Gem fires bring state emergency order

By The Associated Press

Gov. Cecil Andrus declared a state of extreme emergency Friday, allowing Idaho to enlist the National Guard's help in tackling the hundreds of fires burning out of control in the state.

The emergency proclamation will last for 30 days, or until the fire danger subsides.

The Boise Intermountain Fire Center estimated about 3,000 people were fighting Idaho fires Friday night or acting as support personnel. More than 14,000 acres had been blackened by late Friday.

The weather cooperated in northern Idaho Friday with high humidity that slowed down the flames, while the opposite was true for the Boise National Forest.

"The humidity dropped considerably," said Lynette Davis, Boise Forest spokeswoman. "When the air dried out, the fires got up and ran."

Lightning this week covered central Idaho with 600 fires, some limited to just a burning tree. Firefighters concentrated on the larger blazes, while smokejumpers or helicopter borne crews tackled the small ones.

A multi-agency group comprising the Boise and Payette national forests, Southern Idaho Timber Protective Association and Idaho Department of Lands deemed the 1,500-acre Fleming Creek fire near Banks north of Boise the top suppression priority, said Pam Gardner, fire information officer for the Payette Forest. It burned on state and federal land.

Idaho 55 was closed to motorists due to fire traffic Friday night, the Idaho State Police said. The second-place concern was the 600-acre Dollar Creek fire burning near the South Fork of the Salmon River east of Cascade because of its chance of causing erosion into the river.

Here is a summary of Friday's fire activity:

Boise National Forest: Management teams were rushed to the Lowman complex of fires northeast of Boise that burned 500 acres and the Warm Lake complex near Cascade that scorched another 600 acres. Ten bombers dropped slurry retardant on the flames, breaking the forest's old one-day record of eight planes.

Payette National Forest: About 500 firefighters from all over the West had contained 70 of 130 fires in the forest. One near Hells Canyon on Idaho's western border grew to 900 acres Thursday and jeopardized a convenience store near Brownlee Reservoir, but crews were able to prevent any property damage.

The McCall Airport was reopened with a new runway, Gardner said. Retardant planes had been forced to land in Boise, more.

Big Draw fire leaves lots of singed sage

By N. S. NOKKENTVED Times-News writer

JACKPOT - The only things visible from the air were two firefighters leaning against a pump-and-truck and one burning bush amid 6,500 acres of singed sagebrush.

But about 50 firefighters and six trucks, three each from the Burley and Elko districts of the Bureau of Land Management, Friday afternoon fought the Big Draw fire southeast of Jackpot.

The BLM expected to have the fire contained by 10 p.m. Friday.

The fire was started by lightning about noon Thursday in the Big Draw area of Tijuana John Mountain about 25 miles southeast of Jackpot. Winds of about 20-25 knots from the southwest quickly whipped the fire into a 1,400-acre inferno by early afternoon. At one point the fire tripled in size within a half-hour.

Wind-driven smoke spread over the South Hills and rolled toward Oakley. About 6:30 p.m. Thursday winds picked up again, and the fire grew to more than 5,000 acres overnight. By Friday afternoon it had grown to 6,500 acres.

Several range cattle were in the area but none were harmed.

In the Sawtooth National Forest, lightning had started 10 new fires since Thursday afternoon.

One 150-acre fire started about 4:30 p.m. at Sweetzer Summit near Black Pine. It was contained about 10 a.m. Friday, and Forest Service firefighters still were mopping up Friday evening.

A 10-acre fire in the Fairfield Ranger District was contained about noon Friday.

In the South Hills, a one-acre fire started about 5:30 p.m. Thursday also was contained by Friday afternoon.

The Sawtooth National Recreation Area had seven new lightning fire starts since Thursday, all of them minor.

"It looks like it's going to be a busy weekend," said Barbara Todd, spokeswoman for the Sawtooth National Forest. Afternoon thunderstorms are expected to continue through the weekend.

Meanwhile the fire danger level is "very high," with all fire lookouts manned seven days a week. Forest Service officials urge campers to be extremely careful with fires.

"With all the lightning fires, we don't need any person caused fires because we have our resources spread so thin," Todd said.

Hawkins bean settlement offers farmers 60-70 cents on dollar

By MARTA CLEAVELAND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Farmers with beans stored at Hawkins Co. Ltd. warehouses are being offered between 60 and 70 cents on the dollar for them in a liquidation settlement circulated by the bankrupt company's attorneys.

Offers to other creditors range from 40 cents on the dollar to full payment.

"This is the first proposal. This is the starting point," said Harry DeHaan, a Twin Falls lawyer representing a number of farmers. "Nobody's come forward with a concept," for distributing assets before now, he said.

The proposal reduces all bean grower claims to a dollar amount based on an average value of $24 per hundred weight sack, regardless of the type of bean claimed or the delivery year.

Growers who deposited 1988 beans are being offered 70 percent of their total collective claim for $4,708,213. That $3,295,749 averages out to $16.80 a sack, just above the average amount it cost to produce a sack of beans in 1988 - $16.66.

"You're just going to get your costs back, and that's not including attorneys' fees," said

Greg Hull, an uninvolved bean grower and owner of Curry Bean Co.

Growers who deposited beans before 1988 are being offered 60 percent of their total claims of $2,475,025. That $1,485,015 comes to $13.27 a sack, less than the 1988 cost of production.

"I think they should take it and run," Hull said. "I'd take it just for peace of mind."

He recommends farmers get this case behind them and concentrate on the current bean crop which is going to make money for them this fall. Dry bean prices are going to remain high, Hull predicts.

The current average price for beans is $30 a sack.

DeHaan said his farmer clients don't like the proposal's recommendation that Hawkins' administrative costs amounting to $120,000 be paid in full. Those costs are mainly Hawkins' attorneys' fees for Nelson, Rosholt, Robertson, Tolman & Tucker of Twin Falls.

DeHaan has not decided whether to recommend his clients accept all the specifics of the plan but he did say, "It would be beneficial for everybody to get together and split the pie up among themselves and go home."

Otherwise, the losers of a court judgment will surely appeal, sapping even more time and money from everyone, he said.

Hawkins' board of directors filed for bankruptcy Jan. 6. The company's bean warehouse license was suspended by the state in November after a year-end audit revealed inventory shortages.

Approximately 450 area farmers, several banks, and other bean dealers are embroiled in the legal tangle.

The case is now before U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Alfred Hagan in Boise.

The circulating proposal, which was composed by Hawkins' attorneys and dated

Lab mice shortage hinders research

The Associated Press

BAR HARBOR, Maine - A shortage of laboratory mice caused by a fire at a leading supplier is seriously impeding medical research across the United States, researchers say.

"Indeed, this loss is currently creating serious problems for research scientists all over the world," said Dr. James B. Wyngaarden, director of the National Institutes of Health, in a recent letter to the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor.

The laboratory is the world's leading center for the study of mouse genetics. A fire on May 10 destroyed the laboratory's mouse production facilities and killed 400,000 research mice.

Before the fire, the laboratory was supplying 20 percent of the nation's laboratory mice, including many unusual strains unavailable elsewhere and crucial to certain experiments.

The mice "are essential to research on arthritis, lupus, cancer, heart disease, AIDS, and some 4,000 hereditary diseases," said Nancy Wexler, president of the Hereditary Disease Foundation, in a letter to the laboratory.

In the weeks since the fire, the laboratory has received more than 1,500 letters from researchers offering their assistance and covering the loss, the laboratory's director, Kenneth Paigen, said Friday.

Paigen estimated the losses from the fire at $40 million.

No special Legislature session in works

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE - There will be no special session of the Idaho Legislature this year, Gov. Cecil Andrus and top legislators agree.

Andrus and the Republican leaders of the Idaho House and Senate conferred for more than an hour Friday afternoon, then emerged from the closed-door session in the governor's office to declare they had decided against a special session.

Andrus for months had been considering calling a special session, trying to limit it to a single issue - spending some of the $63.3 million surplus in the state budget to pay off the $5 million in bonds issued for a new College of Technology building at Boise State University.

Administration officials estimated the state could save $8.5 million in interest on the bonds by paying them off now, instead of over their 29-year life. But Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards and others contend the state could make more money by keeping the surplus and investing it at a higher rate than the 7.7 percent the bonds carry.

Besides the $63.3 million from the budget year that ended July 1, the Division of Financial Management estimated on Friday that based on current tax collections, there will be a surplus of $21.1 million by next July 1. That would give the Legislature an extra $84 million to consider in the two-year period.

"I think it's safe to say that after the meeting today, there will not be a special session," Andrus said. "We together determined that there was not adequate support to limit the session to one issue or one day."

"Realizing that, we decided that it probably

Soviets will find way to offset B-2, marshal says

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Soviet Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, a top military adviser to Mikhail Gorbachev, said Friday the Soviet Union will come up with a way to combat the B-2 bomber if the U.S. builds the radar-evading aircraft.

Akhromeyev, who capped a visit to the United States by meeting with President Bush in the Oval Office, also told the National Press Club that Soviet European nations are free to "become the kind of nations they wish to become."

He told an audience that included Adm. William J. Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that the trip in which he gave historic testimony to Congress had encouraged him that Soviet relations with the United States will continue to improve.

Still, he said although the decrease in tension between NATO and Warsaw Pact countries was "a tremendous accomplishment... the military threat, unfortunately, is still there."

He has traveled this week to Stanford University at the invitation of former Secretary of would be best to wait for the regular session agenda, "the governor said. "There are a lot of different positions and a lot of questions being asked," said Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls. "On balance, we feel the better thing to do is wait until January and address the whole picture all at once."

 "Everybody has a bit of an agenda, as you might guess," said House Speaker Tom Boyd, R-Greencastle. "If we weren't going to do this in one or two-day session" it would be better to wait, he said.
 Boyd acknowledged there would be more support from legislators if they thought their areas could benefit from a special session, such as authorization of more construction or other state projects.
 "We discussed all these items," the governor said. "once you start broadening the agenda, then the question comes, where do you stop."
 State Sen. Lynn Tominga, R-Rupert, said party leaders also discussed the special session question during a conference call Friday afternoon.
 "Really, there are too many things to try to take up in a special session so we decided it's best to leave them alone," Tominga said.

 Constitutional prohibitions against flag burning and limiting abortions were also bandied about during the telephone conference call as possible topics for a special session, Tominga said.
 "There are many economic and political issues," he said. "I think that's one of the reasons why it was decided not to have a special session. Those issues need a full airing."
 Crapo said the initial impetus behind a special session was to save money on the Technology bonds.
 "If we come to town just to spend money before our next session starts, it approaches the surplus we are now looking at in the wrong perspective," he said. "What we want to try to do is save money and spend it wisely but as far as those spending decisions go, they can all wait until January."
 The Legislature already has appropriated $500,000 to pay the first installment on the College of Technology bonds. Until Oct. 1—the state can pay off the bonds without penalty.

"We probably are going to investigate other ways of improving that payment schedule... the governor said. "That's adequate for me."
 Estimates are that it costs $20,000 to $30,000 per day to operate the Legislature depending on the level of staffing. Crapo and the other Republicans said if a special session convenes without clear agreement on what's going to be done, it can drag on.
 "There's the risk that what we would like to have is a very quick session, to come in and deal with one specific issue, could turn into a relative long and expensive session that costs $30,000 or $40,000 per day with many people debating many different issues because they wanted to see them on the table," said Crapo.
Correction
 A story in Thursday's Times-News incorrectly stated a fire truck Jerome hopes to buy can shoot water 55 feet. The truck is capable of spraying water much farther. The 55 feet should have referred to the length of the ladder, when extended. The Times-News regrets the error.

 June 20, states that the company believes continuing to litigate the case "would take an extended period of time, and would result in high costs and expenses... (that) would result in a substantially reduced pool of assets from which to make a distribution."
 The plan is to liquidate all Hawkins assets and distribute them in the same manner the company believes the bankruptcy court would do in applying Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code.
 According to the proposal, approximately 115,000 hundredweight sacks of beans have been sold for $4.72 million. The remaining 75,000 sacks are estimated to be worth $1,923 million. The total $6.65 million in proceeds from the bean inventory would be divided among Hawkins' unsecured creditors. The company has recommended a percentage distribution based on its evaluation of "the validity, priority and probability of success in litigation of the claimants."

