BERLIN — East Germany ended all border restrictions Friday and cut a new passage in the Berlin Wall at Bernauer Strasse, where desperate people once leaped from windows and border guards shot down others trying to flee.

Work was reported on many more new openings in the wall that divided the city for 28 years.

More than 100,000 jubilant East Germans climbed over and rushed through borders Friday for the first time since 1961. They chatted amiably with stony-faced guards who no longer have orders to open fire.

Thousands crossed back and forth during the day. West German television showed East German guards helping East Berliners climb over the wall to avoid congested checkpoints. Some border guards were handed roses by beaming girls.

Communist leader Egon Krenz told 150,000 people at a rally in East Berlin that his new reforms "will not be turned back." The party's Central Committee approved a document calling for free elections, more restrictions on the security forces and greater separation of party and state.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany flew to West Berlin hoping to speak with Krenz, who has stunned the world with rapid reforms — and a pledge of free elections — intended to appease pro-democracy protesters and end emigration to the West.

Work began late Friday at the Bernauer Strasse.

East Germans used a hydraulic crane to dismantle the round top of the concrete wall. East German workers could be heard knocking on the wall.

Peter Zeidler, a West German police official at the scene, said "It will be a pretty hole that will make it possible for people and cars to come through."

The new crossing was scheduled to be opened at 8 a.m. Saturday.

On the Western side, dozens of firemen dismantled observation platforms from which West Berliners used to gaze across the wall. About 400 people watched, occasionally setting off fireworks.

"We are speechless," said Helmut Keuchel, 48. "This is a fabulous and overwhelming experience."

Several thousand people celebrated at the Brandenburg Gate, the great monument that like the wall, was a symbol of Berlin's division. Many danced on the wall, drank champagne, waved sparklers, set off fireworks and chanted: "The wall must go! The wall must go!"

East German border guards watched impassively as some in the crowd used picks and hammers to chip away pieces of the hated barrier for souvenirs.

Thousands of East Berliners poured across the Glienicke Bridge, on which some of the most famous spy trades took place.

In West Berlin, thousands more streamed along the elegant Kurfurstendamm shopping boulevard; some carrying candles, others toasting each other. Crowds of young girls could be seen rushing down the street toward stores. Bars offered free drinks to East Berliners.

Police in West Berlin said they gave up counting Friday when they reached 50,000 visitors.

Krenz told those at the rally that "the best of our people must be elected to Parliament." He said reforms would make "a new revolution on German soil" that would produce a communist system "economically effective, politically democratic, and morally pure."

"These are not empty promises," he declared, addressing the skepticism of those who have questioned his sincerity.

Communist officials said Thursday that, for the first time since the Berlin Wall was built, citizens could travel freely to the West until a new travel law was drafted. On Friday, they made the open border permanent.

Border issue up to all Europe

Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, while praising East Germany's decision to permit its citizens to travel freely to West Germany, reminded Bonn Friday that there is still an international border between the two countries and that it cannot be changed without the agreement of the rest of Europe.

Gennadiy I. Gerasimov, the chief spokesman for the Soviet Foreign Ministry, warned the West German government not to press ahead with proposals for German reunification, for other political changes in Central Europe or for any alteration of postwar borders, because all could undermine the continent's stability.

"Bonn should take into account the fact that a policy aimed at changing borders would not suit any government in Europe and would only sow distrust," Gerasimov told reporters at a Foreign Ministry briefing.

The East German decision to open the border introduced new regulations for crossing, Gerasimov said, but the border remains — as does — the Soviet Union's commitment to observe it and to support East Germany as a strategic ally.

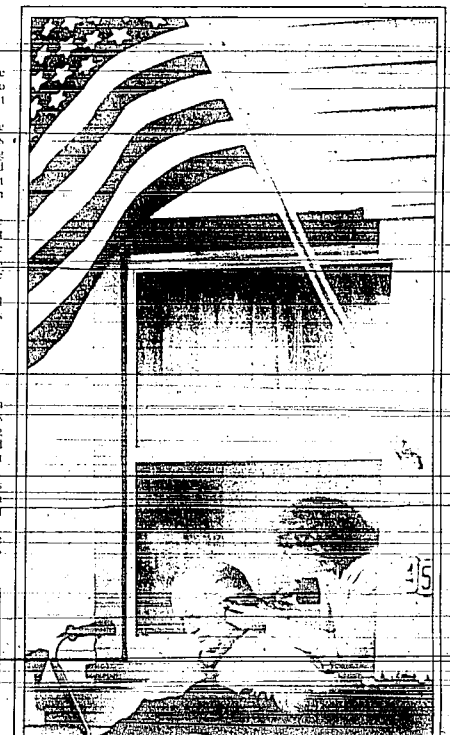

"Politically, it is not the time now to talk about German reunification," Gerasimov said, commenting on widespread speculation in the West that current developments are only a prelude to the formation of some kind of united Germany. "The two Germans belong to different military blocs."

But the decision to permit free travel, Gerasimov continued, is far-sighted, both in terms of solving East Germany's political crisis and in building support for what Moscow calls "new thinking" in international relations.

"This is a symbolic event—a wise decision, in my view, because it destroys all the stereotypes about the Iron Curtain," Gerasimov said. "It is a historic moment. We hope — we are sure — it is for the best."

American aid to E. Germany unlikely

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush promised Friday "to seize every chance" to promote democracy in turbulent Eastern Europe but Secretary of State James A. Baker III ruled out substantial Western aid for East Germany until there is political pluralism across the board.

Bush, traveling in Texas, noted the spectacle of Berliners hacking at the wall that divides their city with hammers and chisels and the opening of 18 crossings in the wall and said he was surprised at the speed of change.

The accelerating torrent of change in previously closed societies "offers us all much hope and deserves our continued encouragement," Bush said in a Dallas speech.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said West German

Chancellor Helmut Kohl spoke with Bush by telephone for 18 minutes and gave him a "thorough briefing on the first part of his trip to Poland and on developments in East Germany."

Bush congratulated Kohl on his handling of the East German situation and "promised the full cooperation of the United States."

The two "agreed that these dramatic developments make the War game leaves sheriff up in arms

The Associated Press

CORVALLIS, Mont. — A pre-dawn Army shoot-'em-up — complete with machine-gun fire, flares and soldiers racing through civilians' yards — has the sheriff, well, up in arms.

The mock military attack came on Thursday at 4:30 a.m., a time Sheriff Jay Printz said was totally inappropriate.

Calls from terrified residents came in so quickly "my lone dispatcher couldn't get everybody's name," Printz said. "One woman was so scared she was calling from the bathroom, where she'd locked herself in" the sheriff said. Callers told of unidentified men firing automatic weapons and shooting flares and warriors racing across the deck of a private house, Printz said.

The Army was "essentially having a little war game just outside Corvallis, which is south of Missoula in western Montana," Printz said.

Complaints focused on rude disruptions in the pre-dawn, trespass on private property, spoiled livestock bouncing off barbed-wire fences and potential fires from flares on roofs, the sheriff said.

Army officials refused to say anything other than there would be an investigation of the complaints.

Margaret Searle said her family thought it was a "war zone" outside. Her husband got his rifle and fired a round into a wood pile to scare off the soldiers, she said.

The woman said military investigators came by later and told her the special forces troops were making steno-camp to blow up a fuel depot. She noted there are some fuel storage tanks a few hundred yards from the family residence.

Ancient city yields human sacrifices

The Washington Post

On a sacred mountaintop in the ancient Andean city of Tiwanaku, archaeologists have uncovered a human and mysterious sacrifice of 1,000 bodies that may have been carried out to celebrate victory in a war that ended more than 1,300 years ago.

The burial, in a temple called Akapana, in what is now Bolivia, was copied by Inca kings at their height of power, with apparently, accompanied by a drunken ritual in which hundreds of intricately made beer goblets were shattered on the floor.

The revelry was completed by the sacrifice of a young man whose skeleton was then carefully placed face down on the shards of broken pottery that covered a 400-square-foot room. Dozens of other bodies most of them decapitated, were laid out geometrically in graves around the base of the temple mound.

