Packing it solid

Whether he's tired from hauling snow or just losing his footing, Aaron Beard, 11, leans against his "castle" Tuesday afternoon. Mild temperatures and plenty of sunshine made for good packing of what snow remained. He and brother Jordan were playing outside their home near Kimberly.

AT&T says software bug caused glitch

The Associated Press

BEDMINSTER, N.J. — AT&T blamed its largest service outage ever on a computer glitch in a new system designed to bolster its long-distance network, and moved quickly Tuesday to make amends with customers.

"It was certainly the most far-reaching service problem we've ever experienced," AT&T Chairman Robert E. Allen said.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. discovered the problem about 12:30 p.m. Monday, and did not correct it until nine hours later. More than half the long-distance calls placed on its nationwide network during the trouble did not go through, the company said.

AT&T said it traced the glitch to a computer in New York City that helps direct calls through the vast telephone network. Allen said it was not caused by a computer virus or sabotage.

The company said the problem stemmed from a bug, or "logic" problem, inadvertently written into the software, or computer program. The problem spread to more than 100 switching centers.

"It was almost like a nightmare waiting to be dreamed," said AT&T spokesman Burke Stinson. "It was there all the time but the conditions were not right."

In a briefing at the company's sprawling Network Operations Center in this New York City suburb, Allen announced plans to offer a discount day when all of AT&T's approximately 80 million customers can make calls at reduced rates. Allen called the plan a small compensation to customers who couldn't do business or reach friends and relatives during the outage. The company had not decided the discount date, but Allen said AT&T is filing an emergency petition with the Federal Communications Commission to approve the measure.

"Other options for compensation are being reviewed, said Herb Linnen, another company spokesman, but details were not yet available.

"Allen said he could not estimate losses to AT&T or its customers from the trouble. Airline reservation centers, telephone marketers and others who depend on telephones were especially affected; officials have said.

Red Army units sent to control Caucasus

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Kremlin sent more than 11,000 reinforcements, including Red Army units, to the Caucasus on Tuesday to halt a civil war between Armenians and Azerbaijanis that has killed 56 people.

New clashes were reported, and Tass said 2,000 people armed with anti-aircraft guns and other artillery were missing on hills around Nagorno-Karabakh, a disputed district that has become a flashpoint for the neighboring groups' ethnic hatreds.

Combatants in the region 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow had seized stores of hand grenades, the Interior Ministry said. In Armenia, "demands are being made to arm citizens and send them to Nagorno-Karabakh," according to the official, news agency, and the government newspaper Ivestitsi reported 16 attacks on weapons depots in 24 hours by Armenians hunting for guns.

In one raid, 3,000 people stormed a police station in Armenia's Artsakh region and seized 106 automatic weapons, 30 carbines, 27 rifles, more than 3,000 cartridges and a grenade-launcher, the newspaper said.

"We can't bring ourselves to pronounce it out loud, but what is happening now in Karabakh, in northern Azerbaijan, can unambiguously be termed a civil war," correspondent O. Shapovalov wrote in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

"The madness is continuing," an editor at Armenia's official Azenpress news agency said from Yerevan, the republic's capital. Gorbachev and the Soviet President declared a state of emergency in the strife-torn mountain area Monday night, empowering the government to deploy units of the Soviet army, navy and KGB to protect lives and guard vital installations such as railroads.

Internal security troops already in the region have been incapable of halting the most protracted ethnic conflict in Gorbachev's nearly five-year tenure as Kremlin leader, said by Ivestitsi Tuesday to threaten his entire campaign for "perestroika," or economic and social reform.

More than 6,000 additional internal security troops were sent Tuesday to reinforce existing Interior Ministry detachments, Tass said. To assist them, more than 5,000 Red Army soldiers, who traditionally carry heavier weaponry, also were dispatched, Tass said.

Soviet media did not say how many total troops were in the region.

Residents of Yerevan and Baku, Azerbaijan's capital, said by phone they had seen no sign Tuesday night of the reinforcements' arrival.

In Washington, the Pentagon said Tuesday it saw reports it believes to be accurate that a mudslide in Baku killed 16 members of the Caspian fleet.

It was responding to a reporter's question. The Bush administration supported Gorbachev's use of troops in the Caucasus and criticized feuding Azerbaijanis and Armenians for "revisiting old ethnic hatreds."

"We recognize the right of any state to ensure the safety of its citizens and it looks like that's the primary concern at the moment," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. The flareup is the most violent between mainly Muslim Azerbaijanis and mostly Christian Armenians since their decades-old feud over Nagorno-Karabakh erupted in bloody clashes two years ago.

High court to hear Idaho abuse case

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether people accused of child abuse have the right to at least one face-to-face confrontation with their young accusers.

The justices, in two cases of enormous importance for child-abuse prosecutions nationwide, said they will consider reinstating the child-molesting conviction of a Maryland day-care center owner and an Idaho woman's child-abuse conviction.

Attorney General Jim Jones called the decision "very good news" because it moves the state closer to overturning last year's Idaho Supreme Court decision which Jones said "poses tremendous roadblocks to efforts to crack down on child abuse."

Jones said he has been advised oral arguments will be held in April in the Idaho case, and decisions in the two cases are expected by July. They mark the court's second venture into this area of criminal law in the past two years.

Stating that the Constitution's Sixth Amendment requires a face-to-face confrontation, the justices in 1988 struck down an Iowa man's sexual-assault conviction because two 13-year-old girls were allowed to testify while protected by a large screen placed in the courtroom between them and the defendant.

"The Sixth Amendment, in part, says, 'In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right ... to be confronted with the witnesses against him.'"

The 1988 decision appeared to leave unanswered whether there may be exceptions to the face-to-face requirement.

Maryland's highest court threw out Sandra A. Craig's conviction, saying her 7-year-old accuser and three other young witnesses wrongly were allowed to testify against her over closed-circuit television.

But the state court stopped short of invalidating the Maryland law that allows young children to testify by closed-circuit television, outside the presence of the defendant, in such cases. About half the states have similar laws.

The trial judge was constitutionally required to question the children, however briefly, in Mrs. Craig's presence, the state court said.

That was the only way, the state court con-

Twin Falls ruling based in part on Wright case

By ANITA DENNIS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A District Court judge in Twin Falls based a recent decision in part on the Wright case now before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Fifth District Judge Daniel C. Hurbutt Jr.'s ruling also has been controversial: The Idaho Attorney General appealed it to the state Supreme Court, and Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter asked the judge to reconsider.

In August, after several days of testimony, Hurbutt barred a 3-year-old girl from testifying at the trial of Gregory Oliveira, who is charged with lewd and lascivious conduct, that the judge could determine whether the children would suffer "serious emotional distress" if forced to testify in court with Mrs. Craig present.

In the appeal acted on Tuesday, Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. said the state court ruling in Mrs. Craig's case "struck an untrue balance between a defendant's constitutional right ... and the compelling governmental interest of safeguarding the physical and psychological well-being of a child."

Mrs. Craig was sentenced to 10 years in prison for her 1987 conviction on those charges. She also faces trial on charges stemming from the alleged molestation of 12 other children who attended the day-care center in Clarksville, Md.

In the Idaho case, the issue is whether a defendant's right to confrontation was violated by the testimony of a 2-year-old girl allegedly abused by her father.

Study claims Twin Falls judges lenient in sex abuse sentences

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE — Twin Falls County judges are more lenient in sentencing child sex abusers than judges in other parts of the state, a new study suggests.

The study shows whether you're going to do time or not depends on your geographical location. Gov. Cecil Andrus said Tuesday after releasing an 18-month study of jail and prison sentences ordered for child sex abusers.

Of Idaho's eight most populated counties, Twin Falls County placed dead last in the average sentence child sex abusers received.

Canyon County led the list with an average sentence of 102 months, compared with the four-month average sentence ordered for child sex abusers convicted in Twin Falls County.

Though they have not had the opportunity to study the report, 5th District Judge Daniel Hurbutt and Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter disputed its findings.

Both questioned the way the raw numbers were analyzed. They also suggested that lighter sentences may have come out of Twin Falls County courts if a prosecutor who had examined a few less severe than in other parts of the state.

"We've been lucky in Twin Falls County," Baxter said.

In the past year, Baxter said, she has not tried a child sex abuse case that involved weapons or excessive force.

"Most involved family members or someone in a trusting relationship with the victim, and that complicates the situation," she said. Baxter said she's "not afraid to take these cases to trial," though in some instances she said the offender would be allowed to plead to a lesser charge in order to land a conviction.

She questioned whether the study took those plea bargains into account.

And, especially in cases involving family members, she experts recommended treatment rather than incarceration, Baxter said.

Measure proposes drug test standards

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Senate bill setting federal drug-testing standards for private companies would provide consistency and eliminate lawsuits, supporters including former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop said Tuesday, but critics contend it would erode workers' rights.

The bill, sponsored by Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and David Boren, D-Okla., does not require businesses to test employees but gives them the clear right to do so — a provision supporters said would prevent unwarranted court challenges to drug-testing policies.

Court challenges discourage companies from implementing drug-testing programs, which have been shown to deter workers from using alcohol and drugs on the job, Koop and other supporters said at a news conference.

"Courts all over the country are saying, 'You can,' and 'No, you can't,'" Koop said.

Hatch said the measure protects the private sector by establishing guidelines for circumstances under which businesses can test their workers.

But Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil-

Skelton: Cuts could pre-empt treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be difficult to restrain Congress from making deep unilateral troop cuts that outpace progress on a European conventional arms treaty, a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee said Tuesday.

"I'm convinced that a far-reaching conventional arms-control agreement is within reach this year," Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., said after returning from 10 days of talks with allied army negotiators and others in Europe.

"The worst thing we can do is to have a unilateral force cut this year," he said. "If we give the Soviets a signal that we intend to destroy 40,000 tanks, they won't want to."

Ozone-endangering chemicals used

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some major corporations are making significant cuts in their use of three ozone-destroying chemicals, but the vast majority of companies have yet to take any concrete steps to phase them out, a private environmental group said Tuesday.

The Natural Resources Defense Council produced industry figures showing that more than 200 million pounds of the three chemicals, which are primarily used as metal-cleaning solvents, had been released into the atmosphere by more than 3,000 companies in 1987. The figures were the latest comprehensive ones available.

Responses to questionnaires sent by the group by more than 300 companies indicate that while some large polluters have reduced their use of the chemicals and emissions, others have not.

