Leapin' lizards! Will 'gators put the bite on Magic Valley?

By MARK KIND
Times-News writer

BUHL - The Magic Valley could gain another breed of livestock this spring: alligators.

"I've got facilities here - shoot, I could handle a thousand of them," said Leo Ray, owner of Fish Breeders of Idaho.

Alligators? In Idaho? Why?

"The market is for the hides and the meat," Ray explained.

But isn't Idaho too cold for alligators?

Not in a machine filled with geothermal water, Ray said.

Ray is investigating whether alligators can be raised for profit on his catfish farm. It's a dream he's had for about ten years. He thinks that the may have what it takes to grow bigger gators quicker and with lower costs than on farms in Florida, Louisiana and Georgia.

Alligators like it hot. They grow fastest at 90 degrees, Ray said.

In year-around hot water, gators grow to seven feet in about three years. If subjected to seasonal temperature changes, they grow at half that rate.

Southern growers incur large heating bills keeping their water warm in winter.

"It costs a lot of money heating these buildings," said Scott Rogers, owner of a 7,000-head alligator farm in Natchitoches, La.

Ray raises catfish northwest of Buhl, in raceways kept at a constant 90 degrees by low-cost geothermal water.

His plan is to cover one four-foot-deep raceway with sheet plastic and leave a foot of water running in the bottom. Then he could put in about 200 alligators and determine whether they're a viable economic venture.

Escape shouldn't be a problem.

"They can't crawl out of a four-foot raceway," he said. If they did, they wouldn't survive long in the frigid streams and rivers in the Magic Valley.

Southern farmers collect alligator eggs from swamps. One-fourth of the hatchlings must by law be returned to the wild when they reach four feet in length.

Ray said the alligator industry has thereby managed to restore wild populations of the once nearly extinct lizard. Thus, the industry might be more resistant to pressure from animal-rights activists than other industries that produce luxury clothing from animal skins.

Hides sell for about $45 per foot.

They're made into boots and handbags. The meat - which Leo called "very tasty" goes for about $9 per pound to exclusive restaurants around the United States.

"I think I could get as much out of the meat as I could out of the hide," he said.

Fish, beef and mink by-products - all in ample supply in the Magic Valley - could be fed to the gators.

But he's still not absolutely certain that he'll bring any of the gators up.

"It's got a lot of headaches. One of them is, 'What's going to happen with your workmen's compensation insurance?'"

Singing Bridge weight limits in effect Jan. 8

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Lower weight limits that go into effect Jan. 8 on the Singing Bridge will force trucks onto streets-not-designed-for-trucks - like an already congested Blue Lakes Boulevard.

The aging bridge is a crucial access point to industries on the south side of Twin Falls, a group that includes some of Twin Falls' largest employers. The speed at which the new weight limits will take effect sparked anger from area truckers and industry officials.

"Good lord, we can't react that fast," Longview Fibre VTC President Bob Goss said. "It's going to cause a lot of consternation in this end of town."

The Idaho Department of Transportation signed off on the bridge's current load limits, but declined to predict how long it could allow heavy truck traffic on the bridge.

A recent analysis found "some of the criticism was more critical than we thought," department District Engineer Loren Thomas said. "If we're going to go, we're going to go to the side of safety."

The transportation department lowered top-end load limits to 45 tons, with no more than 7 tons on each axle. That's just enough, truckers say, to get over the bridge. Passengers cars aren't affected.

The metal bridge suffers from cracked welds and corrosion, Thomas said.

The announcement angered many truckers who had been working fruitlessly on alternate and improved routes for trucks.

"It kind of feels like a slap in the face after we work with all these folks all these years," Twin Falls Truck and Equipment owner Cotton Crumbliss said.

In the short run, lower weight limits on the Singing Bridge will force trucks onto Twin Falls-area roads that aren't designed for truck traffic.

"There is no place you can go with trucks that is really a good alternate route," Crumbliss said. Some of the possible alternate routes, like Orchard Drive and Park Avenue, won't stand up to truck traffic, truckers say.

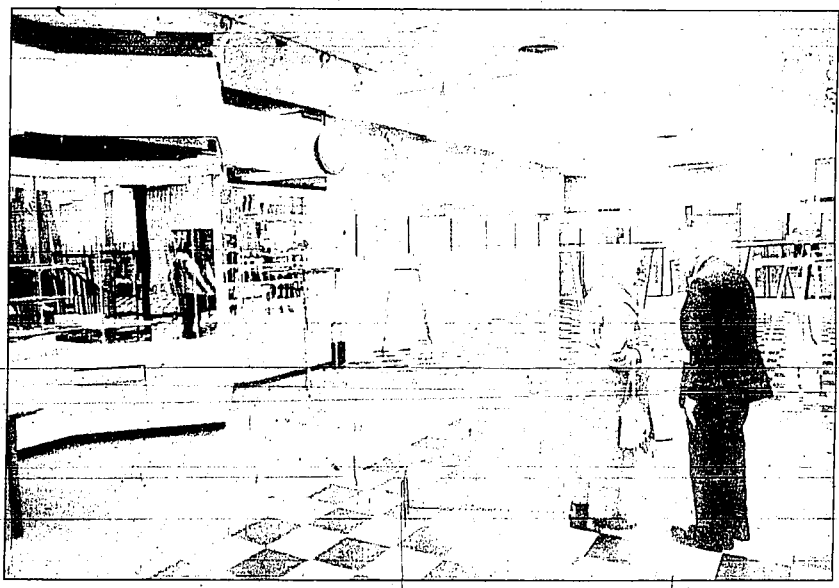

One of those roads probably will be Blue Lakes Boulevard, City Engineer Gary Young said.

The alternate routes are longer, harder to drive and, in some cases, more congested. And a new truck route hasn't been designated, making it hard for truckers from other areas to navigate their way over the Snake River Canyon, through or around Twin Falls and over Rock Creek Canyon.

"It has more than just Twin Falls implications," Twin Falls Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin said. "Trucks from all around here go over that bridge."

In an empty sales room at The Paris Co., a customer chats with Earl Faulkner before saying 'So long'

Shoppers say farewell to The Paris

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A rack of bras, a lone fur coat and discounted shoes were about all shoppers Friday found when they came to pay their last respects to The Paris Co.

The legendary downtown department store will open for one last breath at 10 a.m. today. But owner Earl Faulkner said he doesn't expect the remaining merchandise to linger much longer than an hour.

"I don't feel sad at all," said Faulkner, who started The Paris Co. in a tiny space in 1952. In the past 37 years, Faulkner's retail venture grew up to assume the elegance promised in its name. Crammed with designer dresses and pricey lingerie, The Paris Co. spanned 14,000 square feet, housed more than 51 million in inventory and employed more than 70 people.

Along with the famous pink-bag sales, the 78-year-old Faulkner and his gravel-voiced greetings became a distinctive Paris Co. trademark.

"I just wanted to say good-bye - and thanks," a shopper said Friday as she shook Faulkner's hand.

But not even the tears in the woman's eyes could shake Faulkner's businesslike demeanor. Faulkner has hung a $310,000 price tag on the downtown landmark. He expects he'll find a buyer in no time.

Several companies - including Pendleton Woolen Mills - have approached him about opening a small store in Twin Falls, and Faulkner said he'll "certainly take a look at it."

After blaming the Magic Valley Mall for luring away many Paris Co. customers, would Faulkner put his new store in the mall?

"I would think so, yes," he said.

As he looked out Friday afternoon at a sales floor now crammed only with memories, Faulkner remained the ever-pragmatic retailer.

U.S. lauds Vatican for Noriega efforts

The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama - The United States praised the Vatican on Friday for its efforts to ease Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega out of the Vatican mission where he has taken refuge, and U.S. forces detained two more top aides to the increasingly isolated former dictator.

The Vatican however said it would take steps - which it did not specify - if U.S. harassment of the papal embassy and Noriega does not stop.

"The nuncio is doing his best to convince General Noriega to abandon the nunciature on his own, by himself," said Joaquin Navarro, Vatican spokesman in Rome. "At the same time, he cannot force Noriega to leave nor can he consign him to U.S. forces."

For Noriega, leaving the embassy would be tantamount to surrendering to U.S. troops posted 10 feet from the gate. The troops are inspecting all cars, including that of papal nuncio Sebastian Laboa.

President Guillermo Endara said he expects Noriega "to be invited out of the nunciature soon. That's what we want." He said this would be "within days."

U.S. forces detained Noriega's personal doctor and chief economic adviser, bringing to six the number of top aides that have been arrested or have surrendered by leaving the embassy the last 48 hours.

Late in the afternoon U.S. troops turned down the volume on music that has been blaring through the neighborhood around the embassy. The music was still loud, but not as deafening at 150 yards as before.

U.S. troops later surrounded the residence of Nicaraguan Ambassador Antonio Ferrer and led to reporters within 100 yards. Shots were fired nearby, but their origin could not be determined.

The ambassador at an evening news conference said all personnel inside were ordered to evacuate and the premises were searched for weapons.

"This violates the principal foundations of the extraterritoriality of diplomatic missions," Ferrer said. "The North Americans are going to pay for it."

Ferrer said American troops that searched the building for about two hours seized five rifles inside the residence. Ferrer said the guns were for self-defense.

A U.S. Army colonel in charge of the operation later apologized and returned the rifles, Ferrer said.

Farm product prices at record levels

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Prices received by farmers for raw products averaged a record high in 1989, eclipsing the old 12-month mark set five years ago, according to preliminary figures released Friday by the Agriculture Department.

The department's "prices received" index had steamed along at a record pace all year and got an added kick in December.

Prices farmers got for raw products rose 0.7 percent from November to December, leaving the monthly average 2.1 percent above the level of December 1988.

Higher prices for hogs, cattle, milk and eggs were mostly responsible for the increase from the November average, the department's Agricultural Statistics Board said in its final report of the year. Lower prices were reported for lettuce, oranges, cotton and broilers.

Milk supports to be cut

By The Times-News and Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Agriculture Department announced Friday that the federal price support for milk produced by farmers will be reduced Jan. 1 to $10.10 per 100 pounds, a 50-cent cut from the current level.

But in the Magic Valley, like most other parts of the country, milk producers have been selling their milk at prices higher than the price support level.

"It's no particular surprise," said Mike Quensell, Twin Falls dairyman. The drop in the support price was anticipated in an agricultural forecast earlier this month.

Acting Secretary Roland R. Vautour said the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 authorized a reduction of up to 50 cents - the maximum announced today - if government purchases of surplus dairy products are expected to exceed five billion pounds of milk equivalent in 1990.

If the support had remained at $10.60 per hundredweight, 1990 purchases by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. would have been $1.5 billion more.

The December milk price was the highest on record and that the average price for hogs was the highest since October 1987.

Most of the price information was collected at mid-month before the Service said the preliminary 12-month price average for all farm commodities - about 147 percent of a 1977 base figure used for comparison - is the highest on record.

The previous high was 142 percent in 1984. The 1988 average was 138 percent.

No new figures were provided on prices farmers paid to meet expenses. That index is now computed only every three months. The most recent "prices paid" index, for October, was up 2.9 percent from the comparable 1988 figure.

