Sales tax on mail orders takes effect in Idaho today

The Associated Press

New DUI law — A4

BOISE — Merchandise bought through mail-order catalogs is less of a bargain in Idaho starting this weekend, thanks to a new state law that requires direct-sales companies to collect Idaho's 6-percent sales tax.

Members of the state Tax Commission spent some time during the past week planning how to implement the law without getting into long, expensive court battles.

companies pay the 6-percent sales tax and allow out-of-state competitors to escape it. Young said sales tax collections in California went up $24 million to $25 million per year when that state started taxing mail-order sales.

Budget surplus forecasts grow

The Associated Press

BOISE — The state closed its books on the 1989 budget year on Friday, and predictions about a surplus in that budget continued to grow.

Fire in Atlanta building kills 4, leaves scores hurt

The Associated Press

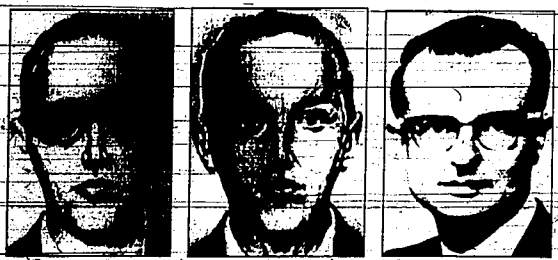

ATLANTA — A fire touched off by a series of explosions sent choking smoke through a 10-story office building Friday, killing at least four people and injuring dozens.

the source of the explosions. The blaze began on the sixth floor but spread two floors below and one above, said Sandra Walker, a spokeswoman for Mayor Andrew Young.

List 'major suspect' in '71 skyjack case

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — An FBI agent who investigated the D.B. Cooper skyjacking said Friday there are a number of similarities between Cooper and a man recently arrested in an 18-year-old New Jersey multiple murder case.

FBI spokesman John Eyer in Seattle said Thursday that List was being investigated in the skyjacking, but said it was routine.

FCC sets up pricing cap for phone service

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission cleared the way Friday for a historic change in the way prices are established by the nation's largest long-distance provider, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

price cap plan which AT&T claims will lower prices $140 million immediately — $100 million for residential customers.

Laws

Approved during the last legislative session dealt with Idaho's efforts to crack down on child sexual abuse.
The tougher new laws on child abuse:
- Allow testimony of child-abuse victims to be presented on closed-circuit television when testimony in a courtroom would be traumatic for the child.
- Allow victims of child sex abuse to sue molesters for compensatory and civil damages.
- Establish the crime of male rape.
- Require victims of rape and sexual abuse to be notified of the results of tests for acquired immunodeficiency syndrome - AIDS - in their attackers.
- Extend the statute of limitations for prosecution of child abusers until the victim reaches age 23.
- Allow a "supportive person," such as a parent or friend, to be at the witness stand when a child testifies.
- Extend laws and gagging conduct laws to protect 16- and 17-year-olds. They now protect only those under age 16.
- Require prosecutors to advise child victims and victims of violent crime when they are considering a plea bargain agreement with defendant.
- Another new law makes it easier for battered spouses to win protective court orders.
- The Legislature also acted to crack down on drug pushers. New laws make it illegal to manufacture certain inhalants, including one known as "frush," make possession of LSD felony and make improper use of anabolic steroids a felony.
- Attorney General Jim Jones also pushed through a "grass tax" bill, requiring drug dealers to buy a state tax stamp before selling. It poses fines and forfeitures (up to 100 percent) on violations as another way of getting at the property of assets of drug dealers.
But despite the penalties, Young said he doubts any drug dealers will be lining up to buy the stamps.

Also starting Saturday, Idaho foster parents get a break with a sharp increase in the reimbursement rate for their expenses. The change was seen as necessary to encourage more people to take foster children into their homes.
The rate for children under 6 goes from $138 per month to $208; for children 6-12, from $165 to $230 and the rate for teen-agers goes from $204 to $308 per month.
Some state election laws change this weekend, but politicians won't feel the impact until next spring.
Candidates will have to file for a place on the ballot two weeks earlier starting in 1990, and political parties will not be able to fill vacancies on the ballot through appointments.
The changes are aimed at closing the ballot earlier so they can be printed in April. That will allow them to be sent to absentee voters and back to county clerks by the May 22 primary election.
From now on, voters also will be able to cast ballots if they move within a county just before an election. They had been disenfranchised, but now will be able to vote after signing a statement that they are qualified voters.
Starting today, state agencies will not be able to acquire, build, take possession of or enter into a lease-purchase agreement for facilities that have not been approved by the Legislature.
That came in response to Boise State University's decision last year to issue bonds for a new technology center before the matter was brought before the Legislature.
With the new fiscal year also comes a requirement that 96 percent of the logs produced on state land must be sold to "qualified bidders," that will process them in Idaho. The law is an attempt to ensure Idaho sawmills have enough timber to keep them open.
Legislators also established a new licensing board to certify athletic trainers, and hiked the cost of vehicle license plates by 80 cents.

Some of the new laws are housekeeping measures. References to probate courts and justice of the peace courts are deleted from state laws on appeals, since those courts were eliminated years ago. Obsolete references to the duties of constables also are wiped out, since that job no longer exists.
Certain real estate laws become gender-neutral, eliminating references to "salesmen."
From now on, on Sept. 17, Idaho will hold special commemorative ceremonies noting the signing of the U.S. Constitution. And Burley officially becomes Cassia County seat. An old law says it's Albion:
Several environmental protection laws go into effect, including new standards for water-pollution control and the establishment of clean lakes and groundwater councils to protect water quality.
And finally, in a matter that tied up the Senate for hours, the three-member Lava Hot Springs Foundation Board goes to five members, and two must live in the southeastern Idaho resort community.

