Escorted by Sheriff's Deputy Wayne Tousley, James Solomon leaves court after his appearance Tuesday

Friends, kin support naturopath Solomon at court appearance

TWIN FALLS — About a dozen friends, family members and patients of James Solomon, the local naturopath physician charged with practicing medicine illegally, attended court in his support Tuesday. "I think it's terrible. It's disgusting because you finally find a doctor you can trust and they take him away," said Nancy Harms, who attended the hearing with her husband, Larry.

According to the criminal complaint, Solomon illegally treated two patients for cancer and said he would cure them "when he had no such intention or ability." He is charged with accepting $10,000 in payment from one patient and $6,000 from the other. At the hearing, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Ken Allen-Baxter turned the case over to Lynn Thomas, solicitor general from the state attorney general's office, who will act as special prosecutor. The attorney general's office headed up the task force investigation that preceded Solomon's arrest.

practiced in the state of Idaho. But naturopath physicians practice under a state Supreme Court ruling that they cannot hide their work legal. After the hearing, Nancy Harms said that Solomon treated her husband without the use of drugs. She said at first she didn't trust him, but she does since seeing that his techniques helped her husband. Another former patient, Donna Gines, said she went to Solomon after medical doctors, physical therapy and chiropractic failed to heal a case of sciatica she received in a car accident. Gines said she still has some pain, but for a time "he helped it, it was better for a time."

Wave sweeps 3 men, 38 missiles off carrier

NORFOLK, Va. — A wave struck a freight elevator on an aircraft carrier as sailors moved from one deck to another early Tuesday, sweeping three men and 38 missiles into the Atlantic Ocean, the Navy said. Two sailors were rescued. In the Pacific Ocean, another sailor was missing after being swept off another carrier into rough seas Monday night, a Navy spokesman said Tuesday.

Navy planes and ships searched through the day for the two sailors from the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower in the Atlantic and the USS Carl Vinson in the Pacific. The accidents aboard the Vinson 620 miles north of Wake Island and on the Eisenhower 90 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., were the third and fourth accidents on Navy ships in three days. The accident aboard the Eisenhower occurred at 1:15 a.m. during routine operations, the Navy said in a news release. The two sailors were rescued about an hour later. One was in serious condition and the other was in good condition, said Lt. Jg. Karl Johnson, an Atlantic Fleet spokesman. They were being treated aboard ship, he said. "One was pulled from the ocean by helicopter and the other by boat, Johnson said. Their names were withheld pending notification of relatives. The search for the missing man, identified as Airman Craig A. Harris, 22, of Uniontown, Pa., was called off late in the

Hogs, milk, vegetables lead rise in farm prices during October

WASHINGTON — Prices farmers got for many products rose 0.7 percent from September to October, leaving the monthly average also 0.7 percent above the year-ago level, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. Higher prices for hogs, milk, lettuce and tomatoes were mostly responsible for the increase from the September average, the department's preliminary report said. Lower prices were reported for broilers, soybeans, cattle and corn.

Slow growth signs - A5 Prices for hogs, milk and oranges were major contributors to the increase over a year ago, but lower prices for soybeans, corn and tomatoes were partly offsetting, the report said. Meanwhile, prices paid by farmers to meet expenses — a figure computed only every three months — were unchanged from July to September, but more than 1 percent lower in October, 1988. "Compared to July, prices were up for gasoline," the report said. Department economists say net cash income of farmers — gross cash income minus cash expenses — is expected to decline from last year's record of $59.9 billion to a range of $52.2 billion to $52.8 billion. "Consumer food prices are expected by department economists to rise about 4 percent this year, following a 4.1 percent increase in 1988. No forecast has yet been issued by the department for 1990. Economists in the agency believe next year's increase will be less than 6 percent. Based on the preliminary figures, the

Shipboard summit set for Dec. 2-3

WASHINGTON — President Bush announced Tuesday he will hold a shipboard summit in the Mediterranean with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev Dec. 2 and 3. "To put up our feet and talk" informally will be the theme of the summit, Bush said in a news conference Tuesday. Bush described the weekend meeting as an open-ended discussion with no fixed agenda. He said neither he nor Gorbachev anticipate that "substantial decisions or agreements will emerge" on arms control or other matters. The talks will take place on U.S. and Soviet naval ships on alternate days. The precise location was not announced, but a site off Italy appeared likely since Gorbachev is to visit there from Nov. 29 to Dec. 1. Bush acknowledged he originally had opposed the concept of a get-acquainted session, favoring instead a well-planned meeting with assurances of concrete results.

However, he decided that with dramatic democratic changes sweeping across Eastern Europe, the leaders of the two superpowers "should deepen our understanding" of each other. "I don't want to have two gigantic ships pass in the night, because of a failed summit," Bush said. "I want to have a summit, in this time of dynamic change — miss something, something that I might get better firsthand from Mr. Gorbachev." The president said he expected "a lot of discussion" about Eastern Europe. Bush's announcement drew bipartisan applause on Capitol Hill, although Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell said he was not at all sure that the president's policies toward the blossoming of democracy in Eastern Europe have been too "cautious and timid." Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ky., the GOP's deputy leader, said, "That kind of stuff about being too timid or too cautious bores off George Bush. It's a 22-right buffet off a tank."

Bush seizes opportunity to help perestroika, self

WASHINGTON — President Bush's shipboard summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev responds to pressure to deal more forcefully with upheaval in the communist world. It also provides an opportunity to support Perestroika with more kind words. Gorbachev reacted positively and no wonder. The Soviet leader also faces political and economic pressures a summit could ease. "There are risks in the structure of a daily session in the Mediterranean next month with the disarming and invisible Kremlin chief. But the president insisted Tuesday that the agenda was needed. "It's a chance to put our feet up and talk. Bush said of the plans for the unexpected meeting with Gorbachev Dec. 2 and 3 aboard U.S. and Soviet naval vessels. That free-form approach was reminiscent of the meeting three years ago in Helsinki between Ronald Reagan and Gorbachev. The two leaders wound up in a backslapping joust over who would be leaving to go further toward dismantling nuclear weapons — all of them — and the summit collapsed in Moscow. Even so, Bush is willing to gamble. And there are potential political and economic benefits for both leaders. Bush's move would like to see trade credits, membership in world lending institutions and a loosening of security restrictions on Western technology. Bush, who so far has offered only vague hints of his plans for Gorbachev, has a success could result in a lowering of trade barriers that he has made conditional on new emigration legislation and further easing of limits on sales of some types of computers. While risky, this summit born in secrecy is an opportunity for Bush to cope with an image that has dogged him over more than a quarter-century in politics, that he is reluctant to assume command. "I'm glad to use the word he criticizes," "Wimp" was the crueler term that surfaced in the presidential campaign. See SUMMIT on Page A2.

President, Congress cut minimum wage deal

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration reached agreement with Democratic congressional leaders Tuesday on a plan to raise the minimum wage to $4.25 an hour by April 1991, the first increase since 1981. The agreement for a 90-cent-an-hour increase over the next 17 months also provides for an unprecedented subminimum "training wage" that could be paid to teen-agers with little work experience. It would be pegged at 85 percent of the prevailing minimum wage. The training wage is expected to ease the company's financial burden on the lengthy and often bitter partisan battle that pitted Democratic congressional leaders and organized labor against two successive Republican administrations as well as business interests. President Bush vetoed an earlier bill and was sustained in the House. "No side will get a victory for this," said Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee. "We didn't want the training wage to begin with, but we wanted to denigrate the thing." In a written statement, Bush said he was pleased by the compromise, saying it met the criteria he set earlier in the year, including the lower training wage. "This package offers the promise of better wages for the working man and woman of this country and gives incentives to create new jobs for our young people," he said. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Labor

October price index for livestock and livestock products as a group was unchanged from September but averaged 5.3 percent above the year-earlier level. The overall index of prices paid to farmers in October averaged 1.4 percent of a 1987 base used for comparison, up from 1.43 percent in September. The report said: • Cattle averaged $67.10 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, down from $68.20 in September but above the $65.00 of October 1988. These are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef. • Hogs averaged $46.80 per 100 pounds,

Dozens of quake victims remain in hospitals, face years of pain

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — While residents of quake-stricken Northern California slowly turn their thoughts to football and Thanksgiving dinner, time has stood still for Cathy Scarpa and dozens of others who were injured.

Scarpa, 37, remained hospitalized on Tuesday with multiple fractures in both legs and a crushed hand suffered when her carpool van was smashed in the collapse of Interstate 880 in Oakland.

There were some services for the people who died, and it was hard not to be a part of that. It's hard to be here dealing with all this and not being a part of normal life.

Scarpa is one of dozens still hospitalized with broken limbs and other injuries suffered in the devastating earthquake Oct. 17 that killed 64 and crippled the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and buckled a 1 1/2-mile section of the I-880 freeway in Oakland.

In all, 2,874 people were treated and released and 439 were hospitalized, enough to fill a large hospital, according to a survey conducted last week by the California Association of Hospitals and Health Systems. Perhaps the most famous patient is Buck Helm, the feisty longshoreman trapped for four days in the squashed wreckage of his car on I-880. He was listed on Tuesday in serious condition at Highland Hospital in Oakland.

Julio BeGonia, 66, whose leg was amputated during his rescue at I-880, and his 8-year-old sister, Cathy, both were listed in good condition on Tuesday at Children's Hospital in Oakland, and the hospital said they were improving daily.

Among those still clinging to life Tuesday was Margaret Fitzpatrick, a UCSF employee who was crushed with Scarpa. She remained in critical condition at Eden Hospital in a near coma with multiple internal injuries, said hospital spokesman Thomas McGarry.

Scarpa remembers the upper level of the freeway dropping 20 feet and concrete raining down on the van, crushing it like a fat smashing an aluminum can. She remembers a worker in the smoky darkness crying, "Oh, my God."

Her legs, trapped under the dash, are fitted with pins and she is awaiting a bone graft. It will be six months before she can stand and only then will therapists begin teaching her to walk again.

For now, she looks forward to a visit from her dogs and is comforted by mail from well-wishers, including a friend she hadn't seen in 12 years.

"It's tremendous. I can't believe the calls and mail and balloons from friends and people I've worked with on projects," said Scarpa.

Until Sunday, Carmen Smith, 64, was unable to discuss his 20-foot fall off the I-880 structure that left parts of his spine crushed.

"He said it was like being in a washing machine while it was going," said Christi Welter, spokeswoman for San Jose Medical Center, where Smith underwent a second operation on Friday.

Smith, who is in stable condition, was driving the truck when the elevated freeway collapsed.

Neither the state hospital association nor its Northern California counterpart has determined how many victims remain hospitalized, but they estimate the number at dozens.

Bush, Quayle blame unattended proposals, budget on Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Tuesday blamed Congress for failure to act on his legislative proposals and Vice President Dan Quayle joined the attack, saying it is time to pass stalled budget legislation and "get on with it."

And I wish they'd get some action going on the proposals that I have put forward. I think the American people are entitled to that," Bush said at a news conference.

While the president and vice president dined, the president's wrangling between the White House and Capitol Hill, the administration also reached a compromise to end a lengthy battle with Democrats over raising the minimum wage.

The agreement, involving concessions on the part of both the White House and the Democrats, would take the minimum wage to $4.25 by 1994 and couple it with a subminimum "training wage" for teenagers with little work experience.

But hitting continued on other issues, as Republicans dismissed a Democratic offer to resolve differences over passage of a federal debt ceiling needed to avoid government default by next week.

Bush's proposal to cut the capital gains tax, which Bush blasted Congress when asked about capital gains. "We've not in the posture of trying to tell the Congress how they ought to resolve these difficulties. We've not clear proposals on the interim package, on the minimum wage, on the capital gains. And it has gotten so confusing up there that they ought to move more," he told reporters.

"I think the American people see that it is this Congress that is frustrating setting the debt down. And so they ought to move and move promptly."

But Bush said he would not specify how Congress should resolve the matter. "I can't sit there and lecture for them. Well, if you'll only throw this one issue in with that one, why your can do your business," he said.

Protest sparks first test of flag burning law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first test of the anti-flag-burning law began Tuesday, with charges filed against three demonstrators arrested in a flag-burning protest on the steps of the U.S. Capitol.

No charges were brought against the demonstrators, Gregory Johnson.

It was the case involving Johnson, who burned a flag at the 1984 Republican National Convention, that led to a Supreme Court ruling in June that such activity is protected under the First Amendment.

Johnson, who spent the night in jail with the three co-defendants, called the government's decision not to file charges against him "an act of cowardice on the part of Bush and the administration."

"This is a case of selective non-prosecution," said defense lawyer William Kunstler, alleging that charging Johnson would have been "a major law-enforcement tool for opponents of the new law."

However, U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens said there was insufficient evidence that Johnson participated in Monday's flag-burning.

"I was there," Johnson told reporters.

Letters/ Pro-choice advocate says choice, not abortion, is the real issue

She wouldn't want abortion

I am a pro-choice advocate! I wouldn't want to have an abortion myself. It was my decision to have all of my six children. But I don't think you or I, or the government or anyone else has the right to make that decision for me.

The term pro-abortion has turned many people away from contesting the issue. It is not a matter of abortion, it is a matter of choice! Start saying pro-choice and thousands of men and women will show up to support the democratic process of determining our right to make our own personal decisions.

Is insurance reform the best?

Donald McMurrain's insurance reform proposal may be good politics, but is it good law or really good for the consumers of Idaho?

It is very easy to question Mr. McMurrain's proposal and the amount, if any, of quality investigation time he has spent on this problem.

The citizens in the state of Idaho are some of the most fortunate in regards to the prices they pay for automobile insurance. Idaho motorists pay less for vehicle insurance than drivers in 44 other states according to the latest report published by the Insurance Institute of Information.

Massachusetts has the most expensive rates in the nation with an average premium of $655.72. California is ranked third with the average premium being $623.44. Utah is ranked 30th at $431.01 with the national average being $486.50. Idaho, which you state has serious problems, ranks 44th in the nation with an average premium of $345.66, well below the national average and more than $100 below the Massachusetts average.

The real mystery is why anyone would believe that an industry with hundreds of firms and thousands of additional potential competitors could consistently earn "obscene" profits or display "gross" inefficiency.

It is not surprising, Mr. McMurrain's proposal argues that the industry is both highly profitable and unfair. It is easy to doubt that he actually believes such silliness; his real goal is political attention and what better way to attempt to draw attention than to attack the insurance industry?

Skepticism is wholly appropriate if you are a proponent of the free enterprise system, but Mr. McMurrain, the people of Idaho are smarter than to be used to further neo-political aspirations. They are able to look at the facts and see that even though the industry is not perfect, Idaho consumers will not be served by your proposal.

We would all like to have more disposable income, but ratcheting back prices or even freezing prices will only eliminate future competition and reduce the number of insurance suppliers in the state of Idaho, thereby hurting, not helping the people of Idaho.

Fuel rod shipment was normal

Your recent article, "Reactor Fuel Rods Quietly Shipped to Idaho in mid-80's," implies something sinister about a fuel-rod shipment to the INEL. This routine shipment was similar to many other transfers of radioactive material in and from the INEL which are all carefully monitored and expertly handled. Many of the 10,000-plus employees at the INEL are involved in these shipments; the shipments are not, as your article states, "unknown to Idahoans." But are they newsworthy? Rarely.

For most people, these shipments are about as interesting and noteworthy as the trucking of chemicals and pesticides from Salt Lake City to Twin Falls, but decidedly less hazardous than the latter.

How many times did the industry enter the marketplace, let alone write in the state of Idaho? If the insurance industry is making such obscene profits, why is takeover activity not rampant?

Unfortunately this slanted reporting tends to heighten people's fears about technology in general and nuclear technology in particular. I would like to suggest a more responsible approach for the news media.

Nearly everyone will agree that our world needs tremendous amounts of electric power, and will continue to need more and more. Less evident is the immutable fact that every method of electric power generation causes insult to our environment.

There is plenty of coal available; but burning it to generate electric power causes major pollution.

Burning oil and natural gas is somewhat less polluting; but at the present rate of consumption, oil and gas will be gone before the middle of the next century.

Hydropower is clean; but the few remaining sites, if ever developed, would add little to our present power-generating capacity.