On Dec. 20, the department's Economic Research Service issued income estimates showing that net cash income of farmers in 1989 may be between $52 billion and $57 billion, compared with a revised estimate of $57.2 billion in 1988. This would be the fourth straight year in which net cash income exceeded $50 billion.

Consumer food prices are estimated.

Thousands of Romanian secret police in custody, facing trials

The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Romania—Thousands of secret police loyal to Nicolae Ceausescu's shattered regime were reported in custody Friday and the new government said it would begin steering the country toward democracy.

The revolutionary government also said that it has begun putting secret police on trial.

The government, a disjointed collection of former officials and intellectuals that has changed almost daily, made new moves to strengthen its hold on the country and reiterated its commitment to free elections in April.

The leadership also changed the country's name and flag to reflect the clean break with Ceausescu's harsh Communist rule, which was toppled one week ago after 24 years of oppression.

The National Salvation

Committee, which has declared itself the interim government, pledged to honor all of Romania's international commitments, including membership in the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact military alliance.

The government had told Ceausescu loyalists still waging sporadic guerrilla attacks to lay down their arms by 5 p.m. Thursday or face execution.

Cazimir Ionescu, a vice president in the National Salvation

Committee's 145-member governing council, said Friday that several thousand loyalists had surrendered or been captured in the week since Ceausescu was toppled.

The government's newly formed Military Council issued a "last call" for surrender or else the pro-Ceausescu forces will face trial and be "summarily sentenced."

"The council said the army was 'in full control' nationwide and that military tribunals set up to put the special police forces on trial had begun their work "and will continue to try all acts of terrorism."

"Deputy Foreign Minister Corneliu Bogdan said he hoped the trials would involve 'due process,' but said he did not know how defendants would be judged.

"The death penalty may be abolished by then," he said.

He said the prisoners included some generals and high-ranking officers.

There was scattered shooting in the capital Thursday night, but Bogdan said "the main danger from the terrorists," has passed.

A snowstorm and high winds swept Bucharest on Friday. A column of about 20-30 tanks was seen rolling through the center of town with soldiers waving at people as they passed.

The provisional leadership announced it would honor all international commitments.

have totaled an estimated eight billion pounds, he said. With the reduction to $10, purchases are expected to be 7.4 billion pounds.

Utilizing price support operations for many other commodities, the dairy program does not give farmers direct federal payments. Instead, the CCC buys surplus cheese, non-fat dry milk and butter so that processors and handlers can pay dairy farmers at least the basic support rate for milk.

The CCC purchase price of butter will be reduced 11.25 cents per pound to $1.0925 per pound, the announcement said. Non-fat dry milk will be unchanged at 79 cents per pound. The price of block cheddar and barrel cheese will be reduced by 4.5 cents per pound to $1.11 and $1.07 per pound, respectively.

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yentler, who is on vacation, indicated by the National Milk Producers Federation not to reduce the 1990 milk support rate, contending that such a move would "prove seriously destabilizing to the dairy industry."

of department economists to have risen about 5.7 percent this year, the sharpest rise since 1981. They project food prices may rise 3 percent to 5 percent in 1990.

Based on the preliminary figures, the December price index for livestock and poultry rose 2.4 percent from November and averaged 9.7 percent more than a year ago.

The meat animal portion of the index was up 2.9 percent from November and 8.4 percent from December 1988. Dairy prices rose 2.5 percent from November and 18 percent from a year ago.

Crop prices, overall, declined 1.6 percent from November and 8.1 percent from December 1988, including lower prices for fruit, commercial vegetables and cotton. Food grains — wheat and rice — were up 2.9 percent from November but averaged 1.9 percent below a year ago.

Appeal filed against Latah landfill

MOSCOW (AP) — A neighboring property owner and a Moscow-based environmentalist have filed an appeal against a planned expansion of the Latah County Landfill.

Charles Brosious of the Environmental Defense Institute said Thursday that he is helping landowner Betty Scott appeal a Latah County Planning and Zoning Commission ruling to the Latah County Commission.

Planning commission members on Dec. 20 approved a permit for Latah Sanitation to expand the dump by 1.2 acres. That ended months of debate about the county's role in landfill operations.

But Brosious said the appeal focuses on the planning commission's failure to consider recommendations from the Latah County Solid Waste Advisory Committee.

Boise mayor can run for governor

BOISE (AP) — Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne should resign his city position if he decides to run for governor, says state Sen. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, who also is a potential Republican candidate.

"If he wants to run, he needs to resign," Ms. Gilbert said Thursday. But she added that Kempthorne would be making a big mistake seeking the GOP nomination to challenge Democrat Gov. Cecil Andrus next year.

Kempthorne, who was re-elected to a second four-year term as mayor last month, said on Wednesday that running for governor in 1990 is "one of a variety of options," a statement similar to one he made on the subject before his re-election.

Legally, the mayor would not have to resign his job to run for governor. If he did resign, the Boise City Council would appoint a new mayor to serve until the next city election in 1991.

Murder trial moved from Grangeville

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — The Jan. 22 trial of a Peck woman charged in last September's death of Idaho County Sheriff's Deputy John Huston will be moved from Grangeville to Moscow.

Second District Judge John Bengtson on Thursday granted a change of venue request for Reva J. Hallberg, 33, who has pleaded innocent to felony counts of involuntary vehicular manslaughter, drunken driving and leaving the scene of an injury accident.

Huston, 33, was hit by a car and killed the night of Sept. 22 while manning a roadblock on U.S. Highway 95, about two miles north of Grangeville. Ms. Hallberg was arrested a few hours later.

Bengtson said Thursday that local pretrial publicity, including the fact that Ms. Hallberg has two previous drunken-driving convictions, could make it impossible for her to get a fair trial in Idaho County. That concern, along with a backed-up court calendar, prompted him to move the trial to Moscow where a larger pool of prospective jurors is available.

Gem court voids drug conviction

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The conviction of an Ada County man for growing marijuana has been overturned by the state Court of Appeals because police misled the magistrate in getting the search warrant needed to make the case against him.

The unanimous three-member court sent the case back to 4th District Judge George Carey on Friday, ordering that the marijuana plants seized with the search warrant could not be used as evidence in any further criminal proceedings against Danny Jardine.

Judge Jesse Walters, writing for the appellate court, accepted Jardine's argument that the warrant was flawed because police left out critical information that would probably have made the magistrate question whether police had probable cause to conduct a search the house Jardine was renting.

"Police sought the warrant after receiving an anonymous tip that Jardine was growing marijuana with fluorescent 'grow' lights. To back up the request, they told the magistrate that the basement windows of the house were covered with reflective material and a comparative analysis of the electric bills for the house showed Jardine used an average of 453 percent more electricity than 'the previous occupant.'"

Court rules on worker comp limits

BOISE (AP) — A divided Idaho Supreme Court has held that the one-year time limit for seeking workers' compensation for the effects of an occupational disease begins running only after the employee has become totally disabled.

Justice Stephen Bistline, writing for the majority, ordered on Friday the reinstatement of the claim of former Idaho National Engineering Laboratory worker Michael Cawley, who suffered pleural lung disease after being exposed to radioactive material in 1956, when he was 42. He first began having lung problems two years later although the cause was not isolated for another decade.

The Industrial Commission dismissed the case on grounds that Cawley was aware of the cause of his disease by early 1978 but did not file his workers' compensation claim until mid-1979, over a year later.

Bistline, joined by Justice Larry Boyle and acting Justice James Herndon, said the time-limit was triggered not only when the claimant knew his work caused the occupational disease but also after the disease had totally disabled him. Although Cawley left INEL in 1974, he continued working for other government agencies as a machinist until 1985.

Justice Byron Johnson, while agreeing that the case should be reinstated, said the majority's interpretation was extreme.

State law says the time limitation is triggered by the worker suffering "incapacity, disability or death," and Johnson said that although there is only a legal definition of disability as meaning "total incapacity," that definition recognizes various degrees of incapacity that would trigger the time limitation prior to total disability.

But Bistline maintained the law refers "not to a partial incapacity but rather to the total incapacity, citing a 1977 case in which the court held there can be no compensation for an occupational disease unless the worker has been totally disabled."

Federal agency could repeal Simplot permit

POCATELLO (AP) — The new operating permit issued last week to J.R. Simplot Co. for its Pocatello phosphate fertilizer plant was premature and could be found invalid, a federal official says.

Dave Bray, an Environmental Protection Agency scientist in Seattle, said his agency is reviewing the permit the Idaho Air Quality Bureau issued to Simplot on Dec. 18. If emission reductions claimed by the company have not been met, the entire permit could be voided, he said.

"We urged them not to issue it," Bray said. "We didn't know if the emission reductions had been achieved or whether the permit would be valid."

But John Ledger, Air Quality Bureau chief, disputes that claim. He said EPA drafted, and approved issuance of, the permit.

"We talked that over with EPA and discussed the permit, and they said it was OK," he said.

Simplot claimed Emission Reduction Credits, or ERCs, at its phosphate fertilizer plant in 1985 and 1986 as part of a $50 million modernization and expansion project.

ERCs allowed Simplot to "bank" credits earned by reducing fluoride and particulate emissions in the plant and to use them to offset pollution increases elsewhere.

"I think the biggest concern we have right now is whether they have met the emission reductions that we have claimed," Bray said.

At a September hearing, environmentalists argued Simplot should be denied a new operating permit until it reduces its emissions and the state develops a strategy to bring the industrial area west of Pocatello into compliance with air quality regulations.

Meanwhile, a local environmental group is considering appealing the permit issuance.

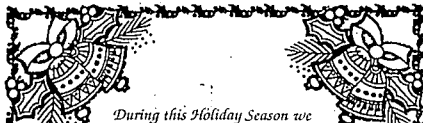

"I think there are going to be some reasons for a legitimate appeal," said Roger Turner, a member of the Citizens Task Force on Air and Toxics.

In addition, EPA is putting pressure on the state to develop an implementation plan to bring the area west of Pocatello into air quality compliance.

Lorinda Ramos, EPA engineer, said her agency has withheld $116,000 in funds from the state over the last two years for failing to meet the plan deadline due in March 1988.

"But that is not uncommon. Nationwide, they are running behind," she said.

Navy looking hard at budget cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is proposing to put two of its four battleships in mothballs and limit purchases of the $1.2 billion Trident submarine to every other year, a senior Pentagon official says.

But the service, studying proposals for the new fiscal-year budget, is fighting to spare at least 14 aircraft carriers from White House pressures to trim the military's most favored weapons programs.

President Bush, who is slated to deliver his budget to Congress on Jan. 22, may be called upon to make his final decisions on any suggested cuts, given their controversial nature.

"We're robbing Peter to pay Paul," the Pentagon official said of the current budget-juggling exercise. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Fiscal 1991 spending plan will be a key barometer of the Pentagon's ability to respond to pressures from budget cutters on Capitol Hill and in the Office of Management and Budget.

White House budget planners have told Defense Secretary Dick Cheney he can spend a little more than $292 billion in the new budget year, which begins next Oct. 1. That means Pentagon spending won't keep pace with inflation, which the administration has projected will increase at an average rate of 4.1 percent.

Congress may nix retirement funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The much-criticized custom in which senior members of Congress may pocket leftover campaign funds when they retire or suffer defeat at the polls is targeted for repeal under newly-minted ethics legislation.