Judge jails Lukens as sex offender
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - A judge said Friday he was convinced U.S. Rep. Donald Lukens is a sex offender and sentenced him to 30 days in jail and a $600 fine for having sex with a 16-year-old girl last year.
"This court is particularly struck by the unwillingness of the defendant to recognize that he was not the victim," Franklin County Domestic Relations Judge Ronald Solove said, adding that he could not excuse Lukens' contention that he was "somehow seduced by a child."
Lukens' face appeared ashen as Solove sentenced him to the maximum penalty on the misdemeanor charge of contributing to the unruliness of a child - 180 days in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Private tour link remains unknown
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Secret Service does not know who might have authorized a private White House tour allegedly given to members of a homosexual prostitution ring now under federal investigation, a spokesman said Friday.
The focus on private White House tours came after The Washington Times reported that Craig J. Spence, a prominent Washington lobbyist and one-time registered foreign agent for Japan, arranged tours of the White House for friends and business associates.

In rejecting the challenge Friday, the commission said AT&T had complied with its April price cap order in setting the new rates and it was not flowing through savings.
The commission said it found some "deficiencies" in AT&T documents supporting its new prices but that the laws were "not so serious as to warrant investigation."
"The tariff will therefore not be set for investigation," said Gerald Brock, chief of the commission's common carrier bureau.

Desiderio Comptel, the challengers were Alascom Inc., Allnet Communications Services Inc., US Sprint Communications Co. and the National Telecommunications Network. The state of Alaska had joined Alascom in challenging the rates for service to Alaska.
Earlier in the week, the commission also rejected challenges to price caps filed by the Puerto Rico Telephone Co. and La Telefonica Larga Distancia, a Puerto Rican long-distance company. The commission had denied the Puerto Rican companies claims that price caps were not in the public interest.
The price-cap plan allows AT&T, which in 1988 controlled 68 percent of the U.S. long-distance market, to raise rates 3 percentage points less than the rate of inflation in three categories of service: residential and small business; 800 calls; and other business services, mainly for large customers.
AT&T can raise or lower rates up to 5 percent for individual services within these categories by giving 30 days notice to the FCC, which will presume the changes to be lawful.

Surplus

The Division of Public Works has all it can handle, and approving more projects in a special session instead of waiting until next year wouldn't get them built any quicker, Andrus said.
Andrus said he expects to run for re-election next year, and probably will make it official about January.
But a Republican who is thinking about running against him says she thinks Andrus is playing political with his talk about a special session for the BSU bond issue.
Sen. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, said she opposes calling a special session because the state would lose money it could earn by investing the surplus.

Gem court upholds use of blood-alcohol measuring device

BOISE (AP) — In a decision which could have important implications for law enforcement agencies, the Idaho Supreme Court has upheld the use of a machine used to measure blood-alcohol content in drunken driving cases.

The attorney general's office appealed a 2nd District Court ruling against the use of evidence produced by an Intoximeter 3000, a machine commonly used in the state in drunken driving cases.

In a decision written by Justice Bryce Johnson, the court ruled 3-1 that District Judge E.B. Ponack was wrong when he suppressed evidence from the machine in a Nez Perce drunken driving case.

Brer L.R. Wilson had a blood-alcohol content of 0.17 percent in a machine-reading, court records said. A reading of 0.10 is legally drunk in Idaho.

He won a ruling from Ponack that the Intoximeter 3000 was not certified for use in Idaho with a cell deactivated. The cell detected acetone and made adjustments for it in the alcohol reading. Ponack also ruled that the Lewiston Police Department was not certified as a forensic alcohol laboratory for breath tests using the machine.

Justice Stephen Batline dissented. The late Allan Shepard was in the case, but died of a heart attack before the ruling was issued.

The majority ruled the Lewiston department was certified. It also held that the Intoximeter-300, with the acetone-detecting cell deactivated, was approved by the Department of Health and Welfare at the time it was used in the case and did not have to be "certified."

In another decision issued Friday, the Supreme Court unanimously upheld an Industrial Commission ruling in favor of Marin-Harrison, former employee of Oasco Drug, Inc. at Idaho Falls.

The woman claimed disability benefits after slipping on a piece of carbon paper in 1985 and suffering a back injury. Oasco contested the award.

The Supreme Court ruled there was sufficient medical testimony to justify the award, and approved her appeal asking for attorney fees.

Jones says Andrus' waste ban legal

BOISE (AP) — They disagree on most issues, but Attorney General Jim Jones says Gov. Cecil Andrus had legal grounds for banning shipments of nuclear waste bound for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory last fall.

In a letter Thursday to Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., Jones said the General Accounting Office was wrong in its assessment that Andrus had overstepped his constitutional authority by stopping the U.S. Department of Energy shipments.

The attorney general said his staff's research indicated that although federal law may preclude direct state regulation of nuclear waste transportation, the continued transportation of nuclear waste for storage at INEL could be blocked until DOE has complied with the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act.

Andrus, Church families to unite

BOISE (AP) — Two of Idaho's most famous families are being united by marriage.

Kelly Andrus, the youngest daughter of Gov. Cecil D. and Carol Andrus, confirmed Friday she plans to marry Chase Church, son of the late Frank Church, who for 24 years was U.S. senator from Idaho, and his wife Bethune.

The couple plans a wedding late this summer or early fall.

Ms. Andrus, 28, who works as a legal secretary for a Boise attorney, said it will be a private family ceremony at an undisclosed site.

She said she and Church, 31, plan to live in Boise.

Honor work camp plan still alive

BOISE (AP) — The Board of Correction says it still is considering putting an honor work camp in an old Forest Center camp in northern Idaho, as the best way of easing Idaho's continuing prison overcrowding problem.

The Department of Correction said earlier it has been negotiating with the Forest Service for the camp at Prichard, north of Kellogg, as a place where minimum security prisoners could be housed.

Some local residents have objected to the proposal, saying they don't want state prison inmates in their area and particularly in recreation areas.

Nampa packer pays $150,000 fine

BOISE (AP) — A Nampa meat packing operation has paid a $150,000 federal penalty for dumping waste matter into a Canyon County stream, the U.S. attorney's office says.

U.S. Attorney Maurice Ellsworth said Friday Armour Fresh Meats Co. and ConAgra, Inc. paid the civil penalty under a consent agreement. It was filed with Federal court in Boise May 30 and became final on Friday after a 30-day comment period and approval by Judge Marion Callister.

Ellsworth said under the agreement, the defendants are permanently enjoined from violating the Clean Water Act or provisions of their National Pollution Discharge Elimination System permit.

