In mushroom farm trial

Jury assesses bank $5.7 million, clears investors

By KRISTAN WATKINS Times-News correspondent

Reaction A4

HAILEY - A Blaine County jury assessed $5.7 million in damages Friday against Idaho First National Bank and cleared a mushroom farm and its investors of all their debts with the bank. The 30-page verdict found the bank guilty of "bad faith" in its administration of a $2.9 loan to the farm and awarded separate damages to Bliss Valley Foods Inc., the partners who began the farm and 12 investors. Among the awards was $2.1 million to Robert Erkins, one of the partners. Attorneys for Bliss Valley were jubilant. "We're tickled," said Jack Gjording who represented the 12 investors, mostly prominent Twin Falls professionals. "We were shocked with what the jury did," Idaho First attorney Peter Houtema said. "The decision was clearly not in accordance with Idaho law. The bank will appeal, he said. The verdict came on the third day of deliberation in this long and technical trial, which pitted Idaho First National Bank against Bliss Valley Foods. Friday's decision was the culmination of a two-year battle that began when Idaho First filed foreclosure action against the financially troubled farm in March 1987. Bliss Valley then countersued, claiming the bank had acted in bad faith and forced the business to fail by the stringent reits it held on the loan. This case was Idaho's first test of lender liability, in which lending institutions can be found negligent in their business practices and thus liable for damages. The jury delivered its verdict at about noon in the 5th District Courtroom as attorneys, some investors and others watched and listened. Jurors later declined to talk to the press about the verdict or the 12-week trial. It was a group decision, jury foreman Brian Ward said. After jurors left the courtroom, several

State to monitor Rocky Flats plant

Secretary James Watkins

DENVER - The Department of Energy announced today that the state will be able to independently monitor activity at the Rocky Flats nuclear plant, which is under investigation for safety violations. The promise was part of an agreement reached by DOE Deputy Director Hanson Moore and Gov. Romer following the governor's threat last week to shut down the plant. Moore and Romer announced at a news conference that the Energy Department plans to commit $1.8 million a year to improve monitoring of the plant and to purchase $700,000 worth of monitoring equipment immediately. The agreement must be ratified by Energy

Secretary James Watkins. We are going to insist on the basis that people need to know the truth, and we are going to get it to them in a way in which it is verified independently of the operation of the plant," Romer said. "My policy has been we've got to clean it up — or close it down," he said. Rocky Flats, located 16 miles northwest of Denver, manufactures plutonium detonators for nuclear bombs. Rockwell International operates the plant for the Energy Department. On June 6, scores of FBI agents and Environmental Protection Agency investigators raided the plant looking for evidence of illegal dumping and incineration

$68,000 theft nets 2 charges against woman

By BRAD BOWLIN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Prosecutors charged a Jerome woman Friday with embezzling more than $68,000 from the Snake River Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Tanya Marie Pflieger, a former bookkeeper and secretary for the Boy Scouts, is charged with stealing $65,612.61 in cash and forging two checks totaling $2,713.33. Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter charged Pflieger with one count of forgery and one count of felony grand theft. In a separate action, the scout council filed a civil suit Friday against Pflieger and her husband, Robert, for the amount of the cash plus accounting and attorney's fees. Friday's action came after a month of investigation by the Twin Falls County sheriff's office, during which Pflieger admitted stealing money from the scouts, according to a document filed in court. The missing money was first noticed earlier this year when certified public accountant Dennis Brown began his annual audit of the council's accounts. An affidavit by Chief Deputy Harold Jensen says Brown brought the problems to the attention of Pflieger and Boy Scout executive Rodney Leslie. Brown said he was going to the bank to investigate further, the affidavit says. "At this time Pflieger closed the door to her office and stated that she didn't want Brown to go to the bank. She said she had taken money from the bank and changed deposit slips and shuffled money around to cover it up," Jensen said in the affidavit. Pflieger said that she did not know how much money she had taken, only that it was "a lot" and she had been taking it "for a long time," the affidavit says. Pflieger worked for the scout office from Aug. 1, 1983, until May 10, 1989, when Brown discovered the irregularities. A second interview with Pflieger at the sheriff's office was conducted May 30. Pflieger again admitted taking money from the Boy Scouts for at least three years, the affidavit says. "When confronted with the amount, she stated

Twin Falls County's flag for centennial takes shape

By KIRK MITCHELL Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - She's Twin Falls County's version of Betty Ross. Jeanne Wilson of Twin Falls is cutting multi-colored strips of fabric and stitching together a piece of local history. Wilson, who volunteered for the job, is sewing a pennant 5 feet long and 3 feet wide for the county to use in Idaho Centennial celebrations. She's following the design of Judge Reeder of Twin Falls, chosen from among 300 entries. The emerging banner, depicting sunset behind the Perrine Bridge, is predominantly blue with green canyon walls that represent the valley's dependence on agriculture and an orange and yellow sun. The flag will first be displayed in the Buhl city park during the July 2 Statehood Day celebration, said Jeanne Schlagenhaupt, executive director of the Twin Falls Centennial Committee. It will later hang in the county courthouse, Schlagenhaupt said. She said Wilson is also making a pattern for flags that will be silk screens for sale. The committee has about 20 orders for the flags, which will cost less than $100 each, Schlagenhaupt said. Anyone wanting a flag can call Donna Brizee, Twin Falls County Flag Committee co-chairwoman, at 733-2624, or Schlagenhaupt at 733-7861.

is that inflation is tenacious and it's not going to painlessly melt away."

WASHINGTON - Americans paid more for food, clothing and gasoline last month, pushing the Consumer Price Index up 0.8 percent, the government said Friday. Analysts cited the report as evidence of a stubborn inflation problem. Consumer prices, which had advanced an even stronger 0.7 percent in April, have risen at an annual rate of 6.7 percent so far this year, compared with price increases of 4.4 percent during 1987 and 1988. "It's not a pretty picture," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets in New York. "The basic message here

At the White House, presidential spokesman Mark Fitzwater called the May price increase "disappointing" but said administration officials "continue to believe that inflation will remain low and under control." While prices rose in every major category last month, the Labor Department attributed about one-fourth of the overall May increase to a 3.5-percent uptick in gasoline prices. That gain came on top of a startling 11.4-percent increase in gas prices during the previous month, the largest jump on record. Analysts said the latest inflation

State surplus continues to grow

The Associated Press

BOISE - The already huge state revenue surplus grew by another 17 percent in May as the Idaho economy continued its surge, undaunted by indicators that the national economy is slowing down. The Andrus administration reported on Friday that total tax collections through last month ran $74.4 million over the estimates state lawmakers used to draft the current 1989 budget. That was $7 million more in revenue above projections than administration analysts reported a month ago. Tax receipts through May totaled nearly $696 million, and with just the month of June left in the 1989 budget year, it appeared very possible that the final surplus total would hit or exceed $80 million. "Little uncertainty remains for the final month of F.Y. 1989," the Division of Financial Management said in its monthly economic update. If June sees the nearly 15 percent revenue growth the first 11 months of the spending year averaged, receipts would exceed $774 million.

Jones charges Gem court with protecting rights of criminals

The Associated Press

More Jones comments - A4

POCATELLO - Idaho's Supreme Court has moved toward protecting the rights of criminals, says Attorney General Jim Jones, and law enforcement officials should urge the appointment of justices more sympathetic to prosecutors. Jones, in Pocatello Thursday to speak to police officers and prosecutors, said Idaho's high court has shifted in recent years. He contended that the rate at which the Supreme Court has overturned convictions has risen from about 15 percent three to four years ago to 55 percent currently. Most criminal appeals are heard by the Court of Appeals, but the Supreme Court rules on the most important issues, Jones said. The appointment of Boise attorney Byron Johnson 18 months ago shifted the philosophical majority on the court, said Jones.

The court now has two vacancies with the death of Justice Allan Shepard and the pending resignation of Justice Robert Huntley. "We're telling these people (law enforcement officers) that they should take a role in urging the Idaho Judicial Council and the governor towards appointing someone who is sympathetic to prosecutors," said Jones. The court's recent ruling in the Wright case, which disallowed a child abuse conviction, was particularly unsettling, said

Jones. The court threw out the testimony of a pediatrician who related his conversation with a 2½-year-old child, ruling that the testimony violated the constitutional right to confront witnesses. Huntley, writing for the majority, said the testimony of the doctor may have been proper under judicial hearsay rules, but failed to meet the test of trustworthiness required by the constitution. Huntley said the conversation between the child and the doctor was not recorded, and that obviously leading questions were asked by the doctor.

Jones said the 6th Amendment has never been interpreted so narrowly, and he may appeal the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court. He is also upset with the court's actions in the James-Holland case, in which District Judge William Woodland sought to renounce a plea bargain he accepted from Holland's attorney. The court, without comment, ordered Woodland to accept Holland's plea of guilty to second-degree murder. Rather than proceed with a trial on first degree charges, Jones said. See JONES on Page A2 investors gave one another hugs. The 12 investors were relieved of additional loan responsibilities they agreed to in signing documents. The documents could have committed them to paying the bank up to three times their original investment in the farm, should the farm fail on hard times.

Resides being relieved of their responsibility on the loan, the investors recouped about one-third of their original investment. Jean Swartling, who invested $100,000 with her husband, Robert, said she was happy with the verdict. They were awarded $40,000.

Erkins emerged from the trial with $2.1 million. One million of that was for defamation of character. Erkins' attorneys accused Idaho First of spreading claims that Erkins was a bad manager.

Erkins' refused comment but his attorney, Sydelle Pittas, said he was generally pleased. Bliss Valley attorneys asked the jury in closing arguments to award Erkins $12 million.

Walker received damages of $137,000.

"This clearly shows who is responsible," said Walker's attorney Dick Greener. "In addition to my client winning, this is an important decision," he said.

Bliss Valley was awarded $3.1 million. Walker said he does not know what the plans of Bliss Valley are. The company is now operating after reopening last year. Pittas said being cleared of the debt "will give the business a chance."

Still to be determined is who will pay the legal expenses, totaling about $3 million. Hearings will be held to determine responsibility. Idaho First attorney Walt Bithell said he'll fight any attempt to hold the bank responsible.

"They are not entitled to legal fees," Bithell said. Houtsma said the verdict was a "major disappointment" and that an appeal will be filed within six weeks.

"All these issues are going to be reviewed by the Supreme Court and the verdict will be overturned, Bithell said.

Houtsma said the appeal will argue that the verdict does not conform with Idaho law and that the evidence was not sufficient to warrant the damages that were awarded.

Individual awards to the investors are:

- Bliss Valley Inc., $3.1 million.
- Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erkins, $2.1 million.
- Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker Jr., $137,000.
- Fred and Carole Surbaugh, $30,000.
- Rodney and Jean Swartling, $40,000.
- Rex and Cheryl Leforgee, $22,000.
- Robert and Nancy Ridgway, $30,000.
- Robert and Karen Porter, $24,000.
- Mark and Hedwig Grefenson, $40,000.
- Allan and Frances Frost, $40,000.
- Harry and Janice Brumbach, $22,000.
- Dale and Joyce Stukenholtz, $22,000.

of hazardous wastes. The on-site investigation continued Friday.

The agreement the Moore and Romer reached says DOE will provide additional technical and financial support for state environmental oversight, monitoring, repair, emergency response and health-related initiatives. DOE said it will accelerate cleanup where contamination presents a threat.

DOE also will monitor surface waters and treated drinking water streams entering reservoirs, samples of discharges and underground water under the agreement.