But this wouldn't take effect until 1993 as lawmakers are reluctant to slam the door too quickly. Thus, they are giving themselves a chance to run for one more term and then retire with the funds.

"I think there are some members who will take advantage of it," says Rep. Al Swift, D-Wash., an advocate of abolishing the practice. "But I don't think you're talking about a massive movement. I would be surprised if it were more than you could count on one hand."

"I have something in the vicinity of 200 grand in my campaign fund and I have no intention whatever of retiring," he says.

Under a bill approved before Congress adjourned for the holidays, lawmakers raised their pay from the current level $89,500 for both houses to $96,600 for House members next year and $124,400 in 1991. Senate pay would rise to $98,400 in 1990 and $101,400 the year thereafter.

Award doesn't wash with publisher

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — The Sioux publisher of the Lakota Times said Friday he has returned the H.L. Mencken Writing Award he won in 1985 because of racist and sexist remarks Mencken made in his recently published diaries.

"I feel very strongly that everything that I have fought for in the last 20 years to try and improve race relations ... it just wouldn't wash if I accepted an award and kept an award from a person that has attitudes that are so bigoted," said Tim Gingo, a member of the Oglala Sioux tribe. His weekly paper is named for the dominant Sioux language.

"I have a strong feeling that this kind of subtle racism, by people that are in a position to help, is probably the worst form of racism."

"We can deal with outright, blatant, redneck racism because it's right there in front of us," he said. "But it is very hard to deal with that kind of racism by people in prominent positions, especially in the media, that carry this silent racial attitude with them."

Advertisement gets stuffy response

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The White House on Friday turned up its nose at advertisements for a decongestant featuring President Bush and Soviet Leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. "Heads of state don't endorse cold medicine," Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater registered objections to ads for Drixoral, an over-the-counter head cold remedy manufactured by Schering-Plough Corp.

The ads, in both newspaper and television versions, show Gorbachev and Bush shaking hands at the superpower summit in Malta earlier this month.

"In the 'New Year,' may the only cold war in the world be the one we're fighting," asserts the advertisements.

But the ads clearly are giving the White House a headache. "We do not approve or sanction or acknowledge any of these commercial endorsements and we appreciate the two television networks that declined to run them," said Fitzwater. ABC and CBS have refused to carry the spot.

Governor wants the mercury gone

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Bob Martinez signed an executive order Friday setting up a task force to coordinate study of the mercury contamination that is threatening the state's rural environment.

Elevated levels of the toxic metal have been found in wildlife such as Florida panthers, alligators, largemouth bass and turtles throughout the state, said Forrest Ware, chief of the research bureau of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

"Mercury contamination could pose a very real, very dangerous threat to public health, and we can't sit back and just hope for things to get better," the governor said.

Visitor slays New York family of 4

DRYDEN, N.Y. (AP) — On a freezing evening three days before Christmas, the Harris family received the last visitor they would ever see.

One after another, Tony and Delores Harris, 15-year-old Shelby and 11-year-old Marie were tied up and shot in the head, then doused with gasoline and set on fire.

Their partly charred bodies were discovered the next morning, Dec. 23, after a neighbor heard a smoke alarm. Police said there was no sign that an intruder had forced entry to the house.

"These were very outgoing people who would open the door to anyone," said state police Capt. Carl Shaver.

Police have not publicly suggested a motive. State troopers and FBI agents have been at the Harris home all week, searching for evidence and questioning neighbors.

A brown and tan van was taken from the Harrises' garage; it was discovered later in the parking lot of a nearby mall. Police have said they are looking for a bicyclist who was seen riding along Ellis Hollow Road shortly before midnight on Dec. 22.

Christmas wreaths and red ribbons still flutter from the doorways of the gray, two-story house, and a white wooden sign shaped like a goose reads "Welcome Friends."

Inside, unopened Christmas packages lie under the tree.

The Harrises lived in Ellis Hollow, an affluent section in the rural town of Dryden, a quiet neighborhood set between forested hills about five miles from downtown Ithaca in western New York state.

People described the Harrises as active and well-liked in the community.

"You can't think of anyone that would have a grudge against them," said Ann Parziale, a friend of Mrs. Harris.

Economic activity inches up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Friday that its chief barometer of future economic activity edged up 0.1 percent in November, a tiny increase seen by many analysts as evidence that growth in 1990 will be modest at best.

The Commerce Department said the small rise in its Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a 0.3 percent decline in October, a figure that had originally been reported as a somewhat larger 0.4 percent drop.

For most of the year, the leading index has been flashing signals that the U.S. economy was headed for a rather dramatic slowdown in growth and analysts said the weak November showing did not change that picture.

"The message is no growth and flirtation with a recession as we enter the 1990s," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co.

The economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew at an annual rate of just over 3 percent through the first nine months of this year.

However, a variety of factors including a steep plunge in auto sales, the San Francisco earthquake and Hurricane Hugo are all expected to depress economic activity significantly in the current October-December quarter.

Sinai is among a minority of economists who believe growth will be negative in the fourth quarter and the first three months of 1990 as the country suffers through what he believes will be a mild recession.

However, less pessimistic forecasters are calling for weak growth in both quarters and his recession as the current recovery from the 1981-82 recession chugs in its eighth year, a peacetime record.

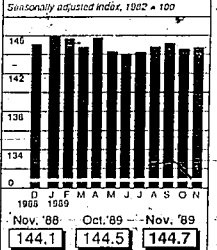

To bolster their view, they point out that while the leading index has declined in five of the last 11 months, it has not fallen for three consecutive months, the traditional, though not infallible, signal of an impending downturn.

"After a weak start, we expect 1990 to pick up some strength during the course of the year," said David Wyss, senior financial economist for DRI-McGraw Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm.

The 0.1 percent rise in the leading index in November was led by a strong jump in orders for consumer goods.

The other four indicators providing strength were a drop in weekly unemployment claims, an increase in plant and equipment orders, a rise in the money supply and an increase in the backlog of manufacturers' unfilled orders.

40 hurt in Hong Kong refugee clash

HONG KONG (AP) — Police raided a Vietnamese refugee camp Friday and clashed with some 500 people who reportedly feared they would be forced to return to their Communist homeland. Officials said 40 people were injured.

Police fired tear gas after the Vietnamese set fire to blankets and threw rocks to prevent a search for homemade weapons, said government spokesman Timothy Li. Twenty-seven Vietnamese were arrested, more than 700 weapons seized, police said.

Television showed police equipped with helmets and shields firing tear gas, and smoke from the fires could be seen rising above the center on outlying Lantau island, which houses more than 3,000 Vietnamese.

"The boat people, in order to make the operation more difficult, pushed their women and children to the front," said Security Secretary M. Geoffrey Barnes.

The violence came only one day after clashes broke out between Vietnamese at another center in which one person was killed and 10 others injured.

New party to form in East Germany

WEST BERLIN (AP) — One branch of East Germany's biggest opposition movement defied the coalition's leaders Friday and said it would form a political party to challenge the Communists in parliamentary elections.

The military announced it was replacing its top-ranking officers and said it had abolished the section in which the Communist Party ensured obedience from the military.

Sch. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said Friday that he was told that East Germany is considering reducing its defense spending by 20 percent next year.

The main body of New Forum, which claims membership of 200,000, decided earlier this week to remain a citizens' group rather than form a formal political party.

New Forum activists from five East German cities, however, met in Karl-Marx-Stadt and said they set up a committee to form the German Forum Party, the official news agency ADN said. The new party will hold its founding convention on Jan. 27 and run candidates in the May elections, ADN said.

There has been friction between New Forum founders, who are mainly based in East Berlin, and the more radical members of the group in the provinces.

North Korea convenes ambassadors

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea has called home its ambassadors from its Communist allies for an emergency meeting, apparently because of the changes in Eastern Europe, a South Korean government official said Thursday.

North Korea appeared to have convened a meeting of its ambassadors to 30 countries, including China and the Soviet Union, one month ahead of schedule to discuss the radical liberalization in many of its allies, said South Korean Unification Minister Lee Hong-ku.

The Korea Times quoted a South Korean government source as saying: "There is a high probability that the North will seek gradual openness ... to escape from political isolation and to boost the economy."

On Tuesday, North Korean President Kim Il-Sung, who has built up a massive personality cult in his four decades of hard-line rule, reorganized the new Korean government.

North Korea has called for the Communist countries to increase vigilance against "imperialist" efforts to undermine socialism.

Police quell Jerusalem peace march

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police fired tear gas, pulled demonstrators by their hair and struck them with night sticks to break up a peace march in Jerusalem on Friday by more than 3,000 Israeli, Palestinian and European women.

The hour-long procession from Jewish west Jerusalem to Arab east Jerusalem was without incident until the end, when an outlawed Palestinian flag was raised and police moved in to disperse the marchers.

Police said that 16 people were detained, and reporters saw police drag several women away by their hair or clothes. Some were struck with night sticks, and several were kicked.

The women's march was part of a program organized by peace

Havel assumes command amid cheers

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Václav Havel, the defiant playwright who rode a gentle revolt from a prison cell to the halls of Parliament, assumed the presidency Friday in an emotional climax to an electrifying year.

"The masses who chanted 'Havel to the castle!' during the angry rallies of November thrilled to the sight of the dissident activist in Hradcany Castle, taking the oath beneath the nation's red, white and blue flag. Cannons boomed and a military band played the national anthem.

"I promise I won't betray your trust. I will take the country to free elections and that's a task for us all," the 53-year-old president told the adoring crowds from the balcony of the towering medieval castle.

Havel, whose plays and essays in defense of civil liberty earned him jail terms totaling five years, languished in a cell just eight months ago. On Friday, a special session of Parliament elected him Czechoslovakia's ninth president.

"The election by 323 deputies, most of whom are Communists, was a historic victory for the pro-democracy movement in 41 days has broken the party's stranglehold on power."

Among his first acts of office, Havel named as chief of staff Josef Lizcar, five months after a Solidarity activist became prime minister of Poland, seven months after Hungary opened its borders to the West, and eight months after the Soviet Union held its first competitive elections in 70 years.

During his somber inauguration, Communist Prime Minister Marian Calfa praised him as "a man who is faithful to his beliefs despite persecution."

"He never accepted offers from his friends or recommendations by his enemies to emigrate where the conditions of his life would have been more comfortable," Calfa said in a nominating speech.

Havel walked the aisle with Dubcek as Communist deputies applauded decorously, camera bulbs flashed and the band played a stirring fanfare.

The playwright signed the oath of office, which was amended just Thursday to delete a pledge of allegiance to socialism.

Havel, whose plays have been banned in Czechoslovakia since 1968, agreed to take the presidency for six months leading to free elections in mid-1990.

Britain hands out honors

LONDON (AP) — Britain on Saturday gave author V.S. Naipaul a knighthood, made actress Maggie Smith a dame and honored police and rescue workers in the search for victims of bombed Pan Am Flight 103.

The colony of Hong Kong, to return to Chinese sovereignty in 1997, also was heavily represented on Queen Elizabeth II's semiannual honors list, which is compiled by the government. The queen carries out the investiture of the honors at a later ceremony.

Former New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange, whose anti-nuclear stance put him at odds with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, was made a companion of honor, a prestigious order headed by the queen and never numbering more than 65 members.

