement in the initial repair and cleanup.

Chevron Co. officials could not be reached for comment Tuesday. Chevron has been paying for the cleanup of Hansen homes and yards, but it has not accepted full responsibility for the accident.

Eakin said he has worked with dams for many years, and experience has taught him only a small area of weakness in a bank is needed to make the entire wall wash out.

If, after repairing its pipeline, Chevron had recomputed the bank to the canal company's specifications there would have been no break, he said.

"I thought (the issue) might have to go to litigation but I don't think it will come to that," Eakin said.

Once the water does start coming to shareholders, there will be no shortage, Eakin said.

"It won't be an extreme amount, but we will have a good water year," he said. "I don't think we will have to buy water this year."

Woman, Buhl settle civil rights lawsuit

BUHL - A woman has settled a civil rights lawsuit against the city and one of its police officers.

In July 1987, Barbara Holesinsky tried to rush a cut and bleeding 16-year-old boy to the hospital in her vehicle.

She had asked a policeman for an escort as she drove past his stopped car, but instead several police and Twin Falls sheriff's chased and stopped her.

Officer Martin Cox, a defendant in the lawsuit, handcuffed Holesinsky and cited her for violating traffic laws.

Her lawyer, Boise attorney Donald Lojek, called the settlement favorable but said he couldn't release specifics.

The trial had been scheduled to start Tuesday.

Citizens to discuss INEL waste storage on TV show

TWIN FALLS - Radioactive waste storage and proposed defense projects at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will be discussed on a TV program tonight.

The Town Hall discussion will be broadcast on KTVB Channel 7 and 38 from 7 to 8 p.m.

It will feature a panel of citizens and federal officials including Don Ofte, INEL manager; Jim Reed, executive director of Citizens for INEL; Liz Paul, leader of the Snake River Alliance; Mark Stubbs, Twin Falls County Republican Party chairman and a leader of Voters Organized to Educate; and Father W. Thomas Paucher, Pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart in Boise.

Filer firm enters overseas market with machinery

FILER - ACI Sales & Service of Filer has broken into the overseas market with a large order of farm machinery and parts bound for Australia.

On April 18, ACI will ship a Logan potato harvester and windrower plus Acme Manufacturing and Logan spare parts to an Australian corporation with farming operations.

ACI currently exports a large quantity of farming equipment to Canada. The $100,000 Australian sale represents the company's first overseas export transaction.

ACI is the representative for both Acme of Filer and Logan of Idaho Falls.

Gold-prospecting seminar to be held in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS - A free gold-prospecting seminar will be held from 7 to 11 p.m. Thursday at the Canyon Springs Inn sponsored by the Gold Prospectors Association of America.

The seminar promises to identify places to find gold near Twin Falls. A demonstration of gold panning and recovering gold from black sand will be given. New Bureau of Land Management rules and regulations will be discussed.

The featured speaker will be George Massie, president of the association. Other speakers will be Jake Hartwick on electronic prospecting and Gene Brooks, a mining engineer.

Montana's Mother of Year to speak at Robert Stuart

TWIN FALLS - Alana Myers, Montana's 1987 Mother of the Year, and mother of eight, will talk about teen sexuality, abortion and chastity Thursday evening at Robert Stuart Junior-High School. A news item Tuesday listed the wrong school.

Sponsored by local churches and businessmen, "Real Sex...Real Life" will begin at 7 p.m. and will include Myers' presentation, videos and live music.

All parents and young people 12 and older are welcome at this free "youth rally." Contact Jim Evans at 733-9330 or 734-4859 for more information.

Attorney General Jones to address Salvation Army

TWIN FALLS - Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones is the featured speaker Friday at the Salvation Army Advisory Board annual dinner.

"The Many Faces of Magic Valley" is the theme of the dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the Salvation Army Headquarters.

The buffet dinner for the evening will feature ethnic dishes that represent the faces of the Magic Valley area. There will range from chimichanga to sweet and sour pork to European cabbage rolls. Tickets are $2.50 donation to the Salvation Army and available at 348 Fourth Ave. N. or by calling 733-8720 and at the door Friday.

Panel proposes plans for anti-racism event

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Anti-apartheid balloons put in storage after a Jerome anti-racism rally was cancelled may be blown up in Twin Falls as early as this month.

Members of the Magic Valley Human Rights Coalition discussed during their Tuesday evening meeting inflating and releasing the balloons as part of a "Friendship Day," which would coincide with an Aryan Nations national youth conference April 21-23 at Hayden Lake in northern Idaho.

Although the event is still tentative, the coalition will be working with the College of Southern Idaho's student senate to iron out such details as the date, time and place and to gain official permission.

"We're looking for ways to reach out in positive ways for community educational and community experience to help us gain a better appreciation of the diversity of life in the valley," said Tom Tucker, coalition member and United Methodist pastor.

A "Friendship Walk" on the CSI fitness trail is also being considered as part of the day's activities.

Discussion at the coalition meeting focused on the events surrounding a Jerome High School teacher's failed efforts to organize an anti-racism rally.

Dick Jordan decided to cancel his rally after school officials said he could not have it on school grounds and Jerome law enforcement officials warned him of possible conflicts with white supremacists.

Tucker said the cancellation of the Jerome rally helped bring the coalition together and that the group sees the incident as "a symptom of the problem."

Old Bon Marche building may be re-occupied soon

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The downtown domino effect continues, with the old Bon Marche building becoming the latest piece of Main Avenue real estate to attract a buyer.

It looks like the building is close to being sold and will be occupied by a retailer this summer - everything is falling into place, announced Emery Peterson, chairman of the downtown Business Improvement District's board, during a meeting Tuesday.

Realtor Doug Vollmer confirmed that a purchase agreement should be signed this week. Vollmer would not name the buyer.

The Hood family of New Jersey, who owns the 40,000-square-foot building, first offered it to the city last year. City officials turned it down and the owners later offered the building to the county.

But after touring the vacated department store and finding asbestos wrapped around basement pipes, county commissioners also rejected the building, citing the high cost of asbestos removal.

The Bon Marche was just one of several buildings left vacant after a stampede to the Magic Valley Mall a few years ago. This spring, however, has brought an infusion of new life to downtown after Universal Frozen Foods leased the former First Federal Savings and Loan building and Claude Brown's Music & Furniture bought the J.C. Penney building.

"It just seems to have broken loose," said Sue Jones, BID director who predicted the downtown domino effect a few weeks ago. "I knew that all it would take would be for one of them to go and the interest would take hold. It really started with the J.C. Penney building."

Richard Gibb reflects on U of I presidency

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Most people would be bothered if they learned their replacement would take home at least $20,000 more in their annual paycheck.

But Richard Gibb, president of the University of Idaho, thinks it's a great idea. In fact, after he tendered his retirement notice last year, Gibb said he lobbied members of the Idaho Board of Education to boost the U of I president's salary to above $100,000, a significant hike from his own annual pay of less than $82,000, but in line with what other university presidents are making across the country.

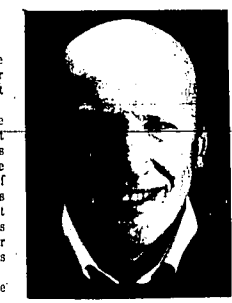

"You do what you have to do to get the right person," Gibb said.

He thinks the board has found the right person in Elizabeth Zinser, dean of academic affairs at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro. She will take office July 1.

Gibb, who became the university's 13th president in 1977 after serving as head of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education, was honored in Twin Falls Tuesday evening at a dinner attended by local U of I alumni.

Gibb, 60, explained in an afternoon interview that he decided to step down once the university's centennial celebration is over because of a "strong feeling that university presidents usually stay too long."

Gibb holds a doctorate in agricultural economics and will remain affiliated with the university, holding the title "president emeritus and distinguished professor."

He said he is looking forward to returning to teaching. And he may even enroll in a few classes himself - like music and art. But one role he will not assume at the university is that of second-guesser.

"I'm going to be very reluctant to give advice to my successor," Gibb said. "I'm not going to intercede or second guess, but I'll be glad to answer questions and offer insight when asked."

Reflecting on his tenure as president, Gibb said he is most pleased about the core curriculum established to provide all students with classes in arts, humanities, the sciences and social sciences.

Airport liability worries officials

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - City officials fear some airport hangar tenants may carry inadequate liability insurance, leaving the city vulnerable for damages an insurer does not pay.

"A lot of people are very conscientious on respects like that - others aren't," said Airport Manager Ron Madsen.

Airport officials will meet with about 16 hangar tenants to try to persuade them to carry group insurance, Madsen said. The insurance would be less costly than individual policies, and the city would be sure that all the hangars are sufficiently insured, he said.

"We just want to get the loopholes covered and do it as a savings to the hangar owners," Madsen said.

Jerome considers new school

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - A public meeting is set for early May to discuss the need for a new elementary school in town.

"Are we ready to request some input and make some plans?" asked Superintendent Richard Kugler at Monday's School Board meeting. The board decided it would consider a new school building to deal with the district's overcrowding problem. The meeting is set for 7:30-9:30 p.m. May 4 at Central Elementary School.

In related matters, the board approved converting Central's small auditorium into a fourth-grade classroom and enlarging the kitchen at Jefferson Elementary.

Publisher faces theft charges

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

GOODING - The publisher of the valley's newest newspaper has been charged with illegally selling equipment from a newspaper he used to run, the Gooding County Leader.

And court records say some of the Leader's equipment may have ended up at his new newspaper.

Steve P. McMullen, Jerome County Courier publisher, declined comment on the charges.

"Well, the only thing I can say is I do have an attorney and I have no comment," McMullen said Tuesday. "And coming from a newspaper publisher, that's hard to do."

McMullen's attorney, Greg Fuller, said only that he will request a preliminary hearing.

McMullen is charged with grand theft of less than $1,000 worth of equipment, but court records indicate the Leader may have lost $34,000 worth of equipment.

McMullen opened the Courier's doors in November to compete with Jerome's North Side News. He has resigned less than two months before his publisher of the North Side News, the Gooding County Leader and the Lincoln County Journal.

The alleged thefts reportedly occurred during McMullen's tenure as publisher of the three papers, from August 1986 to September 1988, when all three papers were owned by Phillips Media. McMullen left shortly after Gozian-Driver Media Service bought the newspapers.

The two pieces of equipment that led to the criminal charges were allegedly sold to Paul Janacson, owner of a print shop in Wendell, and Mel Moeller, owner of Print Masters in Twin Falls, according to court documents filed by Gooding police Lt. Paul Brown.

Court documents indicate the two buyers believed the sales to be legitimate, but McMullen had no authority to sell the equipment, Brown alleges.

Brown's affidavit also says equipment from the Gooding paper later turned up in the office of the Jerome County Courier. According to Brown, Patty Nance, a former employee of the Gooding paper who now is editor of the North Side News, said she recognized some of the equipment shown in a KMYT-TV report about McMullen's new paper.

Nance said she thought some of the equipment in McMullen's Courier office came from the leader.

The Jerome County Sheriff's Department served McMullen with a summons Monday. He is first scheduled to appear in court April 18, Brown said.

elementary building would cost $2.5-$3 million, although figures this early are tentative. The school would be built on land north of Forsyth Park the district bought for $45,000.

The building almost assuredly would be funded through bonds and wouldn't be built before 1992, Kugler said. The district's $1.2 million bond for the high school should be paid off April 1, 1993, he said.

Kugler proposes that the new building house about 700 students and that Washington Elementary School, once the older buildings in the area, be closed.

The new building should allow the district to come in under state maximums per classroom, Kugler said.

Following the public meeting, the board has tentative plans to form a citizens committee, employ an architect and develop some specific goals for expansion.

In what Kugler called a "stopgap measure," the board decided to take the seats out of Central's small auditorium and build a floor level with the stage for an additional fourth-grade class. Kugler estimated the cost of the project, which he hopes to complete over the summer, to be about $3,000. The board agreed to hire a teacher for the new class and try to use school improvement appropriation money for the entire project.

Also, the board approved a $75,000 plan to enlarge the kitchen at Jefferson. Much of the labor probably will be provided by the district so the basic cost will be for materials, estimated at $35,000. The expansion is needed to handle increased enrollment, Kugler said.

