Jobless figures point at slower U.S. economy

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The overall unemployment rate edged upward to 5.2 percent in June from May's 5.1 percent, while a gradually slowing economy generated 180,000 new payroll jobs, somewhat fewer than expected, the Department of Labor said Friday.

Nationwide, the recession-sensitive goods-producing sector of the economy lost 51,000 jobs in May, 31,000 of them from factory payrolls. The discouraging news about job creation was offset in part by a steep upward revision in May's new jobs to 207,000 from an anemic 191,000 first estimated a month ago. Nevertheless, the number of jobs grew at an average monthly rate of less than 200,000 for the two months, down from about 300,000 a month for

Area rate higher — B1

1988. The small increase in the June unemployment rate was caused primarily by a big jump of 485,000 in the number of Americans in the job market last month, after a decline of 60,000 in May. The rate in June was 5.2 percent if the armed services are counted, 5.3 percent if only civilians are tallied.

Teenage joblessness rose from 15.2 percent to 16.5 percent in June. For black female teenagers, the unemployment rate shot up from 28.4 percent in May to 40.2 percent last month.

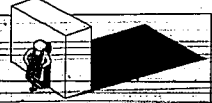

The number of Americans participating in the job market rose to 66.9 percent, an all-time high, while the equivalent participation rate for civilians rose by a like amount to 66.6 percent, also a record.

But there were indications that the economy is declining on a controlled glide path rather than spinning out of control. Hourly wages rose only negligibly in June for the second consecutive month after steady increases earlier this year seemed to herald the start of a classic wage-price spiral brought on by a tightening labor market.

Financial markets rallied in the belief that the Federal Reserve Board is now more worried about recession than inflation, and will now gradually loosen the monetary tourniquet.

"The soft landing remains right on track," said Kathleen Cooper, chief economist at Security Pacific Bank in Los Angeles.

"We're in a weaker economy, but there is no suggestion we're slithering close to a recession," added David Levine of Sanford Bernstein & Co., an investment-banking company in New York.

Officers shoot man to death at Burley

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Law officers shot a man to death Friday night, after the man fired several times at police who had besieged his home.

The Cassia County Sheriff's Department didn't release the name or the address of the victim Friday night. Witnesses, however, said the shooting took place in the 700 block of Elba Avenue. They tentatively identified the slain gunman as a man who had lived in the neighborhood since the early 1970s.

The sheriff's department and the Idaho Bureau of Investigation are investigating the incident, Sheriff Billy Crystal said.

A neighbor called sheriff's deputies about a domestic argument between a husband and his wife, early in the evening, Crystal said. The officers entered the house but retreated with the wife when they saw her husband pointing a gun at them.

Crystal said.

"The officers had been fired upon several times," Crystal said.

The man, who by then had moved to his garage, walked outside and pointed his gun at a sheriff's deputy, Crystal said. Two deputies and a state patrolman then shot and killed the man, Crystal said. The fatal shooting occurred about 7:20 p.m. The battle disrupted a quiet neighborhood in northeast Burley.

Kimberly firefighters Perry Barnhill and Rob Vawser direct a hose toward a heap of burning straw and hay as Phil Arnold uses a pitchfork to break up the smoldering bales. The fire, started by a gopher bomb, burned 350 bales of straw and about 70 bales of hay owned by Keith Bligar and Ron Stanley two and a half miles north of Kimberly. Nine firefighters from Kimberly and Hansen fought the Friday blaze which also scorched about three acres of grass and sagebrush.

Bans on imported assault weapons will become permanent

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The vast majority of assault weapons barred from importation since spring will be banned permanently from this country, the government announced Friday.

The ban imposed on 43 styles of semiautomatic weapons — including the popular Chinese-made AK-47 and Israeli-made Uzi carbine — followed a four-month study by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms on whether the weapons met the standards imposed by the Gun Control Act of 1968, which barred importation of weapons that are not used for legitimate sporting purposes.

Here are weapons affected by Friday's federal order

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Following are the 43 types of weapons barred permanently by the government from import into the United States on Friday:

AK47, AK47S, AK74, AKS, AKM, AKMS, 84S, ARM, 84S1, 84S3, HK91, HK93, HK94, G3SA.

K1, K2, AR100, M14S, MAS223, SIG 550SP, SIG 551SP, SKS with detachable magazine, 36S, 36S7, 37S.

The study was undertaken because of weapons-being-imported-and-police-reports of their use in violent crime," said Stephen Galil, Type 55, Type 56S, Valmet M76, Valmet M78, M76 counter-sniper, FAL, L1A1A, SAR 48.

AUG, FNC, Uzi carbine, Algimex AGMI, AR180, Australian Automatic Arms SAR, Beretta AR70, Beretta BM59, CIS SR88.

The following are the seven previously suspended weapons types that will be allowed into this country:

AK22, AP74, Galil-22, M16-22, Unique F11, Erma-EM1-22, Valmet-Hunter.

E. Higgins, director of the ATF bureau.

While the 43 were banned permanently, another seven whose imports had been suspended since early spring will be available for import again as a result of the study. Those include six .22 rim-fire-caliber rifles and a gun called the Valmet Hunter, which had been considered an AK-47 type of weapon during the suspension.

Higgins said the ATF, which studied the marketing and use of the weapons, said the models banned were "not being used for sporting uses." Such weapons were identified officially Friday as "semiautomatic assault rifles."

The ATF annually truces 35,000 to 40,000 guns used in crime, and about 10 percent of them are semiautomatic assault weapons,

Higgins said, estimating that slightly more than half of them were domestic makes that are not subject to ATF control.

"We're not saying that it will solve the basic problem of crime," Higgins said, adding, "Their use in crime is probably disproportionately high compared with the number that are here."

Holding aloft one of the banned weapons — an Israeli-made Galil rifle — Higgins pointed out some of the accoutrements that led to its prohibition: a folding stock, a night sight, a flash suppressor on the end that could serve as a grenade launcher, its ability to accept a bayonet lug, a pistol grip and a

Pay raises could boost flag

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush may give 7,000 federal workers a 5 percent pay raise, but some may move their worth over three percent.

There also may be a 5 percent pay raise for some workers, such as those in the military.

House and Senate leaders in Washington said they would like to work on a pay raise for federal workers.

Marlin Fitzwater, Bush's chief of staff, said he would like to see a 5 percent pay raise for federal workers.

Proposed 51 percent pay raise for federal workers.

Record temperatures, drought add to woes of busy fire crews

By The Associated Press

An army of firefighters renewed its offensive Friday against four wildfires that charred 15,700 acres in west-of-Anchorage grew to 11,000 acres and was fought by three 16-person crews, with another seven crews expected, state foresters said.

"We're just scared to death, to tell you the truth," said Ray Tate of the Bureau of Land Management's Vernal, Utah, office.

Forest and range fires have burned more than 12,000 acres of land in Arizona, and 14 new fires ignited Thursday from lightning strikes in New Mexico, bringing the total number of blazes burning to at least 55.

In south-central Alaska, the Swinging Dome Fire about 200 miles west of Anchorage grew to 11,000 acres and was fought by three 16-person crews, with another seven crews expected, state foresters said.

Fire also charred land in California, Colorado, Georgia and Wyoming.

And though firefighters reported progress against some fires, National Weather Service officials said they faced a weekend of continued heat and storms that could reignite blazes and cause new ones. In Utah, the Diamond Peak fire, 20 miles west of the Colorado border and just north of Interstate 70, had consumed 9,500 acres. Four fresh 20-member crews were thrown against the blaze, bringing to 400 the number of people fighting the fire.

Three fires burned in Ashley National Forest, in northeastern Utah. Containment of the nearly 1,400-acre Rough Canyon fire just south of Duchesne was expected Saturday, and major assaults were launched on the Uinta Canyon fire, which has consumed 3,600 acres, and the Six Mile Creek fire, which has scorched 1,200 acres.

In Wyoming, 500 firefighters

B-2 flight tests to start in few days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced on Friday that the long-awaited first flight tests for the B-2 stealth bomber will be held during a 15-day period beginning Sunday.

In a statement issued late Friday afternoon, the Pentagon said that the plane is scheduled for "outdoor tests and the first flight" during a 15-day period beginning July 9.

"The plane has been undergoing a final check at an Air Force plant in Palmdale, Calif.," the plane has been built and manufactured by Northrop Corp.

During the 15-day period, the plane is expected to be rolled out of its hangar and undergo a series of dress rehearsal tests that include turning on its engines, slow and high-speed taxi tests on the runway and then, a full flight test.

For its initial flight, the Air Force plans to take the plane from Palmdale for an approximately 2 1/2 hour test flight, landing at Edwards Air Force Base, about 400 miles away, said Capt. Tess Taft, an Air Force spokeswoman at Palmdale.

Soviets leave Crowe uncomfortable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. William J. Crowe, retiring head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Friday that his historic 11-day visit to the Soviet Union revealed the superpowers are entering a period of "uneasy transition" that "does not... make me feel comfortable."

Crowe, in a speech before the National Press Club, said he hopes the two military giants are moving toward a new era in the superpower relationship, but "to conclude that we are already there would be a serious mistake."

The 64-year-old admiral, speaking a day after President Bush rejected a new call from Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev for talks to eliminate short-range nuclear missiles in Europe, said he believes United States should avoid "dramatic counter-responses" to Kremlin initiatives "at this point."

Crowe said that while there are encouraging signs that Gorbachev's reforms and promised military cutbacks may help move away from the confrontational legacy of the postwar era, the Soviet changes "have yet to be translated into reality."

"Our systems remain fundamentally competitive," he said.

Fed launches easier credit period

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve, faced with further signs of a weakening economy, launched a second round of credit easing this week even before the end of a crucial midyear review of monetary policy, private economists said Friday.

The analysts predicted that the move would send a variety of consumer and business interest rates lower, with one saying that a cut in commercial bank's prime-lending rate could come as early as Monday.

The development was not unexpected, although some economists were surprised that the move came even before the end of two days of meetings of the Federal Open Market Committee, composed of members of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington and five of the 12 regional Fed bank presidents.

Follow my lead, Gorbachev tells bloc

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev told the other Soviet bloc leaders Friday they are free to pursue their own views of communism; but suggested his own program of economic and social reform as a guide.

"Each country and each party has its own specifics and can continue its own individual road to socialist democracy and progress," he said in a dinner toast after the first day of a Warsaw Pact summit.

Their purposes at this summit are to discuss Western arms-reduction proposals and the Warsaw Pact's role in a "new world" where Gorbachev speaks of a "common European home" with no threat or fear of war.

In his dinner toast, the Soviet president said: "We took new steps today toward European security, rapprochement and East-West dialogue."

battled a 2,400-acre fire in Wyoming's Bridger-Teton National Forest. Fire containment lines had been dug around 25 percent of the blaze, which began Tuesday. Officials said containment wasn't expected before late next week.

"The potential is for very high fire danger by the weekend," said forest spokesman Ed Christian. "It's going to be low humidity, high temperatures and gusty winds."

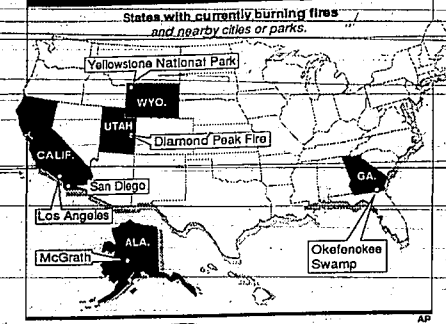

In Arizona, temperatures above 100 degrees, low humidity and extended drought conditions were largely responsible for the increased dryness, officials said.

Officials said the 376,000 acres closed to public recreational use will remain closed until dampened by rain.

"This year it's worse than normal because it's a lot drier. It's been 10 years since I've seen it this dry," says Bill Speight, a spokesman for the Coronado National Forest.

The largest blaze in the state consumed 3,000 acres near Whitlock

Fire Roundup

Peak in the Peloncillo Mountains in southeast Arizona, federal officials said. Firefighters expected to contain it by Saturday night.

