Air Force using softer words on range plans

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After pressure from Idaho's congressional delegation this week, the Air Force has slightly softened its public stance on the Saylor Creek Bombing Range expansion proposal.

Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, on Friday made public a letter from Deputy Assistant Air Force Secretary Gary Vest, Craig and Sen. Steve Symms, who also received the letter, said Vest promised a slower approach toward planned expansion of the Elmore-Owyhee county bombing range.

The Air Force still plans, however, to finish the first step of its two-tier environmental study by next June.

In Friday's letter, Vest also said, "While the impacts of both the realignment and the range expansion must be assessed together, the realignment of forces at Mountain Home Air Force Base is not contingent on the expansion of Saylor Creek."

As recently as Monday, an Air Force statement had said, "With a large increase in aircraft, the current range must expand to meet the increased training requirements."

Craig said Friday the Air Force's new acknowledgment that the two issues are separate will make it easier for Idahoans to be involved in the process of deciding the bombing range expansion.

"Now that the Air Force has seen the light, we can put Idaho and Idahoans back into the picture," Craig said.

"Congress has already decided that Mountain Home Air Force Base will get more jets and an expanded mission, but the people of Idaho need a much greater hand in deciding whether and how much the Saylor Creek Bombing Range is expanded," Craig said.

The Air Force wants to expand the range from just over 100,000 acres to 1.4 million acres.

Vest said the Air Force will adopt a two-tier approach to the environmental impact studies necessary for the base realignment and the range expansion.

The Air Force intends to complete the first tier — an environmental impact study of the base realignment — by June 1990. The possible expansion of the Saylor Creek Bombing Range must also be addressed in that first study, Craig said.

A statement of intent to expand the range could come out of that first tier study, Craig said. "But no absolute decision will be made until the second tier studies are complete."

Bush still against any gun curbs

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush, opposing tougher gun laws, said Friday that a ban on assault weapons is not "the ultimate answer" to killings such as the rampage that left eight dead and 13 wounded in Louisville, Ky.

America is bound to have such murderous incidents as long as there are deranged people, Bush said.

Bush, a "life" member of the National Rifle Association, said that instead of new laws, "we must do everything we can to enforce laws that are already on the books."

Bush, at a news conference, also underscored he is opposed to raising federal taxes to pay for the war against drugs. But he said he had no problem with any state or city raising its taxes to pay for the crackdown on drugs.

"The states and localities are having to step up themselves and do stuff," Bush said of the drug war. "I'm not going to criticize a governor or municipality that has to do something on the revenue side."

On other subjects, Bush:

- Said America's education system "is not making the grade" even though this country spends more on schools than most nations. Bush said he hopes his Sept. 27-28 education summit with the nation's governors will lead to national educational goals and objectives for schools.
- Brushed aside a suggestion that America divert funds from its contribution to NATO to pay for the drug war.
- Said he was giving "serious and active" consideration to using former military bases to house prisoners to ease the strain on crowded prisons. However, he noted there are political obstacles.

Former shipmates recall a true sea dog

The Associated Press

BARNEGAT LIGHT, N.J. — Sinbad was a hard-drinking old salt, a legendary sailor promoted for battling German U-boats and court-martialed for being three sheets to the wind with his snout in the gutter.

Mongrel or not, Sinbad the K-9 sailor was a lucky charm for crewmates aboard the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell, who faced numerous World War II battles without a single loss of life.

On Friday, sailors from almost a dozen states gathered around their comrade's seaside grave to honor him with taps and a headstone, placed atop the Coast Guard's "most famous dog" 38 years after his death.

A nine-man color guard stood with flags dipped as a rifle squad sounded a salute while King Reynolds, a Campbell veteran from Tallahassee, Fla., raised the flag over Sinbad's grave.

As taps filled the sea air, the men of the Campbell bowed their heads and cried.

"He was as much a member of the crew as any one of us," said George Fuerth, a veteran from Lukehurst who served with Sinbad. "He was there for all the battles and he was there for all the drinking. He sailed the Seven Seas."

Sinbad's human companions got the idea of honoring the daring dog at their first reunion in 1986. They mullied it over and finally finished the memorial this year.

Sinbad served aboard the Campbell for 77 dog years, from 1937 until he was retired in 1918 to a Coast Guard station along the New Jersey shore. Sinbad died

Prices, U.S. trade gap down

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices declined for the third straight month in August as a big new drop in energy costs helped keep inflation in check, the government said Friday in releasing a string of generally upbeat economic reports.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index, which measures costs one step short of the retail level, plunged 0.4 percent last month, matching the decline in July. The index had been down 0.1 percent in June.

It was the first time that wholesale prices had fallen for three consecutive months since a four-month drop from January through April, 1986.

In the other economic reports Friday, the government said:

- The merchandise trade deficit in July shrank by 6.3 percent from the June figure to $7.58 billion, the smallest imbalance since December 1984. The improvement reflected a 2.5 percent drop in imports, which offset a 1.8 percent decline in U.S. export sales.

- Industrial production rose 0.3 percent in August, the best advance since a 0.7 percent rise in April. The gain was credited to a rebound in mining after the end of a strike and a rise in production at auto plants.
- Business inventories in July climbed 0.6 percent while total business sales were falling 0.9 percent. While rising inventories and falling sales would normally be worrisome, economists noted that August data was pointing to a rebound in sales, which should insure that inventory levels stay at manageable levels.

President Bush said the various government reports showed that the longest penitence economic expansion in U.S. history was moving forward, continuing "to produce jobs for the American people."

Private analysts were generally enthusiastic as well, saying the reports represented a victory for the Federal Reserve Board, which has been trying at the same time to keep the recovery alive and restrain inflationary pressures.

"From the Fed's viewpoint, all the news looks very good," said David Wess, chief financial economist at DRI/McGraw Hill. "The only danger is that Fed officials might sprain an elbow patting themselves on the back."

If AIDS test comes up white, everything's fine

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A simple, 10-minute test expected to be licensed later this year uses colors to tell patients if they are infected with the AIDS virus — white for health and blue for medical tragedy.

The test, now undergoing trials at nine centers, will enable people worried about AIDS virus exposure to be tested within minutes at their doctor's office, instead of having to wait to hear from a distant laboratory.

"It provides a new means for patients to learn of their AIDS status and still retain anonymity," said Jarol R. Kelsey, president of Murex Corp., a Norcross, Ga., firm that developed the test. "Once this method is widely available, it will encourage more people to determine their status."

Presently, a test for the AIDS virus requires that blood be drawn and then sent to a laboratory. Patients must then wait in suspense to find out if they have contracted the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS.

"That can take a number of days sometimes," said Kelsey.

Concern about whether the test information will be kept confidential and the long "wait" for results discourage some people from being tested for AIDS, even though they know they are at risk for the disease, he said.

Revised alternative teacher certification plan over first hurdle

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — A revised, more rigorous plan to begin an alternative certification program for Idaho public school teachers has cleared its first hurdle.

The state Board of Education, wrapping up its two-day meeting at the University of Idaho on Friday, voted to conduct a public hearing next month in Sandpoint on a new proposal developed by a task force of the state Professional Standards Commission.

But the decision to move ahead with consideration of the plan did not come easily. Some board members worried out loud that the alternative route to teacher certification it outlines is too stringent, while others said they were concerned it might not be tough enough to ensure students receive competent instruction.

"What you have here is a kind of middle ground," said Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction. "We've spent two-and-a-half years debating this issue. We can't spend another two-and-a-half."

Marden Phelps, chairman of the Professional Standards Commission, told board members the proposal was an attempt to balance the desire of people with experience in a given field to use their expertise in secondary classrooms with the need to avoid compromising the standards of the teaching profession. He said at first he and most other task force members opposed any alternative route to certification.

"This is a real result of compromise, and I really do believe it's the best program we could come up with," Phelps said.

The Board of Education scrapped an earlier alternative certification proposal, at least in part due to pressure from the Idaho Education Association. The new plan stiffens requirements — the applicants for the program be screened for educational background and work experience and that they be closely supervised and fully trained by the local school district where they are hired.

The program also requires a two-year internship and completion of six to nine semester credit hours in teacher education.

But board member Charles "Tiny" Grant of Rexburg said with all the restrictions, many potential teachers with extensive work experience in a particular field might decide against entering the program.

"I don't think you've offered an alternative program," he said. "I think you're putting a stumbling block in front of people who could be good teachers."

