Tom Pyle and the Jacklin Seed Co. are expanding grass seed production into the Magic Valley

Jacklin seeks more grass acreage

By N. S. NOKKENTVED Times-News writer. TWIN FALLS - While Jacklin Seed Co. looks for more land to grow grass seed, state officials say they would like more control over grass-field burning.

Jacklin Seed Co. is expanding its operation into the Magic Valley. It recently opened an office here and plans to build a seed processing plant here also, Pyle said.

Post Falls. Growing grass seed has environmental pluses and minuses. It requires little plowing and only small amounts of chemicals. The sod stays on the ground year-round, protecting the land from erosion.

Soviet party retains power monopoly

The Washington Post MOSCOW - The Soviet Union's new parliament Tuesday voted down an attempt to debate the Communist Party's constitutionally guaranteed grip on power, a move already taken by several of its allies in the political revolution sweeping Eastern Europe.

Baker offers U.S. aid - A2 constitution. Drafted during the era of the now-discredited Leonid Brezhnev, the article declares the Communist Party "the guiding force of Soviet society and the nucleus of its political system."

everything will be clear and fine. But that's just not so." Tuesday's vote underlined the political gap that is opening up between the Soviet Union and its former East European satellites.

Opening the second session of the Congress of People's Deputies, the country's supreme legislative body, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said it was necessary to "accelerate" his perestroika reform agenda. But he rejected calls by radical deputies for the rapid dismantling of the one-party system under which the Soviet Union has been governed for more than seven decades.

Arguing against the inclusion of Article 6 on the agenda, Gorbachev said constitutional changes would certainly become necessary as the Soviet Union moves "from one system to another." But he urged deputies to proceed "with great responsibility and caution" in order to ensure that the issue of Communist Party power does not become a matter of "political speculation."

Under the pressure of street revolutions made possible by Gorbachev's hands-off policy toward the region and inspired in part by the example of perestroika in the Soviet Union, the Communist elites in most East European countries have already given up their monopoly of power.

Young man dies, gives 6 people chance at life

The Associated Press SAN FRANCISCO - A young man who died over the weekend gave six people a chance to live with transplants of seven of his major organs, considered an extraordinary event by experts.

Hotel queen draws 4 years, $7.1 million fine

The Associated Press NEW YORK - Leona Helmsley was sentenced Tuesday to four years in prison and fined $7.1 million by a federal judge who ignored her sobbing plea for mercy and blamed the hotel queen's tax evasion on "naked greed."

He said she shirked a "moral responsibility to uphold the law" that came with her position, breaking the law "consciously and repeatedly." Helmsley said, "no matter how wealthy and prominent, anybody can ever imagine above the law."

Cold numbs Great Lakes, Deep South as Alaska turns balmy

By The Associated Press

Cold air rushing southward from the Arctic Circle pushed temperatures to more than 20 degrees below zero Tuesday around the upper Great Lakes, and the Deep South braced for snow and ice-covered highways. At 7 a.m. MST, Phoenix was chillier than Anchorage, Alaska, as a relatively warm high-pressure mass over Alaska squeezed the cold air southward. Snow, sleet and freezing rain also pelted the mid-Atlantic states, closing schools in much of Maryland and Washington, D.C. Tuesday's official low for the Lower 48 states was 28 degrees below zero at International Falls, Minn., and 13 cities in the central part of the nation hit record lows. Morning lows fell below zero from the Dakotas to Michigan. On the southwestern tip of Lake Superior, Superior, Wis., hit minus 21. Across the harbor from Superior, the low at Duluth, Minn., was a record 22 below zero; Yankton, S.D., also fell to 22 below a record. Such severe cold doesn't even slow down shoppers in Duluth, said Susan Latto, director of marketing for the Greater Downtown Council. "It actually heightens it," she said

Tuesday. She said the cold reminds people that winter really is coming and they start "getting serious" about buying winter clothing. On the northern Plains, wind combined with the cold to produce wind chill effects of 24 below zero at Jamestown, N.D., and 32 below at Fargo, N.D., at 6 a.m., the weather service said. Meteorologist Paul Heidt in Dickinson, N.D., took some of the sting out of that, saying, "Normally we'll get a cold spell like this in November. We're overdue." Even farther south, at Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday's low was a record 5 degrees below zero. By late morning, the temperature had climbed to 14 above zero, the weather service said. Record low temperatures also were posted in Texas, including 12 degrees in Abilene, 8 in El Paso and 10 in Midland. In the mid-Atlantic states, all public schools and colleges closed in Washington, where snow started falling before dawn. But the snow stopped at midafternoon in the District of Columbia with only 1 to 2 inches on the ground. Most schools in Maryland were closed as a winter storm brushed parts of the state and Delaware with up to 4 inches of snow. A total of 8 inches was possible in some areas. Non-essential Maryland state employees were permitted to take advantage of the state's liberal leave policy and Laurel Race Course canceled its card because of the snow. Elsewhere, the cold pushed as far as the normally mild desert Southwest, where the low in Phoenix was 36 degrees. Even Yuma, Ariz., in the desert near the border with Mexico, chilled to 37 degrees. The leading edge of the cold air also pressed into the South, and schools in parts of northern Alabama closed Tuesday in anticipation of sleet and snow.

Today's weather

More of the same as autumn winds down

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Today and Thursday, partly cloudy. Patchy night and morning fog. Winds southwest 10 to 15 mph this afternoon. Highs both days in the 30s. Lows tonight in the teens.
Camas Prairie and Wood River Valleys: Today and Thursday, partly cloudy with patchy night and morning valley fog. Highs—both days 25 to 30. Lows tonight zero to 5 above zero.
Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah—Today, partly cloudy and continued cold. Highs in the low 30s. Tonight and Thursday, fair to partly cloudy and continued cold. Lows in the upper teens. Highs in the mid 30s.
Nevada—Mostly sunny today except partly cloudy northeast. Highs mid 30s to the mid 40s. Fair skies tonight. Lows from 8 to 18. Mostly sunny Thursday except partly cloudy northeast. Highs upper 30s to 40s.
Summary: The National Weather Service says temperatures will remain cool statewide. Tuesday was another cold day for Idaho as the northerly flow from Canada southwest continued. The coldest temperatures were reported in the eastern sections of the state. Light snow flurries were reported in the eastern area. High afternoon temperatures included 40 at Lovell, 38 at Lewiston and Boise, and 32 at Pocatello.
Inversions continued to grow stronger in many valley areas of the north and southwest, which in turn brought fog and pollution problems to those areas. Inversions kept surface visibility of a mile into the afternoon.
With little change in the weather pattern expected into the weekend, little or no change is expected in the day to day weather.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho—Continued cold Friday through Sunday. Fair wet portion. Partly cloudy in the east with slight chance of snow showers near the Wyoming border. In the west, high in the 30s with low in the teens to lower 20s. In the east, high in the 20s to the lower 30s with lows 5 below to 10 above zero.
The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 42 degrees at Hagerman and Payette. Stanley reported the coldest at 12 degrees below zero.
Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 82 degrees at Miami, Fla. The lowest was 28 below zero at International Falls, Minn.

Baker offers Bush may lift export ban

E. Germans economy aid

POTSDAM, East Germany — Secretary of State James A. Baker III ventured into East Germany on Tuesday and offered U.S. economic assistance to still another Soviet ally bent on reform.
The bold and unprecedented visit to the site where the World War II Allies decided the future of a vanquished Germany was made after Baker sent a telegram to Moscow, advising the Soviets of his intentions.
In a 65-minute session with Prime Minister Hans Modrow and then a separate talk in a 19th century church with Lutheran ministers, Baker registered support for the changes sweeping the onetime Stalinist state and said the Bush administration was prepared to provide the kind of help due Poland and Hungary as they turn toward market economies.
But he emphasized that the change must be peaceful. U.S. officials, said Baker, were concerned that retribution against former Communist Party officials could turn into uncontrollable violence with unpredictable consequences to its neighbors.
Standing alongside Modrow at the conclusion of his meeting, Baker said they had talked about "the importance of moving forward peaceably and in a stable way."
"It is that, as much as anything else, that represents the political signal that we desire to send by being here today," Baker said.

Bush may lift export ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration may lift bans on "most" commercial exports to China, including satellites that nation would launch, after reviewing sanctions imposed after the violent crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators, the White House said Tuesday.
"No decision has been made ... but it is possible," presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters.
The administration is specifically looking at three Hughes Aircraft communication satellites, one due for launch by China in April and the others in 1991 and 1992, that were held up by Bush's ban on export of weapons and satellites to China last June.
Two of the satellites are being built for Australia, and an Australian official said Tuesday "we basically get a positive sense" from talks with the State Department on the possibility of quick approval.
Roger Upton, political counselor at the Australian Embassy, said: "We've made it clear this is important to us. We have a sense the Americans understand."
The administration "suspended" the export of all items on our munitions list, including satellites and other items that are not weapons," Fitzwater said, after the Chinese killing of hundreds of demonstrators last spring.
"We recognize that some items captured in the suspension have civilian applications and fall under the category of normal commercial exports," he said.

The prime minister, who was lifted by the changes in East Germany from a minor party post, told Baker the evolution in the country, which will lead to multiparty elections in May, was "overjoyed." U.S. officials said.
Modrow's public statement was cautious. He said his session with Baker was the beginning of a dialogue that would turn out to be cooperative.
The steps of the Snake River plain would be to trap the smoke as it did during forest fires in 1988. Though it would move up and down the plain depending on the weather, the smoke would need a lot of wind to disperse out of the plain, Johnson said.

suddenly were reinstated. "There will be a substantial number—of homeowners who will not comply with the 1978 regulations," said a Boise lawyer representing the Legislature, urged the Idaho Supreme Court to set its own precedent in the case. "You can write on a clean slate," said Kole, former deputy attorney general and legal advisor to the Legislature.
The Legislature has authority to review actions which have the impact of state law, Kole contended. Gregory Crockett, Idaho Falls, argued for the District 7 Public Health Board.
Many other organizations, such as the Associated General Contractors of America, asked to intervene in the case and file written arguments, but the Supreme Court declined to allow the intervenors to take part. Justice Charles McDevitt asked the attorneys whether the Legislature's HCR29 was even valid. He said a state law requires the Legislature to make a specific finding that the agency rule violated legislative intent before rejecting or vetoing the rule. He said that did not appear in HCR29.
DeAngelo urged the Supreme Court to accept the resolution as valid, even with the omission. He said the applications and rule under decided on a technicality, because there was an important constitutional question to be decided.
"They tried to comply with the law," said Kole.

AIDS commission urges policy change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Commission on AIDS urged the Bush administration Tuesday to stop asking visitors to the United States if they are infected with the virus and to quit marking the passports of those who are.

Current policies infringe on human rights and dignity "and they reinforce a false impression that AIDS and HIV infection are a general threat," said Dr. June E. Osborn, the commission chairman.

"In fact they are sharply restricted in their mode of transmission," the commission said. The Immigration and Naturalization Service routinely questions some U.S. visitors to learn if they are infected by the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), which causes AIDS.

This said Ms. Osborn, has already caused several international groups and agencies to boycott important conferences to be held in the United States next summer. Unless the restrictions are eased, she indicated, many participants are expected to stay away from the 6th International Conference on AIDS, in San Francisco June 20-24, and the 19th International Congress on Hemophilia, scheduled for Washington in August.

Economists say projection is too high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, striving to meet deficit-reduction targets without a tax increase, is preparing to base its upcoming budget on an optimistic forecast showing 1990 economic growth far higher than many private economists believe possible, administration sources said Tuesday.

These sources, who spoke on condition that they not be named, said the administration is expected to forecast that the economy, as measured by the gross national product, will expand by 2.6 percent next year.

The administration's GNP figure is based on anticipated growth from the fourth quarter of this year to the fourth quarter of 1990.

These sources said that while the 2.6 percent growth forecast has not received final approval from President Bush, the number is not expected to change significantly.

Probe shows violations go unpunished

WASHINGTON (AP) — Numerous violations of environmental laws by oil and gas developers go undetected under a federal leasing program, and even when found rarely result in penalties, according to an internal Interior Department investigation.

The report by the department's Inspector General's Office said that the federal Bureau of Land Management's scrutiny of oil and gas leases is inadequate to force lease operators to comply with environmental requirements or assure proper royalty payments to the government.

Bureau spokesman Bob Johns said Tuesday that the agency was reviewing the report, but acknowledged "with reservations and qualifications" many of the general findings and recommendations.

The investigation, covering records over a two-year period, focused on the enforcement of oil and gas leases in eight of the bureau's offices throughout the West. The offices have jurisdiction over 39,000 wells on federal or Indian land, nearly half of all wells in the leasing program.

"Violations of existing regulations have resulted in environmental damage, lost or unpaid royalties, and a potentially substantial government liability for plugging abandoned wells and cleaning up well sites," the report said.

Bush extends steel import restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Tuesday signed legislation extending restraints on steel imports through April 1992.

At the same time, Bush said in a statement that major foreign steel-producing nations had reached voluntary agreements with the United States on steel trade.

"For the first time, countries have agreed to market-opening goals and to disciplines over trade-distorting subsidies," Bush said.

The measure signed by the president renews restrictions on 29 foreign trading partners that had expired Oct. 1.

Admiral admits error in Iowa blast report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief Navy officer investigating the USS Iowa explosion acknowledged Tuesday that his report contained a key factual error, but said he stood by his conclusion.

Among the initial "findings of fact" in Rear Adm. Richard L. Milligan's report was an assertion that the blast was most likely triggered by a timing device. Subsequent laboratory tests have led the Navy to believe that a chemical device was used.

Milligan, appearing before a House Armed Services subcommittee, was asked why he had not amended his report to reflect that key change.

"I'm not trying to smother the world with paperwork," he replied. Milligan said that if the subcommittee wished to have the report formally changed, he would discuss the matter with his superiors.

He also conceded that, in hindsight, he would have done "some things differently," such as moving more quickly to protect evidence in the damaged No. 2 turret of the World War II-era battleship.

During a laborious defense of his probe, before the subcommittee, however, Milligan stuck to his conclusion that Gunner's Mate 2nd Class Clayton Hartwig "most probably" was responsible.

Hartwig and 46 Iowa crewmates perished in the April 19 incident, the worst of its kind in Navy annals.

Milligan and Capt. Joseph D. Mitchell of the Naval Sea Systems Command told the committee they had checked all possible options, before concluding that the explosion was most likely the result of an intentional act by an apparently suicidal person.

Intense questioning followed Rep. Nicholas Mavroules' opening statement that his subcommittee had assembled "a substantially different picture from the one painted by the Navy."

Milligan completed his initial report July 15, less than three months after the explosion. The report, endorsed by the chief of naval operations, Adm. Carlisle A.H. Frost, and two other reviewing officers, concluded that the blast apparently had been caused by a "detonator" Hartwig placed between gunpowder bags in the turret's center 16-inch gun.

Milligan insisted that in holding the 24-year-old Hartwig responsible, he had built a case that would "stand up in a court of law."

But the rear admiral reiterated previous statements that he could not blame Hartwig beyond a shadow of a doubt because witnesses died in the explosion.

Canadians accuse scalloper of poaching

BOSTON (AP) — The captain of an American scalloper told a Tuesday of fear and flight under fire on the high seas, but Canadian officials said their naval destroyer was in hot pursuit of poachers.

"We're not just a bunch of cavil-people who are running around firing at innocent American fishermen," said Carl Goodwin, chief of surveillance operations at the Canadian Department of Fisheries and Oceans.

The 366-foot Saguenay fired about 10 warning shots, including several from a submachine-gun-like weapon and one shell from its three-inch gun. The shots fell near the 114-foot scalloper Concordia during a 12-hour chase Monday began after a ramming each side has blamed on the other.

The fishing boat's captain, William Furey Jr., said that his charts indicated he was never in Canadian waters.

The Canadian destroyer Concordia from 130 miles off Cape Cod through international waters until a Coast Guard cutter picked the scalloper up early Tuesday at the American 12-mile boundary and escorted it to New Bedford.

FUREY

Kenneth Crossman, a special agent with the U.S. National Marine Fisheries Service, said officials boarded the scalloper in New Bedford, near the scalloper's home port of Fairhaven, to confirm the captain's identity and to examine the catch.

Crossman said federal charges would be filed against the Concordia only if solid evidence was presented by Canadian officials, who said government prosecutors would consider the case after the destroyer returned to port within several days.

Furey said that he and his 10-member Concordia crew rechecked their course Monday morning after a Canadian plane flew overhead and ordered him not to move until a naval warship arrived at the scene.

"I wasn't going to stop the vessel and wait for a warship," he said. "I was fishing, not at war."

Furey, 31, said the destroyer eventually overtook his boat and, when he refused to stop, rammed the Concordia three times. As night fell, he sat the 366-foot vessel moved to within a quarter-mile of his scalloper.

"If we had been a wooden boat, we'd be cut in half," he said. "The crew hit the deck. I shut off all the boat's lights and kept weaving. I felt like I was at war."

Goodwin said "until all the facts are presented, we're safest to call the incident a collision." The warning shots, he said, were fired according

North says he is unable to testify in trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Oliver North said Tuesday that he can't be a practical witness against John Poindexter because his recollection of events in the Iran-Contra affair has been affected by Poindexter's congressional testimony.

At a pre-trial hearing in the Poindexter case, North testified that he cannot discern what he learned from his own experiences and what he learned from the testimony of "counsel witnesses," including Poindexter, a former national security adviser to President Reagan.

"It's obviously (North's) desire not to testify against" his former boss, said U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene.

North likened his situation to attending a football game, watching the play unfold on the field and then seeing it again on the replay screen.

"I can't tell you what is the product" of having seen the action on the field and "having observed the replay three times from a different angle," North testified.

"We don't care about the other witnesses," said Greene, ordering North not to rely on Poindexter's testimony. "I am sure it's somewhat difficult, but you just have to do the best you can."

Under a 1972 Supreme Court ruling, the government may make no use of a defendant's testimony compelled under a limited grant of immunity. That includes testimony given by other witnesses who may have been influenced by the immunized statements.

The hearing was called so that Greene may determine whether North was tainted by testimony that Poindexter gave to Congress in 1987 under such a grant of immunity.

Associate independent counsel Dan Webb tried to get North to detail his meetings with Poindexter and to elaborate on North's own testimony at his criminal trial in April.

One of the criminal charges against Poindexter is that he obstructed Congress by denying in 1986 that North was assisting the Contras.

North testified at his own trial that he felt like a "pawn" in a chess game played by "giants" when, after a discussion with Poindexter, he told the House Intelligence Committee he wasn't assisting the rebel army.

However, North said Tuesday that "no one told me to do what I did."

Webb suggested that the "giants" North referred to were President Reagan, former national security adviser Robert McFarlane and Poindexter.

"That is not what I said," retorted North. "In general terms I would say it was the executive and legislative branches of government" and included Secretary of State George Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and CIA director William Casey.

The former National Security Council aide, returning to the courthouse where he was convicted May 4 of three felonies, initially invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination when called to the witness stand.

Bolivian colonel held without bail

MIAMI (AP) — A Bolivian colonel dubbed his nation's "minister of cocaine" in the early 1980s was ordered held without bond Tuesday on drug-trafficking charges that could send him to prison for 30 years.

Luis Arce Gomez was a fugitive for six years until Sunday, when Bolivian authorities raided his home and put him on a Drug Enforcement Administration plane bound for the United States.

Human rights groups have accused Arce Gomez of running death squads that hunted down, tortured and killed enemies of the military government with the help of fugitive Nazi Klaus Barbie.

Arce Gomez, wearing a T-shirt, slacks and sandals, responded with "I understand" after he was read a summary of charges at a hearing before U.S. Magistrate William Turnoff.

With all its problems, education in Idaho remains better than in many other places

education, a second resolution called for a part of the funds to be devoted. Clearly the intent was to send a message to the Legislature that education is important.

Obviously we are just as concerned about the infrastructure, and any improvements to roads, bridges and other things would also benefit education. The point is, however - and this was stated by legislators at the recent meeting with school-board members - that funding for education has been lagging behind for many years prior to the last few years of relative abundance; and the needs of the children must be kept in mind, especially in times of surplus funds. In the matter of recall of school board members, the Board's Association merely asked for a clarification of the terms of the existing recall law. It does seem ironic that school board members, who are the first line of democracy and the elected officials closest to the people (they are, after all, your friends and neighbors) and who serve so unselfishly without pay or recognition, should be so chastised and demeaned in the name of improving education.

Open choice for school enrollment does seem to be a popular issue, politically. But what are we really talking about? In Idaho, parents have the right to choose where they want their children to attend school, and many parents already do send their children to schools in other districts.

The Legislature seems to be discussing refinements of the present law. And did you know that the much-heralded Minnesota law is almost the same as the existing law in Idaho? And what has happened in Minnesota? Far less changing of schools than would have been expected; and, at least in some cases, the changes have been to take students from the larger schools and enroll them in smaller schools.

Finally, there is the matter of activity account-monies. Apparently, neither Senator Noh nor The Times-News is willing to trust anyone on this issue.

A survey by the State Department of Education two years ago found no significant problems, but that was dismissed by legislative nay-sayers as unreliable - in spite of the fact that it was compiled by superintendents and principals, are we now not to trust anyone connected with schools?

A resolution calling for controls on activity fund monies was soundly defeated (1,903 to 20) by the School Boards' Association. Apparently school board members do not think there is a problem. Since they are the ones who are most directly involved with education, should we not believe them?

Education has its problems. There is the concern that our students will indeed be taught the skills they will need to succeed in the 21st Century. There are still problems of drugs and alcohol and teenage pregnancy. There are dysfunctional families that need help, and these family problems are reflected in student behavior and achievement. And the list could go on and on.

With all of its problems, however, education in Idaho is - by my measures of student achievement - better than in many places. The governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction have just named a blue-ribbon panel to study education and make recommendations for the future.

These are the kinds of opportunities we need to support, rather than the constant sniping and sowing seeds of mistrust. Our children are indeed our future.

They deserve no less than our best thought and best attention.

African economy spirals downward

In a grim assessment of what has gone on in black Africa since the move towards independence began 30 years ago, the World Bank says bluntly it has failed to make any economic progress at all and is now locked into a downward spiral from which it will be extremely difficult to break out.

It presents a horrifying picture of a continent in which corruption, high military spending and mistaken policies have all contributed to what it calls a "devastating" situation.

A quarter of the population - 100 million - go hungry, school enrollments are falling, and as the area sinks into even more abysmal poverty; it is also causing more damage to the environment, affecting not only its future but that of the world.

"The deepening crisis" reflects a total inability to match economic performance with the pressures of an explosive population.

In the past 30 years, the population of sub-Saharan Africa has more than doubled to 450 million; and at the present rate of population growth - 3.3 percent - will more than double in the next 30.

Yet, production remained stagnant; as the bank points out, Africa with its 450 million people has a GDP of $135 billion, which exactly equals that of Belgium with its population of 10 million - and is substantially less than that of South Africa with 40 million people!

But what is more important about this report is the fact that the bank lays the blame squarely on Africa's shoulders; falling living standards "are explained largely by the declining level and efficiency of investment, compounded by accelerated population growth."