The board decided to pay for the project out of this year's and next year's plant facilities budget.

In other matters:

- The board took under advisement a protest against its decision not to re-hire Susan Jones as varsity volleyball coach next year. A dozen area residents attended the meeting to deliver a letter to the board. The letter, which was read by Priscilla Malone, charged that the board made its decision without hearing both sides of the issue.
- Kugler said after the meeting that Jones continues to teach physical education at the junior high but was released from the extra volleyball duties because of her lack of success in that area, particularly in terms of the growth of the girls' inside the program.
- The district's director of special services, Barbara O'Rourke, reported on the school's new services for handicapped 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds. The school district is currently working to identify needs and to plan programs for children in that age group who have physical handicaps, speech/language impairments, visual and hearing impairments and problems with social, emotional or self-help skills or gross and fine motor delays, she said.
- Senior high Principal Gerald Diehl told the board that Christopher Rasch, a senior, received first place in the Idaho Department of Energy 1989 Science Student Honors Program, sponsored by Broadhaven National Laboratories.

that we have work to do in the community," he said.

Jordan was unable to attend the coalition meeting.

The coalition, formerly known as the Magic Valley Human Rights Task Force, also discussed organizing an event centered around Cinco de Mayo, May 5, an Hispanic holiday celebrating Mexico's independence from Spain.

Coalition members suggested a rally of some kind for a march and speakers.

The group decided to send a letter of support to Jordan and to teachers who wrote letters to the editor that appeared in The Times-News.

And it is also planning to bring Bill Wassmuth, the new executive director of the Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment, to Jerome for a dinner or speaking engagement.

Teen faces rape charge

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A 16-year-old Idaho Falls boy has been charged as an adult in an assault on a 65-year-old woman.

Adrian Barajas appeared Monday before Bonneville County Magistrate Marvin Smith on charges of rape, aggravated assault, inflicting crime against nature and robbery.

Smith scheduled a preliminary hearing for April 18.

Madsen said a cost projection will tell officials whether the project can be done in one year or two.

Gerber will also determine what percentage of the project is for general public use and which part would improve spaces for private companies, Madsen said.

If the Federal Aviation Administration approves the project, the FAA will pay for 75 percent of improvements that benefit the general public, including an outside, canopied entrance.

Gibb said he is also proud that the university's electrical engineering department was one of only nine schools in the country to land a grant from the NASA Institute and he is especially proud of Susan Bruns, a U of I alumna from Eden who was named a Rhodes Scholar for this year.

The U of I is gaining a reputation for the excellence of its chemistry, forestry, mines and engineering departments, Gibb said. In these areas, he said the university can hold its own with some of the best programs in the country.

He stresses that a university must be strong in all academic endeavors, but even Gibb concedes that a university and a state university system must not become bogged down by trying to do too much.

He is headed in the right direction in attempting to take education to the people, especially in remote areas with satellite programs, Gibb said. "But just because one person in Hailey wants to attend medical school, doesn't mean we should establish a medical school there."

Similarly, Gibb thinks it makes good business sense for each university in a state to offer different areas of specialization.

For example, in Idaho, he said Boise State University is known for the political sciences, Idaho State University for its schools of pharmacy and business, Lewis and Clark for its vocational education program.

Hansen City Council approves new address system

By LYNDA BOODY
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — Emergency and delivery vehicles will soon have an easier time locating Hansen city residents. The City Council Monday approved a new address system for the town, south of Highway 30. Hansen resident Alice Perkins proposed the re-numbering plan because the current system is confusing.

"House numbering has been wrong for sometime," Mayor George Urie said.

The new system uses Highway 30 as the north-south boundary and Main Street as the east-west boundary. The first block south of the highway and east and west of Main will be numbered 100 and expand outward by 100.

The west side of Rock Creek Road and the highway will continue the numbering system used by Twin Falls County. The east side of Rock Creek Road will be included in the new system.

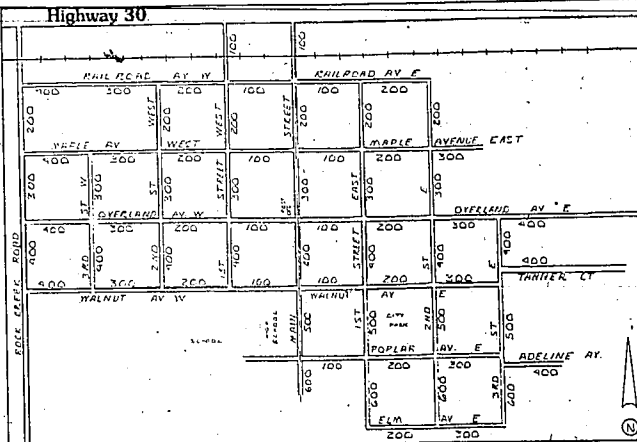

The change won't cost local residents anything. US West Communications will provide the reflective green numbers for each resident and business and the council plans to provide people to deliver the numbers door-to-door and install them.

This would be paid for through grants available from US West, Urie said. The grant funds could also pay for new street signs and general costs of establishing the new address system.

Perkins has prepared a reference guide with resident names, old and new addresses and phone numbers to help with utility and delivery companies.

Numbers could begin going up within a month, Urie said.

"It is gonna be fantastic," Robert Thomas, head of the Department of Public Safety, said. "I'm gonna know exactly where to go, instead of going on one side of Overland and then turning around and going to the other side." The current system has resulted in duplicate house numbers in town.

Residents attending the council meeting were in favor of the new system.

"It's a small price to pay if you're waiting for an ambulance," said Terry Johnson, volunteer firefighter.

Some residents said the current system has resulted in their utilities being shut off and problems with deliveries.

In other business:

Urie told the council all volunteer firemen now have papers and that the system worked well during last week's flood. "I think it's the best thing to come to this town," he said.

The council approved buying an oxygen bottle for the police car for emergencies. Thomas chose an oxygen bottle over repairing the city siren since firefighters have papers.

The council approved the revised comprehensive plan, which has updated frontages on property and other figures. Copies of the plan are available at City Hall. The city plans to notify Union Pacific Railroad Co. that the railroad crossing on Rock Creek Road needs to be repaired. Urie said UP is aware of the problem but has been unable to get it repaired for several years. The city will work with the school to make a request for repair of the crossing. The condition of the crossing is probably hurting the school buses, Urie said.

The zoning commission earlier in the evening approved a request by Robert and Katherine Waymunt to place a mobile home on First Street West, between Overland and Walnut avenues, providing it meets local ordinances, including that it be put on a permanent foundation.

Resident Richard Vauser presented the committee with a petition, signed by seven residents, against the request. Vauser said the trailer would lower the value of his property.

Katherine Waymunt asked for facts to back up the claim, but none were available.

Anyone disagreeing with the decision has 15 days to file a protest, in which case the matter will be settled by the City Council. If no protests are filed, the Waymunts will be allowed to move their mobile home onto the property they plan to purchase.

Buhl could get block grant money by May

By MIKEL BENTON
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The city could receive its $352,450 in federal block grant money by the end of the month to begin improvements to city facilities which will play a crucial role in the $4.5 million planned expansion of Pet Inc.

Scott Bybee of J-U-B Engineers Inc. of Twin Falls told the City Council Monday the city's request to the Idaho Department of Commerce to release the funds might give the city the money by April 26. This takes into account a 15-day review period.

The city has studied the environmental impact of the planned improvements and published the results. The proposed project will have very little environmental effect, Bybee said.

Meanwhile, a committee consisting of Bybee, Public Works Director Gary Winn, Council President Marie Maier and a member of the Buhl Economic Development Council was formed to look at possible well sites.

A new well to increase water available to the city is considered important to enable Pet to begin producing B&M Baked Beans in 1990. The other two projects are improvements to Highway 30 and upgrading the city's already strained waste-water treatment plant.

The first item on the agenda is digging the well. Bybee said. "The well is the biggest question mark in the entire budget." Variables such as depth and volume of the well can't be predicted, he said. "We can't really design the rest of the water system until we know that," he said.

Plans were also made to begin looking for an administrator for the project.

"There's a lot of work that's going to be needed to get done in the next couple of months," Bybee said. "The economic council can't do it all. I don't think that's reasonable. We need a certified administrator to do the work."

Bybee also told the council Buhl's preliminary application for a $550,100 Economic Development Association grant has been accepted and the city has been invited to submit a final application, due May 12.

Carleen Pierce, of Region Four Development, said the city had to reassure the EDA the project was not a highway project, which isn't allowed.

In other business, Helene Byrne, chairwoman of the Buhl Beautification Task Force, told the council Pet Milk has offered the city the Austrian Pine trees which stand on the site of the planned expansion. Committee member Frank Southwick said about 20 of the 12-to-15-foot trees look healthy enough to survive transplanting.

Bybee suggested the city begin an Adopt-a-Tree program to finance the project. "I'd put my name on one, because the city's been awful good to me," he said. "I think with a little effort you could probably get all 20 trees. They're beautiful trees and they're worth saving."

Four others at the meeting added themselves to the list of donors. Anyone interested in contributing to the project should contact Byrne. Some of the trees may also be available for private purchase.

2 depredation claims shock budget

BOISE (AP) — If the rest of the claims on a special state fund for wildlife damage are anything like the first two, the $500,000 allocated isn't going to be enough.

Gov. Cecil Andrus says he thinks ranchers who use state and federal land to graze livestock, forage that might help support wild animals, will have to balance that use against their claims against the state fund.

Last week, the state began accepting claims for wildlife depredation in the last six months of 1988. They will be paid from a $500,000 fund contained in the Fish and Game Department budget.

Auditor J.D. Williams, who receives the claim in his role as secretary to the Board of Examiners, has two claims so far, totaling $253,000. The deadline for submitting the claims is May 1. For damage in the first five months of 1989, the deadline is June 1.

Howe rancher Russell Mays, whose property adjoins the western boundary of the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, estimated his loss at $123,257. He said it was mainly hay at $100 per ton consumed by thousands of head of antelope which poured onto his property during the winter.

The second claim was filed by Randall and Dawnella Barney, who ranch on the eastern edge of INEL at Montevideo.

They asked just under $130,000 in damages, including hay valued at $110 per ton from 320 acres damaged from antelope off INEL range.

Barney also asked $1,480 to replace the reel on a hay swather, which he said was damaged because he hit many dead antelope in his fields.

Williams discussed the claims with members of the Board of Examiners Tuesday, although it was not a formal meeting. A subcommittee of board members is working to determine whether the claims will be handled on a first-come, first-served or a pro-rata basis, with all valid claims getting at least partial payment.

Williams said it appears the claims will have to be paid on a proportionate basis. "It's probably the fairest way," he said.

Woman files suit against adoptive father

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — In a rare legal action, a woman who was sexually molested by her adoptive father as a child has filed a lawsuit against him and her adoptive mother in 1st District Court.

Teresa J. Rodgers, 18, is asking for damages in excess of $10,000 from George D. Rodgers and Anita Rodgers McKenzie Bosworth for "serious and possibly irreparable psychological injury," according to her complaint filed last week.

George Rodgers pleaded guilty on Oct. 16, 1984, in Kootenai County to three counts of local conduct with a minor under age 16, court records show. He was sentenced to three concurrent 18-year prison terms. But the judge in the case retained jurisdiction for 180 days.

He was granted probation on April 10, 1985, and released from custody, records show.

Complaints like Ms. Rodgers' by child victims of child sexual abuse are "fairly rare" in Idaho, said Pat Kukuruzas, Kootenai County victim-witness program coordinator.

They are "relatively infrequent" nationally as well, said Howard Davidson, director of the American Bar Association National Legal Resource Center for Child Advocacy and Protection in Washington, D.C.

However, Davidson said they may become more prevalent. "Incest survivors are exploring their legal alternatives," he said.

Authorities crack down on 'curbstoners'

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Idaho could be losing $1 million per year in sales tax revenue to "curbstone" car dealers who neglect to report their sales.

The Idaho Department of Transportation is gearing up to put illegal car dealers out of business. T. Rex Green, dealer operations supervisor, said the department, working with used car dealers, is cracking down on "curbstoners," those who sell cars illegally.

On Tuesday, Squires planned to stop at suspected curbsone operations in Post Falls, Hayden Lake, Coeur d'Alene and Rathdrum and post warning fliers on vehicles for sale.