 Growers of 1988 beans would receive 70 percent of their claims. Growers of pre-1988 beans would get 60 percent.
 Speculator G. Kent Taylor and Klein Brothers, another major bean dealer, would receive 70 percent on their 1988 beans. Klein would receive 60 percent on its pre-1988 beans. Taylor and Klein bought beans from Hawkins but had not yet collected or resold them before the warehouse was closed by the state.
 First Security Bank would get 60 percent. Other general unsecured trade creditors would collect 40 percent.
 The proposal says Hawkins is negotiating a sale of the company's physical assets, including real and personal property in Buhl and Filer. Hawkins estimates the sale of those assets will yield between $400,000 and $500,000, approximately the amount required to pay the secured claim of the Small Business Administration — on a loan — guaranteed through First Security Bank.

 The plan also calls for 100 percent payment of $46,910 to John Kenclion for land next to Hawkins' Filer warehouse that the company bought from him. Kenclion would be paid with proceeds from the resale of that land. The Farmers National Bank of Buhl has been collecting payments on the land for Kenclion.
 Although the plan states that copies were mailed to the attorneys of all parties in the bankruptcy suit on June 20, one prominent lawyer received his copy only two days ago, and another still has not received one.
 Hawkins' attorney Jim Tucker did not return phone call from the Times-News Friday.

Exxon will continue oil cleanup in any 'reasonable' manner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Exxon Corp. told Congress on Friday it is committed to any "reasonable" continuation of the Alaska oil spill cleanup next spring.

President Bush said he would do his best to make sure Exxon doesn't "pull back on an agreement."

Exxon officials testified the company intends to suspend cleanup activities in September because of oncoming winter weather and would return to see if more work is necessary in the spring.

But a top U.S. Coast Guard official said he expects "disagreements on what should be done" next year, with no clear consensus on how free of oil the stretches-of-rocky-Alaska-shore must be before being declared clean.

Exxon's plans in the cleanup of more than 700 miles of shoreline, damaged by the Exxon Valdez tanker spill last March, came under scrutiny this week with the disclosure of an internal company memorandum which said "no commitment should be made" on the timing of suspending or resuming cleanup operations.

Asked by reporters about the

Bush says he will win defense bill fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Friday predicted victory for his military priorities on Capitol Hill despite a series of defeats this week when the House demolished his defense spending proposals.

"I think we will prevail for most of what we want," the president said, standing behind the costly Strategic Defense Initiative, popularly known as Star Wars, and the B-2 stealth bomber as key components of his "strategic concept."

Funds for those two systems, along with Bush's request for the MX rail missile and the single-warhead Midgetman missile, were reduced or cut out completely in the House-passed version of the defense authorization bill on Thursday.

Bush confident of winning S&L fight with Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday he felt confident Senate Republicans would block Democrats from adding the multimillion-dollar cost of the savings and loan bailout to the budget deficit.

House and Senate negotiators reached agreement late Thursday on landmark legislation that would cost $165 billion over 10 years to close and rescue hundreds of failed S&Ls, sweeping overhaul the regulatory bureaucracy and impose tough new matter at a White House news conference Friday — hours after Exxon officials testified on Capitol Hill — Bush made clear he considers Exxon to have made a commitment to us.

"If I had the feeling Exxon was going to pull back on an agreement or fail to fulfill an agreement they'd made with us, with the government, or with the state of Alaska, I would be very much exercised and try my best to do something about it," said the president.

Alaska officials publicly interpreted the July 19 Exxon memo as an indication the company was preparing to pull out of a cleanup effort that was far from completed. The brouhaha prompted Friday's hearing by the Interior Subcommittee on Water, Power and Offshore Energy Resources, during which Exxon was asked to detail its intentions.

The memo, written by the manager of Exxon's cleanup operation in Alaska, "suggests Exxon is putting together its plan for demobilization without Coast Guard approval," said Rep. George Miller,

"I am disappointed that the House did what they did," Bush said. He noted that the lawmakers restored money for some of the systems that he and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney advocated cutting out.

"Yesterday was not the House's most memorable moment, but we're going to keep fighting on for what we believe in," he said.

Bush made the comments at a wide-ranging news conference that he called to spotlight the switch by Rep. Tommy Robinson of Arkansas from the Democratic to the Republican Party.

Touching on other areas in which he is encountering rough sledding in Congress, the president:

— Staunchly defended his financial standards on the industry.

However, Bush wants to keep $50 billion of the spending out of the budget deficit in the next three years. He objects to the Democratic plan which would balloon the reported deficit, while at the same time waiving the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law to avoid automatic spending cuts.

The package next goes to the full House, where a vote is expected Wednesday or Thursday, and then to D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee.

W.D. Stevens, president of Exxon Co. USA, said the wording of the memo was "unfortunate."

He said the company will withdraw its equipment and estimated 10,000 workers from the contaminated region beginning Sept. 15 because of potential safety problems with rough seas and weather. But he said Exxon would "return to the areas in the spring of 1990 to reinspect the area, to assure that the job has been properly done, and if not, to put it right."

Pressed by Miller on whether Exxon plans to resume cleanup operations in the spring, Stevens said he could not give "an unequivocal commitment" and added, "I think it would be naive to do that."

"We will follow through on any reasonable request that is made (by the U.S. Coast Guard)," said Stevens, adding that there likely will be "scientific disagreement" over what areas are clean and whether further work is needed.

embattled nominee to head the Justice Department's civil rights division, William Lucas.

Said he still wants a constitutional amendment to ban burning of the American flag, but "I will see what comes down" in congressional legislation that Democrats say would do the same thing. The House Judiciary Committee this week approved the legislation and blocked consideration of a constitutional amendment.

Said he is willing to "see what can be worked out" on cutting the capital gains tax.

His proposal has encountered substantial Democratic opposition as a boon to the rich.

The full Senate before Congress recesses Aug. 5 for vacation.

Senate rules permit 41 senators to block any waiver of the Gramm-Rudman law and Bush predicted at a news conference his position would prevail.

Greenpeace boats halt sub missile tests

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Four anti-nuclear activist vessels sailed into an off-limits danger zone Friday and halted a Navy attempt to test-launch a Trident 2 missile from a submerged submarine, the Navy said.

After the Greenpeace U.S.A. vessels had harassed the submarine USS Tennessee and its support ships for several hours, ignoring warnings to leave, the Navy called off the test launch which had been scheduled in the Atlantic 50 miles offshore from the USS Tennessee.

"A planned Trident test missile launch was terminated today because of intentional interference from foreign flag ships in a designated hazardous operational area," the Navy said in a statement. The statement said repeated warnings had been ignored by the intruding vessels and that "concern for safety of the interfering ships precluded the launch of the test missile."

"We're happy about it, of course," Greenpeace spokeswoman Shannon Fagan said. "But we would be happier if the Navy cancelled the Trident 2 missile altogether."

Fagan said two large Greenpeace ships and two motorized rafts shadowed the submarine for hours, exercising their right to operate in international waters. Safety regulations require that a countdown be stopped if non-essential boats approach within about three miles of the submarine.

One of the motorized rafts slipped right up to the submerged Tennessee and twice attached "nuclear free seas" banners to the submarine, one to the radio mast and one on the side, Fagan said.

She also reported a Navy whale boat dispatched from a destroyer twice rammed one of the Greenpeace boats, the 60-foot ketch Monticville, after warning it and the other intruding vessels that they were in danger because a missile launch was imminent. Damage was minor, she said.

"Our captain radioed-back that he did not recognize U.S. Navy jurisdiction there because it was in international waters," said Fagan, in a telephone conversation from the Greenpeace command post.

Americans fear Japan's economy

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are more concerned by the economic threat from Japan than by the military threat from the Soviet Union by a 3-to-1 margin, a poll shows.

In the poll for the Aug. 7 issue Business Week magazine, 68 percent of respondents named Japan as the biggest threat to the future of the United States, while 22 percent named the Soviet Union, and 10 percent rated them equal or were not sure.

Sixty-eight percent felt American companies' troubles exporting to Japan were partly the result of unfair Japanese barriers, 57 percent said American products were too expensive and 38 percent said they were not as good as Japanese products.

Respondents were read a list of proposals that "might make the Japanese markets more receptive to this country products" and were asked if they favored, or opposed.

Magistrate postpones trial of Air Force men accused of F-16 engine theft

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal magistrate has postponed until next week ruling on a defense motion to split into two trials 21 charges against a Hill Air Force Base security policeman accused of stealing three F-16 jet engines.

At a Thursday hearing, Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Luback agreed to several defense requests for government evidence and witness names in the case against Airman 1st Class Brian David Roth. However, the prosecutor drew the line at the proposed severance.

Roth's court-appointed lawyer, Jerold D. McPhee, said the highly publicized engine theft could produce a jury trying his client on 19 charges of theft of other Air Force property ranging back to Octo ber 1987.

Roth alone is accused in those cases, which involve $103,750 worth of items from helmets to jet fighter instruments.

In the $8 million July 3 engine theft, the 22-year-old Roth is charged with Sr. Airman Danny Joe Stroud, 23, and Stroud's wife, Kimberly, 22. Roth and Stroud also are accused of stealing 16 computers worth more than $64,000 from Hill and selling them to federal undercover agents

June 13. McPhee wants the high-profile, high-value cases in which Roth and Stroud both are allegedly involved to be separated from the other charges against his client.

But Luback argued that all the charges are related and therefore should be tried in one case.

Since neither the government nor defense had filed memoranda on the motion, U.S. Magistrate Ronald N. Boyce delayed his decision until another hearing on Wednesday.

He also may rule on a motion by McPhee to delay the Sept. 18 trial because it would conflict with the defense attorney's National Guard training.

Federal investigators said the arrest of Roth and Stroud and recovery of the engines capped a 2½-year undercover investigation of theft of military parts from bases in the West and Southwest.

U.S. Attorney Dee V. Benson said earlier this month that there were plans to prosecute more than 100 people, about 45 of whom worked at Hill. However, FBI Special Agent James Sorenson said Friday that the bureau has made no arrests since apprehending Roth and Stroud July 10.

Prostitute tells of party at Australian Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prostitute who worked for an escort service under federal investigation says she had sexual encounters with several men last November in a room with "office-type furniture" at the Australian Embassy, the Washington Times reported Friday.

An embassy spokesman said an internal investigation was launched three weeks ago when the newspaper first questioned officials about the woman's story but has developed no evidence to corroborate her account.

"We have not been able to corroborate this story and with the processes we have in place we would have expected to have found something if such a gathering took place," spokesman Brett Bayly told

The Associated Press.

He said all guests have to sign into the building and would need an escort to enter non-public areas.

Bayly said embassy officials were continuing their investigation and "have been in touch with American authorities." He declined to be more specific when asked to identify the U.S. officials or agencies that had been contacted.

EPA report: 30 million more breathe dirty air

Dirty Air

Cities and areas that made the "severe" category for ozone pollution and the "serious" category for carbon monoxide levels. Ozone cleanup is required by Dec. 31, 2010 and carbon monoxide cleanup is required by Dec. 31, 2000.

Source: Environmental Protection Agency. EPA/F. Dominguez

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dirty air spread last year with 30 million more Americans living in areas where they breathed levels of air pollutants the government considers harmful, the Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday.

The agency said the latest figures, which cover the recent three-year period, mean that at least 101 areas will be required to take additional air pollution control measures under new clean air legislation that is likely to emerge from Congress this year.

In all, about 110 million people — better than four of every 10 Americans — were breathing air that at least during some summer days in 1988 had some levels considered to be unhealthy, according to the EPA figures. The year earlier the number was about 80 million. The EPA attributed the higher levels last year of ozone — a principal component of smog — largely to the fact that the country suffered through one of the hottest summers in half a century. Ozone is created when hydrocarbons, mainly from automobiles, combine with severe heat and dust.

All but two of the 37 new areas where ozone levels exceeded federal standards were east of the Mississippi where the 1988 summer was particularly severe. In 44 areas the air also had unhealthy levels of carbon monoxide, slightly fewer than previous years.

Severe smog pollution can cause a variety of respiratory ailments including impaired breathing and chest pain, while long-term exposure can cause permanent lung tissue damage, according to medical experts.

While the unusually hot 1988 summer may have been largely to blame for the surge in air pollution, EPA officials said the statistics reinforce the need for swift action in Congress on legislation tightening air pollution controls.

"This sharp increase in the number of areas not yet meeting the ozone standard is dramatic proof of the pressing need for a new clean air bill," said EPA Administrator William Reilly.