Tidal power, wind power and solar power are so inefficient that they are little more than engineering diversions. The area footprint of even a modest-sized power system would be essentially limitless; but using it in nuclear reactors requires expensive and well-engineered facilities.

None of these power-generating methods is risk-free or pollution-free. But future power needs will require that all of these power sources be developed. Therefore, a responsible approach to our power needs is to urge and support rational discussion and extensive research into all methods.

Emotional and ungrounded criticism does a disservice to all of us.

I firmly believe that the United States, the richest and most technically advanced nation in the world, has a responsibility to continue to develop these power sources for the benefit of everyone, especially the poor third-world countries, who cannot do it for themselves.

Pheasant lovers take notice

Pheasant lovers: Let's get our heads out of the sand and quit pointing our finger and passing the buck. Let's see a little common sense. The pheasant population peaked in the Magic Valley area the summer of 1954 and has steadily declined since then.

As I remember, the farmer was cutting hay and spraying weeds then, too. He was burning stubble and ditch banks more so than today. There were hawks, owls, eagles, coyotes and other predators. Bad winters? I've yet to see a single that compared with 1948-49 and the pheasants survives.

As a boy I killed my share. I would walk the canal and shoot ducks and pheasants. I knew of several stock ponds that would yield a bird or two. If you got tired of hunting ducks and pheasants, you could always head for the brush and pink a few rabbits.

What happened in 1954 to cause the pheasant population to start on a downward trend? Oh, I know, many of you weren't around then—Well, that was the last year the water in the Twin Falls canal system year around. With the canals dry four or five months a year the ducks quit coming, the pheasants became more concentrated to areas where there was water. The stock water ponds disappeared, the rabbits died off and the human population grew producing more hunters. Other than an occasional mouse or cottontail, the pheasant and partridge became the predators only food source.

I have now been 35 years later, all excited about shutting the barn door after the horse is out. We talk about habitat. It is said that man shall not live by bread and alone.

CSJ actions raise questions

The recent disciplining of three CSI athletes raises a question: I these three individuals were recruited from Missouri, Washington and New Mexico, but CSI is a two-year community college, a local institution, supported primarily by local funds. Why should CSI recruit athletes from outside the local area? Are some of the athletic programs more important to CSI and the community than the academic and vocational programs?

News coverage would indicate that this is so. The absurdity of this point of view was impressed on me several years ago at the time a sportswriter interviewed the incoming of a tall basketball player by a host with a chauffeur limousine. I seriously doubt that any aspiring academic student has ever been accorded that sort of welcoming to CSI.

I have been active in physical fitness programs for approximately 50 years, so I applaud those physical fitness programs that CSI offers or sponsors. But I submit that the organized sports programs that recruit athletes from outside our local area are unrealistic and unnecessary.

I would support local athletic teams no matter what their standing; but I refuse to pay any attention to CSI team standings so long as those teams are composed largely of athletes from outside the local area.

CSI is an intermediate institution of higher learning that we can be proud of. It provides academic and vocational training conveniently for residents of the area. But it is a LOCAL institution. Let us keep it that way.

Volunteering is one such way

How many times have you thought about how our country seems to be in a tailspin heading for self-destruction?

Well, I have some good news for you. You no longer have to feel hopeless about the condition our country is in because you are the one who can make a change! There really isn't a huge mass or power that says things have to be the way they are. Each of us has the power and ability to do all we can to help the needy or to become involved in organizations in our community that work at making things better.

Volunteering is one way to truly contribute. Don't think it means giving up a big chunk of your life, either. Even a few hours on a day now and then is really needed and appreciated. It can really be fun, too.

Lavonne Jones, activities director at West Magic Care Center, tells me she has many ideas for projects for the seniors there, but she needs you to make them happen. Mostly, it's just being there for them to talk to and to let them know someone cares about them that means so much. There are also ways to help with young people, if that's more your area of interest. You can make a big difference by giving just a little time.

If politics and government corruption is your sore spot, don't just sit there and complain. Get involved in some local clubs or meetings and through them you'll find ways of getting involved in other areas. You'll begin to see that, yes, one person can have an influence. No, nothing is going to change overnight, but if you get involved now, you'll soon meet someone who feels as you do and then there'll be two. Soon two will be three and so on. Contact the Chamber of Commerce for a list of clubs and organizations in our community you may want to visit.

If it's going to be the "people" of this nation that determine our future, don't just sit back and let a few decide. Volunteerism and/or involvement does not mean a full-time commitment. All it takes is whenever you are willing to give. A little bit of time is better than none. I challenge you to become involved now!

How many times did the industry enter the marketplace, let alone write in the state of Idaho? If the insurance industry is making such obscene profits, why is takeover activity not rampant?

Unfortunately this slanted reporting tends to heighten people's fears about technology in general and nuclear technology in particular. I would like to suggest a more responsible approach for the news media.

Nearly everyone will agree that our world needs tremendous amounts of electric power, and will continue to need more and more. Less evident is the immutable fact that every method of electric power generation causes insult to our environment.

There is plenty of coal available; but burning it to generate electric power causes major pollution.

Burning oil and natural gas is somewhat less polluting; but at the present rate of consumption, oil and gas will be gone before the middle of the next century.

Hydropower is clean; but the few remaining sites, if ever developed, would add little to our present power-generating capacity.

Tidal power, wind power and solar power are so inefficient that they are little more than engineering diversions. The area footprint of even a modest-sized power system would be essentially limitless; but using it in nuclear reactors requires expensive and well-engineered facilities.

None of these power-generating methods is risk-free or pollution-free. But future power needs will require that all of these power sources be developed. Therefore, a responsible approach to our power needs is to urge and support rational discussion and extensive research into all methods.

Emotional and ungrounded criticism does a disservice to all of us.

Fuel rod shipment was normal

Your recent article, "Reactor Fuel Rods Quietly Shipped to Idaho in mid-80's," implies something sinister about a fuel-rod shipment to the INEL. This routine shipment was similar to many other transfers of radioactive material in and from the INEL which are all carefully monitored and expertly handled. Many of the 10,000-plus employees at the INEL are involved in these shipments; the shipments are not, as your article states, "unknown to Idahoans." But are they newsworthy? Rarely.

For most people, these shipments are about as interesting and noteworthy as the trucking of chemicals and pesticides from Salt Lake City to Twin Falls, but decidedly less hazardous than the latter.

Unfortunately this slanted reporting tends to heighten people's fears about technology in general and nuclear technology in particular. I would like to suggest a more responsible approach for the news media.

CSJ actions raise questions

The recent disciplining of three CSI athletes raises a question: I these three individuals were recruited from Missouri, Washington and New Mexico, but CSI is a two-year community college, a local institution, supported primarily by local funds. Why should CSI recruit athletes from outside the local area? Are some of the athletic programs more important to CSI and the community than the academic and vocational programs?

News coverage would indicate that this is so. The absurdity of this point of view was impressed on me several years ago at the time a sportswriter interviewed the incoming of a tall basketball player by a host with a chauffeur limousine. I seriously doubt that any aspiring academic student has ever been accorded that sort of welcoming to CSI.

I have been active in physical fitness programs for approximately 50 years, so I applaud those physical fitness programs that CSI offers or sponsors. But I submit that the organized sports programs that recruit athletes from outside our local area are unrealistic and unnecessary.

I would support local athletic teams no matter what their standing; but I refuse to pay any attention to CSI team standings so long as those teams are composed largely of athletes from outside the local area.

CSI is an intermediate institution of higher learning that we can be proud of. It provides academic and vocational training conveniently for residents of the area. But it is a LOCAL institution. Let us keep it that way.

Volunteering is one such way

How many times have you thought about how our country seems to be in a tailspin heading for self-destruction?

Well, I have some good news for you. You no longer have to feel hopeless about the condition our country is in because you are the one who can make a change! There really isn't a huge mass or power that says things have to be the way they are. Each of us has the power and ability to do all we can to help the needy or to become involved in organizations in our community that work at making things better.

Volunteering is one way to truly contribute. Don't think it means giving up a big chunk of your life, either. Even a few hours on a day now and then is really needed and appreciated. It can really be fun, too.

Lavonne Jones, activities director at West Magic Care Center, tells me she has many ideas for projects for the seniors there, but she needs you to make them happen. Mostly, it's just being there for them to talk to and to let them know someone cares about them that means so much. There are also ways to help with young people, if that's more your area of interest. You can make a big difference by giving just a little time.

If politics and government corruption is your sore spot, don't just sit there and complain. ### Pheasant lovers take notice

Pheasant lovers: Let's get our heads out of the sand and quit pointing our finger and passing the buck. Let's see a little common sense. The pheasant population peaked in the Magic Valley area the summer of 1954 and has steadily declined since then.

As I remember, the farmer was cutting hay and spraying weeds then, too. He was burning stubble and ditch banks more so than today. There were hawks, owls, eagles, coyotes and other predators. Bad winters? I've yet to see a single that compared with 1948-49 and the pheasants survives.

As a boy I killed my share. I would walk the canal and shoot ducks and pheasants. I knew of several stock ponds that would yield a bird or two. If you got tired of hunting ducks and pheasants, you could always head for the brush and pink a few rabbits.

What happened in 1954 to cause the pheasant population to start on a downward trend? Oh, I know, many of you weren't around then—Well, that was the last year the water in the Twin Falls canal system year around. With the canals dry four or five months a year the ducks quit coming, the pheasants became more concentrated to areas where there was water. The stock water ponds disappeared, the rabbits died off and the human population grew producing more hunters. Other than an occasional mouse or cottontail, the pheasant and partridge became the predators only food source.

I have now been 35 years later, all excited about shutting the barn door after the horse is out. We talk about habitat. It is said that man shall not live by bread and alone.

New home sales take steep plunge, analysts see slow growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — New home sales took their steepest dive in nearly eight years last month while the government's chief economic forecasting gauge registered only a small increase, the government reported Tuesday.

Analysts said they anticipate sluggish growth ahead, but few said they see danger signals of a recession in the near future. Despite the sharp decline in home sales, economists forecast improvement in that industry as mortgage rates decline.

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators, designed to foretell economic activity six- to nine months in advance, jumped up 0.2 percent in September.

At the same time, the department reported new home sales dropped 14 percent, the sharpest decrease since a 19 percent decline in January 1982 during the last recession.

Many housing economists questioned the September home sales report and suggested a more accurate reading of the industry would be obtained by averaging sales of both new and existing homes over the entire third quarter.

That shows overall strength in the housing market, said John A. Turello, chief economist for the National Association of Realtors.

Analysts see falling mortgage rates leading to continued but slow growth in the housing industry for the remainder of the year, similar to that projected by the leading indicators for the overall economy.

The economy has been slowing since the Federal Reserve applied the brakes last year to dampen inflation. But while inflation appears to be abating, some analysts are concerned the Fed's grip could thrust the economy into recession.

U.S. companies optimistic about 1990

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. manufacturing companies are generally optimistic about their prospects for the coming year, believing that the country will enjoy moderate growth and no recession, according to a survey released Tuesday by an industry trade group.

The National Association of Manufacturers said that a survey of 53 chief executives at U.S. companies found that 61 percent of them believe that the next recession will not start until 1991 or later.

While some economists are concerned about recent signs of weakness in the manufacturing sector, NAM President Jerry Jasinski said those fears were not evident in the association's latest survey of its board of directors.

"It is significant that manufacturers, who know first-hand the magnitude of the competitive challenges, are fundamentally optimistic about the future," Jasinski told reporters at a briefing.

Jasinski predicted that economic growth would be supported next year by increases of around 4 percent in business investment and a further modest improvement in the U.S. trade deficit of around $10 billion to $15 billion.

The merchandise trade deficit has been running at an annual rate of $10 billion so far this year, down from a $12.0 billion deficit in 1988.

Jasinski said the main fear among the executives about the future centered in the automotive sector, where sales have been lackluster so far in the year.

"A dramatic drop in sales of big-ticket products because the consumer balked out is about the only way we see a recession next year," he said.

Official: Drug cartel weapons bought singly or few at a time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Colombian drug traffickers have tried to buy large shipments of guns in the United States, but most U.S. agents winding up in their hands were delivered individually or in small batches, a federal firearms official says.

Federal agents working undercover as gun sellers have "been approached by people wanting to buy guns in the United States," said Jack Killorin, spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"The buyers occasionally have sought to purchase 100 to 200 guns for one of the other hand, for example, machine guns," he said.

But information derived from traces of guns seized in Colombia's crackdown on the drug trade that began in August reflects smaller gun deliveries, he said.

"There seems to be some perception that things are leaving the country by huge shipments of thousands of guns," Killorin said. "That's not true. What appears to be going on is very widespread small purchases, not in any particular organized fashion, more opportunistic.

For example, he said, cocaine traffickers in Florida awaiting a drug shipment might "wander into a gun store and buy a couple of guns" and hand them over to other cartel workers who deliver the cocaine.

In a third report, the Colombian Resident Virginia Barco and Justice Minister Monica de Greiff asked the United States to curb gun shipments to drug traffickers who declared "total war" on the government after the crackdown began Aug. 18.

In the past 18 weeks, drug traffickers have been blamed for many shootings as well as 237 bombings that killed 33 people and injured 222.

During the summer, Customs Service officials "grabbed 37 rifles on an airplane going down to Barranquilla, Colombia," Killorin said. "We were able to run down those guns, lock up some of the purchasers. We found they had bought an additional number of guns about 150 prior to the arrests."

he said. Those guns were not recovered.

The ATF has been helping to trace gun sales in Colombia and wants to send agents to that country permanently to enhance the effort.

In an interview Monday, ATF Director Stephen E. Higgins said, "My understanding is the Colombia officials think that is a good way to proceed." State Department spokeswoman Catherine Shaw said she expects the ATF proposal to be approved.

Two ATF agents traveled to Colombia during the summer to help trace the guns, being used, and thus for the bureau has traced 242 of the 700 weapons on which Colombia has sought information.

Of the weapons traced, the gun of choice among Colombia's drug traffickers appears to be the Colt AR-15 semiautomatic assault-style rifle, but many other weapons also have turned up, according to Killorin.

"They cover the gamut," Killorin said. "There are a lot of rifles; AR-15s, also some Colt .45 pistols and Smith and Wesson revolvers."

Water unit refunds due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some owners of popular water cleaning machines are entitled to refunds because the appliance actually added a harmful chemical to drinking water, the Federal Trade Commission said Tuesday.

The agency said consumers who bought the Norelco Clean Water Machine and replacement filters for them are eligible for a full refund under a recent settlement agreement reached with the manufacturer.

The commission last year charged Norelco with false advertising in its claim that the "Clean Water Machine" removed harmful chemicals from drinking water, but the unit actually added methylene chloride, a potentially hazardous chemical, into water passing through the machine.

The commission said methylene chloride, a volatile organic industrial solvent, was the largest pollutant in the water. The filters that were marketed from 1982 to 1989, as water passed through the machines the methylene chloride leached into the water, the agency said.

North American Philips Corp., Norelco's parent company, has agreed to provide $2.5 million to Machine-removal pay customer refunds.

Consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, has grown so far.

"As long as confidence holds up, we probably won't have a recession," Lawrence Chimerine, senior economic adviser for the WFFA Group in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., said. He and other economists believe consumer spending will be substantially weaker in the last quarter of the year, however.

Other positive contributors were growth in the money supply, due in part to lower inflation, a longer average work week, and higher stock prices.

But the other seven statistics, mainly in the manufacturing sector, pointed down a decrease in manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods, a decrease in manufacturers' unfilled orders, fewer orders for plant and equipment, faster vendor performance, meaning declining demand, higher initial unemployment claims, fewer building permits issued, lower prices for sensitive materials indicating weakening demand.

The strong service and consumption sectors and the weakness in manufacturing led chief economist David Peterson of the Federal National Mortgage Association to describe the economy as having a "split personality."

The various changes left the index at 145 percent of its 1982 base of 100. So far this year, the index has fallen at a rate of 0.1 percent.

Northwest Airlines settles crash suits

DETROIT (AP) — Northwest Airlines reached settlements Tuesday in all remaining lawsuits filed by victims' relatives over a 1987 crash that killed 156 people.

U.S. District Judge Julian A. Cook announced the settlements this morning before opening arguments were to have begun in a trial of the lawsuits.

Terms of the settlements were not disclosed.