The pilot run at tracking curbstoners will begin in Coeur d'Alene and may move throughout the state if successful, Squires said.

Green recommends consumers ask to look at the title of the car before purchase to be certain the seller's name is listed. If the car turns out to be a lemon, the buyer has some recourse.

Curbstoners have no dealer licenses, bonding or insurance or bona fide car lot. They often lie to consumers, saying the car is in better shape than it actually is, Green said. Such operators frequently buy from auctions, often not signing their names on car titles and leaving a tough trail for investigators.

"That is a bunch of sales tax being avoided," Green said, about the estimated $1 million loss.

Man dies in freak accident at warehouse

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A railroad employee from Pocatello died of head injuries after being struck by a boxcar door at the Sunspiced potato warehouse west of Blackfoot.

A spokesman at Pocatello Regional Medical Center said David

Davis, 39, died at 5:20 p.m. Monday.

Bingham County Sheriff's Capt. Bill Gordon said Davis was between two railroad cars, turning on their refrigeration units, when the accident occurred Monday morning.

Tugboat fire stops reactor's journey

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A fire aboard a tugboat halted the trip of a decommissioned nuclear reactor for about seven hours today, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

The fire broke out in the engine room about 3:30 a.m., when the barge was just above Bonneville Dam.

Wendy Anderson of the Knappan Corp. in Portland, which owns the tug, said there were no injuries and at no time was there any danger of the reactor vessel going aground," she said.

Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Guy Nolan said a backup tug was hooked up to the barge carrying the reactor while another tug was dispatched from Portland. The barge resumed its upriver trip about 10:45 a.m., he said.

Nolan said he was unsure what caused the fire aboard the Clarkston. "We had a report that there were a few burned wires or something," he said. "They took it over by the shore and got the fire put out. The Clarkston is now coming back up to Portland under its own power."

The barge crossed the Columbia River bar near Astoria about 9 a.m. Monday to start the final two-day leg of an 8,000-mile trip from Shippingport, Pa.

About 50 anti-nuclear protesters watched from the Interstate Bridge over the river as the barge passed Portland's north edge just after midnight.

A kayaker, Stan Overbay, paddled out to the barge at Astoria and placed himself in front of the lead tugboat. A Coast Guard vessel jockeyed him out of the way and the barge continued without stopping.

"They've got no business bringing that stuff over here," said Overbay of the low-level radioactive waste on the barge Paul Bunyan.

McClure wants to avoid 'Appalachia in the West'

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be a "new Appalachia in the West" unless changes are made to U.S. Forest Service timber harvest procedures, says Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

While questioning Forest Service Chief Dale Robertson at a Senate appropriations subcommittee hearing, McClure said the Forest Service currently has less than half the 11.5 billion board feet of timber needed to sustain established mills prepared and available for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

"To reach that goal, McClure said Congress would have to add $18 million to the Forest Service budget over the next two years. He called that unlikely.

Robertson said his agency's efforts now are focusing on this year's timber sales program.

"What we're doing as a matter of national policy," either intentionally or inadvertently, is that we're creating a new Appalachia in the West," McClure said. "I don't think that's the right kind of policy for us to pursue, when everyone concedes that there is enough timber in those forests to meet the timber demands of the industry as well as the environmental demands that are being made on those resources."

Failure to ensure adequate timber is available for harvest from national forest land will cause irreparable harm to people who depend for their livelihood on local timber operations, McClure said.

"Two years from now, you'll still have your job. Your people will be drawing a paycheck. Your incomes will not have changed. But there will be a lot of working men and women throughout the timber communities of the West that will be down flat on their uppers," McClure told Robertson. "We've got to find a way now to deal with the process question."

Land swap agreement helps Boise Airport growth plans

BOISE (AP) — Members of the state Land Board say they will be "good neighbors" and not stand in the way of future expansion of the Boise Airport.

The Land Board voted 4-1 Tuesday to trade 160 acres of state-owned land south of the Boise Airport to the airport for future expansion. In return, the state will get a 160-acre parcel the airport is buying from a private owner. It is adjacent to another 160 acres the state already owns.

The state-owned parcel is east of Pleasant Valley Road; the parcel it is receiving is west of the road.

Airport Director John Anderson said the 160 acres of state land is in an area planned for a future runway. It's about one mile south of the airport.

But Land Board member Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, said the Land Board shouldn't make the trade. He voted against it. He said if the state keeps the land, in the future it might become even more valuable to the airport for expansion.

"We're trading away future value," said Evans, whose primary assignment on the Land Board is to protect the income that goes into public school endowment funds.

Anderson, and Department of Lands officials, contended that if the airport expands, the land west of the road will become more valuable. "We feel the ultimate value is in property adjacent to the airport which can be developed," said Lands Director Stan Hamilton.

"There's nothing to prevent us from being good neighbors," said Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Anderson said runway expansion is at least 10 years away, perhaps the year 2000, but the airport needs to prevent development that would be in the flight path of the proposed runway.

The airport will purchase land valued at $173,000 for 161 acres and trade it for 160 acres of state land valued at $176,000. The state will get an extra $3,000 in cash.

In other Land Board action Tuesday:

• The board approved sale of the old governor's mansion in Boise, as authorized by the Legislature. A title report and appraisal will be prepared.

Lewiston may get acute care center

LEWISTON (AP) — Officials at St. Joseph Regional Medical Center in Lewiston are planning a study on the feasibility of setting up an acute medical rehabilitation unit.

The unit, which would be the first of its kind in the region, would provide "the acute care needed to rehabilitate the patient back to the maximum level of functional ability," said hospital administrator Howard Hayes.

Patients who have suffered from cancer, stroke, cardiac problems or spinal-cord injury would benefit from the facility, he said.

Now many patients who need this type of rehabilitation are being referred to Spokane, Seattle and Portland, while others are in long-term care with no rehabilitation, he said.

The study would update a similar one conducted in 1985, which concluded the project would be feasible. It was not implemented because the hospital had other priorities at the time.

The rehabilitation unit will involve occupational, speech and physical therapy and psycho-social counseling. Ten beds are planned for its first year.

Boise to expand sex ed program

BOISE (AP) — The Boise School Board has voted to expand a sex education elective course for high school seniors to sophomores and juniors this fall, and to eighth-grade students next January.

The board voted 5 to 1 on Monday after trustees heard an enrollment report showing only 77 of next school year's high school seniors had signed up for the fall semester family life education course. Administrators had expected about 300 to sign up.

Trustee Rory Jones made the motion to extend the course to all high school students in the fall and to try out the course at three junior highs next year.

"When I heard the pre-enrollment numbers, that told me we're not providing the class to the right group of people," Jones said after the meeting. The message I get is that 12th grade is too late.

Trustee David Hawk cast the lone opposition vote, saying he thought the course should be offered to ninth-graders instead of eighth-graders.

The controversial course was launched this semester at Capital High School.

Marlys Erickson, who is teaching the pilot course at Capital, said she is pleased the class will be offered in the lower grades.

Soviet space station to be unmanned

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Mir space station will return to Earth April 27 and the orbiter will be unmanned for the first time in more than two years, Tass said Tuesday.

The official news agency made no mention of the previously scheduled launch of two other cosmonauts April 19, but apparently it has been called off.

The return of Alexander Volkov, Sergei Krikalev and Valery Polyakov puts an end to the permanent manning of the Mir orbiter since February 1987 when Yuri Romanenko and Alexander Laveikin boarded the spacecraft.

Mir, which the Soviets have said is the first part of a permanently manned space station, was launched into orbit in February 1986.

Japan's head admits to taking money

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita reversed himself before Parliament on Tuesday, acknowledging he accepted $1 million from a company at the hub of a political scandal that has prompted calls for his resignation.

Though Takeshita went before lawmakers seeking to clear his name in the nationally televised session, opposition leaders and some conservative analysts said he only raised more doubts.

"I'm not sure why Takeshita decided to speak today," said Keiichiro Nakamura, who served on an aide to former Prime Minister Takeo Miki. "But if it was to increase the people's trust in the Liberal Democratic Party, he probably did more harm than good."

Syrians fight in Beirut despite truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian gunners shelled Christian areas Tuesday in spite of a 6-day-old truce called by the Arab League, and Paris sent an envoy to work out a distribution plan for two shipments of French humanitarian aid.

Police said the howitzer shells landed in a scattered pattern in Christian territory and no casualties were reported. They said the Christians held their fire.

Moslem-Christian artillery duels began five weeks ago and developed into the worst sectarian fighting since 1985 in Lebanon's 14-year-old civil war. Police give the casualties, nearly all civilians, as 180 killed and 619 wounded.

Gen. Michel Aoun, who commands the 20,000 Christians of Lebanon's army, imposed a blockade March 6 on illegal militia-run ports that deprive the government of an estimated $100 million a year in revenue.

Palestinians march through Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hundreds of masked youths marched through the Old City's narrow streets Tuesday, waving outlawed Palestinian flags and carrying a Palestinian killed by a Jewish gunman the day before.

One policeman fired tear gas at the procession and another fired rubber bullets, wounding a marcher. Police said they had detained three Jews "suspected to be linked to Monday's shooting, in which three other Palestinians were wounded.

When the mourners reached the Al Aqsa mosque compound, four young men climbed to the mosque roof and raised a large Palestinian flag while the crowd sang the Palestinian anthem "Biladi, Biladi" (My Homeland, My Homeland).

Tunisia president shakes up Cabinet

TUNISIA, Tunis (AP) — President Zine El Abidine Ben Ali shook up his Cabinet on Tuesday, nine days after he won 99 percent of the vote running unopposed in the country's first presidential elections in 14 years.

Ben Ali installed five new ministers and reappointed 11 others to help him fulfill his pledge to make Tunisia more democratic.

The president legalized opposition parties shortly after taking power in a palace coup in November 1987, ousting leader Habib Bourguiba. Ben Ali appointed Abdullah Kallal as defense minister, a portfolio formerly held by Ben Ali himself. Kallal, 51, had served as secretary-general in the Defense Ministry.

Pakistani leader Bhutto to visit U.S.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto will make her first official visit to the United States in June, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Tuesday.

The prime minister is to meet President Bush and members of his administration and Congress during the trip, which begins June 5, the spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

Ms. Bhutto, 35, also will address Harvard University graduation exercises on June 8. She is a graduate of Harvard's Radcliffe College.

Ms. Bhutto assumed office Dec. 2, after her Pakistan People's Party won the largest bloc of votes in the country's first free polls in more than a decade.

"Afghanistan will be the main topic" the Bush-Bhutto meeting, Pakistani diplomats said.

Washington is one of the largest supporters of the Afghan resistance, which has been fighting Afghanistan's communist government for more than a decade.

Indian villagers fight to stop missile

CHANDIPUR, India (AP) — As dusk descends on this seaside village, men light kerosene lamps and women keep conch shells handy for a night vigil against the enemy — a ballistic missile.

It is not from an enemy country. Chandipur's 12,000 villagers want to stall the test-firing of India's first long-range ballistic missile.

They say it is potentially dangerous and eventually will make them homeless. They fear the missile named "AGNI," which means "fire" in Hindi, may carry nuclear warheads.

The test-firing scheduled later this month will bracket India along with the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and China in ballistic missile capability, military experts say.

It also will enhance the power of India's 1.36 million-strong army and the country's geopolitical influence in the region, they say.

Grace Jones out of jail in Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Singer-actress Grace Jones was freed from jail Tuesday after a court granted her bail on a charge of possessing cocaine.

Magistrate Carol Lawrence-Beswick freed the Jamaica-born Ms. Jones on $2,700 bail on condition she returns for trial June 6.

Ms. Jones, 36, who became a movie star in the James Bond film "A View to a Kill," sat on a prisoner's bench, occasionally conferring with her lawyer. She was not asked to enter a plea.

Her lawyer, Tom Tavares-Finson, told the court the entertainer is not a drug user, and is involved in the campaign against drug abuse.

Soviets plan to raise nuclear submarine

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet navy said Tuesday it plans to retrieve a nuclear submarine that sank off Norway to learn what caused the accident that killed 42 sailors.

"We consider that we must raise it," Vice Adm. Sergei P. Vargin said on the nightly television news program Vremya.

