Yellowstone gunman sets 8 hostages free

The Associated Press

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. — A gunman who took eight hostages Friday at the Old Faithful visitor center in Yellowstone National Park released them unharmed and was taken into custody a few hours later.

Brett Hartley, 18, of Baton Rouge, surrendered shortly after 8 p.m. MDT, said park ranger Bundy Phillips. No one was injured and no shots were fired.

Phillips said he negotiated by telephone for nearly five hours with Hartley, a former Louisiana State University student. He said Hartley held a pistol trained on the hostages throughout much of the period.

"He is a frustrated guy who has had a hard life," said park ranger Joe Evans, noting that Hartley once suffered from cancer. He was relatively calm the whole time.

The hostage-taking "was an expression of asking for help. Some people have a hard time asking for help," Evans said. He said snipers had weapons trained on the gunman until the hostages were released.

The hostages — five visitors to the scenic geyser complex and three park employees, two of them women — were freed about 8 p.m. MDT, almost three hours after the incident began, said Interior Department spokesman Steve Goldstein in Washington.

Shortly after 8 p.m., the man put the handgun down and walked outside the center, where he was met by three park rangers in a car, Evans said. After a short conversation, he was handcuffed and placed in the car, Evans said.

Officials said the man would be taken to a hospital at Jackson, Wyo., for a preliminary psychiatric examination.

"I don't believe he wanted to hurt anybody," said Rebecca Painter, 26, a tourist from Salt Lake City who was held hostage for about five minutes with her two daughters, ages 4 and 1 1/2.

She said she and her daughters were released because the children were fussing. Her husband, Gary, 34, was among the last hostages released.

The gunman also wanted visitors watching a movie in another room to come out, but they had been warned and escaped through a back door, she said.

A log cabin is the only building left from a short-lived community of New Yorkers transplanted to the Idaho desert.

Cabin tells pioneer tale worth preserving

By KIRK MITCHELL Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Home to rock chucks and surrounded by sagebrush, a slowly decaying log cabin may be all that is left of a 1921 Brooklyn-based expedition that was seemingly predestined to failure.

Lured to Idaho by a newspaper advertisement promising settlers lush fields in a progressive cultural center, 28 families packed their belongings and joined the westward-bound caravan.

Although local historians are unsure who owned the cabin about 10 miles south of Caspary, its construction tells a story the county wants to preserve.

It was one of 125 sites Utah historian Elizabeth Egleston surveyed during the past few weeks for the Twin Falls Historical Preservation Commission.

The New Yorkers, unlikely pioneers all, were greeted like celebrities on Idaho's eastern border with banners, speeches and a band. In Buhl, home of the investment company that brought them, town leaders toasted the newcomers in a huge party.

Then they went to see the Roseworth tract, where they were marooned in a dusty sea of aqua sagebrush. Several families, realizing even before reaching the land that newspaper photographs must have portrayed some other part of the country, turned around in disgust that same day and headed back to New York.

Gradually, those who briefly remained also left.

On April 1, 1923, the last Brooklynite, Ed Dunn, boarded a train and headed east.

"The cabin is the only thing that is left," Egleston said.

Egleston's survey confirmed that about 115 potentially historic buildings in the county are still standing. Of those, about 90 may have been kept close enough to their original condition to be on the National Register of Historic Places.

Many of the buildings are owned by the county or a city, such as the Buhl Bath House and the Twin Falls County Courthouse. Many of the buildings are homes of former mayors or business leaders.

Commission Chairman Russ Lively said he will contact property owners, who will have to initiate final steps to get their homes placed on the register.

"A lot of them have the potential to qualify," Lively said. "To get there is quite another matter."

A listing on the national register would entitle land owners to apply for federal restoration grants through the Idaho State Historical Society. The designation could prevent rezoning of the area around the building, Lively said.

Before a site can be on the register, the property owner must tell local government officials about any impact the designation would have. The owner must give 20 days' public notice.

Deng shows China's old guard in control

The Washington Post

Beijing at night — A9

BEIJING — Paramount leader Deng Xiaoping appeared in public Friday for the first time in 24 days.

Deng praised his army's suppression of an unprecedented democratic movement and reaffirming that the hard-line old guard had retained its grip on power.

In an effort to restore a sense of normalcy to Beijing, rocked in the last two months by massive anti-government protests, a power struggle in the leadership and an army massacre of civilians, Deng announced that China's policy of economic reforms and its opening to the West "will not change."

Hours later, in another apparent attempt to remove the most overt symbols of the government crackdown, a huge convoy of 83 tanks and 29 armored personnel carriers thundered out of central Beijing, some of them from Tiananmen Square, the target of last weekend's military assault in which at least 700, and perhaps thousands, of people were killed.

Beijing, however, is still heavily patrolled by troops and a mood of repression on all forms of dissent is growing.

Outside the capital, anti-government protests had not died out. In Guangzhou, thousands of demonstrators blocked a bridge, according to reports, leading police to arrest some of them. Reuter reported that in Shanghai, China's largest city, 40,000 protesters staged a defiant march Friday.

Meanwhile, the evacuation of Americans in China continued. In the last two days, about 550 people, most of them Americans, left the country aboard three charter flights arranged by the U.S. Embassy.

Deng resurfaced as his government announced the arrest of undisclosed numbers of "hostages" — a term the government has used in the past to label political opponents — for acts committed during the demonstrations. The move, carried out in at least four provincial cities, raised concern that a nationwide roundup of political opponents might be in the making.

State television, which Thursday broadcast telephone numbers for civilians to call to inform on suspected activists, Friday aired numerous shots of sullen young men being marched and questioned by police. An announcer said they were accused of such crimes as arson, damage of public property and attempted rape.

Wholesale energy prices lead May surge

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale inflation came roaring back in May after a two-month respite, as prices soared for gasoline, fresh vegetables and automobiles, the government reported Friday.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index jumped 0.9 percent last month and is up at an annual rate of 9.4 percent so far this year, more than double the 4.4 percent increase last year and quadruple the 2.2 percent gain in 1987.

However, Michael Boskin, President Bush's chief economic adviser, attributed most of the inflation this year to "special factors" and predicted better numbers ahead.

He said food price increases will ease with the expected return to normal weather following last year's drought. He added that crude oil prices have stopped climbing and that should steady energy prices.

"We want to remain vigilant (but) we expect inflation to stabilize in the second half of the year and decline thereafter," he told reporters at a White House briefing.

Prices at the wholesale level had risen by 0.4 percent in both April and March after rising 1.1 percent and 0.9 percent in January and February, the worst two-month performance in eight years.

The Labor Department identified three factors as big contributors to the May price jump: gasoline, automobiles and vegetables.

Gasoline prices rose 5.2 percent following an April climb of 13.4 percent, the steepest in more than two years. Energy prices overall rose 3.3 percent in May. Natural gas prices increased 3.4 percent, but heating oil costs declined 7.7 percent.

Food prices, which had posted a rare 0.6 percent decline in April, rebounded 0.8 percent in May. The price of vegetables skyrocketed 26.4 percent as celery and tomato prices doubled and cabbage prices rose by one-third.

Rocky Flats wastes illegally burned, FBI says in court papers

The Associated Press

DENVER — Aerial infrared surveillance showed hazardous wastes being illegally burned at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant, according to an FBI affidavit released Friday regarding this week's federal raid on the facility.

The affidavit also accused Rocky Flats operators of illegally discharging pollutants into two creeks that flow into water supplies serving four metropolitan cities and of unpermitted dumping of hazardous wastes.

U.S. Magistrate Hilbert Schauer unsealed the affidavit after a newspaper challenged withholding of the information that led Schauer to issue a search warrant for the

Scientists say Chernobyl let go like atomic bomb

The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The nuclear industry said it couldn't happen, but some scientists now believe the 1986 accident at the Soviet Union's Chernobyl power plant exploded like an atomic bomb.

An article in Friday's Technology Review, a journal published by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says similar accidents could happen at 13 other nuclear reactors in the Soviet Union.

"However," the possibility of such an accident in a U.S. reactor is vanishingly small," wrote William Sweet, a reporter for Physics Today, published by the American Institute of Physics.

Sweet gathered his information in interviews with scientists and specialists at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the U.S. Department of Energy.

"A runaway nuclear reaction set off a chain of events that severely damaged the reactor core and surrounding structures," Sweet wrote.

"This damage set the stage for a second explosion which was much more violent than the first and almost certainly was a full-fledged nuclear explosion."

International Corp. for the Department of Energy. The plant makes plutonium triggers for nuclear weapons.

The affidavit also questions the DOE's decision to award an $8.6 million bonus to Rockwell for excellent management of Rocky Flats.

The Rocky Mountain News reported in Friday's editions that the General Accounting Office also has launched an investigation of performance bonuses awarded Rocky Flats managers.

The GAO investigation was the third blow sustained by the facility this week.

On Tuesday, 75 FBI and Environmental Protection Agency agents raided Rocky raid Tuesday on the plant 16 miles northwest of Denver.

The 116-page affidavit catalogs the allegations made by FBI agent Jon Lipsky and indicates the investigation into possible criminal violations of hazardous waste laws will probe activities at the nuclear weapons plant going back to November 1980. Rocky Flats is operated by Rockwell

U.S. military may be employed in campaign against drug lords

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration is considering using the U.S. military, possibly including commando units, against drug lords overseas as part of a broad campaign against narcotics trafficking, according to a report published Friday.

New guidelines to that effect, drafted in 1976 presidential order barring the U.S. government from assassinations abroad, are contained in a draft national security directive awaiting action at the White House, said the Miami Herald, in a report distributed by the Knight-Ridder news service.

At the White House, spokesman Miles Fitzwater said he was not familiar with the story, but he added: "Assassinations are illegal. We don't do assassinations."

The 1976 presidential directive forbids U.S. government personnel from carrying out assassinations.

The news report said that David C. Miller, a staff member of the National Security Council at the White House, discussed the plan with congressional aides. Miller referred all telephone calls to Fitzwater's office Friday.

The Knight-Ridder story quoted a senior administration official as saying that a National Security Council team was considering "military operations," including such efforts as "highly visible targets."

One Pentagon official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Friday that "military operations" could include such activities as radio and telephone intercepts and aerial surveillance.

A congressional aide said that the National Security Council staff was drafting a directive to broaden the war on drugs.

It would call for close cooperation with foreign countries where drug traffickers operate, and would require the consent of those governments before U.S. military force was used on their territory, said the source, who spoke on condition he not be further identified.

The document, which would elaborate on the directive signed by then President Ford on April 8, 1976, would also call for increased financial assistance to Latin American countries where drugs originate and for an expanded intelligence capacity against traffickers, sources said.

An Army attorney says that the term "assassination" refers to the killing of political figures rather than drug traffickers.

The Army's top lawyer, Maj. Gen. Hugh Overholt, has argued that killing drug traffickers also would not be classified as assassinations if U.S. military units rather than covert agents were involved.

Assassins kill Salvadoran minister
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Assassins firing submachine guns from a moving car killed the new government's most senior Cabinet minister and two bodyguards on Friday as they drove from the minister's home, officials said.

"The armed forces and leaders of the governing right-wing Republican-Nationalist Alliance blamed leftist guerrillas who have pledged to make the country ungovernable. Rebels did not immediately claim responsibility."

Jose Antonio Rodriguez Parth, 73, minister of the presidency and President Alfredo Cristiani's closest adviser, died shortly after arriving at Zaldivar Hospital, a nurse said on condition of anonymity.

He was the first Cabinet member killed in the nine-year guerrilla war.

Police sources said the bodyguards, one of whom was driving the bulletproof car, died at the scene. Machine-gun fire can penetrate so-called bulletproof cars.

Gorbachev denies hunger for power
MOSCOW (AP) — The often raucous inaugural session of the new Congress ended Friday with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev vigorously denying he's power hungry and Andrei D. Sakharov demanding that the Communist Party's legal monopoly on power be abolished.

Gorbachev interrupted Sakharov's nationally televised speech from the dais, saying he had spoken twice as long as permitted, but the 68-year-old Nobel Peace laureate continued, his voice rising and his arms flailing.

Sakharov, father of the Soviet human rights movement, told the Congress of People's Deputies it

They said among the conditions for a permanent truce are the abolishment of a state of emergency in effect since Dec. 1, 1986, in eastern and southern Suriname, where the guerrilla war is concentrated, and measures guaranteeing administrative representation to the regions' Bush Negroes.

Today's weather Sunny, slightly cooler through the weekend

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Partly cloudy through Sunday. High a today 75 to 90 and Sunday near 80. Lows tonight middle 40s. West winds to 15 mph today.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy through Sunday. Highs in the 70s both days. Lows near 40.

Lows in 40s to low 50s.

Summary: The National Weather Service in Boise says a cool front passed through the state Friday.

This front was to continue an eastward movement across the eastern border late Friday night. Little difference was felt with the passage except for increasing cloudiness.

Scattered thunderstorms occurred again during the afternoon in the south, but were to diminish late in the evening with frontal passage.

Sunny skies and somewhat cooler temperatures were expected for Saturday.

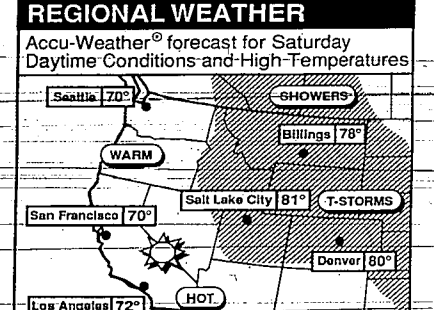

At 2 p.m. afternoon skies were mostly cloudy and winds were light and variable.

