State faces stiff fine for prison waste spillage

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — The Environmental Protection Agency has cited the Idaho state prison for violating wastewater discharge laws just as a rancher claimed the prison had when he sued the state for $650,000 in damages last week.

But Mike Jones, the attorney representing the state in the matter, said Friday the state would contest at least some of the findings and conclusions in the order. "We are in compliance," Jones said. "We don't believe there's been any damage."

The EPA's regional office in Seattle issued the compliance order on Aug. 11, one day after Richard Hooney went to court with his claim that illegal waste discharges from the prison sewage system into Tenmile Creek and onto his adjacent land had made his irrigated 475-acre ranch unusable.

Federal Water specialist Don Dosssett said the state had yet to respond to the order's request for a report on corrective actions to assure no recurrence of the sewage discharges into Tenmile Creek during late March and early April and on July 26. Jones said the report and the state's comments disputing portions of the order will be filed by the Aug. 24 deadline.

The state Corrections Board had acknowledged the March and April discharges in a May 8 letter to EPA, admitting it in an inaccurate report was filed with the government saying no discharges had occurred. But the letter said officials did not know how to properly report the discharges, despite claims that they had been shown the process, and no amended report was filed.

BLM head, Craig think bomb range size may shrink

The Associated Press

BOISE — The new director of the Bureau of Land Management and Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, agree that the Air Force might have to change its proposal to set aside more than a million acres of public land for a bombing range. "In my opinion, they have asked for way too much," Craig told a news conference Friday, after a helicopter tour over the 1.4-million acre area the Air Force wants for expansion of the Saylor Creek Bombing Range.

existing, current use in that area." Craig and Jamison noted that Congress must approve all federal set-asides of more than 5,000 acres, so whether the Air Force will be allowed to go ahead with its plans will be up to Congress. Craig said he wants the BLM to be a "facilitator" in the dispute, bringing local interests and the Air Force together to negotiate. That could produce "a variety of alternatives as to what could be done in that area," he said, but acknowledged that it would be hard to use another area, because people who use that area would complain. Craig said many of the cattlemen, he and Jamison met with on Friday are convinced that the proposal would put them out of business by depriving them of the use of public land they use for grazing cattle.

Last nuclear waste loads arrive at INEL

The Associated Press

ARCO — The final trainload of low-level radioactive and hazardous waste Idaho has agreed to accept from federal defense plants outside the state has arrived at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. The two boxcars of waste from the Rocky Flats Plant in Colorado reached the eastern Idaho site for temporary storage Friday. The shipments left Rocky Flats just north of Denver Tuesday, and federal officials said there were no hitches in the last trip. INEL spokesman Nick Nichols said workers at the Radioactive Waste Management Complex would begin unloading the boxcars earliest next week.

transuranic waste to INEL since 1967. The waste, mainly tools and clothes contaminated with plutonium, was buried on the site until 1970 when above-ground storage was begun. Since then some 2 million cubic feet of waste has built up in the temporary storage program. Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus halted the shipments last Oct. 19 after the Energy Department missed a second deadline for opening a permanent low-level waste repository in New Mexico. Andrus said the state had suffered through enough broken promises and would no longer serve as the nation's defense complex waste dumping ground. In February, however, the governor was convinced to lift his ban for national security reasons. He agreed to accept two boxcars of waste a month, half the

Solidarity editor ready to lead in Poland

Los Angeles Times

WARSAW, Poland — In a dramatic reversal of 45 years of Communist rule in Poland, President Wojciech Jaruzelski is expected to offer the post of prime minister to newspaper editor Tadeusz Mazowiecki today. Mazowiecki is a longtime opposition activist and a key Solidarity adviser who is known as a soft-spoken conciliator among his Solidarity colleagues. He met for two hours Friday with Jaruzelski and afterward told reporters that he expected a formal offer of the post from the

"I am ready to accept it," he said. "There was no certainty about when the announcement might come, but a presidential television message is scheduled for 6 p.m. Saturday, after a meeting of the Communist Party's Central Committee. Political observers assume that Jaruzelski will discuss his action with the party's leadership before making it

"We had long talks with the president, which were very fundamental, concerning all important issues," Mazowiecki said. "I think there will be solutions very soon." Mazowiecki spoke in his customary calm manner with a crowd of journalists trailing him through the parliament building as he arrived for a meeting with Solidarity's leadership. He was asked when he expected to name a government. "I wish I knew that myself," he said. "This is to be a government formed on a completely new principle, and I need some time."

Nebraska shootout ends airborne prison escape in Colorado

The Associated Press

ORDWAY, Colo. — Two women hijacked a helicopter at gunpoint Friday, snatched two inmates from a prison yard and fled the region in a waiting van, but all four were captured after a shootout in Nebraska. "We can confirm they were taken into custody, all four of them," said Juanita Novak, a spokesman for the Colorado Department of Corrections. The wild shootout in Holdrege, Neb., involved a gunfire-punctuated pursuit of a van through a residential neighborhood, said a witness to the final showdown. "They crossed a median and hit a tree, the witness, a woman who spoke on condition of anonymity. 'We could definitely see they had guns and were shooting. The police tried to arrest them by swerving in front of the truck but they ran up into a yard.' Holdrege Police Chief Ken Jackson said one suspect was wounded and was treated at the Phelps Memorial Health Center in Holdrege for a gunshot wound in a finger. Three others were in custody in the city jail, Jackson said.

Jackson said there were no other injuries, despite indiscriminate shooting by the suspects. The four were in a rental van when a Holdrege officer tried to stop them. The van rammed the police car and shots were fired at the officer. At least eight shots penetrated the car's windshield, the police chief said. In the brazen, daylight prison break, frustrated guards held their fire because they could not get a clear shot at the helicopter and feared that the pilot was being held hostage, said Liz McDonough, a corrections spokeswoman.

Nevertheless, authorities ordered an investigation to determine why a guard refused three orders from prison superintendent Jim Brittain to open fire on the helicopter. "From the time the helicopter came into view, from the point of touchdown to takeoff, was 10 to 15 seconds," Brittain said. "My recollection was that as the inmates were diving headfirst into the helicopter, it was lifting off." The pilot was found bound and gagged about 35 miles north of the medium-security state prison and the helicopter was found nearly by authorities received an anonymous telephone call. Authorities said the women were believed to be wives of the escaped inmates, even though one of the women gave the name of a former deputy sheriff who had been fired for fraternizing with inmates. The two escaped inmates were cellmates. The women and the escapees apparently transferred to a rented van and eluded police. Authorities set up roadblocks on highways

Fire destroys ammunition truck
ROCK SPRINGS, Ariz. (AP) — A truck carrying 40,000 rounds of ammunition for warplanes went up in flames and exploded early Friday, killing the driver, injuring her husband and closing an interstate for hours, authorities said.

The tractor-trailer rig, loaded with 20mm shells for aircraft cannon, veered off Interstate 17 into a ditch and caught fire in a remote area about 30 miles north of Phoenix around 1 a.m., officials said.

"The shells kept exploding; it was like fireworks," said Rock Springs Fire Chief Pete Davis. "There were shells for about 100 yards on either side. You couldn't walk without stepping on one."

The body of the driver, Lois Bailey, 38, of Coleman, Ala., was found for hours because of the danger, said State Department of Public Safety spokesman Alan Schmidt.

Her 33-year-old husband, Rick, was in serious condition at John C. Lincoln Hospital in Phoenix, hospital spokeswoman Lisa Boulay said.

Neptune has magnetic field, aurora
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager 2 space probe discovered that a magnetic field surrounds Neptune, suggesting the planet is enveloped by orbiting radiation belts and has an aurora like Earth's northern lights, NASA announced Friday.

Further study of the magnetic field should allow scientists to determine the exact length of a day on Neptune, believed to be 17 to 18 Earth hours, and to gain better understanding of Neptune's internal structure, said Mary Beth Murrill, a spokeswoman for NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Just as Earth's magnetic field traps the Van Allen radiation belts, Neptune's magnetic field also may help create radiation belts around that planet. Scientists don't yet know if that poses a hazard to Voyager 2's electronic components, Murrill said.

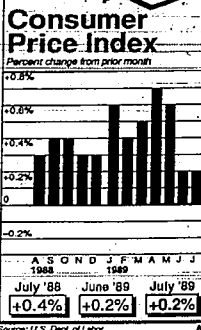

Voyager was 2.74 billion miles from Earth and 5.92 million miles from Neptune on Friday, speeding toward the giant gas planet at 42,236 mph.

Regulators close 4 more failed S&Ls
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators on Friday shut down four more small failed savings and loan associations — in Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana and Texas — bringing to seven the number closed since President Bush signed their thrift bailout legislation.

The Resolution Trust Corp., created Aug. 9 when Bush committed the government to a $159 billion rescue of the industry, said it was closing Sioux Valley Savings and Loan Association of Cherokee, Iowa; First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Coffeyville, Coffeyville, Kan.; Evangeline Federal Savings Association, Lafayette, La., and Century Savings and Loan Association, Baytown, Texas.

The deposits of the Kansas, Louisiana and Texas thrifts are being transferred to commercial banks and their offices will reopen for business under new owners on Monday.

Regulators could not find another institution interested in taking over Sioux Valley's deposits. RTC Executive Director David C. Cooke said depositors there will be paid off "within a few days."

Prices
 The decline, the department said, is due to a 0.2 percent gain in the CPI last month was in line with analysts' predictions, the stock market dipped slightly in early trading Friday in reaction to the report. Analysts said traders believed the price moderation was not dramatic enough to spur the Federal Reserve Board into loosening credit anytime soon.

Most Federal Reserve officials pay close attention to a separate index that excludes one-quarter of the CPI that is affected by the volatile food and energy price changes. With food and energy prices not included, consumer prices rose 0.4 percent last month, up from 0.2 percent in June.

This smaller index was driven up by a 2.0 percent gain for tobacco prices that was partly offset by a 0.4 percent decline in prices for new cars, the department said.

Bush administration advisers said in June that they expected the CPI to increase at about 4 percent in the second half of the year.

Although gasoline prices dropped sharply, fuel oil costs rose 1.5 percent in July, reversing June's decline of 1.2 percent. Natural gas prices were up 0.5 percent last month.

Food and beverage costs rose 0.3 percent in July, following a 0.2 percent gain in June. That was a dramatic improvement from the first five months of the year, when the lingering effects of last year's drought sent food prices up at a 9.3 percent annual rate.

The housing component of the CPI, the largest of its major categories, rose 0.6 percent in July compared with only a 0.2 percent rise in June.

The various changes in July left the overall consumer price index at 124.1 percent of its 1982-84 base.

Gem revenue climb expected to ease off

BOISE (AP) — The robust state economy that created the largest unanticipated revenue surplus in Idaho history this summer is expected to weaken during the coming year, prompting Andrus administration analysts to forecast barely a third of the revenue growth experienced over the last year.

But the Division of Financial Management's projection for a 5.9 percent increase in tax receipts during the current budget year is still well below the $815.1 million by the end of next June.

That estimate, released Friday, would be high enough to provide about $95 million in uncommitted cash to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus and the Republican-dominated Legislature when they write a new 1991 state budget this winter.

With economists predicting the national economy regaining strength after next year's mid-term elections, the new state outlook set the stage for as much as $950 million in general tax revenue to be available for that 1991 budget that covers the year beginning next July. The state will spend about $790 million during the current year.