Vargin, who is with the Soviet Baltic Fleet, said details of how to bring the submarine up from nearly 5,000 feet below the surface had not been worked out.

"The experts will deal with it," he said, adding that the hull was believed to be cracked but intact. The sub caught fire and sank Friday in the Norwegian Sea.

Izvestia, the government newspaper, said a short circuit probably caused the fire. Vargin repeated the Soviet position that there is no danger of radiation leakage. He said the reactors were shut down before the crew evacuated and neither of the two nuclear-tipped torpedoes was armed for combat.

In Oslo, Norwegian officials said tests on water samples at the sub's level showed no radiation, but the Norway would not declare the zone "clean" until a more extensive examination late this week.

Soviet media reports Tuesday said the sub commander, Capt. Yevgeny Vanin, pulled a sailor through a smoke-filled hatch, then died while trying to reach other survivors.

"He had spent all his energy saving sailors and he perished in front of his crew," Lt. Andrei Zaitsev told the official news agency Tass from his hospital bed in Murmansk.

Another crew member, Capt. B. Kolyadin, said the first thing the crew did when the fire started was secure the nuclear reactor and nuclear-tipped torpedoes.

Several of the 27 survivors were shown on television greeting their families and praising the courage of shipmates.

One crewman, not identified, said: "We were in the water for an hour and a half, but we never doubted that we would be rescued. There was no panic, absolutely no panic at all."

Official media praised the bravery of the 69 crew members, 42 of whom were killed.

Officials say only 19 bodies have been recovered.

Open letter urges Bush to stay out of C. America

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — An open letter signed by about 600 international artists, religious leaders and academics asks President Bush not to interfere in Central American peace efforts.

It also urged the United States to lift the trade embargo against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government and called on the Bush administration to open talks with Nicaraguan leaders.

Copies of the letter were released to journalists Tuesday by President Daniel Ortega's press office. An aide said the letter would be published in other countries.

Among the signatories were Cuban dancer Alicia Alonso, Spanish poet

Rafael Alberti, American actor Ed Asner, Italian film director Bernardo Bertolucci, Brazilian composer Chico Buarque de Holanda and American composer and conductor Leonard Bernstein.

At the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater was asked about the letter, and he said: "We want to continue to watch the situation in Nicaragua, to keep the pressure on the Sandinistas for change, to keep the pressure on them to live up to their promises. We think there should be discussion between the parties involved."

He also said Secretary of State James A. Baker III has raised the possibility of incentives to the Sandinistas if they make reform efforts but added, "We wouldn't want to speculate on what that would be."

The letter said the Central American nations should be allowed to "resolve on their own their own affairs, without any foreign interference," and peace in Nicaragua "must immediately be re-established."

Police arrest hundreds in Soviet Georgia, seize hunting rifles

MOSCOW (AP) — Police arrested hundreds of people and were seizing tens of thousands of hunting rifles from Soviet Georgians in an attempt to calm the republic, which on Tuesday mourned 19 people killed in a pro-independence rally.

Trucks armed with personnel carriers and soldiers patrolled the streets of the southern republic's capital, Tbilisi, to enforce a ban on public gatherings and an 11 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said he considered it a "sacred" principle that Georgians and others should have the right to express their opinions freely, but said the law set limits on their actions, reported the head of West Germany's Social Democratic Party, who met with Gorbachev on Tuesday.

The question of state power is nothing to be trifled with or taken lightly," Hans-Jochen Vogel quoted the Soviet leader as saying.

Reports indicated a general strike that began Friday to back demands for Georgia's secession was easing. Some buses and trolleys resumed routes Tuesday, said Nana Natadze, the wife of a Georgian nationalist activist. She said many schools remained closed because of a boycott.

Tuesday was declared a day of mourning to mark what the Georgian Communist Party leader, Djumber Patishvili, called "a common grief" — the deaths of civilians killed in a clash Sunday with soldiers and police at the pro-independence demonstration.

Cars and trolleys were adorned with black flags and people wore black clothes and ribbons, said Mrs. Natadze.

"Everything is black," she said in a telephone interview from the city of 1.2 million people, 900 miles south of Moscow. "Everyone's suffering."

Georgian radio and TV canceled regular programs to play dirges and report news, she said. Naniya Logua, another Tbilisi resident whose daughter, Irina Sarishvili, was among a half-dozen Georgian activists arrested over the weekend.

All entertainment activities were called off, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

About 200 people were arrested for violating the curfew, and police were confiscating 66,000 registered hunting rifles from the public temporarily, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov told reporters Tuesday, without giving a reason.

The government daily Izvestia said 464 people were arrested for curfew violations.

Dr. David Lazarevich, an anesthesiologist at the Central Republican Hospital in Tbilisi, said a 32-year-old man died Tuesday morning of injuries suffered in Sunday's clash. He said that brought the death toll from the confrontation to at least 19, although he said he heard unconfirmed reports of as many as 50 deaths.

Gerasimov said at a news briefing Tuesday his latest information put the death toll at 18, and 120 civilians and 75 police and soldiers injured. Tass said more than 200 were hurt.

Guerrillas pass up UN checkpoints

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — U.N. troops opened checkpoints Tuesday in northern Namibia, but South Africa said no guerrillas showed up to begin a withdrawal to salvage a U.N. cease-fire and independence plan for Namibia.

Chief Inspector Kierie du Rand, a South African spokesman for the territorial police, said groups of more than 50 black nationalist insurgents were seen heading south, disobeying orders from their exiled leader to withdraw north to Angola.

Angela's Club and South Africa negotiated the withdrawal at the weekend to get the independence plan back on track after heavy fighting last week.

Guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization are to report to U.N.-supervised assembly points or border posts and leave Namibia by Saturday.

Du Rand said police trackers found evidence that only a handful of guerrillas have crossed back into Angola of an estimated 1,900 which South Africa says entered Namibia starting April 1. Pretoria has won international backing for its assertion the incursion violates a regional peace accord calling for SWAPO fighters to stay at bases in Angola until May 15.

The Namibian Council of Churches said it received no reports of guerrillas appearing at churches and missions, which have been suggested safe gathering places.

French prison inmates release guards, give up

POISSY, France (AP) — About 200 prison inmates took eight guards hostage Tuesday but released them at the end of the day and returned quietly to their cells, authorities said.

Officials assured the inmates no force would be used against them and granted their demand that a prison court review the case of an inmate who was put in an isolation cell Monday, said Jean-Pierre Dintilhac, director of administration at Poissy prison.

The inmates, who were not armed, took six guards hostage at noon, and two more guards voluntarily joined their colleagues. Six guards were freed unharmed at about 8 p.m. and the other two an hour later.

Prison officials, four inmates and representatives of the Justice Ministry negotiated through the afternoon and evening.

About five hours into the revolt, riot police took up positions around the main buildings of the prison, which is 23 miles west of Paris and holds about 450 long-term prisoners.

Kabul claims rebel attack beaten back

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The government claimed Tuesday it has beaten back guerrilla attempts to advance on the besieged city of Jalalabad, but Western diplomats in Pakistan said the government soldiers were still encircled.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Nahi Amami said government troops on Tuesday counterattacked 14,000 U.S.-backed guerrillas around Jalalabad, after the insurgents bombarded the eastern outpost with 18,000 shells and rockets Sunday and Monday, he said.

Troopers killed 318 guerrillas by sundown Tuesday for the loss of only three government soldiers and five civilians, said Amami.

DESIGNED TO LEAVE YOU HIGH AND DRY. FREE WINDOW REPLACEMENT CLINIC FEATURING ANDERSEN® WINDOWS

The new Andersen® French door is designed to be the most lightweight French door made in America.

The Andersen® Multi-Lock system creates a positive impervious seal from top to bottom. A unique raised sill provides a water and thermal barrier. A chamber built along the sill drains off excess water. And to ensure maximum efficiency, even the weatherstrip itself is designed to stay completely dry.

The result? Ours is the only French door in the country to earn the highest possible industry rating for the prevention of air and water infiltration. See it today at your Andersen® window dealer.

Step-by-step demonstration showing you how to:

- Replace windows in your home
- Install Andersen® windows
- Install Andersen® patio doors
- Install Andersen® accessories

Spring meals: Rice-ing to the occasion

Celebrate spring's special occasions with elegant dinners as light and fresh as the season itself. In keeping with today's trend toward healthy eating, choose foods high in complex carbohydrates and try to limit foods high in fat.

Rice and vegetables are excellent sources of complex carbohydrates and they're low in fat and calories. Combined with seafood, chicken or lean meats, they provide an ideal starting point for health-conscious special meals.

Serve Ginger Shrimp and Scallops Over Rice when time is at a premium. Simple and fast to make, this delicious main dish of ginger-spiced seafood, sugar snap peas and scallops is ready in just the time it takes to prepare instant rice or boil-in-bag rice.

Bring guests flocking to the table with Tuscany Chicken and Red pepper Risotto. Easy yet impressive, the chicken boasts an herb cheese filling and a golden bread crumb coating.

GINGER SHRIMP AND SCALLOPS OVER RICE

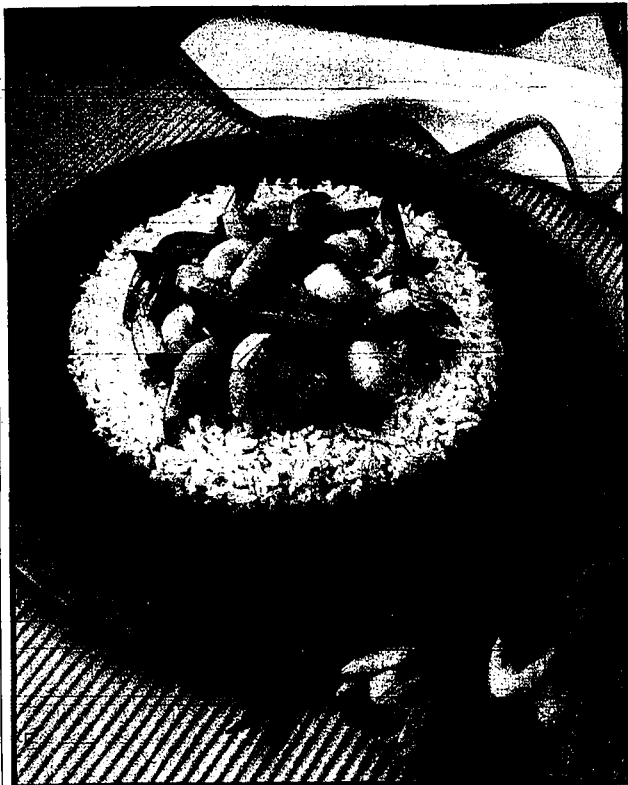

1 1/2 cups instant or boil-in-bag rice family servings

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 pound medium or large shrimp, peeled and deveined

1/2 pound sea or bay scallops
8 ounces sugar snap or snow peas (about 2 cups)

1/2 cup chicken broth
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon finely shredded fresh ginger
1/4 cup thinly sliced green onions

Cook rice according to package directions. While rice is cooking, melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Add shrimp and scallops to skillet. Cook and stir until opaque and cooked through, about 3 minutes. Remove to bowl; reserve. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter in same skillet. Add snap peas to skillet. Cook and stir until crisp-tender, about 2 minutes. Add to bowl with shrimp and scallops. Combine broth and cornstarch; add to skillet with ginger. Cook and stir until very thick, about 1 minute. Return shrimp mixture to skillet; heat through. Stir in green onions; pour over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Note: To substitute frozen, thawed sugar snap or snow peas; reduce cooking time to 1 minute.

TUSCANY CHICKEN AND RED PEPPER RISOTTO

6 small whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned (about 2 pounds)
1 package (4 to 5 ounces) soft herb and garlic cheese

1/4 cup finely chopped ripe olives OR sun dried tomatoes packed in oil (optional)
2 tablespoons olive oil salt and pepper

1 cup fresh bread crumbs
paprika (optional)
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 cup rice

2 1/2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup bottled drained roasted red peppers or pimientos, cut into short, thin strips
1/3 cup toasted walnuts

Lay chicken breasts skinless side down on wax paper. Combine cheese and, if desired, olives; spread evenly over inside of chicken. Fold over and secure with wooden pick. Brush lightly with 1 tablespoon of the oil; sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Roll in bread crumbs; sprinkle evenly with paprika, if desired. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven 30 minutes or until browned and chicken is tender. While chicken bakes, heat remaining 1 tablespoon oil in medium saucepan. Sauté onion and garlic until tender, about 3 minutes. Add rice; cook and stir 1 minute. Add broth, basil and salt; bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand, covered, until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Stir pepper strips and walnuts into rice; serve alongside chicken. Makes 6 servings.