DOE officials also said Friday that new tests show drinking water in northwest metropolitan Denver is uncontaminated by chemicals the FBI suspects were dumped into creeks at Rocky Flats. Some of the creeks empty into reservoirs used as municipal water supplies.

report makes it unlikely that the Federal Reserve will act again in the near future to reduce interest rates. The central bank in March 1988 began a 15-month campaign in which it nudged interest rates upward in an attempt to curb inflation by restraining energy growth. Last week, the Fed slightly eased its grip on the money supply in the belief that the slowing economy would help to tame inflation.

New evidence of the drag that higher interest rates have been on economic growth became available Friday when the Commerce Department reported that construction of new homes and apartments declined in May for the fourth straight month.

Housing starts declined 2.1 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.31 million units, the lowest level since the 1982 recession.

May's rise in the Consumer Price Index was heavily influenced by a 0.5 percent increase in costs for food and beverages. Prices for fruits and vegetables shot up 3.2 percent and poultry costs rose by a like margin. Energy costs, meanwhile, increased 1.6 percent in May, after percent in April. Many analysts believe these figures represent the "core" level of underlying inflationary pressures in the economy.

Apparel prices also showed a strong increase in May, rising 0.4 percent after a 0.3 percent rise in April. Smaller-than-usual price declines for women's and girls' clothing were largely responsible for the seasonally adjusted increase.

The various May price changes left the overall Consumer Price Index at 123.8 percent of its 1982-84 base. This means that a hypothetical selection of goods costing $100 during the base period would have cost $123.80 last month, 70 cents more than in April.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings, after adjusting for inflation, fell 1.3 percent in May after rising 0.5 percent a month earlier.

Average weekly earnings in May, before adjusting for inflation, were $332.20, up 3.4 percent from a year earlier. Taking the 5.4 percent inflation rate for urban workers into account over the 12-month period, real weekly earnings were down 1.9 percent.

that it sounded "a little high" but that she "hadn't kept track at the end" of the affidavit says.

She also admitted making out two checks to "Bob's Distributing," according to Jensen's statement. Bob's Distributing is Robert Pfliiger's company, according to the criminal complaint.

Pfliiger could not be reached for comment. Twin Falls attorney Greg Fuller, who will represent Pfliiger in both cases, had no comment Friday because he said he had not seen the court documents.

The Snake River Council is only bonded for $30,000 of the loss, said Robert Norman, president of the council.

The council's board of directors met Wednesday night to discuss ways to raise the money, but a fund raiser is still in the initial planning stages, Norman said.

The money represents about 20 percent of the Snake River Council's annual budget of about $225,000, but the loss has not had a strong impact on scout programs because the loss was incurred over several years, Norman said.

The budget could tighten at the end of this year, however, Norman said. The scouts received most of their funding at the beginning of the year, and that should carry them through the summer camp season, Norman said.

as Woodland intended. "The court is apparently going to force judges to stick by any agreements they make and not tell us why," said Jones. "We may have been able to appeal had we known the reasons."

The attorney general said there are several good candidates available to replace Huntley and Shepard, including district judges Larry Boyle of Idaho Falls, James Herndon of Blackfoot and Woodland of Pocatello. But he said the most important thing is that Gov. Cecil Andrus restore the geographic balance on the court.

With Huntley's retirement, neither eastern Idaho nor the Magic Valley area will have representation on the court, he said. Jones had a similar complaint with the nomination of Boise Judge Edward Lodge to the federal court from Idaho. While Jones said Lodge "is a good candidate... he'll do a good job," he said he would have preferred an eastern Idaho candidate to replace retiring Judge Marion Callister.

Hagerman, Dixie reported the coldest at 39 degrees in the nation Friday. Elsewhere in the region the highest temperature was 113 degrees at Bullhead City, Ariz. The lowest was 31 at Phillips, Wis.

Boise man to serve 30 days

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Roy Cellan, 51, Boise, has been fined $10,000 and ordered to serve 30 days in jail for what a district judge called being a "tax cheat."

In a 4th District Court appearance on Friday, Cellan also was ordered to pay $3,700 in restitution to the state Tax Commission after pleading guilty to a charge of making a false claim for a motor fuel tax refund.

Investigators said Cellan claimed fuel tax refunds for farming activities, but an investigation disclosed that Cellan provided suspicious fuel receipts which could not be substantiated by the records of distributors.

Farmers are entitled to a refund of state taxes on gasoline and diesel fuel used in farming operations, if they have paid the taxes at the pump.

The Department of Revenue and Taxation said Judge George Carey sentenced Cellan to five years in prison, with two years fixed. He then suspended the term and placed Cellan on probation, with a 30-day jail term.

"I have to pay my fair share of taxes and everyone in this courtroom has to pay their fair share of taxes," the judge said. "You're a tax cheat and you've cheated everyone in this courtroom."

After a plea-bargain agreement, two other charges against Cellan were dismissed.

Court rejects McKinney's appeal

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has declined to block the scheduled execution of convicted slayer Randy Lynn McKinney, 27, as he will have to take his appeals to the federal court system.

Justice Byron Johnson Friday afternoon signed an order on behalf of the court rejecting McKinney's bid to block his June 24 execution. McKinney, 27, a Tulare, Calif., native, was convicted of first-degree murder, robbery and conspiracy in the 1981 shooting death of Robert Bishop Jr., Pocatello. Bishop's body was found in a landfill near Blackfoot.

McKinney was convicted and sentenced to death, but an accomplice, Dovey Swain, was sentenced to life imprisonment. McKinney's conviction and sentence have been upheld by the Idaho Supreme Court in previous rulings.

The next step will be for defense attorneys to ask the federal court system to grant a stay while McKinney presses his appeal. In recent months, U.S. District Court judges in Idaho have almost automatically granted such stays, because of a federal appeals court ruling.

Pocatello purchases air terminal

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Mayor Dick Finlayson has signed an agreement to acquire title to Pocatello's airport terminal. The deal calls for the city to pay $447,794 — $225,794 for the remainder of the lease payments and $225,000 to George Peterson and Dean Nielsen, the contractors who built it.

The city has been making $84,000 annual payments to lease the terminal since it was built in 1972, in what originally was termed a lease-purchase agreement that would give title to the city in the 1990s.

Outright purchase, approved at Thursday night's City Council meeting, avoids a potential legal fight, according to Councilman Dean Funk. "It's far better to deal with an extremely willing seller now, rather than run the risk of having something happen to either Dean or George and then having to work through their estates," said Funk.

Court: Romero must be resentenced

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court says Miguel Acuna Romero must be resentenced in the kicking death of a Pocatello businessman because District Judge George Hargraves, who has since died, did not order a presentence investigation before ordering Romero to serve 15 years in prison.

A badly divided court on Friday upheld the conviction of Romero on voluntary manslaughter charges stemming from the death of Pocatello businessman Robert Thompson in 1986. But it vacated Hargraves' order that Romero serve 15 years in prison, and ordered a new sentence.

Thompson got into a fight with Jerry Griffith on Oct. 29, 1986, on a Pocatello street and Romero eventually joined in. Trial testimony indicated both men knocked Thompson to the ground, then kicked Thompson in the head numerous times until he suffered fatal head injuries. Romero originally was charged with first-degree murder, but a jury convicted him of the lesser offense.

Justice Stephen Bistline on Friday wrote a majority opinion in which the Supreme Court overturned the Court of Appeals, which upheld the conviction and sentence. Joining Bistline were justices Robert C. Huntley Jr. and Byron Johnson.

Chief Justice Robert Bakes dissented, and he was joined by the late Allan Shepard, who took part in the case before his death last month. Bakes maintained that Idaho court rules do not require a presentence investigation in every case, and Hargraves precisely followed rules in the Romero case.

The majority noted that Hargraves stated one of the reasons he did not order a presentence investigation was because he would not consider probation.

But the Supreme Court said he should have made that determination after a presentence investigation into Romero's character and background.

Criminal sentences should protect society, deter the individual and society generally, rehabilitate and punish or extract retribution for wrongdoing, the majority said.

"Without the crucial information provided in such sources as a PSR, it is impossible for a sentencing court to make an informed decision necessary to promote these four goals," the court said.

It also noted that court rules also strongly recommend a presentence investigation in every case where the defendant is under the age of 21, and Romero was 20 at the time of the crime.

Bakes wrote that the rules do not require a presentence investigation in every case, and Hargraves explicitly laid down his reasons for deciding against one.

Bakes also noted that Romero's attorney stated that he did not think a presentence investigation would help his client, that everything favorable to him had been brought out at trial.

DOE to hold public hearing on waste shipments

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — The U.S. Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls will conduct a public hearing in Ogden on its plan to ship low-level nuclear waste through northern Utah.

A spokeswoman for Gov. Norm Bangerter said Friday the governor has not been advised about when or where the public session will be held.

"We're delighted they (energy officials) listened," said press aide, Francine Cianci. "We think it's important that citizens have an opportunity to comment, and we think Ogden is the perfect location for that."

The energy department plans to begin shipping low-level nuclear waste to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant southeast of Carlsbad, N.M., later this year. The wastes consist mostly of contaminated laboratory clothing and equipment.

Waste coming from the Hanford nuclear plant in Washington and the Utah residents deserve to know what the DOE is planning.

"The initial trucks aren't a concern," said Bud Scruggs, Bangerter's chief of staff. "If they had an accident, you and I could go out and pick it all up wearing just a pair of gloves."

Originally, the DOE scheduled hearings in five states but left Utah off the schedule. Bangerter protested that decision and asked that hearings be conducted in the Ogden area.

Over the next 25 years, DOE officials plan to send about 10,000 shipments of radioactive waste through Utah on route to the newly completed WIPP. The waste will come from atomic weapons factories and research facilities.

State officials say the waste is to be shipped in special impact-resistant containers and will be virtually harmless. But they also have a right to know what the projected scope of the project is. Will there be high-level waste shipments eventually?

Some environmentalists have questioned how harmless the waste will be. Steve Erickson of the group Downwinders has said the waste could cause severe health problems, if inhaled.

"But people have a right to know what safety precautions are being taken," Scruggs said. "The public has

Minidoka landowners receive water notices

RUPERT - About 26,000 Snake River Adjudication notices have been mailed to Minidoka County property owners.

The deadline of the 90-day filing period is Oct. 12. Though owners of domestic or stock-water wells are not required by law to file a claim on their water right, all water right owners are encouraged to file a claim.

The basic filing fee is $25. Help in filing claims is available at the regional Idaho Department of Water Resources office in Twin Falls or the Boise office.

A public information meeting will be announced in Rupert.

For information call 327-7906 or toll-free 1-800-451-4122.

Apprent electrical fire destroys home in Oakley

OAKLEY - An apparent electrical fire destroyed a family home seven miles north of here Thursday afternoon, said Cpl. Tim Little of the Cassia County Sheriff's Department.

Ray Judd and his family were not at home when the fire broke out around 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Little said. No firefighters responded to the blaze because the house is in an area not covered by a local fire department, Little said.

The house, located on Pole Line Road, "is a total loss" and was not insured, he said.

Krumpe receives honor of 'Counselor of the Year'

BOISE - Benton Krumpe of Hailey received the "Counselor of the Year" award at the Fifth Annual Idaho Conference on Alcohol and Drug Dependency, which ended Friday.

Krumpe is a senior additions counselor for the Port of Hope in Hailey. Also honored was Barry Hogan Meyers, Port of Hope's executive director, who was recognized for long-term contributions to the field.

Self-guided agricultural tour maps now available

TWIN FALLS - The big yellow signs are up. The maps and pamphlets are printer-fresh. The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce self-guided agricultural tour is ready and waiting for takers.

