Idaho's $77 million surplus a record

The Associated Press
BOISE — Idaho's booming economy produced a record state budget surplus of nearly $77 million, and state economic growth is higher than it's been for a decade, state officials say.
State Auditor J.D. Williams said Tuesday the state had $76.8 million left over when it closed the books on the budget year July 1. Subtracting previous obligations, including $13.5 million in college construction, Williams said there's a surplus of $63.4 million.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said he's "extremely pleased" with the report, but cautioned against any immediate move to spend the extra money without looking at long-term needs.
The Legislative Budget Office also estimated that with even modest growth in the state economy, there will be a $42 million surplus in the current budget and the two-year surplus could hit $106 million.
Even as the huge surplus was announced, the battle started over what to do with it.

State Sen. Norris "Doc" Hyde, R-Emmett, said the big surplus makes it obvious a tax cut is needed.
"It's obvious what the governor and the Legislature ought to do now," said Hyde. He called for rolling back state tax rates to pre-1987 levels, plus increasing the state investment tax from 3 to 5 percent.
"Two years of record surpluses is all the evidence I need to recommend some relief from the higher income tax rates approved in 1987 to immunize government from the effects of the mid-80s recession," Hyde said.

"Government has taken more than it needs and more than taxpayers want to give," Andrus said. "It makes 'good political fodder' for people who are running for office to talk about giving tax rebates. But he those already in office have to plan for long-range, not just the next 15 minutes."
"Clearly, the size of the surplus is a strong indicator of the basic strength of the Idaho economy," said Williams, in announcing the surplus. "It also is encouraging that the economy remains strong across the board with few, if any, soft spots," he said.

He said all segments of the Idaho economy appear strong, with potato growers getting $10 per hundredweight and cattlemen up to $1 per pound for feeder cattle. Those are prices growers and livestockmen haven't seen in years, he said.
But both Williams and Andrus urged caution about spending the surplus instead of building up a reserve for future years.
Williams said people should realize that's only enough money to operate state government for 30 days. And he said it was

Bush scores a hit with Hungarians

The Associated Press
BUDAPEST, Hungary — President Bush, sped on his way by thousands of cheering Poles, on Tuesday hailed the democratic reforms and changes taking root in Hungary as he pursued an extraordinary journey to nourish freedom in communist lands.
"We want to work with Hungary to continue the changes and reforms you are going forward with in your great country," the president told several thousand people who braved the rain to hear his arrival remarks.
More thousands lined the streets as Bush's motorcade made its way into the city, just minutes after a storm with hurricane-force winds blew through.
Later, at an extraordinary exchange of dinner toasts with a liberal-minded communist leader, Bush said that in this Soviet bloc state "the key to economic success is letting the market do its work."
His host, Rezo Nyers, effectively put in charge of the government nearly three weeks ago, assured Bush, "We are convinced that the reform of our economy and the steps we have taken to build a market economy offer favorable terms for American enterprise.

There was no hesitation in this communist leader's assertion that his country, seeking to recover from hard times, intends to "create modern, competitive structures" and wants the United States to play "an increasing role" in its economic affairs.
Today, in a speech at Karl Marx University, Bush is expected to translate into concrete terms the kind of help the United States will extend to Hungary, including better trade terms.
Air Force One brought Bush and the presidential party to Hungary — where Soviet troops once brutally crushed democratic yearnings — after a tumultuous scene in Gdansk, Poland, at the birthplace of the Solidarity trade union movement.
"For those who say that freedom can forever be denied, I say let them look at Poland," he told a cheering crowd — estimated at 25,000 at a Solidarity monument outside the great Lenin shippyard.

Historic Idaho grains standing tall

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News writer
KIMBERLY — The ancestors of Idaho's wheatfields were standing tall for area farmers at the University of Idaho's Agricultural Research and Extension Center Tuesday.
About 20 farmers gathered for a guided tour of the center's crops, which include Idaho's Centennial wheat nursery, a collection of all 335 varieties of wheat grown commercially in the Pacific Northwest over the past 100 years.
The older wheat strains are no longer grown commercially, having been outdated by their progeny, which are more disease-resistant, yield more grain and have shorter stalks, said Ken Kephart, the extension agronomist who planted the nursery plots.

The development of shorter strains of wheat is "one of the most marked improvements" modern agronomists have made, said Ed Souza, assistant professor for the University's wheat breeding program.
Shorter stalks make today's wheat crop easier to manage, Souza said.
The wheat can easily fit underneath wheel-driven irrigation equipment, and it is less likely to fall over beneath the weight of the heavy head, he said.

Kephart took on the project three years ago as part of U of I's centennial celebration.
He wanted to design something to "demonstrate the advances made in agriculture" during the past century.
"We came up with the idea of a single collection where all these varieties are growing side by side," he said.
Since the wheat strains in the nursery are no

Nebraska fire keeps growing; blazes burn in 8 other states

The Associated Press
Twenty-two fires burned out of control in nine Western states Tuesday, with one blaze in Nebraska growing to 100,000 acres of grass and pine and a fire in Utah briefly threatening a major power transmission line.
A blaze west of Denver destroyed more than 60 structures by Monday night, including an unknown number of homes.
Rain helped elsewhere, but thunderstorms in Arizona also led to the lightning death of a firefighter on Monday. It was the Western fire season's second fire-related death; a firefighter in California was killed by a falling tree on Sunday.
Twenty-two fires that had charred about 119,000 acres were burning uncontrolled, down from 44 fires blackening 167,000 acres on Monday, the federal Boise Interagency Fire Center in Idaho reported.
Fires were active in California, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon. Information officer Debbie Shivers said 11,000 firefighters were at work throughout the West.
While rain moderated some fires in the Southwest, the beginning of the seasonal monsoon weather could mean more lightning storms in the dry West.

A brush fire in Utah threatened two power lines that relay electricity in the West, prompting the temporary shutdown of a 345,000-volt line; but crews contained the blaze early Tuesday, an official said.
The fire burned more than 1,000 acres 15 miles southwest of Nephi and near the Intermountain Power Plant's Intermountain-Mona transmission lines.
Bureau of Land Management spokesman Bert Hart said the blaze's intense smoke acted as an electrical conductor, causing a "shorting-out effect" on the ground.
Elsewhere in Utah, nearly 400 firefighters finished a fire line around a 15,500-acre fire west of the Colorado line, and crews capitalized on spotty rainfall to contain several other fires, including a 5,000-acre fire in rugged terrain in eastern Utah and western Colorado.
The fire in northwestern Nebraska burned over an area 8 miles wide by 22 miles long, and officials who flew over the area estimated more than 100,000 acres had actually burned, said Jerry Larson, deputy state fire marshal.
The fire, fanned by 35 mph winds during the night, was within 8 miles of Harrison, an isolated community of about 380.

Actor Olivier, famed for stage, screen roles, dies at age 82

The Associated Press
LONDON — Laurence Olivier, the foremost actor of a distinguished generation and the man whose Hamlet and Henry V defined Shakespeare for modern mass audiences, died Tuesday at 82.
A rare fusion of superb classical and extraordinary contemporary actor, Olivier was at home in the plays of Shakespeare, Shaw and Chekhov, as well as movies made from classics, such as "Wuthering Heights," or the thriller "Marathon Man."
Knighted and ennobled, he was Lord Olivier when he died but still plain Laurence Olivier on his stage and screen credits. He also led a distinguished roll-call of actor-knights and dames who made British stage and screen history.

"It isn't too much to say that Olivier was perhaps the greatest man of the theater ever," said Sir Peter Hall, who succeeded him as artistic director of the National Theater.
"Plays were lowered to half-staff outside the National Theater, and theaters from London's West End to Stratford — the birthplace of Shakespeare — dimmed their exterior lights for an hour Tuesday night in respect.
Queen Elizabeth II sent condolences, and tributes came from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and former President Ronald Reagan.

Cheney predicts $30 billion Pentagon savings by year 1993

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, predicting he can save taxpayers $30 billion by fiscal year 1993, outlined a complex plan Tuesday to overhaul the Pentagon's bureaucracy and tighten control over its massive arms-purchasing systems.

His proposals include paring the number of people involved in purchasing decisions by thousands and giving more authority to the undersecretary of defense in that area, thereby trimming some powers of the individual military services.

Cheney was quick to say he had no magic solution for ridding the Pentagon and the defense establishment of fraud and abuse, or making it more efficient. Nor will he be able to make his program work on his own, he said.

"There's no silver bullet here. ... We have a blueprint that we plan to pursue ... to try to significantly improve the way we do business," Cheney said of his plan said at a Pentagon press conference.

"If we're going to be successful, it will be because we got Congress to cooperate," he said.

The report was requested by President Bush five months ago as part of a major review spurred by the weapons-procurement scandals that rocked the defense establishment.

Weapons purchases account for more than $60 billion of this year's $305 billion military budget and involve more than a half-million civilian and uniformed employees of the Defense Department.

Cheney acted Tuesday to put some of the changes in place, in particular the realignment of his top-level Pentagon management team. Other steps require congressional approval, while others will need work "throughout my tenure at the department," the secretary said.

Even before its official release, the package stirred opposition on Capitol Hill, where some said it doesn't go into enough detail.

Cheney also seeks relief from some congressional oversight requests, complaining that Congress requires a "staggering" amount of reports, inquiries and testimony from the military.

To emphasize that point, Cheney and his deputy Donald Atwood stood beside two five-foot high stacks of reports that Congress had requested from the Pentagon during the past year. One of the reports cost $1.9 million to produce, the secretary said.

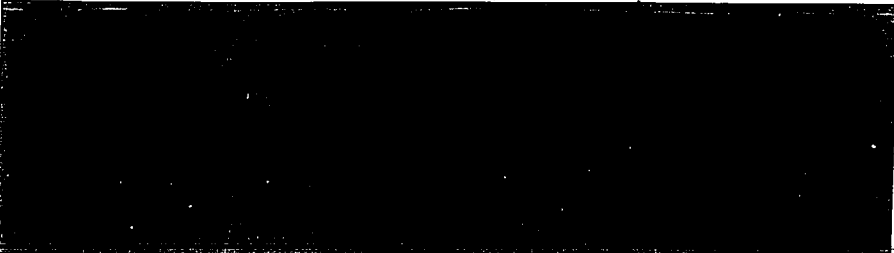

"I'm convinced nobody ever reads these reports," Cheney quipped, evoking laughter from his audience. "It's make-work." Before taking the top Pentagon job this year, Cheney was a Republican leader in the House.

Cheney also is suggesting that due to the paring down of the defense budget process and establish select committees in both houses to review and rewrite the maze of federal procurement laws.

Many of the ideas included in the reform package were first proposed in 1986.

Air Force lawmen charged with F-16 engine theft

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two Air Force policemen were charged with stealing three F-16 engines and 12 other people were indicted in a sting which FBI agents ran a military surplus store dealing in stolen property, authorities said Tuesday.

Agents have identified up to 100 suspects, some military policemen, at Hill Air Force Base, other Utah installations and 15 other communities in the West and Southwest, said Robert Bryant, agent in charge of the FBI's Utah office.

The indictments remained sealed in federal court and the names of the people were not released.

"The thefts at Hill appear to be part of a larger problem involving other states and other military establishments," said U.S. Attorney Dee Benson.

"Unfortunately, many of the participants are military policemen, and we find that especially disturbing."

Benson identified the two men arrested at a Bountiful restaurant Monday night as Airman 1st Class Brian Roth of Chesterland, Ohio, and Senior Airman Danny Joe Stroud of Newton, Kan. Their ages were not released.

Benson said he expected "many more" arrests in coming weeks.

Operation Puncture, a joint effort of the FBI, the Department of the Defense and the Air Force, began in 1986 when stolen military goods became increasingly available in the Salt Lake Valley, Bryant said.

It targeted military and civilian personnel as well as unscrupulous wholesalers of stolen goods, he said.

The FBI established a storefront in Roy near the base called Military Surplus Brokers, which spent about $80,000 to buy thousands of items worth about $600,000 stolen from all branches of the military, Bryant said.

Benson said the stolen military equipment included sleeping bags, helmets, canteens, munitions and firearms, as well as the jet engines, although no military systems or strategic weapons were involved.

He said the purchases resulted in "the identification of more than 100 suspects throughout the United States who are involved in the theft and sale of stolen-government property."

He said Roth and Stroud had approached undercover officers with an offer to sell the jet fighter engines. The two were given a down payment of $10,000 toward a purchase price of $300,000 for the three engines, valued at $2 million each, he said.

The two men brought the engines to the FBI agents by trailer.

Both were charged with theft of government property and conspiracy. They were jailed without bail.

The Pratt & Whitney F100-PW-200 engines were reported missing last Wednesday by maintenance personnel.

Soybean mart corner attempt fails

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Board of Trade issued an emergency order Tuesday aimed at breaking up an attempted corner of the soybean market, described by one analyst as "the biggest market play since the Huns."

The exchange's board of directors ordered all traders — holding commitments in buy or sell orders for 1 million bushels of soybeans for delivery this month to reduce those positions by at least 20 percent each trading day through July 20, when the July contract expires. Analysts said the order would probably result in a sharp drop in the July contract's price at the opening of trading Wednesday.

Board of Trade spokesmen would not identify the parties involved but confirmed that the emergency order was designed to avert the crisis that would occur if the supply of soybeans available for delivery was too small to satisfy the contracts.

The emergency resolution said no trader may control more than 3 million bushels of July soybean at the close of trading next Tuesday, and none may control more than 1 million bushels by the contract's expiration two days later.

William Biederman, director of research with Allendale Inc., a Chicago-area futures brokerage, said the situation was rooted in a large foreign-based grain company's accumulation over the past 1 1/2 years of about 30 million bushels of soybeans — enough to control the market.

noon. All the family were at his side," said Richard Olivier, the 27-year-old son of his third marriage, to John Plowright.

Death came at his home near Ashurst, a village near Skyeing in West Sussex about 50 miles south of London.

A private funeral is planned, with a public memorial service in London later.

Olivier was the hero of his own life, fighting cancer, ploury and a muscle disease that made even handshakes agony. He endured two miserable marriages and years of pirating stage fright, contemplated murder and suicide and battled his own rages, guilt and drinking.

He was renowned for his daring. "However many critics would scorn him, it was probably the most dangerously thrilling moment I've ever seen on any stage," actor Jeremy Brett said Tuesday.

In Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," Olivier brought nightly gasps of alarm from the audience by leaping backward off a table and crashing to the floor. He was then 64.

"He was a tragic film hero in 'Wuthering Heights' and portrayed the painful experience of aging in 'The Entertainer' on stage and 'A Voyage Round My Father' on television.

His genius owed much to a sweeping imagination and attention to detail. The stately official, King Oedipus's unearthly cry of anguish Olivier said he imagined the sound ermines make when they lick salt laid out by their hunters and their tongues stick to the ice.

longer grown commercially, finding seeds was often difficult, Kephart said.

Most varieties grown during the past 25 years came from regional wheat breeding centers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Other seeds came from the U.S. Department of Agriculture small grain repository in Aberdeen, and the "oldest varieties had to be imported from Canada and Australia," Kephart said.

Other farmers often come into the nursery, identify a type of wheat they once grew and tell stories about past days on the farm, he said.

Most of Idaho's wheat is soft white, which is exported to Japan and other Asian countries for use in pastry flour, cookie dough and noodles.

Wheat wasn't the only thing on Tuesday's agenda, as farmers saw some of the latest hybrid beans, oats and alfalfa.

Many old strains of beans — some that may have been grown by Indians 3,000 years ago — are being grown alongside their more modern descendants.

Most of the plants look the same now, but forces will begin to emerge as the beans reach maturity near the end of the summer, said Jim Myers, an assistant professor of plant breeding and genetics for U of

Tanker remains off San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Exxon Valdez was kept offshore Tuesday because of an 18-mile-long oil slick that apparently leaked from the tanker despite Exxon's assurances that the ship was cleaned before leaving Alaska.

"They were wrong. The ship is not squeaky clean," said Coast Guard Cmdr. Jack Scarborough, captain of the Port of San Diego. "That's a discrepancy I can't explain."

Exxon officials agreed that the Exxon Valdez, the source of the nation's worst oil spill, was probably the source of the oil slick off San Diego, Scarborough said. The oil was likely washed out of the ship's damaged hull by seawater, he said.

"The tanker was kept 60 miles offshore while officials worked to clean its cargo tanks of oil.

just six years ago that the state had a $70 million deficit near the end of a fiscal year, requiring spending halts.

"We have seen a dramatic turnaround that is a testament to Idaho's determination to rebuild its economy and lay down a foundation for growth and stability in the future," the auditor said.

The Legislative Budget Office said 1989 revenue collections represent a 14.5 percent increase over one year earlier, the highest increase in state tax collections in a decade. And it noted that the 1979 increase was in a year when inflation was running over 13 percent; this year inflation is only 5.4 percent.

"This year's revenues can be more readily attributable to a strengthening Idaho economy," the agency said.

All agencies and officials involved pointed to the fact Idaho has added 14,000 jobs in the last year or so.

The state's official revenue estimate was adopted nearly 18 months ago, at the start of the 1988 legislative session. By law, the Legislature cannot spend more than that estimate. And ironically, the estimate came in a legislative session when personal and corporate income tax rates were boosted because lawmakers feared there wouldn't be enough tax revenue.

Williams said personal income tax collections were up 13 percent above the estimate or $54 million. Corporate income taxes were 7 percent higher, $6.1 million more the estimate. Sales taxes were 10 percent higher, $35.3 million more than expected.

"I think we can approach this welcome situation with a measure of both optimism and caution," the auditor said. "The surplus is welcome, but it must be handled wisely."

The surplus report also means that $13.5 million in college construction projects will be fully funded. They were approved by the Legislature only if there was enough surplus to pay for them.

Williams said the construction projects in some cases were only part of the total cost. It will take another $15 million to complete them, he said.

The largest item is the $11.4 million it will take to complete remodeling and expansion of the University of Idaho Library at Moscow. It also will take an additional $2.7 million to complete renovation of Baldwin Hall at Idaho State University and $900,000 to renovate the ISU Natural History Museum.