Lange, 47, resigned in August after five years as head of a Labor government, citing health reasons.

Naipaul, 57, a Trinidad-born writer, was made a Knight Bachelor. The author of "In a Free State," "A Bend in the River" and "Emigma of Arrival" came to Britain at age 17 on a scholarship to Oxford University and has become one of this country's most important writers.

The honor entitles him to call himself Sir Václav, but his work always appears with his initials.

Maggie Smith, 55, one of Britain's finest stage actresses and an Oscar-winner for "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," was made a Dame Commander of the Order of British Empire, the equivalent of a knighthood for a woman.

Many of the 947 awards made in the New Year list went to emergency service staff who worked at Lockerbie, Scotland, after a bomb exploded on Flight 103 and the plane crashed Dec. 21, 1988, killing 270 people.

A Queen's Police Medal went to Inspector George Stobbs, a local policeman who consorted many of the American relatives who arrived at the remote Scottish village.

John Boyd, the former chief constable of the Dumfries and Galloway Constabulary, was made a CBE.

A Queen's Police Medal went to Superintendent Angus Kennedy of Strathclyde police, responsible for relations between the police and the news media the night of the disaster, who was honored for "his calm and immensely professional manner ... under the quite exceptional pressures from the media on that night."

Priest on Ceausescu: Death was the just punishment

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Laszlo Toekes, the ethnic Hungarian priest whose pending arrest unleashed the revolt that led to the overthrow of Nicolae Ceausescu, says death was the right punishment for the Romanian dictator.

But Toekes, in an interview published Thursday, said it was wrong to show the bodies of Ceausescu and his wife, Elita, on television.

West Germany's mass-circulation newspaper Bild Zeitung said it interviewed Toekes on the train between Cluj and Bucharest, where he would assume a role in the new leadership.

"They have proposed me for a minister (post). But I'm first of all a priest, not a politician. However, if that's what the people want, I will say yes," Toekes was quoted as saying.

Asked if execution was the right punishment for Ceausescu and his wife, Toekes was quoted as replying:

"The punishment was right. But it was horrible and disgraceful to show both of them in such a way on television. To show their death in full publicity, that's just not done."

The revolt against Ceausescu began in the western city of Timisoara, when people linked hands around the priest's home to prevent him from being taken away.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Lingerie advertisement irks Wood River Valley

KETCHUM — They're up in arms over lingerie in central Idaho's Wood River Valley.

"It's been a very frustrating situation," admits Leslie Bergl, co-owner of the Undercover Agency, the women's lingerie store at the center of the controversy.

The problem began when the store ran an advertisement in a local paper featuring an unidentified model wearing only black panties and a boxing glove on one hand draped over her bare breasts. Atop the picture were the words "Don't Fight It."

It triggered cries of sexual exploitation and forced cancellation of a "Men Only" fashion show of Undercover Agency lingerie planned at a local restaurant.

"This thing's been blown way out of proportion," Bergl said. "We didn't think the ad was in bad taste. ... We take pride in our business, and we certainly don't feel that we're exploiting women."

The fashion show was intended to provide a relaxed atmosphere for men to consider "high-class Christmas-giving ideas" for the wives or girlfriends, she said. "This was not, by any means, going to be a strip show," she said.

Energy department names Hamric INEL acting manager

IDAHO FALLS — The federal Energy Department has selected an acting manager to replace the retiring Don Olie at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

On Tuesday, Phil Hamric, the project manager for the Special Isotope Separator, will take over the reins of the INEL. Hamric, a native of Lexington, Va., has been at INEL since 1972.

He has been deputy director of operational safety, director of nuclear fuel cycle and waste management and assistant manager of nuclear programs.

Twin Falls County assessor says some may get tax credits

TWIN FALLS — Idaho residents who are qualified, elderly or disabled may qualify for property tax credits up to $400, Dorothy Hamby, Twin Falls County tax assessor, said Thursday.

Homeowners must own and occupy the residence as of Jan. 1, 1990. Qualifying homeowners must be one of the following: over age 65, widowed, a veteran with a service-connected disability or who is receiving a Veteran's Administration disability pension, disabled, legally blind, a fatherless or motherless child who is under age 18 and owns the property or a certified a prisoner of war or hostage.

Those who qualify must also have a total household income for 1989 of $14,410 or less.

Applications must be filed with local county tax assessor's offices between Tuesday and April 16. Homeowners are advised to bring all income information when they apply. Those who are unable to visit their assessor's office may have a friend file for them. If this is not possible, a representative from the county assessor's office will make a home visit.

Those who have qualified for the program in the past must reapply every year, Hamby said. For more information contact tax assessor offices, or the Idaho State Tax Commission in Boise at 334-7733.

State to start issuing alerts for severely damaged vehicles

BOISE — Beginning this year, the state will issue "Severely Damaged Vehicle" alerts to alert the public about severely damaged vehicles, the Idaho Transportation Department says.

The title will go to those vehicles 5 years old or newer, or worth more than $5,000, provided they have been severely damaged and rebuilt vehicles. Owners of severely damaged, uninsured vehicles will be responsible for contacting the state themselves for the new salvage title.

The salvage title may be replaced by a regular, clear title if a state motor vehicle investigator rules before a vehicle is re-registered that it does not require repair or replacement of two or more component parts.

When a vehicle is rebuilt, or two or more parts are added, the words "reconstructed vehicle" must be printed on the title. A reconstructed vehicle sticker must also be placed on the doorjamb.

Studies back move for Albion campus state park

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

ALBION — Although no decision has been made, three studies have endorsed turning the vacant Albion Normal School campus into a state park.

"Compared to a year and a half ago, we've made tremendous progress," said Jim Kempton, campus coordinator for Albion Campus Centennial Commission. "There are no guarantees for the future and my crystal ball isn't clear, but the studies speak for themselves."

The three studies concluded:

- A field institute should be developed for the site.
- The school has significant historical value.
- Cultural programs on the campus would be feasible.

The state Parks Department will present the studies' results to the Parks Board Jan. 17.

According to the department's public information officer, Rick Just, the agency will give the board three options for the campus. Just said the department will make no recommendation among the three options.

The three options aren't ready yet, he said. Kempton, however, said he and other supporters of the project — which include Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Doyle and Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley — will make their own recommendation Jan. 17. They propose that the board make the campus a state park and develop it in phases.

Here's what the three studies said:

- Dr. Ron Balseby of Idaho State University's Center for Business Research and Services concluded that a field institute should be established if the campus becomes a park.
- A "field institute" would operate much like the College of Southern Idaho's continuing education program, supported by participants' fees.
- The study is important, Kempton explained, because such an institute would attract people to the state park.

Users might be charged a fee to help with maintenance.

An Idaho Historical Society study confirms that the Albion Normal School is indeed worth preserving as a historical site, emphasizing that the school has a place in the state's educational and architectural history.

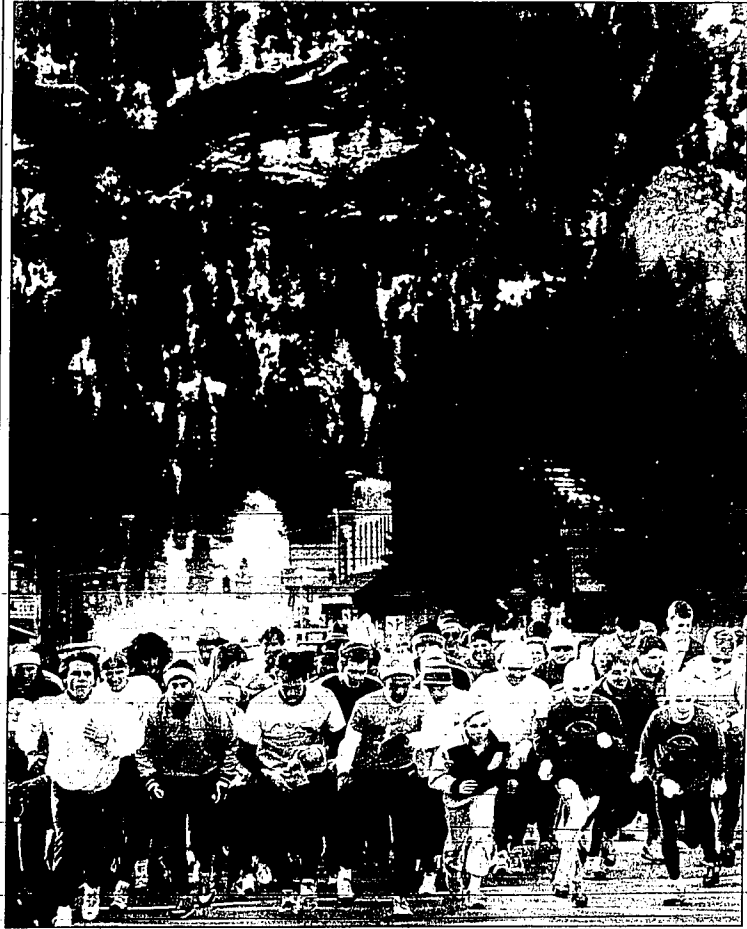

This study's importance is tied to the Park and Recreation Department's charter. The preservation of historic sites is within the agency's realm of responsibility.

A study by the Idaho Commission on the Arts suggests starting cultural programs that would promote the campus if it becomes a state park.

The Arts Commission already has begun renovating a campus building for a Folk-Life Museum.

The commission's study suggested Indian traditions, the customs of early farmers, ranchers and sheep herders and the culture of women could be preserved on the campus.

Such programs or exhibits would also attract people to the park, and thus help it become self-sufficient.

Runners in Ketchum begin their trek at the start of Friday's Resolution Run in an effort to "bring on snow"

Ketchum runners try to bring on winter

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — About 80 runners, both serious and casual, turned out Friday afternoon for a fun run to urge on the belated arrival of winter snows.

"Let's run to stamp out summer, and bring on winter," Bob Rosso, owner of the Elephants Perch and long-time supporter of local athletic events, told the runners as he yelled "Go!" to start the race.

The Sun Valley area's ski lifts are operating, but only on the Warm Springs side of Bald Mountain and thanks mostly to Sun Valley Co.'s massive snow-making machines.

With the area awash in locals and visitors, known more for their interest as participants rather than spectators, the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce hit upon the fun run idea and enlisted the help of local merchants.

The 3.6-mile course began in Ketchum, wound through Sun Valley and returned to Ketchum.

The Ketchum Police stopped traffic as 82 runners ran past on Sun Valley Road following a cyclist who served as the "rabbit." Anyone catching the rabbit prior to the end of the race would win a $25 gift certificate.

To a chorus of honking horns, legitimate runners in lycra pants sped off after the cyclist, followed by more casual participants who used the race as a chance to clomp along traffic free streets.

No official times were kept or prizes awarded, but the first man to cross the finish line was crowned the winner.

Judge grants sportsmen's group further hearings

By The Associated Press

HAILEY — A sportsmen's group fighting revised fishing regulations on the Big Wood River and Silver Creek has been granted further hearings.

In a decision handed down last week, 5th District Judge Phillip Becker granted a motion that amends one of the Idaho Sportsman's Association filed last spring. The complaint alleges the Idaho Fish and Game Commission abused its discretion in changing regulations on the two Blaine County streams.