Post-Easter recipe makes use of eggs

Surprise me?
No way — can't be done.
When you're born on April Fools Day, you have an extra sense that tells you when people try to pull your leg.

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

You don't offer information over the phone about your refrigerator running, you never bend over to pick up a coin from the sidewalk because you know it's glued down. You just know when something is happening.

Well, this month's birthday set several new records (including age). Friend Husband planned a biggie and carried it off! Somehow, he smuggled all my children into town to celebrate my special day. Yes indeed, I can be surprised.

We've had a whirlwind spring that sort of matches the weather. Since we were either not at home or entertaining a lot, we have some easy and good recipes to share.

This first one is absolutely great. It came off so easily that it's going into my "best" file. It calls for sole, but I don't see why you couldn't use another kind of fish fillet like flounder or orange roughy, only make sure it can be rolled up.

This recipe serves 4 but is a snap to double or triple.

BROCCOLI BARBELLS

1 bunch of fresh broccoli, cut into long spears and steamed just until fork tender (Plunge into icy water to keep just right)

4 fish fillets, make sure they are complete and not cut through half way

2 tablespoons lemon juice, preferably fresh salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons of butter

2 tablespoons of flour, all-purpose

1 cup half-and-half, or if watching calories try 2-percent milk
1 tablespoon dry sherry
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel

Lay out the fillets and place the broccoli spears across the top with the flowering parts on both sides. Wrap the fillet around the spear parts (you'll see why they're called barbells) and place them seam side down in a vegetable-oil sprayed baking dish.

Use an au gratin dish but if your going to place them on the plates at the stove, use a square cake pan.

Sprinkle each with lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste. Set aside.

Okay, now heat the butter over medium heat, stir in the flour and then add the milk (a basic white sauce) and stir until thickened.

Add the sherry and grated lemon peel and pour this mixture over the fillets. I don't put any on the broccoli ends.

Bake in a pre-heated, 350 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Test for doneness by making sure the fish flakes with a fork.

Remember don't overcook fish, so have everything else waiting and ready.

Clip this next recipe and put it in your spring (after Easter) file. It's not only the most elegant way of using those leftover hard-boiled eggs but one of the best tasting recipes. This is kind of an unusual dish. If you are having a dinner party, it could take the place of a soup course, a hot appetizer. Maybe serve crusty rolls and butter with it.

ELEGANT EGGS

1 cube (3/4 pound) butter

The bistro is back: Intimate restaurants mix casual surroundings with hearty fare

By Copley News Service

The bistro is back. After almost a decade of nouvelle cuisine's culinary conceits, there is, both in France and the United States, renewed interest in the cuisine de Grand'Maman — Grandma's food. And the classic French bistro is a perfect spot to celebrate the pleasures of this down-to-earth fare.

A bistro is casual — a neighborhood eatery with no need for reservations, dressing up or long drives.

A bistro is conversation — political arguments and romantic tête-à-têtes without the interruption of waiters with daily specials containing dozens of ingredients.

A bistro is simple, cheap and filling food — the kind mama used to make before she started flogging around with kiwi, pasta salads and microwaved radicchio.

Done up in dark woods, with dim lights and tables covered simply with white cloths and butcher paper, a bistro is comfort.

And this favorite French institution is now taking America like the revolutionaries took the Bastille.

"The bistro is one of the hottest trends in the country," said Jeff Prince, director of the National Restaurant Association in Washington, D.C.

"These are deliberately casual restaurants with the look and design of a bistro. They're serving the type of food you expect from a French bistro, but also trendy foods, lighter fare and finger foods."

Prince said that there are no precise figures on what kinds of restaurants open each year in this country, but that "people are talking about just two things — the '50s diner and the combination of French flavor and Americana, which is to say, the bistro."

The term "bistro" translates very loosely in this country.

Some new eateries using the name are, indeed, casual spots, with hearty, inexpensive food. Others use butcher paper, yellowing lithographs and

'My feeling is that everybody is using the name, but these places have nothing to do with real French bistros'
— Pierre Franey

plastic ashtrays from Paris flea markets as an excuse to charge high prices.

"My feeling is that everybody is using the name, but these places have nothing to do with real French bistros," said Pierre Franey, internationally acclaimed French chef and New York Times columnist.

Franey said that the real thing is "small, kind of dark, very informal, and with a very relaxed atmosphere." He added that the owner is usually at the bar or in the kitchen.

"A bistro is someplace to go and just have a glass of wine, a piece of cheese and some bread," continues Franey, "it's a place to meet and talk politics."

John Mariani agrees. "A bistro is a small, informal place," said the author of "Eating Out: Fearless Dining in Ethnic Restaurants."

"It should serve as a gathering place where folks can get a glass of wine, some pate or the one-pot meal of the day."

Joyce Goldstein, chef/owner of Square One restaurant in San Francisco, takes a broader view of the term bistro.

"A bistro, like an Italian trattoria or a British pub, is a neighborhood restaurant," says Goldstein. "But one has to let go of the notion that a bistro cooks only classic French food. America is a polyglot nation, and bistro food here is international."

Another opinion is offered by Piret Mungler, creator of the Piret's chain of charcuteries and boulangeries.

"I think of a bistro as somewhat classier than a bistro."

A list of some of America's bistros:

By Copley News Service

The bistro is making a very strong comeback in the United States. The casual restaurant with bar that stays open most of the day and night allowing the customers to smoke or dine to their heart's content is becoming a fixture in most of our major cities. The following is a roundup of our favorites across the land.

LOS ANGELES

Chaya Brasserie, (213) 859-8833, 8741 Alden Drive. There's a high ceiling in this cavernous room and just enough Japanese to make you feel that East does indeed meet West here. The food runs the gamut from hamburgers to Italian pasta dishes with a distinct Japanese flavor. We love the gnocchi with seaweed and drink kamikazes (vodka and sake with a garnish of ginger).

NEW-YORK CITY

Gotham Bar & Grill, (212) 620-4020, 12 E. 12th St. A real hangout in Greenwich Village with wood paneling, marble tabletops and bona fide characters at the bar.

There's wonderful bistro food like charcuterie garni and steak tartare, as well as lighter dishes like ragout of wild mushrooms. Very popular, so reserve ahead.

BOSTON

Harvest, (617) 492-1115, 41 Brattle St. Located in Cambridge not far from the ivy-covered walls of Harvard, this is the place where professors, students and business types mingle informally. Nice international menu and a gorgeous selection of beers and

Omelets can make great scrambled eggs

By the Los Angeles Times

The nice thing about learning to make a French omelet is that even if early attempts at proper technique result in total disaster, all is not lost. You will still be able to enjoy some very acceptable scrambled eggs, because only the method of preparation distinguishes one of these egg dishes from the other.

Omelet preparation requires a special pan — either one of the traditional French-style made of spun steel and used exclusively for omelet preparation, or any of the small (6-, 7- or 8-inch diameter), heavy-gauge skillets with sloping sides and nonstick interiors. Most of these pans have long handles to assist with the manipulation during cooking.

Begin preparation by breaking three eggs into a small bowl. Blend the whites and yolks well with a fork, but the mixture should not be foamy. Some recipes call for a tablespoon of milk per egg or a little water, and most people add a little salt and pepper for flavor.

Heat about one tablespoon of butter or margarine in the skillet over medium-high heat. As it begins to melt, tilt the pan to thoroughly coat the bottom and sides. Then, just as the butter begins to sizzle and turn brown, add the beaten eggs.

In the classic method, one hand is used to slide the skillet back and forth rapidly over the heat source while the other hand stirs the eggs over the bottom of the skillet with a fork as they thicken. It is easier for most people, however, to tilt the pan of the eggs with a narrow spatula and lift the edge to allow the uncooked portion of the eggs to flow underneath.

When the omelet is set, but the top still moist and creamy, add the desired filling down the center. Lift the edge and check that the bottom of the omelet is golden brown, then with a spatula, fold the omelet in half or thirds and slide out of the pan onto a serving plate.

Mother's patience begins to run out as son keeps room filthy

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "Wife of a Slob," I had to write. My son makes this guy sound like "Mr. Clean!"

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

He layers his pile of clothing with dishes (with the food still on them) plus orange peelings, apple cores, egg shells, etc. Our house smells like a compost pile. This is not just confined to our home. His employer had to demand that he clean the food and garbage out of the company vehicle.

Instead of putting garbage in the garbage container, he throws it downstairs or under the cupboards.

He never vacuums his room or changes his sheets. He has absolutely no regard for our furniture — he thinks nothing of using my good crystal glasses (when all the other glasses are dirty in his room). These good glasses join the others — full of mold, under his bed or wherever he leaves them. This has been going on for 10 years. When I ask him to please clean his room, he becomes belligerent and doesn't speak to me for days.

I have just told him, for the 100th time, that he must clean his room or move. Abby, he is 26 years old and is impeccable about his personal hygiene and his appearance.

I cannot help but believe that this is an illness. I find it hard to believe that anyone could be this gross (by choice) without a deep psychological reason. I consulted a psychiatrist some years ago. He said my son would outgrow this. Please help me, Abby. I know you often consult professionals. If one can help, I will be forever grateful. I don't mind paying for help, if only I knew where to look.

I love my son very much, and I know when he gets married, you'll be getting another letter from "Wife of a Slob" — but this time, it will be my slob. Please don't print my name. Sign this done won't help her. What should she do now? And here's the answer: You can't change anyone but yourself. Give your son an ultimatum: "Clean up your act within 24 hours, or you will find your clothes packed and on the porch because you can no longer live like a pig under this roof." Then make good your threat — if you have to change the locks on your door.

Tough? You bet. The ball is now in your court, Mother. Please write again and let me know of your decision. I wish you well.

have been married for 40 years, and have lovingly picked up after my wife most of those years and was glad to do it.

This reminds me of the story of two young men who met and one said, "I hear you're getting married." The other said, "Yes, I'm tired of no clean underwear, no clean shirts, dirty dishes in the sink and a messy apartment."

"Oh," said the first man, "that's why I'm getting divorced."

— WES IN CHATTANOOGA

DEAR MOTHER: At first, I soliloquized: "Tell this tormented mother to find a psychiatrist with two couches — one for her son, and one for herself for putting up with him for so long. He didn't turn into a super-slob overnight. Why didn't she nip this gross, slovenly behavior in the bud before it reached the point where her lovely home smelled like a compost pile?" Then I further soliloquized: "Telling her what she should have

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you signed "Wife of a Slob," she wrote, "There is a pile of his clothes a foot high on our bedroom floor." Then she wrote, "It's been there for two months." Abby, who's the slob? She asked you, "What should I do?" You should have replied, "Pick up the clothes!"

Hot cross buns date back to ancient times

Sign of spring: Hot cross buns

Hot cross buns are an excellent springtime fare. These soft, slightly sweet buns with their distinctive cross-shaped emblem are special because of their rich heritage.

Hot cross buns can be traced to Ancient Egyptians who ate them in promise of good health. The Greeks visualized the bun as a moon, with the cross symbolizing the moon's four quarters. The Aztecs imprinted a round roll with a cross as a homage to their gods.

This fancy bread needs to be neatly shaped as individual rolls. This version — one giant bun — is a time-saving, fun alternative. Raisins or currants, the standard fruit in most Hot Cross Bun recipes are updated to dates for a more exotic, rich flavor. And carrots are blended in the bread dough, giving color, slight sweetness and extra nutrition.

Hot cross carrot bun is a satisfying loaf. It's delicious served for breakfast or brunch with whipped cream cheese or for dinner as an accompaniment to a mustard-and-honey glazed ham.