However, board member Roberta Fields of New Meadows said even tougher standards might be needed to avoid putting a "career dropout" in the classroom. She suggested the addition of a student-teaching requirement, in addition to or in place of some of the required work under a "mentor teacher."

Author Robert Penn Warren dead at 84

STRATTON, Va. (AP) — Robert Penn Warren, who grew up with his grandfathers' tales about the Old South and spun his own in Pulitzer Prize-winning poems and fiction, died Friday.

Warren, the nation's first poet laureate, was 84.

Warren was the only person to win Pulitzers for both fiction and poetry, for which he won twice. His novel "All the King's Men" won the Pulitzer in 1947 and became an Academy Award-winning motion picture.

"He was the outstanding literary figure of the South and one of the great figures in American letters," said historian C. Van Woodward, professor emeritus at Yale University and a friend of Warren's since the 1940s.

Warren had been suffering from cancer for three years. His wife, author Eleanor Clark, and a local doctor were with him as he died at his summer home, said Andrew King, his longtime friend and Stratton's town clerk and treasurer. "He was one of our truly all-around men who made great contributions in all fields. He was a great poet, fine teacher and did something to revolutionize the modes of teaching literature," said Cleanth Brooks, who with Warren developed what came to be known as the "New Criticism."

ROBERT PENN WARREN
Nation's first poet laureate

King said of Warren, "He was a very gentle person with a jovial outlook on life, and he was very alert."

Warren's Pulitzer poetry prizes came in 1957 for "Promises: Poems 1934-1956," and in 1979 for "Now and Then: Poems 1976-1978."

His other awards include the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the National Medal for Literature and the Gold Medal for Poetry from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters. He also was among the first recipients of the MacArthur Foundation's unrestricted "genius grants."

He was appointed poet laureate in 1986, assuming a largely ceremonial title created by Congress.

"The people who create these posts don't give a damn about poetry," Warren said of the appointment. "They do it because it's a nice thing to do. They think 'There's a poet down the road; let's make him a poet laureate.'"

Born in Guthrie, Ky., on April 24, 1905, Warren grew up hearing stories of the Civil War from his two grandfathers who had been Confederate soldiers, but he lived the last three decades of his life in New England.

Warren graduated summa cum laude from Vanderbilt in 1925, took his master's at University of California at Berkeley in 1927, then studied at Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar, earning the B.Litt. degree in 1930.

He was a founder of the "Southern Review" literary quarterly and from 1938 to 1961, he was an editorial advisor to the "Kenyon Review."

His first full-length novel was published in 1939, "Night Rider," about the plight of Kentucky tobacco growers at the turn of the century.

Other works included "John Brown: The Making of a Martyr," "At Heaven's Gate," "World Enough and Time," "Band of Angels," "Wilderness: A Tale of the Civil War," and "Flood: A Romance for Our Time."

"All the King's Men" was obviously inspired by the sitting populist governor of Louisiana, Huey Long, but Warren's work transcended its subject.

"I didn't write about Huey Long, I wrote about the myth of Long," Warren said at Oxford in 1983. "Huey Long was a perfectly sound American product, a sort of crazy leader. But at the time Louisiana was a totally undeveloped state ruled by an oligarchy of landowners and rich merchants."

Smog-reduction plan countered by rival bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's smog-reduction plan got some competition Friday as a bipartisan group of senators unveiled a rival bill to cut auto pollution and set new deadlines for cities to clean their air.

The rival measure, strongly backed by Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, significantly alters the Bush approach to automobile pollution but takes a similar approach to setting clean-up timetables for smog-choked cities.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., the bill's chief sponsor, said the Bush plan "won't get us across the finish line" in improving air quality, and predicted the rival proposal would "cut auto emissions by 60 percent by the year 2000."

Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., the chief sponsor of the Bush legislation in the Senate, also is co-sponsoring the Baucus anti-smog measure.

In all, eight Democrats and five Republicans are sponsoring the rival measure. Asked why he's backing two bills with conflicting provisions, Chafee said he agrees with the Baucus approach. But he sponsored the Bush legislation, Chafee said, because he agrees with many of its provisions, and wanted to support the "first effort an administration has made in eight years" to tackle the nation's air quality problem.

Former President Reagan did not propose a comprehensive revision to the 1977 clean-air law during his eight years in office.

The proposal introduced Friday covers only urban smog proposals, but any clean-air legislation will also include provisions on airborne toxic chemicals and acid rain. The Bush proposal, which covers all three areas, is now under consideration by the House Energy and Commerce environment subcommittee.

Smog is air pollution generated by motor vehicles, industry, and other sources in urban areas. A major component is ozone, which at ground level is produced by the combination of hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides — both given off by tailpipes — in the presence of sunlight and heat.

Since 90 percent of the ozone breathed into the lungs is never exhaled, with ozone molecules reacting with sensitive lung tissue to cause a number of health consequences. These include chest pain, shortness of breath, coughing, nausea, throat irritation and increased susceptibility to respiratory infections.

The automobile section of the Baucus bill would, like the Bush measure, would tighten current tailpipe anti-pollution requirements but would not include two key elements of the president's proposal — a forced switch from today's gasoline to clean-burning motor fuels in severely polluted cities and permission for automakers to average emissions by engine category to comply with anti-pollution requirements.

Instead, the Senate measure would require each model to meet the emissions standards, as under current law, and would allow automakers to choose whether to build cars using alternative fuels or reduce pollution in other ways.

The legislation, like the Bush measure, would set deadlines ranging from five years to 20 years for cities to clean up their smog problems.

Democrats struggle to recover from Bush's capital gains win

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders on Friday began a struggle to recover from their loss to President Bush on his capital gains tax cut, portraying their position as a fight for the working class.

But conservative Democrats said their leaders were choosing the wrong issue — and Republicans eagerly tried to exploit the rift in the majority party's ranks.

In a 19-17 vote on Thursday, the House Ways and Means Committee approved a capital gains tax cut after six Democrats defected and went against their party to side with the president.

Democratic leaders on Friday made clear that they would take the fight to the full House, and that they hoped the public would be on their side after deciding who would win and who would lose if the tax cut is approved.

They said they hadn't settled on what kind of alternative to offer, but among the possibilities was including a restoration of Individual Retirement Account tax breaks as first proposed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

The issue has emerged as the thorniest in a massive budget bill that also includes the sensitive issues of child care and revision of the tax for Medicare catastrophic illness coverage.

Strategists involved in the situation were pondering the possibility that the whole bill might collapse if forces opposed to various provisions combined to bring it down.

Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, said the cut was "at the wrong time giving relief to the wrong people. It's obviously a benefit that will be largely enjoyed by the 150-to-200 thousand-plus crowd."

Reminded that Michael Dukakis tried unsuccessfully to make a campaign issue out of Bush's support of a capital gains cut, Hoyer still said, "My gut tells me the average American agrees with our position."

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., who ran for the Democratic presidential nomination last year based on populist themes, was leading the rhetorical attack for the Democratic leaders.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., put his deputies to work crafting an alternative.

Americans find rifles despite ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has banned import of AK-47 assault-style rifles such as the one used in a shooting rampage Thursday in Louisville, Ky., but similar weapons are still available in U.S. companies.

The administration imposed a temporary import suspension in March after a public outcry over the Jan. 17 Stockton, Calif., schoolyard killing of five children by a man wielding an AK-47.

However, the ban, made permanent in July, doesn't affect guns already owned by Americans or similar weapons produced by U.S. companies.

Joseph T. Webecker, who opened fire at Louisville's Standard-Gravure Co. printing plant, appeared to be using "half-banana clips" of about 25 rounds each in an AK-47, said Louisville Police Chief Richard Dotson.

Such clips are curved and stick out the bottom of the weapon.

Webecker, who committed suicide after the rampage, also had a .300 semi-automatic pistol, Dotson said.

President Bush announced a crime package in May that would limit the size of ammunition clips to 15 rounds, but the Senate Judiciary Committee hasn't voted on it.

The committee has approved a measure by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., that would ban "nine varieties of semiautomatic assault-style weapons, five already covered by the administration's import ban and four others produced domestically.

DeConcini's bill, which would provide up to 10 years additional prison time for those convicted of crimes involving firearms, would go off the books in three years under a "sunset" provision.

The Senate leadership hasn't brought the bill to the floor for a vote.

Monday, American Bar Association President L. Stanley Chauvin Jr. urged Bush to end the

"The study was undertaken because of the dramatic increase in the number of these weapons being imported and police reports of their use in violent crime," ATF Director

House panel may subpoena Pierce

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel, angered by former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce's failure to appear for questioning about scandals at his department, moved Friday to issue a subpoena compelling him to testify.