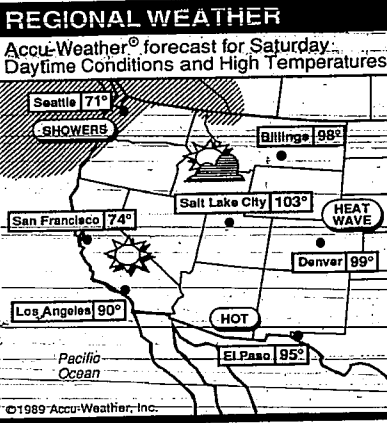

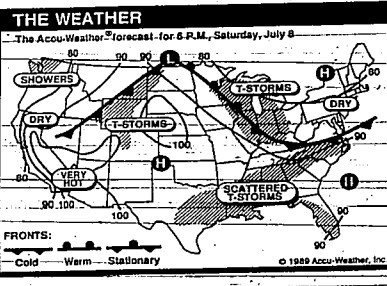

A 7,700-acre fire along the Great Divide in southwestern New Mexico that has been raging out of control since Monday should be contained by next Monday, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Jim Payne.

In Georgia, a 500-acre fire that broke out when lightning struck in the Okefonokee Swamp in Fargo was 15 percent contained, said Chris Zajick, fire information officer for the U.S. Forest Service.

"When I was coming home from work, we didn't know anything was going on and this cop came out and said, 'Turn around there's a man in the house with a gun,'" said Dorothy Clark, who lives across the alley from the site of the gunfire.

The gunfire broke Craig Newcomb, 68, of 656 Malta Ave., from his after-supper nap. He saw only the test of the battle.

"The police told him to drop his gun, probably five or six times, then there was three more shots and it was all over," Newcomb said.

"I was scared," Clark said. "I've never been that close to gunshots, you know, especially around our neighborhood."

Clark called the neighborhood a peaceful place to live. Most residents own their own homes.

Thefts are reported occasionally, Clark said, but "that goes on everywhere."

"If I have any other trouble, I leave my doors open in the day all the time and never even worry about," she said.

"I thought it was the Fourth of July all over again," said Joe Adams, 659 Malta Ave. "It was something we haven't seen around Burley for a long time."

Idaho State Police and the sheriff's department were involved in the siege, and other tactical teams were organizing and on their way before the shooting, Crystal said.

ATLANTA (AP) — Fire broke out Friday night in the mid-rise office building where a blaze last week killed five people, but authorities said no serious injuries were reported in the second fire.

An Atlanta Fire Department spokesman said two people were injured and taken to a hospital for treatment after the fire broke out shortly in the Peachtree 25th Building in midtown Atlanta.

large magazine. In the future, he said, weapons with several of these features probably also would be subject to an import ban.

Higgins estimated that the Custom's Service has seized about 20,000 of the weapons and that those will not be allowed into the country unless purchased by law enforcement agencies.

"That's something the court would decide," Higgins said.

Three importers already have brought suit against the government over the suspension, and although a district court has upheld the government in one of the cases, Higgins said the ATF would accept comments on the permanent ban from any importers for 30 days. The final regulations would be issued "very quickly" after that, he said.

"Asked why the ATF previously had allowed imports of the now-banned weapons, Higgins said the committee set up after the 1968 law was passed to determine whether guns qualified for import had concentrated primarily almost exclusively on handguns."

"It wasn't until the number of assault-style weapons being imported increased dramatically that the ATF focused attention," he said.

The action Friday was lauded by gun control advocates, but Wayne LaPierre, executive director of the NRA Institute for Legislative Action, said it was "inconsistent with the rights guaranteed law-abiding American gun owners under the Second Amendment to the Constitution: The National Rifle Association will fight this decision in the courts, on Capitol Hill and at the ballot box."

FAA imposes stricter airline policies

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government announced a stricter policy Friday to deal with threats against aviation, including a system that requires airlines to take countermeasures and imposes fines for disclosing security alerts.

A Federal Aviation Administration order, which will go into effect Monday, replaces the system of issuing security bulletins, which was criticized after the bombing of Pan-Am Flight 103 over Scotland last December that killed 270 people. Notices of Threats against U.S. airlines on the flight's route were posted in at least one foreign embassy but not distributed to the general public.

Under the new order, individuals or airlines that disclose information from government security alerts without FAA authorization will be fined, or up to $1,000 for individuals and $10,000 for airlines.

Iran-Contra fundraiser on probation

WASHINGTON (AP) - A fundraiser convicted in the Iran-Contra affair was placed on two years' probation Friday for illegally using a tax-exempt foundation to help Oliver L. North raise donations for the Nicaraguan rebels.

Carl R. "Spitz" Channell, 44, who pleaded guilty in the early stages of the Iran-Contra investigation and testified against North, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Stanley S. Harris.

Before placing him on probation, Harris cited Channell's early cooperation with the investigation by independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh after his April 29, 1987, guilty plea to conspiring to defraud the Treasury.

Demos promise grass-roots approach

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democrats' national chairman on Friday accused the Republicans of merely paying lip service to Hispanics and pledged grass-roots efforts to give Spanish-speaking Americans more political clout.

"We Democrats know that empowerment begins not with political tokenism at the top, but with a commitment at the local level," Ronald H. Brown told the annual convention of the National League of United Latin American Citizens.

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole spoke to the group later, emphasizing a pending job bill rather than politics.

Mrs. Dole said her No. 1 priority is to reduce minority youth unemployment and she asked the group's support for a Bush administration bill that would refocus the government's job-training program.

Bush salutes close U.S.-France ties

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush, saying that he looks forward to next week's visit to France, signed a proclamation Friday to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the fall of the Bastille and the close ties between France and the United States.

The president said there is a close connection between the United States Bill of Rights and the French Declaration of the Rights of Man.

"The themes of liberty and human rights which run through these two documents are fundamental to our two nations and the people of Eastern Europe where I will be visiting next week as well," he said.

"So today, as 200 years ago, France and America are still partners in liberty," Bush said.

Customs pushing for automation

WASHINGTON (AP) - An international customs organization wants customs procedures around the globe automated through the use of electronic data systems, U.S. Customs Service Commissioner William von Raab said Friday.

Von Raab said the 104-nation Customs Cooperation Council, at meetings here this week, also adopted resolutions urging strict enforcement of drug laws and encouraging member countries to sign a U.N. convention on illicit drug trafficking.

"He told a news conference that the council has approved a strategy through which customs administrations around the world can work toward electronic data interchange."

Truly takes over as NASA chief

WASHINGTON (AP) - As President Bush looked on, former Navy vice admiral Richard Truly was sworn in Friday as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the first former astronaut to hold the job.

Vice President Dan Quayle administered the oath.

It was the second oath Truly has taken for the job. He was sworn in quickly a week earlier by Howard Robins Jr., another NASA official, so that the agency would no longer be without an administrator.

Truly, recently upgraded from rear admiral, had to resign from the Navy to comply with the requirement that NASA have a civilian administrator.

The resignation was effective June 30.

Kemp blames former HUD secretary for agency's scandals

WASHINGTON (AP) - HUD Secretary Jack Kemp on Friday blamed his Reagan administration predecessor, Samuel Pierce, for a burgeoning agency scandal and hinted he might suspend additional programs as part of a cleansing effort.

Kemp made his comments as the White House said a budget aide under congressional scrutiny has been ordered to avoid any HUD matters under investigation. Janet Hale, a specialist at the Office of Management and Budget, spent five years at the Department of Housing and Urban Development and approved agency financing of a project involving a longtime friend of Pierce.

Kemp's comments were his most direct to date in appraising the difficulties he inherited when he became housing secretary earlier this year.

"I'm making a lot of changes so that, by definition, is suggesting that Secretary Pierce unfortunately on a very decent and honest man or did not in my view manage HUD as carefully or closely as it should have been managed," he told reporters after speaking to a Republican group.

"That reflects on Mr. Pierce and, I say this with sadness not anger, it reflects on the Reagan administration," Kemp said. He and President Bush will be to blame, Kemp said, if they are unsuccessful in reforming the agency, a huge task that now involves major internal reviews of virtually all of the agency's major programs.

Kemp, who announced on Thursday he was ordering a third program suspension as part of his housecleaning, said, "there may be" more.

"But I'm not going to announce them today."

Ms. Hale was notified late Thursday by Budget Director Richard Darman of her change in status. She earlier in the day had suggested the move after being informed that a House subcommittee wanted her testimony as part of its investigation into the troubled agency.

Voyager 2 probe discovers Neptune's third moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Voyager 2 has found a third moon orbiting Neptune, the first of many the space probe is likely to find as it zooms toward an Aug. 24 encounter with the blue-green planet 2 billion miles from Earth, NASA said Friday.

"It's always a very exciting experience to discover a new satellite," said astronomer Steve Synnott, who spotted the moon in photographs taken by one of the spacecraft's television cameras.

"I never really jumped and screamed, but I clenched my fist, nodded my head to myself and said, 'Yep, that one's real!'" Ninety-nine percent of the time this discovery process is frustrating, so it is finally nice to dig a nugget out of all the mud."

The newly found moon, temporarily designated 1989 Ni, is the third known satellite of the solar system's fourth-largest planet. The two previously known moons are Nereid and the backward-orbiting Triton, discovered through telescopes on Earth in 1846 and 1949, respectively.

"I expect we'll find more," said Norm Haynes, Voyager project manager at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "Most of the outer planets have a lot."

Voyager might discover at least 10 small moons orbiting Neptune, deputy Voyager project scientist Eltis Miner said recently.

In 1981, scientists using telescopes believed they detected another Neptunian moon, but its existence hasn't yet been confirmed by Voyager.

With a diameter estimated at 125 to 400 miles, 1989 Ni is smaller than Nereid or estimated at 190 to 620 miles across or Triton, with an estimated diameter of 1,400 to 2,240 miles, or roughly the size of Earth's moon.

"At this point, the moon is too indistinct to appear in photographic prints made from the Voyager images," laboratory spokeswoman Mary Beth Murrill said in a news release. "Pictures taken in coming weeks will show the moon more clearly."

At 10 p.m. EDT on Aug. 24, Voyager 2 will swoop within 3,000 miles of Neptune's north pole cloudtops at the closest of the close encounters that took it, past Jupiter in 1979, Saturn in 1981 and Uranus in 1986. Five hours later, the probe will fly within 25,000 miles of Triton.

Voyager 2 was 43.7 million miles from Neptune on Friday, cruising at 42,201 mph.

FBI recovers stolen F-16 engines

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) - Three F-16 jet engines apparently stolen from Hill Air Force Base earlier this week were found Friday by the FBI, authorities said.

The engines, valued at about $2 million apiece, "are in the possession of the government," said Hill spokesman Len Barry.

"They were recovered by the FBI. We cannot discuss any details of this theft or recovery of those engines because the matter is still under investigation by the FBI and the Air Force Office of Special Investigation," he said.

FBI Special Agent Tim Screen confirmed the engines had been located, but refused to provide further details.

"Because this is an ongoing investigation and due to the sensitive nature of the investigation, no further comments can be provided at this time," he said.

The engines are rebuilt Pratt & Whitney F100-PW-200 series, about 17 feet long, 34 inches in diameter and weighing 3,200 pounds each.

Earlier, Hill spokeswoman Maj. Portia McCracken said investigators had determined the engines were apparently taken off the base sometime between noon Saturday and noon Monday.

She did not know if the engines belonged to Hill or if they had been sent from another base to be serviced.

Cuba hero sentenced to death

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Former Gen. Arnaldo Ochoa, who fought alongside Fidel Castro and became one of Cuba's best-known war heroes, was sentenced to death by firing squad Friday for helping smuggle tons of cocaine into the United States, the official Cuban news agency said.

Three other former officers also were condemned by a court-martial, which handed out prison sentences ranging from 10 years to 30 years to 10 other defendants, Prensa Latina said in dispatches monitored in Mexico.

Castro's regime launched an unprecedented and highly publicized investigation into Ochoa aimed at erasing a stain on the nation and the Communist Party.