"Although economic and revenue growth is expected to slow from the recent pace, solid growth in the tax base is projected," the analysts said.

Andrus said earlier this week that he expected the national and state economies to slow in the coming 15 months, indicating that despite the current euphoria over surplus revenue his 1991 budget will have a conservative bent.

The 5.9 percent growth in tax receipts this year compared to a 14-percent growth rate during the year that ended June 30. Some economists outside the Andrus administration have suggested the growth rate could easily run 7 percent to 8 percent, pushing the current-year revenue total near $800 million.

Administration economists declined to detail the reasons for the conservative approach that projected the rise in individual income tax and sale tax collections at just half the rate of the past year. Those two taxes account for over 80 percent of all state receipts.

 He said there is much use of the area planned for withdrawal, such as grazing and recreation. "We have to mix them in and come up with something reasonable," Jamison said.

Craig and Jamison said if a full environmental impact statement is required on the land withdrawal proposal, it could take one to two years.

For Jamison, former field director for Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., at Billings, it was his first look at a Bureau of Land Management district that is one of the nation's biggest.

Craig said the Boise BLM District covers a wide range of uses, from the hundreds of thousands of acres set aside for the Birds of Prey Natural Area along the Snake River to areas where cattle graze on public lands.

Bush awaits further Polish developments

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — The Bush administration reacted cautiously Friday to reports that a Solidarity activist would be named Poland's prime minister and to questions whether increased U.S. economic aid might flow to such a government.

"We will continue to watch the process and will increase aid as appropriate and as we can," presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters.

Fitzwater, in Maine with the nation's President Bush, said discussion of any increase in the $119 million aid package Bush announced last month was premature. He said too little is known about the structure of Poland's changing government.

"It's too early at this point to know how they (Poland's leaders) are going to make it work, let alone how it will work," Fitzwater said.

At the State Department in Washington, spokesman Richard Boucher said, "We've got a lot under way to do the steps the president's already announced, and that's our priority right now."

Fitzwater suggested the Bush administration had no major problems with a coalition government in which a non-communist prime minister will divide authority with a communist president, although it means the communists will still control the military, the police and the courts.

He applauded Poland for the changes that have been made there over the past months toward more democracy.

"All the words I said yesterday are operable today. You may use them freely," said Fitzwater. On Thursday, the spokesman called movement toward a non-communist government in Poland "history-making and remarkable."

Fitzwater said the administration would reserve formal comment on news reports that Polish President Wojciech Jaruzelski had chosen Solidarity activist Tadeusz Mazowiecki to be the new prime minister and lead the East bloc's first non-communist government.

Still, White House aides privately said they were pleased with the apparent choice of Mazowiecki, a journalist and close associate of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa.

Fitzwater told reporters that letters from the president to Walesa and Jaruzelski being carried by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., were "just letters of greeting" and did not contain messages or the current power shuffle. Dole left Washington Friday on a trip that will include a visit to Poland.

On another subject, Fitzwater said former President Carter was acting on his own in inviting warring factions in Ethiopia to meet with him in Atlanta next month for peace talks.

"He is not acting on behalf of the U.S. government and does not have any official capacity or endorsement by us," Fitzwater said.

"Obviously, if he can be successful or be a help in pulling the parties together, that's all for the better," he said. "But it's strictly a private initiative."

On the second day of his two-and-a-half week vacation, Bush's schedule included boating with family members and an afternoon round of golf.

He was to get his 28-foot speedboat, "Fidelity," inspected by the Coast Guard on Saturday.

U.S. relations with Ethiopia on the upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, eager to improve ties with Ethiopia, could find the way smoothed by indications that some 2,000 Cuban troops are preparing to leave the African country.

The Soviet Union also is in the midst of loosening its ties to Ethiopia and several other client states, but hundreds of Soviet and East German military advisers apparently will remain after the Cuban withdrawal.

The death in an airplane crash last week of Rep. Mickey Leland, a Texas Democrat who was a strong friend of Ethiopia and crusader against hunger, sparked a cooperative search that also is hastening the improvement in U.S. relations.

Senior State Department officials said they wanted to see the process accelerated. But, they said, two U.S. conditions must be met. They are a continuing improvement in human rights and a serious effort by Addis Ababa to reconcile with separatists in Ethiopia's Eritrea region and an autonomy movement in Tigray.

The prospect of Cuban troops leaving Ethiopia is also welcome news to the administration.

The Cubans are stationed in the Ogaden region, along the border with Somalia. In 1978 and 1979 Ethiopia used a larger Cuban force along with Soviet advisers to expel Somali troops. The remaining Cubans have mostly done sentry duty.

Jenrette faces jail for theft

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — A judge on Friday sentenced former South Carolina Rep. John Jenrette to 30 days in jail and fined him $2,000 for stealing a necktie and shoes from a discount department store.

Jenrette was also put on two years probation and ordered to do 200 hours of community service. In addition, he was told to continue psychiatric and alcoholism treatment.

Jenrette, 53, served 13 months in prison after he convicted in 1980 of bribery in the Abscam affair, a sting operation in which FBI agents posing Arab sheiks and businessmen offered bribes to lawmakers. He is still on probation from that conviction.

Jenrette's attorney, Steve Merril, said that his client would have to appear before a hearing in federal court, where authorities would then decide if he would have to serve a prison sentence for violating his parole.

Merril asked Fairfax County Circuit Court Judge Jack Stevens to not take into account his client's previous record in handing down the sentence.

"As the Commonwealth suggests, I'm going to treat you just like any other shoplifter," Stevens said before levying the punishment.

Jenrette was convicted on two counts of petty larceny for switching price tags at a discount department store on Dec. 7. Two security guards from the store testified during the trial that they saw Jenrette steal the items.

The former lawmaker claimed the shoplifting incident was all a mistake. He testified that he brought his own tie into the store to compare it with the one he was thinking of buying.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Defense Department research program in which cats are shot in the head to study war-related brain injuries is inhumane, scientifically flawed and unnecessary, a group of doctors said.

The Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine on Thursday asked Defense Secretary Richard Cheney to cancel the contract for the research, conducted at Louisiana State University Medical Center in New Orleans.

"The study under question is superfluous and extraordinarily expensive," Dr. Michael Sukoff, a member of the American Board of Neurological Surgeons, said in a news release from Washington.

The $2 million contract involves shooting hundreds of cats in the head to learn how to return brain-injured soldiers to active duty, thus conserving the fighting strength of the Army, the Physicians Committee said.

According to the news release, the primary conclusion by LSU researchers is that respiration stops when the brain is wounded, a notion the doctor said has been documented in medical literature for nearly 100 years.

"I am appalled by research which purports to study human brain injury, but in fact only causes suffering in domestic cats," Dr. Christopher Smith said.

The physician's group is a national organization of 2,000 doctors.

Kingpin arrest plans cancelled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. ambassador to Venezuela vetoed what he described as an "ill-planned, ill-thought out" plan by U.S. agents to arrest the kingpin of the Colombian drug cartel, a State Department spokesman said Friday.

The aborted plan to arrest Jorge Ochoa last fall during a trip to Caracas, Venezuela, was disclosed Thursday at a hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee on narcotics trafficking.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said at a briefing Friday that "the plan to capture Mr. Ochoa was not coordinated with the appropriate Washington agencies and the embassy in Caracas and the Venezuelan

Forbes birthday bash in Morocco includes host of celebrities

Forbes greets Taylor upon her arrival in Morocco Friday

TANGIER, Morocco (AP) — Malcolm Forbes, the billionaire balloonist and motorcycle-riding magazine publisher, is about to embark on his latest debt-defying feat: an opulent birthday bash for 700 of his rich and famous friends.

The dean of jet-setters plans to celebrate his 70th birthday today by flying in stars, socialites, princes, publishers, a former president, a couple of ex-kings and, of course, close chum Elizabeth Taylor.

This playground of the wealthy is bracing for a veritable influx of beautiful people. Forbes plans to use three planes — including the super-sonic Concorde and his own Boeing 727 "The Capital Tool" — to shuttle to the lucky swells.

Forbes on Friday said he told his birthday blowout organizers, who are turning his lavish Tangier palace into party central, to shoot the works because "you're only 70 years old once-in-your-life."

Forbes, publisher of Forbes Magazine, is estimated to be worth $1 billion and the cost of his party has been reported to be $2 million.

The balding and bespectacled party animal is perhaps best known for his iron-man endurance of the social swirl and his much-publicized fascination with motorcycles and horser ballooning. He even gave a purple Harley-Davidson to Miss Taylor, to match her mauve eyes.

The bipartisan prospective guest list includes: former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and former President Jimmy Carter. Greek shipowner Stavros Niarchos will be in the company of two former kings, Constantine of Greece and Simeon of Bulgaria, along with opera diva Beverly Sills.

Invitations have been coveted by glitterati for months, but Forbes did not forget to include his media colleagues on the list, inviting television personalities—Walter Cronkite and Barbara Walters, and publishers Katharine Graham, Rupert Murdoch and Robert Maxwell.

Other jet set guests include fashion designer Calvin Klein, tabloid heiress Doris Duke and American politicians—from both sides-of-the-aisle. New York developer Donald Trump also is expected.

Forbes guests are to be entertained Saturday night at the Mendoub palace that was once the digs of the royal governor.

The palace, one of several Forbes' dwellings around the worldwide, serves most of the time as a museum. Housing his collection of tin soldiers, the palace is a popular destination for Tangier residents.

On Saturday, however, the home will be closed to all but holders of in-itations. Five huge tents have been set up in the 15-acre Moroccan-style garden surrounding the palace.

Guests will draw lots for tent assignments, with the lucky ones sharing the biggest tent with the birthday boy himself. His sons are to act as hosts at the other tents.

Miss Taylor won't have to stand for the lottery: she's guaranteed a spot near Forbes. The two have been regular companions since Forbes' 39-year marriage ended in divorce in 1985.

Each snow-white tent is furnished in true luxury, with priceless Moroccan furniture and thick carpets from Rabat and Fez. An army of Moroccan chefs will be working feverishly in the kitchen.

Guests will dance to a local band playing Moroccan and Western tunes.

Forbes invited Morocco's ruler King Hassan II. But the king declined, instead inviting all of Forbes' guests to a luncheon Sunday at the Tangier Golf Club.

Hassan's sons, Crown Prince Mohamed and Prince Rachid, will go in their father's place.

Hassan ordered 120 men of his mounted guard to help provide protection for the guests.

"They're not just decorative," Forbes said. "Those boys mean business."

Rolling Stones disagree on band's future

NEW YORK (AP) — One Rolling Stone says the "Steel Wheels" will spin for only a year; his Glimmer Twin says he hopes the band will stay together longer.

Keith Richards and Mick Jagger, the quarrelsome frontmen for the Rolling Stones — the band — revealed their disparate views to Rolling Stone — the magazine — in an interview for its Sept. 7 issue.

"If you asked me what I wanted to do for the rest of my life, Keith and I would probably disagree," said Jagger, lead vocalist for the group.

Richards, predictably, disagreed. "I can never think about starting something up again in order to make it the last time," said the Stones guitarist. "This is the beginning of the second half."

Jagger said one of the reasons he decided to reunite with the band for the "Steel Wheels" album and tour was that it would all be done within a year. The tour begins Aug. 31 in Philadelphia.

"So we just have to put up with each other for a year," Jagger said.

