Explosion and fire gut Volco's Jerome building

A Jerome firefighter hoses down the charred remains of the Volco building, which was gutted Friday morning by fire

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer and DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Two fire-inspection teams are investigating an explosion and fire at the Volco Building Materials Center that demolished the contents of the company's main Jerome building.

"It blew clear across the street," said a neighbor, Fred Dopita. The early-morning Friday fire caused between $600,000 and $1 million in damages, said Vic Camozzi, Volco president and general manager. He added that the main inventory of lumber and building materials outside the building was not damaged.

Investigators have offered no speculation about the fire's cause, though three areas in the 515 W. Main St. building exhibited a "different burn pattern," said Jim Auclair, Jerome fire chief.

Authorities have claimed 24-hour security on the building, Auclair said. Investigators began their investigation Friday and will resume this morning, he said.

"We'll really get into it then," Auclair said.

The fire started at 3:30 a.m. "I thought there was a fog bank moving in, but it was shedding smoke," said Dopita, who was watering his lawn. About that time the whole front end of the building blew up.

The explosion destroyed the building's front doors, Dopita promptly called the fire department. Firefighters and four fire trucks brought the fire under control just after daybreak, using one 500-gallon-a-minute hose and two 1,000-gallon-a-minute hoses.

When fire and police personnel arrived, the front porch side was engulfed in flames, and smoke was coming out of the second floor.

Gardner said.

"It was bad when we arrived, so we basically tried to contain it," Auclair said. "The explosion heard could have been a normal fire finally getting some oxygen."

Flames were contained by the building's cinder-block walls, Camozzi said.

"That fire was a wully hot, and they could even get close to it," Camozzi said.

One injury was reported — a firefighter with pulled ligaments in his knee.

The building, still smoldering at mid-afternoon, was turned over to two fire-investigation task forces, said Jay Gardner, city police captain. One is a three-county Magic Valley team, and the other is from the state fire marshal's office. The investigation could take as long as three weeks, he said.

Neither Gardner nor Police Chief Jim Auclair would speculate on the origin of the fire.

"There are no leads right now," Auclair said.

"Reason is always a possibility, but I'm not equipped to speculate," Camozzi said.

No pardon in works for Oliver North

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush's spokesman turned away questions Friday about a pardon for Oliver North as jurors began to recount their thoughts after convicting North on three of 12 Iran-Contra felony charges.

Of four jurors who commented publicly, three said North should go to prison for the crimes. One said, "That's not for me to say."

Jury foreman Denise Anderson said she believed North got a fair trial, but she also said former President Reagan "should have been down there" to testify "because he knew a lot about what was going on."

Asked if Bush should have been compelled to testify, she added, "Yes, I'm not leaving him out."

Judge releases new trial documents — A4

North's lawyers unsuccessfully sought subpoenas for both Reagan and Bush, who was vice president at the time of the events covered in the trial.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell will sentence North on June 23, with maximum possible penalties of 10 years in prison and $750,000 in fines.

Bush's spokesman — Marlin Fitzwater, responding to questions on the subject of a pardon, said he had asked the president about it on Thursday.

"He said 'I haven't discussed it with anybody,'" the White House press secretary said.

Pressed by reporters, Fitzwater said, "We don't want to speculate either way. ... There's been no discussion of a pardon whatsoever."

Bush had in the past said that North, a decorated Vietnam veteran, was a hero and had said he hoped the former White House aide would be acquitted. But the president has repeatedly said he has not discussed the possibility of a pardon, and he showed "irritation" recently at a published report speculating on what he might do.

Fitzwater also said Bush has refused "not to have any comment at this time" on the verdicts.

Documents in the trial suggested a bigger role for Bush than earlier revealed concerning the solicitation of other countries' support for the Contras.

Iran-Contra questions for Bush persist

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — While President Bush had reason to feel last Election Day that the American people had delivered their verdict on his role in the Iran-Contra affair, much to his annoyance, questions persist.

But there is a widespread feeling that the demand for answers diminishes rapidly the farther one is from Capitol Hill.

The thing has been around so long, it's kind of old news, said Mike Hamby, executive director of the Florida Democratic Party.

With a slight nod toward partisanship, Hamby quickly added that "if there's any curiosity out there, it concerns Bush's role in the Reagan administration's deliberations on arms sales to Iran and the diversion of funds to the Contras. Bush has said he knew about the Iran arms sales but has denied any knowledge of the diversion."

"I don't think there's any outcry of any kind across this country for any questions about this issue," said

Analysis

Eddie Mahe, a Republican consultant. This issue ceased to exist for the American people a long time ago.

The fact is that neither the foreign policy scandal nor the persona of Oliver L. North quite lived up to the expectations of partisans on both sides.

Democrats saw the Iran-Contra affair as an issue that would cripple Republican chances to hold the White House in the 1988 election.

Conservatives saw North, the Marine lieutenant colonel with a chest full of medals, as a symbol who would rally voters to reject his Democratic tormentors.

For a while, both have reason for high hopes.

"Where was George?" shouted ex-Democratic Democrats at their 1988 nominating convention and at later rallies for nominee Michael Dukakis. It sounded and looked like a great way to focus attention on the unanswered questions about Bush's role in the affair.

But voters seemed to care more about Willie Horton

U.S. will propose arms talks with Soviets

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State James A. Baker III is set to propose to the Soviet Union next week that negotiations to sharply reduce strategic nuclear weapons be resumed in June in Geneva, U.S. officials said Friday.

Baker will suggest to the Soviets that the talks basically pick up where they left off in November, when the discussions went into recess, planning tentatively to resume in mid-February.

But Baker will not outline to the Soviet Union the position the United States intends to take on specific issues once the bargaining resumes, said the officials, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

"Essentially, we're looking for continuity and keeping arms control on a fast track," an official said.

President Bush, after taking office in January, ordered a delay in the negotiations for a review of U.S. arms control and weapons policies that is now complete.

The proposal to resume talks the third week in June and a decision to try to maintain the momentum that produced agreement on some arms ceilings resulted from the review.

The negotiators have some tough problems to grapple with, though, as they try to reduce by 30 to 50 percent U.S. and Soviet arsenals of long-range bombers, submarines and land-based missiles that can span oceans and continents.

Among the issues are whether to try to restrict mobile missiles and how to verify such elusive weapons as cruise missiles fired from airplanes and submarines.

Meanwhile, a senior aide to Baker said the administration has ruled out a deal with the Soviets to impose a coalition government in Afghanistan.

The official, briefing reporters on next week's trip, said the United States has neither the inclination nor the power to persuade the Afghan rebels to strike a deal with President Najib.

Calling for the "Soviet-backed leader's ouster, the official said, "We do not believe we will have peace in Afghanistan" as long as Najib is in power."

Baker flies to Finland on Monday and then on to Moscow, Wednesday for a meeting that day with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze. They will talk again Thursday morning.

Federal grazing fees will not be raised

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration has assured members of Idaho's congressional delegation that it will not raise fees charged ranchers for grazing on federal range.

In a letter delivered Friday, at top Office of Management and Budget official said "the administration has absolutely no plans to change the current grazing fee formula."

Robert Grady, associate director for natural resources, energy and science, offered the assurance to rebut earlier statements by Deputy Bureau of Land Management Director Roland Robison.

In a congressional committee, Robison declined to take a position on proposed legislation increasing the fee as much as 33 percent, fueling speculation that the administration could be backing away from President Bush's pledge to make no changes in the fee structure.

"There's no uncertainty about your position and no doubletalk," Idaho Sen. James McClure said after receiving Grady's letter.

About 83 percent of the cattle raised in Idaho spend at least part of every year grazing on federal range, and officials fear any significant increase in the fee could severely depress that sector of the state's top industry.

The formula has been attacked as providing an inadequate return to the government for public land grazing rights, amounting to a taxpayer subsidy for the cattle industry.

Under the formula, which has not been changed for over a decade, ranchers will pay $1.89 per month for the right to enough range to graze one head of cattle.

"The fee is charged heavily below the fees charged for privately-owned grazing lands, but cattleman and government officials point out that the federal range is the least productive of the land in the west and that grazing-right holders invest substantial amounts of money over the basic fee for fencing and water on federal range.

The same subsidy complaint has been made about the fee for state-land grazing rights, but that fee is $4.70, nearly three times higher than the federal rate.

National unemployment still accelerating

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Civilian unemployment, rising at its fastest clip in more than three years, jumped to 5.3 percent last month, the government said Friday in a report that was taken as the strongest evidence yet of an economic slowdown.

Propelling the 0.3 percentage point gain in the unemployment rate was the smallest rise in new jobs since June 1986, the Labor Department said.

Economists and financial markets, concerned for months that the persistently healthy economy was moving into a period of spiraling price hikes, found both good and bad news in Friday's report.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than 24 points at mid-afternoon, closed down 2.91 points. Brokers said some investors were apparently worried about what a slowing economy might mean for corporate profits.

Magic Valley jobless rate hits 10-year low — B1

Indeed, some analysts even wondered whether the dramatic increase in joblessness was signalling that the danger now is one not of inflation but of recession.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater played down the significance of the first rise in unemployment of George Bush's brief tenure as president, noting that the percentage of working-age Americans with jobs remains at all-time high of 63.3 percent.

Other economists welcomed from Friday's news.

Roger Britner of DRI-McGraw Hill said the data was "about perfect" for prospects of generating a soft landing for the soaring economy — slowing growth just enough to rein in inflation without triggering a recession.

"There's no question the economy is weakening," said Washington economist Michael Evans. "But there's nothing in this report to suggest we're heading into a recession."

Allen Sinai of Boston Co. Economic Advisers Inc. was more cautious.

He predicted a mild recession later this year and said the economy was "downshifting to slower growth. This is part and parcel of the bloom being off the rose of what has been a booming economy."

Economists concurred that Friday's surprising jump in the unemployment rate will likely be

Textbook irks wool growers

BOISE (AP) — State Schools Superintendent Jerry Evans and the Idaho Wool Growers Association are protesting a student exercise in a nationally-distributed high school English textbook on grounds it seriously distorts the threat sheep farmers face from coyotes.

The target of the protests is the textbook "English Writing and Language Skills" published by a subsidiary of Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich. Corporate officials said Friday only Chief Executive Officer Ralph Caulo in Orlando, Fla., could respond to the complaints, and his office said he would not be available until Monday.

Evans and the sheep industry, which generates about $20 million a year for the state's agricultural economy, object to an exercise to help students identify nouns because it includes a series of 10 sentences that state that coyotes do not prey on livestock but that ranchers still use traps or poison baits to kill them, destroying other animals including endangered species in the process.

"Predation" on agricultural resources, including "the sheep industry, is a very serious problem," Wool Growers Director Stan Boyd said. He pointed out that the U.S. Department of Agriculture attributed the loss of over 11,000 Idaho sheep and lambs to coyotes in 1988 alone.

Evans said the textbook was on the state's adopted list for school district use and while there was no immediate information on how many schools use it he said it was one of the more popular books in the state.

"After I looked at the words, I just think they are totally inappropriate for our textbooks," Evans said. "It seems to me that they imply truthfulness in the statement that coyotes are not a threat to livestock."

Both Evans and the Wool Growers have written letters of complaint to the publishers, asking that the exercise be replaced with one that carries no subliminal messages.

Evans also urged the industry to get its national association involved so the complaint would carry weight.

Evans conceded it would be difficult to convince the state committee charged with reviewing and certifying acceptable textbooks to withdraw the English book because of the one exercise, but he said the exercise could be modified by the publishers when the 1985 edition of the book is revised.

Text of school exercise causing wool growers concern

BOISE (AP) — Here is the text of the student English exercise being objected to by state Schools Superintendent Jerry Evans and the Idaho Wool Growers Association on grounds it seriously distorts the threat sheep and lambs face from coyotes.

Students are told to write out the nouns in each.

1. Many farmers and ranchers consider the coyote a pest and a danger.
2. There are several mistaken beliefs about this animal, which native Americans called the smartest creature on earth.
3. The most widespread misconception about coyotes is that they prey on cattle and sheep.

4. The truth is that scientists have never documented a single case of coyotes killing either cattle or sheep.
5. Coyotes may feed on an animal that has died from other causes.
6. Experiments show that the coyote prefers meat that has not been freshly killed and would rather feed on old carcasses.
7. Despite these facts many people believe that coyotes are responsible for the killing of many lambs each year.

8. The lamb is one of the most helpless animals in existence and catches many diseases and ailments.
9. Sheep and lambs have a high mortality rate, and most coyotes apparently feed on animals killed by nature.
10. Nevertheless, traps and poisoned baits are set killing thousands of coyotes each year (as well as destroying other wild animals — including many members of endangered species).

Andrus demands cleanup of waste

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus has urged eight other state chief executives in demanding that the federal government move quickly and decisively on a comprehensive plan to clean up radioactive and hazardous waste at the nation's nuclear defense plants.

"The cleanup and disposal of defense wastes is a high priority for Idaho," the governors told Energy Secretary James Watkins in the cover letter to their seven-page report that was delivered on Friday.

"The defense waste problem is national in its scope and severity," the letter said. "Its resolution is a national obligation. It must also be a national priority."

Andrus said he believed there is a new DOE commitment to make cleanup a priority, but doing so will

The proposal from the nine governors calls for adoption of a firm cleanup timetable that will restore the environmental integrity of all DOE sites within 30 years.

"Without a firm schedule, there is no assurance that the critical DOE work will be completed in a timely manner — if at all," the report said. "We feel that a commitment to clean up all facilities within 30 years is both essential and achievable."