Becker also denied Fish and Game's motion for a dismissal of the initial suit or for a change of venue.

The commission first voted last April to extend catch-and-release fishing on the two waterways. Silt fishing regulating the length of the fish that can be kept in the creel was approved for the southern stretch of the Big Wood River.

The Bellevue-based Sportsman's Association grew out of opposition to the revisions. It persuaded Becker to put a temporary restraining order on the revisions, so the 1988 fishing rules remained in effect through most of this year.

In August, the game commission again proposed the revisions.

Council allows brewery to move to Bellevue

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — Main Street will soon sport a beer brewery.

The Bellevue City Council agreed Thursday to allow The Sun Valley Brewing Co. to make alterations to the old Rusty Nail building, a decision tantamount to zoning approval.

Some local businesses asked council members if the brewery might be described more as an industry, and so not be allowed in the downtown's business zoning. But the council, after some discussion, agreed to allow the company to proceed.

The company, based in Ketchum but brewing in Helena, Mont., hopes to begin in Bellevue by March 1990, company President Gordon Gurch said.

Mayor Wayne Douthitt and councilmen Dennis Wright and Gary Peck said business owners in town had complained that allowing the company downtown would violate zoning laws.

Councilman Glen Stelma said that he had visited a similar brewing operation in Bend Ore., and it operated successfully on a major commercial thoroughfare.

'Angry' Smyser considers bid for Gem court

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Outrage over the state Supreme Court's decision to overturn the death penalty sentence in the Jaimi Charbonneau case prompted state Sen. Skip Smyser to think about challenging a justice up for re-election.

"This is not a race of choosing for me. I have not spent the past 20 years dreaming about this," Smyser said during an interview Friday. "But when I read these cases I get angry."

Charbonneau was convicted in 1985 for murdering his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh, in Jerome County. Last summer the state's highest court overturned Charbonneau's sentence because the judge had read a letter from the victim's father before handing down the death penalty.

The state Attorney General's office appealed the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court, which refused to hear the case. Charbonneau now faces sentencing in District Court.

Smyser calls the Charbonneau case a "perfect example" of the court's penchant for ignoring victims' rights while turning back a death penalty on a legal technicality.

The Parma Republican said he'll announce by early February whether he'll challenge Justice Stephen Bistline, who faces re-election in 1990.

Bistline, a 13-year veteran, was appointed to the state Supreme Court in 1976 by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus. He has been re-elected twice without opposition.

The justice, who is well-known for his lengthy dissents, has formed a re-election committee that includes former Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley, as well as Twin Falls attorneys Lloyd Webb, Monte Carlson and Susan Bay.

Bistline could not be reached for comment Friday. But, in a telephone interview Huntley suggested Smyser is incorrect. "Justice Bistline has affirmed the death penalty in a number of cases," Huntley said.

The former justice added that the state Supreme Court was mandated to turn back the Charbonneau death penalty because the U.S. Supreme Court six months earlier ruled it was a violation of due process of law to allow a victim's statement to be read in open court.

Bistline stepped up for the Bill of Rights and that Bill of Rights strikes our system of government work as distinguished from Czechoslovakia and Romania, Huntley said.

Smyser has lined up some heavy hitters of his own for an exploratory campaign committee, including state Sen. Denton Darrington of Doon, who heads the Senate Judiciary Committee, and state Rep. Don Loveland, of Boise, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarusa will be Smyser's committee chairman.

Andrus has appointed all five current members of the Supreme Court during his term in office. To remain on the bench, justices normally face low-profile, nonpartisan re-election campaigns.

If Smyser decides to campaign it will be the first contested Supreme Court race in Idaho for nearly 20 years. No sitting justice has been defeated in more than 45 years.

Bistline's opposition to the death penalty is contrary to the will of the people, Smyser contends. And he pledges to make capital punishment the central issue in his Supreme Court bid.

Smyser, 40, has served as prosecuting attorney for Ada County, a deputy attorney general in the state Attorney General's Natural Resources Division and is finishing his 10th year in private practice.

He is also in his 10th year as a state legislator. Smyser currently presides over the Senate Transportation Committee and is a member of the Agricultural Affairs and State Affairs committees.

With U.S. Sen. James McClure still mull on whether he'll seek re-election, Smyser has been named as a likely candidate for the 1st District congressional seat should Rep. Larry Craig run for the Senate.

Although he has fielded phone calls from Craig, Sen. Steve Symms and other party leaders in the past two weeks, Smyser insists he is interested only in the Supreme Court seat.

"If I run for anything, it will be for the Idaho Supreme Court," he said.

Besides, McClure believes McClure will run again. "I think McClure is about as politically secure as anybody," he said.

Devilish doings turn out to be road kill

By ANITA DENNIS
Times-News writer

DEVIL'S CORRAL — The devil didn't do it. Never mind that the original report to authorities told of mutilated animals. Never mind a rumor that the animals had been victims of satanic rituals.

Idaho Fish and Game Officer Tom Whalen knows better.

Whalen spent much of Friday trekking around the Devil's Corral area north of the Snake River Canyon, with five Twin Falls boys in tow.

The boys, from 10 to 12 years old, had reported seeing several disemboweled animal carcasses amid sagebrush and rocks south of the freeway. But Whalen, in case after case, found a reasonable cause of death.

One deer's remains had its ribs exposed and stomach gutted. Whalen pointed to two broken leg bones. His verdict: road kill.

"Someone either dragged it out here and dumped it or somehow it wandered out," he said.

Whalen and the boys came across antelope, fox, rabbit and several deer. But none had been fully killed or revealed signs of suspicious death, Whalen said. Some of the deer could have been poached, he said, but he wasn't sure.

"It's more illegal dumping than anything else," Whalen said.

A 30-year-old enforcement technician, Whalen spends much of his time teaching. He said he enjoys his job and working with people, and feels the community supports his work. But it's not always easy.

"The most disgusting things about the job is digging through the animal remains for a bullet," he said.

Trailing behind the energetic, searching boys, Whalen said the best way to find dead animals is to watch the birds. The magpies weren't flying Friday, but the boys found another deer.

"That one's been dead quite a while," Whalen explained. Crouched beside the carcass, Whalen showed the boys the velvet on the animal's antlers. The deer rub the antlers against trees in the fall and the velvet comes off, so the deer had to have died during the summer, he told them.

Whalen said he didn't expect that the animal carcasses would turn out to be something unusual, although there have been mysterious killings in the past.

He recalled a story of a cow that was killed near Revere. Only select organs, including the head, he said, about the same in the residents reported seeing strange lights in the area. Rumor spread that aliens from space had killed the cow.

"But it beats the hell out of me why an alien would come all that way and just take a cow's organ and go all the way back," Whalen said.

Law officials prepared for New Year's Eve

BOISE (AP) — The good news for Idaho's sober motoring public is plenty of law enforcement officers and jail space will be available for the New Year's weekend, state Attorney General Jim Jones says.

"There will be plenty of state and local law enforcement officers patrolling Idaho's highways during the New Year holiday, so violators will have an excellent chance of being arrested," Jones said Friday.

"Drink drivers will be rewarded with heavy penalties, including loss of their driving privileges."

Hopefully, most Idahoans will opt not to endanger their neighbors or risk taking advantage of the arrest and punishment available to drunk drivers.

Intoxicated driving takes a tremendous toll in personal and property damage, said Jones, who advised preventing that loss by taking public transportation, designated drivers or "shot" rather than to get around.

"Driving under the influence of alcohol is like running through the street with your hand on the trigger of a loaded gun," Jones said. "It is a prescription for disaster."

Texas' oldest working cowboy dies

By Knight-Ridder News Service

Thomas Everett Blasingame once said he wanted to die where he spent his life — on the range.

On Wednesday, the man believed to be Texas' oldest working cowboy climbed down from his horse, stretched out in the prairie grass and left this world the way he desired.

Blasingame, 91, was found lying on his back by fellow cowhands at the JA Cattle Co. ranch near Clarendon, Texas, about 400 miles northwest of Dallas in the Texas Panhandle. His saddle horse was standing nearby.

The cattle foreman on the ranch, Buster McLary, said Blasingame wouldn't have wanted his life to end any other way.

"If he had written it down on paper, he wouldn't have changed a word."

"He must have known he was in trouble, dismounted and just slid down and died," said Johnny Farmer, the ranch business manager. "There were no bruises or scratches, so he wasn't bucked off, but he was riding a young horse he was training."

Farrar said Blasingame's job entailed looking after the horses and horses—the fence-and-the-windmill. He said the old ranch hand displayed outstanding qualities for a cowboy of any age.

"It was exceptional for him at age 91 because he performed the job just as all other cowboys do—if he wanted him to work, we'd go down to his camp and tell him what days we needed him."

Law officials prepared for New Year's Eve

"Tom was one of a kind," said McLary. "He was as good a cowboy as I've ever seen here. He would never ask for any special favors when it was time to work."

Born Feb. 2, 1898, in Waxahatchie, Texas, near Dallas, Blasingame had been a cowboy all his life. His son, Thomas E. Blasingame Jr. of Hereford, Texas, said his father "had chosen to be a cowboy when he was a little kid."

"The reason he lived so long was because he did what he did for his entire life," the son said.

Blasingame first came to the JA Cattle Co. in 1918, then left two years later to go to southern California, New Mexico and Arizona. He returned in 1934 and remained at the ranch until his death.

Blasingame married his wife Eleanor when he was 35, shortly before he went back to work on the ranch.

He lived during the work at the Campbell Creek Camp in Palo Duro Canyon, nine miles south of ranch headquarters. The camp had no electricity or telephone, and his wife lived in nearby Clarendon, Texas. Eleanor Blasingame said she didn't mind living alone most of the time for more than 50 years because her husband visited her every weekend.

"Being a rancher's daughter, I have to be prepared for the job just as all other cowboys do—if he wanted him to work, we'd go down to his the ranch going. He was always loyal to the ranch. 'I'll take care of the ranch,' he said, 'and you take care of home and the kids.' That was his life."

Blasingame's son said his father found pleasure in living alone.

"He didn't want to be near the people and the crowds," he said. "He just enjoyed being at the ranch or at his camp."

Farrar said the old cowboy was as kind as he was honest.

"Tom was a very hard worker, but a very gentle man. He loved his family, he loved the ranch and his job, and he loved the animals."

Eleanor Blasingame said her husband's death had a greater impact on the other cowboys than she had ever seen.

"He was a good, kind man to everyone. When he died, it was the first time I've ever seen a bunch of cowboys just crying. They were all devastated by his death."

In addition to Eleanor Blasingame and his son, he is survived by a daughter, Nancy Etheridge of Boise, Idaho; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were Saturday at the JA Cattle Co. cemetery, near Clarendon. The last burial in the cemetery was in 1899.

According to Blasingame's son, a rider on horseback will lead the hearse to the cemetery. Behind the hearse will be a riderless horse with cowboy boots hanging from the saddle. "I'll show respect for the deceased cowboy."

ish line was Wood River High School track coach Bill Martell at 18 minutes, 35 seconds. Martell also caught the 500-meter race.

The first woman was international marathoner and Olympic competitor Gabrielle Anderson of in Ketchum.

At the conclusion of the race, Wendy Jaquet of the Chamber of Commerce and Lasso passed-out prizes donated by local merchants.