HOT CROSS CARROT BUN

- 3 1/2 to 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 2 packages yeast
- 1 1/3 cups water
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs, at room temperature

- 2/3 cup grated carrots
- 2/3 cup chopped, pitted dates
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 egg white for glaze
- confectioners sugar frosting (recipe follows)
- sliced almonds

In large bowl, combine 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour, salt, cinnamon and undissolved yeast.

Heat water and butter to 120 to 130 degrees. Butter does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. With spoon, stir in carrots, whole wheat flour and enough additional all-purpose flour to make soft dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 4 to 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise until doubled in size, about 45 minutes.

Punch dough down. Knead in dates. Shape dough into 6-inch diameter ball. Place in greased 9-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise until doubled in size, about 30 minutes.

Brush with egg white. Bake in 375 degree oven for 55 minutes or until done. Cover lightly with foil after 30 minutes to prevent overbrowning. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Spread frosting on top of bun in the shape of a cross. Decorate cross with sliced almonds.

Confectioners Sugar Frosting: In small bowl, stir together 1/2 cup sifted confectioners sugar, 1 teaspoon butter or margarine and 1/2 to 1 teaspoon milk.

Gardening

Early spring is best for most planting

Early spring is the best time to plant trees, shrubs, berries and summer flowering bulbs. The cool weather allows them to get their roots well established before warm weather causes rapid top growth. This is also the best time to move a tree or shrub from one location to another in your yard.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Many nurseries and garden stores have bare root trees, shrubs, berry plants and roses available now. These are dormant plants which are not established in soil. They are either temporarily stored in sawdust or have a moisture-proof wrap around the roots.

Because of the reduced cost of preparing and shipping, bare root plants are usually sold at lower prices than container grown plants. However, these dormant plants should be planted outside before their tops begin to grow in late May.

Now is also a good time to plant summer flowering bulbs such as gladiolus, lily, dahlia, anemone and ranunculus. Except for lilies, these will not usually survive our cold winters, so they must be dug in the fall and stored inside for the winter.

Tuberous begonia bulbs must be started inside in pots or trays for at least six weeks before outside planting. Sometimes dahlia, anemone and ranunculus are also started inside.

However, they can also be planted directly outside with good success, if planted early.

Because Intermountain soils are usually alkaline, I also like to add sulfur whenever I plant anything. Sulfur makes the soil more acid, which improves the growth of most plants. It is especially valuable for roses and berries, which can develop yellow leaves due to alkaline-caused iron shortages. You can add about two cups of sulfur per 100 square feet to sandy soils or twice as much to heavier clay soils.

Sulfur is usually available at nurseries, garden stores and farm fertilizer dealers.

Bulbs, berries and roses really ap-precinate the addition of soil amendments before planting. Soil amendments can also be added when planting trees and shrubs, but it is less critical.

Peat moss and bark dust are two of the best soil amendments.

Manure is also good if it does not contain weed seeds. Manure also contains fertilizer, but it does not last as long as peat moss and bark dust. Leaves and grass clippings are also excellent soil amendments. Soil amendments also reduce soil alkalinity, although not as much as sulfur.

Sulfur and soil amendments should be thoroughly mixed with the soil before planting. Apply them evenly over the planting area and then rototill or double spade. If soil amendment is used when planting trees and shrubs, it should be added to an area at least twice the diameter of the root system. If soil amendment is limited to the planting hole only, roots do not spread as rapidly into surrounding soil.

Roses and grafted shade and fruit trees should be planted so that the graft union is just covered by soil. The graft union is the bulge or curved area a few inches above the roots where the root was grafted to the top. This is the area most vulnerable to winter damage. Planting below the soil line gives this area more cold protection.

Dahlias are showiest flowers that bloom in late summer

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Dahlias are the showiest creations of the late-summer garden, and I shall say how I have grown them, off and on, since youth. I go by the 1934 recommendations of Stuart Oggs, a dahlia personage to be reckoned with.

But first, it's true that if you get packaged dahlia roots at a hardware store and plant them 6 inches deep outdoors anytime from now on they will emerge in a few weeks (even if it's cold and rainy, even if there's a light snow) and bloom well.

But that is not a very elegant procedure. It is better to wash the roots, set them in a shallow cardboard box in a window where they get sun. Then when the shoots begin to sprout, you can plant them out, in full sun. The greatest enemy of the dahlia is shade, tree drip, and when planted in sun they should be kept in water in July and August.

Still better than the bare roots in the box is to start them in a shallow box of damp (not dry, not wet, but just damp enough to hold together briefly when you squeeze a handful) peat moss.

The shoots will emerge within the week, usually. When these shoots are three inches long, cut them off with a sharp knife. There will be three sets of infant leaves.

Cut just at the base of the leaves nearest the tuberous root. Plant each one in a 3-inch pot filled with half peat moss, quarter sand and quarter good garden loam. (I have rooted them in water and in plain dirt, and once I rooted a broken-off shoot only a bit over an inch long, but you may as well use a sensible mixture.)

With the temperatures in the 60s, they root easily indoors and do not need bottom heat. In theory the pots should be placed in a covered empty aquarium or else in a plastic-bag tent, opened to the air at night.

One danger is condensation in a closed glass or plastic environment with subsequent rotting of the cuttings. In practice, I find they root perfectly well without glass or plastic.

have some on hand, and the stake should reach above the ground a good 3/4 feet.

After the young plants have been set out, pinch out the growing terminal bud. As the plants grow, you may pinch out the end leaf buds of the strong side shoots. Keep the ground weeded and as hot weather arrives, keep them watered. Use twine to tie them every 18 inches to the stakes.

We do not have terrible gales in late summer, as a rule, but even so the dahlias need to be staked, and the stake should be set in place immediately before setting out the plants, otherwise it is said to be easy to damage the roots by driving the stake in later.

By mid-July it is well to mulch the plants with 2 or 3 inches of whatever you use for mulch, but do not mulch right up to the stem. Leave 6 or 8 inches bare.

There are various bugs and diseases of dahlias, which I do not bother with. I consider spraying a nuisance at best, and a hazard at worst, and my dahlias did well enough. A surface dressing of old manure is good in June, and, since few people have it, any ordinary chemical fertilizer (5-10-5, 5-10-10, for instance) is all right.

A handful per plant, scratched in damp soil 10 inches out from the stem, then watered thoroughly. Oggs used to water his dahlias six hours at a time, once a week, but that means little as I do not know how hard the hose was running.

A good soaking once a week is about right. A shortage of water, rather than a shortage of fertilizer, is the usual cause of scrawny dahlia flowers.

Dahlias come in floral sizes from an inch and a half (small pompons) to things more than a foot across. The huge ones are, of course, gross and vulgar and irresistible. They require frequent nipping out of the developing flower buds, leaving perhaps four per plant.

More reasonable for the garden are the small decoratives and small cactus types (4 to 6 inches in diameter) as many more flowers per plant are produced. Fans of the dahlia often join local dahlia societies where, as in all floral societies, members boast and whine agreeably together and compare notes and explain what went wrong just at the time of the dahlia show.

Colors run from white through pale mauve to rich purple, red, yellow, and orange, and some have two colors, such as red with white tips to the petals. Think of yourself as growing corn when you grow dahlias.

They like good, deep soil. Give them the sort of spot you would give your best roses, irises or zinnias. Plant them in bushy dells (where you would plant azaleas) is certain to bring total disappointment.

As you see, if you make cuttings as I have outlined, you should get four or five plants from one tangle of roots, and these plants from cuttings will make as large a plant as if you had planted the whole clump of roots.

This I doubted until some years ago I made one cutting then planted the rest of the root clump intact. There was no difference in quality or quantity of flower.

The dahlias are dug up the end of October with some dirt on the roots and dried a few days, then turned upside down (the stem has been cut off) an inch or so from the above the root so no moisture remains in the stem.

They are stored dry (but not bare) in peat in the basement or some such place. They are brought out in March or April and the process started again.

Innovative chefs use fruit to concoct special salsas

By Newsday

If you think salsa is just a hot, spicy tomato dip for tortilla chips, think again. American chefs are expanding the popular sauce by using fruits, assorted vegetables, pairing them with chiles and cilantro.

Brandon Walsh, a chef who celebrates the cuisine of the American Southwest, played off an idea he tasted in Mexico. "Street vendors sell ripe fruits drizzled with chile oil. I like the combination of fruit acid and heat," Walsh said. His repertoire includes mango and cilantro or chunks of pineapple blended with chiles.

Stephan Pyles, owner of the Routh St. Cafe in Dallas, prepares a salsa with hot peppers, cranberries and chipotle (smoked jalapeno). For Pyles, fruit salsas are an outgrowth of the relishes and chutneys he was raised on in the South.

FRESH ORANGE SALSA
 1 1/2 cups orange segments, seeds and membranes removed, chopped
 3/4 tablespoons green onions
 4 teaspoons coriander, fresh, chopped
 1/2 green chile pepper, finely chopped
 1 teaspoon red wine vinegar
 1/2 teaspoon sugar, or to taste

In a small bowl, combine orange segments, green onions, coriander, chile pepper, vinegar, and sugar to taste. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours or more. Serve with grilled turkey breast. Makes 1 cup.

JICAMA-MELON SALSA
 1 mango
 1 serrano chile, seeds and ribs removed Juice from 1 lime

3 tablespoons red bell pepper, cut in 1-inch dice
 1/2 cup cantaloupe, cut into 1-inch dice
 1/2 cup honeydew, cut into 1-inch dice
 1/2 cup jicama, peeled and cut into 1-inch dice
 2 teaspoons cilantro, chopped
 Salt and ground pepper to taste
 Peel mango and remove pulp. As you get closer to the pit, a vegetable peeler may be helpful as the pulp is stringy and slippery.

Place mango pulp in food processor with lime juice and chile. Process until pureed. Remove mixture to a small bowl; add diced pepper, cantaloupe, honeydew, cucumber, jicama and cilantro. Mix well and add salt and pepper to taste. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. Serve with sliced veal or grilled lamb chops.

PAPAYA SALSA
 1 ripe papaya
 1 jalapeno chile cup diced red onion cup chopped cilantro
 2 tablespoons lime juice
 Peel, seed and dice the papaya.

Seed and mince the jalapeno.
 Place diced papaya, minced pepper, diced onion, chopped cilantro and lime juice in a bowl. Mix well and season to taste with salt and pepper. Chill before serving. Makes 1 cup. Serve with grilled fish or chicken.

Roughly has mild flavor, is easy to fix

4 DAYS ONLY!

The Baltimore Sun

Orange roughly, the mild-tasting, deep-sea fish from New Zealand, has come out of obscurity and onto America's dinner plates. Unknown just 10 years ago, it has become a regular on restaurant menus from coast to coast since its introduction to the U.S. market in 1982. Orange roughly fares well at home, too, even for those whose other attempts at cooking fish have turned out as dry as the Sahara. It is virtually indestructible.

The white flesh is firm but tender and the fish's light and mild flavor serves as a perfect foil for a variety of assertive sauces. Too perfect for some tastes. The flavor is so mild that orange roughly detractors dub it "the fish eaters' fish."

FILET A LA CARTIER
 1/4 cup walnuts
 1/4 cup almonds
 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 3 filets orange roughly or other firm-flesh fish

Sauce:
 1/4 pound butter or margarine, melted
 3 cloves garlic, chopped
 2 large scallions, sliced, white part only
 1 lemon, sliced, including skin
 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 teaspoon dill
 Dash hot sauce, see note
 Dash Worcestershire sauce
 Small pinch sugar

Put walnuts and almonds in open microwave dish with 1 tablespoon butter. Cook on high for 1 minute and stir; repeat heating and stirring two more times. Or brown nuts in skillet on medium heat on top of stove. Set nuts aside.
 Broil fish in oven for about 10 to 12 minutes or until fish flakes with a fork.

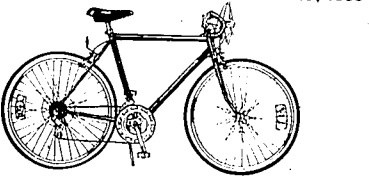

To make sauce: Melt butter on top of stove or put in uncovered container in microwave and cook on high for 1 minute. Coarsely chop garlic, scallions, lemon and parsley and put with melted butter and rest of sauce ingredients in blender. Puree until smooth. Taste and correct seasoning, if necessary.
 Right before serving, reheat butter mixture. Place fish on plate, top with sauce and chopped nuts. Makes 3 servings. Serve with salad and rice with cummin (see below).