The government has estimated defense waste cleanup will cost between $110 billion and $130 billion.

DOE claims waste transport safe

BOISE (AP) — The truck shipments of about 2.5 million cubic feet of radioactive waste that will roll through Boise and Pocatello to New Mexico for burial in salt caverns are no cause for worry, the Department of Energy says.

"We feel there is a very low probability of a container having an accident that causes a release," said John Arthur, a department official based in Albuquerque, N.M.

But Liz Paul, director of the anti-nuclear Smoker-River Alliance, says, "The reality is that just one accident could be absolutely disastrous."

Arthur is in charge of a supplemental environmental impact statement on the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, where the waste toms are carved out of ancient salt beds near Carlsbad, N.M. The DOE plans to open WIPP in September.

The department will hold a hearing on the statement June 1 in Pocatello.

For the first three years, Arthur said, the department expects to ship nuclear wastes only from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and the Rocky Flats Plant near Denver.

He said it is possible, but highly unlikely, that waste will be shipped from the Hanford Nuclear Reservation near Richland, Wash. during the test period.

Once the test phase is over, in up to five years, waste is to be transported from other nuclear facilities, including Hanford.

Jones watches gas prices in Pocatello

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones says he's keeping a close watch on gasoline prices in Pocatello, where it seems almost everybody is charging the same price and profit margins are high.

"I'm not entirely satisfied with the Pocatello market," Jones said Friday, in the taping of a weekend television interview, KTVB's "Viewpoint."

"It seems to me that when you have the price uniform all over town, it seems to indicate the possibility of something going awry in the marketplace," he said.

Several Pocatello dealers and distributors pleaded guilty a few years ago to federal charges of gasoline price-fixing. Some of them also paid state civil penalties for conspiring to fix prices.

Consensual relations policy goes to state Board of Education

LEWISTON (AP) — Lewis Clark State College faculty members will ask the state Board of Education to adopt a new policy on consensual relations between teachers and students.

The policy approved Thursday by the faculty would warn that professors and staff members should be aware that a relationship with a student may be non-consensual and thus, sexual harassment.

"That professor also could not conduct an evaluation of the student in question under the proposal."

The current stance on consensual relationships is part of the sexual harassment policy at the college. It bans such relationships; those in violation may be warned, reprimanded, suspended, expelled, demoted or dismissed.

Patricia Keith, chairwoman of the Faculty Senate, said a majority of the committee thinks the college should stay out of these issues.

Recall petitioners vow to regroup following rebuff

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Organizers of a recall campaign against three school board members vowed to regroup after their petitions for recall were dismissed.

First District Court Magistrate Paul McCabe found no sufficient reason Thursday to authorize a recall election in any of the charges filed last week against trustees Irma Anderl, Gerald Johnson or Dan English.

"Barbara Beattie," president of Concerned Citizens for School Board and Superintendent Actions, said her organization was not surprised by the ruling.

"We anticipated this because of the total inadequacy of the (recall) statute," she said. "We'll fall back and regroup now. There are alternatives."

Under state law, a magistrate must find sufficient reason in a citizen complaint before authorizing a recall election.

In recall petitions presented to the board last month, committee members charged the three board members with poor judgment, failing to perform their duties as board members and acting arbitrarily and capriciously.

ABA may lose judicial screen option

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bar Association won't be allowed to screen federal judicial nominees unless it stops considering a candidate's political and ideological beliefs, an aide to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said Friday.

Unless the ABA accepts Thornburgh's statement to Congress this week that it has agreed to refrain from evaluating those factors, "I don't think they will be involved" in screening prospective nominees, said David Runkel, a senior aide to the attorney general.

"ABA leaders disavowed Thornburgh's statement to the House Judiciary Committee that they had agreed to stop considering political or ideological beliefs."

Runkel said Friday the bar group's Standing Committee on Federal Judiciary will only resume its 40-year-old role in screening the professional qualifications of prospective nominees "as soon as the statement made by the attorney general to the House Judiciary Committee is accepted by the ABA."

Gail Alexander, a spokeswoman for the ABA, said top officials were not available for comment.

No homicide in death of infant

CHICAGO (AP) — Cook County's medical examiner said Friday he has not declared a homicide in the death of a toddler whose father is charged with murder for removing the somatosensory system from a hospital life-support system.

Dr. Robert Stein said that for now he has ruled the manner of Samuel Linnars' death "undetermined" while declaring the immediate cause to be lack of oxygen to the brain caused by the boy's choking on a balloon last summer.

The termination of mechanical life support was a contributing factor, but not the immediate cause of 16-month-old Samuel's death, Stein wrote on the death certificate following an autopsy.

The doctor said he would amend the certificate later to include the manner of death, but refused to say when that might be. The other possibilities are homicide, accident, natural causes and suicide.

Parents of girl are labeled suspects

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — The parents of a 6-week-old girl whose body was found in a trash barrel in Missouri are suspects in the death, investigators said Friday.

Robert and Paula Sims had told authorities the baby was abducted much like another infant daughter three years ago who also was found dead.

The focus of the investigation is now lending to the parents, said Detective Sgt. Rick McCain of the Alton Police Department. "An arrest is forthcoming."

But McCain did not say when an arrest might be made. He said the parents had never been ruled out as suspects because of the similarities between Heather's disappearance and that of their first-born daughter, Lorlei, in 1986.

Inmates collect $900 for little girl

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Jail inmates collected $900 during two days of peace for a little girl who survived a killing spree in which her father is accused and that left seven people dead, jail officials said Friday.

"I've had enough of violence, and what was done to her was pure evil," said Gabriel Menjou, 42, serving time at the Sonoma County jail on a forgery conviction.

"I wanted her to know that men don't have to be mean and cruel, but to know that they can be loving, kind and caring," said Menjou.

The fund raising for 3-year-old Carmina Saicido was the idea of an inmate counseling group run by the Rev. Bob Gutleben, the jail's unofficial chaplain.

Reports spelled out high prices for arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — One day after the verdict in the Oliver North case, a trial document was released that shows high U.S. officials had intelligence reports in 1986 spelling out the inflated prices North and Richard Secord were charging for arms sold to Iran.

The three-page stipulation of evidence, given to the jury but not released publicly during the trial, was unsealed in a court order as a result of a lawsuit filed by 10 news organizations and settled by agreement with the Justice Department.

The document told the jury that intelligence gathered in a 15-month period beginning in September 1986 provides information regarding the pricing and delivery of missiles and military material sold to Iran and the release of American hostages held in Lebanon.

North's lawyers had the document in their closing argument in an effort to show that then-CIA Director William Casey and then-National Security Adviser John Poindexter knew that Hawk missiles were aboard a November 1985 shipment from Israel to Iran with assistance by the CIA.

North was found guilty of three felony charges Thursday, including the preparation of a false chronology for Congress stating that no one in the government knew until January 1986 that missiles were in the November 1985 shipment. North's defense on the charge was that Casey and Poindexter knew at the time what was aboard, but participated in covering up that fact.

The document spelled out that the 17 recipients of the intelligence reports "exclusively" were Poindexter and his predecessor in the job, Robert McFarlane, North, Casey, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and other senior intelligence officials.

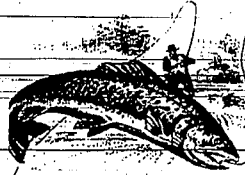

The reports contained information about pricing of this material, and those recipients of the reports at the CIA, National Security Council and the Department of Defense who knew the actual cost of this material to the DoD could have known the Iranians were being significantly overcharged, the paper said.

The reports of very late November and early December 1985 revealed that Hawk missiles were shipped to Iran from Israel in connection with recovery efforts. Still-classified reports on the intelligence were gathered by various methods of surveillance and "show individuals involved, including General Secord," the document adds.

North enlisted Secord to run arms to the Contras and also had the former Air Force major general-turned-businessman assist arms shipments to Iran for the Reagan administration.

North and Secord diverted profits from the Iran arms sales into bank accounts controlled by Secord and some of the diverted money was funneled to the Contras. The diversion originally formed the heart of the criminal indictment against North, but the US intelligence community refused to declassify key documents addressing those charges and they were dropped.

United States to monitor elections held in Panama Kohl fails to change Bush missile position

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, over Panamanian objections, will send a 14-person commission to observe what he predicts will be a free and open election in Panama on Sunday, the White House said Friday.

The observers, led by Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., will leave today and fly to a U.S. air base in Panama to avoid that nation's visa requirements, said White House press secretary Martin Fitzwater.

Naming the observer panel is part of the Bush administration's strategy to focus world attention on the election in Panama, where the United States has hired unsuccessfully for more than a year to get Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to relinquish power as the country's de facto ruler.

Panamanian officials have made it clear the official U.S. observer team would not be welcome.

Private observer teams also have been organized; one headed by former Presidents Carter and Ford under the auspices of the non-profit National Democratic Institute for International Affairs and the National Republican Institute for International Affairs.

Also in the delegation are Miami Mayor Javier Suarez, former Ambassador to Panama Jack Vaughn, former Sen. Richard Stone, of Florida, Andrew Gibson of the Panama Canal Commission and Michael Koszak, acting assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

One U.S. official noted that if Panama blocks the U.S. observers from assisting polling places, the action would serve the administration's purposes of casting Noriega in a bad light.

Bush and administration officials have predicted Noriega will steal the election for his presidential candidate, Carlos Duque. They cite numerous instances of registration and ballot irregularities in the election preparations.

Fitzwater said U.S. officials have informed the appropriate authorities in Panama about the team's arrival. However, he said he did not know how the Panamanians had responded.

"We're sending them in without visas. They probably won't have to have them," Fitzwater said.

But reports from Panama have queried officials as saying the observers would not be welcome and that only those invited by the government will be allowed to observe the balloting.

"That in itself would be a comment on the free and open nature of their elections," Fitzwater said when asked about Panamanian objections to a U.S. team.

"We would expect this delegation to be able to observe many aspects of the election. We expect they will have access to a number of opportunities to view the polling places," Fitzwater said.

"We have every reason to believe they'll be able to carry those out."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's spokesman accused the Soviet Union of working "assiduously" to divide NATO partners on Friday, as Bush and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl conferred without apparent progress in a dispute over short-range missiles in Europe.

The two leaders' 20-minute phone call did little to settle differences concerning Kohl's support for East-West talks on eliminating battlefield nuclear weapons from Western Europe, said White House press secretary Martin Fitzwater.

"The United States' posture has not changed," Fitzwater said. He said Kohl initiated the phone call.

"Discussions that would lead to a de-nuclearization of Europe would not be welcome," Fitzwater added.

The spokesman voiced sharp skepticism toward peace initiatives by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and suggested the Soviets are seeking to exploit the current NATO rift.

"The Soviets have worked assiduously to try to divide the alliance. General Secretary Gorbachev has made any number of proposals trying to convince people that there is no longer a threat from the Soviet Union. And we are very wary of that approach," Fitzwater said.

In Vienna, Soviet and East-German diplomats used Friday's resumption of East-West talks on conventional weapons to emphasize Warsaw Pact support for parallel talks on reducing short-range nuclear weapons.

East German Ambassador Klaus-Dieter Ermar insisted such negotiations are vital to Germans, telling a news conference: "The shorter the range of the rockets, the more dead Germans."

West Germany and some European NATO members want superpower talks on reducing tactical nuclear weapons, but the United States and Britain oppose such talks.

OPEN HOUSE

An open house is being held in honor of Matie Peters at THE NEW LIFE LIVING CENTER, 2 miles south of Filer, Idaho on Stevens Ave. from 2 pm to 4 pm, Sunday, May 7th. Wright says attacks on him unethical

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright argued Friday that his decades of public service outweigh any personal ethical shortcomings and suggested that political attacks against him are far more unethical than any failure of his own.

"Because I hold passionately to certain political beliefs, I have made formidable political opponents in 40 years of active public life," Wright said in a Law Day speech on ethics to a hometown crowd in Fort Worth.

"But I have never sought to destroy another man's character, nor to deprive him of his dignity. In these 40 years of public life, the most unethical behavior I have witnessed is that of those who, for their own ravaging ambitions, attempt to destroy the personal reputations of political opponents."

Wright's leadership post has been threatened because of a House ethics committee probe that has alleged Wright broke House rules 69 times in his personal financial dealings.

By turns combative and contrite, Wright sought in his remarks to refocus the debate on his ethics to public policy rather than personal finances. A text of his speech was released by his Washington office.

The chairman of the House ethics committee, Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said he had read Wright's speech. "Everyone's entitled to their own opinion. I didn't think it addressed the issues that were discussing here, nor do I think he should wait and present that testimony before the committee."

As Wright spoke, the ethics panel continued for the third straight day to interview participants in a 1988 Texas gas-drilling venture that has raised suspicions that Wright was steered into the lucrative deal as a gift to buy favor with a powerful legislator.

The panel questioned Doug Jaffe, who arranged for Malignetto — an investment partnership involving Wright, Fort Worth developer George Malignetto, and their wives — to buy into the gas well venture in January 1988. Five months later, the $9,120 investment was sold for a $340,000 profit. Wright had placed his interest in Malignetto in a blind trust in 1987 and instructed the trustee to sell that interest in a way that would earn him enough to pay off a $100,000 loan.

Chinese authorities make conciliatory statements to students

BEIJING (AP) — China's leaders responded to massive pro-democracy student demonstrations with conciliatory speeches, acknowledging protesters' grievances and promising further dialogue, state media reported Friday.