Ochoa's actions constituted an attack on "the credibility of President Fidel Castro and weakened the prestige and defense of the Cuban revolution," prosecutor Brig. Gen. Juan Escalona said in his summation Wednesday.

The court-martial, made up of three senior generals, sentenced Ochoa to 30 years in prison, Gen. Antonio Font, ex-Maj. Arnaldo Padron and ex-Capt. Jorge Martinez to death. All were stripped of their rank and expelled from the party last week after the hearing before a 47-officer court of honor.

The prosecutor had asked for the death penalty for three other officers, Eduardo Diaz, Antonio Sanchez and Alexis Lago, but the tribunal sentenced them to 30 years in prison.

Irate Israelis want reprisals for bus attack

JERUSALEM (AP) — Angry Israeli mourners demanded vengeance and a harsh crackdown on the Palestinian uprising at funerals Friday for those killed when a bus was forced into a ravine by an Arab assailant.

Police used tear gas to break up a crowd of stone-throwing Israelis in Jerusalem protesting the attack that killed 14 people Thursday. At another rally in the capital, officers on horseback dispersed about 200 people chanting "Kill the Arabs." A policeman was slightly injured in one clash.

A Palestinian from the Gaza Strip was seriously injured in an apparent revenge attack when his car was stoned as he passed a Jewish settlement in southern Israel. Hospital officials said he was unconscious and suffering brain damage.

Israel radio reported at least three other, stoning attacks on Arab cars across the country. Arab sources said three Palestinians were hurt in the attacks.

In Jerusalem, militants chased Finance Minister Shimon Peres from a funeral by shaking their fists, banging on his car and screaming "Go home, maniac!" Peres heads the left-leaning Labor Party, which calls for giving up occupied land in exchange for peace.

Iran wants U.S. to pay for plane

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The director of Iran Air demanded the United States pay compensation for a jet shot down a year ago by the U.S. Navy, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Friday.

Mohammad Reza Majidi also demanded that Washington compensate the families of the 290 people who were killed when the A300 Airbus plunged into the Persian Gulf on July 3, 1988, according to the news agency, monitored in Cyprus.

Majidi said Washington recently announced it was willing to pay compensation directly to relatives of the victims, IRNA said.

But "this is not acceptable to us, and the U.S. must pay for the downed plane in addition to the compensation," he said. He did not cite a dollar amount.

Iran has been seeking a World Court verdict against the United States, and relatives of many victims are suing the designers and manufacturers of the jetliner system of the USS Vincennes, the ship that shot down the plane.

World China rips criticism by others

BEIJING (AP) — China lashed out at its foreign critics Friday, decriing what it called an international "anti-China wave" since the June massacre of pro-democracy protesters.

Meanwhile, Communist Party hardliners who called the army in to put down student pro-democracy protesters appeared determined to wipe out moral and cultural backsliding as well as political dissent.

A forum organized by the party Propaganda Department denounced the spread of pornography and blamed it on ousted party chief Zhao Ziyang, while police raided Beijing bookstalls and confiscated banned books. One province ordered that copies of a banned book be burned.

A high-level government advisory body, the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference, adopted a resolution condemning what it called "the anti-China wave" stirred up by the reactionary forces in the West. The official Xinhua News Agency reported the resolution, which also vowed to "continue to develop friendly ties with all countries."

Many governments deplored China's June 3-4 army attack on the student-led protesters for a free society. The United States, Japan and European countries imposed limited economic sanctions.

China has responded with a series of increasingly defensive statements reflecting a siege mentality not seen in more than a decade.

The media directed its sharpest words against the United States, which it accused of human rights violations in its treatment of minorities and demonstrators.

China accused France of violating international law by allowing two Chinese fugitives to criticize China from French soil.

Menem takes office today in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Carlos Menem becomes president today and plans to announce his economic program on Sunday, so Argentines soon will know whether his image of action translates into a bold assault.

In addition to laying out his policies on hyperinflation, recession and the soaring deficit, he has promised quick resolution of a problem that plagued President Raul Alfonsín: army opposition to trying officers accused of violating human rights during the 1976-83 military dictatorship.

"Menem is a chess player and he plays to win," said Manuel Mora y Araujo, a sociologist and pollster. "He prepares the ground and then he attacks."

Menem surprised many by choosing three Cabinet ministers from outside his Peronist Party and pledging to sell state companies that were nationalized or created in the 1940s and 1950s by the party's founder, dictator Juan Peron.

Adolfo Pérez Esquivel, a human rights activist who won the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize, said he was impressed by Menem's attempt last month to oust Saul Ubaldini as general secretary of the General Labor Confederation.

The labor organization has been the backbone of the Peronist Party for four decades and held 13 general strikes during the five-year term of President Alfonsín.

Aquino seeking support in Europe

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Buoyed by the promise of billions in foreign aid, President Corason Aquino leaves today on a three-nation West European tour in search of financial and political support for her troubled country.

Philippine officials say Mrs. Aquino will try to exploit her image as savior of Filipino democracy to encourage greater trade and investment to help cope with problems of poverty, communist insurgency and a $28 billion foreign debt.

Mrs. Aquino will travel to West Germany, then to France to join bicentennial celebration of the French Revolution, and finally to Belgium.

CEREAL MILK

A diet doctor says breakfast cereals can be divided into two categories based on how much milk they put in the bowl: "little" or "lots." A bit cute. Point in milk dilutes sugar, so the more milk you use, the more sugar you want. The "little" milk people find it easier to cut calories.

Q. Why do I get dizzy after I spin around?

A. Whirling of that balance fluid in your ears gets out of sync with the racing of the landscape past your eyes. Mixed messages to the brain trigger the defensive signal, dizziness, which says, in effect, "Whatever you're doing, knock it off."

Dan Quayle and family plan vacation trip to Indiana

COLUMBUS, Ind. (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle and his family are coming home to Indiana for what a relative called a personal trip.

The Quayles plan to stay with Marilyn Quayle's stepmother, Elaine Tucker of Trafalgar, and take their 15-year-old daughter Corinne to camp.

Indiana's former junior senator will arrive Sunday at Columbus Municipal Airport and will travel by motorcade, said Bartholomew County Sheriff Rick Hill.

Tucker said she doesn't think the vice president has any speaking engagements planned but said the family will probably visit Quayle's grandmother, who lives in Franklin.

Tucker said she has not seen the family since the inauguration in January.

Quayle, who won U.S. citizenship for a second time.

Garay wore his old Navy uniform and held a U.S. flag during citizenship ceremonies Thursday in federal court.

"This is a wonderful present," said Garay, who turned 90 on Wednesday.

An early aviator in his country, Garay originally got his U.S. citizenship in the 1920s to fly for the U.S. Navy. Through a ruse by a political-hoaxer-Honduran government in 1931, the United States was misled that Garay was serving in the Honduran military at the time and his U.S. citizenship was withdrawn.

He returned to the United States in 1966 after decades as a banker and then a retiree in Honduras.

Garay attempted more than 50 years ago to make the first flight from New York to Honduras. He fell short, thanks to a hurricane, but was named as the "Honduran-Lindbergh" for his effort.

Former Miss America to be married today

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Kaye Lani Rae Rabko, a former Miss America, will ride a horse-drawn carriage to church as she and long-time boyfriend Charles Wilson are married Saturday before 800 onlookers.

"Kaye Lani is running around doing everything herself," said her mother, Jacqueline Rabko. "She's out there picking up the program, seeing that the tuxes fit and planning everything... It's a lot of work."

Rabko, 25, a Monroe nurse who was crowned Miss America in September 1987, and Wilson, 26, a computer analyst from Ann Arbor, are to be married at St. Mary's Church in Monroe.

Trumpets will play as her father, Lonnie Rabko, escorts her into the church, according to family members.

Rabko will wear a long-sleeved, white-satin gown, her mother said. A harpist and the Rumpelstiltskin band will perform at the reception, along with former Miss Michigan Kelly Garver on fiddle.

Rob Lowe not welcomed by apartment resident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rob Lowe, who is being sued in Atlanta by a woman who claims the actor used her 16-year-old daughter in a sex video, is now under fire from a street preacher who doesn't want Lowe setting foot in his apartment co-op to film a new movie.

John Medford, the preacher and church maintenance chief who lives at the Glen Donald co-op just west of downtown, said his goal was to make sure Lowe didn't corrupt the morals of the building's residents.

Medford, 47, is trying to get the building's 70 residents to sign a petition declaring they don't want Lowe on the property. So far, he said he has collected 25 signatures.

Lowe is accused in a lawsuit in federal court of videotaping a sexual encounter between two women in his hotel suite while he visited Atlanta last summer for the Democratic National Convention.

In the new movie, "Bad Influence," Lowe plays a character who videotapes a couple in bed and a murder.

Medford, who works at the Southern Baptist Church in Hollywood, said he was offended by Lowe's alleged behavior, but he also objects to the scenario of "Bad Influence."

Lowe is influencing and ruining the youth," said Akos Szalas, a 63-year-old retiree who signed Medford's petition.

Not all residents agree.

"We've had Clint Eastwood here filming. His films weren't biblical," said Elizabeth Wolter, 82.

Erban Finchum, chairman of the committee that governs the building, said a contract has been signed with Steve Tisch, the movie's producer.

"The building needs the money," said Finchum. "We can't get off into Rob Lowe's personal life. If he did something wrong, let the courts decide."

Tisch isn't worried. "The contract is binding," he said. Besides, he added, Lowe has only one brief scene scheduled at the apartment complex.

Singer Amy Grant is expecting 2nd child

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gospel-pop singer Amy Grant is expecting her second child in December, a spokesman said Friday.

Chaz Corzine, her tour manager, said the pregnancy will have little effect on Grant's concert schedule, which tapers off after a recent August tour.

She and husband Gary Chapman, a singer-songwriter, also are parents of a son, Matt, born in September 1987.

Grant, 28, sang a No. 1 duet, "Next Time I Fall," in 1988 with Chicago lead singer Peter Cetera. Her "Unplugged" set "Age to Age" albums have sold more than 1 million copies apiece.

Honduran man receives citizenship 2nd time

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Aviator Lisandro Garay-Milla, once felled as the "Honduran-Lindbergh" for his effort to fly from New York to Honduras, has won U.S. citizenship for a second time.

Garay, who turned 90 on Wednesday, will arrive Sunday at Columbus Municipal Airport and will travel by motorcade, said Bartholomew County Sheriff Rick Hill.

Tucker said she doesn't think the vice president has any speaking engagements planned but said the family will probably visit Quayle's grandmother, who lives in Franklin.

Rabko will wear a long-sleeved, white-satin gown, her mother said. A harpist and the Rumpelstiltskin band will perform at the reception, along with former Miss Michigan Kelly Garver on fiddle.

Rob Lowe not welcomed by apartment resident

Lowe is accused in a lawsuit in federal court of videotaping a sexual encounter between two women in his hotel suite while he visited Atlanta last summer for the Democratic National Convention.

In the new movie, "Bad Influence," Lowe plays a character who videotapes a couple in bed and a murder.

Judge dismisses portion of lawsuit over Rob Lowe videotapes

ATLANTA (AP) — A lawsuit accusing Rob Lowe of enticing a teenager into an erotic home video was cut in half when a judge ruled the girl's mother can't claim emotional distress, but can contend the actor seduced her daughter.

ROB LOWE Finds ruling 'favorable'

Atlanta's party circuit and shown electronically censored on TV news — shows a man who looks like Lowe in a hotel room with the girl and another woman.

It shows him seeming to stage-manage a sexual encounter between the two, but does not show him having sex with Ms. Parsons. Henry says, however, that he has witnesses who will testify that Lowe did have sex with the girl.

Ms. Wilson sued under the daughter-seduction law, and also accused Lowe of intentionally committing acts that caused emotional distress to the family.

"This is a case of wanton, willful, intentional misconduct," Henry told the judge last week.

In his ruling, Tidwell dismissed the emotional distress claim, saying the suit "does not allege sufficient facts" under Georgia law to press the claim that Lowe intentionally inflicted emotional distress on Ms. Wilson.