And it also says pouring more money in will be useless unless corruption is ended; "leaders must become accountable to their peoples - and funds must be seen to be properly administered."

But we are facing up to our problems. Perhaps at long last in the rest of the continent, they are facing up to theirs. If they had done so earlier, instead of wasting 30 years telling us what ogres we were, how different the picture might have been.

But that is the only mention of the nation which possesses almost half all the industrial and transportation infrastructure of the entire continent, which is the only industrial-urban society south of Europe and whose present political evolution is as dramatic as that taking place in Russia and the Eastern bloc.

And what is more, is ready and willing to share those strengths with its less fortunate neighbors. What a pity!

The above editorial is from the Nov. 25 edition of the Natal Mercury, a South African newspaper. It was submitted by Mrs. Elsa Meakle of Twin Falls, who visits South Africa regularly.

The Times-News is to be commended for its concern that the children of Idaho be provided with quality education that will prepare them for life in the ever-changing world. But sometimes, even the best of intentions can go awry as a result of lack of correct information or just excessive zeal.

Such a situation seems to have occurred when The Times-News published its recent editorial (Dec. 9) attacking the motives of the Idaho School Boards' Association in particular and its thousands of members across the state in general. And so the time has come for a reasoned response.

There is no question that groups that support schools are asking the Legislature for more money in the coming year. It would be nice if schools could operate as businesses and raise revenues when costs rise (just as The Times-News did in recently raising its subscription rates).

Unfortunately, we can't, and when our costs rise - as they have for years as a result of increased federal and state requirements, inflation and increased salary demands - we have no recourse but to ask the Legislature for the additional funds needed, since tax initiatives and other laws strictly limit a school district's ability to raise additional revenues.

Nor do we erge from the idea of accountability. Any school district would welcome an examination of the way in which it spends money and the results that are obtained.

Our books are open records and are audited annually. And, in fact, schools and the School Boards' Association report legislative direction for spending funds; a resolution which would have opposed this position was soundly defeated at the School Boards' Convention.

In the matter of surplus funds, The Times-News has erred. While one resolution at the School Boards' Convention seemed to call for all of the surplus money to be designated for ## Letters/ Why does Great Rift Preserve need 5-mile buffers on each side?

Buffers would hurt sheepmen

I am not writing against the making of the Craters of the Moon a national park. What concerns me is the Great Rift Preserve.

Why does it have to have a 5-mile buffer area (3 miles on each side) for a distance of 40 miles? This cuts off 47 percent of the sheepmen's drive lanes and their watering places. This area also cuts off part of the cattle range land and some watering places. This is a rugged and rough area that very few people use.

During the hunting season, sagehen, antelope and deer hunters use that area. There are some of us that use the desert all year round. Trappers and hunters seek coyote and bobcat and fox for extra income. Winter time is the best time to hunt these animals.

Grade schools have asked me to give talks to the students about the desert and what is out there. There are several of us that take our children out with us and they have learned a great deal about nature. I have logged over 100,000 miles in the desert for my personal enjoyment. My friends also do the same thing. My boys have watched the birth of an antelope fawn, sagehen boom, snakes swallow their prey, and even watched the rock chucks. This is the area of rock rabbits that are native to Snake River Plains. I have also given talks to several civic clubs and Boy Scout groups.

A friend and I talked to the rangers at the Craters of the Moon and they say they are short on funds to operate as efficiently as to display the artifacts pertaining to the craters. If they can't get finances now, why give them more problems?

We need the desert left for multiple use for more people to enjoy and for economic reasons. Remember once you lose it, you can't get it back. Fight for what you have, not for what you don't.

Need show for living will

Re: Nancy Cruzan:

Nancy's parents have chosen to wage a brave battle to allow their daughter to die. They are not the kind of people who are uncompassionate people; but because, like so many of us, Nancy had expressed a wish not to have her life prolonged under certain circumstances.

However, as so many of us have not, Nancy had never taken the time to fill out the documents that would ensure her wishes were carried out and that would protect her family from this public scrutiny. They are commendable to face this controversy out of love for their child and the desire to see that her wishes are met. If we accept Mr. Havener's hypothesis that Nancy is aware and thus faces a slow, painful death; then what of the life she

One certainty is that she cannot communicate with her care givers. She can't say that her ribs or her head aches or her bedsores burn or the muscle contractions she has developed cause cramps or she hates the radio station that plays or that she is thirsty or that despite the fact that she can no longer swallow, she sure misses the taste of a good old hamburger.

And if Mr. Havener's well-meaning folks prevail, Nancy may well face 20 or 30 years more of this isolation before some probably undiagnosed and painful condition does claim her life.

Nancy's parents are certain that she would not choose to be kept alive artificially under these circumstances. If they are religious people, they probably feel that the Lord has something better ahead for their daughter and would like her to be allowed to get on with it.

Any of you who would like to avoid risking what Nancy faces should procure and fill out an Idaho Living Will form; and while you're at it, say a prayer that the Supreme Court doesn't take away our right to make this decision.

County lucky to have board

I read a letter from Alan Greenway criticizing our fair board members and calling them weak.

Just for the record, I think Twin Falls County is very fortunate to have this group of hard-working business people on the fair board. I think they have accomplished more, without any cost to the taxpayers, than any other board in the county ever has - such as the scoreboard for the rodeo, three beautiful buildings (two for merchants and one for produce), blacktop for all the roads, a new trailer park, all new display places, all new horse stall gates and much improved grounds.

They were taking a chance in bringing top entertainment like the Oak Ridge Boys and so much more to make our fair the best in the county.

So when this Greenway called out fair board members weak and indecisive, he must be a wimp! I appreciate everything they have done, and I resent Greenway's statements. Any decision they make concerning the Rodeo Queen Contest will be the right one.

Home schools battle coming

Home schoolers, private schoolers, Sunday schoolers, church campers, baby sitters, etc., get your head out of the sand and prepare for the battle. Idaho State Health Care is trying and succeeding in taking control of your operations.

Oh, they'll deny it. Your senators and representatives will plead innocence and ignorance - but it's happening. Under Article 1, section 2 and 10 of the Idaho State Constitution, you have the right to know what's going on. Your employees, the representatives and senators you elect, have an obligation to tell you.

The new Health and Welfare "Standards for Private Children's Agencies and Children's Institutions" affect your private entities, just as it says: "Get Health and Welfare and your legislators to define the term 'private children's agencies' to you in writing; and then get them to omit it from these rules and replace it with 'public children's agencies' or '24-hour resident schools', which is where Health and Welfare should regulate.

Legislators and Health and Welfare will tell you the rules and regulations are for 24-hour care resident schools. If indeed that is the intent of these rules, why are they adamantly opposed to simply changing this broad term "private children's agencies" to what they say it means. Down the road, this all inclusive, broad term will be interpreted to mean "anyone providing any kind of child care." Wake up!!

We all need to check in on our boys and girls at the State Control Center in Boise, too. It sounds to me like the one's we are trusting to create and change the laws for our benefit and protection are falling asleep at the wheel and need a little accountability. After all, it is an election year, and we are still "the people." Right, or do you really care whose controlling your future and your kinds?

Cat dumper should get coal

I live in the last house on a dead end street next to a field. I often leave my window open at night for fresh air, and my bedroom faces the dead end street. But I heard your car at 11:30 Saturday night; and your head lights woke me when you turned around. You passed for a few minutes and then left. You lights for a few minutes and then left.

That's when I first heard the forlorn cries of the kitten you had dumped. At midnight, you came back - what? second thoughts?

feeling guilty? You didn't even stay a moment that time, just turned around and left. I was kept awake most of the night by the cries of the kitten.

My twelve year old warm house and put the coffee on, it was 17 degrees according to my thermometer. She was still crying as the sun came up, and by this time, going from house to house sitting on cold front steps and holding one paw up at a time to escape the cold. When she came to my front step - around 9 a.m. - I could not forsake her. I brought her in and fed her and kept her warm.

Now, I want you to understand that I love animals - especially cats - I have five of my own, one of which I acquired in the same manner (dumped on my doorstep at Christmas three years ago). I cannot tolerate the abuse of such creatures, but how many can I take in? I thought to myself during the early morning hours that I will find the kitten and take her to my veterinarian and have her put to sleep at least she won't freeze and starve. But, by noon, my dog was playing with her (she thinks kittens are puppies) and my daughter has fallen in love with her - as had I.

Where are your morals and your Christian heart this time of year? I have always felt that having animals is a responsibility similar to having children. If you have them, you take care of them. Would you also dump your baby daughter on my dead-end street on a cold December night? I think perhaps you would. How sad!

Your black kitten has Christmas ribbons around her neck and is sitting by the fire staying warm now. She will be find and well cared for.

I wish you coal in your stocking at Christmas - along with much guilt for what you did.

Senators made last-ditch appeals to head off sale of Lincoln S&L

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators made last-minute appeals to stop banking regulators from forcing a sale of Lincoln Savings and Loan last spring after being lobbied on behalf of the owner and a potential buyer, according to interviews and documents.

In the frantic days before banking regulators approved the April 14 seizure, both Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Sen. A. Craig Johnston, D-Calif., asked the nation's chief thrift regulator to approve any legal and proper sale of Lincoln — owned by a major campaign contributor, Charles H.

Keating Jr. Aides to Cranston and DeConcini said the intervention with M. Danny Wall, who last week announced his resignation as head of the government's Office of Thrift Supervision, resulted from their desire to save taxpayers money and to preserve jobs at Keating's companies.

The intervention was not in response to lobbying on behalf of Keating or from former GOP Rep. John H. Roussetol, who headed a group trying to purchase the failing thrift, the aides said.

The collapse of Lincoln is expected to become the biggest thrift failure in a troubled industry, at a possible cost to taxpayers of more than $2 billion.

It has spawned multiple investigations and lawsuits, including a Senate ethics committee review of intervention by Cranston, DeConcini and three other senators: John McCain, R-Ariz.; Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich.; and John Glenn, D-Ohio.

The five received $1.3 million for political campaigns and causes from Keating, his immediate family and employees. All five deny any wrongdoing.

The five senators intervened on Keating's behalf with banking regulators as long ago as April 1987, two years before the takeover, when examiners were investigating the troubled Irvine, Calif. thrift.

Wall's logs and telephone messages show that two years later, as U.S. banking officials prepared to take over Lincoln, he met with Cranston last April 7 — a week before the takeover — and had telephone calls from DeConcini April 7 and April 11.

Interviews with spokesmen for Wall and the senators confirmed the lawmakers urged Wall to approve a sale unless there was a reason not to.

A sale of Lincoln could have allowed Keating's American Continental Corp. — the bank's parent company — to avoid its filing for bankruptcy protection last April 13. The filing has complicated the government's attempt to gain control of Keating's assets and records.

"I was lobbying to try to get a sale accomplished," Roussetol said in an interview, adding that most of his discussions were with Cranston or his staff.

U.S., Soviet forces test radio links

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. and Soviet militaries conducted their first communication tests last week under an agreement designed to prevent potentially dangerous clashes, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

"It's a reflection of an increased element of trust," said spokesman Pete Williams. "It's a recognition of the force that both sides have and an attempt to avoid any accidents from being caused by the inability to communicate with the other side."

The Dec. 6-8 exercise was designed to demonstrate the two nations' armed forces can cooperate in anticipation of an agreement scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1.

The pact was signed last summer by Soviet Gen. Mikhail A. Moiseyev and then-Chief of Staff Adm. William Crowe, who worked in recent years to increase contact between the superpower militaries.

Williams said the tests involved ships, aircraft and ground-based air traffic control and monitoring facilities of both U.S. and Soviet armed forces.

"Despite bad weather in the Bering Sea, the tests were successful," Williams said. "They demonstrated radio interoperability and the procedures that have been worked out by both sides to prevent potentially dangerous military incidents or to quickly resolve them should they occur."

Williams said that U.S. and Soviet aircraft met at specific locations "and talked to each other. They communicated directly to each other."

"It's a first," he said of the tests.

The tests over the Bering Sea — which divides Alaska from the Soviet Union — included the aircraft from each nation flying over the other territory.

The aircraft "communicated with both interceptor aircraft there and ground-based traffic control and monitoring facilities" of the other nation, Williams said.

In the Mediterranean, the two sides conducted "air-to-sea" tests by which aircraft from both nations communicated with the other nation's ships, he said.

Williams said he could not say how far the aircraft penetrated the other's territory, nor could he say what language was used in the transmissions.

The accord is supposed to regulate the operation of military forces near each other and avoid such near-misses as occurred earlier this year in the Mediterranean.

In September, a Soviet warship engaged in maneuvers with four other Soviet ships near Crete opened fire on a U.S. Navy P-3 surveillance plane, barely missing the aircraft.

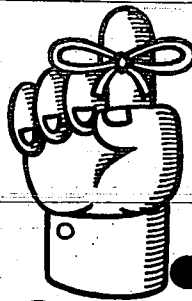

The Navy protested the incident and the Soviets apologized, U.S. officials said.

Budget ignored threat cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply reduced U.S. intelligence estimates of the potential military threat posed by the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact were never factored into the process of drafting the Pentagon budget, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee said Tuesday.

The result, said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., was that members of Congress responsible for approving the defense budget were misled, perhaps inadvertently.

"I don't say it was a deliberate coverup," Nunn told reporters. "What happened here is that the intelligence estimate didn't get plugged into their own process."

But he said congressional budget writers were misled nonetheless. "When you don't have the accurate intelligence estimate, I think it is a misleading budget," Nunn said.

The complaints from Nunn and other committee members about the credibility of the budget process came as a senior Pentagon official confirmed that a new threat estimate by the U.S. intelligence community, in preparation for months, concludes that the Soviets would take significantly longer than previously believed to ready forces to invade Western Europe.

However, Paul Wolfowitz, undersecretary of defense for policy planning, said that the principal reason for the longer warning time is the improvement of the reinforcement capabilities of the United States and its NATO allies.

Wolfowitz said that using this longer warning time as a basis on which to immediately cut U.S. military forces would be short-sighted and counterproductive. Deep cuts could erase the longer warning time and erode NATO defenses, he said.

Reducing NATO's military punch too soon might lead Moscow to conclude it could gain a decisive military advantage by moving quickly, Wolfowitz said.

At the same time, he said, U.S. military planners are working under the assumption that political changes in Eastern Europe and the anticipated successful outcome of conventional arms reduction talks in Vienna will eventually lead to a sharply reduced military threat.

But he said that may not be fully evident for four or five years. Wolfowitz declined to confirm reports published in The Washington Post last month that the U.S. intelligence community believes NATO would have between 33 to 44 days of warning time before a Soviet attack, a change from previous estimates that a "standing start" invasion would require only two weeks of mobilization.

Wolfowitz did confirm that for the first time since the rise of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the United States sees evidence of actual reductions in overall Soviet military spending.

But he said that is taking place largely in the conventional field, with spending on strategic nuclear and naval forces remaining level. That cannot serve as the rationale for deep cuts to U.S. forces because of "incompleteness" and "reversibility" of the Soviet moves, he said.

Nunn said that accurate warning-time estimates drive military strategy, which in turn drives military budgets. They are of "fundamental importance," he said.

Senators to review sale of uranium

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee will review the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's decision to sell weapons-grade uranium to Romania, a hard-line East Bloc country that has been harshly criticized by the United States, a Capitol Hill source said Tuesday.

One opponent called the sale "crazy," another said the uranium could be used to make a nuclear bomb. The 16.4 kilograms of uranium at issue is slated to go to the Triga research reactor outside Bucharest. The facility is used for training, basic research and the production of radionuclides commonly used for medical tests — but not for weapons.

The sale was approved in August 1988, but U.S. officials have refused to ship the uranium, stored at Oak Ridge, Tenn., until the Romanians come up with a safe way to transport the deadly material.

Gary Milhollin, director of the Wisconsin Project on Nuclear Arms Control, a group opposed to nuclear proliferation, said the material could be used for a bomb.

"In light of the Romanians' increasing isolation and instability, it is not the time to be sending Romania the means to make an atomic bomb," he said. The "real risk is that Romania will sell it to terrorists for hard currency," he said.

"I think it's crazy," Vladimir Tismaneanu, a resident scholar at the Foreign Policy Research Institute in Philadelphia, said of the sale.

Tismaneanu said the United States should not provide "any encouragement" to Nicolae Ceausescu, the unpredictable Romanian leader who has curtailed religious, speech and travel freedoms.

Ceausescu has scorned economic and social reforms sweeping Eastern Europe, preferring a Stalin-like approach to governing. Relations between Bucharest and Washington have been "severely strained" recently by Romania's poor human rights record, the State Department said in a statement.

"We would like to see Romania join its neighbors in moving towards political and economic reforms. The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee will look at the sale to make sure the Romanians need the uranium to keep the Triga reactor operating rather than as a reserve supply, according to an aide, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

OSHA levies $3.3 million fine for 840 violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department proposed $3.3 million in fines Tuesday against a Philadelphia plant for 840 alleged safety violations, including failure to tell some workers that tests showed their hearing was deteriorating.

Most of the citations issued to the Budd Co. by the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration alleged violations either of noise- and hearing-related standards or requirements that employers keep detailed records of workplace injuries.

Of the 840 citations, 834 were for alleged willful violations of safety standards — meaning that OSHA believes the company knew of violations or hazardous conditions but made no meaningful effort to correct them.

Nearly 500 of the alleged willful violations dealt with noise-related standards, including 124 instances in which OSHA said company administrators — tests — showed employees' hearing had deteriorated but the company did not inform the workers. Budd, which makes doors, lift gates and other sheet-metal products for automobiles, has 13 working days to contest the citations and fine — the fifth largest proposed by OSHA.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Richard G. Irwin
OVERPRICING CAN BE COSTLY

QUESTION: Several REALTORS have told me that my house is overpriced by about 20% and, in the long run, could cost me money. How can this be?

ANSWER: Because overpricing stops buyers from considering your home. No matter how much is spent on advertising, an overpriced home will not sell. Prime prospects who should have bought, have gone elsewhere to buy. When a home remains unsold too long, interest stops because buyers become wary. Eventually your house will sell, but for less than you could have realized had you priced it realistically. Use extreme caution in pricing your home more than 5 percent above its market value.

OVERPRICING A HOUSE will lose more good prospects than anything else.

Judge won't drop charge in spill case

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A judge Tuesday refused to dismiss criminal charges against the skipper of the Exxon Valdez, rejecting arguments that Joseph Hazelwood gained immunity from prosecution by reporting the spill.

Super Court Judge Karl Johnstone said the nation's worst oil spill would have been discovered within minutes even if Hazelwood had not radioed in after the tanker hit a reef and began spilling nearly 11 million gallons of diesel.

The judge thus ruled that all evidence gathered in the investigation, except for Hazelwood's actual report, will be admissible at his trial Jan. 22.

Hazelwood is charged with three felonies and three misdemeanors in the March 24 accident, including operating the tanker while under the influence of alcohol.

He could receive up to 10 years in prison and $100,000 in fines if convicted of the felony offenses.

Hazelwood's lawyers had argued the seaman was immune from prosecution because state and federal laws protect people who report oil spills.

But after listening to two weeks of testimony, Johnstone concluded that if Hazelwood had not reported the grounding and the spill, it would have delayed the Coast Guard's discovery of the spill by only 17 minutes.

Johnstone's ruling appeared to be almost a total victory for prosecutors, who argued that the intent of the spill-reporting immunity provisions was not to protect spillers for incidents that have been discovered anyway.

"We are breaking new ground" in a sensitive area, Leonard Linlon, an assistant district attorney and lead prosecutor in the case, told Johnstone on Monday.

High heels
High heels force an arching of the spine. So push out both bustline and posterior. Medics call this condition "heels." In rural lingo, it's "wee-buck." Experts say "this occasional posture in lower mammals indicates a readiness to mate." They do not imply that high heels so indicate. But they wonder if male observers react with a latent lower-mammal response.

Almost all men who smoke cigars think those occasional women who do so look ridiculous. The men react the sight. They react as though the cigar-smoking women were stealing something from them. So report the market researchers. This is said to be why cigar sellers are reluctant to court female buyers.

Sting's latest project slumps with poor reviews, early close

NEW YORK (AP) — Sting has begun touring.
"3 Penny Opera," a revival of the Bertolt Brecht-Kurt Weill musical starring the British rock star as Mack the Knife, will close Dec. 31 after only a two-month run, a spokesman for the musical said Tuesday.

It will have played 65 regular performances and 20 previews, said spokesman Peter Sanders.
The musical, which received largely negative reviews, has played to steadily dwindling audiences since it opened Nov. 5 at the Lunt-Fontanne Theater. For the week after Thanksgiving, it grossed $433,816, a little more than 80 percent of capacity at the theater.

The musical, which also stars Maureen McGovern, Georgia Brown and Alvin Epstein, opened with a $4 million advance sales but did little business at the box office after the reviews came out.

Dallas said Monday that he is trying to locate a music-related job for his client and hopes to have Brown in the supervised job program in January.

Francis X. Archibald, spokesman for the South Carolina Department of Corrections, said Brown has not yet applied for the program.
"The position of the Department of Corrections right now is Mr. Brown has not submitted an application. If he submits it, we will consider it at that time," Archibald said.

If Brown is accepted into the program, he will work during the day and spend his nights and weekends at a work release facility.
Brown is serving a six-year Georgia term that is running concurrently with the six-year South Carolina sentence. He is jailed on charges including assault, carrying a gun to a public gathering, failing to stop for police and driving under the influence.
South Carolina's inmates are eligible for the early release work program once they have been imprisoned for six months without any disciplinary problems. Brown becomes eligible for parole in May 1991.

Imelda Marcos jokes about upcoming trial

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos showed up at a dinner party here and took the opportunity to joke about her upcoming federal trial on charges she plundered her homeland.

In a restaurant owned by her former palace caterer, Del Garcia, Mrs. Marcos quaffed champagne, dined on Swedish meatballs and fancy vegetables at the Monday night party. The San Jose Mercury news reported in its Tuesday edition.
Mrs. Marcos, 60, flew into San Francisco last weekend for a holiday visit with her daughters, Irene and Amy, both of whom live in the city with their families.
After dinner, Mrs. Marcos chatted about her trial in New York City, scheduled for March. She, her husband and eight co-defendants were indicted by a U.S. grand jury that accused them of investing in the United States $168 million in stolen funds.

"They found in my closet many shoes but at least it wasn't skeletons," she said. "They (the shoes) are a symbol of how Filipinos love me because they gave me so many shoes."
Her husband Ferdinand Marcos died in Honolulu on Sept. 28. Mrs. Marcos returns to Hawaii this week.

Informant vacations, enjoys life with guards during prison term

BROOKSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A mob informant and his Rhode Island police guards developed such a loose relationship over 3 1/2 years that they frolicked in Florida together and sold vehicles to each other, even though the protected witness was serving a prison term.

And security was so lax that anybody looking for informant Peter Gilbert — a prized witness who traveled to court surrounded by police sharpshooters — could find applications to find the address of his supposedly secret hideaway.

His widow, Debra, and her lawyer also alleged in recent interviews at her Florida home that police told Mrs. Gilbert to turn in phony receipts for Gilbert's expenses.