The Legislative Budget Office said the colleges and universities have a list of $25 million in building renovation needs. Also, there are nine state parks which need extension renovation or expansion.

In addition, two water development accounts are nearly depleted, and could use a fresh infusion of funds. The agency said there is only $35,000 in one account and $195,000 in another. The accounts have been used to finance water development projects, generally in small rural communities with little access to development funds.

Putting $2 million into the account could help it operate for years, the agency said.

home, Charlie," his colleagues told him.

As he focused his camera on Bush, Tasnadi's hands shook.

His story was well known to Bush, and the president summoned the photographer to a forward cabin on Air Force One to offer his congratulations during the flight.

Tasnadi said Bush had told him that "he was very happy that I was here. He said it was most fitting and proper that I return this way."

The photographer's return was a poignant contrast to the way he had left.

Tasnadi, a championship skier, and his sweetheart, Maria, now his wife, joined a group of six other adults and two children in making their escape from Hungary during the first heavy snowfall of the 1957-58 winter.

He concocted a story about heading for the slopes, telling the truth only to his mother who, by design, would report him missing two days later.

In the freezing cold, the group made its way across the border to Austria. On the final, nightlong leg across the border, Tasnadi carried one of the young children on his back.

Unexpectedly on Tuesday, Tasnadi said he was not overwhelmed with emotion when he came back.

"I never covered any presidential act in such a rough outside," Tasnadi said, "I was just overwhelmed with the work and to cover the president that it didn't hit me so deeply as I expected."

Cheney predicts $30 billion Pentagon savings by year 1993

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, predicting he can save taxpayers $30 billion by fiscal year 1993, outlined a complex plan Tuesday to overhaul the Pentagon's bureaucracy and tighten control over its massive arms-purchasing systems.

His proposals include paring the number of people involved in purchasing decisions by thousands and giving more authority to the undersecretary of defense in that area—thereby trimming some powers of the individual military services.

Cheney was quick to say he had no magic solution for ridding the Pentagon and the defense establishment of fraud and abuse, or making it more efficient. Nor will he be able to make his program work on his own, he said.

"There's no silver bullet here. We have a blueprint that we plan to pursue ... to try to significantly improve the way we do business," Cheney said of his plan said at a Pentagon press conference.

"If we're going to be successful, it will be because we got Congress to cooperate," he said.

His report was requested by President Bush five months ago as part of a major review spurred by the weapons-procurement scandals that rocked the defense establishment.

Weapons purchases account for more than $60 billion of this year's $305 billion military budget and involve more than a half-million civilian and uniformed employees of the Defense Department.

Cheney acted Tuesday to put some of the changes in place, in particular the realignment of his top-level Pentagon management team. Other steps require congressional approval, while others will need work "throughout my tenure at the department," the secretary said.

Even before its official release, the package stirred opposition on Capitol Hill, where some said it doesn't go into enough detail.

Cheney also seeks relief from some congressional oversight requests, complaining that Congress requires a "staggering" amount of reports, inquiries and testimony from the military.

To emphasize that point, Cheney and his deputy Donald Atwood stood beside two five-foot high stacks of reports that Congress had requested from the Pentagon during the past year. One of the reports cost $1.9 million to produce, the secretary said.

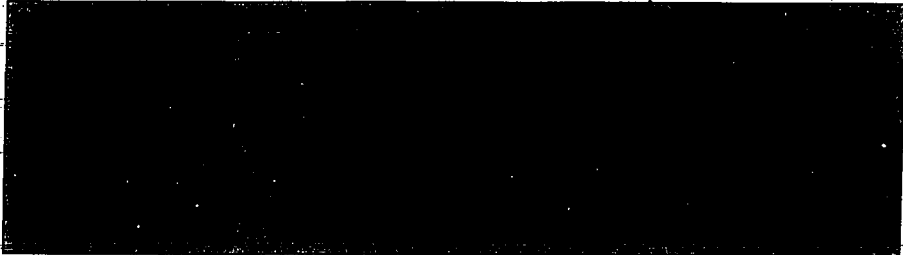

"I'm convinced nobody ever reads these reports," Cheney quipped, evoking laughter from his audience. "It's make-work." Before taking the top Pentagon job this year, Cheney was a Republican leader in the House.

Cheney also is suggesting that Congress implement fully a two-year defense budget process and establish select committees in both houses to review and rewrite the maze of federal procurement laws.

Asked how many jobs would be cut due to the paring down of the system, neither Cheney nor Atwood provided a specific answer.

Many of the ideas included in the reform package were first proposed in 1986.

Air Force lawmen charged with F-16 engine theft

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two Air Force policemen were charged with stealing three F-16 engines and 12 other people were indicted in a sting in which FBI agents ran a military surplus store dealing in stolen property, authorities said Tuesday.

Agents have identified up to 100 suspects, some military policemen, at Hill Air Force Base, other Utah installations—and 15 other communities in the West and Southwest, said Robert Bryant, agent in charge of the FBI's Utah office.

The indictments remained sealed in federal court and the names of the people were not released.

The thefts at Hill ... appear to be part of a larger problem involving other states and other military establishments," said U.S. Attorney Dee Benson.

"Unfortunately, many of the participants are military policemen, and we find that especially disturbing."

Benson identified the two men arrested at a Bountiful restaurant Monday night as Airman 1st Class Brian Roth of Charleston, Ohio, and Senior Airman Danny Joe Stroud of Newton, Kan. Their ages were not released.

Benson said he expected "many more" arrests in coming weeks.

Operation Punchout, a joint effort of the FBI, the Department of Defense and the Air Force, began in 1986 when stolen military goods became increasingly available in the Salt Lake Valley, Bryant said.

It targeted military and civilian personnel as well as unscrupulous wholesalers of stolen goods, he said.

The FBI established a storefront in Bryan—the base-called Military Surplus Brokers, which spent about $80,000 to buy thousands of items worth about $600,000 stolen from all branches of the military, Bryant said.

Benson said the stolen military equipment included sleeping bags, helmets, canteens, munitions and firearms, as well as the jet engines, although no military systems or strategic weapons were involved.

He said the purchases resulted in "the identification of more than 100 suspects throughout the United States who are involved in the theft and sale of stolen government property."

He said Roth and Stroud had approached undercover officers with an offer to sell the jet fighter engines. The two were given a down payment of $10,000 toward a purchase price of $300,000 for the three engines, valued at $2-million each, he said.

The two men brought the engines to the FBI agents by trailer.

Both were charged with theft of government property and conspiracy. They were jailed without bail.

The Pratt & Whitney F100-PW-200 engines were reported missing last Wednesday by maintenance personnel.

Supreme Court misreads history of Constitution in U.S.

WASHINGTON — I finished reading the Supreme Court's opinion Allgheny County v. ACLU on July 4. The ease for the majority makes me feel like an outsider in my own country.

The court decided that Allegheny County violated the U.S. Constitution by having a Christmas crib at the main stairwell of the building because it was not the only religious display outside the building (because it was flanked by a Christmas tree).

The price of the latter permission, however, is that Jews may be symbolically recognized as a secular cultural group, but not as members of a religious faith.

So far as the U.S. government goes, the religiousness of Jews and Christians is to be shunned as if it were an infectious disease. This is not the way I found the founding documents of the United States. The hours spent reading this decision, however, sent the message clearly enough: The government of the United States is secular — Jews and Christians, stay home.

The decision for the majority, written by Justice Blackmun, is unrelenting in its use of that word "secular." I do not remember reading in the founding texts of our republic that this is a "secular" nation whose government is and must be "secular."

The traditional interpretation of many texts from Washington, Madison, Adams and others, as I understand it, is rather: "Between religions, neutrality; between religion and irreligion, religion." This is because the particular religious questions have special connections with basic constitutional principles.

The First Amendment makes sense only within a horizon in which God is held to be transcendent, the city of God is different from the city of Man and liberty is endowed in each person — not by a "secular state" but directly by God.

"A secular state," Blackmun writes, "is not the same as an atheistic or anti-religious state: A secular state establishes neither atheism nor religion as its official creed."

But Blackmun's decision interprets the word "secular" in an absolutist, aggressive way — not as a synonym for "neutral."

Kennedy holds that the majority disembody the "No Establishment Clause" of important values: "Obsessive, implacable resistance to all but the most carefully scripted and secularized forms of accommodation reserves this Court to act as a censor, issuing national decrees as to what is orthodox and what is not. What is orthodox, in this context, means what is secular; the only Christmas the State can acknowledge is one in which references to religion have been held to a minimum."

Take away our grounding in the Jewish and Christian belief that there is a Creator, who made each of us in His image and thus gave to each of us the liberty and responsibility to live in the ground of our inalienable rights; and you take away from us the truths on which many of us base our esteem for the American Proposition.

Blackmun and the majority may not recognize how their own secular orthodoxy is undercutting the sense of "affiliation" many of us have experienced between our faith and our country's Constitution. We want no religion established. But we do expect, given their intertwined history, some mutual exchanges of public recognition between our civic and religious selves.

Our faith is an inalienable dimension of our citizenship. A citizen divided against himself, half religious and half secular, cannot stand. We expect wise and generous accommodation, not niggling mutual hostility.

The gross lack of sensitivity of the majority of justices to other ways of understanding the First Amendment besides that of their own preferred philosophy is out of tune with our constitutional history and practice.

They should remind themselves that secularists can also become inquisitors — an office attractive neither in religious nor in "secular" states.

Michael Novak is director of social and political studies at the American Enterprise Institute.

Newspaper monopolies discourage the free airing of ideas

WASHINGTON — It is Thursday, June 29, sunny and pleasantly cool in Washington. The city's scandal-mongering beaches are on a hot streak.

A two-line streamer in The Washington Times proclaims: "Homosexual Prostitution Probe Ensnarers Officials of Bush and Reagan."

The Washington Post counters with a front-page charge that "85 Housing Deal With Church Benefits Rev. (William) Gray."

The story is only 13 inches long, although the only Bush-Reagan officials named were two small fish in the federal bureaucracy.

Still, the yarn got a lot of attention from the media; it was picked up by CBS, NBC, The Baltimore Sun, The New York Times, the New York Post and presumably many other newspapers and broadcast.

The story is a good one, but the one big news institution that ignored the sexy tale was The Washington Post. Not a line was published about its competitor's "scandal" or about additional revelations throughout the next week in subsequent issues of The Times.

Richard Harwood

The Post's 60-inch "scop" dealing with Gray's finances didn't fare nearly as well as the sex scandal. It played in neither Peoria nor the Big Apple nor (unlike cut of all) on Capitol Hill.

The New York Times and The Washington Times printed brief and dismissive comments on the piece by various congressional figures, but otherwise it was ignored entirely by the national media and by Gray's hometown newspapers in Philadelphia.

In the news business, that hurts. To be ignored is to suffer a form of professional rejection. Your big story has been disbelieved by your peers or has been judged too trivial or too flawed to be taken seriously.

In the case of the Gray "scandal," any or all of those reactions would not have been irrational. It was this gruel, involving a real estate transaction with a church where Mr. Gray preaches.

The steamy tale of sex for hire, on the other hand, was not so easily passed over. It was overblown in the classic tradition of yellow journalism in America.

But it also had names, dates, places, credit card records, a White House connection and a bizarre cast of characters including a mortician, an international lobbyist, call boys and suggestive hints that "higher ups" were involved.

The mere existence of a large male prostitution ring in Washington would seem to have been newsworthy. But not to The Washington Post. A week passed before the paper made any effort to even check out the sordid yarn.

How come? It was obviously not the result of any desire to protect the White House from embarrassment; the paper specializes in tossing mud balls at presidents.

It was obviously not the result of a puritanical distaste for X-rated subject matter; the paper not infrequently has outdone the supermarket tabloids in the presentation of salacious material.

A better explanation is that The Post, like many American newspapers, has been infected with complacency and arrogance as competition in the industry has either vanished or greatly diminished in the latter half of this century; 98 percent of our cities are now served by newspaper monopolies.

At the beginning of the century the 76 million people of the United States had access to 2,800 daily newspapers. Our population has now reached 240 million or so, but there are a thousand fewer dailies.

In Washington, The Post bought and shut down The Times-Herald in 1954, leaving it with two competitors — The Daily News and The Evening Star. The Daily News was killed off by its owners in 1972. The Star folded nine years later.

It was replaced within a year by The Washington Times under the sponsorship of the Unification Church and its leader, the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

Its financial losses since then undoubtedly have exceeded $200 million; its circulation is less than 100,000 and it has been perceived from the outset, often unfairly, as a mere moneypiece for the "Moonies."

The Post, with its national and international prestige, its daily circulation of more than 800,000 and annual profits in excess of $100 million, has never taken its putative rival seriously.

It is scooped by the Times, so what? "Nobody" reads the Times. In most American cities the situation is even worse; no equivalent of the Times exists to shed light on matters overlooked or ignored by the monopoly newspaper.

Competition is not a panacea for all the ills of journalism. But it's a damned good tonic for complacency.

Richard Harwood is ombudsman of The Washington Post.

Letters/ Flag burning prompts comments by readers

Flag burning is a phony issue.

As a teacher of government, Kathy Gardner should know that political issues generally fall into one of two broad categories, real issues and phony issues.

Real issues are those that have real effects on the lives of people and institutions — issues like taxes, education, law enforcement, public safety, social security, environmental controls, and the extent to which government ought to provide for the needy and helpless in our society.

Phony issues, on the other hand, are issues which have little or no relation to real problems and which instead are designed by politicians to appeal to the passions of the voter.

Among phony issues there is none more phony than waving the flag. A thousand senators could make a thousand speeches for a thousand days on the greatness of Old Glory and not one homeless family would be provided with shelter, nor would any other of our problems be resolved.

Instead of getting all fired up because some nut burns a flag, we should insist that our elected representatives direct their attention to the real issues that beset our society.

Chisholm deserves the kudos
Kudos to William K. Chisholm! His views of constitutional amendment to "protect" our flag were concise, clear and precise.

I could not burn our flag. I sense that Mr. Chisholm would not choose to do so either. I suggest he, too, finds flag burning an inarticulate substitute for literate expression. The burner acts in self-exaltation, but is humbled before an analysis such as Mr. Chisholm's.

It is comforting to know the precious freedom for all to speak has higher priority than the symbol we have imprinted with ourselves since its inception. It is not especially comforting to know the printing process will continue as history is born.

Desecration never excusable

To Bill Chisholm:

Our flag is indeed a symbol of those principles upon which this nation was founded. Even though there are those who disagree with these principles, or do not live up to them, the symbol and what it stands for do not change.

If one believes in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, and if one appreciates the sacrifice made by many that this nation might stand, then one's principles would require that one defend the symbol of those beliefs.

In my book, burning the flag, or desecrating it in any way, is treason, pure and simple.

What would give our enemies greater aid and comfort than a populace which cared so little for its country and the principles upon which it was founded that it would allow such desecration?

It seems sad that a Constitutional amendment should be necessary. Perhaps it would only take a united people who rise up and refuse to allow any such desecration at any time.

If this makes me self-righteous, so be it. At least, I am not giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Letters/ Readers comment on a variety of issues

Charity was worth the cost

Regarding the Times-News editorial of July 2nd which was headed "Honorary, PAC funds should be curtailed," I fail to understand why you would include a charity event as an example of improper special interest funding for elected officials.

Concerning the Senator's Ski Cup held in Park City, Utah in January, Senator Symms stated publicly in your newspaper that the ski event was a charitable fund-raiser that raised $100,000 for the Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The hospital is a fine institution that keeps all children, not just Utah residents. As a long-time small, personal contributor to the Children's Hospital, I am thankful for the support from anyone, including big business, small business and private citizens, including elected officials.

leaves thirty days and I'm sure that will be reduced further when she gets time off for good behavior, maybe leaving her a grand total of 20 or 25 days to serve.

She also received two years probation and that will probably be reduced, plus she has to pay back the $40 in restitution.

Just the other day, this woman, I wonder, did Judge Granata also feel he was sentencing an innocent woman who was a veteran of the sheriff's office, and who also had plead not guilty?

It is my understanding from what I heard and observed she had stated numerous times that the money she was accused of stealing was available to the entire staff and that it was also taken to Dick Pence's office where several people also had access to it.

Hine testified that many times the money from the sheriff's office was taken to the office where Sidwell worked, without receipts.

What kind of an investigation was made for her? I sincerely hope that I never have to go through that kind of mock system.

Now, I don't know too much about the law, but I do know it is supposed to be fair and equal for everyone. Another problem I just don't understand is why a judge in the same system as Ms. Sidwell heard the case.

I would think Judge Redman should have disqualified himself and someone brought in from another court, someone who would have been impartial.

Like my last letter, I will probably never know the answers to these things, but it sure makes a person think and wonder, "Is justice who you know and how you play the game in this country?"

In closing, I hope Twin Falls County intends to have a federal audit or do they just expect we taxpayers to forget all these good happenings and just coast along and take their work for what is or is not happening to our money?

RANCH HAMILTON

Grant funds will produce jobs

Mike Hunziker is right! But what also should be stated is that "it's okay for the private sector to be capitalists, except when it comes to competition, then it's okay to be a socialist."

one of her staff; a Tax Commission representative; the local manager and an accountant for KVC; and myself were present. Most of the discussion and disagreement was between those of KVC and the representative of the Tax Commission.

KVC wishes the commissioners acting as the equalization board to lower their taxes. They did just that. But, the Tax Commission directed they be reinstated.

It is reported KVC may sue the county for not taking any action. If the county were to follow any of the suggestions made, actions which some other counties may be trying, it leaves itself open to action by the state; and, in addition, each commissioner becomes personally liable by law. The commissioners, being in the middle, had little choice but to listen to the discussion.

Logically assessed, the problem has only one solution without court action. The legislature as creator, not the county, must draft a more concise and equitable tax law regarding intangibles and companies, such as KVC, which for the lack of law has been placed with utilities.

The legislature, as the creator of all administrative agencies, whether the Tax Commission, the PUB or any other must not only oversee them, but make sure definite guidelines and limitations are in law for them to follow.

