Evil triumphs over Evel

Aboard his SkyTryke, Richard Roberts launches from the rim of the Snake River Canyon.

By JENNIFER KAUFH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — His knees tucked under the tricycle's handlebars and his daughter's teddy bear strapped securely to a red, white and blue propane tank, Capt. Evil KaDick started the countdown.

The crowd joined in.

Three. Two. One. Go.

The three men pinning the tricycle to the takeoff ramp let go.

Capt. Evil KaDick and his entourage will make unscheduled balloon flights over the canyon today and Sunday. KaDick said he will ride his SkyTryke over the canyon as many times as possible this weekend. Optimum winds are usually around 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Launching locations will vary — look for the red, white and blue hot-air balloons or car headlights along the canyon rim.

Excited yelps and a loud cheer rose from the crowd as the contraption's wheels left the ground.

Man and tricycle floated skyward.

KaDick, really Michigan balloonist Richard Roberts, beamed broadly, let out his own victorious shriek and waved his arms at the adrenaline-pumped crowd gathered near the Snake River Canyon's edge.

"We have lift-off," said a man in the crowd, as a multitude of cameras and shielded eyes traced Roberts' ascent.

Roberts' family and friends watched for a moment and then raced for their cars to follow the flight.

The SkyTryke's wheels touched down about 10 minutes later.

"It was great — absolutely perfect," the daring 44-year-old said breathlessly after landing about a mile east of the Perrine Bridge on the north side of the canyon.

Roberts' SkyTryke fly-over was prompted by a bet made while watching the Sept. 8, 1974, televised failure of Evel Knievel's canyon

Reagan undergoes a brain operation

The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Former President Reagan underwent successful brain surgery Friday afternoon for removal of fluid that apparently resulted from his horseback riding accident two months ago, his spokesman said.

"President Reagan is conscious and recovering in his room, where he is comfortable and in good spirits," said spokesman Mark Weinberg.

Weinberg said the hour-long surgery, performed at St. Marys Hospital by a team of Mayo Clinic surgeons, went "without complications." The 78-year-old former president "will be carefully monitored, although no further treatment is anticipated," he said.

The fluid on the right side of the brain — blood that accumulated over a period of time — was found during a routine examination at the Mayo Clinic, Weinberg said. Fluid on the brain can cause pressure that can damage or kill brain cells.

"Although Reagan has not experienced any symptoms," physicians had advised the fluid be removed in a routine procedure, Weinberg said.

He said the surgeons made a "small burr hole" in Reagan's skull and drained a collection of fluid.

"The procedure, which was performed under a general anesthetic, lasted slightly over one hour and was without complications."

Weinberg said he did not know how long Reagan would be hospitalized. "He will go home when the physicians say he is ready," he said.

Mayo Clinic physicians said the former president is otherwise in excellent health, Weinberg said earlier. Reagan's wife, Nancy, who

Report blames Idaho drug trafficking on Hispanics

By ERIC ANDERSON
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Hispanic organizations, often made up of migrant workers and illegal aliens, are responsible for the majority of drug trafficking in Idaho, according to a report by a U.S. attorney.

The report also states that motorcycle gangs in Idaho are the source of much of the methamphetamine, an intense upper known as "crank" or "speed," distributed in the state.

The report, written by Maurice O. Ellsworth, the Idaho District's U.S. attorney, was commissioned by U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh last fall.

A summarized version of the report by Ellsworth plus similar documents by the nation's 92 other U.S. attorneys was presented in a drug trafficking report to President Bush last month.

Although parts of Ellsworth's report are labeled "very sensitive" with a note that the sections "should not be disseminated outside the Department of Justice" — the full text has been made available to States News Service and other news media.

Harri Kramer, a Department of Justice spokeswoman, said the reports were not screened before their release because of a "bureaucratic error."

Ellsworth's report states that Idaho is seeing an increase in the presence of drug trafficking organizations; although most are relatively small, dealing within confined areas.

Hispanic organizations have been the source of the largest seizures of cocaine and heroin, the report states.

Because the Hispanic organizations often consist of blood or marital relatives, they are hard to infiltrate and arrested or convicted members rarely cooperate with law enforcement authorities, according to the report.