Mexican group makes drug statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Mexican advertising group, angry about a TV miniseries on the slaying of a U.S. drug agent, bought full-page ads in three major U.S. newspapers Tuesday to outline Mexico's anti-drug efforts.

"What have you done in the U.S.A.?" asks the ad placed by Consejo Nacional de la Publicidad, the National Advertising Council.

"We ran this advertisement in The Washington Post, The New York Times and the Los Angeles Times in reaction to a certain television miniseries because we wanted to rectify the damage that could have been done to Mexico's image," said Dionisio Ascobercia, director general of the council.

The council, a non-profit group of about 60 ad agencies, has no government connection, Ascobercia said.

FDA lowers recommended AZT dose

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration on Tuesday cut in half the recommended dose of the anti-AIDS drug AZT, reducing the cost and likely side effects of AZT therapy.

Some physician experts in treating AIDS already are prescribing lower doses. The agency's action will send the message to other doctors that the low dose is just as effective as the high dose and causes fewer side effects.

The FDA ordered changes in the labels on AZT, also known as zidovudine, to recommend 600 milligrams a day after one month at 1,200 milligrams a day, the previous recommendation for a daily dose.

Earthquake strikes California coast

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A strong earthquake struck along California's North Coast on Tuesday, but there were no immediate reports of injuries or damages. The quake, measuring 5.3 on the Richter scale, struck at 12:08 p.m. about 50 miles south of Eureka, the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park reported. The state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento and University of California-Berkeley Seismographic Station also estimated the quake at 5.3.

Barbara Bush supports women in combat

BARBARA BUSH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bush said Tuesday that women should be able to serve in combat as long as they have the physical strength to match their ability to shoot and fly as well as men.

"Certainly, emotionally and mentally they are more than able to compete with a man," she said in a wide-ranging interview with three reporters. She also said:

"The most hazardous method from the just-completed radiation treatment to combat symptoms of Graves disease, but she is cautiously optimistic. "I'm so eager to be better than I think I'm better," she said, acknowledging she still has double vision, especially in the morning.

"She doesn't know why her soaring popularity consistently surpasses President Bush's own high ratings. "I don't threaten anyone. I'm just a nice, fat grandmother," she offered as an explanation.

Her son, Neil Bush, "hasn't done anything wrong" in his onetime role as a board member of Silverado Savings and Loan. Neil Bush has been questioned by federal regulators about the failed S&L.

Asked whether women should serve in combat, as they did in Panama, Mrs. Bush gave a "qualified yes."

"If I thought a woman physically could pick up someone who was wounded and carry them to safety, if I thought they could throw a hand grenade as far as a man, then I would say fine. ... They can shoot as well. They can fly as well. The only problem I would have is if it risks somebody else's life because they couldn't throw a hand grenade as far or carry (someone)."

Bush said he would be willing to hear recommendations from the Pentagon about women in combat. The Pentagon's official policy is that women do not serve in combat roles.

Women unexpectedly became involved in the Panama invasion, Mrs. Bush said. "George doesn't hide" secrets from her, including the Panama invasion, and that he discusses ideas with her about world affairs. But Mrs. Bush said she knew something was afoot even before the president told her the specifics of the invasion.

"It was very clear to me that we were having an awful lot of people in the house," she said. "I knew pretty clearly that something was happening."

Mrs. Bush said she was surprised at how much she enjoys being first lady.

"I thought I'd like it but I never dreamed that I would love it," she said.

She said her most difficult duty was to attend a memorial service for the 47 seamen killed in the April 19 explosion aboard the USS Iowa.

Mrs. Bush met Tuesday with the reporters in the airy West Hall room of the White House second floor. Her eyes, though, tearing slightly, looked less puffy than they have on some recent days.

She said she can "always tell which of my friends have been to the grocery store" when they call to ask about her health after ending day reports in supermarket tabloids.

"They are so fake," she said of the tabloids.

Dole proposes shift in foreign aid policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole on Tuesday proposed cutting U.S. foreign aid to the largest recipients and switching the money to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe and Panama.

Dole, who met at the White House Tuesday with chief of staff John Sununu, said President Bush had been informed of the plan and told him "he appreciated it. I assume he must've agreed with it."

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Dole had discussed his proposal with Secretary of State James A. Baker III and added, "it's something the administration thinks is well worth looking at."

She said further talks with congressional leaders would be scheduled soon, but carefully couched the administration's position as one of support for increased flexibility in doling out U.S. foreign aid dollars, and not an intent to cut any specific country's current quota.

Tutwiler mentioned Eastern Europe and Panama as two places "where an administration needs flexibility to find funds."

But she added, "I'm not sending a message to anyone, to any country. ... This is aimed at the system, not at any one country."

In an opinion article in the New York Times, Dole proposed a 5 percent cut in U.S. aid flowing to the top-five recipients: Israel, Egypt, Pakistan, Turkey and the Philippines. That would free about $330 million to help encourage fledgling democracies, he said.

At a news conference, the Kansas Republican suggested that the cut might be broadened to include a second tier of countries, including El Salvador, Greece, Honduras and others, to yield as much as $400 million in new money.

"Some of these countries have to realize there are fewer tensions in the world, and maybe some of their demands can be reduced ... because we have new players" in the foreign aid field, Dole said.

Dole said he already had received a call from the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee expressing alarm about the proposal, and expected complaints from other interests that would be affected.

"Nobody will like it," he said.

"But it seems to me fair and across the board." Of Israel, Dole added: "We have limits. Israel has gotten a lot of preferential treatment."

One early reaction came from Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who said in a statement, "We must encourage democracy in Eastern Europe but we must do it without jeopardizing the security interests of our own democracy in some of the most troubled areas of the world."

Bank guilty in laundering case

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — An international bank pleaded guilty Tuesday to cocaine-related money-laundering charges, agreed to forfeit a record $14 million and to help prosecutors who say the case has ties to Manuel Noriega.

U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges accepted pleas from two divisions of the Luxembourg-based Bank of Credit and Commerce International and found them guilty, but has not set a date for formally imposing the sentence.

The plea did not affect co-defendants in the $32 million money-laundering case, including six top BCCI banking officers and two Colombians the government claims were part of the Medellin cocaine cartel. Their cases opened with trial motions Tuesday in a trial expected to last five months.

Under the agreement signed Tuesday, BCCI, S.A. and BCCI Overseas Ltd. are to forfeit $14 million in assets frozen earlier by the government. Prosecutors claim that representatives made from the sale of cocaine in American cities and laundered in a series of complicated worldwide banking transactions.

The banks also are to receive suspended fines and five years probation supervised by the Federal Reserve.

Rights violations up in South Korea

LONDON (AP) — Mass arrests and the reported torture of prisoners have reversed a two-year trend of human rights improvements in South Korea, an international human rights group said Wednesday. Amnesty International said 800 political and trade union activists have been arrested in major cities in a crackdown on political opposition by President Roh Tae-woo's government.

Argentine tourist bus flips, killing 18

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — An Argentine tourist bus flipped over and crashed on a highway in southern Brazil early Tuesday, killing 18 passengers, police said. Another 15 passengers were taken to hospitals in the southern city of Porto Alegre, about 965 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro, said highway patrolman Decio Schimer.

Czechoslovakia to invite papal visit

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A government delegation headed by Vice Premier Josef Hromadka will travel to the Vatican on Thursday to invite Pope John Paul II to Czechoslovakia, a newspaper reported. Hromadka, who is in charge of religious affairs in the new government, will be accompanied by Archbishop Frantisek Vanecek and Josef Sokol, the daily newspaper Lidova Demokracie reported Tuesday.

Killing of robbers controversial

LONDON (AP) — Two plainclothes British soldiers who foiled a weekend robbery in Belfast left behind three bodies and a tangle of questions: Did they give a warning? Why were they there? To what unit did they belong? Most crucially, witnesses claimed the soldiers kept firing after the masked robbers lay wounded on the sidewalk. And once again, the British government was denying that its forces in Northern Ireland have orders to shoot to kill.

Colombia won't end war on drugs

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The government rejected a suggestion by political and church leaders that it end its war with drug traffickers, according to news reports Tuesday. A communique issued Monday by the church and political leaders stated openly what many Colombians have been saying privately: that the nation does not have the resources to fight a long war against the billionaire traffickers.

Soviet military chief asks for cuts by U.S.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Soviet military chief urged the United States Tuesday to match sharp cuts in troops, weapons and spending Moscow is making as part of its plan to reshape the Soviet Union's defense policy.

General Moiseyev

The call by Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev, followed by comments by U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, cautioning that Soviet forces remain predominant in Europe, but praising Moscow's policy change. Powell also held out the possibility of U.S. troop cuts, saying there was "nothing sacrosanct about the number of American troops stationed in Europe."

curred in Eastern Europe since last year might affect those country's defense policies.

The session marks the first time the top brass of 35 nations have met down to try to lift some of the secrecy surrounding military affairs.

Moiseyev explained Moscow's change from offensive to defensive strategy, and urged the United States and its allies to make similar military cuts.

"We need reciprocity and would like to see it in the nearest future," Moiseyev said.

Earlier, Powell said the Western allies were still concerned about the specter of confronting greatly superior forces armed, trained and suited for offensive ground operations.

The Soviet military budget was cut by 8.2 percent last year and will be slashed by more than 14 percent over the next two years, he said.

"We also intend, if the situation permits, to drastically, by 1.5 to 2 times, reduce the share of the national income's spending on defense by 1995," he said.

Arms production will go down 10 percent, he said.

Sir David Craig, chief of the British defense staff, described Moiseyev's talk as "very interesting" but said he didn't find much new in it.

Craig said the West wanted to believe the Soviet intention to change its military policy.

"But there is a long way to go between intentions and execution," he said. "We must wait and see how that execution is carried out."

Here are East bloc developments at a glance

By The Associated Press

Tuesday's East bloc developments:

SOVIET UNION
The Kremlin sent more than 11,000 reinforcements, including Red Army units, to the Caucasus to halt a civil war between Armenians and Azerbaijanis that has killed 56 people and injured 156. New clashes were reported, with 2,000 people reportedly armed with anti-aircraft guns and other artillery massing on hills around the disputed region of Nagorno-Karabakh.