Suits are still pending against McDonnell Douglas Corp., maker of the plane. Claims by McDonnell Douglas and Northwest against each other also are unresolved.

Assault charge dropped as Osbourne, wife seek to reconcile

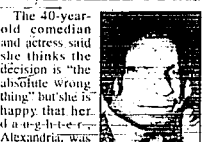

LONDON (AP) — A charge accusing rock star Ozzy Osbourne of assaulting his wife has been dropped because the couple want to reconcile, a prosecutor said Tuesday.

Osbourne, 44, was accused of closing his hands around the throat of his wife, Sharon, in September, and his case was scheduled to be heard by a court on Wednesday. He was originally charged with threatening to kill her at their home in Little Chalfont, northwest of London, but after she dropped her complaint, the Crown Prosecution Service reduced the charge to assault.

John Wilcock, acting chief crown prosecutor for the Thames Valley area, said all charges have been dropped against the former Black Sabbath singer because of a reconciliation with his wife.

East Germany's most noted West-basher loses job to reform

BERLIN (AP) — Karl Eduard von Schnitzler, who collaborated with imperialists, revisionists and assorted capitalist villains on East German television for nearly 30 years, has lost his job to creeping reform.

East Germany's most prominent TV commentator said Tuesday on the final edition of his 20-minute weekly show "The Black Channel" that he was unrepentant, as befits a man born into a titled Prussian family 71 years ago.

KARL EDUARD VON SCHNITZLER

After returning to East Berlin in 1945, Egon Kreier, became Communist Party chief two weeks ago, succeeding 77-year-old Erich Honecker, the state-controlled media have undergone a dramatic transition.

One-day newspapers are filled with debate and complaints about the nation's problems. The two TV channels have begun carrying everything from illegal street protests to investigative reports on government bungling and excess.

Strangulations puzzle police

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Five women have been found strangled within blocks of each other in the space of six weeks, but police say there is not enough evidence to label the deaths the work of a serial killer.

A dozen detectives have been assigned to the slaying, Mills said. "We need to track down their past activities and associates and see if the friends and habits of the women cross each other," he said.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Halloween tricksters keep police hopping

TWIN FALLS—The ghosts and goblins didn't make it into town until the Magic Valley this Halloween. By 7:30 p.m., police from Buhl to Burley were responding to calls from egg throwing to freerocket popping.

"It's just a typical Halloween night. Nothing destructive, just craziness," said a Twin Falls police dispatcher, who said the office had received calls about tomato tossing, candy stealing and freerockets going off.

While dispatchers in some areas reported a quiet evening, Buhl police had already chased egg throwers and caught one youth with freerockets, a dispatcher said. The incident occurred the night to get too out of control.

In Burley, the Cassia County Sheriff's Department was also contending with egg throwers and candy stealers, as well as some B1s gone berserk.

Two stores in Blue Lakes Mall announce closures

TWIN FALLS—Two stores that have been in the Blue Lakes Shopping Center since it opened 11 years ago, announced this week they would close.

The Mode Ltd. department store will liquidate its $1 million inventory within the next six to eight weeks, said Michael Lee, of Burbank, Ginsberg and Associates, a California firm contracted to assist in the store's closing.

The Mode's headquarters store in Boise will not close, Lee said.

The Mode employs approximately 15 people locally. Gary Smith, vice president of operations, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Ann's, a clothing store, will begin its liquidation sale today, Beverly Rhoades, store manager, said. The store, which employs 10 people, will probably close permanently by the end of the month, she said.

Former Gooding resident pleads innocent to rapes

GOODING—A former Gooding man charged with four counts of rape pleaded innocent in an arraignment in 5th District Court Tuesday, a deputy clerk said.

Henry William Smith Jr., who now lives in Leavenworth, Wash., appeared before Judge James May, of Blaine. A trial was set for Feb. 13, 1990, the clerk said.

The alleged rapes occurred on four consecutive days in February 1986 to one woman, who was under 18 at the time.

Smith was convicted in 1987 on a separate charge of lewd and lascivious conduct, for which he never served time.

Valley resident donates $40,000 to the Red Cross

TWIN FALLS—A $40,000 check from a Magic Valley individual will help pay the Sawtooth Red Cross Chapter back in the black.

"It definitely has made a difference and now we're in very good shape," said Mick Hodges, who was elected chapter chairman the same night the California earthquake hit. "It really blew our minds."

Judges did not wish to reveal the identity of the big donor until he has permission to do so.

In order to pay the huge emergency assistance bills in the United States and elsewhere, the American Red Cross assesses its local chapters. But in recent months a hurricane in South Carolina, a storm in Texas and then the earthquake in California overtaxed the Sawtooth chapter's budget.

Prior to the $40,000 check, the local chapter had received $23,000 in donations.

Hailey man stands trial on cocaine possession rap

SHOSHONE—The trial of a Hailey man charged with possessing cocaine without a license and possession of marijuana began Tuesday in 5th District Court.

Roger Kim Fitchell, 37, was arrested in June after a search of his residence turned up more than 3 pounds of cocaine, 3 pounds of marijuana, several guns and $2,500 in cash.

The Blaine County chief deputy prosecutor called it the largest cocaine seizure in the area.

The trial will last through Tuesday of Friday, said Nathan Gardner, 5th District Judge J. William Hart's law clerk.

Because of publicity in Hailey, the trial was moved to Shoshone at Fairchild's request, Hart said.

Farmers' proposal for Hawkins gains ground

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

FILER—About 33 percent of the farmers have signed their support on a simple proposal to divide up their money from the Hawkins Co. Ltd. warehouse bankruptcy.

"It's simple, but it's fair," said Bob Cornic. "There's no such thing as 100 percent fairness in something like this."

Cornic was one of four members of an informal growers committee that drafted the two-page proposal presented at a formal Monday night meeting among growers.

"It came nearly one year and a bean happiest after the Filer bean warehouse closed its doors. Cornic and other growers' committee members urged farmers to continue forcing solutions on the 9-month-old bankruptcy case.

"We'd like to think that we as a group... have been able to get the attorneys off our backs," farmer and committee member John Draney said.

The alternative, said farmer and lead lawyer-basher Roger Vincent, is for farmer to start fighting Filer.

"Once we draw the battle lines, there's no turning back—the war is started," Vincent said. "And I already see signs of it."

Some farmers criticized the sign, which among other things gives depositors of 1988 beans in the warehouse $1.30 more than depositors of pre-1988 beans.

But near-universal applause greeted those farmers who spoke in favor of the plan even if that all farmers would come out as well as they wanted.

About 250 people attended the meeting. The committee that drafted the proposal asked their fellow growers to sign sheets after if they supported it, and 148 did so.

The proposal will now be mailed to other growers. About 250 people, growers to landlords in buyers of beans, have filed claims against the beans that remained in the warehouse last November when it suspended trading because of a shortage of inventory.

Attorneys have already submitted two proposals to Bankruptcy Court Judge Alfred Hagan, and a hearing has been scheduled for Nov. 9. Eventually, the claimants of the beans will formally vote on a proposal.

Three plans have been submitted, one from Hawkins, one from Richard Greenwood, an attorney representing several farmers, and the proposal from the bean buyers.

Growers propose paying 9150 more per hundredweight to claims for 1988 beans than growers with claims to beans suspended trading because of a shortage of inventory. Attorneys have already submitted two proposals to Bankruptcy Court Judge Alfred Hagan, and a hearing has been scheduled for Nov. 9. Eventually, the claimants of the beans will formally vote on a proposal.

Lafferty step nearer execution

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY—A federal magistrate has recommended denial of a writ of habeas corpus, moving him a step closer to execution for the slaying deaths of his sister-in-law and her infant daughter.

The 125-page decision issued late Monday by Magistrate Ronald Boyce next goes to federal Judge J. Thomas Greene, who has told attorneys they have until Nov. 9 to respond to Boyce's recommendation.

Lafferty, 47, a self-proclaimed prophet and polygamist who claimed to have been ordered by God in a revelation to commit the killings, was sentenced to death in 1988.

Trick or treat
Oakley kindergartner Jason during the city's costume parade goes inside their Russmussen, as a snowman, parade Tuesday. Jason's vehicles, Oakley joined cities escort a younger brother costume sured the winter-like around the Magic Valley in Camerton through Main Street temperatures, which kept many celebrating Halloween.

In separate trials, Lafferty and his brother, Dan, both were convicted in the throat-slashing deaths of Kimberly native Brenda Wright Lafferty and her 15-month-old baby daughter, Erica, at their American Fork home on July 24, 1984.

Don Lafferty was sentenced to life in prison.

The appeal for Ronald Lafferty, who recently said that he would rather face firing squad than play "mind games" in prison, focused on 12 separate issues, including a claim that he was denied due process and his 6th Amendment rights were violated.

Defense attorneys claimed that his attorneys were excluded from the panel because they were opposed to the death

Burley mayoral candidates stress experience

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY—Mayoral candidate Frank Bauman said he has no major problems with the city administration but does think the relationship between the public and the city officials could be improved.

"I want to improve the communication lines between the citizens and the employees, the mayor's office and the council so everyone is working on the same track a little more," Bauman said.

Some local residents have told him of problems with the city. "I'm on the guy who's running against the mayor, so the people that don't like me are of specific problems," Bauman said. "How valid that is, I'm not sure at this point, but I do hear that type of problem."

The outgoing incumbent Ken Franks, the mayor for four years, The Burley mayor job pays $27,500.

"The city has no real campaign issues this year, Franks said, but added he'd like to be around the other four years to follow several projects he helped start.

Franks said his four years' experience will help him. "I know how to make some calls to get things done," he said.

The goal reached was to improve the rapport between department heads and the city office.

"I don't see any reason why that wouldn't change only for the better in the next four years," he said. "The department heads, council and I can work things that together."

He would also like to continue the work on economic development, he said, saying vacant downtown stores are now nearly all filled.

He is optimistic about the prospect for The Overland Shopping Center, after South's Food King moves out next spring.

"We may have the opportunity to put somebody else in there and to do some good."

Franks said he will push for a truck route in northwest Burley. "Then we will be in a position to get some industrial businesses established," he said. "That is a prime industrial area but it's hard to get someone interested in a piece of ground that has no access."

He said the area also is an ideal location for long-range plans for recreational developments since it is along the river.

Both of his major tasks are pledged on good days, Franks said. "There's been some concern that one day we're going to have an accident."

Franks said that area may be a good location for a jogging path.

"One thing we don't have is a greenbelt or jogging path," Franks said. "We could look at that."

Bauman, in the tire business for many years, has no experience in city government, but he believes his business background would be helpful in running the city. "I have been reasonably successful in that area and I would like to carry that type of attitude to the city.

"My biggest reason for running is that I am retired now, but I feel a deep sense of wanting to contribute something to the area that has been paid to me and is my home," Bauman said.

He said he has been encouraged to run by friends and former city council members.

He also said it's difficult for him to make promises of what he will do until he knows more about the job. "I don't know what stage of planning things are in," he said.

Bauman owned and operated the Big O tire store in Burley for many years. After he sold that business, he started The West newspaper, ran that business until he retired in 1987.

Since his retirement he has worked as a volunteer for SCORE, an organization that businesses would be businessmen and businesswomen free counseling.

Castleford voters see 4 run for 2 available council seats

By DIANE SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD—For the first time in 10 years, voters have a choice of candidates in the upcoming city election.

Four candidates are running for the two council terms that expire at the end of this year.

Although Castleford isn't sectioned according to precinct, city officials, for purposes of election, have divided the city into the north and south side, so the race this year pits Orvel Brown against incumbent Ray Balcia and incumbent Linda Callihan against Felicia Hudson.

Brown, a retired custom farmer who has lived in Castleford for 45 years, was elected to the council in 1979, the last contested election in the town. He didn't seek re-election after one four-year term.

He is running again, he says, "just to get things straightened out a little bit again." He declined to file.

Balcia was appointed by the council to serve out the term vacated by Richard Schlund when he was appointed mayor.

Felicia's main concern is improving the appearance of the city. "It's a small town, full of good people," she said, "and I'd like to continue to help take care of the water and sewer systems."

Felicia, an 18-year Castleford resident is employed by BlicK Brothers of Castleford.

Linda Callihan was appointed by the council two years ago to complete the term vacated by William E. Howard.

Although she doesn't feel that Castleford has any major problems, she would like to be re-elected "so I could use what I've learned over the last two years to help the community."

Callihan, a resident of Castleford for 25 years, manages the King & Hearts Club in Castleford.

Elsie Hudson, also retired, says she is running because she wants to help the city.

"I'll work with the people who are already in there and do my best," she says.

She said she wants to be part of the decisions with the Castleford Community Center and the city's irrigation water.

Anyone who did not vote in the last city election must register by Nov. 3, City Clerk Daisy Kinyon said. The election will be at the community center from noon until 8 p.m.

The contest races appear to be among the interest of local residents. Fifty-seven residents had registered by the end of last week, compared with just 15 who voted in the last city election, Kinyon said.

Howard's new position is effective today and he is flying to Hammond this morning.

He has been with The Times-News, owned by Howard daily newspapers in the publications, for nearly 18 years.

Howard said he is making "a lot of compromises in accepting a position in a newspaper in the group, with a promise of quality of life standpoint, we're going to miss living in this community."

Howard, 39, joined The Times-News in 1972 as assistant to the publisher. He became general manager in 1973 and publisher in 1975.

The Hammond newspaper and The Times-News are two of 12 publications in the Howard Publications group, which has papers in 11 states.

The Times, located in a South Chicago suburb, is the largest newspaper in the group, with a circulation of 65,000.

Sen. Tominaga denies he tried to pressure student body head

MOSCOW (AP) - Sen. Lynn Tominaga views a possible lawsuit against the state as a "lose-lose situation" for the University of Idaho, whose students will vote in two weeks on whether to sue.

University of Idaho student body President Tina Kagi acknowledged Monday she received a phone call from Tominaga, R-Rupert, suggesting she reconsider going to court against the university.

"Tominaga, U.I.'s student body president in 1976, denied he tried to intimidate the student leader."

"I certainly said she shouldn't pursue it," the Republican caucus chairman said. "I just said she should look at every thoroughly."

Kagi said she was not sure if she will sue the school for a $25-per-semester fee increase approved by the state Board of Education last June.

Kagi said the result of that vote

SEN. LYNN TOMINAGA

probably will dictate the student government's course.

Kagi said she was surprised to receive Tominaga's call. She had only met him once briefly several years ago.

"I asked him why he decided to call, and he said he just did these sorts of things," she said.

"Tominaga did not tell her directly to not push for legislation, she said."

"He called me to discuss his dissatisfaction with what we're doing and to warn me about possible repercussions," she said.

"If the students want to sue, their attorneys probably will receive one-third of any returned fees, the senator argued, and Idaho lawmakers may or may not replace that lost revenue."

"They might do it or they might just frown a lot and say, 'No, that's your problem,'" he said. "I see this as a lose-lose situation."

"Tominaga said he hopes the students solve their differences with Idaho President Elisabeth Ziser and each other and the state Board of Education before coming to the Legislature for funds in January."

"They need each other; they need to support each other," he said. "If they don't present a united front before the Legislature, it will definitely hurt the university."

Tominaga said when he was in school, students had "an open forum" with the state regents, so they know whether the regents has reversed that policy or not, he said.

Judge delays hearing on water fees

TWIN FALLS - Fifth District Judge Daniel C. Harburt Jr. Tuesday agreed to delay until December a hearing on the federal lawsuit filed by the Snake River Water Users Association against the state Board of Education.

The lawsuit seeks to force the state to pay for water rights. The board has approved a $25-per-semester fee increase for the state Board of Education last June.

The hearing was set for Tuesday, but Judge Harburt has agreed to delay it until December.

The lawsuit was filed by the Snake River Water Users Association against the state Board of Education.

He needs more time to review Idaho's 97-page response to his bid seeking relief from the fees.

Harburt filed a brief in July claiming the filing fees - about $11 million in Idaho - were an illegal tax on federal water rights.

"We need some additional time to respond," Monson said.

Tominaga's answer to Monson's brief was filed Oct. 25.

The need for witnesses and their number must also be settled before the hearing can proceed, said Steve Strong, Idaho deputy attorney general.