"Even when faced with prison sentences of up to 30 years, with the only possibility of reducing that sentence being cooperation,"

'FaithDome' to welcome the flock

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — On a spur-of-the-moment visit several years ago to Howard Hughes' Spruce Goose in Long Beach, Calif., the Rev. Frederick K.C. Price had a vision.

"When we walked in that building to see the airplane, I said 'this is what we need,'" Price recalled in a recent interview.

Price immediately scrapped earlier construction plans and decided instead to build a domed church modeled after the building that houses the enormous wooden aircraft.

On Sunday, the nation's largest house of worship — a "FaithDome" with seating for 10,745 worshippers — will open for regular services in South-Central Los Angeles.

"They always say we can't do it, and we can — right in the ghetto," said church member Jannette Fant, referring to "skepticism" about the grandiose project she encountered from her white co-workers at a local aerospace company.

The $9 million redbrick structure at the old Pepperdine University campus was built for what may be the largest predominantly black church in the country, Crenshaw Christian Center. The still-growing congregation of more than 16,000 already is the largest Protestant church in Southern California.

The gleaming church-in-the-round throws an unaccustomed spotlight on Pastor Fred Price and his high-energy, tightly run ministry — despite his shunning of publicity and his policy of keeping out of community issues.

Price has quietly carved out both a successful nationwide television ministry, and has built a well-to-do church — with an annual budget between $16 million and

Study: Educators help students cheat

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Educators desperate to demonstrate excellence are helping students cheat on standardized tests, contributing to scores in 48 states that are misleadingly "above average," a report charges.

At the same time, test security in virtually all states remains "totally inadequate," according to "The Lake Wobegon Report: How Public Educators Cheat on Achievement Tests."

The cheating, which includes teachers and principals coaching students on test questions, giving students more than the allotted time to take tests, and even altering answer sheets, is contributing to inflated scores, the report charges.

All but two states — Louisiana and Arizona — are reporting "above average" or inflated scores, according to the 50-state survey. Those states recently started using new tests.

Eighty-three percent of 5,143 elementary school districts and 73 percent of 4,501 secondary school districts surveyed are reporting standardized achievement test scores above national norms, according to the report.

The study was conducted by Friends for Education, an educational watchdog group headed by Albuquerque, N.M., physician, John Jacob Cannell. It was funded by a $25,000 grant from the Kettering Family Foundation in Dayton, Ohio. A draft of the report was obtained by The Associated Press.

Cannell made headlines in November 1987 with a report documenting that students were scoring "above average" on standardized tests in all 50 states at that time.

That report asserted that scores on such "norm-referenced" tests "designed so that only half those taking it should score above the 50th percentile — were artificially high

Parents will allow son to receive a bone-marrow transplant

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — The parents of a 12-year-old Magic Valley boy who didn't want the child to undergo a lengthy but potentially life-saving bone marrow transplant agreed Friday to have the boy treated at a local hospital.

Attorneys for Frank and Nannette Jensen of Richfield and for two Seattle hospitals declined to provide details Friday, but Swedish Hospital attorney Grantham Fitch said both parties had reached a satisfactory agreement and the boy would remain here for treatment.

Soran Jensen suffers from aplastic anemia, a rare blood disease in which the bone marrow no longer can make blood cells.

Doctors told a closed-door hearing before a temporary King County Superior Court judge that a bone marrow transplant is the only way to save the boy's life.

The boy's 6-year-old sister, Adele, has been identified as the best potential marrow donor based on tissue compatibility.

After Soran's parents learned how difficult and lengthy the 100-day transplant procedure is, they wanted to return to Richfield and have their son treated with naturopathy. That approach to healing avoids drugs and surgery and emphasizes natural agents such as fresh air, sunshine and special foods.

They voiced no religious objections to the marrow transplant.

Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center and Swedish Hospital officials asked for legal intervention by state Child Protective Services when Soran's parents threatened last week to return to Idaho with their son.

Courts have intervened when parents refuse life-saving treatment for children, but this case was unique because the court

Lab wants to reprocess fuel for INEL reactors

POCATELLO (AP) — Argonne National Laboratory West wants to spend $19 million to convert a hot cell into a fuel reprocessing facility for liquid metal fueled reactors at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The remodeling would move the reprocessing of spent fuel from Experimental Breeder Reactor-11 from the Idaho Chemical Processing Plant to Argonne-West, and also allow a demonstration of the reprocessing function of the Integral Fast Reactor.