PUC completes phone line changes

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has finalized changes aimed at strengthening the requirement that phone companies enable customers to block access from their phones to pay-per-call information services.

Firefighters battle Weiser onion warehouse blaze for 11 hours

WEISER (AP) — An investigation was under way Friday into the cause of a fire that destroyed a Weiser onion packing and storage warehouse.

Damage to the Leon Products warehouse was estimated at $1.25 million, said Kathy Dashiell, a Weiser Fire Department dispatcher.

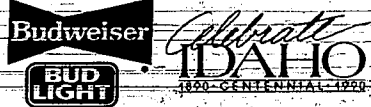

About 100 firefighters from 10 departments fought into the early morning hours Friday before controlling the blaze that was reported at 4:16 p.m. Thursday. Crews were released at 3 a.m. Friday, but some firefighters remained on the scene hours later mopping up.

Mr. Dashiell said three firefighters were treated at a nearby hospital and released. One suffered from smoke inhalation, another from heat exhaustion and a third got fuel in his eyes.

Besides crews in Weiser, firefighters and equipment responded to the scene from New Plymouth, Fruitland, Payette and Ontario, Ore. Midvale, Council, Cambridge and Huntington, Ore., also sent crews.

The warehouse was empty except for some onion sacks, boxes and crates. Ms. Dashiell said there was no indication what started the blaze.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Man provides key to accident investigation

RUPERT—A Twin Falls man Friday provided the final piece to a puzzle over the cause of a June 17 car accident that killed a Rupert couple.

David Garner of Twin Falls contacted Cassia County deputies, apparently after his employer read a Times-News article, said Lt. Jim Hignens of the sheriff's department.

Garner was traveling on U.S. Highway 30 when a raft blew out of his vehicle and landed on the road, Hignens said. A car driven by Dario Garcia of Rupert swerved to avoid the raft, colliding with a car driven by Paul Hobson, Hignens said.

Garcia and his wife, Karen, died in the accident—Hobson, his wife and their five children were injured.

Garner stopped, his wife ran for help and Garner remained on the scene to help the injured, Hignens said. Garner left when a sheriff's deputy, who didn't know Garner witnessed the accident, told him he could go on.

No criminal charges will be filed in the accident, Hignens said.

Campers beware: fire danger remains high

TWIN FALLS—Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management officials warn that fire danger in the woods is high and urge all campers to take extra care over the holiday weekend.

Recent dry weather has left logs and stumps dry as tinder despite a wet winter. The fire danger is high and headed for extreme, officials warn. They also remind campers that fireworks are illegal on all public lands.

Campers are asked to take extra care with fire by clearing a large circle, at least 10 feet, around campfires, smoking only in area or developed areas where cigarettes can be safely extinguished and not to park cars dry grass or hot mufflers can start fires.

Northside branch may be abandoned; IPUC to decide

WEDEL—The proposed abandonment of Union Pacific's Northside branch from here to Bliss will be the subject of a public hearing Thursday.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will hear public comments on the abandonment at 10:30 a.m. in the Wendell Elementary School Multipurpose Room, 100 Third Ave. East, Wendell.

The railroad earlier decided against abandoning the line to Jerome after considerable public outcry.

Health District office to close Monday to move

SHOSHONE—The Health District office will be closed Monday so it can be moved to 119 W. A.S.

Regular immunization clinics are available from 2-4 p.m. the second and third Mondays and 2-6 p.m. the fourth Monday of the month. The school booster clinic will be from 2-6 p.m. July 31.

Host families for foreign exchange students wanted

TWIN FALLS—Host families are being sought for high school exchange students from the following countries: Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, West Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Ecuador, Australia and Japan.

The American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE) sponsors this exchange program each school year and is looking for homes throughout the country for foreign students.

The students, age 15 to 17, are fluent in English and stay for one year, from August until July.

Contact Gayla Freeman at 233-2553 in Pocatello or call 1-800-SIBLING for more information.

Budweiser distributor to donate to Centennial fund

TWIN FALLS—Southern Idaho Distributing Co., the local distributor for Anheuser-Busch products, will donate 25 cents for every case of Budweiser and Bud Light beer sold during July to support the Idaho Centennial Commission.

Through this program last year, Anheuser-Busch donated $20,455 to the Centennial to support special events in the greater Twin Falls area and around the state through 1990.

Jones says farmers may have known of illegalities at Hawkins

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

FILER—An attorney general's investigation into the Hawkins Co. Ltd. warehouse failure could be complicated by the possibility that some farmers knew how the failed warehouse was being managed, Attorney General Jim Jones said Friday.

"Some of the actions that were taken possibly could have been known to people dealing with the folks," Jones said.

But a member of a now-defunct Hawkins growers' committee doubted whether Filer area farmers knew of criminal conduct at the warehouse.

"I don't think anybody knew that there was anything wrong," said Roger Vincent, one of the Filer farmers who had beans in the warehouse. "I think there was an uneasy feeling because people were being put off on payments.

Jones' comments came as a bankruptcy judge in Boise held hearings on who owns the beans in the warehouse. Farmers are fighting to have the beans released to them. U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Alfred Hagan did not rule on the motions.

The warehouse's license was suspended late last year after a year-end audit revealed inventory shortages. The company's directors filed for bankruptcy in January.

The attorney general's criminal division initiated its investigation in February.

The problem, Jones said, is "not so much that any of the farmers could have been part of any criminal conduct." But if a farmer knew of criminal actions, he may have implicitly approved of those actions.

"That's something that needs to be pinned down," he said.

"If I'm told I'm going to get $18 for beans, but knowingly accept $15 and don't make a complaint, I may not be able to say I was cheated," Jones explained.

Jones declined to elaborate on the task-force investigation, and no charges have been filed. He didn't say whether he expected charges to be filed.

For now, the attorney general is looking for money to fund an audit for his investigation.

"We've been trying to get an audit so we can do a better job of figuring out where the assets have gone," he said. An audit, hopefully funded by the Risk Management Bureau of the Department of Administration, would "improve our

Wine tasting will tempt your palate

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Wine has a way of making fools of us—even before we lift the glass.