"It has to be a central event in their civilization," said Alan Kolata, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, who has led the excavation of the Tiwanaku capital, 13,000 feet above sea level on the shores of Lake Titicaca. "At that time, the Tiwanaku were a developing, predatory empire expanding throughout the region."

The Tiwanaku (the name, sometimes spelled Tiawanaco, applies to the people and the city) have been little remembered compared to the Incas, who came hundreds of years later, but it was once the mightiest empire in the Americas, dominating an area as large as California for more than 1,000 years. Researchers say the sacrifice probably took place about 600 A.D.

Despite the difficulties of farming mountainous land at 13,000 feet, Tiwanaku agriculture supported as many as 150,000 citizens.

Aquino mum on issue of U.S. bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philippines President Corason Aquino ended her visit Friday with pledges of U.S. economic support but no outward sign that she will back continued American use of military bases in her country.

Before departing, Mrs. Aquino had breakfast with Vice President Dan Quayle and U.S.-backed Nicaraguan opposition candidate Violeta Chamorro.

Mrs. Aquino, accompanied by members of her Cabinet and aides, later left for Dallas, where she planned to resume what she has described as the main purpose of her mission to the United States — encouraging trade and investment needed for the Philippines' economic recovery.

Corn-borer vaccine trials scheduled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Maryland company said Friday it will begin field trials of a plant vaccine, which could inoculate corn plants against an insect that costs U.S. farmers $500 million a year.

In greenhouse tests, corn borer damage was reduced by 80 percent in plants inoculated with the naturally occurring microorganism, according to a statement released by Crop Genetics International of Hanover, Md.

"This is the first time that a plant has been able to grow its own genetically-engineered pesticide in its vascular system," the company said.

The borer is a pest on 20 million acres of the U.S. corn crop, the company said.

He also resigned from the ruling Politburo, the official BTA news agency reported. Zhivkov asked to be relieved of his largely ceremonial post as state president as well. This must be approved by the National Assembly.

The new leader made it clear in a speech to the Central Committee that the party would not relinquish power, but indicated that degree of opposition would be permitted.

"We should not worry nor should we be scared by the fact that at seeking — right solutions there can and surely will be pluralism in the opinions," BTA quoted Mladenov as saying.

Zhivkov's resignation followed by weeks the removal of 77-year-old Erich Honecker in East Germany, where mass emigration and protest have propelled breathtaking change.

It leaves Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania as the last old guard Communist still reigning in Eastern Europe.

Mladenov has been foreign minister since 1971. He is described as "people close to him as firm, authoritarian and a man who listens carefully to people's opinions."

agency Tass, wrote that East Germany's decision has effectively demolished the Berlin Wall and that the Soviet Union, as the initiator of the new East bloc approach to foreign policy, strongly supports the move as a step toward a "common European home" stretching from the Atlantic Ocean to the Ural Mountains.

"The pulling down of the Berlin Wall, which has symbolized the division of Europe for many years, is surely a positive and important fact," Kormlov commented Friday.

"It demonstrates that the leadership of the German Democratic Republic is resolved to continue its course of renovation and its in-depth reforms, that are designed to make socialism politically democratic."

Gerasimov, pressed to speculate on the circumstances in which East Germany might leave the Warsaw Pact, the Soviet-led Eastern European military alliance, said that this might be possible if West Germany were to leave the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

While senior Soviet officials have suggested recently that Moscow is prepared for Hungary to drift out of the Warsaw Pact and into a vague neutral status, Gerasimov noted that East Germany is on a "more important geographical plane" in confronting NATO and that large numbers of Soviet soldiers (380,000 by Western estimates) are stationed there.

"We proposed long ago that military forces be disbanded," Gerasimov said. "This is a long-held position. To convert the German Democratic Republic into some kind of neutral Austria is very hypothetical. But why should it be converted? It's our ally. This whole question should be approached from the position of a common European home (where) West doesn't threaten East and East doesn't threaten West."

Moscow has been surprised by the speed of developments in East Germany, Gerasimov said, and concerned about the exodus of tens of thousands of people from the country in recent weeks. But the Soviet leadership has been in close touch with East Berlin in recent days and was aware of its plans to permit free travel.

"Everybody has been worried about the possible instability," Gerasimov said, referring to the economic as well as the political and social impact of the loss of so many of East Germany's skilled young workers.

Malta meeting (between Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev) even more important and agreed to consult closely between now and the meeting.

Fitzwater said: "He said they would talk again next week."

Bush offered no specifics as to future policy, saying only that he would be guided by "prudence" and "imagination."

But in remarks prepared for delivery at a fund-raising dinner for Texas Gov. Bill Clements, the president sounded a note of restraint.

"The best way to keep America and the West free is to keep ourselves strong," Bush said.

"This country must not base its foreign policy or its national security on the aspirations of one man inside the Soviet Union or anywhere else."

Baker hinted at a go-slow approach toward East Germany. "There's a long way to go before there is true freedom and real political pluralism in East Germany," Baker said on ABC's "Good Morning America." "That doesn't mean we don't welcome this step."

Baker, while calling the East German decision to open its borders "the most dramatic event in East-West relations" since the end of World War II, said the United States and other allies believe any discussion of an aid-program now would be premature.

The allies, he said, will be much more forthcoming about helping East Germany only if there is "political pluralism across the board."

Baker said freedom to travel must be followed by other steps before there can be a serious discussion of a united Germany.

Comments in official Washington all day mixed caution with exaltation.

Industrialist Hammer hospitalized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Industrialist Armand Hammer was hospitalized Friday at UCLA Medical Center, near the headquarters of his Occidental Petroleum Corp.
Public affairs officials at the University of California hospital said they could provide no details on the 91-year-old Hammer until they finished preparing a statement, and Occidental officials did not immediately return a telephone call.
Hammer, 91, the chairman of Occidental, is nearly as well-known for his art collecting and philanthropy as for his business acumen. He considers himself a private ambassador for world peace and has met every Soviet leader since Vladimir Lenin.
He was pardoned earlier this year by President Bush for a Watergate-era crime, making his contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

Court allows sale of banned firearms

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A court-approved agreement permits a gun dealer to sell to police officers a $4.7-million shipment of semiautomatic rifles impounded under a Bush administration ban nine months ago.
Gun South Inc.'s shipment of 1,252 Steyr AUG-BA semiautomatic rifles was seized by Customs at the Birmingham airport in March, leading to one of the first court challenges to the government monitoring imports of such weapons.
Under the agreement approved Thursday by U.S. District Judge William Acker, the dealer can sell the impounded rifles, plus 3,000 more Steyrs awaiting shipment Austria, but the sales can be made only to officers of law enforcement agencies. The dealer had planned to sell them to hunters.

U.S., Soviets open trade negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States will hold high-level discussions next week on a variety of trade topics with the talks expected to lay the groundwork for increased trade between the two countries, U.S. officials said Friday.
Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher will head the U.S. delegation to the discussions, which will take place Wednesday and Thursday at the Commerce Department. His Soviet counterpart will be Konstantin F. Katshev, Soviet minister of foreign economic relations.
The meetings are formally known as the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Commercial Commission, a group set up in 1972 to promote trade between the two nations. The discussions have been held annually since then except for a period in the early 1980s when they were suspended after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Anti-Castro extremist accepts order

MIAMI (AP) — Anti-Castro extremist Orlando Bosch is tired of jail and will give up his fight against government efforts to deport him, relatives said.
"He doesn't want to prolong the anguish, after two years of this," said Bosch's wife, Adriana.
Bosch has 50 days to appeal a judge's ruling Wednesday that upheld the government decision to deport him. But if he notifies the government in writing that he won't appeal, he could be deported as soon as the State Department can find a country to accept him.
He feels that to appeal would be giving his approval to the judicial limbo in which he has been kept," Mrs. Bosch said Thursday.

