$100 million Gem surplus possible in 1990

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Buoyed by a booming economy, Idaho's budget surplus could top $100 million by next year, state officials predicted Tuesday.

It's too soon to talk tax rebates and less than a month since Idaho closed the books on its 1989 fiscal budget, lawmakers and officials insist. But Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, a vice chairman of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, said rebates could be an option if tax revenues stay healthy.

A special legislative session could center on the 1989 surplus. Gov. Cecil Andrus has scheduled a meeting Friday with Idaho legislative leaders to discuss whether lawmakers should meet in the fall.

Idaho ended its 1989 fiscal year on July 1 more than $70 million in the black despite earlier predictions last year that the state was floundering in red ink.

"We certainly missed our projections for 1989," Bruce Balderston, Idaho's legislative auditor, said.

Only someone reading a Ouija board or crystal ball would dare to talk specific numbers for fiscal year 1990, Balderston said. But, he added, there is almost certainly going to be more surplus money in 1990 than

'We certainly missed our projections for 1989.'
Bruce Balderston,

originally anticipated.

Even without a crystal ball, Neibaur said it's not hard to figure out that a $100 million surplus for fiscal year 1990 is not beyond possibility if the state's economy continues to thrive.

"Nobody seems to know why we have a surplus," Neibaur said, adding that it could be due to the building boom or because last year turned out to be a good one for agriculture.

— Still, Neibaur advocates a conservative approach to state spending. "If some kind of recession comes up, it could drop off quickly," he warned.

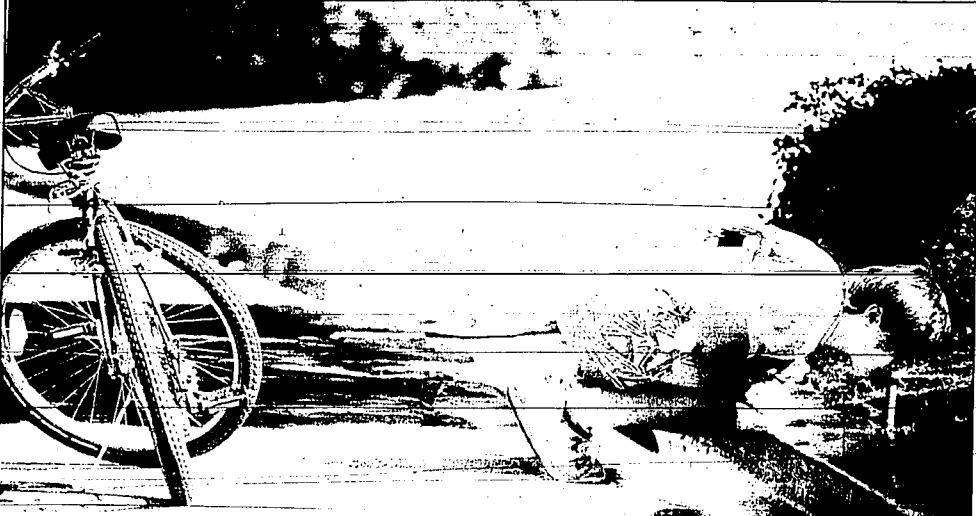

The governor's office hasn't looked ahead to a 1990 surplus — almost anything could happen between now and then, said Marc Johnson, Andrus' secretary.

Andrus is not likely to take on major fiscal policy questions during a special session, Johnson said. "The governor has consistently said he's not in favor of a special session just to spend the surplus."

Andrus does favor a special session to consider using a portion of the state's surplus income to pay off a $5 million bond that will finance construction of new buildings at Boise State University. If the bonds were paid by October, Johnson said Idaho would save $8½ million in interest over the 29-year life of the bonds.

It's possible that other issues, including state restrictions on abortion, will be discussed during Friday's meeting and those issues could be added to a special session agenda, he said.

Heat relief
With the mercury climbing into the 90s and little relief in sight, nothing refreshes better than a long drink of water — even if it must come from a sprinkler. Jared Holms, 14, of Twin Falls takes a break from riding his bicycle for some refreshment on Tuesday afternoon at the College of Southern Idaho campus. More hot weather is forecast for the Magic Valley. For details, see Page A2.

Lean times confronting Independent Meat

By MARTA CLEVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - As many as 60 workers at Independent Meat Co. in Twin Falls could be laid off in the next several months if the company is forced to cut back operations, a company official said Tuesday.

"There is a strong likelihood of some layoffs," said Pat Florence, Independent's president.

Eight years after beginning an expansion from local to regional marketing, the company is overextended, Florence said. Its "earnings flow" cannot cover the enlarged expenses of raw materials, inventory and distribution, and its lender has refused further financing, he said.

"We have been unable to satisfactorily capitalize our expanded operations into our West Coast markets," Florence said.

Florence and other company officials met with employees and union representatives Monday night. Federal

"To protect our employees, we have to provide the information ahead of time," Florence said.

Employees were given the worst-case scenario: Independent may cut back delivery to its recent expansion markets in Alaska, western Washington, western Oregon and part of California.

"The meeting laid out the entire slate of possibilities," said George Fleetwood, a worker and plant representative of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union. He said further comment at this time would be inappropriate.

If a full retreat is necessary, up to 75 people in eight states could be laid off, 50 to 60 of them in Twin Falls, Florence said.

"Our long-term goal was to grow into those markets. Certainly it's a setback for us if we roll back to these contingency plans," he said.

The company had planned either to finance the expansion itself or to secure bank loans. But inadequate cash flow ruled out the first option, and Independent's bank, West One, refused.

Soviet coal miners back in pits; Estonians strike

The Baltimore Sun

MOSCOW — As striking Soviet coal miners gradually returned to work Tuesday, tens of thousands of Russian shipyard and factory workers in the Baltic republic of Estonia walked off the job.

They were protesting laws they claim discriminate against non-Estonians and appeals for secession from the Soviet Union.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev has appealed repeatedly to the miners to go back to work, saying that he supported most of their demands but that a long strike would cripple the economy. Both Monday and Tuesday, Prime Minister Nikolai I. Ryzhkov met with delegations of striking miners.

Fearful of a paralyzing chain of strikes, the Supreme Soviet Tuesday adopted an "Appeal to the Soviet

People" that promised radical economic reform but asked for "understanding, support, organized behavior and good deeds at this difficult period in Soviet history."

The strike in Tallinn, the capital of Estonia, is the local Russian population's most extreme response to date to the ethnic Estonians' efforts to boost Estonian language and to move the republic toward independence.

Though estimates of the size of the strike varied according to the observer's political views, the strike potentially could do serious harm to the Soviet economy, because the factories involved are very large.

Moreover, the strike could provoke similar job actions by the Russian minority in the neighboring Baltic republics of Latvia and Lithuania, where the population is similarly polarized along ethnic lines.

Drug trials may have caused 3,000 deaths

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Up to 3,000 patients may have died prematurely before a federal drug review process was approved last year, according to a report by a Senate committee.

The report, prepared by the Senate subcommittee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, said that the FDA's current drug approval process is "grossly inefficient" and that "many lives were lost in the interim."

The committee said that "the drug industry has been able to get drugs on the market in as little as 18 months, whereas the FDA's current process takes 18 months or more."

The report also said that "the FDA's current process is so slow that many drugs have been withdrawn from the market before they have had a chance to be marketed."

The committee recommended that the FDA create a "fast-track" process for drugs that are "innovative and have the potential to improve the health of the Nation."

The report also called for "greater transparency and accountability in the FDA's drug review process."

INEL may gain $60 million to aid cleanup

The Times-News and combined wire services

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives has voted an extra $300 million for nuclear waste cleanup at Department of Energy sites, which means an extra $60 million for work at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, said the action "signals a new era in our efforts to solve this national nuclear waste crisis."

The House voted 400-22 Tuesday to add an extra $300 million for nuclear waste cleanup to the $401 million requested by the Bush administration. The spending bill now goes to the Senate.

The action "clearly advances nuclear waste cleanup at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory," which has been a goal of Gov. Cecil Andrus, said an aide to the governor.

Despite the vote, Energy Department officials are counting no chickens. Penny Phelps, the department's congressional liaison, said officials have no specific plans for the additional money, and she noted that the dollar figures still are subject to change.

"We are still in the congressional funding process," she said. "It still has to go through the Senate and then to conference."

During floor debate on the bill, Stallings argued that it is essential that more money be spent on environmental restoration and waste cleanup.

"An effective waste management plan is necessary to restore public confidence, protect the environment and reduce health risks," he said.

Stallings said the House vote adds $60 million for cleanup at INEL to the $66.5 million earmarked under the Bush budget.

Nuclear waste has been stored at INEL for decades, with some of it buried and other material stored above ground. Last year, Andrus notified the Department of Defense that the state would not accept any more nuclear waste from defense factories because of a lack of progress toward opening a permanent nuclear waste repository in New Mexico.

Idaho contestant is new Miss Teen

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — A tearful Miss Idaho, Brandi Sherwood, was crowned Miss Teen USA 1989 on Tuesday in a pageant televised in two dozen countries.

Sherwood, 18, of Idaho Falls, was chosen from among 61 contestants representing each state and the District of Columbia.

She is the daughter of Don and Shirley Sherwood, Idaho Falls, and the niece of Ray Sherwood, Twin Falls.

Ray Sherwood said he and his family watched anxiously as Brandi was crowned.

"It was really thrilling," he said.

The seventh annual show was held at the National Orange Show grounds in this city 50 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

Sherwood was named Miss Idaho National Teenager in 1986. She is a 1988 graduate of Idaho Falls High School and a former cheerleader.

She received a crown and a bouquet of flowers on stage from her predecessor, Mindy Duncan, 17, of Newberg, Ore., pageant officials said.

Sherwood wins nearly $150,000 in cash and prizes, including a car, jewelry, one-year scholarship and three-week European "fashion study tour." Various sponsors supplied the prizes.

The runner-up was Miss Teen Kentucky, Kristi Dawn Hicks, 17, of Bardonia, Ky.

Judge drops 2 Pointdexer charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday ordered permanent dismissal of theft and wire fraud charges in the Iran-Contra criminal case against former national security adviser John Pointdexer.

In the same ruling, U.S. District Judge Harold Greene spelled out the procedure prosecutors could use to narrow a broad conspiracy charge against Pointdexer, who faces trial later this year in the scandal.

Greene said the theft and wire fraud charges against Pointdexer could not be reinstated later. He said it would be "unfair" to Pointdexer and would constitute "harassment" to subject him to that possibility.

Senate panel passes drought bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee on Tuesday narrowly approved $955 million in disaster relief for weather-damaged crops, but Republicans say the scaled-back aid package still costs too much.

The legislation, which passed 10-9 along party lines, costs at least $300 million less than the House version but is $70 million more than President Bush wants to spend. It covers more than 500 crops.

"Nobody gets everything they want," said the committee chairman, Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "It (the bill) protects the interests of farmers and it protects the interests of taxpayers."

$10 million bail set for Khashoggi

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi financier Adnan Khashoggi can be released on $10 million bail if he wears an electronic bracelet while he awaits trial on charges he helped Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos allegedly plunder the Philippines, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

Khashoggi, 53, once among the world's wealthiest men, has been jailed since he was extradited from Switzerland last Wednesday.

"The court recognizes that no precautions, including pretrial detention, ever conclusively guarantee a defendant's presence at trial," wrote U.S. District Judge John Keenan in his ruling. But, the judge said, the court believed the "substantial bail" and the restrictions of his freedom would assure that Khashoggi would appear at trial.

Orange juice scam lands 3 in court

CHICAGO (AP) — Two former owners and a top executive of a now-defunct orange juice company were charged Tuesday with using best sugar, waste water and other substitutes in products labeled "100 percent pure unassweetened orange juice."

The federal grand jury indictment was announced by U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas. It cites 18 instances between 1978 and 1985 in which beet sugar, corn sugar, monosodium glutamate, grapefruit solids and other substitutes were used in the orange juice concentrate in violation of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

The complaint said those substitutes accounted for 15 percent to 40 percent of the orange-juice concentrate sold by the former company, known as Bodine's Inc.

Pierce granted delay in return for HUD probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel investigating the Department of Housing and Urban Development said Tuesday it has agreed to postpone a second appearance by HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce until mid-September.

Pierce, who was scheduled to testify next week, requested the extension, saying he needed more time to prepare for the hearing, said Rep. Thomas Lantos, D-Calif., chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on employment and housing.

Lantos, in a letter to Pierce, said he agreed to the delay "based on your apparent difficulty in retaining counsel to represent you at the subcommittee hearing."

Pierce had been scheduled to face questions Aug. 3 on his role in HUD approval of more than $15 million in grants and subsidies for a North Carolina power plant that was supported by a former law partner of Pierce.