In today's situations and because of the way the world has changed, the days of ambiguity must end; from federal to the least local level.

I have been walking dogs out at Frontier Field, and now CSI Campus for over 30 years, observing grand improvements.

The facilities out there are outstanding, and one of the greatest is the fitness track which was conceived, developed, and by-sweat and perseverance became a reality. All done by our civic clubs, organizations and physical fitness groups. It is used extensively for the benefit of all ages who desire to improve their health and well-being.

They now find that during the most popular hours of usage (7:30-10 a.m., and 5:30-9 p.m.) the watering system comes on in spots on the track making it unpleasant, inconvenient, and downright disgusting to have to take a shower to make use of such a splendid facility.

The personnel handling the watering must be idiots, sadists or both! They surely must realize what a dis-service they do. Maybe they just don't care.

Now the only way to get results is to go straight to the top. I suggest your course of action is to keep the phones ringing off the hook for CSI's President, Jerry Meyerhoef, and Mayor Doug Vollmer. State your displeasures to them; ask if they can't do something to alleviate the situation.

Surely the system can be turned on at other than peak usage periods. Like Harry Truman used to say — give 'em Hell!

Kemp denounces favoritism, says HUD fixing 'fundamental flaws'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing Secretary Jack Kemp on Tuesday denounced a system under which highly paid consultants helped developers try to win federal housing contracts.

He also told a congressional panel he was taking steps to correct "fundamental flaws" and "lax accounting and management procedures" at his department.

Kemp, who took over the Department of Housing and Urban Development six months ago, said he had told agency employees in a memo that their jobs would depend on putting an end to favoritism.

And he said outsiders discovered to be abusing department programs will be barred "from doing business with HUD and all other federal agencies."

Kemp commented in remarks prepared for delivery to the House Employment and Housing Subcommittee, which is looking into allegations of fraud and mismanagement at the agency.

"Some of our most serious problems have come in programs where substantial subsidies are given to developers," Kemp said.

"That extra money goes for excess profits for the developer and, clearly, to cover consultant fees," he said. "We give the developer a reason to hire a consultant, and we give the successful bidder the money to pay consultants' fees."

The department's moderate-rehabilitation program was criticized in an April audit by the HUD inspector general who alleged influence peddling and favoritism in contract awards to developers who hired former HUD and other government employees as consultants.

The audit estimated HUD could lose as much as $413 million in excess subsidies over the life of the contract.

Several Reagan administration insiders, including former Interior Secretary James Watt, have been questioned at House hearings into what they did for their consulting fees and what the fee-payers expected in return.

Kemp said Tuesday, "HUD programs shall operate without favoritism, and awards will be made on the basis of need and merit."

The housing secretary said that in a memo to HUD employees last month he warned "performance evaluations and job security will depend on how these reforms are promptly implemented and enforced."

"The Department of Housing and Urban Development will maintain a policy of zero tolerance for violations of our standards of conduct," said Kemp, pledging "the highest" ethical standards at the department.

Kemp has testified several times before Congress in recent months, a sharp contrast to his predecessor Samuel Pierce, who members of Congress say was generally unavailable during his eight-year tenure during the Reagan administration.

Since taking office Kemp has suspended, revised or restricted three troubled programs — moderate rehabilitation, mortgage coinsurance and Title X land development-mortgage insurance — which provide subsidized housing to low-and moderate-income families.

Last week he curtailed an elderly-housing program in which 30 percent of the projects had resulted in foreclosure.

However, he has promised he will not use HUD's problems to curtail the federal government's role in housing.

The subcommittee later this week is scheduled to hear from two former HUD officials involved in a project.

Congress warned of HUD problem's repeatedly over past decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, now rushing to investigate allegations of Reagan-era abuses at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was told repeatedly in the past decade that lax management left the agency ripe for graft.

"We had too many firsts and we just had one first department," Rep. Henry Frank said in testimony before Congress last week. "Frank said it was outlined in dozens of reports by the agency's inspector general and the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress."

"These people at HUD just didn't care about the programs so we had to spend most of our time just trying to keep the programs from being destroyed," said Frank, a member of two committees with jurisdiction over HUD.

Many of the statements found in the reports now being released, warning of problems now under congressional scrutiny, including influence-peddling, made left the multibillion-dollar agency with a poorly targeted programs and millions of dollars in missing funds.

"Project selections had been based upon political consideration rather than merit," the GAO's John H. Luke told Congress in October 1984, at one of the few hearings held to explore problems at HUD. Luke was testifying about revised loan policies for housing for the elderly and handicapped.

New HUD Secretary Jack Kemp last week suspended one of the department's elderly housing programs because 30 percent of the projects had resulted in foreclosures. Many of the projects had low occupancy rates, which an internal audit blamed on HUD for approving large developments despite warnings the area housing market would not support them.

In January 1984 the GAO took exception to the management style of then-HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce, saying his delegation of most decision-making authority, including influence-peddling, made left the multibillion-dollar agency with a dispirited management.

Pickens says Japanese keep corporate affairs quiet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporate raider T. Boone Pickens Jr. told Congress Tuesday the Japanese are resisting his foray into corporate ownership there to prevent him from exposing a closed, monopolistic economy.

The millionaire Texas oilman, known for his often hostile raids on U.S. companies, purchased a 20.2 percent stake in Koito Manufacturing Co., an automobile lighting company, for $800 million. But he was rebuffed two weeks ago at a shareholders' meeting in Tokyo when he sought three seats on Koito's 20-member board.

"Pickens said he poses no threat to the company's management because the Japanese are interested in stockholders, including Koito's customers, can easily outvote him."

"They must want to exclude me so that an American won't see how their cartel works. They don't want their system exposed for what it is," Pickens told the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation.

"In fact, he said the Japanese may be exporting their system of close links between companies and suppliers when they build factories in the United States."

"American suppliers are already complaining that they cannot get a piece of the action," he said.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the panel and a strong advocate of an aggressive trade policy, praised Pickens for having given the committee a "wonderful understanding" of the barriers Japan erects to outside investment.

"This is a matter of policy. ... They try to finesse it with the word 'culture.' They've got the same, culture you and I've got — money talks," Hollings said.

Pickens' testimony came as the committee considered a bill, sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa, and Rep. John Brant, D-Texas. It would require foreign investors to register with the Department of Commerce when they purchase more than a 5 percent stake in a U.S. company or real estate valued at more than $5 million.

According to a report issued by the Commerce Department in June, foreign holdings in the United States have tripled since 1980 to $1.79 trillion, $533 billion more than Americans own abroad, making the United States the world's largest debtor.

T. BOONE PICKENS Rebuffed in Japan

Great Britain held the largest stake in the United States, followed by Japan and the Netherlands.

Harkin said under the current system of tracking foreign investment it is often impossible to determine the true ownership of individual companies and properties. Ownership is often cloaked through shell corporations under the current system of tracking and Harkin said he fears some of the investment represents recycled drug profits.

He also said the government needs better information to determine whether or not foreigners are acquiring too much control over strategic industries, such as oil and chemicals.

Commerce Undersecretary Michael R. Darby said the Harkin-Bryant bill would compromise the anonymity of foreign firms. Information to the U.S. government and discourage foreign investment.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECASTS

IF JULY 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you're due for fresh start in different direction. Murder of James September has been behind you and your choice. During July there is pressure, relationship, interdependence, more responsibility results. But you'll enjoy every minute of it. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, a natural entertainer, plenty aware of appearance, wardrobe, body image. Recent period of confinement enabled you to learn much about "Why am I here?"

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emotions dominate. Family member makes "dramatic plea." Emphasis on security, home, property, relationship with older female. Question might boil down to, "Who has the money?" Cancer notice represented.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You're ambivalent concerning publicly, legal agreement, marriage. Examine various factors. Satisfy curiosity. Spotlight will fall on contracts, commitments. Sagittarius plays dominant role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Attempting to "escape" from basic chores would be grievous error. It's necessary to learn from bottom up. If thorough, you'll advance in grade and add to financial security. Scorpio involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 23): Lunar aspect coincides with physical attraction, style, creativity. Don't stand still. Focus on movement, travel, communication. Member of opposite sex surprises with dramatic declaration of affection.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attention centers around "home base." What you have been seeking is brought to you by special messenger. You'll recover lost article. Spotlight on

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Sept. 22):

What you have been seeking can be located if you look in closed areas, including closet. Spotlight on secrets, clandestine arrangements. Love relationship undergoes test. Short trip is involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on power, authority, opportunity to hit financial jackpot. Older man, possibly Capricorn, shows the way. Protect, value, cherish. Relationship has reached crucial time. Now or never!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Temptation is to "run away." Necessity to finish what you start. Moon in your sign highlights individuality, daring, intuition, access. Wear your colors: dark red, purple, crimson. Aries involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): That "inner voice" will be shouting, "It's time to wake up!" Overcome temptation to hide, to bury emotions. Emphasize independence, style, originality. You are going to get to heart of matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Missing link discovered. Puzzle pieces fall into place. Harmony transforms atmosphere from confusion to security. Scenario features wish fulfillment, recognition of love. Yes, celebrate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You finally reach individual who apparently wanted to "miss appointment." State case in authoritative manner. You're more popular than might be anticipated. New assignment could include travel.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You thought many ideas were "out of reach." You were wrong. What was far away is now practically at your feet. Focus on education, psychology, romance. You'll be saying, "Hurrah, Europe!"

What's what

Why the old get that way
 Fastest growing population segment in the over-65 group. You've read that. Do you have a theory as to why? One medical credit-nothing as complex as central heating.

Says here you'll drink at least the equivalent of 40,000 glasses of liquid in your lifetime. Does that sound likely? Ask the fellow on the next stool.

Q. Who said, "I think, therefore I am?"
 A. No, sir, Descartes said that. Shakespeare said, "There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

Q. In Old West cowboy talk, what was a "high lonesome"?
 A. A long drinking bout.

PIG SCALDERS
 In 1873, an Austrian immigrant named John Michael Kohler made pig scalders. Big iron tubs. Farmers filled them with boiling water. To dunk newly killed boys.

So the skins could be scamped clean. Lot of farmers and their wives took it upon themselves to bathe in those pig scalders. How gauche! Ten years later, Kohler put iron legs on the tubs, and started selling them to silly people who didn't even have pigs.

Seven out of 10 new smokers now, it's said, are under age 14.

It's too cold to ice skate in Antarctica. Even under your weight, the ice won't melt enough to let the blades slip.

If attacked by dogs, an old henna makes a quick decision: Pigs or play dead. If the fighter, he almost invariably wins. If he plays dead, nothing does make him show any sign of life.

TEDDY BEAR
 On the market now is a most remarkable Teddy Bear. Containing a battery device that reproduces sounds of an expectant mother's midsection. In a crib, it's said to pacify the infant therein immediately.

Benjamin Franklin wasn't the world's greatest kite maker. That renowned kite of his was nothing more than a piece of silk between two cedar sticks.

Was none other than John Barrymore who said, "The best way to fight a woman is with your hat. Grab it and run."

Laurence Olivier triumphed over his insecurities, guilt to become greatest English-speaking actor

LONDON (AP) — Laurence Kerr Olivier, baron of Brighton, was considered the foremost actor of his generation.

His toughest role was always Larry Olivier.

With ferocious will he fought cancer, pleurisy and a muscle disease that made even handshakes agony. He endured two miserable marriages and years of paralyzing stage fright, contemplated murder and suicide, and battled his own

It was, Olivier said, the family business. "Those preachers knew when to drop the voice, when to bellow about the perils of hellfire, when to slip in a gag," he recalled.

His first stage was at home, with footlights made of cocoa cans. At 10, he was Brutus in a school performance. At 16, he donned women's clothes to play Katherine in a Stratford Festival boys' production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

At 17, he went to Birmingham to partnership that remade English theater.

Olivier played a dazzling succession of Shakespearean heroes — Hamlet, Henry V, Macbeth — triumphing in each. Olivier, Gielgud and Richardson all were knighted after the war.

The step that sealed Olivier's stardom was his move to Hollywood in 1939 to make "Wuthering Heights." It was a towering success, but also, Olivier recalled, an invaluable lesson would have gone on hamming away all my life."

In that same year, Olivier appeared with Vivien Leigh in a New York production of "Romeo and Juliet." After nearly two years of clandestine love, he obtained a divorce and the two were wed.

That marriage, too, was disastrous. Though in the early years they were a glamorous couple in public, Vivien soon fell out of love, had a much-publicized affair with actor Peter Finch and a series of others and eventually told Olivier — according to his memoirs — that she loved him only "like a brother."

The marriage continued for another decade with occasional acts of incest as she descended into manic depression. Her mental illness tortured Olivier. He had crippling bouts of stage fright. He contemplated suicide. Once, he threw her against a wall, cut her head open and, by his own account, nearly killed her.

But he blamed himself.

"Somehow, the cause of Vivien's disturbances were due to some fault in me."

They finally were divorced in 1961, and Olivier wed actress Joan Plowright, with whom he finally found happiness. They had a son, Richard, and two daughters, Tamsin and Julie-Kate. All three are either studying, or working in, the theater.

Miss Leigh died of tuberculosis in 1967.

Olivier was appointed co-director of the Old Vic in 1964, after a spell in the wartime naval reserves.

At the same time, he turned his hand to the three films that were to make his reputation as the finest Shakespearean actor in film: "Henry V," "Hamlet," for which he won a best-actor Oscar in 1949, and "Richard III." In 1979 he received a special Academy Award for his film work.

But Olivier was proudest of his pompous little bastard, if it had not found founding Britain's National Theater. "Only a man of his Titanic rages, guilt and drinking.

Yet in more than six decades on stage and screen, he was — in the words of The Times of London — acting's "supreme technician (and) master craftsman."

He gave the world its definitive Hamlet, Henry V and Richard III, as well as, at age 76, a matchless King Lear for television. He set a new standard for film hero in "Wuthering Heights" and was the embodiment of ungraceful age in "The Entertainer" on stage and "A Voyage Round My Father" and "Brideshead Revisited" on television.

Two years ago on his 80th birthday, tributes flowed during a ceremony at the National Theater, which he founded in 1963.

"Awe and wonder, you gave us awe and wonder," actress Dame Peggy Ashcroft told him at the time.

Director Peter Hall called him "the genius performer."

For Olivier, life and acting were inseparable. "I have to act to breathe," he said.

By turns, he loved and hated his craft — but never would contemplate retiring from it. Acting simply consumed him.

Playing Othello, he spent months training his voice to a low growl and bending his frame to a lops. Each night, he spent two hours applying shining black body makeup.

Two things drove him, he said in his 1982 autobiography "Confessions of an Actor": Lust and guilt.

Whatever sex drive he had, Olivier wrote, went into his acting. "You can't be more than one kind of athlete at a time. A sexual athlete is not likely to find sufficient energy for work of another athletic kind."

The guilt came from his religious upbringing, he said.

Born May 22, 1907, in the town of Dorking southwest of London, Laurence Kerr Olivier was the third child of an Anglican clergyman who encouraged him early on to try acting.

study acting. Peggy Ashcroft, who knew him there, remembered him as a bit uncouth. His hair stood on end, his sleeves were short and he was extremely physical.

Olivier's first professional role was in 1922 in a sketch in a small touring company. In his first London role, in Alice Law's 1924 "Byron," he tripped over a doorknob and fell on his face.

The early years were tough, but fruitful. He spent three years in Birmingham Repertory, returned to London in 1928, played in "Beau Geste" and "Journeys End" and went to New York to appear in a murder mystery.

In 1930, at age 23, he married actress Jill Esmond — even though she told him she didn't love him.

The marriage was a debacle, but they had a son and kept the marriage going for 10 years out of a "pathetic mixture of religious and animal promptings," Olivier said.

But if his private life was a shambles, his career was soaring.

He piled success — Noel Coward's "Private Lives" in London and New York — upon success — Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," in which he and John Gielgud, a friend from his Birmingham days, alternated playing Romeo and Mercutio.

Said Gielgud: "I had the voice, Larry had the legs."

In 1937, as war clouds gathered in Europe, Olivier joined Gielgud at the Old Vic company and, along with Ralph Richardson, formed a company that remade English theater.

He strutted around the set indulging in "appalling overacting" until director William Wyler shouted: "What do you think you are doing? You think you are in the opera-house?"

"I suppose this anemic little medium-bank take-great-acting" Olivier replied huffily. The set was engulfed in laughter.

"I was a stupid," conceded Olivier. "But Olivier was proudest of his pompous little bastard, if it had not found founding Britain's National Theater. "Only a man of his Titanic

Laurence Olivier kept Hollywood mesmerized for 50 years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The half-century Hollywood career of Laurence Olivier, generally acclaimed the greatest English-speaking actor, ranged from abject failure to absolute triumph.

"He was an amazingly daring actor, the best of our time... As an actor he dared to go where few others venture," his close friend Charlton Heston said today after learning of Olivier's death in London at age 82.

"Hamlet," both made in England. The highest achievement of his Hollywood career came 50 years ago with "Wuthering Heights." It was a miserable period for the actor, who was deeply in love with Vivian Leigh, though both were married to others. He had wanted Miss Leigh to play Catherine instead of Merle Oberon.

"I was blind with misery at being parted from Vivian, who would have been the perfect Cathy," Olivier wrote in his memoirs, "and I was sure Merle was lacking in the essential passionate qualities."

producer Samuel Goldwyn threatened to shut down the picture. "Will you look at that actor's ugly face? He's dirty. His performance is rotten. It's stagey, it's just nothing."

Director William Wyler persuaded Olivier to act more subtly, and Heathcliff and Catherine became classic lovers of the screen.

Olivier won the first of his eight Academy Award nominations for best actor in 1939, but he was overshadowed that year by the triumph of his future wife, Miss Leigh, in "Gone With the Wind."

contract at RKO in 1931 (with his then-wife Jill Desmond). The film business was in terrible shape, and he had several changes in management.

"Then David Selznick became head of the studio. He made some fine pictures. He also made some fine pay cuts. I refused to take one and was summarily dropped."