Floods claim homes, collapse bridge

EVERSON, Wash. (AP) — Rain and melting snow pushed rivers over their banks, sweeping away at least three homes, collapsing part of a bridge and forcing 50 people to evacuate, officials said Friday.
Flood warnings remained in effect Friday along the Nooksack and three other rivers in northwestern Washington, with the National Weather Service predicting warm weather and occasionally heavy rain in the Cascade Mountains.

Bush proposes housing program for poor

DALLAS (AP) — President Bush promised Friday to "recapture the American dream of home ownership" for all Americans and provide shelter for the poor and homeless, with a three-year, $4.2 billion spending package.
"The true measure of success isn't how many families we add to housing assistance rolls. It's how many families move up and out and into the ranks of homeowners," Bush said without specifying where he would find the money.
The secretary of housing and urban development, Jack Kemp, told reporters he hoped the money would come from a cut in the capital gains tax, a proposal that has encountered vigorous opposition on Capitol Hill.
Bush, speaking to the National Association of Realtors, said the program would entail $4.2 billion in federal spending for three years starting in fiscal 1991, which begins Oct. 1, 1990.
In addition to the $4.2 billion in actual spending, Kemp said, the package will cost the government "several billion" dollars in revenue lost due to tax incentives, including low-income housing tax credits and penalty-free IRA withdrawals for home down payments.

The program, unlike congressional housing proposals, does not provide any money for new construction of low-income housing.
The financing levels in the Bush proposal are well below legislation making its way through both the House and Senate, but well above anything proposed in the Reagan administration.
Bush proposed $2.15 billion in grants to help low-income families buy units in public housing buildings, or vacant or foreclosed properties under the program — Home Ownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere, or HOPE.
Bush's plan:
• Provides $728 million for the homeless to be equally matched by states, local government or private groups for housing and support services such as social and mental health programs. That would be above the more than $200 million already envisioned in HUD spending under the McKinney Act to serve the homeless through a variety of federal programs.

Soviets angry over laser charges

MOSCOW (AP) — A government spokesman Friday accused Pentagon officials of trying to spoil superpower relations by charging that Soviet ships in the Pacific shot lasers at U.S. military aircraft.
"Right wing forces in the United States are seeking to poison the atmosphere of the two countries' relations by fanning up some insignificant scandal," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady J. Gerasimov.
He told a news briefing the scandal was timed to sour President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's summit with President Bush next month on ships in the Mediterranean Sea off Malta.
U.S. Defense Department officials said Thursday the Soviets were suspected of shooting lasers at four U.S. military aircraft in the Pacific in recent weeks, damaging the eyesight of an Air Force crewman in one incident.

Iran: funds won't free hostages

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran Friday reiterated the U.S. release this week of $567 million of frozen Iranian assets won't affect the status of Americans held hostage in Lebanon.
"The payment was solely in line with the Algiers agreements," Jahromi was quoted as saying by the broadcast, monitored in Cyprus.
Iran's claims against American banks were similarly paid.

Two Berlin women hug each other at a border crossing point Friday East Berliners make day trips to the west

BERLIN (AP) — They lined up at banks for the "welcome money," stared wonderingly in the stores, took the day off work to make the trip, laughed with delight, or were just a bit apprehensive.

For many of the thousands of East Berliners who streamed across the border on Friday, it was their first sight of the West — day trippers making history.

"I've waited for this day all my life. Coming here, it's like learning to walk again," said Stefan Needack, a 27-year-old carpenter from East Berlin.

Standing in the Wertheim department store on West Berlin's elegant Kurfurstendamm shopping street, Needack was torn between buying some perfume for his girlfriend, splurging on new clothes or just looking.

Outside the store, hundreds of other East Germans milled around with West Berliners, staring up at a giant news flash on a building with the sign "Hello neighbors from East Berlin. Welcome to Berlin."

Banks, which normally close at 1 p.m. on Fridays, stayed open through the early evening, dispensing a gift of 100 West German marks (about $50) in "welcome money" to each arrival from toddlers in strollers to grandparents.

The West German government for years has been giving all East Germans the sum to help them cover the cost of the trips, since East German marks are not convertible.

Some West Berliners mused about the cost, but few gumbled openly. Each of the East Berliners who had hurried across got the money simply by presenting an East German identity card or a passport and filling out a form. Their documents were stamped to show they'd received the one-time payment.

Officials said about 50,000 East Berliners crossed before mid-morning, but later said they had lost count.

Bank clerks moved up and down the lines handing out forms, telling surprised young mothers that babies were eligible too, shaking hands and moving on to the next ones.

"It would take me two months to earn enough to buy this amount of West German money at home," said Anna-Katherine Schwartz, 26, who arrived on a commuter train with her husband and baby.

For the couple, who run a small business selling plants in East Berlin, it was their first sight of the West.

Poland understands Kohl cancelling visit, hopes he will return

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland said it understood Chancellor Helmut Kohl's decision to break off a visit Friday after the dramatic opening of East Germany's borders, and officials tried to salvage the future of the trip.

The stunning developments in East Germany were the main topic of talks when Kohl met with Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki on Friday and said he planned to go back to West Germany, according to Kohl spokesman Hans-Klein.

"The prime minister showed his understanding for the decision of the chancellor to cut short his visit," Klein said, adding that Kohl "wanted to do everything to create the impression that West German interests in Poland had not been Kohl has bigger problems and everybody must understand that, it would have been politically unwise for him not to return," said Jerzy Ostrowski, head of the central planning

Chinese confess to economic crimes

BEIJING (AP) — More than 36,000 people have turned themselves in for economic crimes during a 10-week grace period that ended last week, a senior judicial official said Friday.

They included 9,300 Communist Party members and one vice minister, and three people who embezzled more than $270,000, said deputy chief prosecutor Zhang Siqing.

The People's Supreme Court and prosecutor's office announced Aug. 15 that all who turned themselves in before Oct. 31 for economic crimes would be treated leniently.

Those who confessed admitted receiving bribes and embezzling $94 million, and returned the equivalent of $56 million in "ill-gotten gains," the state-run Xinhua News Agency quoted Zhang as saying.

A. A big beast called the Weddell seal of Antarctica. Half a ton plus. More than 10 feet long.

Compare the printing industry and the wine industry. What history makes clear is Man craved drink long before he ever took an interest in writings. Gutenberg's first printing press was a renovated wine press. And wine press had been around for many centuries.

"Where you a 'cubose baby?" Word mechanics say that term — meaning the last born in a large family — is gaining currency.

Q. Not counting exotic work like bomb diffusing, statistically what is the most dangerous profession?
A. Firefighting.

RESUME WRITING
If you're putting together a resume for your job search, head it with the work you want. On that first line, put "Accountant, Entry Level." Or "Secretary, Legal." Or "Purveyor." Or whatever. Nearly half the resumes sent to employers get less than a minute's attention, according to personnel experts. Your name, address and phone number, they say, should come second. What most interests a hirer is whether you can solve the company's problem. What job can you fill?

Diary solves mystery of unknown soldier 45 years later

PARIS (AP) — For 45 years, the fate of U.S. Army Sgt. Lloyd Willard Wibben was a mystery to both his family and the residents of Treguier, a coastal village in northwestern France.

Family members knew Wibben had died somewhere in France during World War II. The villagers knew an American soldier fell while liberating their town, but they never knew his name.

A historian's persistence finally led to the name, jotted in the yellowed pages of a diary kept by the commander of Wibben's regiment.

This week, Mervin Wibben of St. Charles, Ill., arrived in Treguier, population 3,400, at the invitation of city elders to join them in honoring his older brother.

Today, Armistice Day in France, Wibben will lay a wreath at a new monument the villagers are dedicating to the man who was once their unknown soldier.

Lloyd Wibben was 24 years old on Aug. 14, 1944, when his 15th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron advanced just to the edge of Treguier, a village 300 miles west of Paris.

They found the road blocked by mines. Wibben and other soldiers left their vehicles to clear the road. Wibben was killed in a barrage of German fire.

The villagers placed a simple granite marker where he died, dedicated "to the unknown American soldier who died during the Liberation 14 August 1944." He was buried in Plot K, Row 7, at the American military cemetery at St. James in Normandy, along with about 4,400 other U.S. soldiers who died in the fighting.