Argonne scientists are developing the IFR as one of several new reactor technologies for the next generation of commercial nuclear power reactors. The IFR technology is particularly attractive because its fuel can be recycled, and long-lived waste like leftover plutonium can be "burned" in the reactor, rather than being isolated from the environment as waste for thousands of years.

Argonne officials have been granted a draft permit by the state to remodel the Hot Fuel Examination Facility South for the reprocessing.

The public comment period on the permit extends until Sept. 18, and the Snake River Alliance, an Idaho environmental group, is seeking a public hearing on the project.

The Hot Fuel Examination Facility was used from 1964 to 1969 to recycle fuel from EBR-2, and was called the Fuel Cycle Facility.

Spent fuel from EBR-2 is now reprocessed at the Chem-Plant, with the recovered uranium returned to the national stockpile.

U.S. wants accused smuggler to testify

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The prosecution asked Friday that a Utah woman arrested for gun smuggling be returned to jail after a lawyer for her bail bondsman claimed his client's signature on her bail papers was forged.

Lawyer Enrico Velasco made the allegation during preliminary hearings for Dominique Adams, 22, of Salt Lake City. She was arrested Aug. 21 after customs agents found about 70 handguns in her luggage after a flight from San Francisco.

Miss Adams pleaded innocent and was released a few days later on 180,000 pesos ($8,570) bond.

During Friday's hearing in suburban Pasay City, Velasco said the bail papers bore the name of his client Enrique Zalamea, president of the General Insurance Co.

"He did not sign it," Velasco said. "He did not authorize anybody to sign on his behalf." The prosecution then moved that bail be canceled.

"The court ordered Miss Adams' lawyer to study the papers and respond within five days," Miss Adams remains free until the court makes a ruling.

During the hearing, prosecutors also presented some of the .45-caliber, .38-caliber and .25-caliber pistols found in Miss Adams' luggage when she arrived at Ninoy Aquino International Airport.

Miss Adams claims she was duped by a California man, Richard Dean Pedrioli, into carrying the luggage and that she did not know weapons were inside.

She said Pedrioli promised her a job in Manila if she would carry the luggage for him. Pedrioli was arrested last month in Modesto, California, after skipping bail on a previous charge of smuggling arms to the Philippines.

U.S. authorities have said they believe Miss Adams' story and would like Philippine officials to drop the charges here so she can testify in the United States against Pedrioli.

Booms trap only 1 gallon of diesel fuel spill

YELLOW PINE (AP) — Absorbent booms extended across Johnson Creek in central Idaho have caught only one gallon of the 1,700 gallons of diesel spilled there from a truck wreck, the Idaho Fish and Game Department says.

"Every time one of these things happens, we push these wild salmon closer to extinction," said Fish and Game spokesman Jack Trueblood of the diesel's effect on the spawning beds near the town of Yellow Pine.

The spill occurred when a truck from the McCall-based Wild Wolf Oil Co. tipped over Wednesday while rounding a curve on the dirt road between Land Mark and Yellow Pine.

The tumbling water of the creek mixed the oil into the water, preventing the booms from stopping the pollution from flowing downstream.

Johnson Creek harbors key spawning grounds in the South Fork of the Salmon River drainage, formerly the most important summer chinook spawning area in the Columbia River basin, Trueblood said.

"It has the potential to be that again," he said. Trueblood said fishery specialists hoped the diesel would be diluted enough so that by the time it reaches the South Fork, it would not cause damage.

Search for missing plane, pilot moves to Idaho

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Bureau of Aeronautics picked up the search over the state's rugged central mountains Friday for a Minnesota pilot missing for a week in a small homemade aircraft.

The Wyoming Civil Air Patrol, which had been handling the search until Friday, said the Rochester, Minn., man refused his single-engine airplane in Salmon last Saturday afternoon and was believed to be on his way to McCall.