Faced with a decision between white, burgundy, bluish, sparkling, fruity, dry, light, full-bodied, imported or domestic, shoppers are likely to play it safe with something familiar—rather than risk buying a bottle that might send a dinner guest gasping for his water goblet.

"Karl Joslin hopes to help Twin Falls escape all that by opening the city's first wine store and tasting room.

"Many people walk by a wine display and look at the bottles and read the labels," he said. "But it will help to have somebody there to give an opinion, to help pick a wine for a meal or to help them pick something new."

The new wine store, appropriately named "The Grape Escape," is located in two joined-together houses on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. In addition to selling wine, beer and a few gourmet food items, the store will offer wine tasting as well as sell wine by the glass, to be consumed in the Grape Escape's main tasting room or covered patio.

Joslin, a farmer who works 1,500 acres outside of Twin Falls, said a good year for agriculture in 1988 allowed him to try out his idea for a local wine store.

"He went into the venture without heavy financing or other partners, but is relying heavily on the expertise of his manager, Tom Rexroad, who has restaurant experience in Boise.

"I have done a lot of daydreaming about this," Joslin said. "In a way Tom is living my hobby, while I'm concentrating on the farm."

Joslin's Grape Escape is off to a modest start with an inventory of just under 1,000 bottles of wine—representing 270 labels—along with 29 labels of imported and domestic beers.

INEL manager addresses key issues in nuclear progress

By N.S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Cold fusion research at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory has not been successful—so far, said site manager Don Ofte.

"If it's real, it's truly spectacular," Ofte told a Chamber of Commerce luncheon Friday. "It would open new horizons in atomic research."

Research into cold fusion started at INEL following the discovery by two University of Utah scientists earlier this year of a possible nuclear process that generated energy by fusing hydrogen atoms.

Ofte spoke Friday at a luncheon marking the opening of an INEL public relations office in Twin Falls.

Before the luncheon, Ofte spoke about his years as the Energy Department's manager of the beleaguered Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant in Golden, Colo. The plant, which manufactures plutonium triggers for nuclear bombs, recently is under investigation by the U.S. Department of Justice and the FBI for environmental health and safety violations.

"Frankly, I was surprised," Ofte said about the investigation, which alleges illegal liquid radioactive discharges. But when Ofte was at the plant it had "zero discharge" of liquid, he said.

All liquids were evaporated and the remaining solids shipped to Nevada for disposal, he said.

It was doing something it shouldn't, he said.

The contractor under investigation at Rocky Flats, Rockwell International, also has a small, highly classified operation at INEL with about 500 employees.

Ofte told the luncheon crowd about a number of projects at INEL, including one involving training bacteria to eat fish waste in hatchery raceways.

He immediately after the luncheon, Ofte left to visit the College of Southern Idaho's hatchery to discuss a possible program for developing a strain of bacteria that would clean up hatchery effluent.

INEL is currently working on projects involving bacteria that would devour hazardous wastes and some that would turn potato waste into usable proteins. Ofte said.

Radioactive waste management at the eastern Idaho site also has received increased attention this year, he said. Several demonstration projects will done this summer including a method for sucking organic solvent vapors up out of the ground beneath the buried waste site at INEL.

Solvents from the waste have moved down through the basalt into the Snake

County scraps plan to finance Rainbow's exit

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Cold cash that Rainbow Family members have been giving to local vendors have helped convince officials to abandon a plan to finance their exit.

County officials have considered providing gas for penniless Rainbows to remove all barriers to their departure once their celebration of peace and love is over.

"I don't think that is the way to do it," said Sheriff Jim Mann.

Although the Humboldt-National Forest gathering is in northeastern Nevada, access to the area is mainly in Twin Falls County, Mann said.

Commissioner Marvin Hupleman said he had considered funding Rainbow gas tanks with indigent-assistance funds, but found that it would be illegal.

Munn said Rainbows have been seen paying for groceries and supplies with large bills in Bogerson.

"They seem to have no shortage of money," Munn said.

He said it is likely that a practice of sharing food and supplies during the week-long event will carry over to the exodus.

If the county had decided to start filling some gas tanks, then all the Rainbows could claim they did not have money either.

A Rainbow adherent stopping in Twin Falls en route to the gathering confirmed the group's intent to provide gas to needy participants.

DUI laws get tougher this weekend

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—This Fourth of July, a time for celebrating and parties, is the first weekend for state laws designed to make it tougher on drivers who refuse breath or urine tests.

Drivers who refuse twice in a five-year period to be tested for drugs or alcohol will lose their license for one year under the new law.

"That is a severe penalty," said John Horgan, Jerome County prosecutor.

Starting today, judges won't have the discretion to approve restricted driving privileges for defendants who have their license revoked. The severe penalties could keep intoxicated drivers off the streets and public highways.

"The laws we end up with are the ones that are the ones refusing to take the test," said Pat Byron, sheriff of Twin Falls police commander.

In addition to a one-year suspension for a second refusal, a new law lets policemen stop a driver on a "drug test" if police have "probable cause" to believe a driver is on alcohol.

"That please to Dave Neal of the Idaho State Police.

"One of the things that was happening in the past was that people were smoking marijuana and making the smell with a couple of beers," Neal said.

Drivers who mix drugs with alcohol are more dangerous than drunk drivers, Neal said. "I call them space cadets," he said.

One-ida bike race to close 2nd Avenue-N.

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—Portions of Second Avenue North from Shastone Street to Addison Avenue and adjoining side streets will be closed this morning to allow the One-Ida bicycle race to come through Twin Falls.

Second Avenue North will be closed to traffic at 11:30 a.m., said Sgt. Jim Massey of the Twin Falls County Department.

The street was closed to parking at 1 a.m. and will remain closed until 2 p.m. today, Massey said.

Cars remaining in the race area will be towed, he said.

Police suggest motorists take Fourth Avenue North or Sixth Avenue North as alternative routes.

Race coordinators, wearing red T-shirts with One-Ida race logos, will be stationed along the route to direct traffic, Massey said.

Eighty-three cyclists are expected to end the 10th leg of the 11-day race at about 12:30 p.m. The finish line will be set near the Obenchain Insurance building and Idaho Power Co. offices at Second Avenue North and Third Street West.

