Woodbury mall concept wins OK; work held up

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The zoning commission approved in concept a master plan for a major retail shopping, residential and office complex but tabled a request to begin development.

The Woodbury Corp. on Tuesday night made the request for approval of a modified preliminary site plan for its 78-acre property north and west of Canyon Springs Inn.

Planning and Zoning Commission members said before approving the project, Woodbury Corp. would have to submit detailed landscaping plans and have in place covenants to enforce them with property buyers.

"I've got to see something to see what kind of landscaping is going to be there and what kind of a homeowners' association is going to be there to maintain it," zoning member Gregory Lanting said.

He said he feared that once individual properties are sold, that maintenance would be spotty, with some struggling business owners letting maintenance slip.

The development includes 21 acres for retail shopping; 19 acres for automobile dealerships; 11 acres for professional offices; five acres for sports and recreation facilities; four acres for a mini storage facility; three acres for a hotel; 10 acres for housing and five acres of roads, the proposal states.

The single-level, 33,000-square-foot mall would be in an area 10-acres smaller than previously proposed.

Woodbury's original application has lapsed with no approved plan. The property was first approved for a mall in 1980 and again in 1984. It was approved for mixed land uses in 1987.

The company requested permission to begin development of nine lots that included space for Westland Motors to move its dealership, said Ned Stephenson of Woodbury.

"Westland is pressing," he said. "This is holding it up. We need to get going."

He said landscaping and zoning requirements could make it more difficult to sell the properties.

But several commission members said the whole concept of the project, called Planned Unit Development, is to have uniform landscaping and pooled maintenance.

"The problem I have with it is you're asking for a PUD that's not a PUD," zoning commission alternate John Holmquist said. The proposal would give maintenance and landscaping up to individual owners, he said.

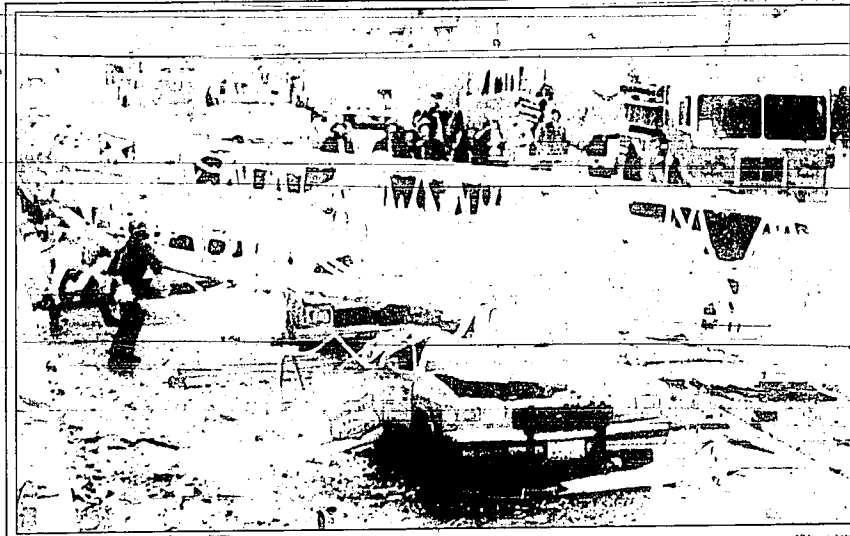

Stephenson and his company wants a quality development which will help sell the properties.

Stephenson said after the meeting the zoning commission's requirements will not be high.

The zoning commission will have another hearing on the proposal on Dec. 12.

Construction workers place beams under toppled crane in attempt to rescue people trapped in crushed vehicles

Crane plummets 16 stories, kills 5

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — A crane plummeted from the 16th story of a building under construction Tuesday, flattening a school van, several cars and smashing into an office building across the street. At least five people were killed, 21 injured and five left missing, authorities said.

"It felt like an earthquake," said Merrill Lynch Vice President Joe McLaughlin, who was in the damaged office building. "I looked out and saw two bodies. One construction worker's boots were jacked up through a mass of sticking metal."

In the aftermath of the accident that rained concrete and twisted steel on one of the busiest intersections in the financial district, a prosecutor said criminal negligence charges twice previously had been filed against the project's general contractor for accidents on Los Angeles construction sites.

There were conflicting statements on what was happening before the crane fell. Fire Chief Fred Postel said it was hoisting steel beams; but the general contractor said the crane was being repositioned from the 16th to the 20th floors.

A piece of the crane at least three stories long dangled from the construction two hours after the 6:30 a.m. accident. Police roped off the area and ambulances rushed in and out.

The street was littered with flattened cars and a mangled motorcycle. Gas was cut off to the damaged 21-story office building for fear of an explosion.

"The wreckage looks absolutely incredible — steel beams look like pickup sticks," said Acting Mayor Angela Alioto, sitting in white. Mayor Art Agnos tours the country urging tourists to return in the wake of the Oct. 17 earthquake.

At an afternoon news conference at the scene, Alioto said experts could not immediately determine the cause of the collapse. She also said streets in a four-square-block area would be closed for at least a week for cleanup and repairs, and the California Street cable car also was shut down.

Alioto said the dead were four construction workers, all from the Seattle area, and the woman driving the school van, operated by Laidlaw Transit Inc.

"It's pretty rough," said Laidlaw. *See CRANE on Page A2

Vatican will seek ties with Kremlin

The Associated Press

ROME — The Vatican on Tuesday suggested establishing permanent ties with the Kremlin on the eve of the first visit by a Soviet leader.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev arrives Wednesday for a state visit before meeting with Pope John Paul II on Friday and then flying on to Malta for his summit meeting with President Bush.

Although overshadowed by the events immediately following them, the Soviet leader's talks in Italy with President Francesco Cossiga and Premier Giulio Andreotti are expected to focus on the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe, where Czechoslovakia has joined East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria in breaking away from hard-line communism.

At the same time, the Soviet Union's flagging economy has failed to respond to Gorbachev's attempts at reform, and an Italian government spokesman said Italy would like to help the Soviet Union overcome this embarrassing situation. The spokesman, Pio Mastroianni, noted that more than a dozen accords are to be signed during the visit.

A top Vatican official said the plans are to ask Gorbachev to forge permanent ties between the Kremlin and the Holy See, which has had occasional contacts since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

After the Communists came to power, they tried to abolish religion but succeeded only in forcing several sects, including 4 million Ukrainian Catholics, underground.

Gorbachev's meeting with the Polish-born pontiff will be the first between a leader of the world's Roman Catholics and a Soviet Communist Party chief.

The last supreme Soviet leader to visit the Vatican was Leonid Brezhnev in 1978, and no Soviet party chief has ever visited Italy.

"The Holy See is asking for the possibility of a type of permanent, stable relationship," said Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro, indicating the issue would be among the top items on the agenda for the private talks between Gorbachev and the pontiff.

Czechs may obtain coalition government

The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — The premier pledged to include non-Communists in a new government, and new Communist party chief Karel Urbanek said Tuesday the party would give up its constitutional monopoly on power.

Premier Ladislav Adamec made his pledge in a meeting with the opposition Civic Forum movement after 11 days of unprecedented protest. Millions of workers observed a two-hour general strike Monday, but the streets were quiet Tuesday because the Civic Forum asked for calm.

After the meeting, government minister Marian Cifka said Adamec would submit a coalition government to President Gustav Husak by Sunday and would ask Parliament, which meets Wednesday, to delete the guarantee of a "leading role" for the party from the constitution.

German confederation proposed — A8

Hours later, party chief Karel Urbanek told 3,500 party activists in Prague the "future of the party requires giving up the monopoly of power," the official news agency CTK reported.

Central Committee spokesman Josef Hora said Urbanek would visit Moscow after the U.S.-Soviet summit off Malta this weekend.

Civic Forum spokesman Jiri Kanturek appeared on state television's evening news with a 10-point statement outlining concessions made and further opposition demands.

"Two demands were for free elections and the resignation by Dec. 10 of Husak, a central figure in the crackdown on reform after the Soviet-led invasion of August 1968.

Farmers reap big subsidies, report says

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Some farmers still gouging the government by collecting crop subsidies in excess of limits set by Congress, the Agriculture Department's watchdog agency said Tuesday.

In one case, the department's Office of Inspector General said, an individual collected about $2.8 million in subsidies, 56 times the $50,000 limit set by law.

The report cited other areas of abuse as well in its semi-annual report to Congress on investigative and audit activities during the six months that ended Sept. 30.

Those abuses included crop insurance overpayments, loopholes in debt restructuring by the Farmers Home Administration and flaws in the export subsidy program.

By law, the crop subsidies, called "deficiency payments," are not supposed to exceed $50,000 per person per year. These are direct payments to help make up the difference between depressed market prices and higher "target" prices set by the government.

For example, last month the price of corn at the farm was $2.20 a bushel. The target price for 1989 corn is $2.84.

A "person" can be an individual, a joint stock company, a corporation, an association, a trust or some other legal entity.

The report said "abuses in the program continued" in spite of efforts by Congress in the 1987 Omnibus Reconciliation Act to close loopholes. Overall, in 1987, an estimated $66 million was paid to farmers who dodged the $50,000 limitation.

Investigators have found that big operators often reorganize to qualify additional "persons" for the purpose of collecting larger payments.

"We have recommended that Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service" improve its review procedures and withhold 1989 payments until final eligibility is determined, the report said.

Other findings included:

- Loss adjustment errors by the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. and reinsured private companies resulted in overpayments estimated at $91 million out of $716 million paid out in claims. Underpayments totaled $1.6 million.

- Under Farmers Home Administration debt-restructuring procedures, borrowers were able to sell off security property and still qualify for "buyout" benefits. Buyouts allow borrowers to have debts written off by FmHA after buying back the note at 30 cents on the dollar, based on the value of the remaining property held as collateral.

Subsidized sales of farm commodities to designated foreign countries are provided under the Export Enhancement Program, or EEP. Private exporting companies collect the subsidies, or bonuses, in the form of surplus commodities.

Chill belt covers Idaho

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A colder-than-normal winter is expected in the North Central and Pacific Northwest states, the National Weather Service said today.

"The odds of below-normal temperatures in the months of December through February extend down the California coast and also include Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and the Dakotas, the agency said in releasing its long-range forecast.

A warmer-than-normal winter is expected in New England and along the East and Gulf coasts as far west as Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee and Arizona also will see warmer weather, the forecast said.

States between those areas can expect equal chances of either warm or cold weather.

A wetter-than-normal winter is expected in states bordering the Mississippi River and east to the Appalachians.

Drier-than-normal conditions were predicted for south Florida, the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and adjacent New Mexico and Colorado.

Other areas are listed as having equal chances of wet or dry weather.

Larger supplies, lower prices make up 1990 forecast for food

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumers will see 1990 food prices rise at a much slower pace as farmers continue expanding crop production, a senior Agriculture Department economist predicted Tuesday.

"The 1990 food outlook calls for larger supplies and lower prices," said James R. Donald, chairman of the department's World Agricultural Outlook Board. "Record meat production, bigger crops and slowing inflation will hold the retail food prices increase to 3 percent to 5 percent in 1990."

Food prices this year are rising nearly 6 percent, the sharpest annual increase since 1981. Part of the reason for this year's runup — prices gained 4.1 percent, on the average, in 1988 — were the lingering effects of last year's drought.

Donald also presented a paper at the department's annual outlook conference, said U.S. crop production is likely to increase in 1990 as farmers further expand plantings and yields improve.

"World crop production is recovering from last year's reduced level," he said. "But for most crops, production (in 1989) will not match continued high levels of use."

Next year, Donald said, world commodity consumption will reach a record level. "In response to larger output, continued economic expansion and population growth."

Prices of farm commodities will be relatively strong because of demand and lower inventories, although prices of feed grains and soybeans will rise from the drought-driven levels of 1988 and early 1989.

"This outlook suggests U.S. farmers can look forward to another year of favorable income," Donald said. "Increased marketing receipts are anticipated as larger commodity output and higher prices for some commodities."

Lower feed costs will help stabilize farm production expenses in 1990, though even with lower government payments, farmers are expected to have a cash income next year of $52 billion to $57 billion, up from a revised forecast of $52 billion to $54 billion for 1989, he said.

Previously, USDA had forecast 1989 net cash income at a record $69.9 billion, up from the previous high of $57.7 billion in 1987.

Donald said the 1989 forecast was revised downward because production expenses turned out higher than previously anticipated.

"Net cash income is simply the difference between gross cash income and cash expenses — the amount of money farmers have to spend in a year."

In another method of accounting, net farm income includes allowances for depreciation, inventory values and other adjustments, including values for family dwelling and other items.

Under that method, Donald said, 1990 net farm income may be in the range of $46 billion to $49 billion, down from this year's record $48 billion to $50 billion.

Crop yields were "slightly below trend" this year, reflecting drought damage to winter wheat crop and less-than-normal conditions for several other crops, he said. "Subsoil moisture conditions in the Corn Belt are much improved over a year ago."

Donald said that for the combined crops of wheat, feed grains and soybeans, the projected "trend yield for 1990 is up nearly 2.5 percent from the actual yields of 1989. Yield with reduced soybean production likely, combined grain and soybean production could be up 5 percent to 7 percent next year if trend yields are realized and harvested acreage is up 3 percent to 4 percent," he said.

Mother, daughter doing fine after transplant

CHICAGO (AP) — Tiny 21-month-old Alyssa Smith, who received the nation's first living-donor liver transplant, appeared "back on a smooth course" Tuesday after internal bleeding prompted a return to surgery, her doctor said.

Alyssa, who has a stable condition after the second, pre-dawn surgery early Tuesday to stop bleeding detected within 12 hours of the Monday transplant, said Dr.

Christoph Broelsch, who headed the surgical team.

Alyssa's father, John L. Smith of San Antonio, said the rushed return to the operating room caused some temporary lachrym and his wife, Teresa, the liver donor, but that he was reassured when he saw his daughter.

"I think she looked great, even with the surgery, and everything, she looked great," he said, his voice trembling. "Her eyes were kind of open and she saw me and, a her face kind of lit up a bit."

Alyssa was awake, active and moving around after the second procedure, although still on sedation and a ventilator, Broelsch said.

"The transplant is definitely functioning and for now things are back on a smooth course," he said at mid-morning news conference at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

Nevada waste site facing new delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department soon will announce major new delays in building the nation's first permanent dump for highly radioactive nuclear waste, congressional and other sources said Tuesday.

Facing with political opposition from Nevada, where the proposed dump is supposed to be built inside Yucca Mountain by the year 2003, and with numerous technical problems, the department will tell Congress it cannot meet the deadline, the sources said.

Energy Secretary James D. Watkins, after several months of review, has decided a delay of at least three years cannot be avoided, the sources said.

Department officials are to brief members of Congress in detail later this week.

Watkins' press secretary, M.J. Jamison, said Tuesday she could not comment on anything concerning Yucca Mountain.

The principal delay is of several years in siting exploratory shafts at in the mountain about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas on the government nuclear weapons test range to determine the geologic suitability of the site, said the sources, who spoke on condition that they not be identified.

The department instead will spend additional years in above-ground geological work to determine if first is anything that would rule out the mountain as a site able to hold radioactive waste from nuclear power plants for at least 10,000 years.

"Things that might disqualify the sites include volcanic activity and unacceptably high-risk of major earthquakes in the area, the sources said.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission had advised the department this summer that it should delay siting the shafts until it understood better the earthquake and volcanic potential of the site.

The nation's nuclear power plants are storing their highly radioactive spent fuel at the plant sites, and have long been sinking the waste into uncontrolled site underground.

Congress in 1982 ordered the department to study three possible sites with a view to opening one by 1998. Later, in what some Nevada officials called an "everybody gangs up" on Nevada for 1990 is up nearly 2.5 percent from the actual yields of 1989. Yield with reduced soybean production likely, combined grain and soybean production could be up 5 percent to 7 percent next year if trend yields are realized and harvested acreage is up 3 percent to 4 percent," he said.

Crane

Senior Vice President Howard Walker said five people were killed as missing in the twisted steel and broken concrete.

Three hospitals reported receiving 21 victims, four in serious condition. Most of the rest had minor injuries.

Swinner and Walberg Co. of San Francisco, the general contractor on the job, said the crane was being repositioned from the 16th story to the 20th story, the second such repositioning of the project.

The 20-story, 60-story high, SN-55 manufactured by American Peco of Millwood, N.Y., had a capacity of 17 tons. The site was last inspected by the state Occupational Safety and Health Administration on Aug. 11. The project, which began in January, has not been cited for safety violations, the company said in a news release.

Criminal negligence charges were twice filed against Swinner and Walberg in 1981 and 1986 for separate accidents on the Los Angeles sites, said Los Angeles Deputy City Attorney Michael Guarino.

In 1981, charges were filed after a crane collapsed and an unknown number of people were killed. Swinner said the case was dropped because prosecutors could not get the kind of charges they wanted to the jury, he said.

Prosecutors wanted to prove only culpable negligence in the case, Guarino said, but the state labor code requires that prosecutors prove wanton and willful disregard for human safety, he said.

Attempts to reach Adam Jones, president of The Erection Co., were not successful. Jones' home and telephone calls to company officials were not returned.

In Tuesday's accident, debris rained down on a taxi driven by Issa Massarweh, who had two passengers at the time. The cab's back window was smashed.

"I don't know where my passengers are," he said. "I threw myself under the dashboard." He told his passengers to duck and when he next looked, they had left. He was unharmed.

"I heard a loud bang and stepped up and saw the tail end of a crane," said stockbroker Don Trabert, who saw the accident from his office.

Mall

Already the development includes plans for sidewalks, trees and shrubs, planters, landscaped islands and a 30-foot green belt along Blue Lakes Boulevard and Pole Line Road.

Construction on the mall and two automobile dealership lots will begin next year. The remainder of the development will be built as interest demands over the next decade.

Extending and adjoining businesses would include fast-food and family restaurants, banks, automobile services and theaters.

Court: U.S. can claim portion of Iran settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is entitled to some of the money American companies are awarded by an international tribunal created as part of the settlement of the 1981 Iran hostage crisis, a unanimous Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The justices said the companies' rights are not violated by requiring them rather than all U.S. taxpayers — to help defray the costs of the claims settlement process.

The court upheld a 1985 law that allows the U.S. government to deduct 1.5 percent of the first $5 million recovered by any company and 1 percent of anything exceeding that amount.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the court, said the deductions are reasonable even if they do not equal the amount of money the government expended to help the companies win their claims.