Tidwell, however, rejected Lowe's motion to dismiss the claim for damages on the basis of seduction. The judge noted that under Georgia law, such a claim requires proof that unlawful sexual intercourse took place. He gave Ms. Wilson 10 days from Wednesday to amend her lawsuit to that effect.

Low attorney Richard North told reporters the ruling was "very favorable," in that it narrowed the allegations against Mr. Lowe by 50 percent.

Ms. Wilson filed her lawsuit in May in State Court in Fulton County, contending that Lowe enticed her daughter, then 16, into having sex with another woman while he videotaped them. Attorneys for Lowe succeeded last month in transferring the case to federal court.

Edgar Neely III, an Atlanta attorney representing Lowe, argued last week that the lawsuit should be dismissed because in Georgia only a custodial parent has the right to take legal action on matters concerning a child. Miss Parsons' father, John Parsons, has custody and has waived his right to act in the case, Neely said.

However, Tidwell noted in his ruling that, according to Ms. Wilson's suit, her daughter was living with her at the time of the alleged incident.

Lowe, 25, is the star of such films as "St. Elmo's Fire" and "About Last Night."

A criminal investigation into possible charges against Lowe is officially continuing, although no charges have been brought.

U.S. District Judge G. Ernest Tidwell, ruling Wednesday on Lowe's motion to dismiss the lawsuit, said Lena Arlene Wilson can sue under Georgia's law forbidding the seduction of a daughter if she alleges that Lowe and her daughter, Jan Parsons, had unlawful sexual intercourse.

"We will have a witness to that," Ms. Wilson's attorney, J. Hue Henry, said after the ruling was made public Thursday.

Henry said he will file an amended lawsuit to that effect Friday, and "we'll get ready for trial."

The lawsuit stems from a video tape which Lowe "favorably" made in his hotel suite while visiting Atlanta last summer for the Democratic National Convention. That video widely circulated on Atlanta's party circuit and shown electronically censored on TV news — shows a man who looks like Lowe in a hotel room with the girl and another woman.

Telephone electric shock revives heart patient

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A woman who suffered a heart attack at home was revived through an electric shock activated by telephone, becoming the first person to be treated by a new portable device, hospital officials said Thursday.

Ada Evans, 54, was one of two patients awaiting a heart transplant who were equipped in May with the MD-phone-transistelephonic defibrillator, which was introduced at Jewish Hospital last year and two other medical centers since then.

The device fits into a briefcase-sized case and can be plugged into a standard phone jack, said Dr. Rosalbe Ruffy of the hospital.

Evans, 54, began experiencing an extremely rapid heartbeat June 25, Ruffy said. Her husband, Roscoe, immediately activated the MD-phone, which automatically dialed Jewish Hospital's cardiac care unit.

After Evans attached two electrode pads to his wife's chest, hospital personnel activated the defibrillator, which restores the heart's normal rhythm through electric shock.

The device saved Ada Evans' life, Ruffy said.

"The system worked absolutely according to expectations," he said. "The crew and the staff went through extensive training, so we were certain they were well-prepared."

At both the evanescence, who appeared at a news conference Thursday, said they had been confident the system would work.

"With all the training, I knew my husband knew what to do. I had no doubts about it," Mrs. Evans said.

Evans, a retired bread salesman, said he didn't have time to worry.

"Something had to be done and I knew I had to do it, so I wasn't scared," he said. "I had confidence in the machine and in the training and in what the doctors and nurses had told us it would do. I thank God for the machine."

Music hall of fame finalists announced

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Ernie Ford is among 10 finalists for induction this year into the Country Music Hall of Fame, the Country Music Association announced Thursday.

Joining Ford in the open category are the Jordanaires, the Louvin Brothers, George Morgan and Hank Thompson.

Nominated in the non-performing category are Don Law, Ken Nelson, Jack Stapp, Clifftie Stone and Irving Waugh.

One from each category will be inducted Oct. 2 during the nationally televised Country Music Association awards show.

Ford, known as "The Ol' Peppicker," is known for his hit record "Sixteen Tons" and his long-running TV program.

The Jordanaires, a quartet, were the longtime backup group for Elvis Presley. Their voices have been heard on thousands of recordings.

The Louvin Brothers were country music's top brother act from 1955-1958 when they broke up.

Morgan, who died in 1976, was a Grand Ole Opry star known for his hit "Candy Kisses."

Thompson sold more than 30 million records, including his top hit, "The Wild Side of Life." His Brazos Valley Boys were regarded as one of the top western bands ever.

In the non-performing category, the late Law and Nelson were record producers. The late Stapp was a producer of the Grand Ole Opry radio show. Stone was a song publisher and Waugh conceived and supervised the development of the Opryland entertainment complex in Nashville.

Biologists find killer whales in Gulf of Mexico

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Killer whales have been sighted in the Gulf of Mexico for the first time in 40 years, according to a marine biologist who reviewed videotape shot by fishermen.

"We don't know how they got here, but they are a migratory species," said Bob Shipp, a marine science professor at the University of South

Alabama in Mobile. "It's possible they migrated to the warm water in the winter and got trapped here when they turned back to head north."

Shipp said Thursday that he had been skeptical about the sighting of the whales, which have distinctive black and white coloring and are commonly found in colder waters.

But he changed his mind after watching the 10-minute tape that included three minutes of what he called good footage of the whales ranging in size from about 6 feet to 30 feet long. The film was shot during a fishing tournament last weekend.

BLM douses blaze near Magic Reservoir

BELLEVEUE - A man-caused range fire scorched several acres near Magic Reservoir Friday.

About 34 Bureau of Land Management firefighters fought the blaze, said Carlos Mendola of the BLM. It burned about 75 acres between Hot Springs Landing and U.S. Highway 30 by 6:30 p.m., he said.

The fire was the district's ninth of the season, said Mendola, fire management officer for BLM's Shoshone District. Conditions "aren't quite extreme" yet, he said, but the season could be bad.

"If we ever get any dry lightning coming through, we probably would have more than we want," Mendola said.

Twin Falls will offer classes at the city swimming pool

TWIN FALLS - The city pool is offering new swimming classes starting Monday for infants and adults.

The lessons, which cost $10 for 10 sessions and last for two weeks, will include a water aerobics class.

For further information call the pool staff at 734-2336.

Mannie Shaw Fiddlers' Jamboree occurs Sunday

SHOSHONE - The annual Mannie Shaw Old-time Fiddlers' Jamboree is set here Sunday.

While the musicians don't follow a schedule, they usually begin around 9 or 10 a.m., and play throughout the day until about 6 p.m.

The public and any interested musicians are invited. Dancing and refreshments will be available at the jamboree, at Mary L. Gooding Memorial Park, on the banks of the Little Wood River.

Public meeting will cover Snake River water rights

REPURT - A public information meeting for Blinnoka County residents will cover the Snake River Basin Adjudication at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Blinnoka Judicial Building.

Notices were mailed recently to county residents for the 90-day period to file water rights claims in the near statewide adjudication.

The meeting will include history and background on the adjudication, and officials will be on hand to answer questions.

Though domestic and stock water well owners are not required to file a claim, the Idaho Department of Water Resources advises all water rights owners to file a claim at this time. The basic filing fee is $25. If small claims need to be adjudicated later, the cost likely would be higher, officials say.

BLM wants nominations for its advisory councils

SHOSHONE - The Bureau of Land Management's Shoshone district is seeking public nominations for its advisory councils.

Required by law, the council members advise local managers on management policies and programs. Appointments to the council are made by the secretary of the interior from district managers' and the state director's recommendations.

The district is seeking nominations for categories of public-at-large, non-renewable resources and environmental protection. Nominees should have applicable training, knowledge or experience. Terms begin Jan. 1, 1990, and run three years.

Nominations should include the person's name, address, telephone number, biographical sketch and category of interest. They should be sent to: District Manager K. Lynn Bennett, Shoshone BLM, P.O. Box 2-B, Shoshone, Idaho 83262 before Aug. 1.

For information call 886-2206.

Crest Motel in Jerome plans to open in August

JEROME - Construction is nearly complete on an 18-unit motel at 2850 S. Lincoln in Jerome which is set to open in early August.

The Crest Motel is being built by Twin Falls realtor Nolan Victor and his sons, Mike and Steve. "We have owned the property for 30 years," said Victor, who explained that he built the Holiday Motel in Jerome in 1984 and eventually sold it. "There are two motels in Jerome now, and I think the city can use another one."

The structure is being built with 10 double-bed rooms and eight single-bed rooms, according to Victor.

UFF takeover bid tactics change to persuasion

By MARTA GLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Tactics by High Voltage Engineering Corp. to take over Universal Frozen Foods Corp. took a different turn Friday when the company sent UFF directors in Milwaukee a letter offering a "friendly merger."

The two companies have been locked in a hostile takeover struggle for eight months. Now High Voltage is offering to acquire all of Universal's stock at $42 per share - $4 more per share than its most recent stock bid - in a negotiated transaction.

Universal's board will probably meet to discuss the offer, said Paula Norton, UFF director of corporate communications.

"At some price (the board) may decide this is in the best interests of all our constituencies," Norton said. On the other hand, she added, "The company is doing extremely well and their position has always been that the shareholders are best served by remaining independent and continuing with the present business plan."

High Voltage has been thwarted in its hostile takeover efforts by Universal's threats to utilize the Wisconsin Business Combination Act. The Wisconsin law is designed to prevent leveraged buyouts by prohibiting the sale of company assets for three years after 10 percent of the company's shares have been acquired by one entity unless the board gives its approval before the stock acquisition.

The Boston-based firm apparently would need to sell off parts of the company to service the debt it would incur in buying Universal. It challenged the law in federal court, but the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals recently ruled the law is constitutional, Norton said.

Now the company is trying the "friendly" approach. The letter from High Voltage Chairman Lawrence Levy states, "It is obvious to us that the interests of everyone would be better served if the additional cash which would necessarily flow from our pursuing a transaction without your cooperation could be paid to your shareholders."

"We remain committed to the acquisition of Universal," it continues. "We have had discussions with our lenders and financial advisers and, based on those discussions, we are confident that the financing for a transaction at that price would be forthcoming."

Norton interprets the letter to mean High Voltage cannot get enough financial backing to bankroll a hostile takeover, but can get it for a friendly takeover, because under that arrangement, "they could sell off parts of the company to service their debt," she said. High Voltage executives could not be reached for comment Friday.

Universal is the largest employer in the Magic Valley, operating a frozen potato processing plant in Twin Falls that currently is adding on a $20-million expansion.

One of the parent companies of High Voltage is S&W Berierford PLC, a British food company that almost bought Amalgamated Sugar Co. last year. It already owns a seed-coating company that is moving soon to Twin Falls from California.

Petition shows popular support growing to protect the flag

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A letter to the editor "venting steam" about flag burning has led a local teacher into political activism.

Kathy Gardner, 24, is spearheading a petition drive urging Idaho's congressional delegation to support a constitutional amendment to ban the burning of American flags.

The petition has drawn favorable response, said Gardner, who started the drive with a letter to The Times-News two weeks ago.

"The letter was more or less just venting steam," Gardner said. But it apparently raised the ire of local citizens, as calls came in encouraging her to do something, she said.

About 300 people have signed the petition in the past week, and Gardner said she hopes to more than double that number before sending it to Washington, D.C., at the end of July.

"This is really a grass-roots effort," said Gardner, a Robert Stuart Junior High teacher currently teaching a U.S. government class during the high school's summer session. "People are opposed to desecrating the flag."

Although the petition supports an amendment to the U.S. Constitution, Gardner said she would prefer to see Congress enact legislation protecting the flag without tampering with the First Amendment's free speech clause.

"Most people would rather leave the Constitution alone," she said.

The best scenario would be for the Supreme Court to overturn its own ruling, she said, although that is unlikely.

"When they are interpreting the law to such an abstract degree, the justices should watch public opinion more closely," she said.

Only one person argued against an amendment during a signature-gathering effort at the Magic Valley Mall earlier this month, Gardner said.

She has received help from several members of the local American Legion, Post 7, of which her father is an adjutant.