"The Americans took the village and eventually stopped the Nazis' counterattack on Avranches.

"All we really knew was that that we got telegram from the Army that Lloyd was killed in France," Wibben said Wednesday by telephone from Treguier.

"We didn't know too much more of it until Treguier contacted us to help in this ceremony," he said. "He really is some kind of hero to the people here."

The people of Treguier did not know the soldier's name until local historian Yvon Herve launched a research project about two years ago.

His search eventually led him to retired Col. Robert Dwan, who commanded the 15th Cavalry Regiment and kept a diary listing all the men under his command who had died.

Dwan showed Herve the entry for Aug. 14, 1944, and further investigation confirmed that Wibben was Treguier's unknown soldier.

"Very few people in the war kept a diary like that," said Mervin Wibben, a semi-retired metal processor who served with the U.S. Army in the Pacific. "Most of them just wanted to forget about everything."

Herve considered the puzzle fully solved in mid-September, and Treguier officials started planning a ceremony to place a bronze plaque with Wibben's name over the old granite marker.

"Because we have learned his identity, we wanted to name his brother," said Herve. "For us, this ceremony is a symbol of our freedom."

Mervin Wibben and his wife, Jan, flew to Paris courtesy of Air France on Wednesday before flying on to Treguier. They visited Wibben's grave and will tour the area around the World War II battlefields before leaving for home Sunday.

Crosby, Stills & Nash play for Santa Cruz quake relief benefit

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — The venerable rock group Crosby, Stills & Nash brought music back to this quake-damaged city in a benefit concert that raised more than $21,000 for county relief agencies.

The band performed two shows Thursday night at the Catalina nightclub, just a half-block from the Pacific Garden Mall, which suffered severe damage in the Oct. 17 quake. Three people were killed when several dozen mall buildings collapsed.

The 400 people at each show were a mix of yuppies and yuppies that savored the folksy standards by David Crosby, Stephen Stills and Graham Nash.

The three refrained from making benefit speeches, letting their guitars do the talking, but Nash dedicated "Our House" to the Cooper House, a county courthouse dating from the 1890s that was converted to a mixed commercial building. The structure was severely damaged in the quake. Nash arranged the benefit with longtime tour manager R. Mac Holbert at Santa Cruz native.

The 44-year-old ballerina, who inspired choreographer George Balanchine to create some of his greatest dances for her, will perform in the Der Rosenkavalier section of "Metina," "Waltzes" created by Balanchine in 1977.

Farrell, who joined the ballet company in 1967, announced she would retire in 1988, but the company then said she would want to see how she felt after hip-replacement surgery. She has danced in three ballets since then.

"If my dancing has been able to express even a fraction of what Mr. Balanchine gave me, I will consider myself very fortunate indeed," Farrell said.

Woman granted car burial wish

AURORA, Ind. (AP) — A woman who buried Friday in the back of her beloved red Cadillac convertible, said funeral home officials.

Aurora Schuck told her husband, Raymond, about 10 years ago that she wanted to be buried with her 1976 Cadillac, so Schuck bought four plots at the Riverview Cemetery.

"The casket is going to be placed on the back of the car. The top's down, so it will just be placed on that, across the back," said a spokesman for Ruhlman Funeral Home who would not give his name.

Mrs. Schuck, a native of Cuba, died Tuesday of cancer at age 62.

Terry Adams, superintendent of the cemetery, said the cemetery board had approved the unusual burial.

A construction company dug a grave large enough for the car. The Cadillac was lifted with a crane and placed into a vault, which measured 27 feet by 12 feet and was 6 feet deep, Adams said.

Sandinistas, Contras make progress in sessions

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Nicaragua's government and the U.S.-backed Contras made progress during talks Friday on a truce, amnesty and disbanding of the rebels, but an accord is not yet in sight, diplomats said privately Friday.

The Contra military commander and chief negotiator, Enrique Bermudez, said, "We are negotiating now our return to Nicaragua in accord with the Tela agreement, and we are ready to go back once there is a meeting of minds between the Sandinistas and our side."

"There have been certain advances," said a source close to the talks, speaking on condition of anonymity. "There has been some progress."

Bermudez has not rejected the Dec. 5 deadline for disbanding, set by a peace accord signed by the five Central American presidents at Tela, Honduras, on Aug. 7, he said.

The leftist Sandinistas and Contras are close to agreement on a cease-fire, but the government wants the truce to be part of a pact to disband the Contras, said the source.

"Despite tough talk," both sides appeared committed to reaching some sort of agreement on ending an 8-year-old war that has cost an estimated 12,000 lives.

The source said that talks late Friday turned to the schedule of the Contra demobilization and the steps involved, the thorniest issue for both sides.

One element of uncertainty is whether all Contra field commanders will abide by any agreement reached at the United Nations.

This week, a new rebel civilian-military commission was announced, which included only one former Contra director, Aristides Sanchez. Some of the former directors said they had been ousted in a coup.

The leader of the new commission, Israel Galeano, said in a letter to Vice President Dan Quayle released Friday: "It would be foolish to voluntarily hand over our weapons before free elections are held" Feb. 25.

Dissidents say Deng forced out

PARIS (AP) — Chinese who led their country's pro-democracy movement said Friday that international disgrace forced Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping to resign.

Deng, 85, gave up the chairmanship of the Communist Party's Central Military Commission on Thursday and was replaced by his chosen successor and Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin.

"The resignation of Deng appears to us ... as the necessary result of the June 4 massacre," the Paris-based Federation for Democracy in China said in a statement issued Friday.

The federation founded by exiled Chinese dissidents said Deng's resignation proved the government is unstable, though he is believed to retain a dominant political role.

"In the face of criticism from the Chinese people, from the people of the whole world and from democratic governments, Deng Xiaoping understood he could no longer remain head of the military commission," the statement said.

Deng met former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Beijing on Friday, reinforcing the general feeling that Deng remains a powerful figure.

In Tokyo, Japanese government officials said Japan's new leaders will cause little change in China's domestic and international policies.

Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama and Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto said Japan won't change its policy before China's new leaders articulate their positions.

"The important thing is, we should maintain our stand not to isolate China," Chief Cabinet Secretary Mayumi Moriama told a news conference.

Wendell American Legion booming

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Veterans of American Legion Post 41 in Wendell serve steaming hot Sunday morning breakfasts, including the huge "Bardisop," the "Fashole Special," and the ever-popular "biscons and gravy-called "S.O.S."

Its 269 active members have made Post 41 the fourth largest of Idaho's 102 posts, topped only by Mountain Home, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene.

"We have a group of very dedicated legionnaires belonging to the post and working for the community," Wendell Commander Dee Collins said. "There's always something going on."

The American Legion is growing nationally and Idaho is following the trend.

For the first time since 1948, national membership this year topped three million.

Posts plan food convoy

TWIN FALLS — American Legion posts across the state will have their 8th annual food convoy Nov. 18.

Sacks of potatoes, boxes of canned goods, sugar and flour will be donated and taken to the veterans nursing home in Boise. "It's a barrage of cars and pickups," Hagerman Legionnaire Reva Oweley said. "They bring thousands and thousands of things to the nursing home. It's very highly supported throughout the state."

The "food drive" helps Idaho's veterans' home be one of the few in the western United States that financially is "in the black and not in the red," Gooding Legion Commander Lloyd Trimmer said.

See CONVOY on Page B2

"Last year was the biggest year the American Legion has had in Idaho ever," said Roland Gardner, 5th District commander and post adjutant in Twin Falls.

The increase is due to new veterans of Vietnam, to a growing concern about loss of benefits and to a recent surge of patriotism in the United States, said Mel Naper, a Korean veteran who serves as state adjutant for the American Legion.

Legionnaires see an ever growing waiting list for admission to the state's only veterans nursing home in Boise and are concerned about new restrictions in the care available to the patients there, Naper said.

"The government is taking away a lot of the veterans benefits," Naper said. "If we don't work together, we're going to lose more of them."