Exhausted university students began returning to class Friday after striking several marches during a two-week school boycott, and campus activists plotted their next steps for the fledgling democracy movement.

Official newspapers prominently displayed a speech by Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang that he delivered Thursday, when tens of thousands of students occupied Tiananmen Square to demand freedom and honest government.

Zhao called for talks with the students, although he did not promise any meetings with representatives of the pro-democracy movement. Premier Li Peng, in a speech Friday, also said "the dialogue between the government and the students will continue." He did not elaborate.

While Li expressed disapproval of some actions of some students, he said many of their demands were in line with government aims, such as bringing an end to corruption; the official Xinhua News Agency reported. Zhao said the protesters' absolutely don't want to oppose our basic system, but demand that we fix mistakes in our work.

He also seemed to tone down earlier official claims that students were being manipulated by people and wanted to see the country in turmoil. He said such people were unavoidable but few in number and said vigilance against them must be maintained. "I think the vast majority of students understand this."

One student leader at Beijing Normal College acknowledged the softening of the authorities' attitude, but claimed Zhao was taking a page from traditional Chinese shadow boxing by "turning flexibility into strength."

The state media Friday also gave their fullest accounts yet of any student protest since the pro-democracy movement began April 15. Several newspapers quoted onlookers as saying they supported the marchers. They used stories filed by their reporters instead of Xinhua, which has provided only skimpy and understated coverage of the student movement.

Press freedom has been a major demand pushed by the students, and among the demonstrators Thursday were scores of journalists who voiced support for a media free from official control.

After a nearly two-week boycott by students at Beijing universities, students returned to class Friday. Others wavered from successive marches, said they would wait until next week. A poster put up by the new student union at Peoples' University said: "Our efforts of half a month or not wasted. Our class boycott had definite results. Returning to class does not mean we have ceased our dialogue with the government."

The union said it chose to end the boycott to seek a form of dialogue that is reasonable and practical and acceptable to both sides. Xinhua reported more than half the capital's university students returned to class Friday.

Disagreement blocks Japan, USSR treaty

Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — After five days of high-level negotiations, the Soviet Union and Japan were locked Friday over a territorial dispute, blocking attempts to sign a peace treaty officially ending World War II and dashing President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's hopes of visiting Japan anytime soon.

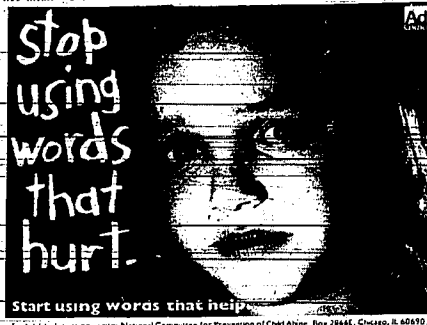

At issue are the Kuril Islands, taken over by the Soviet Union after the war. They are "territories of Japan, both traditionally and legally," Japanese Foreign Minister Sosuke Uno said at a news conference at the end of his visit, which concluded with a private session with Gorbachev. "These islands are entirely Russian," Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Igor A. Rogachev countered at a separate news conference.

The disagreement has prompted the Japanese to decline to set a date for a Gorbachev visit, making it the only major industrialized country that the Soviet president has been unable to visit in his campaign to bolster Soviet ties to the West and its allies. Gorbachev will visit Beijing later this month, and he will go to Bonn, West Germany, in June and to Paris in July. He is expected to discuss a meeting with President Bush when Secretary of State James A. Baker II visits Moscow next week.

The Moscow-Tokyo dispute has stymied Soviet efforts to strengthen economic and technological ties with Japan, something that Moscow is seeking in its effort to revitalize and modernize the Soviet economy. In March, Tokyo refused to sign six bilateral agreements, including agreements on tourism and economic cooperation, because of the territorial dispute.

Labor Party gains seat

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party on Friday lost a parliamentary seat it has held for 38 years, in a sharp rebuff the victorious Labor Party said showed that voters are weary of her capitalist revolution.

The blow came as Mrs. Thatcher marked her 10th anniversary in power and declared she has transformed Britain.

The socialist Labor Party claimed its stunning victory in the Welsh Vale of Glamorgan shows voters are particularly wary of Mrs. Thatcher's latest free-market crusade — to overhaul the free National Health Service that is a cornerstone of Britain's welfare state.

"Mrs. Thatcher's days are numbered," declared John Smith, who overturned the Conservatives' 6,251-vote majority to win by 6,028 votes.

Smith swept through the largely rural district's main town, the port of Barry, in an upset loss.

By cheering, supporters celebrating the huge 12 percent swing against the government.

Mrs. Thatcher's Energy Secretary Cecil Parkinson said Labor's win is a "warning to the government it is not as popular as it would like to be."

"But it is not in any way depressing or 'intimidating,'" Parkinson added.

Defeated Conservative candidate Rod Richards acknowledged voter hostility to the health service program and other reforms Mrs. Thatcher is pursuing in her third term. They include a new property tax and selling off the national water and electricity utilities.

"We have to win that debate in the country and it will take time because we are changing things quite radically," Richards said.

Labor also was boosted by the collapse of support for Britain's squabbling center parties, which split after the 1987 general election and adopted a new name, including as "the muddle in the middle."

Labor polled 2,342 votes to the Tories' 17,314. The centrist Social and Liberal Democratic Party took only 2,017 and the Social Democratic Party, its previous electoral ally, got 1,009. The Welsh nationalist party Plaid Cymru also did badly with 1,672 votes. The Vale of Glamorgan was only the fourth district in 25 years that Labor has snatched.

Morocco seizes magazine issue

LONDON (AP) — Moroccan authorities have seized the March issue of Kalima, a monthly magazine that has reported on sensitive issues in the North African country, an anti-censorship organization said Friday.

The issue contained stories in the Moroccan press, according to the organization. Article 19 International Center on Censorship. It did not say what the government found offensive.

The London-based organization, which takes its name from an article in the United Nations charter, said it was the fourth time the government has interfered with Kalima.

It said editions with articles on abortion and male prostitution have been seized, and that in November the government suspended circulation of the magazine for one week.

Kalima has a circulation of 10,000 and is the only Moroccan magazine that must submit each issue to the Interior Ministry before publication, the organization said.

'Kill Americans,' Iranian speaker tells Palestinians in sermon

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran on Friday called for a worldwide campaign of terror against Americans and urged Palestinians to kill five Westerners every Arab slain in the Israeli-occupied lands.

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, shown on Iranian TV leaning on an AK-47 as a suit-rifle, urged Palestinians to "declare an war on American interests throughout the world."

"Why don't you hijack planes in order to swap prisoners in Israeli hands, or blow up factories in Western countries?" he said in a semon during the weekly Shiite Moslem prayer session at Tehran University.

Rafsanjani, whose emotional speech was broadcast on Tehran Radio and monitored in Nicosia, was interrupted by thousands of Shiite worshippers who chanted "Death to Israel!"

In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Rafsanjani's comments were "appalling" and "another step towards Iran from the community of civilized nations."

"It is an exhortation for Palestinians to comit terrorism and only serves to confirm that terrorism remains an integral feature of Ayatollah Khomeini's regime," he said.

Fitzwater said the United States would hold Iran responsible for any attacks on American interests or citizens.

He compared the comments to Iran's threats against British author Salman Rushdie, a author of the book "The Satanic Verses." Many Moslems say the book blasphemes Islam and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has called for the author to be killed.

"After Rafsanjani's remarks, the official Is-amic Republic News Agency reported that the Tehran office of the West German airline Lufthansa was attacked Friday while it was closed for the Moslem weekend.

The agency, monitored in Nicosia, gave no details but said the office "sustained some damage."

In his remarks, Rafsanjani stressed that the United States should be singled out as Iran's main target but that Britons and Frenchmen also should be targets.

"If for every Palestinian martyred in Palestine (the Palestinians), kill five Americans, Britons or Frenchmen outside, the Zionists would not dare continue these wrongs," Rafsanjani said.

"It isn't so hard to kill Americans or Frenchmen, because they're all over the globe. It's a bit difficult to kill Israelis, because there are a lot of them around in other parts of the world," he said.

At least 460 Palestinians and 20 Israelis have died in the 17-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Boy, 13, dies in shooting in Bethlehem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli troops reportedly shot and killed a 13-year-old Palestinian in Bethlehem on Friday, and three Israeli soldiers were wounded by a roadside bomb in south Lebanon, Israel-Radio said.

Also Friday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told survivors of an Arab stabbing attack that Israelis should ensure terrorists attacking civilians do not escape unharmd. An opposition legislator accused him of encouraging vigilante groups.

In a political development, Foreign Minister Moshe Arens refused to accept France's report on P.L.O. leader Yasser Arafat's meetings this week with French leaders in Paris, Israel says the Palestine Liberation Organization practices terrorism and refuses to negotiate with its leaders.

Arab reporters in Jerusalem said the Palestinian youth was shot in the chest while he set up a roadblock in the biblical town of Bethlehem.

And Amnon Shalita was taken to East Jerusalem's Makassed hospital and pronounced dead on arrival, doctors said.

His death raises the toll to 461 Palestinians and 20 Israelis killed since Arabs started rebelling in December 1987 against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Shalita's family reportedly took his body from the hospital and tried to hold a funeral service in Manger Square, across from the Church of the Nativity. It marks the site where Christians believe Jesus Christ was born.

But Israeli soldiers and paramilitary police blocked the procession and the family later buried Shalita in neighboring Beit Sahour village, Arab reporters said.

Abductors free 2 W. Germans

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnappers freed two West Germans on Friday after holding them overnight but were holding a third hostage in connection with the trial of a Lebanese hijacker in Frankfurt, Palestinian guerrillas said.

There was no independent confirmation of the reported abductions, and the guerrillas did not identify the alleged kidnappers.

In Bonn, West German Foreign Ministry spokesman Hans Schumacher noted that two of the alleged victims also disappeared in Lebanon a year ago. He said he found their latest 10-hour disappearance "a bit strange."

Lt. Col. Wajih Abu Ali, the commander of the PLO's military police in Sidon, said Heinrich Struening, 49, Fritz Schmitzler, 26, and Markus Michael, 25, were abducted Thursday evening by five gunmen outside Sidon.

All three work for the ASME-Humanitas relief agency from an office near the southern port city.

A Palestinian officer in charge of security at the office where they work quoted Struening and Schmitzler as saying Michael was being held in connection with the case of Mohammed Ali Hamadi.

Aid for Georgians

MOSCOW (AP) — The International Committee of the Red Cross is sending doctors to Soviet Georgia to treat victims of a powerful gas used against pro-independence demonstrators last month, a newspaper said Friday.

The foreign doctors are being brought in because Soviet doctors have been unable to determine effective treatment for the patients injured in an April 9 clash.

At least 19 people were killed when troops stormed the demonstration with gas, shovels and armored personnel carriers. A 20th victim died when he was shot for violating a curfew imposed to curb the unrest.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECASTS

IF MAY 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, sense of drama, appreciation of luxury, music. Care must be taken in connection with diet, nutrition. At times it is a regular battle for you to overcome "sweet tooth." Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. Current cycle emphasizes marital status, residence, occupation, possible addition to family. You are determined, stubborn and almost constantly in love. Your most memorable birth-of-1989 will be June.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Surge of motivation concerning style, color patterns. Body image requires attention. Money will be protected.

TARUS (April 20-May 20): Someone wants something for nothing, you could be prime target. Check fine print for possible loopholes. Will be asked to make special appearance. Wear your colors: blue, indigo, purple. Scorpio involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Play detective. Means examinations, be wary of subtle hints. Focus on secrecy, hidden meanings. You'll receive note containing pertinent information. Virgo, Sagittarius, and LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Scenario features sentiment, discovery, style, sensuous romance, style, creativity. Someone might be wise to give logic equal play. Logic, distance call has much to do with future promises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll feel differently about recent proposals. Scenario highlights legal affairs, partnership, public relations, marriage. Break from tradition clearly indicated. Someone says, "You are my own."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scenario message for valuable hint. Family involvement in financial dispute not desirable but probably will occur. Be diplomatic. romance, style, loyalty—Gaspereau plays key role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message. Focus on speculation, commitment, style, creativity. Someone might say, "You're a regular riverboat gambler!" Evening of entertainment combines with love. Best options open.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It is necessary to ramp plans. Individual you're relied upon could be summoned "out of town." Be positive concerning dates, appointments, commitments. Taurus native could become reluctant ally.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Two persons, possibly "old flames," will be pulling you in different directions. Excellent for ego but not very practical. Opportunity exists to not only writing talents. Virgo figures prominently.

WHALES

Do whales sleep? Experts still don't know for sure. They do know whales rest near the surface. In pods. And come-up together to breathe.

Antarctic ice is deep. It rests on land. Arctic ice is shallow, relatively. It floats on water. Scientists say the greenhouse effect, therefore, significantly melts Arctic ice but not Antarctic ice. So far.

Songwriters sue Morton Downey Jr. over theme song

CHICAGO (AP) — Talk show host Morton Downey Jr. is being sued by two songwriters who claim they wrote the theme song for his syndicated show and have never received any money for it.

TIPPER GORE

The songwriters, John Beland and Floyd Guilbeau, both of Hendersonville, Tenn., said Downey claimed co-authorship and diverted the royalties.

The lawsuit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court, said Beland and Guilbeau wrote the words and music to an original musical work entitled the "Morton Downey Jr. Theme," sometimes referred to as "Morton's Theme" and the "Loudmouth Theme Song."

On hand at the May 19 opening of TG's North of the Border Cafe and Cantina.