EAST GERMANY
Prosecutors began criminal investigations against protesters who stormed several police headquarters Monday. Workers demanding higher pay and faster reform staged strikes in several cities.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA
President Vaclav Havel joined thousands at a rally in memory of Jan Palach, the student who killed himself to protest the 1968 Soviet-led invasion. Interior Minister Richard Sacher announced the dismantling of the secret police and said officers were suspended, documents sealed and weapons confiscated.

ROMANIA
An opposition leader said the provisional National Salvation Front government agreed to opposition demands to delay elections to allow more time for emerging political parties to campaign. University students demanded the firing of professors viewed as incompetent or Communist Party apparatchiks and organized to act suspected informers.

BULGARIA
The Communist Party agreed to allow opposition groups to publish their own newspaper and said they would be granted offices in Sofia, but it rejected a demand for opposition access to radio and television.

POLAND
The government has set up a fund to assist workers who lose their jobs as a result of economic reform. The fund will provide unemployment benefits, some new jobs and small loans to start private businesses.

ELSEWHERE
In Bonn, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl scrapped an agreement for closer bilateral ties with Communist East Germany until after that country's May 6 elections.

A West German newspaper reported that Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev will visit East Berlin within weeks to show support for Communist Premier Hans Modrow.

The Soviet legislature restored the citizenship of ex-ilegit and coauthor of Ministry Rosupovich and his wife, opera singer Galina Vishnevskaya.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECASTS

IF JANUARY 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You're ready for new start, added independence, possibly new love. You will not be standing still, you are finished with obligation which almost buried you in 1989. During 1990, you'll imprint your own personality, desires. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You locate "missing link." Focus on structure, legal permission, serious consideration of marital status. Tonight features gourmet dining reunions with "special woman." Cancer native represented.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't attempt to narrow field of prospects. Perceptive potential in his entirety. Save details for another day. Emphasis on pets, dependents, basic chores. Popularity mounts. Sagittarian involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could amaze yourself as result of "winning ways" which draw admirers from both sexes. Focus on speculation, personal magnetism, ability to tie loose ends. Aquarius persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Refrain should be, "I'm going to sit down and write!" Emphasis on confidence, creative endeavors, letter aimed at crasing misunderstanding. Older person, possibly parent, will comprehend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may want to stay home but "mission" could request short trip. Scenario revolves around special purchase, art, remodeling. Money comes from surprise source. Libra native fills bill.

Q. Where, pray, did Lassie come home to?
A. Yorkshire, England.

Q. Why can't Prince Charles vote?
A. He's a member of the House of Lords, barred from voting, all. Prince Philip can't vote, either. Same reason.

PREDICTIONS
Don't predict bad news. If you're right, you'll be blamed. However unreasonable, that's said to be a common psychological phenomenon. Don't know if a predictor of good news gets credit, but just in case: I predict you'll make a lot more money this year.

THE OATS OF THE IRISH
Ireland's Irish know potatoes came late. Their staple since the Bronze Age has been oats. Don't know what those centuries of oat eating did for their cholesterol, but their life expectancy breaks no records.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Secret maneuver works in your behalf. Emphasis on universal appeal, charity, creative project aimed at helping the unfortunate. Some will declare, "You know how to cut red tape!" Aries involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You wondered, "Did I start something I can't finish?" Cycle highlights initiative, confidence, "elimination" of grumblings, fears, doubts. New love is on horizon. Aquarius becomes ally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You locate object that had been lost, missing or stolen. You might be saying, "On this Wednesday I have it all together!" You'll impress superiors, cash flow increases. Count blessings!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diversity, make inquiries, check diet, nutrition. Keep promise made to yourself less than one month ago. Involves health, self-esteem. Possibility of sea journey figures prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on mystery, intrigue, necessity for discretion. Metamorphosis occurs involving fashions, style, degree of confidence. Individual, you respect comments, "You seem as if a new person!"

Lawyer wants magistrate removed from bench

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Falls attorney Joseph L. Williams II has appealed the Dec. 11 contempt citation that landed him in jail and is trying to have the magistrate who sent him there removed from the bench.

Williams filed the appeal last week. He does not know when it will be heard in 7th District Court.

Magistrate Mark Riddoch, the target of the removal effort, said he learned of the appeal late Friday.

Neither Williams nor Riddoch would discuss specific issues involved with the appeal, but Williams predicted "a lot of hate and discontent" would occur as a result of the action.

A classified advertisement in the Post Register in Idaho Falls, as well as other newspapers, seeking support for removing Riddoch from the bench.

Williams said he has six volunteers in a "Rid 'Us of Riddoch"

Removal Committee seeking ways to remove the magistrate from office. He said Riddoch and some area attorneys have been trying to put him out of business and predicted the result of his appeal will be either a big step toward that end or the system is going to change.

Williams said he uses some unorthodox methods in his law practice, including direct-mail advertising. Riddoch said that although there is a narrowly accepted precedent for that type of advertising by attorneys, it may be against the Idaho State Bar Association's rules of conduct. Williams, whose specialties are uncontested divorces, bankruptcies, wills and drunken-driving cases, said he believes the contempt charge against him was the culmination of bad feelings most area judges and practices law.

But Riddoch said it was simply a sanction for Williams' failure to appear in court on behalf of his client on two different occasions.

Prison neighbors await barrier

LEWISTON (AP) — Planting of a barrier to screen Dunlap Road residents from the Idaho Correctional Institution-Orofino is two to three months away, state and local officials said Monday.

A spokesman for the residents, meanwhile, said a lawsuit could still be filed in the matter. "It's still not a good situation," said Jerry Musselman, spokesman for the Dunlap Road Citizens Group. "I still don't think the state is going about it right."

Road residents contend the state of Idaho has reneged on a promise made before the prison was built in 1984 to be a "good neighbor."

They said property values in their neighborhood have dropped because the prison is so visible and noisy, including bad language from inmates, can be heard coming from the prison.

Idaho Department of Corrections Director Richard Vernon said in Boise Monday that original plans to begin planting of the vegetative screen have been delayed to take better advantage of the spring growing season.

"It all depends on the weather," he said. He said his department is still reviewing the possibility of using inmate crews to do some of the work.

Letter hints at split over wilds bill

LEWISTON (AP) — How to define a road has led to the first public split over the Idaho Forest Management Act between Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and Sen. James McClure, who together drafted the bill nearly two years ago.

Andrus, a Democrat, and McClure, a Republican, began working on the bill in early 1987. A series of closed meetings, attended by the pair and personal aides, yielded an agreement nearly a year later.

Since then, Andrus and McClure have steadfastly maintained the bill was a joint effort and defended it as such.

But "after careful study and reflection," Andrus said in a Jan. 11 letter to McClure, amendments to the wilderness bill agreed to in the Senate made him "increasingly concerned."

The bill already has drawn fire from almost every side both within Idaho and nationally for various reasons. The bill would designate as wilderness 1.4 million acres of Idaho's remaining 9 million roadless acres. Another nearly 750,000 roadless acres would be designated as special management areas.

Andrus said he was concerned the debate over wilderness boundaries would postpone a resolution of the wilderness issue. The new language in the bill defining a road would turn the decision over to a federal judge, Andrus said.

"It's a given that the process will continue long after we have left the public arena. It is for these reasons that I cannot support the road provision in our bill," Andrus said.

The bill's language on roads has long been a thorn for conservationists who had tried to knock it and other objectionable provisions out of it during Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee debate.

After hours of wrangling, the committee approved an amended version of the bill calling a road "any clearly identifiable, well established route of travel which received significant regular or seasonal use prior to Feb. 1, 1989."

Peavey, Demos oppose abortion bill plan

By The Times-News and Associated Press

BOISE — Legislative Democrats are objecting to a Republican leadership proposal for handling what is expected to be a surge of abortion legislation, because of their opposition to introducing those measures in the Senate.

"This is unprecedented," Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said Friday. "I've never seen the Senate cut out of the legislative process."

As Democratic caucus chairman, Peavey is an outspoken opponent of a Republican procedural plan to introduce abortion legislation only in the House.

"We're not talking about the issue — we're talking about the procedure," Peavey said. "These bills should not be treated any differently than any other bills."

Some lawmakers admitted privately that the GOP-drafted procedure also could shield Senate Republicans from much of the political blow-letting likely to occur as the abortion debate heats up. Democrats would be campaigning this fall to pick up three more seats in the Senate. They could gain control of that chamber for the first time in three decades.

"Quite frankly I think they're playing politics by stacking the deck in the House," Peavey said.

According to Senate rules, individual lawmakers have until Friday to introduce bills without committee backing. Peavey said nothing can keep Democrats on both sides of the abortion issue from introducing legislation, and he suspects several will.

Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, adamantly rejected any suggestion that the method proposed for handling abortion bills was politically motivated by a GOP desire to neutralize as much of the abortion-debate's political fallout as possible.

The Republican leadership procedure, so far fully endorsed only by the Senate's GOP majority, would require all abortion bills to be submitted to the House State Affairs Committee by Feb. 12.

Behavior reaches county officials

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County sheriff and prosecutor have both received reports from a state agent who investigated a jail corporal's behavior toward a female inmate.

Sheriff Jim Munn declined to comment on the report, which he received Friday, and Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said she has not had time to read it.

Baxter said that assuming no follow-up is needed, she would know in a few days whether criminal charges will be filed.

Former Cpl. William H. Parsons resigned his job at the county jail Sept. 23, 1989. An investigation began the next day by an agent for the Idaho Bureau of Investigations.

Hailey man receives prison sentence for cocaine charge

HAILEY — A Hailey man involved in the largest cocaine seizure in Blaine County in five years will spend at least 12 years in prison, a 5th District Court judge ruled Tuesday.

Judge J. William Hart sentenced Roger Kim Fairchild to 12 to 35 years in prison and said he must pay a $25,000 fine for possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. He was also sentenced to five years and fined $10,000 for possession of marijuana. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Fairchild was arrested in June after a search of his mobile home turned up more than 3 pounds of cocaine, 3 pounds of marijuana, several guns and $2,500 cash.

A 12-person jury found him guilty of the felony charges in December.

Right to Life group to send buses to Boise march, rally

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley chapter of Right to Life of Idaho Inc. will be sending buses to Boise Saturday for the annual pro-life march and rally.

The buses will assemble at 10 a.m. at the Twin Falls City Park. The cost will be $5 for singles and $10 for families. For more information or to make your reservation; contact Michael Havenater at 734-9240 or Karen Heifer at 734-9121.