"We're trying to gather information on this guy now to make a good consolidated guess on where he might be," said Ray Glidden, assistant safety and information officer for the Idaho Bureau of Aeronautics. "Where he didn't file a flight plan, we're into the old game of looking for a needle in a haystack, and we've got lots of haystacks."

Don Hodge, the sheriff in Park County, Wyo., said the search for the 47-year-old pilot, whose name has not been released, began in the Riverton, Wyo., area.

Few people oppose infectious waste changes

POCATELLO (AP) — It was a hot issue last year, but most people now seem content with the state's plans to revise regulations on disposal of infectious waste from Idaho hospitals.

That was the opinion of state officials who conducted a hearing on the proposed regulations Thursday night at Idaho State University. Six people turned out for the meeting but no one was interested in testifying.

The turnout in Pocatello was not much different than response in Boise and Coeur d'Alene earlier this week, said Loyal Perry of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Two people showed up at the Coeur d'Alene hearing and six people attended in Boise. Only one person testified at the Boise hearing, a mortician who had questions concerning what to do about remains of AIDS victims.

It is the second time the state has conducted public hearings on proposed changes in the hospital regulations. Last year, hospital officials and members of the Idaho Medical Association objected to rules they said were too stringent and went beyond guidelines provided by the federal Centers for Disease Control and Environmental Protection Agency.

New safety rating could net Thiokol back pay

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — The safety and fire protection ratings at Thiokol Corp.'s plant west of here have been raised by the Air Force, possibly clearing the way for release of $5.1 million in withheld Pentagon payments.

Kay Peterson, a spokesman for the Air Force Contract Management Division at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., said the decision on release of the funds — held back over safety concerns — will be made this month.

Major Gen. Charles P. Skipton, commander of the contract division, gave Thiokol a satisfactory rating in safety and fire protection based on the recommendation of Air Force inspectors, Peterson said.

Gem Supreme Court to get test drug case

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The prosecution and defense have agreed to a deal in a Panhandle drug possession case to put the issue of justifiable medical use of marijuana before the Idaho Supreme Court.

Lynn Hastings, 39, has pleaded guilty to growing a dozen marijuana plants in her Coeur d'Alene home in return for moving the case quickly to the high court.

Mrs. Hastings says she uses the marijuana for its pain-killing properties so she can cope with a rare arthritic condition. But unlike the laws in 33 other states, Idaho drug law does not recognize the defense of medical necessity and carries a maximum five-year prison term for possession of marijuana.

"She is caught on the horns of a dilemma," defense attorney Harvey Richman said.

Under the plea agreement, if the Supreme Court endorses Mrs. Hastings' position that medical necessity should be an allowed defense, the case would be returned to 1st District Judge Gary Haman for a jury trial to determine if that new defense applies to her. If the high court rules against Mrs. Hastings, the guilty plea would stand.

"It's purely a question of law, and one I feel should be decided, not by a district judge, but an appellate court," Haman said in agreeing to the deal earlier this week.

"The statutes of Idaho do not permit it," the judge said. "Rightfully or wrongfully, that's the way it is."

The five-member high court has just returned to full strength with the addition of two new justices, both of whom have indicated they would be leary of stepping into issues they see as the responsibility of the Legislature.

Mrs. Hastings suffers from juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, a condition that swelled her joints to leave her hands permanently cupped, her feet clenched and her shoulders, neck and hips stiff.

Doctors have prescribed several different drugs since the disease struck her as a child, but each has either made her nauseous to the point of vomiting or left her so drowsy should could accomplish nothing.

In 1979, while working in California, Mrs. Hastings said she discovered that smoking marijuana after work soothed her pain without any significant side effects.

Attorney general disputes right-to-work law specifics

MALAD (AP) — The sponsor of Idaho's right-to-work law says it specifically states that the attorney general or county prosecutor must investigate any complaints that the law has been violated.

"The bill was drafted to protect people's rights — both to refuse to join a union and to join one," said Rep. Myron Jones, R-Malad, chief sponsor in 1985 when the Idaho Legislature approved right-to-work. It forbids mandatory union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment.

Five current and former employees in the Shoshone County sheriff's office asked Attorney General Jim Jones to investigate what they claimed were the sheriff's violations of the right-to-work law.