"This court has never held that the amount of a user fee must be precisely calibrated to the use that a party makes of government services," he said. "Nor does the government need to precede invoices and billable hours to justify the costs of its services."

White rejected arguments by Sperry Corp. that foreign companies pay the fees in an unconstitutional confiscation of their property and that any costs to the government should be borne by the nation as a whole.

As we see it, Sperry has not identified any of its property that was taken without just compensation," he said. The Bush administration said tens of millions of dollars were at stake, including some $12.7 million already deducted by the U.S. government from claims paid to companies.

The financial deal that freed the 52 American hostages from Iran in 1981 included the U.S. government's release of billions of dollars in frozen Iranian assets and creation of an international tribunal to resolve claims against Iran.

Sperry Corp., which leased computer systems to Iran before the 1979 hostage crisis severed relations between the United States and that country, was awarded $2.8 million by the international claims tribunal.

The U.S. government deducted $42,000 for its expenses in helping Sperry.

Tuesday's decision overturned a federal appeals court ruling last year that the deduction was an unconstitutional seizure of private property.

The high court ruling is not directly related to recent developments suggesting easing tensions between Iran and the United States.

The Bush administration announced three weeks ago that the United States is returning $567 million in frozen assets to Iran, a move President Bush said he hopes will prompt Tehran to push for freedom for American hostages in Lebanon.

The $567 million was being held in a fund to back up claims.

Venezuela plane crash victim

U.S. official among air crash dead

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A member of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board and two Venezuelan pilots were killed when their twin-engine plane crashed during a storm in the mountains west of Caracas, it was reported Tuesday.

The U.S. Embassy said four other U.S. citizens survived the Monday night crash but were injured. The Venezuelan Civilian Aviation agency said the crash of the Cessna 441 was approaching the Charallave municipal airport apparently was caused by bad weather.

Joseph Trippel, 47, the NTSB member who perished, was in Venezuela to attend a transportation seminar, according to Barbara Moore of the U.S. Information Service.

The pilots who died were identified as Dickson Naranjo and Jose Vargas.

Civil Aviation officials said the survivors are Jerri Alles, an official of the Federal Aviation Administration, and her husband, David Halley, who worked at an FAA hangar at Washington National Airport. NTSB member Kenneth Pepper, Nall's assistant, and Kay Bond, Ms. Bond, a producer at Maryland Public Television for the show "AM-Weather," a weather program, apparently was on vacation.

They were taken to the Hospital de Clinicas in Caracas suffering from "burns and other injuries," said Cesar Jara, Civil Aviation director.

"They are all out of danger, and they'll probably be released from the hospital tomorrow," he said.

Analysts say Pentagon could slash $145 billion over decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States could cut its defense spending by $145 billion over 10 years and still maintain its military capability by delaying production of the next generation of strategic weapons, two defense analysts said Tuesday.

Procurement of such high-priced items as the B-2 stealth bomber and the Advanced Tactical Fighter, the costs of which have pushed the current Pentagon budget to $305 billion, could remain in the testing stage — until — last moving developments in Eastern Europe come into focus.

"Since we've just gone through a wartime buildup without a war, there's no reason to rush into strategic modernization," said Lawrence J. Koeb, a former Reagan administration defense official who addressed a news conference at the Brookings Institution. "We should postpone until we see what happens in the world." On the heels of stunning democratic reforms in the Eastern bloc nations and the demise of the Berlin Wall, the call for a reduction in the U.S. defense budget has grown louder.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has been pondering sweeping changes, including cuts of several thousand in U.S. armed forces, elimination of 100 Navy ships, and closing of at least a dozen Air Force bases, according to Pentagon officials who requested anonymity.

The Pentagon is expected to submit its fiscal 1991 budget plan, with a possible cut of $20 billion from a $117 billion spending level, to the Office of Management and Budget by Dec. 8, the officials said.

Another speaker at the news conference, William W. Kaufmann, a Harvard University lecturer and Pentagon veteran, said the cuts "will reduce the current defense budget of $305 billion to $160 billion by 1999. The cumulative reduction would add up to $500 billion in savings.

Among Kaufmann's proposals in the first five years are cancellation of one land-based nuclear weapon — the multiple-warhead, rail based MX missile, and scaling back of the Air Force's $70 billion plan for 132 B-2 bombers to 13.

Spending on the Strategic Defense Initiative would average about $3 billion a year, Congress recently slashed $1.9 billion from President Bush's request of $4.9 billion for the proposed anti-missile shield in the budget that took effect Oct. 1.

The active duty Army division would be cut, as would two of the 14 aircraft carrier battle groups, according to Kaufmann's plan, which will be included in a book to be published next month by the federal learning Brookings Institution.

Judge censured for remarks

ALBUQUERQUE, Texas (AP) — Gay newsweekly Tuesday public censured a judge who said he gave a lighter sentence to a killer because the victims were "queers."

The State Commission on Judicial Conduct issued the censure order for District Judge Jack Hampton, whose remarks to reporters in December ignited a year-long storm of criticism.

"The commission finds that Judge Hampton's comments, per se, were destructive of public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary," the commission's order said.

Public censure is the strongest sanction the commission could take short of recommending a 57-year-old Republican's removal from the bench. Robert Flowers, the panel's executive director, read a commission report describing public denunciations.

William Waybourn, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, recommended the rebuke and called for Hampton to step down.

"I believe that it's certainly a step in the right direction. But Judge Hampton remains on the bench. What is to happen now to pay men and lesbians who come into his controversy," Waybourn said. "Any minority that has any fear of the judicial system cannot get a fair trial as long as we have people sitting on the bench like Judge Hampton," he said.

An attorney for the Dallas Gay Alliance said the group intends to file a petition with the Texas Supreme Court calling for Hampton's removal.

Judge denies Hinckley bid for news interviews

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday denied a request by presidential assailant John Hinckley to be interviewed by news organizations, saying Hinckley's mental illness could worsen with public exposure.

U.S. District Court Judge June Green rejected Hinckley's request for up to two interviews per month with the news media, starting with ABC-TV and The Washington Post.

A directive at St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington prohibiting personal interviews between maximum-security patients and the news media "embodies a reasonable and constitutionally valid" approach with regard to Hinckley, said the judge.

Hinckley, found not guilty by reason of insanity in the March 1981 assassination attempt on then-President Reagan, has been a patient at St. Elizabeths since August 1982. Three months ago, he filed a motion saying his First Amendment right of free speech was being violated.

The judge said that testimony by Dr. Raymond Patterson, a forensic psychiatrist, established that Hinckley's personality "is particularly vulnerable to reinforcement through media contact, resulting in exacerbation of his illness generally."

Hinckley's attorney, Marc Lane, said he would consult with his client on Wednesday before deciding whether to appeal.

"The U.S. government is continuing to prevent Mr. Hinckley from telling the American people what he knows about events of national importance," said Lane.

The events include "the total lack of presidential security—the ease with which he secured a weapon to shoot the president and the fact that he was a victim of legal drugs prescribed regularly for him."

Pollution of night with 'sky glow' an unnecessary tragedy

A priceless part of our human heritage is fading into the night sky. Most Americans are growing up unable to see the stars their grandparents knew so well. They see the night sky only in pictures or at planetariums.

This is true not only in cities but also in many suburbs where street lamps and other sources of "night pollution" have obscured our view of constellations, meteor showers, and planets.

Light pollution is not a matter of life and death. Yet it is important nonetheless, profoundly so. We human beings lose something of ourselves when we no longer look up and see our place in the universe. It is like never again hearing the laughter of children; we give up part of what we are.

Such a loss might be acceptable if light pollution were the inevitable price of progress. But it's not; most sky glow, as scientists call it, is unnecessary.

The light that obscures our view of the night sky comes mainly from inefficient lighting sources that do little to increase nighttime safety, utility, or security. It produces only glare and clutter, costing more than a billion dollars annually in wasted energy in the United States alone. For instance, the impact has been even more tangible and adverse.

For example, scientists interested in how the universe was formed may study the light of galaxies and quasars located incredibly vast distances from Earth. These images offer information on many unanswered questions of the universe, helping us understand how our own world was formed. The light from these objects can be lost at the end of its journey in the glare of our own sky.

In fact, our experience over the past two decades has shown that space-based astronomy, far from reducing the need for ground-based observations, actually increases the demand for these facilities. Reducing light pollution is not difficult, but it does require that public officials and ordinary citizens be aware of the problem and act to counter it. Low-pressure sodium lights, for example, can replace existing fixtures for most cities, parking lots, and industrial locations. They reduce glare and save money.

Another fairly painless way to reduce light pollution is with outdoor lighting control ordinances, over 50 of which have been enacted throughout Arizona and in several key cities and counties in California and Hawaii.

On an individual level, people can help reduce sky glow by using night lighting only when necessary, choosing well-shielded light fixtures, and turning off lights when they are not needed.

The stars above us are a priceless heritage — not only scientific knowledge, but also for our identity as human beings.

More of our children — and their children — should be able to look up at night and see that the Milky Way isn't only a cloudy bar.

Letters/ Grazing permit system convoluted, backward

Credibility remark revealing

At a recent meeting, a Bureau of Land Management employee made a remark that I accepted at face value when it was said, but the more I thought about it, the more absurd it became.

This comment was that he could take no strong stand on abusive public grazing practices because he had to have credibility with the permittees.

I had to have credibility with the permittees? What a clear indication of how backwards the system has become. Grazing permittees, asking for privileges and subsidies, should be the ones having to develop credibility with the BLM and the Forest Service, not the converse.

If, however, they are not the least bit concerned about developing credibility with anyone other than their congressional delegation.

The entire system of controlling grazing on public lands has become pervasive and absurd. A recent example is provided by Gary Glenn and the Idaho Cattle Association which illustrate the permittee's belief that public lands should be managed solely for their private benefit. Glenn was using the media to generate the idea that wildlife should be controlled to prevent their grazing impacts on public lands.

Grazing permittees should be reminded that their activity is a privilege granted by the people of the United States; it is not a birth right and that when that privilege is abused, it can and should be revoked.

Grazing permits should be issued for one year, and if the range is abused, the permit should be revoked immediately. As the system is presently established, abuse of public lands by a permittee's livestock can drag on indefinitely while he manipulates the system to his benefit.

The grazing permittees try to raise the "Apple Pie and Motherhood" flag, stating that they are the only good thing that ever happened to public lands in the west and how their range is being ruined by other improvements in their terminology improve conditions for all animals.

A recent meeting on riparian issues brought to light their idea of improvements. To prevent overgrazing of riparian areas, water should be piped from the streams, creating riparian habitats to watering troughs above the riparian zone. Great idea except that when you remove all of the water from the riparian zone, you no longer have a riparian zone.

Also, these water troughs should be paid for by the American public, not by the community while the active role of those opposing the sale of obscenity was bad. Apparently, the demands of grinding out a daily editorial have overburdened your ability to reason intelligently.

Don't you see that the freedom that allows you to editorially reach those who follow homes every day also allows others to speak their minds and expose their own beliefs?

Consider this fictitious scenario: If you please, an Aryan Nations group selects a prominent storefront near the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce to operate from. Citizens of the community become polarized, some even willing to stand up in organized protest against the prejudice and bigotry they see.

Who has the greater right? Neither, yet inevitably, there will be those who will sit back and proclaim others to be self-righteous and perhaps even "would-be moralists." Insulted from controversy by nonparticipation, they are free to speak our own opinions in the safety of their lofty positions, even panning others in a bad light — others of their own choosing. Such power, these words.

No opinion or course of action is taken without some moral guidance; even that which governs journalistic integrity. Our editorial viewpoint states a passive hostility toward those with moral convictions, presupposing that moral issues can be decided without reference to transcendent values.

Mr. Editor, what is that guides you to say, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," and yet maintain — at times even perpetuate — a such a consistent policy of indifference toward morality and those with religious convictions?

As we approach the Christmas season, let us look to the "reason for the season," instead of merely seeking the generosity of a position we occupy for purpose. Merry Christmas. Times-News.

He likes Samples' letters

Reading Margo Schmidt's letter criticizing the location of Ted Samples' editorial suite "brought me to life" Sunday morning. I look forward to one of Ted's letters to start my day, and my day is always better when I'm pleasantly surprised.

Therefore, I believe that in order to ameliorate the situation, we should give Ted a raise — I raise his letters to the upper left corner of the "Opinion" page. After all, Ted's letter is often the only thing on the whole page that makes any sense.

Ms. Schmidt indicates that she has no complaint with the content of his letters. She has somewhat "smarmy" attitude of the old stove.

I looked the word "smarmy" up in the dictionary and found it to be a not particularly complimentary term. As far as I am concerned, my bread making in my grandmother's Monarch stove. My only wish was that she was still here to butter the heel of one of those fresh-baked loaves of bread for me, just like she did when I was a boy.

Thanks, Ted, for making my day a little better and please keep the letters coming.

Cheers for Murtagh students

Hooray, Bob Reiman and 11 others from Murtagh High School who took the time and energy to write a letter to the editor to express their disapproval of the blatant show of homosexual lovers in bed together on "Thirty-something."

The opening scene of this same episode was an unmarried man and woman, very obviously "in the act" of making love.

Seconds after the homosexual bed scene began, my husband turned the TV off; so we missed the intimate exchange about "love blossoms that I hope you'll put to good use."

I just want to let you know, Bob, that you are not alone in your concern about what's happening — not only on TV but in every area of the media in this country. I also want to pass some addresses on to you and your friends that I hope you'll put to good use.

The day after that particular show aired, I contacted our local ABC affiliate and obtained addresses of the Federal Communication Commission and ABC, Inc. I encourage anyone reading this letter who is disgusted with much of the subject matter on TV to write to the FCC and to the television networks and let them know how you feel.

The only thing that is going to change the direction the media is taking is if enough people object to the garbage that is being "thrown" at us. I suggest that you write a letter and ask many people to sign it if they agree with you. Send one to the FCC and one to ABC. The FCC is responsible for the laws governing what may or may not be shown on TV. The addresses are:

Federal Communication Commission, 1919 M Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20554.

Capital Cities/ABC Inc., 77 West 66th St., New York City, NY 10023

Another very effective method is through the sponsors of the show. There is currently a group boycotting Clorox and Mennen because when they approached the heads of these companies about the shows they sponsor, that endorse violence and pre-marital sex, the companies wouldn't do anything about it.

Boycotting can be effective, but it does take some organization. Anybody can write a letter! Please, if you are one who saw this show and was shocked by it, take the time to write to the above addresses. Help us let them know we don't want it in our living rooms.

Insurance questions for city

Just a few thoughts on insurance for the city of Twin Falls. Seems just two or three years ago, the insurance companies would not sell coverage to the city; but now that they see the city can muddle without them, it's a different story.

I also read in the paper where the mayor asked that we start our business without insurance. Now, let's see, wasn't this the same man who, just a while back, tried to use his position to get a freeway ramp? Used taxpayers money for a weekend trip? Now, correct me if I am wrong — as I am sure someone will — but isn't the mayor in the insurance game? And is not the one who is trying to sell insurance to the city one of the mayor's good friends? Makes one stop and wonder.

Also, I wonder how many other insurance companies have been injured about this? If I were the people of Twin Falls, I would be asking a lot of questions about this.

Ban erotica from television

I agree with the Murtagh students: erotic, sensual material — such as sex acts — along with exaggerated, heinous violence, should be banned from television screens.

Epidemics of contagious diseases are controlled by quarantining the carriers of the diseases. Pornographic material has grown to epidemic proportions. People who promote this type of entertainment have sick minds and should be prosecuted to the limit; their businesses should be closed for all time and the operators should be quarantined so they can't be effective, but it does take some organization. Anybody can write a letter! Please, if you are one who saw this show and was shocked by it, take the time to write to the above addresses. Help us let them know we don't want it in our living rooms.

Insurance-reform-move-grows

The large increases in the cost of private auto insurance reached a record in 1987, and has continued through 1989, making it unavailable and not affordable to millions of Americans.

A solution to this crisis has been slowed by confusion as to its source. Auto insurers contend that there is no problem, and where the blame is due to urban congestion and rising medical, legal, auto theft and replacement parts and costs, which causes increases in insurance premiums.

Consumer advocates respond that the auto insurance crisis is the fault of the industry itself, because of its refusal to attack the real reasons for the high rates.

Since 1986, the cost of auto insurance including liability, physical damage and medical benefits have increased faster than overall inflation rates.

In most areas of the United States, insurance premiums, or the cost of insurance premiums, has risen 75 percent over the last five years.

Insurance reform is not just happening here in Idaho alone. At this present time, insurance reform drives are now taking place in dozens of states, including NE; Pa., Ill., Ohio, Texas, Wis. and Md. For instance, in the state of Ohio, the Department of Insurance last July prohibited insurance companies from raising premiums following a single accident or moving violation.

Federal regulation of insurance industry is possible, given congressional interest in insurance issues, particularly in the erosion of public confidence in insurance companies. Several bills have recently been introduced in both the Senate and the house; to repeal or amend the McCaren-Ferguson Act.

California voters went to the polls on Nov. 8, 1988, to vote on insurance reform. They approved Proposition 103, which will roll back auto insurance, homeowner, and commercial rates to a level 20 percent below that of Oct. 1, 1987.

The industry's immediate response to the passage of Prop. 103 was an announcement by dozens of companies that they would stop writing new policies or processing renewals. California's attorney general, John Van de Koppel, went to the state supreme court to stop prosecuting them if they conspired to stop selling insurance.

I believe the best way to sum all this up would be in the words of one insurance activist and that is, "When you have a product that the law requires and demands that you purchase, and that profits from this product become very dangerously close to being defined as legal extortion."

Rhetoric missing the point

As I read the rhetoric on both sides of the abortion issue, it seems like most of it is missing the point. The only real question should be, "Is the unborn entity a human being or not?" Once this question is decided, the question then should be, "Should we be dealing with a human being, then abortion is clearly a matter between the woman, the father, the doctor and the lawyers as they deal with this unwanted property. If the fetus is not considered a human, it clearly has no more rights than any other creature."

If we are dealing with a human being, to allow abortion is to say that a woman's right to privacy or right to choose extends to the termination of another human's life. The implications of that are staggering. This is clearly a call to anarchy.

If we are dealing with a human being, to allow abortion on the basis of birth defects or a poor family environment that will cause a supposedly sub-human or lower than desirable existence also has staggering implications. Is this a proper basis for all-time terminating the life of another person?