The 1988 figures will be used by the EPA in determining what action a state will require of local communities to clean up the air under new federal air pollution laws being debated in Capitol Hill.

William Rosenberg, EPA's associate administrator for air, said that while some of the targeted communities may again come into compliance if the summer heat eases, most of the 101 geographic regions will have to impose additional pollution controls under the expected clean air legislation.

Under the administration proposal before Congress, the four metropolitan areas with the most severe pollution in 1988 — the New York, Chicago, Houston and Los Angeles areas — would be required to phase in automobiles using alternative fuels as well take other pollution control measures.

The four areas would be given 20 years to come into compliance. Chicago was added to the four after the final 1988 ozone figures were tabulated, while the other three have for some time been considered to have the nation's worst air pollution.

Another 27 cities are considered by the EPA to have "serious" ozone pollution. Under the president's proposal they would have 10 years to come into compliance by tightening auto emission inspections, the use of alternative fuels in some cases, and curbing air pollutants in some businesses — such as bakeries and dry cleaners as well as in refueling cars at gas pumps.

These areas would be required to establish a program of pollution control to reduce emissions by 3 percent a year until they attain compliance with the federal standard.

Cities that fail to meet mandates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are lists of cities that fail to meet federal requirements for ozone and carbon monoxide.

While areas are grouped under provisions of President Bush's clean air proposal, Congress could choose a different system if it passes new legislation. Also, Congress could choose to accept the health bill but push the deadlines, which assume final passage by Jan. 1.

The moderate and marginal areas for ozone have the same deadlines but would differ in the measures required for cleanup.

FAA considers more safety measures

By ERIC ANDERSON States News Service

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the possibility of requiring new equipment designed to stop fuel from exploding during airline accidents such as the recent United Airlines DC 10 crash in Iowa.

Flight 282 attendants tell story

CHICAGO (AP) — A flight attendant who survived United-Flight 232's fiery crash says she looked out and saw an Iowa field and parts of the jettisoned "slush" coming apart.

When the DC-10's tail section where she was seated came to rest, Donna McGrady said she and another flight attendant helped people out of the wreckage and then realized the severity of the crash.

"At that particular time, to come out and to look and to see nothing but debris ..." she said, her voice breaking. "I said, 'Oh, God, where is the other part of the aircraft?'"

McGrady and four other United Airlines flight attendants who survived the crash joined three others who helped on the ground at a news conference sponsored by their union, the Association of Flight Attendants.

Seven of the eight working attendants aboard the DC-10 were among the 185 survivors. Rene LeBonou, 29, of Schaumburg, was one of the 111 who died in the July 19 crash landing near Sioux City, Iowa.

Many of the dozens of United employees who attended the news conference dabbed at tears while Ms. McGrady described her joy at seeing survivors emerge from the wreckage.

"I said, 'Thank you, Jesus, for the things that you've done for us because we know there's no other way we could have made it without your presence,' she said.

"It was so good to see them," said flight attendant Becky Larson, who was not aboard the plane but helped survivors at the crash scene.

Woman assumes Fort Hall post

FORT HALL (AP) — When Louise Dixey takes office Monday as the new chief judge of the Fort Hall Tribal Court, she will become the fifth woman in 58 years to hold the post.

"The chief judge needs to have a feeling for the cultural background of the tribe and a good awareness of tribal government and the tribal constitution," Mrs. Dixey said.

Appointed by the Tribal Business Council to a five-year term, Mrs. Dixey said one of her goals is to implement a computer system for the court which will handle scheduling and paperwork. Presently, the court uses a small word processing system.

A second goal is to find funding to provide training for court personnel on current issues in tribal law.

Pocatello examines solicitation ban

POCATELLO (AP) — Pocatello's old door-to-door ordinance has been rejected by the courts, so city officials say they're working on a new one which might require salesmen to obtain a license, deposit a $500 bond and submit to a police background check, according to City Attorney Ivan Legler.

Pocatello officials began looking at alternatives after the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals struck down the city's original sales ban, ruling it was unconstitutional. Council members felt a new law was preferable to undertaking further court appeals.

"Though some residents have experienced door-to-door sales pitches in recent days, the problem so far has not been great."

"Fortunately, we've not been bombarded with either salesmen or complaints," said City Attorney Ivan Legler. "But there could be a time when that might occur and we need to be prepared."

Senate OKs fish bypass projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved $9.9 million for projects designed to help fish bypass a half-dozen federal dams on the Snake and Columbia rivers.

The appropriation approved by the Senate Thursday night must win its way through a House-Senate conference committee, but Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Friday he's confident the House will go along.

McClure said he and Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, have worked on funding for fish bypass facilities at Columbia and Snake River dams the last two years. The appropriation the last two years was $18.3 million and adding in the current appropriation, the total will be $28.2 million.

The $9.9 million for the new federal budget includes $4.1 million for a permanent gate raise and new transportation facilities at Little Goose Dam.

McClure said other projects include $1 million for fish screens and bypass systems at The Dalles Dam; $1.6 million for extended-length fish screens at McNary Dam; $100,000 each for fish screens and bypass systems at Ice Harbor and Lower Monumental dams and $3 million for permanent gate raise and a deflector test at Lower Granite Dam.

Kellogg police organize union

KELOGG (AP) — A union official will ask the City Council to recognize the unionization of Kellogg Police Department employees.

Steve Brown, a United Steelworkers of America staff representative, said Thursday he has organized most of the department's employees.

Brown sent a letter to council members and Mayor Mervin Hill asking for time to discuss ordinances that would allow recognition of the union.

Andrus appoints nuclear coordinator

BOISE (AP) — A top official of Idaho's Department of Health and Welfare will serve as coordinator of a state-committee reviewing operations at a federal nuclear research center in eastern Idaho.

Gov. Cecil Andrus announced Friday that David Humphrey, deputy director of Health and Welfare, will be overall coordinator for the state's oversight committee on Idaho National Engineering Laboratory operations.

Humphrey will report directly to the governor. Andrus asked the Legislature this year to create a permanent oversight committee on INEL. The Department of Energy, which operates INEL, also contributed $400,000 to finance the function.

Humphrey has management and supervision responsibility for both the Division of Environmental Quality and the Division of Health.

"Mr. Humphrey's expertise in the environmental and health areas make him both the logical and best choice to oversee the day-to-day oversight program," the governor said.

Since the first of this year, Humphrey has been performing many of the state's oversight coordination responsibilities. He has been the governor's personal representative on a panel commissioned by Energy Secretary James Watkins which is reviewing DOE's proposed five-year environmental restoration programs. Humphrey also has been extensively involved in state activities concerning nuclear waste cleanup at INEL and the state's response to the supplemental environmental impact statement on the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP) near Carlsbad, N.M.

The governor said Humphrey will be responsible for producing a report to the next Legislature on the oversight program.

The governor also said Health and Welfare has appointed Steve R. Hill, Boise, as INEL technical project manager.

Hill most recently has been permit officer and senior hazardous materials specialist in the state environmental agency. He has experience with federal and state environmental and hazardous waste laws and has done considerable work in groundwater monitoring.

Man recovers from infection that received national note

POCATELLO (AP) — Mel Mitchener didn't think much about it when he noticed some soreness and a small bruise on his left knee last June 10.

Within a few days he was running a high fever and went to bed with what he thought was a bad case of the flu.

On June 16, friends had to break his door down in order to get him to the doctor. His ailment was originally diagnosed as scarlet fever. Meantime, his knee swelled and the discoloration spread.

Mitchener, 46, was hospitalized two days later. He doesn't remember much about his hospitalization. He was too sick.

Suffering from pneumonia and kidney failure, Mitchener said he doesn't remember much about that critical time. He was told he was visited by friends, but he doesn't remember any of his visitors. Doctors confirmed he was suffering from a highly toxic strep infection similar to one documented as the cause of serious illness or death in 20 patients in four Intermountain states, including at least two others in Pocatello.

The bacteria has characteristics of the strep infection which can lead to scarlet fever. It gained national attention following publication of an article written, in part, by two Idaho physicians, which appeared in "The New England Journal of Medicine."

Mitchener remained hospitalized until June 23.

Civil rights chief bemoans Idaho job difficulties

BOISE (AP) — Blacks have a tougher time finding jobs in Idaho than whites with similar job skills, says a Boise civil rights leader.

"Because of the small number of blacks in Idaho, one would think race would have little effect on their economic condition," said Bertha Edwards, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"There are still quite a number of blacks that find it difficult to find jobs here," she said. "I knew one black individual who came to Idaho with two college degrees and it took 18 months for him to find a job."

A national report released Thursday said despite large economic gains black Americans have made over the last 50 years, their progress has stagnated or worsened relative to whites since the early 1970s.

The National Research Council report said blacks have been hurt by a slowdown in the U.S. economy the last two decades.

The 1980 Census reported that 2,716 of Idaho's 943,835 residents were black. Alan Porter of the Idaho Department of Commerce said blacks in Idaho may face some of the same kinds of economic pressures as blacks in other parts of the country.

Night out proves nightmare for contestant

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A "Night on the Town" with Billy De Williams was no fun for a contest winner who says the star was busy doing deals and signing autographs and then left a nightclub without her.

"I was very humiliated, very upset," Dolphine Hamilton, 30, said this week of her recent date.

CHUCK NORRIS

WALTER PAYTON

Hamilton bought a new outfit for the night and borrowed her sister's $80 patent leather bag, which she lost.

"I was excited. Everybody in the neighborhood was happy for me. They couldn't hardly believe it was me," she said.

At the nightclub, Williams signed autographs for 1 1/2 hours, she said.

When Hamilton realized the entourage was leaving without her, she burst into tears, complaining loudly she hadn't gotten the cab fare she was promised.

She said she ran to the limousine and was told to get the fare from radio station WDAS, which ran the contest.

Both E. Steven Collins, WDAS promotion director, and Bill Owens, a spokesman for Williams, denied her account.

Collins, who described Hamilton's behavior as unruly, said he gave her $40 for cab fare.

Norris, Payton fail in speedboat attempt

DETROIT (AP) — Movie tough-guy Chuck Norris and former Chicago Bears star Walter Payton lost their bid to upstage a world speedboat record held by former President Reagan's son, Michael.

It took the two over 14 hours to make the open-water powerboat trip Thursday from Chicago to Detroit. Reagan's trip in 1983 was made in a little over 12 1/2 hours.

A mechanical malfunction forced the Norris-Payton boat to dock in Mackinaw City to replace a 45-cent part. The repairs took almost two hours.

The boat also lost a propeller.

Man sues 'People's Court,' wins judgment of $1500

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who took the "People's Court" to the real thing has obtained a victory with a court commissioner's order that the TV show pay him $1,500.

"Our reaction is the same as some of the reactions of the people who walk out of our courtroom — disbelief," said Phillip Vandervort, associate producer of the show.

Louis DeGeorge, 62, took "People's Court" to small claims court last week, claiming he was misled when he agreed to appear on the show in February.

DeGeorge said he was told that despite whatever ruling "People's Court" Judge Joseph Wagner made he would receive a $250 appearance fee plus the $1,500 in damages he was seeking from his former apartment house manager.

But "People's Court" policy is to guarantee damage payments only to litigants who win their cases, Vandervort argued.

Wagner, a retired Superior Court judge whose word is the law on the 8-year-old TV show, ruled in February that DeGeorge failed to prove that the apartment manager's 11-year-old son smashed a mirror on his pickup truck.

Los Angeles Municipal Court Commissioner Linda Elliott ruled Ralph Edwards Productions misrepresented its payment policy.

The show was ordered to pay the $1,500 and DeGeorge's $26 court costs.

"I was elated," said DeGeorge, who learned of the ruling by mail Tuesday. "They are big shots in the movie industry and television movie was released Friday.

Pia Zadora and hubby to remodel 'Pickfair'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Pickfair, the fabled mansion where Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks held court for early Hollywood stars, is about to be transformed into a Renaissance-style Venetian palazzo by Pia Zadora and her husband.

The redone mansion will have tile roofs, leaded windows, balconies, verandas and a new, Italian-style front entrance, made up of two tiers of flanking stairs ascending from a driveway.

"The house has been changed through the years a number of times so that it no longer is the original Pickfair," said Paul Selwyn, chairman of the city's Planning Commission, which gave its initial approval to the project Wednesday night.

One thing that won't change is the name.

"Pickfair will be called Pickfair," the actress' husband, multimillionaire businessman Meshulam Riklis, said in a statement.