To learn more about all that green stuff is that you drive by every day on your way to somewhere, just stop in at the Buzz Langdon Tourist Information Center or the chamber office; pick up a map and follow the markers.

The tour is designed to give tourists and residents alike a total view of agriculture and agribusiness in the whole valley in about one hour, said Jack Hetherington, group manager at Farm Credit Services, who heads the Chamber project.

The tour is free. An audio version should be available later in the summer. For more information call the chamber at 733-3974.

Farm chemical can drive proves a notable success

CURRY - The first farm chemical recycling drive in Twin Falls County on Thursday was a success and an education, an organizer said.

"The dealers all brought in a lot of cans, but we anticipated a little better turnout from the growers than we had," said Bill Lewis, Rangens fertilizer division manager.

Growers need to be better educated about the problem their chemical cans cause, he said. Used pesticide cans that don't get triple-rinsed and punctured become hazardous waste and cannot be taken to the landfill, he said.

The project was sponsored by the Idaho Agricultural Chemical Association and the Twin Falls County Farm Bureau. Cans turned in by farmers will be melted down and made into fence posts.

The next collection event will probably have more drop sites around the valley and may be held in the fall, he said.

Local Democratic panel plans to meet on Monday

TWIN FALLS - The local Democratic Central Committee will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the Weston Plaza to discuss a number of topics.

Among the items on the agenda are the 1990 election, fund raising, the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, hunger issues and the search for candidates for office. All Democrats are encouraged to attend.

Citizens Network protest closes Burley City Hall

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - Maybe you can't fight city hall, but you can close it down, at least for a few hours.

Members of the Idaho Citizens Network effectively shut down Burley's City Hall for almost three hours Friday morning to protest the lack of handicapped accessibility to the building.

About 20 protesters, several in wheelchairs, blocked the only working entrance with paper banners, bodies and wheelchairs and kept city employees and others from entering the building or challenged them to enter using a wheelchair. "We'll let anyone through who can get up these stairs in a wheelchair," said Paul May, owner of a local rest home.

They would try to add a ramp to the project. "We are sure going to work with them," Councilman Leonard King said later in the day. "Actually, this should have been done a long time ago."

Pam Heward, of Idaho Citizens Network, described the group's talk with officials as "very positive and supportive."

Workers are replacing the old cement main stairway with steps, but no ramp. Members of the Idaho Citizens Network asked that construction be stopped until the city agreed to include a ramp in the plans. They blocked off the back entrance, temporary the main entrance, to make their point.

Mayor Ken Frank was in Boise on city business Friday, but Councilmen Clay Handy, Wendell McMurray and King were called down to City Hall.

The council members agreed to meet with city engineers on Wednesday or Thursday to work out a plan to include the ramp in the current construction.

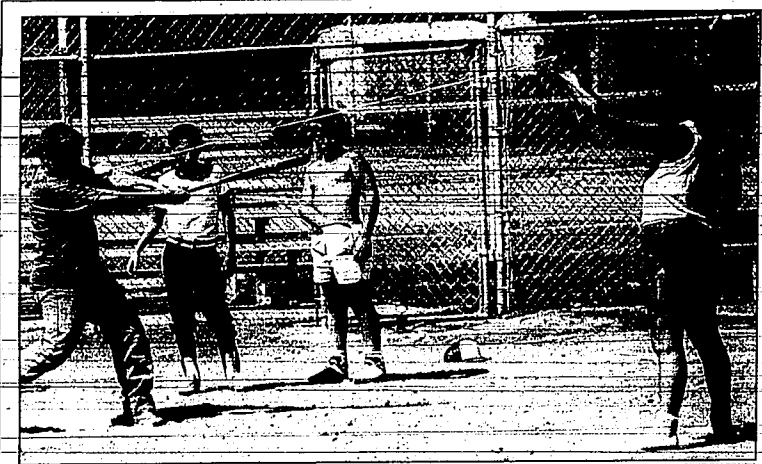

The ramp was not originally included in the project because the money was not available in the budget, King said.

The group ended their protest at about 10:30 a.m., Heward said.

She said there was a similar protest in the same location about 10 years ago when handicapped residents asked the city to comply with the law.

Heward said when she noticed the construction taking place, she contacted city employees to find out if a ramp was to be included in the construction. "They were going to put one in a year or two, but they had no intention of doing that right now."

Officials said the city will move council meetings to the water building, which is handicapped accessible, if requests are received at least 24 hours in advance of meetings.

Health district Jones helps law enforcement agencies to help kids

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Drug dealers will be required to pay taxes on their "businesses," the state can seize real assets used in drug trafficking, and possession of LSD will be classified as a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

That all happens July 1, Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones says. Jones visited Twin Falls Friday to bring Magic Valley law enforcement agencies up to speed on several laws passed by the Legislature that will become effective July 1.

In an interview, Jones also talked about a recent state Supreme Court ruling that he says undermined 1989 child abuse legislation and backed appointment of a Magic Valley resident to the state Supreme Court.

Jones described the drug dealer tax law as a "lien-entry device" and said no one expects drug dealers to buy the required tax stamps.

Although the law won't boost the state's tax revenue, it will allow the tax commission to charge the drug dealer with tax evasion, forcing the dealer to pay the taxes plus 100 percent.

Then the state can file a lien on the dealer's real assets and foreclose. "We can tie up their bank accounts, their condo, the poodle, anything," Jones said. He said the law is modeled after a Minnesota law that has earned that Midwest state about $16 million since its enactment two years ago.

To avoid legal loopholes, drug dealers now have to give a name, address or other identifying information to buy the stamps, Jones said.

"The experience has been that the only people who buy the stamps are collectors," Jones said.

He said Idaho's are purposely ugly to discourage stamp collectors. A second new law transfers from the federal government to the state the right to seize real property used in drug trafficking.

In the past, the federal government said all real assets seized, holding onto all the

Testimony in Araiza trial proves contradictory

The Associated Press

BOISE - A convict who testified he witnessed the murder of Idaho State Penitentiary inmate Richard Holmes said Rodney "Short" Ariza, of Gooding, is not guilty of the crime.

Convicted robber Jerry Mills, testifying Thursday for the defense, said two "white men" were responsible for Holmes' death. Ariza is Hispanic.

Holmes was stabbed to death Sept. 25, 1988, during a prison riot. Ariza, 21, is charged with murder and rioting. Mills said two men entered Holmes' cell during the riot. One man wore a sheet over his body and a second shirtless man wore a mask in an attempt to hide his identity, he said.

Mills described the men as white guys and not Hispanics," Chief Deputy Public Defender Gus Cahill said.

Mills refused to identify who the attackers were. The testimony contradicts that given by Wayne L. Cunningham last Friday. Cunningham, a convicted rapist, said Ariza and Merle Lamere were the men who burrowed through the cinder block wall into Holmes' room.

Fred Ramirez, also a convicted felon, testified Thursday that Ariza was not the only man in the prison who went by the nickname "Shorty," which has been associated with the murder.

Ramirez said he is known by that nickname, and he said he stayed in his own prison cell during the riot.

Police outside Holmes' Unit 9 cell recorded a tape that included Holmes pleading with a man he called "Shorty" that he had not informed anyone. Holmes, who was held in connection with the killing of a Nampa woman, was labeled a snitch in the cellblock.

Mushroom farm verdict forces caution on banks

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The verdict against the First National Bank, now named West One, may not directly affect local banking practices but the broader issue of lender liability has caused bankers to be more cautious in their relations with borrowers, local bankers said.

Local bankers have until lately watched the growing lender liability issue from afar. With the Bliss Valley Foods mushroom lawsuit, however, they have been uneasily eyeing the proceedings virtually in their laps.

Lawsuits against banks have mostly been on East and West Coast, said Dave Wood, area manager for First Security Bank and Trust. More recently, they have been creeping into the country's heartland forcing local bankers to arm themselves against inevitable lawsuits, he said.

Diane Pierce is a spokesman for West One Bank, formerly Idaho First National Bank, which a jury Friday ordered to pay $5.7 million in damages to a mushroom farm, its investors and owners. The bank was found guilty of "bad faith" in its administration of a $2.9 million loan to the gourmet mushroom farm near Bliss which went into default in October 1985.

"We are extremely disappointed and we will of course appeal the verdict," Pierce said.

She said the ruling will not affect the way the bank handles loans. "There won't be an impact," Pierce said. "We will continue to do business as we have in the last 120 years."

Although several bankers shied away from saying the lawsuit will impact them, they say lender liability definitely has.

Over the past four or five years, banks have increasingly been targets of lawsuits. Wood said.

The effect has been a more cautious relationship between lender and borrower, he said. "It creates the environment that bankers have to be careful in their underwriting," Wood said. Bankers have spent more time documenting each step of a loan, he said.

Kevin Guthrie, manager of Key Bank, said bankers are being more careful in explaining to borrowers the consequences of a loan.

"We'll have to do a better job of communicating," he said. On the other hand, a borrower must be aware that he ultimately is responsible for paying a debt.

He said officers from Key Bank have attended lender liability conferences and closely followed national cases.

Wood said First Security more readily calls on attorneys to analyze loan documents.

Around the country, lenders have been sued after renegeing on loan promises, misleading distributors in company business and prematurely foreclosing without giving notice.

Documents in the Bliss Valley trial showed Idaho First decided to let the farm go into default rather than temporarily relieve it of some loan requirements. Wood said he sees no positive impact of the numerous lawsuits around the country. Besides having to involve more attorneys and accountants in the more costly loaning process, the process itself will take longer, he said.

Because of the lawsuits, loan officers more closely follow established company policy and avoid practices that have proven problematic for other banks, Wood said.

First Security loan officers have studied policies that got other banks in trouble and eliminated similar procedures in its bank, he said.

To avoid problems, bankers must become more involved with the borrower including doing in depth homework on a business' chance for survival, Wood said.

It is important to look at whether a borrower's sales, overhead and profitability projections are reasonable for industry growth cycles and product demands, he said.

Curtis H. Eaton, president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust, said the case has been a regrettable quarrel among friends and neighbors but will not affect his bank's method of doing business. "We'll continue to be doing what we've been doing over the years," Eaton said.

Critics challenge DOE to prove it can operate nuclear plants

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Critics questioned and issues raised in the public hearings, department spokesman Ben McCarty said Friday. "This probably will cause us to move the opening of WIPP into October."

The DOE planned to be the main target for criticism during the second day of public hearings in Santa Fe on a supplemental environmental impact statement on WIPP. "Let DOE do some homework and prove that it can efficiently manage Rocky-Flats-and-Savannah-River. Then let the DOE ask us for our trust and support," Richard Malcolm of Santa Fe told department officials conducting the hearings.

"The DOE plans to open WIPP this fall to begin a five-year testing program to determine if the repository located 28 miles southeast of Carlsbad can meet U.S. Environmental Protection Agency standards for permanent storage of radioactive waste." During the test period up to 25,000 barrels of plutonium-contaminated defense-related waste would be placed in the repository, which is in ancient salt beds 2150 feet beneath the surface.

The DOE had planned to open WIPP in September but a department spokesman said Friday it now appears the opening will be delayed for about a month. "John Arthur, DOE's project manager for the environmental impact statement, announced Thursday at the outset of the Santa Fe hearings that the public comment period had been extended from June to July 6. An additional round of public hearing has been scheduled for July 6 in Ogden, Utah, he said.

"We will take whatever time is necessary to properly address the disallowed the testimony of a 2 1/2-year-old child in an abuse case. The court ruled - the youngest's testimony invalid, cancelling a law that allows hearsay testimony in child abuse cases from teachers, friends or others the child may tell about the abuse."