Riders will turn the wrong way onto Second Avenue from Addison Avenue, Spectators are welcome to line the route, Massey said.

The West Five Points intersection at Addison and Second Avenue North and other adjoining streets may also be closed for approximately 15 minutes to allow racers to make the finish-line turn.

"If you can avoid West Five Points, we'd sure appreciate it," Massey said.

Fish veteran Eggleston having stroke of bad luck

By N.S. NOKKENTVED

FILBR—During his more than 20 years in the fish business, Rick Eggleston never lost large numbers of fish—until two weeks ago.

About two weeks ago he lost nearly 60,000 pounds of trout. Earlier this week he lost 57,000 fish about two or three weeks from harvest in another pond near Filer.

Last October he lost about 28,000 pounds of trout.

"I seem to have trouble keeping them alive," Eggleston said.

But the plague of fish kills hasn't put Eggleston out of business.

Eggleston has about 100 fish rearing ponds strung out from American Falls to Hagerman, some are leased, some his own. His p... Don goal is 1 million pounds of

AT&T custom service wins OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission gave American Telephone & Telegraph Co. the go-ahead Friday to offer customized long-distance service to large corporate and government customers.

The commission, denying challenges by MCI Communications Corp., US Sprint and others, said AT&T's so-called Tariff 12 had not been shown to be illegal or discriminatory.

The decision was seen as a major victory for AT&T, battling to retain a share of the important market for custom-designed networks that large companies use for internal communications. The FCC originally declared the plan illegal in an April 18 ruling because it was not equally available to all customers with similar needs. But the commission suspended a two-year investigation and allowed AT&T to continue offering the plan while giving the company 30 days to revise it.

AT&T filed a revision in May in the midst of a slow-of-challenges-by-competitors who said the tariff was a disguise for predatory pricing. AT&T said in its revised offering that it wouldn't penalize companies that dropped the plan, also adding some services and changing some rates.

Gerald Brock, FCC common carrier bureau chief, said Friday that "no compelling argument has been presented that the proposed tariff is so patently unfair as to warrant rejection."

He also said there was no evidence that further investigation was warranted.

"The controversy stems solely from competitors attempting to roll regulatory logs at AT&T each time it wins what they have 'lost' in fair, open competition," said AT&T spokesman Herb Linnem. US Sprint spokeswoman Janis Langley said the FCC action was further evidence "of the illegality and unlawfulness."

Factory orders down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to factories for manufactured goods tumbled 2.5 percent in May, the steepest drop in 10 months.

The government report Friday provided more evidence of a weakening economy caused by high interest rates.

The "big decline" indicates the economy is slowing more sharply than expected and underlines the Federal Reserve must actively move to lower interest rates," said Jerry Jasnowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

"We're at a point now, where the slowdown may get away from us if the Fed doesn't respond soon," Jasnowski said.

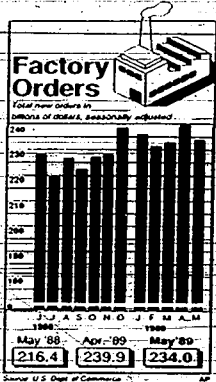

The Commerce Department reported the decline in orders for both durable and non-durable goods to a seasonally adjusted $234 billion last month was the steepest falloff since orders dropped 3.6 percent in July 1988.

Until recently, interest rates had been rising as a result of the Fed's efforts to restrain inflation by tightening credit. The downturn in factory orders last month reflected other reports recently of a slowing economy.

"Most analysts believe that the Fed is steering the economy to a so-called soft landing, rather than a recession, and there already have been signs it is easing its grip on credit."

Orders for durable goods, big-ticket items expected to last more than three years, represented virtually all of the May decline. They were off 4.5 percent to $122.6 billion, even worse than a preliminary report last week that they had fallen 4.2 percent.

Home-buying power drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — An index measuring the ability of the typical American family to buy a home fell in May to its lowest level in three years, primarily because of increases in mortgage rates, the National Association of Realtors reported Friday.

The real-estate trade group said its affordability index was at 100.1 last month, down from 103.2 in April and the lowest since May 1986 when it measured 99.8.

May's index level meant that a family earning the median income of $32,644 annually had 0.1 percent more income than needed to qualify for a mortgage covering 80 percent of the purchase price of a median-priced home.

The median price for an existing home in May was $93,100, meaning half the homes sold for more and half for less. May's median price was up $200 from April's $92,900.

The mortgage rate used to calculate the index rose to 10.46 percent from 10.08 percent in April. The rate represents a non-part of fixed and adjustable rates. The Realtors group predicts better housing affordability conditions as adjustable rates follow the fixed rates downward trend.

Bush calls for affirmative action to reach out to minority citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush told civil rights leaders Friday that he supports affirmative action and minority outreach programs.

The president said he will be satisfied with "nothing less than equality of opportunity for all Americans."

He drew applause from 200 people in the East Room of the White House when he called on Congress "to join me in a new partnership to reauthorize the Civil Rights Commission with a goal of launching a renewed civil rights mission."

The commission's six-year authorization expires Nov. 30.

Civil rights leaders Jesse Jackson, Martin Luther King III, Benjamin Hooks, Vernon Jordan and James Farmer were at the ceremony to mark the 25th anniversary of the landmark Civil Rights Act of 1964, signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on July 2, 1964.

The act banned segregation in public accommodations and paved the way for court action to end bias in hiring and promotions.

Also in the audience was Rosa Parks, whose defiant refusal to move to the back of a Montgomery, Ala., bus on Dec. 1, 1955, was an early milestone in the civil rights movement.

Bush said the gathering was "not only to commemorate an anniversary, but to celebrate a movement, and to rededicate our efforts to the unfinished work of that movement."

However, some civil rights leaders say recent Supreme Court decisions have hurt the civil rights movement.

There was more damage done to civil rights statutes in the last 2½ weeks than in the last 2½ decades, said Ralph Nease, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

The court recently issued decisions to restrict affirmative action programs and make it more difficult for plaintiffs to prove discrimination in the workplace.

Jackson told reporters that justice had become "more expensive, more distant and less likely to come" because the high court shifted emphasis for remedies on intent to violate civil rights rather than the effect of such violations.