Development association slates Thursday meeting

TWIN FALLS — The Region IV Development Association Board of Directors will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the association's conference room, 1300 Kimberly Road, in Twin Falls.

Among items slated for action or discussion are a grain-cleaning and milling feasibility project, a U.S. Forest Service rural development grant and a report on the status of funding for the Economic Development Association.

Also on the agenda is a proposal to organize a regional economic development conference.

Local conservation chapter to hold 1st public meeting

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Conservation League's new Magic Valley chapter will meet at 7 tonight in CSI's Desert Building, Room 113.

The local ICL chapter invites the public to its first meeting. The statewide group is involved in issues such as water and air quality, groundwater pollution, public lands and other issues local residents deem important.

Jerome seeks 4 volunteers for county planning board

JEROME — The county commissioners are taking applications to fill four vacant positions on the 12-member Planning and Zoning Board. Those serving on the board are volunteers and applications will be accepted through until Jan. 29.

Applicants must have lived in the county for at least five years and have a "genuine interest in the development of the county," Commission Chairman Carl Montgomery said.

The planning board meets once a month. Primary responsibilities include formulating recommendations for the commissioners' consideration, processing special-use permits and dealing with other planning and zoning concerns.

Applications are available at the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

Saxvik appointed to power council position by Andrus

BOISE — Gov. Cecily Andrus has reappointed former legislator Robert Saxvik of Burley as one of Idaho's two members on the Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council. His term runs until 1993.

Idaho's other member is Jim Goller of Garden Valley.

Foes charge dam project endangers river wildlife

By N. S. NOKKENTVED Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A proposed hydroelectric project at Boulder Rapids would have "significant" impacts on recreation and wildlife, opponents say.

This is going to have a severe negative impact on fish and wildlife in that stretch," said Charles Corsi, fisheries biologist with the state Fish and Game Department.

The impacts on fish could result in a reduction in recreation fishing in the area of the project, Corsi said at a hearing Tuesday on the proposal.

The developers, however, say the project would not only have no harmful affect on fish and wildlife, but could improve it.

"Hydropower Electric of Nevada has proposed building a project at Boulder Rapids near Buhl that would divert about 4,000 cubic feet per second of water from the Snake River to generate electricity.

The proposed project would be built on a portion of the Snake River that is protected by the State Comprehensive Water Plan Act of 1988. That act seeks to protect fish-and-wildlife, recreation, geological and aesthetic values of the river.

The developer must obtain an exemption to that protected status from the Idaho Water Resource Board before the project can be built.

Corsi said the project may jeopardize efforts to sustain steelhead in the stretch of river from Shoshone Falls to the Bliss area. Sturgeon larvae need long stretches of river to drift while they develop.

Normal fish screen wouldn't keep the tiny larvae out of the power plant water intakes, he said.

Part of the project includes the formation of an island that would benefit wildlife and prevent predation from dry-land predators, said engineer Carl Myers, who represents the developers.

But the current needed to keep predator

Reed Hulet wants to convert a half-mile stretch of Union Pacific right-of-way to farm land

Farmer not happy with plan to turn railroad land into hunting ground

By MARK KIND Times-News writer

WENDELL — Reed Hulet has long coveted the strip of Union Pacific land that bisects one of his farm fields.

"We had the idea when they abandoned that line we'd just have to take up the rails and the land would be ours," Hulet said.

But the government says the tract is for the birds.

Under a federal "rails-to-trails" law, recreation and conservation groups get first crack at the land now that the Interstate Commerce Commission has approved terminating rail service on the line stretching 14.3 miles from Wendell to Bliss.

Hulet fears that an Idaho Fish and Game Department bid to convert the land to a wildlife observation and hunting trail will create a thoroughfare for vandals. Nearly half a mile of the trail would pass through his property.

"Any time you get city people out there among the farms, then you've got trouble," he said.

Hunters have shot holes in irrigation pipes, and four-wheelers have driven right over his fences, he said.

"You can't imagine all the things people can think of to do to a person's farm."

Hulet would like to farm the extra two or three acres in the right-of-way. He raises hay, grain and cattle.

Carl Nellis, regional supervisor at Fish and Game's Jerome office, said Hulet's fears aren't altogether unreasonable.

"I think his concerns are well-

Twin Falls man requests state car insurance review

By DENISE TURNER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The search is on for 38,500 Idahoans who are fed up with rising auto insurance rates.

Donald McMurrin of Twin Falls filed 20 signatures of local residents with the Idaho Secretary of State's office Tuesday requesting the state review his proposal for changing the way auto insurance is determined.

Next, he wants to collect the 38,500 signatures necessary to place an initiative on the 1990 ballot that would force insurance companies to freeze auto insurance rates for one year, starting in January 1991. After the freeze, McMurrin wants to ban insurance companies from basing rate increases on any factors other than individual driving records.

"I hope to have the signatures by July 1," McMurrin said, the initiative deadline for the November ballot.

"There is no problem with getting the signatures, but the problem is with getting to the people because I don't want to get other organizations involved," McMurrin is determined that his effort be a grassroots, non-political one. "I don't want this to become a three-ring circus," he said.

McMurrin plans to enter parades throughout the area. "I'll take my pickup and trailer, and I'll have volunteers walk beside me and get signatures," he said. He has also obtained permission to set up his table and chair outside several area businesses, he said.

McMurrin has been doing his homework. According to a Library of Congress figures, he said, liability insurance has risen 500 percent since 1979. "Many young people pay more insurance on their autos than the autos are worth," he said. "My bill would provide them a one-year grace period so that they could develop a good driving record."

"We don't have a transit system here in our area," McMurrin said. "So if people lose their driving privileges because they can't afford the insurance, this could be very bad."

McMurrin's bill also wants the state insurance director elected by the public, not appointed by the governor.

The phone has been ringing since McMurrin began working toward his goal, he said. He has even received calls from people in other states asking for copies of his proposed bill. McMurrin's initiative is similar to a California insurance proposition passed by voters last year, he said.

Craig: Saylor Creek process has 'mistreated' Magic Valley residents

By MARK KIND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Congressman Larry Craig said Tuesday that Magic Valley residents didn't get fair treatment from the Air Force early in the bid to enlarge the Saylor Creek Bombing Range.

"They've been mistreated by the process," he said in an interview.

He said his role as a mediator has helped push the Air Force to treat Magic Valley residents more fairly through creation of study groups and extension of the expansion's review period.

"I've stepped into the middle and said, 'You will change,'" Craig, a 1st District Republican running for U.S. Senate, stopped in Twin Falls on an organizing "trip" through Idaho. He is running for the seat vacated by Jim McClure's decision not to seek re-election in November.

In the interview, he avoided clear support of the base expansion, without ruffling feathers.

"I will not prejudice," he said.

The Air Force has proposed increasing the Owyhee County bombing range size 15-fold. An alternative to that expansion could involve substituting bases in Nevada and Utah for bombing practice, he said.

But Craig said Idaho should carry its share of the national defense burden.

"I don't believe Idaho should be totally free of that responsibility," he said.

And Saylor Creek is also an economic issue, he said.

"I want to see Mountain Home Air Force Base flourish," he said.

Federal government loses 1st step of water filing fee dispute

The Times-News

Idaho filing fees are a "disguised" tax, Hurlbutt said.

BOISE — Fifth District Judge Daniel C. Hurlbutt Jr. will rule against the federal government in a dispute over filing fees in the Snake River Adjudication, he said Tuesday.

The ruling, however, doesn't decide the issue.

"It certainly makes the adjudication more viable," Attorney General Jim Jones said.

Hurlbutt ruled that the McCarran Amendment, which allows the federal government to be included in a state adjudication over water rights, waives federal immunity from having to pay filing fees.

Still to be decided is the issue of whether the

The federal Justice Department filed a brief in July claiming the filing fees were an illegal tax on federal water rights. The filing fees for federal water rights in Idaho would amount to about $11 million.

Questions yet to be answered include: the definition of a filing fee; the kinds of expenses filing fees can cover; and what turns a filing fee into tax.

Hearings on these and related issues could turn into a "fairly full-blown trial," Hurlbutt said.

U.S. Trial Attorney Peter Monson raised 18 additional issues at Tuesday's hearing in Boise.

McMullen draws 5-year prison term

By TERRELL WILLIAMS Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Former newspaper publisher Steve McMullen was given a five-year prison sentence in 5th District Court that will make him eligible for parole after three years.

In handing down the sentence Monday, 5th District Judge Phillip Becker also ordered McMullen to pay an estimated $900-$1,000 in restitution for newspaper equipment.

In December, McMullen pleaded no contest to felony grand theft. He was charged with illegally selling two pieces of newspaper equipment while he was publisher of the North Side News, the Gooding County Leader and the Lincoln County Journal.

The court retained jurisdiction of the case for 120 days, during which time he will be at the North Idaho Correctional Institution in Cottonwood; Becker can reconsider the sentence at the end of that time, suspending any or all of it, if he chooses.

If the sentence stands McMullen would have

Immanuel Lutheran girls win tournament

TWIN FALLS — The girls' basketball team of Immanuel Lutheran School won its two-year winning record to 27 by winning an invitational basketball tournament in Salt Lake City over the weekend.

The Twin Falls seventh and eighth grade girls, 9-0 this season, defeated the three Salt Lake City teams en route to their fourth consecutive interstate tournament.

The Immanuel boys' team was third, defeating Las Vegas, Nev., and Salt Lake City but bowing to Grace-Luthern of Pocatello. They currently are 5-3.

Northside: Camas gains momentum

By BRAD BRELAND Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — Camas County took a major step to claiming its second-straight Northside Conference boys' basketball title Tuesday night by downing Dietrich 67-58.

The win came courtesy of 22 points from Ed Harness and a 13-point Musher turnaround in the middle quarters.

The Devils held a seven-point advantage early in the second quarter and the Mushers erased that and turned it into a six-point advantage after three quarters.

"I'm not sure what happened," said Camas County coach David Shirts, "the shots we took began to fall. (Andy) Erntausen and Harness finally got hot and we had good play off the bench."

It appeared Dietrich would have a payback turn after the Mushers dealt the Devils their first loop loss last month. After both teams had played evenly in the first quarter, Dietrich took the lead less than 30 seconds into the second on a Craig Sorenson bucket and free throw. Sophomore Aacy Shaw popped in a three-pointer to boost the lead to seven.