The ruling favors the defendant, which seems to have become a habit of the court, he said. He's considering proposing legislation next year that would bar the state Supreme Court from treating defendants more favorably than the U.S. Supreme Court does.

Also in the interview, Jones: "Admanly denounced a recent Idaho Supreme Court ruling that Andrus said the grants are intended to make certain that children who suffer developmental disabilities get all the help possible. Other grants are: "Health Resources Associates" Boise, $23,500 to develop individual service plans for families with handicapped children.

Award

"Continued from Page A4" the governor's office on Friday. The money comes through a federal program administered by the Idaho Infant Toddler Council. The 15-member advisory board helps the Department of Health and Welfare provide required services for handicapped children.

Court

"Continued from Page A4" lack of continuity, Hurlbut said. "It is difficult to know what rules of law we are working under" when that sort of inconsistency exists, he said. "It's not fair to the people, the practicing bar or the judges working in the state." Hurlbut has been a district judge since January 1984. He was previously a magistrate judge in Lincoln County for almost four years. He was prosecuting attorney for Blaine County from January 1979 to March 1980. He said qualified candidates have a responsibility to apply for the court so the Judicial Council can select the best possible replacements for Justices Robert C. Huntley Jr., who is retiring in August, and Justice Allan Shepard, who died May 27.

The Judicial Council will interview candidates Aug. 3-4 and send a list of qualified names to Andrus, who will fill the vacancies.

they are where they can be safely monitored," said Pamela Ladas of Santa Fe.

"We are acting as our own worst enemies by contaminating our environment with waste generated from the nuclear weapons program," Ms. Ladas said.

Moses Orion Oppenheimer of Santa Fe said he was sympathetic with the DOE's problem with disposal of radioactive waste but said that by burying it underground at WIPP "you just want to get it out of sight and out of mind."

Richard Miller of Santa Fe, director of Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety, said it seems the DOE is trying to force a square peg into a round hole. The square peg is the geological burial of wastes at WIPP, he said.

Another speaker Friday discussed the possibility of decreases in value of property near the highway routes used by trucks transporting waste to WIPP.

Consuelo Luz Arrostegui of Santa Fe said she had heard testimony Thursday that property along the WIPP route will decline in value 20 percent to 30 percent "when the waste starts coming, a truckload every 90 minutes, for many years."

She said her home is near the route over which waste will be moved to WIPP from Los Alamos National Laboratory and asked that the DOE put $30,000 in escrow "to indemnify me for the loss in value to my property caused by the DOE's failure to construct a bypass."

If she is not indemnified, as requested, she said, "I shall file suit in federal court seeking the same." And she predicted that WIPP will result in many lawsuits.

The DOE officials conducting the Santa Fe hearings generally have listened in silence to the public comments.

'Robin HUD' tearfully tells she tried to help the poor with stolen millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The private escrow agent known as "Robin HUD" quoted Scripture and wept as she came to Congress Friday to confess she stole millions of dollars from the government, giving much of it to the poor.

She addressed a House panel that also heard the inspector general of the Department of Housing and Urban Development say the agency still cannot control its money and may have up to $20 million unaccounted for.

"I justified my actions inwardly only by reminding myself that I followed a higher law in an attempt to ease suffering," Marilyn Louise Harrell told the House Subcommittee on Housing and Employment.

The Maryland woman, dubbed "Robin HUD" because she says she gave the poor much of the $3.5 million she took from the government from 1985-88, said she was testifying against the advice of her lawyer and was seeking "no leniency or immunity from prosecution."

One after another, members of the panel warned Ms. Harrell that her testimony could harm her if "Greater love has no one than this, criminal charges are brought, than to lay down one's life for his friends."

"If anybody should take the Fifth Amendment, it's you, Ms. Harrell is one of a dozen women," said Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn.

Still, she pressed ahead, promising to repay the HUD, Paul Adams, the government and breaking into department's inspector general, tears as she quoted the Bible: told the panel.

Bush to continue Reagan arms stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush has decided against major shifts in the U.S. negotiating position when talks resume next week with the Soviet Union to reduce long-range nuclear weapons arsenals by up to 60 percent.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Friday there would be only "relatively minor changes" in the stand the Reagan administration took at the bargaining table in Geneva before negotiations were suspended seven months ago.

"The previous administration left an excellent foundation on which to build," Fitzwater said.

Bush convened a meeting of the National Security Council on Thursday before formulating instructions to Richard Burt and Henry Cooper, who head the U.S. delegation for the strategic arms reduction and space-defense talks.

Among the items the president took up with his key advisers was whether to shift the U.S. position on mobile missiles.

The chairman of the Senate and House Armed Services committees, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., wanted to push for a ban on mobile missiles with multiple warheads.

The U.S. position in the talks last year was that all mobile missiles should be outlawed until ways are found to keep track of them and make sure any negotiated reductions are carried out.

Fitzwater said that remained the U.S. position in the negotiations with the Soviets. But he stressed that on mobile missiles and other weapons questions, "we do reserve the right to review these matters and make changes on an ongoing basis."

Overall, the spokesman said, "there will be a considerable degree of continuity in the approach of this administration."

While the talks formally reopen on Monday, negotiations do not begin until Wednesday. That leaves time for Bush to make changes in the instructions he gave to Burt and Cooper.

But a U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he did not expect the president to revise the U.S. position in the days ahead.

The talks are aimed at reducing U.S. and Soviet long-range bombers, land-based missiles and nuclear submarines by 30 percent to 50 percent.

Earlier, a senior administration official also said the Bush team is taking an optimistic view about the Kremlin's approach to the negotiations.

The official said the Soviets "have indicated in their rhetoric... they are eager to get back to talks and that they have a positive attitude. We'll see."

Panel blasts Pentagon watchdog unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon unit set up six years ago to test weapons was criticized by a Senate panel Friday for hiring defense contractors to do the tests.

"We wanted a tough junkyard dog who would stop bad weapons. However, what we seem to have created is just another layer to the Pentagon bureaucracy," Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., said in prepared remarks at a hearing of a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

"Congress has been so disappointed in the testing office that some have spoken of eliminating it."

"Six years after setting up the testing office, America is still sending poorly tested weapons to the troops and spending billions due to misleading or incomplete test reports," he said.

Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., added in a statement that "it is no secret that the (testing) office has been a terrible disappointment to many members of Congress."

The staff of the federal services subcommittee chaired by Pryor compiled a report on the Pentagon's Office of Operational Test and Evaluation, the top weapons testing office. Data came from the General Accounting Office, the congressional watchdog agency, from the Defense Department's inspector general, and others.

Prosecutors to narrow Poindexter indictment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors trying to avoid a clash over national secrets said Friday they will narrow the Iran-Contra indictment against former National Security Adviser John Poindexter, while Poindexter's lawyer said he'll try to force President Bush and former President Reagan to testify.

Defense attorney Richard Beckler said the government's plan to adjust but not drop a broad-conspiracy charge "doesn't make any sense," but the judge said it depends on the specifics of the prosecution motion, which won't be submitted until next week.

Beckler said he wants to subpoena Reagan and Bush because Poindexter "had substantial contact with both of these individuals throughout this offense as outlined in the indictment."

Associate independent counsel

Christian Minter told U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene that after the charges are narrowed "there would be no reason to involve" Bush and Reagan in the trial.

Independent counsel Lawrence Walsh said the prosecution will seek dismissal of theft-and-wire-fraud charges, which deal with the diversion of Iran arms-sale proceeds to the Nicaraguan rebels, and portions of the conspiracy charge.

House strips exemptions from S&L bailout

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, operating under an ethics microscope, stripped special interest exemptions from a savings and loan bailout bill at the last minute; but they may reappear in an anticipated blitz by industry lobbyists.

Before House members approved the $157 billion taxpayer-financed S&L rescue just before midnight Thursday, provisions aimed specifically at benefiting Sears, Roebuck, Chemical Bank of New York, Merrill Lynch, Paine Webber and several other financial houses suddenly were removed.

However, lawmakers and outside observers expect the provisions to come up again when House and Senate negotiators meet later this month to iron out differences between their two versions of the legislation. The Senate approved its bill in April.

"It's so unlike the Congress to do something like that," Bert Ely, an independent consultant on the S&L industry, said of the 11th-hour removal of the provisions. "But I know they're going to come back up in conference because the Senate bill has a bunch of amendments like that."

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, said Friday they hope to have the bill ready for President Bush's signature by July 4.

House Banking Committee experts who have examined the Senate version say they count about 40 "special interest" provisions in it intended to benefit specific insurance companies, banks, S&Ls or other financial institutions.

The biggest, according to Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, is a provision that would allow Columbia Savings and Loan Association of Beverly Hills, Calif., to exceed federal restrictions on how many high-risk, high-interest junk bonds S&Ls can own.

According to Leach, the Senate provision was inserted at the behest of Columbia, which has the largest portfolio of junk bonds of any S&L in the country.

Columbia also was involved in the junk bond deal that helped bring about House Democratic Whip Tony Coelho's resignation. Coelho, who left Congress Thursday, made about $6,880 in four months in 1986 after an executive of the S&L bought the bonds and held them for Coelho until the congressman could raise the money, partly through a loan from the S&L.

Leach, a leading GOP proponent of making S&Ls as well as banks and other financial institutions meet much stricter accountability standards, was the primary force behind knocking the special interest provisions out of the House bill.

In a parliamentary move that caught both many Democrats and fellow Republicans by surprise, he asked — minutes before lawmakers were scheduled to vote on final passage — that the House send the bill back to its Banking Committee with instructions to immediately return it without the provisions he was opposing.

"Frankly, it was something that I had had in the back of my mind for three or four days," he said in an interview Friday. "It's because of the greatest legislative lapse of this century that we have this problem. If we're going to ask the public to pay for it to the tune of $500 for every man, woman and child, people here should make it clear there are no special benefits to the large and well-heeled."

As the bill was structured when it went to the House floor, only Republicans were allowed to offer amendments weakening Bush's demand for strong regulatory requirements.

Alaska quake causes minor damage

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — An earthquake struck an area 60 miles west of Kodiak, Alaska, early Friday, but only minor damage was reported, the Alaska Tsunami Warning Center said.

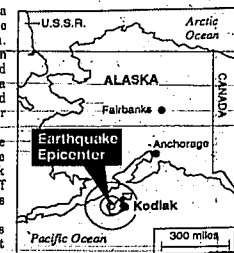

The quake, which had a preliminary reading of 5.9 on the Richter scale, occurred at 2:51 a.m. ADT (4:51 a.m. EDT) and was felt in Kodiak, Larsen Bay, Karluk and Akiak, said Alec Madberry, a spokesman for the center. He said there was no danger of a tsunami or tidal wave.

A dispatcher with the Alaska State Troopers in Kodiak said there were reports from throughout Kodiak Island of pictures being knocked off walls, but that no major damage was reported.

Madberry said there were reports that some people were knocked out of bed in Larsen Bay and that dishes were broken and lightbulbs were broken in their sockets.

Larsen Bay is a village on the west side of Kodiak Island. It is about 375 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Makers pull cheap wine off shelves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The maker of Richard's Wild Irish Rose announced Friday that it is joining E.&J. Gallo in pulling brands of cheap high-alcohol wine from the city's seedy Tenderloin district.

Gallo, the world's largest winery, announced Wednesday that effective immediately it would stop selling Thunderbird and Night Train Express brands to retailers in the Tenderloin, the Skid Row of San Francisco, for six months.

The action came after area distributor Gallo-Bay Cities, owned by Gallo, met with an activist group, dubbed Safe and Sober Streets, that has asked grocers to stop selling the so-called fortified wines in the neighborhood.