Temperatures ranged from 83 at Mountain Home to 68 at Coeur d'Alene and McCall. Most stations reported in the mid to upper 70s.

The lowest temperature in Idaho during the morning was 32 at Stanley.

The pollen count in Twin Falls Friday was 60 particles per cubic meter of air.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho Monday through Wednesday, mostly fair and warm.

 Flats in an operation dubbed "Operation Desert Glow." On Wednesday, the Colorado Department of Health announced it had found 25 environmental violations at the plant.

The affidavit revealed that the FBI conducted aerial infrared surveillance at the plant on three nights in December to determine whether the incinerator in a plutonium reprocessing building that was closed for safety violations was being illegally operated. They found that it was building 771 had been closed by DOE inspectors in October. It reopened in January.

The DOE closed the building after a warning sign outside the building was accidentally covered up, and three DOE inspectors walked in without proper protective garb.

Recovery Act.

"The knowing treatment, storage and disposal of hazardous or mixed wastes without a permit ... is an RCRA felony," the affidavit said.

The illegal discharge of pollutants into Walnut Creek occurred Nov. 15 and 16, the affidavit alleged, saying the discharges and alleged subsequent efforts to conceal them violated the Clean Water Act. Walnut Creek drains into Great Western Reservoir, which serves as the water supply for the city of Broomfield.

To qualify to be on the national register, a building must be at least 50 years old and must have been kept close to its original state.

Egleston said many downtown Twin Falls stores have been gutted on the bottom floors and remodeled as new businesses moved in, but the top floors remain much the same as they were when first constructed.

"If you look up you'll see some really nice details," Egleston said.

Although it is doubtful many of the stores could be on the national register alone, certain sectors of town might become part of a historical district, which could be protected from development.

Some decrepit buildings, which are historically valuable, are among the 90 that could be on the national register.

"Before that can happen, however, owners would have to fix up their property, Lively said.

A building and rock walls near Amalgamated Sugar Co., although crumbling, once housed poor people in dormitories during the Depression. Under the Federal Works Project Administration, people would work in the fields for room and board, Egleston said.

Lively said people who think their home or building might qualify to be on the national register can contact the commission.

"All we're trying to do is preserve history," he said.

Supreme Court denies mom's appeal over alleged drug, birth defects link

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has rejected claims of a Boise woman and her handicapped daughter that they were denied a fair trial in seeking damages for the child's birth defects allegedly caused by the controversial drug Bendectin.

In a 4-1 decision issued Friday, the high court held that 4th District Judge Deborah Hall did not abuse her discretion in conducting the trial that led to a unanimous jury verdict clearing Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals Inc. of any liability.

But Justice Stephen Bastine, the lone dissenter, warned that the precedent set by the majority in the key part of the decision has done inestimable damage to the citizen right of a fair jury trial.

Linda Winfree, on behalf of her daughter Sully Cosgrove, sued Merrell-Dow in September 1983, three months after the company suspended worldwide distribution of its "anti-morning sickness" drug Bendectin. She claimed her ingestion of the drug while she was pregnant in 1976 caused her daughter to be born without her left forearm and hand.

"After more than four years of legal maneuvering, the case, one of a series of Bendectin cases nationwide, went to trial in early 1988, and after five weeks of testimony the jury ruled that Bendectin was not the direct cause of the birth defect and therefore Merrell-Dow was not liable."

Mrs. Winfree and her daughter appealed on more than a dozen grounds, but the most critical was their objection to Bail's order prohibiting their attorneys from taking depositions of various past and current Merrell-Dow employees and officers.

INCOM (AP) — Seventeen years of hope that she would one day again see her only son have been shattered for Alma Alley.

The elderly southeastern Idaho widow knew her son, Air Force Col. Gerald William Alley, had been shot down over Hanoi in 1972, but she always believed he would come back home.

"I'm devastated," Mrs. Alley said Friday. Earlier this week the Air Force notified her that human remains believed to be those of her son had finally been found.

Alley, a career officer who was 32 when he was shot down, had been listed as missing in action since 1972.

Mayor rejects salary offer as 'insult'
MOSCOW (AP) — While one Idaho mayor is embroiled in an increasingly political debate over a 25 percent salary hike, Moscow Mayor Gary Scott has rejected a 43 percent boost in the salary for his job.

"It's an insult," Scott said. "It's a pittance."

With the four-member city council tied at 2-2 on a plan to raise the Moscow mayor's pay from $8,000 to $12,000 a year over this week, Scott cast the deciding "No" vote to kill the proposed increase. He maintained the job is worth more.

Scott, who has repeatedly said he will not seek re-election this fall, pointed out that he supervises a secretary who earns over $24,000 and a city supervisor who makes nearly $59,000. He contended that with the expansion of duties for the mayor the city will have to pay a higher salary if it is going to attract competent candidates for the office.

PUC may waive rail line clearance
BOISE (AP) — Idaho utility regulators are considering a request to allow less clearance than normally is required for railroad cars at the planned Alhouser-Busch barley malting plant near Idaho Falls.

The brewing company has asked the state Public Utilities Commission to waive its rule requiring a clearance of eight feet, six inches between the center line of rail tracks and fixed obstacles.

Plans for the $50 million malting facility call for four doorways in the plant's rail shipping and receiving building that would limit clearance to seven feet.

Since most rail cars are 10 feet, eight inches wide, the reduced clearance proposed would provide less than two feet of clearance on either side of cars entering the shipping and receiving building.

Simplot workers vote for union
NAMPA (AP) — Workers laid off at the Simplot Meat Products Inc. plant in Nampa have voted overwhelmingly to accept union representation.

Sam Miller, president of United Food and Commercial Workers Local 388A, said Wednesday's vote was 42 to 12 in favor of unionization.

Eighty-six workers were eligible to vote on the union proposal conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

Miller said meetings were planned with the workers and Simplot officials to begin negotiations on issues including wages, hours, working conditions and benefits.

Lottery starting date to be set

BOISE (AP) — For the thousands of Idahoans who have been waiting years to take a chance on a home-grown lottery, the waiting is nearly over.

Wally Hedrick, director of the Idaho State Lottery, said Friday that he would announce the official start-up date of the games at a June 20 Lottery Commission meeting in Boise.

Hedrick has said lottery officials hope to get games under way by late July or early August.

Lottery spokeswoman Kathy Showers said other business at this month's Lottery Commission meeting would include reports on instant-winner ticket printing, data processing, staff training, ticket retailers and printing of tickets for a third lottery game.

Idaho voters approved an amendment to the state constitution last November that allowed establishment of a state-run lottery program.

The 1988 Legislature adopted a number of lottery statutes in anticipation of the amendment's passage and allocated $1 million to start up the program.

Fire officials look for Feed and Ice suspect

TWIN FALLS — As construction workers began dismantling the Twin Falls Feed and Ice Building Friday, fire investigators were turning their attention toward finding a suspect in the Memorial Day fire.

Fire officials have gathered enough physical evidence that the fire was man-made and they will not re-enter the building, said Don Dillard, state chief deputy fire marshal.

Investigators hope someone will come forward with new evidence as a result of the $3,000 reward offered by the building's owner, Dillard said.

Workers for Stafford Construction of Twin Falls began demolition by removing the metal awnings on the building's west side.

Twin Falls asks court to require fire system repair

TWIN FALLS — The city has asked the court to order a Caldwell businessman to fix a fire extinguishing system in his Twin Falls warehouse or to pay a $300 per day fine.

In papers filed Friday with the 5th District Court, City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich charged Ronald Van Auker failed to maintain an operative fire extinguishing system in the Royal Seed warehouse building, 2363 Warren Ave.

City Building Inspector Rex Champey said the fire extinguishing system has been shut off.

Van Auker was in meetings Friday afternoon and could not be reached for comment.

June 20 deadline for road paving bids in Magic Valley

JEROME — Road paving companies have until June 20 to submit bids on a number of projects set for this summer in the Magic Valley area.

The Idaho Transportation Department has announced seal coat projects on 18 miles of Idaho 24 from Minidoka to Kimama; 6.3 miles of Idaho 24 near Kimama West; 37 miles of Idaho 25 from Jerome to the junction with U.S. 93; and about 10 miles of the westbound lanes on I-87 from Cotterell to south Idaho.

The projects, scheduled to begin in mid-July, will cause minor traffic interference, according to the department. Motorists can expect up to a 15-minute delay.

The estimated cost for the project is $300,000 to $400,000, and the proposed completion time is late August, 1989.

Bids are due by 2 p.m. at the department's headquarters in Boise, Box 7129, Boise, Idaho 83707. For more information, contact engineer Don Shanhahn at 208 436-4388.

Mushroom farm trial enters the last phase; end in sight

HAILEY — Lawyers are expected to present closing arguments Tuesday in the trial pitting Idaho First National Bank against the Bliss Valley Foods mushroom farm.

Friday was spent whittling down more than 300 pages of jury instructions to a practical amount. The instructions will tell jurors of Idaho law and also present them with guidelines and questions in helping them decide the case.

Idaho First, now named West One Bank, filed foreclosure action on the farm in March 1987. The farm courtordered, claiming the bank's policies caused the business to fail.

The court time for this trial will be almost three months when the case goes to jury early this week.

Port of Hope to open 4 new centers next month

TWIN FALLS — Port of Hope, with its headquarters here, will open four new outpatient facilities early next month in north Idaho at Moscow, Orofino, Kamiah and Grapewhit.

Port of Hope is a nonprofit chemical dependency treatment organization formed in 1971, will now have 20 centers from Coeur d'Alene to Burley with more than 100 employees and an ongoing caseload of more than 2,000 clients.

It is the largest professional chemical dependency treatment organization in the state.

The new locations are at 827 S. Washington, Moscow, 83844, phone 883-3053 or 883-4734; 4161 N. Fork Drive, Ashshika, 83520, phone 476-5267; 611 Fourth St., Kamiah, 83336, phone 925-6502.

For confidential information contact the new locations after July 3.

Board OKs 'discretionary pay' for coaches

By JENNIFER KAUITH
Times-News writer

Dollar amounts - A5

TWIN FALLS — The School Board has chosen a new game plan to compensate athletic coaches for pre-season duties and work during vacations.

Sparked by a grievance filed by the high school's head volleyball coach and its athletic trainer in October, the School Board has decided to bench "extended contracts" — contracts paid in the past only to football coaches for pre-season work.

Instead, the board has approved a

"discretionary pay" policy for coaching duties that extend beyond the regular school year.

The policy will mean additional pay for many coaches — if the district has the money.

Jerry Sivulich, head volleyball coach, and Lawrence Pfefferle, athletic trainer, filed a grievance with the district in October, asking to be paid on the same level as assistant football coaches — who were earning about $600 through extended contracts.

"We just wanted to be paid," Pfefferle said. "We wanted to be treated on the same level as football."

The School Board rejected the request in February, but it recently changed the policy involved.

Pfefferle said the volleyball and cross-country teams begin practicing at about the same time as football — in mid-August. And Pfefferle usually puts in full days as soon as the fall athletes start using their lockers again.

"Once football starts, my summer is over," he said.

Several coaches including Sivulich, received one-time $250 stipends last fall for the first time, but Pfefferle did not.

The problem has been mentioned to the athletic director before, Pfefferle said. But the coaches have never filed a formal grievance.

"It's my understanding that this has been a sore spot for quite a while," said School Board member Dave Sommer. "We decided it was time to take a stand and make it so."

JEROME — What may at first appear a giant RV sale here is really the state gathering of Idaho's Good Sam members.

More than 1,000 people are camping out in the Jerome High School parking lot this week, with the blessing of area residents and merchants, as Jerome hosts the 18th Annual Idaho State Good Sam Sabor.

"Good Sam is the largest and fastest growing RV organization in the world," said its Idaho director, Ermil Jerome, of Boise. "People really enjoy fishing, hiking, camping and getting together to have fun, and we do what people like to

The Good Sams — deriving their name from the tale of the Good Samaritan — take their title seriously. They post Good Sam emblems on their rigs to let everyone know they want to be helpful. They support such projects as Special Olympics and Dogs for the Deaf.

Those who pull their RVs into this weekend's Sabor are greeted by the Good Sam parking crew. Like all Good Sam workers, they're volunteers. In Jerome, they're guiding 500 rigs into high school parking spots during the four-day gathering.

A visitor to the grounds sees a community. "We bring our own little town with our own little houses to these events," said Gil Forsyth, a nationally appointed "Sambassador" who travels full-time representing the organization. "Our family rooms" just happen to be under awnings.

Good Sam boasts 850,000 rigs across the country, averaging just less than three people per rig. Idaho alone has 53 chapters. Rigs in Jerome this weekend range from simple pickup campers to $100,000 motor homes.

"Good Sam is a great way to travel and make friends," says John, who takes advantage of many of Good Sam's monthly outings, available at minimal fees. "We have met so many people, now that we could stay in driveways all over the United States."

Boise residents John and Louise Musgrave, ages 63 and 57, are typical Good Sam campers. They began 35 years ago in a tent and eventually graduated to the mini-motor home they bought 18 months ago. "It's the life," said Louise, pointing toward her attractive motor home. "This is not like home. This is home."

Louise added: "We like to investigate the history of the areas we visit and enjoy the area foods, and we have eaten lobster in Maine and alligator in Florida."