Improvement district needs new manager

TWIN FALLS — The downtown Business Improvement District is searching for a new manager after Sue Jones resigned to take a job at the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

"I'm not unhappy," Jones said. "It's just that I'm going on to bigger and better things."

Jones worked as manager under the direction of the nine-member BID board for more than three years. She said her new position with the chamber will enable her to continue working on behalf of downtown merchants. She will also help coordinate chamber membership activities.

The BID is looking for a full-time replacement who has developmental and public relations skills as well as an ability to handle advertising and special budgets.

The application deadline is Nov. 20. The board will discuss all applications at that time, Jones said.

Naturopath leaves jail after posting bond of $60,000

TWIN FALLS — James Solomon, the local naturopath who was arrested last month on posted bond Thursday and was released from jail, a Twin Falls County jail spokesman said.

Neither of Solomon's two attorneys could be reached for comment.

Solomon's bail was reduced this week to $60,000 from $300,000 by a 5th District Magistrate judge.

Solomon was arrested on charges of practicing medicine without a license and grand theft by deception for allegedly promising to cure two patients of cancer. Prosecutors charged at the bond reduction hearing on Monday that Solomon used sugar pills and alcohol and water solutions to vaccinate children against scarlet fever, polio, typhoid, tetanus and other childhood diseases.

State will help Twin Falls pay for bike path work

TWIN FALLS — The state has granted $47,125 to Twin Falls for bike paths. More than $15,000 will be used to construct a walkway on Fillmore Street and Grant Avenue. The remaining $32,000 will go towards a paved bike path in Rock Creek Canyon.

The grant money comes from an oil well penny account administered by the state. Caldwell and Weiser will also receive bike path construction funds.

Heyburn council postpones public sewer grant hearing

HEYBURN — The City Council rescheduled a public hearing because it didn't have a quorum at its Wednesday meeting.

Councilman Nile Bohon was excused from the meeting for jury duty and Councilman Harvey Badger was delayed at a meeting in Boise.

The public hearing required for a sewer grant application was set for noon Nov. 20 at City Hall. The deadline for the grant application is Nov. 20, so City Superintendent Al Hodge will take the application to Boise.

Rare lung ailment causes woman to seek transplant

TWIN FALLS — Victoria L. Bernier, who grew up in Twin Falls but later married and moved to Boise, needs a new heart and lung.

She suffers from a rare lung disease called primary pulmonary hypertension severe, said her father, Marvin Collins.

Bernier and her two children have moved into her parents' Twin Falls home while her husband continues to work in Boise. Collins said his daughter's husband's health insurance won't cover all the costs of a lung and heart transplant.

A regular checking account has been set up in Bernier's name with Twin Falls Bank and Trust for donations.

Burley German Club lofts East German flag

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — German Club members at Burley High School raised an East German flag Friday just before the flag of the United States to celebrate the growing freedoms developing in the East Bloc country.

"They lowered the flag later in the afternoon to the tunes of the East German national anthem, played by the high school band, to celebrate events in the country, most specifically the symbolic downfall of the Berlin Wall Thursday.

"I think it's about time that the wall came down and it's really neat that it happened," Heather Osterhout, senior and president of the German club, said.

Osterhout said, the sadnessness of Thursday's events, when East Germans opened the wall and citizens freely crossed into the West for the first time since 1961, surprised her, although the club has been following developments through the news media.

"I didn't think it would happen that fast," she said.

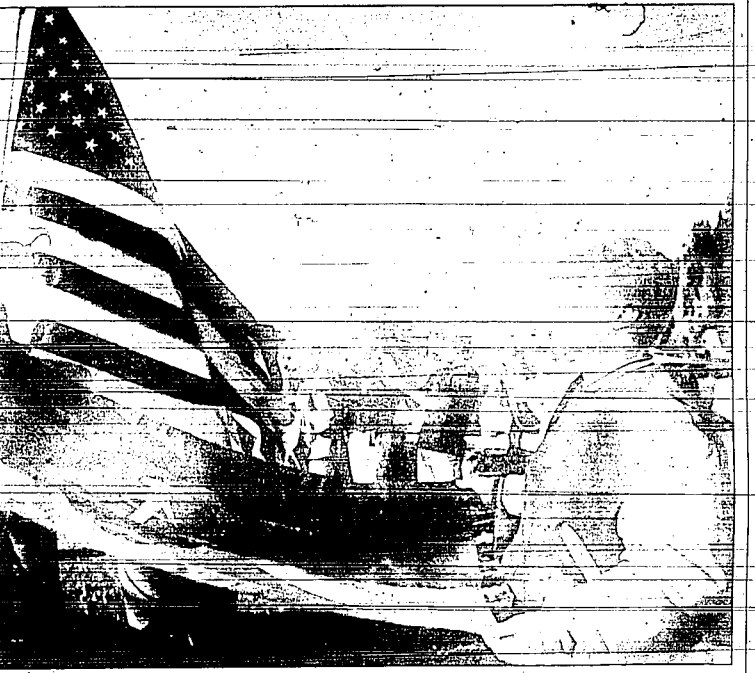

Another German Club member, Walter McCall, said, "It's neat to watch history in the making. This isn't just old history, it's new history." It shows the world that "communism is turning around and democracy has a big voice throughout the world," McCall said.

The German Club, under the direction of David Badger and with the support of Principal John Biletz, decided Thursday to fly the East German flag Badger uses in his class.

Club members hope to promote awareness of the significance of the events. "We are part of the world, even though we live in Burley, Idaho," McCall said. "We need to know what's going on around us."

After the flag was hoisted, band director Steve Flindt suggested to Badger that the band play the East German anthem at the flag lowering. The school

Murtaugh sustains 1st holdup in many years

MURTAUGH — Mark and Barb's Market on U.S. Highway 30 was robbed Friday in Murtaugh's first such crime in decades.

The culprit took an undisclosed amount of cash from the register and a case of beer, said the Maxon, chief deputy of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department. The robber remained at large Friday evening.

Murtaugh Marshal Francis Johnson said it's been years since the last such robbery occurred in the town of 270 residents.

"I can't think of any in the last 40," he said.

The sheriff's department received a call about a strong-arm robbery at the market at about 1 p.m., but the store clerk never saw a weapon, Maxon said.

"It was mostly verbal intimidation," he said.

The owners' 19-year-old daughter was clerking alone in the store when the Poison use for snails, slugs linked to deaths of 11 dogs

By The Times-News and Associated Press

HEYBURN — One of at least 11 dogs that died shortly after being along a stretch of the Snake River east of town died of poisoning, a laboratory report said.

A tissue sample sent to the toxicology lab at the University of Idaho showed traces of metaldehyde, a poison used to kill slugs and snails, Kelley Chamberlain, a veterinarian with the Rupert Animal Hospital, said Friday.

Although officials don't know how the animal ingested the poison, Chamberlain said he suspects the dog ate contaminated meat, possibly fish bait, found along a six-mile stretch of the river from the baseline bridge to just south of Rupert, where Frenchman Island begins.

"Most of these animals had sand in their stomachs, suggesting that they ate off the surface," he said. The river is considerably lower than its usual level.

Chamberlain said he suspects the poison was not in the water itself because he's seen no evidence of dead fish. Also, a dog that he heard of eating fish that drank down river having any ill effects.

Republican women vie for county clerk position

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Republicans announced Friday to replace fellow Republican Richard Pence as Twin Falls county clerk.

Linda Wright, 40, who was appointed Twin Falls County jury commissioner two years ago, said she is interested in the county clerk's job and is forming a campaign committee.

Wright said her work with the District Court qualifies her to take over Pence's post.

Nancy Paine, 45, an instructor at the College of Southern Idaho and a past president of the Twin Falls County Republican Women, is forming a campaign committee of her own and will also run in the May primary.

Paine, who has been a party officer and behind-the-scenes organizer on the local political scene for 14 years, said her political experience, her three years' experience teaching marketing and advertising, and her work with the Idaho tourism program prepared her for the job.

ties, because they said they did not want to appear negative.