Note: Any hot sauce will do, but I prefer Pickapepper, a Jamaican hot sauce.

RICE WITH CUMIN
 1/2 cup rice
 1 1/3 cups water
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon cummin
 1 tablespoon butter
 Fresh parsley garnish
 Bring water to a boil in a saucepan on top of stove. Add salt, cummin, butter and rice and mix. Turn down to simmer, cover and cook for 20 minutes. Garnish with chopped parsley. Makes 3 servings.

A's may lose slugger McGwire with injury

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland A's, already missing Jose Canseco, may be without slugger Mark McGwire for a few games.

MARK MCGWIRE
 Injured back

McGwire, suffering from back spasms, went out of the game in the fourth inning of Oakland's 4-0 victory over the California Angels Monday night.

A spokesman said McGwire has a strained back and his status is day-to-day.

Oakland manager Tony LaRussa said after the game that Carney Lansford will fill in at first base for McGwire if needed.

The defending AL champion A's expect to be without the services of Canseco, who has a wrist injury, until May.

Alleged rape victim says she thinks Sooner was assailant

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The victim of an alleged gang rape in an Oklahoma athletic dormitory told a court Tuesday she came to believe suspended Oklahoma football player Nigel Clay was one of her assailants after going over details with prosecutors.

Clay, Bernard Hall and Glen Bell, Sooner teammates, are accused of first-degree rape in the alleged attack at the dormitory on Jan. 21. Hall and Clay also are accused of two additional charges each of furnishing liquor to a minor.

The 20-year-old Oklahoma City woman returned to the witness stand Tuesday for the second day of a preliminary hearing, which is used to determine if the suspended football players should be tried on the charges filed against them in Cleveland County District Court.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Bobby Humphrey, the all-time leading runner in Alabama football history, will give up his last year of eligibility to make himself available for the NFL supplemental draft, a published report said Tuesday.

The school's director of media relations, Steve Townsend, said Humphrey will appear at a news conference Wednesday, but that Humphrey, recovering from a foot injury suffered early last season, had not told him what he has decided.

However, The Birmingham News Tuesday quoted sources as saying Humphrey, who would be a fifth-year senior, decided against returning for the 1989 season after learning he could not get enough insurance coverage should he suffer a career-ending injury.

Murtaugh, Oakley win MVC opener

By JEFF HOSKISSON
 Times-News writer

MURTAUGH — Kyle Allen of Hansen and Angie Hibbard of Shoshone ended up the big winners at an eight-team Magic Valley Conference high school track meet here Tuesday.

Allen, the third-place finisher in last year's 100 meters at the state Class A-3 meet last spring, won the 100 and the triple jump Tuesday while Hibbard scored victories in the 400 and 800 meters.

Allen's time of 11:59 seconds bested Tai Gordon of O'Leary Junior High in a close race and his leap of 38 feet, 9 inches defeated Forrest Andersen of Murtaugh in the triple jump.

Hibbard's times of 1:09.28 and 3:01.26 put her easily ahead of her fellow competitors.

The best performance on the track belonged to Hansen's Bob Larson. Larson, the defending state A-3 200-meter champion, won his specialty with a time of 23.8 into a reasonable wind.

Evan Nebeker of Murtaugh turned the day's best field performance with a 6-2 high jump of the grass of the football field. The mark is the second highest by a Magic Valley high jumper this year.

The meet's only other double event winner was Diane Schaefer of Oakley in the shot put and discus, her marks of 31-1/2 in the shot and 93-7 in the discus giving her the victories.

Streaking Bruins clobber Pats

By RON GATES
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Defending state Class A1 baseball champion Twin Falls touched Centennial pitching for seven first-inning runs Tuesday afternoon en route to a 14-3 non-conference battering of the Patriots.

"They had trouble throwing strikes," said Twin Falls coach Bill Ingram of a trio of Centennial hurlers whose wildness accounted for eight walks and four hit batsmen. "And you know what it's like when you don't throw strikes. But they play a lot of league games during the week and were probably saving their best pitchers for those just like we'd do it we were playing Highland after their instead of before."

Bobby Jenco, the Bruins' leadoff batter, drew the first of those passes to open the Twin Falls offense and Boomer Walker became the first victim hit by a pitch. A walk to shortstop Matt Rasmussen lined the bases, setting the stage for back-to-back singles by Jody Bryant and Jason Carrio.

Bryant and Carrio added two more as John Horner drew the third base of balls of the inning and the Patriot second baseman booted Steve Bartholomew's grounder into the outfield. By the time the visitors came to bat a second time it was 7-0 Twin Falls.

Jenco, who reached base and scored four times in the abbreviated contest, tallied his second run on Walker's one-out double in the second before Centennial broke the ice on consecutive walks and a single in the third.

The Bruins brought the run rule into effect in the bottom of that same inning as first Bartholomew, then Lyle Hudelson were hit by Patriot offerings. Jenco singled to score Bartholomew and Walker loaded the bases on a walk.

Another pass, that to Rasmussen plated Hudelson and Bryant ran the score to 12-1 on a double that got him his third and fourth RBIs. Bartholomew singled to open the Bruin fourth, scoring on Walker's double to the centerfield fence. The second baseman then closed his team's scoring on a groundout by Rasmussen.

Centennial put together its best inning in the fifth on a combination of twos — hits, walks and runs, but could were unable to extend the game to the regulation seven innings.

"We played pretty good defense," added Ingram, whose 10-3 Bruins travel to Burley this afternoon and are to host Nampa at 1 p.m. Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho. "We had a little trouble of our own throwing strikes, but we hit the ball hard and showed solid defense."

Idaho State top assistant Criner quits

The Associated Press

POCAHELLO — Wall Criner, for the past two seasons head assistant coach at Idaho State University, has resigned to become head football coach at Idaho High School in Idaho, Calif.

Criner, 52, said Tuesday that Idaho school officials had offered him a compensation package that included a teaching job for his wife.

His resignation from Idaho State is effective May 1.

Criner was named assistant head coach and running back coach for the Bengals this spring. Prior to coming to Idaho State, he had been head football coach at Snow College in Ephraim, Utah, for four years.

At Snow, Criner led his teams to a 27-14 record, including 11-0 and the National Junior College Athletic Association championship in 1985, when he also was named NJCAA coach of the year.

"I'm sorry to see Walt leave," Idaho State head coach Garth Hall said in a prepared statement. "He's been a positive contributor to the program. It was a difficult decision for him and the timing is difficult for us, but his decision was in the best interest of his family."

Rigby High coach named to replace Andersen at Snow

The Associated Press

EPHRAIM, Utah — Elliot Anderson of Rigby has been named head basketball coach at Snow College to replace Larry Andersen, officials say.

Anderson, 46, has coached at Rigby High School for the past 19 years. He has to his credit seven state championships, nine district titles, 12 league championships and an overall record of 319 wins and 209 losses.

Snow competes in Region 18 with the College of Southern Idaho.

Snow Athletic Director Steve Gardner described the new coach as intense and aggressive. Snow, in Region 18 of the National Junior College Athletic Association, will be his first college assignment.

Andersen, 36, was released by the college earlier this year.

Lute Olson is top Kentucky candidate

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Lute Olson appears to be the No. 1 candidate for Kentucky's vacant basketball coaching job if the price is right.

Olson, head coach at Arizona, is expected to meet with Kentucky athletics director C.M. Newton this week to discuss the details of the job.

"Hopefully, it'll work into that," Newton said of Olson becoming the school's prime candidate to replace Eddie Sutton, who left under fire. "Obviously we're interested and obviously he's interested."

Olson and Newton were expected to meet in Lexington on Thursday. Newton, however, said Monday night that he had not offered the post to Olson.

"We've still got some more things to talk about," Newton said.

Cedric Dempsey, University of Arizona athletic director, said he gave Kentucky officials permission to talk with Olson.

Dempsey said he has talked with Olson "to see what he's thinking and if there's anything here that needs to be done." He declined to detail the conversation.

Dempsey said that before the Olson-Kentucky linkup, he had recommended Olson's contract be extended three years and his salary be increased, and the Board of Regents had approved the measure.

The current contract has two years to go, meaning Olson would have a five-year contract at Arizona. The Arizona Republic in Phoenix said Olson's current base salary is believed to be between around $85,000 to $95,000 with a total package reported to be worth between $400,000 and $500,000.

The Republic also reported that one unidentified source said the Kentucky package for Olson would be more than $600,000 per season.

New BYU coach fires 'Rags' Ingersoll

The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — Carl 'Rags' Ingersoll, assistant basketball coach at Brigham Young for nine years, will not be retained on the staff of new head coach Roger Reid.

Reid, an assistant coach who replaced longtime head coach Ladell Andersen in March, said Monday the decision not to keep Ingersoll on was difficult but necessary.

"This was no snap decision," he said. "I lost a lot of sleep over it. I have great respect for the man. He's a great coach. But I had to look at our needs," Reid said.

"With the new organization of the program I just felt that it was in the best interest of everyone concerned to go in that direction."

Ingersoll had been the leading candidate to replace Larry Andersen. Ladell Andersen's son, as head coach of Snow College in Ephraim, but he turned down the job because his wife works as a school teacher in Orem and his daughter is going on a mission for the Mormon Church.

"I really wanted to stay with Roger at BYU," Ingersoll said, adding that he asked Reid his plans on Friday because of "a lot of talk and speculation" about his future.

"I've been very happy at BYU," he said. "It's been a great experience for me. I feel I have taken a lot more from the program than I gave it."

Ingersoll said his plans were indefinite. Reid said he was still talking to 10 or 11 candidates to fill the two vacant positions.

Bobby Bonilla's 11th-inning RBI lifts Pirates over N.Y.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, who have had a hard time heading off a hot New York Yankees team, not only managed to win, they defeated the team they rarely beat.

National League

Bobby Bonilla singled home the winning run off reliever Randy Myers with two outs in the 11th inning as the Pirates, who tied the score in the ninth, won their home opener Tuesday night by beating the New York Mets 4-3.

The Pirates, who lost a series of close games to the Mets last season while going 6-12 against them, won for only the second time in seven games and ended a four-game losing streak.

"I don't think that it really matters who you beat as it goes that we won a game," Manager Jim Leyland said. "Everybody is trying to emphasize that we beat the Mets, but we've been struggling and floundering and we needed to beat anybody. We needed to win game, no period."

"It's a good win because we're not playing as badly as our record looks," Bonilla said.

Jose Lind, who scored the tying run in the ninth, singled with one out in the 11th off Myers, 0-1, stole second and moved to third on Andy Van Slyke's ground out to second.

Bonilla then bounced a slow roller that third baseman Dave Magadan caught with a backhand stab, but Bonilla easily beat his three-hop throw to first as Lind scored standing up.

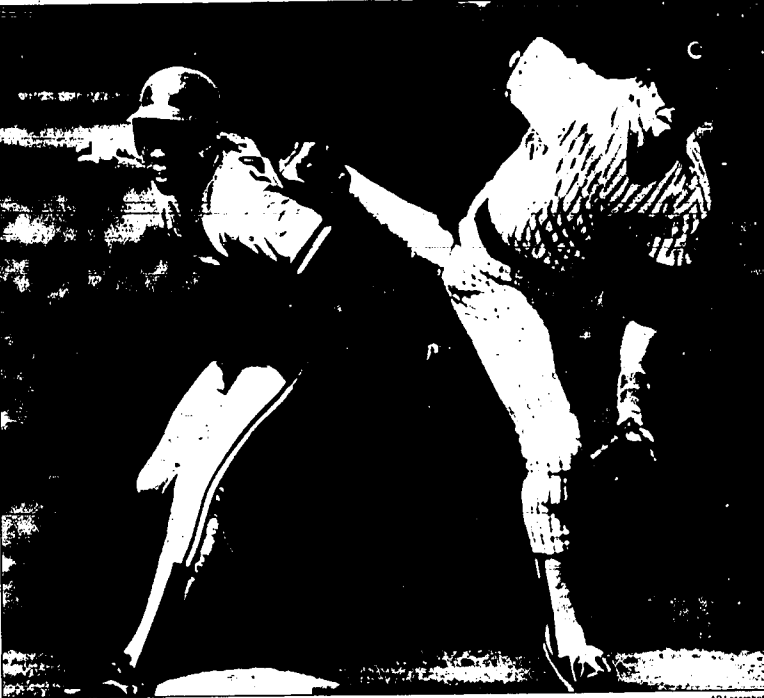

"I just took off as soon as he hit it, I thought it was going to be a close play," Lind said. "This was a big win for us. We're playing good, but not winning. We haven't been getting the big hits at the right time."