"He said 'we need a meeting of some substance with the president to deal with legislative remedies to offset the impact' of the Supreme Court decisions."

Civil rights leaders have said Bush seems more interested in defending the flag than the ideals the flag represents, alluding to his call for a constitutional amendment to outlaw desecration of the flag.

Bush did not directly address civil rights leaders' concerns Friday, but called for "vigilant and aggressive enforcement of civil rights and said his administration won't tolerate discrimination."

Judge denies Oliver North a mistrial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal judge in Oliver North's Iran-Contra case denied a motion for a mistrial Friday, saying a juror probably lied to the court but "had no desire to help or to hurt North."

The ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell clears the way for North to be sentenced Wednesday.

The former White House aide was convicted of aiding and abetting an obstruction of Congress, altering and destroying documents and illegally accepting a gratuity.

His lawyers sought a mistrial, disclosing after the May 4 verdict that juror Tara Leigh King had given incorrect information about her background. King answered "no" when asked whether she or any relatives had been involved in court proceedings or an investigation.

King failed to disclose that her brother, Sam King, had served time in prison for armed robbery and that she had been questioned, subpoenaed and testified before a grand jury in connection with that investigation.

At a Wednesday hearing, King testified that she had forgotten about the proceedings against her brother.

"The court cannot credit King's testimony that she failed to mention her brother Sam's recent conviction by plea of guilty because she forgot," Gesell said in a nine-page ruling.

But he said "no proof was presented indicating that King was unfair or that she failed in any way to serve conscientiously. She voted to acquit North of many felony counts."

King was not biased for or against either side," Gesell said.

North, who could be fined up to $750,000 and sentenced to 10 years in prison for the three felony convictions, was acquitted on nine other charges.

States begin JOBS program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen states will be able to begin programs today to help poor families get off welfare and become self-sufficient by requiring aid recipients to participate in education, job training and work programs.

The Department of Health and Human Services said Friday it has approved the plans of these states, which will be the first to implement the Job Opportunity and Basic Skills training program.

JOBS, as it is known, is a $8.3 billion, five-year initiative that is the centerpiece of a welfare overhaul passed by Congress last year.

The states are Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Iowa, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

All states must implement a JOBS program by Oct. 1, 1990.

The legislation and regulations proposed by HHS in April allow each state to design its own program within broad federal guidelines. HHS must approve a state's JOBS plan before it can be put into effect and receive federal money.

Under the guidelines, one parent in two-parent welfare families will have to work at least 16 hours a week in the public or private sector as a condition for receiving benefits. Also, single welfare parents with children 3 years and older will have to participate in employment and training programs, and teen-age parents who have not completed high school will have to return to school or work toward an equivalent diploma.

States also have to guarantee child care for parents who participate in JOBS programs.

States will have to bring 7 percent of their caseload in Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs under the new plan initially and 20 percent by 1994.

Some states will be able to begin programs today to help poor families get off welfare and become self-sufficient by requiring aid recipients to participate in education, job training and work programs.

IRS to release revised forms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service proposed on Friday several changes designed to improve 1989 individual income tax forms and announced new forms for reporting children's investment income and additional capital gains.

It is the third year the IRS has released the new forms and asked the public to comment and offer suggestions.

One new form, numbered 8874, will allow parents to report on their own tax return the investment income of dependent children under 14. Last year, such children with investment income over $1,000 were required to file their own returns and were taxed at their parents' rate.

The IRS also plans a new Schedule D-1, a continuation sheet for Schedule D that can be used to list additional capital gains and losses.

Copies of the forms can be obtained from: Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, Va. 23266.

The IRS said taxpayers who have other suggestions for improving the forms should send them by July 30 to: Tax Forms Committee, Attn: Early Release, Internal Revenue Service, Room 6677, 1111 Constitution Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20224.

Generic drug now being investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations that a generic drug was marketed for more than a year without having been fully tested raises questions about the drug's safety as well as the government's drug-approval process, a congressman said Friday.

Meanwhile, the president of Vitarine, a New York generic drug manufacturer, said his company was cooperating with an FDA investigator into allegations that it falsified test samples to win approval for its version of Dyazide, a popular drug used to treat high blood pressure.

The House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee alleged that Vitarine, instead of using its own drug for comparison tests with the original drug, Dyazide, substituted Dyazide for its product.

The result, the subcommittee said, was that a sample of Dyazide was tested against another sample of Dyazide and the Vitarine sample was never measured against the original.

Zhao loses final government post as Deng finishes purge of former protege

BEIJING (AP) — China's senior leader Deng Xiaoping on Friday completed the purge of his one-time protege Zhao Ziyang, who was dismissed after expressing sympathy for the student-led movement for democratic reforms.

Zhao was fired from his last government post, vice chairman of the Central Military Commission. He was effectively stripped of power more than a month ago after he paid a fearful visit on May 19 to students on a hunger strike in Tiananmen Square. He has not been seen in public since. Hundreds of thousands of students and their supporters flocked to the square, the symbolic center of China, until the military crushed the 1976 tourists today to mark the 88th anniversary of the founding of the party, according to the official newspaper, the People's Daily. "Since comrade Zhao Ziyang has committed serious mistakes, I proposed his dismissal from the vice chairmanship of the Central Military Commission," Deng said in a letter to the National People's Congress. The state-run Xinhua News Agency said the legislature's Standing Committee carried out Deng's wishes. The congress has little power and mainly serves as a forum to publicize party policy.

Military coup ousts Sudan's civilian rulers

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Officers led by a paratroop corps brigadier ousted the civilian government of Prime Minister Sadek Mahdi in a bloodless coup Friday and assumed dictatorial powers.

The officers leading the coup — Sudan's fourth in 33 years — suspended the constitution, declared a state of emergency and banned independent newspapers, according to Egypt's Middle East News Agency.

They warned they may punish violent opposition to the coup with death, but promised non-partisan, non-racist government in the nation divided by a southern war between dominant Moslem northerners of Arab descent and a black Nubian minority of Christians and animists.

The war has cost the government a ruinous $1 billion, and it has run up a foreign debt of $13 billion. Soaring inflation and widespread consumer shortages caused food riots in Khartoum earlier this year.