Richards, who bad-mouthed Jagger in interviews and on his album in the past year, said he knew the Stones would be able to work together again after he and Jagger spent some time in Barbados.

"I did have to take Mick to a few discos — which are not my favorite places in the world — because Mick likes to go out and dance at night," Richards recalled. "So I did that. That was my sacrifice. I humored him. And that's when I knew we could work together."

Woodstock: Police file tax charges

BETHEL, N.Y. (AP) — Police at the original Woodstock music festival arrested about 80 people on drug charges.

At the 20th anniversary celebration, there have been four citations issued — on tax charges.

Agents from the state Department of Taxation and Finance raided vendors selling memorabilia during celebrations around Bethel on Thursday night and accused four of not collecting the required state sales tax, said spokesman Paul Rickard.

The vendors were hawking T-shirts, hats, beads and other items to 10,000 people gathered on the site of 1969 festival.

The four were charged with failure to have a certificate of authority, a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of a year in jail and up to a $10,000 fine.

Richard said the state would dispatch three or four tax agents to the site Friday night.

"We'll be going in for the big one tonight," Rickard said. "We anticipate that tonight, because of many more vendors coming, we'll be giving out more citations."

Mazowiecki set to control government that imprisoned him

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Tadeusz Mazowiecki's opposition to the Communist government once brought him a year in prison.

Now, the general who put him behind bars appears poised to appoint him prime minister. The tall, taciturn 62-year-old Solidarity journalist is the least publicly known of the three candidates the labor movement has offered to communist President Wojciech Jaruzelski.

But his links to Solidarity date to the August 1980 strikes that created the union. And his activism goes back to the days after World War II, when the Communists began consolidating power.

Now, he is ready to accept Jaruzelski's offer to be the first non-Communist head of an East bloc government, a circumstance wrought by Solidarity's burgeoning political power.

"There have been several historical moments that show Poles can strive for new solutions and unusual ones, really innovative ones, and that we can get somewhere," he said Friday after meeting with Jaruzelski.

"My hope is that such a moment is now arriving psychologically — that people will feel there is such a situation."

T. MAZOWIECKI Editor and lawyer

A close adviser to Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, Mazowiecki edits the movement's weekly newspaper, Tygodnik Solidarnosc.

He also is closely linked to the Roman Catholic church, and in 1987 helped found the Warsaw Club of Catholic Intellectuals, an influential forum that served as a bulwark for Catholic opposition to Communist ideology.

Mazowiecki was a key negotiator during the pivotal talks earlier this year that resulted in the legalization of Solidarity and opposition participation in elections. The talks were initiated by authorities unable to control Poland's sinking economy and disgruntled populace.

He led the negotiating team that focuses on trade union freedoms, participated in political discussions and fought for press freedoms in a nation where the government controls all publications.

Trained as a lawyer, he submitted the court application for restoration of Solidarity's legal status provided for in the accords reached with authorities.

When the petition was granted on April 17, he stood on the courthouse steps grinning broadly, arms raised and a bouquet of red tulips in one hand.

"Today for me means the restoration of justice," he said then. Recalling that he had been in hand when the union was first legalized in 1980 — it was outlawed 16 months later — he added: "I hope I will not have to come here a third time."

On other days, though, he appears sour and even cold. Some expression of concern that his Catholic faith and legal training have made him overly deliberative and unable to react quickly.

Pronunciation guide to Polish names

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pronunciation guide to Polish names in the news: Solidarity leader Lech Walesa: lak-eh WHEE-ah.

President Wojciech Jaruzelski: VOY-choh yeh-roo-ZEE-eh. Solidarity journalist and apparent nominee for prime minister, Tadeusz Mazowiecki:

TADE-ooz mah-zoh-vee-ET. Solidarity's first Minister of Education, Czeslaw Jablonski: CHEES-wahf lah-BOHNS-ee.

Former Solidarity's elementary school teacher, Bronislaw Geremek: broh-NEE-slaw GER-eh-mek. Solidarity's first deputy prime minister, Jacek Kuron: YAHK-oh KOOR-on.

A widower who lost his young wife to cancer and still wears his wedding ring, Mazowiecki raised three sons alone in a small apartment on Warsaw's main commercial street.

Born on April 18, 1927, in the small central Poland city of Plock, Mazowiecki was raised in a family of intellectuals.

By 21, he had been dismissed from his Academic Editing House job for keeping close ties to the church during the early years of Communist Poland.

He began to work with PAX, an organization set up by the government to dilute church-based opposition. But by 1956 he was so at odds with the mix of politics and religion that he was suspended.

In 1958, he founded the Catholic monthly magazine Wies, or Link, which he edited until 1981, when he began Tygodnik Solidarnosc.

The Catholic magazine reflected, and to a degree preceded, the modernization of Catholicism put forth by the second Vatican Council.

He became aligned with ZNAK, a group supporting regeneration of Poland based on Catholic values. Officially condoned under the protection of the church, ZNAK had a Sejm delegation and Mazowiecki became a parliament deputy in 1961. By 1970, Mazowiecki's agitation for democratization of public life and social justice had run afoul of official tolerance and he was not allowed another term.

As the opposition began organizing in the mid-1970s, especially after worker riots in 1976, Mazowiecki went to Western Europe in search of support and aid. Mention of free trade unions in a West German newspaper interview resulted in withdrawal of his passport for four years.

Wiesz became a more radical forum, publishing articles by Adam Michnik and other strong opposition voices.

Mazowiecki initiated a letter by more than 60 intellectuals, urging authorities to find a peaceful solution to the strikes that erupted on the Baltic coast in August 1980 and led to Solidarity's founding.

On Aug. 22, he arrived at the strikebound Lenin shipyard in Gdansk and after a night-long talk with Walesa, Mazowiecki became the head of a group of experts to help the workers organize the union and negotiate with government officials.

Najorna will return home after exile

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — San Najoma, president of the South West Africa People's Organization says he will return to Namibia in the next few days after 30 years in exile.

Najoma on Thursday night confirmed reports by the Angolan press agency and South African radio that his return was imminent.

He said he had received a "signal" from colleagues in Namibia that the time had come for him to come home and "mobilize" the Namibian people prior to elections Nov. 6 to select a constituent assembly. Political observers say the new assembly probably will be dominated by SWAPO.

Syrians fire on passenger vessel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian gunners fired 120 rockets Friday at the only passenger vessel that serves the Christian enclave, wounding seven people on the ship and forcing the ship to flee for Cyprus, police said.

It left behind hundreds of tryp and the artillery war that has killed 78 people and wounded 2,104, by police count, in five months.

The sea route to Cyprus is the only link to the outside for the 1 million Christians of the 310-square-mile enclave, which is sealed on the other three sides by Syrian soldiers, guns and tanks.

Police said three people were killed and 21 wounded in sporadic artillery exchanges elsewhere. Despite the casualties, firing has abated from the fierce levels of daily exchanges before the U.N. Security Council issued a cease-fire call Tuesday night.

Korean armistice shaky, says U.N.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The U.N. command said Friday a border crossing at Panmunjom by two South Korean dissidents returning from North Korea threatens the armistice in effect on the divided peninsula since 1953.

"Most critically, the North Koreans' unilateral decision to allow the transit puts in question their adherence to the armistice itself," said a statement by the U.S.-led command, which represents nations that supported South Korea in the 1950-53 war.

A spokesman said the statement was intended to clarify the command's position. He did not say what action, if any, would be taken.

South Korea accused North Korea of "intentional provocation" and using Panmunjom for propaganda purposes.

Photographer ordered out of Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A free-lance photographer from West Germany who was arrested on a weapons charge was granted bail Friday and ordered to stay out of Northern Ireland.

A high court judge said that Nick Vogel of West Berlin would be permitted to return to the British province only for court appearances. Bail was set at about $1,560.

Vogel, 22, was arrested early Tuesday in West Belfast, and was charged with possession of a rifle magazine under suspicious circumstances.

Vogel, who did not speak during the hearing, has said he was in Belfast on assignment from Stern magazine.

Thailand needed to help Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The leader of a United Nations fact-finding team said Friday that Thailand's help would be needed if an international force is dispatched to Cambodia to help bring peace to that country.

Lt. Gen. Martin O. Vadsset also thanked Prime Minister Chantichai Chochavanon for assistance during the team's inspection tour of the Thai-Cambodian border.

The 15-member team departs Saturday after spending a week inside Cambodia and three days at the frontier. The team was dispatched by an international conference in Paris that is trying to bring peace to Cambodia.

Vadsset declined to say what the team would report to the conference Monday.

Vadsset's task was to lay the groundwork for a group to monitor the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and perhaps act as a peacekeeping force.

New trial ordered for slayer of Palme

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An appeals court Friday agreed to a new trial for Christer Pettersson, who was convicted in the slaying of Prime Minister Olof Palme, the national TT news agency said.

Pettersson, a 42-year-old Swede with a criminal record, was sentenced to life in prison last month after his conviction. He denied shooting Palme and appealed.

The prosecution also appealed because it wanted to convict Pettersson of attempted murder in the wounding of Palme's widow, Liabeth, who was slightly wounded in the attack in February 1986. Pettersson was convicted of the lesser charge of endangering Mrs. Palme's life.

Witness' absence delays Wurst hearing

JEROME - The preliminary hearing for Jerome County Assessor John Wurst, charged with using county funds for personal use, has been delayed until 9 a.m. Aug. 29.

Wurst appeared before Magistrate Judge Roger Burdick in 5th District Magistrate Court on Friday. But Burdick explained that a continuance was necessary because a witness had failed to appear despite receiving a subpoena.

There are also some questions about evidence that can best be discussed by special prosecutor Lynn Nelson and defense attorney Robert Chastain in private, he noted.

"The state has a problem," said Burdick, who added that both attorneys agreed with the decision to reset the preliminary hearing date.

Nelson told the judge he would follow through with the necessary paperwork to charge the missing witness with contempt of court. Afterward, Nelson refused to name the witness.

Wurst was arraigned before Burdick on June 27 and was then released on his own recognizance. He is charged with using county funds to pay for a barbecue party. The maximum penalty for the felony charge is a maximum five years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Blaine County now part of Gem Community program

HAILEY - Blaine County became Idaho's seventh Gem Community on Friday, drawing praise from Gov. Cecil Andrus for its economic development efforts.

"Building partnerships among the business community and local and state government is the proven path to building a stronger Idaho economy," the governor said. "Over the past two years we have seen a local economic development project blossoming when business and government at all levels pull together."

The Gem Communities program is part of Andrus' effort to focus more of the state's economic development attention on rural Idaho. Six communities were certified as part of the program before Blaine County.

Cassia County coroner to decide status of inquest

BURLEY - A decision on whether to hold a coroner's inquest into the shooting of a Burley man by law enforcement officers could be made Monday.

Cassia County Coroner Paul Young said he has received the last of several investigative reports and an autopsy report and will meet with Prosecutor Stephen Bywater Monday morning. He expects a to make a decision on whether a coroner's inquest is needed at that meeting.

Moistinto Gonzalez, 59, died when he was shot by a state policeman fired at Gonzalez. Gonzalez began firing at officers after they responded to a reported domestic disturbance at his house July 7.

School district ends up in the black, taxes to be cut

FILER - Property owners here will get a $142,000 tax break, courtesy of the Filer school district.

The district saved money during the 1988-89 school year, meaning it won't need all the money Filer taxpayers approved in a 1987 supplemental levy vote, said School Board Chairman Robert Lantieri.