He said he's spent at least $1.1 million on the adobe-style eatery and plans to amble through to talk with customers whenever he can.

Downey will not comment on the lawsuit, said his assistant David Lloyd.

"I really like this place," said Ingrid-Croce-Rock, who visited the Natchitoches site for the first time Wednesday. "It's peaceful and the people are very positive. That's what Jim's music was all about."

Croce's plane crashed shortly after takeoff Sept. 20, 1973, when its tail clipped a tree at the end of the Natchitoches Municipal Airport runway.

The singer, best known for his hit "Time in a Bottle," had just given a concert for 2,000 at Northwestern State University in Natchitoches, 50 miles southeast of Shreveport. He was en route to Dallas.

"Every night, we pull a mattress and a sleeping bag under the hospital bed and one of us sleeps by his side," she said.

Peace activist is detained in Toronto

TORONTO (AP) — Peace activist and former priest Philip Berrigan was detained when he arrived in Toronto recently because immigration authorities said he didn't have a special minister's permit to enter Canada.

Dan Heap, a member of Parliament, accused the government of trying to prevent Berrigan from speaking at a Toronto church rally Thursday to promote a blockade of an international military weapons show in Ottawa May 23-25. The speech took place as planned.

Berrigan, who has been convicted 60 times for offenses such as burning draft papers, pouring blood on draft files and damaging military property, arrived Wednesday on a flight from Baltimore and was detained for six hours.

A priest posted a $3,000 bond to free Berrigan, but the activist vowed not to return for a May 11 immigration hearing unless federal officials permit him to cross the border freely.

"What's going on here is the harassment of the peace movement in the person of one of its most famous and admired representatives," said Heap, who spent almost an hour on the phone with immigration officials trying to free Berrigan.

Police guild may take action against t-shirt

SPOKANE (AP) — An underground Bloomsday T-shirt emblazoned with a caricature of a bare-breasted woman and a caption naming the Police Guild may be met with legal action by the guild and by the Bloomsday association.

Down would not speculate on why the shirt named the guild, but said he doesn't believe it is connected to a controversial party at the Police Guild Club in 1986 that featured a hired striptease dancer performing with sexual devices.

The caption under the cartoon reads, "I'm in Bloomsday 'cause the boys at the Police Guild said jogging is good for your lungs," and also displays the words, "Bloomsday '89 Underground."

The Lilac Bloomsday Association may join the legal action to prevent the unauthorized use of the Bloomsday name, which is a trademark, said Steve Jones, an attorney who serves on the association board of directors.

"We find it offensive," Spokane Police Lt. Chuck Down said Wednesday at a news conference called by the guild, which is the bargaining unit for Spokane police officers. "We're not affiliated in this in any way, shape or form."

"I can appreciate some underground humor if it's done cleverly and in good taste, although I think we'd still react against it to protect our trademark," Jones said. But he said the T-shirt "goes beyond the bounds of good taste. I think we're very concerned about it."

Police Guild attorney Gregory Stuebel said he may seek a court injunction to prohibit the sale of the T-shirts, which he called a "misrepresentation of the guild."

Down said a man identified as Rick Turner insisted on giving one of the shirts to a police officer who issued him a traffic ticket Saturday night. The officer reported the incident and turned the shirt over to police property.

Down said when Turner was contacted later, he told the Police Guild he had printed 1,000 of the shirts and was selling them "on the street."

Nation Nuclear safety unit given push

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate investigation of "silence-for-money" deals in the nuclear industry is adding punch to a legislative drive to abolish the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and replace it with a new-style safety agency, officials said Friday.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., plans to introduce a bill next week that would dissolve the NRC and create a Nuclear Safety Agency, an aide said. Unlike the five-member commission, the new agency would be headed by a single administrator. The bill would include an independent board to investigate reactor safety problems.

A similar bill in the last Congress easily passed the Senate but died in the House.

At a hearing Thursday on the "silence-for-money" issue, Breaux said the commission's inability to agree on the legality and acceptability of such deals was clear evidence that it should be abolished in the best interests of the industry.

The commission ... fails to send coherent and timely regulatory signals to the nuclear industry and the public," Breaux said. "This must be changed."

Breaux slammed the commission for not publicly disavowing an agreement signed by Brown & Root, the builder of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant in Texas, and a former electrician who claims he was dismissed for questioning plant safety. The worker was paid $100,000 plus $20,000 for his attorneys, in exchange for agreeing to drop his complaints and not testify at NRC licensing hearings.

Brown & Root's president, Louis Austin, told a Senate Environment and Public Works subcommittee headed by Breaux that his company believed the agreement was legal when it was signed in January 1987. The worker, Joseph J. Macktal, said he signed the deal under duress and is fighting its legality.

Breaux said his subcommittee had evidence of at least one other such agreement between a builder and a dealer. He said that even if these deals were legal, they had hurt the nuclear industry by giving at least the appearance of bribery.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., leveled the harshest criticism at the NRC.

"It doesn't work; it never has, and we had better jettison it," Simpson said at the hearing.

The main complaints against the commission are that it is slow to act and that its members are too cozy with the utilities whose plants must be licensed by the NRC.

When the NRC was created in 1974 as part of legislation that abolished the Atomic Energy Commission, the new agency's purpose was to separate the regulators from those in government who were promoting the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. Critics in recent years have said the NRC is too vulnerable to promotional influences.

Plans to replace the NRC with an administrator — along the lines of the Environmental Protection Agency — have been proposed, but died, many times in the past. The nuclear utility companies have opposed the legislation.

Bush to visit east Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will visit Hungary and Poland in July, symbolizing U.S. support for economic and political reform in the two Eastern Bloc countries, the White House announced Friday.

Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush would visit the two countries en route to Paris for a seven-nation economic summit beginning July 14.

Yugoslavia may be included in Bush's itinerary. Sources close to the Yugoslav government said discussions will get under way shortly after a Bush stop in that country.

Fitzwater said he did not know details of the trip but that the stops in Poland and Hungary would be spread over two days.

The plan jelled Thursday night after lengthy exchanges with Polish authorities, who suggested the White House consider having the president visit their country after the summit meeting.

Woman waives her preliminary hearing

TWIN FALLS — A woman charged with embezzling more than $3,000 from United Way faces trial after waiving her preliminary hearing.

The next step in Filtr resident Paula Bivens' felony criminal trial is to enter a plea at a District Court arraignment, unless a plea bargain is struck. Her preliminary hearing was scheduled for Friday.

Bivens, 31, is charged with six felony counts stemming from a five-month stint last year as a part-time bookkeeper at United Way of Magic Valley. Prosecutors say Bivens changed the amounts on two of her paychecks and posted opaque labels on two donation checks to deposit the money in her husband's business account. Bivens is charged with four counts of forgery and two counts of grand theft.

She denied wrongdoing when a police detective confronted her with one of the checks, and her attorney, Jay Sudweeks, has said Bivens denies taking any money.

Deputy Prosecutor Rockne Lammers said Friday that "plea bargains are being discussed."

Hearing for deputy auditor has been postponed

HALLEY — A preliminary hearing for Blaine County's deputy auditor, charged with nine counts of grand theft, has been postponed until an undetermined date.

The hearing was postponed after Magistrate Judge Dan Alban disqualified himself from the case. The case is awaiting assignment to a new judge.

Call Louisa Peterson of Carey is charged with embezzling $15,909 in checks and money orders between June 1988 and March 1989.

2 critics of defense projects to meet with federal officials

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Richard Stallings has arranged for two Magic Valley critics of defense projects slated for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory to meet with federal officials.

Mark Stubbs, Twin Falls County Republican Committee chairman, and Dr. Peter Rickards, a Twin Falls podiatrist, will meet Monday with U.S. Department of Energy officials and Rep. John M. Spratt Jr., R-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

The two Twin Falls men hope to communicate their concern that development of the Special Isotope Separator, a laser-driven plutonium refinery, would take precedence over cleanup of plutonium-contaminated waste at INEL.

Spratt's committee is deliberating the authorization of money to start the project.

Rickards and Stubbs are members of Voters Organized to Educate on Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Conservation program tour scheduled for Thursday

BUHL — Anyone interested in attending the Balanced Rock Soil Conservation District's second annual Conservation Begins Program tour Thursday should call the district office at 543-6404 by Monday to arrange transportation.

The tour leaves the district office in Buhl at 8:15 a.m. and will visit fields of new seeding and established stands in the Blue Gulch, Magic Water and Bell Rapids areas.

The program encourages farmers to plant highly erodible land with grass or trees for 10 years in exchange for annual payments from the USDA.

Because of the early spring rains, "the fields look really good this spring," says Soil Conservation Service district conservationist Kevin Davidson.

Agricultural officials will discuss the program seedings. The district will provide transportation and mid-morning refreshments.

17-year-old boy injured in potato cellar fire

TWIN FALLS — A 17-year-old boy suffered second- and third-degree burns when a fire broke out Friday in a potato cellar.

The fire started shortly after 5 p.m., said Dan Hall, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy. The boy was cleaning the cellar 2 1/2 miles west of Circle K on Orchard Drive, according to sheriff's reports.

The teenager was transported to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in a private car, police reports said.

The cellar suffered minimal damage. Hall said investigation is continuing and he hasn't determined the cause of the fire.

Unemployment rate dips to 4.6 percent

By The Times-News and The Associated Press.

TWIN FALLS — The area's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate continued its dramatic dive in April to 4.6 percent, the lowest rate in nearly a decade.

"One must go all the way back to November 1979 to see a rate as low," said Lon McDonald, labor analyst for the state Job Service in Twin Falls.

A year ago the rate was a full 2 percent higher at 6.6 percent, McDonald said.

"It's a remarkable drop. The unemployment rate began its free-fall in March, when the Job Service reported a drop to 5.3 percent, down from 6.2 percent in February.

The civilian labor force in the three counties the state calls "Magic Valley" — Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding — rose by more than 1,260 over April 1988, McDonald reports. "That's a decided improvement over the lost labor force in the last several years," he said.

McDonald said the increased work force shows Magic Valley employers are optimistic about the future. The good news also reflects the excellent prognosis this year for agriculture, he said.

The unemployment rate dipped below the 5 percent mark statewide.

Idaho's Employment Department said Friday its preliminary forecast for April put the statewide rate at 4.9 percent, down from 5.5 percent in March and significantly below the 6.3 percent rate of April 1988.

It was the 24th straight month that the current rate has run below year-earlier levels and the first time since 1978, when the current record-keeping system began, that the statewide rate has been under 5 percent.

"Employment opportunities generally improved across the economy last month," analysts said. The statewide work force remained above 490,000 and total employment continued above 460,000 for the sixth consecutive month, fueling optimism that the state's economic expansion is still picking up steam.

Mike Buscher, right, questions Rep. Richard Stallings about semi-automatic weapons as the class listens

Local students query Stallings on Aryan Nations, abortion

By JENNIFER KAUTH Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Running behind schedule and pelted by a spring rainstorm, former teacher Richard Stallings kept an appointment at a pay phone in the nation's capital to keep an appointment with a group of Twin Falls High School students.

A group of about 30 seniors gathered in the high school's library conference room Friday to query their congressman. During the 50-minute conference call, the kids peppered Stallings with questions on such topics as the Oliver North trial, abortion, semiautomatic weapons, the Aryan Nationalist Party and Social Security.

Senior Stephanie Slater said she learned more from the conference call with Stallings than she would have in class.

"So many feel so far removed from government," said Charles Barnes, the Stallings aide who set up the call.

He said Stallings used to teach high school and likes talking to kids. Car horns and screeching tires sometimes made it difficult to hear the congressman, who had been unable to get back to his office in time for the call.

Abortion got the most time during the conference call. Judi Lambert asked whether Stallings thought the Supreme Court would overturn the Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion.

Stallings said he didn't think the ruling would be overturned, although he said he was opposed to abortion.

He added, however, that abortion is OK in some cases, for

5 residents attend Jerome meeting to discuss school

By DENISE TURNER Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Surveying the sparsely filled room of just five local residents and several employees of the school district, Jerome Superintendent Richard Kugler was puzzled Thursday during the public hearing to discuss the need for a new elementary school.

"I don't know how to read a meeting like this," Kugler said. "Whether it's apathy or, 'You're going in the right direction, keep going, I've got other things to do.'"

No one has called him to say they oppose a new elementary school, he said. "I've talked to many people in the community who are willing to help us get people interested in the new building," he said.

Kugler proposes dealing with Jerome's overcrowded elementary schools by selling the 51-year-old Washington Elementary and building a new school on the 21 acres north of Eorayd Park which the district bought for $46,000. Students in kindergarten through fourth grade would be housed in Jefferson Elementary and the new elementary building, leaving only fifth and sixth graders to attend Central Elementary.

Kugler estimates that a new 50,000-square-foot building, landscaped and furnished, would cost about $3 million and probably wouldn't be built before 1992. He said he'd like to see a vote on a bond issue late this fall or early spring.

The district's $1.2 million bond issue for the high school will be paid off April 1, 1993.

Most who spoke at the hearing generally supported a new school, although local parent Dick Greenwood, who also approved, said passing a bond for so much money is likely to be difficult in Jerome.

Library may select architect next week

By JENNIFER KAUTH Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The library board next week likely will choose the architect who will make preliminary plans for the facility's proposed 20,000-square-foot expansion.

The board on Thursday finished interviewing the three prospective architects for the project.

"We have the proposals in hand, but no decision has been made," Library Director Arlan Call said. The board will probably name the firm Wednesday at its regular 5 p.m. meeting in the library's basement.