Cleanup

Andrus also said the federal government has promised for years to accelerate cleanup of stored waste at INEL, but has not kept those promises.

Stallings was one of several lawmakers who defended the proposal on the House floor. He argued that the increase was necessary to help restore public confidence in the federal government's determination to repair the environment around the nation's nuclear weapons plants.

"The people of this country are crying out for help and are looking to the Congress for leadership and action to clean up this nuclear waste," he added.

"Many Idahoans have told me that nuclear waste cleanup should be a top priority and should not take a back seat to new production facilities," Stallings told House members.

He said he shares their concern and believes that the country no longer can afford to put nuclear weapon production ahead of safety needs and environmental cleanup.

In a letter sent to other House members soliciting support for the additional funding, Stallings and nine other senators congressional noted a DOE estimate that it will cost at least $82 billion to meet all environmental, safety and health needs of the nuclear weapons complex.

"The increase we are requesting is just a down payment, but places the cleanup budget on the upward path necessary for long-term resolution of this national problem," Stallings and the others said.

First District Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, voted for the cleanup proposal.

Explosions set B-52 afire, kill 1, injure 11

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A series of explosions ignited a B-52 bomber as civilian ground crews were fueling the aircraft for ground tests at Kelly Air Force Base, a spokesman said Tuesday.

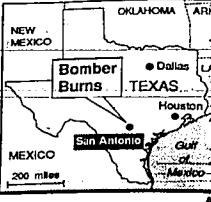

One person was killed and 11 others were injured in the accident Monday night. Four remained hospitalized.

A team of Air Force investigators was en route to Kelly. Alfred G. Hansen, commander of Air Force Logistics Command at Wright-Patterson at Dayton, Ohio, will head the investigation board, said Kelly spokesman Frank Weatherly.

He said a formal finding was not expected for several months. Lt. Col. Ed Cooke said the B-52, built in 1958, was nearly finished with a mechanical overhaul. There were no weapons on board the aircraft because it was being serviced.

"Some of the injured workers were inside the aircraft; some were outside," Weatherly said.

Civilian employee Jesus Pedraza; 38, was killed, said First Lt. Dave Ebner, Kelly spokesman. Another worker, Herman Morris, was in serious condition Tuesday at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio where he was being treated for burns, said Ray Perry, hospital spokesman.

Three other injured workers remained hospitalized Tuesday at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center. Weatherly said the other seven injured workers were treated and released overnight from two hospitals.

The bomber, which was based at Eaker Air Force Base in Blytheville, Ark., had been parked outside Kelly's Building 375, a mile-long airport hangar used for repairs, Weatherly said.

The bomber was scheduled to be shipped to Barksdale Air Force Base, in Bossier City, La., Friday, after maintenance was completed. But Cooke said the B-52 was heavily damaged.

"The company is exploring financing with other area banks, he said.

Selling all or part of the company is another financing mechanism being considered. Independent is talking to several meat-packing firms, but no sale is imminent, Florence said.

"We're not the only meat packer who recognizes the sales potential in the Northwest," he said.

One notable exception to the possible expansion withdrawal is the marketing of the company's certified Angus beef franks. Sales on that relatively new product are brisk. Independent Meat will continue marketing it nationwide, he said.

Independent Meat began implementing its expansion strategy in 1981 when its officers decided a regional rather than local approach to marketing would be the best hedge against a diminishing beef industry. Under the product name Falls Brand, the company has shifted its focus to specialty products.

The company's established service areas — Idaho, northern Nevada and Utah, eastern Washington and Oregon, and western Montana and Wyoming — won't be affected, he said.

Florence said more definite information about any cutbacks and layoffs will be available in the next three to four weeks.

Miss

Third runnerup was Miss Teen Texas, Kristi Wright, 16, Del Rio, Texas.

Fourth runnerup was Miss Teen North Dakota, Heidi Jo Lantseh, 17, of Fargo, N.D.

The show was carried on CBS with talk show host Wil Shriner and Marcia Strassman, who appeared in the movie "Honey, I Shrank the Kids," as hosts.

The contestants, ages 15 to 18, were judged on the basis of two days of interviews, an evening gown competition and a swimsuit contest, said Mary Chervenak, a pageant spokeswoman.

Today, Sherwood and 1989 Miss Universe Angela Visar of Rotterdam, Holland, were to be presented gold medals and certificates of commendation from Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

Another honoree, Miss USA 1989 Gretchen Polhemus, was not scheduled to attend the ceremony.

Miss Universe and Miss USA live in Los Angeles for the year of their reigns, while Miss Teen USA shares a Los Angeles apartment with them when she is in town, Chervenak said.

Deaths

Continued from Page A1 the number of premature deaths by facing in national heart attack death rate statistics and the prescription record for the two drugs.

"Fifteen hundred to 2,000 died, if all the assumptions are appropriate" in the last 12 months of the trials, he said.

"Physicians' Weekly," which reported on the survey, called the drug trials a "sudden-death debacle." The magazine said that "before a trial found that two drugs to block sudden death actually triggered it, thousands may have died prematurely."

Morganroth and other cardiologists have said they were shocked and surprised when the CAST studies determined that the drugs may actually have caused more, not less, deaths among a certain class of patients.

Patients in the CAST studies, which were initiated by the National Institutes of Health, had all suffered a type of heart attack and then experienced very mild-irregular-ventricular heart beats. These arrhythmias caused no noticeable problems to the patient and were thus called asymptomatic.

Morganroth said it was known that the sudden death rate among such patients was 1.5 to 2 times greater than among heart attack patients who had no such arrhythmias.

"CAST's objective was to take people with these arrhythmias, give half of them sugar pills and half a drug that suppresses (the irregular heartbeats)," he said.

Andrus counts on federal energy aid

BOISE (AP) — Three federal grants will aid Idaho's energy conservation efforts, Gov. Cecil Andrus says. A $67,500 grant will aid the state energy conservation program, and a $43,900 grant will provide funds for the Energy Extension Service, Andrus said Tuesday.

In addition, $60,226 has been approved for conservation programs administered by the Department of Water Resources. It comes from penalties assessed oil companies for overcharges. The programs make available energy conservation loans for residential, agricultural, nonprofit governmental and commercial purposes. Funds also are used for general education and outreach programs to increase awareness of energy conservation needs.

Museum backers negotiate for site

BOISE (AP) — Backers of a proposed Idaho mining museum have begun negotiating for a site, as Boise's seven existing museums begin a promotional campaign.

"If this were added, it would be the start of a critical mass of museums," architect, Ernie Lombard, one of the directors of the Idaho Museum of Mining and Geology Foundation, said Monday.

"Dad could go to the mining museum, the kids would go to the zoo or the Discovery Center—while Mom—is at the art museum; and then they're all happy."

The newly formed Boise Museum Association, which includes the mining museum foundation, intends to lure tourists into Boise by promoting the city as a place to stop and enjoy Western culture. The group is working to have signs posted on Interstate 84 notifying motorists of Boise's museums and giving directions.

Group wants superintendent ousted

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A group calling itself Concerned Citizens for School Board and Superintendent Action has called for the Coeur d'Alene School Board to fire Superintendent Merlin Ludwig.

Reading from a prepared statement at Monday's board meeting, Concerned Citizens President Barbara Beattie said Ludwig's performance during his first year as superintendent has been "disastrous."

"We believe Merlin Ludwig deserves to be immediately released from his contract for non-performance of his duties," Ms. Beattie said. "We urge you, on behalf of this community to take this action."

She cited the board's recent decision to overturn Ludwig's plan to end double shifts and to reverse the demotions of two district administrators as proof that Ludwig failed to provide the board with professional advice.

UI president has high expectations

MOSCOW (AP) — University of Idaho's brand new president says she has the energy needed to take the land grant college into its second century of service.

Faculty and students, meanwhile, say she must be able to convince all the factions to pull in tandem for the college.

"I won't live 100 years," said Elisabeth Zinser, referring to the school's centennial as she spoke to a group of 100 people on Monday, her first day at work. "But I promise you I'll set out on the right foot as we enter the next century."

Zinser, 49, is the school's 14th president, but its first female administrator. She is frequently described as an innovative, energetic person who is married to her work and, among other things, doesn't use a desk.

"I think everybody out there has high expectations of me," Zinser said. "I also have high expectations of them."

90,000th license plate brings prizes

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — At a ceremony here, Cathie Gundie received gifts and thanks from officials for buying the 90,000th set of centennial license plates.

"This is our way of thanking Ms. Gundie for supporting state and local centennial efforts by buying centennial license plates," said Harry Magnuson, chairman of the Idaho Centennial Commission, on Tuesday.

She received a centennial sweatshirt, special centennial license plate frames, a dinner and an expense-paid trip for two to Boise for next year's Statehood Day celebration on July 3, 1990.

Idaho's constitutional convention not a high point in state history

BOISE (AP) — Actions of the state constitutional convention 100 years ago Tuesday don't rank as a high point in state history, says Attorney General Jim Jones.

One hundred years ago, delegates to the Idaho Constitutional Convention voted to ban Mormons from voting or holding public office. And reflecting prejudices of the day, they tried hard to limit the vote to nonminority males of some substance.

Jones has been researching proceedings of the constitutional convention, and has prepared daily accounts of the meeting under the fictional byline, "Sen T. Narian, Territorial Reporter."

For good measure, on July 25, 1889, the delegates three times refused to let women vote or hold major office, decided that foreign-born Orientals also should not vote as well as disenfranchised Indians who had not severed tribal relations. The account of that day's activities appeared Tuesday on The Times-News' editorial page.

The franchise issue was no small matter, because an early Idaho census showed that of the 6,000-odd people engaged in mining, more than 3,300 were Orientals.

Some delegates wanted to go a step further, limiting voting only to men who had paid a road or poll tax within the last two years. But wiser heads prevailed, pointing out that elderly people did not have to pay the tax, so the move would in effect keep older people from voting.

Delegates to the convention were working on the Idaho Constitution, which was approved by voters in November and led to Idaho being admitted as the 43rd state on July 3, 1890. Idaho is in a year-long observance of its centennial.

Delegates were concerned that unless strong limits were placed in the Constitution, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) would gain control in the state, as it did in neighboring Utah.

A compromise was reached and adopted, but was repented later in the day when some delegates contended it would give the Legislature too much control over who could vote — which might lead some lawmakers to go after such "secret societies" as Masons, Odd Fellows and even the Catholic Church.

Eventually, a provision disenfranchising Mormons was adopted, with just two dissenting votes. One of those opposing, P.J. Peffley of Ada County, warned that, "Political and religious persecution are supposed to have died at the termination of the revolution; but it appears that Idaho is again an exception."

Just six years after statehood, the Constitution was amended to allow women the right to vote.

It took until 1950 to help disenfranchised Indians. The Constitution was amended then to allow Indians to vote, except those "who have not adopted the habits of civilization."

In 1962, Orientals and Mongolians not born in this country were allowed to vote if they met other qualifications.

The anti-Mormon provision was ignored for years. But it wasn't until 1982 that Idahoans voted to amend the Constitution and formally take it out.

And even then, in an era vastly more religiously tolerant than 1889, 100,113 people voted against removing the provision (191,780 voted in favor).

Man claims legal system conspired against him

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A day after suing a state Supreme Court judge and other members of the legal system for $7.5 million in damages, a former Internal Revenue Service employee took his claim of being victimized by a judicial conspiracy to the public.

"The Idaho court system has been used to carry out reprisals against me personally," Paul Des Fosses said during a Tuesday news conference to draw attention to his case.

The session with reporters in Idaho Falls, he said, was set up to protect former IRS agents from abuse and "inform the public how reprisals have been carried out against me the past four years."

The lawsuit, filed Monday with federal court officials in Pocatello, claims the Idaho legal system has unjustly denied Des Fosses his civil service disability annuity and subjected him to other adverse action in retaliation for his attempt to blow the whistle on the leak of federal tax information about former Republican Rep. George Hansen during Hansen's 1976 re-election campaign.

It names 10 defendants including retiring Idaho Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley, who was treasurer of the Stan Kross Election Committee during that 1976 Idaho 2nd Congressional District race. Repeated attempts to reach Huntley were unsuccessful.

Little known in slayings

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The victims of a weekend slaying were both women, shot to death in separate bedrooms, Bonneville County Sheriff Richard Ackerman said Tuesday.

Two bodies were found Monday but Ackerman released few details until a news conference on Tuesday. He identified the victims as Reeda J. Roundy, 49, Idaho Falls, and Betty Lou Gray, 47, Jackson, Wyo.

The sheriff said he had no indication of a motive, and no murder weapon was found.

Investigators scoured the area for evidence during the day Monday even draining nearby irrigation ditches. But the sheriff said nothing was found.