Jeff Robinson, 1-1, retired all three batters he faced in the 11th as the Mets, favored to repeat their National League East championship, fell to 2-4.

The Mets led 3-2 in the ninth when Myers replaced Sid Fernandez, who had pitched three scoreless innings in relief of starter Bob Ojeda. Lind drew a leadoff walk, moved to third on Bonilla's one-out single to center, and scored on Glenn Wilson's sacrifice fly to right.

Houston 5 Cincinnati 3

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Caminiti's two-run single highlighted a four-run, first inning and

St. Louis' Vince Coleman and Chicago's Domingo Ramos await the out call during a force play in the 1st inning his fielding helped thwart a seventh-inning Cincinnati rally, leading the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory over the Reds Tuesday night.

Caminiti caught Ken Griffey's line drive to third and then doubled off Ron Oester at first base after the Reds had scored two runs in the seventh.

Rick Mahler, 0-2, started for the Reds and lost his ninth straight decision to Houston.

Billy Hatcher reached base on third baseman Chris Sabo's two-base fielding error to start the Astros' first. Hatcher went to third on Craig Reynolds' ground out and scored on a single by Terry Puhl.

Bill Doran singled and Kevin Bass walked and both runners scored on Caminiti's single to make it 4-0.

Mahler then retired 15 of the next 16 batters until he was replaced in the seventh for a pinch hitter.

The Astros made it 5-3 in the eighth on Bass' sacrifice fly.

Philadelphia 6 Montreal 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Ontiveros pitched seven shutout innings and drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in a five-run, fourth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 6-2 Tuesday night.

Ontiveros, who was on the disabled list most of last season with Oakland, yielded five hits. He underwent elbow surgery during the winter after leaving the A's to become a free agent.

Manager Nick Leyva relieved Ontiveros at the start of the eighth after the right-hander appeared to tire in the seventh.

Leading 1-0, Chris James and Ron Jones led off the fourth with singles and Darren Daulton drove in a run with a single. Pascual Perez, 0-1, then walked Steve Jeltz to lead base and Ontiveros doubled to right field to score three runs.

Ontiveros had not batted since high school, later playing at the University of Michigan and in minors leagues which used the designated hitter. He was 0-for-4 in his victory last week over Chicago. He spent four years with Oakland before making the Phillies as non-roster player this spring.

Chi Cubs 5 St. Louis 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerome Walton homered in the first inning and scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth when Mark Grace grounded into a fielder's choice, giving the Chicago Cubs a 5-4 victory Tuesday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the Cubs fourth straight victory and saw St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog make a bizarre switch in which he left relief pitcher Todd Worrell in the game playing right field.

Loser Jose DeLeon, 1-1, walked Walton and Mitch Webster to open the eighth. The two runners pulled off a double steal. Worrell relieved DeLeon and got Ryan Sandberg to foul out. Worrell then walked Andre Dawson intentionally, filling the bases.

Left-hander Ken Dayley was brought in to pitch against left-handed hitting Grace. To keep Worrell in the game, Herzog put him in right field and moved right fielder Tom Brunansky to first base. Grace grounded into a fielder's choice as Walton scored the fourth run. Dayley remained in the game and retired pitcher Calvin Schiraldi to end the inning.

Schiraldi, 1-0, was the winner, but was relieved by Mitch Williams in the ninth. Williams picked up his third save.

The Cardinals tied it 4-4 with a run in the seventh. Terry Pendleton led off with a single, chasing starter Greg Maddux, and Schiraldi walked Brunansky. Milt Thompson drove in the run with a single.

Grace's two-run homer in the sixth inning had given the Cubs a 4-3 lead.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Peter Zexel had three goals and two assists as the St. Louis Blues wrapped up their Norris Division semifinal series in five games with a 6-1 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Tuesday night.

Zexel, who tied a team playoff scoring record held by four other players, had two goals and an assist during a four-goal second-period outburst, then completed his hat trick in the third.

Calgary 4 Vancouver 0

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Gaultier Mike Vernon recorded his second shutout in three games and the Calgary Flames moved within a game of clinching their Stanley Cup playoff series with a 4-0 victory over the Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night.

Joe Mullen, Joe Nieuwendyk, Mark Hunter and Hakan Loob, with his fourth goal of the playoffs, scored for the Flames, who lead the best-of-seven series 3-2. Game Six of the Smythe Division series will be played Thursday night in Vancouver.

Boston 4 Buffalo 1

BOSTON (AP) — Randy Burridge broke a scoreless tie with a shorthanded goal in the second period as the Boston Bruins wrapped up their Stanley Cup playoff series with a 4-1 victory over the Buffalo Sabres Tuesday night.

In winning the first-round Adams Division series 4-1, the Bruins earned a berth in the division finals starting Monday night in Montreal. The Canadiens clinched their series Sunday night with a four-game sweep of Hartford.

Burridge's third goal of the series at 8:39 launched a three-goal spurt in five minutes. Ray Neely scored at 11:26 and Cam Neufeld added a power-play goal at 13:01. Craig Janney got Boston's final goal with 5:28 left in the game.

Yanks lose for 7th straight time

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortstop Manny Lee, whose ninth-inning error helped New York tie the score, hit a tie-breaking two-run single in Toronto's five-run 10th and the Blue Jays sent the Yankees to their seventh straight loss 11-6 Tuesday night.

Lee and second baseman Nelson Liriano both committed two-out errors in the ninth and each allowed a run to score as the Yankees tied the game 6-6.

But Lee redeemed himself after Dave Righetti, 0-1, took over to start the 10th. Singles by Fred McGriff, who homered twice earlier, Pat Borders and Tom Lawless loaded the bases with no one out and Lee followed with his career-high fourth hit.

Lloyd Moseby delivered his second RBI single and George Bell, who homered off Dave LaPoint in the second inning and singled a run home against Lance McCullers in the seventh, hit a two-run double, giving him four RBIs.

The Yankees' 1-7 record is the worst in the majors and their poorest start since 1969. The losing streak is their longest since September 1985.

Tom Henke, 1-1, struck out Steve Balbon with the bases loaded to end the ninth and pitched a perfect 10th.

Trailing 6-4 in the ninth, the Yankees had two out and a runner on first. Roberto Kelly singled off Duane Ward and Ricky Henderson's slow grounder rolled under Lee's glove as a run scored.

Steve Sax followed with a hard grounder that Liriano stopped with a dive, but he dropped the ball as he tried to throw for an error as Kelly scored. After Don Mattingly was intentionally walked, Henke relieved and fanned Balbon.

American League

Early home runs by Bell and McGriff, a former Yankee farmhand, gave Toronto a 2-0 lead. Henderson doubled and scored on Mattingly's sacrifice fly in the Yankees' fourth against Mike Flanagan.

New York scored three times in the fifth for a 4-2 lead on an RBI single by Gary Ward, right fielder Jesse Barfield's throwing error and a sacrifice fly by Alvaro Espinoza. It was the first time since opening day the Yankees had a lead of more than one run.

McGriff homered again in the sixth and the Blue Jays scored twice in the seventh for a 4-4 tie, helped by a timeout that nullified a strikeout.

Trailing 4-3, Toronto loaded the bases with no one out when Lee and Nelson Liriano singled and Moseby was hit by a pitch from LaPoint. Kelly Gruber greeted McCullers with a sacrifice fly and Barfield walked, reloading the bases.

McCullers got two quick strikes on Bell and then got him to swing and miss for an apparent strike three. But catcher Don Slaught had asked for time just prior to McCullers' delivery, nullifying the pitch.

California 7 Oakland 1

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bert Blyleven hurled a four-hitter for his first victory with California as the Angels beat the Oakland Athletics 7-1 Tuesday night.

Blyleven, 1-0, walked two and struck out five. The 38-year-old right-hander, who is tied with Steve Carlton and Nolan Ryan on the all-time list with 55 shutouts, blanked the A's on two hits until the ninth. They scored on Stan Jay's single, Dave Parker's double and Carney Lansford's grounder.

The Angels were shut out on two hits through four innings by Storm Davis, 1-1, but scored six runs with two outs in the fifth.

Wally Joyner led off with a double and was on third when Jack Howell drew a two-out walk. Glenn Hoffman's single broke the scoreless tie and Mark McLemore, Devon White and Claudell Washington delivered consecutive RBI singles.

Kansas City 6 Baltimore 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bo Jackson and George Brett hit two-run homers and Danny Tartabull had a solo shot as the Kansas City Royals beat Baltimore 6-5 Friday night for their 15th consecutive victory over the Orioles.

Ironically, the Orioles set the major-league record of 23 consecutive wins against one team when they did it against Kansas City in 1993-70. Baltimore, which last beat the Royals on July 26, 1987, has lost 77 of its last 101 road games.

Floyd Banister, 1-0, left with a 6-3 lead after yielding a leadoff hit to Brady Anderson in the eighth.

Nance, who missed two games because of a sore tendon in his left calf, scored 11 points in the third quarter to help Cleveland build a 13-point lead late in the period.

But Ron Anderson hit two long jumpers to open the fourth quarter, and the 76ers finally tied it at 86 when Hersey Hawkins made a short bank shot with 2:36 to play.

Buhl rolls up another victory in District 4 Class B golf meet

By The Times-News

GOODING — Buhl's boys rolled up their third District 4 Class B high school golf victory of the spring here Tuesday at the Gooding Golf Course.

The Indians outdistanced Jerome by 17 strokes, 340-357. Gooding was third at 372, Kimberly fourth at 376 and Filer fifth at 389.

Buhl also won the girls' division, beating runnerup Kimberly by 32 strokes.

Defending state medalist Kade Wilson, a Buhl High sophomore, won the honors Tuesday with a 77.

Prep golf

He was the only golfer to break 80 on the par 72 Gooding links.

Buhl freshman Butch Smith was second at 81 while Jerome senior Brade White finished third at 82.

Jerome, Twin Falls break even in non-conference net match

By The Times-News

JEROME — Jerome and Twin Falls battled to a 6-6 tie here Tuesday in a non-conference dual high school tennis meet.

The Bruins swept the boys' singles matches and the Tigers took all the girls' singles, while the teams broke out in doubles.

The draw improved Jerome's season record to 2-0-2, while Twin Falls is 0-2-1.

Twin Falls will participate in the Southern Idaho Conference tournament in Boise today and Thursday, while Jerome will next see action in the District 4

Charges of theft dropped against former UNR cager after plea bargain

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Theft charges against former University of Nevada-Reno basketball captain Boris King were dismissed on Monday by a judge who agreed that a deal between King and former university Police Chief Larry Bizzi was legitimate.

Washoe District Judge Roy Torvinen upheld Bizzi's agreement with King that if the former Wolf Pack stand-out would make restitution to his victims, he would not be charged.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

Life is very singularly made to surprise us (where it does not utterly appall us).

- Rainer Maria Rilke

"We doubled the six-club sacrifice but we managed to win only one of our three aces," lamented one player.

"That's not bad," added a second. "We also doubled it but managed to get none of our aces."

West led the heart ace, which South ruffed. A club to dummy's king took care of South's losing spade. South then ruffed a spade and led the diamond king, passing it to East's ace. The rest was easy; 12 tricks to South for a very profitable "save."

Hard to top this result? At another table, after the similar auction, West also led the heart ace, suffering the same ruff. However, instead of settling for a sure 12 tricks, South had the check to play safely for all 13. He decided to stop with small diamonds in dummy instead of committing himself immediately to a ruffing finesse, and was lucky enough to drop East's diamond ace. With his K-Q now high, he had a small trump left in dummy to ruff his last small diamond, and instead of 12 tricks, South had 13.