The actor returned to Hollywood in 1933 to star opposite Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina." He was abruptly replaced with John Gilbert, reportedly because Garbo wanted a comeback for her old flame Gilbert.

"The truth is she fired me," Olivier said. "And I must say that she was absolutely right. I was 23 or 24 (actually 26) at the time and I simply wasn't up to it. I went back to England again."

Olivier returned over the years for such triumphs as "Rebecca" in 1940, "Carrie" in 1952 and "Marathon Man" in 1976. In his later years, he was earning $1 million per picture and was less selective, appearing in such films as "Clash of the Titans," "Inchon" and "The Bounty."

The Hollywood film community remained in awe of the great Olivier.

and in 1979 he was awarded an honorary Oscar. Said presenter Cary Grant: "He represents the ultimate in acting."

Olivier's acceptance speech sounded so eloquent in his well modulated tones that Jon Voight was reduced to tears. Later, Olivier admitted that he had forgotten his speech and adlibbed a series of glowing phrases that read like gibberish.

From the 1931 "Friends and Lovers" to "The Jazz Singer" with Neil Diamond in 1980, Olivier appeared in a wide variety of American films. But his greatest triumph on screen came with his self-directed "Henry V" and Oberon and Olivier loathed each other while playing world-class lovers. At first, Olivier's performance was so "hammy" that

Queen leads nation in tribute to Olivier

LONDON (AP) — Britain mourned Laurence Olivier with tributes and fond memories Tuesday, and theaters from London's West End to the birthplace of Shakespeare lowered their flags and ordered their lights doused for an hour.

Queen Elizabeth II sent condolences to Olivier's family, who were at the actor's bedside when he died peacefully at the age of 82 at his home in the village of Ashurst.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher praised his "extraordinary talents" and remembered her favorite Olivier roles in "Hamlet," "Henry V" and "Richard III."

"We are taking out all display lights in our theaters from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. as a measure of respect for the death of a national institution," said Louis Benjamin, head of a 12-theater group in the West End, London's equivalent of Broadway.

The National Theater, of which Olivier was a founding father, lowered its flag, removed its normal playbill from its electronic billboard overlooking the River Thames, and replaced it with "LAURENCE OLIVIER 1907-1989."

No shows were canceled, however. "That would have been the last thing he would have wanted," said theater spokesman Stephen Wood.

Flags also were lowered at theaters in Stratford, birthplace of Shakespeare whose works Olivier defined for modern mass audiences.

"It isn't too much to say that Olivier was perhaps the greatest man of the theater ever," said Sir Peter Hall, who succeeded Olivier as head of the National Theater in 1973: "Larry Olivier's genius shaped the last 50 years."

AROUND THE VALLEY

Art thief nabs three valuable paintings

TWIN FALLS - Shoplifting is common in Twin Falls. Art theft isn't.

But on Monday, a man walked into Larson Arts on Main Avenue, lifted three paintings off the wall and continued on his way out the back door, according to police reports.

Police are searching for a suspect described as 5 feet 7 inches tall with dark hair, who was wearing a checkered shirt. The man allegedly stole two original paintings by Richard Joshua worth a total of $300 and one other painting not described in police reports.

Animal waste management tour slated for Thursday

JEROME - The North Side Conservation Tour and Barbecue on animal waste management is Thursday. Those on the tour will visit the Jack VanBeek dairy and the Circle 4 Cattle Co. to see how these producers operate and deal with their animal waste.

Officials from government agricultural and environmental agencies will attend to discuss options and answer questions.

Registration will be from 9:30-10 a.m. Thursday at the Jerome County Fairgrounds. The tour will be from 10 a.m.-noon with a free barbecue at the fairgrounds at noon.

The public is invited and transportation on the tour will be provided.

Idaho DOT plans safety checkup for harvest trucks

TWIN FALLS - Farmers have an opportunity Thursday to have their harvest trucks inspected by the Idaho Department of Transportation without worrying about being cited for any safety violations found.

"We've realized most trucks aren't used until harvest and may need a checkup," said Don Norris of Kimberly, the project's coordinator for the Twin Falls County Farm Bureau. "The goal is to make sure trucks are safe and road worthy."

The Farm Bureau is sponsoring the free inspection for the second year.

Trucks that pass inspection will be given window stickers certifying passage. Farmers can come for inspection any time between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Twin Falls beet dump, the Murtaugh beet dump or the Cedar Crossing beet dump.

Idaho Power to protect recent archeological finds

GLENN'S FERRY - Idaho Power Co. plans to fence in several potentially significant archeological sites near its dike site on the Snake River.

Environmental studies of an area on which the utility once planned a hydroelectric project uncovered the sites, which may be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

Idaho Power plans to put up about one and one-half miles of fence and signs to protect the areas already threatened by vandalism. The utility intends to prosecute trespassers.

Bureau of Reclamation needs diggers for site

EPHRATA, Wash. - The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation is looking for help in digging up an archeological site on Banks Lake, Wash.

The bureau is looking for summer volunteers to investigate a site once possibly used by prehistoric nomadic Indians. The investigation is part of Washington's state centennial.

Volunteers are asked to commit to a minimum of three, eight-hour days at the site between July 31 through Sept. 8. No experience is required, but volunteers must supply their own transportation, food and shelter.

The site also is open to the public from July 31 through Sept. 31.

To volunteer, call Eastern Washington State University at (509) 355-2233. To visit the site, contact the Bureau's Ephrata office at (509) 754-0228.

Buhl fire station due revamp

By MIKEL BENTON
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Fire Chief Mark Grimes is looking into building a new fire station for the city and installing more modern equipment, all at costs estimated between $455,000 and $729,200.

"We need newer facilities," he told the City Council Monday. "We've needed a new station for years."

The current station lacks proper sterilizing facilities and adequate vehicle storage, among other problems, he said. "Of seven pieces, three are kept inside and four are kept outside," Grimes said. "Due to that, we have a high maintenance cost."

Equipment that should last 20 years is now replaced every four to six years, he said.

The council asked Grimes to gather more specific information on the plan, including possible sites.

The first priority, according to Grimes, is a new building. The city also needs a new pumping unit and an aerial ladder, which can be combined into one unit. More firefighters also are needed.

The cost for a new station and equipment could range from $455,000 for the barest essentials to $729,200 for what Grimes described as the optimum facilities.

General obligation bonds might be the most feasible way to fund the project, Grimes told the council the new

P&Z OKs impact area ordinance

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - City leaders hope a new ordinance will end disputes about who has jurisdiction over the city's impact area.

The Planning and Zoning Commission on Tuesday passed an ordinance similar to an existing impact area ordinance, but sprinkled with subtle changes intended to give the city more clout.

The "impact area" is land outside city limits but partially controlled by city zoning laws.

Before the ordinance can become law, the City Council must vote on it. The ordinance

Library grant hinges on bond

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - After two state officials oh'd and ah'd over library expansion plans, it was apparent only one big hurdle remained between the city and a $243,000 grant.

The money is the city's, if a bond issue election slated for Aug. 15 passes.

Library Director Arlan Call on Tuesday showed newly completed architect's plans for the 20,000-square-foot, $2 million expansion to Charles Bolles, Idaho State Library director, and Don Watts, state historic preservation planner.

The state library administrator the grant and the Idaho Historic Preservation Society must approve federally funded projects that will affect buildings on the national register.

Lottery commission planning parties

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - More than 500 people are expected to congregate in the Twin Falls City Park a week from today - but don't tell anybody.

To celebrate the coming of the lottery, the Idaho Lottery Commission has planned parties in major cities throughout the state.

The Twin Falls extravaganza will feature a Western band, local dignitaries and food concessions, said Kathy Showers, media contact for the state Lottery Commission.

The official lottery ticket booth will also give revellers a chance to try their luck at being one of 204 winners receiving a $5,000 payoff in the first Idaho Match Three game.

The bash begins 10:30 a.m. and is expected to last until 1:30 p.m. Showers was reluctant to give many more details, since the party was supposed to have been a surprise for Magic Valley - or at least a secret until a Saturday press conference.

But the news was spilled during the Downtown Business Improvement board of directors meeting Tuesday, and the press conference was canceled a few hours later.

BID directors voted to cash in on the fun by selling hot beer floats at the party to raise money for downtown Christmas decorations. In discussing the fund-raiser, BID chairman Emery Peterson said the ice cream sale does not mean the BID or individual members necessarily endorse the Lottery.

Showers said a tentative list of local officials scheduled to appear at the Lottery event includes Twin Falls Mayor Doug Vollmer, Lottery Commissioner Edward Benoit and College of Southern Idaho President Gerald Meyerhoeffer.

Benoit will sell the first ticket to Meyerhoeffer, symbolic of the help Idaho education will receive from Lottery proceeds.

In addition to seven parties occurring around the state, Showers said the commission has planned special events in every county.

Lottery tickets go on sale July 19 at 1,200 locations in the state.

City pushing for free downtown parking

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The city wants to give downtown the gift of free parking, but Main Avenue merchants are less than overjoyed by the gesture.

The board of directors of the Downtown Business Improvement District voted Tuesday to poll BID members on the city's proposal to remove parking meters lining Main Avenue. But the directors said they have a pretty good guess about what they will learn.

"Ten to one whoever dreamt that up was a mall person," said Larry Larson of Larson Arts.

Even though a few customers may complain, merchants want to keep the meters because they say they prevent office workers and other downtown employees from taking over prime parking real estate on Main Avenue for hours or even all day.

Without easy parking, merchants fear shoppers will head straight for a mall.

"We need to convince the general public that putting a dime in ensures that they have a parking place," said Sue Jones, BID coordinator. To pave the way for parkers, some downtown merchants offer meter tokens.

The city's disaffection with the meters is not a matter of money - the meters pay for themselves, city Finance Director Rick Thompson said.

The city has budgeted $6,500 for downtown meter watching next year but would like to eliminate the meters because of problems keeping a part-time meter monitor on the 36-hour job.

"It seems like once they're trained, they're gone," Thompson said. The position is currently filled, he added.

The city suggested the downtown merchants may want to hire their own meter watcher.

The BID just can't afford it, the board answered.

Board Chairman Emery Peterson suggested during Tuesday's meeting that perhaps the city could also manning the meters and just not tell anybody.

That's not an option, Thompson said.

"If we're going to have a program in place, we're going to enforce it," he said.

The city will continue to explore all options, but it will do what the BID wants in regards to parking - for now, Thompson said.

"I don't have an answer to tell you the truth," he said.

School Board names Olson

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The School Board selected a new assistant superintendent Tuesday night at its monthly meeting.

Kenneth Olson of Saratoga, Wyo., was the board's pick. Superintendent Keith Tolzin said he would contact Olson as soon as possible to negotiate a contract.

Olson was out for the evening and not expected to return until late, his son said Tuesday night from Saratoga.

As superintendent of Carbon County School District 2, Olson oversees 12 schools with a budget of about $10 million, Tolzin said.

His educational background includes a doctorate in education and educational administration from Oklahoma State University and a master's degree in biology and a bachelor's degrees in biology and industrial arts from Northern Arizona University.

Olson also has eight years of teaching experience and has worked as a principal and assistant superintendent.

The assistant superintendent position was vacated by acting superintendent Keith Tolzin July 1. Tolzin took the seat when former superintendent Carl Snow stepped down to replace the retiring Frank Charlton as high school principal.

Olson was chosen over Principal Dale Thornberry of Robert Stuart Junior High and Michael Stephen of Blackfoot, high school principal at Snake River School District.

The district began searching for a replacement in May. An administrative preliminary screening committee pared the initial field of 15 candidates to six. A community advisory committee then ranked the candidates, and the top three were interviewed.

Miller to serve 300 hours

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

JEROME - A former county weed supervisor, already active in youth groups, was sentenced Tuesday to 300 hours of community service and three years' probation after pleading guilty to embezzling $686 from the county.

"I could have just locked you up," 5th District Judge Phillip Becker told James Harry Miller. But, Becker said, "I think you have something to offer."

Miller's attorney, Eugene Fredericksen, argued for leniency.

"This is not the kind of individual who will be in front of this court ever again," Fredericksen said. Miller has paid $4,199 of restitution to the county, even though he pleaded guilty to stealing only $686.

Prosecutor John Horgan said he agreed with a pre-sentence report that recommended probation, but cautioned against a giving weight to Miller's position that he "always meant to pay it back."

"This is a serious matter and we should treat it as such," Horgan said.

The 31-year-old Miller supervised the county's weed department for seven years. When he resigned last October, County Commissioner Veronica Lierman noticed discrepancies in the department's accounts receivable.

Miller's case is one of a "rash" of recent embezzlement cases in the Magic Valley and Idaho, Becker said, and a message must be sent.

"I want you to take this seriously," he told Miller. "I want anybody who hears about it to take it seriously."

Becker also fined Miller $2,500. If Miller, a longtime Jerome resident and father of an 18-month-old child, fails to fulfill the

In other business, the Buhl Beautification Task Force asked for financial support from the city and updated the council on this year's actions and future plans.

A committee consisting of the Buhl mayor, the Green-Giant plant manager and president of the Buhl Economic Council will consider the request when it meets in January to decide how the money will be allocated, Mayor Tom Tappen said.

Byrne commended the Buhl Rotary on its efforts to enhance Eastman Park. The club provided a new covered picnic area, painted benches, garbage cans and the park sign, cleaned up the grounds and removed dead shrubs and small trees. Task force member Bill Sweigert outlined plans for next year, including gradually replacing the old poplars in the park, possibly with help from the agricultural classes at the high school.

"Shade is the most important thing we need in the park, if people are going to be using it," he told the council.

Sweigert also suggested planting evergreen trees to screen picnic areas from Eighth Avenue. "We'd like to put in about five blue spruce there, about six feet high, at $200 each," he said.

Another project would be installing a sprinkler system in the park. The system would save labor costs connected with sprinkling and provide more efficient use of water since it could be done during the night. This would open the park for more use during the day, he added.

The estimated cost is $25,000. The task force is considering fund-raisers to cover part of the costs, Byrne said.

Councilman John O'Connor agreed with the task force's arguments. "I think you'll get nothing but support," he said. "And the park will get used probably four times more."

In other matters: The council appointed David Lewis as chairman of a committee to consider the feasibility of a time capsule to help celebrate the state Centennial. Lewis suggested the city establish a time capsule to be opened on the 200th birthday of the state containing, besides the usual photographs and publications, a videotape. "What would make it really unusual would be a videotape of the city. The whole community could come out and wave to the camera," he said. "If we had a tape of 1909, it would be really fascinating."

A hearing is set for July 24 at City Hall to discuss unsightly properties at 170 S. Maple, 310 13th and the abandoned grain elevator on Burley Avenue, all of which have drawn complaints of local residents. The properties can be declared public nuisances following the hearing and cleaned by the city as owners expense.

Library

Continued from Page B1 The grant money will be used to pay architects and engineers working on the expansion, and for new furniture, Call said.

"In my opinion the largest problems have been overcome," Bolles said. "It looks like it will work very well."

He said the plans make good use of space, one of his biggest concerns when older buildings are expanded.

"The whole planning process has been impressive," Bolles said. "Frankly, it is one of the best new additions I've seen in many years," Watts said. "They've struck a balance between new and old."

Plans include a glass, partition-like wall separating the old building from the addition, making a smooth transition, he said. "This is a very nice design," Watts said.

New additions to buildings often require the historical society to withdraw their historical designation that helps entitle building owners to federal grants.

Some buildings are "altered to the point that they are no longer examples of the architecture of the period" when they were built, Watts said.

That was not a problem with the library plans, he said.

Architectural themes in the old building are carried over "nicely" into the new section.

For example, like the old building, the new expanded building would include redesigned arched windows. The two sides would be easily distinguishable but would not clash. He said some minor problems include plans to knock out existing windows to form entryways from the old to the new sections. The problems could be easily resolved, however.

In the case of the windows, that may be a better alternative than knocking holes in the wall between the two sections, Watts said.

In a related matter, the deadline for registering for the election is Aug. 4, said City Finance Director Rick Thompson. The same registration deadline applies for people sending in absentee ballots.

Olson

Approved the resignations of two elementary school teachers and OK'd contracts for two more. The district's turnover rate has been higher than normal this year, running at or just above 10 percent, Tolzin said.

Approved a new state-approved counseling curriculum.

Received an update on the Twin Falls High School remodeling project and several other construction projects throughout the district.

Heard an update from district Personnel Manager Keith Farnsworth regarding staff vacancies. The district still has 11 vacancies, including teachers, counselors and special service personnel such as speech pathologists, Farnsworth told the board.

During a closed executive session, the board released three district employees from their contracts, Tolzin said.

Miller

"I'm glad to hear it's more than just probation," Lierman said. "I get quite frustrated that there's not more severe punishment for that type of crime," he said.

But Fredericksen said he felt that the current climate surrounding embezzling in the Magic Valley could have affected Miller's case.

"Some of the things going on in the valley create a tough situation for those who are less deserving of blame," he said.

Becker recently sentenced a Gooding woman who pleaded guilty to embezzling $15,000 from a trucking company to between three and 10 years in prison. A Twin Falls County deputy clerk who pleaded guilty to stealing $40 received 30 days in jail on a misdemeanor charge.

Impact

Continued from Page B1 would also be moot unless the county approves it by passing an identical ordinance, said City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich.

The dual ordinances are necessary to clarify and add more weight to existing ordinances, Wonderlich said.

Most recently, dairy owner Keith Jones has claimed the city does not have jurisdiction over the impact area.

Jones' 180-cow dairy, which is being leased by Mike Vierstra, violates a city ordinance that would restrict the 17-acre dairy to 85 cows. Jones' attorney, Jeff Stoker, has said that the city cannot administer the impact area because it is outside city limits.

In the new ordinance, the county would zoning the city's Planning and Zoning Commission as the impact area's ruling body, said Lamar Orton, community development director.

County commissioners have said they agree with the proposals as long as the county is not liable for enforcing laws in the impact area. The county's Planning and Zoning Board will consider the proposed changes at its meeting Thursday night.

The ordinance changes would also include a clause that gives the city jurisdiction on non-agricultural property of more than 20 acres.