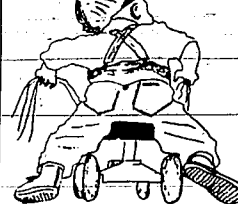

The bodies were found about 7 a.m. Monday in a house two miles east of Idaho Falls when a co-worker of Roundy arrived to take her to the airport, where she and the man were to leave on a business trip.

He said the victims were in separate rooms, and each was in nightclothes, with no sign of struggles.

Stallings takes NRCC gripe to Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, wants some kinder and gentler news releases from the National Republican Congressional Committee and is taking his case to President Bush.

"Stallings is angry over a recent NRCC release that attacked Democrats for voting against an amendment requiring drug testing in the State Department and Agency for International Development."

"Stallings said he voted against the amendment at the urging of the State Department and the agency."

The offices indicated that a drug-testing program already was in place and congressional action would amount to costly duplication.

"That's the reason why I voted the way I did," Stallings said. "And now the NRCC is sending out nasty news releases saying we're soft on drugs." Stallings said as of Monday afternoon, about 300 members have signed a letter he drafted to President Bush. Stallings said he hoped to have 75 to 100 signatures before sending it.

Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, said the Democrats' complaint might not be entirely valid. Although the State Department is part of the administration, Craig said opposition to the amendment appears to be generated within the department. It does have a drug-testing policy for new applicants, but no workplace policy, said Craig, who voted for the amendment.

"From an administrative standpoint, there may be some concern about a nuisance requirement," he said. "But to the best of my knowledge, the White House did not take a position on the issue."

In the Republican news release, Ed Rollins, co-chairman of the NRCC, lashed out at Democrats for failing to come "face to face" with the drug issue.

Rollins said that if a congressman was "really serious about waging a war on drugs in our country, he would realize the federal government needs to take the lead when it comes to getting drugs out of the workplace."

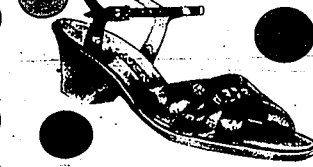

The amendment, offered almost a month ago, fell four votes short of passage. Thirty-four Republicans were among the 212 members voting against it.

Stallings said that Democrats who have given the president the benefit of the doubt on some issues might not be so willing to vote with the president in the future.

"If you vote with them after being lobbied, then find nasty press releases from the campaign committee, you have to wonder why you're trying to help," Stallings said.

Bush still 'adamant' for amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush remains "adamant" in support of a constitutional amendment to outlaw desecration of the flag, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday.

He said the Justice Department has concluded that federal courts would rule unconstitutional any statutory attempt to circumvent the recent Supreme Court decision overturning flag desecration laws.

"The only way to protect the flag is through a constitutional amendment," said Fitzwater. "But Congress should pass the Bush-backed amendment if it is serious about protecting the flag."

Ethics committee plans to hire firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee said Tuesday it plans to hire the Chicago law firm that conducted the Jim Wright investigation to review a complaint against Republican Whip Newt Gingrich.

The announcement was the latest indication that the panel is close to approving a formal investigation of the Georgia Republican, who arranged a controversial investment partnership to promote a book he co-authored.

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., accused Gingrich in a complaint last April of violating campaign finance laws, House limits on outside income and a House rule preventing acceptance of gifts from those with a direct interest in legislation.

Bush nominees win narrow approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of President Bush's ambassadorial nominees, accused by Democrats of having no qualifications except political connections, won narrow approval Tuesday from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

With Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., joining committee Republicans, the panel first voted 10-9 to send to the Senate floor the nomination of Florida real estate developer Joseph Zappala to be ambassador to Spain.

Then, by voice votes, it approved the equally controversial nominations of Florida real estate developer Marvin Sembler to be ambassador to Australia and Della Newman, a Seattle, Wash., real estate broker, to be ambassador to New Zealand.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., who led the fight against the nominees, vowed to continue the battle on the Senate floor.

Skinner defends Exxon oil cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner on Tuesday defended Exxon's plans to stop cleanup of the Alaskan oil spill Sept. 15, saying the company is living up to its obligations.

The secretary, who oversees the Coast Guard and was put in charge of the cleanup by President Bush, also said it doesn't trouble him that Exxon will not commit to doing work next year before it assesses the need for additional cleanup next spring.

Based on his own visits to the cleanup site, Skinner said he believes the people of Alaska are satisfied with Exxon's performance.

Bush planning whirlwind state visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will travel to Chicago; Las Vegas, Nev., and Oklahoma City on Monday for speeches before governors, disabled veterans and police, the White House said Tuesday.

Bush will speak first in Chicago at the summer meeting of the National Governors' Association, then fly to Las Vegas to address the convention of the Disabled American Veterans, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Bush will spend the night in Oklahoma City and address the Fraternal Order of Police meeting there Tuesday before returning to the White House.

Big-ticket goods orders rise modestly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders for big-ticket factory goods rose a modest 0.3 percent in June, the government said Tuesday in a report seen as evidence that manufacturing, although sluggish, isn't crumbling.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods — items ranging from bicycles to battleships — advanced to a seasonally adjusted $124.1 billion last month. That followed a 4.4 percent decline in May, the sharpest in 10 months.

Other statistics released Tuesday generally confirmed economists' views that inflation isn't getting worse and growth is holding up, although at a lackluster rate.

United flight crew ran out of procedures

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) — The United Airlines crew who flew a DC-10 jumbo jet with no hydraulic controls went by the book until the run out of standard procedures and then improvised, the plane's pilot said Tuesday.

"We realized we had more than just an engine failure. It was apparent to all of us we had lost all of our hydraulic fluid," pilot Al C. Haynes said at a news conference in Sioux City, where Flight 232 crashed a week ago. It was his first public comment on the crash.

"And when I asked ... for the procedure for that, he said there isn't one. So we made it up as we went along."

Haynes, co-pilot William R. Records, flight engineer Dudley Dvorak and off-duty United pilot Denny Fitch brought the plane down at Sioux Gateway Airport, where it crashed, flipped, broke apart and burst into flames. Of the 296 passengers and crew, 185 survived and 111 were killed.

Haynes said the crew never contemplated not making the airport.

"We were just going to go in and land, and that's what we tried to do. How could we operate if we didn't believe that?" he said.

He would not discuss the cause or technical details of the crash because the National Transportation Safety Board is still investigating.

On Tuesday, investigators again searched corn and soybean fields about 60 miles from the airport for important pieces of the DC-10's No. 2 engine, the tail-mounted engine that apparently blew apart and severed lines of all three hydraulic systems.

Those hydraulic systems allowed pilots to set key wing and tail panels that control the aircraft's attitude and direction. Without them, the pilot has little control over the airplane other than his throttles.

Haynes appeared weak and teary-eyed as the news conference began but grew more composed as he recounted the ordeal. He had cuts on his face and a blackened left eye.

Dvorak appeared at the news conference with Haynes but did not answer questions. Records and Fitch are still in the hospital.

United Airlines flight 232 pilot Al Haynes greets reporters after his release from hospital Tuesday in Sioux City, Iowa.

Ex-Winston model backs tobacco ad ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — A model who rattled down mountains to project a manly image for Winston cigarettes told Congress Tuesday he feels guilty about enticing youngsters to smoke and supports a bill to restrict tobacco advertising.

David Goerlitz, who portrayed a member of a search-and-rescue team in a long-running ad campaign, said he considers himself "an accessory to the systematic poisoning of our society."

"I have had children tell me that they smoked Winston's so that they could be just like me," Goerlitz told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on transportation and hazardous materials. "For that I shall always feel guilty."

Goerlitz described himself as a 25-year-old, three-pack-a-day smoker who kicked the habit in November and now speaks out against smoking for the American Cancer Society, American Lung Association and American Heart Association.

Ex-Winston model David Goerlitz testifies to Congress.

Luken, D-Ohio, is so broad that it would outlaw the names of cigarette brands painted on race cars.

Luken said his bill is needed to eliminate hucksterism in the selling of a product that the Surgeon General says kills 390,000 Americans each year and is addictive in a way similar to drugs such as heroin and cocaine.

Goerlitz said he was told young people were the intended market for the ads in which he was featured along with then-unknown actor Corbin Bernsen and other men.

"When I modeled for Winston, I was told very clearly that young people were the market we were after," he testified. "The other models and I were depicted as young and daring buddies, and that's what young people relate to at 14 or 15 years old."

"Kids did not want to be construction workers any more. They wanted to be heroes," he said.

The advertising industry said Tuesday that the restrictions, if enacted, could cost thousands of jobs.

The Freedom to Advertise Coalition released a study it commissioned, saying that 62,892 jobs — mostly in printing, publishing, advertising and retail trade — would be lost if the proposed restrictions become law.

Publishers, ad industry and tobacco industry groups also argued that imposing more restrictions would violate First Amendment guarantees of free speech and wouldn't necessarily reduce the number of youngsters who take up smoking.

Charles Whitely, spokesman for the Tobacco Institute, said the legislation "rests on the false premise that cigarette advertising is responsible for smoking by young people and that young people would not begin smoking if cigarette advertising were banned."

Bush still saying no to taxes, even to fight drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush still opposes any new taxes, even to pay for drug-fighting programs, and is cool to the new idea of selling bonds to finance the war on drugs, his spokesman indicated Tuesday.

A day after Bush's top drug policy adviser, William Bennett, said that "maybe down the road, we will" use higher taxes to fight the drug battle, the White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater emphasized that the president remains "opposed to raising taxes for any purpose."

Bennett had said that there are "other choices" besides taxes, but also said, "crack is worse than taxes."

There were mixed signals Tuesday from the White House and Bennett on the advisability of selling savings bonds to pay for increased anti-drug activity.

Fitzwater said such a notion was fraught with "practical problems."

"But Bennett said he liked the idea and has raised it with Richard Darman, director of the Office of Management and Budget. Legislation to sell drug bonds has been introduced in Congress. War bonds were sold to help finance the second World War."

Such suggestions envision "a financing mechanism that has a lot of aspects to it that haven't been thought out — about how would the money be paid back, how would it be collected, the interest rates," Fitzwater told reporters at the White House on Tuesday. "But generally speaking any kind of bond system is a part of the general financing of the government. You're still talking about government borrowing."

Fitzwater, playing down reports that the administration was looking closely at the idea, noted that Bennett is looking at a lot of suggestions, including drug bonds, as he considers what recommendations he will make for a drug-fighting strategy. Bennett, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, is to report to Bush on Sept. 5.

Bennett noted Tuesday that the idea for drug bonds did not originate with him, but was pushed by some on Capitol Hill.

However, he told reporters at a luncheon, "It does answer one question for me, which is, I get tons of mail from people asking what they can do. This would be a very good thing to be able to say: Buy war bonds."

Buy war bonds."

Jury convicts 2 former PTL aides

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two former PTL aides were convicted Tuesday of evading $525,000 in income taxes on money they took from the television ministry to buy condominiums, furs, jewelry and nearly $100,000 worth of shoes.

A federal jury deliberated five hours before convicting the brothers, James and David Taggart, on identical charges: conspiracy to defraud the government and impede the IRS by willfully evading income taxes, and filing false tax returns for the years 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987.

"Greed doesn't pay, no matter how rich you are, you've got to pay your taxes," said federal prosecutor David Brown after the verdict. "The statement was not about PTL; it was about David Taggart and James Taggart's obligations to pay their taxes no matter how much they own and what kind of lifestyle they live."

Brown said he wasn't surprised the jury took just five hours.

"They didn't need to spend a lot of time looking at the documents," he said. "A person can omit $200 (in income) on their tax return but it's hard to miss $1 million."

"They were innocent going in and they are innocent coming out," said defense lawyer Ben Cotten. He said he was to blame for the guilty verdict, citing "my ineptitude and two very capable and competent government counsel backed with unlimited resources."

Brown said the case was decided by the defendants' own testimony, but Cotten said they were forced to testify.

"They had to take the stand," Cotten said. "They had to tell their story. If they hadn't, the jury wouldn't have been able to believe anything but a series of paper trails."

Cotten said the Taggarts' reaction to the verdict was "a calm, where do we go from here?" The brothers refused comment as they left the courthouse.

The Taggarts were charged with evasion after they allegedly spent nearly $1.2 million in PTL money on personal luxuries such as condominiums — including a $640,000 apartment at Trump Tower in New York, jewelry and designer clothes. Cotten said the money was approved by the ministry's founder, Jim Bakker.

Hank Williams, Jr. to sing theme for Monday Night Football

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Hank Williams Jr. will sing the theme song this year for Monday Night Football on ABC.

The theme song will be the singer's hit record "All My Rowdy Friends (Are Coming Over Tonight)," with the lyrics changed to "All My Rowdy Friends (Are Here for Monday Night)," Kent Arwood, a spokesman for Williams, said Tuesday.

Promotional spots featuring Williams and his seven-man Bama Band will begin airing on ABC in early August and continue throughout the season, Arwood said.