The activists say they are tired of tripping over wine bottles and being menaced by drunks and say they hope to dry up their supply in the neighborhood.

Thunderbird, Night Train Express and Richard's Wild Irish Rose are the three best-selling brands of fortified wines, which are 18 percent alcohol. Regular wine is about 12 percent.

Travel alert issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department issued a travel alert on Friday that noted West German authorities "are taking steps to counter any possible terrorist actions" at the Frankfurt airport.

The State Department alert did not specify which airport, but the largest in the region is known as the Rhein-Main airport.

The alert quoted from a statement issued by German officials from the state of Hesse which said:

"Security measures at Frankfurt airport remain at a high level."

Delta plane takes a bounce, 30 hurt

ATLANTA (AP) — A Delta Air Lines jet hit a pocket of turbulence en route from Seattle Friday, and at least 30 passengers were hospitalized, an airline spokesman said. Several others were treated by paramedics at the airport.

The extent of the passengers' injuries was not known, but Delta spokesman Jim Lundy said none appeared to be serious. One passenger was carried from the L-1011 on a stretcher and several left in wheelchairs.

"It appears most of the injuries are superficial — abrasions, bruises," Lundy said.

Delta spokeswoman Glenda Hatchett Johnson said at least 30 passengers were sent to Clayton General, Grady Memorial and other Atlanta hospitals. Others were treated at Hartsfield International Airport.

Flight 102 carried 282 passengers. Also Friday, a Northwest Airlines jet en route from Seattle to Detroit made an unscheduled landing in Bismarck, N.D., after one of its engines developed an oil leak, authorities said.

Chinese leaders shirk blame for deaths

BEIJING (AP) — China's leadership intensified efforts Friday to absolve itself in the deaths of pro-democracy protesters.

A government spokesman also acknowledged for the first time there was a split among Communist Party officials over how to deal with the popular uprising.

Also on Friday, nearly 100 more people were arrested nationwide for taking part in the protests, including a fourth person named on a wanted list of 21 student leaders — and the government ordered two more Western reporters to leave the country.

An army spokesman, Gen. Li Zhiyun, said for the first time that soldiers fired into Tiananmen Square the night of June 3-4, but later contradicted himself.

Some of the soldiers ... directed their fire into the square," Li told selected Western reporters during a news conference at the Great Hall of the People.

At another point, however, Li said of the deaths: "It is not from any instances from the soldiers directing their guns at the people. This incident never happened within the area of Beijing."

Reporters who were not allowed to attend the news conference obtained the comments by watching a CBS News videotape. Li spoke through an official translator and did not clarify the remarks.

Before the news conference, the military took selected Western reporters on their first tour of the square since the fighting.

The government campaign appeared aimed at demonstrating that protesters were not shot while they were inside the 100-acre square, the symbolic center of power in China.

Although Tiananmen Square was the focus of the demonstrations, reporters on the scene said most of the shooting was on Changan Avenue, the main road to the square. But there were conflicting reports during the confused fighting in the darkness and some students reported shooting inside the square.

Other shooting incidents were reported from the edges of the square and at the bridge at Muxudi, the western gateway to the inner city. Reporters saw many wounded students treated at tents set up by protesters in Tiananmen Square. The heaviest fighting occurred on the road to the square and the government has previously acknowledged that some soldiers shot civilians to death while pushing their way toward Tiananmen. But officials have insisted that no shots were fired when troops entered the square with tanks, and that no one died there.

A six-part series on radioactive waste at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Sitting above the Magic Valley's water source, more than 2 million cubic feet of long-lived radioactive waste is buried in rusting barrels and deteriorating boxes.

Starting Sunday, The Times-News will present a six-day report on what's in those barrels and boxes, how it came to be in Idaho, and what it means to the Magic Valley.

In more than two dozen stories, environmental reporter N. S. Nokkentved will tell about:

- Forty years of nuclear debris buried and stored at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory — some lethal, some innocuous and some downright bizarre.

- Warnings from government scientists and reports — as early as 1948 — about wholesale burial of waste above the Snake River Aquifer.

- A tragic explosion at an experimental reactor that killed three men — and had an unexpected impact on the Magic Valley.

What's what

Of racy rhymes
Most of the classic Mother Goose rhymes are originally composed were about as racy as X-rated limericks. Not-written-for-arts, certainly.

Q If the greenhouse effect heats up the earth, could anything cool it?
A. Erupting volcanoes maybe. When Krakatoa blew in 1883, temperatures worldwide dropped for several years.

True, numerous words start with the letter "K," but three times as many have "K" as the third letter.

NASA sends out a stub-nosed propeller plane to pluck parachuting sport rockets out of the air before they hit the ground. The retriever craft is called the "Happy Hooker."

FISH SPEED
Q: How fast a fish swims depends on how big it is, right?
A: Within limits. The larger the fish, the faster it swims. Figure eight miles per hour for each foot of body length.

Or so say the experts.

"Profanity is a rarity among American Indians, I'm told.

If there's any way you can arrange to be in the vicinity of an elephant when it sneezes, do so. That's good luck. Or so believe Moslems of India. Some of them.

ODD TONGUES
About 600,000 Sumatrans speak Karo-Batak. One Kenyan in every 16 speaks Gikuyu. Numerous Peruvian Indians speak an Inca dialect called Quechua. What? You'd never heard of that? Neither had I. But the missionaries had. And are now printing Bibles in each of the aforementioned languages.

What do you know about heroes? Enough to endorse F. Scott Fitzgerald's line; as follows: "Show me a hero, and I'll write you a tragedy."

Q: That plastic holder you put a paper cone coffee cup in — what do you call it?
A: A zinf.

Q: What was the 1830s song that supposedly caused a lot of suicides?
A: "Gloomy Sunday." It was banned from radio.

Bronco running back allegedly put the moves on man's wife

CANTON, Miss. (AP) — Sammy Winder ran off with a Mississippi man's wife, the man claims in a $600,000 lawsuit against the Denver Broncos' running back.

Stanley Spell filed a lawsuit in Madison County Circuit Court alleging that Winder knew Cecilia Evans Spell was married when he took her to fancy restaurants and bought her clothing, flowers and other gifts.

Winder urged Mrs. Spell in a letter to leave her husband and be "all Sammy's" and promised they'd live together in his Madison County home if she divorced her husband, according to the lawsuit filed May 26.

"I really would not like to comment on that," Winder said Thursday. "At this moment, no."

Mrs. Spell moved out of the couple's home in April, with Winder's help, the lawsuit says.

In a May 3 protective order, a judge told Spell to stop threatening his estranged wife and pay child support of $200 a month.

Spell is asking for $60,000 for physical and mental distress, embarrassment and disgrace and $40,000 for punitive damages.

Winder played in the 1987 and 1988 Super Bowl for the Broncos.

Voight pleads in vain for friend in court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jon Voight showed up in court to put in a word for a friend trying to stay out of jail, but the Academy Award-winning actor was unable to sway the judge.

Voight appeared Thursday in Van Nuys Municipal Court and asked Judge Alan Ellis not to return to custody former talk-show host Willard Jenkins, 54, whom Ellis had released for a waiting job.

Jenkins was sentenced in March to six months in jail and ordered to pay $101,983 in back taxes for failing to file state income tax returns from 1982 to 1985.

Jenkins, a former host on KABC Talk Radio, got an early release after telling Ellis he had a job that would pay $10,000 directly to the state, said Deputy City Attorney Robert Orlich.

Jenkins did not get the job, described as recording work for a short film to be shown at the Cannes Film Festival and returned to court without the $10,000, but with Voight in tow to plead for him.

The actor told Ellis that Jenkins' claim of promised employment was an honest misunderstanding, and offered to pay immediately $5,000 of his friend's debt.

"I beg the mercy of the court... so Mr. Jenkins can be free to pay the court and put his work back in order," Voight said.

Ellis said Jenkins would not have been released except for the claim of a waiting job. He ordered Jenkins back to jail, and the bailiff took him into custody.

'Morton Downey Jr. Show' may get ax

NEW YORK (AP) — It's all over but the shouting for the "Morton Downey Jr. Show," which its confrontational host predicts will be off the air when it comes up for renewal this September.

"I feel bad that this will mean the end of this type of talk show," Downey told the Daily News in Friday's edition. "No one will take a chance on it anymore."

Downey said the show has been sold in 22 markets, but needs at least 60 to get renewed. Distributor MCA-TV said it has not decided the show's fate and is still actively selling it for next season the News reported. "It's my guess that it'll be all over in September," said Downey, who routinely insulted his guests and presided over a number of brawls during taping. "It's a very sad state of affairs."

The Downey show first aired on WWOR-TV in November 1987 and went into national syndication the following May. At its peak, it was shown on 72 stations, but several stations have recently either dropped it or moved it into later time slots.

'Miami Vice' star

Olmos accepts award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Miami Vice" star Edward James Olmos, receiving an award for portraying Hispanics in a positive light, said, "I represent one race, the human race." "I'm stunned," Olmos said Thursday after Mayor Tom Bradley gave him the Hispanic Academy of Media Arts and Sciences' first award for an outstanding contribution to the positive image of Hispanics.

"He is proof that talent knows no ethnic boundaries," Bradley said. The award was given to the 42-year-old Olmos for his role as math teacher Jaime Escalante in the movie "Stand and Deliver."

New magazine is 'Garbage'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new magazine, called Garbage, is coming along to worry about the ecology-of-diapers-and-whether-the-gasoline you burn driving to the recycling center does more damage to the environment than rusting old newspapers will do good.

It is intended for people like its editor-publisher, Patricia Poore, who says she worries about how much she throws away.

"I think," says Ms. Poore, "we all feel vaguely uneasy and vaguely guilty when you bring the groceries home and realize that 60 percent of what you've bought is packaging."

She thinks there are plenty of potential readers who worry about what the throwaway society is doing to the quality of life — to use two common buzzwords of the environmental movement. The magazine's full name is Garbage: The Practical Journal for the Environment. It will start publishing in August.

Ms. Poore promises the magazine will look at both sides — the downside as well as the benefits of environmental actions — despite its basic bias.

"You have to be pro-environment if you want any quality of life and possibly if you want any life at all," she says.

When an environmentally sound way of doing things turns out to be more costly or more inconvenient, Garbage won't whitewash that fact, Ms. Poore says. "There often is no easy solution."

Ms. Poore is the owner and publisher of The Old House Journal.

Cracks discovered in British 737s

LONDON (AP) — Investigators have found severe cracks in the engines of grounded Boeing 737-400s operated by British carriers, the Times of London reported today.

The Department of Civil Aviation, which ordered the aircraft grounded last week, and the Department of Transport said they could not confirm or deny the report.

The Times said the cracks were more serious than the breaking of fan blades in two engines, which occurred during two British flights last week. It said the new cracks have been found on previously untested engines.

Missing girl found alive, doing well

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A missing nine-year-old girl who was the object of a search by police and a 5,500-man NATO force was found alive Friday, Denmark's public radio said.

"She's fine, considering the circumstances," said police commissioner Erik Dissing in the town of Nykoebing Falster. He did not elaborate.

Police declined to disclose details of Malene Hansen's 48-hour disappearance or say how she was found. She was being examined by a doctor, the radio said.

Malene disappeared from her home in the town of Saksoeving in the Baltic island of Lolland on Wednesday evening.

NATO's Allied Mobile Force, which was holding an exercise in the area volunteered to aid in the search on Friday.