The existing ordinance, which places under county jurisdiction agricultural parcels over 20 acres, is unclear about non-agricultural property, Orton said.

Quas

Continued from Page B2 "It's one of those things, you read about it, and hear about it with other people but never in your wildest dreams do you think it will happen to you," he said.

Third District Judge Kenneth Ritgrup on Monday granted a prosecution request that Quas should be given the five-to-life term on the homicide conviction and an extra zero-to-five years for using a gun.

Ritgrup said Quas would be required to serve at least one year for the "firearm enhancement" and would serve a minimum of six years altogether.

Defense attorney Lisa Remal told the judge she disagreed with a presentence report that characterized Quas as a "violent person and a threat to society."

"The pre-sentence report concludes John is a violent person, a threat to society and a person to be feared. That conclusion is not accurate," she said.

Remal said she believed Quas should be placed in a long-term residential alcohol treatment program instead of prison.

But Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney Rick MacDougall said Quas

"John Quas took the life of a human being he should have loved," MacDougall said. "He still refuses to tell the truth."

Quas maintained during trial that his intoxicated wife shot herself with a .44-caliber handgun while he was in the shower. He was charged in the death a short time later, but a circuit judge dismissed the charge, saying the evidence pointed as much to suicide as to homicide.

He was charged again after prosecutors said they acquired new evidence. Meanwhile, Susan Quas family waited in Burley for the justice they wanted during what Maselster called the hardest part of the ordeal.

"It took two years to get him to trial," Maselster said, "and in that period of time, there was a lot of suffering."

A jail sentence won't make up for the family's loss, he said.

"If somebody steals your money, you can replace it. If somebody steals a car, you can replace it," Maselster said. "If they steal a life, you can't."

"There's no way you can compensate for that."

Cold fusion won't prompt new facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — An outside advisory committee probably will recommend that the prospects for "cold fusion" are too dim to justify construction of new research facilities by the federal government or anybody else, an Energy Department spokesman said Tuesday night.

"They have said in their discussions, 'We don't see any persuasive evidence that would confirm a new nuclear process you could call cold fusion,'" said the spokesman, Phil Keif.

"Therefore, we couldn't recommend that DOE or anybody build new facilities."

The ad hoc group of about two dozen scientists, currently meeting in Washington, was appointed by the department's Energy Research Advisory Board, itself a permanent committee of outside advisers, to assess cold fusion.

Cold fusion is the claim of University of Utah scientists that the decomposition of water at room temperature into hydrogen and oxygen by an electric current passing through a palladium-electrode leads to the absorption of hydrogen atoms in the electrode, which then fuse to produce helium in large amounts of heat.

"If such a process could work on a large scale, it would make possible limitless supplies of cheap energy. Some laboratories have duplicated some of the Utah work, but most that have tried have been unable to do so."

The fusion of hydrogen atoms to helium is the basic process powering all stars and thermonuclear weapons. It liberates vast amounts of energy, but according to accepted scientific theory requires a temperature of millions of degrees to trigger.

Though scientists accept the possibility that subnuclear particles called muons might catalyze tiny amounts of hydrogen fusion at ordinary temperatures, most physicists who have studied cold fusion believe some hitherto unexplained chemical process is taking place in the palladium electrodes.

The panel will not recommend that no funds at all be devoted to cold fusion, Keif said, but rather "if anybody has a good idea, let him submit it to be evaluated on a case-by-case basis."

Firefighters harness Payette blaze as fire activity slows down

BOISE (AP) — Firefighters on Tuesday controlled a 250-acre blaze in west-central Idaho's Payette National Forest that blew up on Sunday due to high winds.

Meanwhile, fire activity in the West has slowed down a bit with some wet weather, but the Boise Interagency Fire Center forecasts lightning activity this week could cross the region from California's Sierra Nevadas into Idaho.

BIFC coordinates fire suppression efforts for the nation.

"We're pulling the last 20 firefighters off the fire at 6 p.m.," said Dave Olson, fire information officer for the Payette Forest. The Red Creek fire near Hells Canyon made a 75-acre run on Sunday at midnight due primarily to the winds, he said.

The fire burned on steep terrain, but scorched mostly cheat grass and sagebrush, making it easier to extinguish than timber. Some 50 people were on the fire north of Land Management personnel.

"Unfortunately, this may not be the end of it," Olson said Tuesday. "We've had reports of dry lightning storms in central Idaho tomorrow."

Elsewhere, BIFC officials said fires in the Southwest have moderated because of some rains, said Debbie Shivers, fire information officer. But the down side is that monsoon weather to the south could mean lightning storms in the intermountain West.

Lightning this week could migrate

Mayor may quit because of salary

MOSCOW (AP)— Mayor Gary Scott may become the fourth Idaho mayor to announce recently that he's quitting.

Scott on Tuesday urged adoption of a $10.1 million budget, including five new jobs and increasing the mayor's salary from $8,850 to $30,000.

The city is only two and a half mayor terms away from the turn of the century, and needs a focused leader, he argued.

Scott does not intend to run for re-election. He added that mayors in Pocatello, Payette and Caldwell also are quitting.

"The universal reason... was I can no longer afford to continue," Scott told the council. "The dollar costs in opportunity lost, the family sacrifice, is beyond our capacity to continue."

EPA to study plants' toxic emissions

POCATELLO (AP)— State environmental officials will analyze toxic emissions from southeast Idaho's phosphate industrial plants this fall to determine human health and ecological risks.

The Idaho Air Quality Bureau has hired a University of Montana graduate student to inventory toxic emissions and study pollutants.

Robert Wilcox, the bureau's air toxics coordinator, said evaluations of heavy metals from phosphate plants near Pocatello and Soda Springs head the list, but volatile organics from Amalgamated Sugar Co. operations near Twin Falls also will be included.

Toxic analyses also could be conducted on emissions from the Potlatch Corp. lumber plant in Lewiston and the EnviroSAFE Services of Idaho hazardous waste disposal site near Grand View if funding is available, he said.

Court awards kids dad's settlement

BOISE (AP)— The Idaho Supreme Court has reinstated most of the damages awarded to the children of a man who sued a fundamentalist religious organization, claiming it alienated his wife and children against him.

The action was the latest development in what Jerry B. O'Neil of Kalispell, Mont., says is his 14-year battle against the Tridentine Church of the Latin Rite. It was headquartered in Kootenai County at Coeur d'Alene, but since has moved to Spokane.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the defendants missed a legal deadline to ask for a new trial, and therefore, 1st District Judge Watt Prather erroneously granted their motion for new proceedings.

Reinstated were damage awards of $50,000 each to five children of O'Neil and his former wife. The Supreme Court also ordered a new trial on O'Neil's action for invasion of privacy and punitive damages.

O'Neil originally asked $1.7 million in damages and a jury awarded him $1 million, a decision wiped out by previous legal maneuvering.

Slain college girl's mom found dead

NAMPA (AP)— The mother of a teen-aged girl murdered by her boyfriend at the College of Idaho has been found dead near Marsing, Owyhee County officials say.

The body of 39-year-old Karen Sebree of Canyon County was found at about 3 p.m. Monday by an Oregon State Police officer and two Owyhee deputies, Owyhee Coroner Harvey Grimme said Tuesday.

Mrs. Sebree was found about 300 feet off the highway. Officials initially thought the body was located in Oregon, Grimme said.

"There wasn't any violence involved," said Grimme, although he would not comment on the cause of death.

Mitchell Sebree is charged with first-degree murder by her boyfriend, Steven Waddell while she was attending a seminar at the College of Idaho for gifted students. Waddell pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and received between 20 years and life in prison.

6-year-old drowns rafting with family

BOISE (AP) A 6-year-old girl floating the Boise River with her family died Monday when the raft she was riding overturned.

Police said Angela Mattoche was trapped under water by tree branches for 30 minutes before she was found by rescuers.

She was taken to St. Luke's Regional Medical Center and pronounced dead on arrival at 3:48 p.m. She was wearing a life jacket at the time of the accident.

Workers take their case to NLRB

MOSCOW (AP)— A steelworkers union representative and workers at a Troy, Idaho, brickworks will take their case to the National Labor Relations Board at a hearing here next week.

A hearing officer will listen to testimony from employees and managers from A.P. Green Refractories Co. at Troy beginning at 10 a.m. July 19 at Moscow City Hall.

That officer will take the information he gathers to the National Labor Relations Board in Seattle, whose members will decide whether United Steelworkers of America may represent the small brickworks staff.

Jury finds 2 men guilty of rape

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)— A 1st District Court jury has convicted Shawn Gossett and Kent Clapper of raping a 26-year-old woman last fall in her Hauser Lake mobile home.

Gossett, 29, of Spokane, and Clapper, 27, of Post Falls, also were charged with burglary stemming from the Sept. 17 incident but were found guilty Monday morning of unlawful entry, a misdemeanor.

1st District Judge Gary Haman scheduled sentencing for Aug. 11. Rape carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

2 face charges in separate shootings

WORLEY (AP)— Two Worley residents face charges of assault with intent to murder in unrelated weekend shootings in this southwest Kootenai County community.

No one was injured when a man allegedly emptied his .36-caliber rifle into a home Saturday night in a dispute over a watchband, authorities said. But a domestic dispute early Monday morning resulted in woman being charged with shooting her husband three times with a .22-caliber revolver.

The shooting victim, Lee Peone, 37, underwent surgery Monday at Kootenai Medical Center and was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit.

His wife, Kasey Peone, 44, appeared before 1st District Magistrate George Marano on charges of assault with intent to murder and for using a gun in a crime. Marano told Peone the charges carry a maximum combined prison term of 29 years and set bail at $50,000.

Deputies arrested Dennis Clayton Lynch, 54, Saturday night and charged him with firing six rounds from his rifle at about 10 p.m. into a home occupied by three adults and one infant.

Panel OKs raise for lands director

BOISE (AP)— The Idaho Land Board has approved a 5 percent, $2,876 increase in the salary of state Lands Director Stan Hamilton, over the mild objection of Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Hamilton completed five years as director of the Lands Department in February. At that time, he received a 10 percent raise to $57,533 per year.

At Tuesday's Land Board session, Hamilton said a resolution approved by the 1989 Legislature approved general 5 percent salary increases.

Agency goes after delinquent sales tax

BOISE (AP)— A lot of nonprofit organizations which should be collecting and sending in state sales tax aren't doing it, the state Tax Commission says.

One estimate is that only 20 percent of the organizations are collecting Idaho's 3 percent sales tax as they should, and the commission says it's launching a drive to get all the organizations to comply with the law.

"We believe that many of these nonprofit groups are not aware that they owe sales and use taxes," said Tax Commissioner Darwin Young. "Some of them think that, because they're exempt from paying federal income tax, they're also exempt from state sales tax."

"This just is not the case," he said.

Diane House, coordinator of the information drive, said church officials are especially surprised to learn that they must collect and pay sales tax. She said several church leaders returned unanswered questionnaires from a recent test mailing, because they felt they were exempt from state tax requirements.

"When I called them back, they were amazed to find out that they owed taxers just like everybody else," she said.

The requirement is not a new one. House said it has been in effect for 24 years, since 1965 when Idaho enacted the sales tax.

Most fund-raising activities conducted by charitable, civic, fraternal and other nonprofit organizations are taxable, House said. Also, organizations must pay sales tax on purchases made within Idaho and use tax on out-of-state purchases where no tax was collected.

There are few exceptions to the rule.

"A few organizations are exempt from sales tax requirement, but they are specifically identified in the law. All sales are taxable unless a specific exemption applies," House said.

She's sending information and questionnaires to about 5,000 nonprofit organizations.

Only one unit of the two-reactor A1W will be restarted. The A1W's "B" reactor will not be restarted, because of conditions found during systems-testing—DOE officials said. They did not elaborate.

Meanwhile, work schedules at A1W were revised, DOE officials said.

Wives of Navy employees sharply criticized the previous schedule.

Naval prototype reactor training resumes at INEL

IDAHO FALLS (AP)— Classroom training has resumed at a naval prototype reactor undergoing an overhaul at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, officials say.

Meanwhile, about 80 temporary jobs will be added at the INEL's classified Naval Reactors Facility, but these jobs have nothing to do with the A1W prototype, an aircraft carrier reactor prototype.

"Various clerical, craft and laborer positions will be filled throughout the Naval Reactors Facility," unnamed Department of Energy officials told the Idaho Falls Post-Register on Tuesday.

This spring, DOE officials said there were about 1,000 Westinghouse Electric Corp. employees, 600 Naval staffers and 800 Naval students at the NRF. Westinghouse is the Navy's contractor for the facility, a series of three prototypes of nuclear Navy reactors.

But the A1W has been idle for refueling and an overhaul. The plant is now being tested.

DOE officials say the repairs will be completed this fall and prototype operations will resume then.

Naval students will take up "operational training" on the A1W reactor after it is started up again.

The DOE said: About 700 students are trained there annually.

Only one unit of the two-reactor A1W will be restarted. The A1W's "B" reactor will not be restarted, because of conditions found during systems-testing—DOE officials said. They did not elaborate.

Rain triggers landslides in China

BEIJING (AP) — Heavy rain set off landslides and flooded cities in southwestern China, killing 221 people, destroying thousands of homes and inundating crops, official reports said Tuesday.

State TV showed riverside cliffs collapsing and floodwaters up to the eaves of homes in Chongqing, 900 miles southwest of the capital.

More than 13,450 houses were damaged by rainfall that totaled 16 inches in the hardest-hit areas in recent days, according to the official Xinhua News Agency.

Xinhua said 221 people died in Sichuan province, including 137 in flooding around Chongqing on Sunday and Monday. At least 432 people were injured and 10 others were missing.

About 2.1 million acres of crops have been submerged, it said.

Report links activist to boy's death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police have given prosecutors a report linking black activist Winnie Mandela to the death of a teen-ager allegedly killed by her bodyguards, state radio said Tuesday.

Eight of Mrs. Mandela's bodyguards have been charged with the murder of 14-year-old activist Mokeetsi "Stompie" Seipei who was beaten to death last December in Soweto, the sprawling black township outside Johannesburg.

Mrs. Mandela, wife of jailed black leader Nelson Mandela, denies involvement in the case and says it is a government smear campaign.

The attorney general of Witwatersrand region is to examine the police report and decide whether additional charges should be filed, the South African Broadcasting Corp. reported.

Czechs lift passports of activists

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Czechoslovak authorities confiscated the passports of more than 20 activists, including a former foreign minister who said on a Scandinavian visit that reform in his country was too slow, emigre sources said Tuesday.

The sources in the Austrian capital, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Czechoslovak officials on July 4 revoked the passport of Jiri Hajek, who served as foreign minister during the 1968 "Prague Spring" reform period that was crushed by Soviet troops.

More than 20 independent activists had their passports confiscated last month, the sources said.

Israel guards frontier with Lebanon

ON THE ISRAEL-LEBANON BORDER (AP) — The border with Lebanon is the most dangerous of Israel's frontiers, the target of more than 50 infiltration attempts in the past 18 months by Palestinian gunmen.

Israeli officials are warning with increasing bluntness that they are prepared to use whatever force is necessary to protect the farms and towns nestled along the 100-mile border.

Speaking on Israel's Arabic language TV program, the government's coordinator for Lebanon policy suggested Israel would not feel hampered by U.S. urgings or other restraints.

"We strike anywhere we see there is a potential danger for subversive action against our northern border... We will strike without taking into account any unrelated interests," said the official, Uri Lubrani.

Cinema eating, drinking banned

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Moviegoers are too sloppy, so the city will ban all eating and drinking in cinemas, the mayor said Tuesday.

Mayor Elias Omar said the move was to ensure the cleanliness of the theaters, which often are dirty because of empty food packets and drink containers being left behind by patrons.

"The cinemas should be clean places that provide comfort to patrons, not places for eating and drinking. If one wants to eat or drink, the place to do it is a stall or a restaurant," Elias said at a meeting with three officials of Borneo Film Organization Ltd.

Gorbachev on trouble-shooting trip

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev left Tuesday on a trouble-shooting mission to Leningrad, where the Communist Party leadership failed to win parliamentary elections in March, Tass said.

Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov said problems have been accumulating in Leningrad, according to the official news agency.

Leningrad party officials, including the city's party boss, Yuri F. Solovoy, failed to win a seat in the Congress of People's Deputies in the March 26 elections.

Private enterprise ventures bloom

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — President Bush's visit to Hungary is providing an opportunity for several private enterprise ventures of the kind Hungarian and U.S. officials are encouraging.

Radio Bridge, a new, private, English-language radio station, on Tuesday began a trial broadcast to coincide with the two-day visit, the official MTI news agency said.

The station, which will broadcast on a trial basis for the duration of the Bush visit, until noon Thursday, plans to go on the air regularly at the end of the year, MTI said.

Radio Bridge, which will broadcast exclusively in English, is aimed at foreign businessmen in Hungary with broadcasts of political and economic news as well as cultural and tourist information.

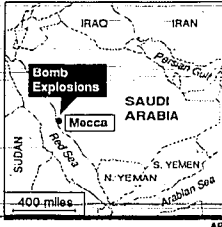

A Swedish-U.S.-Canadian partnership and Hungarian private individuals have set up a limited company to finance the station, MTI said.

Iran claims Saudis planted Mecca bombs

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Iran accused Saudi Arabia on Tuesday of planting the bombs that killed one person and wounded 16 near Islam's holiest shrine during the annual pilgrimages to Mecca.

Moslems condemned the bombings Monday near the Grand Mosque, but no Arab nation openly accused Iran of responsibility.

Tehran claimed the purpose was to discredit Iran, which is boycotting the pilgrimage, or hajj, because of a feud with Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia "target of an almost daily barrage of propaganda by Iran's leaders and media in recent weeks, limited its reaction to saying: 'This criminal perpetration at a sacred spot is regrettable.'"

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the United States was "appalled" by the bombings.

The Saudis have repeatedly accused Iranian zealots of causing trouble during the hajj and broke relations with Iran in April 1988, citing subversion and terrorism.