Jim Jones said Wednesday that federal labor laws pre-empt state statutes and referred the matter to the federal National Labor Relations Board. "We don't deal with labor issues on an ongoing basis," Jones said. "And I just don't have the resources or the expertise to devote to something like that."

However, United Steelworkers staffer Steve Brown said the attorney general is obligated by Idaho laws to investigate the matter.

"The Idaho right-to-work law specifically states that the county prosecutor or the attorney general has an obligation to investigate any violations," Brown said. "Prosecutor Jacki Rose can't investigate because he's been defending the sheriff on this matter. So the AG has to investigate."

1 killed, 7 hurt when plant mezzanine falls

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — One woman was killed and seven other people, including two pregnant women, were injured when a mezzanine platform inside a fruit packing plant collapsed Friday afternoon, authorities said.

Five of the plant workers, including the dead woman, were trapped beneath the debris at the Hansen Fruit Co. until freed by Yakima Fire Department rescue crews, said fire Lt. Al Chronister.

"Three people were under the brunt of it, including the dead woman, he said.

Chronister said the survivors were lucky. "There was some pretty heavy stuff coming down."

He estimated the platform, which was built into a wall, weighed several tons.

Jennifer Woodkey of St. Elizabeth's Medical Center identified three of the injured as Carolyn Storme, 47, in satisfactory condition with possible chest injuries; Don Eby, 50, in satisfactory condition with possible shoulder injuries, and Barbara Gray, 62, condition and injuries undetermined.

Four of the injured were taken to Yakima Valley Memorial Hospital.

They were identified by hospital spokesman Glenn Cassidy as Erida Bowman, 37, who was treated and released suffering scalp lacerations; Debbie Crain, 34, treated and released with lacerations on the right leg; Jill Glass, 36, who was treated for bumps on her head and a leg and taken to the maternity floor for observation; and Cecilia Ayon, 34, who suffered a fractured arm and was still being evaluated Friday evening.

Ms. Crain and Ms. Glass were both pregnant, Cassidy said. Although Ms. Glass was taken to the maternity floor, hospital community relations director Deane Baldoz said she was in good condition.

The dead woman, whose identity was being withheld, was taken directly to a funeral home, Cassidy said.

Homeowners were not immediately available.

Firefighters continued sifting through the rubble, but Chronister said it was unlikely anyone else was beneath the packing boxes, fruit sorting trays and other debris.

Dioxin level in cardboard containers getting lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four of the six U.S. paper mills manufacturing chlorine-bleached cardboard for milk cartons have virtually eliminated cancer-causing dioxin in their products, a House subcommittee was told Friday.

Only one plant — the Potlatch Corp. mill at Lewiston — is still producing cartons with traces of dioxin high enough to measurably contaminate milk, an industry official told the panel.

But even the Potlatch plant has reduced dioxin in its polyethylene-coated milk cartons by 46 percent in the past year and the five other plants have cut it by as much as 90 percent, American Paper Institute President Rod Conway told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment.

The Food and Drug Administration said last week its tests detected dioxin leaching into milk from four of 15 sampled half-pint cartons manufactured by the six plants, but at levels too low to pose a health hazard.

James S. Benson, the agency's acting deputy administrator, estimated the risk of getting cancer from consuming milk from dioxin-contaminated milk cartons over a lifetime at less than 6 in 1 million.

"We expect, however, that dioxin contamination of paper milk cartons will be effectively eliminated in the very near future," Benson said. "They haven't finished the job, but they're definitely moving in that direction."

But subcommittee Chairman Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., said he will not be satisfied until all avoidable dioxin has been eliminated from milk cartons and a wide variety of other paper products, including disposable diapers.

Envoys sue government; say nominees not qualified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The union that represents career diplomats sued the State Department in federal court Friday, seeking to expose documents "that clearly demonstrate the lack of qualifications" of many Bush administration ambassadorial nominees.

The unusual move follows the nomination by the White House of a number of envoys who have come under sharp criticism on grounds that they have neither the diplomatic skills nor background knowledge of the countries where they are being sent.

Democratic senators have suggested many merely won favor with the administration through political contributions or their skill at raising funds for the Republican Party in the 1988 election campaign. Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., has called described some of the choices as "insulting."

But Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said that wealth should not disqualify anyone from being an ambassador but should be regarded as "a sign of considerable achievement."

Bush wants funds for new, high-speed computer network

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration says it is set to call for a five-year, $1.9 billion program to promote advanced computing technology, including the creation of a very high-speed network linking the nation's supercomputers.

Mary Catherine English, spokeswoman for the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy, said today that a report detailing the computer strategy will be released officially Monday.

According to a final draft of the report obtained by The Associated Press, high-performance computing "represents the leading edge of a multi-billion dollar world market in which the U.S. is increasingly being challenged."

"A strong, fully competitive domestic, high-performance computer industry contributes to U.S. leadership in critical national security areas and in broad sectors of the civilian economy," the document said.

West Exxon Valdez captain seeks to avoid trial

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — When Capt. Joseph Hazelwood reported the Exxon Valdez was spilling crude oil into Prince William Sound, he automatically won immunity from prosecution on any charges from the spill, his lawyer claims.

Hazelwood has been charged with three misdemeanors and three felonies in the spill, but court documents filed in his defense claim a little-known state regulation protects him from prosecution.

The regulation was designed to encourage reporting of spilled oil or other hazardous substances. The immunity clause provides that information obtained in such a report may not be used in prosecuting the people who make the notification.

Prosecutors have until later today to file answers to the arguments raised in the memo, which was filed last month.

Hazelwood's trial is tentatively set for Oct. 30.

Early March 24, Hazelwood reported to the Coast Guard that his vessel was impaled on Bligh Reef and spilling its toxic cargo into the Sound.

The promise of some kind of immunity to "any natural person providing this notification or report" clearly is stated in the Alaska Administrative Code, but it will be up to Superior Court Judge Beverly Cutler to decide how far the protection extends.

Dick Madson, one of Hazelwood's attorneys, said the immunity clause "prohibits prosecution for anything stated by the reporter, as well as any information which is derived from investigating the report."

If Cutler rules for Hazelwood, it could eliminate all the evidence gathered by the state to support its charges against the former skipper.

Madson argued that a broad interpretation of the immunity clause is necessary because people who spill oil are legally required to report the incident — violating their right to protection from self-incrimination.

Killer's counsels claim falsehood influenced jurors

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — William Andrews' attorneys have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the Utah Supreme Court's refusal to "eliminate" a false testimony influenced a jury to condemn their client to death for the 1974 torture slayings of three people.

In the 84-page petition, Andrews' lawyers argue that Utah justices erred last month in rejecting defense arguments challenging inaccurate statements by prison psychologist Allen Roe on the likelihood of convicted murderers killing again.

Andrews, the nation's longest-standing death row inmate, was convicted of capital homicide for his role in the deaths of two women and a man during the 1974 robbery of Ogden's Hi-Fi Shop. The victims were forced to drink caustic drain cleaner before being shot to death.

Pierre Dale Selby, Andrews' co-defendant and admitted triggerman in the slayings, was executed in August 1987 when his appeals ran out.

Andrews, 34, of Jonesboro, La., had been scheduled for lethal injection on Aug. 22.

U.S.-Soviet summit upstages conference of 'New Age' group

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — There has been one cosmic glitch in the planning for press accommodations at a pre-summit meeting in northwestern Wyoming between the superpowers.

The pre-summit meeting is designed to lay the groundwork for a summit meeting between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

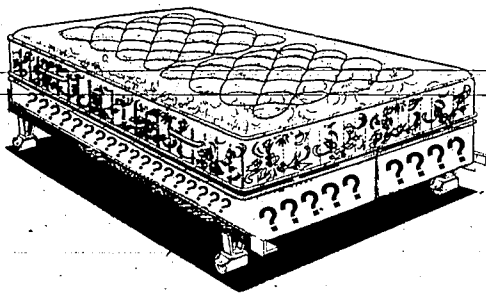

Snow King resort, where the State Department has reserved 120 rooms for journalists, had been booked for a "New Age" conference before plans were made for the Sept. 22-23 meeting between Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

Resort manager Manuel Lopez said the group has agreed to move its "New Age" conference outside to a tent in the Snow King parking lot. Snow King will be crowded with journalists during the meeting.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

The chains of habit are too weak to befall until they are too strong to be broken. -Samuel Johnson.