The couple bought the estate, which sits atop a knoll on three acres, from Los Angeles Lakers' owner Jerry Buss for $6.675 million last year.

Movie villain Jason loses one in New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Jason, the hockey-masked killer who is back for more slashing in the latest "Friday the 13th" film, lost one battle where he was out of his depth.

Ads for the new movie, "Jason Takes Manhattan," didn't sit well with state Economic Development officials who objected to their use of a copyrighted "I Love New York" logo.

The ads showed Jason, who periodically rises to slash up a camp full of teen-agers, cutting through the heart of a logo poster.

"You slash our heart, we'll cut you off at the knees," said state agency spokesman Harold Holzer. "There's someone in New York who's tougher than Jason," he said, referring to the agency's commissioner, Vincent Tese.

Paramount Pictures said it would drop the "I Love New York" logo state officials said Thursday.

Paramount spokeswoman Deborah Rosen said the poster was to be dropped anyway once the industry, so this was really like David against Goliath.

DeGeorge played for Ms. Elliott a taped message left on his answering machine by a "People's Court" researcher, Richard Velasquez.

Velasquez, who no longer works for the show, promised a guaranteed $1,500 as well as $250 if DeGeorge appeared on the show, Elliott ruled.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Anti-flag burning drive in full swing

TWIN FALLS - The teacher who began a petition drive encouraging Congress to protect the U.S. flag says she has about 900 signatures from supporters across the state.

Kathy Gardner said her call for a constitutional amendment to nullify the Supreme Court's decision allowing flag burning has spread far beyond Twin Falls as area veterans groups have distributed the petition.

Although she would prefer to see legislation rather than an amendment to bar desecration of the flag, Gardner said she has yet to see a bill that would meet the court's guidelines.

The petition will be sent to Idaho's congressional delegation in Washington, D.C., the third week in August, with an accompanying cover letter asking that the protection be given without an amendment if possible, she said.

Jerome Fire Department expansion goes to voters

JEROME - Voters here go to the polls Tuesday to decide whether to approve a $400,000 bond issue for improvements to the city's fire department.

The bond would pay for a ladder-pumper fire truck, an expansion of the fire station and some fire-fighting equipment. The bond would cost residents 48 cents for every $1,000 of assessed property value.

The polls are open from noon-8 p.m. The First Precinct votes at the library. The Second Precinct votes at City Hall.

Country music, contests, highlight Mindokda fair

RUPERT - The Mindokda County Fair and Rodeo, featuring singer Michael Martin Murphy and a grandma queen contest, begins Monday.

The Country Western Jamboree, with Murphy and Patty Lovelace, is Monday. Tickets for their 8 p.m. performance are $12, $10 and $6.

On Tuesday, kids ages 10 and under will compete in the Tiny Tot Horse Gymkana at 6 p.m. in the rodeo arena. The Wednesday and Thursday rodeo competitions already boast a record 292 entrants. Pre-rodeo events begin at 7:30 and tickets will cost $4 and $3.

Also Thursday, grandmothers who are at least 50 years old, will compete to be chosen queen. The winner will be crowned at about 8:30 p.m. during the rodeo.

A stock horse and mule show is set for 6:30 p.m. Friday. At noon Saturday a horse gymkana is scheduled. Both of these events are free to the public. Entrance to the fair is also free.

At 7 p.m. Saturday one of the fair's more popular events, the Intermountain Draft Horse Pull, begins. Admission is $4 and $3.

Armed man shuts himself, two children in house

TWIN FALLS - Police blocked off a section of Ramage Street in the South Park area Friday night after an armed man barricaded himself in a house with his two children.

Commander Pat Bermingham said the incident began about 9 p.m., and about 90 minutes later police were still trying to persuade the man to come out. He said the man had a small-caliber handgun.

Bermingham described the incident in the 200 block of Ramage Street as a "family feud." No shots had been fired, and the man had made no threats, he said.

The man was still in the house at press time.

Hailey embezzlement case goes to trial in November

HAILEY - A trial date has been set in 5th District Court for Blaine County Deputy Auditor Gail Louise Peterson of Carey.

Peterson is charged with nine counts of grand theft for allegedly embezzling $15,909 in checks and money orders between June 1988 and March 1989. Peterson pleaded innocent at her preliminary hearing.

Judge James May scheduled a jury trial for Nov. 21 at the Blaine County Courthouse. Peterson is free on a $10,000 bond.

Peterson and her attorney, Keith Roark, were unavailable for comment.

Members' hearty tabs prompt council action

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - On the heels of a $2,200 golf tournament tab accumulated by three City Council members, city officials are considering a law that would require council approval to pay for such events.

Voting at a public meeting would remove doubts about whether city-related business trips are condoned by the council, Councilman Jim Vickers said Friday.

Councilmen Rick Carr and Gale Kleinkopf and Mayor Doug Vollmer attended the 15th Annual Governor's Cup in Sun-

Valley last month, at a cost to the city of $2,200. The trip was informally approved at a May work session by all council members except Mary McClusky, who was absent, Vickers said.

The trip became a public issue last week when Bill Hanchey, president of the Twin Falls Police Benefit Fund, objected. In light of the city's tight budget, he asked why did all three City Council members need to attend the tournament?

The ordinance would give Hanchey and anyone else a forum to object to business trips before decisions are made, said Councilman Tom Condit, who is proposing the ordinance. "This clears the air," he said. "It will all be done up front, not in a work session."

The ordinance would also include a clause requiring the council to approve each month's expenditures.

Condit is also proposing having two council members review each city bill. The two members would change every month.

"I think we have to take a more active role in watching the city's expenditures," Condit said.

Kleinkopf said the council is already informally approving trips, but he would not object to a formal system.

As far as city employees are concerned, however, he said department heads should decide when city business trips are warranted.

"It is not the City Council's responsibility to become involved in day-to-day workings," he said.

He said the council should be aware of trips made by city workers, but requiring prior approval could impede city business.

Condit said in emergencies city employees would be allowed to take trips, but the matter would be discussed at the next city meeting.

Filer fun fest

ivities. The celebration continues today in Filer with a parade, stage entertainment, and the 'chicken drop' contest in City Park.

EPA lenient with new regulations

Violators won't be prosecuted if they turn themselves in

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Environmental Protection Agency announced Friday it will give amnesty to dairy and feedlot owners who are violating discharge rules - if they turn themselves in before October.

"It's to encourage people who might have been afraid or are playing the numbers game, just waiting for the EPA to catch them," said Dan McDonough with the EPA's Idaho Operation Office.

He said the EPA has caught 18 operations illegally discharging waste during the past year, including one in Buhl that could cost owners $4,000 and one in Wendell that could cost owners $6,000.

Since 1987, dairies with more than 300 head and feedlots with more than 200 head have been required to tell the EPA if they have facilities that might be discharging animal waste into streams, rivers, lakes or other state waters.

The requirement is part of a general Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations permit owners of dairies and feedlots must obtain.

"There are probably 1,000 dairies in the Magic Valley," McDonough said, "but only about 160 dairies from across the state have come forward."

He said that although many owners have adequate waste disposal systems, he figures more than 160 operations are violating the rules.

He said the EPA's goal is not to penalize dairy or feedlot owners, but to work with them to improve their systems.

Lynn McKee, EPA's regional director, said the EPA intends to work with the operators to develop reasonable schedules for site improvements, so that they can begin meeting the rules as soon as possible.

"Developing such schedules is only possible when the operators come forward and discuss their situation with us," McKee said.

Bellevue council approves sewer proposals

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE - The City Council unanimously approved three key recommendations concerning the recently approved city sewer system and set a public hearing for next month to discuss them.

The council went on record supporting a site near the Big Wood River as the best location for the planned sewage treatment plant.

The river site is not in the floodplain, as previously assumed, and should be approved by the Environmental Protection Agency, Forsgren Associates engineer Vance Forsgren told the council.

The other site the council considered was south of town east of Highway 75. But that was an agricultural land, "an area more suitable for future development," Councilman Dennis Wright said.

Council members tended to favor the river site, also because it is located in an area zoned industrial between an asphalt plant and a gravel pit. The property's owner appears willing to sell 20 acres the city needs, "but we haven't discussed price," Forsgren said.

The council also voted to support a treatment plant that uses aerated lagoons. An alternative system might cost $40,000-$45,000 more a year to operate, Forsgren said.

The council also decided to support the use of chlorine as a disinfectant rather than a lamp system whose light-kills bacteria. Both methods are equally effective, but the lamp system is more expensive, Forsgren said.

The hearing is tentatively set for Aug. 22 at Bellevue Elementary School.

Voters last month voted 104-64 to approve a $1.15 million bond to help pay for the city's first sewer system. The balance of the $3 million project will be paid for through government grants.

In other matters:

• Forsgren agreed to study the city's water system, following complaints from residents about the lack of pressure.

• Councilman Gary Peak chaired the meeting for Mayor Wayne Douthett, who was away on personal business. Douthett had been under fire from several Bellevue residents who had sought his recall. Two of those residents, John Clary and Sharon Blondin, stated earlier that they would begin attending council meetings. Both Clary and Blondin attended.

• Agreed to postpone a plan to renumber all of Bellevue's homes until Forsgren engineers complete their own mapping as part of the sewer installation plans.

• Budgeted $1,000 for a fence around the tennis court in the city park.

• Accepted the Rural Fire Department's offer to upgrade the City's Honor Roll Board.

Underground gasoline seepage sparks lawsuit

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - No one knows yet how much gasoline leaked from an underground tank at a former service station, but property owners are demanding that station operators pay the cleanup costs.

In a lawsuit filed this week with the 5th District Court, Western Appraisal and Investment Co. claims Ernest W. and Janet Carlson should be liable for contamination at and around the Fofxire Petroleum station, at 1112 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Western Appraisal contends that the Carlsons assumed responsibility of maintaining the property when they signed a lease agreement three years ago.

The station closed earlier this year. The Carlsons are now living in Salt Lake City and could not be reached for comment Friday.

Meanwhile, Western Appraisal is footing the bill for an investigation and cleanup at the station.

Mike McMasters, water quality and field supervisor for the state Department of Environmental Quality, said the costs could reach "tens of thousands" of dollars.

McMasters' office and the federal Environmental Protection Agency were notified this spring that the underground tank for unleaded gasoline was leaking.

"There's no way we can determine the quantity (that leaked)," McMasters said.

The Department of Environmental Quality is conducting studies to determine if groundwater has been contaminated.

"It may be weeks or months yet before we know," he said.

McMasters said the public would be warned in case of a health threat.

New EPA regulations increased scrutiny of underground gasoline tanks late last

Survey: Gooding hospital should stay open

By MIKE BENTON
Times-News correspondent

GOODING - The county hospital here should remain open, most people responding to a recent survey said.

About the same number, however, said the hospital shouldn't get additional tax dollars and about one-third said it already receives too much.

The survey results were generally positive toward the hospital. Among the concerns, all from less than half of the respondents, are too few physicians, medical costs and the quality of some medical personnel. The hospital rated high in such items as cleanliness, out-patient services and nursing care.

While pleased with results, Administrator Mike Piper still expressed some reservations. "I think they probably could be more positive," he said. "There's considerable room for improvement I feel."

The statistics also have a major problem, Piper said, because the survey area was too large, thus some respondents were people who live closer to other hospitals. "We felt we probably should have narrowed it down to a tighter service area. It might have been more meaningful," he said.

The survey was mailed to residents of the area bounded by Glens Ferry, Dietrich, Fairfield and Wendell. But 19 percent of the results came from areas outside the County-Shoshone physicians' medical center.

A major concern among respondents - 70 percent - is the desire for additional physicians. Family practitioners were chosen by 83 percent as being the most needed specialties. Obstetricians/gynecologists were next, at 51 percent, followed by pediatricians, 46 percent.

A shortage of physicians has been a problem for Gooding Memorial, Piper said. The hospital spent on more doctors, and is working on a fourth. "Physician coverage is our weak point," he said. "A lot of the issues revolve around physician services and that's what we're focusing on."

The most recent addition is surgeon Nejat Tajen, who received his surgical training at Brooklyn Methodist Hospital, in Brooklyn, N.Y., and Charleston General Hospital in Charleston, W.V. He practiced for 17 years in Delaware, before moving to Gooding.

"That makes a tremendous difference, just having another practitioner in the community," said Piper. "We're now hoping to recruit a family surgeon."