Camas County came back to cut it to four at the break on a three-pointer by Tyler Ballard and a field goal by Clint Wolf.

After a tie in the second half, it was time for Harness to come alive. He started his second-half 17-point run midway through the period. Harness' eighth third-quarter points along with another Ballard three-pointer, gave the Mushers a six-point edge heading into the final eight minutes.

The Devils could get no closer as Harness hit seven free throws down the stretch.

The victory boosted Camas' season record to 8-5 and its conference mark to 6-0, while Dietrich dropped to 11-4 and 5-2.

Cold-shooting CSI beats Western Montana, 81-61

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The question about any basketball team is how it plays when it's shooting poorly.

College of Southern Idaho coach Fred Trenkle usually doesn't have to worry about there. Tuesday night he did. And what he saw he liked as his Golden Eagles turned in perhaps their best game — a seven-shooting — in turning back Western Montana's Bulldogs 81-61 in a non-conference game.

The No. 1-ranked Eagles, now 17-0 for the season, trailed the Bulldogs through the first 15 minutes of the game. And, in a rarity, fell behind 33-31 two and one-half minutes into the second half — something that seldom happens under the Golden Eagle dome.

But throughout that time, the Eagles' defense was its best of the year, and included at least eight blocked shots in the first half.

The Eagles tried, Western missed three of four free throws, getting to 59 with 1:32 remaining. CSI kept the shutout going until John Sullivan slipped under the basket on the baseline and reversed in a left-handed crippler with 25 seconds showing. Trenkle enjoyed the game as much as the fans, although he quickly confirmed "we don't schedule this game for my heart. We schedule this for our fans and for a tough ball game that we hope will help us through the rest of the regional season."

well. We were 10-12 from the line in the first half and we rebounded well with a solid team. "I felt we had them when we got the ball out of (freshman guard Anthony) Gildo's hands. We were able to pressure the other four guys pretty well and that's where we won the game," Trenkle said. "I can see where this bunch would only lose by three to Idaho State in the dome when ISU was playing well and beat Ricks twice and North Idaho. They are talented and very court wise."

Hagerman holds on to defeat Shoshone, 47-46

By JEFF HOSKJSSON Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — For three quarters, the fourth-ranked Hagerman Pirates controlled the game only to see it nearly slip away in the final quarter.

But the Bucs held on to defeat third-ranked Shoshone 47-46 in Magic Valley conference boys' basketball action Tuesday night at their end of the court.

"We had more intensity tonight than at any other time this year," said Pirates coach Randy Clark.

The Pirates' height advantage over the Indians showed all night as they were able to get second and third chances at the basket while allowing the Indians only one shot on their end of the court.

Warr made it a 9-point gap when he hit a short bank shot before the Indians rallied to end the second quarter with two free throws. Alex Ligera and a three from Alex Ligera to make it 25-21. "Shoshone took us out of our offense during the second quarter and that helped them get back into the game," said Clark.

The Indians went to work, scoring 7 unanswered points to pull within 4 at 45-41 with just under two minutes remaining in the game. "I was real proud of our kids. They didn't let up," said Messick.

"The biggest problem for the Indians all night was stopping the inside play of Ryan Paris and Jason Warr. Paris scored 16 points and Warr scored 12. They had a 16-9 first-quarter lead."

Joe Messick pulled the Indians to within four at the second quarter started with a three-pointer. But the Pirates stretched it back out on a free throw by Kirk Lindsay and a put-back by Warr.

After a Pirate turnover Messick hit from 18 feet to make it a 1-point game with 18 seconds remaining. Despite two missed free throws in the games last 10 seconds, the Pirates held on for the victory.

Becker, Graf move up in Australian

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — West Germans Boris Becker and Steffi Graf have an unfair advantage as they seek to conquer Australia after capturing Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Compatriots armed with tennis rackets, they practice together from time to time, to get out and beat up on the rest of the world.

Graf, who is seeking her third straight Australian singles title, on Wednesday carried young American Erika DeLone 6-1, 6-2 in a second-round match.

Becker easily won the third round of the women's singles Wednesday by fourth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, who stopped Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union 6-2, 6-0, and Terry Fedtjuk of Sacramento, Calif., a 7-5, 6-2 winner over Audrey Jellifer of Memphis, Tenn.

Among the men posting second-round victories on Wednesday were Pete Sampras of Rancho Palms Verdes, Calif., who ousted Spain's Jordi Arrese 0-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3; and Andre Cherkasov of the Soviet Union, a 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 6-0 winner over American Glenn Layendecker.

Becker puttimed travel-weary Paul Haarhuis 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 Tuesday night, just a few hours after the Dutchman arrived from New Zealand following visa difficulties.

Hospital releases Sonics' Dale Ellis

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle SuperSonics All-Star guard Dale Ellis was released from Harborview Medical Center Tuesday after several days of treatment for broken ribs.

Meanwhile, the King County prosecutor's office began debating whether to charge Ellis with driving while intoxicated.

Ellis suffered three broken ribs and a collapsed lung early Friday morning when his automobile struck a highway barrier.

Don Donohoe of the prosecutor's office said police reports on the Ellis case were received Tuesday and a decision on whether to charge him with DWI and reckless driving would be made by the end of this week or early next week.

Mary Rucker, Sonics spokeswoman, said Ellis was released from Harborview on Tuesday and officially placed on the team's injured list. She said Ellis was at home until any legal determinations were made.

MSU's Don Dunn heads for Pacific

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Don Dunn, defensive line coach for the last three seasons at Montana State University, has resigned to take the same position in the football program at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif.

Dunn came to MSU in 1985 as a member of then-head coach Dave Arnold's staff. When Arnold and the staff was fired, incoming coach Eric Salomonson retained Dunn.

Prior to his arrival at MSU he served two seasons as a graduate assistant at the University of Tennessee, then as line coach at Lees-McKeane Junior College in North Carolina.

A 1976 graduate of East Tennessee State, Dunn was a four-year letterman there. He later earned a master's degree from Union College.

McCants will trade college for NFL

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The choice was easy for All-American linebacker Keith McCants: Go for the money, flow or wait a year. "With millions of dollars at stake, what to do?"

"I truly believe that it is now time for me to move on," McCants said after announcing his decision Tuesday to bypass a final year of eligibility at Alabama to play in the NFL. "With the chance to play in the NFL, I have the opportunity to provide financial security for myself and my family."

With his speed and size, the 6-foot-5, 255-pound McCants likely will be one of the top picks in the league's April draft. The Atlanta Falcons have the No. 1 choice and the New York Jets the second choice in the draft.

NBA says no to Michael vs. Magic

CHICAGO (AP) — The NBA says the Michael-Magic show is a no-go. An NBA official said the league will not sanction a proposal for a $1 million one-on-one duel between Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls and Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"In its Sunday editions, the Chicago Sun-Times quoted NBA senior vice president and general counsel Gary Bettman in a statement made Thursday about the proposal." "A one-on-one game between Michael and Magic is neither something that (the NBA) would want to sponsor itself or have some other promoter do. NBA basketball games and the talents of our players are something that the NBA and its teams should be promoting, not third-party promoters."

The only exception to this rule, as stated in the collective-bargaining agreement, are exhibition games for charity, Bettman said.

Small-college stars come out on top

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Murray State quarterback Michael Proctor ran for one touchdown and passed for another Monday to lead the small-college all-stars over their major-college rivals 35-24 in the first King All-America Classic.

The game, which began at 9:45 a.m. PST, drew just 350 fans to Spartan Stadium at San Jose State University.

The major-college Nationals scored first as Central Michigan's Kevin Nichols scored on a 74-yard field goal. The American team rebounded with a three-yard touchdown run by Youngstown State half-back Lorenzo Davis before Pittsburgh wide receiver Henry Tuten scored on a 50-yard pass from Akron quarterback Michael Johnson.

The Americans took a 21-10 lead into halftime after Proctor's TD run and a 24-yard scoring pass from Proctor to Arkansas State wide receiver Fred Barnett.

The National team narrowed the lead when Michigan State safety Harlon Barnett ran an interception back 42 yards for a score, but the Americans retaliated with a one-yard touchdown run by Stephen F. Austin half-back Larry Centers.

Tennessee wide receiver Thomas Woods caught a 42-yard touchdown pass from Johnson in the third period, and Ronald Lewis caught a 7-yard touchdown pass from Stephen F. Austin quarterback Todd Hammel in the final quarter.

The small-college stars included Idaho State University inside linebacker Donald Miller.

Witt, Angels sign one-year contract

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Mike Witt, coming off his poorest season in six years, agreed Tuesday to a one-year contract with the California Angels.

Witt, 29, was 9-15 with a 4.54 earned-run average in 33 starts last season. It was the first time that he failed to reach double figures in victories since 1983, when he was 7-14 with a 4.91 ERA.

He allowed three earned runs or fewer 18 times.

Witt, a nine-year, major-league veteran, has a 109-104 career record with a 3.78 ERA. He just completed a two-year contract in which he earned $2.8 million.

Trump pays $11 million for fight

ATLANTIC-CITY, N.J. (AP) — Donald Trump paid more than $11 million to bring the heavyweight title fight between champion Mike Tyson and Evander Holyfield to the Convention Center June 18. Jack O'Donnell, the president of Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino, would not say how much the billionaire developer paid for the fight. However, he said it exceeded the $11 million Trump paid to lure the Tyson-Michael Spinks fight to the Convention Center in June 1988.

"It's in the same ballpark, slightly higher," O'Donnell said. "Certainly, we're paying more than we have ever paid."

Nourishing muffins for quick breakfasts

Breakfast. According to many nutritionists—it's the most important meal of the day. A regular habit of eating a nourishing breakfast leads to peak energy, top performance and overall good health.

Fast. Whether we sleep a few minutes longer, have early appointments or struggle with getting the kids out the door, breakfast often takes a back seat to busy morning schedules.

These Grape Oat Bran Muffins can be baked ahead of time and kept in the freezer, so it's easy to pull them out to defrost while you get ready for work.

These delicious muffins combine the flavor of grapes with the healthy fiber found in oat bran, believed to be beneficial in lowering serum cholesterol levels.

When you go to the market, read labels carefully to select high quality oat bran containing equal amounts of protein and dietary fiber—about 4 to 6 grams each. Oat bran should have a granular texture with tan and white flakes.