Monson said he does not plan to call any witnesses because the case is a legal issue, requiring only interpretation of state and federal water laws.

penalty, but Boyce said the jurors' exclusion did not prevent Lafferty from getting a fair trial.

"There is, of course, no federal prohibition against an other-qualified juror when jurors are excluded who have an intractable position against the death penalty," Boyce wrote.

Boyce also took issue with claims from Lafferty's attorneys that he was incompetent to stand trial. Lafferty's attorneys argued that a stand trial had been an issue in his appeal, but that the Utah Supreme Court rejected a January 1988.

He also had a history of assaults on his attorneys and others, including his brother, and tried to hang himself when awaiting trial in the Utah County Jail on Dec. 29, 1984.

However, Boyce cited several reports concluding that Lafferty was competent to stand trial, both before and after the apparent suicide attempt.

A report from examining doctors on Nov. 27, 1984, about one month before the apparent suicide attempt, concluded that "while Lafferty demonstrated paranoid traits, he was not suffering from paranoia and his ability to perceive and interpret reality (was) appropriate," Boyce said.

The petitioner was not mentally ill, Boyce said. "The examining experts agreed (the) petitioner was competent to stand trial."

Less than four months after the apparent suicide attempt, Lafferty was ruled competent to stand trial.

"The petitioner's case went to trial for nine days," Boyce wrote. "It is apparent from the record that (the) petitioner suffered no deficit at all to understanding the proceedings and what was taking place both factually and rationally."

Boyce also wrote that Lafferty was entitled to a fair trial, "not a perfect one."

"In this case the trial judge, acting under very difficult circumstances, was balanced and prudent," Boyce wrote. "No violation of federal law occurred."

Greenwood's proposal would pay different varieties differently. That would create a difference of $13.13 between varieties of the same year.

Klein Brothers Ltd., which bought nearly $700,000 in beans from the company will pay $350,000, under the growers' proposal.

Greenwood's proposal pays the Klein firm the same as growers.

"Hawkins' proposal doesn't address the Klein Brothers claim."

The growers propose leaving $75,000 for Hawkins to settle its debts, including attorneys' bills.

Hawkins does not have to that

They were spurred onward by a Utah Securities Bank filing that challenged their claims to the beans. Threats of a boycott led First Security to re-think its lawyers' stand, and the bank eventually gave up on every claim (Ighad in the case, Hawkins then offered its proposal and got a hearing scheduled. Farmers weren't satisfied with it. Now, the group seems willing to end-run its own lawyers and tell the judge what they want done.

Vincent said he hoped the group that gathered in the Filer High School Auditorium could set a different kind of precedent, one that's not legal in nature.

Ask 100 people on the street about farmers, he said, and 99 will say all farmers do is grudge and complain and not doing anything.

"I hope we can do something in Filer to change that," he said. "I think the time has come for farmers to stand up and be counted."

Hawkins received a letter last November when an inventory found the warehouse short of beans.

"It is our largest site and is centrally located," Howard said. The Howard family was made, he said.

Howard said he will not be resigning from the Times-News, which he hopes will be within several months. After that, he said, he plans occasional visits to Twin Falls and Idaho.

He called his years as publisher in a small Southern Idaho city good preparation for a corporate management position in small towns, "takes a degree of sensitivity and skill and diplomacy that's not required in other markets," he said.

Still, over the years, the newspaper hasn't always been sensitive enough.

"In a fast news climate, sometimes we handle things with less sensitivity than we would otherwise," he said.

Howard will move to Muncie, Ind., where the Times-News has recently built a new publishing plant with wife, Cheryl Ann, and their four children, Charlotte, Robert, Pamela and Ann.

Howard is a former president of the Allied Idaho Newspapers, a trade association of Pacific Northwest newspapers, and also of the Idaho Allied-Identities. He is currently vice president of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association.

He is also a past board member of the Idaho Chamber of Commerce, the YFCA and of the United Way of Magic Valley and is a member of the Twin Falls Rotary Club.

Horse gets delicate eye surgery For the record

The Times-News and The Associated Press.

IDAHO FALLS — Sam Beck's life was one of confusion and misunderstanding. He was only sporadically aware of his job, and he missed half of what happened around him.

Then Sam's doctor discovered the cataract.

Cataracts don't generally occur in 6-year-olds. But Sam is a rather special patient. He's a roping horse.

Sam's affliction was not immediately apparent to owner Casey Rammell, 23, who just completed a refrigeration course at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

"He cost Casey $2,600, so he's not just a throwaway kind of horse," said Rex Rammell, Sam's veterinarian and Casey's brother. "Casey got him about six months ago, and he noticed right off that the horse was kind of spooky, but Casey thought he was just green."

After six months of having to limp around Sam, Casey Rammell began to wonder whether the problem was in the horse's eyesight. Rex Rammell said he diagnosed the cataract right away.

"We figure he's 90 percent to 100 percent blind in that right eye," Rex Rammell said before Thursday's surgery.

"See, if you walk around him, he follows you with his head," Rammell demonstrated — Sam turned toward the veterinarian, always keeping his good left eye toward him.

"If you try to walk up behind him on his right side, he kicks," Rammell said. "That can be a problem."

Horses, he added, don't make good one-eyed animals.

"They speak all the time because they can't see what's going on around them," Rammell said. "They don't make good kids' horses because of that, either."

With the operation, Sam's chances of recovering at least partial vision are excellent, Rammell said.

"He really has nowhere to go but up," he said. "In fact, if we weren't going to do this, (Sam) would have to be taken to slaughter."

Surgery was completed at about 3:30 p.m. Thursday. Sam's cataract was about the size of a nickel.

Casey Rammell, who moved from Twin Falls to Idaho Falls this weekend, took Sam home from the vets' Sunday. He said Sam is still adjusting, and still a little flighty.

"He seems to be doing fine right now but it's still too early to tell whether the operation worked," Time will tell," he said.

There are some problems. With human patients, doctors use lens implants; that's impossible with horses.

"If I were to take a lens from another horse and try to implant it, the lens would just start turning into a cataract as soon as I touched it," Rex Rammell said.

"That means he'll have to do some adjusting."

Without the lens in his eye, Sam will have trouble focusing, but should be able to see shapes, shades and depth, which he should learn to interpret, Rammell said.

Arson ruled out in Bannock blaze

POCATELLO (AP) — Arson has been ruled out as the cause of an early-morning barn fire in the Bannock County Fairgrounds that killed four quarter horses and two ponies and destroyed 16 stalls. County and Chubbuck Fire Department personnel were dispatched to the scene at about 3:40 a.m. Tuesday after a passerby reported flames at the fairgrounds. Firefighters found more than a dozen stalls at the northern end of the fairgrounds fully engulfed. By the time the fire was out, 16 had been gutted.

There are more than 100 stalls at the fairgrounds, and 40 were occupied—besides the six animals, officials said a considerable amount of tack was destroyed in the fire.

Official calls for vaccination effort

BOISE (AP) — Canyon County's rash of measles cases may be subsiding, but a state health official says children still need to be immunized.

From a rate of two in three reports per day, the number of possible cases of rubella, or "hard measles," has dropped to several per week, said Bob Madlin of the Bureau of Preventive Medicine.

Seven cases of rubella were confirmed in Canyon County between Aug. 24 and Oct. 5. About six of the 18 suspected cases should be confirmed, Madlin said.

Measles is hard to positively identify, since it looks like many other childhood illnesses. Two blood tests two weeks apart are required to confirm a case.

Madlin has traced the source of the outbreak to an out-of-state visitor, Madlin said.

"At least now we know that this wasn't simmering all summer before we knew about it," Madlin said, although he declined to say the state of origin.

Taxis to be removed from reservoir

BOISE (AP) — Two Chubbuck taxis, rusting at the bottom of Lucky Peak Reservoir near Boise since they were dropped off the canyon rim in a rollover stunt, will be removed Nov. 7.

The stunt for a Universal Studios picture called "GhostDad," was filmed in June. Universal had planned to remove the yellow taxis then, but found they had sunk too far and that air bags designed to buoy them had punctured, officials said.

So, Universal contracted with Crane West Inc., Boise, to pull them up when the water level fell.

The company has not gotten around to reeling in the taxis and hauling them to a junkyard.

Venture company defaults on loans

BOISE (AP) — A company created to provide venture capital to fledgling businesses headed by former Boise City Councilman Ron Twilegar is defaulting on $3 million in Small Business Administration loans.

"We've made a voluntary transfer of our assets from our company to the SBA," Twilegar said Monday.

"We kept it alive as long as we could," he said, of First Idaho Venture Capital Corp. "But just got to the point where most of the companies we had extended credit to were unable to repay us."

Small business investment companies are eligible to leverage their money and borrow three times their own capital for lending to small business, said Joseph Kappeiner, Boise SBA director. "There are hundreds of SBCs in the country; however, there is only one in Idaho."

Twilegar said interest rates rocketed to 20 percent, making it difficult for many of First Idaho's clients to make ends meet.

Trucker jumps from truck, crushed

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A truck driver who lost control on a Shoshone County road has been killed by the load of logs, authorities say.

Tim Mangerin, 21, Coeur d'Alene, died Monday morning near the community of Eagle, a Shoshone County, dispatchee said.

Mangerin was hauling a load of logs when he apparently lost control of his truck. He was crushed by logs after jumping from the cab.

Legislator gets civil rights award

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment has presented its yearly civil rights award to former Idaho Legislator and Coeur d'Alene tribal member Jeanne Givens.

The coalition selected Mrs. Givens, an Idaho House member for four years, because she was instrumental in introducing laws to combat "hate crimes."

The award was announced last weekend in Beaverton, Ore., at the group's annual convention.

Ten months ago, Mrs. Givens organized an alliance of Indian tribes to deal with public policy and other concerns, said Tony Stewart, coalition president.

Jones: President best against racists

CLACKAMAS, Ore. (AP) — Idaho has some tough new laws to protect civil rights, but the most effective weapon against white supremacy organizations is citizen concern, says Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones.

"When concerned citizens stood up and organized to counter the bigotry, it had a dramatic effect in deflating the hate groups," Jones said Tuesday.

In remarks prepared for about 75 law enforcement officers and intelligence officials assembled for the Idaho-Growns Conference, Jones traced the decline in influence of the northern Idaho-based Aryan Nations.

"What turned the corner was when the average citizen stood up to reject the hate mongering activities of the white supremacists," Jones said.

Idaho has fairly new laws on malicious harassment.

Senator: Andrus orchestrated brouhaha

POCATELLO (AP) — Singing from his ex-wife's renewed accusations that he used drugs, state Senate Republican Floor Leader Roger Fairchild has accused Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus of orchestrating the controversy that he wants to challenge Andrus in 1990.

"You don't have to be a rocket scientist to figure out who invited her," Fairchild told reporters Tuesday in launching his candidatorial nomination in the eastern part of the state.

Andrus spokesman Marc Johnson immediately denied Fairchild's charge, and Fairchild, a five-term Republican from Fruitland, expressed disappointment that media coverage of his initial announcement for governor a day earlier in Boise focused on the confrontation with his ex-wife Marilyn Meyer.

Fairchild's statement, during which he said he would resign from the Legislature on Jan. 10 to devote fulltime to his campaign, Ms. Meyer definitely had nothing to do with it," Johnson suggested.

Boise stockbroker Milton Ehardt, political unknown, has already announced plans to run in the GOP primary, but state Sen. Rachel Gilbert of Boise, chairman of the Senate tax-writing committee, has indicated she will make the race as well.

Johnson suggested Fairchild should look to his potential primary opponents for the person responsible for Ms. Meyer's appearance on Monday.

Monday was the second time this year that Fairchild has directly attacked Andrus. Last summer he first accused the governor of profiting from his office, as he did again on Monday. Johnson said that shortly after that last attack, Ms. Meyer asked to meet with the governor to discuss her ex-husband, but Andrus declined to meet with her.

Also on Tuesday, Democratic State Chairman Conley Ward

You don't have to be a rocket scientist to figure out who invited her.

—Roger Fairchild, Idaho State Senator

renewed accusations first made during the couple's contentious 1985 divorce proceeding that Fairchild used cocaine and beat her. Fairchild immediately denied the claims and maintained Ms. Meyer suffered from emotional problems.

If the senator is implying that the governor's office or his political committee had anything to do with it, he is mistaken, as he is about a number of other things," Johnson pointed out in being informed of Fairchild's remarks.

"The governor's office accused Fairchild of engaging in character assassination through his charge that Andrus was "arrogant, money-hungry and obsessed with power" and his challenge to the governor to join him in being tested for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS.

"The goal is to seize up the campaign and try to sully the good name and reputation of Governor Andrus," Ward said in a statement. "I have more faith in the people of Idaho than that."

He called on his GOP counterpart, Republican State Chairman Randy Ayre, to repudiate Fairchild's "gutter level character assassination and baseless innuendo."

Republican National Chairman Lee Atwater and his ilk have adopted a consistent policy to encourage dirty and deceitful campaigns," Ward said.

"I had hoped, however, they wouldn't bring this garbage to Idaho, but apparently this is the best they can do."

Citation against home schooler upheld

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho law requiring parents to send their school-age children to classes or provide a comparable education is constitutional, the Court of Appeals says.

The court on Tuesday unanimously upheld the contempt citation and three-day jail term ordered for Walter Hayes in his dispute with school authorities over the education of his children.

In a Canyon County case, Hayes and his wife, who believe in home schooling, were taken to court by the Wilder School District for failing to send their school-age children to public schools.

Eventually an agreement was reached whereby the Hayes would teach their children at home, but agree to testing twice a year to determine if they were getting an education comparable to that provided by public schools.

Court records said Hayes allowed the testing in 1986, but in April, 1987, refused to allow testing of his children.

Hayes was found in contempt of court and sentenced to jail.

The Court of Appeals rejected his argument that he was entitled to a jury trial on the contempt charge. A jury trial is available only on serious contempt charges, which can be punished as a felony.

In a lesser contempt proceeding, there is no such right, the court said.

Hayes also claimed that under the agreement, if he chose not to comply, the parties would revert to a hearing on the original treaty complaint.

"This argument is not well-founded, for it flies in the face of the record," the court said, because the testing agreement was clearly set out in court records.

Hayes also claimed the mandatory school law is unconstitutionally vague because it says children educated at home must be "comparably instructed."

The law says children must be instructed in subjects commonly and usually taught in public schools and in conformance with a district's policies and regulations.

"Anyone sincerely desiring to comply with the law has ready access through the Department of Education to the list of subjects required to be taught, and to the local school district's policies and regulations," the court said.

Other actions released by the Court of Appeals on Tuesday:

- It ordered further hearings on possible attorney fees in a Canyon County property dispute between Jerry Joseph C. U. Insurance Associates, Inc. and David and Alpha Vaughn.
- Child labor court rulings that Greg Hansen was the father of a minor child now living in Alaska and must pay partial reimbursement of public assistance provided to the child's mother, Chen Sweat, along with future child support.
- The court ruled that a blood test, showing a 99.13 percent probability that Hansen was the child's father, was properly verified by laboratory officials. It was a Blaine County case.

NLRB approves Wamart; union pact

POCATELLO (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has approved an agreement between Wamart and United Local 368-A Commercial Workers Local 368-A to reschedule a vote on union representation at the company's new Pocatello supermarket.

W Bruce Gillis Jr., regional NLRB director in Denver, said Monday that the new election tentatively was set for early December.

President Wamart workers split 19-19 in a vote Aug. 30 on whether to join the union. However, meat cutters at the store voted 4-1 for unionization.

Local 368-A officials filed an unfair labor practice charge against Wamart with the NLRB after the August election, accusing the Boise-

Nuclear test reaches 5.8 on Richter scale

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (AP) — A major underground nuclear weapons test measuring 5.8 on the Richter scale rocked the Nevada desert Tuesday and sent shock waves as far away as Las Vegas, 105 miles from ground zero.

Energy Department spokesman Jim Boyer said the test appeared to be "highly successful."

John Misch, a spokesman at the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the 5.8 reading on the Richter scale was one of the higher levels recorded for such tests.

Energy Department seismographic equipment on highrise hotels in Las Vegas recorded the blast, with some locations recording a four on a scale of one to six. A four indicates some rolling motion could be detected.

Several hotel operators said the test apparently went undetected by guests.