Of the 464 people who responded to the survey, 60 percent said it was very important for the hospital to remain open and 21 percent said it was somewhat important. Nineteen percent said that it was not important.

Fifty-two percent said the amount of public funds spent on medical care in the city is about right, while 37 percent felt that too much money is spent and 11 percent said not enough is spent.

The county last year budgeted about $142,687 to the hospital.

The following categories were rated above average to high: building cleanliness and condition, 88 percent; out-patient services, 69 percent; nursing care, 66 percent; food services, 66 percent; overall quality of care, 66 percent; physician care, 66 percent; emergency room care, 62 percent; staff concern/compassion, 60 percent; and reasonableness of charges, 56 percent.

U.S. West workers plan strike

Judge: polygamist clan leader may proceed with appeal

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A federal judge ruled Friday that polygamist clan leader Addison Swapp can proceed with an appeal of his conviction for the 1989 bombing of a Mormon chapel despite his attorney's failure to meet a filing deadline.

With the concurrence of prosecutors, U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins gave defense attorney John Bucher an extension for "excusable neglect" in filing the appeal in the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals a few days late last summer.

Meantime, federal prosecutors will appeal Jenkins' sentencing of Swapp and two of his three co-defendants in the Jan. 16, 1988, bombing and a subsequent standoff with authorities that ended in a fatal shootout.

Bucher had filed the appeal after Jenkins sentenced the four last July, but the Denver appellate court ruled the matter to Jenkins so he could make a ruling on the late filing.

Jenkins agreed with Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Lambert, who said "a man deserves his day in court."

Swapp, his brother Jonathan, his mother-in-law Vickie Singer and her son, John Timothy Singer, were convicted of a total of 20 counts of bombing, attempted murder and use of firearms.

Jenkins is defying federal mandatory sentencing guidelines governing bombings and firearms, originally sentenced Swapp to 15 years in prison, Mrs. Singer to five years, and Jonathan Swapp and Singer to 10 years each.

However, prosecutors appealed the sentences and the 10th Circuit returned the case to Jenkins, who added token additions to the terms of the Swapp brothers and Mrs. Singer. He added no time to Singer's term.

Lambert said the appeal would ask for five-year "firearm enhancement" terms for Singer and the Swapps, but no additional time for Mrs. Singer, 47, who has dropped her appeal.

Jonathan Swapp and John Timothy Singer also have appealed their federal convictions without problem.

The Swapp brothers and Singer also were convicted of state homicide charges in the death of Utah Corrections Lt. Fred Howe, who was killed in the siege-ending shootout.

Third District Judge Michael Murphy sentenced Adam Swapp, 27, and Singer, 22, to one to 15 years in Utah State Prison for manslaughter and Jonathan Swapp, 21, to a year in jail for negligent homicide. Those terms are to be served after the federal sentences.

DENVER (AP)—U.S. West workers, faced with company demands they shoulder more of their own health care costs and possibly face more varied schedules, have authorized a strike against the communications giant by a 9-1 margin.

The results of the voting, done on Thursday and Friday by workers in 14 western states represented by the Communications Workers of America District 7 were announced at a news conference Friday by Harvey Hoffman, a CWA representative. Officials said an exact vote total wasn't available.

The union later issued a statement that said CWA President Morton Bahr was authorized to set a strike date "should negotiations fail to achieve a fair and equitable settlement."

The district, which represents 42,000 employees of U.S. West, noted that the company reported record profits of $1.1 billion in 1988 and said that "financial strength is the direct result of its dedicated work force."

The union said the average annual productivity increase among U.S. West workers rose 7 percent per year since 1984, well ahead of the national labor productivity increases of between 1 and 3 percent per year since 1982.

Negotiations are continuing with a contract expiration of 11:59 p.m. Aug. 12.

Union spokesman Mark Belkin said the company wants a 20 percent cut in employee health benefits, including an increase in deductibles to $3,000 for an individual and $5,000 for a family. He said the company also wants workers to pay half of the insurance premium for dependents, which now is paid by the company.

In addition, the company has proposed being allowed to schedule workers for any 40 hours during a seven-day work week, rather than five 8-hour shifts, he said.

Belkin said it appears the company is expecting a strike.

"We don't think the company is playing games at the table," he said. "We think they're preparing for a strike."

However, U.S. West spokeswoman Debbie Thomas said, "We're hopeful that we're not going to have a strike." But she said it makes sense to have contingency plans.

She said the company had no comment on issues pending on the negotiations table.

"It's not our policy to comment on what 'in union says,'" she said. "However, generally speaking, our benefits are among the best in American industry, and we don't expect that to change."

Coalition gives anti-skinhead award

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)—The Coalition Against Malignant Harassment gave Spokane County Prosecutor Donald Brockett a public service award Friday for his personal intervention against "skinhead" crimes.

Brockett prosecuted two neo-Nazi "skinheads" for a knife-attack on a black-man last year in Spokane. Billy Wayne Worl, 24, was convicted of attempted second-degree murder and malicious harassment and sentenced to 15 years in prison, and 17-year-old James Carver was convicted in juvenile court of being an accomplice in a first-degree assault.

"We were impressed he not only got convictions under the attempted murder-criminal code, but also received convictions under the malicious harassment law," coalition president Tony Stewart said.

Two awards for outstanding reporting on human rights issues were presented to editorial page writer Jim Eisher and reporter Marty Trilhaase of the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

Stewart said Trilhaase did a series of articles on Indian issues in Idaho, and he and Eisher have done "some excellent editorials criticizing proposed state legislation dealing with taxing Indian tribes."

About 90 people attended the awards luncheon, including coalition board members from five states and Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones.

Exhausted charity swimmer gives up

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Exhausted from battling a current pushing her away from shore, a Canadian marathon swimmer gave up early Friday in her charity fundraising swim from Santa Catalina Island to the mainland.

Vicki Keith's support crew persuaded her to quit at 4:19 a.m. PDT, after she had gained less than half a mile in the last eight hours of her swim, said crew member Craig Williams.

Keith was less than six miles from Cabrillo Beach, the goal she had set for herself 19 hours earlier, when she stopped. She started the swim at Santa Catalina's Emerald Bay, about 24 miles from Cabrillo Beach. Keith, who was asleep Friday and unavailable for comment, also had been hallucinating and thought that a huge tanker was alongside her, Williams said.

"That was something else that told us this was for real," because usually she doesn't hallucinate until the second night," Williams said.

Last summer, Keith mastered all five of the Great Lakes in a similar venture that raised more than $550,000 for a Toronto sports training and fitness center and a children's aquatic center.

She has made the 42-mile English Channel crossing and swim

Australia's Sydney Harbor in previous marathons, also associated with children's charities.

The sea off the California coast is dominated by currents carrying cold water southward from Alaska, though the current Keith fought through the night was "rumbling" westward, Williams said.

The water temperature was in the 60s.

Keith wanted to continue, but the crew was worried that she would be so exhausted by the effort that she would be unable to recover sufficiently for a scheduled swim at Juan de Fuca, British Columbia, on Aug. 10.

In retrospect, Condie said the council should have discussed the golf trip in more detail. Although going to the tournament was justified, perhaps the council should have said only one member, he said.

"They made a mistake, now let's get it over," he said.

Vickers said it was his mistaken impression before the trip that it would cost $600 for all three council members. Just how the approval was given was also sketchy, he said.

"Everybody has a little bit different recollection of it," he said.

But Vickers and Condie agree that if blame is due it should be dealt equally among City Council members.

Also backing the ordinance is Councilman Art Franz.

"Then nobody would have anything to say (afterward)," he said.

Vickers said the proposed action is not a result of any wrongdoing, but an attempt to preclude similar situations from occurring again.

"As problems come up it is our job to keep them from coming up again," Vickers said.

Quibbling over spending $2,200 to take economic development contacts at the tournament is almost petty, since council efforts have brought millions of dollars in business growth and hundreds of new jobs, Franz said.

"I think it's a pretty damn good return on your money," he said.

Hospital

Health care delivery issues perceived as being serious problems in the community include the hospital's poor image, 38 percent; too few physicians and services, 35 percent; expense of care, 29 percent; low quality of some providers, 23 percent; poor hospital administration, 21 percent; and poor access to emergency care, 20 percent.

A twenty percent of respondents have never been to the Gooding hospital.

Those seeking medical care outside the county gave as their main reasons: services not provided locally, 62 percent; quality better elsewhere, 57 percent; and referrals by local and nonlocal doctors, 52 and 41 percent, respectively.

Most of these took to Twin Falls, 44 percent; 18 percent went to Jerome, 6 percent to Mountain Home and the remainder elsewhere.

Additionally, such as the CAT scanner, long-term care facility and mammography unit have improved the hospital's image. The long-term care unit, begun in February, has more than doubled the hospital's number of patients per day.

The surveys were provided free from the University of Washington's School of Medicine.

The results were tabulated at Boise State's College of Health Science.

Sheriff kills wanted felon in chase

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Wanted felon Robert Ray Brown was shot and killed by Thurston County Sheriff Gary Edwards after a 13-mile chase and a fight in which the man wrestled a rifle away from the sheriff, authorities said.

Brown, 35, had served time in the Idaho State Prison in the mid-1970s for rape, kidnapping and burglary, and also had an extensive record in drug dealing, Lewis County Undersheriff Bob Berg said today. Brown apparently was living out of his car, he said.

Brown was wanted on an April felony warrant issued in Thurston County Superior Court for unlawful possession of a controlled substance, Berg said.

Berg said the chase began as Edwards and Thurston County Commissioner Diane Oberquell were checking the location of a stop sign near a school project outside Rochester, about 20 miles southwest of Olympia.

The car was spotted shortly before 2 p.m. MDT Thursday, Edwards gave chase at speeds estimated by law enforcement officials as high as 100 miles an hour.

On Garrard Creek Road, a logging road near Independence in northwestern Lewis County, the fleeing car turned around and rammed the sheriff's patrol car several times until Edwards used his carbine to shoot out the vehicle's tires.

The driver then emerged, pushed the sheriff to the ground and ran into the woods, the undersheriff said. Oberquell radioed for assistance on the sheriff's radio while the sheriff pursued the fleeing man on foot.

The man, who had hidden in some tall grass, jumped up and attacked the sheriff, grabbing his carbine and pointing the rifle at the sheriff, Berg said. Edwards drew his service revolver and shot the man in the chest, killing him.

An autopsy was scheduled today. Edwards was treated for a wound above his eye that required a few stitches, the undersheriff said.

Edwards was seeing his department's psychologist, a standard procedure in fatal shootings by officers, and probably would return to work Monday, said Thurston County Undersheriff Neil McClanahan. Oberquell rode in Edwards' car throughout the ordeal and used one of the sheriff's pistols to detain a woman riding with the suspect, said McClanahan. Berg said the 24-year-old Centralia woman was questioned and released. He declined to release her name.

Berg said Edwards noticed the suspect because he was driving erratically and because his rear license plate was partially obscured. When he tried to pull the man over, the man accelerated, forcing several other motorists off the road, and the sheriff then chased him, Berg said.

Edwards, 42, became sheriff in 1987 after serving in the Thurston County department as a deputy and a detective.

For Oberquell, the county commissioner's post is the latest of several public service jobs in and out of government. She won a statewide reputation for toughness as former Gov. Dixy Lee Ray's chairwoman of the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles.

Council reviews fusion budget, requests revision

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Members of the state Fusion-Energy Advisory Council asked University of Utah officials Friday to revise portions of their request for $4.3 million in funding and meet with them again on Monday.

Friday's meeting marked the third time the budget request has been reviewed by the two groups, and the discussion centered around the amount of money requested to lease building space for a proposed Fusion Research Center in the University's Research Park.

State Energy advisor Randy Moon said he and others on the committee have received several questions from legislators who are concerned about the $900,000 price tag for the building space.

"Let's be brutally honest here, we've had legislators say that spending one-fourth of the state's money on a building is unacceptable," Moon said.

He said the money should be spent directly on research and not on a building.

But James Brophy, vice president for research at the U of U, said the $9.76 per-square-foot price tag can't be avoided. The nine-member council was formed four months ago after U of U chemists B. Stanley Pons and British colleague, Martin Fleishmann announced they had achieved nuclear fusion at room temperature.

The pair used rods of palladium encased in coils of electrically charged platinum immersed in deuterium-rich heavy water to produce the reaction.

Since then, scientists around the world have attempted to duplicate the experiment with mixed results.