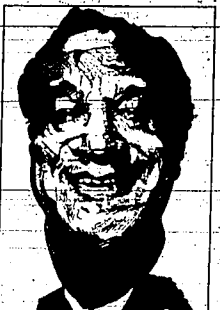

"We have no option but to proceed in teaching Mr. Pierce that while he may run, he may not hide," said subcommittee chairman Tom Lantos, D-Calif.

Pierce and his lawyer both said the former Reagan Cabinet member would indeed testify and simply needed more time to prepare.

However, Lantos denounced Pierce for "deceitful" conduct and accused him of breaking their "gentleman's agreement" for his appearance after two earlier delays at Pierce's request.

"Not only is Silent Sam silent, apparently today he's also invisible," added Rep. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-Ohio, using the derogatory nickname Pierce acquired for his low-profile demeanor as secretary during the Reagan administration.

Lantos announced plans for his House Government Operations

SAMUEL PIERCE
Former HUD chief asks time subcommittee on housing and employment to vote on a subpoena next Wednesday, the soonest possible under House rules. Republicans on the panel said they would vote with Democrats to compel Pierce's testimony. The panel is investigating allegations that prominent Republicans and former officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development got favored treatment from the agency under Pierce, some making huge profits as consultants obtaining multimillion-dollar federal housing contracts.

Also, the department is still unable to account for hundreds of millions of dollars in connection with projects during Pierce's eight years as secretary with critics blaming poor management.

In the latest court action involving HUD deals, a federal grand jury indicted a former department official Thursday in Fresno, Calif., on charges that he illegally funneled over $130,000 into two dummy companies after his firm was named management broker for HUD-financed homes in three counties in March 1984.

The indictment charges Walter L. Moore of Modesto, Calif., with 17 counts of mail fraud.

Pierce's scheduled appearance had been eagerly awaited by the subcommittee, which had agreed to limit the scope of questioning.

FCC head asks volunteer halt to 'shock radio'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission chairman urged the nation's broadcasters Friday to tune out "shock radio," programs that use sexually and racially oriented humor to attract audiences.

"We are not simply recorders, transmitters and antennas," Alfred Sikes told those attending the National Association of Broadcasters radio convention. "We are what we broadcast."

Sikes, a former owner of several radio stations, said the association should revise its programming code, dropped in the early 1980s as the result of a federal anti-trust lawsuit against provisions regarding commercials.

Such standards should be drawn up by the industry, without government pressure, said Sikes.

The FCC on Aug. 24 said it was taking enforcement action against three stations — WLUP-AM in Chicago, KSJO-FM in San Jose, Calif., and WPBQ-FM in Indianapolis — "which may have broadcast indecent programs in violation of the law."

Senate OKs military construction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, deliberating less than an hour, approved a $7.7 billion military construction bill Friday that eliminates President Bush's request for work on bases in South Korea and the Philippines.

The best way to make our defense dollar go further is to secure a more equitable burden sharing from our allies," Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on military construction, said prior to the chamber's overwhelming approval of the bill.

The vote was 93-1 with Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., the lone dissenter.

Overall, the bill, covering the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, provides $1.3 billion less than this year's level for military construction and about $300 million less than Bush had requested.

The Senate blueprint also differs from the House version, which totals $8.7 billion, including $500 million for base closings that the Senate has put in the separate defense appropriations bill.

Members of the Senate and the House will meet later this month to fashion a compromise.

Administration backs off plan to sway election

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, retreating under congressional pressure, abandoned on Friday its idea of helping to finance the presidential election campaign of Nicaraguan opposition leader Violeta Chamorro through a U.S.-financed private organization.

While the National Endowment for Democracy should play an active role in ensuring a free and fair election, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said, the United States will not ask the group to go beyond election activities permitted by its charter.

Chamorro is campaigning to defeat Daniel Ortega, the Nicaraguan president, in a runoff election next February. All U.S. efforts, including past weapons shipments to anti-government rebels known as Contras, have failed to unseat the Sandinista leader.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III sounded out members of Congress earlier this week on providing around $2 million in U.S. funds to Chamorro, the publisher of the leading opposition newspaper, La Prensa, through the endowment.

Baker encountered stiff opposition from Democrats and Republicans alike.

Student stabbed at high school

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A 16-year-old Bonneville High School student was taken to surgery Friday after being stabbed at the Idaho Falls school, officials said.

Assistant Principal R. Dean Welker said he believed the injured student was a junior. Welker said a second student was taken into custody after the incident. Sheriff Richard Ackerman said his officers were questioning the youth, but he had no other information.

Welker said the incident apparently occurred when a long-standing disagreement turned into a fight while students were out of class for an assembly and then one youth pulled a knife and stabbed the other.

Man pleads innocent in murder case

PAYETTE (AP) — A Fruitland man pleaded innocent Friday to a charge that he murdered his 13-year-old daughter, and trial was set for Jan. 22.

Rocky Adams, 37, is charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of his daughter, Spring, on Aug. 14. Police allege Adams killed the girl, then turned the gun on himself, suffering a bullet wound to the head.

The trial will be held at Payette before 3rd District Judge Dennis Goff. Adams will be held in jail without bond until the trial.

Adams also is charged with lewd and lascivious conduct. He also pleaded innocent to that charge. Deputy Prosecutor Greg Frates said trial was set for Dec. 4-6, also in Payette.

MIAs remembered at ROTC parade

MOSCOW (AP) — The four score of University of Idaho ROTC cadets who stood at parade rest on the Administration Building lawn were barely toddlers when the United States ended its stake in the Vietnam War 16 years ago.

Yet, the nearly 200 people who gathered Thursday noted that for some, there was no end to the chapter. For families of soldiers, flyers and sailors missing in action, the mystery and frustration endure.

"It is safe to presume that nearly all, perhaps 99 percent of them, are dead," Moscow Mayor Gary Scott told the ceremony honoring the nation's MIAs and prisoners of war.

Judge allows summary judgment in Steed case

REXBURG (AP) — Despite an Idaho Supreme Court ruling that an Idaho Falls business is entitled to have a jury hear its case, a 7th District Court judge has granted a summary judgment.

Unless the decision is overturned, that would prevent the case from ever reaching a jury.

In a 45-page decision Wednesday, Judge Grant Young granted West One Bank's motion for summary judgment against David Steed and Associates, David Steed and his partners Claren and Delray Holm.

The ruling dismissed Steed's second amended counterclaim against the bank. The first amended counterclaim was dismissed when Young allowed Steed to file the second counterclaim in June.

"Unless I allow him to file a third amended counterclaim ... that in essence ends the case," Young said Friday. A hearing is scheduled for Monday afternoon on a motion by Steed's attorneys to do that.

In light of Wednesday's ruling, that hearing could be canceled or rescheduled, Young said.

"We're shocked, but we have a lot of options open to us to bring about the appropriate remedies," Steed said.

The ruling means the bank is entitled to the judgment it seeks against Steed and Associates, Young said, but the amount of the judgment was not listed in his order. Young said he will wait for the bank to draw up the paperwork for the final judgment before he rules on the amount.

West One, formerly Idaho First National, foreclosed on the Idaho Falls farm implement business in February 1987, claiming it defaulted on more than $600,000 in promissory notes and owed more than $700,000 in trust receipts.

Steed countersued, asking for more than $10 million in damages. He claims the bank failed to deal fairly and in good faith, and alleged fraud, breach of contract, conspiracy, negligence and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

Steed took his case to the Idaho Supreme Court last year when Young denied his request for a jury trial. The state's high court granted Steed's request for a jury trial.

However, Young ruled Steed's case "is without merit as a matter of law" and granted the summary judgment in favor of the bank.

Young ruled "there is no admissible evidence of oral representations by any bank officers which would bind the bank to perform in some manner that is different from the provisions of the loan agreement."

The facts in the case, Young said in his ruling, clearly establish that Steed's debt to the bank had matured and was fully due and payable Dec. 1, 1986. Steed argues the bank led him to believe it would continue to allow him credit and extend the due dates of the loans.