Woodland waives preliminaries on burglary charge

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

The eight felony charges stem from the April 25 robbery of Earl Faulkner and the burglary of Faulkner's upscale clothing store, The Paris.

Prosecutors say Woodland robbed Faulkner and his wife at gunpoint to get the keys to The Paris. Police found The Paris plunder in black plastic garbage bags near the store's back door.

Woodland was nabbed behind rolls of newspaper in The Times-News building after a two-block footchase through alleys in the dark of the night.

Woodland is notorious locally for a 1988 string of burglaries of affluent Twin Falls homes. He was sentenced to between two and five years in prison for those crimes. But Woodland escaped March 31 from prison with another local inmate, Dusty Wade Martin.

Woodland returned Friday from the state penitentiary, where he continues to serve his original sentence.

Prosecutors charged Woodland with robbery, two counts of first-degree burglary, second-degree kidnapping, two counts of aggravated assault and possession of stolen property.

Martin was caught in Las Vegas two weeks before Woodland.

Elks won't welcome women as brothers

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Elks may make it easier for blacks to join their fraternity, but women will never be welcome, the nation's highest ranking Elk pledged Friday.

"We've about come to the point where we will not have in," said Robert J. Sabin, the grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Sabin is visiting Twin Falls for a four-day convention of Idaho Elks that ends Sunday.

About 400 Elks and 70 members of the Elks Ladies Auxiliary are expected to attend.

For 121 years the Elks have been dedicated to charity, patriotism and brotherhood. But even as they raise millions of dollars every year to master medical attention for the needy, a friendly voice for a lonely veteran and a reverence for the flag, the order has been criticized for its membership policies.

"All you have to do to be an Elk is be 21 years old, male, believe in God, a citizen of the United States and have never been a member of the Communist Party," Sabin said.

Those requirements have not changed in this century, except that the word "white" was removed from the membership criteria in 1972.

Sabin said the Elks now include

Each was charged with one count of possession of a controlled substance with the intent to deliver. Both were released Thursday night after a $10,000 bond was paid for each.

Officers seized 17 grams of a substance believed to be cocaine and a small bundle of "green vegetable material" believed to be marijuana, Jarvis said.

That amount of cocaine has a street value of about $2,400, he said.

The substances were sent to the state forensics laboratory for testing, Jarvis said.

He said officers also seized drug paraphernalia and 24 firearms, including shotguns, rifles and revolvers.

"Other charges are pending," Jarvis said. Assisting Minidoka County sheriff's deputies in the arrests were reserve deputies, Rupert police, Idaho Department of Alcohol and Beverage Control officers and Idaho State Troop officers, he said.

Charboneau faces resentencing hearing in Jerome

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

JEROME — The 5-year-old Jimmie Charboneau case may be headed for the U.S. Supreme Court — but at the same time Charboneau is headed for a Jerome County sentencing hearing.

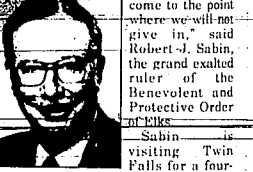

The Idaho Supreme Court on Friday denied a prosecution request to delay Charboneau's resentencing hearing. The court ordered the hearing in early April, when it overturned Charboneau's death sentence.

Friday's decision means local courts will proceed toward a new sentencing hearing and will halt only if the state persuades the U.S. Supreme Court to halt local action.

Charboneau, meanwhile, remains in custody on Idaho's death row, awaiting a new sentence that could be death or some lesser penalty.

Worried about the April decision and its potential impact on other death-row cases, the attorney general's office is "strongly considering" appealing it to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A 1987 U.S. Supreme Court decision forced other all-male service organizations, such as Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions, to open their membership to women. But the Elks maintain the ruling does not apply to them because they are a fraternal organization promoting camaraderie, charity and patriotism — not business contacts.

"Elks are not permitted to talk about business," Sabin said. "I think I was in the order 12 years before anybody knew I was a lawyer."

The grand exalted ruler said the women in the Elks Auxiliary groups are perfectly happy having their own segregated group. "They fill the family portrait picture and help us get the work done," he said.

And the Elks got a lot done. They were responsible for building and donating the first veterans' hospital in the United States and have pledged to help veterans as long as necessary. The Elks are second only to the federal government in the

For the past nine years, they have also been contributing to the welfare of America's younger generation by conducting a drug-awareness program for fourth-through ninth-graders.

It's not the Auxiliary women who want to spoil the Elk fraternity, Sabin said. "It's not the woman who wants to do good — it's the woman who wants to use club facilities, or even undermine the club's good deeds."

Sabin does admit change is necessary in order for the Elks to continue their good works. Membership nationwide and in Twin Falls has declined in recent years. In order to counter that trend, the order will work on enticing younger men to join, Sabin said.

But as far as he's concerned the Elks will enter the 21st century a fraternity of men.

more fair."

Summer said no complaints or grievances had been filed with the School Board before Sivulich and Pfeiffer's grievance last fall.

Andy Barron, Twin Falls High School athletic director, said the contract has been in place since about 1978. He said the issue has been brought up within the high school, but it's never been "contested" before. He said since it was a pay item, it had to be taken beyond high school officials.

Which coaches will be paid what is still unclear. School officials said they will use a formula to calculate dollar amount figures, but performance evaluations will also be a factor.

"I think it's a good solution," said board member Steve Tolman.

He said the district's financial situation may also be taken into account to figure how much coaches will be paid. He said either the administration or the School Board will perform the evaluations.

Milton Barrus, the Twin Falls Education Association's immediate past president, said he was disappointed the recently approved union contract didn't cover the issue, but the controversy had been resolved to the union's and the coaches' satisfaction.

"I was very happy the way it was resolved," Pfeiffer said. "I thought the school district did a good job and created everybody equally."

Supreme Court, said Solicitor General Lynn Thomas. Meanwhile, he wants to stop all state court action until the U.S. Supreme Court

"We don't want anything further to happen until the issues are resolved," Thomas said in an interview before Friday's decision. "If resolved in our favor, the resentencing will never occur."

The Times-News was unable to reach Thomas Friday.

The soonest the U.S. Supreme Court could hear the appeal would be early next year, Thomas said. As solicitor general, Thomas argues death-sentence appeals for the Idaho attorney general's office.

Charboneau's case sits at a crossroads. His court-appointed attorney, Greg Fuller of Jerome, wants his client back in Jerome County for another sentencing hearing. Thomas' appeal, however, would move the case to Washington, D.C.

The Idaho Supreme Court in April overturned Charboneau's death sentence for the 1984 murder of his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh. Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker sentenced the former rodeo performer to death in 1986.

Fuller said earlier he would oppose any appeal by the attorney general's office of the April ruling.

"The problem is it creates more and more confusion, certainly, and it could even appear to be a stall tactic," Fuller said. "At this point, I don't want to go to U.S. Supreme Court."

So far, Jerome County has paid more than $150,000 in prosecution and defense costs in the case.

Fire officials look for Feed and Ice suspect

TWIN FALLS — As construction workers began dismantling the Twin Falls Feed and Ice building Friday, fire investigators were turning their attention toward finding a suspect in the Memorial Day fire.

Fire officials have gathered enough physical evidence that the fire was man-made, and they will not re-enter the building, said Don Dillard, state chief deputy fire marshal.

Investigators hope someone will come forward with new evidence as a result of the $3,000 reward offered by the building's owners.

Twin Falls asks court to require fire system repair

TWIN FALLS — The city here has asked the court to order a Caldwell businessman to fix a fire extinguishing system in his Twin Falls warehouse or to pay a $300 per day fine.

In papers filed Friday with the 5th District Court, City Attorney Fritz Wondrich charged Ronald Van Auker failed to maintain an operative fire extinguishing system in the Regal Seed warehouse building, 2363 Warren Ave.

City Building Inspector Rex Champreys said the fire extinguishing system has been shut off.

Van Auker was in meetings Friday afternoon and could not be reached for comment.

June 20 deadline for road paving bids in Magic Valley

JEROME — Road paving companies have until June 20 to submit bids on a number of projects set for this summer in the Magic Valley area.

The Idaho Transportation Department has announced 24 coal projects on 16 miles of Idaho 24 from Minidoka to Kimama, 6.3 miles of Idaho 21 near Kimama West, 3.7 miles of Idaho 25 from Jerome to the junction with U.S. 93, and about 10 miles of the westbound lanes on I-84 from Catterlet to south Idaho.

The projects, scheduled to begin in mid-July, will cause minor traffic interference, according to the department.

The estimated cost for the project is $300,000 to $400,000, and the proposed completion time is late August 1989.

Bids are due by 2 p.m. at the department's headquarters in Boise, Box 7129, Boise, Idaho 83707. For more information, contact engineer Don Shanban at 208-436-4309.

Mushroom farm trial enters the last phase; end in sight

HAILEY — Lawyers are expected to present closing arguments Tuesday in the trial pitting Idaho First National Bank against the Bliss Valley Foods mushroom farm.

Friday was spent whittling down more than 300 pages of jury instructions to a practical amount. The instructions will tell jurors of Idaho Law and also present them with guidelines and questions in helping them decide the case.

Idaho First, now named West One Bank, filed foreclosure action on the farm in March 1987. The farm countered, claiming the bank's policies caused the business to fail.

The court time for this trial will be almost three months when the case goes to jury early this week.

Board OKs 'discretionary pay' for coaches

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

Dollar amounts — A5

TWIN FALLS — The School Board has chosen a new game plan to compensate athletic coaches for pre-season duties and work during vacations.

Sparked by a grievance filed by the high school's head volleyball coach and its athletic trainer in October, the School Board has decided to bench "extended contracts" — contracts paid in the past only to football coaches for pre-season work.

discretionary pay policy for coaching duties that extend beyond the regular school year.

The policy will mean additional pay for many coaches — if the district has the money.

Cherry Sivalich, head volleyball coach, and Lawrence Pfeffler, athletic trainer, filed a grievance with the district in October, asking to be paid on the same level as assistant football coaches — who were earning about $600 through extended contracts.

"We just wanted to be paid," Pfeffler said. "We wanted to be treated on the same level as football."

The School Board rejected the request in February, but it recently changed the policy involved.

Pfeffler said the volleyball and cross-country teams begin practicing at about the same time as football — in mid-August. And Pfeffler usually puts in full days as soon as the fall athletes start using their lockers again.

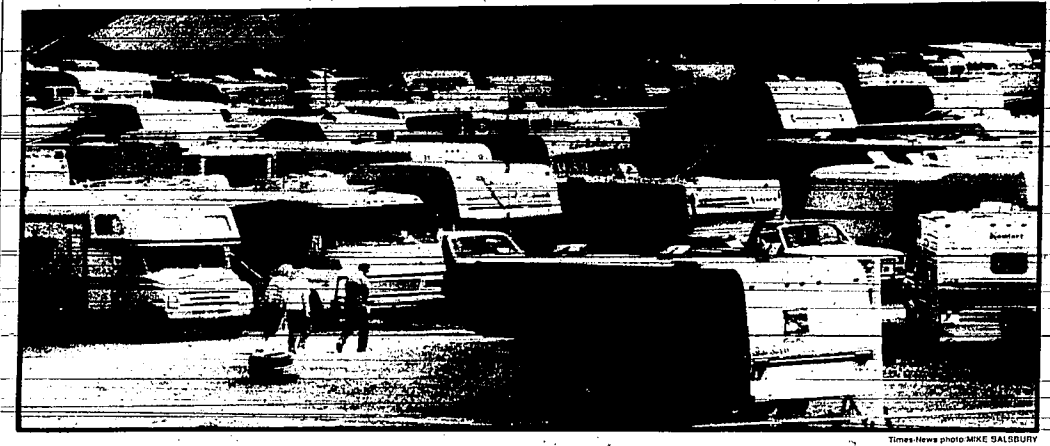

"Once football starts, my summer is over," he said.

Several coaches, including Sivalich, received one-time $250 stipends last fall for the first time, but Pfeffler did not.

The problem has been mentioned to the athletic director before, Pfeffler said. But the coaches have never filed a formal grievance.

"It's my understanding that this has been a sore spot for quite a while," said School Board member Dave Sommer. "We decided it was time to take a stand and make it

More than 1,000 people have been camping out in the Jerome High School parking lot for the state gathering of Good Sam members

Good Sam members gather in Jerome

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — What may at first appear a giant RV sale here is really the state gathering of Idaho's Good Sam members.

More than 1,000 people are camping out in the Jerome High School parking lot this week, with the blessing of area residents and merchants, as Jerome hosts the 18th Annual Idaho State Good Sam Sambaore.

"Good Sam is the largest and fastest-growing RV organization in the world," said its Idaho director, Ernie Jerome, of Boise. "People really enjoy fishing, hiking, camping and getting together to have fun; and we do what people like to do.

The Good Sams — deriving their name from the tale of the Good Samaritan — take their title seriously. They past Good Sam emblems on their rigs to let everyone know they want to be helpful. They support such projects as Special Olympics and Dogs for the Deaf.

Those who pull their RVs into this weekend's Sambaore are greeted by the Good Sam parking crew. Like all Good Sam workers, they are volunteers. In Jerome, they're guiding 500 rigs into high school parking spots during the four-day gathering.

A visitor to the grounds sees a community. "We bring our own little town with our own little houses to these events," said Gil Forsyth, a nationally appointed "Sambassador" who travels full time representing the organization. "Our family rooms just happen to be under awnings."