"The three finalists for the job were given two hours each to make their pitch."

The finalists — Richardson and Associates of Salt Lake City; Hummel, LaMarche and Hunsacker of Boise; and Sandberg and Associates of Idaho Falls — have "extraordinary experience" in designing libraries, Call said.

Richardson and Associates' proposal was a joint venture with Twin Falls architect Harold Gerber, Call said. He said the board was careful to mail notices to all local architects and firms, but received only two responses.

The architect chosen will do preliminary drawings and cost estimates for a bond issue election.

The board next week will also pick between the only two applicants to be the project's financial advisor — First Security Bank and West One Bank.

Jerome dairy owner wins 1st battle to stay open

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

JEROME — Kenneth Vanderham's dairy, the source of heated public hearings and protracted legal action, will stay open.

Vanderham won a legal skirmish Friday that will probably end the controversy over his 600-cow dairy.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl ruled Friday that portions of the county's zoning ordinances applying to dairies are invalid. Vanderham's dairy violated portions of those ordinances.

Vanderham, in a convoluted series of legal battles, argued those ordinances were adopted illegally, and therefore invalid. His 600-cow dairy west of Jerome raised the ire of neighbors in public hearings and led to a series of lawsuits.

"I'm really happy to hear that," said Gene Frederickson, Vanderham's attorney.

The Times-News was unable to reach any of the other parties to the lawsuit.

Vanderham, formerly a California dairyman, first applied for a permit in 1987. The county approved the permit over the heated objections of the dairy's many neighbors.

The neighbors then sued the county, saying the dairy was too close to residential areas. Vanderham built the dairy, despite the lawsuit, and Meehl decided to send the permit back to the county for more hearings.

The county held up final approval on Vanderham's dairy permit and filed its own suit to ask Meehl whether the ordinances the dairy violated were valid.

That's the lawsuit Meehl decided Friday. He has indicated in court that his decision would probably take care of the neighbors' lawsuit, since they alleged the county violated its own ordinances.

Buhl bank will open Twin Falls branch

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hoping to profit in the fallout from the Twin Falls Bank & Trust sale, the president of the Farmers National Bank of Buhl announced Friday that the independent bank will open a Twin Falls branch.

The expansion has been contemplated for nearly 20 years, but the pending sale of Twin Falls Bank & Trust to Utah-based First Security Corp. made it mandatory, said J.P. Hamilton, Farmers National president.

"It became important for another independent bank to offer facilities that are locally and independently operated," Hamilton said.

In compliance with federal guidelines, Farmers National has filed an application with the Federal Comptroller of the Currency. Hamilton said he expects approval within the next 60 days.

Farmers National has tentatively planned to locate its new branch near the intersection of Shoshone Street and Second Avenue, Hamilton said.

He predicted the new branch would be open for business, at least in temporary offices, within the next six to eight months. Farmers National would probably hire up to 10 employees, Hamilton said.

In December 1988 Farmers National reported $47 million in assets, significantly less than the Bank & Trust's $189 million. But Hamilton said his country bank, while just a fourth the size, is not unlike the Bank & Trust in its commitment to agriculture loans.

Approximately 65 percent to 80 percent of Farmers National's loan portfolio is in agriculture, Hamilton said.

Once the Bank & Trust is acquired by First Security Corp., First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls will become

Boise doctors say FDA report caused some patients to panic

BOISE (AP) — Three Boise cardiologists say a recent Denver-based report on two possibly dangerous heart drugs has caused more problems for their patients than the medications themselves.

"It was badly handled by the FDA. Physicians were left in the dark," Dr. Mark Poutant said.

The cardiologists said Thursday the FDA released results of a drug study to the general public on April 25 before notifying health professionals.

The study evaluated the effectiveness of the chemically related drugs, Tambacor and Enkaid, in treating mild forms of the heart irregularities called arrhythmias.

Some patients panicked and quit taking their heart medications, increasing their chances of cardiac arrest, Poutant said.

Parent said. Millions of Americans have arrhythmia, and those irregular beats can triple the risk of sudden death from heart attack.

The two-year clinical tests found that death was almost twice as frequent among those patients who took the drugs for mild arrhythmias after recently suffering a heart attack as among those who took a placebo.

Both drugs have been licensed to treat severe arrhythmias that can occur after heart attacks, and both have been safe and effective with such patients, FDA officials said.

But physicians had expanded the use of the drugs, and prescribed them for milder forms of arrhythmias.

The majority of the 800,000 prescriptions issued nationwide for the two drugs last year were given to people with only mild arrhythmias, FDA officials said.

But the Boise cardiologists disagree. They say other studies have shown the drugs to be effective for mild arrhythmias and that they began prescribing the drugs frequently after finding them highly effective, with fewer side effects than other drugs.

Cardiologist William Owens said he would not discontinue the use of the drugs for any of his more than 100 patients taking them until he sees conclusive evidence in a professional journal.

"I don't base my medical decisions on what I read in the newspaper, or on television," Owens said. "As far as I know, the study is not over completed."

6 overcome by toxic gas that leaked from pulp mill operation

LEWISTON (AP) — Six people were injured, one seriously, when they were overcome by toxic gases that leaked from a Potlatch Corp. pulp mill operation, a company official said.

The leak in the No. 3 lime kiln area was discovered Thursday morning when Randall McGarvey, a pulp mill instrument mechanic, was asked by a kiln operator to check what the operator thought was malfunctioning in an atmospheric vent valve, said Potlatch communications manager Michael Sullivan.

"He (McGarvey) went to check and was overcome by fumes from an apparent leak. The exact source of leak we're still investigating," Sullivan said.

Several other employees who went to assist were also overcome by fumes.

All the injured were taken to St. Joseph Regional—Medical Center, where McGarvey was listed in critical condition Thursday night.

Chris Cavanaugh, a pulp mill supervisor, and Steve Fowler, a kiln operator, were in fair condition and were to be kept overnight for observation, a nursing supervisor and Sullivan said.

Treated and released were Joe Rippee, a technical assistant, and pulp mill supervisors Darrell Osborn and Jim Collier, Sullivan said.

Six other employees were given precautionary treatment at a clinic, including showers and a change of clothes. They also went for a checkup at the hospital, Sullivan said.

He did not have the ages or hometowns of the victims.

The gases that leaked were hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan, both poisonous, odorous, non-condensable waste gases from pulp mill operations.

The gases, which are normally vented to the kiln and burned, apparently leaked from piping leading to the kiln, Sullivan said.

"When we discovered the problem, we went through the normal safety procedures — shutting down the No. 3 kiln and opening atmospheric vents that allowed the area to be ventilated. We also took a side off the building to facilitate (ventilation)," Sullivan said.

All gases were flushed out, and workers resumed in the area later in the day, Sullivan said.

Norwegian historian says Reagan was ignorant, lazy but successful

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Former political Reagan was able to achieve political success despite being the "most ignorant and lazy" president the United States has seen in half a century, a Norwegian historian says.

Geir Lundestad, a professor of modern history at Oslo University in Norway, told Weber State College students that during his eight years in office, Reagan presided without actually working, hardly even.

"I mean he is clearly the most ignorant president America has had in the last 50 or 60 years. He's clearly the laziest president America's had. But he did wonders politically," Lundestad said.

Despite those shortcomings, the historian said, Reagan was able to galvanize the public through Cold-

War rhetoric and by trumpeting the strengths of America.

"America was in decline, and you had a president who believed more than any other president after World War II in the strength and greatness of America," Lundestad said.

The only comparable rhetoric would be the kind of rhetoric Kennedy used in the Sixties... That was the kind of rhetoric Reagan picked up on.

A fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center in Washington, Lundestad is the author of the recently released book, "America, Scandinavia and the Cold War."

The scholar said that in some ways, America rose and fell under the leadership of its 40th president.

The rise was represented by Reagan's ability to use ideology and word opinion to instill a new sense of nationalism in the American people, Lundestad said.

"Reagan was, in certain ways, able to enhance America's strength... He was able to put much of the self-doubt of the Seventies, the post-Vietnam era, behind America," the historian noted.

"Nobody (can) talk any more about all that wrong presidents who could not do anything," Reagan did quite a few things.

On the down side, Reagan found it hard to accept the United States' inability to singularly control world events, he said.

Reagan did strengthen America in some ways, but he also had to adjust to the world. It was simply impossible to fit the world into the kind of schematic picture Reagan had of it when he became president, Lundestad said.

Ada County sets down policy on what medical costs it will pay

BOISE (AP) — No one should look to Ada County to pay for his or her life, acupuncture, sex-change operation or weight-loss program, county commissioners say.

The board's resolution sets down what already is county policy, Commissioner Mike Johnson said.

The county is required by state law to pay for medical care for poor people when the county is absolutely the last resort. The commissioners said costs of the program are swelling, and they want to make it clear what they will not oblige some situations.

Also on the list for an automatic "no" is any organ transplant, other than standard kidney transplants.

Medical assistance rules that exclude experimental procedures.

Last year, the county paid for an indigent Boise man's liver transplant at a cost of more than $70,000. Afterward, the commissioners decided not to pay for any more such transplants.

"We've had people request that type of stuff," Johnson said. "Different lifts and tucks. This makes it perfectly clear that we take care of emergency and legitimate medical need."

The county spends close to $3 million on medical care for indigents each year. More than half who apply are turned down.

Other treatments automatically rejected are routine checkups; non-prescription drugs; expenses of non-complicated pregnancy and delivery; circumcision of newborns; fertility-related services and rehabilitation therapy.

instance if the woman was raped.

"But abortion should not be used as a birth control," he said.

A nationwide adoption network should be federally funded to deal with the many unwanted children that would result from making abortion illegal, he said.

In response to a question from Slater, Stallings said Oliver Bercl charges, "got off pretty lucky." He predicted the trial would leave a "scar" on former President Reagan's record, even though Reagan did not have to testify.

"I would like to believe that Reagan knew nothing," Stallings said. "I would like to believe that it was a bunch of young, ambitious lients in the basement of the White House. But that's hard to believe."

Slater said she was satisfied with Stallings' response, but said she thinks Reagan should have had to testify.

"I would like to believe North was following orders," she said, "but orders from whom?"

Stallings said the government's import restriction on semiautomatic weapons was a mistake because drug runners could still afford to buy them on the black market.

He called the Aryan Nations "vile," said "anybody good about this," he said in answer to Jennifer Ainsworth's question: "My mom told-me if you can't say anything nice, don't say anything at all, but I'll have to make an exception in their case."

He said he wished the white supremacists would find somewhere to live besides Idaho.

"There will always be a place for rural hospitals," Stallings said, even though they're "getting hit on both ends" — with both clientele dropping and Medicare reimbursements from the government lower than an urban hospital.

In closing, Stallings urged the seniors to go on to college. American society is becoming two-tiered, he said — divided into those who have higher education and those who do not.

All members of the board were at Thursday's hearing.

He suggested building extra classroom space into a new building to allow

Rate

The dramatic decline in Idaho's jobs rate, coming despite the traditional lull between winter and summer tourism, was in stark contrast to the national picture, where the U.S. unemployment rate shot up nearly a third of a point to 5.3 per-

But the unemployment rate increase nationally, more evidence that the country's economy was slowing down, was expected to cool fears of escalating inflation that could bring higher interest rates and stifle Idaho's economic resurgence.

The jobless rate was down in every region of the state, analysts said, "employment in all major industries showed gains except for lumber and wood products, which was down due to weather conditions."

"Seasonal employment and consumer shopping trends boosted April employment figures in the agriculture, construction, retail trade, auto sales and business services sectors," they said.

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL The Associated Press NEW YORK — A widely respected television journalist, Bill Moyers, is in a tussle with fundamentalist officials of his own denomination, the Southern Baptists, particularly one of them. It's a peculiar scrap, and may lead to further rounds.

"I've been a Baptist all my life and I'm used to this," Moyers commented. "They say that where two or more Baptists are gathered together, there'll be a fight."

This one was started by a virtually unopposed resolution by a major denomination assailing an individual journalist. It said Moyers' TV series, "God and Politics," was biased.

Moyers says, "Nobody can point to a single frame of that series and say it's inaccurate." "We tried to be scrupulously fair and with the single exception of Paul Pressler, the comments we have received from all sides have underlined that fairness."

Pressler, a Houston judge, was the chief strategist for fundamentalists gaining predominance in the country's biggest Protestant body, elevating him to its national executive committee.

There, he was pushed through the resolution in February, charging that the Moyers series supported "an anti-fundamentalist bias."

Pressler proposed a 90-minute session with Moyers taped by the denomination's Sunday School Board, provided it was shown on PBS, which no one could promise.

Ironically, while the justifying act, the national convention of the denomination, was in session with Moyers taped by the denomination's Sunday School Board, provided it was shown on PBS, which no one could promise.

Pressler singled out a part of the series called "Battle for the Bible," dealing with the denominational controversy, and called it "prejudicial."

"That show is to be repeated Sunday, May 21, on PBS as part of a series of Moyers' best documentaries. He notified Pressler of the re-showing 'in light of your spurious accusations' and so viewers can once more judge it for themselves."

Moyers invited Pressler to appear with him following the program for a half-hour live discussion. However, the executive committee's chairman, the Rev. Charles Sullivan of Lenoir City, Tenn., replied that Pressler had asked not to discuss the matter further publicly.

Religious Public Relations Council, representing communications officers of most major denominations, presented a special award to Moyers for his high journalistic standards and sensitivity to religious values.