A Rhode Island attorney general's report also said Gilbert, serving a 10-year prison term for murder at the time he was a protected witness, allegedly had guns and improperly collected welfare and often was allowed to roam freely. He frequently was ferried to Florida with his guards, some of whom allegedly bought their girlfriends.
"It was just as if they were a bunch of fraternity guys, skydiving, drinking, women," said Thomas Hogan Jr., Mrs. Gilbert's attorney.

Mrs. Gilbert's revelations are the latest about her husband's custody that have surfaced since he died June 11, 1988. They flabbergasted the man who founded the federal witness protection program.

"Our prime goal is to keep him alive, to keep him in the right frame of mind to testify," said John Partington, a former U.S. marshal recently named Providence, R.I., public safety commissioner.

Gilbert, 45, died of a heart attack while on an unsupervised skydiving trip to Connecticut. The attorney general's report later acknowledged police knew he had a history of heart problems. Police found cocaine in his car.

Rhode Island state police are investigating, but previous reports by the attorney general and The Providence Journal-Bulletin showed the state spent as much as $169,000 on Gilbert and his wife during his 3 1/2 years in police custody — purchases included bullets, liquor, jewelry, concert tickets and 52 skydiving trips.

Two of Gilbert's guards have committed suicide since his death and two were reassigned from the police intelligence unit to the uniform division. Former Providence Police Chief Anthony J. Mancuso, who became the attorney general's chief drug enforcement officer while continuing to be paid by Providence after stepping down as chief, recently resigned from the attorney general's office and the force, citing continued publicity about the Gilbert case.

Gilbert was supposed to be a key witness against six reputed mobsters but testified against only one before his death. Because he died, charges against most of the others were dropped.

Under an agreement with the attorney general's office, Gilbert lived at the Providence police station from his arrest in February 1985 until his transfer to Gloucester, R.I., safe house in January 1988. Mrs. Gilbert alternated between living in Florida and with her husband in Rhode Island.

Police and the attorney general's office refused to release the safe house address, but it was listed on a March 1988 title application Gilbert filed at the Motor Vehicle Registry in connection with a car loan.

Gilbert paid Detective Jeffrey Ward $3,000 for a 13-year-old Harley Davidson motorcycle in April 1988, according to sales tax documents provided by a source close to the investigation who demanded anonymity.
Providence and state police and the attorney general's office won't comment on the case. Mancuso, who stepped down in 1988, denied knowledge of any transactions between Gilbert and his guards, but would say no more.

Mrs. Gilbert won't talk about many things because of the pending state police investigation. But Hogan said that among her other allegations are that:

American sentenced for smuggling

MOSCOW (AP) — An American was convicted of trying to smuggle more than $92,000 worth of gold, jewels and currency out of the Soviet Union and received a suspended sentence Tuesday, Tass reported.

Martin Mendelson, 24, of Washington, D.C., was caught at Leningrad airport Sept. 25 trying to fly to Finland without declaring money, items of gold and silver and jewels worth a great sum, the official news agency said.

He had been held in jail since then but was released Tuesday after a court gave him a three-year sentence and ordered some of the valuables confiscated, Tass said.

Mendelson, a tour guide for the New York-based Russian Travel Bureau, had been trying to get the valuables out of the Soviet Union for Maya Bogdaniashvili, 31, of Moscow, Tass said. She also was given a suspended sentence.

Gilbert sold a Chrysler Cordoba to police matron Eva Diaz in July 1986. No title could be found under either name and Diaz referred questions to Mrs. Gilbert. Diaz said she took over loan payments on Gilbert's 1984 Buick after his death.

Gilbert told his wife her sixth anniversary ring in 1987 was bought from Ward, who denies it.

Admission jumps for Magic Kingdom

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — It would cost Scrooge McDuck nearly $100 to take Huey, Dewie and Louie to Disneyland for a day: A date in the Magic Kingdom for Mickey and Minnie would run more than $50.

Disneyland has boosted one-day admission prices by $2, to $25.50 for adults and $20.50 for children. Parking prices have jumped, too, by a dollar to $4.

For a family foursome, that's $96 to visit, up from $87 a year ago.

Disneyland spokesman Bob Roth said the company raised prices to offset the costs of its Splash Mountain ride, which opened last summer.

The price increases, said Roth, are "something necessary for us to do to introduce products like these for our customers."
Disney park officials also are anticipating the year-long celebration of Disneyland's 35th anniversary that begins Jan. 1.

New rules threaten rural fire protection

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Rural fire protection could be much more costly or even be jeopardized because of new federal rules covering fires and accidents involving hazardous materials, mutual fire protection officials say.

The Twin Falls County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., which operates six volunteer-manned fire engines in the county, asked county commissioners on Tuesday for funding to meet new Occupational Safety and Health Administration rules.

Although officials are unsure how much training and equipment for handling hazardous materials will cost, it will likely cost the mutual several thousands of dollars, said Jim Wood, the county's emergency services coordinator.

"If (the company) feels it can no longer provide protection, there will be no protection in rural Twin Falls County," said Peggy Larragan, company secretary-treasurer.

The mutual fire protection company supplies engines for use by volunteer fire departments. Members in effect pay for fire protection in advance by buying policies; non-members are billed for firefighting services.

The mutual has operated its engines at a deficit for the past two years, Larragan said.

The OSHA rules were issued in March 1989, and fire stations had until March 1990 to implement them, mutual President Glen Gier said.

The new regulations, called the Final Rule, were necessary because most firefighters are not prepared to handle chemical accidents or fires, an OSHA brochure says.

But mutual officials did not hear about the new rules until about a month ago, Gier said.

The rules could prompt dramatic premium increases for the mutual's 1,500 policy holders, Larragan said.

"We are finding it difficult to come up with the money for this," Gier said.

County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said the county will consider assisting the mutual, but not until the next budget year - which will be after the deadline.

"Budget-wise I don't know how we could do it," he said. "It's the same old story."

Larragan said the state sets limits for how much the company can charge non-members for firefighting assistance.

The company charges non-policy-holders $250 per hour for each fire engine used in

2 area boys nabbed in Utah theft attempt

ROY, Utah - Two Mini-Cassia area youths, one of whom escaped Monday from the Jerome juvenile detention center, have been apprehended in Utah.

The boys, a 15-year-old from Rupert and a 16-year-old from Burley, were arrested by Roy police after attempting to steal a vehicle there, according to Cassia County Sheriff's Sgt. Alan Smith.

The two left Idaho after the Rupert boy escaped from the American National Juvenile Center Monday morning and the Burley youth, who waited nearby, picked him up.

After facing charges in Utah, Smith said the boys will be brought back to Idaho. The Burley youth will be charged with burglary and grand theft of the auto they drove to Utah, Smith said, and the Rupert youth will be charged with escape.

Because a .357-caliber Magnum was found in the pickup the boys drove, both will be charged with use of a firearm in commission of a felony, Smith said.

Red Barrel board delays response to Castelford

CASTLEFORD - The board of directors of the Red Barrel has made no decision whether to accept an offer to move its activities into the city's community center in return for a break on some of its costs.

The Castelford City Council proposed to the Red Barrel Board last week that the two buildings be combined, following a public meeting last month during which most people said the town would need two public meeting and gathering places.

The city would continue to pay insurance costs, waive the building's water and sewer bills and put in a new heating system if the board would run its 200 programs from the center.

The city also would retain the use of the building for city functions such as elections and Santa's visit.

Councilwoman Mary Pinkston, also a board member, presented the proposal to the board at its meeting last week, but no action was taken because only half of the eight-member board was present.

Pinkston said the proposal would be presented when the board meets again, but she didn't know when that would be.

Anthony tells Republicans about his recent Soviet trip

TWIN FALLS - Former legislative candidate George Anthony will talk today about his recent trip to the Soviet Union during a meeting of the Twin Falls Republican Central Committee.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in Courtroom No. 1 in the county's judicial annex, next to the courthouse.

Other items on the agenda will also be discussed, Twin Falls GOP Central Committee Chairman Mark Stubbs said.

Albion area may receive extended toll-free calling

TWIN FALLS - The Albion area may get an extended toll-free calling area.

More than 200 Albion Telephone Co. customers and local leaders petitioned the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to extend toll-free calling from Albion, Almo, Elba, Malta and Raft River.

The petitioners indicated they would accept an increase in their monthly bills to get the increased calling area.

Before it makes a decision, the commission wants a report from the phone companies by Jan. 17 on the number of calls made from Albion exchanges to Burley, revenue impact from the change and proposals to alleviate any revenue losses.

Conservation League slates organizational meet here

An organizational meeting will be at 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at 1347 Maple Ave.

Those attending the meeting will help elect representatives to the ICL board, decide the chapters' geographic scope, choose a name and set a time for the next meeting.

Organizers hope to have a chapter in place before the 1990 state Legislature. A Magic Valley ICL chapter would work on local conservation issues.

Small business owners invited to call Stallings

TWIN FALLS - The owners of small businesses in the Magic Valley are invited to call 2nd-District Rep. Richard Stallings with their comments and concerns during a special call-in program from 1-3 p.m. Thursday.

The congressman will accept collect calls at 202-225-5531.

State wants its convicts from Jerome

By ANITA DENNIS
Times-News writer

JEROME - After writing a letter to the Department of Corrections, Jerome County Sheriff Larry Gold said the state has agreed to remove prisoners who have been housed in the county jail.

Gold said he sent the letter to Director Richard Vernon on Friday because the Department of Corrections has been saying all year it would take its prisoners out of county jails by October.

Usually, when criminals are sentenced, they remain in county jails for just a few days until they can be transported to the penitentiary in Boise.

Because the state prison system is so overpopulated, they stretch out the three days to 10, 20 days," Gold said. Some convicts sentenced to nine months have spent their entire terms in his county jail, he said.

"I don't think we ever told them we'd have them out by October," said Glenn Johnson, chief of classification at the Department of Corrections.

Johnson said his department has been trying to please the counties as best we can and collect its prisoners as quickly as possible.

"We've just been turning ourselves inside out bringing in new commitments," he said.

The state pays counties to house prisoners for whom it has no room, Johnson said, but the state expected that a new penitentiary that opened in October would provide additional bed space.

Gold said the state's reimbursement for prisoners - $25 a day each - doesn't help because it goes into the county general fund, not to him.

The Jerome County Jail has 32 beds and has been 95 percent full recently, Gold said. He currently has eight state prisoners; the state has agreed to take four of them, he said, and the other four must stay in Jerome for court appearances.

Gold said that the state collected two prisoners last week, after he called and said that he would like to take them to Boise and handoff them to the prison fence there.

Hailey tables controversial rezoning bid

By ROBERT POYER
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - Next year's city administration will consider a rezoning request for a light industry complex that drew enough opposition to pack the City Council chambers here.

Developer Bark Rinker is asking the city to rezone 6.8 acres of land at the corner of Broadway and Highway 75 and annex it into the city limits.

Rinker wants the zoning changed to technological/industrial from limited residential, with a smaller portion closer to Airport Road zoned light industrial, so he can build a commercial facility for light industry.

The council tabled the request until January, when newly elected councilman, Steve Kearns, and mayor, Keith Roark, take office, but not before considerable opposition from local residents. The request generated the year's first standing-room-only crowd at a council meeting.

Saying she did not want Broadway Road to become another Airport Way, resident Tiki Tidwell questioned whether the road could accommodate the traffic generated by an additional 75 to 100 cars.

Another resident of the Broadford area, Bill McMan, said the rezoning request "was a stupid idea that nobody wants. It's this time this council stood up for local citizens against developers from the north end of the county," McMan said.

Tom Blanchard, a Blaine County commissioner and Broadford Road resident, also opposed the rezoning.

The membership of the Hailey LDS Church, which borders the Rinkers property to the northwest, opposes the rezoning.

Program to keep focus on parents

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - If approved by participating Magic Valley school boards, the Teen Parent Program will retain its emphasis on teen parenting needs as it expands to include male students and teenagers who are not parents.

In addition, the proposed agreement allows the school to develop an evening program "to handle individual academic needs" when the demand is high enough to justify it.

The proposed agreement and a tentative enrollment policy were presented Tuesday night at the Twin Falls School Board's regular meeting. The enrollment changes are a result of funding changes - state and federal funds have taken the place of a three-year start-up grant and the school must meet the state and federal definitions of an "alternative school."

The board took no action Monday as the items were presented only as information items. In all documents, the Magic Valley Teen Parent Program was referred to as the Magic Valley Alternative High School.

A student may enroll in the school if he or she has not been successful in a regular school setting, but the student must specifically meet at least three of the first five criteria listed below or any of the criteria six through 11:

- 1 - Has repeated at least one grade.
- 2 - Has an absenteeism that is greater than 10 percent during the preceding semester.

• 3 - Has an overall grade-point average that is less than 1.5 on a 4.0 scale prior to enrollment in an alternative high school program.

• 4 - Has failed one or more basic skill subjects.

• 5 - Is two or more semester credits per year behind the rate required to graduate.

• 6 - Has substance abuse problems.

• 7 - Is pregnant or is a parent.

• 8 - Is a teenager independent of parents.

• 9 - Is a previous drop out, voluntary or involuntary.

• 10 - Has behavior problems as defined under state law.

• 11 - Is a court or agency referral.

Cassia moves to conserve energy

By JANIE BYWATER
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - If all goes according to plan, workers early next year will begin the first phase of the school district's energy conservation program, expected to save enough in heating bills to pay for itself within five years.

The Cassia School Board Monday voted to advertise for bids for a new system of heat controls and thermostat setbacks at the Burley Senior High School. The estimated $37,000 installation cost will be split evenly between the district and a grant from the state Department of Water Resources, which helped the district develop the program.

The board voted to advertise for bids on this project from Tuesday through Dec. 26. The bids will be opened a week later. It also authorized School Superintendent Norman Hurst to accept the lowest bid, which the board would then approve retroactively at its January meeting.

In another matter, the board passed a motion to request that the Oakley City Council consider abandoning the street between the senior/junior high school and future site of the new elementary school.

The board asks the council to curve the existing street to make room for the football field and proposed track if the city doesn't want to abandon the street. The curve would make room for the field, which would be moved about 30 feet to the north, and a new track. Trustee Karla Robinson said following the meeting.

"The board is asking the city to abandon the street, since in the 1991-92 elementary school, set to open in the 1991-92 school year, will have some facilities senior and junior high students across the street would use," Robinson, an Oakley resident, said.

Scientist: Hanford radiation records spotty, results inconclusive

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Spotty records dating from World War II indicate that Hanford nuclear reservation workers did not suffer extensive radiation exposure, a scientist said Tuesday.

The records left by DuPont, mostly records of plants, are incomplete and inaccurate and should not be used to make final conclusions, Tracy Ikenberry of Battelle's Pacific Northwest Laboratory.

But existing records do indicate that radiation exposure to production workers, who also lived in the area, was non-existent or small, Ikenberry told a panel overseeing the Hanford environmental Dose Reconstruction Project.

The project is trying to estimate the doses of radiation, especially Iodine 131, received by people living around the Hanford site during the 1940s and 1950s.

The five-year study is the first step in investigating claims by some "downwinders" that radiation levels damaged their health.

Iodine 131 concentrates in the thyroid gland, and Ikenberry studied sketched records showing geiger counter readings made of workers at Hanford between October 1944 and September 1949.

There is no indication of sustained thyroid burden," Ikenberry said. "But we can't make good estimates from this. It's not good enough data."

The problem is that the readings were taken with hand-held geiger counters, which were not accurate enough, he said. Also, the records do not indicate how naturally-occurring background radiation was accounted for, but do not differentiate between radiation received on the job and off the job, he said.

"Any conclusions are subject to data limitations and these data limitations are significant," he said.

The panel wraps up three days of meetings on Wednesday, and is expected to issue a preliminary report next April. The federal Centers for Disease Control is undertaking a separate study of actual thyroid disease rates of Hanford area residents in the past.

Hanford for more than 40 years produced plutonium for the nation's nuclear arsenal. Documents declassified earlier this decade revealed radiation releases totaling half a million curies.

superintendent of schools, said College of Southern Idaho officials have said they were willing to work with the alternative school if even those changes are needed.

Included in the proposal is a list of courses that will be offered at the alternative high school. Some are computers, English, child-care occupations, world geography, algebra, and II, U.S. and American histories, health, consumer economics, geometry, biology, earth science, biology and typing.

"These are not watered-down courses or special education courses," Oken said, "although the approach to teaching will be different."

He said students, for instance, may be able to take two-hour classes to finish courses quicker.

A parenting course will be required of each student, he said. And under the proposed rules and regulations, each student will have housekeeping responsibilities and will be scheduled to work in the child-care area.

Transportation will be the responsibility of each student and smoking will not be allowed "anywhere in or around" the school.

Food and drinks will not be allowed in class and the school will adhere to the state's 90 percent attendance and "C" average rules.

Other rules regarding tardiness, absences, suspensions, classroom instruction per credit, drugs and alcohol echo regular high school policies.

In a previous interview, Karen Fraley, a Jerome school administrator and the Teen Parent Program's director, has said the changes probably will go into effect when the next semester begins.

She also said teen moms will receive priority in the program, with other students enrolled as space allows. The program is currently operating at the First Presbyterian Church.

In other business, the board: Heard a report that the district needs to adopt new science textbooks for grades kindergarten through 12 for the 1990-91 school year.

The district will also adopt new language arts books for grades 10 through 12.

Heard a report that the district's fire alarm system will not be converted to a private firm until January, but that the city has agreed to continue monitoring the alarms until the conversion is completed.

Posioned a decision on the D Bus Co.'s proposed rate increases until further negotiations.

The company's contract expires this May. The company has proposed a 6.5 percent increase effective May 1991 and a 5 percent increase effective May 1992.

former Hailey Mayor Wordell Rainey, speaking for the church, said.

When council members began questioning Rinker about the details of his development, MacCarrillo asked to speak, saying, "Does it affect you (the council) at all that everyone here opposes it?"

"Quite a bit, yes," Councilman George Miley responded.

Councilman Joe MacCarrillo said next year's council and mayor should be part of the decision. "This is a lame duck council and I favor tabling this measure," MacCarrillo said.

The council approved the motion.

In other matters, the council directed City Attorney Steve Crabtree to draft an ordinance allowing snowmobiles on a track adjacent to the cross-country skibike trail but only during certain hours of the day.

Ordinances require public hearing, the first to be Dec. 19 before the Hailey City Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Wood River-Trails system right-of-way bisects the city.

After some discussion, the council voted to give the Bicentennial Commission $1,000, despite a claim that the city promised $4,000.

Commission representative Evelyn Miley of Hailey told the council it had promised earlier to underwrite the $4,000 fireworks show for July 3.

"I don't remember this council or myself making such a commitment," Mayor Paschal Drake said.

Miley said the commitment had been made and she was at the point in the negotiations with the fireworks company "where we're either going to do it or drop it."

Councilman Rick Davis said the city could afford $1,000 for the fireworks from city funds and promised to raise the other $3,000 himself.

The district's energy conservation program, estimated to cost $132,000, will be spaced out over two years, Hurst said. Costs will be shared evenly by the district and Washington Department.

The district is beginning with the projects that offered the largest paybacks on the energy bill, he said.

The administration did not have the specific figures from last year's engineering study, but Hurst told the board the program should pay for itself within five years.

It must pay for itself within 10 years to be eligible for the grants.

The first phase of the program will be the installation of heating controls around the high school along with setback devices allowing the thermostat to lower the school's temperature at night and on weekends.

"Right now, we have to heat the whole building or none of it," Hurst said. "The new system would allow us to heat some areas and not others and lower the temperature at night."

The second phase will be to install fluorescent lights, $27,000; then insulated windows, $62,000. An additional $8,000 paid for the engineering study.

Conservation measures taken at the junior high work well, Principal Jeff Taylor told the board.

In other matters, the board approved a February trip to the University of Idaho Jazz Festival for the Burley and Oakley high school jazz bands but denied the request of 50 Decle fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade students to participate in the Mind Statewide Competition in Moscow in March.

Board members said they liked the Odyssey program, which urges students to develop solutions to imaginative problems, but also said they were worried about the precedent created by allowing this trip.

"I'm worried about so-long a trip for so young of students. I think they are too young for a three-day trip," Trustee Neal Jeppesen said.

The board agreed that school-sponsored overnight trips should be reserved for older students.

The boards amended the district's discipline policy to forbid any school personnel or chaperone to be under the influence of alcohol or any unapproved drugs while they are supervising students.

School employees who violate the policy will be disciplined or dismissed, depending on the circumstances, and won't be allowed to supervise events.

The Malta elementary school building project is a month behind schedule because the framing and sheetrocking workers turned out to be smaller in number than expected, Hurst told the board.

The district hopes to be in the new school by March now, instead of February.

putting out a fire. The state sets a cap of $1,000 that the mutual can charge for each fire.

"Additionally, the non-policy holders pay an hour for each firefighter," she said.

The company responds to two non-policy-holder fires for every member fire, she said.

She said the high costs linked to the new rules could prompt the policy holders, who are mutual voting members, to decide not to offer firefighting service to other county residents.

Such a decision would require a two-thirds majority vote by members, she said.

However, before the mutual would consider canceling its firefighting service, it would consider alternative services for rural county residents, such as forming a fire district.

In that case, the mutual could sell its engines to the fire district, she said.

In the meantime, she doubted whether the mutual had enough time to train the 705 volunteer firefighters from states in Ft. Burley, Hollister, Kimberly, Castledorf and Murtaugh.

Volunteer firefighters and mutual members are also concerned about liability in responding to chemical fires without having the required training.

Although extremely unlikely, it is possible that OSHA would even shut down the fire engines for non-compliance, she said.

She said she plans to call OSHA officials in Boise to ask how strictly they intend to enforce the new rules.

"I don't have any idea," she said. "It's something we can't ignore and hope it goes away."

I often hear of pre-planning or pre-arrangement. What does it mean?

Jerry Holman

Pre-arrangement involves the selection of funeral-related products and services. Some or all of the following might be part of the pre-arrangement process: Discussing your wishes with family, relatives, and friends. Indicating procedures for handling the affairs of the deceased. Selecting specific funeral products, entering into a contract with your funeral director to assure the proper delivery of specified products and services. # U.S. agriculture secretary adds support to EPA pesticide ban

States News Service

WASHINGTON — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yetter added his support Tuesday to an Environmental Protection Agency decision to release plans to ban a group of chemicals used by potato farmers and growers of 44 other major crops.

Yetter conceded that such a ban could boost the prices of U.S. crops, but added, "There is truly a substantial risk to human health. The product ought to be banned irrespective of whether or not food prices will increase. If there is anything more than negligible risk, the product ought to be banned."

Speaking on a panel assembled by the Agricultural Alliance, Symms said, "It seems as if we have a food scare a week. We go from apples to potatoes to grapes to bananas."

Yetter said federal budget constraints will significantly affect farm programs in the 1990 farm bill. Because the federal budget deficit will have to shrink from $100 billion in 1990 to $64 billion in 1991, loan programs could suffer, Yetter said.

Implementation of programs that the 1985 bill, but will retain the international focus of its predecessor, Yetter said.

While Yetter was favorably impressed by Poland's plans for economic revival, he said the changes needed are massive, and that the country needs to set up basic legal, accounting, marketing and banking systems if foreign aid is to do any good.