Pence, however, has drawn heavy criticism from many others during his tenure as county clerk.

After the 1986 elections, the county's Democrats publicly alleged election irregularities and contemplated a recall. Instead, they lodged their complaints with County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter and the state attorney general's offices.

Other critics of Pence from various citizens and citizens groups in the past have included rudeness to the public, problems with voter registration and grand jury selection, and incorrectly billing the county for election-related after-hours work.

Wright said the county clerk must be sensitive to public relations.

"Every person entering the courthouse for any reason, is in a stressful situation," she said. "Realizing the stress that this person is under would be a great concern for me."

Pence also alluded to a public image that needs improvement.

"We're providing a service to people and it should be treated as such," she said.

Neither candidate has held a political office in the past.

Wright's schedule to complete a bachelor's degree in business management from Clark State College in May.

She said her business education and familiarity with courthouse computer systems would also help to streamline record-keeping operations.

Paine holds a bachelor's degree in business from Boise State University. She is working on her master's degree in business at Idaho State University.

She said she has the training and training for the clerk's job since 1986.

"I have the management skills to be offered to this position," Paine said.

No Democrat has yet come forward for the office, but Ken Pedersen, Twin Falls County Democrat Central Committee chairman, said he's sure someone will. Pedersen said he'd like to see Cito Robinson run again.

Paine, who managed the District Court office for 20 years, challenged Pence in 1986. The race was "pretty close," Pedersen said. "She's very capable."

Bengson wants voters' views on abortion

BOISE (AP) — The chairwoman of the House State Affairs Committee, where the issue is most likely to end up, says she wants to give the people their say before the Idaho Legislature passes an abortion law.

"I sense that this is the kind of moral issue that ought to be discussed at every dinner table in the state," Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, said Friday. "It is just an issue that more than 126 people should be involved in."

Ms. Bengson said she has begun preliminary drafting of a referendum for the 1990 ballot and would ask Idaho voters' advice on what the Legislature should do if the U.S. Supreme Court overturns its landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion.

The court's July ruling in a Missouri case gave state authority to regulate abortions, and cases still pending could give states additional control.

The advisory referendum Ms. Bengson is considering might contain two policy options: one reflecting anti-abortion views, a second pro-choice views and a third "that would probably allow abortion, but with tremendous restrictions."

House Speaker Tom Boyd, R-Genesee, said recently that he would be inclined to send any abortion legislation introduced in the House to Ms. Bengson's committee rather than the other germane panels, Health and Welfare or Judiciary, House and Administration.

"It seems to me it definitely is a State Affairs issue to the nth degree," Boyd said.

Once in the committee, Ms. Bengson said she would conduct three public hearings but would work to avoid allowing the discussion to degenerate into a "circus atmosphere." She said she personally questions whether government should play a role in what is essentially an individual decision.

Clearwater River flows stable for now

LEWISTON (AP) — Steelhead fishermen are not expected to notice any immediate changes in the level of the Clearwater River.

An annual agreement between the Idaho Fish and Game Department and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers expires Wednesday. It controls releases from Dworshak Dam, and fishermen say river levels have a big impact on steelhead fishing.

Greg Delwiche, hydraulic engineer at the Reservoir Control Center, Portland, said the volume of water flowing from Dworshak Dam Tuesday was about 1,200 cubic feet per second. At the Spaulding gauge east of Lewiston, the Clearwater's flow was measured at 6,400 cubic feet per second early Wednesday.

After the control period ends, the flow is expected to rise to 4,000 to 5,000 cubic feet per second more than the amount of water flowing into the reservoir.

"That means if the natural streamflows in the Clearwater remain close to present levels, the river's flows in late November are expected to range from 4,000 to 10,000 cubic feet per second."

Depending on power demands, the Corps might cut back night water flows and increase it as the region uses more electricity during the day.

In-state phone charges to drop

By The Times-News and Associated Press

BOISE — Prices of long-distance calls between cities in Southern Idaho soon will drop by half a cent per additional minute.

That change is one of several price changes announced by US West Communications Inc. as it introduces a few services but customers will see decreases for many popular features.

Charges for custom-calling features on residential phones will decrease as well, including 900 numbers for businesses. Altogether, "the price changes will mean a net US West saving of $500,000 in revenue, US West said.

The company said Friday the idea of raising a revenue cut doesn't appear to be favorable at first, but officers are optimistic the price changes will encourage customers to make more use of the services.

US West said the price changes are reflective of our efforts to move toward a more competitive pricing strategy," said C.E. "Gene" Hill, Idaho vice president and chief executive officer.

"Our primary objective in working to pass a law that allows for some regulatory freedom was to give us some marketing flexibility to adjust prices to meet market demands," he said.

Custom Calling prices will go down between 4 and 20 percent, between 2 and 23 percent.

Also effective Nov. 15, directory assistance calls go from 30 to 35 cents each, but customers allowed one free call per month instead of two directory assistance calls.

Notification of all the services that will be changed was sent out to customers with last month's bills, the company said.

FAA examines evidence in Utah crash

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officials were in Utah Friday to begin the investigation into the crash of a twin-engine airplane in Utah Lake.

Utah County sheriff's dispatcher Ruth Ann Anderson said the FAA investigators were working with local authorities, but the aircraft had not been removed from the lake.

Pilot Tom Torg of Alpine and passenger Lorin Jensen of Mountain Home, Idaho, both 24, were killed in the crash Thursday. Jensen was a student at Brigham Young University.

Trojan evidently sustained a head injury in the crash, and Jensen received an arm injury, though the state medical examiner's office will determine the exact cause of death, authorities said.

Sheriff's Sgt. Kerry Evans said the plane was taking video footage of a companion plane when it ran into experienced engine trouble, belly-flopped and sank into the lake two miles northwest of Bird Island.

The pilot of the other plane, James

Sorenson, 24, of Salt Lake City, radioed the Provo Airport for help and airport authorities notified the county sheriff.

A helicopter from Houston, Texas, was in the area on business and was the first to spot the plane. Only the plane's tail section was visible from the air.

Rescue efforts were hampered because the only government boat on the lake belonged to the state park, and sheriff's deputies worked for 20 minutes to get the motor started.

man, whom Maxon declined to describe, was taken.

He left in a red Ford pickup, Maxon said. The Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Hansen and Kimberly police, the Jerome County Sheriff's Department and the Idaho State Police were all watching for him Friday afternoon.

"We're trying to nail him before he strikes again," Maxon said.

Arvilla Goff, who works at her daughter's business, said she has never been robbed in the eight years. Mark and Barbara Howard have owned the 50-year-old store.

A trailer sits behind the building, and as long as someone lives there it's been pretty safe," Goff said.

Daw's Market in Hansen was robbed by three men about five years ago, Maxon said. They said they had a weapon, but none was seen, he said.

In Murtaugh, drunken drivers and car accidents are the marshal's main worries, Johnson said.

"Nothing ever happens in Murtaugh," said Johnson's wife, Maxine.

library had the music in a book of national anthems and the band practiced "feverishly" on Friday so they could play it at the close of the school day, Badger said.

Badger said his German classes will continue to closely follow the events in Germany, and both McCall and Oestelman believe the changes in East Germany are here to stay.

"I think there will be a united German again," McCall said, maybe even in the next 20 years."

Badger said "the flying the flag raised the awareness of a lot of people at the high school. "There was a lot of emotion around here about it, he said.

provisions and money donations to buy food, said Mel Napier, state director for the American Legion. Idaho is the only state that has that for the veterans," he said. "It grows bigger every year."

Legion members in Twin Falls collect food all week and, on Friday, will use 48 from moving van to haul more than 40,000 pounds of Community members will bring their donations to the local legion hall on Friday. Volunteer Veterans will load the goods in their private vehicles and haul them caravan-style to Boise.

Next year, the food convoy brought in about 535,000 worth of today's veterans increases, Napier said.

Trimmer explained that the Idaho veterans have always deferred compensation payments offered by the state.