Pope urges moderation in search for converts

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Pope John Paul II, reflecting the church's concern about the spread of Islamic fundamentalism in Africa, urged Roman Catholics and Muslims on Friday to avoid aggressive tactics in the battle for converts.

In a speech to Malawian Catholic bishops on the last full day of his six-day African tour, the pope raised the issue of the church's tense relations with Muslims in this southern African nation.

"What is required is mutual respect, as well as mutual recognition of those things that we share in common," the pope said.

"Both among Christians working for unity in obedience to Christ and among believers of different religions, there is no place for aggressive proselytism which disturbs and hurts, still less for the use of unworthy methods," he added.

The pope quoted from his speech to Muslims in Morocco in 1985: "Christians and Muslims who have had a long and sometimes in the past, have opposed and even exhausted each in polemics and in wars. I believe that today God invites us to change our old practices."

There are 2.5 million Catholics and 11 million Muslims in this country of 8 million people. The rest of the population is made up mostly of Anglicans, Protestants and animists.

White separatist has trouble with making Wyoming move

EVANSTON, Wyo. (AP) — A white separatist who unsuccessfully sought Wyoming's lone U.S. House seat is encountering problems in his efforts to move to Evanston, he said.

Daniel Johnson, a Glendale, Calif., attorney, said a real estate broker has refused to represent him the purchase of a home in Uinta County and added local opposition to his presence is growing as well.

Johnson is the author of the proposed "Peace Amendment" to the U.S. Constitution which would deny U.S. citizenship to non-whites.

He had moved to Casper in time to be a candidate for Wyoming's special congressional election and had proposed moving the headquarters of his League of Peace Amendment Advocates to the city as well, but local opposition led him to consider moving to Evanston instead.

But Johnson said he has encountered several problems in his efforts to relocate in southwestern Wyoming.

"We've had some delays," he said. "If I can surmount all of these incredible barriers, my intention is still to go to Evanston."

Johnson said one problem stems from the refusal of real estate broker Mel Elson to represent him in the purchase of a home.

Elson has sent Johnson a letter saying he will no longer represent Johnson because he finds the attorney's political views repugnant.

Johnson said he has contacted the Wyoming Real Estate Commission to complain that Elson dropped him in the middle of contract negotiations.

It's outrageous that a broker will start a transaction, carry it halfway through into negotiating stages and then drop it," he said.

A Federal Housing and Urban Development official said there is no law preventing a broker from refusing service to someone whose political views he objects to.

Lloyd Miller said federal law prohibits discrimination in real estate transactions on the basis of race, religion, sex, familial status, handicaps or national origin, but not political views.

Meanwhile, Johnson's presence in Evanston has led to the organization of a group opposed to his viewpoint.

The "Concerned Citizens of Uinta County" have purchased a full-page advertisement in an Evanston newspaper to voice their opposition to Johnson's stands.

Bundy confession fails to lead to remains of victim near Vail

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Death row confessions by Ted Bundy have failed to lead investigators to the remains of a ski instructor whom Bundy said he raped, strangled and buried more than 14 years ago.

In confessions made shortly before his execution in Florida Jan. 21 for the murder of a Florida schoolgirl, Bundy told authorities he killed 23 women in four states, including Julie Cunningham, 26.

Cunningham disappeared March 15, 1975, in Vail, where she taught skiing and worked in a sports shop.

Bundy told investigators he feigned a ski injury so she would carry his boots to his parked car,

Wallace motel sign stirs fight over town view

WALLACE (AP) — The historic character of this North Idaho mining town won't be damaged by a five-story-high motel sign, and an agreement that prohibits the sign should be changed, the state's deputy historic preservation officer said.

The city's approval of the 56-foot sign violated an agreement with state and federal historic preservation agencies prohibiting construction over two stories, and Wallace could risk losing a $167,000 federal grant used to help finance construction of the motel complex.

Preservation officer Tom Green said, "But Green said the sign and a clock tower atop the two-story motel won't be visible from the city's historic downtown area and are overshadowed by an elevated section of Interstate 90 under construction.

Green's conclusion prompted Ray Giles, chairman of the Wallace Historic Preservation Commission, to resign as he threatened to do several weeks ago.

At a city council meeting last month, Giles pointed out that the sign would be a violation of the agreement the city signed in early 1988.

Son trying to recover rights to pilfered estate

MOSCOW (AP) — Violet Bong of Deary died of old age two weeks ago. Now her son, Gerald, wants back his rights to the estate he was convicted pilfering.

Second District Judge John Bengtson will listen to both sides of the argument on Wednesday in Moscow.

Bong's attorney, Joan Fisher, said in a motion filed this week that a waiver Bong signed last September relinquishing his rights to the estate until Latah County is repaid for the cost of his prosecution and defense is an unfair burden.

Latah County Prosecutor Craig Musman disagrees.

It was a valid waiver, something he agreed to, Musman said Thursday. The state has a right to reimbursement. He was defended by the public defender because at the time he said he was indigent.

If he comes into that money, that indigent condition then is no longer present. It's unfair to the people of Latah County who really are indigent.

Musman charged Bong with grand theft in 1987 after his mother was unable to pay her bills at the county nursing home. As a conservator of the estate, Bong admitted using his mother's savings to buy a logging truck, two television satellite dishes, a mobile home and to have ice cream delivered to his home regularly.

Violet Bong suffered from Alzheimer's disease and died from causes relating to age.

A jury convicted Bong on one charge of grand theft in April 1988. Bengtson sentenced him to pay restitution not only to the county, but to area banks handling his mother's accounts.

He also put Bong on probation for 10 years and sentenced him to serve 29 weekends in jail from June 1988 to December 1988. Bengtson also imposed $1,100 and jailed 24 days in jail out of a maximum of 58.

Bong appealed the conviction and the sentence in July, and that case still is pending. Ms. Fisher, no longer county public defender, was selected as his counsel through the appeal.

Bengtson, however, wanted to make sure Latah County had a way to get the money back for her services, if Bong ever did come into any money. He required Bong to sign the waiver last September.

Silence reigns in trading probe

Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO — A baffling silence has settled over the Department of Justice's elaborate undercover investigation of alleged widespread fraud in the trading pits of the world's two largest commodities exchanges, the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The appearance of inactivity by investigators and the grand jury has traders and brokers subpoenaed in the investigation, as well as their lawyers, uneasy and uncertain.

The silence and lack of activity follows the flurry of publicity triggered by disclosures in January that at least four members of FBI agents worked for 18 months in the trading pits of the two exchanges collecting evidence of allegedly illegal transactions.

The undercover phase was part of an elaborate three-year investigation of the two exchanges, where futures contracts on a range of commodities from gold to silver and Treasury bonds are traded. The investigation here apparently is not related to Thursday's raid by federal agents on futures exchanges in New York.

This is the lull before the storm, said one criminal defense lawyer who represents several Chicago exchange members under investigation and who, like many other lawyers, spoke on the condition that he not be identified by name. "I expect indictments before the end of the month."

However, no witnesses have been called before the grand jury's Wednesday sessions for the past weeks, according to defense lawyers. The Department of Justice veteran heading the investigation is now involved in a major political corruption trial and reportedly has not been active in the commodities investigation for several weeks.

Lawyers have had little or no contact with prosecutors who, earlier, were frequently called to solicit the cooperation of their clients.

The only significant activity in recent weeks has been a continuing effort by government investigators to subpoena records. So far, thousands of pages have been gathered.

"They are mired in an investigation of routine trading practices," a commodities lawyer and former chief policeman at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, "I think they are inundated with documents and faced with a lack of anticipated cooperation, and they've got a tough row to hoe."

"It has been completely quiet for more than a month," said another criminal defense lawyer and former federal prosecutor. "No one has any idea what's going on."

Defense lawyers interviewed for this article cited a variety of theories concerning the investigation.

Among them is a belief that the government was slowed even as traders who bankers need to cooperate with the investigation even after being threatened with confiscation of their property under federal racketeering laws. Those threats came during late night and early morning visits by teams of FBI agents and Department of Justice lawyers.

Many of these subpoenaed earlier refused to testify, citing Fifth Amendment guarantees against self-incrimination or the Fourth Amendment protection against illegal government surveillance, in this case allegedly improper electronic surveillance.

Lawyers representing potential defendants in the long investigation believe that only a handful of exchange traders and brokers are cooperating with government investigators and with tape recordings gathered by the FBI agents who were concealed tape recorders while in the pits.

HDTV standard loses support

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Setting back hopes in Japan that its own technology for high-definition television studio equipment will be adopted as a world standard, the U.S. government has formally abandoned an earlier endorsement of it.

U.S. negotiators attending an international standards conference in Geneva next week will argue for adopting no standard until 1994, on the grounds that agreement is not currently possible and a superior system may emerge by then.

The shift, announced by the State Department, had been expected, as the international debate was stalemated and Congress and the U.S. electronics industry had been urging the United States to chart its own course in development of HDTV, an emerging genre of television that has picture and sound quality comparable to VCR in theaters.

The standard in question involves camera and computer equipment used by television studios in producing HDTV programs. Some experts expect it will eventually become the principal production medium in studios. Even movies may be shot on the tape and then transferred to film for showing in theaters.

The standard does not apply directly to transmission systems, which to date have received the major share of attention in the U.S. debate over HDTV.

In the 1970s and early '80s, Japan developed its studio standard, known as 1125-60, in consultation with the United States, which won a number of changes in it. Japan has since begun production of the equipment, which is now being used by four U.S. television production studios.

In 1985, the U.S. government formally endorsed world adoption of 1125-60, based on recommendations from the Advanced Television Systems Committee, an advisory group that includes companies from the U.S. broadcasting, film and consumer electronics industry.

The rationale was that early agreement on a standard would facilitate exchange of programming between countries, in the same way that the near universal use of 35mm film does. This in turn would favor foreign sales by the U.S. film and video industry, which now generates a trade surplus of roughly $3 billion annually.

But as the development of HDTV has emerged on Capitol Hill and in the U.S. electronics industry as a major issue of international competitiveness, that stance has been criticized as short-sighted, on the grounds that it would give Japanese companies a leg up in producing HDTV equipment. Last month, the advisory committee revised its position, leading the State Department to follow suit. Some members of the U.S. entertainment industry, however, still hope that the Japanese standard will eventually be adopted.

Europe, meanwhile, has devised its own studio standard, known as 1250-50, and, like Japan, has been pressing for worldwide adoption of it. Equipment based on it exists only as prototypes. U.S. work on studio standards remains in the research stage.

Eagles start fast at regional track meet

REXBURG — The College of Southern Idaho men's track team got off to a surprisingly strong start Friday on the first day of the Region 18 junior college track championships.

The Golden Eagles, who are sitting a very solid second behind Ricks in the men's scoring, got there behind Johnny Menifee, who captured the high jump with a personal record jump of 6 feet, 10 1/2 inches. Menifee also won the long jump with a school-record leap of 23-10.

Lanny Kinda accounted for another CSI victory in the javelin with a throw of 109-10. Kinda was also second in the hammer throw at 118-2 and fifth in the discus at 115-6.

The meet concludes today in Rexburg's Viking Stadium.

SIC meet: Bruin boys take 2nd

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

NAMPA — It came as no surprise that Centennial High School track coach Gary Gorrell was able to say "right where we want to be" at the Southern Idaho Conference track and field championships here Friday night. He had just watched his boys and girls easily win both sides of the league title impressively.

But it had to be a pleasant surprise to Twin Falls coach Jerry Kleinkopf to say "we are better than seven other SIC teams" after seeing the Bruin boys take second place behind the talented Patriots.

The Twin Falls boys finished in a fourth-place tie with Nampa, behind Centennial, Meridian and Borah.

Twin Falls, which is not formally a member of the SIC, had three individual boys champions and probably would have won a relay but for a fall in the medley.

Twin Falls sprinter Ron Marsh posted a decisive victory and remained undefeated in the 100-meter dash, but he was nipped by a tenth of a second by defending state champion Travis Gray of Centennial in the 400 and finished third in the 200. He didn't run, the anchor leg on the mile relay in which the Bruins finished third.

Meanwhile, half-miler Jeff Dodds took his specialty to a career-best 1 minute, 58.4 seconds and teammate Stan Burton won the high jump title in a jump-off.

"I felt Marsh had an excellent day against some high-powered competition," said Kleinkopf. "It appears he still doesn't have a feel for the 200, which he is trying to run like the 400. He will have to trade strategy from 400 if he is going to catch Travis." He hosted a lot on the last curve, which usually is all right, but against that kid of competition, you have to come into the straightaway at least even. Gray had about a three-yard lead coming into the straightaway and Ron was able to get two of them back, but not all of them.

"We are pretty excited about Dodds' victory," Kleinkopf continued. "It had started to appear he had maxed-around 2:00 flat and the 1:58.4 time today was very impressive."

Dodds found a little embarrassment as he tried to take the baton on the last exchange of the medley. After missing the first handoff, he turned around too far, tripping over his own feet and landing un-

Eagles sweep Chukars

By STEVE CRUMP Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho slipped out of the hot seat and into the catbird seat in the northern division Region 18 junior college baseball race here Friday by sweeping a doubleheader from Treasure Valley Community College.

Freshman left-hander Steve Cooke spun a three-hitter in opener, beating the Chukars in 7-3. In the nightcap, a wild pitch by Jerome's Jim Bos in the bottom of the sixth inning scored CSI's James Flannin from third base with the margin of a 12-11 victory.