Good Sam boasts 350,000 rigs across the country, averaging just less than three people per rig. Idaho alone has 53 chapters. Rigs in Jerome this weekend range from small pickup campers to $100,000 motor homes.

"Good Sam is a great way to travel and make friends," says John, who takes advantage of many of Good Sam's monthly outings, available at minimal fees. "We have met so many people now that we could stay in driveways all over the United States.

Boise residents John and Louise Musgrave, ages 63 and 57, are typical Good Sam campers. They began 35 years ago in a tent and eventually graduated to the motor motor home they bought 16 months ago. "It's the life," said Louise, pointing toward her attractive motor home. "This is not like home. This is home."

Louise added, "We like to investigate the history of the areas we visit and enjoy the area foods, and we have eaten lobster in Maine and alligator in Florida."

Woodland waives preliminaries on burglary charge

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The plunder from the robbery reads like a wardrobe list for the television show "L.A. Law."

Included in more than $3,000 of items on the list are $40 neckties, a $110 polo shirt, and a $165 dress coat, not to mention a couple of $20 bottles of cologne.

The man charged with the robbery, Wade Ernest Woodland, 21, on Friday waived a preliminary hearing to test the strength of the charges. He now must enter a plea in 5th District Court.

The eight felony charges stem from the April 25 robbery of Earl Faulkner and the burglary of Faulkner's upscale clothing store, The Paris.

"Prosecutors say Woodland robbed Faulkner and his wife at gunpoint to get the keys to The Paris. Police found the Paris plunder in black plastic garbage bags near the store's back door.

Woodland was nabbed behind rolls of newsprint in The Times-News building after a two-block foot chase through alleys in the dark of the night.

Woodland is notorious locally for a 1988 string of burglaries of affluent Twin Falls homes.

Each was charged with one count of possession of a controlled substance with the intent to deliver. Both were released Thursday night after a $10,000 bond was paid for each.

Officers seized 17 grams of a substance believed to be cocaine and a small bundle of green vegetable material believed to be marijuana, Jarvis said.

That amount of cocaine has a street value of about $2,400, he said.

Woodland returned Friday from the state penitentiary, where he continues to serve his original sentence.

Prosecutors charged Woodland with robbery, two counts of first-degree burglary, second-degree kidnaping, two counts of aggravated assault and possession of stolen property.

Martin was caught in Las Vegas two weeks before Woodland.

The substances were sent to the state forensics laboratory for testing, Jarvis said.

He said officers also seized drug paraphernalia and 24 firearms, including shotguns, rifles and revolvers, Jarvis said.

"Other charges are pending," Jarvis said. Assisting Minidoka County sheriff's deputies in the arrests were reserve deputies, Rupert police, Idaho Department of Alcohol and Beverage Control officers and Idaho State Police officers, he said.

Elks won't welcome women as brothers

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Elks may make it easier for blacks to join their fraternity, but women will never be welcome, the nation's highest ranking Elks pledged Friday.

ROBERT J. SABLIN
Elks will be boys

About 400 Elks and 70 members of the Elks Ladies Auxiliary are expected to attend.

For 121 years the Elks have been dedicated to charity, patriotism and brotherhood. But even as they raise millions of dollars every year to muster medical attention for the needy, a friendly voice for a lonely veteran and a reverence for the flag, the order has been criticized for its membership policies.

"All you have to do to be an Elks is be 21 years old, male, believe in God, a citizen of the United States and have never been a member of the Communist Party," Sablin said.

Those requirements have not changed in this century, except that the word "white" was removed from the membership criteria in 1972.

Hansen schools survey reveals students' drug use

By LYNDA BOODY
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — Some students here use drugs but their numbers are relatively low, according to a survey done this spring.

Alcohol is the drug students in grades 6-12 abuse most, — Rene Ramaley, drug coordinator for three school district, told the School Board this week. Limited marijuana use occurs in the higher grades, according to the survey.

"The survey is not a slap in the face," Ramaley told the board. "It's just reality and a way of teaching our community that we face challenges."

Statistics from the survey are available to all district parents. The survey was conducted by teachers using a format obtained from Western Centers, a drug education organization based in Portland, Ore.

Fifth and sixth graders surveyed said they have not used marijuana, hard liquor or cocaine.

There is some slight concern with the use of the drug, the order has been criticized for its membership policies.

Charboneau faces resentencing hearing in Jerome

JEROME — The 5-year-old Jaime Charboneau case may be headed for the U.S. Supreme Court — but at the same time Charboneau is headed for a Jerome County resentencing hearing.

denied a prosecution request to delay Charboneau's resentencing hearing. The court ordered the hearing in early April, when it overturned Charboneau's death sentence.

Friday's decision means local courts will proceed toward a new sentencing hearing and will halt only if the state persuades the U.S. Supreme Court to halt the action.

Charboneau, meanwhile, remains in custody on Idaho's death row, awaiting a new sentence that could be death or some lesser penalty.

Worried about the April decision and its potential impact on other death-row cases, the attorney general's office is strongly considering appealing it to the U.S.

substantial number of blacks and other minorities, though he does not have specific figures because the membership application does not ask about race.

Twin Falls Elks' membership includes Hispanics and Basques, an Elks spokesman said. While minorities have held leadership posts in the local lodge, none currently hold offices.

Blow-out-of-proportion-Sabin said under the current rules, the lodge brothers could be black, but a potential member. "The proposed change would take a lodge majority to turn a new member away."

"I would push for that," Sabin said. "But there's a world of difference he is anticipating a particularly good weekend. Darrell Carrison of Jerome Gas and Oil, along with Annis Schenck of the Jerome Chamber of Commerce, shoppers decked out in Good Sam trademark yellow vests began coming into their businesses Wednesday.

"Quite a few have been asking directions and buying gas and groceries," said Carrison. Shawn Fuller, who is working with the local Northside Playhouse association at "Paint Your Wagon," has noticed increased ticket sales. Many Good Sams have attended play rehearsals, she added.

In addition to shopping excursions, the Good Sam campers are enjoying organized horseshoe and baseball.

between differences in color and differences in sex. There's so much more involved.

A 1987 U.S. Supreme Court decision forced other all-male service organizations, such as Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions, to open their membership to women. But the Elks maintain the ruling does not apply to them because they are a fraternal organization promoting camaraderie, charity and patriotism - not business.

The grand exalted ruler said the women in the Elks Auxiliary groups are perfectly happy having their own segregated group. "They fill the family portrait frame and help us get the work done," he said.

And the Elks did not do. They are responsible for building and donating the first veterans' hospital in the United States and have pledged to help veterans as long as necessary. The Elks are second only to the federal government in the number of scholarships they hand out to young people every year.

For the past few years, they have also been contributing to the welfare of America's younger generation by conducting a drug-awareness program for fourth-through ninth graders.

It's not the Auxiliary women who want to "spoil the Elks" fraternity, Sabin said. "It's not the woman who wants to do good - it's the woman who wants to use club facilities, or who undermines the club's good deeds."

Sabin does admit change is necessary in order for the Elks to continue their good works. Membership nationwide and in Twin Falls has declined in recent years. In order to counter that trend, the order will work of enticing younger men to join, Sabin said.

But as far as he's concerned the Elks will enter the 21st century a fraternity of men.

"We've always been a brotherhood," he said. "And we'll continue to be."

Sommer said no complaints or grievances had been filed with the School Board before Stuvlich and Pfeiffer's grievances last fall.

Andy Barron, Twin Falls High School athletic director, said the extended contract has been in place since about 1978. He said the issue has been brought up within the high school, but it's never been "scooped" before. He said since it was a pay item, it had to be taken beyond high school officials. Which coaches will be paid what is still unclear. School officials said they will use a formula to calculate dollar amount figures, but performance evaluations will also be a factor.

"I think it's a good solution," said board member Steve Tolman.

He said the district's financial situation may also be taken into account to figure how much coaches will be paid. He said either the administration or the School Board will perform the evaluations. Milton Barrus, the Twin Falls Education Association's immediate past president, said he was disappointed the recently approved union contract didn't cover the issue, but the controversy had been resolved to the union's and the coaches' satisfaction.

"I was very happy the way it was resolved," Pfeiffer said. "I thought the school district did a good job and treated everybody equally."

Supreme Court, said Solicitor General Lynn Thomas. Meanwhile, he wants to stop all-state-court action until the U.S. Supreme Court can hear the case.

"We don't want anything further to happen until the issues are resolved," Thomas said in an interview before Friday's decision. "If resolved in our favor, the resentencing will never occur."

The Times-News was unable to reach Thomas Friday.

The soonest the U.S. Supreme Court could hear the appeal would be early next year, Thomas said. As solicitor general, Thomas argues death-sentence appeals for the Idaho attorney general's office.

Charboneau's case sits at a crossroads. His court-appointed attorney, Greg Fuller of Jerome, wants his client back in Jerome County for another sentencing hearing. Thomas' appeal, however, would move the case to Washington, D.C.

The Idaho Supreme Court in April overturned Charboneau's death sentence for the 1984 murder of his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh. Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker sentenced the former rodeo performer to death in 1986.

Fuller said earlier he would oppose any appeal by the attorney general's office of the April ruling. "The problem is it creates more and more confusion, certainly, and it could even appear to be a stall tactic," Fuller said. "At this point, I don't want to go to U.S. Supreme Court."

So far, Jerome County has paid more than $150,000 in prosecution and defense costs in the case.

of snuffed substances such as glue, paint thinner and whitout. Twenty percent of the sixth graders and 5 percent of the fifth graders said they had snuffed substances at least once in their lifetime.

By the time the kids have reached the eighth grade, the use of inhalants had jumped to 25 percent. Three percent of eighth graders said they used inhalants monthly.

Students in grades 6-10 experiment mostly with alcohol and tobacco products. One or two students did admit to having tried stimulants and marijuana.

Students in the 11th and 12th grades experiment more with alcohol and tobacco than other drugs, according to the survey. Only one or two students has used hard drugs one or more times. The use of marijuana in these grades is a slightly higher percentage, at 10 percent. In each grade said they use the drug monthly.

The students in 8-12 grades say they are getting alcohol mostly from friends or from home without parental knowledge. A few are asking adults to purchase it for them. None of the students surveyed said they are using alcohol on a daily basis.

Ramaley said she expects the IMPACT drug-abuse prevention program, recently approved by the board, to help the district. Her goal is to train more teachers and to increase the scope and sequence of prevention classes in the future.

The elementary school has been involved with drug and alcohol education for several years.

Ramaley tried to eliminate variables in the statistics by giving the test to all students at the same time. Few students were absent on testing day, she said. A total of 155 students took the optional survey.

Several parents helped compile statistics for the report.

In other action:

The board will narrow down about 15 applications the district has received for the vacant custodial position.

Phase 1 of the asbestos removal contract has been completed. Asbestos has been removed from pipes under the building from the music room to the back of the building. The board has yet to approve removal of asbestos from the boiler room. Removal efforts in this area are expected to take place in the next budget cycle.

The board approved a proposal submitted by the citizens ad hoc advisory committee to seek architectural opinions on the feasibility of remodeling the high school. Committee Chairman John Gibson and he knows of two firms which will make free recommendations on remodeling. The committee was formed to make recommendations on a building program or consolidation with another school district.

Bush clean-air proposal will include measures against acid rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is expected to propose legislation requiring a 10 million-ton reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions by the year 2000 to combat acid rain, administration and congressional sources said Friday.

The new acid-rain standards — not quite as extensive as the 12 million-ton cut sought by environmentalists but for more than industry has wanted — are expected to be a key component in a clean-air package Bush will unveil on Monday.

The sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, also said that Bush's package likely would give industries that use clean-ent technology additional time and flexibility in meeting the standards.

The legislation will not mandate how industrial plants should go about reducing sulfur dioxide emissions, giving them freedom-of-choice of methods, the sources said.

And the package will offer special credits and other financial incentives to industries that surpass the standards, the sources said.

Presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that Bush had made "some "preliminary decisions" on the clean-air package, but would make up his mind on some of the thornier issues this weekend while at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md.

"He is taking with him decision memos and options on all the major questions that are still outstanding, and we would expect decisions over the weekend," Fitzwater said.

Among the decisions still to be resolved, presumably, are whether Bush's package — billed in advance as the most comprehensive overhaul yet of the 19-year-old Clean Air Act — will set new standards for automobile tailpipe exhausts.

Environmentalists want a requirement that tailpipe emissions of hydrocarbons and nitrogen dioxide — which were last reduced in 1981 — be further reduced by 1993. The automobile industry has voiced strong objections to any further tightening of the standards.

Administration officials, perhaps signaling a decision against tighter tailpipe standards, have stressed in recent days that the Bush package would put heavy emphasis on alternate auto fuels — such as alcohol blends — that contain fewer contaminants.

The president is expected to promote the alternate fuels section of his bill on Tuesday in a speech at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln. It's the second day of a two-day Western trip to showcase the new package.

He visits Yellowstone National Park on Monday, and gives a talk on the package Tuesday at the Teton Science School at Jackson Hole, Wyo. The clean-air bill will have three sections — dealing with acid rain, smog and chemical pollution.

Agents seize weapons from alleged traffickers

MIAMI (AP) — Drug agents seized an arsenal of heavy machine guns, high explosives and automatic weapons intended for the assassination of the Medellín drug cartel's top trafficker, federal officials said Friday.

Two men allegedly connected with the Cali cartel, a rival Colombian cocaine smuggling operation, were arrested in West Palm Beach on Friday, said Patrick O'Brien, agent in charge of the Customs Service in South Florida.