"This was great fun, and it will be well worth it if it'll bring on some snow," runner Suzanne "Orb," Ketchum city councilwoman said.

As the runners dispersed, Rossetti thanked them over the loud speaker, ending his comments by saying, "I can feel that high pressure system moving out now. Let's hope this is the first and last annual Resolution Run."

A chance of snow and cooling temperatures are predicted for southern Idaho early next week, the National Weather Service said.

They also wondered about odor problems.

Odors won't be a problem, Company General Manager Michael Kravnyk said. "The odor that comes from a brewery could best be described as the smell of baking bread," Kravnyk said. "Also, we brew only one day a week."

Kravnyk, responding to a question from Wright, said the proposed operation would use about 800 gallons of water a day. "Not even as much as a local cleaning establishment," he said. "Our one major by-product is spent grain, which is excellent feed for beef production."

Peak questioned whether the complaints should even be recognized, since they were not made in person or by letter. "This council has no record on any recognizing complaints that were formal," he said. "Therefore, there really hasn't been a complaint."

The company brews its beers at a Helena plant but wants a local brewery. It is leasing the Rusty Barn building and already is making alterations.

Gammel hopes to produce about 10,000 barrels — about 31,000 gallons — the first year. Company officers will move at the same time, he said.

A tasting room and pub are future possibilities, he said.

The ability to watch the brewing process will bring people to Bellevue, Gammel said.

In answer to the council's question, Eric Forbis, also the fire commissioner, to attend any meetings by Wood River Valley groups concerning the possible integration of the county's five fire districts.

Approved a motorcycle race through the 1990 Fourth of July weekend.

Interviewed Kenneth Hickman for the vacant city maintenance supervisor.

Hired George Moore at $8 an hour as the city's new building inspector. He replaces inspector William Howes, whose employment with the city was ended effective this Monday.

Agreed that every effort should be made to get all reserve officers serving under Marshall Ray Johnson certified. Otherwise, the citations issued by such officers could be challenged in court. "We have to realize we, as council members, are liable for the actions of our reserve officers," Peak said.

extended the catch-and-release fishing on the Big Wood. That forced the Sportsman's Association to file an amended complaint.

A briefing schedule will be set up for the two sides to argue their case. Emily Corney, Ketchum City Clerk, said the Sportsman's Association's latest decision verifies what the group has been saying all along.

"We're hoping for a recognition on the part of the commission that they do not have unfettered discretion to do whatever they want when they want, with undirected whimsy."

"It's an appeal to force upon the commission the idea that they must undergo a process of law before making a decision. In the long run, that benefits all kinds and types of fishermen."

The Silver Creek Preserve contributes an estimated $2 million to the economy of the Wood River Valley and Twin Falls, Idaho State University professor Les Norman said.

The Nature Conservancy, which established the protected area on the blue-ribbon stream, paid for Norman's testimony. In addition to the job, he benefits up to 40 full-time jobs are created by preserve visitors.

The preserve covers 2,800 acres; about 15 miles of Silver Creek.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF
 "A good critic is the man who describes his adventures among masterpieces."
 — Anatole France.

An accurate defense would have beaten today's game. However, someone goofed. Sturdy the play to look for the culprit. Who gets all or most of the blame?
 In a European team match, there was a game-winning when one side made four spades and the other did it. Both Easts played the diamond four (suit preference) on West's lead of the diamond jack, and the next lead was easy. West led a middle club for East to ruff — two tricks for the defense.

"The 'blunder'" East then cashed his diamond ace and led the third diamond, hoping to find West with the trump jack. No dice. South discarded, ruffed in dummy and then picked up the trumps to claim 10 tricks.

Should West have led the club deuce as a suit-preference request for a low diamond return?
 How could he be sure that his diamond eight was a sure entry?
 "Slow about East? Should he have gambled on a low diamond return? Certainly this course was better than playing for an unlikely spade jack with West. The underlead would win whenever West had J-8 or a singleton jack, and was clearly the better chance.

The verdict? East gets 90 percent of the blame, West 10 percent. West might have recognized that a second club ruff promised the only hope.

Penn State streaks past BYU, 50-39

Penn State's Blair Thomas goes over the top of the BYU defense while running for a 1st down.

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Gary Brown stole the ball from Ty Detmer, who had thrown for a Holiday Bowl record 576 yards, and ran 53 yards for a touchdown to clinch Penn State's 50-39 victory over Brigham Young Friday night.

It was one of the wildest games in the Holiday Bowl, which has a history of high scores and incredible finishes. The 89 points fell two short of the Holiday Bowl record set by BYU and Southern Methodist in 1980. Jim McMichael of BYU threw for 446 yards, the previous passing record, in leading the Cougars back to victory if that game.

Detmer couldn't bring back these Cougars (10-3), although he completed 42 of 60 passes. His second touchdown pass, a 3-yarder to Brent Nyberg with 2:34 to go, brought BYU within two points, 41-39. The 19th-ranked Cougars, who had driven 90 yards, went for two points. But Detmer's pass was intercepted by linebacker Andre Collins, who returned it 102 yards, with Penn State awarded the two points.

Then Brown made sure the 18th-ranked Nittany Lions (8-3-1) stayed in front when he took the ball out of Detmer's hands as the quarterback tried to throw and raced untouched to the end zone.

Blair Thomas, who had 186 yards on 35 carries, ran for a 7-yard touchdown 2:49 into the final quarter. Fifty-five seconds later, after Detmer was intercepted by Sherrod Rains, quarterback Tony Sacca threw a 52-yard scoring pass to David Daniels.

Daniels caught the ball as he tumbled into the end zone backward after tipping the ball into the air, with cornerback Tony Crutchfield right beside him. Both of Penn State's conversion tries failed following those scores, which gave the Nittany Lions an 41-26 lead.

BYU promptly cut it to 41-33 as Fred Whittingham ran 10 yards for a score, ending a four-play, 68-yard drive that took only 30 seconds. His run came with 8:51 remaining.

The teams combined for 30 points in the third quarter as Penn State emerged with a 29-26 lead on the strength of two touchdown runs by Larry Thompson. They then combined for 34 points in the final period.

Thompson's second run, a 14-yarder, followed a 66-yard march kept alive by a fake punt in which blocking back Terry Smith got the snap and completed a 9-yard pass to Tisen Thomas for a first down on the Cougars' 31.

BYU came right back on Detmer's first touchdown pass, covering 12 yards to Andy Boyce, to cap the third-quarter outburst.

The Cougars had cut the deficit to three, 32-19, on Detmer's second 1-yard touchdown run with 5:34 remaining in the third period. Detmer appeared trapped on the bootleg.

Bruins retire Meridian after taking early lead

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some blistering first-quarter foul shooting got the Twin Falls Bruins into a double-digit lead and they pretty much stayed there Friday night in turning back the Meridian Warriors 69-54.

The Bruins, winning their third straight and posting a 5-3 mark, got off to a hot start, and reached a 22-11 advantage with just over six minutes gone in the game.

The Warriors pulled back within six by the end of the quarter but when the Smith boys, Chris and Eric, joined Astorquia with four points each, Twin Falls never was threatened with losing the lead.

"The early free throws were a major plus," said Coach John Astorquia. "But I think having the ability to do what we wanted to do — get the ball inside to the blocks — was how we won the game. We got it inside, for a lot of points in the first three quarters."

That was, most apparent early in the second half when Astorquia was twice able to post up on 6-0 guards and use his four-inch advantage for buckets. Chris Smith scored four points off the blocks immediately after as the Bruins moved ahead by 15 a couple of times.

The Bruins won it at the foul line, being outscored by two field goals. They hit 27-36 from the line. Meridian could have helped itself considerably more at the same place, winding up with a lackluster 5-13 in foul shooting.

"Defensively I thought we played pretty well most of the game except we didn't deny penetration very well in the second half. But the officials were calling it so close that I think both teams got a little shy," the coach said.

The Bruins were able to get better than an even break in rebounding and for the most part handled the Warriors individual pressure well.

The Warriors did rally behind eight Mike McConnell points in the fourth quarter that pulled Meridian within 56-48 with 3:01 remaining.

The Bruins were trying to take some time off the clock before looking for the shut but couldn't keep the flow. After McConnell entered with the eight-point deficit, Eric Smith took a good bounce pass from Brandon Miller to score on the anti-press and get Twin Falls moving. Free throws by John Homers and Chris Smith were backed by Astorquia and Eric Smith field goals as Twin Falls built the final cushion.

Twin Falls sophomore won't the opener in two overtimes.

The 'Pearl' is missing his luster after short career

By Carter Cromwell
Palo Alto Peninsula Times Tribune

It wasn't supposed to come to this. Dwayne Washington, alone, heading down a long, empty hallway toward the exit of an obscure, nearly deserted arena. His face expressionless. No one asking for his autograph. No writers clamoring for his observations on the minor league game just past.

No, it wasn't supposed to come to this. Not for a man who made himself something of a legend in New York high school basketball circles. Not for a guy who started in college from the beginning, who twice made second-team all-America, who finished as Syracuse's all-time assist leader in just three seasons. Not for a 13th pick in the NBA draft.

Not for a man long ago dubbed "Pearl." No, Pearl Washington isn't the man you would have expected a few years ago to look at you and say, "Come back again Friday night, man. I'll be drafted."

But here he is. Pearl Washington has gone from first-round NBA draft choice to reserve status with the CBA's San Jose Jammers in three years. As he puts it, "from the top to the bottom."

In five games here, he has averaged 8.4 points and 5.6 assists. Recently, he got bothered out in a loss to the Tulsa Fast Breakers.

In 22 minutes, he was 0-5 from the field, scored only four points and committed five turnovers. He did make eight assists at point guard and would have had more had his teammates converted more.

He teased onlookers with fleeting looks at the penetrating and passing skills that once made him a star. But his play generally was that of a tarnished pearl.

"I just mentally wasn't into it," he said. "I was terrible. I was late with everything, one step behind all the time. I spent the day moving into an apartment and shopping, and I didn't have it mentally tonight. I'll take the blame for this the loss. I'm the point guard, and I had a lousy game."

Hence his plea to catch him again. One more chance, he seemed to be saying. He's gone from the wealthy New Jersey Nets to the modestly paid Tulsa Fast Breakers. He averaged 8.6 and 9.5 points a game in his two seasons with the Nets and 7.6 in his year at Miami.

After failing to agree on a contract with

Florida running back faces choices after Freedom Bowl

By Dick Rockne
Seattle Times

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The head coach resigned after the season began, the starting quarterback was suspended for gambling, and NCAA investigators seemed to be part of the faculty.

But throughout the turmoil and torment that dominated the University of Florida's football season, Emmitt Smith prevailed.

However, Smith has not escaped completely the firestorm of controversy surrounding the Gator program. Instead of celebrating Smith's accomplishments, Florida athletic officials and fans wonder if he will play for the Gators after tomorrow's contest against the Huskies.

As a redshirt junior who has put in four seasons at Florida, Smith can make himself available to NFL teams. Or, he could return to Florida for one more season as the likely favorite in next year's Heisman Trophy race. Smith said he hasn't reached a decision.

"I really don't know what factors would cause me to leave or what factors would cause me to stay," Smith said. "If I stay it will be because I want to. If I leave it will be because I want to."