The board has reduced the tax certification by $67,600 for the second year of the two-year levy, according to a statement by Superintendent Dave Teater.

That levy was passed to erase a general fund deficit of $483,000.

Federal Energy Department to hold hearing in Boise

BOISE - A federal Energy Department hearing on a national energy strategy will be in Boise Wednesday.

The public hearing will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Boise City Hall Council Chambers at 150 North Capitol Blvd. The hearing will be moderated by Deputy Secretary of Energy W. Heron Moore. Those wishing to submit testimony should contact Bill Hatch or Susan Moore at the Department of Energy, Office of Policy, Planning and Analysis, 1000 Independence Ave. S.W., Room 7T1-034, Washington, D.C. 20585 or at (202) 584-4766.

All testimony will be available to the public.

West One appeals, but faces another lawsuit

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

HAILEY - Thirty thousand dollars has bought West One Bank about a year's grace, but the lawyer who won a $5.6 million judgment against the bank says he has filed another lawsuit against the bank.

Under a common arrangement, West One paid an insurance company $30,000 to post a $7.6 million bond Thursday - preventing a group of gourmet mushroom farmers from seizing the bank's assets on Monday.

The bond was required under Idaho court rules if West One is to avoid paying the $5.6 million judgment while appealing to the Idaho Supreme Court. The appeals process could take a year or more.

The purpose of such a bond is to insure that during the appeals process someone doesn't dissipate all their assets to avoid judgment," said Walter Bithell, West One attorney.

The mushroom farmers, operating under the name of Bliss Valley Foods, won $5.6 million in June by turning a foreclosure suit on its head and convincing a jury the bank acted in bad faith. This week they mailed a notice of the judgment to every county in the state and said they were prepared to file liens against every piece of West One property they could find.

Thursday's action forestalled such a seizure.

On Friday, Ed McCabe, the Boston lawyer who won the lawsuit for Bliss Valley, said he has filed a $10 million lawsuit in Boise on behalf of a helicopter service, alleging circumstances similar to the Bliss Valley case.

West One lawyer Peter Houtema said he hadn't seen the lawsuit yet and couldn't comment.

Houtema has filed several post-trial motions in the Bliss Valley case, essentially, asking 5th District Judge James May to overturn the jury's verdict against the bank. He has also formally started the Idaho Supreme Court appeal.

The Bliss Valley lawsuit started in 1987 when West One - then known as Idaho First National Bank - sued the farm, Bliss Valley Feeders, Bob Erkins, tax lawyer Thomas Walker Jr. and 12 investors. The original defendants contrived, saying Idaho First forced the farm into default.

'The City Council is just terribly wrong,' says Nick Piccard of the Royal Lounge and Restaurant

Lounge owner: rejection unfair

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The owner of the Royal Lounge says a disgruntled church congregation and people from a "1,000-square-mile" area unfairly played a role in the rejection of his liquor license transfer.

The City Council let pre-election politics and emotion cloud reason when it denied his request, said Nick Piccard, owner of the Royal Lounge in an interview this week. A council member, however, denied that assertion.

"I think that is probably 100 percent incorrect," Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said Friday.

Earlier this month the council - responding to strong neighborhood sentiment - unanimously denied Piccard's request to move his liquor license from his old location downtown to his new restaurant in the Campus Commons retail center, on the corner of Fillmore Street and Filor Avenue.

"The actual facts of the case were not considered," Piccard said. "They didn't have the guts to stand on their own two feet like you would expect any man to do."

Piccard has filed an order-to-show-cause complaint in 5th District Court, asking the city to explain how it justifies violating its own ordinance that outright allows liquor by the drink in a commercial zone.

The court could order the city to grant the transfer.

City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich said the city is mandated to enforce the state's liquor law which prohibits issuance of liquor licenses in predominantly residential neighborhoods without City Council approval.

Kleinkopf said his vote was based on whether Campus Commons was in a predominantly residential area. It was abundantly clear at the meeting that the neighborhood was residential, he said.

Piccard, whose $8,000 worth of liquor stands idly on racks in his new restaurant's bar, said he has confidence the court will rule unemotionally on the facts and order the city to grant the license.

Although a hearing was set on Aug. 29, the date will be rescheduled, Wonderlich said.

Andrus to mining industry: Be open to change

The Associated Press

SUN VALLEY - It appears changes are coming in the nation's century-old mining law, and Idaho's mining industry should work for changes it can live with, not blindly oppose any changes, Gov. Cecil Andrus says.

"I have reviewed Senator Bumpers' (Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.) bill and I have one piece of advice for you," Andrus told delegates to the Idaho Mining Association convention at Sun Valley on Friday.

"If you, and the industry, adopt an attitude of blind opposition to any change, I am afraid you will lose," Andrus said, in prepared remarks.

"My advice is to recognize that reality and become a participant in shaping a law you can live with," the governor said.

"You have a choice, it seems to me; of having the law changed with you or without you," he said.

He said at least a couple of provisions need rewriting. One is the royalty issue. He said others who use public lands are paying royalties for the extraction of natural resources.

"Those who are extracting uranium and coal are paying a royalty, and Congress and the public frankly expects that a royalty will be paid for other minerals as well," he said.

Andrus said he had no idea what that royalty should be. "But the fact is, some changes are going to be made," he said.

"I am committed to the position that miners ought to have the right to explore for minerals on all public lands that are available for mineral entry," he said. "And that miners should have the right to extract minerals under a guaranteed lease arrangement."

"But I also know that there have been some abuses in the transferring of title to some ground where frankly extraction of minerals was not really the purpose of the lease."

"The industry has every right to use the land for locating and extracting minerals, but not for building condos, apartments, bordellos and gambling casinos," Andrus said.

Jerome budget hearing scheduled

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Residents here will have the chance next week to comment on next year's proposed budget, which is down just slightly from the current year.

The proposed 1989-90 budget is set at $3.628 million, about $42,000 less than the current year's $3,670 million. "There is not a lot of change in the new budget," said City Clerk Marilyn Bragg.

The major single decrease is in the street fund budget, which is down almost $30,000, Bragg said.

from $526,012 reflects state funds being used to redesign Eighth Avenue West and Date Street but which were budgeted into last year's budget.

A hearing on the budget is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall.

This year's administration budget is up $10,000, to $183,454 from $173,176, reflecting a 5 percent increase in wages for city employees and an increase in the benefits for those workers. An anticipated $5,000 donation for city fireworks is also figured in, as is $2,000 for a word processor for the city office computer.

The monthly salaries of Jerome's mayor and city council members remain the same this year at $500 and $300, respectively, according to Bragg. Mayor Ralph Peters donates $200 a month of his salary to Jerome's library, Bragg added.

The parks and recreation budget will drop the coming year, to $45,913 from $58,087. The drop reflects the expiration of state grants the city has used to build parks and buy equipment for them, Bragg said.

The new budget will have enough money to maintain the parks.

The old budget had surplus funds for major swimming pool repairs. The new budget will not, Bragg said.

Castleford school chief walks out

By DIANE SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD - Citing "philosophy differences" with certain members of the School Board, Superintendent Ron Erickson has resigned effective September 1.

Erickson, who said he feels board philosophy has changed since he was hired four years ago, said he resigns "with both a heavy heart and a feeling of relief."

Erickson tendered his resignation to a surprised School Board at the close of its regular board meeting last week. He said he hopes his resignation will allow the board to focus on long-range needs and plans for the district.

"You have the nucleus of an outstanding school system," he said; "but I would caution the board on withdrawing to a tight-belt attitude when it is not necessary."

"I have enjoyed my tenure as your superintendent and wish only the best for the students, staff, board and community."

Although he has had other employment offers, Erickson has not yet decided where he will go next.

The board appointed Principal Kelly Murphy as acting superintendent until further plans can be made. School starts in Castleford on Monday.

Board member Joe Wisecaver said Erickson's resignation surprised him, "but we all knew it would happen sometime because he is a professional administrator and he is working his way up."

None of the current trustees were on the board when Erickson was hired, though Fred Schaer, current board chairman, and Don Graybeal were elected shortly thereafter.

Schaer said it is natural for board philosophy to make some changes as new members are voted in, but he doesn't feel there has been a major shift in the district's philosophy.

Schaer credits Erickson with pulling the Castleford school district out of debt.

"All the board felt that he did a very good job," Schaer said. "He was always looking forward to new things."

Schaer cites the updated curriculum and the new satellite long-distance learning program as the district's implementing.

Wisecaver agreed.

"He helped us come out of a financially stressed situation," he said.

Buhl - After a month of budget workshops, the City Council is preparing to adopt a tentative budget when it meets Monday evening.

The general fund's low reserve of $19,000 is a source of concern, Mayor Tom Tappen said.

"This year we want to spend only our revenue and see if we can't build the reserve fund back up," he said. "We cut each department's budget down to the bare bones and then added on to that."

The preliminary budget figure for the 89-90 fiscal year is $1,848, as compared with last year's $1,556,363.

The difference can be ascribed to a planned reduction in water fund expenditures of $284,729. Last year's budget had included a $200,000 HUD grant, which the city failed to receive.

Tappen said all of the utilities' budgets, funded mainly by user fees and largely self-sufficient, were in good shape. "These are mainly a step away from the general fund, whose revenue is derived from taxes."

General fund revenue is expected to increase over last year's budget figure by $41,286, from $613,000 to $654,286. General fund expenditures will also rise during the next year by $12,786, from $641,490 to $654,276.

INEL News, outlines Air Force project

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A contract for the eastern Idaho installation repeatedly being discussed by Air Force contractors has been handled on the site, Idaho National Engineering Laboratory officials have outlined a $40 million communications project in its employee newsletter.

The biweekly publication, The INEL News, said EG&G Idaho, the government's largest private contractor at the eastern Idaho installation, has been working on the Tactical Air Control System for about two years.

The project centers on mobile command units through which Air Force personnel can control air battles and coordinate air support with ground forces. INEL spokesmen have declined to publicly discuss EG&G's Air Force contracts, saying the work is classified and a media request last winter for information on the work was denied.

But in June, EG&G official Richard Rice said the Air Force work had contributed to a shortage of contractor office space, requiring the company to move some engineering and electronics offices into Idaho Falls to handle Air Force communications work.

Lounge

Piccard said the City Council gave too much significance to a petition signed by fewer than 200 people, which he contends includes names of both local and Jerome residents.

However, a copy of the petition obtained by The Times-News, bearing about 120 signatures, lists addresses exclusively from Campus Commons neighborhood streets.

Catherine Brown, 583 Fillmore St., who along with two neighbors collected about 125 signatures, said she was one of the few signers, but if there were any the names of her patrons of Williams Food Mart in Campus Commons.

She said the signatures she collected were within a few blocks of Campus Commons.

Kleinkopf said if no one had opposed the Royal Lounge—the city likely would have granted the transfer without question.

"There was an overwhelming resistance in the neighborhood," he said.

Kleinkopf said he also contacted business owners in Campus Commons before the meeting and about half of them were against having a bar for a neighbor.

Piccard said other people who participated but should not have been given much consideration were disgruntled members of the Chapel of Praise, a church that Campus Commons owner Glenn Mathis evicted to make room for Piccard's business. Mathis said he allowed the church's pastor, Sheldon Sigel, to have his church at the complex at about one-tenth what he would normally charge, mostly out of charity.