End in sight for Rainbow Family meet

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News writer

JARBIDGE - The end of the rainbow is getting closer as the Rainbow Family moves out of northern Nevada's Robinson Hole.

Friday was the last official day of the annual gathering, and officials estimated nearly 2,000 of the Rainbows had left the Humboldt National Forest site by noon.

About 150 members planned to gather for a council at "rainbow-noon" to decide where the hippie-style society will meet next year.

Minnesota was rumored to be next year's spot, said Bevan Killpack, U.S. Forest Service public information officer.

The end is coming not too soon for local law enforcement officials, who have been keeping a close watch on the group.

"We'd like for them to leave right now," said Elko County Sheriff James C. Miller.

The gathering has been peaceful, but every day the Rainbows stay in Robinson Hole is another day the sheriff must keep extra officers patrolling that area, he said.

Several family members were arrested over the holiday weekend on drug charges, Miller said.

"We've confiscated everything from black tar heroin and marijuana to LSD and methamphetamine," he said. Sixteen were still in jail Friday, he added.

Also confiscated was about $300 worth of fireworks, which are banned in national forests.

Population of the communal camp peaked around July 4. Miller estimated nearly 9,000 people were at the Robinson Hole campsite over the weekend, but Forest Service estimates put the number at about 6,500.

"They've been going out quite rapidly," he said.

Teacher Kathy Gardner is pleased with response to flag petition

Support for protecting the flag crosses political boundaries, she said, noting that Republicans and Democrats alike have been eager to sign.

Gardner, a Republican, accused President George Bush of politicizing the flag-burning issue to get the party some positive press.

The petition will almost certainly be well-received by the Idaho camp-in-Capitol Hill.

Sen. Steve Symms has already signed on as a cosponsor of an amendment introduced by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. Sen. James McClure will also support that amendment, said Pat Sullivan, a McClure spokesman.

Rep. Larry Craig has said he will introduce a similar amendment in the House of Representatives. Only Democratic Rep. Richard Stullings has balked at changing the Constitution, opting instead for legislation barring desecration of the flag.

"The broad support for protecting the flag comes from Americans' deep respect for the flag, which is ingrained since childhood," Gardner said.

"Even as a child you salute the flag," she said. "It's part of our heritage."

"The end is coming not too soon for local law enforcement officials, who have been keeping a close watch on the group."

Objections fail to rush hearing

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

HAYLE - The preliminary hearing for Roger Kim Fairchild was postponed Friday until July 20, despite objections from Blaine County Prosecutor Ned Williamson that similar circumstances resulted in a previous conviction of Fairchild being overturned.

Fairchild, 37, is charged with possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute, a felony which carries a maximum sentence of life in prison. He was arrested June 24 after the Blaine County Task Force raided a mobile home at Red Top Meadows, No. 14, and found more than three pounds of cocaine.

Magic Valley jobless rate rises slightly to 5.5%

By The Times-News and Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley's jobless rate rose three-tenths of a percent to 5.5 percent in June, but the Department of Employment says the increase is due mainly to normal slowdowns in the agricultural sector.

The number of people unemployed tends to increase in June over May due to slowdowns in farm activity, said Lon McDonald, labor analyst with the department's Job Service office in Twin Falls.

The June unemployment rate in the Magic Valley, which the department defines as Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties, is 0.9 percent lower than the 6.4 percent rate of a year ago, he said.

In June, there were 36,460 people employed in the valley and 1,980 out of work.

Statewide, Idaho's unemployment rate climbed to 5.4 percent due mainly to technical causes, not any sizeable downturn in the economy. The Department of Employment said.

The seasonally adjusted rate for June was set 0.2 percent higher than the previous month, but the agency said Friday there was an increase of 1.7 percent in the civilian work force over one year ago.

Department analysts said the increase in the jobless rate reflects a stabilization of recent growth in the trade-and-electronics sectors, and the fact that workers in certain industries entered the work force earlier than usual.

Nationally, the unemployment rate also climbed slightly to 5.3 percent in June. Analysts said continuing declines in manufacturing and construction slowed overall job growth, and provided fresh evidence of a slowing economy.

The national increase was not unexpected. More attention was focused on the fact that non-farm businesses added just 180,000 jobs last month after a revised payroll expansion of 207,000 jobs in May.

For the past four months, businesses added an average of just below 200,000 jobs a month, well under the nearly 300,000 average monthly gains posted in 1988.

Even though the Idaho jobless rate climbed to 5.4 percent, it still continued a 28-month trend of remaining below the year-ago figure: The unemployment rate for June, 1988, was 5.7 percent.

The civilian work force was estimated at 475,900 in June, down 7,000 from May but an increase of 6,200 from one year earlier.

The Department of Employment said 25,700 people were unemployed, 900 less than one year earlier but an increase of about 500 from May.

The number of people holding jobs was pegged at 450,200, compared with 443,100 one year earlier.

The Canyon County jobless rate was estimated at 7.3 percent, highest of the state's seven regions. But the department said that was because of a routine, temporary slowdown of operations at the Carnation food processing plant.

Here are regional unemployment figures, with June 1989 listed first, followed by May 1989 and then June 1988:

Bannock, 6.5 percent, 6.8 percent, 7.0 percent.

Latah area, 4.8 percent, 4.2 percent, 5.4 percent.

Canyon County, 7.3 percent, 5.8 percent, 6.6 percent.

Ada County, 3.6 percent, 3.5 percent, 4.0 percent.

Magic Valley, 5.5 percent, 5.2 percent, 6.4 percent.

Pocatello area, 5.8 percent, 5.2 percent, 6.4 percent.

Idaho Falls area, 5.8 percent, 5.2 percent, 5.8 percent.

Asbestos ban won't hurt business

BOISE (AP)—The federal government's ban on asbestos products in three phases over the next seven years. But some companies say their respective manufacturers began phasing out asbestos years ago.

"Most brake linings for the past year have been asbestos-free. They (manufacturers) probably have been seeing this coming," said Dave Watson, a sales clerk for Cal's Service Parts in Boise.

Bob Bivin, owner of Bivin Construction in Boise, said the public is conscious of the word "asbestos" and its connection with cancer, and he avoids buying products that contain it.

"I would avoid it. The customers are definitely aware of it and they are scared of it," Bivin said.

Contractor Preston Baker said banning asbestos means lowering the chances his employees will suffer any ailments.

"We have been dealing with this problem for several years," he said. "Surely the liability is lower without asbestos. If employees are exposed to something that is dangerous to their health, you're liable even years down the road."

Yellowstone Park firefighters get ready for summer blazes

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—A year after massive forest fires charred nearly half of Yellowstone National Park, park officials say they are prepared to fight any blazes this summer of a moment's notice.

No substantial fires have been reported in Yellowstone this summer, but 150 miles to the south of the park a 2,400-acre fire is burning in the Bridger-Teton National Forest, and wildfires out of control in Utah and California have park officials well aware of fire danger.

One hundred park employees are ready to leave their jobs as naturalists, security guards and rangers and head into the backcountry to tackle the first fires of the season, according to Yellowstone information specialist Sandy Robinson.

"We could have four to five crews (80 to 100 people) on a fire line within four to five hours if it warranted," Robinson said Thursday in a telephone interview. "That's excellent response time."

Park firefighters already have had one chance to test their preparedness this summer. On June 14, the "Pit Fire" burned one-tenth of an acre on Craig Pass southeast of Old Faithful. Robinson said a contractor was burning a slash pile when a spark flew and ignited nearby logs. A crew drove out to the site, rapped down the slope and doused the fire with hand tools and bags of water.

"In this sense we have had our first fire of the season," she said.

Even if the fire had been sparked by lightning it would have been attacked as quickly. For while in past years Yellowstone crews let naturally caused fires to burn unless they threatened people or structures, last year's devastating fire storms spurred the National Park Service and the U.S. Forest Service to drop their so-called "let-burn" policies.

"To get an early jump on fires this summer, three lookout towers have been manned since June 15 and they will be staffed until Sept. 30, along with a fourth tower on a part-time basis."

"All reports of smoke are being checked out, and we have had several false alarms that turned out to be what we call dust devils or some cases they were thermal areas," Robinson said.

Disturb devils are wind currents that stir up ash and dirt. "It almost looks like a plume of smoke," she said.

Reports come in from the towers, rangers and visitors.

"We're certainly monitoring the conditions. We're moving into that high zone (of fire danger) right now," she said.

3-state narcotics investigation yields dozens of charges against 45 people

BOISE (AP)—A six-month, three-state undercover narcotics operation has produced 94 criminal charges against 45 individuals, Gov. Cecil Andrus says.

In the joint operation, narcotics agents from Washington, Oregon and Idaho posed as truck drivers, ready to buy drugs. Andrus said Friday it produced criminal charges for street-level sales of cocaine, marijuana and methamphetamine in most of the charges filed in Oregon.

The drug control operation is one of the first results of a commitment made by the governors of Idaho, Washington and Oregon to work in close cooperation to combat drug trafficking, Andrus said.

He said drug dealing is not restricted to state lines, and cooperation between the states helps deal with drug problems.

"This operation proves that we can effectively investigate and pursue drug offenders across state lines," the governor said.

Idaho state governors Neil Goldschmidt of Oregon and Booth Gardner of Washington formed the Northwest Tri-State Law Enforcement Council a year ago to combine resources for the drug fight in the three states.

The operation was keyed to the use of a leased tractor-trailer driven by two undercover Oregon detectives.

The operation began in November and ran six months. Arrests are still being made as a result of the investigation, Andrus said in a news release Friday.

The project was funded by the Federal Highway Administration, Office of Motor Carrier Safety, under a grant obtained through the Oregon Public Utilities Commission.

The tractor-trailer rig operated in Idaho for five weeks, two weeks in February and another three weeks in May. Officers working along Interstate 84 produced two felony drug cases and state Department of Law Enforcement officials said follow up investigations may lead to further arrests.

The project was designed to determine whether there is extensive use of illegal drugs by interstate truck drivers. Investigators found little evidence that professional, over-the-road truck drivers are heavily involved in the drug trade.

Of those indicted, only four are professional truck drivers, Andrus said. Police did encounter substantial drug activity around truck stops and support facilities.

In addition to the arrests, police backing up the undercover effort seized one kilo of cocaine, recovered a stolen motor home and found numerous equipment and logbook violations by truck drivers.

Recent 90-plus temperatures have made leaving the desert site difficult for some members as cars and pedestrians overheat.

The road to Robinson Hole is rocky and rutted, and several cars have either broken down or run out of gas and now sit waiting for owners to return, Killpack said.

"It's not that rough, it's a six-mile hike out of the hole if steep and has taken a toll on children in the group, he said.

All of the Rainbows—except a 300-400 member cleanup crew—should be out of the area by Monday, Killpack said.

"We're hoping they'll leave by then without any problems," he said. If not, Killpack said the Forest Service will enforce its 14-day camping limit, which has already been exceeded by many of the early-comers.

Departing Rainbows apparently spent plenty of money at the store in

John J. Hohnhorst
 HAZELTON—John J. Hohnhorst, 70, of Hazelton, died Thursday, July 6, 1980, at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome after an extended battle with cancer.

He was born July 6, 1910, at Mt. Zion, Mo., the son of Charles and Agnes Charla Hohnhorst. He moved to Hansen with his family in the fall of 1918. In March 1917 the family moved to a farm at Greenwood, Wyo. of Hazelton. He remained a resident of the Hazelton area for the remaining 72 years of his life.

He graduated from Hazelton High School in 1927 and received his degree in agronomy, summer college, from the University of Idaho, College of Agriculture, in 1932. He married Alice E. Walker on March 31, 1935, at Hurley. She died July 11, 1980.

He was engaged in several sectors of the farming and livestock business, ranging from sheep and cattle to potatoes. He owned and operated an independent fresh packing potato business, served for many years as the chief field buyer for Idaho Kroger Foods, managed a large potato farming operation and maintained an extensive seed potato brokerage business.