If it is, then it would be more appropriate to have execution squads than social workers. If a family becomes poor or dysfunctional, thus causing the lowering of the family environment below desirable levels, it would be easier to terminate these human beings than to try to change the family situation.

If it is better to terminate the life of the defective, then why not wait until they are born to make sure of the extent of the injury and then terminate life? What level of defect makes one less than human or undesirable? Spina bifida? A cleft palate? Down's Syndrome? Being a girl when er boy was wanted? Being a Jew in Nazi Germany?

Tea says, "The unborn has a right to good health and to loving parents and without that prospect should be killed," is indeed perverted logic. It admits the unborn is human with human rights, but then takes away the first right (reference): The Declaration of Independence, which entitled all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

In The Times-News Nov. 24, Michael Novak stated, "The advance of scientific evidence in recent years has also favored the right to life. There is now no scientific doubt that when a child is aborted it is not 'part of a woman's body.' It has, rather, an autonomous genetic code of its own; it is an unattachable individual, and it is human both in form and in its natural — unless aborted — development. None of this is a matter of faith or theology."

Science, logic and practicality demand that human life starts at conception, thus making the embryo, fetus and unborn baby all human.

As I have yet to hear a pro-abortionist address the humanity of the fetus with anything other than Tippipecy. Unless you can demonstrate that the unborn is not human, then you must be prepared to defend murder — the intentional killing of innocent life.

Letters/ Courts, judges should not be making our laws

All judges should be elected

"Are Our Courts Making Our Laws?" I have spent a big part of my life in law enforcement and many hours studying criminal law, and I cannot find anything that would give the Supreme Court the authority to order the people of these United States to pay for the defense of anyone charged with the commission of a crime.

Now referring to the United States written Constitution. As I study this great masterpiece, I find a part of this body is charged with the making of laws that govern our peoples. Now our courts come into their place, which is to determine the law as it is written.

As an example: When an attorney can request from a judge a jury trial to be closed and a new one built at the taxpayers' expense — is one man or person making a law?

Now, let's look at "conflict of interest." Is it not a conflict of interest and opinion for any judge to sit on the bench while a member of the American Bar Association of attorneys? It has always been my feeling that a judge should never sit on the bench while a member of the above.

For the taxpayer to be forced to furnish legal help regardless of how for the defense of the accused, can only open the gates to more and more crime.

The purpose of this letter is the hope that the people will start people to thinking about returning electing by ballot our judges — including the Supreme Court — to the people.

Did you encourage your children to associate with this type of people? Did you tell them that we are all equal? If so, should you now be surprised at the results?

appreciation for the great salespeople he has had — and he has had the best.

It has been all these years that I shopped at The Paris, the salespeople that kept me coming back. These salespeople always treated me as though I was someone special, and I'm sure that feeling is shared by most.

I'm also certain Mr. Faulkner is aware of that, too. Why else are the salespeople he has had at The Paris so in demand by other patrons?

If it is, then it would be more appropriate to have execution squads than social workers. If a family becomes poor or dysfunctional, thus causing the lowering of the family environment below desirable levels, it would be easier to terminate these human beings than to try to change the family situation.

If it is better to terminate the life of the defective, then why not wait until they are born to make sure of the extent of the injury and then terminate life? What level of defect makes one less than human or undesirable? Spina bifida? A cleft palate? Down's Syndrome? Being a girl when er boy was wanted? Being a Jew in Nazi Germany?

Tea says, "The unborn has a right to good health and to loving parents and without that prospect should be killed," is indeed perverted logic. It admits the unborn is human with human rights, but then takes away the first right (reference): The Declaration of Independence, which entitled all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

In The Times-News Nov. 24, Michael Novak stated, "The advance of scientific evidence in recent years has also favored the right to life. There is now no scientific doubt that when a child is aborted it is not 'part of a woman's body.' It has, rather, an autonomous genetic code of its own; it is an unattachable individual, and it is human both in form and in its natural — unless aborted — development. None of this is a matter of faith or theology."

Science, logic and practicality demand that human life starts at conception, thus making the embryo, fetus and unborn baby all human.

As I have yet to hear a pro-abortionist address the humanity of the fetus with anything other than Tippipecy. Unless you can demonstrate that the unborn is not human, then you must be prepared to defend murder — the intentional killing of innocent life.

Bush: Summit surprise is 'no surprise'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush sought to reassure European allies Tuesday about his summit with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, promising "I'm not going to surprise them" with any agreement to cut nuclear weapons or reduce U.S. troops overseas.

Bush said he and Gorbachev may discuss possible military cutbacks "in a general way" when they meet off the coast of Malta on Saturday and Sunday.

But he added, "In writing, I have made clear to Mr. Gorbachev — in my handwriting, so he knows it comes from me, not the bureaucracy — that this is not a summit for arms-control agreement."

He said it was important for the allies to know "I'm not going to go off and prematurely jump out there and try to grandstand by committing them to something. That's not the way you keep an alliance strong."

After the two-day summit, Bush will fly to Brussels on Dec. 4 to brief NATO leaders on the discussions.

The allies were aghast to learn in 1987 that then-President Reagan and Gorbachev had come close to a deal at a summit in Reykjavik to abolish all nuclear weapons in spite of the fact that NATO regards some of those arms as vital to deter Soviet attack.

Now, with the collapse of hard-line communist regimes in Eastern Europe, and massive budget deficits in the United States, the Bush administration is considering major cutbacks in troops and weapons.

Gorbachev is facing similar pressures at home.

However, Bush said, "There are no arms control proposals" for the summit.

Bush talks to reporters from his Oval Office desk Tuesday.

"So the surprise will be, if you're looking for a surprise, there won't be a surprise. That may come as a surprise," he said.

He said there had been "frantic speculation" and "hyped speculation" that the superpowers would reach a deal on arms or troops.

"Now if we want to talk in a general way with the Soviet leadership about our aspirations for how a defense system will look 10 years from now, of course, we'll do that, we want to do that," Bush said.

In particular, Bush said, he would like to talk with the Soviets about curtailing their defense spending. "But that's not what I'm referring to when I talk about euphoric expectations of some deal," Bush said. "There isn't going to be such a deal. It takes two to make a deal."

Separately, the State Department said the United States has little interest in a possible Soviet proposal to restrict naval power.

"The Soviet Union, a land power, would be less constrained by such proposals," said State Department spokeswoman Margaret Taveller. "We are not aware of naval arms control measures that enhance stability."

Despite criticism at home that he has reacted too cautiously to changes sweeping Eastern Europe, Bush said his approach was solidly supported by NATO leaders.

Saying he had consulted with each NATO chief, Bush said, "I don't want to sound self-centered here but almost every one of those leaders told me, 'We think the United States is handling this properly.'"

"We appreciate the way you're handling these changes, the prudent approach you are taking."

Moreover, Bush said, it should be the people of Eastern Europe who lead the way toward change. "It doesn't come from somebody halfway across the world dictating how fast change should be or what change should encompass."

Bush also promised that he would press Gorbachev at the summit over the behavior of Moscow's Central American allies — Cuba and Nicaragua.

FDA approves new clot-dissolving drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration on Tuesday approved a new drug that quickly dissolves blood clots to prevent permanent damage following a heart attack.

The drug, called anistreplase, is the third clot-dissolving drug to be approved.

Its advantage is that it can be administered in five minutes or less while the other two must be administered continuously for one to three hours, according to SmithKline Beecham, which will market the drug as Eminase. Although clot-dissolving drugs can open blocked arteries and limit damage from heart attacks, they are used by only 20 percent or so of the estimated 400,000 to 600,000 patients who could benefit from treatment each year, according to the Department of Health and Human Services, which includes the FDA.

More than 300,000 of the 1.5 million people who suffer heart attacks each year die before getting to the hospital.

U.S. trade deficit rises just a little

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit, after improving for six months, deteriorated slightly to $2.75 billion in the third quarter, fed by America's appetite for imported goods and by flat exports, the government reported Tuesday.

Analysts do not see much improvement in the near future.

Imports may drop somewhat because of a slowing U.S. economy, they say, but exports also are likely to fall because of a strong-dollar and moderating economies overseas.

The Commerce Department said the gap between imports and U.S. exports edged up 0.7 percent in the July-September quarter from the second quarter's $2.55 billion.

The April-June gap deficit was the narrowest since a $2.7 billion imbalance in the first quarter of 1985.

Imports posted a 0.3 percent gain to a record $119.3 billion, while exports rose only 0.2 percent to $91.6 billion, also a record.

Both imports and exports have reached record levels during each of the last five quarters.

But analysts worry that exports, which sustained much of the U.S. economy last year, will remain unchanged in the months ahead.

"The trade report substantiates what we've already seen ... export growth simply has flattened out after booming previously and is a major source of the wave of weakness rippling through the U.S. economy, particularly the manufacturing sector," commented Allen Sinai, chief economist of The Boston Co.

But Lawrence Chimere, senior economic advisor for the WEA Group in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., pointed to the high level of oil imports, which he said will continue and further aggravate the trade deficit.

The Commerce Department said the average number of barrels imported daily increased 8.5 percent to 8.65 million barrels in the third quarter — the highest level since the third quarter of 1977.

But despite the increase, oil imports showed a July-September numerical decrease of 1 percent because of lower prices.

81-year-old woman will return to West Germany for doctorate

NEW YORK (AP) — An 81-year-old woman whose studies were interrupted by the Nazis will return to Germany next week to receive her doctoral degree, carrying with her the 247-page thesis she wrote more than half a century ago.

Nina Rubinstein was rereading her work on Monday in preparation for the ceremony at Johann Wolfgang Goethe University in Frankfurt, West Germany.

"I had forgotten most of it," she said. "I'm still not finished."

Luckily for Rubinstein, she won't have to defend her thesis in the traditional manner — "there will be no examination whatsoever," she said with a laugh.

But it will be the subject of a colloquium Dec. 8, part of a 75th anniversary celebration for the university's social science institute, where Rubinstein was a 25-year-old student in 1933.

The effort to get the work recognized was led by Ms. Papanek, a research professor at Boston University; David Kettler, a political science professor at Trent University in Ontario; Claudia Honegger, a professor at the Frankfurt school; and Brock, the school's dean.

"This is important because, I think, the university is making a public statement, a practical statement that it recognizes a wrong was done," Kettler said. "Not to a big shot, but to an ordinary person, and they are making good on it not out of pity, but on the merits of the case."

Ms. Papanek said next week's ceremony "represents a recognition

Ex-White House chief of staff pays $400,000 for 2-acre lot

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Former White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan paid $400,000 for a two-acre lot in Williamsburg's exclusive Kingsmill community and plans to build a home there, a spokesman says.

Court records show Regan and his wife, Ann B. Regan, paid cash for the wooded land in a sale that was closed Nov. 17.

The Regans have arranged to have a house built on the lot by June, said Kathleen Reid, executive assistant to Regan. They are selling their home in Alexandria but will keep a house in Sarasota, Fla., she said.

Regan served former President Reagan as Treasury secretary for two years before taking over as chief of staff for two years. He resigned in February 1987 following a bitter dispute with Nancy Reagan.

Singer faints on stage at Metropolitan Opera

NEW YORK (AP) — Partons of the Metropolitan Opera got a little more drama than they had anticipated when mezzo-soprano Helga Dernesch fainted on stage.

Ms. Dernesch, who was playing the vocally demanding role of Nurse in Richard Strauss' "Die Frau ohne Schatten," paused, coughed and fell to the floor about 50 minutes into the 60-minute first act of the three-act opera Monday at Metropolitan.

Then the curtain was brought down and we decided to take an intermission," he said.

Ms. Dernesch was attended by the house doctor, who concluded that "she may be a little anemic, but she's fine and she's going home," said Sheek.

The opera resumed with another singer, Diane Curry, singing the part, Sheek said.

Principal cancels rap artist's anti-drug talk

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A principal decided to cancel an anti-drug talk by rap artist Flavor Flav at a high school after seeing another member of the group Public Enemy on television.

"Flav was to appear as part of an anti-drug program Monday at North Central High School.

The program was canceled after Principal Charles Roach watched Friday's edition of the ABC News program "Nightline," in which a discussion of racism in music included a clip of Public Enemy member Professor Griff calling Jews wicked. The rap artist later apologized.

"Based on the controversy associated with Public Enemy, the cancellation in my opinion was not going to be a positive experience," Roach said Monday.

The Rev. Charles Williams, president of Indiana Black Expo, which sponsored the anti-drug program, said he was disappointed and that Roach's decision bordered on racism.

Detroit mayor's raise ties for highest paid

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Coleman Young has been given a pay raise that ties him with the mayor of

New York City as the nation's highest-paid municipal chief.

The City's Elected Officials Compensation Commission on Monday recommended a 3.7 percent pay raise for Young, boosting his salary from $125,350 to $130,000. It goes into effect in 30 days unless rejected by the City Council.

While they will now be paid the same, Young runs a city with 21,000 employees and New York City's mayor heads an $2,000-employee government.

Young is on vacation for two weeks and could not be reached for comment, spokesman Bob Berg said.

Man convicted by eye-blink testimony gets 6 months in jail

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A man whose fatally wounded victim used death eye blinks to identify him as the assailant was sentenced Tuesday to six months in jail.

"God brought him back for a few moments to communicate with the witness," Westchester County Court Judge John LaCava said of Frederick Sannicandro, 38.

Sannicandro died six hours after he was shot in the abdomen by his friend, Frank Zollbrecht, 45, as they were working in a Yonkers bakery last year.

While he was being wheeled into surgery, detectives and an attending physician questioned Sannicandro and asked him to respond with one blink for "yes" and two blinks for "no."

Sannicandro blinked "yes" when asked if Zollbrecht had shot him and "no" when asked if the shooting was accidental, according to trial testimony.

He could not speak because he had a breathing tube in his throat.

Zollbrecht had a history of alcohol abuse, according to testimony. During drunken horseplay, he got a gun, his boss had hidden and shot Sannicandro.

The defense maintained that Sannicandro's detailed testimony should not have been allowed because Sannicandro also was drunk.

Zollbrecht, convicted of criminal negligence homicide, could have been sentenced to four years in prison, Assistant District Attorney Michael Romano argued for a one-year term, saying the defendant had ignored warnings about drinking and the gun.

Zollbrecht's lawyer, Anthony Morosco, said his client had been traumatized at age 7 by the death of an older brother. "He's a good person who has suffered a series of great tragedies in his life," Morosco said.

A tearful Zollbrecht told the judge, "I would never hurt Freddy. I'm sorry for what happened. What can I say? I'm sorry I touched the gun. I'm sorry."

LaCava ordered that Zollbrecht spend five years on probation after his prison term, do 1,000 hours of community service and get treatment for his drinking and any psychological problems.

Kennedy visits site of brother's famous speech near Berlin Wall

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy on Tuesday visited the spot of his brother's famous speech denouncing the Berlin Wall, and he said the barrier's opening will lead to the reunification of Germany.

He also laid two white lilies on the steps of West Berlin's Schoenberg City Hall, where President John F. Kennedy stood on June 26, 1963, and declared: "Ich bin ein Berliner."

"I am a Berliner."

During a one-day visit, the Massachusetts Democrat also met in West Berlin with East German opposition groups, including New Forum. The West Berlin city government said the groups told Kennedy that reforms in their homeland were being overshadowed by West German-led debate on reunification.

"I think that is an inevitable course of history," Kennedy said after crossing briefly into East Berlin for talks with Lutheran church leaders. "The question of timing and the rest... these are questions that really have to be determined by the people in these communities."

Kennedy also laid flowers at the Reckese in East Berlin in tribute to the more than 80 people killed trying to escape after East Germany built the wall in 1961.

East German border guards stared silently as the senator walked alongside the wall and looked at signs where souvenir hunters have chipped away pieces of concrete.

East Germany, bowing to a citizens uprising demanding reforms, lifted travel restrictions and opened the wall and other borders on Nov. 9.

In a welcoming ceremony at Schoenberg City Hall, Kennedy said: "I come here today, on behalf of my family and country, on a journey of memory and hope."

"You have opened the way to a new world of freedom," he said. "Today, in that world of freedom, the proudest boast is 'Ich bin ein Berliner.'"

He was flanked by former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, who as West Berlin mayor accompanied President Kennedy in 1963.

The neighboring republics of Azerbaijan and Armenia have been waging a bloody dispute over the region, which is located entirely within the borders of Moslem Azerbaijan but whose population of 124,000 mainly Christian Armenians outnumber Azerbaijanis by a 4-1 ratio.

It said the armed forces have singled out young people as suspected supporters of the rebel Shining Path organization and hundreds have been killed, tortured or have simply disappeared.

Kohl proposes new German federation

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl Tuesday proposed a German federation as part of a sweeping plan to reunite two countries after four decades of post-war division.

East Germany has increasingly discussed the possibility of a confederation, but the Communist nation's leader, Egon Krenz, ruled out any talk of reunification.

"A unity of Germany isn't on the agenda," Krenz told West Germany's ARD-TV network in insisting on the continued existence of two "sovereign, independent German states."

There are fears among Europeans in the East and the West about the political and economic power of a reunified Germany with 80 million people.

Kohl, in a speech to Parliament, sought to allay those fears, saying: "The Germans... will be a dividend for a Europe that is coming together, and never again a threat."

The United States favors reunification, and State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler reiterated that position in Washington on Tuesday. The Soviet Union has said the idea is "dangerous and unrealistic."

Kohl said he had no timetable in mind to carry out his ideas and made it clear it could take years to form a federation.

He is expected to discuss his proposals with East German leaders at a summit next month.

East German government spokesman Wolfgang Meyer said Kohl's plan in general provided "interesting starting points for negotiations."

But writer Stefan Heym and a number of other East German artists, clerics and intellectuals rejected reunification, saying they opposed their country "being pocketed" by West Germany.

INEL cleanup plan has no public input

By N. S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Despite promises to involve the public, the government will not seek public comment on cleanup plans for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory until the final plans are published. The draft plan's introduction says the plan "is being developed with participation and review by local and state government officials, affected Indian Nations, regulatory officials and by the general public."