He said he had an understanding with Sigel that when Mathis found someone to lease the space, Sigel would have to find a new location. But when the time came to leave, Sigel left grudgingly, he said.

"Sigel was unavailable for comment."

The attendance of Sigel and some of his followers hurt the Royal Lounge when Mayor Doug Vollmer asked Royal Lounge opponents to raise their hands, Piccard said.

He said if he had known that his application would receive more than usual attention, he could have had 400 people at the meeting supporting him.

Piccard said he worries that his clientele will dwindle while the issue is in court.

"Maybe they'll come back and maybe they'll never come back," he said.

Without liquor, his restaurant could not compete, he said.

Brown said neighbors have never been against a restaurant and it is Piccard's business—really was to be mainly food, as he has said, then he should still be able to do business.

Budget

$513,000 to $525,795.

The increase in fee in part to an additional $8,128 allotment for law enforcement salaries. Tappen said that this figure was sufficient to allow the hiring of one new officer, but not until Dec. 15. The police department has not been operating at full strength since its fifth officer left early this year.

Salaries for fire department employees will rise from $53,034 to $60,000, a difference of $6,966. The department's total budget will be increased by only $3,389, however. Spending cuts have been made throughout the department, due mostly to last year's one-time purchase of oxygen packs.

The fire department's major purchase this year will be a 5-inch fire hose, for $10,000. The department is currently using a 2½-inch hose, which is not only wearing out, but is less efficient, Tappen said.

The budget also calls for an increase in animal control expenditures, from $12,558 to $16,540, due mainly to the planned purchase of new dog wagon for $3,688.

Department heads expressed satisfaction with the preliminary budget.

"I couldn't be more pleased with the budget that's been proposed," said Police Chief Les Cochran.

Fire Chief Mark Grimes agreed. "I've been doing this for 10 years now, and this is the best budget I've ever worked on," he said.

"It's been the easiest, and the easiest to understand."

The council will present the budget to the public at a hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. Sept. 7.

is expected to eventually go down following this year's split with the sheriff's department and a move out of the courthouse, stands at $418,337 for 1989-90, against $415,116 last year. Bragg said this budget reflects $18,000 to be paid for new roof for the building now being occupied by the police department.

Fire control funds are up about $10,000 this year, to $219,882 from $209,597—Bragg said increased salaries and benefits are responsible for this increase. The library fund is also up, to $100,308 from $77,255, because of budgeting for a new copy machine. Animal control went to $38,467 from $29,180 due to the need to budget for a new pickup.

Among areas following the downward trend are the water and sewer funds. The water fund went to $443,386 from $463,182, while the sewer fund went to $1,383 million from $1,407 million, representing a total decrease of nearly $34,000. These drops, explained Bragg, reflect grants that vary from one year to the next.

Irrigation and sanitation figures remain about the same as last year.

Idaho Power chief steps down

BOISE (AP) — The chairman and chief executive officer of Idaho's largest electric utility has decided to step aside.

Robert O'Connor, 61, told the Idaho Power Co. board of directors on Friday he would end his 37-year career with the utility on Aug. 31 because of health concerns.

Problems earlier this year resulted in surgery for the removal of his spleen, and he told the board it has become evident his recuperation will be slow. His doctors had urged him to step down.

Although he hopes to make a full recovery, O'Connor said the company should not operate without a chief executive for any length of time, and the board named Executive Vice President Joseph Marshall, 51, to take over as chairman and chief executive officer.

President and Chief Operating Officer Wayne Anderson will remain in charge until his retirement in less than a year.

O'Connor was named chief executive officer in 1985 and became chairman two years later when James Bruce retired. He guided the company through a period of dramatically declining revenues caused by drought-reduced stream flows through its hydropower system and a controversial rate increase.

He saw the state Supreme Court reverse the Public Utilities Commission's refusal to allow Idaho Power to bill ratepayers for a Nevada coal-fired generating plant the regulators did not feel was needed.

"Bob O'Connor led this company through some very difficult times, and his strength today is a testament to the leadership he provided," said A. Dale Dunn, chairman of the board's executive committee.

O'Connor was also a key figure in creation of the Idaho Company, the venture capital firm trying to fuel economic expansion throughout the state.

Marshall, known for an innovative and energetic style, joined Idaho Power as a distribution engineer in Twin Falls in 1959 after an eight-year stint as a Marine Corps officer.

In 1985, he was picked by O'Connor as the CEO's assistant and a year later named vice president for planning, resources and rates. He has most recently been responsible for the company's business plan.

"As much as I regret stepping down," O'Connor said, "Joe is the right man at the right time for Idaho Power."

Utah pardons board rejects Andrews' plea for clemency

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Board of Pardons denied William Andrews' plea for clemency in a split decision Friday that moved the nation's longest-standing death row inmate a step closer to execution Tuesday.

Barring a stay of execution from one of several appeals in state federal courts, Andrews, 34, will die by injection after nearly 15 years on death row for the torture-murder of three people during a 1974 robbery at an Ogden stereo store.

Board Chairman H.L. Haun said he and panel member Edward Kimball decided that although Andrews' accomplice fired the shots that killed the three and wounded two others, his help in forcing the victims to drink liquid drain cleaner and his knowledge they would be killed made the death sentence appropriate.

The aggravating circumstances of the crime known as the "Hi-Fi murders" far outweighed any mitigating factors, Haun said.

Haun said Andrews and co-defendant Pierre Dale Selby forced their bound victims to drink the drain cleaner and when they did not die "quickly enough" decided to kill them.

"Mr. Andrews waited outside (the store) while this took place, but he left his loaded pistol for Mr. Selby to use," he said. "Mr. Andrews knew of Mr. Selby's intent and shared in it."

Selby was executed by injection in August 1987 after the pardons panel unanimously rejected his plea for commutation.

Andrews, a Jonesboro, La., native, showed no emotion. While being led from the hearing room at Utah State Prison, however, he said, "I thank Miss Palacios for being fair and considering."

Her voice quivering with emotion, Palacios called life in prison "sufficiently harsh punishment" and cited four other cases in which convicted Utah killers had been sentenced only to life imprisonment, among them former and pipe-bomb killer Mark Hofmann.

She also said circumstances surrounding Andrews' trial and the racial implications of his case and others involving minorities across the nation were "very, very troubling. Andrews is black."

"We employ a racially neutral criminal justice process and out of the pipeline emerges a disproportionate number of minorities," Palacios said.

"Yes, your case, I believe there is a terrible possibility of your life being taken by the state without fundamental fairness."

No trial can be perfect; no death penalty scheme flawless. Still, I had hoped we could come closer than this," Palacios said.

State attorney Robert Wallace called the decision "appropriate." Defense attorney Robert Anderson said he would be at a hearing and he're giving everything to save it," he said.

Andrews and Selby, both airmen at Hill Air Force Base, were convicted of killing two women and a man during the robbery at the Ogden Hi-Fi Shop. One woman was raped by Selby before he shot the five victims in the head.

Two men survived, including Ronald N. Boyce, whose son was one of those killed. Walker testified at Andrews' and Selby's commutation hearings and was present Friday.

After the board's decision, defense attorneys were back in U.S. District Court and the Utah Supreme Court to file documents related to existing and new appeals.

On Thursday, U.S. Magistrate Ronald N. Boyce recommended that U.S. District Judge David Sam reject Andrews' latest appeal for a writ of habeas corpus because Andrews was raising issues that should have been or were part of earlier appeals.

Sam ordered the writ dismissed on Friday, but said the order would be held until Boyce makes a recommendation on a supplemental writ filed Thursday.

Deputy says man admits slaying

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A sheriff's deputy says a Firth man voluntarily confessed to killing one of the three people condemned slayer Paul Ezra Rhoades was convicted of murdering two years ago in eastern Idaho.

Bingham County Deputy Larry Christian told 7th District Judge James Herndon on Friday that 2 weeks after Blackfoot convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin, 24, was killed in late February 1987 Kevin Bucholz was brought into the jail in an extremely intoxicated state and said he committed the murder.

During a post-conviction relief hearing for Rhoades, 32, Christian quoted Bucholz as saying, "I killed the girl. I've been in trouble most of my life. I need to be put away."

He said Bucholz claimed to have stolen a green pickup truck in Pocatello, abducted the girl, killed her and then dumped the pickup near Fort Hall.

Rhoades faces execution for the Baldwin slaying and the murder a month later of Idaho Falls school teacher Susan Michelbacher, 34. He has been sentenced to two life prison-terms after pleading guilty to the murder of convenience store clerk Nolan Haddon, 21, of Blackfoot two days before the Michelbacher killing.

Idaho counties take 'terrific beating'

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho's counties have taken a "terrific beating" over the last 10 years by not going after property taxes owed by people who declare bankruptcy, county treasurers have been advised.

Gery Edson, Boise attorney, spoke to a conference of about 40 county treasurers in Pocatello this week. Edson is serving as a consultant to several Idaho counties, helping them to change their passive philosophy on collecting taxes.

He told the treasurers it's imperative they act quickly once a property owner declares bankruptcy.

Mayor of Pocatello gets a raise

POCATELLO (AP) — Mayor Dick Finlayson has won a compromise victory in his bid to raise the salary for Pocatello's top government official.

The City Council late Thursday approved a plan to raise the mayor's annual pay 25 percent to about $50,000 by January 1991.

Finlayson had called for the increase, claiming the current $40,000 salary was inadequate for the responsibilities and to attract qualified candidates to the job. He had indicated the council's action on the salary question could affect his decision on whether to run for reelection this fall.

$250,000 in pot seized near Parma

BOISE (AP) — Marijuana plants with a potential value of $250,000 have been seized from a small island in the Snake River near Parma, the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics reports.

Working from a tip received on the state's marijuana hotline, officers capped an eight-day investigation by uprooting nearly 140 plants Thursday afternoon, said Richard Schuler, a special agent.

No arrests were made, but officers have two suspects in the growing operation and the investigation is continuing.

Pocatello ignores tribe's requests

POCATELLO (AP) — The City Council has ignored Shoshone-Bannock tribal leaders' requests for further negotiations and proceeded with its controversial annexation of the Pocatello airport and the 3,200 acres of land the city owns on the Fort Hall Indian Reservation.

The annexation was approved by the council late Thursday despite renewed pleas from Shoshone officials to delay action until a meeting on the issue could be set up in mid-September.

The council maintained delaying the annexation would only give the tribes more time for legal action and if the matter is headed for the courts anyway the faster it gets there the better.

PUC says firm meets requirements

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission says the small Sunbeam Water Corp. at American Falls has met requirements, and an inquiry into company operations has been dropped.

Erratic backcountry winds and rugged terrain forced fire bosses on Friday to again push back

The 46,500-acre Lawman Fire 70 miles northeast of Boise, the state's most destructive this summer, and the 16,000-acre Foolhen Complex to the northwest near McCall were both set for containment Friday night.

But wind-blown embers sparking new fires to the north of the Lowman blaze left over 1,400 firefighters looking at a new containment target of next Tuesday.

"There's just some persistent spots on the north end of the fire that we refused to stop pushing the line," Boise National Forest spokeswoman Sue Conso said. "They are making major progress on mopping up the rest of the fire, but they still have to concentrate on getting good line construction on the north side."

On the Foolhen, line construction was being blaze. That fire broke out earlier in the week, possibly after a helicopter lost power and was forced to make an autorotation landing in the area. Containment slid back another day to Saturday night.