GRAPE OAT BRAN MUFFINS
 1½ cups oat bran cereal
 ¼ cup flour

- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 eggs
- ¾ cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1½ cups grapes*

Combine oat bran cereal, flour, baking powder and salt in large mixing bowl; set aside. Beat together buttermilk, eggs, brown sugar, vegetable oil and lemon peel.

Quickly mix liquid mixture and grapes into dry ingredients mixing only until moistened.

Spoon into prepared muffin tin. Bake at 400 degrees 17 to 20 minutes or until golden.

Makes 12 muffins.

Rose Creek wine to hit auction

HAGERMAN — On Friday, the 1985 vintage of Cabernet Sauvignon from the Rose Creek Winery in Hagerman will be offered for auction worldwide by Sotheby's of England in their "New World Wine Auction."

This red wine, selected by English Master of Wine Mark Savage during a wine buying trip to Idaho, was exported to his wine shop in London. The wine was entered in the 1989 Wine Magazine International Challenge and won a gold medal.

In October, the London Sunday Times called Rose Creek's Cabernet "a stunning wine in a rich Bordeaux style" and listed it in the New World

Top 20. In November, when the London Sunday Express named "Ten Best Newcomers," only two of the 10 were from the United States. They were Idaho's 1986 Covey Rise Chardonnay and the 1985 Rose Creek Cabernet Sauvignon.

Only six wineries in the Pacific Northwest were selected to participate in this year's auction. They were Arbor Crest, Blackwood Canyon and Snoqualmie from Washington; Eyrice and Ponzi from Oregon and Rose Creek from Idaho.

Rose Creek Winery is operated by the James Martin family in Hagerman.

Dispute

 Kellogg to the American Dry Bean Board have rallied to provide dietary products to lower blood cholesterol levels.

Meanwhile, opportunities for Americans to learn their cholesterol levels through blood tests have sprung up in shopping malls, workplaces and schools and are urged by many physicians as part of the routine physical.

Moore questions the logic of treating the entire nation as opposed to individuals.

"A program of medical treatment that will cost $20 (billion) to $40 billion a year, ought to have a better justification than just that it won't hurt," Moore says.

"People should have fair and accurate information. This campaign also goes against what we have learned about human health behavior: You can't frighten people into taking care of themselves."

The education program guidelines should be relaxed until more questions about cholesterol and heart disease are answered through scientific study, he says.

"I am a little surprised about what I call the righteous fury of the cholesterol crusaders," Moore says. "I think they would have a better program if they listened to their critics. I also think there is a hunger among the public for better information about their health, for balanced information."

But Branton says the education program recommendations amount to little more than eating sensibly and having regular medical checkups.

"I think that there is a real strong theoretical and practical reason for the education program guidelines. And they are actually fairly liberal," he says.

"I think it's appropriate for people to ask questions. But the dietary guidelines make sense even if cholesterol levels are normal."

 movements through the store to help the retailer decide how to stock merchandise and how well ads are working.

Let's whiz on past the opulent gourmet-to-go display, the pre-cut, prewashed vegetables and the fresh fish market with its exotic array of sushi. That's the stuff of the '80s.

What's now of interest is the banking kiosk that offers safe deposit boxes and foreign currency transactions, the pharmacy, the appliance repair and the travel center. We left the kids home today. But if they were along, we'd have the choice of roping them at the in-store baby-sitting service or having them photographed in the photo studio.

Stores that don't offer Videocarts feature the Cuisine Machine, a series of video terminals, strategically stationed on shelves and in refrigerated cases, that deliver prerecorded sales pitches.

The supermarket of tomorrow also lures with "smart-cards"—for electronic payment; "singles' nights" with food and wine tastings; in-store bars for relaxing; Wine & Dine, an in-store wine selector that draws from a data base of 5,000 imported and domestic wines to tell shoppers what wine to serve with their dinner; and increasingly sophisticated cable- and computer-shopping systems.

And, just in case a shopper has a question not answered by these high-tech trappings, tomorrow's supermarkets will offer a series of automatic "Help" stations.

Created by INDYME, the ShopIt Customer Service System consists of a network of buttons, scattered throughout the store, that customers can push to let store employees know exactly where help is needed.

Our wagon is overflowing. And we have enough receipts and wine suggestions to feed the local gourmet dinner club for weeks. It's time to check out the check-out lines.

For starters, there are no cashiers, no baggers. We insert our store card into a video monitor and the belt starts rolling. We run our groceries over the scanner, one at a time, then place them on the belt, which moves them to the bagging area.

The computer knows we selected certain coupons when we entered the store and automatically credits us with these savings.

"You've heard of self-service gas stations, this is a self-service check-out stand," said Laura Goss of CheckRobot Inc., the Florida company that created CheckRobot automated checkout machines.

As we scan each item, the video monitor flashes the amount of each purchase and a voice announces, for example, "orange juice, 89 cents." When we have scanned all of our groceries, we touch the screen to end the order. The screen shows a total amount and a model who says "Thank you for shopping at ShopRite." A touch also activates the machine to dispense a receipt showing the total.

Next, we get to bag our own groceries and take our receipt to a central cashier.

"The configuration is normally two lanes to one payment station," said Goss. "But one station can handle four lanes."

And finally, we pay—presumably less than we did for the same groceries in the supermarket's personnel costs are lower.

Some folks pay with cash, a few with checks. But according to Jack Brown, Chief Executive Officer of Sinter Bros. Markets, the debit card, which automatically debits the shopper's checking account and credits the store's account, will be used in all supermarkets within five years.

"It eliminates the need for writing checks—and getting them approved. And it eliminates the bad-check cost to supermarkets, which the customer pays for."

The CheckRobot, or other automated, self-service checkout stands, may seem easy marks for would-be-cheaters. But Goss says there is not a problem.

"We have a security system that is patented, proprietary," she said. "Usually there are customer assistants at the head of each lane helping people who haven't done it before and helping with heavy items, so it's hard to take anything (without paying). But if a customer tries to scan one can of soup and then place two cans on the moving belt, the belt will abruptly stop and reverse itself, and the video monitor will indicate a problem."

The groceries are in the cart. Mission accomplished.

Wife learns to overlook husband's short stature

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Single and Short in Minneapolis" made my day! Thirty-two years ago I was one of those single women who wondered where all the "good" men were — and at 5 feet 10 inches, I didn't consider them "good" unless they were at least 6 feet tall. Then I met a fellow whom I described at the time as "a short, skinny little pip-squeak." The only things he seemed to be long on were good manners and perseverance. Every time we met, he would ask me to go out with him. I politely declined.

One day, growing tired of having to be pleasant to this persistently polite little person I wasn't interested in, I decided to go out with him just once, but to be such a dull date, the little pip-squeak would quit pursuing me.

Well, last June we celebrated our 31st wedding anniversary. He is still four inches shorter than I am, but he's the biggest man I have ever had the privilege of knowing, and I thank God daily for opening my eyes before I passed up the sweetest guy in the world!

— GOT THE PRIZE IN ARIZONA

still plowing through the mail in response to "Single and Short in Minneapolis":

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "Single and Short in Minneapolis," tell him to take a good look at the men's side of the singles columns. Never have I seen one as tall as you. "Want and a good sense of humor." They all read: "Wanted: pretty, slender, etc."

Don't men realize that marrying a slim woman isn't always what it's cracked up to be? What happens after she has two or three kids?

At least when a guy marries a woman with a little meat on her bones, he's not in for a big surprise in later years.

— SINGLE AND PLUMP IN PITTSBURGH and Short in Minneapolis": Hold the phone, pal. Most of the singles ads I see in the papers are for very attractive blondes need respond.

Short? Over 35? A few pounds overweight? Well, get thee a nursery and forget about dating and romance in today's beauty-obsessed culture.

— SHORT, SINGLE AND FED UP IN FRESNO

DEAR ABBY: On the subject of height: I seldom meet a short man who does not have the "small man syndrome." Because he is short, he attempts to compensate for his shortness by being overbearing. I suspect that "Single and Short" is no exception. He betrays himself by saying, "I'd like to bop women up the side of the head to wake them up." The men I've loved have more class and character than to say that. Yet I know one short man in his 70s with whom I'd run away tomorrow if he asked me. May I give some advice to short men? (1) Examine your personality and don't come out too strong to compensate for being short. (2) Do not assume that tall women are not interested in you. Ask them out.

I have a final question for "Single and Short in Minneapolis." He advises women to consider men who are under 6 feet tall. Do you follow your own advice in reverse, and consider a woman who isn't trim and pretty?

— TALL IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Single and Short in Minneapolis": Excuse me, but I have been single for 13 years, during which time I've dated short men, tall men, fat, thin, rich and poor men. I've dated handsome men and ugly men, and I'm still looking for "Mr. Right."

I have learned that jerks come in all shapes and sizes.

Vintage clothing can be worn as well as collected

By the Chicago Tribune

If you keep stylish garments around long enough, many agree, their styles will return, which goes to prove that everything old is new again.

Those who collect (and often wear) old-time clothing will certainly attest to that, and such collectors have a field day rummaging through racks of yesterday's frocks and fancies offered for sale at "fashionable" vintage clothing shops.

Speaking of clothes and costumes of the past, the leather costume worn by Charlton Heston in the 1959 movie "Ben Hur" was sold to an anonymous bidder for $6,600 at a Sotheby's Collectors' Carousel auction last month in New York City. Designed by MGM costume designer Elizabeth Haffenden, the brown suede chariot-toga features an intricate gold stitched collar, brown leather forearm covers, a leather shoulder-plate with a crossband decorated with the Star of David, and a 9-foot blue wool cape. The red sequined evening gown that Marilyn Monroe wore in the 1953 movie

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" brought $14,300 (also to an anonymous bidder).

Copies of the auction's catalog together with a list showing the amounts paid for other movie star clothes (ranging from Monroe's white mink bikini to Judy Garland's far more modest blue-and-white-checked pinafore worn in the 1939 movie "The Wizard of Oz") can be obtained for $30 postpaid from Sotheby's, 1334 York Ave., New York, N.Y. 10021; phone 212-606-7000. The catalog also features toys, movie cels, dolls, baseball memorabilia, music boxes, jukeboxes, movie memorabilia and other important antiques and collectibles, which makes it collectible in its own right.