Security sources in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, said most of the wounded were pilgrims, including Pakistanis, Indians, Egyptians and two Saudis.

Interior Ministry officials said two were in critical condition Tuesday, the official Saudi Press Agency reported. The security sources in Riyadh said several suspects were being interrogated.

Hussein Musavi, prime minister of Iran, described the two explosions at 10 p.m. Monday as an effort "by the Saudi regime to create a climate of suppression and repression," said Tehran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

A statement from the Iranian Foreign Ministry urged pilgrims in Mecca to protest the bombings, which it blamed on "the United States and its agents in the region," a reference to pro-Western Saudi Arabia.

"When the bombs went off, hundreds of thousands of pilgrims were praying and walking in the grounds of Grand Mosque around the Kaaba, a square building draped in cloth that is Islam's holiest shrine."

The Saudi statement said they exploded on the main road to the Grand Mosque and on an overpass near the mosque.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the bombs, which diplomats said were believed to be crude devices with timing mechanisms. The Saudi security sources said the explosives used were of the type that makes a loud bang... but causes little damage.

Officials set up checkpoints and changed pilgrim routes, but allowed the traditional Hajj rites to continue.

Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of Iran's parliament, said: "Maybe the Saudis themselves did it to free themselves of the pressure from true Moslems... for depriving Iran from participating in the hajj."

President Ali Khamenei said: "The agents of the U.S.A. and Israel... again violated the sanctity of divine sanctuary by exploding two bombs in the holy city of Mecca," Tehran radio reported.

"No doubt this crime has been committed by the house of Al-Saud," Khamenei said, referring to the Saudi royal family.

Iran has demanded the Saudi royal family be stripped of custodianship of the holy shrines at Mecca and Medina.

Trial for Zhao remains possible course

BEIJING (AP) — China on Tuesday refused to rule out a trial and further punishment for Zhao Ziyang, who was ousted as Communist Party chief for opposing the military crackdown that crushed pro-democracy demonstrators.

"His problem is still being investigated," government spokesman Yuan Hu said at the first news conference by a high-ranking official since troops on June 24 marched on Tiananmen Square and attacked unarmed demonstrators.

When the party Central Committee ousted him as secretary general on June 24, it accused Zhao of supporting the protesters and splitting the party, and said his case would be dealt with internally. Since then, however, official criticism has escalated, fueling speculation Zhao may stand trial.

One major government report last week accused Zhao's aides of collaborating with protest leaders accused of trying to overthrow the government. It stopped short of also accusing Zhao of plotting a coup.

Yuan stressed the party charges and decision to treat Zhao's case as an internal disciplinary matter are not final.

"How the problem will finally be dealt with will be decided according to the findings of the investigation," he told more than 100 Chinese and foreign reporters.

Premier Li Peng, a key force behind the crackdown, was quoted last week as saying Zhao remained at his home. Putting him on trial would be an extreme measure taken only if Zhao and his supporters are considered a continuing threat.

A trial may force the disclosure of details about the power struggle that preceded the army attack and could turn Zhao into a popular hero. The government says hundreds of people were killed, mostly soldiers, Chinese students and Western diplomats say thousands of unarmed civilians were slain.

Also Tuesday, authorities deported two reporters — one American and one Taiwanese — and gave a second Taiwanese reporter 48 hours to leave. All are accused of violating martial law bans on reporting activity.

They bring to nine the number of reporters ordered to leave China since June 4. All but two were in China on tourist visas.

Afghans to release American photographer soon

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — An American photographer captured more than a month ago while traveling with Moslem guerrillas will be released before the weekend, a government source said Tuesday.

President Najib will issue a pardon for Tony O'Brien, who was arrested June 8 for entering Afghanistan illegally, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The source said a consular officer from the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi was to arrive in the Afghan capital to secure the release of the freelance photographer.

"All paperwork concerning the case has been completed and the president will now issue an order pardoning the American," he said.

A U.S. official in New Delhi said the embassy had been told the Afghan government was not prepared to release O'Brien during the three-day Islamic festival of sacrifice, Eid Al-Azha, which begins Thursday.

"A consular officer is prepared to go but we have been told he cannot be freed during the festival," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The U.S. Embassy in Kabul was closed in January, before the Soviet Union completed its troop withdrawal from Afghanistan.

The Afghan government earlier said Najib agreed to release O'Brien without trial following a personal appeal by Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat.

O'Brien, who did not have a visa to enter the country, was arrested by security forces at a rebel hideout in Kabul. He has not been charged.

Survey: Midwest leads in midriff bulges

By the Los Angeles Times

America has a midriff bulge, according to a recent federal study.

Researchers, using random telephone surveys, found that the highest concentration of overweight adults resides in the nation's midsection, namely in states such as Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio.

The data was compiled to determine whether people experiencing weight problems were clustered in any particular state or geographic region.

"An estimated 34 million adults in the United States are overweight, placing them at increased risk for chronic diseases such as diabetes, hypertension and some types of cancer," the report stated. "Thus, reducing the prevalence of overweight is an important public health objective."

Midwestern states have the most reason for concern, judging by the survey's findings. As a region, the Midwest had 23.1 percent of its adult population above average weight levels.

On a state-by-state comparison, Indiana and Wisconsin had the most oversized adults, or 25.7 percent of those surveyed. The lowest percentages were found in Hawaii with only 15.5 percent and Montana with 16.7 percent.

Men were slightly more ample than women, according to the survey. Of the males questioned, 21.8 percent were listed as heavier than average whereas the rate for females was 21.1 percent.

The places least likely to host overweight women were Hawaii, where only 13.7 percent of those females surveyed were listed as above average, and California, with only 16.8 percent considered heavy.

Although the results demonstrate that at least one in five Americans is considered overweight, the report's authors said that the actual figure is probably higher.

Chewing gum may have some health benefits

By the Los Angeles Times

There may actually be some benefits to chewing gum, according to several recent studies on the subject.

Young children should still be dissuaded from the practice because it may stunt tooth growth, but adults could incorporate the habit into dental care programs with little apparent harm, reports the University of California, Berkeley Wellness Letter.

"It depends on how long you chew gum and how it's sweetened. Done in moderation, it can be a healthful adjunct to brushing and flossing," the article stated.

For instance, one such benefit is the production of saliva, which helps counter tooth-decaying acids found in dental plaque. Research conducted by the Indiana School of Dentistry found that chewing gum actually stimulates the creation of significant amounts of saliva, the newsletter reported.

Several precautions need to be taken if gum's limited benefits are to be utilized. Sugarless brands are preferable to those that contain sucrose, or table sugar. And gum chewing is best when done shortly after finishing a meal. Any such session should last no longer than 15-20 minutes, the article stated.

Spicy salads make summer sizzle

Spicy-hot salads with cool, crispy crunch are just about perfect for warm-weather meals. Chock-full of bright vegetables and bursting with tongue-tingling taste, they're a sure-fire cure for wilting appetites.

For all of this summer's too-hot-to-eat days, home economists have created a collection of cooling salads with zesty, spicy-hot flavors. As easy as summer cooking should be, they bypass tedious chile preparation and specialty spice blending by relying on picante sauce for garden-fresh flavor and lively jalapeno pepper "punch." A choice of mild, medium-or-hot makes the salads just as fiery as you like, and with only 5 calories per tablespoon, even waist-waners can enjoy on all they wish.

Spicy Thai-Style Chicken Salad teams chunks of chicken and crispy vegetables with a lively dressing combining soy sauce, ginger, peanut butter, picante sauce and cilantro. Tastes like favorite restaurant fare!

Wagon Wheel Turkey Salad, ideal for toting to picnics and parties where everyone brings a dish, teams turkey, pasta and vegetables with a fat-free blend of bottled dressing and picante sauce.

Southwestern Rice Salad is idea as a grill-side go-along. A crunchy combination of vegetables and rice with spicy Texas taste, it complements any cookout or barbecue entree.

Singapore Supper Salad and Chicken-Blue Cheese-Bacon Salad are two new variations of the year 'round favorite — chicken salad — that are sure to become summer standbys. And Aztec Tuna Salad, with its lively south-of-the-border flavors and scrape-bright colors will add an oie! to any sultry day.

AZTEC TUNA SALAD
¾ cup picante sauce
1/3 cup Italian dressing
3 tablespoons minced cilantro
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 can (about 13 ounces) water-packed tuna, drained

4 cups shredded spinach leaves
1 can (16 ounces) dark red kidney beans, rinsed and drained

1 small yellow or red bell pepper, cut into short, thin strips (1 cup)

1 large or 2 small tomatoes, cut into wedges

½ cup chopped red onion

Combine picante sauce, dressing, cilantro and cumin in medium bowl. Break tuna into large chunks; toss with picante sauce mixture. Line large serving platter with spinach leaves. Transfer tuna to center of spinach with slotted spoon. Arrange beans, yellow pepper, tomato and red onion attractively around tuna. Drizzle with remaining picante sauce mixture. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 servings.

SPICY THAI-STYLE CHICKEN SALAD
2 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and cut into thin strips

1 large garlic clove, minced

1 tablespoon peanut or vegetable oil

¼ cup picante sauce

1 tablespoon soy sauce

2 teaspoons finely shredded fresh ginger

2 cups shredded romaine leaves

2 cups shredded spinach leaves

1 small cucumber, halved lengthwise, seeded and sliced (1-½ cups)

¾ cup coarsely chopped cilantro
2 tablespoons creamy peanut butter
1 small red bell pepper, cut into short, thin strips (1 cup)
¼ cup peanut halves (optional)
Cook chicken and garlic in oil in 10-inch skillet over medium heat until chicken is no longer pink. Add ½ cup of the picante sauce, soy sauce and ginger; continue cooking 3 minutes or until chicken is cooked through. Chill mixture until cold; at least 2 hours. To serve, combine romaine and spinach; arrange on serving platter. Combine chicken mixture, cucumber and cilantro. Whisk together remaining ½ cup picante sauce and peanut butter. Toss with chicken mixture; arrange over lettuce mixture. Sprinkle red pepper around edges of chicken mixture; sprinkle center with peanuts, if desired. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

WAGON WHEEL TURKEY SALAD
4 cups cooked wagon wheel or spiral package chicken, uncooked
2 cups short, thin turkey strips (about 8 ounces)
1 large tomato, cut into 1-½ inch chunks
1 small red bell pepper, cut into ½-inch strips

Making the most of sweet summer strawberries

By The Baltimore Evening Sun

The sweet goodness of sun-ripened strawberries is now in many markets.

Gwendolyn B. Hagood, an extension agent for home economists for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, recommends selecting berries that are fully ripened, with a rich, red color and fresh-looking caps. Containers should be free of stains. The stains indicate over-ripened or spoiled fruit. Because strawberries are rather delicate, they require gentle handling.

Avoid washing strawberries and removing the caps until you want to use them. Wash them by rinsing with a gentle spray of cool water while they are in a strainer. Remove the caps after washing to prevent diluting the flavor.

The following two recipes put this delicious, sweet berry to fruitful use.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

Slice 1 to 2 cups of ripe berries into bite-size pieces. Combine with ½ cup sugar and mix well. Cover and allow to "age" for 24 hours in the refrigerator. The syrup produced by this process infuses into the fruit pieces and prevents them from freezing solid during the hardening process. When the berries are aged, reserve a portion to use as whole pieces and puree the rest. Add to the following:

2 cups heavy cream
½ cup sugar
2 cups light cream
1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
2 reconstituted dried eggs, beaten well
½ teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients, and stir well with a wooden spoon until sugar is dissolved. Process according to ice cream freezer instructions. Mix in the whole pieces of fruit at the end of the process and before hardening. Top with fresh berries if desired.

Other fruit can be substituted for the strawberries.

4 cups sliced fresh strawberries
2 to 3 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups all purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1-3 to ½ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
1-3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
Whipped cream

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Whisk eggs into milk mixture until well blended. Dip each bread slice into milk mixture and place soaked bread in baking dish. Pour remaining egg mixture over bread and refrigerate 15 to 30 minutes or overnight.

Meanwhile, cut apples into bite-size pieces. Melt margarine in non-stick skillet over medium heat and saute apples until just tender, about 3 minutes. Add honey, cinnamon, remaining ½ teaspoon lemon zest and juice. Bring mixture to boil, then reduce heat and simmer until apples are tender when pierced with fork. Remove skillet from heat and stir in cheese and almonds.

Heat large non-stick skillet or griddle and spray with non-stick vegetable spray, if needed. Cook each bread slice over medium-high heat until golden, turning once. Remove from skillet and keep warm.

Repeat with remaining bread slices. Spoon ½ cup apple topping over each slice. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

Tasty fruit dishes at breakfast offer good start to the day

By TONI TIPTON
Los Angeles Times

Several studies throughout the years have confirmed that children who eat a balanced breakfast show better academic performance than their breakfast-skipping classmates. Similarly, researchers in the health and nutrition fields have recommended that adults improve their intake of major nutrients at breakfast.

The trouble with typical breakfast items is that while they may include nutritious foods such as eggs, potatoes, fruit and whole grains, they are typically prepared using high-fat methods. Sugar-laced baked goods, cereals topped with high-fat butter and cream, or fried meats are a few examples.

Diners desiring to return to the breakfast table should instead look for low-fat alternatives to butter, such as whipped or diet margarine and opt for low- or non-fat milk as a substitute for cream in cereal. Try poaching eggs or preparing vegetable omelets in non-stick cookware rather than frying them. And serve low-fat cheese and poultry as an alternate source of protein.

The following recipes provide a few creative ways to use wholesome ingredients to break the night's fast and supply the body with nutrients lost during sleep. Keep butter and syrup off the table; instead, serve unusual fruit combinations over pancakes and French toast or serve quick-breads without butter alongside individual dishes of fresh summer fruits.

FRENCH TOAST WITH APPLE SLICES

1½ cups low-fat milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 cinnamon sticks
2 tablespoons, plus ½ teaspoon grated lemon zest

4 eggs, beaten
8 (1-inch) thick, slices - French style bread

4 tart green apples, unpeeled
1 tablespoon margarine
¼ cup honey
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 ounces low-fat Cheddar cheese, cut into ¼-inch cubes, optional

2 tablespoons slivered almonds, optional

Bring milk to boil in saucepan, along with vanilla, cinnamon sticks and 2 tablespoons lemon zest. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes.

Discard cinnamon sticks and cool mixture to room temperature.

Whisk eggs into milk mixture until well blended. Dip each bread slice into milk mixture and place soaked bread in baking dish. Pour remaining egg mixture over bread and refrigerate 15 to 30 minutes or overnight.

Meanwhile, cut apples into bite-size pieces. Melt margarine in non-stick skillet over medium heat and saute apples until just tender, about 3 minutes. Add honey, cinnamon, remaining ½ teaspoon lemon zest and juice. Bring mixture to boil, then reduce heat and simmer until apples are tender when pierced with fork. Remove skillet from heat and stir in cheese and almonds.

Heat large non-stick skillet or griddle and spray with non-stick vegetable spray, if needed. Cook each bread slice over medium-high heat until golden, turning once. Remove from skillet and keep warm.

Repeat with remaining bread slices. Spoon ½ cup apple topping over each slice. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

Try grilling veal for delicious summer meal

Grilling just seems to say summer. The pleasures of grilling come from a combination of sensations — the pure and simple fun of cooking outdoors, the irresistible smoky flavor of the food.

If you haven't tried it already, veal is a delicious and nutritious choice for grilling. Veal is naturally lean and contributes a significant amount of protein, vitamins and minerals such as niacin and zinc to the diet. And, many veal cuts are appropriate for grilling, the delicate flavor enhanced by the smokiness from the coals. Veal ribs, ground veal, and rib or loin chops are great for starters.

Easy to prepare and a cinch to grill, Honey-Citrus Glazed Veal Chops are made to order for the summer chef. Great tasting, but not time consuming, they're festive enough for guests. Just four ingredients — lime juice and peel, honey and fresh ginger — make the marinade for the chops. And because rib chops are a tender cut, just a short marinating is needed. The marinade adds delicious flavor to the chops in the time it takes for the coals to heat to medium temperature.

For maximum flavor, grill the veal rib chops at least to medium doneness (160 degrees F). When cooked to medium, they should be light pink inside.

These subtly sweet citrusy chops would be complemented by a simple vegetable salad and a crusty loaf of bread. Fresh summer fruits or sorbet round out the meal.

Honey-Citrus Glazed Veal Chops

Preparation time: 10 minutes
Cooking time: 12 to 14 minutes
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
2 tablespoons honey
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
1/4 teaspoon grated lime peel
4 veal rib chops, cut 1 inch thick (about 8 ounces each)

Stir together lime juice, honey, ginger and peel. Place veal rib chops in utility dish just large enough to hold chops. Brush lime mixture liberally over both sides of chops. Refrigerate, covered, 30 minutes while preparing coals. Remove chops from dish, reserving any lime mixture. Place chops on grid over medium coals, and grill 12 to 14 minutes, turning once for medium (160 degrees F), or to desired doneness; brush with reserved lime mixture before turning. Or, broil 4 to 5 inches from heat 5 to 6 minutes per side, turning once for medium, or to desired doneness. Makes 4 servings.

To check temperature of coals, cautiously hold the palm of your hand about 4 inches above the coals. Count the number of seconds you can hold it in that position before the heat forces you to pull it away: 4 seconds for medium coals.

Summer Fruit Salad is perfect for picnics or patio meals

With the choice of two banana and yogurt-based dressings, this summer fruit salad is at the same time, ripe bananas, are naturally sweet and easy to puree. They take on a smooth, creamy texture that makes a perfect base for blending with yogurt, honey and other ripe fruits for these rich-tasting dressings. Both the Strawberry-Banana and the Orange-Banana toppings are so simple, you can serve a choice for a warm-weather patio meal or take along for an elegant picnic.