But the plan will not be released to the public, nor will public comment be sought until the final version of the plan is complete. INEL spokesman Nick Nichols said. A final version of the plan will be published and made available to the public in January. The public's first chance to get involved will be the plan's first annual revision. No date for the revision has been announced. The plan will put into action the Energy Department's recently released "Environmental Restoration and Waste Management Five Year Plan." The five-year plan requires specific plans for each Energy Department site. The plan "encourages, and promotes, participation of the public in planning solutions to the serious and long-standing problems of waste management at DOE sites," the introduction to the INEL draft plan says. Because of the fast timetable, public involvement in developing the INEL plan was limited to participation by state and regulatory officials, the draft plan says. The public and the press are not invited to a "public session" scheduled for 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dec. 8 at the Shilo Inn in Idaho Falls. The session is open to the public on request. Before the plan's annual revision, the department will announce a 30-day period. See PUBLIC on Page B2

Vandals destroy 20 car windows locally

TWIN FALLS - One or more hoodlums smashed 20 car windows around town Monday night, according to police. The total damage was estimated at $6,000. Patrol Officer Dennis Rinehart said. The vandals, believed to be teenagers, struck 17 cars between midnight and 8 a.m. Tuesday, Rinehart said. The cars were parked from Sunrise Boulevard North to Willis Motor Co. on Shoshone Street West, where windows on four cars were broken. Rinehart said the vandals could be charged with felony malicious destruction.

Andrus shows outrage at challengers' remarks

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Two GOP challengers who impugned Gov. Cecil Andrus' political honesty on Monday found themselves on the receiving end Tuesday. "I see the sneeze express stopped in your town," Andrus said during a telephone interview Tuesday.

Fairchild said he was "pretty much talking about the whole country" when he made those remarks and not specifically about Andrus or Idaho. "Methinks the man doth protest too much," he said in a phone interview. "I don't think Andrus or anybody else out can make the case that our government doesn't need improvement."

Though state Sen. Roger Fairchild did not mention Andrus by name, he spoke of intending to eradicate a system of government where a bribe is needed to get a permit, a campaign contribution is needed to talk to a congressman, a consultant title is needed to talk to the governor, and a parent needs to be in the right political party before his kid can go to military school. Andrus took Fairchild's remarks personally and said every state employee should, too. To suggest that state employees take bribes before they'll issue a permit "slanders every state government employee," Andrus said. "He owes them an apology."

Andrus also said Boise stockbroker Milton Erhart was wrong Monday to suggest that advertisements featuring the ethanol and sponsored by the ethanol industry "border on the illegal." The remarks were made by an unknown candidate trying to grab headlines, the governor said. Ethanol has widespread bipartisan support, he added. Promoting ethanol in this state is no different from promoting potatoes or apples, Andrus said. "We're not promoting Cee Andrus." Though the 1990 gubernatorial campaign is still in its infancy, with Fairchild as the only candidate to officially declare, Andrus said it would appear that the tone for next election is OUTRAGE on Page B2.

Right-to-Life supporters vow never to stop effort

By MICHELLE COLE

TWIN FALLS - About 150 people crammed into a meeting room Tuesday night for an anti-abortion strategy session organized by the Magic Valley Right to Life chapter.

possibility that the nation's highest court may overturn its 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision mandating abortion access. "We feel this is an important time - perhaps the most important time since 1973," Havener said. Though Havener characterized Idaho's pro-choice contingent as being few in numbers, they are well-funded and they are well-organized, he said. Havener encouraged his group to "stand up and be counted."

"We're never going to stop," pledged Mike Havener, local chapter president. "We're never going to give up. We're never going to compromise with the lives of the unborn." Havener's call to action was met with thunderous applause by the overflow crowd that included many men, women and children who stood in the back of the room. "We need your help," he said. "That's why we've called you here tonight." The purpose of the meeting, Havener explained, was to mobilize the pro-life contingent, especially in light of the

The local chapter provided 300 postage-paid postcards and the addresses of state legislators to make sure the members of the audience do just that. Havener, and Karen Heiner, an Idaho Right to Life lobbyist, urged the audience not only to mail the postcards, but to telephone their state representatives, to sign. See LIFE on Page B2

Senator's plan makes every school a lottery winner

Times-News writer

DECLO - With the state's School Building Fund bulging with Lottery revenue, a legislator has come up with a plan to give every Idaho district a piece of the action. State Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, announced this week that he will introduce a bill in the upcoming session to modify the way the School Building Funds will be dispersed. Under Darrington's plan, every school District would be entitled to approximately $143,000 and the Cassia School District to $115,000. Of the area's smaller school districts, Darrington estimated Hagerman would be entitled to $9,000, and the Wendell School District could pull out $24,000. Keith Tolzin, Twin Falls' acting superintendent, said Tuesday that he sees it as a positive way for every child to benefit from the Lottery-led account. But Tolzin said other education positions might get munched under Darrington's current plan. For instance, Tolzin said, if a consortium

Gooding officer sees count of being accessory to rape

GOODING - A city police officer appeared in Magistrate Court Tuesday on a rape-related charge. Jeffrey Dean Powell, 27, is charged with being an accessory to rape. Another Gooding police officer, Terry Behunin, 23, is charged with rape.

In documents filed in court, investigators said Behunin had sex with a 17-year-old girl in August while Powell slept nearby.

Investigators said they found no evidence that force was used. Powell has been suspended without pay from the police department; Behunin has resigned.

Powell appeared before 5th-District Magistrate Judge Thomas R. Cushman; a preliminary hearing will be scheduled. Behunin's initial appearance was postponed until next week.

Agriculture seminar will focus on nematode control

RUPERT - A seminar next week will help farmers learn how to control nematodes, those pesky little worms that plague potato and sugar beet growers.

The University of Idaho Cooperative Extension System, area potato processors, Amalgamated Sugar Co. and area farm chemical dealers will present a nematode seminar at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Rupert Elks Lodge. Registration for the seminar will begin at 9:30.

The seminar will cover how to check for nematodes, interpreting nematode analysis and how nematodes spread. It also will cover methods of controlling the worms in sugar beet and potato fields with chemicals and crop rotations.

Local woman hospitalized after 2-car crash Tuesday

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls woman was admitted to the hospital after a two-car accident Tuesday morning. Wendy Roberta McGrath, 36, was in serious but stable condition at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Tuesday afternoon, a nursing supervisor said.

McGrath was headed north on 3065 E., a gravel lane, and struck a van as she tried to turn left onto 3400 N., according to a sheriff's accident report.

Her car spun a full circle before stopping in the eastbound lane. McGrath, who wasn't wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the car.

The van, headed east on 3400 N., crossed and went off the left side of the road, jumped a ditch and a barbed-wire fence, and landed against a tree.

The driver, Marlene Hamblin, 32, of Twin Falls, and her passenger, 10-year-old Shane Hamblin, were both wearing seat belts and not taken to the hospital, according to reports.

Food chain leaves Boise, expands in Magic Valley

By The Times-News and Associated Press

BOISE - Smith's Food and Drug Centers Inc. has moved out of Boise but is expanding in Burley.

"We're very happy with our support in the rest of Idaho," Smith's Chief Operating Officer Richard Smith said. "This decision has absolutely no effect on our operations in the rest of Southern Idaho."

Smith's is so pleased with its Magic Valley support, in fact, that the chain will build as soon as possible a 60,000-square-foot store in Burley - about twice the size of most existing stores in Twin Falls.

Smith's, after losing its bid to build a super-store at its chosen location in Boise last summer, made good Monday on its threat to pull out of the city. The company will close all four of its Boise stores and its stores in Meridian and Payette.

Smith's will still have six stores in Idaho: two in Pocatello and one each in Jerome, Twin Falls, Burley and Idaho Falls. The Smith's departure will leave Albertson's Inc. virtually in control of Boise's grocery market. In the Twin Falls area, Smith's operates in a market replete with locally owned, independent stores.

Barney Swensen, who started the first local ownership in 1987 when it sold its area stores to the company that operated the Farmer Jack supermarket chain, but Farmer Jack, one year later, closed and sold its two Twin Falls stores to local owners.

"We have had increases that have kept pace with inflation," Swensen's Magic Markets President Jerry Swensen said. "We can't complain," echoed Bud Williams, owner of Williams Market.

Swensen said the amount of grocery store space - not the number of stores - is the key factor in the competitive climate. And an abundance of space in Twin Falls is squeezing out some stores in outlying towns, he said.

Buhl Council considers standards for electrically heated homes

By MIKEL DENTON
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The City Council is considering adopting new standards for electrically heated homes.

Ken Baker, from the Department of Water Resources, and Denise Hoehne, from the Association of Idaho Cities, told the council Monday about a program sponsored by the Bonneville Power Administration designed to promote energy conservation.

The Northwest Energy Code Program program provides funds to implement and enforce energy codes for electrically heated homes, based on the number of new homes built each year.

"Bonnieville is interested in creating a conservation resource to delay the need for building generating plants," Hoehne said. "That's the bottom line."

"It's half the cost to invest in conservation than it is to go out and build a coal generating plant, for example," Baker added.

The additional costs involved in bringing a $500,000 home up to code standards would be about $1,500, said Baker. However, energy bills could be cut 30 to 50 percent for that same house.

At that rate, efficiency improvements to home a costing $700 annually to heat would be paid for in five years, he said.

Hoehne estimated that if two electrically heated homes were built in Buhl over each of the next two years, the program would pay $11,000.

She also said that working in conjunction with Idaho Power could save another $6,000 added to that figure. "So that would be $17,000 extra dollars in town working and rolling around in your economy."

Hoehne and Baker met with local construction firms Tuesday morning to answer any questions about specific building practices and requirements.

The council will consider the matter further before making a decision regarding the program.

Rupert City Council voted last month to join the program but only if the city is free from potential liability problems.

The city declined an offer, a few years ago to join, concerned that it may be liable if contractors who receive paybacks for using energy efficient materials don't use them.

In such a case, the BPA might want its money back and would go to the city to get the funds, officials said.

But Mitidika County signed up for the program, freeing Rupert from liability.

Florence to head Twin Falls business improvement efforts

BETSY FLORENCE
Wants shoppers downtown

TWIN FALLS — Don't think of it as downtown Twin Falls. Think of it as a village.

Even, perhaps, as a little like a ski resort with a mix of eclectic stores, the new downtown business district manager says.

"I envision a little village of a lot of neat little shops," Betsy Florence said.

"I think it has a lot of potential," she said. "It is struggling right now, but a lot of things are going to help."

The Twin Falls Business Improvement District board of directors on Tuesday selected Florence to head its promotion and outreach efforts.

Sue Jones, who is leaving for a job with the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

"She seemed to have a very optimistic outlook," district Chairman Emery Pettersen said. "But she realized we're going through a continuing stage where we have a lot of people moving in and moving out."

Florence brings to her $12,000-a-year job a resume dotted with downtown jobs.

After her 1972 high school graduation, she worked for City Drug when it occupied a building at the Main Avenue and Shoshone Street intersection.

Florence also has held jobs with the Twin Falls Bank & Trust, Swensen's Magic Markets and The Paris Co.

"I love downtown," Florence said.

So she hopes to instill a love of the downtown type of shopping in potential customers.

"What I'm striving for downtown is for people to know how personalized the service is down there," she said.

"This is all personalized, and they have all their own personalized little things," she said. "In a lot of big stores, you don't have a clue who owns it or manages it."

"The Business Improvement District assesses fees on downtown businesses and uses the money for improvements and promotion."

Florence is married to Franny Florence, vice-president and production manager of Independent Meat.

They have one child.

Filer School Board asks club to delay fund raising

By DEVERLEY HICKS
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The Hollister Booster Club will postpone fund raising for a multipurpose building until June.

The school board has recommended the club wait until next year when the district will have a better idea of how much money will be available for a new building.

The district is planning to replace the school's aging physical education building. The facility has met all codes in the past and officials expect it will this year as well, but they don't expect it will last many more years.

"We recognize the building problem in Hollister and will number 1 on our priority list to be dealt with," Superintendent Dave Teater said.

The booster club says a new building would meet three specific needs: an athletic forum, a place for the town's city-wide Christmas play—and some where warm for kids waiting for school buses.

"The Hollister kids are dropped off by the buses and picked up one half hour before and after school."

In winter months this can be kind of tough...finding a place for them to wait? Fred James, booster club member, said.

The district has invested $10,000 it budgeted for the building.

The board told the club it should wait until June to see how much interest the funds have earned and whether some money might be left over in the budget.

The club donated $1,000 toward the project.

Teater estimated the new building would cost about $44,000.

Former BYU player faces 2 charges

OREM, Utah (AP) — Former Brigham Young University running back Wayman Hamilton has been bound over to 4th District Court for trial on two counts of unlawful sexual intercourse with a minor.

Hamilton, 28, who played football for the Cougars from 1980-83, appeared Monday for a preliminary hearing before 4th

Circuit Judge Patrick McGuire. The judge set a tentative district court arraignment date of Dec. 8.

Hamilton is charged with having sex with a 15-year-old Orem girl at his home on two occasions in 1988. In Utah, the legal age of consent is 16.

The girl testified at the preliminary hearing that she visited Hamilton at his apartment many times with others and a number of times alone.

She said she had sex with the defendant on June 3 and Aug. 22, 1988, before observing her 16th birthday.

"He was like a big brother to me. I enjoyed being around him," she testified.

Utah alleges waste violations at Tooele depot

TOOELE ARMY DEPOT, Utah (AP) — Tooele Army Depot has been charged with 40 alleged violations of state hazardous waste regulations stemming from operation of its pilot chemical weapons disposal plant.

State officials say the violations were discovered at the Chemical Agents Munition Disposal System, located in the remote south section of the sprawling installation in Utah's western desert, and associated sites during week-long inspections conducted in May and June.

However, none of the alleged violations involved the actual leakage of nerve gas, said Dennis Downs, director of the state Health Department's solid and hazardous waste division.

While he did not give specifics, he said the deficiencies dealt with precautionary regulations designed to keep an accident from happening.

Nonetheless, Downs said Tuesday that the violations are serious.

"Those munitions and those agents are designed to kill people and so we take our job very seriously, (which is) going out there and making sure the Army is in compliance."

Tooele Army Depot officials declined to comment on the state's charges.

Last month, the installation was given awards by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the Army for excellence in environmental management.

State officials said the Army has begun correcting the deficiencies.

Legislators read the editorial pages, Hefner said.

They also stack postcards from both sides, and vote with the higher stack, she added.

"Don't let up," she said. "Don't be intimidated."

Although she wouldn't give many details, Hefner said there are at least two pro-life bills that will go before the state Legislature this year.

She said one of the provisions will be to add stiff civil penalties for doctors who perform abortions should Wade vs. Roe be overturned.

Having a news clipping in which Ted Turner, Cable News Network owner, calls the pro-life contingent "bozos" and "idiots," Hefner told the crowd it can be an economic as well as a political voice.

Contact local businesses who advertise on the CNN network, he said.

Another way to help the cause is to donate to the local pro-life pregnancy counseling center through the United Way, he said.

Finally, Hefner called upon everyone who turned out on a chilly Tuesday night to brave the elements again Jan. 20 for a march in Boise. The march is set to begin at Fort Boise.

Walkers plan to wind their way by St. Luke's Hospital, one of the abortion centers in the state where abortions are performed.

said his department estimates there will be $6 million in the School Building Fund by June 30, the first date the money will be available to schools.

Under current law, Evans said the money will be dispersed to a few districts that prove they need it most.

Among the criteria to be considered are how much a district needs the funds, the district's ability to raise the money through a tax levy, the district's previous efforts to raise the money and whether the allocation will reduce the student/teacher ratio in the district's schools.

Evans said the difference between the current law and Farrington's bill boils down to a philosophical argument.

"If we leave the law like it is now, you'll have one or two happy school districts and 112 unhappy because they didn't get any money," Evans said.

"With the other plan, they'll all be happy but there won't be nearly enough money to build school — but maybe a classroom or a roof."

Smith's

In Boise, Smith's lost a hotly fought battle over its plan to build a superstore on the northwest corner of Vista and Overland — the store would have been across the street from an Albertson's grocery.

The plan was strongly opposed by neighbors of the site, the city Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council, which rejected the plan on July 18.

Smith's executives had suggested they would leave if the store was not approved.

After the decision, they softened their stance, saying a decision would be withheld pending a search for another site.

Jeff Smith, Smith's president and chief executive officer, said the six stores-the chain is closing pre-sill operations that have lost money for about 18 months.

All remaining stores are larger than the Boise-area stores being closed.

"I'm kind of shocked at the news," Albertson's Chairman Warren McCain said. "I almost find it hard to believe they'd do that."

Smith's is the second major grocery chain with multi-state operations to leave Boise in the past two years.

Buttery Food Stores closed five stores in July 1987; three of which were bought by arch-rival Albertson's.

A fourth site was purchased by Club Wholesale Inc.

Other stores to close in Boise since 1987 include Safeway and D'Alessandro's, an independent

Child molester Dodd pleads innocent in deaths of 3 young boys

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A 28-year-old convicted child molester pleaded innocent Monday to charges he murdered three young boys and tried to kill a fourth.

Wesley Allan Dodd of Vancouver stood quietly and answered "Not guilty as charged" to all five counts read by Clark County Superior Court Judge Robert Harris.

Dodd is being held without bail on three counts of first-degree aggravated murder in the deaths of 4-year-old Lee Joseph Iseli of Portland, Ore., and Vancouver brothers Cole Neer, 11, and William Neer, 10.

The Neer brothers' bodies were found Sept. 4 in a Vancouver park where they had hidden their bicycles. Both had been stabbed.

The Iseli boy's body was discovered near Vancouver, Lake Nov. 1, three days after he disappeared from a southeast Portland schoolyard.

Dodd pleaded innocent even though, according to an affidavit filed in Clark County District Court, he admitted in graphic detail to molesting and strangling the Iseli boy.

Prosecuting attorney Curt Curtis said Dodd's pleas were routine and could be changed later. Curtis said he would decide within 30 days whether to seek the death penalty in the case.

"It's something we're certainly considering and something we may do eventually," he said after the hearing.

Under Washington law, a first-degree aggravated murder conviction carries the death penalty or a mandatory life sentence without parole.

Dodd was arrested Nov. 13 after he allegedly carried 6-year-old James Kirk II from a Camas, Wash., movie theater. Although the boy was let go outside the theater, his mother's boyfriend tracked Dodd down and brought him back.

Dodd pleaded innocent to one count each of first-degree attempted kidnapping and first-degree attempted murder in that case.

Dodd, wearing a new goatee, stood quietly and showed no emotion during the hearing.

Harris scheduled a trial in the Neer deaths for Jan. 22, and a trial in the Iseli and Kirk cases for Feb. 26.