"They still have nine miles of line to build," Payette National Forest spokeswoman Marcia Nelson said. "It's such steep terrain, it's just slow going."

The Spike Fire burned to within 100 yards of a fire camp late Thursday before crews managed to hold it. Helicopters dumping water and tankers dropping chemical retardant were playing major roles in the new battle to keep the flames from jumping the South Fork of the Salmon River and its prime salmon spawning beds. Over 1,000 firefighters were still committed to that complex, and 3,100 other firefighters continued mopping up from blazes that had been burning over another 60,000 acres earlier this month.

Resource losses from the fire bust that followed the July 28 lightning storm have been estimated in excess of $100 million.

Water board dives into hydro power

LEWISTON (AP) — For the first time in its 24-year history, the Idaho Water Resource Board wants to become a hydroelectric developer.

The project would be designed to generate money for the state's revolving loan fund used by communities for water system improvements. It also would preserve an option for Orofino to gain a new source of water.

The site for the proposed 2-megawatt plant is along two planned pipelines for carrying water from Dworshak Dam Reservoir to the soon-to-be constructed Clearwater Fish Hatchery at Ashlake.

But water board officials Thursday acknowledged they will have to move quickly. Applications for water rights were filed Thursday and an application to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will be submitted next week.

Director R. Keith Higginson and board members Richard Wagner of Lewiston and Kenneth Hungerford of Moscow outlined their plans to local lawmakers at Lewiston.

Higginson also has covered his bases with the two legislative committee chairmen, who will be responsible for screening a bill required to allow the project to proceed. They are House Resources and Conservation Committee Chairman Dean Haugenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, and Senate Resources and Environment Committee Chairman Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls.

Gov. Cecil Andrus also was advised of the plan, Higginson said. "I see nothing but green lights from the people I talked to," Higginson said.

The water board intends to build a 36-inch diameter pipeline to preserve the flow needed to run the generator. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers had proposed a 27-inch line.

Firth to start teacher merit system

FIRTH (AP) — The Firth School District in eastern Idaho has become the only district in Idaho using a teacher merit pay program, a concept that the Idaho Education Association says could divide teachers.

The local school board adopted the plan in June in a bid to retain good teachers and encourage excellence in the classroom, Superintendent Bert Nixon said. It begins this fall.

Firth is not the first Idaho school district to adopt merit pay, although it is the only one now using the plan, said Gus Hein, deputy state superintendent of public instruction. The Shoshone School District adopted a similar plan in 1986, but funding ran out in two years.

Bob Donohue, district superintendent at the time, said merit pay encouraged teachers to improve.

"We found that very creative things happened," he said. "It wasn't easy. It was controversial, but good things happened for the kids."

The district funded the plan with a $15,000 U.S. Department of Education Excellence in Education grant. About $11,000 went to 14 teachers and the rest was used for training grants and extended contracts. When the money ran out, Donohue was not successful in finding another funding source.

Nixon said teachers often look elsewhere for better-paying jobs, or move into administration.

"It's good to have good administrators, but if there are outstanding teachers, it's good to keep them in the classroom, too," he said.

The rewards will range from $500 to $1,500 and will go to 16 teachers, he said. The district has about 50 instructors.

But Rob Nicholson, IEA research director, said merit pay can cause problems among teachers.

"I have not seen Firth's plan, but if it's a merit pay plan, then it will do nothing but cause problems amongst teachers," he said.

Funding for merit pay came from $3 million the 1989 Legislature appropriated to raise minimum teacher salaries to $16,000 and provide for other needs.

School districts may apply their portion of the money to other areas if teacher salaries were already at $16,000, Hein said. Firth's base remaining fires; the Boise-Interagency Fire Center, the nation's wildfire command post, began demobilizing military units from Fort Carson, Colorado; and Fort Riley, Kansas, and a Blackhawk helicopter group from Fort Campbell, Ky.

"We're quieting down here some now," spokesman Arnold Hartigan said. "But we got lightning in northern California last night and we're expecting more. Whether it's enough to trigger more fire activity we don't know. But it's enough to have us concerned."

In central Idaho's Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness, firefighters bombarded the 2,460-acre Game Creek Fire and 350-acre Sheepeater blaze, which along with nearly a dozen other fires had burned about 540 side of the Game Creek River, spokesman Dave Olson said. "That's to prevent it from spreading toward Chamberlain Basin." An airstrip in the basin is the jumping-off spot for area outfitters and some Forest Service buildings are located in the vicinity.

salary is $16,200.

The Firth School Board requires teachers to have at least five years' experience in teaching to be eligible, three of which must have been spent at Firth, Nixon said.

The district has 30 criteria by which teachers are judged before they may receive merit pay. They include class management, working with colleagues, the building of student self-esteem and other considerations.

Teachers are nominated for merit pay by a school administrator.

"We've worked on this for about three years," Nixon said. "It's not just something we just came up with."

Nicholson contends the awards are distributed subjectively. Another problem he cites is the competition merit pay fosters among teachers.

"It divides the teachers," Nicholson said. "It causes competition, rather than cooperation."

"There have been pros and cons, but no one can really tell how it really will work until they do it," said Gayle Gilene, Firth elementary school teacher. "It could be just fine. It could be motivating factor."

Voyager to Neptune Encounter With Neptune August 25, 1989

After 12 years and 3 billion miles, Voyager 2 encounter will end planetary grand tour

Los Angeles Times

PASADENA, Calif. — The Grand Tour is almost over.

The venerable Voyager 2 spacecraft is sailing through the back yard of the solar system at more than 30,000 miles an hour, closing in on the last encounter of the most incredible journey of all.

The automated craft is plunging through an area nearly 3 billion miles away where no visitor from Earth has ever been before, aiming toward a spectacular flight over the cloud tops of Neptune at midnight EDT on Aug. 24. No one has ever seen Neptune other than as a ball of telescopic fuzz, but by the time Voyager is through, thousands of close-up photos and warehouses full of data will have been sent back to Earth.

Scientists will watch the encounter with rapture, knowing nothing like this will happen again for decades, perhaps even centuries.

For many years they will study those images and examine that data and rewrite the textbooks as Voyager 2 soars out into the Milky Way to wander among the stars, possibly never to be seen again. Voyager 1, already on its way to its own missions from distant stars, its journey to the planets completed.

For most people, the fantastic flight of the Voyagers will end in the third week of August, 1989, when Voyager 2 whips past Neptune and says a quick "visit" to its extraordinary moon, Triton. The spacecraft has already discovered four new moons, including three announced Thursday.

But the electronic camera that has allowed armchair scientists to tour the solar system's four outer planets will soon grow tall, ending a 12-year odyssey that has been called "the greatest picture show ever."

said Edward C. Stone, vice president of the California Institute of Technology, in Pasadena, Calif., and the chief scientist on the Voyager project.

The Neptune encounter should be spectacular, providing a fitting end for a most unusual spacecraft. The one-ton Voyager is the most sophisticated robot ever built, composed of 65,000 individual parts, including an on-board computer that has the electronic circuitry equivalent to 2,000 color TV sets. In recent years Voyager 2 has seen the planet Uranus, and now Neptune, the only planet in the solar system making photography possible under circumstances comparable to taking photos in a dark cellar.

The craft's on-board computer is sophisticated enough for the Voyager to heat itself when trouble arises. It can even shut off important electronic parts during times of radiation peril or freeze its orientation toward Earth if for some reason it appears in danger of drifting into a position where contact with mission control would be lost.

Stone expects the two Voyagers to send scientific data on the composition of interstellar space back to Earth for another quarter of a century, but there will be no more Neptunes, no more moons like Jupiter's Io with its violent volcanoes, no more mad dashes through the rings of Saturn. It will be the middle of the 22nd century before the outer planets once again present themselves in such an alignment that would make a similar mission possible.

Neptune will grow ever dimmer as Voyager 2 dips below the ecliptic plane in which the planets travel around the sun, signaling the end of an era.

"I'm going to be sad," admitted Charles E. Kohlhaase, who for the past 14 years has worried about every detail of the mission. As manager of the Voyager mission planning office at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Kohlhaase will remember the early days when he and his colleagues wondered among themselves: "Is this really going to work?"

Yet work it did, "better than any of us expected," Stone observed.

The enormity of that fact was underscored by astronomer Carl Sagan, a member of the Voyager's engineering team, during a recent speech to Jet Propulsion Laboratory employees.

"This will surely be in the history books 1,000 years from now," Sagan said.

"Voyager is a unique event in solar system exploration," he added. "But an era is drawing to an end."

"The climax is not without peril, however. Even a small piece of dust could severely damage Voyager during its daringly close flyby."

Throughout the encounter with Neptune, 38 antennas on four continents will be used to receive transmissions from Voyager. Many sophisticated robot ever built, composed of 65,000 individual parts, including an on-board computer that has the electronic circuitry equivalent to 2,000 color TV sets. In recent years Voyager 2 has seen the planet Uranus, and now Neptune, the only planet in the solar system making photography possible under circumstances comparable to taking photos in a dark cellar.

The total cost of both Voyager missions is just over $855 million, according to Kohlhaase.

That means the Grand Tour, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration likes to call it, has cost every American 20 cents per year, he added. And in 12 short years it has produced more information about the solar system than had been learned throughout history.

Although this month will bring the end of the planetary odyssey, Voyager will go out in spectacular form. Consider this:

- Neptune is 2.71 billion miles away, and that is so far that Voyager will be on its own throughout the "close" encounter. It will take four hours and six minutes for Voyager's radio transmissions, traveling at 186,000 miles per second, to reach Earth. This means that if an object should suddenly loom in Voyager's path as it zips past Neptune at 17 miles-per-second, the spacecraft will hit it hours before ground controllers even learn of the danger. There will be no opportunity to correct its course from Earth.

"Voyager is so distant that by the time its radio signal reaches Earth, it will be reduced to the strength of only one 10-quadrillionth of a watt. That is 20 billion times weaker than the power used to operate a digital wristwatch."

"The amount of sunlight that reaches Neptune is about 1,000 times less than the amount that reaches Earth, making it extremely difficult to capture clear images. So engineers have come up with a system that will allow the entire spacecraft to "nod" so that its camera can remain fixed on the target as the craft speeds past, permitting longer exposures. Each electronic image will be composed of more than five million bits of data, so the craft whips-past Neptune it will create a continuous string of data nearly 3 billion miles long, reaching back to Earth.

"Voyager will pass within 3,000 miles of Neptune's north pole, closer than it has come to any other object in the solar system. But it is quite literally, right over the cloud tops."

Neptune's gravitational pull at that close range will change Voyager's course by 90 degrees, sending it off to encounter one of the strangest objects in the solar system five hours later: Voyager is to pass 49,000 miles from the surface of Triton, which is about the size of Earth's moon but a very different body indeed. Triton is the only large moon in the solar system that travels backwards, orbiting Neptune in the opposite direction of the planet's rotation. Scientists think they know why, and Voyager should tell them if they are right.

Neptune will appear bluish in color because of the methane in its atmosphere, and it will have more atmospheric texture than Uranus, which Voyager 2 zipped past on Jan. 24, 1989. But since it is essentially a huge ball of hydrogen and helium gas, there are no surface features to observe other than clouds. There will never be a "landing" on Neptune because there is no land.