For those who love the look of long ago, there's the just-hot-off-the-press premiere issue of Vintage Fashions. The January/February issue features everything from oldtime swimwear to fashions of the opulent era to vintage gloves, jewelry, mesh purses and Victorian lovelies. The informative magazine is loaded with photos and information and is available for $19.95 per year from Vintage Fashions, A Division of Hobby House Press Inc., 900 Frederick St., Dept. M7, Cumberland, Md. 21502. Phone 301-759-3770 for information. The magazine also contains hard-to-find sources, books, shops and shows relating to vintage fashions.

The premiere issue of the magazine also features an educational article by vintage clothing maven Terry McCormick, who publishes the fabulous Vintage Clothing Newsletter for collectors.

The newsletter contains hard-to-find information on all types of clothing and accessories along with ads, articles, sources, services, shops, shows, supplies, fabrics, patterns, ornaments from clothing, catalogs and how-to clothing courses. It is available for $16 per year for six issues from Terry McCormick, Vintage Clothing Newsletter, P.O. Box 1422, Corvallis, Ore. 97339. Individual issues are available for $1.50 for Numbers 1 through 32, $2 for Numbers 33 through 36 and $3 for a current issue.

Home inspectors take on wider role in housing scene

By GENE AUSTIN
Knight-Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA — Home inspector John Heyn recalls the time a homeowner, concerned with low water pressure from his faucets, called and explained that he was on the verge of letting a contractor replace his plumbing pipes at a cost of several thousand dollars.

Heyn agreed to take a look at the pipes and found them old but still serviceable. He spent a few minutes cleaning clogged aerators in the homeowner's faucets, and that solved the water-pressure problem.

"I've been doing things like that for years," said Heyn, a former two-term president of the American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI) in Washington. "I call them maintenance inspections. Just about all home inspectors do some of them. I usually charge about $150, but I can save thousands of dollars."

Heyn, who works from Baltimore, serves as an official spokesman for ASHI, which has about 1,700 full-time and candidate (first-year) members.

Maintenance inspections are a sideline for most home inspectors but provide an example of the widening role inspectors are taking in the housing scene.

"Home inspecting is way different today," said Jules Falcone, proprietor of The Inspector Inc. in Sharon Hill and president of the tri-state chapter of ASHI. "As close as six years ago, I sometimes had to explain to people what a home inspector was. It's much more accepted now."

Here are some of the activities of home inspectors:

- Prepurchase inspections on behalf of prospective home buyers. This is the typical home inspector's main role. A buyer considering purchase of a home retains the inspector to check for possible defects that could lead to costly future bills. Typical cost of the inspection is $200 to $250, and typical time spent by the inspector is 1½ to 2½ hours. Many prospective buyers accompany the inspector to get a firsthand idea of the condition of the house.
- Presale inspections on behalf of home sellers. Sellers find and take care of problems before attempting to market their homes, avoiding sale problems and possible delays. The cost is typically the same as for the buyer.
- Preventive-maintenance inspections. Checking out the possible need for a major home repair and/or determining whether problems can be solved by other means. Cost varies.
- Radon inspections. Checking for the presence of radon sometimes is done as part of a regular home inspection for a prospective buyer. Cost varies.
- Consulting for people planning to build or buy new homes. The home inspector serves as a go-between for owner and builder. Cost varies.

Some inspectors also advertise services like checking the quality of remodeling or repair work, inspecting for termites and asbestos, and analyzing water.

"The bulk of our business is with (prospective) buyers," said Falcone. "Other things are still a small part, but it's growing. So is the home-inspection business. In 1979 I was the only inspector in some telephone books — now there's pages of guys. My firm is now in 19 different phone books."

However, many consumers still find it tricky to track down an inspector, since the Yellow Pages listings appear under "Building Inspection Services," not under any of the "home" categories.

Falcone said he was experimenting with several services—besides buyer inspections, including a "one-time inspection."

"If you have a roof leak and call in a roofer, he might want to sell you a roof," said Falcone. "The roofer has a vested interest. An inspector is going to check the roof and just communicate what he finds. In many cases, an inspector is much better equipped to evaluate a condition like that than a trades person."

"The (inspection) business has changed a lot in the last five years," said Kenneth Austin, chairman of HouseMaster of America in Bound Brook, N.J., a franchise firm with inspectors operating in 35 states.

Valerie Bradley, president of the HouseMaster inspection service of Media, said that inspections for prospective buyers remained her company's primary business but that other services, including radon tests, sometimes were performed.

"We go in sometimes to evaluate home improvements," Bradley said. "We've also done some presale inspections for sellers; it gives them a report that can easily be verified. Sometimes we give tips to make a house more attractive. But we still don't get a lot of those calls."

Some inspection services also attempt to educate homeowners and home buyers on common home-maintenance and repair problems. ASHI offers a number of pamphlets, including Wet Basements and Crawl Spaces—Attic Ventilation, Roofs, Electrical Systems, Exteriors and Maintaining Your Home. The pamphlets are available for $1 each plus a "business-size" envelope, stamped and self-addressed. Orders should be sent to ASHI Brochures, 3299 K St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007.

HouseMaster recently produced a videotape with instructions for handling various home repairs. The tape, along with a loose-leaf notebook of tips and information, will be given to home buyers who obtain HouseMaster inspections, Austin said.

The proliferation of inspection services and inspectors can create problems as well as solutions for homeowners and buyers. Heyn, the Baltimore inspector, pointed out. Since licensing and testing are not mandatory in most areas, anyone can enter the business and advertise such services.

"Most consumers aren't able to judge the professional qualifications and experience of a home inspector and can be too easily impressed by a good sales pitch or contrived testimonials," Heyn said. He said membership in ASHI was one good criterion for screening an inspector. ASHI members must pass written and oral tests and give proof of extensive experience as home inspectors.

Grooming indoor plants for better appearance

There are several ways to groom indoor plants to improve their health and appearance. These include removing dead and discolored leaves, pruning to encourage branching and cleaning leaves to remove dust.

One or two brown or yellow leaves can spoil the appearance of a plant. Because of poorer mid-winter light conditions, more leaves deteriorate this time of year. It requires more frequent effort to keep plants looking nice.

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardener.

Some plants may need to be moved nearer to a window to improve light conditions and reduce leaf shedding. Turning or rotating plants will help avoid excessive leaf loss on the side away from the light. This will also correct the tendency of plants to lean toward the light.

Pruning will improve the shape of plants and make spindly plants more bushy. If a branch becomes too long, shorten it with a knife or pruning shears. Prune just above a leaf in the area where you would like to stimulate some new branches. Pinch the tips off of young shoots to create several branches and a more bushy appearance. With many plants, the shoots which have been pruned can be rooted in a jar of water to produce a new plant.

Most indoor plants enjoy a bath periodically. Leaf pores become clogged with dust. Dust also reduces the amount of light reaching the leaf. Clean leaves are not only healthier but look nicer. Small plants can be washed in the kitchen sink with a spray nozzle. The bathtub may be more appropriate for larger plants.

Don't try washing plants outside until temperatures are above 50 degrees. Be sure to clean the bottoms of leaves as well as the tops. Individual leaves can also be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

There are a number of leaf shine products which can be very effective in cleaning leaves and giving them a waxy shine. Most are applied as a spray mist. Place newspaper underneath plants and move them away from furnishings to avoid soiling them.

Fuzzy leaf plants such as African Violets do not like to have their leaves become wet. Even spilling a little water on them when irrigating can produce spotting or discoloration. Check the label on leaf shine products and avoid using them on plants which can be damaged.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College. His column appears every Wednesday in The Times-News.

Insulation of small areas can produce fuel savings

By GENE AUSTIN
Knight-Ridder News Service

Small areas overlooked or ignored during the insulating of a home can contribute significantly to fuel bills and loss of comfort.

Uninsulated pockets of this type show up in many homes because the areas are difficult to reach or insulation is tricky to install for one reason or another. A do-it-yourselfer making insulation repairs should wear a dust mask, gloves and long sleeves to prevent irritation by insulation particles.

Following are several of the most overlooked areas:

- Attic entrances. Folding attic stairs are left uninsulated in many homes because the construction of the stairs makes it difficult to effectively and attractively attach insulation to them. However, an uninsulated folding stairway is equivalent to an open hole in the ceiling, and can be a major source of heat loss.
- Insulating kits for folding stairs are sold at some home centers and hardware stores, but a homemade system is one of the best solutions.

The first thing to do is to climb into the attic and have someone close the stairs. The folded stairs will protrude above the joist or floor level.

Measure the depth of the protrusion and add about an inch. This measurement will be the needed depth of a wood curb to be built around the stairway opening. The curb, a simple rectangle, is best built of 1½-inch-thick lumber.

When the curb is built, attach a half-inch-thick plywood trapdoor to the top edge with hinges, making sure the hinges are on a side that will let the door be opened fully. Blanket-type fiberglass insulation at least six inches thick is stapled to the top of the trapdoor, with the paper or foil covering against the wood. If necessary, also staple insulation to the outside of the curb. Weatherstrip the door surface that rests on the top edge of the curb.

Some attics are entered through a small trapdoor, often located in a closet ceiling or other out-of-the-way place, that requires a separate ladder. These doors are generally thin panels of plywood that can be insulated by stapling fiberglass insulation to the top side or gluing rigid-foam insulation such as polystyrene to the top.

Roof eaves. Eave areas at the sides of roofs sometimes have little or no insulation because access to them is difficult. Poor insulation in these areas not only permits heat loss, but can result in ice dams caused by the melting of snow over the uninsulated areas and refreezing of the water at the roof's edge.

Loose-fill insulation or pieces of fiberglass blanket sometimes can be pushed into poorly insulated areas of unroofed attics with a homemade tool. Make the tool by nailing a 1-by-6 board about 12 inches long to the end of a long pole. An agile person sometimes can work in the eave area of an unroofed attic by lying face down on sheets of plywood placed on top of the joists.

When insulating eaves, it is extremely important not to block or cover soffit vents that help ventilate the attic. If necessary, check the soffits (undersides of the eave areas) from the outside to determine the location of the vents, usually rectangular metal grilles.

- Band joists. Band joists, the outermost joists around the tops of foundation walls, are sometimes partly or completely uninsulated, contributing to cold floors and cold basements or crawl spaces. The joists are usually fairly easy to insulate in unfinished basements or crawl spaces. Strips of blanket-type insulation can be stapled to the inside surface of the joists, or rigid-foam insulation can be cemented to the wood.
- Heating ducts. Heating ducts running through unused areas such as crawl spaces or attics can lose much heat while it is en route from the furnace to room outlets. This heat isn't entirely wasted if it helps keep nearby water pipes from freezing or helps keep a floor warm. However, it is often cost-effective to insulate ducts in unheated areas and reduce the heat loss.