The plot included the planned purchase of a small drone aircraft to be flown over Medellín cartel leader Pablo Escobar Gaviria's hideout and exploded, O'Brien said. Escobar's Medellín cartel is responsible for up to 80 percent of U.S. cocaine imports, agents say.

The weapons were being purchased by the Cali cartel and shipped to Colombia in what they considered a last-ditch effort to assassinate Pablo Escobar, O'Brien said. They had shot down Escobar's helicopter and they had him cornered, and they wanted to finish him off.

Double-decker highway construction under way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Construction began on a double-decker highway Friday in an effort to ease one of the nation's worst commuter traffic jams, but road work threatened to worsen the bumper-to-bumper standstill called rush hour.

Gov. George Deukmejian presided at a ceremonial dedication of the overhead highway project dubbed "The Second-Generation of Freeways."

Standing atop an unfinished freeway link that will give rise to the top deck, Deukmejian praised the $530 million project, which will cater to buses and carpools, as California's road to rational commuting.

"The fact that we're holding this event on an onramp is symbolic," he said, "because it demonstrates our commitment not to let traffic congestion force California onto an off-ramp in terms of our prosperity in the future."

The new overhead project will link the Century Freeway still under construction with exclusive carpool and bus lanes from the heavily traveled Harbor Freeway, which links downtown to the city's port district.

The elevated sections of the Harbor Freeway's "T" interchange will stretch 2.6 miles and are scheduled to open in the fall of 1993.

During construction, which takes place in the center of the existing highway, some of the average 230,000 daily drivers are bound to get testy during delays.

Court orders Labor to reconsider

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday ordered the Labor Department to reconsider the cancer risk from exposure to formaldehyde and its decision not to guarantee full wages to workers disabled by the gas.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington said the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration "has failed adequately to explain its finding that the risk of getting cancer from exposure to formaldehyde was not significant if employers complied with OSHA's exposure limits."

The three-judge panel also concluded that OSHA offered a "feeble" explanation of its decision not to include in its standard for formaldehyde "exposure provisions guaranteeing workers will be paid full wages and retain seniority rights during rehabilitation from any illness linked to the substance."

Panel readies report on Indian affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — After investigating for 17 months, collecting a million pages of documents and holding 20 days of public hearings, a Senate panel is preparing a report detailing what its chairman calls the government's failed responsibility to Indians.

Members of a special unit of the Senate Select Committee on Indian Affairs have advocated that Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr. make reforms in the agencies responsible to native Americans. "I cannot think of any area where the federal government has so completely abdicated its responsibility as it has in Indian affairs," Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., chairman of the special committee, said Thursday.

Judge combines 12 Secord charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Friday rejected arguments by Iran-Contra figure Richard Secord and combined 12 criminal charges against him into a single indictment.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Aubrey Robinson took three counts against Secord involving accusations of illegal gifts to Oliver North and consolidated them with nine new charges accusing Secord of lying to Congress.

GAO: Job training targets the skilled

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who enter the government's premier job-training program with marketable skills get more attention than unskilled people most in need of help, the General Accounting Office said Friday.

The agency, the investigative arm of Congress, also said far too little attention is paid to remedial education needs of high school dropouts in the system set up under the Job Training Partnership Act.

Ruling gives Donovan fees, expenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday awarded $72,875 in attorneys' fees and expenses to former Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan following an investigation into his activities as a construction company executive.

Donovan had sought more than $12,000, but the three-member court panel lowered that figure by nearly $10,000.

A court order said there was insufficient documentation for some of the legal fees and that services provided by lawyers for the two firms representing Donovan were in some cases duplicative.

Bush gives more attention to human rights

PRESIDENT BUSH
Changes stance

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When President Bush visited China four months ago, he declined to emphasize human rights issues.

Now, faced with repression there on a grand scale, he is making it a focus of his China policy.

Bush told his prime-time news conference Thursday night "We have to speak out in favor of human rights. We aren't going to remake the world, but we should stand for something."

He also defended the U.S. decision to harbor China's most famous dissident, astrophysicist Fang Lihi, in the U.S. Embassy in Beijing, saying "It's awful hard when a man presents himself, a person who is a dissident, and says his life is threatened, to turn him back."

"That isn't one of the premises on which the United States was founded," Bush added.

Fang is now enjoying the U.S. hospitality he was unable to claim last February when he was invited to be a guest of the president at dinner in Beijing.

On the final night of a three-day visit to China, Bush was the host for a Texas-style barbecue for Chinese leaders in a Beijing hotel. But Fang, who has spoken out repeatedly against human rights abuses in China, was barred from attending by Chinese police.

Bush's protests did not come until the next day, amid some foot shuffling by the administration over who actually invited the dissident to the U.S.-sponsored event — the White House or the embassy staff.

The president's slowness of response in the incident and his failure to stress the human rights issue — either in public speeches or in private meetings with Chinese senior leader Deng Xiaoping and Prime Minister Li Peng — drew criticism from some quarters.

It also evoked comparisons with his predecessor, former President Reagan, who often used public forums in communist countries to speak forcefully on human rights.

Bush, in part, played down the issue during his visit so as not to offend top Chinese officials. —

After dark, Beijing citizens live with constant military presence

BEIJING (AP) — Teams of club-wielding police officers rove the streets. Soldiers with automatic weapons check identity papers at all major intersections. Squads of them, toting flashlights, pedal bicycles up alleyways.

Night has fallen in Beijing.

No curfew has been declared in the capital but bands of troops who patrol this city after dark are effectively deterring anyone from staying outside past 10 p.m. or gathering in a group larger than five.

During the day, a veneer of normal life is spreading across Beijing. But when night falls, so does any pretense to calm and safety.

On Friday night, a convoy of troop trucks patrolled the streets of the university district to the northwest for the first time during the week-long crackdown on the movement for democracy and freedom.

Small groups of students and local residents who had congregated on the main streets fled as the convoy bore down on them.

"Here they come, let's get out of here," yelled one youth as five trucks led by two police vans sped around a corner and flashed their lights at a crowd.

Soldiers, their AK-47 automatic rifles pointed into the crowd, shouted at it to disperse.

"Go home, everybody," one officer barked. "Go home."

The crowd that had been forming nightly in front of People's University was not there Friday. Only a few outdoor food stands were in front of the university's gates.

Most of my classmates have gone home," said one student. He said he was having trouble buying a train ticket to get out of town. "I hope to be out, too, in about a week."

Soldiers stood on street corners near the campuses. A group of seven blocked off a small street but students said troops had yet to enter their schools.

"What we do have is plainclothes police," said one student. "They are everywhere.

Indeed, security forces and university officials scrubbed the posters calling for freedom from the walls of Beijing University. Several during students placed another poster up, but within minutes it too was taken down.

Posters also disappeared from in front of People's University and Beijing Normal University. Only a handful of paper chrysanthemums, a flower used in traditional Chinese restaurants that had been staying open until 10:30 p.m. are shutting at 8 p.m. "Things are in chaos everywhere," said one proprietor. "If I stay open, these police hoodlums may come and get me."

Embarrassing questions greet Prime Minister Uno

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Sushiro Uno faced unprecedented and embarrassing questioning in Parliament on Friday about a magazine article that said he paid a geisha to be his mistress.

At the time, a weeklong strike, seeing one tabun after another fall as his supposedly scandal-free back record takes a beating from unexpected quarters.

Geishas traditionally do not reveal the identity of patrons. Japanese mainstream media traditionally do not report on politicians' dalliances. Opposition legislators traditionally do not raise such subjects in Parliament.

Kubota posed the question in the House of Councilors. The exchange was broadcast on the evening television news and transmitted nationwide by Kyodo, the country's top news agency.

Miss Kubota, an activist on women's issues, said The Washington Post had reported on the claim. "If it's not true, you should clearly protest," she admonished the prime minister.

Looking discomfited, Uno replied, "I will refrain from commenting publicly on such a kind of report concerning myself."

Soviet mobs seize police headquarters

MOSCOW (AP) — Mobs armed with guns, Molotov cocktails and pitchforks have seized several police stations in Uzbekistan and show no signs of stopping a weeklong frenzy of arson and murder. Soviet media reported Friday.

The death toll from the ethnic violence in the Fergana region of the Central Asian republic is nearing 80, and more than 600 people have been hurt, the government newspaper Izvestia said.

It said the Central Asian republic's Communist Party chief called for "more decisive measures" to contain the unrest.

More than 9,000 internal security troops have been dispatched to try to quell the attacks, which began on June 3 and involve the ethnic-Uzbek and the Meskhi Turk minority.

In Kokand, about 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow, crowds occupied most of the police stations, the youth newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda said. Looters had seized three locomotives and were threatening to blow up railroad fuel tanks, according to the newspaper.

The official news agency Tass said some incidents occurred on Thursday, but did not specify which ones. "The other reports gave no dates for the attacks, and they did not say if buildings were still being held."

Witnesses are estimated to have set fire to more than 550 houses and nearly 300 vehicles, most of them belonging to ethnic Turks. About 300 people reportedly have been detained.

Shatner says his crew's not too old for zipping around galaxy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Any suggestion that the crew of the Starship Enterprise is getting a tad old to be zipping about the galaxy at warp speed brings a phaser stare from the man who plays Capt. James T. Kirk. "I keep reading that, that we're old, but they never say too old for what," said William Shatner, the 58-year-old star, director and co-writer of the latest Star Trek film, "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier."

Shatner said he keeps cool when people point out lines on his face or that he "doesn't" have the same "jaw line" of 25 years ago.

"But what does make me angry is when some jerk keeps talking about this age thing, like we've gotten too old to entertain people and belong in a home somewhere," he said in a recent interview. "I don't think I look too old to get up and hit some guy in a movie."

Ted Kennedy Jr. finds bond with the disabled

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Kennedy Jr., who lost a leg to cancer at age 13, says he used to feel pity for people with disabilities.

"I imagine that, like most young people at the time, I didn't really expect that a person with a disability could accomplish anything in life," Kennedy writes in the Sunday issue of Parade magazine.

"Now I, too, have a close bond with such individuals, because I share the characteristic — that — makes them 'very special' — a disability that challenges me every day of my life," said Kennedy, 29, board member of Very Special Arts, which promotes work of disabled artists.

The Texas-born author of some 14 novels, including "The Last Picture Show," "Terms of Endearment" and the 1986 Pulitzer Prize-winner "Lonesome Dove," succeeded Susan Sontag at PEN's annual meeting Wednesday night.

Pat Boone criticizes stars for being remote

an approachable celebrity. Boone, known for his charity work and popular hits of the 1950s, said many of today's stars are remote to their young fans.

"They're unreal," he said "this week — these kids are identifying with kids and kids can't identify with-them. They (youngsters) know they're not going to have that kind of life.

Boone, a Nashville native, was in Greenville to dedicate a new hospital emergency room, play in a charity golf tournament and perform in a concert.

Prisoner's threats against actress may keep him in jail indefinitely

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The would-be killer who knifed actress Theresa Saldana in 1982 and was about to be paroled may be kept in prison indefinitely under fresh charges filed Thursday, prosecutors said.

Arthur Jackson, 53, was charged with eight counts of making death threats from prison against the actress and her rescuer in 1987 and 1988.

"I think it's great. I am so grateful he will not be walking out next week. It is buying some time," Miss Saldana said in a telephone interview from New York. She added: "This nightmare is far from being resolved and there is a long road ahead."

District Attorney Ira Reiner said, "Our objective, quite simply, is to keep him off the street."

The new charges carry a maximum penalty of seven years and eight months in prison, Reiner said. However, if Jackson is convicted, he will be sentenced under the provisions of a 1986 state law that bars freeing deranged inmates who continue to make credible threats.

Authorities said last week that Jackson could not continue to be held under his current sentence for threats that he had not actually acted on.

Good behavior in Soledad Prison had allowed him to earn a June 15 parole date. However, a prison board on Tuesday was expected to slap him with an extra 90 days for breaking windows.

The wild-eyed Scottish drifter whose obsession with the "kissing Bull" actress led to the 1982 attack had served seven years of a 12-year sentence for the stabbing.

Miss Saldana was attacked outside her West Hollywood apartment and stabbed 10 times by Jackson, whose thrusts bent the blade of his kitchen knife. Water deliveryman Jeff Fenn, now a county sheriff's deputy, pulled Jackson off the actress. In five letters to her and three to Fenn, Jackson vowed to carry out his death mission.

"I swear on the ashes of my dead mother and on the scars of Theresa Saldana that neither God nor I will rest in peace until the special request in my solemn petition has been granted," he said in one letter.

In that same letter, Jackson said he regretted using a knife because a gun would have given him a better chance of reunion with you in heaven.

"The prospect of a parole triggered an outpouring of condemnation, including a resolution by the Los Angeles City Council and a letter Thursday to the state parole board by Gov. George Deukmejian.

"The reason for the outrage is that he sits there in prison and he makes it abundantly clear his first order of business when he gets out is to kill her," said Reiner.

Bees take over Utah mailboxes

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A queen bee brought 20,000 of her subjects to the drive-through mail slots at the city's main post office, where they swarmed for six hours before they could be removed.

The queen and her party descended on the mailboxes about 10 a.m. Wednesday, startling early customers, said station manager Randy Vallejos.

Employees had a difficult time blocking the eight postal boxes with "Caution buffering" and "wet floor" signs because of the swarming mass, he said.

Enter Jim Baker, owner of General Pest Control in Ogden. Customers were trying to wave away the pollinators to drop off letters when he arrived, he said.