The twin killing left, CSI at 6-2 in the northern division and all but guaranteed the Eagles their fifth trip to the four-team regional playoffs since the present format was instituted five years ago. The only way CSI could miss a trip to the regionals would be to lose its last four games while TVCC, now 4-4, wins at least three out of its last four.

The top two teams from the northern division qualify for the tournament.

"We made the same old mistakes today, but at least we're where we want to be in the standings," said CSI coach Jim Walker. "We got Treasure Valley three out of four, which is the best we've done."

North Idaho College, which comes to town for a twinbill at 1 p.m. today at Frontier Field, fell out of the race for a tournament berth by splitting a doubleheader with Ricks College in Rexburg Friday, dropping the opener 12-7 and winning the nightcap 5-4. The Cardinals are 2-6 in divisional play, Ricks is 4-4.

The bad news for CSI is that North Idaho did not use its ace right-hander Greg Kester (5-3) in Rexburg Friday, which means the Eagles are almost certain to see him today.

"I have no idea who we're going to throw (Saturday)," said Walker, who used six pitchers in Friday's twinbill, including all three of his starters. "We beat Kester in Coeur d'Alene, but I have a feeling (NIC coach) Jack (Bloxom) is saving him for us."

Friday's performance was the mirror image of CSI twinbill split with Ricks in Rexburg last Saturday, in which the Eagles managed just seven hits and allowed the Vikings only six.

Jerome Classic: Records, and a preview of state

By JEFF HOSKISSON Times-News writer

JEROME — Excitement, a return, and a preview of state, with some records thrown in.

That's what the annual Jerome Classic track and field meet here Friday turned out to be.

"I'm real pleased with the way things went. Last week we didn't look too good in Pocatello but we talked to the kids and they really performed well today," remarked Jerome boys' coach Tim Dunne.

The big return belonged to Tigers' sprinter John Gourley, the defending state Class A-2 100- and 200-meter dash champion who is coming back from a hamstring injury dominated the short sprints and added two superb anchor legs to Tiger relays.

"It feels great to be back. I still feel it tighten up a little but it's alright," commented Gourley after his 10.99-second victory in the 100 meters.

The 200 meters went much like the 100 as he won easily in a time of 22.47 seconds.

He also added strong relay legs on the Tigers' victorious 400-meter and 1600-meter relay teams. His 30.85-second split on the anchor leg of the 1,600 meter relay was needed as Wood River's David Money chased Gourley the whole way while splitting 49.8.

In the 400-meter relay, the Tigers recorded one of the fastest times in the state, running 43.95 seconds. Gourley was joined on the 400 meter relay by Nestor Wilson, Greg Burnham and Clark Baumgartner. The 1,600 meter relay consisted of Gourley, Wilson, Baumgartner, and Doug Stuhlberg.

Money besides chasing Gourley in the relay won the intermediate hurdles and the triple jump.

"What can you say about David? What desire," offered Wood River boys' coach Bill Martell.

Money, who was also injured earlier in the year, won the triple jump with a leap of 44 feet, 5 1/2 inches. In the 300-meter hurdles, he ended up one tenth of a second shy of his school record in recording a time of 39.82.

The excitement was by no means restricted to the boys side. Charlotte Garrison of Jerome and Brenda Keana of Salmon provided what may be a preview of the state A-2 400 meter finals in three weeks. Keana, a sophomore, charged to the front with only 30 meters remaining to nudge Garrison in a time of 59.82 seconds; the states fastest 400 year. Garrison finished in an excellent time also running under 60 seconds with a 59.89 second run.

The two also did battle in the 200. This time the finish

Easy Goer could be best racehorse in years

By ANDREW BEYER The Washington Post

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Easy Goer will face the first test of his career in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, but he is not merely running against the formidable Sunday Silence and 14 other challengers.

In a sense, he is running against Secretary, against Seattle Slew, against Affirmed. He is trying not only to become a Kentucky Derby winner, but a great Kentucky Derby winner. He is seeking to live up to widespread hopes that he may be America's best racehorse of the decade.

Rarely has a colt come to the Derby with such an imposing set of credentials. Easy Goer was a much-acclaimed champion of his generation as a 2-year-old; his record blighted seriously only by a loss on a muddy Churchill Downs track in the Breeders' Cup conditions he may encounter again on Saturday. He has developed into an even more formidable horse at 3.

"When you look at the winner's circle photos of him last year and this year, said jockey Pat Day, "you look like a baby, the other like a mature race horse. He's grown up physically, and he's grown up mentally. This is a phenomenal individual."

Glenns Ferry, Declo easily prevail at Declo Invitational

By BRAD BRELAND Times-News writer

DECLO — Hearing the results of a Canyon Conference meet is like listening to a bumpy record. No matter where the meet is held, the same two teams rise to the top. Defending District 4 Class A-3 champions Glenns Ferry and Declo easily won titles Friday at the Declo Invitational, the final tuneup for next week's Canyon Conference championships.

The Hornet girls more than doubled their nearest competitor, Buzley, outscoring the Robens 150-72.

The Hornet boys bettered the runner-up Hornets by almost 40 points. Evan Nebeker of Murtaugh helped the Red Devils to a third-place finish by winning two events at the meet.

Nebeker set a new Declo Invitational record in the high jump. He jumped 6 feet, 2 inches to beat out his competition. He didn't try a higher jump because of an injured back.

His back didn't affect him too much, however, as he won the intermediate hurdles competition.

Defending District 4 champion Bell was the only other double winner in the boys division. He took the long jump competition and tied for first in the 200-meter dash.

Jon Hartwig tied a Declo Invitational record in the 100-meter dash as he ran for a time of 11.5 seconds. Dean Surplus of Wendouville tied behind Hartwig with a time of 11.7 seconds.

Surplus did get his revenge on Hartwig in the 200-meter dash as he tied with Bell, while Hartwig finished in third place, one-tenth of a second behind the duo.

For the Declo girls' team, it's not who will win the track meet, but by how much. The Hornets collected 24 points in the triple jump, taking four of the top six places. This Kidd was the winner of the event for the Hornets with a jump of 39-3/4.

For the first time this season, Declo one all four relay events. It was the first time the Hornets had taken the 4x100 relay event this season.

Glenns Ferry Jennifer Berry won both sprint events.

The junior, wearing an orange sock and a black sock, won the 100-meter event with a time of 13.5 seconds and the 200-meter event with a time of 27.7 seconds.

With the Canadiens leading 1-0 in the first period, Corson was left alone during a power play and steered Eric Desjardins' centering pass into an empty net 3:14.

Gainey, the Canadiens' captain, scored his first goal of the playoffs at 6:11, breaking behind the defense and flipping Chris Chelios' pass from the right boards over goaltender Ken Wregget for a 3-0 lead.

Phillies snap losing streak

CINCINNATI (AP) — Juan Samuel homered on the game's first pitch and Ken Howell held Cincinnati to five hits in eight innings as the Philadelphia Phillies rocked Tom Browning for seven runs and beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-0 Friday night.

Von Hayes opened with singles, Mike Schmidt hit into a forceout that scored a run and, after Chris James' single, Bob Dernier's sacrifice fly made it 3-0.

Rookie Gordon Dillard, acquired with Howell from Baltimore last December to trade for outfielder Phil Bradley, pitched a hitless ninth.

The Reds were missing injured starting outfielders Kai Daniels and Eric Davis and shortstop Barry Larkin left the game in the third inning after spraining a finger on his right hand while trying to barehand a deflected grounder.

The Phillies, second in the National League in hitting, scored three more runs in the third. Tom Herr and 1-3 innings, striking out three and walking three. The 42-year-old threw 129 pitches and his fastball created the most tense moment of the night.

The win also moved the A's into sole possession of first place in the American League West for the first time this season.

Stewart, making his seventh start, allowed seven hits in the 6-2-3 innings, striking out two and walking one. Rick Honeycutt allowed one hit over 1-1-3 innings and Dennis Eckersley pitched a hitless ninth for his victory save in 10 opportunities. The loss was Oakland's eighth in 11 games.

Frank Tomana, 24, gave up five runs and six hits, walking five and striking out two.

Tony Phillips singled to open the first and went to third — spraining his left ankle — on Carney Lansford's single. Stan Javier, running for Phillips, scored on a sacrifice fly to center by Mark McGwire.

Walks to Dave Henderson and Stanbuck led the bases for Billy Beron, who hit a sacrifice fly to right, scoring Lansford. Hubbard singled home Henderson and Steinbach for a 4-0 lead.

Detroit scored in the bottom of the inning when Lou Whitaker walked with two outs and scored after singles by Alan Trammell and Lynn.

Torey Lovullo doubled in the second, moved up one single by Kenny Williams and scored on Pat Sheridan's sacrifice fly.

Lynn homered in the sixth, pulling Danysuza to 4-3, but Henderson hit his fifth homer with two outs in the seventh.

Boston 7
TEXAS 6
BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens rebounded to win his second showdown with Nolan Ryan as Ellis Burks broke a seventh-inning tie with a run-scoring single Friday night, leading the Houston Red Sox past the Texas Rangers 7-6.

Both dugouts emptied in the seventh inning when Ryan came close to hitting Burks with a fastball: Ryan had hit Burks in the first inning of last Sunday's game. Although the players from both teams came onto the field, order was restored quickly and no punches were thrown.

Mike Greenwell did most of the damage for Boston. He hit his fifth and sixth homers, driving in three runs.

Greenwell tied the score at 3 in the sixth, hitting second homers — a two-run shot after a single by Burks. Ryan then scored four runs in the seventh.

Jody Reed doubled down the left-field line and Marty Barrett sacrificed. Then, on a 2-2 count, Ryan threw a fastball over Burks' chin.

Burks shouted at Ryan and, as the pitcher came off the mound, Texas catcher Gene Petralli grabbed Burks around the waist. Home plate umpire Rocky Roe stepped in and prevented any violence.

Burks fouled off two 3-2 pitches and lined a single to left, scoring Reed with the go-ahead run and chasing Ryan.

Ryan was booed as he walked off the field and responded by doffing his cap. Seven all-time strikeouts were splashed by beer thrown by unruly fans behind the dugout as he left.

Kenny Rogers replaced Ryan and fished just one batter. Ryno scored second and took third as Greenwell scored on a fielding error by Steve Buechele.

Cecilie Gunna relieved and got Jim Rice to pop up. Dwight Evans walked, leading the bases. Burks scored on a wild pitch and Nick Esasky followed with a two-run single for a 7-3 lead.

This time, he was especially strong in the opening minutes of the first period, when he made several key saves, and at the start of the second period, when he stopped Tim Kerr and Propp. Roy finished with 25 saves.

Montreal, which broke a six-game winless streak at the Spectrum with a 7-4 victory in its last regular-season visit on Feb. 18, ended any thoughts of a Philadelphia comeback when Bobby Smith beat Wregget with a 20-foot slap shot on a 2-on-1 at 12:21.

one-out double. He went to third on Bryan Smith's two-out wild pitch before Dale Murphy walked.

The 41-year-old Evans then tripled into the right-field corner, with Hubie Brooks failing to make a snatching catch near the foul line. It was the first triple by Evans since Aug. 12, 1984, when he had one for Detroit against Kansas City.

Bryn Smith, 2-1, who had won his last six decisions against the Braves, lost to Atlanta for only the third time in 15 decisions. He gave up two runs and four hits in six innings.

The Expos scored in the second when Nelson Santovenia led off with a single, took second on a balk went to third when Lilliquist batted. Mike Fitzgerald's grounder and scored when Spike Owen hit into a double play.

Jeff Blauser, pinch hitting for Lilliquist, tripled in the Atlanta seventh on an scored on a wild pitch by Gene Harris.

The Braves added three more runs off Harris in the eighth. With one out, Dion James and Jody Davis singled and Alvarez sacrificed. After a walk to Blauser, loaded the bases, Ron Cant singled for two runs and Lonnie Smith's single drove in the final run.

Jeff Montgomery, 3-1, allowed one run and one hit over 3-2-3 innings and Steve Farr pitched a hitless 10th for his sixth save, completing a combined six-hitter.

New York Yankees 7
Chicago White Sox 5
CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Balboni hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning Friday night as the New York Yankees rallied to beat the Chicago White Sox 7-5.

Ivan Calderon drove in three runs and Ron Kittle had two RBIs to give the White Sox a 5-1 lead. But the Yankees scored three runs in the sixth inning and three more in the eighth.

Pinch-hitter Bob Beever led off the eighth with an infield single off Ken Patterson. Reliever Don Pall, 1-1, came in and retired Rickey Henderson on a groundout, but Steve Sax singled and Don Mattingly drove Brower in with a fielder's-choice groundout to tie the game.

Balboni then hit his third homer of the season into the center-field bullpen.

Lance McCullers, 1-0, pitched 2-2-3 scoreless innings of relief to earn his second American League victory. Lefty Gusterson pitched the final 1-1-3 innings for his fourth save.

Yankees starter John Candalaria gave up nine hits and five runs in five innings. White Sox starter Melvin Perez gave up seven hits and four runs in 5-2-3 innings.

Mattingly, who entered the game in a 3-for-25 slump, singled twice and doubled.

California 5
Toronto 3
TORONTO (AP) — Jim Abbott allowed four hits over 6-1-3 innings to win his second straight decision as California beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 Friday night, the Angels' eighth victory in nine games.

Abbott, 2-2, struck out four and walked four. Greg Ainton allowed one hit over 1-2-3 innings and Bryan Harvey finished for his fifth save, allowing Nelson Liriano's first homer of the season to lead off the ninth.

John Cerutti, 2-2, gave up nine hits over 7-2-3 innings and winless since beating Texas last Sept. 4.