Now, he said, they are asking for those payments to be given in the form of building nursing homes.

"It's money that was promised and has never been collected," Trimmer said.

Collins said the American Legion's first priority is to aid and help veterans; their widow and their orphans. The next priority is to serve the community.

Patriotism is strong here, Collins said, and the men are quick to volunteer their help anytime.

"These people are not trying to shirk their duties and let someone else do it," he said. "They have a lot of enthusiasm and dedication," he said. A veteran of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, said the American Legion in Twin Falls supports local programs more than any other organization in the area.

"We really do care," he said. "It's quite an organization."

For 300, said he's seen growth for the same reason.

"One of the main reasons is because of the amount of money and benefits continually eroding away through the VA," Trimmer said. "In the state, we have a lot of people who think this is a very easy place to cut budgets."

Napier said Idaho's American Legion, along with the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans, was successful in its lobby efforts last year to get partial funding for a new veterans' nursing home in Bocatello. The state has appropriated $1.5 million for the home, estimated to cost about $4.5 million.

Veterans hope for federal funding next year, Napier said.

The American Legion also plans to lobby for funds to build a veterans nursing home in Lewiston, he said.

The home in Boise is just too far for some of the families in northern Idaho to visit their veterans," he said.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff:
I doubled one spade for takeout and bid two hearts over partner's two diamond response...

ANSWER: With that distribution,

I prefer the jump to two no-trump.

With an unbalanced hand (5-4-3-1 or even 5-4-2-2), I would bid two spades. With three hearts and 4-3-4 shape, the decision becomes a class one and depends upon high-card distribution.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

I double one heart for takeout and partner bids two hearts. I bid two diamonds and he bids three clubs.

How much does he promise?

ANSWER: It's not a matter of how much; it's how many. Partner can't have jumped to three clubs with a long suit and nine HCP or more.

His club rebid says, "I want to play in clubs, and I'm not interested in game."

Dear Mr. Wolff:

What about 2's? Is it OK to tap the deck, signifying no desire to cut it?

ANSWER: Law 5 covers the cut. It states, "The pack must be cut immediately before it is dealt; no play other than the dealer's RHO may cut the pack."

Send inquiries to The Aces, P.O. Box 18343, Dallas,

Today's West blamed luck for allowing South's game to make. Looking over the play to see if you can spot why West's shift to clubs was a very poor play.

South won his heart 10 and led two rounds of spades, knocking out West's ace. West shifted weakly to his club 10, allowing South to win a brisk nine tricks.

"I had to find you with either minor-suit ace," called West. "You could just as easily have had the club ace as the diamond ace. Besides, it was too risky to lead from my diamond king."

Where is the falling in West's excuse?

Had South actually held the A-Q of diamonds and not the ace of clubs, it would not have been fatal to give South the extra diamond trick (four spades, two diamonds and a heart are his limit). However, if South had the ace of clubs, West should have realized that South could win four spades, four clubs and a heart for a game and over.

Sometimes the more dangerous-looking lead, the safer that lead is.

ANSWER: Three spades. Show the belated support for spades - A-x is good enough support, since the one-trump rebid virtually denies three-card support.

NHL: Probert was not suspended for life

MONTREAL (AP) — Detroit-Red Wings forward Bob Probert was never barred for life by the NHL, but was expelled pending his court hearing on importing cocaine into the United States, the league said Friday.
"Despite earlier reports ... to the contrary, at no time by any order or ruling by (NHL president) John Ziegler or the NHL had Bob Probert been barred for life," the league said Friday.
Probert was arrested March 2, 1989 at the Windsor-Detroit border crossing and charged with importing 14 grams of cocaine into the U.S.
Two days later, Ziegler announced that Probert was expelled from the league, pending the outcome of the trial.

Jazz sign Johnston to fill spot left by injured Ortiz

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Jazz has signed forward Nate Johnston to a one-year contract to fill the roster spot vacated by Jose Ortiz, who has been placed on the injured list due to mono-nucleosis.
Johnston, a 6-foot-8 forward from Tampa, was to play Friday night when the Jazz hosted the San Antonio Spurs, said personnel director Scott Layden.
Johnston was drafted by Miami in the third round of the 1988 college draft. He was invited to the Portland Trail Blazers' training camp this fall and played in five preseason games before being waived. He averaged 3.8 points per game.

SMU likely to give Notre Dame day of rest

By The Associated Press

"Ring down the thunder," implores Notre Dame's Victry March.
Well, it could be deafening at Smith Bend, Ind., Saturday when the No. 1-ranked Irish play Southern Methodist, which has allowed 354 points in eight game — ranging from a low of nine in beating North Texas State to a high of 95 in losing to Houston.

Houston drew a lot of criticism for piling it on against SMU, playing its first season since two years of banishment for NCAA A-male violations.
Mindful of that, Coach Lou Holtz of Notre Dame hopes to silence the thunder quickly.

"All we want to do is win," he said. "Once the game is won, we'll do what's fair, what's honest and what's in the best interest of our players and Notre Dame."
While Notre Dame has a day of "rest," four other members of the Top Ten find themselves in key conference struggles.

Michigan, ranked third, and No. 8 Illinois clash at Champaign, Ill., for the sole leadership of the Big Ten Conference. The conference title was on the line last year at Ann Arbor, Mich., where the Wolverines beat Illinois 38-9.

"We're light years ahead of last year," said Coach John Mackovic, whose Illinois team has ridden the passing arm of Jeff George to a 7-1 overall record and 5-0 Big 10 mark. Michigan, also 7-1 and 5-0, features the running of Tony Boles and Leroy Hood. Defensively, Illinois ranks first in the conference, with Michigan second.

Second-ranked Colorado, winner of its first nine games and ranked second, will try to guard against a letdown following Big Eight won over Oklahoma and Nebraska in the past two weeks. Saturday, the Buffaloes play at Oklahoma State.

"You would think if they're mature enough — which I think they probably are — they will remain focused on what they've got to do," Coach Pat Jones of Oklahoma State said when asked if he thought his Cowboys might catch Colorado napping.

Alabama, ranked fourth, can clinch a share of the Southeastern Conference title — by beating — disappointing Louisiana State-Baton Rouge 4-0.

The Crimson Tide, 8-0 overall and 5-0 in the SEC, last won a league championship when it shared honors with Georgia in 1981.

No. 9 Southern California, 7-2 and 5-0 in the Pac-10, can clinch a third straight trip to the Rose Bowl by winning on the road against No. 25 Arizona State.

Southern Cal., led by freshman quarterback Todd Marinovich, leads the conference in total offense. The Trojans

Intensity helps Spurs' Elliott adjust to NBA life

By KELLEY SHANNON
The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A proud smile crosses Sean Elliott's face as he describes his exotic aquatic life.
"Oh, I've got some monsters. They're vicious," Elliott said. "I've got one fish that's related to a piranha. It looks just like one."
But if Elliott's pet fish are fierce, they're nothing compared to the on-court persona of this San Antonio Spurs rookie, who says that in his spare time he's a laid-back individual who likes to play pool or simply "waste time."

"It's hard to upset me off the court," the 6-foot-8 forward said. "But on the court, you can just do anything and I'll get upset because I'm so intense out there."
That intensity, the former Arizona star said, has been a key to adjusting to life in the NBA, where layups are tougher to make, practices are less structured and teammates are more like business associates than family members.

In his short time as a pro, Elliott has gone up against some of the best in the business, which he says can be scary — if you let it.
Larry Bird and Magic Johnson are a couple of the superstars 21-year-old Elliott and the new-look Spurs have faced in regular and preseason games.

"They know all the tricks to bury you," Elliott said. "They know how to look at you, they know what to say to you just to get you intimidated."

"The media has worked hard all year and the win at RFK (Stadium at Washington) gives them relief. It builds some confidence and now they can see some progress. All that stuff about oh-and-oh is over, thankfully."

Montana controls its playoff destiny

By The Associated Press

Montana still has hopes of a Big Sky Conference "co-championship" at Idaho State next week in its season finale against Boise State. But if the Grizzlies want a berth in the NCAA Division I-AA football playoffs, it's up to them.