Baker said he immediately determined the fledgling hive being comb-over in one of the boxes was worth saving because of its honey and called in two independent beekeepers.

"It's a lot better if they can salvage the hive rather than destroy it," he said.

"Because the bees are filled with honey, they're tame and docile and don't sting much," Baker said. "If they get hungry, they'll get grumpy."

Ogden beekeeper Chad Moore said that by the time he arrived someone had sprayed sugar water in the area in an attempt to calm the creatures.

"It was a little bit of a mess. They were settling everywhere," he said. Moore and another beekeeper spent about two hours treating the bees with smoke to make them docile and rounding them up into a box. They collected about two pounds, or 20,000 bees, he said.

One customer told Moore "That's a dumb place to keep bees," he said. The queen was found dead and because the swarm is useless without it, the bees probably will be merged with another colony, Moore said.

Police halt man's rush at Pope

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — A fundamentalist Protestant demonstrator rushed toward Pope John Paul during an outdoor Mass on Friday, but Vatican security agents and Swedish police stopped him and dragged him away.

Authorities hauled the man, identified as a 28-year-old Swede, into a police van and drove him to a station for questioning, said police Inspector Alf Ohlsson. He said no one was injured.

The demonstrator, who was not carrying a weapon, belonged to a fundamentalist Protestant group that opposes the pope's efforts to improve Roman Catholic relations with the state church of this overwhelmingly Lutheran country, Ohlsson said.

Police said the protester was carrying leaflets, denouncing the pope "with all his abominations" to distribute to participants at the Mass.

"They said he would be released without charge and refused to release his name in keeping with Swedish practices."

It was not clear why the protester rushed toward the pope as John Paul distributed communion.

Witnesses said four or five agents wrestled with the demonstrator, who came within 10 yards of the pope, and pulled him away from a security barrier around the altar. They pinned him to the ground until the police van arrived.

Several other fundamentalists were outside the Mass. The Maronita group, which sometimes calls the pope's teachings "fascist," says no church, or the pope, is needed to speak to God — just the Bible.

AIDS virus may trigger some cancer

MONTRÉAL (AP) — Mice given an AIDS virus gene developed an AIDS-related cancer, suggesting the virus itself may cause cancer, leading researcher Dr. Robert Gallo said Friday.

Gallo, one of the discoverers of the AIDS virus, also said an experimental AIDS drug called CD4 is the closest thing to a "magic bullet" to eradicate AIDS.

"If CD4 doesn't work in the early phases, don't despair," he said. The drug blocks the mechanism by which the AIDS virus attaches to certain white blood cells and infects them.

This mechanism is so critical to AIDS virus growth in the body that some version of CD4 ought to be able to interfere with it, he said.

Gallo spoke at the Fifth International Conference on AIDS, which ended Friday.

His studies of the cancer, called Kaposi's sarcoma, offer one possible explanation for the origin of the disease in AIDS patients.

Others have evidence that Kaposi's sarcoma may be caused by a virus other than AIDS, but Gallo's work suggests otherwise.

He reported a study showing the cancer developed in mice that were genetically engineered to contain an AIDS virus gene called lat. The lat gene is a kind of supercharger that speeds up replication of the AIDS virus.

The mice carrying the lat gene developed Kaposi's sarcoma, but the cancer did not arise in the testis of the gene. It arose from other cells.

Speaker turns rite into rally

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani on Friday turned a memorial service for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini into a mass rally for his successor.

The speaker has moved this week to bolster the reputation of President Ali Khamenei, who was picked to succeed Khomeini as supreme political and religious leader, Rafsanjani and Khamenei are considered moderate.

During his sermon at the Friday prayer service at Tehran University, Rafsanjani said Khamenei met the conditions Khomeini outlined for his successor.

"Obeying Khamenei is obeying Khomeini," chanted the crowd of hundreds of thousands who packed the campus and surrounding streets for miles. Families knelt on prayer mats in the streets.

The appointment of Khamenei, only a middle-ranking cleric, was initially viewed as temporary. However, Rafsanjani said Thursday it was permanent.

During Friday's memorial, Rafsanjani and other leaders sat cross-legged on carpets next to the rostrum, which held a color portrait of Khomeini. Four little boys knelt below the picture, holding bunches of red and white gladioli.

Rose attorneys decline to interview Peters

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorneys for Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose really aren't interested in interviewing his purported bookmaker, Ronald Peters, in preparation for Rose's hearing before the baseball commissioner, Peters' lawyer said Friday.

Peters, 31, a Franklin, Ohio, restaurant owner who claims he ran bets for Rose, is one of Rose's principal accusers.

Sieckemann, Grady, Mast share lead at Westchester

HARRISON-N.Y. (AP) — First-round leader Tom Sieckemann, Australian Wayne Grady and Dick Mast shared the lead Friday before rain halted play in the Westchester Classic.

Meanwhile, Curtis Strange, the last golfer to finish before second-round play was stopped, completed a 65 that moved him into contention.

Royals will activate Brett as test shows knee OK

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett, out since April 29 with a torn ligament in his right knee, will be activated Saturday by the Kansas City Royals.

Brett passed a Cybex machine test on his injured knee Friday and got the final go-ahead to play. He also took batting practice and fielded 15 infield balls in first.

Ellenwood scores 30 to lead West

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — The Littlefoot Ellenwood show is coming to a gymnasium near you.

Ellenwood, in a 5-10 inch guard from Lapwai, who has signed a letter of intent with College of Southern Idaho, scored 30 points to pace the West all-stars to a 121-106 victory over the East in the 12th annual Idaho all-star basketball game.

Earlier, Mountain Home's Angela Taylor scored a driving layup with no time remaining to boost the West girls to a 62-61 victory over the east in their annual allstar get-together.

The only salvation for the East stars came Friday afternoon when they beat the West three out of four in the volleyball match, 16-14, 6-16, 16-10, 16-14.

Ellenwood, playing for his Lapwai High School Coach Bruce Crossfield in a Capital High School gymnasium where the thermostat read 85 degrees, left the crowd cheering and aching at his scoring antics from inside and out. He was 10-19 from the field, including three three-pointers, had four steals and five rebounds in about 20 minutes of playing time.

"This was the kind of basketball I'm used to at Lapwai," Ellenwood said. "I'm used to push it up and down the floor and we got a chance to do a lot of that tonight. The only bad thing is, I'm kinda out of shape."

Ellenwood gave the East stars no indication of that, scoring 19 points in the first half as the West took leads of as much as 23 points.

"I'm really looking forward to getting to CSI and meeting all the people down there," Ellenwood said. "Coach (Fred) Trenkle says I'll be playing at point guard and I'm anxious to get started."

The East stars, who included among their number five Magic Valley players, were just a step slow all evening.

"We got ourselves behind by not getting back on defense and then by the time we started clicking a little offensively, we had started giving a set defense," said Skyline

Couch Jim Lewis who handled the East. "This is a tough place to play an up-tempo game when you get behind. I just told the kids in the second half to go out and play as hard as they could for as long as they could and we got back into the game that way."

The East cut a 23-point deficit to five with 6 minutes, 58 seconds left in the fourth quarter. But Ellenwood quickly hit a three-pointer to put the West up by 10 and the East never got closer than seven.

The West went on a 14-2 scoring run over a 30-second stretch to put the game away.

"That came despite the best efforts of Twin Falls' Swede Trenkle, signed with University of Idaho, and Minico's Dan Poulton, who scored 20 and 17 points, respectively, and combined for 29 points in the second half. Poulton will join Ellenwood at CSI.

"I knew it was just a matter of time before Danny started hitting and so we kept him in the game as much as we could in the fourth quarter," said Lewis. "I was really surprised by what a great player Swede Trenkle is and he started showing it when we put him at the guard position."

Trenkle was 9-19 from the floor with five rebounds and five steals while Poulton, also headed for CSI, was 5-13 with five boards and four steals.

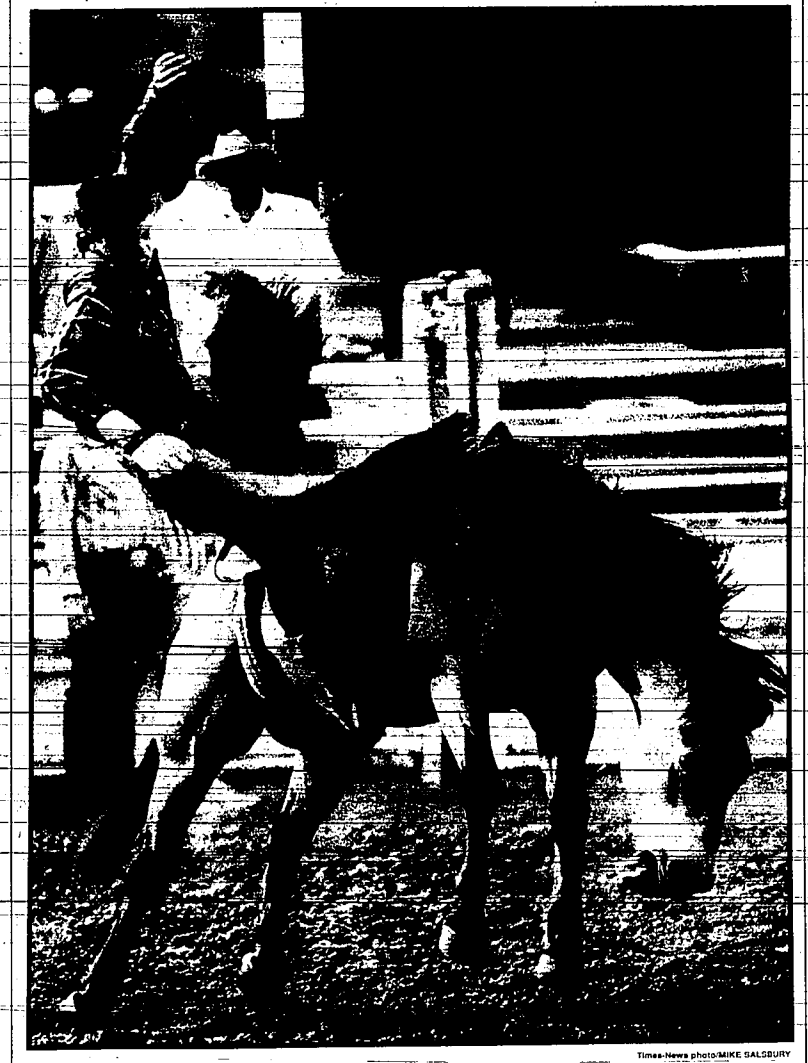

Jerome's Clint Bailey, headed by Biech, scored 13 points and had five rebounds while Filer's Steve McCandless scored 9 points and Shoshone's Jim Messick, another CSI recruit, 6.

In the earlier girls game, the East stars led 35-30 with 4:07 left in the game but the West scored three straight baskets and Capita's Candice Lords, also headed for CSI, popped in an 18-footer with two minutes left to give the west a 60-59 lead, it's first since the opening quarter.

Idaho Falls' Mikki Kane hit two free throws to put the East back on top 61-60 and the East then missed several opportunities to put the game away in the final minute.

Taylor turned the ball over with 59 seconds left and the West lost the ball again with 25 seconds remaining. Kane fouled

Belmont: Sunday Silence favored

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Sunday Silence, who has given racing fans their kicks this spring, gave Charlie Whittingham one Friday — literally.

"I hope he didn't bruise his foot hitting me on the noggin," the bruised 76-year-old trainer quipped.

Sunday Silence, the even-money early favorite to win the Belmont Stakes Saturday, captured the Triple Crown, was spooked while being led onto the Belmont Park track, with exercise rider Pam Mabez up.

"He just reared up," Whittingham said. "You know how hard they strike. I thought I got out of the way, but I didn't quite make it."

"It scared me when I saw it," said Arthur B. Hancock, who owns the colts with Whittingham and Dr. Ernest Gaillard. "It was lucky it just grazed him."

Whittingham was bruised in the area of the right temple.

"They kissed and made up," said Pat Valenzuela, who rode Sunday Silence to victory in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

Sunday Silence will try to end a 10-year drought of Triple Crown winners on a track that might be wet from several days of rain.

Should Sunday Silence be beaten by Easy Goer or one of the eight other 3-year-olds entered in the 1 1/2-mile Belmont, it would be the second longest stretch without a Triple Crown winner.

The longest stretch has been from Citation in 1949 to Secretariat in 1973. There also was a 18-year gap between Sir Barton in 1919 to Gallant Fox in 1930.

The forecast was for rain and thunderstorms to taper off by midnight Friday. A chance of a shower and temperatures between 75-80 were predicted for Saturday.

"If it stops by early morning, it would be a fast track by race time," Shug McGaughey, who trains Easy Goer, said.

Post time for the 121st Belmont is about 5:30 p.m. EDT. ABC will televise from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Easy Goer didn't like the mud at Churchill Downs when he finished second in the Derby, beaten by 2 1/2 lengths. Sunday Silence's winning margin over Easy Goer was a nose on a fast track in the Preakness.

Lakers' dwindling hopes rest on hamstring exams

The Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — The Los Angeles Lakers' hopes of winning their third straight championship rest on a pair of leg examinations Sunday before Game 3 of the NBA Finals.

Starting guards Magic Johnson and Byron Scott were limping with left hamstring injuries as the Lakers, trailing 2-0, returned to California Friday. The next three games of the best-of-7 series are scheduled for the Forum at Inglewood.