Summer Fruit Salad

- 1 Dole fresh pineapple
- 2 Dole oranges, peeled, sliced
- 2 Dole bananas, peeled, sliced
- 1 cup halved Dole strawberries
- 1 cup seedless green Dole grapes
- Strawberry-Banana Yogurt Dressing:
- 1 ripe Dole banana, peeled
- 6 Dole strawberries, halved
- 1 carton (8oz.) vanilla yogurt
- 1 tbs. brown sugar or honey

Orange-Banana Yogurt Dressing

- 1 Dole orange
- 1 ripe Dole banana, peeled
- 1 carton (8oz.) vanilla yogurt
- 1 tbs. brown sugar or honey
- Cut pineapple in-half-lengthwise through crown. Remove fruit with curved knife, leaving shells intact. Trim off core and cut fruit into chunks. In large bowl, combine pineapple, oranges, bananas, strawberries and grapes. Spoon into pineapple shells. Serve with dressing. Serves 6-8.

Strawberry-Banana Yogurt Dressing—in blender of food processor, combine all ingredients and blend until smooth.

Americans drink less wine than in past year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — People in the nation's capital uncorked 6.2 gallons of wine apiece last year — more than people in any state — but Americans drank less wine than in 1987, an annual survey reported Wednesday.

Mississippi residents drank the least wine, at 17.6 ounces per capita, according to a report in the trade publication Wines & Vines.

Including coolers, American adults drank about 3.2 gallons per capita of wine last year, down from 3.4 gallons in 1987. Per capita beer consumption in 1988 was 34.1 gallons, and distilled spirits, 2.21 gallons.

Napa Valley winemaker Robert Mondavi said the per capita decline was principally among less expensive wines. "However, for the fine wines, we went up 10 to 15 percent. And that is true even for France and Italy," he said.

Mondavi, widely regarded as the nation's most influential vintner, predicted consumption will increase again "if the wine industry wakes up. We have been asleep at the switch" in telling the story of wine to the world.

The survey, using statistics compiled by state and federal agencies and California's Wine Institute, found that total U.S. wine consumption dropped to 562.2 million gallons in 1988, 4.9 percent or 28.7 million gallons under the 1987 figure.

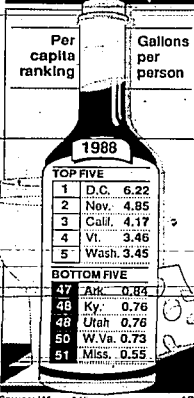

Washington, D.C.'s wine consumption was 3.1 percent below its 1987 figure.

The top five per capita wine consumers by rank and comparison with 1987, after the District of Columbia, are Nevada, 4.8 gallons, down 5.5 percent; California, 4.1 gallons, down 9.2 percent; Vermont, 3.4 gallons, down 9.9 percent, and Washington state, 3.4 gallons, down 5 percent.

The survey found the top five states in total wine consumption were California, 118.1 million gallons; New York, 50.3 million; Florida, 32.4 million; Texas, 26.8 million, and Illinois, 26.7 million.

Sales of high-priced, premium, varietal wines boomed but jug wine sales fell off again. With the dollar weak against European currencies, domestic wines posted an export record in 1988 and imports declined again. Mondavi said even the generic wines — the jug wines — "are coming up in quality, following the lead of the finer premium varieties."

The survey noted that while exports hit a record 11.9 million gallons in 1987, last year's exports hit 16.9 million gallons or 3.5 percent of total sales.

About 85 percent of all wine sold in this country last year was white, blush or rose, with only 14 percent red wines.

California produced 90.5 percent of all U.S. wine last year, at 428.4 million gallons, a 9.6 percent rise over 1987. New York was next with 5.7 percent of the total or 27.05 million gallons, down 15.3 percent for the same period. Forty-three states now have bonded wineries.

Of imported wines last year, Italy led with 43 percent, followed by France at 27 percent; Spain, 9 percent; West Germany, 7 percent; Portugal, 4 percent; and the balance, other countries.

The star of the import market was champagne, despite a 6.1 percent drop last year to 13 million gallons.

Know the difference between types of oils

By Better Homes and Gardens Magazine

"No cholesterol," the label proclaims, or "100 percent pure." Shopping for a cooking oil can be confusing. In our pursuit of a lower-fat diet, we wonder which is better. Here's some information to help you decide.

TYPES OF OILS

Oils are a mixture of three types of fatty acids: saturated, monounsaturated and polyunsaturated. The fatty acids may influence blood cholesterol.

Saturated fats raise blood cholesterol. Saturated fats are high in palm oil, coconut oil, shortening, lard and butter.

Polysaturated fats appear to lower blood cholesterol.

Monounsaturated fats also appear to lower blood cholesterol, especially LDL, the so-called "bad cholesterol" without lowering HDL, "good cholesterol."

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

The most important health consideration when choosing a cooking oil is not whether it contains cholesterol or not but rather the amount of saturated fat in the oil. Oils low in saturated fat are more healthful.

Saturated fat levels vary from oil to oil; coconut and palm oil are most saturated. Other vegetable oils contain saturated fats in much lower levels. You can use any of these in moderation.

CHOLESTEROL CLAIMS

ALL vegetable oils are cholesterol-free. Only animal fats contain cholesterol.

MORE HEALTH CONSIDERATIONS

If an oil is low in saturated fat, it's not crucial whether most of the remaining fat is monounsaturated or polysaturated. Both corn (mostly polysaturated) and olive oil (mostly monounsaturated) can have a healthful place in your kitchen. As a matter of fact, most health professionals encourage a

SAVORY BRUNCH PULL-APART

- 3/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 tablespoons sesame seed
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
- One 30-ounce package (24) frozen unbaked rolls
- 1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted
- 2 tablespoons real bacon bits (optional)

Thoroughly grease a 10-inch fluted tube pan. In a small bowl combine Parmesan cheese, sesame seed and basil. Add about 1-3rd of mixture to greased pan; lift and turn pan to coat sides and bottom.

Place 10 of the frozen rolls in the pan; drizzle with half the margarine or butter. Sprinkle half the remaining cheese mixture on top. If desired, sprinkle with bacon bits. Add remaining rolls. Drizzle with remaining margarine and sprinkle with remaining cheese mixture. Cover; let rolls thaw and rise overnight (12 to 24 hours) in refrigerator.

The next day let stand at room temperature for 30 minutes. Bake uncovered, in a 350-degree F oven for 20 minutes. Cover with foil and bake 10 to 15 minutes more or until golden. Remove bread from pan onto a wire rack. Serve warm. Makes 12 servings.

SAME-DAY BAKING: Prepare

the bread as directed, using a 12-inch fluted tube pan that is safe in both microwave and conventional ovens. Instead of thawing and raising the rolls overnight, pour 3 cups of water into a 4-cup measure. Cook in the microwave, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 6 1/2 to 8 1/2 minutes or until boiling. Move water to back of the oven.

Place pan with bread in microwave; cover with waxed paper. Heat on 10 percent power 10 minutes. Let rest 5 minutes. Repeat this step 3 times until dough is nearly doubled. Bake as directed.

Strict time limit at day care is no care Anniversary

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "No Nonsense in N.W. Jersey," the day-care professional who said, "Any child not picked up by 6:30 p.m. will be taken to the county social service facility for children."

Your answer to her was, "Most parents are on time, but I'll wager not many parents are tardy twice when faced with this kind of penalty." Is that the best response you could come up with? Abby, that lady should be working in a factory making clocks! Her responsibility to the child far outweighs any spite she may feel toward inconsiderate parents. The person she is hurting is the child. She has no business being in the day-care business — and less business calling it "day care." There is NO care. She should advertise "Day storage. We are not responsible for items left after 6:30 p.m."

Can you imagine what it must do to small children to be taken by someone they are supposed to trust and dumped with strangers in a strange place? At that age, they can't understand what's happening. They can't even be sure that their parents will come and get them. In their minds it can be nothing short of abandonment, and it must be terrifying. Your letting "No Nonsense" get off without letting her have it with both barrels shows that you aren't in the child-care business. Thanks for hearing me out.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

— DISGUSTED IN VIRGINIA

DEAR DISGUSTED: You're right. I should have come down much harder on her. But I didn't get away with it. It would have done your heart good to see all the negative mail I received.

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write after reading the letter from "Fuming in Ontario," the man who was angry when people cut in ahead of him in line.

I, too, used to get angry and fume about this. Actually, I was more angry at myself for not having the nerve to say something to them at the time. Then I decided to be more assertive. (I discovered that one need not be obnoxious to be assertive.)

I learned to say, politely but loudly, "Perhaps you don't notice that the end of the line is over there, and I'm sure you won't mind waiting your turn like the rest of us have." It works every time.

— ASSERTIVE IN URBANA, OHIO

DEAR ASSERTIVE: Another good suggestion. Here's a good one:

DEAR ABBY: Whenever someone tries to get in line ahead of me, I say, loudly, "I don't mind letting you in ahead of me, if all those people behind me don't object." Then I address the people in line with, "What do you say, folks?"

Naturally, everyone in line is "thumbs down" on the idea, and they start yelling, "Nothing doing! No way! Go to the end of the line like we did!"

— NO CUTTING-IN IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: I've been a delivery person for many years, and you could help all of us in the trade by impressing upon your readers how important it is to be specific when giving an address. It may seem rather unimportant to indicate whether it's street, avenue, boulevard, road, drive, court, lane or whatever when specifying a delivery address. Given how most metropolitan areas may have a 24th Street as well as a 24th Avenue, or an Elm Street, Elm Place, Elm Drive, etc., there are a lot of important documents, parts orders, blueprints and pizzas needlessly heading off in the wrong direction. Thanks, Abby!

— GREG PALMER, OAKLAND, CALIF.

DEAR GREG: A misdirected pizza is merely an inconvenience, but an ambulance, fire truck or police car heading off in the wrong direction can be a major catastrophe. Readers, pay attention when you give your address. And by the way, is your residence clearly marked and visible at night in case an ambulance, fire truck or police car has been sent there?

The Denneys

WENDELL: — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Denney will be honored at an open house Saturday in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited to call from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at their daughter's home, the Ted-Mason residence, 3085 Artesian Road, Murtaugh.

Denney and Lucile Boster were married May 23, 1939, at Elko, Nevada. They have lived in Murtaugh, Stanley and are now retired at Wendell.

He worked as a farmer and guide for Bill Harrah at the Middle Fork Lodge. She worked as the postmaster in Stanley.

The event is being given by their three daughters and their spouses, Eddie and Peggy Thurston of Missoula, Mont.; Ted and Bert Mason of Murtaugh; and Ike and Pauline Thomas of Ketchum. The couple has nine grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Center to hold party for resident's 102nd birthday

TWIN FALLS — Ethel Cleveland is turning 102 Saturday, and Twin Falls Care Center, 674 Eastland Drive, plans an open house in her honor from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Ethel Danahue was born at Viola, Idaho, near Moscow in 1887. She and her husband, Guy, married Oct. 7, 1907, with Ethel's grandfather and local justice of the peace, Wesley Palmer, performing the ceremony. The couple lived in Kooxkia for many years before moving to Twin Falls upon their retirement in 1956. Mr. Cleveland died in 1977 at the age of 91.

Active for many years in Rebekah, Odd Fellow, Eastern Star and Masonic lodges, Mrs. Cleveland still likes to play cards and watch television at the Care Center. She is the mother of two daughters, Jean Stuart of Goding and Kathryn Ramseyer of Twin Falls.

Letter of thanks

Camp Rainbow Gold appreciates coverage

We would like to thank Mr. Vern Bybee for his letter concerning Camp Rainbow Gold and the fund raising that we do to send young cancer patients to camp.

Mr. Rick Vollweiler works very hard with his committee to raise funds for the camp. Many organizations in this area also add to the funding of camp as the Junior Club, the Idaho Elks, the Magic Valley Jaycees and Idaho Jaycees, motorcycle clubs from Twin Falls and Burley and all of the volunteers of the Twin Falls unit of the American Cancer Society.

We would like to thank the media for their coverage of Camp Rainbow Gold, especially the area radio stations, KJLX radio's Party Line, KMYE's Views program for their help with this event. Watch for more information about the next event on August 20th.

We also enjoy the privilege of having Dr. David McClusky, state president for the American Cancer Society and Jim Olson, last year's camp director, who are very willing to visit with any organization/group about Camp. Call Debbie Nelson at 783-4700 to arrange for a speaker.

3 principles ensure perfect pancakes

By JOAN DRAKE
Los Angeles Times

There are three key principles to making good pancakes: consistency of the batter, proper heating of the griddle and recognizing when to turn the cakes.

Whether making pancake batter from scratch or a packaged mix, stir it just enough to moisten the dry ingredients. The batter should still be lumpy; overmixing makes the pancakes tough. For best results, cover the batter and refrigerate one to two hours so the flour expands and absorbs the moisture.

To cook the batter, preheat the griddle over medium heat. It is ready when a few drops of cold water sprinkled on the surface "dance" and sizzle (Step 1). If the water just sits and boils, the griddle is not hot enough; if it evaporates instantly, reheat the heat.

Brush the griddle lightly with oil (Step 2) unless it has a non-stick surface or is very well seasoned. Other types of fat — shortening, butter or margarine — may be used if desired. The easiest way to check the consistency of the batter is to cook a trial pancake. Typically, one-quarter cup batter forms a pancake about 5 inches in diameter. Pouring the batter close to the griddle surface (Step 3) helps to keep the pancake round — and using a measuring cup assures uniform size.

Pancakes are ready to turn when bubbles form and begin to break on the upper surface and the edges look dry. Turn with a spatula wide enough to accommodate the size of the pancake. Normally, the first side needs to cook for two to three minutes, but the second cooks in about half that time. Turn the pancake only once.

The pancake should turn out golden brown, light and tender and be cooked through in the center. If the batter is too thick, adjust with a little water; if too thin, add a little flour.

Pancakes are best served at once, either in a stack with syrup, or stuffed, rolled or glazed with a sauce and run under the broiler. You can also vary the batter by stirring in one-half to three-quarters cup blueberries or one-third cup chopped nuts.

Suggestions for column topics may be sent to Back to Basics, Food Section, Los Angeles Times, Times Mirror Square, Los Angeles, CA 90008.

Extensive tests are conducted on new flower varieties

Few Idahoans know about the extensive testing of new flowers and vegetables which is conducted every year in Rexburg. New flower and vegetable varieties are being developed at a furious rate all around the world. A large share of these new varieties are on display at the Ricks College Horticultural Research and Demonstration Garden. The garden is at its best for viewing from mid-July until mid-September. To see everything at its peak, several visits could be made. The main entrance to the garden, on the south side of the Ricks College campus, is being modified this summer by students in the landscape construction class. A new water feature is being added. Beds for the All-America award winning flowers have already been enlarged and raised. Included in this planting are 24 All-America winning flowers for the past five years including the six new winners for 1990. In addition to the All-America flowers, 72 other new flowers are included in row trials inside the garden.

Thirty-six cut-flower varieties, about half of them new varieties, are located near the other new flowers. About 300 different varieties have been planted in this year's vegetable trial. About half of these are brand new varieties, including 14 All-America Award winning vegetables. Four of these are 1990 award winners which will be available for the first time next year. The strawberry variety trial has been expanded and now includes 44 varieties. Extensive landscaped areas with shrubs, trees, and large flower beds provide a colorful and relaxing atmosphere for a casual stroll. Picnic facilities are available in one corner of the garden. Groups can make reservations for the picnic area through the Ricks College scheduling office. The Ricks College Research and Demonstration Garden is open to the public free of charge during daylight hours. A large parking lot is next to the garden for easy access. The entire Ricks College campus is attractively landscaped with flower beds throughout. Plant lovers will enjoy a walk through the campus.

Buy additional tools to help with repairs

The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE Some material things in life are pure addiction. You start out one day pondering the joys of this new-fangled device called a compact disc player and a few years later you just have to own one of those fancy-schmancy models that plays five discs in sequence.

And so it is with tools. After you learn how the balance of a good quality hammer feels in the hand, before you know it you're browsing the tool section of the hardware store just for fun. You're bringing home new gadgets whether you need them or not.

So, when the thrill is gone from your basic tool kit, don't go wild. Go smart. Michael DiMenna of Schumann Hardware in Baltimore suggests these additional tools:

Pipe wrench. This heavy metal tool with serrated jaws is used to turn pipe fittings or turn anything that's round. For different size jobs, you may want to buy an 8-inch wrench and a 10-inch wrench. Prices range from $8 to $20.

Combination square. Some books suggest this as a "must-have" for a basic tool kit, but you won't really need one unless you plan to do any project building. The square has a straight steel rule with a head containing a small level. The head can be slipped along the rule and locked in any position for use as a marking gauge. Look for a 1-inch wide blade and expect to pay $4 to $5.

Set of wood chisels. These long, beveled front end come in a variety of shapes and are used to make cuts in wood by chipping. Select a variety of sizes, from 1/2 to 3/4 inch and expect to pay $5 to $6 each.

Cold chisel. Also known as a flat chisel, this tool has a tapered point on a thick, hexagonal steel bar. It's used to remove bolts and rivets and for cutting and chipping brass, copper and unhardened steel. Price: about $3.

Small hacksaw. Use this fixed frame saw that holds a narrow, fine-toothed blade to cut metal or plastic. Expect to pay $4 to $10.

Plastic goggles. Whenever you are using a drill, file or a chisel or using something that could splatter such as paint thinner or stripper, you should use goggles for eye protection. Cost is about $4.

Set of "hex" key wrenches. Also known by the brand name "Allen wrench," this L-shaped, short hexagonal metal bar is used for turning screws or bolts with a hexagonal opening. They are typically used to put together ready-to-assemble furniture and on-air conditioner fan blades. The sets, ranging in size from 1/8-inch to 3/4-inch, cost $3 to $5.

Pocket plane. Planes are used to shave wood from boards and cost about $5.

Sandpaper holder. For easier sanding, you may want to use a sandpaper holder. They come in sizes compatible with the different sizes of sandpaper. Prices range from about $3.50 to $6.

Staple gun. Select a heavy duty version and you will be able to tackle any project from reupholstering a chair to tacking ceiling tiles.

Help for home repair as close as bookstore

By The Baltimore Sun

Once you have a tool kit, the next step is learning what to do with it.