Advisory Committee Chairman Ray Hixson also asked officials to clarify language in the request to reflect that the state is responsible only for 75 percent of the total budget for fusion in the first year and 25 percent the second year.

The budget for the first year will be $2.8 million, Hixson said.

"I am very optimistic that after the first year private corporations will want to get in on this and help with the funding in the second year," he said.

Continent's tallest peak shrinks

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Mount McKinley still is North America's tallest mountain, but it is not as tall as people have been saying for years.

Using extremely sensitive gravity meters and satellites, scientists from the University of Alaska-Anchorage have determined the mountain is 20,306 feet high.

That's 14 feet less than what Bradford Washburn calculated in 1964. But it still is 466 feet taller than the runner-up, Mount Logan in Canada.

"I wish it had gone up 14 feet," said Jeff Yates, assistant coordinator of the project. "It's kind of an intangible thing from a climber's standpoint. People just like the bigger mountains."

A few more measurements might vary the new measurement slightly, but not more than a foot, Yates said.

Mudslide closes West Yellowstone entrance after rain

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP) — A mudslide closed the West Entrance Road to Yellowstone National Park Thursday about 9 p.m. after heavy rains swept through the park.

The slide was about nine miles east of West Yellowstone, Mont., near the Nine Mile Bridge. The road was closed for a short time, a park spokeswoman said Friday.

Marsha Karle said the mud was 4-5 feet deep, and was caused by a combination of moisture and ash from last summer's fire and the lack of undergrowth.

On Wednesday, a mud slide pushed a car off the road near Mount Jackson about 9 miles from the West Entrance. The slide was 40 feet wide and 4 feet deep, but the road was closed because a traffic pullout in the area allowed cars to drive around it.

About a half-hour later, an earthquake measuring about 4.5 on the Richter Scale hit the northwest boundary of the park.

Utah man struck by lightning dies

KAMAS, Utah (AP) — A 52-year-old Salt Lake City man injured when lightning struck a tree at a lake here died Friday at LDS Hospital, authorities say.

Everett Allinson was just a few feet away from the tree at Pass Lake, about 30 miles southeast of Salt Lake City, when the bolt struck Thursday. He was rushed by helicopter to LDS Hospital and pronounced dead Friday morning, the hospital said.

Summit County Sheriff's Sgt. Larry Henley said Allinson and a companion, 44-year-old Sidney Eliason, had been sitting under the tree just moments before it was struck.

As the two were walking away to gather fishing gear the lightning struck. A witness says the bolt threw Allinson into the air end-over-end.

Authorities said Ms. Eliason was much further from the tree and wasn't seriously injured. She was taken by ambulance to St. Marks Hospital in Salt Lake where she was treated and released.

Gunmen attack American tourists

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Gunmen attacked a group of American tourists viewing wildlife in southern Kenya, killing a woman, wounding a man and robbing others of money, a source said Friday.

The attack Thursday was the second on tourists in Kenya this month.

The incident occurred as 19 tourists were riding in three vans along the 40-mile road between the Amboseli and Tsavo national parks, the source said.

A woman was killed instantly when shot through the head by two men with AK-47 semiautomatic rifles, and a man was shot in the chest, according to a source. Some money also was stolen.

The gunmen apparently ambushed the tourists along a bad stretch of road that forced them to slow down, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed the incident but would give no further details. No identities were released.

Bolivia without definite leader

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Victor Paz Estenssoro is to step down on Aug. 6, but there is no leader waiting in the wings to assume control of this impoverished nation of 6.9 million people.

No party won an absolute majority in May 7 elections and the top three vote-getters have been unable to choose the next president.

Uncertainly over who will be Bolivia's 77th president has raised political and economic tensions in this impoverished nation of 6.9 million.

In May, voters chose among nine presidential candidates.

Gonzalo Sanchez de Lozada, candidate for the governing Revolutionary Nationalist Movement, won a relative majority with 24 percent of the vote. Former military dictator Gen. Hugo Banzer Suarez of the conservative Nationalist Democratic Action Party trailed Sanchez de Lozada by just 1 percent and Jaime Paz Zamora of the Social Democratic Movement of the Revolutionary Left, won 19 percent of the vote.

Nazi criminal sent to West Germany

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Fugitive Nazi war criminal Gottfried Weise was extradited to West Germany on Friday to serve a life term in prison for the murder of at least three inmates of the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Weise, 69, had fled his country in April shortly before the German supreme court confirmed a lower court verdict against him. He was arrested on an international warrant Tuesday in the Swiss town of Thun, where he had been hospitalized under a false name after suffering a stroke.

On Thursday, he agreed to be extradited without formal proceedings. The Swiss Justice Ministry said Weise left Bern in the company of German officials and a physician.

Soviet-Japanese project may pan out

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union has proposed that the Japanese provide technology for a joint project to develop a space aircraft, Japanese officials said Friday.

The proposals were made Tuesday when six Soviet officials visited Japan's National Space Development Agency, an agency official said. The delegates said the Soviet Union is ready to provide Japan with technology to manufacture the Energia rocket, the world's largest rocket that is capable of launching an 18-ton payload, or export to Japan a rocket that can lift a two-ton payload, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Israeli commandos kidnap clergyman

The Associated Press

JIBCHIT, Lebanon — Israeli commandos on Friday kidnapped a Shiite Muslim clergyman reputed to be a leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah and allegedly linked to the kidnapping of a U.S. Marine held hostage in Lebanon.

Security sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, suggested Sheikh Abdul Karim Obeid may have been kidnapped in a swap for the American, Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, or for three Israeli soldiers captured in south Lebanon more than three years ago.

President Bush said he did not know if the incident would help Higgins or the other eight American hostages but added, "I don't think kidnapping and violence helps the cause of peace" in the Middle East.

The Israeli army confirmed the incident and accused Obeid, 33, of instigating attacks on Israel and, of being a major Hezbollah figure.

An Israeli spokesman, Col. Raanan Gissin, indicated a swap was possible. "Clearly when you capture one of their (Hezbollah's) top leaders, it can deter terrorism and you also have a certain amount of leverage in your hands," he said.

Gissin said Obeid and two "assistants" seized with him were "safely in Israeli hands and undergoing questioning."

Killed in the overnight raid was at least one resident of the village of Jibchit, about 20 miles from the Israeli border and 35 miles south of Beirut.

A Lebanese Department of Police spokeswoman, Margaret Tutwiler said the United States was not consulted about or involved in the abduction.

Lebanese police said the commandos blew off the front door of Obeid's apartment with plastic explosives and whisked the three men away in a helicopter in less than a half-hour.

The Israeli military refused to give details of the raid, but Israeli television reported the commandos blew off the front door of Obeid's apartment with plastic explosives and whisked the three men away in a helicopter in less than a half-hour.

Iran's Foreign Ministry said in a statement: "This shameful act by the Zionist regime will not remain unanswered by the Muslim and combatant forces."

Search goes on for Bloch's Soviet contact

The Associated Press

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Austrian officials said Friday the United States alerted them about a man who visited Vienna often and may have been a Soviet contact for Federal Bureau of Investigation diplomat suspected of spying for Moscow.

Robert Danziger, the national police chief, said U.S. officials told Austria on June 23 about the man, who traveled on fake Finnish papers. "We assume he worked for the KGB," Danziger said. "We have no information of our own that he is KGB. That information came solely from Washington."

Danziger said the man, whom he did not identify, first visited Vienna in 1979 and often spent weeks or months at a time in the Austrian capital, using papers issued by the Finnish Embassy that were based on a false identity. Bloch began his seven-year tour at the U.S. Embassy in 1980.

The man who "allegedly had contacts with Bloch" left Austria June 11, supposedly for Helsinki, Danziger said.

Whether Bloch might have met the man in the normal course of diplomatic duties was not known. Bloch, who served four years as deputy chief of mission, had many contacts and regularly attended diplomatic and other parties.

Danziger said the visitor always registered with police in accordance with Austrian regulations and had not been the object of suspicion until the notice from Washington. Austrian authorities now believe he is the man U.S. authorities suspect of KGB activity, the police chief said.

In Paris, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Friday his country never had any connection with Bloch.

Communism's future

Solidarity's popularity, pressure, force new decisions

The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — A divided Communist Party met Friday to consider a successor to party chief Wojciech Jaruzelski and chart its future in the face of a collapsing economy and Solidarity's challenge to its leadership.

In a speech opening the two-day meeting, Jaruzelski hinted he would quit as party leader now that he has been elected president.

Party sources said Jaruzelski was likely to resign before the end of the meeting. The evening news said Saturday's session would be devoted to personnel matters.

The meeting was attended by the 230-member Central Committee and the 173 party deputies of the Parliament.

The first day's discussion was marked by sharp criticism of the party's performance in June elections, when the Solidarity trade union won 260 of the 261 seats it contested, and of the government's handling of the economy.

In a surprise development, Politburo member Wladyslaw Baka quit his post as party secretary in charge of the economy.

Baka has been considered a likely candidate to succeed former Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski, who handed in his government's resignation when the new parliament was seated last month.

Rakowski in turn is angling to succeed Jaruzelski in the top party post.

Baka's resignation could indicate he is shedding his party duties in preparation for heading the government, or it could be a sign Rakowski has locked up the party post and Baka is being shoved aside.

Baka accused Rakowski's government of lacking necessary "stubbornness and consistency" in its handling of the economy.

Inflation is in triple digits and basic foods such as bread and meat are in short supply.

Baka and Rakowski have disagreed over government plans to sharply raise food prices Aug. 1. Baka agrees that increases are necessary but that steps should first be taken to ensure proper supplies and to assist people on fixed incomes.

Party leaders enact reforms in China

The Associated Press

BEIJING — The Communist Party on Friday shut down two state-owned conglomerates, including one linked to senior leader Deng Xiaoping's son, and ordered an end to many of the special privileges enjoyed by high officials.

Imported luxury cars, special supplies of food, pleasure trips abroad and rounds of backpating all must come to an end, the party Politburo ordered in its most serious attack yet on endemic corruption that has cost the party much popular support.

If carried out, the Politburo order would affect officials at the uppermost levels of the party and government, who have been exempt from anti-corruption and austerity drives.

The Politburo's notice was read on television at the end of a two-day closed meeting in Zhongnanhai, the party compound where top leaders maintain homes of relative luxury. Zhongnanhai once was part of the imperial palace, and its red walls have become a symbol of ordinary Chinese of the privileges of those in power.

The Politburo order clearly was triggered by the recent democracy movement that was crushed in June, which drew hundreds of thousands of supporters with the slogan, "Oppose corruption."

The students also lampooned children of senior officials who enjoy top posts in government and business, including Deng's son, whom they nicknamed "Prince Pufang."

In Chicago, a Chinese dissident leader who fled his homeland said conditions in China have grown more dangerous as the government continues its crackdown on students who led the pro-democracy demonstrations in Beijing and other Chinese cities.

Walter Kaiser told the ABC News program, "Nightline" Thursday that it may not be possible for other student leaders to escape China as he did.

Remains of British WWI soldier stolen

The Associated Press

SCHAGEN, Netherlands — Skeletal remains believed to be those of a British soldier killed in a World War I battle were stolen from a museum by a Dutch veteran who says he's seeking an honorable burial for the man.

Draped in a vintage British military coat and posed in a trench mock-up, the skull and left leg bones formed the centerpiece of the Somme Museum. The private collection of war memorabilia is devoted to the 1916 battle by the same name that killed more than 1 million British, French and German soldiers.

John Bluming, who served in the Dutch contingent in the Korean War, said in a telephone interview Friday that he walked into the museum

Tuesday, wrapped the remains in a Union Jack and spirited them away for eventual burial with military honors.

"It isn't right for some imbecile to charge money just so you can see the remains of a dead soldier," said Bluming, who added he had handed the bones over to a former British commando for transfer to the British authorities. He refused to identify the commando.

The episode has pitted the French-born owner of the Somme Museum against the British Embassy, the British Commonwealth War Graves Commission and others who thought the exhibit was in plain bad taste.

Museum owner Sembeau Lecocq said he found the bones in a trench near the village of Thiepval in the Somme district about 25 years ago.