In a similar case involving the same bank, a jury earlier this year returned a $5.6 million verdict against West One and in favor of Robert Erkins and his Blaine Valley Food mushroom farm. Erkins also alleged bad faith in transactions with the bank.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECASTS

IF SEPTEMBER 16TH IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you may not be religious in orthodox sense, but you are spiritual. You also are analytical, perceptive, capable of following through on subtle clues. Earlier this month, you felt betrayed. Your feelings are correct. Some things occurred behind scenes which definitely was unavowed. You make up for all this in October, a power, productive month for you. Pices, Virgo persons play important roles in your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Moon in your sign highlights revelation, discovery, participation in adventures. It won't be all fantasy—you're going to be handsomely rewarded for efforts. You might be saying, "This night is for love!"

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You're due for surprises. Someone behind scenes and a play which might make no sense to you. For sake of harmony, go along with it. Could include journey in connection with gourmet dining.

GENY (May 21-June 20): Stress independence, realize popularity is on the rise. What had been denied you will now be practically handed on silver platter. Focus on romance, fresh start, possibility of "new love."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Those who thought you missed the boat—will be disappointed. Cycle highlights career advancement, prestige, promotion. People with opposite ideas join forces with your allies. You are very important!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dreams do come true! You'll vote in affirmative on that one. Scenario features joy, pleasure, popularity, possibility of journey. You'll communicate, publish, put across unique viewpoint. Gemini represented.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People who "hold the money" may release sooner than anticipated. Have papers at hand, correct errors, complete research. You could be handed "plum assignment." Taurus, Scorpio persons are in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Answer to question: Go public! You have plenty to offer. Home surroundings, advertising you could hit jackpot. Focus also on partnership, marital status. You'll be in contact with people who write.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Job gets done if you go slow. Tendency is to skip essentials. Individual, very romantic, presents token of affection. Maintain composure. Home surroundings will be beautiful. Libra plays key role.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may feel adrift—this is but temporary. Within one week you'll be saying, "I know what I was doing all the time!" Focus on speculation, children, love relationship. Virgo involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Professional appraiser provides information previously withheld. Could involve property, antique, sale or purchase of something precious to you. Older gentleman will prove staunch ally. Remain committed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Focus on movement, inquiries, curiosity gain through "puzzling materials." Strict trip could involve request from relative. Display humor, fitness, versatility. You'll complete long-standing assignment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): New approach necessary if you are to at most for effort, money. Stress independence, style, creativity. You'll get to heart of matters in connection with "love." Showmanship is substitute for dedication.

What's what

A cat gets nosebleed
Common on injury to cats in long falls is nosebleed.

Rallying cry of the Spanish American War was "Remember the Maine." So where is that ship, the Maine?
A. Nobody remembers. Research reveals it lay in Havana harbor until 1912, then was dragged out to sea and sunk.

Long cancer wasn't even recognized as a disease until 1829. And wasn't so diagnosed much until the early 1830s. So your granddaddy as a boy never heard of such a thing, what?
Ancient Greeks chewed gum, too. "Mastiche," it was called.

Turnips
Our Chief Prognosticator thinks some fast-food outfits soon will peddle fresh-fried turnips. Romantically renamed. Skands to reason. Overstuffed turnips are so plentiful they're dumped as a cattle feed. But peeling machines, dicing knives and pressure cookers can make them delicious. With an herb and spice or two.

On Interstate 80 just outside of Winnemucca, Nev., is a sign that reads: "If You Don't Stop Here, Who Will?"

Almost all the famous women's rights leaders suffered long chronic illnesses yet lived to spectacularly old ages. So reports a student of the feminist cause.

ALCOHOL
Alcohol expands the capillaries. You feel more blood. It warms the skin. You feel it. But the skin cools that blood. It returns to internal organs to cool them, too. So even as you sense that alcohol is making your body warmer, it's actually making your body cooler.

Rarely, if ever, does a California driver get hauled in for shooting a whale from the car. But the law there since 1972 prohibits that offense.

An historian says tobacco smoking in the 1800s "was associated with the reading of novels and other signs of depravity."

Report is 88 percent of all greeting cards are bought by women aged 17 through 35.

Salvagers begin recovery of $1 billion in gold from wreck off S. Carolina coast

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Salvagers working off South Carolina have begun recovering golden booty of bars and coins valued at up to $1 billion from a steamship that sank in a hurricane 132 years ago, a spokeswoman said Thursday.

"It's certainly 'the largest American treasure trove of all time,'" said Barry Schatz, a director of Columbus America Discovery Group, which located the wreck of the SS Central America three years ago.

The gold bars and coins aboard the SS Central America include fortunes made during the California Gold Rush, said historian Judy Conrad of the Columbus America Discovery Group, which located the wreck three years ago.

"I never dreamed it would be like this," Thomas Thompson, a director of the group, told The Washington Post in a story published Thursday.

The paddle-wheel steamer was traveling from Panama to New York on Sept. 12, 1857, when it sank about 200 miles off the coast in 8,000 feet of water during a hurricane. The wreck claimed 425 lives; 153 people survived.

The Central America was carrying a regular monthly shipment of gold from the San Francisco Mint to New York banks via the Isthmus of Panama.

The estimated three tons of gold was valued at $1.2 million, based on the price of gold of about 90 cents an ounce in 1857. At today's price — a high $860 a troy ounce — its estimated value would be up to $450 million.

In addition, riches belonging to passengers returning East after making their fortunes in California appear to have been aboard the ship,

Geologist Bob Evans examines a gold bar Tuesday weighing 62 pounds, recovered 200 miles off South Carolina

Schatz told The Associated Press during a ship-to-shore interview from aboard the recovery ship Arctic Discoverer, which has been at the salvage site since July. Historians originally believed the ship sank off North Carolina, but research led the Columbus America group south. The Central America was located in 1986 and identified last year when the ship's bell was raised.

The salvagers began bringing up the first artifacts last month, recovering about 500 pounds of gold so far, Schatz said.

In recent weeks, gold bars, including one weighing 62 pounds, rare "double angle" coins valued at up to $20,000 each, and gold coins made by private California mints and valued at up to $15,000 have been recovered, said Pamela Adkins, a spokeswoman for the expedition.

At such values, "it isn't out of the realm of possibility" that the overall value of the Central America's cargo could swell to $1 billion, Thompson told the Post.

Thompson, a specialist in underwater mining and robotics, was on the expedition ship Arctic Discoverer on Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

Schatz said much depends on how much personal gold from the passengers is recovered.

"We don't know the extent of the cargo of valuables," he said, adding it could be sizeable because passage on the steamer cost the equivalent of $6,000 in 1989 dollars.

He said much depends on how much of the treasure can be recovered, adding, "We feel we can fully recover the site."

"That billion-dollar estimate is probably the most frequently heard figure on the treasure's value," said shipwreck expert E. Lee Spence of Sullivan's Island.

He said, however, that an estimate of a couple hundred million dollars would be realistic, adding that that amount could be higher.

Janitor collects $3 million jackpot despite ticket loss

CHICAGO (AP) — A janitor who lost his winning ticket for a $3 million lottery says he's not mad that it took him four years to claim the prize.

"The lottery was doing their job," said newly-made millionaire Julius Russell Jr. The school janitor from the South Side picked up a certificate of his winnings from lottery officials Thursday. "Why should I feel resentment?"

Russell, 60, matched all six winning Lotto numbers in a November 1985 drawing, but accidentally threw away his ticket.

He proved in court last month that he consistently played the same two sets of numbers in the weekly Lotto game, and the lottery confirmed that one of two winning tickets for the $3 million jackpot was purchased at the grocery where Russell routinely plays the game.

"The Illinois State Lottery had argued that lottery rules require possession of a ticket to win, and officials appealed the court ruling.

But Lottery Director Sharon Sharp said Thursday the agency was withdrawing its appeal after a check of lottery records showed prizes have been awarded previously to claimants who could not produce a winning ticket. None of the prizes was for more than $5,000.

"We thought Mr. Russell should not have to suffer," she said.

Hungary says reform outweighs unity

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — A senior official said Friday that Hungary is allowing East Germans to flee to the West because it values democratic reforms more than East bloc unity.

East Germany's leadership angrily rejected calls for similar reforms.

Officials in Budapest also said the Soviet Union has not exerted any pressure on Hungary, a Warsaw Pact ally, to stop the exodus of East Germans over its Austrian border.

In East Berlin, officials acknowledged for the first time that the exodus was causing a harmful drain of young, skilled workers.

Also Friday, West German counterintelligence officials said they are worried that Communist East Germany may have slipped a few spies among the refugees. They promised help to any such spies who turned themselves in.