Williams has been voted entertainer of the year for the past three years by the Academy of Country Music. His other hit records include "Born to Boogie" and "Family Tradition."

Belafonte, Goldberg to star in new film

CANTON, Miss. (AP) — Harry Belafonte is coming to Canton this week to prepare for a movie about Sister Thea Bowman, a pioneer in the movement encouraging black Catholics to express their cultural roots within the church.

Whoopie Goldberg has agreed to star in the film and a screenwriter was in Canton for three weeks in December conducting interviews, officials said.

Belafonte, a singer, actor and producer, is scheduled to meet with the Roman Catholic nun Thursday and Friday, a representative in his New York office said Monday.

Bowman, a lecturer, poet, evangelist and singer, is the only black member of the Franciscan Sisters of Perpetual Adoration. Her appearance on CBS' "60 Minutes" captured the attention of Belafonte's agents.

Ringo Starr earns right to rerecord

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Beatle Ringo Starr wants to re-record his drum work before the release of an album he recorded in 1987, and he obtained a court order to help give him time to rerecord the performance.

Starr's attorneys said Monday in Superior Court in Fulton County that he was being "blackmailed and coerced" by a Georgia record company and a Memphis producer who want to release the album this week.

Judge Ralph Hicks issued a temporary restraining order preventing CRS Records of College Park and Chips Moman of Memphis from releasing any recordings by Starr pending a hearing Tuesday, but that hearing was postponed.

Starr's lawsuit complained that the quality of the original recordings was not up to his standards because Moman brought alcoholic beverages to the recording sessions, Starr completed an alcohol rehabilitation program last year.

According to the lawsuit, Moman demanded that Starr pay him $146,239 for the Memphis recording sessions to prevent release of the recording. It said Starr offered Moman $100,000 in an effort to resolve the matter, but the offer was rejected.

Queen Elizabeth knights Rex Harrison

LONDON (AP) — Actor Rex Harrison knelt before Queen Elizabeth II on Tuesday, and she ritually touched him on each shoulder with a sword, awarding him a knighthood in recognition of his services to the arts.

"I think it is marvelous. I love all the ceremony," he said.

Officially, he is now Sir Reginald, but he said he preferred Sir Rex, for the nickname he has used throughout his career.

"I think they rather like to leave awarding honors until you get to a certain age," he said. "It was a marvelous moment kneeling there and getting tapped on each shoulder."

Harrison, 81, who is to star in the W. Somerset Maugham comedy "The Circle," on Broadway this fall, said he has no plans to retire because "I wouldn't know what to do."

Stanford students put Meese to the test

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Former Attorney General Edwin Meese III was lightly grilled by students in a special Stanford University summer program on government and speech, one that he attended about 40 years ago.

The 157 students questioned Meese on Monday about the Iran-Contra arms deals and former Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North's sentence.

Meese, 58, said he barely supported the arms sales to Iran, but "in retrospect, the idea was a good one. I think the way it was put together was imperfect."

Two Albuquerque police officers try to save a 17-year-old boy Body recovered of boy swept down flood canal

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Authorities on Monday recovered the body of a teen-ager who had clung to a rescue rope in swift waters in a flood-control channel but lost his grip when he was hit by debris.

The body of Peter Alvarado, 17, was discovered in the Alameda Arroyo, said Anthony Garcia, a member of the aquatic rescue team of the Bernalillo County Fire Department.

The body was recovered 10 to 12 miles away from where Alvarado and his brother, David, 14, were skateboarding Sunday in a concrete flood-control channel when they were hit by a 3-foot-high wall of water.

The National Weather Service said an inch of rain fell in the area in less than an hour.

David was rescued and was treated for cuts and bruises at St. Joseph Hospital. Fire Department spokesman Ernie Watson said.

Firefighters had tried to pull out Peter Alvarado as he clung to a rope, but a sudden surge of water carried a floating chair into him, forcing him to let go.

At least 10 people, including four police officers and four firefighters, were injured trying to rescue the

Voters may think twice before casting a ballot

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — Some people complain that all politicians are alike, and in the Salem City Council race, they may have a point.

Even their own children sometimes have trouble distinguishing at-large City Council candidate Jean-Guy Martineau from his identical twin, Ward 5 candidate Jean-Claude Martineau.

"People are a bit confused," Jean-Guy said Tuesday.

Jean-Guy, a City Council member for 12 years, holds the Ward 5 seat. He and his brother didn't set out to make voters do a double take, he said.

Jean-Guy is one of seven men running for four at-large seats. Jean-Claude is among three candidates for the Ward 5 seat vacated by his twin.

City Clerk Josephine Fusco says she sometimes has trouble identifying the 40-year-old political pair.

"They're having a lot of fun with this," she said. "They're very close. In fact when Jean-Claude came in the other day I had to hesitate because I wasn't sure what I was going to call him."

The brothers wore the same hairdos, crisp white shirts and dark blue ties Tuesday, sometimes answering questions in unison. But they also exhibited a little sibling rivalry.

"He's a little heavier than me," Jean-Guy said.

"I think it's the other way around," Jean-Claude retorted.

Jean-Claude, the younger by 10 minutes, was living in Florida and returned to Salem six months ago.

Oldest living person dies

MIAMI (AP) — Birdie May Vogt, a 112-year-old woman recognized by the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's oldest living person, died of heart failure 11 days short of her birthday.

"She was blind and she was deaf. She just kind of faded away," Alice Freeman, a receptionist at East Ridge Retirement Village, said today. "We were hoping she would last until her 113th birthday."

She died of cardiac failure at 9:30 p.m. Sunday in the retirement home's medical center, said nursing director Alice Ruo.

Mrs. Vogt was born in Akron, Ohio, when Ulysses S. Grant was president, and spent much of her life there.

The 1989 Guinness edition listed her as "the oldest living person for whom there is adequate authentication."

Nude trespasser arrested

NORTH BELLMORE, N.Y. (AP) — What do you say to a naked stranger sleeping on your couch? Nothing — you just call the police.

A woman did just that after returning home Monday afternoon to find a nude man sleeping in her living room. Awakened and arrested was Todd Colombo, 22, of Levittown.

Northern County police Sgt. Edward Mitchell.

Colombo apparently forced his way in through a front screen door and helped himself to some food from the refrigerator before taking off his clothes and falling asleep, Mitchell said.

Laura Hopkins, 32, called police and the man was arrested for trespass and criminal mischief. Mitchell said police don't know what motivated Colombo to go in the house, empty the fridge or take off his clothes.

Hailey voters pass street bond issue

HAILEY - Voters here on Tuesday overwhelmingly approved a $1.75 million bond issue to pay for street reconstruction throughout the town.

"This is better than getting elected," said Councilman Rick Davis, who spearheaded the project. The council, adamant to repair the town's deteriorated streets, said it would have established local improvement districts if the bond issue was defeated.

A total 364 residents approved of the project and 64 voted against, for an 85 percent majority.

Engineering planning will begin immediately, with construction slated for late spring 1990.

New farming method may be basis for part of bill

TWIN FALLS - Certain requirements related to Low Input Sustainable Agriculture may be part of the 1990 Farm Bill, a local crop expert said.

"I am of the opinion that many of the LISA concepts are here to stay," said Larry Robertson, extension crop specialist from Twin Falls, at a fieldmen's luncheon Tuesday.

The so-called LISA approach to farming is slowly being adopted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The 1990 Farm Bill almost certainly will have provisions allowing farmers greater latitude in rotating their crops for environmental reasons without sacrificing their historical record of these crops in commodity program crops, he said.

The department, however, needs to better define exactly what LISA entails because confusion is rampant, Robertson said.

Eventually, proven LISA practices that help protect the environment without cutting into the profitability of farming will be good, he said, but they won't happen overnight. LISA will be "an evolving change that becomes dynamic over a period of time," he said.

Thief nabs 3 car stereos from Twin Falls dealer

TWIN FALLS - A local car dealer was hit with three car stereo thefts over the weekend, according to police records.

Chris Jordan motors on Blue Lakes Boulevard North reported the stereos, valued at $300, were stolen from three cars between Friday and Monday. The cars sustained $368 in damage during the thefts, a police report says.

Officers did not take fingerprints because several employees and potential customers had handled the cars, leaving their own prints behind, the report says. Police have no suspects, the report says.

Service Corps of Retired Executives offers counseling

TWIN FALLS - New or potential business people can make appointments Thursday for free business counseling from members of the Service Corps of Retired Executives.

Arrangements must be made in advance by contacting the Region IV Development Association, 734-6566. The business counseling program is administered by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Body found in canal may be missing elderly man

MOUNTAIN HOME - Police here say they may have found the body of an elderly man suffering from Alzheimer's disease who was reported missing from a Mountain Home rest home July 11.

The body was found around 1 a.m. Tuesday in a canal about seven miles west of Mountain Home and may have been there for over a week, said Tom Berry, detective for the Elmore County Sheriff's office.

Officials have not positively identified the body and are waiting for the results of an autopsy, Berry said.

Fire crews douse blaze near Sun Valley this morning

SUN VALLEY - The Forest Service Tuesday quenched a 230-acre fire that had burned since Sunday four miles northeast of Sun Valley.

The fire was extinguished by 10 a.m., although the 20-member fire crew will stay on the scene for at least another day, said Barbara Todd, Sawtooth National Forest spokeswoman. The fire mostly burned agebrush, but it did destroy some aspen and Douglas fir trees, Todd said.

Idaho wants death sentence for Charboneau

The Associated Press

BOISE - The state of Idaho will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to restore the death sentence of convicted Jerome slayer Jaime Charboneau, and reverse a ruling that banned the use of victim impact statements in capital cases.

"This is an important case from the standpoint of victims' rights," said Attorney General Jim Jones.

"The families of murder victims should have the unqualified right to state their views on the sentence they think is appropriate for a convicted murderer. To deny them this right constitutes a second victimization," he told a news conference on Tuesday.

On Monday, Idaho Solicitor General Lynn Thomas filed a petition with the nation's highest court, asking review of the Idaho decision. Jones acknowledged that the odds aren't good that the Supreme Court will hear the case, but he's optimistic.

"It's fairly unusual for them to grant a hearing," he said. "But we have presented good issues, and we hope we will be able to appear before them and argue our case." It will be months before Idaho knows if the Supreme Court will accept the case.

Charboneau, 29, Jerome, was convicted of the 1984 shooting death of his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh, 36. Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker sentenced Charboneau to death.

In April of this year, the Idaho Supreme Court upheld the murder conviction but ordered resentencing on three grounds.

At the sentencing hearing, the victim's father, Jim Arbaugh, was allowed to testify on the impact the murder had on the Arbaugh family. He expressed a fear that if Charboneau were freed, he would try to kill other members of the family.

The Idaho Supreme Court ruled that Jim Arbaugh's testimony in the sentencing hearing was hearsay, or second-hand testimony. The court banned future victim impact statements in murder cases.

"All relevant evidence should be allowed in sentencing hearings," Jones said.

Long way from home: Sgt. Bill Tweedy and other Houston Police officers are leapfrogging the country

Houston police are making a 2,700 mile jaunt to Canada in a fight against Leukemia

By BRAD BOWLIN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - He isn't riding in the Tour de France, but Michael O'Connell of the Houston Police Department feels a bit like it after riding 113 miles Tuesday to raise money for the Leukemia Society of America.

Sgt. O'Connell is part of a five-member team of Houston police officers that stopped in Twin Falls Tuesday as part of a relay to benefit the Leukemia Society of America and the International Police Olympics. An avid cyclist, O'Connell said he "felt pretty good" after riding 113 miles non-stop, breaking his previous record by one mile.

"I'm not too stiff," he said. "A little fatigued maybe."

O'Connell, who was joined in the odyssey by his training partner Mike Walsh, said he will ride shorter legs for the remainder of the relay.

Next year, however, "We may go farther," he said.

Four teams comprising 19 riders and their respective support staffs are leapfrogging their way north, making frequent stops to sell T-shirts and caps to fight leukemia and other child-killing diseases.

The teams take turns riding so that one team is always on the road.

The officers are on their way to Vancouver, British Columbia, and the end of a 2,700 mile, week-long trek across seven states.

This is the seventh in a series of eight yearly trips made by the police department. The treks started small - a run from Houston to Corpus Christi - and have grown each year. The department has raised more than $500,000 over the years to fight child-killing diseases.

The annual fund-raiser began focusing on leukemia two years ago, after officers "adopted" a Houston youngster stricken with the disease.

Eight-year-old Mikey Lumpkin died last August.

He was the Houston Police Department's only honorary member and was buried with honors usually reserved for officers killed in the line of duty, said Diane Young, a juvenile investigator for

Idaho First wants reduction of jury's award

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

HAILEY - Last month's bad-faith verdict against Idaho First National Bank over a gourmet mushroom farm loan may prompt several similar lawsuits against the bank, two financial advisers say.