Start with this source list of books and video tapes on tools and home repair:

Popular Mechanics Home How-to (Hearst Books, $29.95) provides expert advice for the do-it-yourselfer of all skill levels. The 500-page hardback covers more than 200 home improvement subjects with more than 3,000 color photos, step-by-step illustrations and tables. It's a primer on everything from standard lumber sizes to wallpapering a ceiling and painting brickwork.

The Home Hardware Handbook (Simon & Schuster, $11.95) by the editors of "Mother Earth News" gives advice on how to get the most for your money in buying everything from simple hand tools to fancy power gadgets. The 187-page paperback is a complete illustrated guide from laying out a workshop to working with screws, glue, planes, chisels, saws, sanders and finishers. It also gives specs and step-by-step advice for simple projects such as making a high chair or blanket rack.

The Complete Guide to Everything Sold in Hardware Stores (Macmillan Publishing Co., $24.95) by Tom Phillips and Steve Etlinger is the perfect guide for the do-it-yourselfer who has no idea what the "thingamajig" he needs is called. The description of each item includes other names for the product, a description, uses, use tips and buying tips. The 418-pages contain more than detailed illustrations and a complete, cross-referenced index.

The Hometime Series (Hometime, $3.98 each) provides step-by-step video instruction for a variety of home-improvement projects and a printed booklet that identifies all tools and materials.

Based on the nationally syndicated PBS program, each tape is 40 to 90 minutes long. There are 36 subjects ranging from the basic "Common Home Repairs" to "Interior Paint and Wallpaper" and a two-part tape on "How to Be Your Own General Contractor." Look for the tapes at hardware, building supply and video stores.

Hints to help control roaches, bugs in homes

By Reader's Digest

The very names of common household pests — cockroaches, silverfish, firebrats — send shivers up the spine.

They are elusive and seemingly indestructible. Since it is difficult to rid a house of a heavy infestation, it is crucial to control the stray pests and even better to keep your house so clean they never get a leg in the door.

Here is how to recognize and control roaches, silverfish and firebrats:

— Roaches are usually 5/8 to 1-inch in length. Their color ranges from yellowish to reddish brown to black.

— Wingless and slender, silverfish and firebrats have long, thread-like antennae and three "tails." Silverfish are usually silvery in color. Firebrats are a mottled gray and brown, sometimes with black lines.

— Silverfish like cool, damp environments. Firebrats prefer hot temperatures. Roaches hide in any dark place. Be alert for these insects around furnaces, hot water pipes, partitions where ducts or pipes pass through walls or floors, basement crevices, baseboards, ovens, drawers, shelves, bookcases, windows and door castings, clothes closets, cupboards, sinks, wall clocks and under shelf paper.

All three pests tend to be active at night and can go long periods without food. They feed on a broad diet of substances high in starch, protein and sugar, including paste, some fabrics, dried meat, syrup, glue, cereals, book bindings, paper and wallpaper glue. Roaches also feed on human food, garbage and soiled clothes.

The key to keeping pests away is to deny them food, water and shelter.

— Vacuum often. The insects will not thrive if they are frequently disturbed.

— Air stored clothing frequently.

— Clean bookshelves, basements, storage areas and around furnaces regularly.

— Store food in tightly closed glass or plastic containers.

— Clean up crumbs and spills immediately.

— Keep counters, floors and cabinets spotless.

— Keep sink areas dry. Wring out sponges and dish towels and keep them where they can dry quickly.

— Fix leaky plumbing.

— Clean garbage cans regularly and make sure their lids are on tight.

— Fill cracks and crevices; caulk openings around pipes, appliance connections and cabinets.

Infested areas that are out of the reach of children and pets can be treated with diazolan. Apply diazolan behind books and into cracks in the walls and flooring. Spray around baseboards, doors, windows, closets and boxes, with household insect spray which contains diazolan, propoxur, malathion or methoxychlor.

Further information can be obtained by phoning the at YFCA at 733-4384.

Free agent Larry Smith signs with Houston Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Unrestricted free agent Larry Smith, a rebounding specialist with Golden State the past nine seasons, signed a three-year contract worth $2.5 million with the Houston Rockets Tuesday. The 6-foot-8 Smith, Golden State's first-round pick in 1980, averaged 5.7 points and 8.2 rebounds per game last season and started 76 games for the Warriors. Smith has been one of Houston's primary targets in obtaining a strong rebounder during the off season. Since he was an unrestricted free agent, the Rockets do not have to compensate Golden State for Smith.

LeMond surrenders the lead in Tour de France stage

SUPERBAGNERES, France (AP) — American Greg LeMond lost the yellow leader's jersey at the Tour de France Tuesday as France's Laurent Fignon, a two-time winner, moved into the overall lead. LeMond failed to stick close enough to the leaders in a ride up and down four mountains in the Pyrenees. The cyclist ended up more than 5,800 feet above sea-level.

Jackson leads AL to All-Star win

First consecutive American League wins since 1958

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Bo knows, and so do the American League goes. Bo Jackson, the brightest of baseball's new breed, made winners of the AL and believers of everybody else Tuesday night. He did it all and when he was done, the Americans won 6-3 and had consecutive All-Star Game victories for the first time since 1958. It was Bo's show. He led off with a monstrous home run. He stole a base, and took two others. He drove in two runs, scored twice, saved two more with a running catch and was named the game's most valuable player. On the night when Jackson's multi-sport Nike commercial debuted on national television, Bo showed he knows baseball best of all.

He dominated a game that was supposed to be ruled by the pitchers at twilight. Instead, in the twilight zone, Jackson joined Willie Mays as the only players to homer and steal in the same All-Star Game.

Kansas City's Bo Jackson watches his 1st-inning homer sail 448 feet over centerfield fence at Angel Stadium during 60th All-Star Game.

Boggs hit consecutive home runs in the bottom of the first inning off Rick Reuschel. Jackson became the fifth player to lead off an All-Star Game with a home run and the ninth to homer in his first All-Star appearance. "He's a sinkerball pitcher and I think he left a sinker out over the plate a little bit, and I was able to golf swing and get a piece of it," Jackson said. "A nice pitch, too. Jackson's homer traveled an estimated 448 feet, one of the longest ever hit to dead center field at Anaheim Stadium. "I thought I made a good pitch. He just went down and got it," Reuschel said. "I heard about his power and strength and I saw it firsthand tonight. "Jackson drew in the tiebreaking run in the second, singled in the fourth and left after the sixth. By then, Nolan Ryan was on the way to being the winning pitcher and AL narrowed its All-Star gap to 37-22-1. Ryan, at 42 the second-oldest pitcher in All-Star history and the oldest to win a game, pitched two scoreless innings in relief of starter Dave Stewart, who gave up two runs in the first. Ryan allowed one hit and, even without his best fastball, struck out three. "To be honest with you, that first inning was just the opposite of what I was expecting. And I thought, 'Hmmm, I don't know if I want to go out there.' Evidently, they're not having any problem with the twilight," he said. Atlanta's John Smoltz, the youngest pitcher in the game, was the loser. The AL led 5-2 after three innings. The NL tried to rally in the eighth when Von Hayes hit an RBI single, but Doug Jones retired Tim Lincecum on a fly ball with two runners on base and ended the inning. Jones earned the save when he finished the game on a double play he started. The victory was the third in four All-Star games for the American League after losing 20 of 21. It was the first loss for NL manager Tommy Lasorda in four appearances.

The NL, true to tradition, came out running. Ozzie Smith led off with a single and was caught stealing, and Tony Gwynn walked. Gwynn was on the move as Will Clark grounded out, but major league RBI leader Kevin Mitchell and Edward Johnson hit RBIs singles. Jackson struck to the rescue, gliding over from left field to catch Pedro Guerrero's hard liner with runners of second and third and to end the inning. Then, it was Jackson's turn. He took the first pitch for a ball and sent the next one to tarpaulin way beyond the center-field fence. Boggs, just 2-for-9 in previous All-Star games, homered on a 3-2 pitch to center — his won't just 396 feet.

A blink of an eye was all it took for the AL to get back in the game after the NL took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Jackson led off the AL first by hitting a 1-1 pitch from Rick Reuschel onto a tarpaulin behind the center field fence, an estimated 448 feet. Wade Boggs followed that with another homer and as quick as that the game was tied. In fact, the damage in the NL half of the first could have been worse if not for a fine running catch by Jackson with two out and two on to end the inning. And that wasn't the only time his speed came into play. In the second inning, he hit what appeared to be a sure doubleplay grounder to short that would have ended the inning and stranded the runner on third. But he simply outran the ball and was safe at first as the run scored. Then, to further make his point home, he stole second and went to third on an overthrow by the catcher. And in the fourth inning he showed he could go the other way with a pitch when he singled to right. But while fans and foe alike were amazed with his performance, Jackson remained focused on his job. He said the thought of winning the MVP never entered his mind, "but after I hit that first ball and came back to the dugout, all my teammates were telling me, 'you've got this thing wrapped up.' Wade goes deep, and everybody was saying he's got it wrapped up."

Bo Jackson hates to be compared to Willie Mays

By BERNIE WILSON
The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — No disrespect intended, but Bo Jackson doesn't want to be called the next Willie Mays. Yes, he homered to lead off the American League first inning in Tuesday night's All-Star Game, and Mays was one of only four others to ever do that. And yes, he had a stolen base to go with his homer, and only Mays before him ever did that in the All-Star Game. But Jackson, MVP of the AL's 6-3 victory, doesn't want to think about history. "It'll be something special when I can sit back and tell the story to my grand kids," he said. "But I hate to be compared to players of the past because they did their thing then and I do my thing now. If you start listening to that you're the next Willie Mays or Babe Ruth that will screw you up real fast. You'll be out of the game in the blink of an eye."

11:30 a.m. today in the Twin Falls High School gym, following the consolation game between the South and North at 10 a.m. Three players from the state championship team and two from each of the other three teams will be selected to play on the state BCI team, which will take part in the international BCI tournament in Tempe, Ariz., later this month. Three players other will be chosen at large. In the evening's first semifinal match Tuesday, the North tried something new by playing a delay game. The delay worked for the first half as the North led 35-34 going into the half. The second half was a different story. The East, who was led by Bill Goughly of Preaton, outscored the North 19-8 to open the third period. From that point on it was all-East as it pulled away to their final margin of 90-74.

Authorities investigate prep sports gambling operation

The Associated Press

FLORENCE, Ala. — A north Alabama gambling operation apparently was so determined to beat the point spread that high school coaches and others involved in prep sports events altered game clocks and yardsticks to fix scores, authorities say. The possibility of game-fixing at the high school level was raised as investigators sorted through evidence Tuesday following a search of 11 homes and businesses, including the houses of two former high school coaches and a police investigator. The investigator, Muscle Shoals Police Lt. Tom Berryman, was placed on administrative leave for 30 days Tuesday by Police Commissioner John Conn. There were no immediate arrests, and Florence Police Chief Rick Thompson said no current athletes were involved in the searches that took place Monday night in seven north Alabama cities. Cash, property and gambling records were confiscated. The home of a former Colbert County High School football player, Carl Matthew Keenum, was searched, and Thompson said there are allegations that prep games were fixed and that coaches were involved. "Nothing is more disheartening and discouraging... as the allegations brought forth during this investigation that high school coaches and officials are manipulating the outcome of high school sporting events to cover the point spread given by odds makers," Thompson said. "In turn, these so-called coaches and officials have been tampering with the lives and future careers of our high school athletes," he said.

Jean Smith takes early lead in State Women's Amateur

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — After the opening day of the 1989 Idaho State Women's Amateur Golf Tournament Tuesday, only former champion Jean Smith of Boise seemed in a position to win. Playing the straight and uncomplicated Plantation Country Club course, Smith was able to manage par and that was worth a three-stroke lead over Kristen Fenwick of Boise and five on former champion Sue Kushlan of Caldwell. The remainder of the 20-woman championship flight stretched out after that. The day probably was best summed up by former champion Bev Mullins of Boise, who said "no one played well in our group. No one played well in the group ahead of us. For some reason, it just didn't seem like anyone was able to play today and it's hard to understand because the course wasn't playing that tough." Although she was even par, Smith had to admit that any kind of putting could have given her a major lead with two days left to play. But she pointed out that putting had been a problem for just about everyone except recent Capital High School graduate Ginger Lowe. "If everyone had putted well, it would have been a very close race. It was just one of those days," Smith said. Among those having their problems for no apparent reason — defending champion Virginia Udnhjem of Twin Falls, who carded a nine-over-par 81. Smith played in a winners foursome that included three-time winners Kushlan and Karen Brown Darrington of Boise. Smith began making the separation among the first hole as her birdie gave her leads on Kushlan and Lowe. Darrington's bogey on the second hole sent Smith into the lead and she stayed there all day. While her putter was balky, it seemed that Smith's driving was what kept her out of trouble and in the lead. After four or five holes, she began making some great iron approach shots, but that putter simply wouldn't cooperate and she lipped-out five birdies. Probably her longest putt of the day was a five-to-six footer. Lowe, who consistently outhit the favorites off the tee, had a remarkable score of 78 which included three three-putts and out of bounds and four sixes on her card. But she also had four birdies and made four putts of 10 to 15 feet for pars and birdies. Darrington, a former Twin Falls resident who won this tournament the first time she played in its 10 years ago in Burley, said that while she wasn't happy with her game, her real disappointment didn't come until a long downhill putt on the final green stopped a couple of inches short, dead in the cup. "I just wish I had made that last putt to stay within five," she said. "There is a definite difference between five and six and if I can shoot a decent score tomorrow to get back within four or five, I feel I may have a chance because that last day is definitely a different ballgame." "But Jean is playing very well right now, not so much from a scoring standpoint but just her ability to grind out pars," she added. "Picking up six strokes on her probably isn't impossible, but it's going to be difficult. But it's like my college coach told me, 'You never win a tournament on the first day, but you sure can lose one.'" Smith felt ambivalence over her score, noting the little three-, four- and five-foot putts that wouldn't get her from having a 67 or 68. "I felt good hitting the ball with my driver and with my putter," she said. "But for some reason, after a couple of shots it just didn't track. It was the feeling and it wasn't let go of the handle with my left hand. Laid that on two iron shots and all four of those short putts." "But another funny thing is I was nervous talking off and nervous coming in," she continued. "It's not unusual for me to be nervous on the first tee, but generally I

Burley reveals in its multi-sport facility - there's even fishing

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Completion of a long-term project has made Burley the envy of all for its ultra modern multi-sport facility.

The brand new double four-plex softball-baseball complex, adjacent to the Burley Municipal Golf Course, surrounds a playground area to entertain the younger set while Mom and Dad play softball and even boasts a fishing pond, stocked regularly by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

"I think, and I've traveled all over the state looking at them, that it's the finest facility in the state," says Burley Recreation Director Ron Ploger. "That might sound a little like bragging, but I don't think there's any better in Idaho."

Funded by a $225,000 land and large parking lot... the project is a dream come true for Ploger. "When I came here, a little over six years ago, the City of Burley didn't have facilities to accommodate the number of players in the various leagues," he explained. "We talked to the city council about a plan. They then began budgeting for the project and we started looking for land."

Until this season the men and women of the Mini-Cassia Softball Association split games between Rupert's Neptune Park and two fields at Burley High School while little league baseballers battled on even less desirable playing surfaces on junior high property.

"A temporary, makeshift product that probably stood for a couple of decades," added Ploger. "This was a six-year project. We're still putting the finishing touches on the children's play area and the fish pond. But we have grass-infields versus dirt. It keeps the dust down, it's cooler and there's less maintenance required and our backstops are rounded. A lot different than you've ever seen."

As might be expected, the new addition is beginning to spark a revitalized interest in the game. "Our league had been growing right along," says Bill Toner of the Mini-Cassia Men's Softball Association. "We're down a couple of teams from last year, but even playing some at (Rupert's) Big Valley; it wasn't big enough. The city's been after a new complex and, with a good new facility, we should pick back up." The women's leagues were dying too," adds Ploger. "But the better facilities are already beginning to turn that around." With a quartet of diamonds now serving more than 700 little leaguers and an equal number of fields available for softball, the Burley facility sees action league action Monday through Friday and demand is expected to increase considerably on weekends by tourney time. "They've had only one tournament here so far," Ploger said. "The Coors Men's Tournament to aid the cancer society and they had to turn away about five teams. Comments I got from out-of-area participants indicated that they felt these were really great fields. We're looking at tournaments at the end of the season really mushrooming the use." Even on a local basis usage is anything but light according to the recreation director. "About the only thing I didn't anticipate was the tremendous amount of use," he says. "I drove by one night early in the year. There were eight games going on and kids on the playground. I didn't know that many people lived in Burley."

Mini-Cassia takes it all in Cody championship

The Times-News

Legion baseball

CODY, Wyo. — The Mini-Cassia Sage reached out of a 6-14 season here last weekend to win five straight games and the championship of the Cody, Wyo. Invitational American Legion baseball round-up.

The Sage rallied for four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning in Sunday's championship game to beat White Bear Lake, Minn., 10-9, for the title.

Minico had gotten into the final with an 8-5 win over Sheridan, Wyo., earlier Sunday. On Saturday, the Sage outlasted Casper, Wyo., 11-8 and topped Green Mountain, Colo., 13-0. On Friday, they beat host Cody, 10-6.

In Sunday's title game, Mike Price singled home Dan Poulton with the game-winning run. Minico went into the seventh trailing 9-6, but got two runners aboard on walks for Poulton, who drove in John Curuchet. Another walk and singles by Brett Horner and Price settled the issue.

Price and Kent Schow both went 2-for-4 in that game, each with two RBIs.

The Sage, now 11-14-1, will take on Grand Junction, Colo., in a non-league (winning Thursday afternoon at 5 p.m. at Harmon Park in Twin Falls.

Yakima 8, Twin Falls 5

CARSON CITY, Nev. — The Twin Falls Coyotes of the American Legion baseball team suffered its fourth straight loss at the Capital Classic tournament here Monday, losing to Yakima, Wash., 8-5.

Twin Falls fell behind 4-0 in the first inning, but twice closed the deficit to two runs. Dan Molyneux took the loss after failing to get out of the first inning. Mike Brady