Officials said about 14,000 refugees had arrived since midnight Sunday, when Hungary decided to empty out its burgeoning refugee camps by letting the East Germans leave without their government's permission.

Another 10,000 refugees have escaped illegally since Hungary began dismantling border barriers with Austria in May.

West German officials said 600 East Germans arrived late Thursday and early Friday, and the West German charity registering new arrivals in Hungary said about 300 more were en route to the border.

In Bonn, the Foreign Ministry said 60 East Germans are holed up at the West German Embassy in Warsaw and 700 at the embassy in Prague, Czechoslovakia, also demanding to emigrate.

There is little hope they will succeed. Polish leaders have urged caution in the matter, and Prague has refused to sanction a migration.

Laszlo Kovacs, one of three Hungarian deputy foreign ministers, said Hungary's reform policies are more important than keeping up an image of unity.

Colombian army seizes 28 suspects

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The army said Friday it arrested 28 suspected leftist guerrillas and accused them of carrying out terrorist acts with drug traffickers around the cocaine center of Medellin.

Four bombs exploded at banks in Bogota early Friday. No one was injured in the blasts and no one claimed responsibility, a police spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

The arrests were announced in a communique from the 4th Army Brigade in the city of Medellin, the site of almost daily bombings, shootings and arson attacks since Colombia's government and its cocaine cartels declared war on each other last month.

The army said the 28 arrested belonged to the National Liberation Army, which is one of six leftist guerrilla groups operating in this South American country.

The communique did not say when the 28 were arrested or what specific "terrorist acts" they were accused of committing.

"We have succeeded in capturing an entire gang of bandits from the so-called National Liberation Army that together with narco-traffickers have been carrying out terrorist acts (around Medellin)," it said.

It would be unusual for leftist guerrillas to work with drug cartels.

Drug organizations here traditionally have considered guerrillas their enemies and have funded hit squads aimed at killing leftist sympathizers. Drug traffickers also view the army-guerrilla confrontations in remote regions as getting in the way of their cocaine processing and shipping operations.

Since President Virgilio Barco decreed special emergency powers Aug. 18 to aid in the anti-narcotics fight, authorities here have been rounding up drug suspects and seizing bank accounts and property presumed linked to the traffickers.

The emergency measures temporarily suspend some constitutional guarantees and allow suspects to be held for eight days without being formally charged.

The bombings in Bogota were typical of those that plagued Medellin, 150 miles northwest.

CSI hosts hearing on off-road land use

TWIN FALLS—A public hearing is set at the College of Southern Idaho this morning to gather public comment on updating the 1987 Land and Resource Management Plan.

The meeting, at 10 a.m. in the Aspen Building, Room 108, is one of a series of meetings around the state sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service to identify which trails, roads or general areas can be used by all-terrain vehicles and those areas open only to foot traffic.

Officials issue warning for canned mushroom hazard

TWIN FALLS—Canned mushrooms from the People's Republic of China may contain Staph enterotoxin.

State health officials recommend destruction of any 30-ounce or 4½ gallon cans of mushrooms, said Steven VanWinkle, of Region V Public Health District.

"We really don't think at this time there is any danger to the public," VanWinkle said. "There may not be any in Idaho."

Foods that are susceptible to Staph contamination are hams, poultry and beef, he said.

The symptoms, which occur within one to six hours, are nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, diarrhea and prostration, VanWinkle said.

He said ways to prevent Staph intoxication include prompt refrigeration, good personal hygiene and sanitation.

Woman reports 2 kittens are injured by blow darts

TWIN FALLS—A local woman reported to police that two of her kittens were injured by darts.

"One kitten was shot clear through one paw, said its owner, Sarah Benton, 324 Otislander St. N. Benton's other kitten was injured in the side. The kittens, both 3 months old, are recovering at home. Benton said none of the family saw who shot the darts, sometime Saturday night.

A dog in the same neighborhood was injured Sunday, Benton said she reported the incidents after reading in Thursday's Times-News about the dog.

Blow guns created controversy at the County Fair earlier this month. Sheriff Jim Munn was concerned about darts being shot around the fairgrounds. The guns were sold at a booth for $20-$25, with a note to parents that the device was refundable if they objected to it.

Alternative high school signups continue in Buhl

BUHL—Registration is continuing for an alternative high school here for students ages 20 and under having learning and discipline problems.

To be eligible students must meet three of the following criteria: have repeated at least one grade, absent more than 10 percent during a semester, GPA lower than 1.5, failed one or more basic skills subjects, or two or more semester credits a year behind the rate required to graduate.

Eligible students are also those who have substance abuse problems, are pregnant or a parent, teenagers legally independent from their parents, have been voluntary or involuntary dropouts, have behavioral problems or are court or agency referrals.

Classes, which begin Wednesday, are either from 3:30-6 p.m. or 6-8:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday. Students can take up to four classes a week. The school is open to students from any district. Child-care will be provided for small children. Call the school at 543-8436 for more information or a registration appointment.

School for handicapped delayed until Sept. 25

TWIN FALLS—The new school program for handicapped 3- to 5-year-olds will not begin until Sept. 25.

Originally slated to open Monday, instructors and support staff are still meeting with children and parents to determine which children qualify for the program, said Bill Feashears, the district's support services director.

He said instructors have not yet finished writing individualized programs for the children, which also has contributed to the later start date.

Panel begins to debate open records law dilemma

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—The competing ideals of personal privacy and open democracy invariably lead to conflicts, and an interim legislative committee is about to dive into the nitty gritty of balancing those ideals.

Thursday, three panelists debated where to draw the line.

The trick is to draft a law that isn't too one-sided toward government agencies or not responsive to the public," said Deputy Attorney General Pat Kole.

Magic Valley Regional Medical Center lawyer Kent Taylor said the current law, which generally makes records open unless specifically closed, imposes hardships on the hospital.

The hospital is concerned about protecting its patients and physicians.

The main concern is the patient," Taylor said.

Physicians, regulated by private review organizations, also aren't excited about public hospitals, Taylor said. "We can't get doctors on our staff because of this fear," he said.

"What, the fear they would have to come before a patient and perform competently?" asked Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen asked.

An Idaho Supreme Court ruling in 1984 removed the option of arbitrarily withholding records from the public, declaring a record must be specifically closed by a statute before it can be secret. And government agencies have done precisely that.

About 100 records have been closed by statute since then, Kole said.

But the interim committee is determined to trim that list and plans to call in all state agencies to justify their exemptions at its next meeting, Kole said.

That meeting will "result in no small number of dead bodies," Hartgen said.

"Their inclination is to pare down this list considerably," Hartgen, Kole and Taylor spoke at the panel discussion on Thursday. It was sponsored by the Sawtooth Press Club.

UFF battle apparently has ended

By MARTA CLEAVELAND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The 10-month battle for control of Universal Foods Corp., the parent of Universal Frozen Foods in Twin Falls, appears to be at an end.

High Voltage Engineering Corp., which has tried since December to arrange a hostile takeover of Universal, withdrew its stock tender offer Monday.

"We are pleased to hear that High Voltage has finally accepted the desire of our shareholders and the position of the courts," said Gay Osborn, Universal's president and chief executive officer in Milwaukee. "The majority of our shareholders never tendered their shares, indicating their support for the company's successful business plan."

"We are glad that the long, drawn-out ordeal is finally concluded. The employees of our company can now devote their full efforts to executing the business plan which calls for a 21 percent increase in earnings per share from $2.40 this fiscal year to $2.90 next year," Osborn said.

Calls to Laurence Levy, chairman of High Voltage, were not returned this week. In light of the withdrawal, Universal's board of directors voted Thursday to declare a three-for-two stock split payable Oct. 16. The transaction will give shareholders one additional share for every two shares they own.

The board also took under review management's recommendation to raise the annual dividend 15.9 percent from 38 cents to $1.02 per share on pre-split shares, or from 63.7 cents up to 68 cents per post-split share.

This will be the seventh dividend increase in the past five years, reflecting an accelerating earnings growth rate. Formal action on the dividend recommendation is scheduled for Oct. 3.

Universal and High Voltage butted heads initially last December when Universal rejected High Voltage's original tender.

Import sugar quota hike not so drastic

By ERIC ANDERSON States News Service

WASHINGTON—An increase in the U.S. sugar quota announced this week by Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter may not be as drastic as it first seems.

Although the import quota will rise by roughly 360,000 metric tons—from 1,125,255 metric tons to 1,486,950 metric tons, raw value—the 1989 quota period was simultaneously increased by nine months, extending to Sept. 30, 1990.