Gary Darnell, who has coached at Florida's interim head coach since Glenn Hall resigned in October, said he does not know what Smith will do.

"The most meaningful conversation I've had with him is letting him know that what's best for Emmitt is what we're in favor of," Darnell said. "If we could come up with the right kind of reason for him to move on, then we'd be for Emmitt to move on. But I think it's going to be hard to find that reason."

If a reason surfaces that allows Smith to put on a Florida helmet one more season, Gator fans will not be among the celebrators. Testimony related to Smith's running ability reveal traits seemingly beyond exceptional.

Holtz says Colorado can't stand up against Notre Dame

By RICK WARNER
The Associated Press

MIAMI — Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz made disparaging remarks about Colorado in a pep talk to his players, saying the top-ranked Buffaloes "have been living a lie all year" and predicting they will be sent by the Irish in the Orange Bowl.

"They ain't playing any Kansas State," Holtz said during Thursday's practice at the University of Miami. "Frustration will set in on a Colorado's offense. By the middle of the third quarter, they will leave the gameplan completely and start grab-bagging. Remember me telling you that. They are not patient."

The remarks were recorded by KCNC-TV in Denver, which had a cameraman and reporter at the practice.

During his pep talk, Holtz seemed to contradict earlier statements that he didn't care who finished No. 1 in the polls. The Fighting Irish are ranked fourth, but could win the national championship if they beat Colorado on New Year's night.

"The bad of it is Colorado feels they're being slighted ... (that) they don't get any respect and all that other nonsense," Holtz said. "The good thing is, it sends a message to everybody who votes that after we win the football game, they can't do anything else but put Notre Dame number one. They can't believe me."

Holtz told his players that they will beat the undefeated Buffaloes. "They're expecting an outstanding football team and they're gonna see one," he said. "They're going to see the best Notre Dame ... and we're gonna whip 'em."

In an interview Friday with The Associated Press, Holtz said he was just trying to motivate his team, which suffered a letdown after losing to Miami 27-10 in their final regular-season game. "My job is to build confidence," he said. "After the Miami game, I questioned whether my team believed it could beat Colorado. That's all I'm trying to do — make them believe they can win."

Boise State, Idaho both claim victories in Albertson's Classic

BOISE (AP) — Freshman forward Tanoka Beard scored 19 points to lead five Broncos in double figures Friday night as Boise State defeated Brooklyn College 90-76 at the Albertson's Classic in Boise.

Earlier Friday, forward Ricardo Boyd scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half and center Riley Smith added 25 points and 11 rebounds to lead Idaho past Kent State, 70-65.

Boise State led Brooklyn College 43-42 at halftime, then scored the first 16 points of the second half to take a 59-42 lead over the Kingsmen, who were held scoreless for six minutes.

The Broncos' evened their season record at 5-5, while Brooklyn College fell to 3-6.

Boise State, using two members of the school's 1989 football team and newly acquired junior college transfer quarterback Jeremy Kidd, shot 61 percent from the field. The Broncos' season average had been under 40 percent.

In the first game, Boyd and Smith scored all but seven of Idaho's 39 second-half points as the Vandals of the Sky Conference improved their record to 9-2. Kent State of the Mid-American Conference fell to 7-2.

Trailing 35-31 at the half, Idaho overtook the Golden Flashies in the second half as Boyd and Smith scored the 28 points in the second overtime. Idaho took the lead for good at 47-45 with 13:30 re-

Junior forward Clifford Martin was the only other Idaho player in double figures with 14 points.

Arizona State 62 Georgia 61

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Mark Becker's layin with one second remaining gave Arizona State a 61 win over Georgia in Friday night's championship game of the ASU Tribune Classic.

After teammate Alex Austin's 20-foot jumper bounced off the front of the rim with three seconds left, Becker grabbed the rebound and made the layup to give the Sun Devils (6-4) their first tourney title since 1985 and their 16th overall in the event's 23-year history.

Georgia's record fell to 7-2 after blowing a 35-18 first-half lead and a 16-point lead in the second half.

Arizona State trailed 39-23 at halftime, 44-28 with 18:20 remaining and 50-37 with 11:42 left before using an 18-4 run to take a 55-54 lead on Mike Redhair's hook shot with 4:37 to play.

Redhair sank five free throws, the last two with 52 seconds left, to put the Sun Devils ahead 60-56.

Oregon St. 82

LOUISIANA TECH 81
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Gary Payton capped a 35-point performance by hitting a five-foot jumper with nine seconds to play Friday night, giving 23rd-ranked Oregon State an 82-81 victory over Louisiana Tech in the semifinals of the Far West Classic.

The Beavers (8-2) trailed 77-68 with 3:45 minutes to play before blowing an 11-point halftime lead. But Payton, who also had 12 assists, hit four field goals in the final 2:10 as Oregon State outscored the Bulldogs 14-4 at the finish.

Louisiana Tech (8-2) trailed 50-39 at halftime. But the Bulldogs went on a 9-2 run to start the second half, then used a zone defense to throttle the Beavers' offense until the final minutes.

N. Carolina St. 65 Seton Hall 62

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Gugliotta scored 18 points Friday night to lead No. 19 North Carolina State to a 65-62 victory over Seton Hall in the championship game of the ECAC Holiday Festival.

The Wolfpack (9-2) did not get the game they have come to expect from the backcourt of Rodney Monroe and Chris Corchiani, but the two guards came through in the final Seton Hall (6-3) tied the game for the last time at 57-57 with 3:35 left on a hook shot by Anthony Avent.

The Wolfpack took the lead for good 1:11 later on two free throws by Monroe, who was shadowed throughout the game by freshman Terry Deberry and finished with 13 points, well below his 35-point effort against Florida State in the opening round.

Oklahoma 147 North Texas 94

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Tony Martin scored 30 points and Terry Evans had 26 Friday night as sixth-ranked Oklahoma continued its opponent-bashing ways with a 147-94 victory over winter North Texas in the opening game of the All-College Tournament.

Tulsa played Arkansas State in the late game.

The 147 points were a tournament record, breaking the mark of 144 scored by Oklahoma against Oral Roberts in 1987. The 241 total points were a tournament record, as well as the 53-point spread.

The Sooners (7-0) have now won four games by 50 or more points, and raised their nation-leading average victory margin to 50 points per game.

St. John's 83 Davidson's 83

NEW YORK (AP) — Malik Sealy scored eight points and Jayson Williams had four as 17th-ranked St. John's jumped out to a 21-6 lead and coasted to its sixth straight victory, 83-65 over Davidson Friday night.

Williams finished with 23 points, 16 coming in the first half, and Sealy had 20. Rob Werdman had 11 for the Redmen (11-2), who led 47-28 at halftime.

Paul Demmond had 23 points for the Wildcats (1-6), who lost their third straight. David Musch had 15 and Jay Schmitt 14.

The Redmen scored eight straight points, six of them by Sealy, to take a 14-4 lead 3:46 into the game. After Davidson's Darry Strickland scored to make it 14-6, St. John's went on another seven-minute run to build the lead to 21-6 after 6:13.

Washington St. 72 Ohio U. 69

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Brian Teague scored a three-point play with one second left to give Washington State a hardwood 72-69 victory over Ohio University in the opening game of the Volunteer Classic Friday night.

Teague's last-second shot and free throw saved Washington State (7-3) of the Pacific 10 from a tenuous comeback attempt by Ohio University (6-4) behind guard Dave Jamerson's 40-point performance.

"We wanted to take the last shot. We don't want to give them a chance to win the game or tie it," Washington State coach Kelvin Sampson said of his decision to go for the final free throw. "Every time we had a chance to put them away, we didn't."

"It was a heartbreaker to lose," said Ohio University coach Larry Hunter. "At the end of the game, I told the players that I was proud of them and they could be proud of their effort."

Bruin girls rally in 4th to beat Meridian 54-50

TWIN FALLS — Cindy Scheel and Stacy Butler combined to pull Twin Falls out of an early fourth quarter nose dive and into a rallying 54-50 victory over Meridian Friday night.

The Bruins, trailing by one point going into the final quarter, went three minutes, including two minutes just as Scheel fielded and appeared dead when Laura Lampe hit Meridian's third putback in a rally that amounted to a 48-37 lead.

But Butler then hit a field-goal with 4:23 to play and scored again two minutes into the fourth quarter. Scheel hit a pair of three throw to pull Twin Falls within five before Wendy Wheeler hit Meridian's only two points of the final four minutes.

Scheel scored the next four points, giving the Bruins a 51-50. The last

Butler iced it with three-four from the line in closing seconds. "I felt the girls showed good poise and didn't rattle," said Coach Karen Kohring of the final minutes. "They just kept taking the ball to the basket."

The victory improved the Bruins to 5-8 on the season.

Portland nudges past Dallas, 144-140

DALLAS (AP) — Kevin Duckworth's short bank shot and Terry Porter's driving three-point play in the last 53 seconds lifted the Portland Trail Blazers to a 144-140 triple-overtime win over the Dallas Mavericks Friday.

The Blazers, who lost the first three games of their road trip, built by 14 points in the third quarter and 129-124 in the second overtime. But another three-point play by Porter, who scored 28 points, and a tip-in by Wayne Cooper wiped out that deficit and forced a third overtime.

Clyde Drexler led the Blazers with 32 points, four of them in the third overtime. Porter scored 14 points after regulation play.

Derek Harper, who scored a career-high 42 points, made a layup and free throw to tie the game for the last time at 138-138 with 1:14 left in the third overtime.

It was the first triple overtime game in Mavericks' history. Portland's comeback snapped Dallas' four-game winning streak.

Kevin McHale led Boston with 22 points, and Xavier McDaniel had 26 for Seattle.

Dennis Johnson's four free throws and two steals helped the Celtics pull away from Seattle in the final minutes.

Milwaukee 99 Detroit 85
AJUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Eric Roberts had 20 points and Paul Pressey came off a depleted Milwaukee bench to score 18 as the Bucks turned a close game into a rout of Detroit.

It was the Bucks' fourth straight victory and third in a row on the road, while the loss snapped Detroit's four-game win streak. It was the eighth straight game in which Milwaukee held its opponent to 100 or fewer points.

Milwaukee outscored the Pistons 27-13 in the final period.

Five Pistons in double figures with 19 points despite shooting 5-for-16 from the field. Isiah Thomas was 1-for-8 from the field and scored two points.

Indiana 103 Houston 97

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Reserve Detlef Schrempf scored 24 points and Rick Smith had two key baskets in the final minute as Indiana beat Houston for the first time in nine tries.

It was the third straight victory for the Pacers and their first win over Houston since Nov. 17, 1984. Reggie Miller and Vern Fleming scored 20 points apiece for Indiana, and Smith had 16. Akceem Alajuno had 28 points and 11 rebounds for Houston.

A 16-foot jumper and a layup by Smith gave the Pacers a 100-94 lead with 22 seconds left.

Chicago 101 San Antonio 97

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 32 points and the Chicago Bulls snapped the San Antonio Spurs' seven-game winning Friday night with a 101-97 victory.

The win was Chicago's eighth in its last 10 games and 11th straight at Chicago Stadium, where the Bulls are 12-1.

In the fourth quarter, the Bulls held an 87-72 lead before the Spurs, led by Willie Anderson's eight points, countered with a 16-4 run to make it 91-83.