Curtis said the first trial could be delayed "for a week based on judicial convenience." Curtis said he doubted the trial dates would stand because he expected the defense to seek a continuance.

The attorneys and Harris concluded that the first trial would last about a month.

Curtis also said he expects the defense to ask for a change of venue based on pre-trial publicity.

"It would be a surprise if they didn't ask for one," he said. "We're hopeful that the trial can be held out of Clark County. Obviously, the judge is a little upset with the pre-trial publicity."

Harris admonished photographers in the courtroom for publishing front-view photos from Dodd's first court appearance and threatened to bar them from future proceedings.

"I'm not going to be brought before the judicial fitness commission," he said.

Curtis also said Washington's voluntary press-bar guidelines were violated when newspapers and broadcast stations gave details of Dodd's confession. The affidavit containing the confession was made public under a judge's order, but the media should have withheld information about Dodd's statements to police, Curtis said.

"It may be water under the bridge, but we still want to see a formal public under a judge's order, but the media should have withheld information about Dodd's statements to police, Curtis said."

Curtis said the media have been out of hand in their coverage of Dodd's case.

Dodd's attorney, Lee Dane, declined to talk to reporters after the arraignment.

Harris scheduled a hearing for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday to hear arguments on whether the defense should tell the prosecution the identity of expert witnesses it intends to call. Another hearing on pre-trial motions was scheduled Dec. 17.

Dodd has a history of convictions for sex offenses involving children.

"From 1984 to 1988, he has helped create a public outrage should lead the Washington Legislature into revising the governing offenders parole statute."

"He had a total of 17 parole release supervision for type of offender," he said. "The board authorities would keep a close watch on Dodd."

Helicopter crash kills 1, injures 5 at Utah ski area

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — The son of a prominent ski promoter was killed and five others were injured Tuesday when a cable being trailed by a helicopter became entangled in the rotor, causing the craft to crash at Park City Ski Area, authorities said.

Park City Police Chief Frank Bell said Craig Badami, 37, of Park City, was identified late Tuesday as having died in the crash. Badami is the son of Nick Badami, owner of the ski area and the Alpine Meadows Ski Corp. in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Craig Badami was declared dead at the site of the crash after efforts to revive him failed, police said.

He was a prime mover in organizing last weekend's World Cup ski competition, said ski area spokesman Mark Menlove.

"Craig was a visionary who really saw the big picture and the way things could be," Menlove said. "He was the driving force behind the World Cup and wasn't afraid of going all out."

Bell said witnesses indicated the helicopter's steel cable snagged on a mobile trailer, snipped and flew upward into the rotor.

"It came down upside down... there was no fire and nobody on the ground was injured," said Bell, who added that details were sketchy.

He said the trailer had been used to store equipment and the chopper to ferry officials during the World Cup ski races that concluded Saturday at the resort 25 miles east of Salt Lake City.

The Federal Aviation Administration had investigators at the scene and the National Transportation Safety Board sent another.

Ski area spokesman Mark Menlove said the chopper, owned by Rocky Mountain Helicopter Provo, crashed about 2:40 p.m. at the base of the Three Kings ski lift, a novice run which was not open for public skiing.

Bryant Larsen, a spokesman at the University of Utah Health Sciences Center in Salt Lake, said two Salt Lake men were taken there by Air Med helicopter and were in critical but stable condition.

He identified the two as Ed Pratt, 38, and Michael Simonsen, 29, who had possible head and abdominal injuries.

Two others were taken by Life Flight helicopter to LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City, where spokesman Tim Madden identified them as the pilot, Lynn Gillies, 49, of Fairfield, in critical condition with abdominal injuries, and David Simonsen, 20, Salt Lake, in serious condition with possible back injuries.

A fifth man was taken by ambulance to Holy Cross Hospital in Salt Lake and was listed in stable condition. His identity was not available late Tuesday.

Legislative panels talk expansion

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Requests for more higher education facilities and new educational programs in the Idaho Falls area will be discussed Friday at a special meeting of the education committees of the Idaho Senate and House.

All the ingredients are there, said the pressures to create another higher education institution," said Idaho Sen. Jay R. Sampa, chairman of the House Education Committee.

"The education committees need to see what's going on over there, look at the real needs, see the community forces behind these proposals and hear from the state board (of Education) about its strategies for meeting those needs," she said in a prepared statement on Tuesday.

Also chairing the meeting will be Sen. Jerry Thorne, R-Nampa, head of the Senate committee on education.

Thorne said a key element of the hearing will be a report on research at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in eastern Idaho.

Thorne said the federal nuclear research center isn't limited to nuclear research but also is involved in electronics, bio technology, materials and other basic and applied research.

"We want to hear about the kinds of research they're doing at INEL and why they need new programs, especially at the graduate level," he said.

The Board of Education has recommended that a $7-million building be constructed in Idaho Falls to house higher education.

Mrs. Hay said a number of higher education programs already are being offered in Idaho Falls by the University of Idaho-Idaho State and Boise College. Courses are taught at the University-Place building, a structure funded by the University of Idaho Foundation.

The meeting will start with a tour of INEL's lab facilities and a presentation on the need for more higher education programs.

Officials of Eastern Idaho Technical College will outline programs now available.

Sale of radio station draws protest

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Newspaper publisher Duane Hagadone's plans to sell Coeur d'Alene's only AM radio station to his two sons should be denied because it violates federal laws against multiple ownership, a competing station says.

KCDA-FM, under Idaho Broadcasting Co., has filed a petition against the move with the Federal Communications Commission.

"The bureaucratic swindly play that has been used to cut down on KCDA's reasonable opportunity to compete with Hagadone-owned KVNJ induces a sharp pain at the thought of arming the attacker with another broadcast station," the petition says.

In addition, a plan by brothers Burl Todd Hagadone and Bradley Hagadone to buy rights to build an FM radio station in nearby Braden would fuel their father's allegedly anti-competitive business style and keep other independent media voices out, KCDA owner John Rook said.

Hagadone owns the Coeur d'Alene Press and half a dozen other area newspapers.

KVNI was founded in 1946 by Hagadone's father, the late Burl Hagadone.

Under the plan, KMWC-FM would begin broadcasting next summer.

With FCC rules, newspaper publishers cannot own a radio station in the same city, unless they had the station before that rule was set in the mid-1970s.

Hagadone, therefore, is unable to add KMWC-FM to his fold. Under the plan, Burl Todd Hagadone acquires 51 percent of KVNI. He lives in Los Angeles and has no past with the newspaper chain.

Brother Bradley would own 49 percent and will continue as director of Hagadone Investments, which owns the newspapers. When a single investor owns 51 percent of a radio station, the FCC applies its multiple-media rule only to that person.

Duane Hagadone's sons have asked the FCC to approve his acquisition of a low-power FM station in Hayden, a community just north of Coeur d'Alene.

Under the plan, KMWC-FM would begin broadcasting next summer.

Pierce quits over carnival complaints

McCALL (AP) — The Chairman of McCall's Chamber of Commerce has resigned because of complaints that he should have done more to obtain the sponsorship of a beer company for the town's annual Winter Carnival.

Dennis Pierce, who moved from Twin Falls 13 months ago to take the position of executive director, handed in his resignation Nov. 17.

The resignation was effective immediately, but Pierce still was working this week to ease the transition. A search for a replacement will be launched after the carnival.

"I knew that it wasn't a long-run position," Pierce said. "I'm not a tremendous snow person. Last winter was the longest winter of my life."

However, it was irritation among McCall merchants over loss of Coors' sponsorship that tipped the scales toward leaving, according to Pierce.

Pierce said that he attracted the first-ever corporate sponsor last year, when Coors paid $7,500.

For this winter's carnival, Pierce tried to negotiate for more money, and Coors backed out. "That did cause some 'up in arms' by community people," Pierce said.

Acting Chamber President Larry Hammond said the sponsorship process was too slow to answer its letters. During a lull between letters, Coors made other plans, Bouck said.

In addition to the loss of sponsorship, local business people were concerned about the amount of time Pierce spent out of town, said Kay Larson, owner of K&L Jewelry and Gifts in McCall.

"From the things I gleaned from the membership, they thought he should be spending more time in McCall."

Pierce is not the first chamber executive director to run into problems with the Winter Carnival.

In 1985, Executive Director Janne Curry was fired for reasons she said were related to the chamber's financial loss during that year's carnival.

"McCall's a strange place," Pierce said. "It's really a factioned community, and it's tough here."

Cattle group chief prepares for debate

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) — Mounting public debate over food safety, public land use and animal welfare face the nation's ranchers in the coming decade and the cattle industry must be ready to effectively respond, the incoming president of the Idaho Cattle Association warns.

"We want to be up front with measures so that if something comes up we can say, 'This is what we are doing to protect the consumer,'" said Dan Hammond.

Hammond, 49, manager of Snake River Cattle in American Falls, was picked earlier this month to preside over the state Cattle Association in a year.

Because of public concern over the use of some substances to keep cattle healthy and gain weight — highlighted by a European ban on imported American beef treated with growth hormones — Hammond said the association will initiate a beef quality assurance program in 1990.

Attention must also be directed to assuring water quality is maintained on the public lands ranchers lease, he said, but pollution control projects have already been initiated by many operators.

Boise chooses Embassy Suites

BOISE (AP) — Redevelopment officials have endorsed a $19 million plan to construct an Embassy Suites hotel adjacent to the new downtown Boise convention center.

Monday's unanimous vote by the Capital City Development Corp. cleared the way for final negotiations on the project. The partnership of Oppenheimer Development Corp. and Missouri developer John Hammonds should begin construction next July.

The nine-story, 232-suite hotel will be built around an atrium featuring a waterfall on the first floor. It will have meeting rooms and banquet facilities to accommodate up to 1,000 people.

The endorsement disposed of an alternative proposal for a Sheraton hotel coupled with an office tower. Developers backing that plan failed to disclose the main tenant for the office tower by the redevelopment agency's Nov. 13 deadline.

Man sues county over death of dog

CALDWELL (AP) — When Michael Maenaka's dog, Klondike, died, he was devastated and not about to let the death go unpunished.

Maenaka, 34, has filed a wrongful death claim against Canyon County for the "accidental murder" of Klondike while he was in the local animal shelter. He wants $700 to replace the 125-pound Alaskan Malamute.

"Klondike cannot be replaced," Maenaka maintained. "His death has devastated us. We view the blunder committed as the murder of our loved pet by lackadaisical or noncaring people."

A month ago, Klondike escaped from his dog run in Caldwell, Maenaka said, and was captured by animal control officer Karla Badon. She dragged the dog, but it still bit her while being loaded into an animal control truck.

Ms. Badon cited Maenaka for allowing the dog to run at large and told him that Klondike would have to be quarantined for 10 days because of the biting incident.

Maenaka said he checked on the dog's condition and release date twice, telling them he would pick Klondike up on the release date of Nov. 6. But when he checked again that morning, Maenaka said he was told by manager Gail Evans that the dog had been accidentally euthanized that morning.

Officials seek new facility

LEWISTON (AP) — Nez Perce County commissioners are talking about buying a Northwest Children's Home building at Lewiston for use as a regional juvenile detention center.

They figure $1.5 million from Idaho officials is enough to buy and remodel a three-year-old building now housing severely emotionally disturbed adolescents. The 11,000-square-foot structure could house up to 18 juvenile offenders.

Although north central Idaho legislators said Monday night they support the concept, they cautioned county officials to come up with a "good, solid proposal" to bring to the legislature.

Commissioners from Nez Perce, Idaho, Lewis and Clearwater counties met to talk about locating a juvenile center at Lewiston. Doing so looks like a money-saving move since those counties send juvenile offenders to McCall. Latah County houses its juvenile offenders in Ada County.

Lewiston doctor named to board

BOISE (AP) — Dr. Colin Doyle, Lewiston, is the newest member of the state Board of Medicine.

Gov. Cecil Andrus announced the appointment Monday. Doyle fills a vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. John Gerwels, also of Lewiston.

Diane Lynch, Sandpoint, was named to the state Cosmetology Policy Board.

State hesitates about accepting abandoned dump site

POCATELLO (AP) — Plans to build a firing range at an abandoned landfill east of Pocatello may be shot down before the project gets off the ground.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials have been advised by lawyers not to accept ownership of the former dump site on Pocatello Creek Road until the agency conducts an assessment into whether the dump is contaminating nearby wells.

Dan Papp, Fish and Game hunter education coordinator, said the agency is concerned about the risk of environmental contamination and cleanup costs it could incur if it assumes ownership of the landfill.

"I have talked with our legal counsel and they have said basically we should check everything out before we take title to the property," Papp said.

There already is evidence that the landfill may be posing environmental problems. Wayne Hart, solid-waste supervisor for the state Hazardous Materials Bureau, said preliminary tests indicate some domestic wells near the landfill are contaminated.

"There is some pretty good evidence or suspicion that something is coming from the landfill, but we have not confirmed that," he said.

Hart said in the next month, his agency plans tests to determine the source of the pollutants and whether they pose a health risk.

Fish and Game has $32,000 to develop a firing range for sportsmen in the Pocatello area, but it must have title to the land. The Pocatello City Council has agreed to turn the 120-acre landfill over to the state once environmental hurdles are cleared.

Papp said Fish and Game may be able to proceed with the firing range if the city relieves the agency of future liability. But he said such agreements are difficult to write and are not always binding.

The Southeastern Idaho Red and Gun Club has looked at another possible site for a range east of Pocatello, but it met opposition from some area residents because of anticipated noise and increased traffic.

Advocates of the project have turned to the Bureau of Land Management. The property on which the landfill is located must be changed from residential to agricultural before the range can be built.

Paper firm predicts drop in earnings

BOISE (AP) — Earnings in 1990 in the highly cyclical paper industry should decline, says an executive of Boise Cascade Corp., but rebounded quickly in the early 1990s.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John Fery said 1988 revenue for Boise Cascade hit $4.1 billion. But the corporation intends to grow through a period of excess supply and soft prices in some paper products.

"Because of the fundamentally healthy supply-demand relationship in most of the grades (of paper) we produce, and because of aggressive capital spending that will help us move right through the cycle, paper earnings should continue to grow at a strong rate on average over the next several years," Fery told a meeting of stockholders on Monday.

Paper and paper products accounted for nearly 60 percent of the corporation's total 1988 sales and more than 80 percent of its operating income.

Fery said it is very important that local stockholders understand the complexities of Boise Cascade. Fery said, because out of state clients and analysts may expect them to be experts on the local company.

He said Boise Cascade will continue to grow through a full in the industry because an aggressive capital spending program will enable the company to produce the grades of paper that are in greatest demand.

Boise Cascade plans to spend more than $700 million this year on capital improvements this year and about the same amount next year.

Included in $535-million expansion of a paper mill at International Falls, Minn. During an acrimonious strike over the hiring of nonunion labor at the construction site, $1.3 million in property damage was caused.

Fery said strike activity in the fiercely pro-union Minnesota city has ended. "It's over. There's no reason to believe there will be more activity in the future," he said.

The project is ahead of schedule, with the paper mill expected to start up early in 1991.

Sales by Boise Cascade's office products division should hit $1 billion this year, Fery said. The division is expected to continue to grow at or near double-digit rates, and provide stable income to counter the cyclical effects of the paper products segment.

Murder trial start delayed

"BLACKFOOT (AP) — The first-degree murder trial of a Blackfoot woman, who was allegedly under the control of dealers, has been postponed as both the defense and prosecution continued pre-trial maneuvering.

Kathie Winn, 34, charged with the May 11 death of her son Zerk, will go on trial Feb. 27. Seventh District Judge James Hemdon vacated this week's trial schedule after Public Defender Albert Matsura said he had not yet determined what witnesses he would call. Prosecutor Tom Moss said he needed that information as well as the results of a psychological evaluation of Mrs. Winn before he would be ready to proceed.

Zerk Winn was found dead in his bed in the family home, after authorities said he had ingested 40 times the normal adult dose of an anti-depressant drug.

Nixon aide expects revelation that there was no 'Deep Throat'

POCATELLO (AP) — Ronald Ziegler, press secretary to former President Richard Nixon, says he anticipates two death bed confessions over the Watergate affair: from reporters — Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein that there was no "Deep Throat."

Ziegler was in Pocatello Tuesday for a speech at Idaho State University. He said he believes the two Washington Post writers actually attributed information from a "compendium of sources" to "Deep Throat" as they unraveled the Watergate burglary and cover-up conspiracy.

The reporters said a confidential source, never identified but dubbed "Deep Throat," provided many of the leads that led to the Watergate disclosures and eventual resignation by Nixon.

Reflecting on the final days of the Nixon administration, Ziegler said he believes Watergate will be only a footnote to an otherwise historic Nixon presidency.

Nixon "established a foreign policy criteria that was followed during the 1970s and '80s to now, where we see the unraveling of the Soviet empire," said Ziegler. "Democracy has won."

Now-president Clinton, executive officer of the National Association of Chain-Drug Stores, Inc. Ziegler has spent two days in Idaho making speeches and meeting with ISU faculty, students and administrators in Boise and here.

On the dozens of books, movies and television, specials about Watergate and the last days of the Nixon administration, Ziegler said most of the material came from "one or two key actors.... There is a good deal of reality yet to be written."

There have been a lot of "specie" attributes to Ziegler, who maintains contact with the former president.

The movie portrayed Ziegler in an unflattering light.

Asked about his portrayal, Ziegler quipped: "The things that were positive were accurate and the things that were not positive were inaccurate."

"Both Henry Kissinger and Mr. [Nixon] have told me that the city is 'specie' and 'impressive'."

Squabbles derail student lobbyists

MOSCOW (AP) — Apparent infighting among various student governments has stalled plans to establish a unified effort representing student interests before the Idaho Legislature.

Student leaders at the University of Idaho, Lewis Clark State College and North Idaho College have formed their own lobbying group for the coming legislative session, because their counterparts in southern Idaho have declined to be part of a statewide student lobby.

The group will be known as the North Idaho Student Lobby, according to Lon B. Jackson, student body president at LSC at Lewiston.

Jackson and UI Student Senator Lisa Kreppl said Monday North Idaho Student Lobby's goals are:

- LSC and UI student leaders had hoped to resurrect the Idaho Student Lobby to present a unified front in the legislature for students at two- and four-year institutions throughout the state. The original group disbanded about 10 years ago.
- However, student leaders at the College of Southern Idaho, Idaho State University and Boise State University have opted not to join any statewide effort.