The test was conducted at 7:30 a.m. following a 30-minute weather delay. The test was originally scheduled for Saturday, but was delayed 72 hours because of winds blowing toward populated areas from the test site.

The situation appears normal, everything appears serene in the control room, said Boyer, who was

Ruling opens the door for suits about test site

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Justice Fe. N.M. — Maybe there's an opportunity to accomplish something here, I don't know. I don't want to appear too optimistic, because I've been around the track too many times.

The attorney for the plaintiffs, Udall said there seems to be a former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, said Friday's ruling by the U.S. District Judge Roger Foley could spur the government to settle cases out of court.

There's some new winds blowing, said Udall in the telephone interview from Santa at a control point 22 miles from ground zero. He said he still some radiactivity had escaped the ground. "Everything is in the green or the blue," Boyer said. "Red would indicate radioactivity at some point."

"I don't see anything to indicate that this test was anything but highly successful," Boyer said, watching Boyer said, "Protesters have gathered out at the gates for many past tests.

Boyer said, the blast was scheduled to have an explosive force of 20,000 to 150,000 tons of TNT. Managers of high-rise buildings in Las Vegas were cautioned not to have workers in precarious positions at the time of the detonation, an underground blast would be near the 150-kilaton limit set by agreement with the Soviet Union.

The test, code-named Horowitz, was the ninth of the year at the nation's nuclear proving grounds, and the 69th announced blast since nuclear testing began at the site in January 1951.

The test was a weapons-related detonation conducted at the bottom of a shaft 1,550 feet beneath the surface of Pahute Mesa. Scientists from the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory conducted the test.

The test was the first since Sept. 14, when a smaller nuclear weapon was detonated at the site.

The 1991 test does not specify the expected yield of each detonation, classifying them as either under 20 kilotons or between 20 and 150 kilotons.

Only tests on the upper limits that are expected to produce fallout are announced in advance.

Janitor's job came with marshal badge

KENDRICK (AP) — Don Bateman is the maintenance man with a star.

When he took the job as maintenance man for his hometown of Kellogg, the city marshal's badge was part of the bargain.

"I never really wanted to be the marshal," said Bateman, 64. "But that's part of the job description. I didn't think it would take up much time at first."

But with three steep grades leading traffic into the Silver Valley town of 450 Bateman spends a lot of his time on accidents.

A two-door compact car with a single blue bubble light on the roof furnished by the city for patrol duties doesn't provide much speed, he admits, "but it gets the job done."

When Bateman got his City Hall desk or working on the sewers, he can usually be found in his workday garb of T-shirt, blue work pants and baseball cap at the Kendrick Drive Up restaurant.

He's used to the jibes from townspeople. "Did you go home to get you chubbier?" he was chided as he walked into the cafe one morning.

The normal work day is 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., but Bateman gets rousted out often.

Afghan troops break guerrilla blockade on highway

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Government troops broke through a guerrilla blockade on the Salang Highway on Tuesday to allow trucks carrying food and other necessities to reach the capital.

About 70 privately-owned trucks carrying rice and cooking oil entered Kabul from the highway, the government said. It was the first land convoy to reach the city in 10 days, and more trucks were expected Wednesday.

Soldiers said government trucks had yet to come down the highway because of fears of a guerrilla ambush.

The Salang is the main supply route to the capital from the Soviet border, and fighting along the road the past 10 days has left the city short of food, fuel, wood and other important items.

In order to show the army was in control of the area around Kabul, reporters were taken south of the city to the site of a battle last week between the Soviet-backed government and the U.S.-backed Mujahid guerrillas.

An officer from Khad, the Afghan security agency, said 70 government soldiers disguised as guerrillas sneaked into a guerrilla hideout in a rocky ravine and attacked.

He said 22 guerrillas and one government soldier were killed.

Several hundred U.S.-made Sacher rockets aimed at Kabul were confiscated along with mortars, land mines and other weapons, according to the Khad officer.

Since June, rocket attacks on Kabul have killed about 100 people. The government blames the guerrillas. The guerrillas deny rocketing civilian targets and say the government is firing on its own people so it can accuse the guerrillas.

Rocket attacks had intensified in recent days, but witnesses said only two hit the city Tuesday.

No casualties were reported.

Government spokesman Mohammed Nabi Amari said more than 200 guerrillas were killed in the fighting on the Salang.

Most casualties occurred when the government fired two Soviet-made Stuz missiles at the highway on Friday, Amari said.

Amari said the government tried to negotiate with guerrilla leader Ahmad Shah Massoud, who he said organized the highway blockade. He denied Massoud's claim that Soviet pilots were helping Afghan troops in combat.

The Soviet government said it pulled the last of its soldiers from Afghanistan in February in accordance with a U.S.-mediated accord.

However, the Bush administration said this month it is likely Russian soldiers are operating the Stuz base in the Darluman region outside Kabul.

Traffic was light throughout the day in Kabul because of the gasoline shortage. The international airport opened all day Tuesday after rocket attacks forced it to close temporarily Monday.

The guerrillas have been fighting 11 years to oust the Soviet-backed government and set up an Islamic republic in Afghanistan. Soviet troops intervened in December 1979 and began withdrawing in May 1988.

China, Soviet Union end round of border talks

BEIJING (AP) — China and the Soviet Union concluded the fourth round of talks on their disputed border Tuesday, saying some progress had been made.

The statement at the end of the 11-day session gave no specifics, unlike after the third round in Moscow a year ago when the two sides said they had settled most differences over the eastern part of the border.

It said the talks were held in an earnest atmosphere and the delegations discussed questions regarding the boundary alignment of sectors on which no agreement had been reached and made some progress.

9,194 Soviet Jews emigrate in October

JERUSALEM (AP) — A total of 9,194 Jews emigrated from the Soviet Union this year.

Of them, 7,275 arrived in Israel, with the rest choosing to seek resettlement elsewhere, Gordon said.

Uri Gordon, head of the Immigration Department at the Jewish Agency, said 284,550 Soviet Jews have requested sponsors abroad so far this year. Israeli officials predict they will handle new arrivals, said half will come to Israel.

Guards whip up anti-U.S. sentiment

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Parliament passed a bill Tuesday allowing Iran to arrest any American anywhere who "endangers the interests of the Revolutionary Guards whipped up fervor about the seizure of the U.S. Embassy 10 years ago.

Iranian militants stormed the embassy Nov. 4, 1979, and held 52 Americans hostage for 444 days.

Chief Justice Ayatollah Moham-mad Khomeini said the bill would allow 150 members of the 270-seat parliament responded to the "bullying nature" of the United States.

He referred specifically to a Justice Department ruling that U.S. government agents could pursue and apprehend terrorists in other countries, which he called "the worst kind of terrorism and kidnapping."

The bill must be approved by the Council of Guardians, 12 religious leaders and experts on Islamic law who decide constitutionality questions.

According to the Islamic Republic News Agency, Iran's agents could seek and arrest any Americans who committed any action against Iranian citizens or territories and bring them to Iran for trial under Islamic law.

It said the authority would apply to countries that gave the right of arrest to U.S. law enforcement agencies and would continue while the U.S. "enjoys the right to commit such irresponsible acts."

The law "aims at preserving the prestige and territorial integrity of the Islamic Republic, safeguarding the lives and properties of Iranian nationals abroad and defending the interests of the Islamic Republic," IRNA reported.

U.S. laws enacted in 1984 and 1986 gave American authorities jurisdiction to prosecute acts of terrorism involving U.S. citizens overseas, but not the power of arrest abroad without the permission of foreign governments.

In June, the U.S. Justice Department authorized the FBI to arrest people wanted by U.S. courts without permission of the foreign government. The authorization was made public this month.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III was said to be disturbed by the ruling on grounds it could harm relations with other countries.

A statement Tuesday from the Revolutionary Guards Corps said tens of thousands of its members would lead demonstrators Saturday outside the former U.S. Embassy to "mark this great day when militants overran it."

The Guards, who show personal loyalty to revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini until he died in June, urged all Iranians to join the demonstration and chant "Death to America."

"It is the purpose of this 'illumination of the Great Satan, the criminal America,' and U.S. flags should be burned."

On Sunday, the official news agency said Nov. 4 had been named "Day of Struggle Against Global Arrogance of the Great Satan and Global Arrogance are favorite Iranian names for the United States."

Dozens of remains reportedly stolen from cemeteries

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The remains of about 70 people buried in three cemeteries in suburban Quezon City have been stolen by a syndicate selling cemetery plots, a news agency reported Tuesday.

Ramon Matlabang, chief of Quezon city's civil registry office, told the Philippine News Agency that the syndicate members belong to about 100 squatter families living in cemeteries in Bagbag, Baesa and Novalesches areas.

The remains were being taken from their graves, dumped elsewhere and the plots resold, Matlabang said.

Some members of the syndicate have been arrested, the report said.

World Poles see officers' gravesite

KATYN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Jerzy Rudzinski took one look at the Soviet memorial at Katyn dedicated to victims of fascism — Polish officers shot by the Nazis in 1941. Then, the 53-year-old sculptor turned away, bitterly, quickly climbed 15 feet up a pine tree, and sat in a small wooden platform inscribed with his father's name and true date of death: 1940.

Uniformed and plainclothes Soviet police watched him from afar but did nothing.

Rudzinski, one of the relatives of the 4,300 murdered Polish officers whose deaths in the Russian forest have been wrapped in mystery and lies for more than 45 years, was part of the larger group of Poles ever allowed to go to Katyn.

For the first time, the family members were able to mourn them in the secluded wood where, according to the weight of historical evidence, the young officers — the elite of their generation — were shot in the hole of the head and stacked into mass graves by the Soviet secret police, known then as the NKVD.

More than 15,000 Polish officers reported to three camps in the Soviet Union in 1939 after the outbreak of World War II were never heard from again after the spring of 1940. The Katyn bodies were found by the Germans in 1943. Traces of the 11,000 other men have never been located.

Relatives of the victims counted for most of the 48 Poles who boarded a special train organized by a Polish state tourist agency, for a chance to spend several hours in the forest Monday.

"Poles don't want those graves to be anonymous because we know the names — Rudzinski said. "These are not unknown soldiers, but the Russians don't allow us to personally identify the deaths."

"I wanted to climb the tree, to put up a symbol high so that they wouldn't be able to take it down so easily," he said.

Seeing Rudzinski, Iwona Mlakosiewicz hurried over and asked him to join her in a bus stop to see her father that she knew only from old photographs.

"My mother received one card — she was pregnant when my father left so she probably didn't even know

AP Wirephoto

A Polish relative of a slain officer burns candles at Katyn

I was born when he died," said Mlakosiewicz, holding a box of dirt from the forest for her 27-year-old mother, who couldn't make the trip.

Other visitors also scooped dirt and small trees to take home.

The Soviet Union maintains the men were murdered by the Nazis in 1941. Most Poles and Western historians, based on an International Red Cross investigation and other inquiries, have long concluded the Soviet secret police committed the crime in April or May of 1940.

Even so, it was not until this year that the Polish side of a joint Polish-Soviet historical commission set up by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski conceded there is no reasonable doubt the Soviets were responsible.

Katyn remains an emotional wound for Poles, an obstacle to reconciliation and a major source of Polish mistrust of the Soviets.

Many in the group became irritable when the train was late and the guides told them to stay in the train at Smolensk until they boarded

Nixon, Deng trade statements on democracy, foreign policy

BEIJING (AP) — Richard M. Nixon told Deng Xiaoping on Tuesday some Chinese leaders had lost respect in the United States and Deng accused Washington of involvement in the democracy movement that China's army crushed in June.

China's 85-year-old senior leader told the former president that "China has not done one single thing harmful to the United States in the past decade, according to Xinhuu, the official Chinese news agency.

A member of the Nixon party who attended the meeting between Deng and the American leader who opened the door to China in 1972 characterized their conversation as "a very tough, no-holds-barred exchange."

Nixon also met with Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin on Tuesday about the "tragedy" of the military crackdown on student-led dissent, the American informant said.

Nixon told Deng he had observed relations closely for 17 years and "there has never been a more difficult crisis than at the present time."

He said it was important to discuss differences and "repair the damage that has been done to the respect in the United States among China's friends for some of China's leaders."

He did not identify those leaders.

Deng, Premier Li Peng and President Yang Shangkun have been singled out for ordering the June attack on pro-democracy demonstrators in which hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people were killed.

According to Xinhuu, Deng said the United States "was involved too deeply in the turmoil and commercial warfare, rebellion, the government's terms for the democracy movement."

"China was the real victim and it is unjust to reprove China for it," he said.

Deng and Nixon, who was on the fourth day of a private visit, agreed that ideological differences should be overcome and relations improved on the basis of common strategic interests.

"I'm very much in favor of your view regarding state-to-state relations," Deng said to Nixon as they met at the Great Hall of the People. "You should focus on the strategic interests of a country and you should not talk about historical roots or differences in ideology or the strength of a country."

Nixon has urged the governments to bury their differences over the crushing of dissent and mend their 1947 relations.

Washington suspended high-level contacts and arms sales after the June attack. China has repeatedly accused the United States of trying to subvert its communist system and criticized the Americans for harboring dissidents Fang Lizi and his wife Li Shuxian in their Beijing embassy.

After the meeting with Deng, Nixon said he was optimistic the U.S.-Chinese relationship "will be sustained and those that are signifying its death are much premature."

Deng praised Nixon for ending the 1949-72 freeze in relations.

Pakistani violence breeds a crisis

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto faces her biggest government crisis this week in a no-confidence motion that grew out of last summer's violence and has won support from some of Ms. Bhutto's one-time allies.

The motion goes to the floor of the National Assembly on Wednesday and must be voted on by Thursday.

"Ethnic violence in this nation of 109 million people has chipped away at Ms. Bhutto's power base, turning the slums of Pakistan's largest city into virtual war zones and creating a big business in illegal arms."

Ms. Bhutto is confident her left-of-center Pakistan People's Party will survive the vote, but some observers fear that whatever the outcome, it could ignite new violence.

Ms. Bhutto's party has 116 seats in the National Assembly and needs 119 votes to survive the confidence motion; she said it can easily muster three votes from independents and minority parties.

"Nor a single PPP member will join hands with the opposition," Ms. Bhutto said last week.

Opposition spokesmen say at least 120 assembly members will vote against the government. So far, 105 have pledged to do so.

The opposition — Islamic Party, secularists, and ethnic groups — has accused Ms. Bhutto's populist party of refusing to take a tough stand, to decentralize power or to spend money to improve the welfare of the masses.

Ms. Bhutto's major opponents are Sindh nationalists from Ms. Bhutto's native Sindh province, who want a loose federation or outright independence, and "mohajirs," Indian immigrants to Pakistan since the partition of the two countries in 1947.

More than 700 people have died in mohajir-Sindhi riots in Karachi.

the buses for Katyn, about 17 miles away. The presence of a police car that led the buses also upset them. Tension built when someone saw a statue of Josef Stalin along the route. "We are very nervous. It is our first time here. For the past 50 years, my mother promised that before she died she would lay flowers for her brother at Katyn," said Jozef Skolinski, a zoo director who accompanied his 92-year-old mother and an aunt.

Once there, the Poles walked to the memorial, a 45-foot-long, chest-high polished stone wall set in a grove of pine and birch trees.

A Solidarity sticker quickly was used to fasten a piece of paper with the letters NKVD on it over the word "Nazi" on the monument.

Tears streaming down her face, one woman stood motionless behind the monument, holding a candle in the shape of "1940" with a lighted wick on each numeral.

Hundreds of other candles were lighted, dozens of wreaths laid, a Polish flag flapped in the damp soil and a table set up for a Mass.

Talking turkey: The fowl facts

Let's talk turkey. The bird's glorious aroma has been permeating Thanksgiving kitchens since 1621. The sight of that crisp golden skin has delighted us for 368 years.

Only recently with our heightened awareness of fats, cholesterol and sodium have we begun to wonder what lies under that skin. Be prepared with the fowl facts when speculation starts circulating around your holiday table.

Jane Slickers

Food and Health

A 3½ ounce portion of light-meat-no-skin turkey (the size of your fist, heaping) has 152 calories, 3 grams of fat, including 1 gram of saturated fat and 69 milligrams of cholesterol. These numbers are about as interesting as multiplication tables until you use them to compare to a juicy T-bone steak.