But Triton, Neptune's largest moon, is another story entirely and it has fascinated scientists ever since it was discovered in 1846 — just one month after Neptune itself was detected. A smaller moon, Nereid, was discovered in 1949, and Voyager has since found four more. That, however, is not very many moons compared to the other great planets, and that shortage has can see no reason why Neptune should have so few. Only 5.68 days, Triton completes an orbit around Neptune, but it travels in the wrong direction. Moons form in the equatorial plane around planets, and in all other cases they move in the direction of the planet's rotation.

When planets form they have a swirling disk around the solar system disk and small satellites, and small satellites orbit in the same direction as the planet," said Stone, who has been the Voyager's chief scientist throughout the entire mission.

Why is Triton traveling in the opposite direction in a creaked orbit that carries it far above and below the planet's equator? A team of Cal Tech scientists led by astrophysicist Peter Goldreich has argued that Triton is not a natural part of the Neptunian system at all; and the reddish-brown moon was actually a chunk of rock and ice wandering through the solar system that collided with one of Neptune's moons. That spectacular collision would have destroyed the other satellite and sent Triton careening off on a very irregular orbit.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Of all the passions, fear weakens judgment most." —Cardinal De Retz.

"When all seems lost, don't despair! This is the bridge teacher's sage advice. Put an opponent on play. This might scare him into giving 'you some help.'"

Opening lead: Club King

Put yourself in the West chair and follow the play. Dummy's club ace wins, and South plays the top trump, leaving your queen at large. A low spade is won in dummy, and South ruffs dummy's jack of clubs. Two more spades are cashed, and South leads a trump to your queen. How do you get off lead?

You know that either black-stuff lead will give declarer a sluff and ruff. Does this mean that a diamond shift is mandatory? Not if you count declarer's hand. The play thus far confirms that South started with three spades, five trumps and a singleton club. Therefore, he must have four diamonds. How can a ruff and sluff help him?

ANSWER: Two no-trump. North's reverse is forcing. Mark time with two no-trump to discover which way North is headed.

U of W coach James refuses pay raise

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington head football coach Don James, whose Huskies had their worst record in 12 years last season, says he doesn't deserve a pay raise.

James declined a salary boost from UW Athletic Director Mike Lude, citing the team's 6-6 record.

"That was my decision," James said in an interview with the Mesa Tribune in Arizona. "I just told Mike that with 6-6, with no bowl, I didn't deserve something like that."

While James' pay stays the same, his assistant coaches got a pay boost. Lude wouldn't disclose their raises or the amount of James' salary, except to say the head coach's salary is "in excess of $100,000."

Kathy Noble becomes AD of University of Montana

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — The associate athletic director at the University of Montana, Kathy Noble, will become acting athletic director Sept. 1, UM President James V. Koch said Thursday.

Noble will be the first woman in UM history to head the athletic department. She will replace Harley Lewis, who recently announced he will end a 23-year UM career as coach, teacher and administrator to become assistant director of championships for the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Her selection as acting athletic director is subject to confirmation by the state Board of Regents.

Noble said she will not be a candidate for the permanent post of athletic director. One reason is a recent bout with cancer, she said.

“It would border on doing something strictly for yourself. It wouldn't be something I'd be proud of.”

Gooding rodeo completes 2nd night

David Sherod of Pleasant Grove, Utah, hangs on during the bareback riding competition on Friday. He scored 74 for a share of the lead.

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

GOODING — There were two lead changes Friday night and a new Gooding County Rodeo princess, Amanda Greenway, to highlight the second night of the rodeo.

In saddle bronc, world leader Ken Cooper set the pace Thursday with a 77. It appeared that might hold up, but John Bell, a Paradise, Nev., cowboy, got a ride and took it for a 77 to share the top spot.

There's also a tie in the bareback event. Two Utahns, Richie Hamilton, Wellsville, and Dave Sherod, Pleasant Grove, each scored 74s to better the score of 70 established Thursday.

Sherod, along with leading here, also led the bareback competition at Burley after the first night.

A Grand View hand, Bart Powers, took a Paradise, Nev., cowboy, got a ride and event lead. John Trumppon Jr., a Californian, had a 6.4 to move into second place.

Wilderness Circuit leader Kyle Kosoff, Ogden, fell just short of the lead in the calf roping, posting an 11.4 trailing Texan Rod Cleveland at 11.3.

Evan Tripp and Clay Taylor had the best time in team roping. Tripp, Wells, Nev., and Taylor, Caldwell, were clocked in 12.3, good enough to move them into second place.

A score of 74 by Reno's Scott Mendes was the best ride Friday but reached only to second place overall. A score of 80 from Thursday night still leads the building event.

Lisa Carter, South Weber, Utah, clocked a 17.3 in barrel-racing. It could win her some money here but not first place after a 17.02 was set Thursday.

Judge to hear Rose's preliminary injunction request Aug. 28

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Judge John D. Holschuh on Friday set Aug. 28 for the start of the hearing on Pete Rose's request for a preliminary injunction that would continue to block his appearance before Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti.

The injunction hearing originally was scheduled for July 6 before Judge Norbert A. Nadel in the Hamilton County Court of Common Pleas, but was delayed nearly two months while Giamatti's lawyers had the case shifted to federal court.

Giamatti wants to hold a hearing to get on the record changes that the Cincinnati manager gambled on his own team, and give Rose a chance to respond. If Giamatti finds the charges are true, Rose would be banned for life.

However, Rose sued Giamatti, claiming the commissioner had prejudged him and on June 25 Nadel issued a temporary restraining order that blocked Giamatti's hearing.

Holschuh has continued to bar Giamatti from holding the session, pending the hearing on the preliminary injunction. Giamatti and investigator John M. Dawd are among the witnesses expected to testify.

A letter from Giamatti to U.S. District Judge Carl B. Rubin is at the center of the dispute. On April 18, Giamatti sent the judge a letter stating that Ronald Peters, one of Rose's chief accusers, "has been candid, forthright and truthful" with baseball investigators and "provided critical sworn testimony about Mr. Rose and his associates."

Peters was due to be sentenced by Rubin following his guilty plea to federal charges of cocaine distribution and filing false income-tax returns.

Tewell among International leaders; threat proves empty

The Associated Press

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Doug Tewell declined to follow through on a threat to manipulate the format and, instead, was among the leading point-getters Friday in the International tournament.

Tewell birdied two of his last three holes and completed two trips over the Castle Pines Golf Club course with a two-round final of 19 points under the modified Stableford system used for this tournament. That was good enough to put him in the final threesome for Saturday's third round, when all 72 survivors start over again from zero.

Under the scoring system used for this event, five points are awarded for eagles and two for birdies. One point is subtracted for a bogey and three for double bogeys and higher. Only point totals count. Medal scores have no bearing.

After finishing among the leaders Thursday, Tewell noted that points are not carried forward from the first two rounds.

He suggested that, should he find himself among the point leaders late in the second round, he could purposely make a couple of high scores to give himself a more favorable early starting time for Saturday's play.

He didn't do it. His only bogey of the day was on his first hole.

"I got to playing good and it was a lot of fun so I just said, 'Let's practice,'" Tewell said.

"When I hit it to three feet (for birdie on his 17th hole) I turned to the gallery and said, 'I guess it's too late to tank it now,'" he said. "Now, I feel kind of bland. It's all gone. We start over from zero."

Nick Price of Zimbabwe picked up another eight points and led the field through the first 36 holes with 20 points.

Dent new Yankees manager Bears trade Jim McMahon

The Associated Press

DETROIT — Dallas Green is out and Bucky Dent is in after New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner on Friday fired his manager for a 17th time, hoping the man who saved the 1978 playoff can save the 1989 season.

Green, who was given a two-year contract in October, was dismissed with the Yankees in sixth place in the American League East and in last place in earned run average with a pitching staff he had rebuilt.

Dent, manager of the Yankee AAA farm team at Columbus, hit the dramatic three-run home run in the 1978 playoff against the Boston Red Sox that helped the Yankees to a 5-4 victory and capped a 14 1/2 game comeback.

He was voted MVP of the 1978 World Series and was the shortstop on the 1977-78 team that was the last to win consecutive world championships.

"We welcome Bucky, who has worked hard for this chance," Steinbrenner said at a press conference Friday. "I still consider Dallas to be a close friend."

Steinbrenner also said there would be changes in the coaching staff. The next pitching coach will be the 30th change in that job under Steinbrenner.

"It's just a situation that's not going to change," Green said. "That's all there is to it."

The announcement was made in Detroit, where the Yankees are playing a weekend series with the Tigers. New York beat Detroit 2-1 Thursday night in Green's last game.

The Yankees are 66-65 and 7 1/2 games behind Baltimore. New York is last in the league with a 4.64 earned run average.

The move came as a surprise to the Yankee players who were not told of the change.

"I didn't know about it," second baseman Steve Sax said when reached in his hotel room. "I respect Dallas and feel bad for him. It's been tough with the injuries we've had and I thought he did a good job."

There were signs that Steinbrenner might make a move. He had stepped up public criticism of Green in the last week but insisted "I'm still supportive of my manager and have no plans to replace him."

Green became the second manager fired this season. Jimmy Williams was dismissed by the Toronto Blue Jays in May.

Green was hired on Oct. 7, 1988, and seemed confident that he could work with Steinbrenner.

Bears trade Jim McMahon

The Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Jim McMahon, who led the Chicago Bears "Super Bowl Shuffle" three seasons ago before falling out of favor with Coach Mike Ditka, was traded to the San Diego Chargers today for a conditional 1990 draft choice.

The former All-Pro quarterback is expected to be in uniform for the Chargers' exhibition game against the Bears in Chicago on Saturday night, though it's doubtful he will play.

"Ditka and I didn't speak at all during training camp, and I figured something was going on," McMahon said. "And I guess I was right."

"I'm very relieved... I feel sorry for the rest of the guys who've got to put up with it," he said.

McMahon, who will turn 30 on Monday, was competing with Mike Tomczak and Jim Harbaugh for the Bears' starting quarterback job this season after being plagued by injuries for the past five years. He completed four of six passes for 47 yards in the Bears' 26-20 exhibition victory over Miami on Monday night.

McMahon said he didn't think he would have started for the Bears this season.

"The way things were going in training camp, no, I think he believes he can win with anybody. It's his coaching that gets it done, so now, I don't have to deal with that anymore."

McMahon said at a news conference at the Northbrook office of his agent, Steve Zucker.

Ditka said that while he liked McMahon — and respected him, "My feeling is Jim needs a change of scenery. I think he'll be happier starting for the Chargers and being in a class organization."

The Chargers have been searching for a quarterback since Dan Fouts retired before last season. Their quarterbacks — Mark Malone, free agent David Archer and second-round draft pick Billy Joe Tolliver — were ineffective in a 2-3 preseason loss to Dallas last weekend.

"The Bears are going in a different direction," player personnel director Bill Tobin said. "Our quarterback situation is healthy."

Jeffcoat throws 4-hitter as Texas beats Chisox, 6-5

Group in Midwest may buy Seattle Mariners

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Buechele broke out of a 7-for-48 slump with a three-run homer and Mike Jeffcoat led Chicago to four hits in six 2-3 innings as the Texas Rangers defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-5 Friday night.

In winning for the first time in his last five starts, Jeffcoat, 65, yielded only two hits until the seventh inning, when the White Sox scored their first three runs, all unearned. Two came on Dave Gallagher's single.