State agriculture head eyes Senate seat

BOISE (AP) — Richard Rush, director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture since 1985, says he is thinking about running for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican James McClure.

"But that article at least made me mutter a bit," he said. "Who knows what he will do, but at least it appears he is not as enthused about the job as he once was," Rush said.

That he is seeking the Democrat nomination. No Republican has formally announced for the race yet.

Rush, 44, is a third-generation Idahoan with a farm background. He has an agriculture degree from University of Idaho and a master's degree in agricultural economics from the University of California-Davis.

SLC population down, metro up

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Salt Lake City has fallen from 90th to 110th place among the nation's most populous cities over the past eight years, but the metropolitan area encompassing Utah's capital has moved up to 37th, the U.S. Census Bureau says.

Natalie Gochour, with the State Office of Planning and Budget, said the numbers aren't surprising. The decline in population can be traced to the 1960 Census when the city's population was 189,454 — some 20 percent higher than it is now.

Shoshone wants improved speech therapy hours

By BEVERLEY HICKS

Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The school district will try to increase the hours speech therapy is available next school year, Superintendent Wayne Waddoups said, but he isn't making any promises.

about it but didn't plan for it last year. Superintendent Wayne Waddoups said the lack of funds and availability of therapists has resulted in the district having just a day of services this year.

One solution might be a cooperative arrangement among Shoshone, Dietrich and other districts for a full-time therapist.

The plan will set up a team to deal with a crisis, such as facilities from accidents and suicides.

The board submitted to the state a request for a $4,000 improvement to its Chapter 1 program, a remedial reading program.

Zinser mum on plans to prevent prejudice

MOSCOW (AP) — The affirmative action complaint lodged against University of Idaho by four female employees has been settled, but neither party will disclose terms of the agreement.

Tuesday morning failed to address perceptions that cronyism has prevailed in hiring and promotion decisions in the Student Advisory Services department.

U.I. President Elisabeth Zinser has declined to say whether the previous administration made mistakes beyond promoting James Bauer to assistant dean of Student Services in 1988.

Ex-priest faces porn charges

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A former priest and porn shop owner was arrested Tuesday on charges out of California alleging he used teenage boys in a child pornography ring, authorities said.

Police said the youth also told them he saw marijuana growing on Bauer's balcony.

Police obtained a search warrant for Bauer's apartment in August 1988 and seized about 150 videotapes, videotape equipment, cameras and child pornography magazines, and marijuana.

Bauer was booked into jail on a U.S. Marshall's hold.

Bauer, a former Roman Catholic priest, was born and raised in Bozeman, Mont. He served from 1966-70 as director of Helena Catholic Charities.

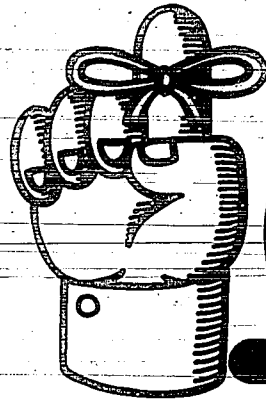

Further investigation led to charges accusing Bauer and three other California men of distributing child pornography.

Authorities in Los Angeles said those two were arrested in March and that police began investigating Bauer last year after an 18-year-old male prostitute who had stayed at Bauer's apartment reported seeing nude photographs of young boys on

Briefly

EPA stands by phosphorus standards

POCATELLO (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is standing by its strict standards on radioactive emissions from elemental phosphorus plants in southeastern Idaho despite claims by Republican Sen. James McClure that the standards are improper.

EPA attorney Fran Cohen said Tuesday the standards will take effect as scheduled this month, giving companies like FMC Corp. 90 days to comply.

Under the standards, FMC will be required to cut emissions 80 percent at what officials have estimated will be a multimillion-dollar cost.

A request can be made by the company for an exemption from the standards, or a change in them, Ms. Cohen said. "But that doesn't mean it would postpone the effectiveness of the rule."

Grant received for Lowman route

BOISE (AP) — The Federal Highway Administration has received a $2 million grant to cover paving expenses for the Garden Valley-Lowman highway now under construction.

Lennie Moss, an engineer for the administration, said his agency had sought $4 million from the federal Road Fund program to pay for paving between Little Gallagher Creek and Lowman, but that the $2 million would do for now.

Federal highway crews have been widening and leveling the dirt road between the western Idaho mountain communities of Garden Valley and Lowman since late 1988. The project, expected to cost up to $17 million, may not be completed until late 1993.

Ex-Nampa official will stay in Idaho

NAMPA (AP) — Stephenson Youngerman, who stepped down under fire as superintendent of the Nampa School District last week, says he plans to stay in education and in Idaho.

"I plan, in the spring, to begin to apply for other school superintendent positions," Youngerman said Monday. "I also plan to market myself to do some consulting work and teach a class or two at local colleges and universities in the area."

Youngerman, who turns 61 on Wednesday, also said he would work as the Nampa School Board's liaison to the Legislature during its upcoming session in Boise.

Davis gets nod for Senate position

POST FALLS (AP) — The Democratic Central Committee for Legislative District 2 has voted to nominate Coeur d'Alene attorney Denny Davis to fill the state Senate seat being vacated by Democrat John Stocks.

The name of Scenic Bay Marina owner Wally Wright also will be submitted to Gov. Cecil Andrus, who will choose a replacement for Stocks in the upcoming legislative session.

Florence Avery of Hayden Lake, the central committee's treasurer, was named an honorary nominee.

Stocks, D-Coeur d'Alene, resigned effective Dec. 15 to take a position with the Wisconsin Education Association.

Agency wants nude bathing halted

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — The Idaho County Commission has asked the U.S. Forest Service to begin cracking down on nude bathers at Jerry Johnson Hot Springs.

The remote, natural hot springs, about 60 miles north of Lowell, is a popular spot for skinny-dippers. But in recent years it also has become a draw for drug users and others causing law-enforcement problems.

Authorities say break-ins and fights have become common at the parking spot across the road from the hot springs trail. To find a solution, Idaho County commissioners met Monday in Grangeville with Idaho County Sheriff Randy Baldwin and law enforcement officers for the Nez Perce and Clearwater national forests.

Ski area proposal given to Land Board

BOISE (AP) — Developers want to transfer a state ski lease from the environmentally fragile Goblin Knob area east of Priest Lake to a smaller tract just north of Sandpoint to facilitate a major multimillion-dollar conversion of Schweitzer ski area into a destination resort.

No firm proposal was made to the state Land Board on Tuesday by Don Barbieri, president of Spokane-based Goodale and Barbieri Co.

"We just wanted you to be briefed first," Barbieri told the board after outlining the proposal, only in general terms. State land managers will begin looking over the proposal in preparation for submission of a specific plan.

Schweitzer officials said they will announce next month details of their new long-range master plan that includes upgrading and relocating the eight ski lifts, building a new mountain top restaurant and village facilities at the base of the lifts and even constructing a golf course on the east side of the area. The plan would be evolving over 10 to 20 years.

Barbieri, who obtained the state ski lease at Goblin Knob several years ago in a deal with Diamond International, wants to move that lease to state-owned land in the Devil's-Creek area west of Schweitzer and develop it as a western access to Schweitzer's facilities.

Barbieri told the Land Board that he believed further enhancing the Schweitzer area was preferable to developing a competing ski resort just 30 miles to the north.

Providing direct access to Schweitzer facilities from the west by running a lift up the Devil's Creek drainage would cut 30 minutes on the travel time from Spokane and provide easy access to people in the Priest Lake area.

"This has the best opportunity in our mind of being a truly great ski resort," he said.

Barbieri also conceded the environmental problems his company would have likely faced had it pursued development of a ski area at Goblin Knob.

Developers also said that the combination of exposures a converted Schweitzer ski area would get with that of the Silver Mountain Ski area that is undergoing renovation including a gondola link with the city of Kellogg should substantially bolster economic fortunes for both facilities.

"The compensation the state would receive for the lease would still have to be worked out through negotiations."

The board was also notified that a recent offer to sell nearly 3.6 million board feet of timber near Payette Lake was unsuccessful.

Director Stan Hamilton said there were indications from potential bidders the price for the primarily ponderosa pine was too high.

ISU gets praise with accreditation renewal

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho State University has passed muster before a review board in what ISU President Richard Bowen calls "one of the most positive accreditation reports I've ever seen."

The Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges officially notified ISU last week its accreditation has been renewed following the regular five-year review. The team also lavishly praised improvements on the campus since a 1984 survey found serious problems there.

"Clear, strong and progressive presidential leadership was much in evidence," it said.

The committee specifically commended ISU for its "clear emphasis on a strong regional approach," and "the excellent progress it has made in its internal governance services."

The report did single out some problems, in particular the continued "compression" of faculty salaries. Because the school has to pay higher salaries to recruit new faculty members, there is little gap in pay between those new personnel and senior teachers.

Lewiston man sentenced for artifact digging

MOSCOW (AP) — A Lewiston man has been sentenced to probation, community service and a fine after pleading guilty to illegally digging for Indian artifacts last year.

Ray C. Davis, 41, 37, was sentenced Friday in Moscow by U.S. Magistrate Stephen Ayers to one year of probation, 150 hours of community service and a fine of about $1,100.

Davis pleaded guilty in September to the federal misdemeanor of knowingly digging, altering and damaging archaeological sites. The incidents occurred along the Clearwater River between July 1 and Nov. 28, 1988.

Davis could have been sentenced to up to one year in jail and a $10,000 fine. The fact that he received any fine drew the qualified praise of Allen Pinkham, chairman of the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee.

"It's going in the right direction, anyway," Pinkham said Monday. "At least it's looking a little better."

Tribal leaders protested what they said was a light sentence given in September to Richard R. Williams, another Lewiston man convicted of the same crime in July by a federal jury.

Williams received one year of probation and 120 hours of community service, but no fine. The tribe contended that without a fine, the sentence would not be seen as stiff enough to deter anyone from repeating the crime.

The sentencing was one incident cited by the tribe and several human rights groups that asked federal officials in September to investigate the conduct of Maurice Ellsworth, U.S. attorney for Idaho. The groups

"We must make progress on our faculty, and our administrative, salaries," said Bowen. "Particularly the faculty; that is something we are going to try to accomplish."

The report said that when ISU was visited in 1984, its overriding concern was funding. This year, the committee said, ISU was depleting its reserve account to buy academic equipment. The school has since changed its funding formula and has what the team calls "a modest surplus."

The review committee strongly recommended that the state do a "sophisticated study of salary levels, compression and faculty age levels." All three state universities have instructional and research equipment needs, the report said.

While the state Board of Education seeks $11 million from the Legislature to address equipment requirements, that money does not solve the long-term problem, the report said.

The accreditation team praised the attractiveness of the ISU campus.

Report cites conservation as vital to meeting electricity needs

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Increased spending for conservation is the major component of a draft five-point program for meeting future Northwest electricity needs issued today by the Bonneville Power Administration.

The agency proposes a 75 percent increase in spending on conservation to acquire 200 megawatts of electricity between 1992 and 1997.

"Conservation is our resource of first choice but we are not relying on it alone," BPA Administrator Jim Jura said. "We want a diverse, flexible portfolio to meet future energy needs without a great deal of financial risk."

The resource program anticipates moderate growth in demand and proposes no major new power generating facilities.

"We don't foresee any large nuclear or coal plants within the next 10 years," Jura said. "We have many less-expensive resources available."

The plan proposes laying the groundwork for two natural gas-fired combustion turbines to serve as a backup source when there isn't enough water in the Columbia River to create the needed hydroelectric power.

The agency said in a news release that the Puget Sound area is a possible site because it is the fastest-growing region in the Northwest.

The program calls for a study of whether the Washington Public Power Supply System nuclear plants No. 1 and 3 should be completed, preserved or terminated. An analysis shows the likelihood of needing either plant has decreased to less than 10 percent, the BPA said.

The agency proposes increasing annual spending for conservation from $70 million in 1991 to about $120 million for the five-year period starting in 1992.

"We believe conservation makes good business sense," Jura said. "Our activities to date have conserved some 300 megawatts at less than 3 cents per kilowatt hour."

The program relies on adoption throughout the region of model conservation standards for new homes. The BPA also proposes new conservation activities for commercial and industrial structures.

The program also proposes:

- Testing an acquisition process to generate 50 megawatts of power, most likely from low-cost hydroelectricity or cogeneration. Power deliveries probably would begin in 1992.

- Adding 100 megawatts of generating power through more efficient hydroelectric turbines and power transmission equipment.
- Acquiring 30 megawatts of power through a pilot project to develop three geothermal plants as a joint venture with Northwest utilities. The project would show how the BPA would share in the geothermal power in the future, the agency said.

Although the program calls for laying groundwork for natural gas-fired plants, it also cautions that the agency should look at global warming as it determines its future power purchases. Power plants that use fossil fuels to create electricity emit carbon dioxide and contribute to global warming.

"As a federal agency, we have to look at the environmental costs associated with generating power," Jura said.

Jura called for a "dialogue" on natural gas and its role in the region's energy future, as part of a strategy to cut carbon dioxide emissions.

A public meeting on the plan is scheduled for Feb. 1 in Portland. The final program will be issued next July.

Utah University wants old Army fort

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Prospects for the University of Utah acquiring Fort Douglas property in the coming year "look good but it isn't guaranteed," says school President Chase Peterson.

Peterson, addressing the U of U Institutional Council, said he had discussed the fate of the fort — earmarked for closure by the Army — with Utah's congressional delegation when he was in Washington recently. He said all of the lawmakers favored the university receiving the land.

Earlier this year, the 127-year-old Fort Douglas and 85 other military installations were declared surplus by the Army. Congress has given the Pentagon until 1995 to complete the closure of the installations.

ISU remodelings enter design phase

POCATELLO (AP) — The state Permanent Building Fund Council has authorized negotiations for design contracts to remodel Baldwin Hall and the Idaho Museum of Natural History on the Idaho State University campus.

Hummel, LaMarche and Hunsucker of Boise will design the estimated $2.9 million renovation of Baldwin Hall, the aging chemistry building.

The Legislature set aside $300,000 in design money for the Baldwin Hall project. Darrell Buffalo, director of building and maintenance at ISU, hopes to have the design work finished by May.

An Idaho Falls architectural firm, Collard, Beyeler and Bentzen, will design remodeling of the Idaho Museum of Natural History. The building fund council has placed the $870,000 museum renovation at No. 8 on its priority list for next fiscal year. Buffalo hopes the design work will be completed by March.

PUC allows special natural gas pact

BOISE (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission says it's aware that a northern Idaho utility is operating in a competitive environment, so it's allowing a special contract between Washington Water Power Co. and an aluminum recovery plant near Hauser Lake.

The PUC said Tuesday WWP spent $263,000 to install facilities to supply natural gas to INSAMET. The contract rates are designed to recover the costs in seven years. The PUC said the contract will reduce WWP's revenue requirement from other ratepayers by about $48,000 per year.

"The commission recognizes the competitive environment in which Water Power now operates," the order approving the contract said. The facility also is near competitors which could supply the same service, it said.

Beaudoin named to Legislature seat

BOISE (AP) — Sandpoint educator Monica Beaudoin is the new state representative from District-1.

Gov. Cecil Andrus on Tuesday appointed Ms. Beaudoin to the Idaho House to replace Tim Tucker of Porthill. Tucker was appointed to the Senate after Karen Cooke resigned. All legislative terms run until December of 1990.

Ms. Beaudoin, 52, has been a public school teacher for 31 years. She earned a bachelor's degree from Dickinson State University and has done graduate work at University of Idaho, Eastern Washington and Portland State.

She was the top nominee in a list of three names submitted to the governor by the District 1 Democratic Committee.

Garn wants new DOE fusion fund decision

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Department of Energy decision to mix federal funding for the University of Utah's nuclear fusion research should be reconsidered in light of a government laboratory's own experimental results, says Sen. Jake Garn.

Garn, R-Utah, said he will request that fellow members of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which oversees the Department of Energy, review "the facts" when Congress reconvenes in late January.

"A national laboratory is now confirming these results and yet our official government position is different than that," Garn said. "I certainly hope they will take a new look and that Congress will say, 'Hey, at least be fair.'"

Garn's comments came following release of scientific papers by two groups of fusion researchers at the DOE's Oak Ridge National Laboratory near Nashville, Tenn.

In reports to the DOE, both groups reported duplicating some aspects of the fusion experiments of U of U chemist B. Stanley Pons and British colleague Martin Fleischmann.

The reports — one by Oak Ridge's Chemical Technology Division and the second by the Physics Division — were dated November 1989, and September 14, 1989, respectively.

However, members of the DOE's Energy Research Advisory Board who concluded their negative evaluation of fusion last month said they have received monthly updates on experiments in DOE labs.

They said they considered the Oak Ridge work in writing their report and recommendations to Secretary of Energy James D. Watkins.

ERAB co-chairman John R. Huizenga, a chemistry and physics professor at the University of Rochester, said despite Oak Ridge's findings — which noted production of excess heat, tritium and neutrons — the committee remained unconvinced.

In the panel's final report, released Friday, members recommended against any special funding for the investigation for cold fusion research.

It was more sympathetic toward restricted study within present funding limitations.

"I am upset that they appear to have had preconceived ideas without looking at the factual evidence," Garn said.

"I would hope that they would review and take a closer look and re-evaluate their position."

However, Garn said he doesn't believe members of ERAB are biased against the state of Utah.

"I think you find generally that when something entirely new and revolutionary comes out, the scientific community is skeptical," he said.

However, he admitted there could be some bias against electrochemists Pons and Fleischmann.

Mormon school plan gets zoning despite objections

SPOKANE (AP) — A plan to build a Mormon school that would offer religious instruction to students from an adjacent public high school was granted a zoning variance over the objections of neighbors.

The Spokane County Planning Department signed a finding Monday that would allow the Spokane East Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to build a school on a one-acre site next to Central Valley High School.

The planning code requires schools to be built on sites no smaller than four and one-half acres.

"If you went door to door, I think you'd find that nobody wants that bloody church," said Francis Mutton, a neighbor who attended a zoning hearing on the variance request.

"We don't like this being shoved down our throats," Mutton said. "We want separation of church and state. What's to stop the Aryan Nations from coming in, the Hare Krishnas from coming in? You can't build a tavern next to a school, but you can sure build a church."

Doug Adams, the zoning adjuster who attended the hearing, and decided in the church's favor, said the Mormon school "would have limited impact on the adjoining properties."

Opponents have 10 days to file an appeal with the county, Adams said.

Church spokesman Frank Wagstaff said the school will open in the fall of 1990.

In 1987, the Central Valley School Board adopted a policy acknowledging the district's authority to release students during their free periods for off-campus religious instruction, Superintendent Dick Sovde said.

Environmental groups want new tuna labels

By the Los Angeles Times

A coalition of environmental groups is urging tuna canners to disclose on product labels whether the fish was netted with practices that may harm or kill dolphins. The movement is the latest in a series of attacks that animal rights groups have launched against food producers.

Representatives of the domestic tuna industry, beleaguered by criticism that some of their methods are cruel, deny that their operations have reduced dolphin populations.

The issue is of particular importance in a rich tuna fishing area called the eastern tropical Pacific Ocean, a body of water that stretches from Southern California to Ecuador. Frequently, schools of dolphins and tuna become intertwined during their hunt for the kinds of food: crustaceans, squid, anchovies and other small fish.

About 830,000 tons of canned tuna are sold annually in the United States, according to industry estimates. However, the processing, which originated in California, is now global in nature. Often, canners fail to disclose where the tuna was caught, let alone under what conditions.

Even so, 20 advocacy groups are urging consumers to stop purchasing those canned tuna brands that may be the result of netting that also entraps dolphins. However, there is presently no way of knowing which products qualify for this designation.

"Consumers should be given the right to choose (through labeling disclosures)," said Christopher Croft, Dolphin Coalition director. "And in the meantime, people should boycott eating tuna."

World shrimp farming continues amazing record growth in 1989

By the Los Angeles Times

Shrimp farming continued its amazing record of growth in 1989 with global production up a "dazzling" 18 percent, a trade journal report says.

Virtually an unknown entity in 1980, the commercial production of shrimp has skyrocketed to 565,000 metric tons in the past 12 months, according to World Shrimp Farming 1989, an annual report published by San Diego-based Aquaculture Digest.

This year's gains have occurred despite setbacks to industries in two nations that are leaders in the field: Ecuador and Taiwan. But the top three production areas — China, Indonesia and Thailand — more than made up for losses elsewhere.

The success of aquacultured shrimp, however, has caused prices for the crustacean to drop as much as 50 percent, particularly in the mid-sized range where the farmed product is concentrated.

"Shrimp farmers now produce 26 percent of the shrimp placed on world markets — fishermen 74 percent — out of a total market of 2.2 million metric tons," the 28-page report stated. New products coming on line in 1990 and 1991 will boost the production of farm-raised shrimp to new records, leading to further deterioration in world shrimp prices and a shake out in the farm-raised shrimp industry."

Tips for baking cakes from scratch

For best results when making a cake from scratch, follow these tips:

Gather all ingredients before starting. Use butter as the shortening of choice; it's flavor is unequalled. Cut butter into tablespoon-size pieces for easier creaming. Sift cake flour before measuring; spoon lightly into measuring cup and level top by passing spatula lightly over it. Preheat oven. Use the correct size pan. Check for doneness after the minimum baking time. Insert wooden pick in center. If pick comes out clean, cake is done. Cool layers in pans for 10 minutes; turn out onto cooling racks and cool completely before frosting.

Cookie recipes to brighten up the holidays

By SHERRIE CLINTON
The Baltimore Evening Sun

What would Christmas be without cookies?

Start baking cookies now and you will have a large and luscious selection by the time Saint Nick manages to squeeze down the chimney.

These recipes make fancy, showy cookies but don't require any special skills or equipment. Even a novice baker shouldn't have trouble making these little treats.

Small and consider arranging them in individual paper or metallic cups.

All of our cookie recipes freeze very well. Remember to cool cookies completely before freezing.

Other freezing tips:

Cookies should be wrapped in heavy-duty plastic wrap and then wrapped in aluminum foil or placed in freezer-weight plastic bags.

Unfrosted cookies can be frozen from 4 to 6 months. Waxed paper or plastic wrap should be placed between cookie layers.

Frosted cookies can be frozen for up to 3 months by flash-freezing. Flash freezing will also keep soft cookies from crumbling. To flash-freeze cookies place a tray of unfrosted cookies in freezer, freeze until hard. Quickly wrap, label and return to freezer.

Cookies take about 10 to 15 minutes to defrost at room temperature.

Burwell takes time out of her schedule for holiday baking

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Sue Burwell works full time at the beverage distributing company she co-owns with her husband, Dick, but this does not get in the way of her holiday baking. Starting around Thanksgiving, she makes use of evening and weekend hours to prepare goodies.

One way she saves time on this is by making roll cookies that can be refrigerated and baked another day. Or, she might mix up a batch of cookie batter on a Saturday and bake the goodies on Sunday.

Burwell says her cookie baking is mainly for her two sons. When Bob and Tom come home on their Christmas break from college, their favorite cookies are on hand for them to enjoy.

"I try to bake the coffee cakes on the weekend right before Christmas, so they can have it on Christmas morning for breakfast," she says. "The Burwells also have this coffee cake on Christmas. She often mixes the ingredients the night before, and bakes it in the morning."