Mr. Hohnhorst was active in political and civic affairs throughout his life, holding a variety of offices in the Idaho Republican Party, including county chairman, precinct committee man, precinct committee chairman to state chairman. In 1940 he was elected to the Idaho House of Representatives and served two terms before retiring in 1948. He served as Speaker of the House from 1947 to 1948. He also served on the Board of Trustees for the Valley School District.

Surviving are two sons, Charles J. Hohnhorst of Jerome and John C. Hohnhorst of Twin Falls; two brothers, Henry Hohnhorst of Boise, and Tom Hohnhorst of Hazelton; four step-brothers; Henry Phareson of Twin Falls; Pat Theriot of Hazelton; Carl Pharris of Boise; and Earl Pharris of Cozad, Neb.; one sister, Dorothy Sudgewick of Charleston, S.C.; one step-sister, Betty Pharris of Hazelton, Ariz.; two grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. Man files suit over alleged racism
BLACKFOOT (AP) — A Blackfoot man who contends an altercation with a Bingham County sheriff's officer and the principal of Blackfoot High School was racially motivated has filed a $100,000 tort claim against the city, the county and the school district.

Jose Longoria's claim seeks payment for the treatment of neck and back injuries and embarrassment suffered in a Jan. 7 incident at the high school.

The Bingham County Commission and Blackfoot City Council have denied Longoria's claim. He has the option of proceeding with a lawsuit.

Man guilty of digging up artifacts

MOSCOW (AP) — A Lewiston, Idaho man has been convicted in U.S. District Court in Moscow of illegally digging Indian artifacts along the Clearwater River. Richard K. Williams was found guilty Thursday of excavating, damaging and altering archaeological sites along the river. Meanwhile, Nez Perce Indian leaders plan to aggressively protect the artifacts from their ancestors.

Williams, who was indicted in May by a federal grand jury, faces up to a year in prison, a fine of up to $10,000, or both. No sentencing date was set by U.S. Magistrate Stephen Ayers of Coeur d'Alene.

Highway may rejuvenate Ashton

ASHFORD (AP) — The designation of old U.S. 191 as a national scenic byway could be the boost Ashton's economy has been looking for. The city was bypassed by U.S. 20 when it was built three decades ago as an alternative to a highway from Ashton to Harriman State Park. That highway is now named the Moan Falls Scenic Byway.

If only 2 or 3 percent of the estimated 1.6 million people who travel U.S. 20 to Yellowstone National Park each year take the scenic route, "it will have a pretty significant economic impact on Ashton in developing their tourism industry," Forest Service employee Doug Muir said Thursday.

Ada County names new fair board

BOISE (AP) — The Ada County Commission has named a new Western Idaho Fair Board, minus the controversial former chairwoman who sued the county and another member who supported her.

The new advisory board named Thursday replaces one dissolved last month. Four of the new members served on the previous board and one new member was added — Tamara Brandstetter, chief executive officer of Delta Dental Plan of Idaho.

The four members reappointed were Kay Paulson, Bill Brewer, Scott Butterfield and Tom Terrelling. Former board chairwoman Amy Chittin and member Jack Steneck were left off the new panel.

Hearing on murder charge delayed

BLACKFOOT (AP) — The preliminary hearing scheduled Friday for a 34-year-old Blackfoot woman charged with first-degree murder in the death of her son has been postponed until July 21.

Kathi Winn is charged with poisoning her son, Zerk, 9; by giving him an overdose of an anti-depressant drug. The boy was found dead in his bed May 12. Prosecutor Tom Moss said traces of the drug were found in the boy's body during an autopsy.

Hoffman loses kidnapping appeal

BOISE (AP) — Maxwell Hoffman, under death sentence in another case, has lost his appeal from his conviction on an earlier kidnapping charge.

"It's all part of a complicated Canyon County drug-related case which left an undercover drug informant murdered, one man under death sentence and second subject to it, a third man ordered to spend the rest of his life in prison and a state prison inmate slain during a prison riot."

Hoffman, 32, Nampa, was sentenced to up to 10 years in prison, with five years mandatory, for his conviction on a Canyon County charge of aiding and abetting a kidnapping. The Idaho Court of Appeals on Friday unanimously upheld the conviction and sentence. The court rejected Hoffman's claim he was prejudiced because the judge allowed the jury to decide an accompanying extortion charge.

On June 9, 3rd District Judge Gerald Weston ordered Hoffman executed for the 1987 murder of an undercover drug informant-Dennis Williams in a related case. He also received a 15-year term for using a deadly weapon, a knife, to help kill her.

Court records show Hoffman was charged with aiding and abetting in the kidnapping and extortion of Ricky Simons on Dec. 7, 1987.

Simons testified at a trial that he was kidnapped from his Canyon County home by Hoffman, Ronnie Wegos and Richard Holmes. He said he was taken to Holmes' residence, beaten and had a gun barrel forced down his throat to make him sign over his pickup truck to pay a drug-related debt.

He said he heard Hoffman threaten to break his jaw if he didn't sign his truck over. Later, Simons was rescued by two police officers.

Cold damages eastern Idaho grain

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Thousands of acres of eastern Idaho grain were destroyed or damaged when temperatures dipped into the low 20s on the first two days of summer, producers and farm experts say.

In Blaine County alone, at least half of the 110,000 acres of wheat was affected to some extent by the June 21-22 cold snap; Extension Agent Brian Finnigan said Friday.

"I've been evaluating fields the past week and have found fields that are 80 to 100 percent lost and others that are damaged less than 10 percent, while other fields weren't damaged at all," he said. "It's hard to pinpoint what areas got hit the worst. However, this is one of the most serious frosts in recent years."

Some insurance adjusters have reported the most frost damage they have seen in 20 years.

Zane Clement, who helps his father Larry Clement farm 1,000 acres of wheat near Moreland, said an insurance agent was assessing damage to their crop on Thursday.

"We had a lot of damage done to wheat and we need to decide right now whether to cut it for hay or not," Clement said. "If we keep the wheat it needs water and if we cut it for hay it needs to be cut now."

Warren Ward, who farms in the Arbon area with his father, said the June frost "zooed all our fall wheat out," destroying an estimated 320 acres. "We're just swathing it down and selling it as hay."

But Finnigan said growers should think hard before deciding to replace their grain with hay.

SST

research after the study ended last fall.
"This study is to look at something useful and not just possible," Henderson said.
He said about 70 employees are working on the project. Boeing declined to say how much it has spent so far.
Boeing pinned a lot of hopes and a lot of money in the late 1960s on building an SST. When the government canceled the program, it distributed to the Boeing group that plunged Seattle into hard times in early 1970.

Boeing executives have said they're wary of committing the hundreds of millions of dollars it would take to build a new SST.
Richard Albrecht, Commercial Airplane executive vice president, has said that while the Concorde has been successful as a premium transatlantic service, he doubts any world build — nor would airlines buy — a plane that must command a much higher ticket price to serve a niche market.

The Anglo-French Concordes first flew in 1969. Only about 15 of the sleek jets now fly, operated by Air France and British Airways, and are severely limited in route because of noisy engines and ear-rattling sonic boom.
Boeing is studying a plane capable of flying 1.8 to 2.5 times the speed of sound, or about 1,300 to 1,850 mph. That would permit it to fly from Los Angeles to Tokyo in 4 hours 20 minutes, compared with the 10 hours, 20 minutes a non-stop subsonic flight takes today.
Being doubts a faster plane would be practical, because it would require new fuels such as liquid natural gas or liquid hydrogen, and special airport facilities, Henderson said. Further, a plane that could fly 2,500 mph or better would have scant time at cruising speed on a 5,000-mile transpacific flight.

Boeing's four-engine HSCT, a long-range jetliner, is envisioned at just over 257 feet long, 60 feet longer than a 747-400 jumbo jet, with a wingspan of just 142 feet or 70 feet less than the 747-400. It would haul 200 to 300 passengers about 5,000 national miles non-stop.

The Concord is about 201 feet long on an 84-foot wingspan and carries 100 to 128 passengers, 3,350 nautical miles non-stop.
Boeing would have to convince it and SST critics that the significant environmental problems with the plane could be solved, Henderson said.

Canseco heads home after rehabiliation

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Jose Canseco, last year's American League MVP, will fly back to Oakland Saturday, ending his rehabilitation stay with Huntsville a day earlier than originally scheduled.
Canseco, who is playing with the Athletics' Class AA farm team while rehabilitating his injured left wrist, was not in the starting lineup Friday night.

Boggs, Red Sox agree

BOSTON (AP) — Wade Boggs, whose off-the-field life dominated Boston's off-season, agreed Friday to a three-year contract, extension with the Red Sox worth about $7.5 million.

Boggs, who has won four consecutive American League batting titles, is making $1.7 million this year in the final season of a three-year deal.

Boston had attempted to trade him this spring as details of his affair with Margo Adams became public. But because of his contract status and notoriety, other teams didn't want him.

Managers choose All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — When fans do the All-Star voting, Howard Johnson and Ruben Sierra are zeroes. When managers do the picking, they're heroes.

Johnson, fourth in voting among National League third basemen, and Sierra, sixth among American League outfielders, were unanimous selections in a survey of major league managers by The Associated Press.

Five of the selected starters would be different if managers did the picking.

SportsQuote

“It probably was a lot of kids punching my name on the ballot because I'm synonymous with third base. Maybe it will start a new craze. Guys will start to retire before the All-Star game.”

— Mike Schmidt, after becoming the first retired player ever voted a starter on a major league All-Star team.

'B' Cowboys trounce Pocatello, 13-7

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls "B" American Legion baseball team came up with its biggest offensive spree in Southern Region competition this year, clubbing 13 hits and moving into a share of the conference lead with Pocatello by beating the four-time defending champion Rebels 13-7 Friday night.

Twin Falls was leading the second game, which does not count in conference standings, 5-1 at Times-News press time.

The win in the opener — the first victory over Twin Falls over Pocatello in "B" Legion play — improved the Cowboys' season record to 23-12 overall and 9-1 in league games. The Rebels dropped to 18-5 overall and 7-1 in conference. The two teams are scheduled to meet again in Pocatello on Tuesday, July 18.

At stake is the top seed in the Southern Region tournament, which will begin in Shoshone July 20.

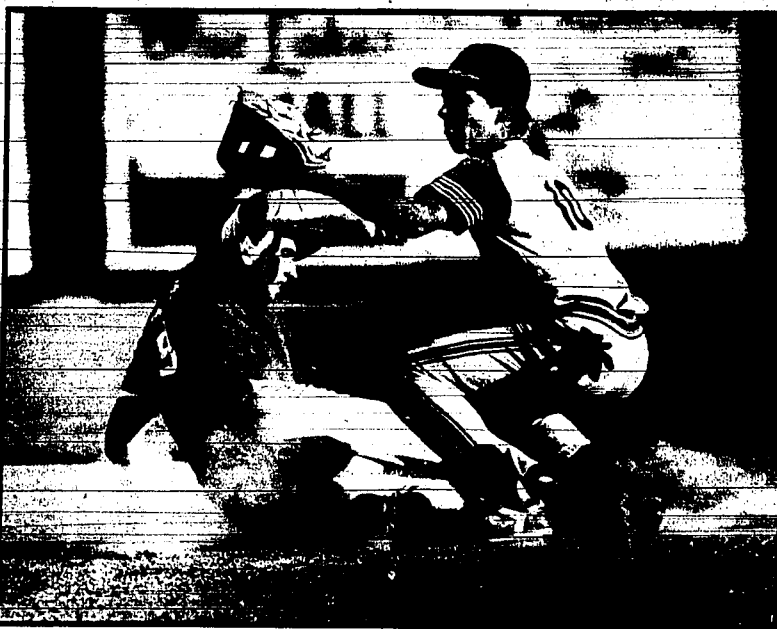

Twin Soran, Jon Korson, Ryan Buster and Matt Horner all provided two-RBI hits in the opener to highlight the Cowboy attack while righthander Jason Pearson, fighting off frequent bouts of wildness, went the route with an eight-hitter.

"We hit the ball about as well as we have all year," said coach Dave Sloten. "I think we're finally learning to hit good-pitches and we were certainly getting the timely hit."