When playing a game that appears to offer only one reasonable option, be careful! The habitual approach may not be as good as an inconspicuous alternative.

South trumped the second spade, drew trumps and led a diamond to dummy's king. West signaling with his eight (high-low) to show an even number in the suit.

After drawing trumps, South should cash his club ace and concede a club to West's king.

Cubs blow 6-run lead in loss to Cardinals at windy Wrigley

CHICAGO (AP) — Whitey Herzog likes to mean about the Cardinals lack of offense. Yet he didn't lose hope Friday when they fell behind the Chicago Cubs 7-1.

"I didn't feel we couldn't come back in this park with the wind blowing out," the St. Louis manager said.

St. Louis surer did. Pedro Guerrero's three-run homer off Mitch Williams gave the Cardinals a 9-lead and Terry Pendleton hit a two-run homer later in the inning as St. Louis beat the Cubs 11-8.

"It was an awe-inspiring comeback," said St. Louis starter Magrane, who was seeking his 19th victory but allowed eight hits and five runs in three innings. "I felt I had let the team down. We're not the type of team that can come back from big deficits."

St. Louis, which pulled to within a half-game of the NL East-leading Cubs, scored one run in the fifth, four in the seventh and five in the eighth.

Guerrero had four hits and drove in five runs, giving him 103 RBIs for the season. That equaled his career best, set in 1983 with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I get paid to drive in runs," Guerrero said. "I've always been a good hitter. I'm just happy to be getting the opportunity. This year there seem to be more guys in scoring position and I concentrate more when there are men on base.

Chicago led 8-6 when Vince Coleman singled with one out in the eighth. Paul Assenmacher walked, Ozzie Smith and Williams, 4-4, relieved. Guerrero hit his first pitch into the right-field bleachers for his 14th home run, his second in two days.

"I'm just not throwing the ball well and I've blown a lot of games," Williams said. "The pitch to Guerrero was a fastball up and over the plate. Obviously, I've got to find another way to get guys out."

Houston 5 San Francisco 2
HOUSTON (AP) — Pitcher Mark Portugal, Rafael Ramirez and Steve Lomax pitched a hitless ball game as the Houston Astros beat San Francisco 5-2 Friday night, cutting the Giants' lead in the National League West to six games.

The Astros won the opener of a three-game series and sent San Francisco to just its second loss in nine games.

Philadelphia 4 Montreal 3

Brett's 2,500th hit of career helps Royals 6-0 rout of Twins

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The passage of time has not dulled George Brett's memory or slowed his swing.

Soybean futures stage rally

By The Associated Press

Soybean futures prices staged a strong rally Friday, bursting through the 56-a-bushel barrier on the Chicago Board of Trade amid rumors of Soviet demand for soybean meal and rising fears of a rain-delayed harvest.

Soybean futures settled 1 1/4 cents to 1 1/2 cents higher with the contract for delivery in September at $6.07 1/2 a bushel, the highest settlement for a near-month soybean contract since Aug. 21.

Wheat futures settled 3/4 cent to 1 1/2 cents lower with September at $3.95 1/2 a bushel; corn was 1/4 cent to 3 cents higher with September at $2.39 1/2 a bushel; oats were 1 cent to 1 1/4 cents higher with September at $1.38 a bushel.

Coffee futures rallied and settled 1.87 cents to 2.5 cents higher on New York's Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange, with September at 88.25 cents a pound.

Energy futures prices rose on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Record-keeping inadequate, committee told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record-keeping methods that would allow investigators to reconstruct trades on the nation's commodities exchanges are "fundamentally inadequate," a Senate committee was told today.

But officials of the General Accounting Office said computerization doesn't necessarily spell the end of the traditional hurly-burly method of trading by shouts and hand signals known as open outcry.

"I think that's a question the exchanges themselves need to answer," said Richard L. Fogel, an assistant comptroller general with the GAO, the auditing arm of Congress.

"I don't personally believe that the government should dictate how the exchanges want to trade," he added.

Fogel testified to the Senate Agriculture Committee about a study of the methods used by exchanges to track trading and keep futures traders honest.