Meanwhile, Idaho First, in an unusual legal maneuver, asked a judge on Tuesday to effectively reduce the jury's verdict by $3.2 million.

The request opened another chapter in a long-running and hotly disputed lawsuit full of novel legal issues.

After 12 weeks of a trial in which Bliss Valley Foods Inc. and its investors contended

Idaho First intentionally forced the farm into foreclosure, a Blaine County jury on June 16 assessed $5.6 million in damages against the bank, now called West One Bank.

The jury also freed the mushroom farm from repaying $3.2 in principal and interest - essentially bringing Idaho First's liability to $8.8 million.

Speaking in 6th District Court Tuesday, bank attorney Peter Houtsmas called the jury verdict a "double recovery" and a "windfall."

The jury couldn't legally forgive the mushroom farm's debt, he said. Only a judge can decide whether a loan should be repaid, Houtsmas argued.

What's unusual is that the bank has raised the issue before, not after, 5th District Judge James May formally enters the judgment.

Normally, entering the judgment is a routine post-trial procedure. After a jury verdict, the prevailing party in a lawsuit prepares a judgment for the judge to sign.

Then both parties can prepare post-trial motions, including requests to set aside the verdict or reduce the verdict.

Attorneys for Bliss Valley and its investors argued the bank's maneuver is an attempt to muck up the process.

"What has been put before us is an attempt to make this a difficult, clouded issue," said attorney Ed McCabe, McCabe represents Robert Erkins, who owns the land where the mushroom farm is located and who helped organize the venture.

"This is really a first for me," said Jack Gjording, attorney for the farm's Twin Falls investors.

Yet another defense attorney, Richard Grover, said the jury would have rendered a different verdict - perhaps more damaging to the bank - if it had been told that the judge could order the $3.2 million loan to be paid.

Also on Tuesday, two financial advisers said they have been approached by several Idaho residents who want to sue the bank over situations similar to Bliss Valley's.

Disaster: would Magic Valley airports be ready?

By BRAD BOWLIN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Although chances of a plane crash similar to last week's disaster in Iowa are slight at the Twin Falls and Hailey airports, local health and safety officials say they are ready.

"For an airport of our size, we have very good facilities," said Ron Madsen, Twin Falls airport manager.

No flights are scheduled in or out of the airport at night and most passenger planes carry 30 passengers or fewer, thus limiting the scope of a potential disaster, Madsen said.

Horizon Air occasionally uses planes with a 37-passenger capacity, and chartered ski flights carrying up to 150 passengers sometimes land in Twin Falls or Hailey during the winter.

On those occasions, Madsen said the Twin Falls airport is notified ahead of time and firefighters are called in to be available when the plane lands.

One fire engine remains parked and ready at the airport at all times, Madsen said. Airport crew members frequently practice operating the truck, he said.

If additional help is needed, the Twin Falls Fire Division is standing by. The three-firefighters-manning Station 3 on Washington Street are the first to respond, said Commander Phil Clough.

"Our weakness is the turnover time" to the airport, Clough said. If the firefighters know ahead of time that an incoming plane is having trouble - as was the case last week when a DC-10 crashed in Sioux City, Iowa - they can be on hand before the plane tries to land, he said.

Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailey has similar fire-fighting capabilities, with a $200,000 fire truck and a smaller unit at the airport, said Randy Petroviak, assistant manager.

If a situation is too severe to be handled by the two or three crew members on hand, volunteers from the Hailey Fire Department are called in via the 911 emergency telephone line, Petroviak said.

A large number of injuries could pose problems, however, as the two area hospitals have fewer than 40 beds between them, he said.

Although 39-plus casualties would stretch the facilities at Twin Falls' Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the hospital would be able to cope with an airplane accident, said John Bingham, hospital administrator.

One trauma specialist is on hand at all times and 20 more doctors are responding every common medical specialty are on call, Bingham said. Overall, 117 doctors are on the hospital's active and courtesy staffs, providing a large pool to draw from in an

Briefly

Home entertaining can be fun and easy

Popular products prove staying power

By the Los Angeles Times

Food company executives dream about developing products that will remain popular with the public over a decade or more. Currently, a new item is considered successful if it generates strong sales for just a few years before fading to the whims of changing consumer buying habits.

So the fact that several products have just passed the quarter-century mark as supermarket fixtures is all the more noteworthy, a food industry journal says.

Although the names are familiar, several of the survivors can be considered a surprise.

Chief among these are Pop-Tarts from Kellogg. The line of shelf-stable, fruit-filled pastries that are heated in the toaster continues to dominate the category it created.

Lucky Charms cereal from General Mills also is 25 years old. The product is still promoted heavily by the manufacturer, indicating that the company has confidence in the staying power of this children's cereal.

There is no surprise to be found in Diet Pepsi's success, however. Introduced as a low-calorie beverage in 1964, Diet Pepsi is now the fourth best-selling soft drink, with 5.2 percent of America's soda sales.

Brewery takes 150 years to develop its peach beer

While food companies are constantly trying to bring new products to market, it has taken one Belgium brewery 150 years to develop something different.

This beverage, though, can claim to be novel as well as new.

Lindeman's Farm Brewery, founded in 1816, is now importing its peach beer to the United States. Labeled as Peche Lambic, the beer is sold in 12-ounce bottles sealed with a cork.

Innovations do not come cheap as the new peach beer will sell for $5 a bottle. The steep price reflects the extended brewing process involved in making the company's Lambic beers.

Ad campaign will urge Americans to eat more fish

By the Los Angeles Times

The seafood industry says that it is launching a $6.5 million advertising campaign urging Americans to eat fishy products twice a week.

Scheduled to appear next month on television and in magazines, the ads will feature a cartoon character named the Sturgeon General, an officious-looking, mustached fish.

The program, sponsored by the National Fish and Seafood Promotional Council, will extend through September 1990.

The group selected a "spokesfish" as its symbol to lend humor to the pitch and in an effort to appeal to children. Privately, the council hopes the Sturgeon General becomes as popular with the public as the California Raisins, according to Seafood Leader, an industry trade magazine.

Raw oysters could pose a health risk for some

The problems confronting the seafood industry and its allies in the grocery business and government are demonstrated by a report issued by health officials in Los Angeles.

The Public Health Letter, published by Los Angeles County's Department of Health Services, issued a recent warning that certain high-risk individuals should not consume raw oysters from the Gulf of Mexico.

Federal health officials, as well as the National Fisheries Institute, recommend fully cooking shellfish as a means of protecting against any harmful organisms that may be present.

In 1989, home is where the heart is. In two recent Gallup polls, taken in 1986 and 1987, the number of Americans who said their favorite thing to do was to hang around home with family and friends has almost tripled.

That means more entertaining at home. And what could offer more warm-weather fun than a patio party or backyard barbecue!

Convenience foods let the party-giver entertain with ease and style. Use economical bottled lemon juice to eliminate the time-consuming squeezing step and to ensure consistent tartness every time.

Bottled lemon juice is single strength, ready to use "as is" straight from the bottle, for marinades, beverages and sauces. Cream of coconut, made by pressing the sweet, white meat of tree-ripened coconuts into a thick, creamy liquid, has long been a favorite ingredient for tropical beverages. These recipes prove that there's more to cream of coconut than pina colodas.

Finally, maraschino cherries add their brilliant color and flavor to desserts, beverages, salads and more.

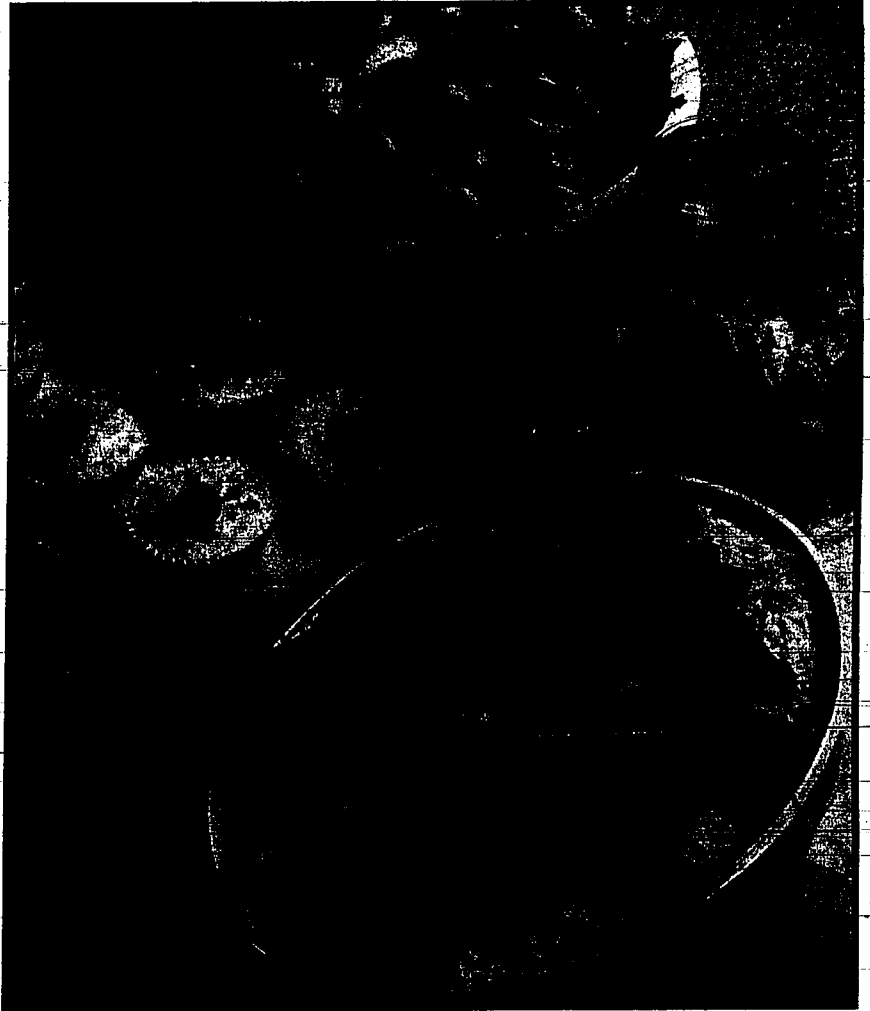

Fire up the barbecue for these succulent Grilled Chicken Kabobs. Bottled lemon juice tenderizes the chicken while cream of coconut adds a tropical flavor to the marinade. Serve the kabobs with rice and Mexican Tossed Salad, which features a zesty homemade dressing that you shake up in minutes. Skewer mint-marinated nectarines, melon and maraschino cherries for refreshing fruit side dish.

The perfect finale for summer entertaining is rich Coconut Tortoni, mouthwatering make-ahead cups of Italian-inspired frozen cream. Offer a variety of refreshing beverages including Wine Fruit Cooler. Freeze maraschino cherries in ice cube trays for a colorful addition to the cooler or for iced tea or lemonade.

MEXICAN TOSSED SALAD
1/2 cup olive or vegetable oil
1/3 cup bottled lemon juice

Be more creative when you're brown bagging it

The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Brown-bagging-it can take on a whole new meaning. You can save money—and calories—when you bring your lunch from home, instead of buying it from a deli or a vending machine.

Sounds too boring? Take a break from your everyday sandwich.

You can replace the jelly in a peanut butter and jelly sandwich with fresh fruit slices or chopped dried fruit. You'll add flavor and nutrients, and save on sugar.

Mix flaked, cooked fish or water-packed tuna with fruit, bean sprouts, chopped cooked or raw vegetables. Combine chopped cooked lean meat or poultry with chopped raw vegetables, moistened with plain low-fat yogurt or cottage cheese.

Use a variety of breads such as whole-wheat, rye, pumpernickel or bran; pita pockets, rolls, bagels, tortillas, English muffins and rice cakes.

TRY DIFFERENT FOODS

If you're tired of sandwiches, try different foods.

Low-fat yogurt or cottage cheese can be mixed with chopped and drained unsweetened canned fruits, or chopped or shredded fresh fruits or vegetables.

Rice cracker mix-and-nuts is a combination of miniature crackers and dried legumes with a spicy Oriental flavor, available in the dried food section of most supermarkets.

Another suggestion: pepperooni, sliced into 1/4-inch pieces, and crackers.

Use an insulated lunch box instead of a paper bag when packing cold foods. Use an ice pack or a gel freezer pack to keep hard-cooked eggs, meat and milk products cold.

HOT LUNCHES

If lunch just isn't lunch unless it's hot, use a wide-mouth vacuum bottle for soup, chili, chowder or stew; chili or baked beans; casseroles made with pasta or rice.

Preheat the vacuum bottle by filling it with clean, hot water and letting it stand for a few minutes. Empty and promptly fill

Try these recipes to perk up lunches on the run

The following recipes are provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The department is encouraging Americans to count calories, choose low-sodium foods, and use only small amounts of high-fat foods in their daily diets.