Jeff Russell, the fourth Texas pitcher, got the last two outs for his 27th save. He gave up an RBI double to Ivan Calderon — the run was charged to Carlos Rogers — but struck-out Carlos Martinez with the bases loaded to end the game.

Toronto 9, Baltimore 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mauro "Goose" Gozzo earned his third victory in as many major-league starts and George Bell, Mookie Wilson and Lee Mazzilli homered as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-2 Friday night, leaving three teams 1/2 games apart in the American League East.

American League

Gozzo allowed eight hits and both Baltimore runs in seven innings. In 20 major-league innings he has yielded only three earned runs. David Wells and Tom Henke each pitched one inning of relief.

Baltimore starter Dave Johnson, 22, who had pitched complete-game victories in his last two starts, yielded the three Toronto homers and left in the fourth inning after the first three batters reached safely. He gave up seven hits and five runs.

The setback cut Baltimore's lead over Milwaukee to one-half game. The Orioles' small margin since they moved into first place on May 26. Third-place Toronto is 1/2 games back.

Bell, who had a homer and three RBIs in Thursday night's loss to the Orioles, had four hits and drove in three more runs. Wilson also had ## three RBIs.

Milwaukee 5, Boston 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Billy Spiers' two-run single capped a four-run second inning and B.J. Surhoff had three hits as the streaking Milwaukee Brewers beat the slumping Boston Red Sox 5-2 Friday night for their eighth straight victory.

Milwaukee, 22-9 since July 18, began play 1/2 games behind first-place Baltimore in the American League East. The fifth-place Red Sox have lost six straight.

Greg Vaughn walked to start the Milwaukee second against Tom Bolton, 0-4. Joey Meyer singled him to third and Vaughn scored on Surhoff's single. Meyer and Surhoff advanced on a wild pitch and Mike Felder bunted for a hit to score Meyer. Felder stole second and he and Surhoff scored on Spiers' single.

Boston collected four hits in the first inning but managed only one run off Tom Flier, 4-1. Ellis Burks, Mike Greenwell and Nick Esanky had consecutive two-out singles for the Red Sox' run. Greenwell's hit extended his hitting streak to 19 games.

Detroit 7, New York 3

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers spoiled Bucky Dent's debut as manager of the New York Yankees by hitting a season-high five home runs, including four in the first four innings, en route to a 7-3 victory Friday night.

Jeff Robinson, 3-2, yielded four hits and an unearned run in eight innings and improved his career record at Tiger Stadium to 14-5. Guillermo Hernandez pitched the ninth and gave up a two-run homer to Ben Geren, his sixth.

Dent, who replaced the fired Dallas Green earlier in the day, saw the slumping Yankees fall behind 3-0 after just five batters. With one out in the first inning, Alan Trammell singled to deep short and Chet Lemon hit his sixth homer.

SEATTLE (AP) — An Indianapolis group has made an offer to purchase the Seattle Mariners from owner George Argyros, Mariners president Chuck Armstrong said Friday night.

Argyros, a Southern California land-developer who bought the 13-year-old American League franchise in 1981, scheduled a news conference Saturday in the Kingdom to discuss the offer.

"My feeling is it's probably serious or he wouldn't be coming here to make a statement," Armstrong said before the Mariners game Friday night with the Kansas City Royals.

Armstrong confirmed Jeff Smulyan, head of — Emmis Broadcasting Corp. in Indiana, and real estate developer Michael Browning were heading a group negotiating to buy the Mariners from Argyros.

In Indianapolis, WIBC radio-citing unnamed sources, said Smulyan and Browning will announce the purchase of the Mariners at a news conference in Seattle on Monday. The Mariners said a news conference was not scheduled then.

However, Armstrong said, "They have met the criteria. They have exceeded the criteria." He said Argyros would not be announcing a sale at his Saturday news conference.

Smulyan identified Smulyan as the guiding force in the prospective deal. Although Armstrong denied Argyros has sold the team, he indicated the negotiations were far along.

"The main guy is going to move here and make this his primary place of residence and actually operate out of here," Armstrong said. "I think that's a commitment George would require and major league baseball would require."

Armstrong said Argyros wanted the Mariners to stay in Seattle. The team's lease runs through 1998.

"George Argyros is not going to be the guy to move this team out of Seattle," Armstrong said. "When he operates out of here, he asks them two questions: One, whether they have the financial resources to make baseball successful in Seattle, and secondly, whether they have the resolve to make baseball successful in Seattle."

"If this ball club should be sold to these folks or anybody else, there's no risk, danger that this thing is moving out of Seattle," he added.

Rich Lovin, a spokesman for the baseball commissioner's office in New York, said he did not know anything about the possible sale of the Mariners to the Indianapolis group.

In downtown Indianapolis Friday, Smulyan said at the Emmis corporate offices that he had been negotiating to purchase the Mariners from Argyros for several months.

"We are in serious discussions with Mr. Argyros — and the Seattle Mariners," he said.

Mets squeak by Hershiser, Dodgers, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — David Cone won his eighth consecutive decision and Orel Hershiser's wild pitch allowed the go-ahead run to score Friday night as the New York Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 for their ninth victory in 11 games.

New York, 14-4 in August, took the lead in sixth with the help of shortstop Alfredo Griffin's defensive mistake.

With the score tied 2-2 and one out, Kevin McReynolds reached base on an infield hit and stole second. Dave Magadan bounced back to the mound and Hershiser got McReynolds into a rundown between second and third.

Griffin dropped third baseman Jeff Hamilton's throw, allowing McReynolds to take third, but recovered to tag out Magadan sliding into second. Hershiser then bounced a pitch to Barry Lyons past catcher Mike Scioscia, allowing McReynolds to score.

National League

Reuschel won in his first game since July 29 and Will Clark hit a three-run homer Friday night, leading the San Francisco Giants over the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2.

Reuschel, 14-5, was activated from the disabled list on Wednesday and got his 204th career victory, most among active National League pitchers. He gave up two runs on eight hits in six innings.

Steve Bedrosian, facing the Phillies for the first time since Philadelphia traded him in June, pitched one inning for his 17th save.

Montreal 5, San Diego 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Pascual Perez pitched a six-hitter and squeezed home the go-ahead run in the fifth inning Friday night as Montreal beat the San Diego Padres 5-2, just the Expos' fourth victory in 15 games.

Tim Lincecum and Tim Wallach each homered for the Expos, who got seven hits.

On July 7, 12, struck out seven and walked two. Andy Benes, 0-2, lost in his second major-league start.

Chris James hit a solo home run, his 11th, in the Padres' second before Montreal rallied for three runs in the fifth.

Atlanta 13, Pittsburgh 6

ATLANTA (AP) — Darrell Evans hit his 44th career home run and Lonnie Smith led a 15-hit attack with three singles and two RBIs as the Atlanta Braves snapped a four-game losing streak with an 13-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Evans' 11th homer of the season, a solo blow over the right field fence, capped a four-run first inning off Bob Walk, 10-8, that lifted the Braves into a 4-0 lead.

The Pirates had taken a 4-0 lead, aided by a pair of throwing errors that produced three unearned runs.

John Russell hit a two-run homer,

his first of the year, in the Atlanta sixth.

Cincinnati 6, St. Louis 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom Browning overcame three rain delays totaling 2 1/2 hours and pitched a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 Friday night in the first game of a double-header.

Browning, 12-10, survived rain delays of 45, 34 and 75 minutes as he shut out the Cardinals through six innings. He lost a streak of 17 scoreless innings when Tom Brunsanky hit his 15th homer in the seventh, and Brunsanky homered again in the ninth.

The second game was delayed for 46 minutes by rain in the first inning. The left-hander has won his last five starts for the longest winning streak this season by a Cincinnati pitcher.

Bears, Chargers face QB decisions in final games

By The Associated Press

Jim McMahon-on-look across Soldier Field on Saturday night and see a lot of familiar faces. For a change, however, they won't be friendly ones.

McMahon, who had been with the Chicago Bears since 1982, when he was drafted in the first round, will be wearing a San Diego Chargers uniform.

With the announcement of an off-injured McMahon was traded from Chicago to San Diego on Friday — one day before the two teams are to meet in an exhibition game.

McMahon will dress but isn't expected to play against his old teammates, since he will have so little time to familiarize himself with San Diego's offensive system.

With the departure of McMahon, who led the Bears to 35 victories in his last 38 regular-season starts, Chicago will split the quarterbacking job between Jim Harbaugh and Mike Tomczak.

Harbaugh will be the starter against San Diego, but the decision of who will start the regular season is uncertain.

Denver coach Dan Reeves plans to limit first-starter quarterback John Elway's playing time to the first quarter.

The 49ers will be without eight starters from their Super Bowl team, all of whom are holdouts. They are strong safety Jeff Fuller, offensive tackle Steve Wallace, cornerbacks Tim McKeyer and Don Griffin, defensive ends Larry Roberts and Kevin Fagan, linebacker Charles Haley and guard Guy McIntyre.

Colts-Packers

Green Bay also will be missing one key holdout against Indianapolis: Highly touted offensive tackle Tony Mandarich, the No. 2 overall pick in the draft, still has not signed.

Meanwhile, Green Bay coach Lindy Infante plans to use former Colt Blair Kiel as his starting quarterback.

Indianapolis coach Ron Meyer said Jack Traveno would play the first and fourth quarters at quarterback, with Chris Chandler in the second and third periods.

Cowboys-Raiders

Dallas' two rookie quarterbacks, Steve Walsh and Troy Aikman, will reverse roles from Sunday's exhibition. Against the Raiders, Walsh will play the first two quarters, with Aikman in the third quarter and veteran Babe Laufenberg finishing.

The Cowboys also have a fourth quarterback, Steve Pelluer, last year's starter, who they are trying to trade.

Orioles may have landed No. 1 draft pick McDonald

BALTIMORE — The Orioles have reached an agreement with their No. 1 draft pick, pitcher Ben McDonald, on a two-year, major-league contract believed to be worth $300,000, a source close to the negotiations said Friday.

The Orioles have called a news conference for 3 p.m. EDT Saturday to announce it. McDonald, his father, mother and sister will be present.

The signing ends 12 weeks of on-again, off-again negotiations that, for a time, looked bleak for the Orioles, who were in danger of losing him to the proposed new baseball league. But this week, McDonald told his agent, Scott Boras, that he wanted to play in the major leagues. Boras arrived in Baltimore Wednesday night and met with Orioles President Larry Lucchino and General Manager Roland Hemond Thursday, then for four more Friday. They reached agreement after each side decided to compromise.

"We've been working very hard at it, and compromise is the operative concept," said

Lucchino. "We were convinced that everyone wanted to get it done."

The source said the signing bonus is for $350,000, which is $100,000 less than McDonald, who asked McDonald's pay for the remainder of the year will be pro-rated from $70,000. He said his 1990 contract is worth $150,000 and his 1991 contract is worth $300,000. Bo Jackson, in 1986, is the only other amateur player in the 25-year history of the June draft to receive a multi-year contract.

McMahon will dress but isn't expected to play against his old teammates, since he will have so little time to familiarize himself with San Diego's offensive system.

With the departure of McMahon, who led the Bears to 35 victories in his last 38 regular-season starts, Chicago will split the quarterbacking job between Jim Harbaugh and Mike Tomczak.

Harbaugh will be the starter against San Diego, but the decision of who will start the regular season is uncertain.