An equal-sized LEAN portion of T-bone steak contains slightly more calories, a similar amount of cholesterol but almost 3 times as much fat and a higher percentage of saturated fat.

Saturated fat is an every dietitian and cardiologist's hit list because it raises blood cholesterol levels faster than eating cholesterol does.

Now that bird is really starting to look beautiful. If you like to munch that crispy skin along with a small portion of white meat, you will add about 50 calories and double the saturated fat.

Leave the drumsticks to the kids. Dark meat with skin has more calories and more saturated fat than lean T-bone.

Most poultry fat lies directly under the skin and is not melted through the meat as it is in beef. According to Consumer Reports, the skin has almost 12 times as much fat as an equal portion of white meat. This makes it very easy to get rid of a large amount of the turkey fat simply pull the skin off. I allow myself either skin or gravy but not both on white meat only.

If you are the thirty type and cook giblets to mince and mix with the stuffing.

Lifestyles calling for smart snacking

Today's fast-paced lifestyles have boosted snacking to an all-time high. We now consume on the average about 20 percent of the day's total calories in snacks, a statistic that can reflect a healthier way of eating when snacks are selected wisely.

Those who favor four or more snacks or mini-meals in place of the traditional three argue that we're more alert after a 300-calorie meal than after a 1,000-calorie meal. And eating smaller meals spaced throughout the day can help keep blood sugar levels steady, thereby preventing hunger pangs.

What are smart snacks? Smart snacks are simply lower-calorie, nutritious foods selected from the basic four food groups.

Dairy foods offer equally smart choices. You can choose between skim milk, lowfat and nonfat yogurt, buttermilk, lowfat cottage cheese and part-skim ricotta cheese. Lowfat dairy products contain all of the calcium, riboflavin and protein of their whole-milk counterparts, but less fat and fewer calories.

Nonfat yogurt gives Sunshine Custard its silky texture and tangy flavor. These single-serving baked custards can be made ahead and stored in the refrigerator, ready to be topped with the colorful chunky mixed fruit for a quick snack or refreshing calorie-wise dessert.

Warming Winter Soup teams cling peaches with fiber-rich lentils, chickpeas and vegetables in a hearty broth accented with Southwestern seasonings. Plain lowfat yogurt spooned atop each serving is a cooling contrast to the hot soup.

No time for breakfast? Sip on a Peachy Eye-Opener. Buttermilk, lowfat vanilla yogurt, eggs and cling peaches with their juice are whisked together in seconds.

An updated version of the classic pencil mella may be lower in fat, calories and sugar, but it's no less delicious.

A smooth, lightly sweetened blend of part-skim ricotta cheese and lowfat vanilla yogurt tops golden cling peach halves. The easy raspberry sauce can be enjoyed warm or chilled.

Delicious salads for the calorie- and health-conscious

By TONI TIPTON
Los Angeles Times

Healthful salads, built on a foundation of the freshest produce, can be accented with lean sources of protein or an assortment of fresh fruits and vegetables to provide both eye and taste appeal.

Here are some tips for making salads healthful and delicious.

Remove all visible fat from meat and poultry, including the skin, then choose low-fat cooking methods such as broiling, roasting, baking, steaming or poaching.

To oven cook meats, make sure to moisten them with a small amount of wine, low-sodium bouillon or reduced-calorie salad dressing. Tomato juice is another low-calorie flavoring ingredient.

Use thawed frozen vegetables or cook fresh vegetables just until crispender for the best flavor, texture and nutrition.

When using canned seafood, select the water-packed product for use in salads and dice hard-cooked egg whites (reserving the yolks for other uses) for salad accompaniments that are high in protein but naturally low in fat.

Develop a taste for plain yogurt and reduced-calorie mayonnaise combination, which is an improvement over mayonnaise- or sour cream-based salad dressings. When creamy-type salads are chosen, be sure to serve in smaller quantities and accompany with a base of shredded lettuce. In addition to extra bulk, which offers that "feel full" feeling, having a full plate will provide psychological satisfaction as well.

Employ grains such as rice and pasta, which are a rich source of carbohydrates, to enhance the nutritional content of holiday salads.

Develop healthier versions of traditional dressings by substituting low-calorie, low-sodium or low-cholesterol products in recipes.

Experiment with herbs and spices to make unusual taste combinations. Basil and tarragon, for example, will add appeal to tomatoes and salad combination and minced fresh garlic can spruce up the flavor of ordinary chicken salad.

- 3 tablespoons dried vinegar
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger

Combine oil, sugar, ketchup, vinegar, Worcestershire and soy sauces and ginger in jar with tight-fitting lid. Shake to mix well.

SAUSAGE-PASTA SALAD

- ½ teaspoon fennel seeds, crushed
- ½ cup reduced-calorie cheese Italian salad dressing

- 1/2 cups rotelle pasta
- ½ cup sweet red pepper strips
- 1 sliced, seeded tomato

Nelda Ronk carefully selects and prepares more healthful foods

Cook's profile

Ronk carefully charts a healthful route to husband Howard's heart

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — For Nelda Ronk, charting a healthful route to her husband Howard's heart is a matter of carefully selecting and preparing the food he eats. A former ecologist, she has always fixed well-balanced meals, but since Dr. Ronk's heart attack a year and a half ago, she has made some substitutions.

He was told to avoid eggs, or eat only one a week at most. So she scrutinizes labels and uses a product called "Second Nature" in place of eggs in her cooking. "It is the yolk that can cause problems, and the white part may be used," but she says she likes the yellow color of the substitute.

Ronk no longer buys hydrogenated vegetable shortening, opting instead for Puritan canola oil. In place of butter on the table, she uses Puritan or Wesson light margarine.

Some of her cake recipes call for oil, but for those that list shortening, she uses margarine instead. The Fleischman's Light would not work in baking, because the oil has been replaced by vegetable liquid, so she uses the regular Fleischman's margarine for this purpose.

She has a silverstone-coated skillet and does not use fat to fry with anymore. "It's ideal," she says. "Things don't stick, and you get a nice brown surface."

The Ronks eat lots of vegetables and fresh fruits, and have cut down considerably on the amount of red meat they consume. "We often eat steamed chicken breasts, cooked without fat, in the non-stick skillet."

Howard is allowed only six ounces of animal protein a day, which if divided in half for two meals does not look like much. So, she might put it into a casserole with other things, such as rice or pasta, which are beneficial. "I cover it with water, bring it to a boil and dilute it again to remove more fat."

The restriction of eggs (bacon and sausage, too) from Howard's diet has changed the Ronk's breakfast menu. Now, muffins and fresh fruit might start their day — or maybe some...

- GRANOLA
- Makes nine cups
  - 5 cups quick oatmeal
  - 1 cup wheat germ
  - 1 cup raw sunflower seeds
  - 1 cup sliced almonds
  - 2/3 cup dark brown sugar
  - 1/2 cup dry skim milk granules
  - 1/3 cup honey
  - 2 cup oil (she uses Puritan canola for this)
  - 2 tablespoons water

Combine brown sugar, oil, milk, honey and water. Stir over medium heat until mixture boils. Boil 2 minutes. Pour over the remaining dry ingredients. Bake at 325 degrees for 25 minutes. Stir two different times during cooking period.

In order to keep her husband's intake of sugar down, she puts 7/8 cup oil, fruit, granules in the bottom of his cereal bowl, covers it with granola and tops it with fruit.

When Ronk buys a pork roast, which is not often since Howard's heart attack, it is usually six or seven pounds so it can be used several ways. She phones the leanest one she can find, trimming the remaining fat. Afterward she uses it in ways that allow her to trim any

Correct pan size important for baking

By JOAN DRAKE
Los Angeles Times

When baking, it is essential to use the size pan that a recipe specifies to achieve optimal results. Some manufacturers provide a size or their cookware, but if it isn't noted, here's the correct way to take a pan's measurements.

For length, width or diameter, measure the pan across the top, inside edge, to inside edge (Step-1). For depth, stand a ruler in the pan and note the distance from the bottom to the rim (Step 2).

Stir in bay leaf, oregano, cumin and cloves. Stir in flour; cook 1 minute. Whisk in chicken broth and lentils. Simmer, uncovered, 30 to 35 minutes, until lentils are tender-crisp. Stir in tomatoes, chickpeas and reserved peaches. Simmer 3 minutes. Ladle soup into mugs. Top each with 2 tablespoons yogurt. Garnish with green onion brush, if desired.

SUNSHINE CUSTARD
1 can (16 oz.) chunky mixed fruit in juice
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 containers (8 oz. each) plain nonfat yogurt
1 1/2 tablespoons Grand Mariner or 1/2 teaspoon orange extract

1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Drain chunky mixed fruit, reserving all liquid. Cover and refrigerate fruit. Whisk together reserved fruit juice, sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan. Cook over medium heat, whisking constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; stir in yogurt. Whisk in remaining ingredients. Spoon mixture into five custard cups (6 oz. each), which have been sprayed with vegetable cooking spray. Place cups in baking pan filled with about 1 inch hot water. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes; until centers are just set. Remove cups from water. Cool. Refrigerate 4 hours before serving. To serve, unmold and top with reserved fruit.

Makes 5 servings.
Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories - 190; Protein - 9 g.; Fat - 4 g.; Carbohydrate - 30 g.; and Calcium - 205 mg.

ORANGE POP SALAD
One 6 ounce package, Orange Jello, dissolved in 1 1/2 cups water
2 cups applesauce, or a 16 ounce can (use no water)

One 20 ounce can unsweetened crushed pineapple. Then add 1 orange with half the peeling (be sure there is not much of the white part left on it, because it's bitter) ground fine in blender.

Then add:
12 ounces of 1 and 1/2 cups Diet 7-Up. Pour into a greased ring mold or pretty crystal bowl. Refrigerate until solid - about four hours.

That is so good with turkey or chicken, she says. "It's so tangy."

For a person watching cholesterol or on a heart-imit diet, she says cholesterol is discouraged. But because Howard is very fond of it, she sometimes mixes it with the richer chocolate squares.

CHOCOLATE OATMEAL CAKE
2 1/2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups quick cooking oatmeal
1/2 sticks margarine
1/2 to 2 cups sugar
1/2 cup egg substitute
6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
1 1/2 cups flour

1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
Mix oatmeal into boiling water. Then add the margarine and mix thoroughly. Usually it is the consistency of hot liquid and eggs. (If the pan is large enough, it may be used throughout, instead of a mixing bowl.) When cooled to lukewarm, add flour, cocoa, soda, salt and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Grease the bottom of a 13 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

"It's a fast cake to make, and it says very moist," she says.
"It may be eaten sans or spread with this..."

FROSTING
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup water
1/3 teaspoon cream of tartar
Boil slowly without stirring, until syrup runs as thick as eight inch thread. Keep saucepan covered for first three minutes of cooking to prevent crystals from forming on sides of pan. White syrup is cooking heat:
2 eggs whites or 1/3 cup egg whites until stiff enough to hold a point.
Then pour the hot syrup very slowly in a thin stream onto the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add:

1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Makes enough to frost sheet cake on the top and sides of a layer cake.

She says some older recipes call for more sugar than they actually need. "When they encourage you to do it, cut it down by maybe 1/2 cup, and that'll fix it," Frey says. "You might take 1 1/2 cups. And, just keep getting less and less, until it reaches a point where it still tastes good to you, but you haven't taken out so much that your product is not good."

ROCK

additional fat as it is sliced. One of the ways she uses it is in...

PORK ORIENTAL
Serves five
2 cups chopped lean cooked pork
1 envelope brown gravy mix (the use Pillsbury)
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons honey
3 tablespoons light soy sauce
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon garlic
1/2 teaspoon ginger oil or grated fresh ginger
5 large carrots, thinly sliced on the diagonal
1 medium onion, diced
2 green peppers, cut in strips
Cooked rice
Combine gravy mix, water, honey, soy sauce, vinegar, ginger and garlic salt. Add pork to skillet and cook five minutes; until mixture is completely mixed. Add carrots. Cook 10 minutes. Add onion and green pepper and cook five minutes more. Serve over rice.

"For people who don't like sweet and sour pork with pineapple and everything in it, this is a nice substitute," she says.
Next in a salad she says is her very favorite.

Tortellini salad definitely American

By Better Homes and Gardens magazine

Maybe the Italians invented pasta, maybe it was the Chinese. But Americans invented the tortellini salad and thought of using tortellini in this way. To speed the salad to your table, start with hot water when cooking the pasta. Cool the cooked pasta in ice water and drain well before tossing with the other ingredients.

ITALIAN TORTELLINI SALAD
One 7-ounce package cheese-filled tortellini
4 ounces provolone cheese or mozzarella cheese, cubed (1 cup)

1/2 of a small yellow or green pepper, cut into thin strips (1/2 cup)
1/2 cup eld-pitted ripe olives, drained
2 green onions, sliced (2 tablespoons)
1/2 cup Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 large sausage, heated 6 cups hot water to boiling - add tortellini. Reduce heat slightly. Cook in gently boiling water about 10 minutes or until tender.
Drain tortellini in colander. Place colander in large bowl of ice-cold water. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain well.

Transfer chilled tortellini to serving bowl. Add cheese, tomato, pepper strips, olives and green onions. Pour dressing over tortellini mixture. Toss gently to coat. Add Parmesan cheese and toss lightly. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

ing, consider spending them on the family dog. One cup of giblets (heart, gizzard and liver) has seven and one-half times the cholesterol as a portion of white meat. The giblets are a concentrated source of iron and vitamin A, but most of us do not need that rich a supply of these vitamins.

Sodium levels in turkey average 70 milligrams per portion, not much of the 100 to 3300 milligram recommended daily allotment. This amount is for an unadulterated turkey - an increasingly endangered species.

Most turkeys are injected with basting solutions of fats, salt, phosphates, broth and water. Sometimes emulsifiers, color, MSG and sweeteners are added. Label reading is your only defense if you are trying to avoid any or all of these additives.

Turkeys are not plumped up with hormones like cattle may be, however antibiotics are added to turkey feed. The antibiotic used in turkey feed are not the same antibiotics used to treat human illnesses - antibiotics used in beef. According to the Department of Agriculture, turkeys should not carry drug-resistant organisms that can cause human disease.

Salmonella and Campylobacter bacteria are harbored by turkeys and all poultry. Unless you enjoy doing the turkey trot all night after your Thanksgiving dinner take precautions to kill these organisms. Soap and water are all ailments used on the raw turkey, thawing in the refrigerator (not at room temperature) and storing leftovers in the refrigerator as soon as possible are essential.

Turkey has become everyday not just special occasion fare. Since 1973, our per capita consumption of turkey has doubled, unobliquely due to the 75 percent of turkeys that go into products such as turkey franks, ham, pastrami and ground turkey. The turkey ham and pastrami labels that I checked at local groceries stated "ground turkey." The Nutrition Action Healthletter advises buying a whole meat breast and asking the butcher to skin, bone and grind it. Unless you are on a severely restricted fat and cholesterol diet, and ground turkey is an acceptable low fat alternative to regular ground beef.

Now you are prepared to handle Thanksgiving dinner. When Uncle Clarence, who is recovering from a heart attack, requests a drumstick with gravy you can gently suggest a slice of white meat. If the skin falls off on the way to the plate, who will know you planned it?

1 can (16 oz.) cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup, chilled, drained
Place peach in small mixer bowl. Beat on high speed until light and fluffy, about 1 minute. Stir in yogurt, sugar and vanilla. Refrigerate, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. Meanwhile, combine raspberry spread and liquor. Refrigerate until ready to use. To serve, place 2 peach halves on each plate. Drizzle cheese mixture evenly over peach halves. Top with about 1 tablespoon sauce.

Makes 4 servings
NOTE: Sauce may be served warm, if desired. Combine raspberry spread and liquor in small saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring frequently, until warm. Or, place raspberry spread in 1-cup glass measure. Microwave on HIGH about 25 seconds. Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories - 180; Protein - 8 g.; Fat - 5 g.; Carbohydrate - 27 g.; and Calcium - 181 mg.