The end result: the monthly sugar quota import cap will rise from roughly 93,771 metric tons, raw, to 94,616 metric tons.

Nevertheless, the hike in the quota ceiling was enough to spur Rep. Larry Craig to warn Yeutter to "move cautiously" on the issue of changing sugar import limits.

Yeutter maintained that the quota change was not related to a recent decision by the Council of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). It found that U.S. sugar policies were inconsistent with international trade rules. The decision by GATT—a sort of United Nations trade—was reached after a complaint last fall from Australia.

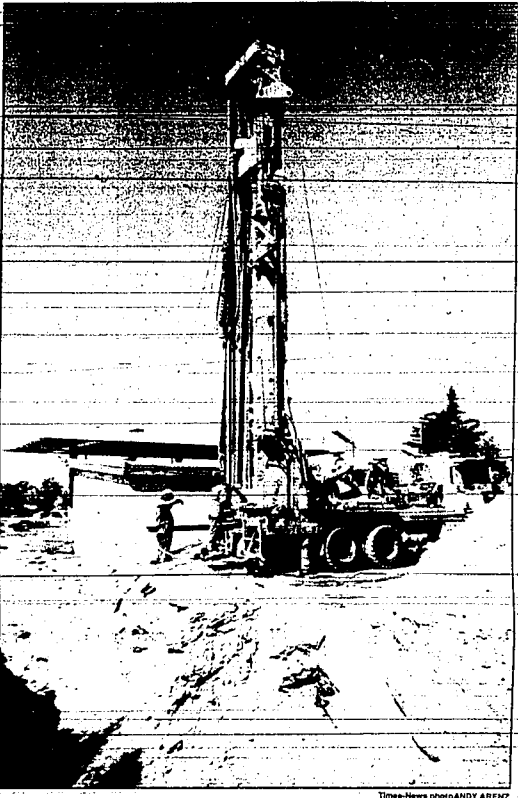

Rather, Yeutter said the quota hike was an attempt to correct "tightness" in the sugar market to "move cautiously" on the issue of changing sugar import limits.

"We are continuing to look at the options for bringing these quotas into conformity with GATT, but a decision on how to do this has not been made," Yeutter said. "In the interim, this modification of the import quota and the quota period is necessary to correct for a tightness in our sugar market, particularly during the last quarter of this calendar year."

But Craig wrote Yeutter: "In light of the

New wells will check on gas leaks

A crew drills the first monitoring well behind the Foxfire station

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—Engineers finished drilling on Friday the first of as many as three wells to be tested for contamination at the Foxfire Petroleum station on Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

It's still too soon to tell how much gasoline has leaked into the ground or whether there is serious contamination of groundwater, said Pat O'Rourke, water quality compliance officer for the state Division of Environmental Quality.

The station closed down earlier this year and operators notified O'Rourke's office and the federal Environmental Protection Agency that the underground tank for unleaded gasoline was leaking.

The state's Division of Environmental Quality is allowing the station's owners, Western Appraisal, to contract with a private firm to determine the extent of damage before the state becomes involved, O'Rourke said.

Steve Leonard, owner of Leonard Petroleum Equipment, said his firm started bailing the well on Friday.

Leonard Petroleum plans to send about a quart of water from the total samples extracted to an EPA-certified laboratory for testing.

Leonard said results should come within the next couple of weeks, and they will determine how much more digging or cleanup work must be done.

New EPA regulations increased scrutiny of underground tanks late last year. Under the new rules underground storage tanks and piping must be upgraded with some form of corrosion protection and a system for detecting leaks.

Even though EPA officials maintain that it only takes a small amount of gasoline to contaminate groundwater, Mike McMaisters, a supervisor with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, said in an earlier interview that the Foxfire property owners will not be fined as long as they willingly participate and pay for the cleanup.

Carey School receives full accreditation

By ROBERT DOYLE Times-News correspondent

HAILEY—Carey School, warned three years ago that its accreditation was in jeopardy, has been fully accredited.

Orville Reddington, of the Idaho State Department of Education, told the Blaine County School Board this week that Carey met all criteria for accreditation from the Northwest Accrediting Association and praised the school and Principal Bob Bash for the school's quality of education.

"We're very pleased with what we found. The school atmosphere is very conducive to learning," Reddington told the trustees.

In other matters, the board approved in concept the recommendations of a special committee for long-range district plans, including building a new middle school and moving some grades to other schools.

Reddington cited a survey taken in Carey by the visiting accreditation committee, showing that 90 percent of the town felt that the school was doing a good job of teaching the basics.

"This full accreditation approval would put Carey in the top 10 percent of schools their size in the Northwest," Reddington

'We're very pleased with what we found. The school atmosphere is very conducive to learning.'

— Orville Reddington, department of education

said.

The accreditation was primarily due to the school's teachers now teaching in areas where they were properly credentialed, Reddington said. "Teachers teaching outside their area of training is always a problem in small schools," he said.

The committee recommended that the school begin offering counseling to elementary students. The school would probably require the hiring of a media center aide, whose duties are now assumed by the part-time counselor.

The district will begin meeting with parent groups to discuss recommendations of a student-population growth committee, including that a new middle school be built.

The board gave its general approval to the recommendations and directed Superintendent Phil Homer to begin setting up the meetings.

The committee rejected year-around schools, voting to use portables as the short-term solution to the district's classroom crunch. In the long run, the committee recommended that a new middle school be built, probably in the Heatherlands Subdivision, housing grades six through eight.

Health officials hope Bellevue water safe

By ROBERT DOYLE Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE—Officials here hope to know today if local residents have to continue to boil their water.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare is expected to have the results of a second test of the city's water system, following a routine test that turned up water below state standards. The department notified the city early Thursday of those results and the city told residents through radio announcements to begin boiling their water.

The source of the pollutants appeared to be a herd of cattle which had been feeding near springs in Muldoon Canyon, Bellevue Water Commissioner Gary Peak said.

The springs provide about 70 percent of the town's water.

The city shut the spring water out of the water system and went to an auxiliary well, Peak said. Workers also flushed the system all through Thursday, he said.

Results of a second sample of the city water, minus the spring water, should be available this morning.

In other matters, the council took no action on a complaint of a resident's animals but will meet with the county animal control officer to see what can be done.

Gary Griffin and Rob Heed asked the council to take action against Jack Shipman's family, who they said has 15-20 cats and four dogs. The yard is overrun with cats, and the dogs bark at everything that moves," Griffin said. Two letters from other neighbors supported the complaint registered by Griffin and Heed.

Mayor Wayne Douthit said the problem is the responsibility of the County animal control officer. Griffin stated he hasn't helped.

Councilman Dennis Wright responded that Bellevue pays $5,000 a year for animal control services "and maybe we had better review the whole matter of animal control."

In other matters:

• The new jets coming into Freidman Airport won't be taking off or landing over the north-end-of-the-airport. Assistant Manager Randy Petrovich told the council. Also, should prevailing winds not allow a southern approach, the flights will be rerouted to Twin Falls.

The new tower due next month won't mean bigger jets, he said. "The biggest limiting factor is the strength and length of the runway," Petrovich said. "Flames bigger than the 737 are just too heavy."

• The Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission will consider on Oct. 13 approval of the Wood River site for the city's new sewer treatment plant, Mayor Wayne Douthit told the council.

Release of police documents trouble investigator and author

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The release of selected police reports on the 1993 Mark Hofmann murders, says a chilling precedent for similar requests in future investigations, a former detective said Friday.

The Salt Lake City Attorney's Office on Thursday turned over to the church and The Salt Lake Tribune 39 pages gleaned from 22 of more than 1,000 internal memos generated during the Hofmann investigation.

Information on this is in the public interest," she said. "But if people are used for talking or writing... I think people should think about the implications of using the law against those who make information public."

returned to patrol duties, said the "mitigating factor" is that the information already was well known both in news reports and in the books.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints bought several bogus documents related to early Mormon history, and Hofmann sold hundreds of other forgeries to collectors across the country. He is serving a life term at Utah State Prison.

Richard Turley, managing director of the church's historical department, is to co-write the book, which has the approval of church leaders.

prosecutors. Mormon officials and the victims' associates. LeFevre said Turley did not want to bring his approach until the book is published by a private company early in 1990.

"My book supplies the other half of the puzzle," Turley told the newspaper. "I think people will be surprised how much the puzzle is changed when all the pieces are there."