CHICKEN SALAD SANDWICH
2 tablespoons mayonnaise-type salad dressing
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
Dash of garlic powder
1 cup chicken, without skin, cooked and chopped
1/2 cup celery, chopped
8 slices whole-wheat bread
4 lettuce leaves

Mix salad dressing and seasonings in a bowl. Stir in 1 cup cooked and chopped chicken, without skin, and 1/2 cup chopped celery. Mix well.

Spread about 1/3 cup of the filling on 4 whole-wheat bread slices. Top each with a leaf of lettuce and 1 slice of whole-wheat bread. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Nutritional information per chicken sandwich: 230 cal., 6 g fat, 1 g saturated fatty acids, 33 mg chol., 387 mg sodium.

Variation: Use 1 cup chopped, cooked lean beef in place of chicken.

Upcoming legislation would require more accurate labeling

By MICHAEL SPECTER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—For people eager to watch their weight without giving up cheesecake, Sara Lee Light Classics must seem like a gift from the gods.

Advertised prominently as containing "Only 200 Calories Per Serving" the dessert has been touted by its manufacturer as a "light" alternative to the company's traditional version.

But other than their textures (one is lighter), the only real difference between the cakes is that Sara Lee suggests eating smaller slices of its "Light Classics."

Like millions of other food labels on the shelves of American supermarkets, the nutritional information of Sara Lee's labeling is confusing at best, doing nothing to help people keep to a decent diet and follow medical advice.

"Right now, labels are worse than useless, they are dangerous," said Marion Nestle, chairwoman of the Department of Home Economics and Nutrition at New York University and managing editor of the landmark 1988 Surgeon General's Report on Nutrition and Health. "It's not an exaggeration to say that (misinformation) is killing people."

Realizing that a walk down a supermarket aisle is a trip into the twilight zone, consumer groups have spent years trying to force a fundamental revision of food-labeling practices. They finally appear to be on the verge of success.

This week, legislation will be introduced in the House and Senate to require that labels on packaged foods carry accurate nutritional information. At the same time, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) plans to announce a major effort to improve the present chaotic voluntary system. And to the surprise of many, much of the food industry appears willing to adopt mandatory labels for all packaged foods.

Words like "organic," "natural," and "light" are now used so indiscriminately that they have become essentially meaningless. "Dogfish," a small shark, has been rechristened "snow cod" by some companies to make it seem more attractive, and "low fat," merely means anything lower than something higher.

Interest in food labels has exploded in the past few years. One industry survey this year found that more than one in five shoppers is on a medically restricted diet, that most people consider "nutrition" information essential and that nearly half of all consumers say they have changed the way they eat for health reasons.

"People think the situation is a mess," said FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young, whose agency has been accused of indifference and inaction on labeling for years. "The evidence is so clear that reducing calories and fat has a major impact on people's health. The time has come for a new labeling system."

For the first time, all sides seem to agree. "We understand that people's dietary needs have changed," said Larry Graham, executive vice president of the National Food Processors Association. "We support a mandatory label if it is clear and uniform."

The need has never been greater or more obvious. As health warnings about the risks of excess fat in the average diet have surged in the past few years, so have contradictory claims about the nutritional value of foods. Many labels are designed specifically to confuse people.

Regulatory relief for these complexities has "not come easily. Just last year the FDA proposed allowing foods to be labeled "low cholesterol" even though they might also be very high in saturated fat. Now, backing off, FDA officials say they are ready to search for a comprehensive approach to resolve conflicts about health claims, the way ingredients are listed, the format of labels and the descriptions of foods.

"It's long past time for this," said Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy. "We are living with labels developed years ago. People want to know about fat. They want specifics about what kind of fat they are eating. They want to know about cholesterol and calories. It's really not that hard to do."

Take the choice of packaged frozen dinners advertised as "diet." Meals that have the same amount of calories rarely have the same amount of fat or cholesterol. • See RULES on Page C2

Dessert can be healthy, simple to fix

People are eating more healthy food these days. Cutting down on fats and eating more salads and fiber while keeping up with exercise has become a goal many strive for. But that doesn't mean people can't indulge in dessert occasionally. Rich and gooey, preferably chocolate and packed with flavor, a delicious dessert seems a just reward. When the ingredients for such a dessert are kept readily at hand, with little preparation needed, the reward becomes great indeed.

This summer, try a Kiwi Brownie Sundae. Nothing could be more simple or delicious. Fresh off the vines, kiwifruit are now at their peak of ripeness. They are ready to eat when they yield to light pressure. That's when their flavor is the fullest, reminiscent of pineapples, melons and strawberries. The sauce for this sundae is a simple mixture of orange marmalade and pureed kiwifruit. Make it ahead; it keeps well in the refrigerator so it is always at hand. Tangy, yet sweet and full of fruity flavor, it makes a sensational pairing with rich chocolate and creamy ice cream.

KIWI BROWNIE SUNDAE

- 6 kiwifruit
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade
- 6 brownies
- 6 scoops of ice cream

Peel and quarter 3 kiwifruit. Place in food processor with metal blade in place; pulse on and off until fruit is pureed but seeds are not crushed.

Kiwi Brownie Sundae can be prepared with little fuss

Melt marmalade in small saucepan over low heat. Stir into kiwifruit puree. Chill sauce until thick. To assemble sundaes, peel and slice remaining kiwifruit into 1/4-inch thick slices. Cut slices in half to form half rounds. Place 1 brownie on each serving plate. Top each with 1 scoop ice cream. Garnish with kiwifruit sauce. Makes 6 servings (1 1/4 cups sauce)

- 1 cup garlic croutons
  - 1/2 cup thin strips jicama
  - 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
  - 1/4 cup sliced green onions
  - 8 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
- In jar with tight-fitting lid, combine oil, bottled lemon juice, garlic and sugar; shake well. Chill to blend flavors. Just before serving, in large salad bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Toss with dressing. Serve with freshly ground pepper. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

WINE FRUIT COOLER

- 1 (10-ounce) jar whole maraschino cherries
  - 1 (750 ml) bottle dry white wine
  - 1/3 cup bottled lemon juice
  - 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar
- In 12-ounce can lemon-lime carbonated beverage or club soda (1 1/2 cups).
Cherry Ice Cubes
Drain cherries; reserve syrup. In pitcher combine wine, bottled lemon juice, reserved cherry syrup and sugar; stir until sugar dissolves. Just before serving, add carbonated beverage. Serve over Cherry Ice Cubes. Makes about 6 cups.

CHERRY ICE CUBES

Place drained maraschino cherries in 2 ice cube trays. Fill with water; freeze.

COCONUT TORTONI

- 1 (15-ounce) can cream of coconut
  - 1 cup chopped maraschino cherries, well drained
  - 1/2 cup slivered almonds, toasted
  - 1/2 cup flaked coconut, toasted
  - 1/4 cup light rum, optional
  - 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 2 cups (1 pint) whipping cream, whipped
In large bowl, combine all ingredients except whipped cream; mix well. Fold in whipped cream. Fill 2 1/2-inch foil cups; freeze. Freeze 6 hours or until firm. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Return leftovers to freezer.

Makes about 1 1/2 dozen.

GRILLED CHICKEN KABOBS

- 1/2 cup cream of coconut
  - 1/2 cup bottled lemon juice
  - 1 teaspoon marjoram leaves
  - 2 teaspoons chicken-flavor instant bouillon
  - 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
  - 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper
  - 1 pound skinned boneless chicken breasts, cut into chunks
- sweet red or green bell pepper chunks
fresh pineapple chunks
In small bowl, combine cream of coconut, bottled lemon juice, marjoram, bouillon, garlic powder and crushed red pepper. Pour over chicken and peppers; cover and refrigerate 4 to 6 hours. On skewers, arrange chicken, pineapple and peppers. Grill or broil as desired, basting frequently with marinade. Serve with hot cooked rice. Refrigerate leftovers. Make 4 to 6 servings.

For even doneness, cook pork chops in your microwave oven on 20 percent power, medium-low. The sauce cooks in minutes on high.

TOMATO SAUCED PORK CHOPS

- 3 pork loin chops, cut 1/2-inch thick (1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds total)
  - One 8-ounce can stewed tomatoes
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
  - 1/2 teaspoon lemon-pepper seasoning
  - 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
  - 1/4 teaspoon dried marjoram, crushed
  - 2 tablespoons sliced pitted ripe olives
  - Thinly sliced green onion
- Trim separable fat from chops; sprinkle chops lightly with salt. In a microwave-safe 8-by-8-by-2-inch baking dish arrange chops with meatiest portions facing the outside of the dish. Cover with microwave-safe plastic wrap, turning back one corner to allow steam to escape. Cook on 20 percent power (medium-low) 10 minutes. Turn chops over and rotate dish a half-turn. Cook covered, on medium-low 10 to 12 minutes more or until chops are tender and no pink remains. Drain juices from baking dish. Cover chops to keep warm.

For sauce, in a 2-cup glass measure combine tomatoes, cornstarch, lemon-pepper seasoning, garlic powder and marjoram. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) 2 to 3 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every 45 seconds. Spoon sauce over chops. Sprinkle with olives and onion. Serves 3.

Current nutrition labels were designed when federal health officials thought that vitamin and mineral contents were the most important aspect of food. But these days, vitamin deficiencies are rare in this country. Instead, the repeated message from doctors and public health officers is that we should increase fiber intake and cut back on eating fat, particularly saturated fat.

Lunch

- 1/2 cup onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup celery, diced
- 1/2 cup carrots, sliced
- 1/2 cup frozen green beans
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon marjoram leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 bay leaf
- Dash pepper
- 2 cups water

One 8-ounce can tomatoes (1 cup). Place all ingredients—except tomatoes—in a saucepan. Cover and boil gently for 10 minutes. Break up one 8-ounce can of tomatoes; add to vegetable mixture. Continue cooking until vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. Remove bay leaf before serving. Makes 4 servings.

no use to consumers, and food companies know that. Why can't these things just say high, medium and low or something that people can actually understand. Otherwise we should just stop telling people to change their diets."

Silverglade's organization wants that fat and cholesterol content to be listed on every food label. Federal health officials have been particularly insistent that most people should increase the amount of dietary fiber they consume.

"Salad bars, low fat diets and health clubs are not a fad," said Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., who, with Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has pushed Congress for legislation mandating better labels.

"The American public wants food that contributes to a healthy life. And it is incumbent upon government to help them get it."

Peppers, chiles are hot items

By JOAN DRAKE
Los Angeles Times

Q: I have been searching for information on peppers and chiles — how to identify them by name and appearance, the degree of hotness, etc. I am particularly interested in the Ancho.

A: The most definitive information we've come across is in the book "Peppers — The Domesticated Capsicums" (University of Texas Press; 1985, $35) by Jean Andrews. Here are excerpts from some of the 32 cultivars covered by the author.

ANAHEIM: The immature pod is referred to as a long green chile or chile verde. Mature ones are red chiles or chiles Colorado. If the green pods have been roasted, peeled and dried in the sun, they are called chiles pasados. The dried red ones are chiles colorados or chiles de las tierras. These are the least fiery of the hot chiles.

ANCHO: One of the chiles covered by the blanket term poblano when they are green. Ancho is the term usually used after they are dried. However, in Baja California, both the fresh and dry forms of this blackish green, heart-shaped chile are often called Ancho, and sometimes even Pasilla. The pungency ranges from almost mild to hot.

BANANA PEPPER (Hungarian Wax): Long, shiny yellow chiles that may be either sweet or hot. Banana is the term usually used for the sweet variety, Hungarian Wax for the hot. Both turn scarlet when fully mature, and the Hungarian Wax becomes almost inedible.

FRESNO: Sometimes the short, tapered pods of this medium-sized wax variety are simply called hot chiles, because of their pungency. They turn bright-red when mature, but are primarily used in the green stage.

JALAPENO: In the United States, both the fresh and pickled forms of this thick-fleshed, cylindrical variety are called Jalapeno. In Mexico, however, the fresh green pod is known as cuaremeño (Lenten chile) and they refer to only the pickled form as Jalapeno. In most parts of Mexico, they are called chipotles after being fully ripened and smoked. Jalapenos are considered piquant, hotter than the varieties already mentioned.

PASILLA: A gentle-flavored variety that is sometimes confused with the Ancho. The ripe undried pods are dark brown and have a long, narrow, curving shape. After drying they are wrinkled and the color of a raisin.

PIMENTO: Pointed, heart-shaped cultivar that is used primarily for canning.

Popeye would like spinach this way

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Creamy Dressing: In a small mixing bowl stir together 1/2 cup dairy sour cream, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Using a wire whisk, gradually blend in 3 tablespoons herb-flavored vinegar. Cover and chill until serving time.