San Antonio could get the last time at 93-90 when David Wingate converted two free throws with 3:17 left.

Jordan took charge in the third quarter, scoring 15 points. He and Scottie Pippen stole successive in-bounds passes and scored on dunks for a 70-59 lead with 7:20 left in the period.

The Spurs were led by Terry Cummings' 26 points.

Phoenix 118 Minnesota 101

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Chambers, playing with a broken cheekbone and 14 stitches, scored 24 points as Phoenix defeated Minnesota.

Dan Majerle had 23 points and Kevin Johnson 22 for the Suns, who have won three straight games.

Minnesota trailed 43-42 midway through the second quarter, but Phoenix scored 22 of the next 30 points, including the final 10 of the half. Johnson sparked the run with six of his 16 first-half points, while Chambers added eight, including a jumper with one second left.

Pool Richardson scored a season-high 22 points for Minnesota and Tony Campbell also had 22.

Burley takes scoring run to victory over Jerome

BURLEY — Eric Page, Justin Robinson and Sam Shaw ran a scoring rally for the Burley Bobcats in the closing minutes Friday night that doomed the Jerome Tigers to a 76-67 non-conference setback.

The Bobcats, now 5-3, took the lead for keeps at 63-61 on a Page field goal and then moved away from Jerome by hitting three free throws. Robinson led the Bobcats' field goals, one a three-pointer. Page then rang in with another field goal to establish a 70-63 lead and when sophomore Brett Walter's three-point brought Jerome back to within four, Shaw slammed the door with two more buckets.

The Tigers, getting good first-half scoring from Tracy Dixon, led 14-10 when Burley turned to a full-court press and for several minutes appeared on the verge of blowing Jerome away.

Boys' basketball

They turned that fourth-point deficit into a 31-14 lead, feasting on the turnovers the pressure created.

But just when it seemed over, Dixon hit four points, Matt Williams three and Paul Lloyd a jumper in a reply run. When Dixon hit his 15th point of the first half, he cut the deficit to 36-35 and Lloyd followed with a jumper that help Jerome into a 41-38 halftime lead.

Burley took the lead immediately in the second half but Williams put Jerome back on top and the team scored, shaved to a 50-50 draw. At that point, Shaw hit four points to send Burley back on top by six and the Bobcats still had three to spare at the quarter buzzer.

Williams and Dixon immediately erased that as the fast period began and Jerome then took its final lead on a pair of Eric Lott free throws. Mabry tied it for Burley on a put-back and then, the Page-Robinson-Shaw scoring parade began.

Buhl 69 Filer 44

BUHL — The Buhl Indians turned to its big height advantage in the second quarter and handed the Filer Wildcats a 69-44 non-conference setback Friday night.

The smaller Wildcats got off to a good start, trailing only 22-21 in a big first-quarter offensive duel. But Buhl then went to a zone defense and Filer's scoring production quickly dropped. The Wildcats died when they managed just four points in the third quarter.

"We simply couldn't match their edge in quickness," said Buhl Coach Tom Chivers of the change in game plan. "We went to the zone and then killed them with our size advantage inside."

The Indians put their entire starting unit in double scoring figures in making up their sixth win in eight outings. Filer dipped to 1-7 on the year.

AFC wild card chance surprises Pittsburgh

HOUSTON (AP) — Virtually no one is more surprised about the Pittsburgh Steelers being in the NFL playoffs than the players themselves.

Not the Cincinnati Bengals, who had a 5-1 AFC Central Division record (Pittsburgh was 1-5), but failed to make the playoffs, after the way they started, rookie running back Tim Worley said Friday. "At the beginning of the year, even us teammates thought we'd finish first in the whole league."

"We were playing so terrible in first, the only way we could go was up."

But the Steelers surprised themselves after losing to Cleveland 51-0 and Cincinnati 41-10 in their first two games.

Pittsburgh won five of its last six games, losing only to Houston in that stretch.

The Pittsburgh players were against non-playoff teams with a composite record of 28-52.

"The Steelers didn't qualify until Monday night when Minnesota eliminated 1989 Super Bowl finalist Cincinnati. Pittsburgh (9-7) didn't rise above .500 until the next-to-last week of the season."

But the Steelers aren't turning down their first playoff berth since 1984.

"We're very excited about it," Coach Chuck Noll said. "We're unhappy we're in the playoffs, we're happy we're playing Houston. Any place at all would be fine and there's nothing wrong with the AFC."

Syracuse, Georgia set for clash testing Bulldogs' young players

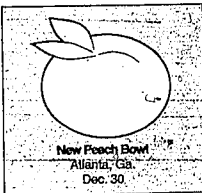

ATLANTA (AP) — If experience counts, Syracuse should beat Georgia in Saturday's Peach Bowl, Orangemen coach Dick MacPherson says. But he points out that the Bulldogs, though young, are talented.

Despite a 6-5 season, Georgia will be making its 10th straight bowl appearance, the only Southeastern Conference school to do so in the 1980s, and is a slight favorite over Syracuse (7-4). The Orangemen are playing in their third consecutive bowl.

Kickoff is scheduled for 2:38 p.m. EST in the nationally televised (ABC) game at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

Georgia, under first-year coach Ray Goff, will start 14 freshmen and sophomores and only eight juniors and seniors. Syracuse, meanwhile, has 17 juniors and seniors in the lineup and five sophomores.

"The key to success is talent and experience," MacPherson said

Friday. "If the talent is equal, we win. We've got the experience. But talent can overcome experience."

And Georgia is talented, he said, noting that the Bulldogs' junior running back, Rodney Hampton, especially scares him.

"Last night I saw that guy from Texas Tech on television, Jimmy Gray, run over Duke for 280 yards and four touchdowns in their 49-21 win in the All-American Bowl," MacPherson said.

"After that, I couldn't fall asleep. All I kept seeing was Hampton doing the same thing to us."

Hampton, a 6-foot, 215-pound speedster, ran for 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns this season despite missing one full game and playing only about a half in two others because of knee problems.

Georgia's Goff admitted the Bulldogs have struggled this season because of their youth and some key injuries.

"We are a young football team, but our young ones have gotten better," he said.

Asked about MacPherson's concern over Georgia's speed, even though Syracuse is a much bigger and stronger team, Goff said: "I don't know that we're faster. I do know that we're smaller. And in our last two football games (losses to Auburn and Georgia Tech), obviously we were smaller, and obviously we had problems."

Friends, fans, former players gather to bid Martin farewell

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin was bid a "safe slide into home plate" Friday at a funeral Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral attended by his former Yankees players and playmates and even a former president.

Crowds 10 deep jammed the sidewalks outside the church and the funeral procession stopped traffic along Fifth Avenue as Martin's friends and fans came to say good-bye. The 61-year-old, five-time Yankee manager died Monday night in a pick-up truck crash outside his upstate New York home.

Among those attending the service were Richard Nixon, who goes to many Yankees games each season. The former president sat in the front pew alongside Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle and Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who in 1974 pleaded guilty to making illegal contributions to Nixon's reelection campaign.

The Most Rev. Edwin Broderick, former bishop of Albany, N.Y., delivered the homily and laced it with baseball references that prompted a few chuckles from the capacity crowd of 3,000.

"He gave us thrills and spills, ups and downs," Broderick said. "We remember him as a dynamic personality, a fiery competitor who played ball hard off and on the field. ... We pray that his is a safe slide into home plate."

He carefully sidestepped references to the fights and drunken episodes that were very much a part of Martin's life.

"At first blush, this cathedral is undoubtedly the last place you would expect to find Billy," said Broderick, whose nephew is former general counsel to the Yankees. Later, he noted that Martin now "negotiates his lifelong contract with St. Peter."

National League president Bill White, a former Yankees broadcaster, attended the 70-minute service but Commissioner Fay Vincent and American League president Bobby Brown did not. Some clubs sent representatives but most sent none.

Interment was at Gate of Heaven cemetery in Hawthorne, N.Y., where a Yankees great by the name of Babe Ruth is also buried.

Martin played for five World Series championship teams with the Yankees in the 1950s. He managed five AL teams, tying Jimmy Dykes' record, but became famous for his love-hate relationship with Steinbrenner, who alternately hired and fired him.

Steinbrenner was an honorary pallbearer, along with Martin's longtime friends and teammates Mantle and Whitey Ford, and Willie Randolph, who played for the Yankees in all five of Martin's terms and is now with the Dodgers.

Florida's Darnell ready for thrill of bowl game

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Florida football program is in the hands of interim coach Gary Darnell, at least through Saturday's Freedom Bowl, and he intends to enjoy the matchup between his Gators and the Washington Huskies.

"To be here is a thrill. We expected to be in a bowl game this year," said Darnell, 33, who replaced interim coach on Oct. 8. Darnell replaced Galen Hall, who resigned after admitting to NCAA rules violations when he paid $22,000 in salary supplements to two former assistant coaches.

Kickoff is at 2 p.m. EST at Anaheim Stadium. Florida and Washington, which have never met on the football field, are both 7-4.

"It will be speed versus power, and with a precision offense like Washington runs, it will be a great contrast," Darnell said. "It will be the West Coast style of football against the Southern style of football. I expect an exciting and unique style of game."

Florida features All-American running back Emmitt Smith and the nation's third-best defense. Washington will feature foot-4, 300-pound senior defensive end Dennis Brown and quarterback Cary Conklin, who directs Washington's new three-back offense featuring multiple wide receivers.

This could be the last game for Darnell and Smith.

Florida athletic director Bill Arnsparger has confirmed that the Gators' head coaching job is Steve Spurrier's, if he wants it. Spurrier, the Duke coach who won the Heisman Trophy as Florida's quarterback in 1966, said he won't make an announcement until Duke and Florida have completed their seasons, but he's expected to take the job. Duke was beaten by Texas Tech in the All American Bowl Thursday night.

Clemson beats back flu to combat West Virginia

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Clemson coach Danny Ford opted for rest instead of practice on Friday, hoping an extra day off would help his flu-ridden Tigers snap back for Saturday night's Gator Bowl date against West Virginia.

"It's going to be a struggle," Ford said. "We're a little bit bedridden right now with the flu bug and a little heavy-legged."

Despite the illness, which has kept several Clemson players out of practice this week, Ford said everyone would be ready by game time except for junior tailback Terry Allen, who is sidelined with a knee injury. Allen is the school's second leading all-time rusher with 2,778 yards.

Fullback Wesley McFadden, who missed the Tigers' final regular-season game with a knee injury, is healthy enough to play.

Although he didn't schedule a practice, Ford arranged a visit to the Gator Bowl on Friday night to give his players a chance to acquaint themselves with the stadium.

West Virginia coach Don Nehlen took the Mountaineers through a 1½-hour practice Friday afternoon.

The Mountaineers, "know they have a great team to play and they'll be ready," predicted Nehlen, who said he was concerned about making mistakes against a Clemson defense that forced 34 turnovers during the season.

"We've turned the ball over way too often," said Nehlen, noting the Mountaineers' 29 turnovers. "I think we're a good football team and I'm anxious to see how we match up."

While Nehlen worried about mistakes, Clemson players were occupied with finding ways to contain West Virginia quarterback Major Harris.

"There were a lot of 'oohs' and