High Pincock, then a member of the church's Quorum of the Seventy and a member of the board of directors of First Interstate Bank, helped Hofmann to obtain a $185,000 signature loan but a nonexistent collection of purported Mormon documents. Hofmann used the money to pay off other investors he'd defrauded.

Police have said Hofmann killed Christensen, an intermediary in the acquisition of the collection, to mask his deception and planted the bomb that killed Smeadows a diversion. In its report, the Tribune said two unreleased police summaries outlined detectives' frustrated attempts to interview church officials; incidents in which church security officials interviewed witnesses before detectives, and involvement of church officials in plans to purchase documents from Hofmann while later denying to detectives those plans existed.

Schools consider dividing lottery monies

MOSCOW (AP) — An estimated $2 million to $5 million a year for public school building projects from the new state lottery is a welcome windfall, but Idaho education officials are not looking forward to deciding who gets a piece of the action.

The state Board of Education took its first real look at the problem Friday at the University of Idaho, considering how it should decide which school districts most need the money and which projects can remain a while longer on a statewide building wish list that already totals more than $200 million.

"Once there's some meat on the table, there are some school districts that are going to be hungry," said board member Roberta Fields of New Meadows. Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, called it a "giant problem," but one which the board is mandated by law to tackle, and soon.

The state lottery is bringing in more money than originally projected, and half its profits will be funneled to the public schools building account. The other half goes to other state building needs. Officials expected lottery ticket sales to hit $25 million in the first year.

Lottery sales have topped $15 million

BOISE (AP) — Less than two months after Idaho's state lottery started, sales have hit $15 million, Lottery Director Wally Hedrick said Friday.

Sales from the first game, "Match 3" which started July 19 have reached $2.1 million out of the 8.3 million tickets printed, he said.

With just $200,000 in sales left, 6 of the $5,000 prizes have not been claimed, Hedrick said.

Lottery officials said earlier it is possible some of the prizes will not be claimed, because winners are accidentally overlooked or lost.

Sales in the second game, "Instant Scratch," have reached $5.5 million, Hedrick said. It offers a top prize of $10,000, and he said 26 of the prizes have not been claimed so far.

Grass burning stops for day to give air a chance to clear

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Washington state called off its grass burning for a day and farmers on Idaho's Rathdrum Prairie delayed it until the afternoon to give the air a chance to clear, meteorologist Jim Boylan says.

Although winds were favorable Thursday, Boylan said he called off morning burns because the smoke from Wednesday's fires still hung in the air the following day.

"A lot of the smoke created is still in the air," Boylan said. "And we don't want to overload everything."

Boylan, a private consultant, has been hired by the Intermountain Grass Growers Association to monitor the air and advise farmers when to burn. "I try to keep them out of trouble," he said.

Washington declared a non-burn day Thursday to prevent more smoke from pouring into Coeur d'Alene, Idaho and pushing the particulate level above the clean-air standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency, Boylan said.

Grass field burning is expected to come to the Magic Valley next summer. Jacklin Seed Co., a Post Falls-based commercial grass seed company, is contracting acreage with farmers for the next growing season.

This year, delayed by the wettest August in recent history, eastern Washington and northern Idaho grass growers have raised the ire of residents by burning on weekends and windless days in an effort to complete their burns before the rains return.

Farmers are anxious to get their fields burned because the longer the fires are delayed, the more grass seed production decreases.

Business Investor matches latest bid for United

CHICAGO (AP) — Billionaire investor Marvin Davis said Friday he would match a $6.75 billion buyout offer by pilots and managers of United Airlines that has been approved by parent UAL Corp., should the pilot-management bid fall through.

United Airlines Buyout Offer

Although he said any bidder competing with the pilots and managers is at a "disadvantage," Davis said he was not to pay $300 a share — without requiring any labor concessions — if the employee-management bid was not completed.

Proposed breakdown of ownership:
British Airways: 10%
UAL management: 15%
Airline Acquisition Corp.: 75%

On Thursday, UAL Corp.'s directors approved a $600-a-share, or $6.75 billion, offer from the management-pilot group, which could result in the nation's largest employee-owned company.

"Under the agreement announced Thursday, UAL would merge with Airline Acquisition Corp., the group formed by the pilots and management."

The plan, which includes a restrictive covenant on pilots and other cut-throat labor concessions, was the latest twist in a 6-week takeover battle.

The pilot-management group's proposal includes a seven-year non-competition guarantee by the pilots and cuts in wages-and-benefits, terms that any outsider would have difficulty matching.

Davis, the California investor who started the battle and previously bid $6.19 billion, or $75 a share for UAL, said his offer today stands "if the coalition proposal is not consummated on a timely basis."

Under the agreement announced Thursday, Chicago-based UAL would merge with Airline Acquisition Corp., the group formed by pilots and management. Employees would own 75 percent of the company, UAL management would hold 10 percent and British Airways PLC would own 15 percent.

"We believe that with this course of action may provide us with a higher probability of success in acquiring UAL than attempting to bid against the coalition that has been arrayed against us," Davis said in a statement.

The pilot-management group's proposal includes a seven-year non-competition guarantee by the pilots and cuts in wages-and-benefits, terms that any outsider would have difficulty matching.

The pilot-management agreement was announced late Thursday after the employee group made a final presentation to a special committee of the UAL board and revealed the financing for its bid.

Under the agreement announced Thursday, Chicago-based UAL would merge with Airline Acquisition Corp., the group formed by pilots and management. Employees would own 75 percent of the company, UAL management would hold 10 percent and British Airways PLC would own 15 percent.

British Airways PLC would hold a minority stake in UAL under the agreement.

The merger agreement would have a minority stake in UAL under the agreement.

Frederick Dubinsky, a spokesman for United's unit of the Air Line Pilots Association, said he believes the plan will go forward.

"We bring something to the table that no one else can bring," Dubinsky said in a telephone interview early today from New York.

"The merger agreement would have a minority stake in UAL under the agreement."

just signed is designed to secure the future of United Airlines and its 68,000 employees, to serve the public with quality air transportation and to provide the best value to UAL's shareholders," said UAL Chairman Stephen Wolf.

The deal still would need the approval of shareholders and the Department of Transportation, which is not expected to raise major objections although in the past it has been concerned about foreign carriers buying into U.S. airlines. With inclusion of financing costs, the deal would total $7.2 billion. Citibank and the Chase Manhattan Bank have committed $3 billion to finance the buyout and will obtain commitments for an additional $4.2 billion, officials said.

Raft River rallies, beats Hagerman, 18-14

By RON GATES
 Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — Preseason favorite Raft River had to come from behind in the final two minutes Friday to edge Hagerman 18-14 in the Magic Valley Conference football opener for both teams.
 Trojan quarterback Scott Hitt, whose pass completions of 34 and 25 yards to junior tight end Myron Durfee set up the winning score, dived for the final yard with 1 minute, 1 second showing on the clock.
 It was the Trojans' 10th consecutive win over Hagerman and their 18th in a 20-game series which began when the Pirates moved to the MVC from the old Little Six at the conclusion of the 1969 season.

"It was everything we expected," said a relieved Raft River coach Dwight Richins. "More than we expected. It was a heck of a finish."

Hagerman's last hurrah came on a 43-yard pass from Chris Waitley to Kirk Lindsey — a combination that clicked for two TDs earlier — but fell 20 yards short.

That left a fake punt, on which Hitt found Travis Spencer for 34 yards and a first down — though one possession earlier — as the game's big play.
 "It was definitely the key in the fourth quarter," said Hagerman coach Randy Clark. "I felt that if we'd stopped them there we'd have won the game."

With Hagerman holding a 14-12 lead and 6 minutes, 52-second remaining in the contest Hitt began an 11-play drive that covered the final 82 yards.

The Pirates grabbed their final lead with no-time on the clock as the third period ended after Mike Yearbrough recovered a Raft River fumble at the Trojan 21 yardline eight seconds before the gun.
 Actually, it took the hometowners two trips into the end zone as Brody Engles' 21-yard gallop was called back on a motion penalty.

But on the ensuing play Chris Waitley connected with Kirk Lindsey for 26 yards and the TD.
 Torrey Anderson rambled 56 yards around right end on the Trojans' third play from scrimmage in the second quarter to record the first six points scored against the Pirate defense this season and it was 6-0 Raft River when Hagerman stopped the conversion.

Three running plays after the kickoff Waitley misfired on a pass, but found his favorite target, Lindsey for 37 yards and the go-ahead score at 7-0.