COTTAGE CHEESE AND SPINACH SALAD
7 cups torn fresh spinach (10 ounces)

1 1/2 cups cream-style cottage cheese
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Creamy Dressing or bottled creamy dressing

Place spinach in a large salad bowl. Spoon cottage cheese on top of spinach in a ring. Sprinkle with walnuts. Pour on dressing; toss lightly until spinach is coated.

Plums are versatile enough to make a snack or quick breakfast that's also healthy Plum muffins offer sweetness and fiber

GRAINY PLUM MUFFINS
Grainy Plum Muffins are nutritious fiber-filled snacks that are also great for a quick breakfast. Fresh plums offer a moist and tangy sweetness that makes them delicious muffins irresistible.

These fresh plum snacks are the perfect nutritious alternative to a candy bar or soft drink.

1-1/2 cups fresh California plums, chopped
3/4 cup orange juice
1/2 cup vegetable oil
2 eggs, beaten

1-1/2 teaspoons orange zest
2 cups flour
1 cup rolled oats
3/4 cup unprocessed bran
1/2 cup walnuts, chopped
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
4 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt

Combine first 5 ingredients in bowl. In separate bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Add liquid ingredients to dry ingredients; stir just until blended. Spoon about 1/3 cup batter into each of fifteen 2-1/4 inch paper-lined muffin cups. Bake in 350 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes or until browned. Makes 15 muffins.

Coffee graders judge to the last drop

By Estelle Lander Nowaday

NEW YORK — With a quick, deep slurp that sounded like a backward sneeze, Russell Egbert sucked some Ethiopian coffee from a stainless steel spoon into his mouth, swished it around for a split second and sent the stuff flying into a spittoon at his feet.

He swiveled a green formica table, dipping his spoon into 14 more cups of hot coffee. After one sample, Egbert paused and placed a coffee bean from a tray in front of him next to the cup.

"I found a little dustiness," Egbert said, explaining why he singled out that brew.

"A little dustiness here, a deformed bean there — these blemishes can mean losses of many thousands of dollars for coffee importers and brokers. They depend on the eyes, noses and taste buds of coffee graders like Egbert. After 47 years as a coffee salesman, the 66-year-old Egbert now spends occasional lunch hours at the World Trade Center here rating the coffee that gets frantically traded on the floor of the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange one floor above.

The futures exchange is primarily a place for producers and processors to hedge against changes in the price of coffee and for speculators to make quick profits betting on the direction prices will go.

Most contracts are strictly paper deals that never result in anyone delivering or receiving actual coffee beans. But a small percentage of contracts do result in physical delivery. The coffee used to satisfy a futures contract must meet strict quality standards set by the exchange, and that is where graders like Egbert come in.

He and the 26 other official coffee graders — only two of whom are women — include retirees, importers and traders who can make up to $850 for a one-hour session, said Glenn Garnes, grading-room assistant.

In a corner of the seventh-floor grading room recently, turn-of-the-century roasting machines tumbled coffee beans over an open flame — just like you'd like your hamburgers done," Garnes said. He placed the beans in small trays, identified only by a number so the graders won't know which importer put the sample up for testing. In front of each tray sat three porcelain coffee cups with ground beans, into which Garnes poured boiling water.

This has been a slow year, Garnes said. But he expects to "see a real flood of coffee" come pouring into his room soon, he said.

The reason: Earlier this month the 74 producing and consuming nations disbanded the 25-year-old International Coffee Agreement. The agreement set quotas for consuming countries and insured producer countries a minimum of $1.20 per pound. When the agreement collapsed earlier this month, prices on the exchange plummeted to an eight-year low of 87 cents a pound.

Coffee-industry analysts and traders said that they expect a rush of deliveries to be tendered on the exchange because roasters will race to get their hands on the higher-quality coffees before they run out. That should mean better coffee at lower prices for consumers in the next few months.

If the lessons of Economics 101 hold up, the gaggle in the grading room will probably have a busy year.

Their work starts before they reach the sniffing and tasting stage. First the graders spread out around three round tables and examine the green, unroasted beans for imperfections. They search for "floaters" or beans that are too light.

They also look for broken beans, black beans and sticks. While some imperfections are tolerated, others that exceed the limits set for each kind of coffee result in penalty points, each of which knocks a tenth of a cent a pound off the coffee's worth.

The beans also automatically lose or gain value depending on their country of origin. For example, coffee from El Salvador that passes the tests gets a "basic" price, or the price coffee is fetching on the exchange. But beans from other countries automatically start below the prevailing market price because they are considered slightly inferior.

After sorting the beans on a wooden tray, the graders, seated three to a table, then slice a spoon into a cup, "breaking" the coffee and sniffing deeply in search of anything fishy.

Coffees that rack up too many penalty points fail the exchange's standards and can't be delivered.

Shrimp takes only 10 minutes to prepare

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine

Set your timer: You can have this enticing Oriental-style entree ready in 10 minutes. There's no slicing, no chopping, no frying, and not much measuring. Serve with quick-cooking rice, fresh fruit, sherbet and almond cookies.

- CASHWU SHRIMP
- One 8-ounce can pineapple chunks (juice pack)
  - 2 tablespoons vinegar
  - 2 teaspoons soy sauce
  - 1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules
  - 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
  - 1/4 cup water
  - One 8-ounce package frozen peeled and deveined shrimp

4 teaspoons cornstarch
One 6-ounce package frozen pea pods
1 cup cashews or peanuts
Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Mix juice, vinegar, soy sauce, bouillon granules, ginger and 2 tablespoons of the water; add shrimp. Simmer, covered, 2 minutes. Mix cornstarch and remaining water; add to mixture. Add pineapple. Cook and stir until bubbly. Add pea pods. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Add nuts. Serve with hot-cooked rice, if desired. Makes 3 servings.

RUPERT—The Idaho Youth Ranch's annual open house and free barbecue lunch is set from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, with activities and tours planned throughout the day. Ranch staff will explain the facility's programs and show what they are doing for Idaho's children. Everyone is welcome.

Working women workshops planned

TWIN FALLS—Two free "Women! Go for the Gold" workshops are planned in Burley and Wendell. The sessions will introduce high-paying careers and educational programs offered at CSI that lead to the job opportunities. The Burley workshop is slated Aug. 3 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the CSI Mini-Cassia Center, 1456 Overland Road. The Wendell session will be from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Aug. 10 at Cazavos Restaurant. Call CSI's Center for New Directions at 736-0700 for more information.

Bethel No. 56 representatives nominated at Grand Session

TWIN FALLS—The Job's Daughters of Bethel No. 56 joined 700 peers in Boise recently for the Annual Grand Session at Boise State University.

At the event, Margaret (Mib) Kelly was appointed and installed as Grand First Messenger. Heather Kirk was named Grand Representative to North Carolina, and Kristin Kyle was designated Grand Representative to Florida.

All three will serve for one year. The state's Bethels annually select representatives to correspond with Job's Daughters in other states.

The Lancasters

NAMPA—Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lancaster of Nampa will be honored at an open house Aug. 1 in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited to call from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the College Church of the Nazarene Fellowship Hall in Nampa.

Lancaster and Gladabelle Hills were married Aug. 1, 1939, at the Twin Falls Church of the Nazarene. They have lived in Nampa and Alturas, Calif.

He worked as a teacher for 22 years in Nampa schools, in Canyon County schools and also in Valley View. He retired, from teaching in 1969. He also worked for Amalgamated Sugar Co. in Nampa as a filter foreman for five years, retiring in 1976.

She worked as a teacher for Twin Falls County from 1938-1939; the Northwest Nazarene College grade school from 1942-1943 and in 1954 for the Van Buren and Washington schools in Caldwell, retiring in 1964.

They have been active in the Twin Falls Church of the Nazarene and the College Church of the Nazarene in Nampa. They were also involved in scouting, were Sunday School teachers and were in the church choirs and senior adult ministries.

The event is being given by their children, Janet Woods of Juliaetta; Sharon White of Emmett; Larry G. Lancaster of Nampa; and Gerald R. Lancaster of Atwater, Calif. and their spouses.

The couple has nine grandchildren.

Peterson takes Miss Deaf Idaho crown at convention

GOODING—Darcy Peterson won the title of Miss Deaf Idaho at the pageant held last week as part of the Idaho Association for the Deaf Convention.

Peterson, 19, is from Post Falls. She will travel to Indianapolis next summer to compete in the Miss Deaf America pageant.

She was crowned Miss Deaf Idaho by Jodyann Bakke of Rigby, 1987's Miss Deaf Idaho. The pageant is slated every two years. In 1987, Darcy won the Miss Deaf Idaho Teen pageant.

Darcy was named winner in three of the four competitions within the pageant—sportswear, talent, in which she did a flag-twirling dance to "Bad Medicine" and Miss Congeniality.

Stephanie Valentine, 18, of Boise was first runner-up of the pageant and winner of the evening gown competition. Deanna Anderson, 18, of Gooding was second runner-up.

In the Miss Deaf Idaho Teen Pageant, 15-year-old Stefania Smith of Birth captured the crown. Kimberly Solomon, 15, of Twin Falls was first runner-up, and Tina Peterson, 17, of Post Falls—was sister of the pageant winner—was second runner-up.

Another Magic Valley participant, Kim Williams of Twin Falls, won the teen sportswear competition. Camilla Wilding of Gooding also took part in the teen pageant.

The first Miss Deaf Idaho, Holly Parker of Rupert, traveled to the Miss Deaf America contest in 1983 and placed as first runner-up.

Avoid vending machine snacks

NEW YORK (AP)—Snacks and desserts can perk up your lunch, but they can be high in fat, sodium, sugars and calories.

Consider the amount of calories, fat, sodium and sugars in the following vending machine fare:

- * Brownie, frosted: 106 calories, 5 g fat, 50 mg sodium, 11 g sugar.
- * 10 small chocolate chip cookies: 205 calories, 9 g fat, 176 mg sodium, 17 g sugar.
- * One 1.4-ounce milk chocolate candy bar, plain: 210 calories, 13 g fat, 34 mg sodium, 21 g sugar.
- * One 1.4-ounce milk chocolate candy bar with almonds: 220 calories, 15 g fat, 34 mg sodium, 20 g sugar.
- * One 2-ounce milk chocolate candy bar with chocolate, peanuts, caramel and nougat: 275 calories, 13 g fat, 144 mg sodium, 26 g sugar.
- * Cake-type doughnut, plain: 210 calories, 12 g fat, 192 mg sodium, 8 g sugar.

Instead of buying sweets, bring fresh fruits like apples, pears or grapes—whatever is in season! Or, make your own cookies, quick breads, muffins or cupcakes. Use—whole-grain—flours—and oatmeal for less sugar and fat. Add shredded vegetables or chopped dried fruits for added nutrients, and fiber. The following recipes are provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

1/2 cup sliced banana
1/2 cup grapefruit sections, cut up
2 tablespoons juice from grapefruit
1/3 cup grapes, halved
1/3 cup pineapple tidbits, juice-packed and drained

Mix apple, banana and grapefruit sections with juice to prevent darkening of apple and banana. Add grapes and pineapple. Chill. Makes 2 servings, about 1 cup each.

Note: Fresh fruits in season may be substituted, as desired. Use peaches, nectarines, melon, berries or apricots.

Nutritional information per serving: 110 cal., 1 g fat, 1 mg sodium.

OATMEAL APPLESAUCE COOKIES
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup margarine
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg whites
2 cups rolled oats, quick-cooking
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
1/2 cup chopped raisins
Preheat oven to 375 degrees F.
Grease baking sheet. Mix flour, baking powder, allspice and salt. Beat margarine and sugar until creamy. Add egg whites; beat well. Add dry ingredients.
Stir in oats, applesauce and raisins—Mix well—Drop by-level-tablespoonfuls onto baking sheet. Bake 11 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Cool on rack. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

Nutritional information per cookie: 45 cal., 2 g fat, 36 mg sodium.

Local scouts to attend Jamboree

A total of 81 local scouts and leaders will be attending the 1989 National Boy Scout Jamboree to be held in Fort A.P. Hill, Virginia, Aug. 2-8.

For a year and a half jamboree leaders Bob Brown, Dr. David McClusky, Lee Heider, Harold Uehling, Jack Asher, Emmer Wood, James Studebaker, Carl Wilson, Wade Millington, Ted Tuma and others have been planning the trip.

On June 23 and 24 the scouts and leaders participated in the pre-Jamboree training held at the Beaver Creek Ranch. This was held to see if the scouts were prepared to work as patrols and troops.

The National Scout Jamboree is a giant conclave of scouts and leaders from every state and from 40 different countries around the world. The Jamboree is held every four years. Fort A.P. Hill is expected to host 35,000 scouts and leaders.