Pat Reilly, BSU student body president, said Monday he supports joining the Student Lobby, but BSU's student senate doesn't.

The student senate at BSU believes it would be giving away power to LSC, CSI and NIC and also its advantage of being closer to the state capitol than the other schools, he said in a telephone interview from Boise.

North Idaho College is located at Coeur d'Alene.

Tony Rodriguez, student body president at Idaho State University, said ISU's student government is financially strapped and can't afford doing out $2,000-plus for statewide lobbying efforts.

Pat Natman, CSI's student body vice president, said CSI student leaders chose not to join the ISU because the other southern Idaho schools didn't.

College of Southern Idaho is located at Twin Falls.

The issues in the lobby's legislative agenda also pertain more to the schools in northern Idaho, Natman said.

LSC, UI and NIC students plan to huddle at Moscow Dec. 9 to discuss the organization's structure and the hiring a lobbyist, Jackson said.

State: No write-ins allowed in runoff elections

POCATELLO (AP) — There's no provision in state law for write-ins in runoff elections, and it's Pocatello man tries it next week, he's wasting his time, state officials say.

Attorney General Jim Jones and Deputy Attorney General Daniel Chadwick advised city officials Tuesday that if Pocatello Al Brewster runs as a write-in candidate in next week's runoff for mayor, the voters shouldn't be counted.

"I think Al is wrong. This is all disruptive to the electoral process and I think he's wasting taxpayers' money on a quixotic crusade that has no basis in law," Jones said.

Brewster is "harking up the wrong tree on this issue," noting state law makes no provision for a write-in candidate in a runoff election. Neither are voters allowed to vote for "None of the above," in the election.

"Any vote cast for a write-in will not be total and those who cast in name will have essentially wasted their vote," said Jones.

The state officials said Brewster does not like their opinion, he can seek legal redress.

"If he wants, he can challenge it in court," said Jones. "We gave our advice and we'll stick by it."

Brewster, a longtime critic of local government who finished a dismal third in the Nov. 7 mayoral race here, has indicated he may seek either a legal injunction to block the election, or seek help from the American Civil Liberties Union.

Pocatello's runoff election is between incumbent Dick Emlyson and Peter Angstadt, Idaho State University housing director.

"I don't feel I can vote for either of the two candidates and as far as I'm concerned, there is no prohibition to a write-in," Brewster said.

Accused murderer's attorneys claim conflict, leave defense

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Attorneys for murder suspect Zane Jack Fields dropped him from the case Monday after learning they had previously defended planned prosecution witnesses.

The 30-year-old Boisean is charged with first-degree murder in the Feb. 11, 1988, slaying and robbery of Mary Catherine Vanderford, 69. He faces a possible death sentence if convicted.

Ada County deputy public defenders Anil Myshin and Gus Cahill were granted their request to withdraw based on a potential conflict of interest.

The attorneys recently learned that several state inmates they represented in the past were expected to testify at the trial against Fields.

Fourth District Judge Gerald Schroeder granted the defense motion and vacated a Dec. 2 trial date. The public defender's office must now assign outside counsel to the case.

Prior to Monday's developments, Myshin and Cahill were preparing to argue for suppression of various statements made by the defendant, charging him with conspiracy to Vanderford, owner of the Whiting Well Gait Shop on Ferguson Avenue, managed to dial 911 moments after the attack, but died a short time later at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center.

Fresh evidence reopens case of missing woman

BOISE (AP) — There's a suspect, but still insufficient evidence to bring a charge in the 1984 disappearance of a Middleton woman, Ada County authorities say.

They reopened the case of Linda Marie Hatfield earlier this year and dug up fresh information, including a purported confession by an Idaho State Penitentiary inmate.

But without additional physical evidence, such as the victim's remains, Sheriff's Lt. Dan Douthit said there isn't enough to file a murder charge.

"We've gone to great lengths to pin people down. We've done everything we possibly can," Douthit said Monday. "But right now, we're dead in the water."

Foul play was suspected when Hatfield, a mother of four, failed to return home from her job as a dancer and cocktail waitress in Garden City on May 30, 1984.

A fellow employee walked the 31-year-old woman to her car shortly after 1 a.m., at the close of her shift at the Hunt Club in Garden City.

The club manager later told authorities that Hatfield had said she was going straight home.

Four days later, her car, a maroon 1973 Thunderbird, was found abandoned in a parking lot. Detectives found scratches on the right front bumper that could have been caused by barbed wire. Grass and weeds were stuck under the bumper.

Hatfield's work clothes and a large purse were found in the trunk, but her identification, money and credit cards were missing.

That November, a small clutch purse identified as Hatfield's was found in the New York Canal, less than a mile from where her car had been found. Subsequent searches have been fruitless.

In 1987, Hatfield was declared legally dead in 3rd District Court at the request of her husband of 12 years, Shane Hatfield.

The homicide investigation was mothballed until earlier this year, when the Sheriff's Department rekindled the mystery on "Channel 4 Large," a KBCI Cinnabond 2 crime show.

"Enough calls were generated to place Detective Rita Rowe on the case. Her investigation — inco — has yielded a suspect who already is behind bars.

A leading theory: The victim was being pressured to moonlight as a prostitute, and had refused a big money offer... the day she disappeared.

While the suspect reportedly has confessed to another inmate, Douthit said proof still is lacking.

"It's just a matter of waiting and collecting more evidence," he said.

Briefly

California's organic crop sales double

NEW YORK (AP) — Total sales of organic crops in California in 1988 reached $100 million—double that of the previous year, according to a recent issue of Harrowsmith magazine.

According to Harrowsmith, produce buyers for major supermarket chains in the United States are now looking to suppliers for more organically-grown foods in order to keep up with the growing market of health-conscious consumers.

The magazine examines how conventional farmers are making the transition to sustainable agriculture, how organic foods are certified, and whether some small farmers, pioneers of the organic movement, are being squeezed out.

Men increasingly interested in learning how to cook

CHICAGO (AP) — More and more men are learning to cook, according to home economists, cooking teachers and psychologists, in part because of "the growing interest in food and eating."

Other factors:

- Men are becoming more equal partners in the kitchen because of changes in traditional sex roles, changing family structures and the increased number of single parents.
- More men are staying single longer.
- Many men are growing up as children of working mothers or divorced parents and are learning to cook at an early age.

The Canned Food Information Council has pantry-stocking information, "Cooking for One" recipes and 10-minute meal ideas, ideal for the kitchen cook, male or female. (For information, contact The Canned Food Information Council, 500 North Michigan Ave., Suite 200, Chicago, IL 60611.)

Report says cholesterol the No. 1 consumer concern

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Cholesterol is the No. 1 food issue among consumers this year, according to the NED Group's Fourth Annual Report on National Eating Trends, which surveys consumer eating patterns and attitudes.

Other findings:

- Nearly half of all meals purchased at a restaurant are consumed outside of the restaurant — up from one-third of all purchases in 1983.
- The hottest trend in restaurants today is the "drive-thru" window, which is now used four times more often than restaurant delivery services.
- Some 44 percent of all main meals made at home include at least one completely home-made item.
- Americans curry nearly as many meals from home as they purchase lunches at restaurants.

The 200-page NET report is based on information collected from 2,000 households that maintain diaries of in-home eating patterns for a 2-week period, and 12,800 households that maintain a diary of restaurant purchases for a 2-week period.

Food industry information available for consumers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Lempert Report-Consumer Edition, which contains information on the food industry, is available to consumers by subscription. Topics range from trendy fads to the significance of trade barriers in the supermarket.

"We've come to realize that there is a wealth of material that appears in our industry report that is of value to consumers as well," says Paul Lempert, publisher of The Lempert Report, a bi-weekly food industry report. "We receive hundreds of letters each week from consumers who want to know more about new products and trends."

The newsletter is published four times a year. The cost for a 1-year subscription is $20. For a complimentary first issue, and subscription information, send a postcard to: The Lempert Report, Consumer Edition, Box 61, Belleville, NJ 07109.

DATE-APRICOT COFFEECAKE

The fruit swirl filling recalls the Crusades and the rich "treasure" that "exotic" dates and apricots have meant since then. Evaporated milk makes a glossy rich icing.

Dough:

- 1 1/2 cups cups/1-purpos flour
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk
- 1/3 cup butter or margarine
- 2 cup-water
- 2 eggs, at room temperature
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Date-Apricot Filling:

- 2 tablespoons apricot preserves
- 1/2 cup chopped dates or pitted dates, snipped
- 1/2 cup apricots, snipped
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans, toasted (optional)
- Confectioner's Sugar Frosting, optional (recipe follows)

In large bowl, combine 1-1/2 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat milk, butter and water until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Butter does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs, vanilla extract and 1/2 cup flour; beat 2 minutes at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make soft dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 4 to 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Roll dough to 15 x 12 inches. Spread with apricot preserves within 1/2 inches of edges. Evenly sprinkle dates, apricots and pecans over dough. Roll up from long side as for jelly roll; pinch seam to seal. Set diagonally on large greased baking sheet. With sharp knife, cut 1/2 inches apart, almost through dough. Alternating sides, pull out pieces out and turn so cut sides face up. He flat to form two rows of filled rounds. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 30 to 40 minutes.

Cook's paradise

Wyatts' preparations create ducky results

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — When Wayne Wyatt comes home after a successful day of duck hunting, his wife, Ruby, does not have to deal with his feathered prey until they are processed and presentable.

"She says if I shoot them and prepare them, she'll cook them," he says.

"If the weather is cool the temperature above freezing up to about 45 - 50 degrees, he hangs the ducks by their necks (after removing their insides) for up to three days in his shed or garage. He says this aging tends to break the tissues down."

Wayne then fillets the breasts and legs, and cleans the meat well, making sure there is no blood coagulated under the skin. Next, he soaks it in salt water overnight in the refrigerator, changing out the water a couple of times. "So when all is said and done, you're getting a good, clean, unadulterated piece of meat," he says.

Wayne speculates the reason some people don't like duck is mostly because they do not get all of the blood out. "And they jam onions and oranges and apples and one thing and another in it," he says. "And this is going to make a different taste. You can't take a bad piece of meat and make a good piece out of it."

After the ducks have soaked overnight in the refrigerator, the water is drained off. At this point, Ruby either puts them in the freezer or cooks them.

To freeze, she either puts the ducks, covered with water, into plastic containers or milk cartons. The half gallon cartons hold three or four ducks.

"When she's ready to cook them, that's how she does it."

DUCK FILLETS

Brown filled ducks slowly on all sides - about 15-20 minutes. Place in a greased roasting pan with about 1/2 cup water. Salt and pepper, to taste. Bake at 325 degrees for 2 - 3 hours, testing it every so often, until it is fork tender.

In the last hour of cooking, 1/2 cup wine

Divine, tempting taste of chocolate generally adored by all

By JOAN DRAKE
Los Angeles Times

Admittedly, there are people who don't care for chocolate — there are also people who don't like diamonds or Rolls-Royces — but by and large the population adores it, and a certain percentage finds it positively divine.

Fortunately, because the sweetness of chocolate is so concentrated, often a small bite is enough to satisfy our sweet tooth: one slim slice of pistachio-studded terrine or a tiny nut atop sorbet (both of which store well-in the freezer), a miniature chocolate cup piped with creamy mousse, a thin wedge of gâteau that's enhanced by two fruit sauces, or a single ganache-covered petit four.

On second thought, one of each.

CHOCOLATE-ORANGE SORBET

6 ounces semisweet chocolate, chopped
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup unsweetened alkalized cocoa powder

2 cups water
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 teaspoon orange extract
 Orange zest

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot, not simmering, water. Set aside.

Combine sugar and cocoa in saucepan. Stir in water. Bring mixture to boil, stirring frequently.

Pour mixture into container of ice cream maker. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.

Spread mixture in thin layer on jellyroll pan. Freeze until slushy, then stir every 30 minutes until frozen to give consistency of coarse, churn-frozen ice. Makes 2 cups.

CHOCOLATE-PISTACHIO TERRINE

Note: Mixture may also be poured into loaf pan and frozen overnight. Allow to soften just enough to be scooped before serving.

1/2 cup sugar
 2 1/2 cups whipping cream
 1 1/2 cups shelled pistachios
 1 tablespoon brandy or Pistachio liqueur
 Finely chopped, shelled unsalted pistachios

Line sides and bottom (not ends) of 12-by-4-inch metal loaf pan with piece of 12-inch-wide foil long enough to overlap sides 2 to 3 inches.

Melt chocolate and butter in top of double boiler over hot, not simmering, water. Stir occasionally until smooth.

Remove chocolate mixture from heat and sift in cocoa, whisking until smooth. Whisk in sugar. Cool.

Beat 1 1/2 cups whipping cream until stiff. Fold into chocolate mixture. Stir in pistachios.

Transfer mixture to prepared pan, smoothing top. Wrap tightly in plastic wrap and freezer at least 4 hours or until firm.

Beat remaining 1 cup whipping cream with brandy until stiff. Run this spatula between terrine and ends of pan. Use foil to lift terrine from pan. Remove foil.

Slice terrine with warm, thin, sharp knife. Top each slice with dollop of whipped cream and sprinkling of chopped pistachios. Makes 24 servings.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE IN CHOCOLATE CUPS

 1 egg yolk
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 cup whipping cream
 1 (2 1/2-ounce) box chocolate cups
 12 chocolate-covered coffee beans, optional

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot, not simmering, water. Remove from heat and whisk in egg yolk. Return to heat and cook, stirring, until mixture begins to thicken slightly.

Transfer mixture to prepared pan and stir in vanilla. Place pan in bowl of ice water and cool, stirring frequently. Chill.

Eggs better when stored in carton

Los Angeles Times

Q: Why are we advised to store eggs in their original carton in the refrigerator? I have always kept mine in the trays provided in the door of my appliance, yet nowadays we are told not to do this. I surely am curious as to the reason.

A: Margaret Stokes of the Egg Nutrition Center in Washington explains eggs need to be stored at a temperature both cool and constant. Unfortunately, sections designed for eggs are often located in one of the warmest parts of the refrigerator (the frequently opened door or near the butter keeper), compromising egg quality. For this reason, the Center recommends storing eggs in the original carton on one of the refrigerator shelves, where an optimum temperature is more likely to be present.

Q: I have yet to learn how to skim off the fat when making gravy for any just-cooked roast poultry without first thoroughly chilling in the refrigerator, which time generally will not permit.

Despite recipe instructions, I can find no way to remove meat's little fat while it is still blended with the hot broth and drippings. It would be most grateful for your help.

A: In "Joy of Cooking" (Bobbs-Merrill; 1986) authors Irma S. Rombauer and Marion Rombauer Becker explain there are several ways to pour off the fat quite simply when making gravy. "One is to pour all the juices into a heat-proof glass container and submerge it in cold water. The fat will rise at once and can be spooned off. Another, if there is more fat than stock, is to use a baster: tip the pan and siphon off the good juices from underneath the top layer of grease."

Be sure also measuring cups made for this purpose. They have a pouring spout located near the bottom of the cup that enables you to pour off the juices after the fat rises to the top.

Make light, healthy eating easy with spicy, full flavored foods

Light and healthy eating starts with cutting back on fat. It calls for limiting high-fat foods such as creamy sauces, butter, margarine and cheese, but it need not mean giving up great flavor.

Beef stew a la Italia proves the point. Created by Pace Picante Sauce home economists with light and healthy eating in mind, it begins with lean, trimmed meat and miltizites added fat.

Beef stew doesn't usually come to mind when you think of eating light, but richly flavored Beef Stew a la Italia proves the point. Created by Pace Picante Sauce home economists with light and healthy eating in mind, it begins with lean, trimmed meat and miltizites added fat.

BEEF STEW A LA ITALIA

1 1/2 pounds lean beef chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
2 teaspoons olive or vegetable oil
1 large onion, cut into thin wedges
2 garlic cloves, minced

1 can (28 ounces) plum tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped
1 large baking potato, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch chunks (2 cups)
2 1/2 cup picante sauce
1 teaspoon basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1 large green pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 large zucchini, sliced 1/2-inch thick (2 cups)
1/2 cup (1 ounce) grated parmesan cheese

Place meat on rack of broiler pan. Broil 4 inches from heat until lightly browned, turning once. Heat oil in large saucpan or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add onion and garlic; cook 3 minutes. Add meat, tomatoes, potato, picante sauce, basil, oregano, and, if desired, salt. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer until meat is tender, about 1 hour. Stir in green pepper and zucchini; continue to simmer until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 10 minutes. Ladle into bowls; sprinkle with cheese. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 8 servings, with 8 cups stew.

icing is still soft. Makes 12 wreaths. 3 1/2 to 4 cups all-purpose flour 1/2 cup sugar 1 package active dry yeast 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup evaporated milk 1/2 cup butter or margarine 2 eggs, at room temperature Cranberry Filling (recipe follows) Confectioner's Sugar Frosting, optional (recipe follows)

In large bowl, combine 1 1/2 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat milk, butter and water until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1/2 cup flour; beat 2 minutes at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make stiff dough. Cover loosely with plastic wrap; refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

Punch dough down. On lightly floured surface, roll dough to 21 x 12-inch rectangle. Spread entire surface of dough with Cranberry Filling. Fold 1/3 of dough over from right side. Fold remaining section of dough over, making a 12 x 7-inch rectangle. Press edges to seal. Cut dough into 12 (1-inch) strips. Holding ends of each strip, twist in opposite directions—three times. Pinch ends of each twisted strip to form wreaths. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until almost doubled in size, about 30 minutes.

Bake at 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheets; cool on wire racks. If desired, frost with Confectioner's Sugar Frosting.

almonds, toasted In large bowl, combine 1/2 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat milk, butter and water until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 2 eggs and 1/2 cup flour; beat 2 minutes at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make stiff dough. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 1 hour.

With spoon, stir dough down; stir in chocolate chips and almonds. Divide dough in half; place in 2 well-greased 1-pound coffee cans. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until dough rises to within 1/2-inch of rim, about 40 minutes. Beat remaining egg with 1 tablespoon water; brush tops with egg mixture. Bake on lowest oven rack at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool in cans on wire rack 5 minutes; remove from cans to complete cooling on rack. Delicious: toasted with butter or cream cheese.