The Cowboys jumped into a 6-0 lead with three runs in each of the first two innings. In the first Soran delivered a two-run double that scored Korson and Eric Mordhorst and Riley Boyd brought in the third tally on a wild pitch.

In the second, singles by Pearson and Korson and a "hit batsman" — the second time for Mordhorst — loaded the bases and they unloaded on a bases-loaded walk to Roy, a fielder's choice by Jeff Ames and a double steal.

Pocatello's Mark Kaip doubled in two runs in the third but Twin Falls quickly nullified those when Korson's third straight single pitched Buster, on with a double, and the singling Pearson.

Pocatello's Shayne Proctor slides safely to second as Cowboys' Riley Boyd waits for pickoff throw

The Cowboys added three more in the fourth when Buster doubled in Soran and Troy Schofield and Jeff Ames plated another run with a sacrifice fly.

That was more than enough although Pocatello got three back in the sixth and added another run in the top of the seventh.

Matt Horner's single scored the Cowboys last time insurance runs.

In the nightcap, Twin Falls scored one run in the first inning on five straight walks by pitcher Adam Cordova — losing one when Schofield was caught at the plate trying to score on an apparent wild pitch.

But in the second, a walk to Olsen, a single by Buster and an error that let Korson win and one run score and set the stage for the first breakthrough.

Jim Hyde's sacrifice to center field sent Buster across the plate and Riley Boyd.

Edberg stifles McEnroe's Wimbledon comeback

By RICK WARNER
The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — John McEnroe's amazing Wimbledon odyssey was ended Friday by defending champion Stefan Edberg, who gave a rain delay, and swept into the final with a stinging serve-and-volley game.

Edberg's 7-6, 7-6, 7-6 victory stopped the 30-year-old American from continuing a remarkable comeback and reaching his first Grand Slam final in four years.

"I'm disappointed," said McEnroe, who showed no signs of a shoulder injury that forced him to withdraw from doubles a day earlier. "I felt like I could have won this tournament. Things just didn't work out."

Strangely, McEnroe lost despite playing what was probably his best match of the tournament. Each set was decided by a few crucial points, and Edberg won more of them than McEnroe.

"It was the small things that made me win," the 28-year-old Swede said. "I hit some good shots when I really needed to. There wasn't a lot of difference between the two of us."

The match was interrupted for 3½ hours by rain early in the third set, and that delay forced officials to postpone the second semifinal between Ivan Lendl and Boris Becker until Saturday.

The Lendl-Becker match will be played immediately before the women's final between Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova. The last time a semifinal was staged the same day as a final was 1965, when Anders Jarryd and Becker finished a rain-interrupted match before the women's championship.

Edberg needed two days to beat Becker in last year's rain-plagued final. It took him far less time to beat McEnroe, but it wasn't easy.

The court was slippery, there were distractions from helicopters and birds, and McEnroe wasn't giving him many chances to break serve.

But Edberg won the first set with a break in the final game and then won two tense tiebreakers with his spinning serve and lightning reflexes at the net.

"He volleyed fabulously," McEnroe said. "I thought I'd be able to crack a few winners."

Walsh goes to Dallas

By BILL BARNARD
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Dallas Cowboys, who are paying Troy Aikman more than $11 million for the next six years, drafted another rookie quarterback in Steve Walsh and said Friday they have no intention of trading him.

"We did not make this pick thinking trade," said Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson, who coached Walsh when he quarterbacked the University of Miami to a 23-1 record the last two years.

Walsh was taken in the first round of Friday's NFL supplemental draft, which means Dallas gave up its first-round pick in the regular 1990 draft to get him.

Eight other teams with six or fewer wins last season passed on the other top players available before quarterback Timm Rosenbach was selected by the Phoenix Cardinals and running back Bobby Humphrey by the Denver Broncos.

If the Cowboys decide to keep Aikman and Walsh, they will have two of college football's best quarterbacks, but they also will have to reopen their checkbook.

"If they want me to compete on an equal scale with Troy, compensation will have to be somewhat similar," Walsh said. "It's the only way to be fair to my career and Troy's career."

Walsh said his familiarity with Johnson can only help him with the

BCI South includes strong shooters

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Shooters will be in abundance on the Magic Valley Basketball Congress International boys' team, announced Friday by Twin Falls High School coach John Astorquia, the South BCI coach.

"The include two players who averaged better than 20 points a game last season, Murtaugh High School senior forward Evan Neubecker and Valley High senior guard David Black. Several others — Twin Falls High guard Jason Astorquia, Castleford center Bruce Hahn, Kimberly center Kelly Holcomb, Castleford guard Jeremy Burgess and Shoshone guard Joe Messick — were double-figure scorers.

The rest of the squad includes Jerome High forward Tracy Dixon, Bighigh guard Dan Winn, Wood-River High guard Clint Owen, Kimberly guard Sam Wardsbaker and Shoshone guard Alex Ugaldé.

They will make up the South team which will take part in the state BCI tournament at Twin Falls High School next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Other teams will represent northern, western and eastern Idaho.

On the basis of the results of that tournament, an Idaho team will be chosen to represent the state at the international BCI tournament in Tempe, Ariz., later this month.

The South squad won't have an abundance of height; at 6-foot, 5-inches, Hahn is the biggest player on the squad. But Coach Astorquia doesn't expect size to be in abundance in this year's state BCI tourney.

"I don't think we'll see a lot of size coming in here, except maybe from the East," said

Owners' revolt halts Finks selection

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jim Finks was not rejected, only not on hold.

Finks remains the heavy favorite to become the next NFL commissioner despite having denied the job on his first crack at it because of a revolt by 11 "outsider" owners.

When club owners ended a 6-hour and 25 minute meeting an hour before midnight Thursday, the president of the New Orleans Saints was three votes short of the 19 necessary to give him the job that Peter Rozelle has held for nearly 30 years.

Five of the 11 abstentions — not no votes — were cast by owners who have joined the league since 1980 and feel they have been left out of the league's decision-making process. Most of the other abstainers were from a group that is rarely consulted by the inner circle of "football men" who comprised the selection committee.

"We feel that if we had received the information we had been seeking, Jim Finks would have been elected a long time ago," said Norman Braman of the Philadelphia Eagles, one of three organizers of the revolt. "We just didn't feel we had been given enough background on any of the candidates, including Finks."

"There was not any anti-Jim Finks sentiment in the room," said Lamar Hunt of Kansas City, co-chairman of the selection committee. The committee recommended

Minor league team boycotts game

The Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The Vancouver Canadians, citing what they said was a consistent policy of late salary payments by the parent Chicago White Sox organization, refused to play a scheduled Pacific Coast League game here Thursday night.

The players left the Albuquerque Sports Stadium about 90 minutes before the scheduled 7 p.m. MDT start of the game against Albuquerque and returned to their hotel, then went into a closed-door meeting.

"We have players with wives and babies back home, and if they don't have the rent and grocery money, they're in trouble," in-fighter Jeff Schaefer said. "We have obligations to meet just like everyone else."

Brent Imlach, in his first year as vice president and general manager of the Pacific Coast League team, met with the players Friday and handed over the checks that were due June 30.

The players, who said Thursday the White Sox have been consistently late in meeting the twice-a-month payroll, agreed to play the windup of a four-game series with the Albuquerque Dukes.

"We got our checks and we're going to play," said Vancouver catcher Marc Sullivan, whose father, Haywood Sullivan, is co-owner of the Boston Red Sox.

Imlach said it would be up to the Chicago White Sox front office and the PCL to determine if any of the Vancouver players would be fined or suspended for not playing Thursday night's game. Imlach said he had discussed the situation with White Sox general manager Larry Himes, but "we did not discuss any disciplinary action."

Knox shoots 10 under for lead at Greater Hartford tourney

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Leading the Greater Hartford Open is nothing new to Kenny Knox. Staying on top would be — and he's confident he can.

Knox shot 4-under-par 67 Friday for a two-round total of 10-under 132 and held — a one-stroke lead over Clark Burroughs, who is seeking his first PGA Tour victory.

Lee Trevino, five months shy of his 50th birthday and eligibility for the Senior Tour, had the best round of the tournament on a sultry day when temperatures soared into the 90s. His 61 put him in a tie for third at 134, with David Frost, who shot a 65, Jim Carter, Bill Britton and Robert Wrenn.

Knox had shared the first-day lead at 65 with Paul Azinger and Bob Gilder. But Azinger, the 1967 GHO champion, shot a 70 Friday for a total of 134, with Gilder shot a 74 for 138.

Knox, who has two victories since turning pro in 1978, had a good chance to win the 1968 GHO. He was tied for first after three rounds, then soared to a 76 and ended up tied for 24th.

"I was just totally inexperienced," said Knox, an excellent putter who had four birdies and 14 pars Friday. "I was playing with Tom Watson and on every-hole people said, 'let's go Tom,' and that took me out of my concentration."

"If experience is a factor, I'm (three) years more experienced now."

A problem is that Burroughs, who shot a 67 Friday, also feels better able to handle the pressure of being in contention for the $180,000 top prize.

In his first full year on the Tour, Burroughs was tied for second after two rounds of the 1968 GHO. But he shot 74 the next day and finished in a tie for 19th.

"I was a rookie. I got up to that first on Saturday. I was so nervous," said Burroughs, who birdied the last four holes Friday. "I'll be nervous (Saturday), but I think I'll be able to handle it a little better."

Burroughs missed the cut in seven of his first nine tournaments this year, but survived it in four of his last five and finished in the top 10 place at the Canadian Open two weeks ago.

Players had to shoot 2-under 140 or better at the 6,766-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut to advance to Saturday's third round.

Among those who missed the cut by one stroke were 1964 GHO champion Peter Jacobson, the playoff loser last Monday in the Western Open, and Joey Sindelar, the playoff loser in last year's GHO.

Defending champion Mark Brooks shot a 66 for a total of 136.

Trevino's 64 was two strokes off the course record and signaled his continuing improvement as he prepares for the British Open in two weeks.

After missing three consecutive cuts, including the U.S. Open, he tied for 18th at the Canadian Open and tied for fifth last weekend at the Western Open.

"I was very disappointed when I went to Canada. Then everything kind of clicked over there," Trevino said. "I started hitting my irons well."

"I'm going to go into the British Open probably playing better than I've played in a long time," said Trevino.

Football camp returns to Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — The annual Snake River Football Camp will be held July 11-12-13 at Brain Stadium.

The camp, conducted by the coaching staffs from Twin Falls, Jerome, Buhl and Gooding high schools and O'Leary and Stuart junior high schools, will be for youngsters who will be in the seventh through 12th grades next fall.

The camp for seventh through ninth graders will be held from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily, while 10th through 12th graders will attend the camp from 6:30 a.m. through 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $10, and participants can register before the first session on the 11th.

Further information can be obtained by phoning Jon Jund at 734-0641.

Jackpot benefit will aid athletes

BUHL — A jackpot benefit will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Morrison area to benefit Nevada Freeman and Jamie Korte, who will be participating in the national high school rodeo and Northwest basketball tournaments, respectively.

Competition is offered in all events in age groups ranging from preteen to open.

Bulls could elevate Phil Jackson

CHICAGO (AP) — Doug Collins rarely missed an opportunity to praise Phil Jackson, his assistant with the Chicago Bulls, when an NBA coaching vacancy turned up. Now it appears Jackson may be closing in on such a job — as Collins' successor.

"Jackson is the only name I've heard" former NBA player Dan Issel, now assistant to Denver Nuggets president Pete Babcock, said in a telephone interview Friday.

Jackson became a Bulls assistant two years ago, not long after being a runner-up to Collins to replace the fired Stan Albeck as coach in 1968.

Illinois' Thomas claims innocence

The Washington Post

Prop basketball star Dean Thomas, apparently the center of a preliminary NCAA investigation into the University of Illinois' recruiting practices, said Tuesday neither he nor the school did anything wrong.

University Chancellor Morton Weir revealed Monday that he had received a letter from the NCAA dated June 23.

"As of this date, the information has not been submitted," clearly investigated to determine whether an official inquiry is warranted," wrote David Berst, assistant executive director of the NCAA.

The name of the student-athlete was not revealed by the school.