Customs officials seize Chinese ship

HONG KONG (AP) — Customs officers intercepted a Chinese-registered fishing vessel in Hong Kong waters and seized about 4.8 million cigarettes worth $307,700 that were being smuggled into China, the Customs Department said.

The captain of the vessel, who was not identified, was detained for questioning in the Thursday incident, the department said.

On Wednesday, the captain of a Hong Kong fishing boat was arrested for trying to smuggle more than 1 million cigarettes worth $83,000 to China, the department said.

Japanese man to enroll at Annapolis

TOKYO (AP) — A 29-year-old man will become the first Japanese citizen to enroll in the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., in recent years, U.S. officials say.

Keizo Kitagawa of Ube city in Yamaguchi prefecture, southwest of Tokyo, will enroll in the academy June 21 as one of 10 foreign students in the freshman class, the U.S. Embassy said.

Participants in the International Students Program at the academy have the same status as normal midshipmen, but cannot enter the U.S. armed forces after graduation because they are not U.S. citizens, the statement said.

S. African blacks mark Soweto riots

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of blacks stayed away from work and school Friday to mark the 13th anniversary of the Soweto township riots, in which police opened fire on black schoolchildren protesting education policies.

The riots brought a new level of militancy to the anti-apartheid movement, and the government does not recognize the June 16 Soweto Day holiday declared by blacks and recognized by most major employers.

Cristiani says guerrillas are to blame

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Alfredo Cristiani said Friday he doesn't believe the leftist guerrillas' denial of any involvement in killing one of his Cabinet members last week.

Cristiani said "I am convinced it was them" who fatally shot Jose Antonio Rodriguez Porth, minister of the presidency, and his driver, as he left home for work on June 9.

The government and military immediately blamed the rebels, but guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, denied involvement.

Hungary remembers reform leaders

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Throngs of Hungarians paid homage Friday to Imre Nagy and others executed for leading the anti-Soviet revolt of 1956, which Hungary's new communist leaders now call the origin of their liberal reforms.

After hours of ceremonies, the remains of the former premier and four associates were interred again, 31 years after they were put to death and buried in unmarked graves on the same spot.

Speeches at the graveside and at an earlier ceremony in Heroes Square reflected both sorrow about a national tragedy and the spirit that drove the 11-day revolt ended by Soviet tanks on Nov. 4, 1956.

In the square, the coffins were displayed on a special platform. A sixth coffin, empty, was set above them to symbolize all the others who died in the uprising and subsequent reprisals.

"If we can muster enough courage, then we can put an end to communist dictatorship," said Viktor Orbán of the "independent" youth group FIDESZ. He demanded the withdrawal of Soviet military forces from Hungary.

"This day marks the change of an era," Imre Mees, who was a student leader in 1956, told the crowd. "We are burying a regime that was bad from the start, which was rejected by the nation, which was forced upon us and which has proven bankrupt in every regard."

People joined hands across the square and said, with Mees: "We swear that we will never again be slaves!"

At Nagy's grave, Tibor Meray, a journalist who has lived in Paris since 1956, praised him and his associates as the fathers of communist reform.

"From Prague to Warsaw, from Yerevan to the Peking youth ... those movements all have their point of departure with you," Meray said at a plot — 301 — in Budapest's Rakoskeresztur cemetery.

"The roots of what is happening in Moscow now go back to you," he said. "The epicenter of the earthquake shaking the Communist world is here in plot 301."

Official Stalinist versions of history are being re-examined throughout the Soviet bloc, inspired by Mikhail S. Gorbachev's glasnost policy of openness and the Soviet leader's own criticism of Josef Stalin's excesses.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Margaret Tutwiler said the United States sees the honoring of Nagy "as part of a larger process, that of Hungary coming to grips with the truth of its past ... as the country moves further along the path of freedom toward democracy."

Four were buried with Nagy.

Rakowski: Communist party underestimated opposition

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The prime minister, who was rejected by voters in parliamentary elections, says the Communist Party underestimated the vigor of the opposition's campaign and has been too slow to shed Stalinism.

"Counting on favorable results in the first round of the elections proved to be a mistake. Could this have been avoided? In part yes, if we would have noticed the threatening dangers, but we did not notice them," Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski said in a speech at a party meeting in Wroclaw broadcast on nationwide TV.

The Thursday night speech followed intensive consultations within the party leadership and the rank-and-file members in the wake of the defeats the party suffered in the June 4 elections, the most democratic in Eastern Europe since World War II.

The analysis of the party's decisive loss came as the communists prepare for a second round of elections Sunday: a runoff for candidates who did not receive majorities June 4. All but one of 161 seats will be for seats reserved for the party or its allies in the Sejm or parliament.

In the first round, the candidates of the independent Solidarity movement handily won all but one of the 161 seats open to the opposition in the 400-member parliament. And they won 92 of the 100 seats in the new, freely elected Senate, with the remaining eight to be decided Sunday.

Only three party coalition Sejm candidates — all supported by local Solidarity activists in their regions — won first-round victories.

In addition, 33 of the 35 top government officials on the "national list" of unopposed Sejm candidates did not receive the required 50 percent of the votes cast.

Among them was Rakowski, who has said he won't run again for parliament Sunday under a plan worked out with the opposition to fill the 33 seats and maintain the agreed-upon 6 percent Sejm majority.

He has left open the possibility of continuing as prime minister.

Open gets stranger and Stranger

Curtis Strange reacts after just missing a long birdie putt.

By the Associated Press
ROCHESTER, N.Y. — It was a Strange day at the U.S. Open.
 There was the flurry of ones, an incredible, record-setting spree in which four men scored holes-in-one, all on the same hole, all using the same club and all within a period of 1 hour and 50 minutes.
 There was a 14-minute storm delay, an occurrence that has become common this weather-plagued golf season.
 And there was Curtis Strange, the defending title-holder in the American national championship, who came pounding out of the pack with a 64 that provided him a 1-stroke lead Friday at the tournament's halfway point.
 Strange, challenging some Ben Hogan marks across the decades, finished two trips over the rain-soaked East course at Oak Hill in 135, 5 under par.
 His 64, one shot off the all-time Open single-round record, matched the course standard set by the great Hogan in 1942.
 And the spectacular effort put him in position to become the first man since Hogan in 1951 to make a successful defense of the U.S. Open title.
 But Strange has two rounds to go, another 36 holes. And even Strange's seven-birdie heroics was not enough to give him breathing room.
 Tom Kite, whose impressive record lacks only a major-tournament title, hung grimly on Strange's heels with a 69 that left him one behind at 136.
 Jack Nicklaus, however, faded.
 "I'm disappointed I couldn't keep it all together," Nicklaus said after struggling to a 74.
 Nicklaus, 49, holder of a record 18 major professional titles, entered the day's play a stroke off the pace and entertaining thoughts of a record fifth U.S. Open title.
 But he had problems over the front nine, then couldn't get the putts to fall on the back side and finished at 141, six shots back.
 Scott Simpson, the 1987 Open champion, had a 70 and was tied for third at 137 with Jay Don Blake. Blake, who hasn't finished higher than third in a three-season Tour career, hung in with 71.

 Wooman, the 5-foot-5 Welshman called "Little Wossie" by his fellow pros on the European Tour, and Mark McCumber each had a 68 and were tied at 138.
 No one else was under par for two trips over the rain-soaked course.
 Bernhard Langer of West Germany and Payne Stewart, who shared the first-round lead with Blake, drifted back. Stewart was 75-141 and Langer blew to a 78 that left him at 144.
 Australian Greg Norman and Masters champion Nick Faldo of England were at 140, Norman with a second round 68 and Faldo with a 72.
 Tom Watson and British Open champion Jose Ballesteros of Spain just made the cut at 145. The cutoff figure to qualify for the final two rounds. Ballesteros shot 70, Watson 68.
 Strange, whose four victories last year helped him to the PGA Tour's first $1 million season, built this round around a 115-yard wedge shot that found the cup for an eagle-3 on the fifth hole.
 "I played OK," Strange said in massive and intentional understatement.
 "I thought I was in it."
 "I played really well. I kept my thoughts where they should be. I kept plugging away."
 He paused and grinned again.
 "You know, I was having a lot of fun this week. I was a hell of a lot more calm than I thought I would be, defending in the U.S. Open and all."
 "But it's not going to be calm the rest of the week."
 Strange stormed past 34 men with his spectacular effort, which started with 10-foot birdie putts on the first two holes.
 The eagle put him 4 under for the day and he parred routinely to the turn, reaching it in 31.
 He birdied the 10th from 20 feet and made a 15-footer on 14. When he left an 8iron shot within tap-in distance on the 16th, he was 7 under for the day.

Roberts wins tourney playoff riddled with bogeys

By LARRY HOVEY
 Times-News writer

BIHL — After a four-way head-to-head battle that lasted virtually all day, it suddenly seemed in overtime that no one wanted to win the Times-News Magic Valley Women's Amateur championship Friday.
 But on the third extra hole, Oleta Roberts provided Buhl with a home-standing champion after outlasting first-day leader Terrie Taylor of Burley.
 "Those two along with Twin Falls tandem of Shauna Robinson and Virginia Undhjem entered the day within four shots of each other and within a couple of holes had it narrowed to one and two strokes among the foursome. Undhjem, who has won this title 14 times, held the lead after 16 and Robinson, the defending champion, twice clawed within a stroke of the lead. In fact, when Taylor teed off on No. 18, she was trailing Roberts by a stroke but pulled even there with a par.

And then, although both steadfastly maintained they weren't nervous, one of the oddest playoffs in this meet's history unfolded. They tied No. 1 with double bogeys, No. 2 with double bogeys and Roberts finally wrapped it up with a bogey on No. 3.
 "I wasn't nervous," Roberts said with a smile of the overtime. "That's the same way we'd seen all day long except it got worse."
 Roberts said the overall tenor of the tournament cost her some of the thrill of winning.
 "I just wanted to play well and I didn't do that. The only thing I did was put. I didn't hit many good shots."
 But her assessment drew contrasting views from her playing mates, particularly Twin Falls' Jackie Gasser who said "I said all week the best putter would win this one."
 The other Roberts challengers felt the new champion had indeed wielded the best putter for the two-day event and Undhjem added "I thought she did some excellent chipping at times over the last two rounds."

But no one contradicted Roberts' complaint that her driver had betrayed her.
 Because of the way the scoring went, the final foursome agreed a four-way playoff definitely had been won.
 "If I had made my little putt on 18 and if Shauna had made little putts on 15 and 17, it would have happened," Undhjem said.
 "My putter — hurt — me — again," Robinson said. "I missed three or four short putts today and then I had a double bogey on No. 10 that really hurt. I never did get into the lead but, I was within a stroke, a couple of times, not being able to get that one shot back."
 Undhjem said she put herself in control of the tournament at one point but couldn't pull it off.
 "I knew standing on the 17th that if I could go par-par, I probably had a pretty good chance of winning this. But I went bogey-bogey," she said of the only moment she led in this competition.
 Taylor, who had an 84 on her closing round, said her putter cost her a chance to win it.