CONFECTIONER'S SUGAR FROSTING: In small bowl, combine 1 cup confectioner's sugar, 4 to 5 teaspoons evaporated milk and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract; beat until smooth.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND PANETTONE Reminiscent of the coarse breads baked in the stone ovens of Italy, this holiday favorite is a no-yeast butter dough laced with chocolate chips. Toast leftover bread for a delicious snack. Makes 2 loaves. 3 1/2 to 4 cups all-purpose flour 1/2 cup sugar 1 package active dry yeast 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup evaporated milk 1/2 cup butter or margarine 1/2 cup water 3 eggs, at room temperature 1/2 cup mini semi-sweet chocolate chips 1/2 cup chopped blanched slivered almonds, toasted

SCANDINAVIAN HOLIDAY BREAD This well-loved Scandinavian bread is fragrant with cardamom and has a rich golden color. Mildly sweet, the festive bread complements sliced meats and cheeses at holiday buffets. Makes 1 loaf. 4 to 4 1/2 cups all-purpose flour

1/2 cup sugar 1 package active dry yeast 1 teaspoon ground cardamom 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup evaporated milk 1/3 cup butter or margarine 3 eggs, at room temperature In large bowl, combine 1 1/2 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast, cardamom and salt. Heat milk, water and butter until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Butter does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 4 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 1 hour. Punch dough down. Divide enough dough into 3 equal pieces; roll each to 22-inch rope. Fold one rope in half; place in center of large greased baking sheet with open end at bottom. Coil ends up, using one-third of dough at each end. Wrap second and third ropes around first rope; coil ends up. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until almost doubled in size, about 45 minutes.

Lightly beat remaining egg; brush with coffee cake. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until done, covering with foil after 20 minutes to prevent excess browning. Remove from baking sheet; cool on wire rack.

for every 2 ducks, may be added, if desired. Ruby advises using a good wine because it really makes a difference. She says vin rose is nice with duck. It is necessary to add water during cooking; add about 1/2 cup at a time. It should not be too moist; just enough to make a nice gravy. The meat should not be crusty. Place on hot plates.

Serve with mashed potatoes, pasta or...

OVEN RICE

Into a greased casserole, put: 2 cups hot water 1 cup rice (white or brown) 1. Put a small pot of margarine on top. Bake at 350 degrees for about 1 hour 15 minutes. This is especially good with gravy on top.

Coarsely chop and saute: 1/2 onion 3 stalks celery 1/2 of a container of fresh mushrooms

Put into the bottom of the greased casserole before adding the rice. Stir to mix.

Ruby sometimes adds a bouillon cube to the rice.

For a vegetable, Ruby says carrots or just about anything is good, but that she especially likes green beans or broccoli "because this gives it a splash of green."

She also serves cranberry relish or spiced pears. The following recipe is one Ruby's mother gave her.

CRANBERRY RELISH

Grind together: 1 pound raw cranberries 4 apples (Granny Smith, Jonathan or any cooking apple) unpeeled, cored

1 orange
Add: 2 cups sugar A pinch of salt Mix well and keep refrigerated. It will keep up to a week.

This relish is tart; the degree depending on the kind of apple used. Good as the relish is, Ruby says spiced pears, another of her mom's recipes, is Wayne's favorite accompaniment to the duck files. They will, of course, have to be canned next year when pears are plentiful.

SPICED PEARS (or peaches)

Makes 6 pints 6 to 7 1/2 pounds ripe small pears, peeled (or peaches)

Combine:

1 and 1/2 cup white vinegar 4 cups sugar 1 cup water 2 and 1/2 teaspoons grated orange rind

6 one-inch whole cinnamon sticks Combine the vinegar, sugar, water, orange rind and cinnamon in a 3 quart saucepan. Place over medium heat. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Let come to a boil. Put in 1 cinnamon stick for each jar, and then place fruit into syrup. Boil gently for 10 minutes, turning. Pack into hot jars, adding the 1 cinnamon stick to each, and seal. These should sit about 6 weeks.

Because all of this makes a heavy meal, she says she might serve sorbet or ice milk for dessert.

CARROT PUDDING

Fills 3 one pound coffee cans 1/2 cup butter or margarine 1/2 cup flour 1 cup raw grated potatoes 1 teaspoon soda 1 cup raw carrots, grated 1 cup brown sugar 1 cup raisins 1 cup nuts 1 cup cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

Cream butter or margarine and flour. Dissolve soda into the potatoes and mix. Add to the butter and flour mixture, along with the carrots and sugar. Then add the raisins, nuts, cinnamon and cloves. Mix well. Grease and flour extremely well 3 coffee cans. Flour butter in. Cover cans well with aluminum foil. Place in roaster with a good inch of water. Steam 3 hours at 325 degrees. Add more water about every 1/2 hour to 45 minutes. Test, using a thin straw, going at least mid-way down the can with it.

THE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine (the butter flavor is nicer) 1 rounded tablespoon flour 1/2 cup white sugar Mix well and add: 2 cups boiling water Bring to a boil. Flavor with: 1 teaspoon vanilla Serve over the warm pudding. To reheat, place in double boiler and heat slowly. "I usually make a double batch," she says, "I'll use one and freeze the other. I sometimes give them as gifts, too, which is fun for me."

Nutritious holiday treats: Calcium-rich, cheesecakes

Here's the next best thing to having your cake and eating it too—delicious cakes that leave you with a nutritional dividend.

Both of these cheese-tartlets are high in calcium, the important nutrient that is lacking in many women's diets (recent government survey showed that a young and older woman are only getting about two-thirds of the calcium they need daily).

Baked Cheese and Almond Tartlets are based on a recipe for an Italian delicacy. They have an almond cookie crust and creamy calcium-rich filling. Ricotta cheese is swirled with nonfat dry milk, sugar, eggs and almond extract and is baked in individual muffin cups. Each tartlet is topped with vanilla yogurt. One tartlet provides 25 percent of an adult's (age 25 and older) calcium needs for the day.

Tropical Cheese Tartlets are quickly prepared then chilled until firm. A gelatin-thickened milk mixture is added to ricotta cheese, nonfat dry milk, sugar and rum extract. Graham cracker-lined muffin cups are filled with this flavorful calcium-rich mixture and topped with pina coloda yogurt, pineapple and kiwi slices. Each tartlet supplies more than 25 percent of an adult's (age 25 and older) daily calcium needs.

ALMOND TARTLETS
 2 tablespoons melted butter
 1/3 cup flint almond-biscuit crumbs or other almond-flavored cookie crumbs
 1 container (15 ounces) part skim ricotta cheese
 1/2 cup nonfat dry milk powder
 3/4 cup granulated sugar
 2 eggs
 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 container (8 ounces) vanilla lowfat yogurt

Brush the bottom and sides of 10 (2 1/2-inch diameter) foil muffin pan liners or double paper liners with butter. Sprinkle with crumbs to lightly cover liner; place in muffin pan with 2 1/2-inch cups; set aside. Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. In the bowl of a food processor, fitted with a metal wing blade or in the container of an electric blender combine ricotta cheese, dry milk, sugar, eggs and almond extract and pulse process until smooth, about 45 seconds. Spoon ricotta mixture into prepared cups until full. Bake until firm, about 24 to 26 minutes. Remove from oven. Spread yogurt over tops. Bake until yogurt is firm, 6 to 8 minutes. Cool. Cover and refrigerate. Just before serving, garnish with sliced strawberries and almonds, if desired.

YIELD: 10 portions.

Adding meat to French onion soup can make a satisfying main dish

By Roger Homes and Gardens magazine

There's nothing tastier than French onion soup, unless it's that same soup with beef added. The meat makes it satisfying enough to be a main dish. In just 10 minutes preparation and cooking time you'll have a delicious dinner for two.

FRENCH ONION BEEF SOUP

Two 1-inch-thick slices French bread
 1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese (1 ounce)
 1 small onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
 One 10 1/2-ounce can condensed French onion soup
 1 soup can (1 1/2 cups) hot water

Place bread slices on the unheated rack of a broiler pan. Broil 4 inches from the heat about 1 minute or until toasted. Top bread with Swiss cheese and broil about 1 minute more or until cheese melts.

Meanwhile, in a medium skillet cook onion rings in margarine about 5 minutes or until very tender. Stir in condensed soup, hot water and beef. Bring to boiling, stirring occasionally. Top with bread. Makes 2 servings.

Chocolate

Place mousse mixture in pastry bag with decorative tip. Pipe into chocolate cups. Garnish with chocolate-covered coffee beans.

CHOCOLATE GATEAU

6 ounces semisweet chocolate, chopped
 2 tablespoons milk
 3 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup cake flour
 1/4 cup sugar
 Powdered cocoa
 Melt chocolate and milk in top of double boiler over hot, not simmering, water. When smooth, remove from heat and stir in egg yolks one at a time. Return to heat to cook egg yolks slightly, stirring constantly. Remove pan from heat and stir in butter, small pieces at a time, until all is melted. Stir in flour.

Beat egg whites to soft peaks. Add sugar slowly while continuing to beat until stiff. Fold egg whites into chocolate mixture.

Pour batter into 7-inch springform pan that has been buttered, dusted with powdered cocoa and lined with parchment. Bake at 375 degrees 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue to bake 20 minutes more.

Allow cake to cool 30 minutes before unmolding. Cut into wedges and serve with raspberry, apricot or other fruit sauces, if desired.

Makes 7-inch cake.

PETITS FOURS

Melted butter
 8 ounces finely chopped chocolate
 4 eggs, separated
 1 cup unsalted butter
 2 cups sugar
 2 cups flour

Ganache

Melted milk or white chocolate
 Line 9-inch square baking pan with foil. Lightly brush bottom and sides of pan with melted butter. Set aside.

Place chocolate in top of double boiler over hot, not simmering, water. Stir occasionally until completely melted. Cool slightly.

Beat egg yolk in small bowl until pale-lemon colored. Set aside.

Cream unsalted butter in large bowl of electric mixer. Add 1/4 cup sugar and beat well. Using low speed, gradually add flour and beat until thoroughly incorporated.

Beat egg whites to soft peaks in small mixer bowl with clean beaters. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until whites hold definite shape but are not stiff or dry.

Stir about 1/2 cup beaten egg whites into chocolate mixture. Fold in 1/2 remaining whites, then fold in balance of whites. Turn mixture into prepared pan and smooth top. Place pan in larger shallow pan and pour hot, not-boiling, water into larger pan to about half depth of cake pan.

Bake at 350 degrees 50 minutes. Remove cake pan from hot water and let stand until completely cool. Cover with rack, invert, remove pan and foil. Wrap in plastic and refrigerate 1 to 2 days.

Cut cake into 64 squares. Bring to room temperature. Dip each square in Ganache and place on wire rack until set. Drizzle each square with melted milk or white chocolate.

Ganache
 13 ounces semisweet chocolate, finely chopped
 1 cup whipping cream

Place chocolate and cream in top of double boiler. Heat over hot, not simmering, water until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Cool at room temperature.

Revised marriage study avoids controversy

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The researchers who once reported that marriage prospects for college-educated women over 30 were dim have published a final draft of their study that steers clear of the controversy of the first work.

The three researchers said the "1986" figures "were" misinterpreted and misused, and that they did not want attention again diverted from the real focus of their study — the divergence of marriage rates among blacks and whites.

"It was discouraging for us as academic researchers to see the way in which the media used our figures essentially to assuage women," Bennett said. "I'm an associate professor of sociology at Yale University, said Saturday.

"Women were in effect told by the headlines that they can't have it all. They shouldn't have it all and that they should go back home, leave their careers, raise babies and clean house."

"That was by no means our message," Bennett said.

In the earlier draft of their study, the researchers reported that college-educated white women had a 20 percent likelihood of marriage at the age of 30, a 5 percent chance at 35 and a 1 percent chance at 40.

The figures were questioned by some sociologists and demographers, but not before a host of news stories cast the findings in ominous terms. A Newsweek cover story declared that a 40-year-old woman had a better chance of being killed by a terrorist than of getting married.

The final study published in the American Journal of Sociology, does project that 11.5 percent of white women with more than a high school education who were born in the early 1950s will never marry.

But Bennett said the finding cannot be compared to any of the figures in the earlier draft because the two analyses dealt with women of differing ages and educational background, and because different sets of data were used.

The earlier study looked at 1982 Census data from 70,000 households, while the final draft is based on data from the 1985 survey. The statistical model was also changed slightly, Bennett said.

Well-chosen gifts signify you took time to care

DEAR READERS: Well, it seems as though we just finished polishing off the Thanksgiving leftovers, and it's time to start shopping for Hanukkah and Christmas gifts again. Because it's been such a tragic year for those who lost their homes in Hurricane Hugo or the San Francisco quake, you may want to spend less on gifts in favor of sending money to the American Red Cross. And now we have another concern—the poor and homeless.

However, if you plan on sending holiday gifts, let me tell you what not to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa who doesn't get around much anymore.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Forget the cologne, after-shave and dusting powder. Chances are, they have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.

Grandpa doesn't need another paisley necktie, and Grandma doesn't want any more bracelets, brooches or earrings. With the price of groceries going through the roof, older people who live alone on fixed incomes would appreciate a basket of practical goodies. How about small tins of tuna, chicken and ham? Also, crackers, instant coffee, tea, soup mixes and cookies.

People who live in confined quarters do not need more "things," so don't send music boxes or bracelets. And don't send articles of clothing unless you're sure the size is right. Leisure (or "warm-up") suits are comfy and easy to launder. Older folks love them.

Some truly useful gifts: an assortment of postcards, some lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. And enclose some felt-tip pens. Another suggestion: a variety of greeting cards for all occasions. They might want to send someone a nice birthday, anniversary or graduation card. Don't forget get-well cards, condolence cards and "congratulations on the new baby" cards.

Should you be tempted to recycle a lovely, but useless, gift still in its original box, make sure the card to you is not still in the box.

Never give a pet to anyone unless you are absolutely certain that person wants a pet and is able to care for it properly. And if you want to make a bit with someone who has a pet, send a little holiday gift (a tin of dog or cat food) along with a gift for its master.

Don't give wine or liquor to people unless you are sure they imbibe. A thoughtful idea: a gift subscription for a magazine or newspaper you know they will enjoy. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make beautiful gifts for people who aren't counting their calories, but have a little compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation. Also bear in mind that some older folks have difficulty chewing nuts and caramels.

Another good idea for those living alone on a fixed income: a gift certificate for some kind of service such as window washing, carpet cleaning, taxi rides, barber shop, beauty parlor or diner or lunch at their favorite place. And (don't laugh) a gift certificate entitling them to a trip to the podiatrist. Because medication is no small item these days, a gift certificate from the neighborhood pharmacy would be very much appreciated.

Holidays can be depressing for people who are alone — loneliness is the ultimate poverty. So if you know someone who could use an outing, give him or her the best gift of all: an invitation to have a meal with you and your family. If you "ain't givin'," you're not livin'.

— Love to you and yours, ABBY.

Loyal Order of Moose will welcome highest official

TWIN FALLS — Lodge 612 of the Loyal Order of Moose will welcome the organization's highest official, Supreme Governor Frank L. Buckler, for a visit to Twin Falls today.

Buckler, who lives in Mechanicsville, Md., is visiting Twin Falls to honor the local lodge for being the largest in Idaho. Donald McMurrain, Moose publicity chairman, says regulations prohibit the lodge from stating how many members it has.

Lodge 612 is also the number one lodge in the nation for new members. Buckler will be honoring local member Earl Jones, the top new member recruiter in the state. Jones is a member of the 50-member club, meaning he has recruited at least 50 new members in one year's time.

Buckler, who was elected supreme governor in June, holds the highest office in the Moose fraternity. There are 1.8 million members and 2,300 lodges in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, and the supreme governor is only able to visit about 150 lodges each year.

McMurrain said Buckler will be welcomed to Idaho by state Rep. Ronald Black and to Twin Falls by City Councilman Art Franz.

Moose activities on tap during Buckler's visit today will include dinner with the supreme governor, initiation of new members and a reception with Buckler.

Smart moves: Avoid fixer-upper houses with major problems

By The Baltimore Sun

Near Gettysburg, Pa., a young couple happened upon a 165-year-old farmhouse for sale four years ago. At $80,000, the historic log house seemed like a steal and the elated couple quickly bought the place.

But it wasn't long before the couple discovered that their supposed diamond in the rough was actually a plain, rough log. Contrary to popular belief, a true, bargain fixer-upper is a rare phenomenon, real estate experts caution.

In the Gettysburg-area case, log beams on the first floor were rotten — a massive ordeal to replace. Water seeped into the basement. The electrical system was totally outdated. And the so-called covered front porch was obsolete. All told, the couple expects to spend more than $100,000 on repairs.

"I see a lot of people drawn to houses that need a whole lot more work than they imagine. Too often, they're in for a rude awakening," says Mark J. Reinmiller, who owns Building Consultants Inc., a home inspection firm in Lansdowne, Pa., outside Philadelphia.

Finding a good "handyman special," as realty agents are fond of calling such properties, is not out of the question and could be a good strategy for young buyers with more energy than money. But be sure the house gets a thorough analysis before you're locked into its purchase.

"Please, please look it over and understand what you're buying. Don't buy with your heart; buy with your head and your heart will come later," counsels Russell W. Allen, who heads A.A. Home Inspection Services in Sylkessville, Md.

As with nearly all home buys, it's a good idea to make the sales contract for your fixer-upper contingent on a professional home inspection. If there's reason to suspect foundation, soil, termite, lead paint or asbestos problems, it's wise to bring in specialists in those areas, too.

Yet, even with a thorough analysis by experts, prepare yourself for unforeseen problems. Old homes, especially, can be laden with costly defects. Roger R. Hankey, a home inspector in Minneapolis, calls this "hidden factor."

When the attempt to solve one problem leads rapidly to the discovery of others.

"When you pull out the old sink, you discover bad plumbing. Then you pull out the bad plumbing, you discover floor boards or wall studs that are rotten. Pretty soon the project turns out to take a month and $20,000," says Hankey, who heads Real Estate Support Services Inc.

Of course, not every older home in the fixer-upper category has severe, latent defects. Stanley J. Sersen, whose home inspection firm works in both Washington D.C. and the nearby Annapolis, Md., area, says it's possible to find a real diamond in the rough whose only problems are on the surface.

"If someone is willing to look past the cosmetics and the heart of the house is sound, they'll have a good buy. All the house may need is the tender loving care to put the polish back on the diamond," says Sersen.

For a client, Sersen recently conducted an inspection of just such a property, a split-level priced $15,000 to $20,000 below market because it needed so badly.

"Cosmetically, the house — which had been rented — looked trashied. Doors hung off their hinges. The paint was worn. The walls had been scribbled on by kids and the place was extremely dirty," he recalls.