CINNAMON SWIRL COFFEE CAKE

¼ pound softened margarine
1 cup white sugar
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ pint sour cream
Cream margarine and sugar together. Add eggs, vanilla and sour cream. Then add flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Beat with mixer.
For the topping, mix:
1 teaspoon cinnamon

U.S. Postal Service tips for mailing food items

By The Baltimore Evening Sun

If you are preparing to mail a box of Christmas goodies to friends and family across the country, the U.S. Postal Service has some tips for you. Mail as soon as possible to make sure the recipient gets their package and to avoid long lines at the post office.

There is still time to mail packages to friends and relatives in some foreign countries but you'd better move fast.

For more information about deadlines, cost and other details, call your local post office.

When mailing cookies, be sure to use a sturdy box, such as a strong cardboard, foil-lined corrugated or fiberboard packing box. Use lots of filler material, such as crumpled newspaper, shredded paper or shredded polystyrene foam.

Wrap the box itself in heavy brown paper, using heavy-duty strapping tape.

The address should appear on the outside of the package only and be sure to write in large, legible print. Cover the address with transparent tape to protect it.

It is a good idea to include the address on the inside of the box so that if the outside label is lost it can still be sent. Mark the box "fragile."

The best cookies for mailing are sturdy cookies, for example, plain or lightly glazed bar cookies or rolled cookies with rounded edges. Fragile cookie shapes, such as stars, may break. Frosted cookies may lose their frosting on the way.

Consider wrapping the cookies in pairs, back-to-back and placing them in a container such as a clean coffee can with a reusable plastic lid. Fill each can or other container, such as a sturdy box, as full as possible, using crushed paper to prevent cookies from shifting.

Place cans or boxes inside the mailing box and surround with filler material.

Fast, festive holiday raisin baubles

The aroma of fresh bread baking, the sweetness of cardamom in the air, the warmth of the kitchen — these are some of the pleasures of Christmas that need not be lost in today's holiday rush.

Keep traditional baking traditions alive with time-saving Holiday Raisin Baubles, festive yeast buns made with fast-rising yeast, raisins and other easy-to-use ingredients. Although they're quicker to prepare than traditional yeast buns because they require only one complete rising, you'll still enjoy classic flavors of the season — chewy-sweet raisins, candied orange peel and fragrant cardamom.

Streamline preparation by making Holiday Raisin Baubles in advance. Just freeze baked buns, unglazed, in airtight plastic bags and thaw later as needed. When it's time to decorate, make it a family affair. Children will love decorating their own special bun with convenient golden and natural raisins, candied fruits and colored sugars.

Make these delectable buns to give as gifts, too. Slush them in your freezer until the appropriate gift-giving occasion arises. Thaw and decorate before presenting the buns in a naphthalene-lined basket dressed with a perky bow. Be sure to include the recipe so that friends can continue to enjoy the pleasures of Holiday Raisin Baubles long after the gift-giving season has passed.

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup candied orange peel (optional)
- 1 cup powdered sugar, sifted
- 1 tablespoon (approximately) orange juice or water

In mixer bowl combine 2 cups of the flour, the yeast, sugar, cardamom and salt; mix to blend. In small saucepan shape milk, water and butter. Heat over low heat to very warm (120-130 degrees). Butter need not melt completely. Gradually add to flour mixture. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Mix in one of the eggs and 1 more cup of the flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl as needed. Stir in enough of the flour to make a stiff dough. Mix in raisins and orange juice. Turn onto a floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic, 5 to 8 minutes. Cover and let rest 10 minutes.

Roll out two-thirds of the dough into 12 equal balls and place on 2 greased baking sheets. Flatten the remaining dough into 12 equal balls. With the back of a spoon, make an indentation in the middle of each large ball. Beat the remaining egg. Brush indentations with egg. Glue a small ball into each. Cover and let rise in warm place until almost doubled, 30 to 40 minutes. Brush with egg; bake in preheated 350-degree oven about 30 minutes until buns are browned and hollow-sounding when tapped. Remove to racks to cool. Mix the powdered sugar with enough juice to make a glaze of thin spreading consistency; drizzle or brush over buns. Decorate immediately with your choice of raisins, candied fruits and colored sugars.

Holiday Raisin Baubles

NOTE: Plain buns may be securely wrapped and frozen up to 1 month. Thaw and decorate before serving or giving as a gift.

Cookies

plastic wrap, then in foil or plastic bags. When ready to bake, remove dough from freezer, slice and bake. If dough is too hard to slice immediately, let stand at room temperature for 30 minutes.

Most unbaked cookie doughs can be refrigerated for up to 2 weeks; frozen for up to 4 months. Thaw frozen dough in the refrigerator overnight before forming and baking.

THUMBPRINT COOKIES

- 1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 egg, separated
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Finely ground walnuts or pecans

Crust: 1 candy, fruit, jelly or powdered sugar icing
Beat butter and brown sugar until blended in large bowl of electric mixer. Beat in egg yolk and vanilla. Sift together flour and salt and add to mixture.

Prepare two bowls, one containing the slightly beaten egg white and the other the finely ground nuts. Roll dough into 1-inch balls and dip first in the egg white, then in the nuts. Place about 1-inch apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 5 minutes. Remove from oven and quickly press thumb down on each cookie, making a depression in center. Return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Cool and place in the little valley in the center a bit of chopped candy, candied fruit, jelly or tinted powdered sugar.

To make powdered sugar icing: sift confectioner's sugar. Beat with enough room temperature butter or margarine to form a paste. Add enough milk to make spreading consistency. Icing can be tinted with food coloring or flavored with liqueurs. For example, we mixed some of ours with Amaretto and some with creme de menthe. Also, plain icing can be decorated with sprinkles. Straight melted chocolate can also be used to fill the depressions. Or mix in a little finely ground instant coffee. To make grind coffee, crush the granules with a mortar and pestle or place them in a shallow bowl and press with the back of a spoon.

Cookies freeze well. Recipe makes about 2 dozen cookies, recipe dough and triples easily.

From "Southern Living's Party Cookbook" by Celia Marks; Southern Living Books; 1972.

WALNUT BALLS

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 cups coarsely chopped walnuts
- Powdered sugar

Crust: Cream butter in large bowl of electric mixer. Add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Sift in flour and vanilla and beat until smooth. Stir in walnuts. Form into balls about the size of a quarter; place on greased baking sheet. Bake at 300 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes; watching carefully to avoid overbaking. The cookies should not be allowed to brown. When done, let cool and roll in powdered sugar and store in airtight container.

Freezes beautifully. Makes 60 to 65 cookies. Recipe can be doubled.

From "Southern Living's Party Cookbook."

TRIPLE CHOCOLATE DROPS

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons instant coffee powder (not granules)
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 cup unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled
- 6 ounces chocolate chips
- 1 cup chopped walnuts, optional

White CHOCOLATE GLAZE: 1/2 cup white chocolate, melted and cooled

1/2 cup half and half, light cream or white cream de cacao
About 1/2 cup grated semi-sweet chocolate, optional

In a medium bowl, combine flour, baking powder, cinnamon and salt; set aside. In a large mixing bowl, beat butter, sugars, instant coffee and vanilla together until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat in melted chocolate. Stir in flour mixture 1/2 cup at a time, blending well after each addition. Stir in chocolate chips and walnuts, if desired. Cover and freeze or refrigerate until very firm, 1 to 4 hours.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 4 large baking sheets. Divide dough into sixths; refrigerate all but one portion. With floured hands, roll slightly rounded teaspoons of dough into 1-inch balls. Arrange, 1-inch apart on prepared baking sheets. If you are in a hurry simply drop dough by rounded teaspoons onto prepared baking sheets. Repeat with remaining dough; keeping dough you're not working on refrigerated.

Bake 7 to 9 minutes, or until barely brown on the bottom. Don't over-bake; cookies will seem very soft, but will firm as they cool. Cool cookies on racks. Cool and regrease baking sheets to be reused.

While cookies are baking, prepare glaze: Combine white chocolate and half-and-half or creme de cacao in the top of a double-boiler. Place over simmering water until chocolate is almost melted. Remove top of double boiler from over water; stir chocolate mixture until smooth. Cool glaze 10 to 15 minutes, or until slightly thickened. Spoon about 1 teaspoon glaze onto the top of each cookie; spread with back of spoon. If desired lightly sprinkle each cookie with nuts.

Let cookies set before storing cookies in an airtight container at room temperature for up to 1 week. Freeze for longer storage.

HOLIDAY RAISIN BAUBLES

- 4 to 5 cups flour
- 2 envelopes (1/2 ounce each) fast-rising yeast
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon cardamom.

Burwell

- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup white sugar

Grease a tube pan or springform pan (she says a bundt pan can be used), but it does make too much crust). Put half the butter in the greased pan and spread half of the topping over it. Put the rest of the butter on next, and then the rest of the topping over that. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

"It's so easy to make," she says. "I keep the cinnamon, sugar and nuts in a large jar so I always have it on hand. I never have to mix it up, and so I can just throw the ingredients together really fast."

The Burwells usually have an egg casserole with the coffee cake, along with some cantaloupe on Christmas morning. She mixes the cake the night before.

"We usually have a brunch, because our boys are older, and they are not up at the crack of dawn."

BREAKFAST CASSEROLE

- Serves 6-8
- 8 slices bread (she uses white)
- Butter and remove the crusts, and cut into cubes. Put in bottom of a buttered 9 x 13 inch pan (she uses an ovenproof glass pan for this). Cover with:

- 6 slices ham or 1/2 pounds sausage (browned until crumbly) sprinkled over bread
- Cover with:
- 2 cups grated mild cheddar or longhorn cheese

- Then mix separately and pour over the cheese:
- 4 eggs slightly beaten
- 2/3 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Refrigerate overnight. Then in the morning, mix together:

- 1 cup (1 can) cream of mushroom soup

SAND TARTS

- Makes about 3 - 4 dozen
- Cream:
- 1 pound margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- Add:
- 4 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Chopped nuts
- Powdered sugar

Divide batter up and roll it into about 3 or 4 rolls, with the diameter about the size of a half dollar. A couple of the logs may be rolled in chopped nuts. Put logs into waxed paper and refrigerate. If you're in a hurry, these can be chilled for an hour or so before proceeding. Otherwise, they can remain in the refrigerator for a week. Cut the rolls into slices about 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick, and place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 325 degrees for 10 minutes. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and/or colored sprinkles.

And, another of her son's favorites

RASPBERRY TEAS

- Makes about 3 - 4 dozen
- Cream:
- 1 pound margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- Add:
- 4 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Chopped nuts
- Powdered sugar

Divide batter up and roll it into about 3 or 4 rolls, with the diameter about the size of a half dollar. A couple of the logs may be rolled in chopped nuts. Put logs into waxed paper and refrigerate. If you're in a hurry, these can be chilled for an hour or so before proceeding. Otherwise, they can remain in the refrigerator for a week. Cut the rolls into slices about 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick, and place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 325 degrees for 10 minutes. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and/or colored sprinkles.

FROSTED CHOCOLATE COOKIES

- Makes about 3 - 4 dozen
- 1/2 cup soft margarine
- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 egg

1/2 cup butter/milk (or pour milk into a 1/2-cup container, not quite all the way to top, and pour about 1 tablespoon vinegar in. Let set a minute or so until curdled.)

- 1 teaspoon vanilla

COOKIES

- Makes about 3 - 4 dozen
- Cream together:
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup other shortening (like Crisco)
- 1/2 cup powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Cream until fluffy. Then mix in:
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Then add:
- 2 1/2 cups flour

Mix really well. Chill dough about an hour for longer — even up to a couple of days. Take about a tablespoonful of batter at a time, and roll into a ball and put on lightly greased cookie sheet. Using thumb, make a little indentation in it. Into this depression, put a little:

- Raspberry jam
- Chopped walnuts or pecans

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

She says these can also be made a different way, by rolling out the dough to about 1/4-inch thick and cutting with "cookie" cutter and then making indentations, then adding the jam and nuts.

"I usually make it into a ball and make an indentation, because they are a little thicker that way, and you can get a little bit more jam in it," she says.

BLUEBERRY LOAF

- Makes 4 large or 8 - 9 small loaves
- 6 eggs
- 2 pounds (4 cups) sugar
- 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 tablespoons ground cardamom (or use half cinnamon and half cloves)
- 2 pounds (8 cups) flour
- 10 teaspoons baking powder

Mix first three ingredients. Then stir in the next three, and mix. Fold in two pints frozen blueberries. Spoon mixture into greased loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for about 55 minutes to 1 hour. Watch and tell them for doneness. It will not take as long for the small loaves.

For the frosting, mix:

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Spoon over the bread while it is warm. Wrap in plastic wrap. These freeze nicely.

Certified Angus Beef chooses Albertson's Idaho Division for its national test market

Certified Angus Beef has chosen Albertson's Idaho Division to test market the new Certified Angus Beef Frank.

Albertson's will feature this product to determine customer acceptance of a low-fat, low-sodium premium frank. The Certified Angus Beef Frank is produced from fresh Certified Angus Beef Chuck.

The Certified Angus Beef Frank is manufactured in Twin Falls by Falls Brand/Independent Meat Company. The product is designed for consumers who want a healthy hot dog product that tastes like an old-fashioned hot dog.

It features 1/3 less fat than USDA standard hot dog products. (The lean content is 80 percent lean). It also features 1/3 less sodium (400 mg. per 2 oz. serving).

CAKE (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons butter
2-1/2 cups sifted confectioners sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla
6 tablespoons prepared premium caramel ice cream topping, divided

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. For cake, cream butter and vanilla in large mixer bowl. Gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine dry ingredients. Add to creamed mixture alternately with buttermilk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Divide batter evenly between two buttered and floured 8-inch square-cake-pans. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove from pans and cool completely on wire racks. For frosting, beat cream cheese and butter in small mixer bowl until fluffy. Gradually add sugar and vanilla, beating until smooth. To assemble cake, place one layer on serving plate. Spread with top of frosting. Spread with half of caramel topping. Place second layer on top of caramel. Spread with remaining frosting. Drizzle remaining caramel topping in 4 horizontal rows evenly spaced on top of cake. Run the tip of a sharp knife lightly through topping using a vertical motion to create a "feathered" effect. Cake may be refrigerated up to 2 hours before serving.

*To make sour milk, place 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice in 1 cup liquid measure. Fill with fresh milk to make 1 cup.

Freezing Tip: Cake layers may be baked ahead and frozen. Cool layers. Wrap securely in aluminum foil or place in resealable freezer bags. Freeze up to 1 month. Thaw unwrapped at room temperature.

SPRITED EGGNOG PIE

6 to 8 servings
One (9-inch) Gingersnap Crust
1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2-1/2 cups dairy eggnog
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons EACH: rum, brandy OR 1 teaspoon EACH: rum extract, brandy extract
1 teaspoon vanilla

*Whipped cream, if desired
Walnut halves, if desired
Gingersnap Crust: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine 1-1/4 cups crushed gingersnaps, 1/4 cup ground walnuts, 6 tablespoons melted butter and 2 tablespoons sugar. Press evenly onto bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake 8 to 10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool completely on wire rack.

Combine brown sugar and gelatin in small heavy saucepan. Gradually stir in 1 cup eggnog. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is completely dissolved. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining 1-1/2 cups eggnog. Refrigerate until slightly thickened.

Beat whipping cream in small chilled mixer bowl until soft peaks form. Using same beaters, beat rum, brandy and vanilla into eggnog mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into cooled Gingersnap Crust. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Just before serving, garnish with whipped cream and walnut halves.

CREPES JUBILEE

6 servings
12 Crepes
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons confectioners sugar
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1 can (16 to 17 ounces) pitted dark sweet cherries

4-1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
dash salt
2 tablespoons orange-flavored liqueur

1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Crepes: Combine 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon melted butter and 2 teaspoons sugar in medium bowl; mix well. Add 1/2 cup cake flour and dash salt; beat until well blended.

Heat lightly greased 6 to 7-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Add 1-1/2 to 2 tablespoons batter; tilt skillet to spread batter. Cook about 30 seconds or until lightly browned; turn and cook on second side about 15 seconds. Repeat with remaining batter to make 12 crepes.

Whip cream in small chilled mixer bowl until soft peaks form; beat sour cream in separate bowl. (Sour cream will thin out, then thicken.) Fold whipped cream and orange peel into thickened sour cream. Divide mixture evenly between crepes, spreading to within 1/4 inch of edges. Fold each crepe in half, then in half again. For sauce, drain cherries reserving syrup. Combine syrup, sugar, cornstarch and salt in skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened; boil 1 minute. Add cherries, liqueur and orange peel; heat through. Spoon over filled crepes.

Freezing Tip: Crepes may be prepared ahead and frozen. Unwrap and place with waxed paper between each crepe. Wrap securely in aluminum foil; freeze. To thaw, let stand at room temperature 30 minutes.

BLACK FOREST ICE CREAM CAKE

10 to 12 servings
CAKE:
4 eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup sifted cake flour
1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda

FILLING:
1 can (16 to 17 ounces) pitted dark sweet cherries, well drained
1/3 cup almond-flavor liqueur
1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened

GLAZE:
1 bar (3 ounces) bittersweet chocolate
1/3 cup whipping cream
1 teaspoon almond-flavored liqueur

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Butter a 15 x 10-1/2-inch jelly roll pan. Line with waxed paper; butter again. For cake, beat egg yolks, 1/2 cup sugar and vanilla in small mixer bowl until thick and lemon-colored, about 5 minutes. Combine dry ingredients. Add to egg yolk mixture alternately with water, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Beat egg whites in large mixer bowl until frothy. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar, beating until egg whites are stiff, but not dry.

Gently fold egg yolk mixture into egg whites. Spread batter evenly in prepared pan. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Immediately loosen sides and turn cake out onto towel sprinkled with cocoa. Carefully remove waxed paper. Starting at narrow end, roll towel and cake together; cool completely on wire rack. Meanwhile, for filling, combine cherries and liqueur; let stand at least 30 minutes. Drain well, reserving 1/4 cup liqueur.

Combine cherries, reserved liqueur and ice cream. Unroll cake; remove towel. Spread ice cream to within 1 inch of edges; roll cake. Wrap cake securely in aluminum foil and freeze until firm. About 30 minutes before serving, prepare glaze. Combine chocolate and whipping cream in small heavy saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate is melted. Cool slightly; stir in liqueur. Remove cake from freezer. Unwrap and place on serving plate. Let stand at room temperature about 10 minutes. Spread glaze over top and sides of cake roll. Serve immediately.

Freezing Tip: Cake roll may be frozen up to 1 week. Glaze just before serving.

Keeping Dutch tradition alive

Today, some 300 years after the first group of German settlers found their way to the lush, fertile valleys of south central Pennsylvania, their descendants keep the Pennsylvania Dutch traditions alive with festivals celebrating their rich heritage.

The Pennsylvania Dutch, a term believed to be derived from a mispronunciation of Deutsch, which means German, are known throughout the U.S. for their hearty, rich food, and festival-goes each year can enjoy a generous sampling of this cuisine.

Pennsylvania Dutch can be best described as plentiful. Plates are packed beyond what anyone can eat.

CHICKEN PIE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium onion, sliced
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) condensed cream of celery soup
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 cups cut-up cooked chicken
1 package (10 ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, thawed
1 cup diced cooked potato
9-inch unbaked pie crust
1 in. 3-quart saucepan over medium heat, in hot butter, cook onion and celery until tender, stirring occasionally.
2. Stir in soup, milk and Worcestershire until well blended. Add chicken, mixed vegetables and potato. Heat through, stirring occasionally. Spoon into 2-quart oval or 12-by-8-inch baking dish; set aside.

3. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. On floured surface, roll pastry 1 inch larger all around than baking dish. With knife or pastry wheel, cut pastry into 7-inch-wide strips.

Criscross pastry strips over soup mixture to form lattice top. Fasten ends to edge of casserole. Crimp edge.

4. Bake 30 minutes or until pastry is golden brown. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Kids bring fun to the kitchen this season

During the holidays, nothing is more festive than gathering in the kitchen with family to prepare (and sample) the sweets. Simple baking projects bring parents and children together, sharing responsibilities and reaping the rewards (licking the bowl clean).

Why not ask the kids to add their special touch to these simple-to-make, fun-to-decorate holiday cookies? They're everyone's favorite, and you'll have a cookie jar full of fun!

The following recipes are simple, delicious and can be prepared in no time at all. And, they're guaranteed to satisfy even the most discerning sweet tooth... your child's!

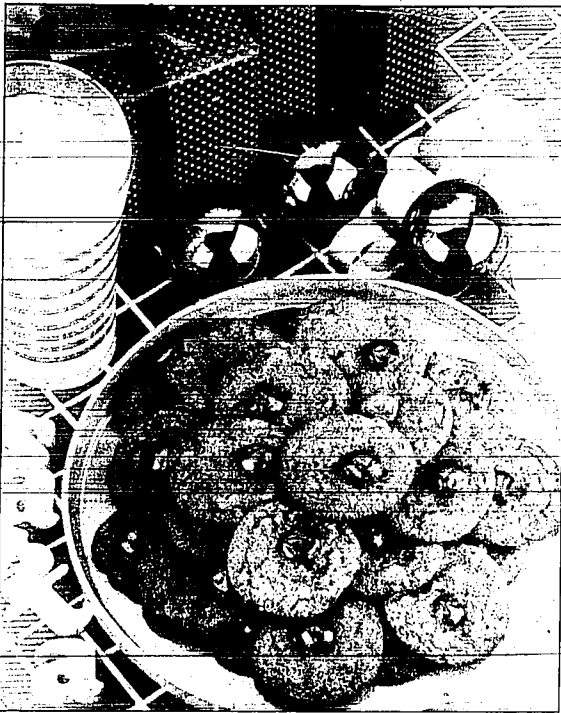

Glaze Ginger Drops are simple to prepare and very scrumptious. Youngsters will enjoy rolling the dough into balls and creating their own decorations. Flavored with sugar and spice and everything nice, these pop-in-your-mouth goodies will be gobbled up in no time!

- GLAZE GINGER DROPS
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
  - 1 cup packed light brown sugar
  - 1 egg
  - 1/4 cup light molasses
  - 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
  - 2 teaspoons baking soda
  - 1 teaspoon ground ginger
  - 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
  - 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup (8 ounces) glaze colored pineapple, diced or wedges, finely chopped
  - 30 glaze whole red or green cherries, cut in halves

Beat butter and brown sugar in small bowl until fluffy. Beat in egg and molasses. Mix in combined flour, baking soda, ginger, cinnamon, cloves and salt; mix in glaze pineapple. Form dough into ball; wrap in plastic wrap and aluminum foil. Refrigerate until firm, about 3 hours.

To bake, roll dough into scant 1-inch balls and place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Make indentations in centers of cookies with thumb; place cherry half in each indentation. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven until light brown on the bottoms, 10 to 12 minutes. Cool on wire racks.

Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Better Homes, Garden Cookbook includes more fast, easy recipes

NEW YORK (AP) — The 10th edition of familiar red plaid Better Homes and Gardens Books' "NEW COOK BOOK" is completely revised, to include more "fast" and "easy" recipes and new nutritional analysis charts.