They host Idaho State on Saturday and are big favorites to win in Missoula. Montana is 6-1 in the Big Sky and 8-2 overall; while the Bengals are 2-4 against conference opponents and 3-5 for the season.

Saturday's other games—involving Big Sky teams including Eastern Washington at Boise State, Montana State closes out its season at Northern Arizona, Nevada-Reno hosts Nevada Las Vegas and Weber State takes on NAIA Southwest State of Minnesota. Idaho is idle after clinching the league's automatic berth in the I-AA playoffs last weekend.

Most of the other teams are playing for pride now. But with a playoff berth on the line — even though it might mean a first-round matchup against Idaho — the last regular-season game means a lot to Montana.

The Grizzlies have won the past five games in the series against Idaho State and are unbeaten in five games since their Sept. 28 loss to Idaho that was televised national TV on ESPN.

They also lead the Big Sky in rushing defense while Idaho State is last in rushing offense. They are first in the league in scoring defense and second in scoring offense, while the Bengals are last in both scoring and total defense.

That adds to another frustrating week for Idaho State coach Garth Hall, who saw his team put 41 points on the board last week and still lose to Idaho by 16.

"I hope we get snowed in and can't get over the pass," Hall said. "Montana is a solid team, maybe as good as Idaho. It will be very tough, especially having to travel up there."

"Despite the fear his team apparently strikes in opponents' hearts," Montana Coach Dan Reed professes some concern of his own about the Bengals' offense, especially their junior quarterback.

Jason Whittier set Big Sky and I-AA records last week with 27 first-half completions against Idaho, and his 38 completions for the game was an Idaho State record. He also holds the school's career total offense record with 5,788 yards.

But as good as he is, Whittier ranks only seventh among Big Sky quarterbacks this year in pass completions and passing yards. Still, Boise State would like his arm in its backfield when the Broncos host Eastern Washington this weekend.

Boise State's seven long-quarterback controversy has turned into a malaise infecting the whole team, and Coach Skip Hall gave the players Monday off to reflect after Saturday's 30-14 loss at Reno. That dropped the Bengals to 5-4 on the season and 4-2 in Big Sky play. Now the league's most well-attended football program faces the prospect of only the second losing season in its 44-year history unless it turns things

By The Associated Press

Other matchups involving top ten teams will be Kansas at No. 6 Nebraska, No. 7 Miami of Florida at No. 14 Pittsburgh and Baylor at No. 10 Arkansas. No. 5 Florida State is idle.

Miami cannot afford to stumble again before its season closer against Notre Dame at home, where a victory could put the Hurricanes into the thick of the fight for the national championship.

Pitt was off last Saturday after suffering its only loss of the season — a 45-7 battering at Notre Dame.

As for playing the Irish and Hurricanes consecutively, Pitt coach Mike Gottfried said he didn't know who drew up the schedule, but "all I know is I don't want to play a schedule like this again."

Games involving other ranked teams will have Akron at No. 11 Tennessee, Louisiana Tech at No. 12 Auburn, No. 12 Penn State-Maryland, Texas at No. 15 Houston, Virginia Tech at No. 18 Virginia, Rutgers at No. 19 West Virginia, Georgia at No. 20 Florida, Air Force at No. 21 Brigham Young, Duke at No. 22 North Carolina State, Texas Christian at No. 23 Texas Tech, and No. 24 Fresno State at New Mexico State.

No. 16 Texas A&M and No. 17 Clemson are idle.

5-overtime game a nightmare for scorekeepers, coaches

By DESIRÉE WARD
The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Just last month, the Milwaukee Bucks' statistical crew asked the NBA what to do if a game went beyond three overtimes, exceeding the limits of the league's new computerized statistics system.

Based on their research, they said they believed there was no need to go beyond three overtimes. Bob Wanek, the Bucks' officials scorecard.

The need came Thursday night when the Bucks took five overtimes to beat the Seattle SuperSonics 155-154.

"Imagine that," said Wanek, who was forced to override the computer for the final two overtimes. "You don't expect that to happen right away when you have a new computer system."

The game was a nightmare for scorekeepers and coaches. It lasted 257 minutes and six players fouled out.

"You wondered if the game was ever going to end," Bucks forward Ben Coleman said. "But I kept feeling like we were going to win. We played too good to win."
For 72 minutes, 50 seconds, the teams traded shots, bumps, fouls and even a few heated words. And still the game came down to a final shot in the last second.

Ricks inaugurates new president

REXBURG (AP) — The mission of Ricks College is to blend spiritual values with the challenge of learning, says the new president of the private eastern Idaho institution operated by the LDS Church.

Steven D. Bennion, 48, was scheduled to be inaugurated Friday as the two-year school's 13th president, installed by President Gordon Hinckley, first counselor in the First Presidency of the LDS Church.

In his prepared speech, Bennion said, "In a society that is now immersed in TV, videos, video games, drugs, and the repeated impression that every problem or challenge in life has a quick fix, the need for in-depth exploration of the best books and the timeless values that bring meaning and purpose of life is more vital today than it has ever been."

Inaugural balls were set for Friday night in the Manwaring Center and the Hart Auditorium. About 2,000 guests were invited for the festivities.

Inmate gets votes in mayoral race

ANTHONY (AP) — Death Row inmate Paul Ezra Rhoades received three write-in votes for mayor in an election focusing on the state's proposal to establish a minimum-security prison work farm in St. Anthony.

Boyd Yancey, a 12-year member of the St. Anthony City Council, defeated Bonnie Bowen 526-340 in the mayor's race. Yancey backed the prison project, while Ms. Bowen said she opposed it.

Mayor Merrill Rose, who chose not to seek re-election, also received three write-in votes.

Rhoades, 32, of Idaho Falls, was convicted on charges of first-degree murder, rape and a number of other felonies for the early 1987 slayings of an Idaho Falls teacher and convenience store clerks in Blackfoot and Idaho Falls.

Yancey said he interpreted the election's results as a clear indication local residents support negotiations with the Idaho Department of Corrections to turn to old Fremont General Hospital into a prison work camp.

Art exhibit pulled for ceremonies

REXBURG (AP) — Ricks College stopped a planned month-long exhibit of paintings by the former art department chairman at Brigham Young University after just three days, fearing it might stir controversy during inauguration ceremonies for new Ricks President Steven D. Bennion.

The exhibit of works by Franz Johansen, featuring stylized line drawings that included nude figures, was on display in the foyer of the Sprui Building on the Rexburg campus.

Ricks-like-Brigham-Young University, is owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Arlo Coles, director of the foyer gallery, said some artwork by faculty members "would be hung in place of the Johansen show. He said the decision to stop the exhibit was made by officials in the college's Division of Arts and Letters.

Officials consider arson in blaze

ISLAND PARK (AP) — Authorities haven't ruled out the possibility of arson in the Oct. 22

fire which destroyed historic Mack's Inn, but they say it will be hard to prove because so little of the inn was left after the fire.

The old resort was destroyed by fire Oct. 22, a few days after it closed for the winter season. Gloria Bastian of Hansen, whose family owns the resort, has said there are no plans to rebuild the resort. It was not insured. Damages were estimated at about $500,000.

Association neutral on measure

By The Associated Press

The Idaho Newspaper Association says it will not actively campaign for or against a draft Idaho "Freedom of Information Act" which is planned for introduction in the upcoming Legislature.

And that could prove to be a major obstacle for the proposed measure. Without the solid backing of Idaho's media organizations, the bill may not clear the 1990 Idaho Legislature. At least that was the opinion of a month of state Sen. C.A. (Skip) Snover, R-Parma, who is co-chairman of the interim-legislative panel that drew up the bill.

Electrical problem blamed for fire

POCATELLO (AP) — An electrical problem has been determined as the probable cause of a Halloween fire that killed four race horses and gutted 16 stalls at the Bannock County Fairgrounds.

"In our books, it's going down as accidental," Bannock County Detective Capt. Jerry Hickman said Thursday.