The new rulers took power shortly after midnight, the news agency said, and declared themselves a National Salvation Revolution council under the chairmanship of Brig. Omar Hassan Ahmed Bashir. He is the third-ranking officer in the paratroop corps.

Israeli hikers assert rights

BATTIR, Occupied West Bank (AP) — About 2,000 Israelis guarded by soldiers hiked and drove through the West Bank and Gaza Strip on Friday in a symbolic exercise of Jewish rights in the occupied lands.

They participated in 40 demonstrations organized by the settler movement Gush Emunim, or Bloc of the Faithful. The group ordered the hikers avoid isolated Palestinian villages and be guarded by military patrols.

Military spokesmen said there were no serious problems. Palestinian witnesses reported minor incidents of West Bank residents throwing stones at Jewish settlers in Hebron and near Bethlehem.

About 20 soldiers of the elite Golan Brigade landed by helicopter to stop a like number of men and boys from making an unescorted hike into Battir, a village near Bethlehem.

"This is a minority creating trouble," said Maj. Gen. Amram-Mitzna, head of the army's central command. He spoke to reporters after alighting from the helicopter about a mile from the village.

"If we have to arrest them, we'll arrest them," he said. "We won't let them go anywhere." The hikers, members of American-born Rabbi Meir Kahane's militant Kach Party, carried automatic rifles, knives, clubs and party flags with a fist set in the Star of David.

Soviet officer criticizes navy

MOSCOW (AP) — A veteran navy officer said in an article published Friday that Soviet nuclear submarines are disasters waiting to happen, and he blamed the navy for two recent submarine accidents that killed 42 sailors.

Construction deficiencies, plus imperfect crew rescue equipment, plus the startling slowness and inertia of the naval agencies in introducing new ideas — such, in my opinion, is the alarming formula of the recent emergencies and tragedies," said Ilya D. Kolton, who served aboard Soviet submarines for 30 years.

He now works as an atomic energy researcher. Kolton, whose comments were published in the Communist Party youth newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, accused top navy brass of trying to cover up problems in the world's largest submarine fleet.

On Monday, a pipe burst in the cooling system of a reactor aboard an Echo II-class submarine.

Betsy King hangs on to lead in du Maurier
MONTREAL (AP) — Betsy King shot a 3-under-par 68 on Friday to maintain a one-stroke lead in the $600,000 du Maurier Classic, while Nancy Lopez had the day's best round, 67, to move into a tie for third.
Tammie Green matched King's round over the 6,261-yard Beemensfield Golf Club to hold second place halfway through the richest tournament on the LPGA Tour.

Beard shoots 69 to lead after 2nd Seniors round
LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Frank Beard as patient and conservative as ever, put together a 3-under-par 69 Friday and took a one-stroke lead in the second round of the U.S. Seniors Open Golf Championship.
Beard, who returned to competition when he became eligible for the over-50 set two months ago, moved in front with a 36-hole total of 139, five under par.

McCumber, Azinger out in front in Western Open
OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Mark McCumber, wearing a corset and battling an aching back, shared the lead with Paul Azinger Friday after two rounds of the $1 million Western Open Golf Tournament.
McCumber shot a 67 after an opening round 68 for a two-round total of 9-under-par 135. Azinger matched him with a 68 to go with his opening-day 67 over the Butler National course.

Ketchum's Matthes sweeps at home

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — There's no place like home.
For Ketchum native Ruthie Matthes, it was a homecoming that fans had anticipated in the Ore-Ida Women's Challenge bicycle race.
Matthes started off Friday by winning the 3.25-mile Sun Valley Individual Time Trial and wrapped up the day with a victory in the 14.5-mile Elkhorn Circuit race.
The 83 racers will move on to Bliss at 11 this morning for a 45-mile run to Twin Falls in the Magic Valley Road Race, the next-to-last event of this nine-day cycling marathon. The Ore-Ida Women's Challenge will conclude with the Parkcenter-Criterion Sunday afternoon in Boise.
Matthes and overall time leader Lisa Brambani turned the Elkhorn circuit event into a two-woman race.
They traded leads with Brambani leading only slightly after the 14th lap on the hilly course that curves around and through Elkhorn Village and the adjacent Elkhorn

Golf Course. Matthes was first over the top of the last rise and as both racers took the 350-plunge down the stretch, they were done.
Matthes made her final bid in the last turn to the finish line.
"I led most of the last lap. On the corner, I figured I'd take the inside corner," she said.
Both racers took the final corner wide with Matthes holding the inside. Both made a dash for the finish line, and Matthes got there first.
"She picked me on the line," said Brambani.
For Matthes, a six-time entrant in this event, the pressure was still on. But as usual she was looking at the race from a Lowrey team standpoint.
"It was important that one of us win. Today it was real important," she said. "I'm trying to keep low-key. I'm real excited to be here, but I have to keep focused on the race."
Earlier in the day in the head-to-head competition on Trail Creek Road, Matthes

The Times-News
28 near the Bliss school at 11 a.m.
Approximately 90 minutes later, they'll arrive in Twin Falls.
The finish line will be near the Oberchain Insurance building and Idaho Power Co. offices at Second Avenue North and Third Street West. Riders will turn the wrong way onto Second Avenue from Addison Avenue, on which they will enter the city from the west.
The racers' route will also take them through Hagerman at about 11:20 a.m., Buhl about noon and Filer at about 12:20 p.m.
The Challenge will conclude with the Parkcenter-Criterion, the final event of the 10-stage event, Sunday afternoon in Boise.

TWIN FALLS — Big-time bicycle racing will start its first appearance in the Magic Valley this morning with the second-to-last stage of the nine-day Ore-Ida Women's Challenge.
The Magic Valley Road Race will take racers from Bliss to Twin Falls via U.S. Highway 30.
Although the six-year old event, which attracts some of the world's best women's cyclists each summer, has long been a fixture in the Wood River Valley, none of the legs have ever been run in the Magic Valley.
That will change this morning when 83 cyclists will leave the junction of Highway 30 and Idaho Highways 20 and

Warm Springs: Galway, Samway tops

The Times-News
KETCHUM — Defending men's open singles champion Lee Galway of Ketchum and Jacques Samway of Ketchum are the top seeds for the Warm Springs Open Tennis Championships, which begin their four-day run today at Warm Springs Tennis Club.
The tournament, traditionally one of Idaho's largest, has drawn a field of more than 200 slightly down from last year.
Galway, a coach's assistant at Warm Springs, beat former head Warm Springs pro Chris Langdon for the men's open singles title a year ago in this tournament, but neither Langdon nor last year's other two semifinalists are in the field this year.
Tim Crist of Ketchum, who finished second in the Twin Falls Open last week, is seeded second this year, followed by Jeff Perkins and Nacho Larracochea, both of Boise.