Yet Sersen determined that all five of the home's basic components — its roof, foundation, plumbing, heating, and electrical systems — were in good shape. On that basis, the Anne Arundel couple bought the place, spending just $5,000 to bring it up to grade.

The key to buying the right fixer-upper is to rule out properties with potentially very serious problems.

"The houses you don't want to deal with are the ones with bad soil, shifting soil, or foundation problems," says Mr. Hankey, the Minneapolis home inspector. "These can get you into very, very expensive repairs — $10,000 to $20,000, easily."

Fortunately, most residential communities in the country aren't troubled by clay or other soils that can shrink or expand dramatically, causing a house to destabilize. But look out for telltale signs of this problem: sloping floors, cracked plaster and doors or windows that no longer close squarely into their openings. Buckled or cracked basement walls may be symptoms of a bad foundation.

Environmental hazards are another group of problems you'll probably want to avoid in selecting your fixer-upper. To remove lead paint or asbestos properly, you may need to call in costly and specialized contractors. And realize that you, as the homeowner, could be held legally responsible for the safety of those doing the abatement work as well as those who may live in the home after you've sold it.

"It's the headache factor as well as the money," says Hankey.

Still another group of troublesome problems are those associated with homes in high water-areas or flood plains. While most leaky basement problems can be solved for a relatively small amount of money through gutter improvements or regrading, water difficulties in these areas may be ongoing and chronic.

Comparatively speaking, the cost of replacing an outdated roof, plumbing, heating, or electrical system can be fairly reasonable to a buyer intending to reside in the house for an extended period of time. Since there are lots of tradesmen in these fields, pricing for such standard items is competitive. And the work, once done, usually doesn't need to be repeated for a decade or two. Regardless of the extent of work required, you're not a prime candidate to buy a fixer-upper unless you're up well during home renovation, says Kent A. Boucher, vice president of Claxton-Walker Associates, a home inspection firm in the Washington suburb of Potomac, Md.

"You can get awfully tired of eating plaster dust after a couple of weeks," he says. The right buyer for a home renovation project "has patience, knowledge and the time to do a lot of work himself," he says.

Boucher speaks from experience, having gutted and totally renovated a 40-year-old Williamsburg replica home in Olney, Md. When he first saw the place, he remembers, "It had eight inches of water standing on the basement floor, the roof was in bad shape and plaster ceilings in two to three rooms were gone."

But the Olney home also included some splendid architectural treasures, including antique hardwood floors, beams and bricks built in from a prior older home. Nine years after he bought it, this fixer-upper has more than tripled in value and Boucher is well pleased.

"I think I have a fine home that I wouldn't have traded for a lot of the new construction today."

With a master's degree in construction and years of work behind him as a heating and air conditioning contractor, Boucher was well suited to take on a major renovation. But most home buyers — even those able to farm out most of the work to contractors — a place requiring only cosmetic surgery is a far better bet. "The houses that are more of a bargain than others are in good mechanical condition. They need only paint, paper, cleaning and other inexpensive improvements," says Reinmiller, the Philadelphia-area home inspector. Look for solid houses priced below market because they show badly due to such superficial problems as pet odors, carpet stains, chipping paint and faded wallpaper.

Indoor plants make a good substitute in Christmas decorating

The Christmas season is America's favorite time to decorate homes. Every year there is a wider variety of Christmas decorations available.

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardening

One of my favorite places to go for Christmas decorating ideas is the nursery or florist shop. More and more florists and nurseries offer a wide variety of Christmas decorations. You can purchase ready made decorations or get ideas to create your own.

Some people do not plan to decorate a full size Christmas tree because they will be spending a large part of the holiday season away visiting with friends or relatives.

Others have small apartments without sufficient room for a large tree. Indoor plants can make a good substitute to decorate for Christmas.

Most any indoor plant can be decorated with lights, tinsel or small ornaments. However, those which are tree-like look the best.

The star pine has needle-like leaves which resemble a Christmas tree. The Benjamin Fig or Weeping Fig has many branches and small leaves which lend themselves well to decorating. The Scheffera or Umbrella Tree comes in large and small leaved forms.

Since indoor plants are alive, they need to be treated carefully so that ornaments do not damage them. Lights can generate a lot of heat and should be placed so that they are not in direct contact with leaves. Lights also cause plants to dry out more rapidly which means they may require more frequent watering.

Evergreen branches and cones are very useful for creating wreaths, centerpiece, shelf and table decorations.

Most homes have evergreen shrubs and trees which could use some trimming of branches to improve their shape.

Metal frames are often available from florists, nurseries or hobby shops to create your own wreaths and other decorations. Ribbons, lights, candles or ornaments can be added, or strictly natural materials can be used.

Be gentle when trying to fix a stuck window

By The Associated Press

The password phrase for handling a common household problem — a stuck window — is "be gentle."

If you aren't gentle in unsticking the window, you will wind up with another common household problem: what to do about the ugly mess around the window sash and mauling where you finally got the window to move again?

Gauges in that area are the usual result of getting the window loose the wrong way. The wrong way is by using the blade of a screw driver instead of a wide-bladed putty knife.

The screwdriver blade is usually too thick and too narrow for the prying action. You should use the wide-bladed putty knife or a special screwdriver blade especially for the purpose. Even then, the prying must be done carefully — in other words, gently.

The usual reason for a stuck window is a paint seal, which needs only to be broken to get things in order again. Examine around the sash with a flashlight, if necessary — and see if you can see where the seal exists.

Sometimes the window will move after the broken-seal treatment is used on a single side, sometimes you will have to do it on two, three or four sides. If the cause is a warped stop mauling, the same treatment will put things in order.

In both cases, you need some post-solution action. If paint caused the problem, sand lightly and lubricate. If warping was the culprit, straighten out the mauling or use a new strip. But if high humidity conditions brought about the warpage, the same thing will occur again at a later time unless the condition is fixed.

For instance, it doesn't do much good to remove the mildew, since it will return soon.

Celebrities describe their dream houses

By American Home magazine

Dwight Gooden's dream home would have a wall-size TV set. Patri LABELLE wants a home that's gingerbread ornate and Harvey Fierstein dreams of a place where deer wander through the yard but don't eat the flowers.

These and other well-known people tell about their dream homes in an issue of American Home and the places they describe range from palatial to rustic.

"It would be a very big one-level house in Florida, big enough to hold my entire family," said New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden. "It would have a swimming pool in the front and a basketball court in the back."

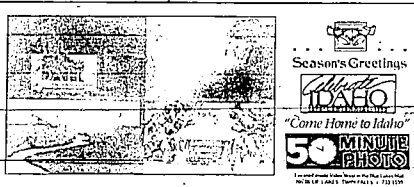

"And it would definitely have a TV that would cover one entire wall in the biggest room in the house."

Some celebrities want to be near the outdoors, too.

"It would be by the Mediterranean Sea — big and square, all tiled blue glass with white-tiled floors," said fashion designer Claude Montana. The rooms would be enormous and have very little furniture. There would be an on the walls."

Singer Patti LABELLE described a very different dream:

"It would be a little gingerbread house, very ornate. It wouldn't be by the river because I hate water; it would be in the country and it would have three bedrooms."

Magic Valley Conference

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

The motivation of a state football championship could be the springboard to continuing success in basketball for the Hagerman Pirates, according to the preseason prognostication of Magic Valley Conference coaches.

The Pirates, who won the state A-4 grid championship, have size, depth and experience. But while Coach Randy Clark thinks his charges deserve to be rated among the contenders, he notes the return strength and size of the conference is better than usual, not the least of those being the Castletford Wolves.

According to the estimation of one coach, Larry Messick of Shoshone, Hagerman has "top-notch coaching in Randy Clark plus two proven players in (Jason) Ware and (Ryan) Pharis. Castletford has great size and its depth is the best of the conference."

It is unusual for this conference to discuss the top two teams and not include Shoshone. The Indians have been a consistent winner since coming over from the Canyon Conference five years ago.

Still, the Indians did get one second place nod from a coach plus three thirds and two fourths.

But perhaps the one thing that will be most apparent in the MVC this year is an overall improvement in caliber of play from top to bottom. There are some excellent individuals such as Murtaugh's Evan Nebeker to watch.

Hagerman

"If we can improve on our outside shooting, we should be close to the top," said Clark in assessing this veteran group.

He admits that depth and experience should be major pluses, noted "we return four starters off of last year's team. Our junior varsity team went 15-2. So we should get some help from them."

The thing buoying Clark most is "we had a great summer — the best summer program we've ever had here."

The bulk of Hagerman's scoring and rebounding is in the four returning starters from last year's 13-8. These include 6-foot, 4-inch Jason Warr, 13 points and eight rebounds; Ryan Pharis, 16 points and eight rebounds; Mike Yarbrough 6-7, 8 points and five rebounds, and 6-0 Brody Engles, 6 points and four rebounds. Of these three, Pharis, a junior, is the only underclassman.

Senior Butch Bonning, a six-footer, adds more experience having been a past-time starter.

Up from that 15-2 jayvee team are juniors 5-10 Ryan Kelley 5-10 forward Chris Waitley, 5-11 forward Cody McCammon, 5-11 forward Kirk Lindsay, 5-8 guard, and 6-1 center Lon Zeller.

"Team speed and our outside shooting is a little suspect," said Clark going into the season. "This group is willing to work hard to reach their goals."

Castletford

"Just Castletford has the potential to be a post-season three mightn't be immediately apparent to the casual observer in the early going.

That could well be because 6-5 three-year starter Bruce Hahn is out until January with a broken foot and Frank Brown, 6-4 guard, will not become eligible until the second semester.

Few high school programs could absorb such losses and still expect good things. Coach Andy Wiseman, 13-13 last year and 40-26 in his tenure with the Wolves, is smiling, however.

Among those who will be available in December are Erik Alfred, 6-1 guard who averaged 13 points and eight rebounds last season; 5-9 guard Jeremy Burgess, who had 10 points and four rebounds; 6-3 forward Bill DeBoer with 8 points and 7 rebounds.

Steve Lott, a 5-10 guard; played a lot last year and has experience and Travis Lamsters, 5-11 forward, returns after missing last year due to a knee injury.

"We are a senior team with much experience. When Hahn and Brown return we will be strong and deep to about eight players," said Wiseman, whose ballclub is coming off a 13-13 season.

Wiseman said his biggest concern is "we are not really a strong defensive team. We will have some trouble matching Hagerman's size and Shoshone's three-point threat."

Shoshone

Graduation took some very familiar names from last year's 20-3 Shoshone state A-4 basketball championship team.

Jim Messick, 23.5 points and 10 rebounds, took his talents to College of Southern Idaho, and Richard Shimer, 11 points and 8 rebounds, finished up his eligibility. But the thing that really hurts Shoshone is the year-long loss of 6-2 junior Kevin Swainston to a knee injury.

"Because of that we have only one player over six feet, so rebounding and size are definitely our biggest shortcomings," said Messick.

"Defensively we are not even close to where we've been in the past two years. Defending some of the better players in our conference (Nebeker, Warr, Pharis, Hahn) will be a real challenge for us."

Messick has only two seniors on the team, return starter Richard Peterson, 5-11, averaging 6.4 points and 4.3 rebounds per game, and Frank Nevens, a 5-10 squadman.

The other two return starters are still just sophomores. 5-10 Joe Messick, 7.8 points and 2.9 rebounds, and Alex Ugalde, 5-11, 8.2 points and 3.2 rebounds.

Rebounding out the teams will be juniors Casey Kelley, 5-10 center; Robbie Owens, 5-9 guard; Brian Haight, 6-2 center; Ryan Waddoups, 5-11 forward; Travis Tews, 5-10 guard, and Shane Brown, 5-11 forward.

"Inexperience and depth are going to be problem areas," Messick pointed out.

Oakley

The continuing refrain through the conference is non-basketball related injuries will cost teams individual players for parts or all of the season.

"Oakley is no exception. Of the seven players who started at various times last year, five were seniors and two were juniors. The two juniors were in a car wreck. Only one will be able to return to the team and that won't be until mid-December," said Coach Neal Wyatt, whose ballclub finished 3-19 last season.

That possible returner is 75-8 guard David Miller.

And so with just one player over six feet tall — Barry Gorrage at 6-4 — the Hornets are aware of the problems that show up with Hagerman and Castletford.

"Inexperience, lack of size, lack of depth," said Wyatt of early problems areas for the Hornets. "If we don't do it right, this could turn into a long year."

Additionally, the Hornets don't have many seniors. Gorrage at 6-4 is "more along with Joseph Whiteley, a 6-0," said Wyatt of the veteran 5-10 forward, David Hansen.

Juniors rounding out the unit are 5-10 guard Todd Hale, 5-9 guard Roman Rodriguez, 5-11 center Scott Adams; 5-8 guard Brian Adams and 5-11 forward Mike Bergner.

Murtaugh

In his first year at the Murtaugh helm, Coach Kent Chandler will have some solid players to build around. His problem, he says, is few other teams in the league, is he can't build them high enough.

But everyone is aware of 6-2 senior Evan Nebeker, who is back for his fourth varsity letter from last year's 13-8 Murtaugh team that very nearly denied Shoshone a trip to the state A-4 tournament. Nebeker can play anywhere on the court, having sufficient jumping ability to play bigger than his 6-2.

The other starting veteran is Forrest Anderson, 6-1, who can go from guard to forward with ease.

"We have some good returning players to form the nucleus," Chandler said, "and we also have some very quick defensive players who can really put pressure on the ball and keep the tempo up on our style of play."

"Our perimeter shooting could be better but I feel we have some players with the potential to step forward," he continued.

The Red Devils will be without forward Kelly Rovig, the state A-3 high jump champion and a double-figure scorer last winter. He sustained a leg injury last year that required surgery.

Hansen

Like three of its conference mates, Hansen is short on seniors this year and relying on younger players.

But Coach Stokes Behrens doesn't see that as all bad, noting "we have a group of young players who love to play the game and will work hard work to improve."

The Huskies have two starters back from last year's 6-17 ballclub in guard Scott Younger, 5-9, who averaged five points and four rebounds last year. In two outings so far, he has been in double scoring figures.

The other returner is 5-11 Ryan Larson, who had 3 points and 4 rebounds. Rounding out the signal will be 6-1 sophomore Chad Allen, a 2.2 rebounder Ben Buffington, 5-10 junior Robert Gibson, and 6-0 sophomore Eli Williams.

To the surprise of no one, Behrens lists experience as the biggest problem for the team.

Raft River

Incoming coach Tom Samsel doesn't inherit a lot of experience or depth, but he has some good athletes, and fair size returning from last year's 1-18 ballclub.

Seniors Greg Tolman, a 6-2 forward, Karl Rasmussen, a 6-9 center, and Brent Hitt, a 6-2 guard, all started at various times for the Trojans last winter and 6-2 junior forward Torrey Anderson saw considerable playing time. Behind them is a talented group of juniors and sophomores that made up the core of Raft River's MVC championship football team.

But there are some big holes to fill, notably those left by the guard line of Eric with ease.

Freisz named to Big Sky's all-conference team for 3rd time

Boise State's Tommie Todd, senior, from Clatsop Community College, finished second in rushing with 1,033 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Oakland signs Henderson with $12 million, 4-year contract

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rickey Henderson signed a $12 million, four-year contract Tuesday for helping the Oakland Athletics win the World Series, signing the first four-year baseball contract since 1985.

A's general manager Sandy Alderson knew he needed to act fast to avoid giving Yankees owner George Steinbrenner the chance to lure Henderson back to New York with a better offer.

Henderson became a free agent four weeks ago, soon after playing a starring role in both the American League playoffs and the World Series.

Henderson was named the outstanding player in the playoffs in the mid-1970s, state support of two home runs, five RBIs and eight stolen bases in eight attempts.

Oakland, he batted 294 and stole 52 bases in 85 games. He began his major league career with Oakland in 1979.

Like the Berlin Wall, the East-West differences in sports may crumble

Many will see their international Olympic team to erode, particularly in Olympic sports that they systematically claimed as their own.

They're losing their leverage (over athletes) in the Soviet Union," said Alfred Senta, a professor of East European history at the University of Wisconsin who has been involved in American-Soviet sports exchanges for years.

Further, Soviet athletes had international chess champion Garry Kasparov on their side. Kasparov, who had fought successfully with the central Soviet sport agencies, for a larger slice of his winnings, has been advising fellow Soviet performers how to get around paying Goskomsport 40 percent of their salaries.

Now, Goskomsport must look into ways to market its product, both at home and, especially, abroad, and what Goskomsport has found is that it can raise more hard currency, and more quickly, by selling the contract of an individual player such as Marchionis to a Western professional team, rather than

But the individual approach has all sorts of political problems because of the inherent freedom afforded an individual athlete living alone abroad. And, worse, financial problems. Senta said, "I'm not sure if the professional circuit, with its Goskomsport, for a long time, has been a financial crisis."

Arbitrator frees Parrish from Angels' contract

By HELENE ELLIOTT The Los Angeles Times. ANAHEIM, Calif. — Although California Angel catcher Lance Parrish was declared a free agent Tuesday by an arbitrator's ruling and has until Jan. 8 to negotiate with all clubs, it's unlikely that the 33-year-old veteran of more than 12 major league seasons will wear a different uniform in 1990.

Reich said, "Let's say one thing: It was a real good year for Lance and the club. And I think he's going to be pretty happy. This is his home. These are important elements. Fair treatment is certainly another important element."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"A conclusion is the place where you get tired thinking..."
-Martin H. Fischer-

Put yourself in today's East chair and defend against the heart game. See if you can do as well as Penny South of Corpus Christi, Texas.

West leads the club deuce, declarer plays low from dummy, and East's jack goes to South's ace. South draws two rounds of trump and leads a spade to dummy's 10 and your queen. West following with the deuce. What do you lead?

A club return won't do. South will ruff, lead another spade to establish a winner in that suit, and use the deuce of king as an entry to cash it. South will lose only two spades and a diamond, and will escape with 10 tricks.

Penny took note of West's play of the spade deuce on the first round of the suit. With two or four deuces, West would have started a high-low signal, so Penny played West for three spades. To deny South a spade winner, Penny conceded that dummy's diamond entry had to go. Therefore, she led the diamond 10 after winning her spade queen. West allowed this to ride and the rest was easy. When Penny won her spade ace, a second diamond lead netted two winners, and South could win only nine tricks.