Love Story.

Boy-meets girl. Girl likes boy. Boy professes love. And a love story is begun.

Every family started with a love story. Tell us yours, and give our readers a glimpse of life in the good old days - whether it was the '30s, the '50s, or the '70s.

Where'd you first meet? What did you find to do on your first date? How long did you date before he "popped the question"?

Some of us gathered with friends at Shoshone Falls for picnics. Some of us walked miles to woo our sweeties. Still others danced the night away to tunes forgotten long ago.

Write us a letter that tells your love story, and send a picture of those good times.

In honor of Idaho's Centennial, we are putting readers' reminiscences in a new weekly column, "Looking Back." And we'll fill a special section with them next July.

Bring your stories and photographs to our office, or mail them to CENTENNIAL, The Times-News, P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83303.

All Treasures shared with us will be handled with care and returned to you promptly.

Letters of thanks

Magic Valley Altruza Club appreciates contributions

The Altruza Club of Magic Valley was privileged to participate in providing Christmas baskets for three families during the holiday, and we'd like to take this opportunity to thank those people who contributed to this most worthy project:

Randy and Janet Ford, Barry Sreen from Printer's Choice, Heather Hiney from Seed, Idaho Fresh Pae of Lewisville, H & M Distributing, Swensen's, Keegan's, Green Giant, Renee Oehsner and Sharon and Mike Drake.

Thanks to all.

CSI's Phi Theta Kappa fund-raising appreciated

I would like to express my appreciation to the Phi Theta Kappa Group from the College of Southern Idaho for the support they gave the Filer Special Olympic Team during our fund-raising project. This group helped with the Gift Wrapping Booth at the Blue Lakes Mall. They donated their time to help us raise our much-needed funds.

Those helping were Andrea Allen, Melanie Schmidt, Von Veeh, Sonya Lundgren, Candy Young, Mike Nazareth and Joel Hess. I appreciate these young people's willingness to help during such a busy time in their lives.

FILER SPECIAL OLYMPICS

The Times-News welcomes letters of thanks of 150 words or less. Please send letters to Letters of Thanks, The Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Help of Sabala, Allen made transition smooth

I would like to thank Ray Sabala of Sabala Realty and T. Kim Allen of First Security for all their time and patience during our recent home sale and purchase.

Without these two men, the transition would not have gone so smoothly. With such help, problems were few and we were able to concentrate on moving.

Thanks,
PATRICIA HEATH
 Kimberly

West Magic Care Center residents express thanks

To the people of Magic Valley who helped to make Christmas more meaningful to the residents of the West Magic Care Center.

We want to take the opportunity to express our thanks to each and every one of you for the many wonderful and needed gifts, special treats, caroling and visits.

God bless all of you and we wish you a good 1990.

'80s buyouts may bring '90s bankruptcies

By The Washington Post

Only two weeks into the 1990s, a new era on Wall Street has begun with a thud.

Campau Corporation's mammoth bankruptcy filing this week sets the tone for a sober decade that is likely to be marked — at least in its early years — by struggling companies and angry creditors than by the high-flying, debt-driven corporate takeovers of the 1980s that enthralled stockholders and Wall Street dealmakers.

In 1982, a wild takeover battle involving corporate giants Bendix, Martin Marietta and Allied presaged the most explosive and profitable decade ever in the world of corporate takeovers.

Now, less than two years after Campau acquired Bloomingdale's and the other prestigious stores in the Federated Department Store chain, the company is seen by some as the most dramatic symbol thus far of the consequences of excessive borrowing and corporate brinkmanship.

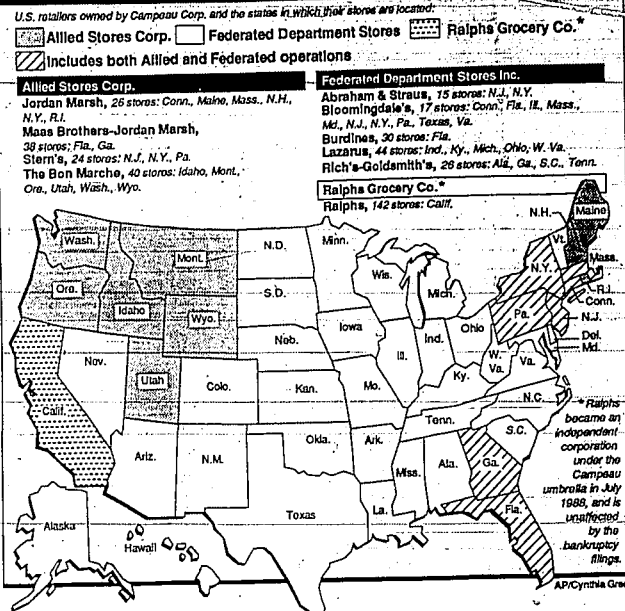

"I think it is a metaphor for all of the wrongs in the world of financial excess and top-heavy leveraged buyouts of the 1980s," said Mary Bechmann, a partner in the investment firm of Weiss, Peck & Greer.

Campau made a bankruptcy filing not because anything was fundamentally wrong with its retail stores, but because something was fundamentally wrong with its balance sheet: It had too much debt.

The debt came about as a result of many factors, including Robert Campau's willingness to pay a high price to assemble a retail empire, and the willingness of commercial banks, investment banks and giant insurance companies and other institutional investors to lend Campau the funds to finance his dreams.

The up-front fees for lending the money and arranging the takeovers were so enticing that some of the dealmakers didn't care about the longer-term financial risk and the potential damage to the underlying businesses. Others, no doubt, simply forgot, as the glorious 1980s wore on, that at some point, debt-laden companies with no margin for error might not be able to meet interest payments on their billings assets at ever-escalating prices.

Free-market forces are responding to the changes. Not long ago, there seemed to be a virtually unlimited quantity of financing available for new takeover offers of any size.

These days, financing is increasingly difficult to obtain, as commercial banks, insurance companies and investors in junk bonds have started to focus more on the risks than rewards of takeover lending.

Some of the junk bonds of Campeau's Federated and Allied retail chains are trading for only a few cents; others are trading at around 50 cents, less than half of what investors paid for them a short time ago.

"It is like night and day compared to a year ago," Bechmann said. "It is like last year we were in candyland, playing in Oz at the start of the year. Now it is like we are all back in Kansas with both feet on the ground. It is much more difficult to get deals financed."

The losses will be huge, given Campeau's more than $8 billion in debt. CS First Boston, Dillon Read and PaineWebber made hundreds of millions of dollars in "bridge loans" to finance Campau.

At the same time, no one on Wall Street thinks Campau is the last company built on risky, high-yield junk bonds that will end up in bankruptcy court in the 1990s. Some of the same Wall Street executives who earned millions of dollars in fees arranging the takeovers of the 1980s expect to garner millions more by resuscitating the corporate carnage of the 1990s.

"We will be seeing record-dollar amounts of defaults on bonds," said New York money manager Martin D. Sasse. "We set up a restructured securities-management division with a new fund October 1. We also set up consulting operators to act as financial adviser to financially troubled companies and distressed real-estate investment companies."

"We look at the advertisements that come out of this period of over-leveraging, and out of that comes opportunities to invest in severely distressed securities and real-estate assets that will be reorganized in the 1990s."

How Companies Reorganize Under Chapter 11

4th quarter: Experts predict slow growth

CHICAGO — Economists said there were few new clues in the business-inventory data released Tuesday, holding to their earlier forecasts for relatively slow growth in the fourth quarter of 1989.

The Commerce Department announced Tuesday morning that November business inventories rose 0.5 percent and October inventories rose 0.3 percent from a previously reported 0.4 percent.

The economists surveyed late last week by Knight-Ridder Financial News predicted an inventory gain of about 0.4 percent.

evidenced by the decline in the inventory-to-sales ratio to 1.52 percent from 1.53 percent in October.

Michael Niemira of Mitsubishi Bank in New York called the data "boring" and said: "I don't think there's a lot in terms of major new trends."

Fred Sturm, senior economist at Fuji Securities here, noted that the higher-than-expected rise in retailer inventory growth suggested some buildup might surface in the December report.

November pickup in retail inventories seemed to have occurred in the general merchandise area. "But even that corrected in December, anyway," he said.

Sturm also noted that the ex-manufacturer retail number showed a "decent increase." Some economists estimated that figure at up 0.8 percent.

David Vysse, economist at Data Resources in Lexington, Mass., pointed to the 0.5 percent rise in retailers' sales and said it could show up in a higher inventory number for the November merchandise trade report due out Wednesday.

The already reported weak December retail sales increase of 0.2 percent will keep inventory levels high, going into 1990, he said. He added, however, that he did not see the overall report as alarming.

By retail said default, the Beneficiary has exercised its option in the Deed of Trust and is desiring the entire indebtedness and accrued interest, late charges, attorney's fees, and any other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure as of this date to $22,327.37.

Steven D. Peterson CPA / Attorney at Law is pleased to announce the opening of his office for the general practice of law.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Labels are devices for saving talkative persons the trouble of thinking."
John Morley

"I thought a 'Chinese finesse' would work against West," alerted South.
"Not very bright," observed North. "Although a Chinese finesse can sometimes deceive the opponents, why try a finesse at all if it's unnecessary?"

South took his heart queen, drew trumps and cashed the heart ace. Then he led a low diamond toward dummy. West taking his ace. A diamond was continued and a club was discarded from dummy. One more club discard was available in dummy, and one club could be discarded from the South hand. Unfortunately that would still leave A-10 in dummy and Q-7 in South's hand. Without cashing his red-suit winners, South tried his "Chinese finesse" (an attempt to win a trick by leading an unsupported honor). The club queen was led, South hoping for a sleepy duck by West, but no luck. West covered and South had to concede a club for one down.

There was no need for trickery in the club suit. Assuming that West had led a fourth-best heart, South could force West into an embarrassing position. After cashing the winners in the red suits, South should run all his trumps. On the play of the last trump, the heart-ace and the A-10 of clubs remain in dummy and West must discard. He has no safe discard (if West saves the heart 10, the nine is discarded from dummy) and South can claim his 12th trick.