Samway, who combined with Langdon to win the open mixed doubles title here a year ago, is seeded first in women's open singles ahead of collegian Jill Thompson, a summer Ketchum resident who plays at the University of California at Santa Barbara.
Neither defending women's open singles champion Michele Mraz of Salt Lake City nor last year's best for last year's title, Tracy Carpenter of Boise, are in this year's field.
Perkins and Walters are seeded first in men's open doubles, ahead of Crist and Galway. Galway and Langdon combined for the title in this event last year.

Larracochea and Anne-Marie Dega of Boise are seeded first in open mixed doubles. They made it to semifinals in this event a year ago. Samway and Mark Scriber of Hailey are seeded second.
There is no women's open doubles division this year.
There will also be competition in singles and doubles in U.S. Tennis Association classes 5.0, 4.5, 3.0 and 2.5.
Competition will begin at 8 this morning and will continue Sunday with the semifinals in most events slated for Monday afternoon. The open singles finals will be settled at 11 a.m. Tuesday, with the men's open doubles finals at 1 p.m. and the open mixed doubles championship at 3 p.m.

Players find free agency doesn't pay

The Associated Press
NEW YORK — Big bucks and big agency.
Those words have gone together in a happy marriage since the days of Catfish Hunter.
Starting this week, however, about 100 college seniors and other NBA hopefuls are finding that free agency is not the road to riches.
For this first time Tuesday night, the NBA draft went only two rounds, giving 27 teams the bargaining rights to 54 players.

Just five years ago, 230 players were drafted in 10 rounds.
Anyone not drafted Tuesday is free to sign with any team.
It was the dream of Larry Fleisher, the founder of the NBA Players Association, who died two months ago, that the draft would be abolished and all college players could sign with any NBA team.
The best Fleisher could do in the 1988 collective bargaining agreement between NBA owners and players was to see the draft trimmed to three rounds last year and two rounds thereafter.

The compromise wasn't nearly the blow to owners that complete abolition would have been.
Imagine the bidding war if Patrick Ewing or Danny Manning came into the NBA as free agents.
But only three 1988 third-round picks were in the NBA at the end of last season — and third-rounders are the best that this year's rookie free agents would have been under the old system.
"With all the conversation about rookie free agents, reality has to set in," Jerry

Battle brews over decision on NFL commissioner

By the Los Angeles Times
A fight between the National Football League's two principal factions is likely Thursday if an NFL committee persists in its plans to recommend a new commissioner at that time, a club owner said Friday.
Hugh Culverhouse, president of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, said that many of the league's newer owners were bitter over two of this week's developments:
The selection committee's unanimous endorsement of Jim Finks, general manager of the New Orleans Saints, to succeed Pete Rozelle.
The plan to raise up NFL owners on less than a week's notice for a special meeting to choose the commissioner Thursday in Chicago.
"I'm outraged that they would unanimously recommend Jim Finks," Culverhouse said. "They said they would present three or four names — and they come up with one man."
Secondly, it's an outrage to call a league meeting for July 6 on six days' notice. That's two days after a four-day holiday a holiday for which many people made

"I'm outraged that they would unanimously recommend Jim Finks. They said they would present three or four names — and they come up with one man."
— Hugh Culverhouse, of Tampa Bay travel plans long ago.
Personally, I'm leaving as planned for South America tomorrow. Other owners are overseas out of town. It's inexcusable for them to call a meeting at this time.
This is probably the most important NFL meeting any of us will ever attend — after all, we're selecting a commissioner — and they call it an unbelievably short notice. That's arrogance.
Other owners made similar points but asked not to be quoted.
The co-chairmen of the selection committee, Lamar Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs and Wellington Mara of the New York Giants, were unavailable, as was Finks.

All were observing a long weekend over one of the few national holidays available to pro football people, who, Culverhouse noted, play games during most of the other holiday periods.
Unable to reach the chairman, Culverhouse, saying he was speaking for several of the newer owners, said he wired both Mara and Hunt to express discontent.
"I urge you to reconsider your plans," he said.
Finks has been called the favorite of the NFL's old guard.
The other faction is largely made up of owners who have come into the NFL in recent years. Eight clubs have changed hands in just the 1980s — the Denver Broncos, Philadelphia Eagles, San Diego Chargers, New Orleans Saints, Seattle Seahawks, Minnesota Vikings, New England Patriots and Dallas Cowboys.
The presidents of these teams, who paid up to $100 million for their franchises, say their problems are much different from the problems of the old-guard owners, some of

Rodeos

Cowboys whoop it up in Rupert, Buhl, and then Hailey

By The Times-News
South-Central Idaho begins its longest rodeo weekend tonight.
The Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association-sanctioned Rupert Night Rodeo will begin at 8 p.m. at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds, an hour after the Eastern Idaho Rodeo Association-sanctioned Sagebrush Days Rodeo is scheduled to start at the Buhl Rodeo Grounds.
The Buhl rodeo will conclude Sunday night, while the Rupert rodeo will take Sunday off and resume Monday and Tuesday nights.
The EIRA cowboys will move on to Hailey Monday night for the first round of the Days of the Old West Rodeo at the Hailey Rodeo Arena. The second performance will be Independence Day after noon at 2 p.m.
Among them, the three rodeos are expected to draw more than 400 competitors.

Battle brews over decision on NFL commissioner

Asked what he expected if Finks' name is the only one presented, Culverhouse said, "The old guard will be in deep trouble."
It's a sore point because, to begin with, the new owners' faction was bitter that none of them was named to the selection committee.
That committee represents one point of view," said Norman Braman, owner of the Eagles.