"It was an unbelievable feeling when he went down," said Scott, who was watching Game 2 from the bench Thursday when

Johnson reinjured his left hamstring, a strain that caused him to miss five games at midseason. "I was devastated."

Scott has a partially torn left hamstring and said after Detroit's 108-103 victory Thursday night that there was no chance he could play Sunday. However, an evaluation of both injuries is planned before the game.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Lakers' physician, said Johnson is "less severely injured" than Scott, who was hurt during practice Monday.

third quarter. It was the first time the Pistons pulled even after falling behind in the game's first minute.

"I was just so upset," said Johnson, who limped around the court swinging his arms in frustration. "I keep asking myself, 'Why? Now? Why me? Why now after all the hard work?' I was so upset, just plain disappointed."

To their credit, the Lakers went on to lead 92-81 after three quarters. Then they went 8-20 of the fourth period without a field goal and were outscored 18-3 for a 102-95 Pistons lead.

Los Angeles fought back again, losing a chance to tie the game at 106 when James Worthy missed one of two free throws with two seconds left.

"When we lost Byron, we could have called Lee when he was out, just went out and played hard," Lakers forward A.C. Green said. "That's what we did. We're not a bunch of crybabies or a one-man team. We played hard with what we had."

Worthy, who came into the championship series hitting 60.3 percent of his shots and averaging 21.9 points in the playoffs, had 36 points in two games and has made only 13 of 37 field-goal attempts. But he said it is too early to count the Lakers out, even though only two teams in Finals history have come back from 2-0 deficit to win.

St. Louis Cardinals cool Chicago's bats to beat Cubs, 1-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose DeLeon allowed three hits in eight innings and Pedro Guerrero's first-inning double drove in the game's only run as the St. Louis Cardinals finally cooled off the heat of the Chicago Cubs with a 1-0 victory Friday.

In winning five of their previous seven games, the Cubs had scored 61 runs and homered 13 times, including six at St. Louis last Sunday. The Cardinals gave won three straight.

DeLeon, 33, allowed singles by Dwight Smith in the fourth and sixth innings, and Vance Law's single in the seventh. The right-hander struck out 10, tying a season high, and walked twice.

After Damon Berryhill's one-out single in the ninth, Todd Worrell replaced Ken Dayle and retired the next two batters for his seventh save. Worrell was making his first appearance since coming off the 15-day disabled list on Wednesday.

Scott Sanderson, 6-4, gave up back-to-back doubles to Ozzie Smith and Guerrero with two outs in the first inning. Sanderson allowed just four hits in eight innings, walking three and striking out two.

Montreal 5 Philadelphia 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Dennis Martinez pitched a three-hitter for his first complete game this year and Andres Galarraga drove in three runs Friday night as the Montreal Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0.

Martinez, struck out six and walked two in his first complete game since last July 31. It was his 15th career shutout.

Floyd Youmans, 1-4, making his third start against his former club, gave up four runs and five hits in five innings.

Galarraga hit his ninth home run of the season in the first inning and hit a two-run single in the third. Spike Owen opened the inning with a double and was out on Martinez's fielder-choice grounder.

Dave Martinez singled and Tom

Foley walked, loading the bases. Galarraga then singled to left.

Three Martinez hits — his first home run of the season in the fifth to make it 4-0.

Domingo Ramos hit an RBI double in the eighth.

Pittsburgh 4 New York Mets 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Barry Bonds' hard slide broke up a potential inning-ending double play and allowed Andy Van Slyke to score the winning run in the 10th as Pittsburgh beat the New York Mets 4-3 Friday night, ending the Pirates' seven-game losing streak.

Darryl Strawberry hit a solo home run in the ninth that put the Mets ahead 3-2. But Pittsburgh tied it in the bottom half and then won it in the 10th with the help of Strawberry's two-base error in right field.

Van Slyke opened the 10th with a ground single and continued to third when the ball rolled under Strawberry's glove. Roger McDowell, 1-5, intentionally walked Bobby Bonilla and Bonds to load the bases.

After Jeff King flied out, pinch hitter Brent Dandrea grounded to second baseman Gene Lerner. Lerner's deflection flipped to shortstop Kevin Elster for a forecourt, but Bonds' slide took out Elster and the relay to first base bounced away.

Mets coach Bud Harrelson, running the team for ill Manager Davey

Johnson, rushed out to second base and argued interference, but rookie umpire Charlie Radford made no call. Television replays showed Bonds was able to touch second base when he slid into Elster.

Houston 6 Atlanta 5

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros rallied again, winning for the 14th time in 15 games when Billy Hatcher's single capped a four-run ninth inning Friday night for a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Astros — won their fourth straight game — Houston has come from behind in its last six victories.

American League

Texas 11 Oakland 8

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Pete Incaviglia's two-run double capped a six-inning rally Friday night as the Texas Rangers overcame Mark McGwire's first-inning grand slam for a 11-8 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Ruben Sierra had his second consecutive four-hit game for the Rangers and Julio Franco drove in three runs, Texas, which trailed 4-6-5 and 8-7, had 16 hits off five Oakland pitchers. It was the most runs and hits of the Athletics this season.

Cleveland 5 Seattle 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Carter singled, doubled and tripled, and Cleveland took advantage of rookie Clint Zavaras' wildness to score five runs in the first two innings Friday night as the Indians beat the Seattle Mariners 5-4.

The crowd of 59,671, boosted by an oil company's promotion that gave away tickets with gasoline purchases, was the largest in the majors this year.

Tom Candiotti, 7-3, won for the fourth time in five decisions, allowing three runs and five hits in 5.1 innings. Tim Lincecum and Jesse Orosco followed and Doug Jones got the last three outs for his 13th save.

With runners on second and third and one out in the ninth, Jones struck out Henry Cotto and got Greg Briley on a fly to center.

Zavaras, 0-2, walked two hitters in each of the first two innings, and three of them scored.

Kansas City 6 California 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bo Jackson hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Kurt Stillwell drove in three runs with a pair of singles Friday night as the Kansas City Royals beat the California Angels 6-1.

Charlie Leibrandt pitched a six-hitter for his third complete game this season and the 40th of his career. Leibrandt, 4-6, struck out three and walked none as he won for the second time since April 28.

Seattle 4 Cleveland 5

Seattle hit a solo homer and Larry Sheets' RBI single chased Clayton Kershaw from the mound in the fourth inning as the Seattle Mariners beat the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

Clayton Kershaw pitched a six-hitter for his second complete game this season and walked none as he won for the second time since April 28.

Minnesota 3 Chicago White Sox 8-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Carlos Martinez and Carlton Fisk had three hits each and Harold Baines homered Friday night as the Chicago White Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 8-3.

Martinez had two doubles, a single and two runs batted in. Fisk added three singles and drove in one. Chicago had 13 hits off five Minnesota pitchers.

Chang advances; is youngest-ever French Open men's finalist

PARIS (AP) — Michael Chang of Placentia, Calif., ousted Andre Chesnokov 6-1, 5-7, 7-6 (7-1), 7-5 in a four-hour baseline battle today to reach the final of the men's singles at the French Open.

The 17-year-old Chang, who saved three set points in the third set, became the youngest-ever men's finalist in Paris and is one step away from becoming the first American to win the French Open men's singles title in 34 years.

In Sunday's final, Chang will meet Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the reigning Wimbledon champion and No. 5 seed.

Edberg ousted Boris Becker 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 9-6, 6-2 in today's second semifinal that lasted only 10 minutes less than Chang's match. Edberg also will be making his first appearance in the final at Roland Garros.

"Making tennis history makes me feel good inside," Chang said after the 4-hour, 56-minute marathon. "It's definitely a dream. It's something special. It always have with me. I hope it'll be an encouragement to other young players."

Chang, who ousted top seed and heavy favorite Ivan Lendl in the fourth round, became the 10th American in the history of the tournament to reach the men's final.

He will be the first American finalist since John McEnroe five years ago and the sixth since Tony Trabert won the title in 1955, the last American to do so.

"I went in relaxed because I had gone further than expected, Chang, the 16th seed, said. "I was ready to wait for each point. It was a tough match. Each point was really close. The exchanges were very long.

"It's the type of match you're really happy to pull out."

Chang, whose previous best performance in a Grand Slam tournament was the fourth round at last year's U.S. Open, started the match in complete command and ripped through the opening set in 28 minutes.

Chesnokov, the unseeded Soviet who upset defending champion Mats Wilander in the quarterfinals, won only 12 points in the set as he struggled to find his timing and rhythm, especially on the backhand.

The pattern continued at the start of the second set as Chesnokov dropped his serve twice and was down 0-3.

But the 23-year-old from Moscow, a frequent slow-starter, then broke Chang for the first time and, with the crowd behind him, rallied to take the set and tie the match.

By now, the rallies were long and hard, with most games going to deuce and some lasting more than 10 minutes.

Chesnokov broke Chang for 4-2, but immediately dropped his own serve as the grueling baseline encounter approached the three-hour mark with little drama or sparkle but increasing intensity.

Then came the moment Chesnokov felt he may have lost the match.

With Chang serving to save the set at 4-5, the Soviet had three set points in a game of seven deuces. He put a backhand wide on the first, a forehand inches wide on the second and was beaten by a Chang overhead on the third.

Chang held serve, and two games later took the tiebreaker 7-4 with a smash.

Chang then began to take more risks, rushing the net to put away volleys and forcing Chesnokov out of his backcourt stride and into a stream of errors.

Although he was broken at love to go down 1-2, the American broke back five games later, then saved a break-point to move up 5-4.

In the next games, Chesnokov saved two match points to hold serve and pull even at 5-5. But two games later, he gave Chang two more match points, and netted a backhand on the first to end the match.

"I didn't play badly," said Chesnokov, the first Soviet player in 17 years to reach the men's semifinals. "But I'm not happy because I didn't win the big points. It was a question of pressure."

Chesnokov admitted he should have taken more risks instead of staying back.

"Chang took the risks. I should have taken the risks, instead," he said.

While the men's final gained its youngest-ever finalist, the women's event also is marked by youth.

Steffi Graf can remember when she was 15, up and coming and scaring the life out of opponents.

She met her mirror image at the French Open on Thursday.

Monica Seles, at 15 the youngest player in the tournament and competing in her first Grand Slam event, pushed Graf to the limit in the semifinals of the clay court event and gave notice she is ready to challenge the supremacy of the world's No. 1 player.

"At that age, you have nothing to lose," the 19-year-old Graf said after her 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 victory over the Florida-based Yugoslav. "You are not expected to win and the crowd is more behind you. It's easier to play that way."

With her bright aquamarine outfit, her hair tied with a white ribbon, and her squeals and grunts, Seles was the picture of youthful enthusiasm.

After dropping the opening set, she shook off her inhibitions and beat

Graf at her own game, driving the ball to the lines and drawing uncharacteristic errors from the racket of the normally aggressive West German.

"In the first set, I was very scared," Seles said. "I still felt she wasn't beating me that easily. Afterward, I relaxed a little bit."

Only when she got to the eighth game of the final set did Seles' strength and spirit break as she tired on the energy-sapping red clay and lost the last three games.

"I was getting a little bit tired," Seles said. "We were 4-3, deuce, and I had the chance to win that game. But at that point I was totally exhausted."

Exhausted or not, Seles proved — if she ever needed to — that the new era in women's tennis, so often dubbed the "Steffi and Gabby Club" after Graf and Gabriela Sabatini, has a new, younger and just as dangerous member.

The Yugoslav beat Chris Evert in the championship match of the Virginia Slims of Houston in April and was 8-0 for the season coming into the French Open where she eliminated No. 4 seed Zina Garrison and No. 6 Manuela Maleeva.

On Thursday, she became the first player in eight months to take a set against Graf in a Grand Slam event. A victory in this tournament would be Graf's record-matching sixth straight Grand Slam title.

Seles, who hits a double-listed forehand as well as backhand, said power was at the root of the changing face of women's tennis.

"We hit the ball much harder and faster than before," Seles said. "Steffi Graf, Sabatini, me and a couple of oncoming players can do something to raise the level."

Graf, the queen of the women's game with few serious rivals in the world's major tournaments, welcomed the emergence of Seles as someone to threaten her throne.

"She is already very strong. She will be someone to deal with," Graf said. "I will look forward to playing her in the future."

In Saturday's championship match, Graf will face another in the up-and-coming group of players in their mid to late teens.

Aranxa Sanchez, a 17-year-old Spaniard, became her country's first woman French Open finalist as she beat Marylou Fernandez of Miami, 6-2, 6-2.

Sanchez, whose brothers Emilio and Javier play on the men's tour said she was not intimidated about the thought of meeting Graf.

"I've got nothing to lose," said Sanchez, who has reached the final four of all eight clay-court events in which she has competed. "She's number one in the world, but if you think positive and think you can beat her, you can."

Chang, who ousted top seed and heavy favorite Ivan Lendl in the fourth round, became the 10th American in the history of the tournament to reach the men's final.

He will be the first American finalist since John McEnroe five years ago and the sixth since Tony Trabert won the title in 1955, the last American to do so.

break-point to move up 5-4.

In the next games, Chesnokov saved two match points to hold serve and pull even at 5-5. But two games later, he gave Chang two more match points, and netted a backhand on the first to end the match.

"I didn't play badly," said Chesnokov, the first Soviet player in 17 years to reach the men's semifinals. "But I'm not happy because I didn't win the big points. It was a question of pressure."

Chesnokov admitted he should have taken more risks instead of staying back.