California tripled at 2-1 in the sixth when Johnny Ray led off with a single and scored on Devon White's triple. Chili Davis then hit a sacrifice fly to deep right-center field.

Davis hit his fourth home run of the season in the eighth inning and Kent Anderson hit a run-scoring grounder in the ninth off Todd Stoltzenreuter.

HOUSTON (AP) — Derrick McKee's layup at the buzzer spoiled a dramatic Houston comeback and gave Seattle a 98-96 victory that eliminated the Rockets from the NBA playoffs Friday night.

The SuperSonics won the best-of-5 series 3-1 and will meet the Los Angeles Lakers in the second round. The Lakers eliminated Portland 3-0.

Down 24-35 with 6:30 to play, the Rockets' outscored Seattle 13-4, including Sleepy Floyd's 3-pointer with one second left in regulation play. Seattle went 5:05 without scoring during Houston's rally.

McKee, who scored 15 points, then took a pass under the basket and banked it in.

CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Nance scored 27 points and Mark Price added 24 to offset a 50-point performance by Michael Jordan Friday night, and the Cleveland Cavaliers edged their best-of-5 playoff series against Chicago with a 108-105 overtime victory Friday night.

Game 5 of the series will be played Sunday at Richfield, Ohio, with the winner advancing to the Eastern Conference semifinals against the New York Knicks.

Ron Harris overtook a 99-99 tie at the start of the overtime and Price followed with a 3-point basket before Nance gave the Cavaliers a 107-101 lead.

The Bulls never caught up, although they got within two in the first of overtime. They had a chance for a second overtime, but Charles Davis and Craig Hodges missed two 3-pointers as time expired.

Brad Daugherty's two free throws with four seconds left forced the game into overtime.

points, 17 in the second half, for Seattle.

The Rockets started their game-winning possession with 11 seconds left. Mike Woodson took a 3-pointer that missed the basket entirely, but Purvis Short rebounded and passed quickly out to Floyd.

Akreem Ojinnwo, who hit Houston with 24 points and 13 rebounds, hit a basket with 51 seconds to play and Mike Woodson's basket with 12 seconds out of Seattle's lead to 96-93.

Xavier McDaniel, who hit only one of nine shots in Wednesday's loss, scored 17 points for Seattle. He made seven of his 12 first-half shots to keep the Sonics close.

Seattle asserted itself at the start of the fourth quarter, scoring seven straight points for an 83-79 lead.

Jordan scored 13 of Chicago's last 19 points in regulation, but he missed a fadeaway jumper at the last second of regulation play.

Jordan, who predicted the underdog Bulls would win this series in pre-game talk, led the game at 97 and then broke the tie with a free throw with 48 seconds remaining.

He made it 99-97 on a free throw with nine seconds to go, but missed his second free throw. Daugherty then tied it with a pair of clutch free throws to send the game into overtime.

The game was close throughout, with neither team holding more than a six-point lead. The Bulls' biggest lead came when Dave Corzine converted a three-point play for an 81-76 advantage.

But three different Cavaliers scored in succession and Cleveland went ahead 82-81.

With 5:18 left, Nance scored four straight points for a 91-87 lead but

The Rockets didn't get the big breakthrough first quarter, but put them in command of the third game, but they did manage a 53-51 halftime lead.

Otis Thorpe had 11 first-half points and hit a 15-foot jumper with 31 seconds left for the halftime lead.

The teams picked up in the third quarter when there were five ties and neither team had a three-point lead.

Houston pulled ahead 79-76 at the end of the period on four straight free throws, two each by Tim McCormick and Derrick Chievous.

The Rockets' biggest lead of the first quarter came at 4:38 with a 22-15 margin, but the Sonics recovered for a 29-27 lead at the end of the period.

Jordan tied it with a basket and a pair of free throws.

Nance scored 12 points in the first quarter, which ended with the Cavaliers holding a 23-22 lead despite twice having six-point leads.

Corzine put the Bulls ahead 24-23 at the start of the second quarter and the lead changed hands nine times before the Cavaliers grabbed a 36-39 lead.

They stretched the margin to 40-34 as Mike Sanders, who did not start and was replaced by John Williams, came off the bench and scored seven of Cleveland's next nine points. The Bulls then went on a 9-4 run led by Jordan, who finally scored his first field goal with 4:24 left in the half.

Jordan added two more baskets as he scored 12 of Chicago's final 14 points in the second quarter, but Nance scored Cleveland's final four points and the Cavaliers held a 49-48 halftime lead.

Hawks win, even series at 2 apiece

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dominique Wilkins and Moses Malone scored 21 points apiece and Jon Koneak hit a pair of clutch free throws in overtime Friday night as the Atlanta Hawks beat the Milwaukee Bucks 113-106 to tie their opening-round NBA playoff series at 2-2.

The fifth and deciding game will be played Sunday in Atlanta with the winner to face the Detroit Pistons in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

The game went into overtime when the Bucks' Jack Sikma, who led the NBA in free-throw shooting in 1987-88 and made 90.5 percent this season, missed the first of two free throws with three seconds left in regulation. He then hit the second, tying the game at 98-98.

Ricky Pierce hit a basket before fouling out to give the Bucks their last lead, 100-99, in overtime.

Koneak then hit two free throws with 3:57 left and Wilkins hit a basket to give the Hawks a 103-104 lead they didn't surrender as the teams played their second straight overtime game.

Milwaukee's Sidney Moncrief cut it back to one with two free throws with 2:02 left, but baskets by Malone and John Battle put Atlanta up 107-102.

After a basket by Sikma, Atlanta's Reggie Theus hit only his second basket of the game to make it 109-104 with 12 seconds remaining.

Battle tied the Hawks' overtime victory with two free throws with 12 seconds to go and finished with 19 points.

Sikma led the Bucks with 24 points and Pierce added 22. The Bucks played most of the game without leading scorer Terry Cummings, who pulled a tendon in his right ankle with six minutes to go in the first quarter.

Atlanta led 79-68 after three quarters, but the Bucks got three straight baskets from Pierce to start a 14-2 run. In Milwaukee rallied for an 83-82 lead on Humphries' basket with 7:47 to go.

Glenn Rivers, who had missed two free throws at the 7:03 mark, drove the middle and converted a three-point play to give the Hawks a 95-93 lead with 1:22 remaining.

Sikma answered with a basket, tying the game at 95-95 with 1:04 to go, but then was called for a foul at the other end with 48 seconds remaining.

Koneak's two free throws gave Atlanta a 97-95 lead before Sikma scored again to tie the game with 28 seconds to go. Rivers worked the clock down and drew a foul on Humphries with seven seconds remaining. He missed the first and made the second as a deafening shout crowd of more than 18,000 at the Bradley Center tried to distract him.

Minico, Pocatello to conclude inconclusive A-1 baseball season

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Minico and Pocatello will try to make head or tails literally — out of the convoluted Region III Class A-1 high school baseball race this afternoon when they meet in a regular-season ending doubleheader.

"I understand there'll be somebody from Twin and I suppose somebody from Highland, maybe the athletic directors," said Pocatello coach Rick Parkin. "They're supposed to get together after the game, flip a coin and decide who plays where (in next week's Region III tournament)." Game time today is 11 a.m. in Halliwell Park. Minico senior right-hander Dan Poulton, 2-1 and convalescing from a slow-healing back injury, is scheduled to pitch one game; coach Curg Bridges had decided Friday afternoon starter Pocatello will open with junior right-hander Scott Wolfenbarger (6-7) and follow with sophomore right-hander Avery Griggs (1-1) in the second game.

According to Highland coach Zane Simmons, the Region III bylaw that stipulates ties not broken by head-to-head competition be settled by comparative batting averages. Conference records have been scrapped because region members Twin Falls and Burley aren't members of the GSC.

"If it comes down to a tie between us and Poky and us and Minico, we could do that way, but obviously if the tie is with Poky or us, we can't," said Simmons. "So we decided just to settle all ties by the flip of the coin."

If you're scoring along with us, here's the situation:
• Twin Falls (23-6 overall) finished its Region III schedule Wednesday at 6-2 following its second victory of the season over Minico. The Bruins split with Poky and Highland earlier, which means that Twin Falls can finish the season with the No. 2 seed. That will only happen if Poky beats Minico twice today and if the Bruins lose this afternoon's coin toss.

• Pocatello (15-6 overall) is 4-3 in regional games, including splits with Highland and Twin Falls. Poky can get the No. 1 seed only by beating Minico twice today and by winning the coin toss with Twin Falls. A split today with Minico would leave Poky and Highland tied for second with 5-3 records, necessitating another coin flip. Two losses to Minico today would relegate the Indians to the No. 4 seed.

• Highland (16-9 overall, pending a "season-ending" twinbill today against Skyline in Idaho Falls) has finished its regional season at 5-3, splitting with Twin, Minico and Poky. The Rams can get the No. 2 seed if Poky splits with Minico today and if Highland wins the coin toss or if Highland sweeps the Indians today and Highland wins its coin toss with the Spartans. The Rams can be seeded no lower than third.

• Minico (13-7 for the season) is 3-3 in regional games, having lost twice to Twin Falls and split with Highland. If the Spartans sweep the Indians today, they will tie with Highland for the second seed, which will be broken by a coin toss. If Minico and Poky split or if Poky sweeps, Minico will be seeded fourth.

The top two seeds receive first-round berths in the regional tournament. The No. 3 team (Pocatello, Minico or Highland) will host No. 6 Burley Monday afternoon, while the No. 4 seed (Minico or Pocatello) will entertain No. 5 seed Burley that same afternoon. The top two seeds, Twin Falls and either Minico, Pocatello or Highland, will play the first-round winners on Tuesday.

"What it comes down to is that four of the best teams in the state are in this region," said Parkin. "I think the top four teams are that evenly matched."

The Spartans are assured of playing at home in their first tournament game next week, but Bridges would prefer not to start on Monday to save his thin pitching staff for later in the year. The winners of Monday's games will play again Tuesday and Wednesday, and possibly Thursday and Friday as well.

At stake, of course, is the region's automatic berth in the state A-1 tournament, which will be played in Boise later this month. That representative will be settled Wednesday afternoon; subsequent action will be to determine the runner-up, who will play the second-place team from Region IV for a backdoor berth to state.

Wolfenbarger has been particularly effective since returning from what looked like a season-ending knee injury three weeks ago.

"It was probably the best thing that could have happened to him because he started taking care of himself," said Parkin.
Bridges said Poulton would work as many innings today as he feels comfortable pitching today.
"We won't use him unless he pitches good," said Parkin.

Wolfenbarger has thrown a no-hitter and a one-hitter in his last two outings and we've been getting good performance for three or four other pitchers.

"It was probably the best thing that could have happened to him because he started taking care of himself," said Parkin.

On Friday, CSI hammered five TVCC pitchers for 24 hits while the Eagles pitched for 24.

"Our pitchers can't spot the first balls," said Walker. "Except for Cooke, they all got themselves into trouble in the opener, Cooke gave TVCC three runs in the first inning on three walks, a single by Casey Daugherty and a double by Brady Swallow and two wild pitches. After that, he gave the Chukars nothing but trouble."

The big sophomore struck out 12 and led only one runner past second base after the first inning.

The Eagles, meanwhile, got a run back in the bottom of the first on consecutive two-out singles by John Groene, Jesse Thurber and Butch Nolan, then got another run in the second when Hamlin singled with one out and scored on Brenden Peach's booming double to left.

The Eagles broke the game open with four runs in the third, sparked by Greene's leadoff double, run-scoring singles by Peach and Nolan, Hamlin's infield hit and pin-infielder Steve Smith's leadoff single in the top of the fourth. TVCC center-fielder Tim Swallow, in the nightcap, CSI blew a six-run lead, then TVCC gave up a four-run advantage when the Eagles rebounded for four runs in the fourth to tie the game at 10.

The Chukars made it 11-10 in the sixth when Bill Moulter, the fourth CSI pitcher, walked Mike Redmond to lead off the inning and was replaced by Tony Wylie. Wylie got the lead with a walk, then hit a ground ball, erasing Redmond on the fielder's choice. But Wylie walked Daugherty, putting Saunders on first and second for Ryan Somers lined Wylie's 21st-inning out in the middle, driving home the winning run.

But center-fielder Greene threw out Daugherty trying to go from second to third.

CSI got that run back quickly in the bottom of the sixth when leadoff batter Murphy singled to great left, then scored on Swallow to hit a second on a wild pitch. Hamlin hammered Bos' 3-1 pitch, driving in Murphy to tie the game at 11. Three pitches later, with Brian Aram at the plate, another Bos singled to great left, catcher, and Hamlin scampered home with what would prove to be the game-winner.

CSI's pitching staff consisted of: 1st Inning: CSI 1-0, 2nd Inning: CSI 2-0, 3rd Inning: CSI 6-0, 4th Inning: CSI 10-0, 5th Inning: CSI 11-0, 6th Inning: CSI 11-10, 7th Inning: CSI 11-10, 8th Inning: CSI 11-10, 9th Inning: CSI 11-10, 10th Inning: CSI 11-10, 11th Inning: CSI 11-10, 12th Inning: CSI 11-10.

continuously on his backside. Even though he regained his composure and managed to take the lead for most of the last lap before Bop-eh came up in the final strides to nip him by two-tenths of a second.

On the girls' side, Brian Lisa Poreck was second in the high hurdles and gave Twin Falls fans a moment of hope when she closed in the second-to-last intermediate hurdle, taking a brief lead.