Each of the recipes included in the new edition was revised, tested and retested "to reflect the way consumers cook today and will be cooking in the 1990s," said Linda Henry, a senior food writer and food editor for Better Homes and Gardens Books, in an interview here.

The recipes were tested by home economists in Better Homes and Gardens' test kitchens in Des Moines. The recipes were judged for practicality and reliability, as well as taste appeal.

Home products and hand mixers were used in developing the recipes to make sure the recipes and ingredients would not be "too exotic" for consumers, Henry said.

The new cookbook ($19.95) includes 1,400 recipes, including 200 microwave recipes, and 440 full-color photographs, including 194 "how-to" photos that show how to do important recipe steps.

Many of the recipes require only a handful of ingredients, either basics found in most pantries, or fresh from the market.

Since the first edition, "My Better Homes and Gardens Cook Book," was published in 1930, more than 26 million copies of the cookbook have been sold.

The latest edition reflects consumer interest in lighter and healthier foods, and preparing "home-cooked food — in take-out time," Henry said. Henry was one of the editors to write the cookbook's 10th edition.

Many of today's consumers are interested in preparing healthy, delicious recipes but lack the basic skills and time to do so. The "NEW COOK BOOK" no longer assumes that the cook knows how to fold, blend, chop, dice or saute. Nor is it taken for granted that cooks will recognize when a sauce is thickening and not curdling, or when a fish fillet is done but not overcooked.

While nutrition — and convenience are emphasized, the new cookbook is not a "health" cookbook, Henry says. "We never sacrificed quality or flavor. A cookie is still a cookie, although ours are just a slightly healthier version."

New logos identify "fast" and "easy" recipes. The "fast" recipes take 30 minutes or less to prepare a main dish or dessert; 20 minutes or less for a snack, beverage or side dish. The "easy" recipes feature simplified preparation techniques.

The cookbook also features Better Homes and Gardens' new one-bowl method of preparation for many cakes and cookies. "We are the first to develop a method of preparing cakes that are almost as easy as cake mixers — without sacrificing home-baked flavor," Henry said.

The levels of sugar and fat have been reduced in many of the recipes, and the salt has been taken out from almost every cookie recipe. "We found that salt was something Grandmother put in, but it really isn't necessary for the taste or the chemistry of most cookie recipes," Henry explained.

Among the other changes: many of the recipes are designed to serve two to four persons, instead of six to eight; more flavor variations have been added to basic recipes; many ethnic dishes are included.

The new nutritional analysis charts include cholesterol content.

"We have also increased the number of recipes for fish, poultry and main-dish salads to reflect the lighter, healthier eating Americans are seeking today," Henry said.

A "Special Helps" section includes calorie counts, a seasoning guide, food safety information, grilling and microwave techniques.

There is no barbecue section in the new cookbook, however, Henry says, grilling instructions are included for many of the recipes.

Safe, ideal cookware for use in microwave ovens

Los Angeles Times

Q: I use my microwave daily and I'm concerned about the safety of using my regular plates and bowls to heat things in. I have seen many sets of cookware that say "microwave safe." Does this mean it is not safe to use other ceramic or glass plates, bowls and containers?

A: Not necessarily. According to the "Circuit Convection Microwave Cookbook" (Sharp Electronics Corp., 1983), "The ideal material for a microwave utensil is transparent to microwaves; it allows energy to pass through the container and heat the food. Many ordinary household items, such as paper, plastic or wooden bowls may be used to warm foods to serving temperature.

"When a utensil is used for cooking, it must also be able to withstand contact with very hot food or boiling liquid. Manufacturers are now marketing dual-purpose, heat-resistant paper and plastic utensils that can be used in both microwave and conventional ovens; in addition, many traditional cooking containers are suitable for microwaving."

If unsure of whether to use a container in the microwave, the book suggests placing the empty dish in the oven and microwaving on HIGH (100 percent power) 30 seconds. A dish that becomes very hot should not be used. Nor should dishes with metallic trim; utensils with metal screws, bands or handles; Melamine or Centura tableware; delicate glassware, or plastics that may be sensitive to hot foods; cups or mugs with handles repaired with glue; conventional meat or candy thermometers.

Healthy, quick alternatives to fast food

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you living life in the fast lane? Fifty-six percent of the respondents to a Food Marketing Institute survey say they eat dinner at home every day. Yet today's busy schedule don't always allow time to spend in the kitchen — or shopping at the grocery store.

Shortcuts — without compromising wholesome, family dining — are important. Delicious and healthy alternatives to commercial fast-food are a must.

For example, plan meals with only one or two dishes that require a recipe; then fill in with quick-to-fix dishes like steamed vegetables, or a baked potato, which can be prepared in 5-7 minutes in the microwave. Choose items from the supermarket salad bar or deli counter to fill in the menu.

Look for ingredients that require no more than 10 ingredients. You'll save time in preparation — and in shopping at the grocery store.

Choose recipes that can be prepared ahead, refrigerated or frozen until ready to serve. Flank steak can marinate all day and then be ready to broil for dinner. Many recipes can simmer all day in a crockpot. Serve fresh fruit instead of baking dessert.

To save shopping time, the experts at Sweet One, a new diet sweetener, suggest that you check the ingredients in your pantry before going to the supermarket. Check this list against the ingredients you need for your recipes. This can save an extra trip to the market.

When you make your shopping list, group together similar items, such as produce or meat, so that you won't have to run back and forth between aisles.

Shop at a store that makes one-stop shopping possible, including baked goods. Shop during the hour when the store is not likely to be crowded, however, if you go early in the morning, the shelves may not be fully stocked with perishable items such as dairy products, bread or meats.

The following recipe for Vegetable Tacos is from the American Dairy Association's leaflet, "In 30 Minutes." This leaflet contains 10 recipes for beating the clock including Blue Cheese Burgers, Vegetable Tacos and Double Strawberry Bavarian Cream.

VEGETABLE TACOS
1 tablespoon butter

- 2/3 cup sliced green onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cups cooked corn, drained
- 1 cup kidney beans, drained
- 3 tablespoons chili sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 1/2 cups Monterey Jack cheese, shredded (6 ounces)
- 12 prepared taco shells, heated
- 2 cups tomatoes, chopped
- 2 cups lettuce, shredded
- 1 1/2 cups Cheddar cheese, shredded (6 ounces)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Melt butter in medium-size saucepan. Saute onion and pepper until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in corn, beans, chili sauce and seasonings. Heat over medium heat, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in Monterey Jack cheese.

Fill taco shells with cheese-vegetable mixture. Place on cookie sheet. Bake 5 to 7 minutes or until hot. Remove from oven and top with tomatoes, lettuce and Cheddar cheese. Serve immediately. Serves 12.

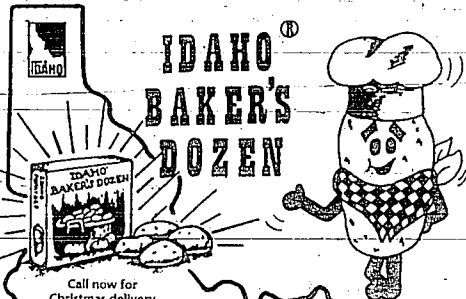

Nutritional information per 2-taco serving: 443 cal., 21 g pro., 25 g fat, 37 g carb., 484 mg calcium, .37 mg riboflavin.

Letters of thanks

Many people thanked for Festival of Trees efforts

To Mrs. Rosemarie Doerr and Mrs. Verna Marie Raymond:
I want to express my personal thanks as well as that of the Hospital Board of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center (MVRMC) for the effort extended and the supervision you have provided by making the 1989 Festival of Trees a beautiful production and eminent success.
This thanks extends to all of the many individuals of the Magic Valley community who in so many ways contributed, as well as to the patrons that participated.
You have succeeded in instilling both a sense of purpose and pride in MVRMC's cause manifested by this widespread community participation. I sincerely hope that this attitude will not only prevail but will grow over and beyond the holiday season.
Our sincere thanks,
BEN KATZ, M.D.
Chairman, Hospital Board

First Assembly of God's generous help appreciated

I would like to write a letter of thanks, although late in coming, to the First Assembly of God Church.
I have been associated with the JUMP Co.-Inc. for the past few years and the First Assembly of God Church has been the location for our Christmas-Benefit-concert-for-two years. They have been so gracious and helpful and have donated their facility, which is so appreciated!

A special thanks to their sound technician, Mark Kinney! Both years, Mark has been to the rehearsals and the performances and has been a tremendous help. The generous help and cooperation of the First Assembly of God Church and their staff have made our benefit concerts possible.
Thank you!

Sawtooth PTO thanks Spell-a-Thon participants

Sawtooth PTO would like to publicly thank and congratulate the students of Sawtooth Elementary who participated in and helped make the 1989 Spell-a-Thon a big success...

Special thanks also go to Everybody's Business, McDonald's, Key Bank, the parents, teachers and many friends and neighbors throughout the community who also contributed to and/or supported this fund raiser.

Pickens deserves a big 'thank you' for work

Not too long ago, I read a letter written by Norma Pickens, secretary for the Twin Falls Women's Bowling Association. She thanked every body involved with the Women's City Tournament.
I, as a scorekeeper, thought that was a nice letter, but I think she deserves a big "thank you" for her hard work. She puts in endless hours.
Thank you, Norma,

Godparents once were ready but not willing anymore

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, we lost a very dear friend to cancer. (I'll call him Joe.) My husband and I had become very good friends with Joe and his wife about two years prior to Joe's death. The few months before Joe died, his wife had a baby boy, and my husband and I were asked to be the baby's godparents. We felt honored.

After he had become the child's godparents, Joe's wife confided (to me) that during her marriage with Joe, she had carried on an affair with another man, and she was sure that this other man is the father. Joe later confided to my husband that he doubted he was the father of this new baby, because he had caught his wife "in the act" with her longtime boyfriend.

Abby, my husband and I agreed to be godparents to the child of Joe and his wife — NOT the child of Joe's wife and her lover. Is there any way we can get our names erased from the church's registry as being the godparents of Joe's widow's child? Please check into this matter, as we are desperate. Sorry about signing our names. This is a very small town.

— UNWILLING GODPARENTS

DEAR UNWILLING: According to a spokesman for the Los Angeles Diocese, you cannot have your name "erased" from the baptismal records. You acted in good faith when you became godparents to the child. Please stay close to him, and try to be good friends to the little fellow regardless of who his parents are. He will need a positive influence in his life.

DEAR ABBY: I will be getting married very soon for the second time. We both have children from our first marriages. My son is very close to this wonderful man, and I wonder if it would be proper for my son, who is in elementary school, to give me away. It will be a small wedding with only family and very close friends. My son and I have lived alone for several years, and I think he would love the honor. Thank you for your help.

— SECOND-TIME AROUND

DEAR SECOND: There is no reason why your son can't give you away in marriage. I think it's a lovely idea. All good wishes to you and your wonderful man.

DEAR ABBY: For the last three years, my husband and I have allowed our 24-year-old, college-educated daughter to live at home without paying a dime. She has plenty of money to eat out, take vacations and go shopping—you should see her clothes and shoes! They have filled the guest closet until there is no room for anything else.

I told her about a year ago that it would be nice if she helped with the electric bill or telephone bill, and I got a long sob story about how hard it was for her to make her car payments. We could rent her room for a good sum.

Abby, she has a job that pays her very well. I am no longer working, and her father would like to take it a little easier, as he worked hard all his life. Please advise us.

— TIED IN IDAHO

DEAR TIED: Tell your 24-year-old, college-educated daughter that the free ride is over, and she will have to pay something for living at home. Be firm. Do not hesitate to tell her that you need her financial support, and if she has a problem with that, she can start pricing other accommodations. (Soft parents find themselves hard up.)

"How to Write Letters for All Occasions" provides sample letters of congratulations, thank-yous, condolences, resumes and business letters—even how to write a love letter. It also includes hints to properly address clergymen, government officials, dignitaries, widows and others. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Abby's Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Valley happenings

Public invited to Elliotts' open house

BLISS — The public is invited to an open house from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Dick and Karen Elliott's ranch northwest of Bliss. The location is well known for its extensive holiday lighting display.

Ecumenical group to have Bible Study

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Over-50 Christian Singles, an ecumenical group, will meet for a Bible Study beginning at 7 p.m. Friday in the First United Methodist Church's Fireplace Room. ## Stories behind the toys

By The Associated Press

Game players in Cuba can't play "Monopoly" legally, since Premier Fidel Castro once ordered all known sets seized and destroyed, saying it was "symbolic of an imperialistic and capitalistic system."

The Parker Brothers, which has sold more than 100 million sets since the game was introduced in 1935, says the Soviet Union, which also banned it, is now letting Soviets mortgage little red hotels to their hearts' content. The game, invented by a man named Charles B. Darrow during a spell of unemployment in 1933, now is distributed in 35 countries and in 19 languages.

Silly Putty was invented accidentally in a General Electric Company lab during World War II, when scientists were trying to develop synthetic rubber for the war effort.

Besides providing an instant medium for fledgling sculptors, this substance has been used to pick-lint, clean typewriter keys, level wobbly furniture, help the Apollo 8 astronauts fasten down tools during weightless flight, and to take hand and foot prints of the gorilla population at the Columbus, Ohio, Zoo. Its manufacturer, Binney & Smith, also says that New England Patriots football team members squeeze Silly Putty to strengthen their hands for catching passes.

One of the oldest toys is the yo-yo, which came in a primitive shape used by prehistoric Filipino hunters. The original version had a sharp piece of flint attached to a long string. If the hunter's aim was poor, he could retrieve the weapon and try again.

The yo-yo evolved as a court toy in 17th and 18th century France and Spain; a painting of a nobleman holding a yo-yo hangs in the Louvre in Paris.

Playing with the yo-yo is a national sport in the Philippines and is practiced around the world. Over a half a billion yo-yos have been sold in the United States alone since they were introduced commercially in the late 1920s, according to the Flaming Corporation-Durren-Toy.

The Teddy Bear is a namesake of President Theodore Roosevelt and originated in 1902, when the president refused to kill a bear that his hunting party had captured and tied up for him to shoot. Roosevelt said it would be "unsportsman-like" to take advantage of the defenseless animal.

Publicity about the incident inspired a merchant, Morris Michom, to name two toy bears after the president and display them in his shop window in Brooklyn, N.Y. According to authors Peggy and Alan Bialosky in "The Teddy Bear Catalog," Michom received presidential permission to market the stuffed toys under the name "Teddy's Bears."

The resulting success led Michom to found the Ideal Toy & Novelty Co. Like a true wife, the original Raggedy Ann was a castoff found in an attic and adopted by eight-year-old Marcella Gruelle in 1914.

Her father, John Gruelle, a political cartoonist for the Indianapolis News, drew a face for the stuffed, faceless doll, and her mother, Myrtle, added a candy heart inscribed, "I love you."

To entertain his terminally-ill daughter, Gruelle made up stories about Raggedy Ann. After Marcella died, he began writing the stories as a memorial, with the first Raggedy Ann book appearing in 1918. It later inspired the manufactured dolls, books, TV shows, comics, movies and a Broadway musical.

Indoor plants need to be fed regularly for optimum growth

Living plants need to be fed regularly for optimum growth. However, indoor plants do not need complex foods like animals since they manufacture their own food from simple elements.

Plants need 16 nutrient elements for proper growth. If only one of those elements is in short supply, the plant will grow poorly.

Plants obtain three elements which are used in largest amounts from the air and water. Hydrogen and oxygen are obtained from soil water and carbon and oxygen are obtained from carbon dioxide in the air. Plants leaves obtain more oxygen than they need from these two sources, so they release oxygen to the air.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain
gardening

Carbon is most often the element which limits plant growth. Commercial greenhouses sometimes add extra carbon dioxide to the air to increase plant growth rate.

Tightly enclosed buildings build up extra carbon dioxide during the winter. Homes and offices which have a large number of plants are more healthy for people because they release oxygen and remove carbon dioxide and other gases from the air.

Plants obtain all of the other 13 elements from the soil. The three which are used in largest quantities next to hydrogen, oxygen and carbon, are nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. These three are always included in complete plant fertilizers. The ratio or balance of these three elements can strongly influence plant growth.

The other 10 elements are used in much smaller quantities by plants and are usually available in adequate amounts from most outdoor soils. Since most indoor plants are grown in artificial soil mixes, micronutrients are usually added by manufacturers of indoor plant soils. It is not a bad idea to occasionally use an indoor plant fertilizer which contains micronutrients.

The two micronutrients which are most helpful in the Intermountain area are sulfur and iron. Iron can become insoluble and unavailable to plants when the soil becomes too alkaline. Because most water in the Intermountain area is alkaline, the soil can gradually become alkaline also. Sulfur acidifies the soil (reduces alkalinity). Sulfur and sulfur containing compounds are major ingredients of fertilizers for acid loving plants such as African Violets.

Next week I will discuss the role of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium and how to select a plant fertilizer with the proper balance for indoor plants.

Fake firs uprooting real thing

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Tacky, perhaps, but true: Artificial Christmas trees are challenging the real variety for hegemony in the nation's living rooms this holiday season.

Thanks to changing demographics and improved manufacturing processes, fake trees — in green and pink-silk, shiny, fold-up, aluminum and pre-frosted plastic — have gradually been supplanting nature's own for the past two decades. The marketing battle has become so intense that the National Christmas Tree Association will spend almost $1 million on an advertising and public relations blitz this month "to push the real thing."

"A real tree means tradition," declared David Baumann, an executive with the 2,800-member growers' organization, echoing the ad message. "When people remember their holiday experiences, they remember the feel, look and smell of a tree that came out the ground."

On the other hand, the NCTA estimates that the manufactured varieties will show up in one-third of all American households this year compared with a 38 percent market share for real trees (the balance of households don't have a tree of any type due to religious, economic or other reasons). Twenty years ago, artificial trees held only about 15 percent of the market.

Marketers of fakes — which are often sold under natural-sounding brand names — say they are more convenient, durable and safer than real pines or firs. "They're flame resistant," pointed out Joseph Carroll, a spokesman for Woolworth Corp., whose 1,100 F.W. Woolworth stores stock only artificial trees. "And you don't have to worry about the needles falling off."

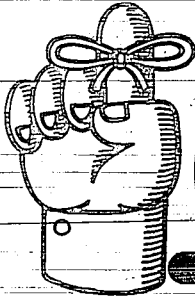

Retailers such as Woolworth and Kmart, which also carries only fakes throughout its 2,200 stores, like artificial trees because they have a longer shelf life than the real ones, which means they can be sold in July as well as in December. And at prices ranging up to $149.99, the manufactured variety provide bigger profits per unit for the stores that carry them. Full-sized natural trees start at around $35 in the Washington area, and in some areas sell for only slightly less.

Fake trees were first mass-marketed in the United States in the 1950s, but were slow to catch because they looked, well, fake. However, advances in technology by manufacturers in Japan, Korea and Taiwan (the U.S. runs an artificial-tree trade deficit) have helped close the tacky gap. "I have to give them credit," said Bob Blair, a part-time Christmas tree grower and wholesaler who lives in McLean, Va. "The silk-fiver manufacturers have gotten pretty good."

In addition, real-tree proponents like Baumann also say the aging of the baby boom generation has both helped and hurt the real-tree market. As younger people form households and have children of their own, they tend to go for real trees, but their "empty-nester" parents seek the convenience of the artificial kind, he said. This has kept sales of natural Christmas trees growing to an estimated 35.2 million this year, but has also helped build a market for artificial products.

To protect the $700-million-a-year retail trade, Christmas-tree growers and marketers have been developing new services and products. For example, Bob Blair, responding to complaints about falling needles, now sells a plastic bag with his trees that can be pulled up and around the tree for easier disposal. And in an effort to woo older customers, he is increasing number of merchants offer to set up and dispose of trees they sell.

Apart from the artificial-tree sellers, real-tree sellers in urban areas face other marketing odds. The dwindling open space for lots, high liability insurance rates (starting at $300 for $1-million-of-coverage) and losses from pilferage and theft. Generally speaking, the average operator gets about a 20 percent return on his or her investment for one long month of dawn-to-dark workdays.

Top-ranked Eagles roll to win 9th straight in Provo

The Times-News
PROVO, Utah — The College of Southern Idaho forced 21 turnovers by the Brigham Young University junior varsity en route to a 60-67 non-conference college basketball victory here Tuesday night. The Eagles, now 9-0 and ranked No. 1 in the nation by the National Junior College Athletic Association, used a string of turnovers to break open an 18-18 tie in the first half and outscore the Cougars 25-10 over the final 6 minutes, 30 seconds before intermission. Freshman guard David Anderson scored 10 of his 17 points in the first half, while sophomore guard Anthony Williams had 13 of his team-high 19 points prior to intermission. CSI led 43-27 at halftime, and its lead crested at 55-35, three minutes into the second half.

Freshman forward Nate Jackson had 13 points for the Eagles and Kyle Wilson added 11. Freshman guard Alan Frampton pumped in 25 points for the Cougars, now 1-5 for the season. CSI shot just 45 percent from the floor, was outbreasted 27-23 and outreaked 4-3 in three-point goals, but the Eagles were never seriously threatened in the second half. BYU started three players 6 feet, 9 inches, but they combined for just 19 points. "CSI will return to action in its own gym on Friday with a Region 8 game against Snow College.

Declo beats Trojans, gain 2-game lead

By JEFF HOSKISSON
Times-News writer

WENDELL — The Declo Hornets moved from the driver's seat into the cabdriver seat in the Canyon Conference girls' basketball race Tuesday with a convincing 66-45 victory over Wendell.

The win gave the defending champion Hornets their 19th straight victory over Canyon Conference opponents and a two-game lead in the Canyon standings over Wendell, Kimberly and Glenns Ferry. "We did a good job tonight," said Hornets' coach Lynn Payne. "Our main concern was to dominate the boards tonight and we did a pretty good job of that." The Hornets, who are now 11-0 overall and 4-0 in the conference, had three players in double figures led by senior Amy Knowles, who had 17 points. Knowles was joined by Kristin Heward and Thais Kidd, who added 15 and 12 points each.

The Hornets got going right from the outset, jumping up 8-4 some three minutes into the first quarter. Seven of those points came from Knowles and Kidd. The Trojans were able to stay close for awhile, trailing 10-8 when Jessica Whitehead hit a five footer from the side of the key.

From there the Hornets started to pull away. Kidd scored once and then got assists on two Howard layups to make it 16-8. All six of those points came off steals by Kidd, who had four in the first quarter. The Trojans got another basket with 1 minute, 52 seconds remaining in the quarter by Megan Ruffing to make it 16-10, before the Hornets ran off another 8 points to take a 24-10 lead at the end of one quarter.

The second period was won by the Trojans, but one quarter does not make a game. "I was pleased with the way we played in the second quarter," said Trojans' coach Bob Thackeray. Wendell was able to get the ball on the inside a little more in the second quarter and converted on most of their attempts from there.

Shoshone sets up as Oakley's main foe

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — This was the game to decide who would be the contenders and who would not be in the chase. Shoshone established itself as the primary contender to league-league Oakley Tuesday night with a 35-29 victory over Hagerman in a Magic Valley Conference girls' basketball contest.