WARMING WINTER SOUP
1 can (16 oz.) cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1/2 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup each chopped carrots and celery
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
2 tablespoons flour
6 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup lentils

1 can (14.5 oz.) no-salt added whole peeled tomatoes
1 can (15.5 g.) chickpeas, drained
1 container (8 oz.) plain lowfat yogurt
2 green onions, ends cut to form brushes (optional)
Drain and dice peaches; reserve liquid for other uses. Melt butter in large saucepan. Stir in onions, carrots, celery and garlic. Cook over medium heat, 5 to 8 minutes, until soft but not browned. Stir in bay leaf, oregano, cumin and cloves. Stir in flour; cook 1 minute. Whisk in chicken broth and lentils. Simmer, uncovered, 30 to 35 minutes, until lentils are tender-crisp. Stir in tomatoes, chickpeas and reserved peaches. Simmer 3 minutes. Ladle soup into mugs. Top each with 2 tablespoons yogurt. Garnish with green onion brush, if desired.

Makes 8 servings.
NOTE: Extra soup may be frozen in individual portions for later use. To heat, place frozen container, covered, in microwave oven. Microwave on HIGH, stirring occasionally, approximately 7 minutes.
Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories - 228; Protein - 13 g.; Fat - 5 g.; Carbohydrate - 34 g.; and Calcium - 89 mg.

SUNSHINE CUSTARD
1 can (16 oz.) chunky mixed fruit in juice
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 containers (8 oz. each) plain nonfat yogurt
1 1/2 tablespoons Grand Mariner or 1/2 teaspoon orange extract

1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Drain chunky mixed fruit, reserving all liquid. Cover and refrigerate fruit. Whisk together reserved fruit juice, sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan. Cook over medium heat, whisking constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; stir in yogurt. Whisk in remaining ingredients. Spoon mixture into five custard cups (6 oz. each), which have been sprayed with vegetable cooking spray. Place cups in baking pan filled with about 1 inch hot water. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes; until centers are just set. Remove cups from water. Cool. Refrigerate 4 hours before serving. To serve, unmold and top with reserved fruit.

Makes 5 servings.
Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories - 190; Protein - 9 g.; Fat - 4 g.; Carbohydrate - 30 g.; and Calcium - 205 mg.

ORANGE POP SALAD
One 6 ounce package, Orange Jello, dissolved in 1 1/2 cups water
2 cups applesauce, or a 16 ounce can (use no water)

One 20 ounce can unsweetened crushed pineapple. Then add 1 orange with half the peeling (be sure there is not much of the white part left on it, because it's bitter) ground fine in blender.

Then add:
12 ounces of 1 and 1/2 cups Diet 7-Up. Pour into a greased ring mold or pretty crystal bowl. Refrigerate until solid - about four hours.

That is so good with turkey or chicken, she says. "It's so tangy."

For a person watching cholesterol or on a heart-imit diet, she says cholesterol is discouraged. But because Howard is very fond of it, she sometimes mixes it with the richer chocolate squares.

CHOCOLATE OATMEAL CAKE
2 1/2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups quick cooking oatmeal
1/2 sticks margarine
1/2 to 2 cups sugar
1/2 cup egg substitute
6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
1 1/2 cups flour

1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
Mix oatmeal into boiling water. Then add the margarine and mix thoroughly. Usually it is the consistency of hot liquid and eggs. (If the pan is large enough, it may be used throughout, instead of a mixing bowl.) When cooled to lukewarm, add flour, cocoa, soda, salt and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Grease the bottom of a 13 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

"It's a fast cake to make, and it says very moist," she says.
"It may be eaten sans or spread with this..."

FROSTING
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup water
1/3 teaspoon cream of tartar
Boil slowly without stirring, until syrup runs as thick as eight inch thread. Keep saucepan covered for first three minutes of cooking to prevent crystals from forming on sides of pan. White syrup is cooking heat:
2 eggs whites or 1/3 cup egg whites until stiff enough to hold a point.
Then pour the hot syrup very slowly in a thin stream onto the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add:

1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Makes enough to frost sheet cake on the top and sides of a layer cake.

She says some older recipes call for more sugar than they actually need. "When they encourage you to do it, cut it down by maybe 1/2 cup, and that'll fix it," Frey says. "You might take 1 1/2 cups. And, just keep getting less and less, until it reaches a point where it still tastes good to you, but you haven't taken out so much that your product is not good."

additional fat as it is sliced. One of the ways she uses it is in...

PORK ORIENTAL
Serves five
2 cups chopped lean cooked pork
1 envelope brown gravy mix (the use Pillsbury)
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons honey
3 tablespoons light soy sauce
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon garlic
1/2 teaspoon ginger oil or grated fresh ginger
5 large carrots, thinly sliced on the diagonal
1 medium onion, diced
2 green peppers, cut in strips
Cooked rice
Combine gravy mix, water, honey, soy sauce, vinegar, ginger and garlic salt. Add pork to skillet and cook five minutes; until mixture is completely mixed. Add carrots. Cook 10 minutes. Add onion and green pepper and cook five minutes more. Serve over rice.

"For people who don't like sweet and sour pork with pineapple and everything in it, this is a nice substitute," she says.
Next in a salad she says is her very favorite.

Today's options in offices: All the comforts of home

By The Associated Press

When Linda Hayward moved her small-market research firm into new space, she hired a decorator to create a homey, yet businesslike office.

"We are always on the go, traveling to see clients, but when we are in the office, we want to be comfortable and attractive," says Hayward, president of Sun Research in Scarborough, Conn. She says that a pleasing office enhances team spirit and makes employees more willing to work late when necessary.

Yet the office had to be dignified, she told designer Judy Haines Ricciardi of Wilton, Conn. "I was worried that the office might be seen as a consulting office."

With input from Sun Research employees, the designer organized the space into four natural divisions, coinciding with how workers saw the demands of their jobs. The space is zoned by function to allow for private conferences, file storage, space to do layouts and collating tasks, room for part-time and freelance help. A separate kitchen is also included. Hayward's collection of African art and a living room area added warmth.

The homey look, which provides a higher degree of personal comfort and control, is making an appearance in larger offices, too. It will become increasingly important in attracting top workers, according to authorities who advanced these views at NEOCON, a commercial furniture trade fair in Chicago.

Stainless-steel-maker of office furniture in Grand Rapids, Mich., created hypothetical characters to demonstrate the flexibility of its new office furniture system displayed at NEOCON. The system, which the company calls "Concept," has such options as curved units that turn desks into conference tables and partitions that can be raised and lowered. It also accommodates computers which are now as much of a given as telephones.

Other new products shown at NEOCON also were aimed at giving employees control over their office environment. One example is individual units that allow each worker to control temperature, air velocity, lighting and noise in his immediate area.

The units, by Johnson Controls of Milwaukee, Wis., can be installed in existing or new buildings and are $2,000 each. That's a small price to pay for employee comfort, says Vigen Loftness, a professor at Carnegie Mellon University.

Loftness is one of a number of scientists studying how people work best. She says most new office buildings lack physical comfort: the air is stagnant, the lighting harsh. Researchers say such environments lead to headaches and eyestrain, lowered productivity and satisfaction.

Although open offices were hailed only a few decades ago, the trend now is to closed spaces, because employees prefer them. However, in the interest of efficiency, they are likely to be modular units' so partitions and electrical and phone connections can be easily rearranged.

The ideal office, according to research, should be smaller than previously. Every worker should be at least 20 feet from a window that opens and closes. If the windows are stationary, ventilation should come from the floor, not the ceiling, says Loftness. Air drawn in from the ceiling may not get to the people sitting below it.

Science has confirmed what office workers have long known: one worker's "too cold" is his neighbor's "too hot."

"Thermal comfort is not a narrow band," says Loftness. "The comfort range can vary from 68 to 78 degrees."

Gail E. Schiller, associate professor of architecture at the University of California at Berkeley, said at NEOCON that there is no standard for determining "optimum" temperature, nor is there data on how much the environment affects productivity. However, she said, employee complaints tend to be higher in buildings with large stationary windows and a sea of modular open-plan areas.

With financial backing from the National Science Foundation, building science researchers at Berkeley have constructed an office chamber to measure subtle variations in comfort levels and how they affect performance. Though the research isn't finished, there's one thing Schiller can say with authority: "Office workers prefer to have a say in their environment."

Several gardening jobs will prepare plants for winter

There are several fall gardening jobs which will help prepare plants for winter. They give us a good excuse to get outside and enjoy the crisp fall weather.

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardening

Keep raking the leaves as they fall off the trees. It allowed to accumulate on the lawn they become a nuisance by shading the grass. An alternative to raking is to run a rotary lawn mower over them. The mower blades will chop leaves into small pieces and throw most of them into the grass catcher.

Instead of throwing leaves away, fill them into the vegetable garden or use them as mulch around trees and over perennial flower beds.

Spring blooming bulbs, such as tulips, also be placed in a corner of the garden and filled under next spring.

We have had a rather mild fall, so it is still not too late to plant spring blooming bulbs such as tulips, crocus and daffodils.

You may find some bargains in nurseries and garden stores now. They should be planted before the ground freezes hard.

Summer blooming bulbs such as dahlias, geraniums, delphiniums, anemones and ranunculus will not survive our cold winters in the ground. Dig them before the ground freezes hard and store them in a cool location such as a basement or root cellar for the winter. They should be protected from freezing.

If the storage area is not reasonably humid, pack them in dry vermiculite, sawdust or bark shavings. These materials will protect bulbs from desiccation. Packing materials should be dry so that they do not assume a premature planting.

Continue to mow the lawn. I like to make my last mowing at about one inch height. This is a little shorter than during the regular growing season.

Unless the ground is well tilled to a depth of at least two feet, give plants a good deep watering. If the ground is frozen on top in the morning, wait to water until it thaws in the afternoon.

Evergreen trees and shrubs can be sprayed with an antifreeze can or wrapped in burlap to protect them from winter drying. The areas most susceptible to damage are the south and west sides due to the prevailing winds from that direction.

Refinishing help whether it's for hobby or necessity

By ANDY LANG

The Associated Press

Years ago when I first became interested in doing-it-myself, I read every book I could find that would help me discover the shortcuts to getting good results.

I soon learned two things: (1) that there are no shortcuts more valuable than patience and the active experience of tackling things that previously seemed unapproachable; and (2) that I would have no money left to buy any do-it-yourself materials if I bought all the do-it-yourself books on the market.

Three recent books are targeted towards the handyman specialist. For those who like to make the most of their furniture, there's "The Weekend Refinisher" by Bruce Johnson. For the woodworker, there's "Carpentry Tools, Shelves, Walls, Doors" by Black & Decker. And for those who like to work with stone, there's "Building With Stone" by Charles McRaven.

Johnson makes this observation: "Busy schedules are a fact of life, but they are not going to deter those who would rather do a refinishing project themselves than have it done by someone else." Mail from readers over the years makes it plain this very definitely is so.

Thousands of pieces of furniture are refinished every year by do-it-yourselfers simply because the furniture needs refinishing. But there must be 10 times as many that get refinished just because somebody wants to refinish a piece of furniture. In short, wood finishing has become more of a hobby than a necessity. The ideal situation of course is when a hobby is utilized to produce needed and practical results, no matter what the endeavor.

"The Weekend Refinisher" does a fine job of advising you how to restore furniture, whether it needs just a cleaning or major construction. Solutions to problems are presented clearly in down-to-earth language and with some humor. Johnson does not hesitate to tell of his own uncertainty at times.

"I once spent four weeks with a rosewood piano that had been stored in a leaky garage," he says. "Only one week of which I was to be the artist. The first three weeks I spent staring at the piano, trying to decide where to start."

"Carpentry Tools, Shelves, Walls, Doors" features striking color photographs along with a limited but effective amount of textual matter. It's a book that gives visual pleasure as well as spreads knowledge. If you work with wood and want clear information about basic carpentry, this book is for you. You'll be astounded at the brilliant color and clarity of the photographs.

"Building With Stone" tells you how to do what the title says. It gives detailed instructions for constructing walls, fireplaces, dams, bridges, walkways, wells, buttresses and many other things, even a house or barn.

The writing makes it clear the author has a great fondness for stone as a material per se as well as something which can be used for building.

He tells of building a stone arch as part of a de-modernizing restoration of a 70-year-old building, and adds, "That arch will long outlive me, since the building is National Historic Landmark. It should be intact for many generations. That's what building with stone is all about: time. Time is needed to put together the oldest and most durable of materials and have the structure stand for as long as anything stands in this world. . . . These

Cowboys boosters set meeting, seek coaches

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Cowboys American Legion baseball boosters will hold their monthly meeting Sunday, and are looking for candidates for the coaching jobs on both the "A" and "B" teams next summer.

The session is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Idaho State University Extension Office, 140 2nd Ave. E.

Anyone interested in either of the coaching jobs should call Ron Boyd at 733-6741 or Alan Horner at 733-2516.

Former-NBA commissioner takes name from honor list

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Premier pivotman Elvin Hayes and Bob Lanier were among 16 people nominated for election to the Basketball Hall of Fame on Tuesday, but former NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien asked his name be withdrawn over disapproval of the secretive process.

Hayes and Lanier, dominant collegiate players who each played in eight NBA All-Star games, were nominated for the first time as were players Nate Archibald and Calvin Murphy and former Marquette coach Al McGuire.

Players nominated for possible enshrinement were Earl Monroe, Dave Bing, Walt Bellamy, Larry Foust and two women — former UCLA and Olympic star Ann Meyers and Nora White, who led her Nashville-based team to 10 consecutive AAU championships.

Election requires 18 votes from the 25-member Hall of Fame Committee and auditors are announced in February.

Mitchell, Sierra named as magazine's players of year

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Sporting News has chosen Kevin Mitchell of San Francisco and Ruben Sierra of Texas as Players of the Year in their respective leagues.

The St. Louis-based magazine on Tuesday said it has also picked San Diego's Mark Davis as both the National League Pitcher of the Year and Fireman of the Year.

In the American League, Pitcher of the Year award went to Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen and Fireman of the Year was Jeff Russell of the Yankees.

Managers of the Year were Jerome Walton of Chicago in the NL and Craig Worthington of Baltimore in the AL.

NL Rookie Pitcher of the Year was Andy Benes of San Diego; AL honors went to Tim Lincecum of Seattle.

Coach of the Year of the National League was Lou Piniella of the Atlanta Braves; Davey Johnson of the Baltimore Orioles was selected in the AL.

Hard-working Horner becomes one of Bruins' best

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When you think of the word cheerleader, the name John Horner doesn't exactly spring to mind.

But the 6-foot-197-pound Twin Falls High School senior quarterback will be the first to admit he's a motivator. You just won't find him on the sideline.

"I'm a cheerleader basically," said Horner, a second-year starter for the Bruins. "I go around the sidelines and keep everybody pumped up."

And that's when he's not even on the field. When he's in on the field that's when Horner's at his best. Through nine games, he has completed 55.9 percent of his passes (113 for 222) for 2,006 yards, an average of 224 yards per game, with 18 touchdowns and 10 interceptions. He leads the Southern Idaho Conference, with which Twin Falls is informally affiliated, in total offense, passing yardage and scoring. When the Bruins play their final game of season Friday night in Sampa, Horner has a chance to break the single-season 4,000-yard mark set by Joel Jund in 1987.

The reason for his success in the Twin Falls backfield? Coach Jon Jund believes he has an answer.

"The reason is because of good work habits," Jund said. "He's been in the weight room the last two years. He's the hardest worker in the off-season."

"It helped me more than baseball," said Horner, who worked out on weights while playing catcher for the American Legion Cowboys' baseball team last summer. "I got stronger this summer."

As it turns out, Horner and teammate Casey Teske were the only two football players found at the weight machine during the summer.

"I love many guys want to get up at 7 in the morning," asked Horner.

The senior signal-caller won't take all the credit for the success that he's having this season. The Bruins have a formidable running game with Alan Heck, Forrest Ward and Leslie Hudson, and lots of different people who can catch the football.

"Receivers," he said. "Those guys make it much easier. Those guys aren't afraid to cut across the middle. I also have to give credit to my offensive line. They make me look good."

"He has good receivers. They complement each other. He's spreads the ball over all receivers," said Jund.

The statistics bear out that observation. Horner hits the open man.

"I don't have a favorite receiver," he said.

Series gets lowest number of TV viewers in 21 years

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Buy-ten-World Series was a flop on television.

The ratings plunged to their lowest levels in at least 21 years, and maybe even with less than a sixth of TV sets in the United States turned to the games on average.