But Thomas, a 6-foot-9 forward from Chicago Simon, said he is the target. "When the NCAA approached me, I wasn't worried because I knew there was nothing to worry about," Thomas said. "They told me it was a routine investigation they are doing of the top 20 players and it's a category I happen to fall in."

Alblon's Cooper regains 2nd place

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Alblon's Kant Cooper has moved back into second place in the last saddle bronc riding standing released by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Cooper, who has been ranked second or third by the PRCA most of the season in his specialty, moved up from fourth place in the last rankings, released two weeks.

PRCA rankings are based upon money earned in PRCA-sanctioned rodeos.

Cooper has earned $21,449 so far this season, 5 1/2 times more than $3,000 behind event leader Derek Clark of Colorado, Okla. In the last two weeks, Cooper has moved ahead of both Clint Johnson of Spearfish, S.D., and Rod Hay of Mayorthorp, Alberta, behind whom he was ranked last week.

Register soon for Falls-to-Falls Run

TWIN FALLS — Registration is open for the 10th annual Falls-to-Falls Run, which will be held Saturday, July 15.

The race, sponsored by the Twin Falls YFCA, is traditionally one of the Magic Valley's largest. It covers a 5.3-mile course from the Twin Falls Park in the Snake River Canyon to Dorkes Lake.

Entry fee is $10. There will be prizes for the top finishers overall and in six different age groups.

Further information can be obtained by phoning the Y at 733-4384.

Goose Creek run registration open

OAKLEY — Registration is open for the Goose Creek Runoff, a 10-kilometer fun run that will be held on Saturday, July 22.

The run will follow at 6.2-mile course from Oakley Reservoir to Oakley City Park.

Entry fee is $10. Further information can be obtained by phoning Junita Harby at 662-3666.

Toledo: Crafter, Sanders ahead

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — Non-winners Jane Crafter and Susan Sanders shared the lead after Friday's first round of the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic. But Butsy King, the Tour's top money-winner, is lurking only one shot back.

Crafter and Sanders shot 4-under-par 67s Friday at the Highland Meadows Golf Club for a one-stroke lead over King and defending U.S. Open champion Liselotte Neumann of Sweden.

King, seeking her fifth victory this season, said she was pleased to be a shot off the pace — with a pair of non-winners in front of her.

"The first day of a 64-hole tournament—it's more important to get a good round going, so I'm happy," said King, who is on track to shatter the LPGA's single-season money-winning record. "You just don't want to be out of the tournament after the first day."

Personally, I think a four-day tournament is better for me, just because you feel like the better players have more of a chance of shooting four good rounds than, say, somebody who hasn't won before. It's body who has two sleepless nights than three if you haven't been through (leading a tournament) before."

King has four victories and $413,668 in winnings in 17 tournaments this year. With roughly half of the season remaining, she could demolish Pat Bradley's 1968 record of $422,021.

Two of King's four victories this season have been in 54-hole events. Crafter is winless in nine years on the Tour and has finished higher than 22nd in only one of 18 starts this season — a tie for third at the Inamorati Classic in early April.

"That's the best I've played in a long time," the 34-year-old Australian said of Friday's round. "My game's been floundering since I finished third in San Diego. I've had a little trouble with my motivation. The frustration level has been high."

Crafter had five birdies and a bogey in posting her best competitive round this year. It also was only the second time in 61 rounds she has broken 70.

Sanders, enjoying her finest start in her fifth year on the Tour, has never finished higher than third in an LPGA event. She credited her 1968 partners — Crafter and Penny Hammel, who shot a 69 — for her strong start.

"We had a really good group," she said. "Jane got it going and got to 3- or 4-under and it kind of inspired us to go get some birdies of our own. When you see somebody making birdies, it makes you think you can get some too."

Sanders, 57, with no bogeys, matched her lowest round of the year.

Neumann, who will defend her U.S. Open title next week, termed her round "a roller-coaster ride" after seven birdies and four bogeys left her tied with King.

"I'm getting warmed up and getting ready for the Open," she said. "I've stuck to my plan since the beginning and that was to play here."

Missie McGeorge, Cathy Marino, Sandra Haynie and Sara Anne McGerick were tied with Hammel at 69.

Haynie, a member of the LPGA Hall of Fame, won the last tournament played at Highland Meadows, the Glass City Classic in 1968.

Nancy Lopez, a three-time runner-up, led a group at 1 under 70. Defending champion Laura Davies shot a 73, matching Yammie Green, the winner of last week's du-Maurir Classic, the third of the four major championships on the women's tour.

Farr, the tournament's namesake, was released from a local hospital earlier Friday after suffering from back spasms.

The winner collects $41,250 from a purse of $275,000.

Old guard may have to relinquish some power in running the NFL

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Jim Finks remains the odds-on choice to be the next NFL Commissioner despite his rejection on the first two ballots this week.

But the league he will probably run for the next five years may have a membership that's a lot more contentious than the one Pete Rozelle managed to mold together for a general consensus on the major issues of the past 25 years.

"You have a lot of people here who have between $70 million and $100 million invested in their teams," said Norman Braman, the owner of the Philadelphia Eagles and one of the leaders of the revolt that denied Finks the 19 votes needed for election on Thursday.

"When there's that much money involved, you want to have a say in the business,"

The revolt by Braman and 10 other owners, most of them "outsiders," reflected a real change in the balance of power between the old-guard owners who controlled the league during the Rozelle era and the newcomers. It also reflected a breach between the so-called "football men" and new owners whose principal financial interests lie elsewhere.

"You look at things a lot differently when your principal income comes from football rather than shopping malls or car dealerships," says one of the old guard, speaking on condition of anonymity.

It's just that attitude that rules the dissidents, who stressed that they had no real objection to Finks, who has built and rebuilt three NFL franchises as president and general manager — in fact, when they meet again, they are likely to name him, having made their point in the 6-hour, 25-minute session Thursday night that they must be brought more closely into the center of the action.

The main point, simmering since the search committee was named in March, was that there should have been some new blood — among the owners — and that more than one name should have been recommended to the league's general membership.

As it was, the committee was headed by Wellington Mara of the Giants and Lamar Hunt of the Chiefs and also included Art Modell of the Browns; Dan Rooney of the Steelers; Robert Parins of the Packers and Ralph Wilson of the Bills. Rooney, 57, is the youngest and all have been involved with the league for at least 20 years and have taken an active part in league matters.

They, in fact, consider themselves the league's stewards.

For example, during the USFL's antitrust suit against the NFL, heard three years ago, Modell and Mara attended almost every day, Rooney also attended some sessions and Parins was a witness. "When you have this much money on the line," Mara said when the NFL escaped with only a $3 verdict against it, "you want to see in person what's going to happen."

Sullivan and John Nordstrom — almost certainly would have gone along with the committee recommendation.

That should give the leaders new clout, particularly Lynn and Braman, who is already on the inside as chairman of two committees.

The 53-year-old Lynn, an outspoken and sometimes controversial activist for a decade, seems to be putting himself on a path to become the next Schramm — who was often referred to during the Rozelle years as the deputy commissioner.

Though he and Finks don't make the best of friends, Finks did mark the speech at the meeting in New Orleans in May that is credited with getting the 1992 Super Bowl for Minneapolis.

So when the owners meet again this summer they're likely to elect Finks, but with the dissent factor having made its point that it must be considered in the future.

"We feel that if we had received the information we had been seeking that Jim Finks would have been elected tonight," Braman said after the meeting. "We just didn't feel we had been given enough background on any of the candidates, including Finks."

"There was not any anti-Jim Finks sentiment in the room," Hunt said.

But the search committee and the dissent factor still wants more information on the other finalists, who include former Green Bay All-Pro Willie Davis, now a businessman; Robert Mulva, executive director of the New Jersey Meadowlands Authority; former Democratic National chairman Paul Kirk; Paul Tagliabue, the NFL's Washington lawyer and a man described as the chief executive officer of a major corporation who asked that his name not be made public.

Finks remains the front-runner.

The only difference is that he's been put on notice that the men who were at Pete Rozelle's side for 30 years may have to open the doors of power a little wider.

LeMond hangs on to slim lead

PUTURUSCOPE, France (AP) — Greg LeMond retained the lead in the Tour de France Friday after an easy ride in which the most of the pack rode together on the race's longest stage.

Frenchman Joel Pelier took the sixth stage in 6 hours, 57 minutes, 45 seconds, winning by 1:34. But the rest of the pack finished — close enough for the word standings to remain virtually unchanged.

"I'm not complaining about the stage. Pelier is more than nine minutes behind me," LeMond said.

LeMond has a five-second margin over two-time winner Laurent Fignon of France after Friday's stage of the 23-day, 2,020-mile event.

But LeMond knows that the flat roads of western France are soon to end.

"In three days there will be the mountains," he said, referring to the Pyrenees, where the first of the hill climbs is Monday.

But LeMond is still enjoying his lead. He won in 1986, becoming the first American to capture the prestigious race, but missed the last two years with injuries and an accidental shooting while hunting.

"I didn't very sleep well last night. I was too excited," LeMond said. "I woke up about 3:30 in the morning."

Friday's 161-mile leg went from Rennes to the modern city of Futuroscope. Another long stage is scheduled for Saturday with a 160.6-mile leg from Poitiers to Bordeaux.

Recruiting ethics most lacking

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — Most unethical behavior in intercollegiate sports occurred in recruiting, though some also took place in academic areas, according to a survey of college coaches to be presented today.

Sixty-seven coaches referred to ethics on athletics over academics, 30 claimed transcripts were altered or grades changed and 29 listed general academic cheating.

Other unethical behavior included use of steroids, physical or psychological intimidation of athletes and officials and playing with injury, the survey said.

In addition, 162 coaches also listed unethical behavior in the academic area on the seven-question survey that was to be presented at a URI seminar on ethics and sportsmanship.

Sixty-seven coaches referred to ethics on athletics over academics, 30 claimed transcripts were altered or grades changed and 29 listed general academic cheating.

Other unethical behavior included use of steroids, physical or psychological intimidation of athletes and officials and playing with injury, the survey said.

Surveys were mailed to 780 directors of athletics at colleges and universities for distribution to coaches. Coaches from 153 schools responded.

Of the coaches who mentioned unethical behavior in recruiting, 169 cited general recruitment practices; 101 listed special inducements and special treatment of athletes as problems.

"They mentioned direct payment to athletes; payment to the family payment from alumni — the old handshake and preferred housing," said J. Richard Polidoro, the institute's associate director.

Sullivan was boxing pioneer

Los Angeles Times

One-hundred years ago Saturday, in pre-dawn darkness, two trains pulled out of New Orleans in secret. They rolled north, across the Pontchartrain Bridge, toward Mississippi.

Several thousand men were onboard in such cramped quarters that some clung to the tops of the cars. The passengers' tickets read only "Destination and Return."

The trains rolled through the night. At the Mississippi state line, an armed party of 25 Mississippi state militiamen ordered the first train to stop. But the engineers were under orders not to, and the train rumbled by at 40 mph.

The destination, known only to two promoters and the engineers, who were sworn to secrecy, was a 30,000-acre farm near the railroad tracks at tiny Richburg, Miss.

No one that day could have known the trains were headed on a nighttime ride to a final page in the history books. An era was ending — and a new one was beginning.

were outlaws.

John L. Sullivan of Boston was America's first great sports-superstar. In his prime and for decades afterward, thousands of saloon owners across America displayed his portrait above bars.

Old men once said: "Shake the hand that shook the hand of the Great John."

Sullivan took boxing from an illegal activity staged on river barges and put it into modern arenas. He bridged the gap from bare knuckles to gloves.

New city pool hosts invitational meet

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The first major swimming competition ever to be held at the new Twin Falls City Pool is scheduled for today and Sunday.

The Twin Falls Long Course Invitational meet is expected to draw about 250 swimmers from Idaho, Utah and Oregon.

Because of the meet, the pool will be closed to recreational swimming today and Saturday.

Competition is scheduled to begin at 8 this morning and run through 5 p.m. tonight, then continue at 8 Sunday morning and run all day.