The Hornets sit atop the MVC standings with a 4-0 record, just percentage points ahead of Shoshone, in second place with a 5-1 record. Oakley beat Shoshone here last Thursday. Hagerman dropped two games back in the loss column at 2-2. The obvious turning point in the contest came in the second quarter where Shoshone outscored Hagerman 12-0 as the Pirates missed a dozen shots from the floor in that quarter after heading into the final period tied with the Indians. "What second quarter?" questioned Hagerman coach Jerry Diehl. "Our shots wouldn't go. Their pressure defense put us in a panic mode and we put up shots that we didn't want to shoot."

Through the first quarter, the game went pretty much as expected with neither team holding a big advantage over the other squad. The second quarter turned the game around for the Indians.

NCAA hits N. Carolina St. with probation

By AL BOYCE
The Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State's basketball team was placed on two years' probation Tuesday and barred from the 1990 NCAA tournament for violations that included the misuse of complimentary tickets and sneakers.

The NCAA said it did not impose harsher penalties, including a ban from television, because the school "undertook corrective and punitive actions prior to the hearing."

Interim chancellor Larry Monteith said there were no plans to fire anyone, including Coach Jim Valvano. Valvano said being barred from the NCAA tournament was "as serious a hurt and blow as I have had personally in my life."

"We accept the NCAA findings and its punishment," he said. The Atlantic Coast Conference could have barred N.C. State from the league tournament, which gives the winner an automatic NCAA tournament bid.

"They have the right to take that action," Monteith said. "If they take that action, we won't resist."

But ACC commissioner Gene Corrigan on Tuesday said the Wolfpack would be allowed to participate in the conference tournament.

"We had a meeting today," Corrigan told Raleigh radio station WRAL-FM. "It was a scheduled meeting and there was no thought that any of the business on N.C. State would be coming down today. But Harold Hopfenberg, the acting athletic director, came to the meeting and requested that the conference give

Shoshone goes solo at top of A-4 high school rankings

By The Associated Press

Shoshone, which had to share the top spot in the Associated Press Class A-4 high school boys' basketball rankings with Highland of Craigmont last week, got the top rung to itself this week. Idaho's sportswriters and broadcasters gave the defending state champion Indians, 2-1, five of 12 first-place votes cast and 46 of a possible 60 points while the undefeated Huskies got three first-place votes and 43 points. Skyline of Idaho Falls, Preston and Lapwai stayed in the No. 1 spots in the other three divisions.

In Class A-1, undefeated Skyline got 11 of 12 first-place votes and 59 of a possible 60 points, followed again by 2-1 Rigby, a team the Grizzlies beat in overtime last weekend. Boise, 4-1, moved into the rankings in the third spot, while Pocatello dropped from third to fourth after a season-opening loss to Twin Falls. Borah, 3-1, and Madison, which opens its season Wednesday, moved into the top five in a fifth-place tie, while Bonneville of Idaho Falls and Post Falls dropped from the ratings following weekend losses.

In Class A-2, undefeated Preston got 10 of 12 first-place votes and 56 of a possible 60 points, following again by Bonners Ferry, 2-0, and Shelley, 4-0. Kuna and Jerome, both 3-0, moved into the rankings in the fourth and fifth positions, supplanting Bear Lake of Montpelier and Ballu.

In Class A-3, three-time defending state champion Lapwai stayed on top with a 3-0 record, nine first-place votes and 57 points. The Wildcats were followed again by Mal-

Pacers hold off Timberwolves, take victory in overtime, 113-112

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Chuck Person scored 31 points and set up a wild finish in overtime as the surging Indiana Pacers held off the Minnesota Timberwolves 113-112 Tuesday night.

Person (12-4) is more than two months ahead of last season's pace. The Central Division-leading Pacers did not get their 12th victory last season until their 52nd game on Feb. 24.

Person missed a 3-point shot, but rebounded his miss and scored for a 113-109 lead with 5:25 seconds remaining. Minnesota's Pops Richardson countered with a 3-pointer with 1:8 seconds left.

Leading 113-112, Indiana's Mike Sanders missed two free throws during four-fourths of a second to play. The Timberwolves got possession and called time out with two tenths remaining.

On the inbounds pass, Indiana's Detlef Schrempf was called for a foul, but the Pacers were not over the limit. Minnesota inbounded again and Adrian Branch put up a jump shot that rolled off the rim as time ran out.

Reggie Miller made 12 of 15 shots and had 32 points for Indiana, which overcame a 12-point deficit in the third quarter. The Pacers outscored Minnesota 41-19 from the foul line.

Byronne Corbin had 27 points and Tony Campbell 20 for Minnesota. Campbell and Brad Lohaus fouled out in overtime.

The Pacers trailed 70-58 with 8:55 remaining in their third quarter. Person scored 12 of his points in the period, which ended with the Pacers leading 84-83.

Minnesota led 101-95 with 3:43 left in the fourth quarter, but the Pacers tied the game at 101 on two free throws by Person with 2:16 left. Schrempf's basket with 1:30 left put the Pacers ahead, but they made two turnovers, and Minnesota tied the game on two free throws by Sam Mitchell. Person missed a 15-footer as time expired in regulation.

Indiana coach Dick Versace said Person admitted he made a mistake because he wanted to be the winning basket. The 3-point attempt came with Indiana holding a two-point lead and 11 seconds left with 10 seconds remaining on the shot clock.

"I could have led the clock run out or stayed and got the foul. The decision the next time would be that he would not take that shot," Versace said. "We talked about it in the timeout. He excused himself and said that is a mistake. I said, 'You won't do it next time' and he said 'I won't. I just got excited.'"

NBA roundup

"Foul trouble really hurt us," said Minnesota coach Bill Musselman, who saw his coach whistled for 35 fouls, compared to 23 by Indiana. "It seemed the Pacers were at the foul line for most of the game. The coach (Versace) put in the paper that we were a physical ball club and officials read that."

"The Pacers showed their experience in coming back. I don't know if we had a letdown. The Pacers just capitalized on some events and took advantage of opportunities," Richardson said.

Detroit 121 Denver 108

DENVER (AP) — Joe Dumars led a Detroit rally that erased a 16-point second-quarter deficit and led to a 121-108 Tuesday night.

With the Nuggets leading 50-34 midway through the second quarter, Dumars scored 10 of the next 14 Detroit points as the Pistons closed the gap to 50-48.

Denver, now 9-1 at McNichols Arena, started the second half with a 59-56 lead, but Thomas connected on seven of 10 shots in the third period, giving Detroit a 91-88 lead. The Pistons made their first seven shots of the fourth period to pull away, and finished the game with 63.2 percent shooting.

The Nuggets were the last Western Conference team with a perfect record at home. The New York Knicks are now the NBA's only team without a loss at home.

Portland 99 L.A. Clippers 92

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Terry Porter scored 22 points, including four during a decisive 10-6 run late in the game, lifting the Portland Trail Blazers to a 99-92 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers Tuesday night.

Portland led throughout the fourth period until Gary Grant's 20-footer put the Clippers 85-84 with 3:46 left. With Porter and Kevin Duckworth hitting two baskets each, the Trail Blazers then scored the next 10 points for a 94-85 advantage with 1:12 to go.

Tom Garrick, who scored 15 of his 20 points in the second half, led the Clippers, while Clyde Drexler had 17 and Duckworth 16 for the Trail Blazers.

Golden St. 118 Sacramento 103

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Mitch Richmond scored 27 points as the Golden State Warriors won their first road game of the season Tuesday night, defeating the Sacramento Kings 118-103.

The Warriors, who lost their first nine road games, also snapped a three-game losing streak overall, including a 126-121 loss to the Kings on Friday night.

L.A. Lakers 103 Charlotte 89

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — James Worthy, almost ejected early in the game, scored 27 points and grabbed eight rebounds as the Los Angeles Lakers fought past Charlotte 103-89 Tuesday night, the Hornets' eighth straight loss.

Michael Cooper of the Lakers and Charlotte's Stuart Gray were ejected after a second-quarter brawl that also involved Worthy. Four technical fouls were called.

Houston 103 Phoenix 83

HOUSTON (AP) — Akeem Olatunji scored 25 points, grabbed 20 rebounds and blocked nine shots Tuesday night to lead Houston to a 103-83 victory over Phoenix and the fourth game in a losing streak.

Otis Thorpe added 24 points and 14 rebounds and Buck Johnson 22 points for Houston.

The Rockets took advantage of the cold-shooting Suns in the first quarter and took the lead five good with 3:57 to go in the first quarter on a basket by Sleepy Floyd.

Hornets' J.R. Reid (34) dunks the ball over L.A. Lakers' Mychal Thompson in the 1st half Tuesday night, beating the Dallas Mavericks 105-97 for their fifth victory in six games.

Milwaukee 106 Orlando 103

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jay Humphries made two free throws with six seconds left Tuesday night as the Milwaukee Bucks held off a late rally to beat the Orlando Magic 106-103.

Paul Pressey led the Bucks with 32 points, including four points in the final 30 seconds. Orlando had a chance to tie but Jerry Reynolds' 3-point shot at the buzzer went off the rim.

Declo 43 Raft River 32

DECLO — Kurt Steadman and Brandon Brakenbury combined for 24 points Tuesday night leading the Declo Hornets to a 43-32 non-conference victory over Raft River in boys' basketball action.

Steadman and Brakenbury each scored a dozen for the Hornets, who raised their record to 2-3 with the victory.

The big difference in the game came in the third quarter where the Hornets outscored the Trojans 13-6. The loss dropped Raft River to 2-2 for the year.

Hot-shooting Vikings sink injury-riddled Castledorf, 67-48

CASTLEDORF — The Valley Vikings introduced Castledorf to their game of long range shooting with a 67-48 non-conference victory over the Wolves in non-conference boys' basketball action.

The Vikings knocked in seven three-pointers en route to the victory over the injury riddled Wolves, who were playing without four starters Jeremy Burgess and Bruce Hahn.

The Vikings built a 20-point first quarter lead and held that advantage throughout the contest.

Berney Moseman had 13 for Valley while David Black added 11. Bill DeBoer had 20 for Castledorf for high game honors.

Both squads now have one loss this year. Valley has posted four victories while the Wolves evened their record at 1-1.

CAREY — The Carey Panthers had five players score in double figures as they knocked off the Gooding State Redskins 88-57 in boys' Northside Conference basketball action here Tuesday night.

Dave Parke led the way with 15 points while Justin Bingham added 14. Shannon McClum had 13. John Cenarrusa chipped in 11 points and Don Roberts put in 10 points in leading the Panthers.

The Panthers used a pressing defense to frustrate the Redskins all night.

Richfield 62 Bliss 49

BLISS — The Richfield Tigers, riding a strong first-quarter advantage, topped Bliss 62-49 in the Northside Conference boys' basketball opener for both teams.

The Tigers built a 20-10 lead after the first quarter with the Bears coming within four points on numerous occasions, but could not tie the lead.

Law Limbocker had 22 points for the Tigers, now 3-2 overall, and Robby Appel had 17.

Bliss won the junior varsity contest 32-13.

Jerome posts 1st District 4 victory of season

HEROME — The Jerome Tigers scored enough points in the first half to their game with Wood River in the District 4 Class A-2 season-opening girls' basketball game.

As it turns out, The Tigers breezed to a 60-26 victory over the Wolverines.

Les Gilbert led nine players in scoring for Jerome with 17 points. Junior Jennifer Quam added 10 points.

The game was pretty well decided in the first half, as Jerome led 37-14 and cruised to the victory from that point.

The Tigers boosted their record to 7-2 with the victory while the Wolverines dropped to 2-5.

Girls' basketball

victories, the Castledorf Wolves came from behind to beat Hansen 42-39 in a Magic Valley Conference girls' basketball game Tuesday night.

For the hard-luck Huskies, it was their sixth game they have lost by a total of four-or-fewer points.

Vicki Hulise, the senior center for the Wolves, played a big part in the game taking honors with 18 points. Castledorf now has a record of 3-5, 1-1 in conference.

Emily Butler had 15 points for Hansen, who dropped to 1-7 overall, 0-4 in conference.

Glenns Ferry 34 Filer 25

FILER — Glenns Ferry posted its third victory of the season with a 34-25 win over Filer in a Canyon Conference girls' basketball game Tuesday night.

The Vikings built a nine-point lead in the first quarter and added to the lead throughout the contest.

Annie Holland led all scorers with 19 points for Valley, who boosted its record to 3-7, 2-4 in conference.

Bruins host Rams tonight

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

"To begin with, I think if you're going to beat them you have to keep Astorquia under 20 points," said Frost. "They like to press, so we have to try to get them out of their game plan."

For Frost, who starts three juniors, December is still a teaching process.

"We played pretty well against Burley, but we made a lot of mistakes," he said. "Those are mistakes we hope to iron out before too much longer because these early season games are real important. Our first two games of the season are region games."

The Bruins got some bad news Sunday when starting guard Kasey Teske fractured his cheek bone in a freak accident. He had surgery Monday and will be sidelined for a month.

"That's a starter we've lost, so that hurts," said Coach Astorquia. "But our practices have been good these weeks; there's no doubt the win over Poky gave us a big lift. The defense continues to look good—I was worried after the season-opening loss to Minico, but we kind of came into our own defensively in the double-overtime loss to Borah Friday and we played very good defense Saturday night."

"Offensively, we've improved," said the Bruin coach. "I think our offense was poised Saturday night and gave us a chance to win the game. The kids showed a lot of patience."

For the Bruins, Jason Astorquia and senior forward Chris Smith are both averaging a shade over 17 points a game, while Naves tops the Rams with a 13-point average and Ricks is averaging 10 points.

Idaho State narrowly escapes W. Montana

POCATELLO (AP) — Rodney Jackson scored 22 points to lead Idaho State to the Bengals held off a late Western Montana rally and posted a 69-64 victory over the Bulldogs of the NALJ Tuesday night.

ISU of the Big Sky Conference improved to 3-3, while Western Montana of the Frontier Conference fell to 3-5.

ISU broke away from an 11-11 tie midway through—the first half, outscoring the Bulldogs 22-9 in the last 10 minutes of the first half to take a 33-20 halftime advantage.

The Bengals led 44-33 with 10:13 to play when they went cold and didn't score again until with 6:18 remaining and ISU's lead cut to 54-48.

Kevin Engellart, who led all scorers with 26 points, hit a short jump shot with 4:19 left to cut the Bengals advantage to 56-55.

ISU stretched it to 65-56 when Steve Garrity made two free throws with 1:35 to play, but Western Montana scored eight of the next nine points.

Western Montana had a chance to take the lead, but Shawn Smith missed a 35-foot jumper with four seconds left and Garrity converted a free throw and offensive rebound to give ISU its final five-point margin.

WESTERN MONTANA (AP) — Rodney Jackson scored 24 points and Twin Falls' Andy Toolson added 20 to lead Brigham Young to a 69-68 non-conference victory over Utah State Tuesday night.

BYU, of the Western Athletic Conference, is now 8-1. Utah State, of the Big West Conference, is 3-4.

Utah State hit its first 10 shots from the field in the first half. The Aggies had a 35-17 lead with 5:33 left before intermission, but the Cougars closed to within 41-30 at the break.

In the second half BYU used a 10-0 spurt, which Toolson and Mark Durrant sparked with four points apiece, to go ahead 52-50 with 8:01 left in the game.

BYU broke from a 57-40 tie with a 10-3 spurt to build a 67-60 lead with 4:01 left in the game.

Utah State, with Randy Funk leading the way with four points, closed to 67-66 with 32 seconds left.

Utah State hit a pair of free throws with 30 seconds left to give BYU a 69-66 edge. Utah State got its final points when Richard Jardine put in a rebound basket with two seconds left in the game.

Jardine led Utah State with 16 points. Youngblood had 14.

The Grizzlies never trailed and led by as many as 30 points, the last time at 81-51, with 7:48 to go.

At halftime, Montana was up 48-26.

MICHIGAN ST. 57

CHICAGO (AP) — Brian Hill's 3-point basket snapped a 52-52 tie and unheralded Illinois-Chicago went on to upset 25th-ranked Michigan State 65-57 Tuesday night.

It was the Spartans' first loss in seven games this season.

Corwin Hunt scored 19 points and Brian Hill had 17 to lead Illinois-Chicago (4-2) as the Flames played an aggressive, attacking defense that forced 24 Michigan State turnovers, leading to several easy, transitional buckets.

Michigan State guard Steve Smith scored the first five points of the game before the Flames outscored the Spartans 9-2.

The Spartans eventually fell 13 points behind midway through the first half, but got back into the game by slowing the tempo. Michigan State outscored the much smaller Flames 21-10 in the last 10 minutes of the half and trailed by only 34-32 at halftime, the Spartans' last points coming on Ken Redfield's 35-foot shot at the buzzer.

Reds send right-hander Leary to Yankees for minor league pair

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees said they needed to add another starting pitcher and they did Tuesday, acquiring Tim Leary from the Cincinnati Reds for two minor leaguers.

The Yankees, whose 4.50 earned-run average was the second-worst in baseball last season behind Detroit, sent outfielder Hal Morris and right-hander Rodney Imes to the Reds for Leary and minor-league outfielder Van Snider.

Leary, 31, is a right-hander with a 3.52 ERA, joins Andy Hawkins and Pascual Perez as definite starters. Leary said he wasn't apprehensive about coming to the Yankees, whose constant turmoil was one of the reasons Mark Legasteano and Mark Davis turned down George Steinbrenner's millions and signed elsewhere.

"There's always that unknown factor," Leary said from his home in Los Angeles. "You read and hear about the controversy going on. That's something I'll get to see first hand. I'm just looking forward to pitching. The other stuff doesn't really bother me."

Leary was a star at UCLA when the New York Mets picked him in the first round of the June 1979 draft. He was 15-8 at Class AA Jackson of the Texas League in 1980 and the Mets brought him up to the majors to start the 1981 season. But he strained a muscle in his right elbow at Wausau, Wis., in his major-league debut and did not pitch again in the major leagues until 1983.

Leary was 1-1 for the Mets in 1983, 3-3 in 1984 and then was dealt to Milwaukee. He was 1-4 for the Brewers in 1985 and 12-12 in 1986 before Milwaukee traded him to Sacramento, Calif., or back to Oakland, Calif., the city in which the Raiders originally played.

Riordan said that under the "very detailed" proposal offer to Davis on Tuesday, the state of California would lease the land on which the Coliseum sits to MCA Inc., in another bid by Coliseum officials Tuesday to keep the professional football team in Los Angeles.

"He said he would get back to us in the next few days," Coliseum Commission President Richard Riordan said after a meeting with Davis, representatives of the Spectator, Management Group, which manages the Coliseum, Riordan, and Coliseum Commissioner Dominic Rubiclavio.

"I would say I'm still a bit pessimistic about Davis accepting the offer," Riordan added. "But I think the odds against it have narrowed."

Davis, who in the past has expressed dissatisfaction with offers by Coliseum officials, currently is considering competitive offers that would move his team to Sacramento, Calif., or back to Oakland, Calif., the city in which the Raiders originally played.

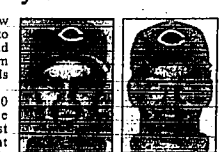

Riordan said that under the "very detailed" proposal offer to Davis on Tuesday, the state of California would lease the land on which the Coliseum sits to MCA Inc., in another bid by Coliseum officials Tuesday to keep the professional football team in Los Angeles.

which would demolish most of the existing stadium which was designed for the present size to accommodate the 1932 Olympics and later the 1984 Olympics.

Preserving only the peristyle end of the 95,000-seat Coliseum, Riordan said, MCA would build a new stadium, seating 60,000 to 70,000, "with state-of-the-art sightlines and luxury boxes."

"It would be as nice as any stadium in the country," the commission president said.

Riordan said that if Davis were to approve the offer with dispatch — and the state agrees right away — construction of the new stadium here would begin after the end of the team's 1990 season.

LEARY SNIDER

Shoshone

Junior Tammy O'Maley finally found her shooting touch scoring 13 points to lead the Indians.

O'Maley led the Indians in offense in the second quarter with teammate Angie Hibbard with four points each while Hagerman was trying to score. Raelene Duffin and Stormie King added two points apiece in the quarter and Shoshone took a comfortable 23-11 lead at the break.

In the second half, Shoshone went into a passing game to run down the clock while taking few shots. In fact, the Indians only put up a dozen shots in the second half.

"The girls have worked on that during practice. We haven't gotten a chance to use it much this year, but we moved it around," said Shoshone coach Ed Sandy.

Still, Hagerman kept coming back cutting the Indians' lead down to four points on a number of occasions, but did not come no closer.

In the fourth quarter, the Indians led by as many as nine points when O'Maley opened the quarter popping a three-pointer, and a Keri Anderson bucket midway through the period trimmed that lead to 31-27.

Hagerman closed the gap with three minutes left in the quarter, but two King free throws at the end closed the door and put the game out of reach.

"It's nice to get back on track," said Sandy, whose squad broke a two-game losing streak with the victory. "We haven't been playing well. We rebounded well tonight and they didn't get lots of second shots."

Declo

Ruffing, Whitekiend, Karen Hulst and Brandy Mason scored 12 of their teams 14 points, all coming from inside 10 feet.

"In the second quarter we were outplayed on the inside," remarked Payne.

Even though the Trojans outscored the Hornets 14-11 in the third quarter they still trailed by 11, 35-24, at the half.

"You have to give them credit for all phases of their game," said Thackeray.

The second half was all Declo as they started the half by outscoring the Trojans 18-10 in the third quarter.

Most of the damage in the third was done by Kidd, who had eight points including four off layups.

Three others, Knowles, Shaliese Turner and Kim Darrington, added two baskets each to blow open the game.

"Our guards didn't take the ball inside," said Thackeray.

It was more of a couldn't rather than a didn't, as the Hornets shot down the inside game of the Trojans.

By the time the fourth quarter rolled around, the Hornets were in complete control of the game and were able to go to their bench and give some of their reserves some playing time.

The loss, the Trojans scored in 8-4 overall and 4-2 in the conference.

The Hornets will next go home with the Valley Vikings on Thursday before facing the Malad Dragons next Tuesday in Declo while the Trojans travel to Filer for a Thursday night game.

"The good thing about this club is that we don't have to rely on one person. Everybody works together. Everybody comes through," explained Payne.

The only bright spot in the third quarter for the Trojans was the play of Whitekiend and Wendy Fleming. Whitekiend scored six of her 10 points in the quarter while Fleming added the Trojans' other four points.

In the quarter it was the Hornets man-to-man defense that stopped the Trojans—Declo prevented the Trojans guard from being able to get the ball to the inside.

"Our guards didn't take the ball inside," said Thackeray.

It was more of a couldn't rather than a didn't, as the Hornets shot down the inside game of the Trojans.

Coliseum officials bid to keep Raiders; offers to build new stadium on old site

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Raiders owner Al Davis was offered a new, $145 million stadium to be built on the site of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum in another bid by Coliseum officials Tuesday to keep the professional football team in Los Angeles.

"He said he would get back to us in the next few days," Coliseum Commission President Richard Riordan said after a meeting with Davis, representatives of the Spectator, Management Group, which manages the Coliseum, Riordan, and Coliseum Commissioner Dominic Rubiclavio.