Iranian Parliamentary Speaker Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani casts his vote in Tehran's Jamaran district

Iranians cast votes for a better future

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani appeared certain to win the presidency Friday, and Iranians who flocked to vote expressed hope he would provide a better life after 10 years of revolution and war. Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi said voting was so heavy that many of the 26,000 polling stations would stay open an extra seven hours until midnight. Some were reported to have run out of ballots. Mohtashemi said on television his security agencies had foiled plots to disrupt voting by opposition groups with the support of "global arrogance," an Iranian synonym for the United States and its allies. He did not elaborate. Nearly all voters questioned by reporters in Tehran said they supported Rafsanjani because they believed he would put the economy before revolutionary ideology.

The 51-year-old parliament speaker has emerged as Iran's most powerful figure since the death June 3 of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem patriarch whose fundamentalist revolution overthrew Shah Mohammad Reza-Pahlavi in February 1979. Rafsanjani, a cleric of middle rank, is expected to move toward restoring relations with the West and making the economy and society more liberal than the stern models laid down by Khomeini. "We know Rafsanjani can't perform miracles, but we feel he's the only man who can improve things," engineer Parzolah Armandi said after voting in Tehran's southern slums. "We're tired of lining up for food," said Masoumeh Gazini, a housewife in the "Nehdat-Islemi" district who said she voted for Rafsanjani. "We expect him to make goods more plentiful and bring down prices," she said, herding her six children. Those comments reinforced the widely held belief that Rafsanjani would win the two-candidate race by a landslide and become the fourth president since the revolution. He also will be the most powerful if voters endorse constitutional changes that increase the office's power. The amendments submitted to a referendum abolish the post of prime minister and put the president in charge of the government, answerable only to the 270-seat parliament. The aim is to eliminate competing power centers that have paralyzed government and impeded economic reform. Rafsanjani's opponent, Abuss Sheibani, is a member of parliament and former agriculture minister. He was a student activist against the monarchy in the 1940s, spent 13 years in prison and was a candidate for president in 1981. Sheibani, 58, has no national political base and was generally considered a token opponent.

Automatic landing system at Tripoli was out of order

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya's civil aviation director said Friday the instrument landing system at Tripoli airport was not working when a Korean Air DC-10 crashed short of the fog-shrouded runway, killing at least 77 people. The system gives the pilot an automatic indication of the center of the runway, but it had not worked for several months, said the official, Mohamed Abuhghees. The DC-10 crashed Thursday at least a half-mile short of the runway. Most of those killed were South Koreans returning from vacation to jobs on engineering or construction projects. There were conflicting reports on the number killed. Libyan officials said 78 people on the plane were killed. The airline in Seoul said 71 of the 199 people aboard were presumed dead, while the South Korean Embassy in Tripoli said 72 people on the jet died. Six others were killed on the ground when the airliner cartwheeled into several houses and falling wreckage struck a car, officials said. Abuhghees said the airport radar, radio beacons and other navigation aids all are working perfectly when pilot Kim Ho-jung decided to try landing. Libya's minister of transport, Mohamed Shamak, said he had named a Libyan-Korean committee to find the causes of the accident. "We gave the pilot all the information about the fog," he said. "The last report we gave him was that visibility was down to 50 meters (150 feet), but he decided to land anyway. He trusted his own instruments." Shamak said a Soviet Aeroflot plane and a Libyan plane that approached the airport shortly before the Korean Air crash decided to fly instead to Malta and Benghazi, Libya, he said. When Shamak visited the pilot in the hospital and presented him with roses, Kim burst into tears. He told the minister he was not at fault. Earlier, another Libyan investigator quoted Kim as saying he may have been wrong to try to land in the fog. Shamak said he believed the accident was caused by either a technical fault in the DC-10 or a miscalculation by the captain. Korean Air President Cho Chung-kun defended the pilot and indicated

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Playing Mr. Wolff: Dear Mr. Wolff: I won the draw and chose to deal the blue deck. Later one of my opponents was dealing with the blue deck. I objected and asked for a change. Wasn't he obligated to comply?

disastrous is a retreat to three clubs. That leaves two no-trump as the logical choice.

ANSWER: Yes, he was. The laws state: "A pack originally belonging to one side must be restored on demand of any player before the last card of the current deal has been dealt."

ANSWER: Partner should have a red-suit freak—at least 6-5 in diamonds and hearts. He also has enough strength to risk a game opposite a mere one-over-one response. (Note: Some tournament players might use this unusual jump as a splinter bid, promising spade support and a singleton heart. Beware!)

Dear Mr. Wolff: APL duplicate, non-vul vs. vul. I opened three diamonds as dealer with this hand: ♠ A 8 7 ♥ 2 ♦ Q J 10 8 7 4 ♣ 6 2

My LHO bid three hearts, partner jumped to five diamonds and RHO bid five hearts. How bad do you rate a six-diamond save by me?

Dear Mr. Wolff: Partner opens one club, RHO overcalls one spade and I pass. LHO raises to two spades—and partner doubles. What should I have called with this hand? ♠ Q J 7 2 ♥ 10 9 8 6 4 ♦ 9 7 ♣ 6 4 3

ANSWER: Very bad. Not only are you taking charge when you have no reason to, but your action is definitely non-percentage—you have better than reasonable defense against five hearts.

ANSWER: I would not pass to convert the double to penalties. Equally

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"The deafest man can hear praise and is slow to think any an excess" — Walter Savage Landor.

West was free and easy with his praise for East's brilliant defensive coup — so much so that East was almost convinced that he did deserve much of it.

West led the spade deuce, dummy played low and East reached for his jack. He was shaken when South scooped up the trick with his 10.

East saw that he had followed suit, with his spade five instead of the jack. South continued with the diamond jack, which East refused. A second diamond went to East's ace, and South desperately ducked a spade return to West's king. Dummy's diamonds were forever stranded, and South could manage only seven tricks.

"That was a brilliant stroke at trick one," gushed West. "Had you played third hand high, you would have forced South into the winning line. (He would have won the ace, and dummy's spade-queen would have provided an entry to the diamonds). Your logic was beautiful. You knew from my lead of the deuce that South had three spades. If he had both top honors, dummy's queen was a sure entry. If he had only one high honor, your dazzling play might serve as an irresistible temptation."

East said nothing. He convinced himself that it would be inconsiderate of him to ruin West's analysis by admitting that he had simply played the wrong card.

Pitching may be key to state 'B' Legion tournament

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho state "B" American Legion baseball tournament makes its first-ever appearance in Twin Falls starting this morning at Frontier Field, with pitching expected to play a bigger-than-usual role in its outcome.

"We have six individuals who are good pitchers, and St. Maries has several good good pitchers," said Bo Cummings, whose Lewis-Clark Cubs will open this morning at 9 against Meridian. "Our pitching staff is definitely our strength this year."

"We feel like we're a little deeper in pitching than most 'B' teams," said coach Ray Swanson of the defending state champion Pocatello Rebels, who open at noon against Mountain Home. "We know we can hit the ball, so we can pretty much go as far as our pitching takes us."

Pitching is normally in short supply on "B" Legion teams, which are made up mostly of 15- and 16-year olds, but that may not be the case this time. There are a half dozen pitchers in the tournament with six or more victories, a few with sub-3.00 earned run averages. More importantly, most teams are at least three-deep in proven starting pitchers.

"Everybody's going to pitch their studs early," predicted Mountain Home coach, Soapy Walborn. "Nobody wants to get in that losers' bracket, especially the first day."

Meridian, the runner-up from the Western Region and a near-permanent fixture in this event, is scheduled to open this morning against Lewis-Clark of Lewiston, the runner-up from the North. At noon, Southern Region runner-up Pocatello will match up against the Mountain Home, the champion of the West and definitely the Cinderella team in this tournament, making its first-ever appearance at state. Southern Region champion Buhl, riding an 18-game winning streak, will take on Coeur d'Alene, the No. 3 team from the North and another first-time entrant, at 4 p.m. Twin Falls, the tournament host and the runner-up in the South, will play last year's host, Northern champion St. Maries, at 7 p.m. The tournament will continue with four games Sunday and three Monday, with the semifinals slated for 7 p.m. on Monday. The championship game will be played at 7 p.m. Tuesday with a second title game, if it is necessary, scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The regional champion will advance to the Northwest regional tournament next month.
Pitching notwithstanding, there are some outstanding hitting teams in this tournament, most notably St. Maries with a .430 TEAM batting average.

"We've been hitting the ball pretty well lately and playing good defense," said St. Maries coach Jerry Sexton. "We don't have anybody really outstanding, but it's a pretty good bunch. We have some older kids who have been with us for a few years."
Buhl, Pocatello, Meridian and Twin Falls aren't very far behind offensively.

Tim Soran has become Twin Falls' American Legion "B" starting catcher

Tim Soran emerges as a Legion 'B' field leader

By RON GATES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Tim Soran wants to play baseball. So firm is his resolve that, despite a preciously toward injury, he's risen from inconspicuous to outstanding in the course of a single season.
"He's our starting catcher," says Dave Slotten, second-year coach of Twin Falls' American Legion "B" ballclub. "It's been dramatic. He was a good player last year, but Tim's listened and he's so positive. He's improved on defense and he's learned how to hit."

"I've always played catcher," says Soran. "I remember that I was the one kid on my (first) team who wouldn't cry when he got hit by the ball."
Soran, a blond-haired senior-to-be at Twin Falls High School who fairly radiates enthusiasm, throws well enough to hold runners on the bag. And, at 5-foot, 11-inches, 190 pounds, can block the plate. But hereafter he's experienced problems as a receiver.

"This is the first year he's been a real catcher," Slotten emphasized. "He's worked hard and improved. It's the catcher's role to be a leader. His actions now represent those of a catcher."
"I like it because it's a leader position," Soran added. "I have a chance to see the whole field. See what's messed up and correct it. I'm getting on the guys like (A-Legion catcher) John Horner does."
Apparently, the lessons administered by Slotten, who caught some at Mesa College, were well taken.
"Yeah, I do," Soran replied when asked if he views his performance in a new light. "I noticed how it got easier to block the ball. I knew what I was doing. It's the result of hard-core coaching."
So far so good, but what advice does a 17-year-old offer equally young, and often excitable, pitchers when all is not smooth?
"I go out and talk to them, but I don't get mad," says Soran. "I try to get them to relax and have fun. That's the whole idea of the game — to have fun. That's probably why I'm playing B Legion. "You have to compete harder (at the higher level) and if you're not doing your best you get nervous. You get frustrated, but you've got to relax."

In 1988, Soran, who both throws and bats right-handed, demonstrated patience in the batter's box. "That resulted in his being able to pull the ball more often."
"One of the hardest things for young players to master is laying off the ball," Slotten says. "Timmy is a prime example of how far we've come in that area. Before district he was hitting .377 and he had a pretty good tournament, so he's over .380 now."

"Through 60 games, Soran is batting .381 with two home runs and 43 runs batted in. "I was hoping this year I would have more home runs than I did, but then I realized there is more than jacking it out," agreed Soran. "My home runs went down, but I'm not striking out a lot like I did last year. I'm happy with that."
"I can hit a curve and I can hit a fastball," he added. "Mostly, I look for something I can drive to the right side."
"Last year he couldn't hit the ball to the right side of third base," Slotten grumbled, then smiled and added "Now he hits to the right side of second base. Good for about 20 doubles."
The home-standing Cowboys pit their 40-20 record against St. Maries at 7 p.m. at Frontier Field this evening in the final contest of four state tournament openers. A berth in the championship semifinals will be no cakewalk.
"We've played St. Maries before in Babe Ruth. They were a pretty good team, but we beat them," says Soran. "Coach says they're still good, so we'll have to play well to beat them again."
A schedule that could balloon to 65 games, should the Cowboys reach the

Surging Indians sweep a pair from Boston

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rod Nichols pitched 8 1-3 strong innings in his first start of the season and Brad Kominski hit a two-run homer as the surging Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox 2-1 Friday for a sweep of their two-night doubleheader to move within three games of the frontrunning Baltimore Orioles in the American League East.

The Indians, who began the day trailing first-place Baltimore by four games in the AL East, won for the sixth time in seven tries. They moved into sole possession of second place for the first time this late in a season since August 1976.

Cleveland, won the opener as Tom Candiotti pitched a five-hitter and Andy Allanson atoned for an early error by hitting a tie-breaking home run in the seventh in a 3-2 victory.

Boston has lost six of its last seven road games and is 1-15 in one-run games on the road this year.

The nightcap became an unlikely pitching duel between Nichols, 1-1, and Tom Seaver, 2-2.

Nichols was called up from Class AAA Colorado Springs before the game and got his second major-league victory. He entered the game

Twins 6-1 Friday in the first game of a doubleheader.