The Oakland Athletics' four-game sweep of the San Francisco Giants on ABC got a 16.4 rating, according to statistics released Tuesday by Nielsen Media Research. Nielsen, which has been keeping ratings since 1950, said it was the lowest numbers since at least 1968, but that's not a significant admission because it determines if the ratings were the lowest ever.

Game 4 on Saturday night was the lowest-rated primetime World Series game ever, getting a 14.7 rating and a 28 share.

It was outdone by three programs on NBC — Golden Girls, Family Nest, and Hunter.

This year's rating was 28.4 percent less than the 23.0 rating of the 1984 World Series.

Fruitland loses hold in AP poll

By The Associated Press

Fruitland's Valley High School has held the eighth week hold on the top spot in the Associated Press Class A-1 high school football rankings.

In other changes this week, Tagaman took over the No. 1 spot in the A-4 rankings and defending state eighth man champion North Glen of Boneroff moved into first place tie with Fruitland of Coalinga.

Following Fruitland's 6-0 loss to Vale, Ore., last weekend — the first of the season for the Grizzlies — the state's sports writers and broadcasters gave the unbeaten Vikings five of the 11 first-place votes and 48 of a possible 55 points. Astoria's North Fremont High School, also unbeaten this year, got two first-place votes and 41 points while Portland, Ore., also received three first-place votes and 31 points.

The 1984 season ended with No. 1 three weeks ago, supplanted Mackay in the top spot after the Miners loss to Raft River of Malheur last weekend. The Pirates got eight of 14 first-place votes, and 50 of a possible 55 points, followed by Grand View of Rhine rock High School, 6-2, with two first-place votes and 31 points. Mackay, 6-3, dropped Ore., last weekend.

In the eighth-man rankings, unbeaten North Glen received six of 11 first-place votes and 44 of a possible 55 points.

Erickson knows not to meddle with success at Miami

By SALLY JENKINS
The Washington Post

MIAMI — Dennis Erickson's office at the University of Miami is as new and unadorned as a string-and-white-walls-and-brown-unpacked boxes. The No. 6 Hurricanes are not yet his team, but then they never really have belonged to anybody except themselves, with their deeply private rites and their elder-like names: "Doc," "The Conscience," "Hill."

Quiet-lumbering defensive lineman Russell Maryland is "The Dancing Bear" or "The Conscience." Leonard Conley's shaved head makes him "Combed" or "Kojak." The receivers are "The Dwarf," except for Hendat Hill, whose subtitle speed is such that it sets him apart. He is "Federal Express." Erickson is a sensitive sort of coach who knows not to interfere much with them. When he confronted them for the first time last spring, he said, "I'm not here to make this my team. It's yours. Just keep it where it's at."

The transference of loyalty and philosophy is a delicate matter at Miami. Under former coach Jimmy Johnson, the Hurricanes were ranked either No. 1 or No. 2 for three straight years, winning the national championship in 1987. With their 6-1 start this season, they have won 48 of their last 50 regular-season games, and 29 of 31 overall. Where it's at is the absolute top.

While Erickson and the Hurricanes are, for the time being, getting acquainted, the players have been disoriented by his gentle, undemanding style, yet he insisted on dismantling their old offense and installing a one-back set. The coach has been somewhat taken aback by his players' storied brashness, their manly wit and wits and quality. "I'm sure he's never seen these kind of crazy personalities," linebacker Bernard Clark said.

Their blending together has been a sometimes halting process, made more difficult by the loss of quarterback Clark Erickson to a broken finger and the entry of redshirt freshman Gino Torretta. Their record has come out exceptionally well, schedule and they await the next crucial stretch of the season with curious anticipation.

"I guess people sense a certain drop-off," offensive tackle Mike Sullivan said. "We may be winning ugly, but it's still winning."

Erickson, 42, is a nice man with a white head of hair and a voice often soaked with emotion. His credentials were achieved in comparatively obscure places: Idaho, Wyoming, Washington State. He is a builder of teams, an instiller of belief, who last season led Washington State to a 9-3 mark, its most wins since 1930.

The acquired reputation as a bit of a

Florida-basketball coach retires under pressure

The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Florida basketball coach Norm Sloan retired under pressure Tuesday, leaving a program that has been under investigation for more than 18 months and was recently linked to a federal drug case.

The school hired former Tennessee coach Dan DeVoe as interim coach.

In a six-paragraph letter to interim Florida president Robert Bryan, Sloan said he resigned at the request of the University Athletic Association, a private organization that governs the athletic department.

"His officials have presented evidence that certain student athletes (not now enrolled) during 'my tenure' have received benefits above those allowed by the NCAA," Sloan said.

Improvement is the A's next big challenge

By DAVE CAMPBENTER
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Sandy Alderson now faces one of his most daunting challenges: trying to improve the Oakland Athletics.

It's going to take money, lots of it, and the usual offseason heroics by the A's general manager. Even then, he's not sure it can be done.

"Talent isn't the only thing that wins games," Alderson said in the visitors' clubhouse at Candlestick Park Saturday night, shortly after the A's concluded their World Series sweep over the San Francisco Giants. "It takes talent, character and luck, and we had all three this year."

Those who witnessed Oakland's demotion of Toronto in the American League playoffs and the Giants in the Series might question the Athletics' need to get better. After winning 216 regular and postseason games in two years, the team's challenge might be to put the team on cruise control.

But the A's did not move into first place in the AL West to stay until Aug. 21. California and Kansas City both have younger teams on the way up. And as the 1984 Detroit Tigers learned, the team from best to worst isn't that long a ride if the right moves aren't made.

The first order of business will be to take care of players who are thinking of the free-agent market. Rickles, Henderson, Dave Parker and Storn Davis all were big contributors to the A's success in 1984 who can file for free agency as early as Monday. Alderson and other club officials will have to decide if they can afford to meet the demands of all three.

Henderson, acquired in a June 21 trade, had been offered $2.4 million a year over salary by the New York Yankees, his former team. He probably could get $3 million after spurring most valuable player talk during the regular season, players (where he was the MVP) and World Series with the A's.

Parker, 38, wants a two-year contract and maximum with another team if Oakland offers only a one-year deal. Davis, 19-7 with a 4.36 ERA, wants assurances he still has a place in the rotation after being passed over in the World Series.

Then there's Dave Stewart, who despite winning 20 games for the third straight season — plus four games in the postseason — is only the team's third-highest-paid starter, behind Mike Moore.

Zimmer named NL Manager of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Zimmer knows how quickly you can go from dummy to genius and back. "It was a dummy the last three games we played, a total dummy, but that's baseball," Zimmer said Tuesday after he was a near-unanimous choice for National League Manager of the Year. "I didn't do anything different the last three games we played except the decisions I made didn't turn out to good."

DON ZIMMER

"I'm glad that the Chicago Cubs to the NL East title before losing to San Francisco in five games in the playoffs, received 23 of 24 first-place votes from a panel chosen by the Baseball Writers Association of America."

San Francisco's Roger Craig, a close friend and former teammate of Zimmer's, got the other first-place vote. Zimmer, run out of Boston for not leading the Red Sox to a division title in the late 1970's, won his first pennant in 11 seasons as a major league manager.

"You feel like you want to share it with everybody who played a part in it," Zimmer said.

Near unanimous choice
Zimmer, the players who did the playing and Jim Frey, who hired me and got criticized for doing it. It just seemed like every move he made helped out the club."

Zimmer got 118 points in the 5-3 voting and Craig, who received 17 second-place votes, got 62. Whitey Herzog of St. Louis was third with 31 points and Art Howe of Houston was fourth with four points. Jack McKeen of San Diego got one point.

The 58-year-old Zimmer was named manager of the Cubs on Nov. 20, 1987, replacing Frank Lucchesi. Chicago finished 77-85 in 1988 and improved to 93-69 this year, winning the division by six games over New York.

The Cubs were 9-23 in spring training, the worst record in the majors. Zimmer was criticized but the team's play reversed as soon as the season started.

"Coming out of spring training, we weren't too good," Zimmer said. "We were terrible. I didn't think we were that bad even though I was saying that and people were laughing at me. But I thought the pitchers we had were a lot better than last year."

Chicago was seventh in the league with a 3.43 ERA and led the league in hitting at .261.

"You have to give the players the credit," Zimmer said. "I don't know how many times I said it, but I never threw a pitch and I never hit a ball."

After I can do it, manage the way I want to manage."

Zimmer was vilified when Boston blew a 14-6 game lead in 1978 and eventually lost the AL East to New York in a playoff. The Red Sox were 411-304 during his 46 seasons but he got very little credit.

But as the Cubs won their second East title in five years, Zimmer was proclaimed a genius. He found that a little humor, especially after Chicago lost to pennant to San Francisco in five games and he was criticized for some of his moves.

"In the playoffs, we did not play well and every move I did didn't turn out right. But we clinched this thing in Montreal and I was pretty smart," he said, half-jokingly. "But after we played the Giants, I got dumb in a hurry."

Zimmer, a .235 hitter in 12 major league seasons, managed in the minors from 1967-70. He coached for Montreal in 1981 and was a coach with San Diego when he replaced Preston Gomez in April 1970. He led the Padres to a 114-190 record but was fired after the 1973 season.

Questions raised over prep football on TV

By The Los Angeles Times

there are even national football and basketball "champions," the teams that finish first in USA Today's rankings.

But during the first season of nationally televised football drawing and making the games bigger than ever. But is the TV exposure making high school football any better? That's the question being asked by critics who oppose the TV contracts.

Inter-engineered by the National Federation of High School Associations, governing body of prep sports, with cable's Sports Channel and major homes across the country. Average this season, including 12 football games.

Critics say that TV will put additional pressure on players and coaches and expose them to the kinds of temptations that created a "monster" in the college ranks. As Tom Ricketts of Sports Illustrated's Rick Reilly—complained in a column before the season: "Why does high school football have to go big time when five-year contracts, Brown negotiating big-time has already been played out to a small like old game seeks?"

This high school football is baseball starts in December — now has its own national television package shouldn't surprise anyone who has been following prep sports in the '80s.

USA Today calls it the "new age" big corporation are paying millions to sponsor state championships events and influence players to wear their products. TV stations are buying rights to local games for as much as $1.5 million a year, and although the national federation doesn't recognize them, Brown said.

Padres' reliever Davis files for free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Davis, the San Diego Padres reliever who among 18 players who filed for free agency on Tuesday, raising to 36 the two-day number of those filing.

Davis struck out 92 batters in 2-3 innings and was worth a 1.85 earned-run average. He made $600,000 in 1989, and in April rejected a two-year contract extension for $2.2 million. At the time, Davis was asking for $2.8 million.

"Mark will pursue his opportunities," said Davis' agent, Randy Harts. "We're looking for agents who have a ready-made base for our agent any team he is very, very pleased to play in San Diego but now has an opportunity to consider many alternatives. And we want to pursue those alternatives."

Padres owner Joan Kroc, who is trying to sell the team, has designated Chicago lawyer Fred Lane as the club's chief negotiator with Davis, bypassing team president Dick Eickman and Tony Stiegel, the club's vice president for baseball operations.

"We're looking for everything possible to get Mark Davis signed," Lane said Tuesday. "We've got lines of communications open with his agents but they also have not been easy."

Davis, 29, had the second-highest save total in National League history. Bruce Sutter set the NL record of 45 in 1984 with the St. Louis Cardinals. The major league record of 46 is by Dave Righetti of the New York Yankees.

Also filing Tuesday were New York Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez and three pitchers from the Boston Red Sox — Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, Dennis Lamp and Greg Harris.

Shortstop Tony Phillips of the World Series champion Oakland Athletics filed as did left-hander Craig Lefferts and outfielder Pat Sheridan of the National League champion San Francisco Giants.

Quarterback released by New England after refusing pay proposal

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Tony Eason, who sank from starter to fourth stringer in just 19 days, was released Tuesday after refusing the New England Patriots' proposal that he work for free.

Owner Victor Kiam contended that he had agreed last spring to pay $1.1 million this season and $1.25 million in 1990 on the basis that Eason would be the starter. When that changed, Kiam wanted Eason's salary to change too.

With the season half over, Eason already had earned half his annual salary, $550,000.

New England proposed that for the rest of the year, Eason be paid his weekly salary of $68,750 in weeks in which he plays at least 50 percent of a game. Otherwise, he would get nothing.

Patriots General Manager Pat Sullivan said Tuesday the Patriots were reluctant last week to release Eason without getting anything in exchange.

But Sullivan added that the team decided that Eason, a first-round draft choice in 1983, would have a very limited trade value. The team decided Tuesday morning to release him even if he accepted the pay cut, Sullivan said.

There was little chance of that. Eason was "resistant to the concept" of staying with the Patriots "only for the purpose of being trade bait at the end of the season," Leigh Steinberg, his agent, said.

"I would have to disagree" with the assessment of Eason's trade value, he added. "I think the Patriots clearly could have worked out a very interesting trade in the off-season."

Eason couldn't be reached for comment. Steinberg said Eason was "disappointed" but "excited" about the chance to start over.

If a team claims Eason during the 24-hour waiver period, it would have to assume the remainder of his contract, Steinberg didn't expect that to happen.

If he clears waivers Wednesday, he could make a deal with what probably would be a lower salary. Steinberg said there is "no question" that Eason this season. However, Eason may wait until the season ends for better proposals. "We're looking to find him the best long-term situation," Steinberg said.

Despite injuries that limited Eason to six games in 1987 and 1988, Steinberg is optimistic the quarterback "will be successful in the NFL."

The Patriots, meanwhile, get nothing for the 1989 Super Bowl.

Eason, who turned 30 on Oct. 8, is the third first-round choice cut by New England this season, which is only half over. Centor Trevor Match, the 1985 pick, was waived on Sept. 6 and running back Reggie Dupard, the 1986 pick, was released on Oct. 24.

"It was quite simply the most enviable job in the country, and irresistible to say the least," said coach, particularly one who took the

But to the Hurricanes, this nice man also looked suspiciously like he might have two losses a year in him. When he fooled with their offense, the skeptical murmurs grew. They wanted Johnson's sleek arrogance, his fueling bursts of temper.

"People were saying, 'This is what Coach Johnson used to do. It's what I'm going to work,'" wide receiver Westey Carroll said. "There were doubts that he was the right guy. They thought he'd have a 9-2 season."

Three-year starter Sullivan saw and felt a hidden resistance to Erickson's new scheme. The Miami offense essentially had been the same since Howard Schnellenberger had adopted the pro-style attack from the Miami Dolphins and led the Hurricanes to a national championship in 1983.

By the old offense was developed over almost 10 years," Sullivan said. "Different people added one or two things; but you knew it inside and out. It was almost an art. So there was apprehension."

Free-agent signings in recent seasons included Moore, Dave Henderson, Ron Hassey, Glenn Hubbard and Don Baylor. This year they appeared to be fewer, even though a leadoff man, designated hitter and starter could be on the wish list. Rickie Henderson, Parker and Davison resigned.

Negotiations, Alderson said, "will start" as soon as somebody calls.

Former Idaho player cut by Jazz

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Jazz have cut rookie free agent Ray Brown of Idaho.

The move, announced late Monday, means that the starting stretch line-up will be the Jazz. Eric Johnson will be on the team when it opens the regular season—Friday against Denver.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pounder from Nebraska has made the Jazz as a backup point guard to A.H. Star. Stockton and, perhaps, second-year man Jim Levey.

Brown was trying to unseat Jose Ortiz, an incumbent backup forward in a 109-107 win-over Atlanta two weeks ago.

Ortiz, however, scored 10 points in 16 minutes in Utah's 100-91 loss to Portland Sunday night. It was his best effort of the preseason.

Ortiz has two guaranteed years remaining on his contract. If the Jazz had cut him, they still were liable for almost $1 million.

The 6-8 Brown made only 5-of-13 field goal attempts in five exhibition games. He scored 14 points in 55 minutes, with nine of those coming in a four-minute span of the fourth quarter.

"There's a nice stretch of them that I had confidence in all of them," he said.

Horner's best performances have come against the SIC schools, games in which he has passed for more than 200 yards in each of the games involving schools from the Treasure Valley.

"He has had to learn to read defenses since the Bruins joined the same post as a SIC school last year. Describing himself in one word comes fairly easy for the senior. "Hectic," he said. "I do stupid things and kick myself."