Miss Deaf America is held every other year to help the National Association of the Deaf choose an ambassador for the 14 million hearing-impaired Americans.

The Idaho Association for the Deaf will now be conducting a fund-raising drive to collect the $3,000 it will need to send Darcy and a chaperone to Indianapolis next July for the national pageant. Contributions may be sent to Miss Deaf Idaho, c/o P.O. Box 113, Gooding, ID, 83300.

Mom struggles with son's false image of 'real' but absent dad

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: At what age should an illegitimate child meet his natural father? My 11-year-old son (I'll call him Nicky) has been asking questions about his "real" father since he put 2 and 2 together at the age of 8.

I have told Nicky that I loved his natural father very much but we were not able to marry because he was stationed 2,000 miles away. What the boy doesn't know is that his natural father never answered any of my letters. Two years ago, I married a very fine man who has been a wonderful father to Nicky, but he keeps wanting to meet his "real" father. I know where he is and could arrange it, but I'm afraid he would be a big disappointment to the boy. Perhaps Nicky would accept his stepfather better if he didn't have this false image of his "real" father. What do you think?
— ANGUISHED MOTHER

pressure in the middle ear; many babies cannot easily clear their Eustachian tubes to balance the painful pressure differences. Swallowing or sucking helps clear these tubes; a bottle or a pacifier, given as the plane nears the destination, would save babies severe pain, as well as spare the nerves of nearby passengers. My wife says you've published this idea before. My last two plane trips, next to shrieking infants, tells me it is time to publish it again.

about. I have reason to believe that he has had a sex-change operation, but I can't be sure. Are people who have had sex-change operations registered anywhere? If so, where? Thank you for any help you can give me.
— ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Sex-change surgery is a private matter; those who have undergone that type of surgery are not "registered" anywhere. The best way to learn the facts about a man is to ask him. And if you can't believe what he tells you, I advise you to cool the relationship.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61064. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ANGUISHED: First, please don't refer to your son as an "illegitimate" child. There are no "illegitimate" children — only illegitimate parents.

It is to your credit that you did not bad-mouth Nicky's natural father even though you had just cause to do so. Don't try to correct the "false image" Nicky has of his natural father in an effort to make his stepfather more acceptable. Does Nicky's natural father want to see his son? If so, all means bring them together and let the boy make his own judgments. (Eleven-year-olds are far more perceptive than you think.) If, on the other hand, Nicky's father has no desire to see his son, you must tell Nicky the truth.

DEAR DR. LOWRY: Your wife has a good memory, and you're right — it's time to publish this again. Also, if flight attendants would pass this information on to mothers traveling with very small babies, it would be very beneficial.

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with a man I don't know very much

DEAR ABBY: Here is a thought about infants and air travel. It is common, as the plane begins its descent, for several babies to start screaming. This is from low

Blood drive falls short of its goal

TWIN FALLS — The recent American Red Cross blood drive in Twin Falls failed to make the 240-pint quota for the two days. Bill Chibrow, executive secretary, said 188 pints were donated. But the need for blood continues to rise and can become critical during the summer when many donors are on vacation, he says. — At the same time, because of increased travel, camping and outdoor activities, accidents also increase, creating a greater need for blood during the summer.

Donors attaining new gallon levels include Woody Turley, eight gallons; Russell Schwartz, seven; Connie Wright and Marilyn Boss, four; Kevin Stanger and Stan Hurd, three. Julia Stroppe, Judy Sommer, Jean Cilek, Judy Schurz, Jeffery Silcock and Duane Okarma each received two-gallon pins, and Charles Jensen, Evelyn Woodard and Stephen Poppino, one gallon. The next drawing in Twin Falls is Sept. 11 and 12 with a goal of 120 units each day.

Letters of thanks

Thanks to Jack, Ernie for their farm
 The North-Side Soil Conservation District would like to thank Ernie France of Circle 4 Cattle Company and Jack VanBeek for inviting us to tour their farms. These farmers have found ways to effectively deal with their annual animal waste and are good examples of what the public wants from dairymen and cattlemen.
 Jack and Ernie are Jerome county citizens who themselves are concerned with the pollution of our environment. We thank them for opening their operations to public scrutiny from 65 people on the tour. Everyone learned about effective animal waste management from their examples.

Gooding Basques offer thanks for picnic success
 The Gooding Basque Association would like to thank everyone who helped make our eighth annual Basque Picnic a great success! A big thank you to all the workers who donated their time and help for cooking, baking, serving, cleaning and donations of bread and lamb. To Dick and Sue Burwell with Coors Distributing for donating beer. Also, we would like to thank the Arinak Basque dancers and Bernardo Yanci from Eiko, Nevada for coming down and performing and our own Basque dancers, the Euskaldi dancers from Gooding.
 A big thank you to Gary Osborne, our auctioneer. To Domingo Aguirre who was our master of ceremonies. Our great appreciation to Baeterrecher-Distributing for donating a refrigeration truck for transporting and keeping our food and drink cold. Also, to Borda Trucking for donating a flat bed trailer for our morning Mass. Thank you, John Etchart, for organizing and supplying the sheep and fencing for our sheep hooking contest.

 We would also like to thank the public for coming and supporting our event. We try every year to get more of the public involved in our picnic to have a fun time and join us in our celebration of our Basque heritage and traditions. We hope everyone had a good time and look forward to our ninth annual Basque Picnic next July.

Quality of garden vegetables varies with picking schedule

Many people grow their own vegetables so they can eat them fresh and "taste ripened." Vegetables do have better flavor when they are not shipped and stored for several days after harvest.

However, one mistake that many gardeners make is to let vegetables become overripe and tough before picking.

"I checked my peas a few days before they were ready, making a mental note that it was almost time to pick. A few days later, when I checked again, they were already bulging in the pods. They should have been picked at least two days earlier before they lost some of their sweetness and became tough. The same mistake can easily be made with beans. They are best picked before the

Allen Wilson
Intermountain
gardening

pods become full sized and the seeds become bumpy inside the pods. Beans should be picked every two or three days to get them at their best. Not only are they more tender and flavorful, but the plants will continue bearing longer and yield more.

Bell peppers and eggplant taste the same whether they are picked small or large. If the first fruit or two are picked while quite small, it will encourage the plants to set more fruit for later picking. It is easy to let many salad vegetables become over-sized.

Lettuce is less likely to be bitter if picked immature. Radishes are milder when small. Carrots can actually be eaten when they are the size of your little finger. Maybe if you thinned out the carrots a little, the remaining ones would grow better.

Many leaf vegetables will actually produce a second crop if you leave an inch or two of stem below where they are cut. If spinach is cut before it starts to bolt or produce seedheads, it will often grow a second set of leaves. Swiss chard, kale and collards will almost always regrow. Some kinds of leaf lettuce will also produce a second bunch.

Even early cabbage will sprout and grow three or four small heads about six weeks later if the first head is cut so as to leave three or four leaves. I usually remove all the sprouts but one so that I get one large second head rather than three or four very small ones.

The classic example of picking while young is summer squash, such as yellow crookneck and zucchini. Their ideal size is four to eight inches in length. They grow so fast that they are too small one day and too large the next. Cucumbers should also be picked before they become too large and the seeds become hard.

Sweet corn is one of the most critical to pick at the correct maturity. It becomes chewy and loses sweetness if allowed to become too ripe. Try breaking a kernel with your fingernail about an inch down from the tip. If it is watery, then it is not ripe yet. If creamy juice comes out, it is over ripe. Milky juice is just right for eating. Of course much of the sweetness of ordinary sweet corn is lost in just a few hours of storage.

Even the extra sweet or super sweet types which can be stored for several days are at their best when cooked within two or three hours after picking.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College. His column appears every Wednesday in The Times-News.

Exterior painting demands correct tools, techniques for best results

By THE READER'S DIGEST

Painting a home's exterior is time-consuming, but with the right paints and equipment you can produce professional-looking results.

Here are tips to help you select the equipment and paints best-suited to the job.

Selecting a Good Brush

Brushes come in many shapes and sizes but good brushes all have the following qualities:

• "Bristles are flagged," a term that signifies splits on the bristle end. The more flags the better — they help retain paint. Hog bristle is naturally flagged, synthetic bristle artificially flagged.

• Test for "bounce" by brushing bristles against the back of your hand. They should feel springy and elastic.

• When the brush is gently pressed on any surface, good bristles will not fan out excessively.

• Bristles should be solidly set to prevent fallout while painting. Jar the brush and fan the bristles — any loose bristles will be apparent. The metal band on a brush, the ferrule, is generally stainless steel or aluminum on better brushes.

Types of Brushes

• Both the area to be painted and the type of paint have a bearing on the size and style of brush. For painting large areas, use a flat 3- to 5-inch brush. For woodwork and other trim, a 1- to 2-inch brush is best.

• Calcimine brushes with very long, tough and elastic bristles are best for applying water-thinned paints to large areas. A special brush with very tough fiber or nylon bristles, ranging in width from 4- to 6-inches, is recommended for rough stucco or masonry surfaces.

Rollers and Pads

Rollers come in various sizes and with handles of different lengths. Special extensions help reach ceilings or floors without stooping.

• For average wall-ceiling work, a 7- or 9-inch wide roller is good. Other sizes range from 2-inch up to 18-inch. Special roller shapes are useful for special situations. A cone-shape roller can get into corners and a

V-shape will coat two sides of a corner at once.

• The roller cover should be compatible with the paint. Lamb's wool and synthetic fibers are excellent for latex and alkyd paints while enamel requires mohair. Rollers made of synthetic fibers can be used with all flat paints indoors or out.

The length of the nap of rollers varies from 1/8th to 1/4 inches. The smoother the surface being painted, the shorter the nap required. The rougher the surface, the longer the nap required.

• Brush pads apply paint quickly but tend to cause streaks. They are useful on siding, shingles, wide trim and similar flat surfaces.

Spray Painting

Paint sprayers are most suitable for painting large wall areas, fences and railings. Spray painting looks easy when done by a professional but it takes practice to lay the paint on evenly and without runs. Before spraying, mask windows, hardware and trim.

Choosing the Right Paint

Latex is "almost everyone's first choice for exterior paint because it is easy to apply, cleans up with water and dries quickly. On top of that, it's long lasting. However, if you don't know what you are painting over, choose alkyd paint. Alkyd will adhere to most surfaces, including chalking ones. Latex is more finicky about what old paints it will bond with. Paint dealers can assist you in making the proper choice and buying the right amount.

Here are some additional suggestions:

• Wood Siding: Use oil-based, alkyd-base or exterior latex paint. Latex is the easiest to use since it can be applied to damp surfaces and can be recoated in an hour or two.

• Shingles and Shakes: Use shingle stain or special, opaque shingle paint.

• Masonry: Use exterior latex paint or solvent-thinned masonry paint. On unpainted concrete, use Portland cement.

• Trim: Use varnish or alkyd-resin-base paints which are enamel-like, glossy and very hard. Similar paints are used for decks, patio floors and terraces.

• Gutters: Use asphalt paint on the insides and trim paint for the outsides.

Contractors can meet work deadlines

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

Q. I am having some remodeling work done on my house this summer and have gotten a date when it will be finished. Some of my friends say no contractor ever finishes his work when he says he will. This has me worried. Are my friends right and will this cause me a lot of trouble?

A. It can cause trouble if it happens. Yes, remodeling contractors do have the reputation of often being late in finishing a job, but this is by no means always so. There's a legal angle connected with requiring them to finish on time or very close to the scheduled date, but what you should do is to try to avoid the problem. One way to do this is to hire a contractor who has been recommended to you by somebody who actually has used him for the job. Ask blunt questions. One would be whether the contractor completes an assigned task when he says he will. A dissatisfied customer usually is only too eager to tell you what went wrong.

Q. I have read how difficult it is to tell which exact spot on a roof is responsible for a leak. That's right most of the time, but a neighbor helped me find the source of a roof leak without any trouble. He merely went into the attic on a sunny day, saw a trace of light coming through and ran a wire up through the opening. It then was easy to spot the wire from the top side of the roof. I thought your readers might be interested in this method.

A. Many thanks, That's an oldtime method that sometimes works and sometimes doesn't. But if the sun is shining on your complete roof at the time you make an inspection — or even if there is sufficient light without any sun — it often will work. People are usually surprised to find that the tiny opening in the roof is a considerable distance away from where water shows up on the inside.

Q. I soon will be working on my first major refinishing job, an old bureau from which I will be removing the finish and then refinishing with varnish. Since the wood is open-pored oak, I intend to fill it first, then stain it. Is this the correct procedure or should it be the other way around?

A. Yes, there is some difference of opinion regarding this wood-finishing practice. When it first came up many years ago some experimentation made it evident that it is a bit easier to apply the filler first, then the stain. That way, there is more chance of getting a uniform color. But the other opinion is held by many professional wood finishers. Can't you do a little testing of your own?