 "I three-putted the first four holes and that let everyone back in the game," she said. "I think I had eight three-putts for the round."
 Flight winners include:
Championship:

Cowboys' pitching saves them again

By RON GATES
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the second time in as many days what the Twin Falls Cowboys lacked at the plate they made up with pitching.
 Brad Herd tossed a three-hitter and fanned 12 in leading the Cowboys to a 4-1 win over Helper, Utah, in the second round of the third annual Cowboy Classic baseball tournament Friday.
 "Yeah, Brad did a real good job," said Cowboy Coach Jim Walker. "We got some runs given to us. We sure didn't go out and get them. Until we start playing on offense — hitting the ball — pitching has to help us out."
 Opening winners on Friday included Hillcrest of Salt Lake City, a 12-0 victor over Cody, Wyo., Meridian, which trounced

Davis County 14-4 and Pocatello's Rebels, who came game from behind to down Bonanza of Las Vegas 5-2.
 Friday's results feature the three Idaho entries at 20, Hillcrest and Bonanza each 1-1 while Helper, Cody and Davis County remain winless.
 "I think today got us into Sunday," Walker added. "One of these teams (Helper or Davis County) isn't going to win a game. We do have the tender bracket, but Meridian looks good and so does Poky."
 The third round of the round-robin format tournament will be played today at Frontier Field with Davis County taking on Helper at 10 a.m.; Cody follows against Bonanza at 1 p.m.; with Hillcrest challenging Pocatello at 4 p.m. — An all-Idaho finale, matching Meridian against Twin Falls, scheduled for 7 p.m., concludes the qualifying portion of the tourney.

Seeding for Sunday's championship round will be based on won-lost records from the first three days. The third and fourth seeds play at 9 a.m. and the second and fifth seeds clash at noon for the right to meet the winner of the early contest in a 3 p.m. semifinal. The victor there moves on to meet the No. 1 seed at 6 p.m. for the event title.
 After Twin Falls, now 6-5 on the American Legion season, took a 1-0 first-inning lead on Shane Queennell's single to score Matt Russness, Herd struck out the side. But not before Jeff Cisneros scored all the way from first on Keon Johnson's double to the leftfield wall to pull Helper even.
 The Cowboys regained the lead for good on an unearned run in the ninth later. Jason Carrio coached on an error, took second and moved to third on another Helper bobble before second baseman Rhyler Boyd connected.

No results were available from Friday's late-round competition of the second go, but Bailey was assured of making today's finals.
 Idaho State University junior Patti O'Malley of Shoshone remained tied for first place in average in goat tying and is also assured of moving into today's finals.

The top 10 leaders in average in each event qualify for the finals.
 Bailey had a ride of 74 in the second go, which has him an average score of 148 and tied him with Ty Murray of Odessa College. Going in Friday's competition, they trailed Craig Latham of Panhandle State, who had an average score of 152.

 In goat tying, Jimmie Jo Martin of Wyoming took the second go-round lead in the event, with a 7.2-second run, bumping teammate Toni Christick from the top spot by .2 of a second.

Man unhurt in grizzly attack

The Associated Press

ESSEX, Mont. — A U.S. Forest Service employee who was attacked by a 6-foot grizzly bear protecting her cubs escaped injury when he fell to the ground, rolled in a ball, and let the bear bat at him, authorities said Friday.
 "He did what we feel he should have done by dropping to the ground and curling up," said a agency spokesman John Denne. "Fortunately, the bear also did what we would hope it would do in that situation."
 Denne said the man was checking a trail near here Thursday when he was charged by the grizzly, which had two cubs nearby.
 "They were only 25 to 30 feet apart when they became aware of each other," Denne said. "The bear charged, and the man immediately dropped to the ground and curled into a ball. The bear cuffed him once on the arm, sniffed around a while, then left."
 He said the man, who asked that his name not be released, remained on the ground until he couldn't hear the bears, then got up and quickly left the area.
 "He has some red marks on his arm from the bear's claws, but the bear did not break his skin or tear his clothes," Denne said. "He is really very lucky."
 Mike Aderhold of the Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks said no action would be taken against the bear.

HOUSTON (AP) — Dawn Sowell, the world record of 10.49. While Sowell, a Louisiana State senior, was dazzling in the women's 100, another collegian, Leroy Burrell, a Houston junior, was just as impressive in the men's 100.

Burrell, who trains with two-time Olympic champion Carl Lewis, won the 9.94. The sixth-fastest ever and the fastest in the world this year.

Burrell's time made him the No. 4 performer ever — behind Canadian Ben Johnson (9.83), Lewis (9.92) and Calvin Smith (9.93). Lewis also has run 9.93 twice, but the best he ever ran as a collegian at Houston, was 9.99, a mark that Burrell shattered.

Burrell, whose previous best was 10.03, was quick out of the blocks, took a decisive lead by about 70 meters and beat Dennis Mitchell, the fourth-place finisher in last year's Olympics, by one meter. Mitchell took second in 10.73, just ahead of Andre Cason's 10.04.

Still another collegian, Lynda Tolbert of Arizona State, scored a convincing victory in the women's 100-meter high hurdles, winning in 12.75, the fourth-fastest ever by an American.

Roger Kingdom, the two-time Olympic champion, outtook Olympic bronze medalist Tom Campbell at the seventh hurdle and won the men's 110-meter high hurdles in 13.22.

Renaldo Nehemiah, the world record-holder at 12.93, and two-time world champion Greg Foster, who last year handed Kingdom his first defeat in four years last week, were among the many athletes who skipped these championships.

Olympic Committee won't crack down further on athletes' drug use

LONDON (AP) — The International Olympic Committee has no plans to impose harsher restrictions — as far as the Games are concerned — on athletes who confess to drug use.

No discussion is even on the agenda and any crackdown probably would deal only with future cases, IOC officials said Friday, while leaving open the possibility the matter might be debated late this summer.

Even consideration of stronger penalties by the IOC itself, rather than waiting for international sports federations to act, would be a major change in policy.

It also would underscore the growing impact of Ben Johnson's positive test for steroids at the Seoul Olympics and his acknowledgment this week of drug use extending back to 1981.

"Maybe we have to change the rule for the future, and will consider this in San Juan," IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch said. The IOC holds its annual meeting in Puerto Rico in late August.

Johnson was suspended for two years by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, track's governing body. That suspension ends in September 1990, so Johnson would be eligible for the 1992 Olympics, where the Canadian sprinter says he wants to compete.

But since Johnson testified this week at a Canadian inquiry into sports in drugs that he had been on a steroid program since 1981, calls have increased for longer-term punishment. Some critics, including fellow athletes, said Johnson should be barred for life.

Under anti-doping rules followed by the IAAF and most other federations, a life ban can be imposed only for repeat offenses. First-time use generally brings suspensions of two years or less — a two-tiered penalty system pushed by the IOC.

Despite seven years of steroid use, the only formal drug test Johnson ever flunked was in Seoul.

The IAAF said this week it would consider stripping confessed drug users of world records and championships. It has made no move, however, toward longer penalties for first-time test failures.

While it awaited the conclusions of the Canadian inquiry, headed by Judge Charles Dubin, the IOC said it planned no immediate move toward restricting eligibility for the Games in drug-use cases.

"This is too new," Michele Verdier, the IOC spokeswoman, said in a telephone interview from committee headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"We, of course, are following the Dubin commission and are awaiting its results. But I know of nothing planned at the present time," Samaranch, interviewed in Barcelona, Spain, by The Times of London, said the IOC's medical commission, headed by Prince Alexandre de Merode of Belgium, was reviewing the situation.

"We are studying the matter with Prince Merode, and keeping a close relation with the international federations," Samaranch said.

But the IOC president, who has said in the past that Johnson should be treated as any other athlete on drug punishment, hinted strongly that any action taken by the committee would not be imposed retroactively.

"We have to be fair to Johnson under the existing rules," he told The Times.

Verdier said the international federations remained the key to the IOC's eligibility policies.

"The Games belong to the IOC, but they are only for 16 days every four years," she said. "It is up to the federations to decide an athlete's eligibility according to its own rules."

Seth Sylvan, spokesman for NBA Properties, another sports marketer, said, "I don't need money that bad," said Coscia.

After Lakers fans' dreams of a championship were swept away, merchandisers were raking in the money at the Palace of Auburn Hills, where more than 21,000 Pistons fans gathered Tuesday to watch the fourth and final game of the championship series on television.

Cashiers were selling in $3,000 an hour outside of the Palace on Wednesday, according to Frank Battaglia, director of merchandising for the Palace and the Pistons. T-shirts and banners rolled into the Palace parking lot by the truckload.

The Pistons, known as the NBA's bad boys, may not generate the long-run national sales the Lakers have, according to Steve Warshaw, team sports marketing manager for International Management Group, a Cleveland-based company.

"I think the shelf life of the Detroit Pistons is nowhere near as great as for the Los Angeles Lakers," Warshaw said.

It also forces a significant dropoff in sales, Sylvan said. "Some people may not like the Pistons, but we beg to differ. We think the Pistons are fun."

Sales of Lakers paraphernalia taper off dramatically after loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers weren't the only losers after the Detroit Pistons trounced them in four straight games for the National Basketball Association crown.

Retailers of Lakers merchandise have seen sales fade like hopes of a third consecutive Los Angeles basketball championship. Employees at the Forum, an Inglewood arena where the Lakers play, may give some of the thousands of leftover "3-peat" T-shirts, which had sold for $15.

"Sales dried up when everybody realized the Lakers were going to lose," said Jeff Ganz, general manager of Ogden and Forum, which sells merchandise at the Forum.

"Maybe I should have discounted them," he said. "I know if the Lakers had won, we could have done 90 percent more in sales this year."

Al Coscia has marked down the "3-peat" T-shirts from $11.99 to $5.99 at his store, Best Records in suburban Silver Valley. But Coscia, a Lakers loyalist, refuses to replace Lakers items with Pistons paraphernalia.

"I don't need money that bad," said Coscia.

Rose's alleged bookmaker earns sentence reduction

CINCINNATI (AP) — The man described as Pete Rose's bookmaker earned a major reduction Friday in his jail sentence on drug and tax charges because he cooperated with federal investigators.

Ronald Peters, 32, was sentenced to two years in jail Friday by U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel on charges that carried a maximum 28-year prison term. The government had asked for a reduced sentence because Peters has helped federal authorities, who also are conducting a grand jury probe of Rose's taxes.

Peters also is a key figure in the baseball commissioner's investigation of gambling allegations against the Cincinnati Reds' manager. Rose will have a hearing June 26 in New York with Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti, and could be suspended if he's found to have bet on baseball games.

James Ruppert, one of Peters' lawyers, said Friday that baseball special investigator John Dowd has indicated Peters may be asked to sit at Rose's hearing with Giamatti. It was the first indication that one of Rose's main accusers might be at the hearing.

"If anyone for the commissioner requests his presence, we will discuss that with the court," Ruppert said after the sentencing. "I've been advised that they may request his presence."

Rich Levin, spokesman for the commissioner's office, declined to say what role Peters might play in the hearing.

"I can't elaborate on it," Levin said.

Spiegel gave Peters 30 days before he has to report to serve his jail sentence, which doesn't include a chance for parole. The 30 days would give Rose's lawyers an opportunity to interview Peters privately before the hearing — something they've requested.

Ruppert said Friday discussions are continuing about an interview, but none has been scheduled.

The sentencing completed a 42-minute hearing at which Peters formally pleaded guilty to cocaine distribution and making a false statement on his 1986 tax return by failing to report $89,000 in gambling and bookmaking income.

Spiegel had at least two letters of recommendation for Peters — one from the U.S. Attorney's office and one from Giamatti. Both described Peters as cooperative in their separate investigations.

Federal prosecutors asked for a term of 14 months for Peters, saying he had "made a good-faith effort to provide substantial assistance to the government in the investigation and prosecution of another individual."

Spiegel, who wasn't bound by the recommendation, noted during the hearing that it's unusual for the government to make such a sentence-reduction request.

The judge made no reference Friday to Giamatti's letter, which praised Peters' "significant and truthful cooperation" with baseball's investigation of Rose. Spiegel got the case after U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin suggested that Giamatti's letter demonstrated a "vendetta" against Rose.