Not to be outdone by Anderson, senior running back Eric Boden broke away from an apparent tackle in the backfield and rambled 66 yards to put Raft River back on top. Again the two-point conversion failed and it was 12-8 Trojans at the break.
 "It's one we shouldn't have let get away," Clark added. "But I'll tell you Raft River, while not big, just keeps coming at you. If we could have stopped either one of us..."

Torrey (Anderson) and Eric (Boden) gave us two great runs in the first half," Richins agreed. "But Myron Durfee is the MVP in my opinion.
 "Well, I couldn't call him an MVP," he continued. "But he made some pretty guisy catches for us at the Raft River's Scott Hitt puts a mean hit on running back Brody Engles of Hagerman on Friday night.

Raft River upset the Hagerman squad in tough turf action, 18-14, playing at Hagerman. Hagerman cracked the fifth-ranked Trojans, now non-league opponents, but allowed Hitt completions on six of 11 attempts for 107 yards and gave away 217 more on the ground.

Idaho, Idaho State trying to rebound from losses

By STEVE CRUMP
 Times-News sports editor

Idaho and Idaho State will open their 1989 home football seasons tonight against NCAA Division II opponents, trying to rebound from embarrassing losses to Division III schools on the road last week.

Boise State, coming off a 23-12 season-opening victory over Stephen F. Austin, will step up to Division I-A Long Beach State, 1-1, tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Boise's Bronco Stadium.

The 0-2 Vandals host 2-0 Sacramento State at 8 p.m. MDT in the Kibbie Dome, while the 0-1

Bengals will entertain 1-1 Southern Utah State at 7:30 p.m. Both are tuneups for the teams' Big Sky Conference opponents, Idaho against Weber State a week from today and Idaho State against Nevada-Reno.

"We have to forget about last week and I think we will," said first-year Idaho coach John L. Smith. "The biggest thing we have to keep in mind is that Sacramento State is a very fine football team that does a lot of things very well. I really think they could play in our league."
 Making it difficult for the Vandals' to forget about successive losses to Washington State and Portland

State is the absence of defensive end Brian Cockrell, defensive tackle Vince Mann, linebacker Gerry Keating and all-Big Sky strong safety Brian Smith, sidelined with injuries they suffered against the Vikings. Cockrell will be replaced by redshirt freshman Billy Sims, while freshman John Adams will replace Mann at tackle. Freshman Will Saffo, another freshman, will start in place of Smith.

That's five freshmen starting on a defensive unit that ranks dead last in the Big Sky in total defense, pass defense and scoring defense.

Things look a little brighter for the Vandals offense, which will have the services of all-league guard Todd Neu for the first time this year. Neu hurt his knee in preseason and underwent arthroscopic surgery.

ISU is out to break a 13-game losing streak against a Southern Utah State team coach Garth Hall says is better than the Northern Colorado team that beat ISU 19-17 last week.
 "I'm pleased with our effort and attitude," said Hall. "We did a lot of good things in Colorado, but we made too many mistakes even for a first game and that was the difference. The defense started out shaky, but strengthened and played a great second half. We're not a good enough team to make mistakes — dumb mistakes kill you."

Michigan worried about Tony Rice

By HARRY ATKINS
 The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — There appears to be some confusion about who will play whom in college football's early-season game of the year Saturday.
 The schedule says second-ranked Michigan will entertain No. 1 Notre Dame.

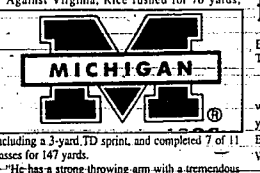

But, to hear the Wolverines' coaches and players talk, it sounds more like it will be Michigan against Tony Rice.

Here is a sample of what they're saying about the Notre Dame quarterback:
 "He's the most dangerous quarterback in the country," — Michigan coach Bo Schembechler.
 "He's the threat offensive," — Michigan assistant coach Gary Moeller.
 "Tony Rice is the man who makes them click. If Tony Rice does not have a good day, that takes a lot of my offense away," — Michigan free safety, Vada Murray.

Rice took over the Fighting Irish quarterback job four games into the 1987 season when Terry Andruskiak broke a collarbone. He has been there ever since.

Last season he rushed for 700 yards, the most ever for a Notre Dame quarterback, and passed for 1,176 yards and eight touchdowns.

Rice started the 1989 season by leading Notre Dame to a 36-13 victory over Virginia in the Kickoff Classic. The triumph was so impressive it helped the Irish climb over Michigan in The Associated Press poll.

Against Virginia, Rice rushed for 70 yards, including a 3-yard TD sprint, and completed 7 of 11 passes for 147 yards.

"He has a strong throwing arm with a tremendous deep threat," Schembechler said. "He's a big kid with experience. He runs the option extremely well. He's as dangerous a runner as we'll probably play all year or that Notre Dame has."

"The thing that makes it difficult now is that not many teams run option football anymore, so we don't get much chance to practice against it. Of all the guys we play this year, this will be the most difficult to handle."

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz helped Rice improve his passing skills by talking him into throwing darts.

"It may have helped my passing a little, even if it was only psychological," Rice said.
 Holtz is a master of football's mind games and he knows it's important for Rice to be mentally tough.
 "I hear people say he can't throw well enough to be a great quarterback, but I'm more interested in his 16-2 record as a starter," Holtz said. "That's what counts."

The Wolverines — smirging over two consecutive losses to the Irish, including a 19-17 defeat at South Bend last year — have built their game plan around trying to stop Rice.

For example, when Moeller was asked what he considered the key to Michigan's chances, he replied: "Containing Tony Rice." When asked what he considered the key to Notre Dame's chances, Moeller said: "Preventing us from containing Rice."
 Michigan quarterback Michael Taylor also is versatile, but he is neither as big, fast, nor as strong as

Twin Bruins take 49-19 victory from Weiser Wolverine squad

By LARRY HOVEY
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The running of Alan Heck — worth 166 yards in three quarters — and the 200-plus-yard passing of John Homer carried the Twin Falls Bruins to a 49-19 non-conference victory over the Weiser Wolverines Friday night.

"The Wolverines' navy 2-1 and ranked second among the state's A-2 teams by The Association Press, found out early that mistakes hurt. They turned the ball over twice in the first quarter and paid a touchdown each time. They staved against the Twin Falls defense in the second quarter for 13 points but then Twin Falls totally dominated the third quarter for 21 points and coasted in."

"Actually, it went about the way I felt it would if our players did their job," said Coach Jon Lund, whose Bruins are now 2-1. "We knew that Weiser had some talented people at some skill positions but we felt that our overall size and quickness should win this one."

Jund said he'd be offensive line showed better this time around. "We were coming off the ball and maintaining our blocks better," he said. "But we're still looking at some possible changes to shore the offensive line up."

Heck didn't take long to get his big night going. He carried the first four times after Twin Falls took the opening kickoff and covered 66 yards. The big one was a 54-yarder on the fourth play. Dave McClusky hit the first of seven punts Friday night.

Just three plays later Casey Teske had the Bruin offense back in business with an interception at the Weiser 27. Lyle Hudsonson scored the touchdown on an 18-yard romp. On its next possession, Twin Falls went 66 yards in 15 plays, having one touchdown killed by a penalty and then saw McClusky miss the first of three field goal tries.

But after a Teske fumble recovery, the Bruins moved ahead 21-0 when Homer rolled out and in from the seven.

The teams then traded touchdowns, Weiser replying on a 15-yard scoring strike from Andy Binghamer to Morgan Skow. Twin Falls rebounded on a 9-yard strike to Chad Heider and then with 35 seconds left in the half, Weiser played a 66-yard bomb in Twin Falls' face, the play going from Binghamer to Chad Carpenter.

Twin Falls quickly snuffed Weiser's comeback hopes in the third quarter, hurting the Wolverines for eight yards in losses on the first three plays and then taking the punt. On three straight possessions the Bruins padded their margin. The first was a completion of a deflected pass from Homer to Bob Jenco that covered 26 yards and then, after Weiser was strapped at its own 20 on a fake punt, an 18-yard deflection from Homer to Matt Rasmussen.

The last Bruin score came on a 60-yard bomb from Homer to Heider although Weiser had the last say on a 36-yard strike to Rick Larson just 18 seconds into the last quarter.

Heck didn't take long to get his big night going. He carried the first four times after Twin Falls took the opening kickoff and covered 66 yards. The big one was a 54-yarder on the fourth play. Dave McClusky hit the first of seven punts Friday night.