"Chang took the risks. I should have taken the risks, instead," he said.

While the men's final gained its youngest-ever finalist, the women's event also is marked by youth.

Steffi Graf can remember when she was 15, up and coming and scaring the life out of opponents.

She met her mirror image at the French Open on Thursday.

Monica Seles, at 15 the youngest player in the tournament and competing in her first Grand Slam event, pushed Graf to the limit in the semifinals of the clay court event and gave notice she is ready to challenge the supremacy of the world's No. 1 player.

"At that age, you have nothing to lose," the 19-year-old Graf said after her 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 victory over the Florida-based Yugoslav. "You are not expected to win and the crowd is more behind you. It's easier to play that way."

With her bright aquamarine outfit, her hair tied with a white ribbon, and her squeals and grunts, Seles was the picture of youthful enthusiasm.

Sugar Ray shows off muscles

LAS VEGAS (AP) — "No bully would dare kick sand in Sugar Ray Leonard's face at the bench these days."

Leonard, who once relied on speed and balance to win fights, is noticeably more solid and well-developed as he approaches Monday night's fight against Thomas Hearns.

He has shown off his new muscles at every opportunity — and taken pains to make sure Hearns has no doubts.

He has:

- Liked you think you're a body-builder," Leonard told Leonard at Thursday's final prefight press conference. "You're blown up like a big balloon."
- Heards and his manager, Emanuel Steward, even suggested that steroids might be the reason for Leonard's increased body definition.
- But Leonard, who expects to weigh about 162 pounds for the fight, credits work on the heavy bag for making him look like a full-fledged middleweight.
- "It's something he learned while training for the (Donny) Lalonde fight," Leonard's attorney, Mike Trainer, said. "I think now the message has gotten across that Ray's bigger and stronger than the man he fought in 1981."

Leonard believes the added bulk and his maturity as a fighter at the age of 33 can do nothing but help him against Hearns.

"I think if anything I'm able to stop an opponent faster," he said. "I'm stronger, I take my time more, set things up."

Both Leonard and Hearns were scheduled to complete their final workouts Saturday as they tapered off training for the scheduled 12-round fight for Leonard's 168-pound World Boxing Council title.

Both fighters are expected to weigh-in Monday at less than 164 pounds, the reported contract weight for the bout.

For the rematch of their Sept. 16, 1981, fight for the undisputed welterweight title will be lucrative, with Leonard earning at least $13 million and Hearns at least $11 million.

The fact that it's Tommy is enough motivation for me," Leonard said. "I'm looking forward to this fight with tremendous anticipation."

Leonard is a 3-1 favorite against Hearns, who despite winning pieces of five titles in his 12-year professional career still carries the tag of a fighter who can't win the big one.

"The five titles are important to me, but not to the general public," Hearns said. "Winning this fight will be very important to me and to the public."

Hearns, whose spindly legs have failed him in previous fights, has trained for the bout on a bicycle machine to build up the legs.

"I think he'll try and become a boxer and move for 12 rounds, but I don't think he can," Leonard said. "When these legs go, he's gone."

Steward, who has trained and managed Hearns throughout his career, believes Leonard's mistake may be that he's preparing for a fight that won't go the distance.

"Ray won't be psychologically and physically fit for a long fight because he thinks it will be short," Steward said. "Tommy is prepared for a dog-fight, a brawl."

Trainer Angelo Dundee, who split with Leonard before his last fight, said the fight may be just that.

"The balance, quickness and reflexes won't be there, but this is going to be a good fight," Dundee said. "It will be bombs away."

NBA pre-draft camp draws intense play from hopefuls

CHICAGO (AP) — Little-known Rick Bougarel of Marist College came to the NBA's pre-draft camp figuring it would take something special to get the attention of the league's shakers and movers. Getting bitten, however, probably wasn't what he had in mind.

Bougarel's right forearm was the resting place for an incisor tooth of Virginia Union's Terry Davis after a skirmish for a rebound Thursday.

As trainers removed the tooth from Bougarel's arm, NBA scouting director Marty Blake nodded as though this kind of thing happens all the time.

"Everybody knows what's at stake," said Blake, standing at court-side as the league's four-day version of a mass job interview stretched into a second day.

"Every kid on this floor has been seen, but rarely against each other and almost never at the same time. This is the time they get into line (for the draft), the time they answer the final questions."

For a handful of the top job prospects, players such as Michigan's Glen Rice, Oklahoma's Stacey King and Duke's Danny Ferry, the process is no more complicated or taxing than showing up for physical exams earlier in the week.

For the best of the rest, players such as Oklahoma's Mookie Blaylock, Georgetown's Charles Smith and Indiana's Jay Edwards, the nightly scrimmage could mean the difference between a fat contract and a thin one.

And for still other players like

Chuckie Brown of North Carolina State, Jeff Sanders of Georgia Southern and Scott Haffner of Evansville, it could mean the difference between any kind of contract and none at all.

All are candidates to be chosen high at the June 27 draft.

"I'll be honest with you," Denver Nuggets coach Doug Moe said, "things are so intense during the season, that the few college games I do get to watch, I watch purely for enjoyment."

"By the time I get here, I've got a few specific guys in mind, all of whom have been looked at by our own scouts at least a dozen times. But there's nothing like seeing it for yourself."

And among the 60 players gathered are a few the NBA heavyweight packing the bleachers want to see in person.

Haffner began his collegiate career at Illinois, finished up in a less competitive program at Evansville to get more playing time and then rang up 65 points in a game against Dayton last season.

With cable TV, it's not like anyone says "bigger for long," said Kevin Loughery, who has attended more than a few camps as an NBA head coach, but is watching this one as a scout for the Miami Heat.

"By the same token, anytime you score 65 points in Division I game, it's bound to open a few eyes. Personally, though," he added, "I'm here looking at someone else."

That would likely be Blaylock, who began his senior season in brilliant fashion, but failed to regain that form after an arrest for public drunkenness outside a convenience store just prior to the Big Eight tournament.

On this night, Haffner and Blaylock are sharing backcourt chores for the white-shirted team, but appear to be working at cross-purposes.

"Everybody knows Haffner can shoot and so he wants to showcase his ballhandling; everybody knows Blaylock can handle the ball, and so he may be looking more often for his shot."

"That's the funny thing about these camps," Loughery said.

"All these kids have agents who tell them to show something other than what got them invited," he added, "and all of us come out here to see them do what got them here in the first place."

With this year's talent pool generally acknowledged to be both deep and even, the scrimmages at times resemble a pool full of sharks feeding around a single piece of meat.

And as if the observers — who range in experience from long-time Boston Celtics boss Red Auerbach to recently appointed Indianapolis coach Dick Versace — need any reminders, midway through the opening scrimmage, Bougarel repairs to the sideline for the unexpected bit of dental work.

"I guess the idea, within reason," Loughery said, "is to let them play as physical a game as possible. The refs know that no one in the stands cares about the score."

"I'd never hit for the cycle before so I was looking for a triple on my last at-bat," Sierra said. "I tried to hit it in the gap but I hit it too good. I went 3 for 3."

Chicago manager Jeff Torborg said he couldn't believe that his team hit so well off Ryan and still lost.

"That was really a rotten performance by us, especially on defense.

"Who would've thought we'd score that many runs off Nolan and not win?"

Baines and Klotz hit their successive homers off of him in the fourth inning. "I'm just glad they were all solo," Ryan said. "Man it was a strange game."

Whitewater Rodeo takes place today

STANLEY — The 1989 Whitewater Rodeo and bonanza fair sale will be held today and Sunday at Stanley, reminds spokesman Sylvia Markley.

The course offers intermediate ability levels and the river events will encounter Class III whitewater.

Competition is offered in individual triathlon, team, really plus the downriver raft race with four team members.

The yard sale is for unneeded gear such as rafts, kayaks, life jackets, oars, paddles and camping gear. Sawtooth Outdoor Sports will take 15 percent of proceeds, which will benefit the Stanley school program.

Twins hold lack-of-offense meeting

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins general manager Andy MacPhail, bemoaning the team's recent lack of offense, held a closed-door meeting with Manager Tom Kelly.

"We've been surprised by the lack of offense the last couple of weeks," MacPhail said after the meeting with Kelly.

Since April 21, the Twins' batting average has dropped from .300 to .265, and the team has gone from a 9-0 start to a 25-31 record before Friday's game. The Twins were 11-2 games out of first place in the American League West.

Those numbers were a sharp contrast to last year and the earlier part of this season. Minnesota was second to Boston in hitting last season (.283 to .274), and after the first 14 games of this season.

"No one associated with the Twins expected anything like this," MacPhail said of the dip. "It's probably the optimistic expectation that we're not at their current pace for the rest of the season and too pessimistic to think the offense will languish the way it has."

NBA stripes honor union leader

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The black stripes worn on the uniforms of the Los Angeles Lakers and Detroit Pistons is a tribute to Larry Fleisher, who founded the NBA Players Association.

Fleisher, who died May 4 of an apparent heart attack at age 58, headed the union through 1988. He was also an agent for several top players.

"The stripes have been worn by all NBA players since Fleisher's death."

Dominican Republic beats U.S.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An upset over the United States on the opening day of the World Basketball Championship Qualifying Tournament is destined for special place in Dominican Republic sports history.

Never before in the history of my country have we won a game like this against the United States," assistant coach Julio Santos said following the 116-108 victory Thursday night.

Leandro de la Cruz, coach of the Dominican team, said, "It was a victory, ... in which each player realized his maximum force ..."

The opening loss in the 12-team tournament isn't devastating to American hopes of advancing, however, as the top five teams in the field move on to the World Championships next year in Buenos Aires.

The United States, coached by Georgia Tech's Bobby Cremins, led 68-58 at halftime and by 16 points early in the second half before the Dominicans took over.

With 10:31 remaining, a basket by Jose Vargas gave the Dominicans the lead for good at 89-88.

Jerome course holds Texas scramble

JEROME — Jerome Country Club will conduct its monthly Texas scramble at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, announced Professional John Peterson.

Peterson said members intending to play should contact the clubhouse before noon Sunday.

F&G gathers comment on game

JEROME — The Idaho Fish and Game Department will hold open houses to gather public comment prior to writing draft five-year plans for upland game and furbearers.

The public is encouraged to relate major topics of concern to be addressed in the species management plans for 1991-1995.

The open houses, slated for the region office at 868 East Main in Jerome, will run from 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday next week.

These are the first two of 13 plans up for revision during the next few months. Open houses for plans covering the other species will be announced throughout the summer.

The public will have other opportunities to comment on specific details when a draft plan goes out for public review. The draft plans for upland game and furbearers should be printed in September.

Nolan Ryan gives up 4 homers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — With his seventh victory of the season safely tucked in the record book earlier than at any time since 1977, Nolan Ryan had a right to celebrate.

But the Texas Rangers' pitcher chose, instead, to brood.

Though Ryan beat the Chicago White Sox 11-7 Thursday night, he was hardly the amazing success he has been all season, losing only three games.

He set up four home runs — never before in 600 games had he surrendered four homers in a game.

And the seven runs scored by Chicago were the most Ryan had surrendered in a victory since he beat the Rangers 9-6 as a member of the California Angels on Aug. 4, 1976.

Harold Baines' second homer of the game in the eighth inning put the four-homer blot on Ryan's record. It came in Ryan's 4,635th inning in the major leagues.

"It was one of those nights and it's a good thing that my club was scoring because I needed every run I could," he said.

That seems to happen to Ryan at muggy and often muddy Arlington Stadium. Ryan just hasn't been the same pitcher before the home folks in his first year as a Ranger. But as they have done before, his teammates' bats bailed him out.

Ruben Sierra had four hits, two homers, and five RBIs for the Rangers. He hit one homer, left-handed then the other, right-handed. It was the third time in his career he had switched hit homers in a game.

Canseco will plead no contest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oakland Athletics slugger Jose Canseco, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1988, will plead no contest to gun charges, according to one of his attorneys.

Michael Stepanian said that Canseco also will get rid of the flashy Jaguar linked to much of his recent troubles.

"He's not going to fight the courts," Stepanian said after a closed-door conference with Municipal Judge J. Dominique Olcomendy. "He's got the pennant to fight for."

And as for the car, I can honestly say that in six months it won't be around."

Canseco was cited for driving the car recklessly on a Florida freeway, and for running a red light in Phoenix.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Optimism is a kind of heart stimulant — the digitals of life."
— Elbert Hubbard.

"I had visions of overtricks if the trumps were splitting 3-3," explained the unhappy optimist.
"Your eyesight is better than your plan," countered North.
"Had trumps split 3-3, you would have won exactly 10 tricks."

It was unusual for East-West to have sacrificed at four spades. However, they knew their opponent was capable of blowing an easy game.
West led the spade king and South ruffed greedily. Next he played three rounds of trumps, hoping for a 3-3 split. When that failed, he cashed the queen and king of diamonds and the ace of clubs. Then he led diamonds. One more round lived before East ruffed; then an avalanche of spades resulted in down two.

How does South virtually chin his game? By discarding a low club instead of ruffing at trick one. And when West continues spades for two more rounds, South continues to discard clubs. The defenders cannot shorten South via another spade lead (dummy can ruff with the 10), and now it's a simple matter to cash 10 winners against the normal 4-2 trump break.
Would South have made more than 10 tricks after ruffing the first spade? Had trumps been 3-3? Had West held seven spades and three trumps, he would have had to hold...
singletens or a void in one of the minors, and any attempt to score an overtrick would be bound to fail.