Spiegel declined to be interviewed about the sentencing Friday.

During the hearing, Peters told the judge he regrets his actions, and added, "Hopefully I'll gain wisdom from it."

Spiegel told Peters: "I'm going to have to send you away, but I think you've got a lot to offer people."

Also Friday, the man who claims to have run bets for Rose to Peters was released after serving a federal sentence.

Paul Janszen, who entered a halfway house in Cincinnati on Feb. 2, was released Friday, according to the federal Bureau of Prisons. Janszen originally was sentenced to serve six months there, but earned time off for good behavior, according to the Bureau of Prisons.

Janszen, a bodybuilder who became an FBI informant, pleaded guilty last November to filing a false income tax return for 1985 by failing to report $12,887 from the sale of steroids.

He and Rose are identified by code name in a federal court affidavit as betting with Peters. A source has confirmed that Janszen and Rose are the ones identified by code.

Peters formerly operated a restaurant in Franklin, Ohio, called Jonathan's Cafe. Federal authorities raided Peters' Franklin restaurant and his home last August, confiscating betting slips and other gambling paraphernalia.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Brichler has said that Peters told investigators he took bets on behalf of Rose that perhaps exceeded $1 million over a two-year period. Brichler represented the government Friday at Peters' sentencing.

Spiegel also ruled in another Rose-related case Friday. The judge rejected motions from the lawyer for Thomas Gioiosa seeking more evidence and witness lists from the federal government. Spiegel ruled in Gioiosa's favor on one point: he said the government has to tell the former Rose housemate whether it used electronic surveillance to gather information against him.

Gioiosa is scheduled to stand trial July 28 before Spiegel on charges of cocaine possession and distribution and evading income taxes.

Hole in one comes a little early

TWIN FALLS — The difference of 12 hours kept Fred Westerhold walking when he could have been riding.

Westerhold, playing with his wife Sheryl and Kurt and Bev Claiborn, used a No. 6-iron to record a hole in one on the par three, 172-yard 17th hole at Blue Lakes Country Club Friday evening.

That was just ahead of the Glenn Hans Memorial Scramble slated at the course today — and if Westerhold had accomplished the same feat then, he would have gone home in a new Ford Probe, highlight bonus prize of the scramble.

Giants, Tigers trade outfielders

SAINT FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants swapped outfielders with Detroit Friday, sending Tracy Jones to the Tigers for Pat Sheridan.

Sheridan, a 31-year-old left-handed hitter, batted .242 in 50 games for the Tigers this year with three home runs and 15 RBIs after hitting .254 with 11 homers and 47 RBIs last year. He's a lifetime .259 hitter and can play all three outfield positions.

Jones, 23, a right-handed batter acquired by the Giants from Montreal in the offseason, was hitting just .186 in 97 at bats, with no homers and 12 RBIs. He had seven of those RBIs on June 9 against San Diego.

NHL teams begin shuffling staff

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — On the eve of Saturday's NHL draft, several teams didn't wait to fill their needs.

The Buffalo Sabres began making changes right at the top, firing former Sabre Rick Dudley as coach to succeed Ted Lerner, who was fired Thursday.

The prolific right Philadelphia Flyers added another goaltender, familiar face Pete Feders, fueling speculation that another deal is in the works.

The St. Louis Blues signed hotshot college goalie Curtis Joseph to a megabucks contract, but weren't able to complete their second major trade in two days, as talks involving Winnipeg star Dale Hawerchuk broke off.

And the Calgary Flames sent defenseman Rob Ramage to the Toronto Maple Leafs for a second-round draft choice, the 24th overall.

Glasnost Bowl heads back to U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Illinois-Southern Cal football game, originally scheduled to be played in the Soviet Union this fall, has been rescheduled for Labor Day, Sept. 4, at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The 5 p.m. PDT contest will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Plans to hold the Glasnost Bowl in Moscow on Sept. 2 were cancelled last week by the game's organizer, Raycom Inc., because of contract difficulties with the Soviets.

Southern Cal now will have seven home games on its schedule this year.

CBA plans drug testing for players

DENVER (AP) — All players in the Continental Basketball Association will be tested for drugs when they join their teams next season, the league announced Friday.

The addition of entry testing solidifies what is already the toughest league drug policy in professional sports, CBA commissioner Jay Ramsdell said.

Last season, the CBA instituted drug testing in training camps and random tests during the season. However, the testing didn't cover many players who joined the league after the season started.

"Entry testing was the only missing element to our policy, one that I now consider comprehensive," Ramsdell said.

The CBA is the official developmental league for the National Basketball Association. The CBA opens its season in November with 16 teams.

Berteotti ahead in Keystone

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Missie Berteotti, a non-winner in four years of the PGA Tour, shot a 67 on Friday to take the first-round lead at the Lady Keystone Open.

Berteotti, who missed the cut in four of her last five appearances, had seven birdies and one bogey on the soggy West Course of the Hershey Country Club.

Long-hitting Laura Davies of England shot a 67 and was second, while Ok-Hee Ku of South Korea and Jackie Bertsch were third at 68. Betty King, Sherrin Smeyers, Pat Bradley, Marci Bozarth and Niki Cheng were tied at 69.

Berteotti started play at No. 10 and picked up birdies at 12 and 14 before taking a disappointing bogey on the 488-yard par-5 15th.

My third shot was a flir that went over the green," said Berteotti, who came back to birdie the 16th and 18th holes.

She saved par with a bunker shot at No. 1, then birdied the 540-yard second hole and the 345-yard third. Berteotti got her final birdie with a six-foot putt at No. 7.

Davies bogeyed two of the first four holes, but birdied No. 5 and eagled the 495-yard seventh hole by drilling a 3-wood 249 yards and chipping in from 30 feet. She then birdied four of the last six holes to move into second place.

Bertsch eagled the 451-yard 16th hole to join Ku in second place. Ku birdied two of the last four holes on the front and two of the last three on the back side.

Defending champion Shirley Fur-long was one of nine players at 70, along with Cindy Parick, Patty Sheehan and Kathy Postlewait.

Course conditions were less than perfect. Heavy rains Thursday night put certain areas under water.

"It looked like small lakes out there," said Pat Bradley. "I never thought we would play. The course running this tournament deserve tremendous credit for getting the course ready to play."

Baird takes lead in Northville

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Butch Baird, who has one victory in four years on the Senior PGA Tour, shot a 68 under par on Friday to take the first-round lead in the flood-plagued Northville Classic.

The opening round of the 54-hole tournament was shortened because the ninth and 14th holes of the par-72 Meadow Brook Club course were flooded by week-long rains.

"Rather than cancel the entire round, we invoked the PGA rules and elected to play 16 holes," said Brian Henning, tournament director of the Senior PGA Tour.

The two holes are still under heavy water and are unplayable. We will wait until Saturday before making any additional decisions."

Don Bies, the defending champion, and four other players trailed Baird by one stroke after the first round. Also at 69 were Paul Moran, George Lanning, Frank Beard and Orville Moody, who won last week's Senior Tournament Players Championship.

Bob Charles, the tour's leading money winner, shot a 60, a stroke better than Bob Boldt, Mike Hill and Jim Ferree.

Baird, who turns 54 next month, was pleased with his unusual round. "I never played a 16-hole round before," he said. "Once on the regular tour — I was involved in a 17-hole round."

"Today my round was very strong. I had the ball at the flag all the time and missed just one green, and that was only by 15 inches. This was the kind of round you want to have all your life."

Bies started with a bogey on the par-5 first hole, but played well the rest of the day.

"I didn't play great, but it was a nice round," he said. "I chipped well and putted well. It was too bad we couldn't play the entire course."

Moody, who won the 1969 U.S. Open, received some help from his caddy — his daughter Michelle.

"She reads the greens very well," he said. "Today, I especially need her on a couple of the holes because I have trouble focusing on the ball up close."

Market gains in heavy trading

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market moved ahead Friday in the heaviest trading volume in about five months as buyers braved the "triple witching hour."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 11.38 to 2,486.38 on the day, but was 27.01 points lower than a week earlier.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 9 to 7 in nationwide trading. In New York City, 544 stocks listed on the NYSE, with 811 up, 626 down and 644 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 244.51 million shares, down from 179.48 million in the previous session.

The unusually heavy volume on Wall Street reflected trades associated with the expiration of stock-index futures, index options and options on individual stocks. The set of expirations occur once each quarter in a monthing commonly called the "triple witching hour."

Most of the trading was concentrated around the opening and closing of the session.

Traders paid little attention to two

Time rejects buyout bid from Paramount

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Inc. Friday rejected a $10.7 billion buyout offer from Paramount Communications Inc. and launched a previously planned tender offer for Warner Communications that values Warner at more than $12.4 billion.

The move comes amid a complicated three-way battle for Time, which had announced a merger with Warner before Paramount jumped in with its own bid for Time that was launched June 7.

Paramount said today it will proceed with its unwanted $176-a-share bid.

Time and Warner had been expected to try to salvage their deal, which would create the world's largest media company.

After the announcement, Warner stock jumped 8 3/4% to $69.50 a share on the New York Stock Exchange, and Time's slipped 3 3/8% to $187.62 1/2 a share.

Paramount's unsolicited $176-a-share offer was not in the best interest of the company because it is financially inadequate and highly conditional, Time said.

Chicago grain

Wheat rose 1/8 cent to 2 1/8 cents a bushel. Corn rose 1/4 cent to 1 1/4 cents a bushel. Soybeans rose 1/4 cent to 2 1/4 cents a bushel.

Market

Continued from Page B4 government economic reports. The Labor Department said the Consumer Price Index rose 0.6 percent in May, driven up by strong increases in food and gasoline costs.

Last month's rise, close to analysts' estimates, followed a 0.7 percent April increase and was taken as a sign that inflation continues to be a problem for the American economy.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said housing construction continued to decline in May and starts on new homes fell 2.1 percent from the previous month to the lowest level since the last recession in 1982.

Warner Communications dominated the list of actively traded NYSE-listed stocks as news that Time intends to launch a $70-a-share tender offer for Warner instead of merging with Warner in a stock swap.

More than 8.2 million Warner shares changed hands in NYSE-composite trading and the stock wound up with a gain of 3/4% at 59 1/2.

Time, which also said it has rejected a $176-a-share takeover bid from Paramount Communications, pulled back by 1 1/2% to 58 3/4.

Another media stock, MCA, gained 1 1/4% to 60 in response to a Business Week magazine report that

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"No man should dogmatize, except on the subject of theology. Here he can take his stand, and by throwing the burden of proof on the oppositor, he is invulnerable. He has to die to find out whether he is right."
— Elbert Hubbard.

"I played East for the king of hearts because of his vulnerable overall," allied South. His dogmatic reasoning was only a shade better than his choice of plays.

East made a good play at trick one. Instead of playing an honor to force the ace, East inserted his nine. Had East played an honor, South could have ducked, making it impossible for West to lead a second round of clubs.

South won his club jack performance and led a spade to dummy's ace to try the heart finesse. Much to South's surprise, West won the king and punched back another club, knocking out South's ace. There were only eight tricks without the diamonds, and South was forced to concede an embarrassing one down.

It was not unreasonable for South to have placed the heart king with East. But he should have first tested the diamonds. After winning his club jack, South should have crossed to dummy's spade ace to lead a low diamond from dummy. Had East been able to duck the diamond ace, South's king would have won and the hearts could have been tried for a cinch game and possible overtricks. When East's singleton ace appears, South no longer needs the heart finesse, and he wins 10 tricks, taking the marked diamond finesse against West.