"I would say I'm still a bit pessimistic about Davis accepting the offer," Riordan added. "But I think the odds against it have narrowed."

Davis, who in the past has expressed dissatisfaction with offers by Coliseum officials, currently is considering competitive offers that would move his team to Sacramento, Calif., or back to Oakland, Calif., the city in which the Raiders originally played.

Riordan said that under the "very detailed" proposal offer to Davis on Tuesday, the state of California would lease the land on which the Coliseum sits to MCA Inc., in another bid by Coliseum officials Tuesday to keep the professional football team in Los Angeles.

which would demolish most of the existing stadium which was designed for the present size to accommodate the 1932 Olympics and later the 1984 Olympics.

Preserving only the peristyle end of the 95,000-seat Coliseum, Riordan said, MCA would build a new stadium, seating 60,000 to 70,000, "with state-of-the-art sightlines and luxury boxes."

"It would be as nice as any stadium in the country," the commission president said.

Riordan said that if Davis were to approve the offer with dispatch — and the state agrees right away — construction of the new stadium here would begin after the end of the team's 1990 season.

E. German sports leadership resigns

EAST BERLIN (AP) — The federation leadership in recent months, A.D.N. reported.

The resignations came despite a warning against rash decisions in June Welt, the Communist youth newspaper, which headlined a commentary Tuesday, "No place for hysteria."

Junge Welt said Eichler was unanimously confirmed in his post 10 days ago. But a few days later, some of the same delegates reversed themselves and called for his resignation, the paper said.

"One has the feeling that also in sports, there is more and more anarchy," it said.

Eichler "is no magician who has concepts and finances up his sleeve," Junge Welt said. "To voice someone out also means knowing there is an alternative, someone better, in the wings."

The paper suggested this may not be the case and said East Germany's sports world should take time "to reach reality."

In a sign of the entire issue's urgency, Premier Hans Modrow met Monday with athletes and officials for discussions marked by "deep concern" over the future of sports in East Germany, the official news agency ADN reported.

Modrow said he wanted to maintain "the respected place" of competition sports but stressed that "much more attention must be paid to sports for all," ADN said.

Speculation of corruption in the federation was fueled when Franz Rydz, the vice president for finance, apparently drowned himself after $162,000 was found in his desk. East German investigators are trying to determine what the money was used for.

With their status endangered, top athletes have called for opening the East German sports machine through commercial sponsors.

A statement signed by 192 athletes, including Olympic shot put champion Ulf Timmermann, called on the sports leadership to them a decision today on the ACC tournament.

Valvano said it would have been inappropriate to ban his team from the ACC tournament.

"I don't think that our participation would adversely affect anyone," he said, noting that as many as six ACC teams usually qualify for the tournament on records alone.

"I think our conference has that relative strength that prior to the tournament you know who is in," he said.

N.C. State earned $707,000 from last year's NCAA tournament.

The NCAA investigation, sparked by allegations of wrongdoing in the 1988 "Pumpkin Bowl," said that in the four years examined "there were as many as 650 erroneous designations" of tickets intended for players' families and that "an excessive number of shoes were issued with little or no effort to keep track of the shoes."

Tickets were sold or exchanged for merchandise worth up to $150 each, the NCAA said. Shoes, valued at $75 per pair, were traded for shoes and apparel of equal value at a local sporting goods store, the report said.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions agreed to adopt several of N.C. State's self-imposed penalties, including tighter controls over tickets and shoes, reassigning personnel in the athletics department and curtailing recruiting and basketball scholarships.

"This is not a typical major infractions case that we usually deal with," said Charles Smith, NCAA director of infractions. "This is not where there's academic irregularities. This is not a case where there are cash payments" to athletes.

"Personal Fouls," written by Peter Chelodis, chairman of the committee, changed and positive drug tests kept secret to keep players eligible. In a telephone interview from Pompano Beach, Fla., he said he was surprised the NCAA focused on players instead of "the tandem of Valvano and former Chancellor Bruce Poulton."

"During the NCAA investigation, one of the players sent me the questions that they were being asked," he said. "Those questions only concerned things that the players had done. It was almost as though they were using the players as scapegoats."

Golenbock said he was pleased that Poulton resigned and that Valvano had stepped down as athletic director, and that they were replaced by men "committed to an academic-first concept."

"I think the book made its impact, and I'm pleased about that," he said.

"And I'm pleased for my sources who had the guts to speak out."

Valvano said he hoped his 16th-ranked team would be able to weather the probation.

"One thing that this team has displayed is the ability to handle adversity, and we certainly have had our share," he said. "I would expect them to continue to do so."

As for himself, Valvano said, "If I ask my players to see the good in this, the same is true for me."

The coach maintained he had no knowledge of any violations.

"We did not have any individual in any level of our department who intended to violate any rule, but we did not have in place the proper procedure to ensure that no rules would be violated," he said.

Monteith said the university is "committed to take actions necessary to convince the public we run the program with integrity." As for possible firings, he said, "No personnel actions are called for at this time. None will be taken based solely on this report."

Monteith declined to give Valvano a vote of confidence, but Valvano said he wasn't surprised.

"This is a matter on which Dr. Monteith and I have continuing discussions," he said, adding that he will not resign.

"I told you a long time ago, and I'll say it again — being part of the problem, being part of the solution was always important to me," Valvano said. "I have a commitment to young people here and to the department."

Several thousand Bulgarians gather to show their silent support for changes in the country's communist system.

Bulgarians rally to keep reforms coming

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Thousands of people milled Tuesday to make sure the Communists keep their promises of reform, and a high official said the party lacks capable people to promote its doctrine and manage the economy.

Party chief K. Mladenov proposed Monday that the party talk with independent groups and give up its guaranteed monopoly on power, and that free elections be held by May.

Mladenov, formerly foreign minister, took office when Todor Zhivkov and his Stalinist old guard were forced out Nov. 10. Zhivkov had been in power 35 years.

A policy-making Central Committee meeting was in its second day Tuesday and demonstrations continued in the plaza outside the building.

About 20,000 people gathered there Tuesday evening for a candlelight vigil, the third such quiet demonstration in two days.

Some put their candles on window edges of the Central Committee headquarters — "because it's right under their noses," two young men explained.

A guard soon came, blew out the candles and threw them away.

One young man when asked whether he thought the party leaders would notice the candles, replied: "They don't have any choice. We are the reform."

A nearby demonstrator declared: "It's right under their temple. Let's hope sooner or later we are going to bring that temple down."

Earlier Tuesday, 3,000 assembled in the plaza for a daylight vigil.

Georgi Grigorov, "new" first secretary of the Sofia Communist Party committee, told the meeting the party was "beneaded as to personnel," in desperate need of competent economic managers and ideologists, the official news agency BTA reported.

He said one of the most serious threats was, in the agency's paraphrase, "conservatism as a vestige of the (old) command-type administrative system" — of the Zhivkov years.

Deyan Kuranov, a spokesman for the influential environmental group Eco-Glasnost, said Tuesday the party had "regained some face" through Mladenov's speech to Central Committee.

On Monday, Eco-Glasnost became the first officially registered independent group in Bulgaria.

Speaking with Western reporters, Kuranov said he thought independent groups would accept Mladenov's offer of immediate dialogue.

"At a rally on Sunday, more than 50,000 people cheered calls for the entire Central Committee to resign."

Independent groups that sponsored the demonstration have called for "round table" talks with the Communist leadership, like those held in Poland last spring and East Germany this month.

Kuranov also is active in the new Union of Democratic Forces alliance of 10 independent groups, and said it would "play a very active political role" in the elections Mladenov proposed.

He conceded there was little time for the opposition to organize, but predicted early elections would "act as a final political force for his alliance."

Of the new Communist Party chief, he said cautiously: "Mladenov has been doing okay so far, especially last night, so we might get along with him for the time being."

Some people questioned in the street were skeptical of Mladenov's ability to separate himself from the Zhivkov regime, in which he spent 18 years as foreign minister.

"I could trust Mladenov if he gained the peoples' trust," said a housepainter, who would not give his name. If the new leader "doesn't get rid of those around him, the people won't trust him," he said.

Many people, conditioned by the distrust and fear of two generations, refused to speak.

Drug lord sentenced for U.S. agent's death

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Drug kingpin Rafael Caro Quintero was sentenced Tuesday to 40 years imprisonment for masterminding the murder of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena, the government said.

The sentence was handed down by Judge Tomas Hernandez Franco of the 4th Criminal Court in Guadalajara, said Rene Hernandez, a spokesman for the attorney general's office. Attorney General Enrique Alvarez del Castillo scheduled a news conference here to provide details.

The killing of Camarena, a U.S. agent based in Mexico, and the subsequent investigation strained relations between Mexico and the United States. U.S. officials said the Mexicans allowed Caro Quintero to accept to Costa Rica, where he was finally hunted down.

At one point, U.S. Customs virtually blocked the border by conducting full searches of all Mexicans trying to enter the United States in an effort to put pressure on the Mexican government.

The year-old administration of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari has made vigorous efforts to change Mexico's image as a haven for drug traffickers and corruption, jailing top drug lords and ousting many corrupt officials.

Caro Quintero, who pioneered links with Colombia's cocaine cartels to smuggle drugs into the United States via Mexico, is serving a 34-year term in another case for illegal possession and sale of drugs.

Camarena was kidnapped Feb. 7, 1985, in Guadalajara, capital of Jalisco state and a major drug-trafficking center about 350 miles west of Mexico City. His Mexican pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar, was also abducted.

Their bullet-riddled bodies, showing signs of torture, were found March 5.

Developing nations could save their own

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Third World nations could save 7.6 million of their own children from death by disease every year by shifting a small part of their military expenditures to health care, UNICEF said Tuesday.

Developing countries spend a total of $143 billion a year on their military establishments, James P. Grant, executive director of UNICEF, the U.N. Children's Fund, said in his annual report.

He said nearly 8,000 children die each day in the Third World because they are not immunized, almost 7,000 a day die of dehydration caused by diarrhea and about 6,000 of pneumonia, for a total of 7.6 million.

The cost of immunizing all children and providing medicines for dehydration and pneumonia would be about $2.5 billion a year, Grant said in his report, "The State of the World's Children — 1990."

"It is a great deal of money," Grant said. "It is as much as the Soviet Union has been spending on vodka. It is as much as U.S. companies have been spending on advertising cigarettes. It is as much as 10 percent of the EEC's annual subsidy to its farmers. It is as much as 2 percent of the developing world's military spending."

In the report, Grant said Third World countries spend "almost $1 billion every day" for the military and interest on foreign debt. "Two essentially unproductive activities."

At a news conference Tuesday in Washington, he said: "It is in the power of industrial countries to significantly reduce the debt burden, which is taking such a tremendous toll."

Because of such unproductive drains on resources, he wrote in the report, education spending per pupil has dropped by 25 percent in the 37 poorest countries in the past decade, and health spending has fallen in most of Africa and Latin America.

Czech old-guards lose last major jobs

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Old guard Communists lost their last important jobs Tuesday, and the argument over whether Vaclav Havel will crown the peaceful revolution by becoming president moved into Parliament.

The presidential contest is the last round for an opposition that transformed Czechoslovakia in three weeks from a rigid Communist state to a society in which the party is giving up power for the first time in 41 years.

Central Prague was plastered with posters of Havel, an often-jailed playwright whose works were banned until the revolution began. About 500 people stood outside Parliament, shouting his name as deputies entered.

Under the constitution, Parliament has until Dec. 23 to choose a successor to Gustav Husak, 76, who resigned Sunday after swearing in a coalition government designed to overturn his hard-line policies and arrange free elections for next year.

Several members of the new government were jailed or forced to take lowly jobs when Husak became Communist Party chief after a Soviet-led invasion ended the "Prague Spring" of reform in 1968.

Other remaining hard-liners were swept out Tuesday, forced to resign from the Presidium that includes Parliament.

The 15 who stepped down include ousted party chief Milos Jakes, who was expelled from party last week and Vasil Bilak, the man held most responsible for the invasion. They remain as deputies.

Anton Blazek, a deputy speaking for the Communists who dominate the 350-seat Parliament, proposed Tuesday that the constitutional be amended to allow a citizen referendum to choose a president within a month.

His suggestion was applauded loudly in the televised session, but he could not muster enough support to pass the necessary constitutional amendments by acclamation.

Bohuslav Kucera, acting speaker, said draft laws must be submitted. Theoretically, that could happen in the next session Wednesday.

British allow Nazi prosecutions

LONDON (AP) — Legislators voted Tuesday to allow the first prosecutions in Britain of alleged Nazi war criminals, opening the way for what critics called the "show trials" of three aging emigrants suspected of mass murders of Jews.

The 348-123 vote in the House of Commons meant that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government is virtually certain to introduce legislation next year to have the men charged.

Butley Kucera, acting speaker, said draft laws must be submitted. Theoretically, that could happen in the next session Wednesday.

Home Secretary David Waddington urged the trials, saying: "It is the instinctive wish of most of us to get on with our lives in peace and not to rake over the past."

But sometimes one is brought face to face with facts that cannot be buried."

After Parliament passes legislation to enable naturalized British citizens to be prosecuted for crimes committed abroad, the office of the Attorney General will have to decide whether individual prosecutions should go ahead.

British forcing Vietnamese to return to native land

LONDON (AP) — Britain on Tuesday defended its first forced repatriation of 51 Vietnamese from Hong Kong and challenged countries protesting to open their doors instead.

The United States urged Britain to halt mandatory repatriation. Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said it was "unacceptable until conditions improve in Vietnam."

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said there would be no more forced repatriations until a House of Commons debate on Dec. 19, although he said Britain still plans to deport 44,000 Vietnamese from its colony.

"Unless it is clear to people in Vietnam that those who do not qualify for refuge will be returned to Vietnam-Hong Kong faces the prospect of tens of thousands more arrivals in 1990. This is simply not an acceptable prospect," he said.

The United States, Canada and the international human rights organization Amnesty International had appealed to Britain to halt the repatriation.

But Hong Kong security forces went ahead, routing 51 Vietnamese men, women and children from their beds before dawn Tuesday and putting them on a chartered jet to Hanoi. Vietnam accepted them but criticized the action.

"This conjures up every pleasure I have in my mind of World War II concentration camps," said Rep. Chet Atkins, D-Mass., in Washington. "How can the British forget history's most agonizing lesson and repeat so many of its horrors?"

Hong Kong houses about 57,000 Vietnamese boat people, more than 90 percent from North Vietnam, in squalid camps rife with violence and malnutrition. There were fears that the first forced repatriations might touch off protests but a Hong Kong government spokesman said Tuesday night that the camps were quiet.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said it was more humane to repatriate Vietnamese who cannot prove they face political persecution within a month.

"Those countries who are protesting at their return would do far better if they offered to take some of them," she told the House of Commons, amid taunts and jeers from the opposition.

Ethiopia allows food aid

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The government of Ethiopia has agreed to establish a corridor for emergency food aid into its embattled and drought-stricken north, Kenya's president said Tuesday.

President Daniel arap Moi said he had asked Ethiopia's two main rebel groups to drop the snare and "to stop fighting when this food aid is being delivered. I hope they will do so."

He said the rebels had not responded to his request.

Moi said he asked Ethiopian President Mengistu Haile Mariam to create a corridor for food aid to pass to the people of Tigré and Eritrea. He has accepted that request. "It was not clear if Moi was referring to people in government-held areas, in war zones or in both."

The United Nations says the drought in Ethiopia's northern provinces of Eritrea, Tigré, Gondar and Wollo threatens as many as 4 million people with starvation, and it has urged international donors to provide 600,000 tons of emergency relief food. Ethiopia's government disputes the U.N. figure and claims the real number of people threatened with famine is 1.8 million.

About half the people threatened with famine live behind rebel lines. Relief agencies fear mass migrations of the hungry to government-held areas in search of food.

Such migrations in the 1984-85 famine led to vast, overcrowded and unsanitary camps.

Superpower detente won't stop rise in Japan's defense outlays

TOKYO (AP) — Japan is not letting its military guard down despite the easing of East-West tensions in Europe.

Even after the sessions between President Bush and Mikhail S. Gorbachev off Malta, officials here say Japan's defense budget will continue the decade-long upward momentum that has made this country one of the world's top military spenders.

"Our own efforts for improving our self-defense are not expected to change at the moment," Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said at a news conference when asked if the Bush-Gorbachev meetings would affect Japan's military spending.

Seiki Nishihori, vice minister of defense, says recent movements in U.S.-Soviet relations would be considered. But he told reporters Japan must continue its policy to reach the minimum standards of military preparedness set out in 1976. Japan and the Soviet Union have yet to sign a treaty to formally end World War II.

"There may have been a change in the Soviets' mood with the recent detente, but we haven't seen any practical reduction in force," said a Defense Agency official, who requested anonymity. "We can't start cutting our forces just because they say they plan to cut theirs."

Washington agrees with Japan about Soviet forces in Northeast Asia, but is talking about cutting its own defense outlays. The U.S. Congress, meanwhile, is calling on Japan to spend more to help make U.S. reductions possible.

Under heavy pressure from Capitol Hill, President Bush has signed a defense bill that urges Japan to increase its military spending and requires the U.S. executive to negotiate an agreement for Japan to completely offset the costs of maintaining the 50,000 American servicemen and women stationed here.

Japan currently shoulders about $2.8 billion, or 45 percent, of the annual expenses for the Americans in Japan. The Japanese government has refused official comment on the bill signed by Bush.

Because of sensitivities caused by Japan's defeat in World War II, Japan generally has observed a self-imposed ceiling of 1 percent of gross national product on its defense spending.

Although that mark has been surpassed slightly each year since 1985, critics in the United States call the ceiling artificially low, and compare it to the annual U.S. defense budget of $300 billion, or roughly 6 percent of GNP. Western estimates put Soviet military spending at roughly 15 percent to 25 percent of GNP.

Tokyo has increased expenditures to support its 274,000 military personnel by about 5 percent in real terms every year since 1980, and its current defense outlays are roughly equal to those of Britain, West Germany or France.

Expenditures under Japan's current five-year plan will total $76.5 billion, and next year's budget is expected to top 4 trillion yen ($27.8 billion).

The increases have helped Japan create a sophisticated anti-submarine network in straits vital to the Soviet navy in the northwest Pacific and build up an impressive number of advanced fighter jets, which by 1990 will reach roughly 300 — about the same number deployed by the U.S. Air Force to defend the continental United States.

The buildup, however, risks alienating Asian countries that harbor bitter memories of Japanese invasions before and during World War II.

At the same time, anti-military sentiment in Japan, coupled with a Constitution that bans the use of military force, has restricted the operations of the Japanese Self-Defense Forces, making it difficult for Japanese politicians to meet U.S. demands or their own goals to expand the military.

troops should be allowed to take part in United Nations cease-fire missions, emergency rescues after natural disasters and other non-lethal tasks abroad.

"All we are suggesting is that Japan do what is common sense for other nations," Kimura said. "Some people around say that Japan is willing to put out the money, but not the sweat."

After an unprecedented victory in Diet elections last summer, the leading opposition Socialist Party called for declaring Japan a nuclear-free zone and conducting strict searches to ensure U.S. Navy ships entering Japanese ports do not carry nuclear weapons.

The U.S. 7th Fleet is based in Yokosuka, just south of Tokyo, and a nuclear-free zone would challenge U.S. policy of not revealing the location of the Navy's nuclear arms.

Like a wall between Soviet Asia and the Pacific Ocean, Japan is both a first line of defense against the Soviet military and a crucial U.S. ally should war break out.

About 60 percent of all Soviet ground and air force divisions and 90 percent of the bombers in the Far East are deployed near Japan, according to "Defense of Japan 1989," a Defense Agency report. The Soviet Pacific Fleet, the largest in the Soviet navy, has its home port in Vladivostok.

The Soviets also have about 10,000 soldiers on the southern Kurils, several small islands off Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, the report said.

Japan claims the islands, known as the Northern Territories, which were occupied by the Soviets after World War II, and the territorial dispute has kept Japan and the Soviet Union from signing a treaty officially ending their World-War-II hostilities.

U.S. Ambassador Michael H. Armacost, in a recent interview, said Soviet forces in the region "exceed any defensive requirements," and meaningful reductions have not been made.

Japan debates role of foreign workers

Deutsche Presse-Agentur

TOKYO — Japan now finds itself in a dilemma over the acceptance of foreign workers.

Companies want them to fill a labor shortage in a booming economy, but the government remains cautious, saying it would undermine working conditions for Japanese and pose threats to public safety.

In a recent survey of 4,100 private companies by the Labor Ministry, the manpower shortage was reported to be affecting two-thirds of them. The report cited company officers as saying that "a serious labor shortage continues, we will go bankrupt." A recent poll by the Asahi Shimbun newspaper reported that 56 percent of people surveyed nationwide said Japan should temporarily admit unskilled foreign workers.

But these findings contrast with Tokyo's policy of barring unskilled foreign workers.

Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu told the first session of a ministerial forum on foreign workers Tuesday that Japan had been increasing the number of skilled foreign workers allowed into the country.

But he said necessary steps should be taken from a long-term perspective because accepting foreign workers would seriously affect the nation's society, economy, peace and order.

A revision of the Immigration Control and Refugee Law last Friday was the first concrete step toward permitting a higher number of foreign workers.

The revised laws allow for increased numbers of skilled foreign workers. But they continue to ban the employment of unskilled foreigners and stipulate stricter penalties to employers and brokers of illegal foreign workers.

The new provisions, employers and brokers of illegal foreign workers could be imprisoned or fined.

Experts, however, criticize the revised immigration-control law, saying that it falls short of protecting rights of foreign workers and does not effectively deal with the problem of illegal employment of unskilled foreigners in Japan.

Last year, the number of foreigners legally employed by Japanese private enterprises rose to 6,009, an 80 percent increase over the previous year. More than 100,000 foreigners are legally working in Japan now, according to authorities.

Authorities found more than 14,000 illegal foreign workers during 1988 and ordered them deported. The actual number of illegal foreign workers is estimated to be ten times higher.

Illegal workers mostly come from such Asian nations as the Philippines, Pakistan and Bangladesh, according to Justice Ministry officials.

Japan will temporarily halt South Pacific driftnet fishing

TOKYO (AP) — Japan will temporarily halt its drift-net fishing in the South Pacific by 1992 if steps have not been taken by then to preserve marine life in the region, the Foreign Ministry said today.

Environmentalists and South Pacific nations have criticized Japan and Taiwan for using giant drift nets in the region. The nets sweep as much as 30 miles off the ocean and critics say they kill virtually all fish and marine animals that swim into them.

"In the South Pacific we will stop, at least temporarily, the catching of albacore tuna by an agreed date, with the expectation that when management control measures for the preservation of marine resources are agreed upon, it will be reopened." Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said.

Watanabe did not say when Japan would halt the practice, but another Foreign Ministry official said it would be by 1992.

Kyodo News Service said Japanese and U.S. representatives at the United Nations had agreed on a draft resolution calling for an end to drift-net fishing in the region's international waters by June 30, 1992, except where protective measures have been taken.

ANSWER: Four hearts. A minimum opening, but the fit in partner's suits promotes this hand to a better-than-average opening bid.

A deuce from partner is not necessarily a command to switch. Sometimes it may be a forced play.