Viola, 8-12, lost in his first start since being mentioned in trade talks with the New York Mets. He gave up five runs on six hits and five walks in six innings.

Ritz, 1-1, allowed two runs on four hits in six innings. He walked six and struck out six and Mike Henneman pitched 1-2-3 innings for his third save.

Gary Pettis, close to being traded to the Chicago White Sox for Dave Gallagher, stole three bases and scored twice as Detroit won for just the second time in 10 games. Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer and Tracy Jones also drove in two runs for the Tigers.

Toronto 6, New York 2

NEW YORK (AP) — George Bell, mentioned this month in trade talks, homered for the first time in nearly six weeks and the Toronto Blue Jays beat New York 6-2, the Yankees' ninth loss in 10 games.

Bell hit his 10th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the fifth inning. It was Bell's first home run since June 13, a span of 36 games, and also had an RBI single.

The Blue Jays and Houston have talked recently about a deal for Bell, but have not come close to completing a trade.

John Cerutti, 7-6, gave up seven hits in six innings. Tom Henke finished with three-hit relief.

Dave LaPoint, 6-9, took the loss as the Yankees fell seven games under .500 for the first time since July 13, 1984.

Milwaukee 15, Texas 3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Robin Yount extended his hitting streak to 18 games with two doubles and Paul Molitor got three hits Friday night as the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Texas Rangers 15-3.

Milwaukee combined 15 hits, four walks and three batters hit by pitches to win for the seventh time in nine games. Greg Brock had a two-run homer for the Brewers.

Yount's hitting streak is the longest in the American League this season.

Beyond college, baseball fades, only to be replaced by another Soran ambition. To become an orthopedic surgeon.

"I've been kind of accident prone," he explained. "Had all kinds of injuries, so I know about the field the hard way."

In one of the more serious incidents, Tim's jaw was broken before the 1988 opener when an errant pick off throw in practice bounced up and struck him.

It was really depressing. It took me out of four or five weeks of the season," said Soran, who suffered a similar late start in football due to a broken wrist. "I didn't worry about it and didn't have an injury this year. Those days are over."

"There's a story about that," Sloten adds. "When I was a freshman in college I was the team's only catcher. The coach said when you play hard you don't get hurt, but let up one second and..."

While the future likely holds action aplenty for Tim on the diamonds—One of his best-moments may be close at hand.

"My overall goal this year was to help build a team that could go to state and place, maybe even win," he says. "It was hard on us last year that we didn't get the chance. We've progressed, so I feel we've achieved half the goal so far."

Clark boosts Giants past Houston for 3-game lead

HOUSTON (AP) — Will Clark helped San Francisco win the first game of its showdown series with Houston, hitting a seventh-inning homer that gave the Giants a 3-2 victory over the Astros Friday night.

The victory extended the Giants' lead to three games over second-place Houston in the National League West.

Jim Clancy, 5-8, got the first two batters out in the seventh inning but hit a 2-1 pitch over the right-field fence to break a 2-2 tie.

It was the 15th homer of the season for Clark, who started the game hitting .206 in eight games of the 14-game road trip.

Don Robinson, 9-7, who had won just once in his last six starts, scattered seven hits for the victory. Robinson struck out seven and didn't walk a batter.

Brett Butler ended a string of 18 hitless at-bats with a single to start the game. He took second on Clancy's throwing error and scored on Clark's groundout to first baseman Glenn Davis.

Craig Biggio and Bill Doran hit consecutive singles off Robinson in the first inning. Biggio was balked to second and scored—Doran's hit.

Doran scored on Terry Puhl's single.

Consecutive doubles by Matt Williams and Terry Kennedy tied the game at 2-2 in the fourth inning.

St. Louis 2, Montreal 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Ted Power pitched four-hit ball over seven innings as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos 2-0 Friday night and continued their domination of the National League East leaders.

The game marked the end of Vince Colaneri's major league record stolen-base streak. The Cardinal outfielder had his record of 50 consecutive steals ended when he was thrown out by Montreal catcher Nelson Santovenia in the fourth inning.

The victory was the Cardinals' ninth in 12 games against Montreal this season, and cut the Expos' lead to 2½ games over the Chicago Cubs.

Power, 3-4, who has not pitched a complete game since June 7, 1988, struck out three and walked one batter intentionally.

His biggest jam came in the first inning when the Expos had a man on third with one out. But Power escaped by striking out Andres Galarraga and getting Tim Lincecum to ground out.

Ken Dayley and Todd Worrell finished up, with Worrell recording his 14th save.

loser Lascual Perez, 5-10, allowed only four hits and one walk, while striking out eight in eight innings.

Chicago 6, New York 5

CHICAGO (AP) — Dwight Smith's two-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning Friday, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 6-5 victory that sent the New York Mets to their fourth straight defeat.

Vance Law and Shawn Dunston joined to start the seventh off David Coner. Rutch batter Mitch Webster struck out, but Jerome Walton hit a sacrifice fly, driving in Law.

Rick Aguilera, 6-5, relieved and gave up a run-scoring single to Ryne Sandberg before Smith broke an 0-for-17 slump with his fourth homer, making a winner of reliever Calvin Schiraldi, 3-4. Mitch Williams got the last four Mets outs for his 23th save, tops in the major leagues.

Howard Johnson's three-run homer and Kevin Elster's two-run single in the third inning had the Mets a 5-2 lead that Cone protected until the seventh.

Cone started the third inning uprisings with a single. Dave Magadan doubled and Johnson lived his 26th home run to right field.

Bill Landrum got the last three outs. Kevin McReynolds finished starter Scott Sanderson. Gary Carter drew a base-filling walk off Jeff Picco and Elster singled in two runs, extending his hitting streak to 10 games.

Pittsburgh 10, Philadelphia 5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Glenn Wilson and Jose Lind each drove in two runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 10-5 in the first game of a doubleheader Friday for their sixth straight victory, equating a season-high.

Reliever Neil Heaton, 2-7, snapped a personal three-game losing streak as he won for the first time since May 21. He pitched three scoreless innings, allowing two hits.

Bill Landrum got the last three outs. The Pirates had 16 hits, including three each by Lind and Bobby Bonilla.

Tommy Herr was 4-for-5 for the Phillies, with a run scored and an RBI.

Pittsburgh took a 4-0 first-inning lead with five hits, including three doubles, off Ken Howell, 8-7. In Thursday's 10-8 victory over New York, the Pirates scored five runs in the first inning.

Hare-and-hound race scheduled

The Times-News

JACKPOT — Some 160 racers are expected to participate in an off-road, 85-mile hare-and-hound motorcycle race from Wells to Jackpot Sunday.

The race is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. MDT at a point along U.S. Highway 93 27 miles north of Wells and end at about 2 p.m. in Jackpot.

There will be classes for all ages and division of motorcycles and four wheelers.

Redskins' Williams suffers irritation

The Washington Post

CARLISLE, Pa. — Washington Redskins quarterback Doug Williams was hospitalized Friday with a nerve root irritation in his lower back and will remain in traction for a minimum of five days.

Though Williams entered training camp here as the incumbent starter, Coach Joe Gibbs said Mark Rypien will start the team's first preseason game, against Buffalo Aug. 5, at Canton, Ohio. It's possible Williams, who turns 34 in 11 days, could miss the majority of the season, which would leave Rypien and blossoming Stan Humphries, 24, battling for the No. 1 job.

At Williams' request, team physician Charles Jackson declined comment, but several orthopedists said Friday that nerve-related back injuries normally imply disc damage. However, an earlier CAT scan on Williams discovered no herniated disc, no numbness and no atrophy.

Coleman's steal-streak ends in 50

MONTREAL (AP) — Vince Coleman of the St. Louis Cardinals had his major league record of 50 consecutive steals ended when he was thrown out by Montreal's Nelson Santovenia in the fourth inning of Friday night's game with the Expos.

Coleman, who was last thrown out by Damon Berryhill on Sept. 11, 1988, beat out an infield single to lead off the fourth and broke for second on a 0-1 pitch to Ozzie Smith.

Santovenia, the major-league leader in stolen bases this season, was 44-for-44 entering the game.

Walsh, Cowboys agree on contract

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys came to terms with holdout quarterback Steve Walsh on Friday for a total package of $4.1 million spread over four years, coach Jimmy Johnson said.

Walsh, who decided to pass up his senior year at the University of Miami to enter the NFL's supplemental draft, will fly to the Cowboys' camp on Saturday to sign his contract and begin workouts.

The Cowboys already have Troy Aikman, the No. 1 overall pick in the regular draft, in camp, and published reports have indicated that Walsh could be traded.

Not to mention going that extra mile so crucial to the serious player.

"I've gone to Christmas camp at CSI the past four years and Jim Walker puts on a hitting camp in the spring that I've been to for two years," said Soran. "In varsity baseball at the high school, from late January on we meet at the gym from 6:30 in the morning until school starts to swing the bat and throw."

"I played (high school ball) this year, but didn't get much playing time," he went on. "I'm a better player now and feel that I'll have a better chance."

Baseball's been fun. So much, in fact, that 12 years of the sport may not satisfy his craving for competition.

"I like to go on to college baseball. To do that I have to set my goals a lot higher and work extra hard," he said.

"The potential is there," Sloten interjected. "Like he said, he has a long way to go to get there. Actually, the work habits are there. He was behind a year ago. Now he's catching up with his age. The bottom line, it depends on what he wants to do."

Soran's emergence as a run producer portends even more improvement in Twin Falls' already strong corps of seniors.

"We've all been playing baseball together since the first grade. We've competed with and against each other," Soran said of his class.

"Some are better than others," Matt Rasmussen, Shane Quessell, Bobby Jenco — "It's always been my goal to be as good as them."

Consumer spending slows, threatening economic growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal incomes rose a lackluster 0.3 percent in June as consumer spending, after adjusting for inflation, declined for a second straight month, the government said Friday in a report that renewed recession fears.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending, after taking into account inflation, declined 0.1 percent in June following a 0.2 percent decline. It marked the first back-to-back monthly declines in spending since September and October, 1987, a period when consumer confidence was shaken by the stock market crash.

Consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of overall economic activity, has been the driving force behind the record pentecost expansion, now in its seventh year. But economists are fearful that consumers, worried about their economic prospects, could begin to cut back sharply on their purchases. The Commerce Department report said that personal incomes grew a modest 0.3 percent in June following an even smaller 0.2 percent May increase. The gains were the weakest this year and reflected in part a slowdown in job growth, which has slowed the unemployment rate edging upward.

"The economy, here at mid-year, is beginning to flirt with a recession," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co. "We are seeing consumers' spending power being squeezed by higher inflation at the same time that pent-up demand for big-ticket items is pretty much exhausted."

The government reported Thursday that the overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, expanded at a sluggish annual rate of 1.7 percent in the April-June quarter, the slowest pace in at least three years. The Bush administration insists that growth will rebound in the second half of the year, fueled by lower interest rates engineered by the Federal Reserve.

But Sinai said he believes the sluggish growth will intensify, leading to rising unemployment in coming months and further weakening consumer confidence. He predicted the economy would enter a mild recession either late this year or early in 1990.

David Jones, chief economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said he felt the country would be able to skirt through this period of sluggish growth without a full-fledged downturn, helped in large part by further moves by the Fed to lower interest rates.

The central bank earlier this week acted for the third time since June to ease credit. Jones said the rapid pacing of these interest-lowering moves demonstrated how worried the Fed is about a possible recession.

"The Fed is concerned that some interest-sensitive sectors of the economy, such as autos and housing, are still quite weak," Jones said. "This will lead to further easing on the Fed's part in August."

Before adjusting for inflation, consumer spending was unchanged at an annual rate of $3.44 trillion in June following a modest 0.3 percent May increase.

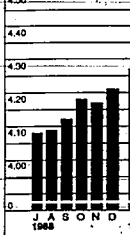

The income category of wages and salaries was up 0.5 percent in June but this was in part a bounce-back after wage income was essentially unchanged in May.

Farmers' incomes plunged at an annual rate of $12 billion in June following a $1.4 billion decrease.

The weakness in June reflected a drop in federal subsidy payments.

durable goods, items expected to last three or more years, fell by $1.7 billion, following a $9.6 billion decrease in May, with much of the weakness in both months reflecting a slump in cars.

Purchases of services were up $2.5 billion following a giant $27-billion May jump.
