Bush tells Kaifu troop cut won't affect stability

The Associated Press

LANCHON MIRAGE, Calif. — President Bush, opening a two-day desert summit, assured Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu on Friday that a cutback of U.S. troops in Asia will not undermine stability or security there, an official said.

The two leaders avoided discussing Japan's huge trade surplus and the growing trade tensions between the world's largest economic powers, leaving those subjects for Saturday.

The two leaders met for an hour before gathering again for dinner at the heavily guarded estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg.

The United States is considering reducing its 120,000 troops in Asia by about 10 percent. That would mean a reduction of 5,000 troops in Japan.

Referring to U.S. hopes that Japan will increase defense spending, Fitzwater said "The two leaders discussed the issue of burden sharing, noting the need for suitable arrangements for balanced cost-sharing."

Former KGB officer tells of spy links

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Victor Ivanovich Sheynov, once KGB agent 04035, told a news conference Friday that in the late 1970s the Soviet Union had "two sources" inside the State Department able to deliver secret information on U.S. policy and negotiating positions.

Neatly a decade after the CIA arranged his disappearance from Moscow on May 15, 1980, Sheynov, 43, appeared before a news conference and for the first time told at least bits and pieces of his story in public.

The former KGB major and communications and cypher expert said he was motivated by admiration for his new country, and offered himself as a person able to detect the real truth from the files as the Soviet Union moves closer to democratic change.

But Sheynov, an American citizen since 1985, also said he has written a book about his experiences and is looking for a publisher.

And, after a 78-minute session in which he dodged, or declined to answer questions from seeking spies on Soviet espionage activities, Sheynov passed out business cards bearing the name Victor Orlov, which he has used for the last decade.

His most sensational allegation was that while on a trip to Poland in 1979, the chief of the KGB's Warsaw station showed him a cable from Yuri Andropov, then the KGB's chief, reading: "Obtain all the information possible on how to get physically close to the pope."

Sheynov said he interpreted this as a directive from Andropov, later to become the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, to arrange the assassination of Polish-born Pope John Paul II.

"In KGB slang, it was clearly indicated that there was only one reason to get close to a person and that was to assassinate him," kill him," he said.

"They would never say kill or assassinate directly," he said. "There were gentler terms."

He said the order was given to obtain the requested information from data already contained in the KGB's files with no outside help.

Handcuffed Jerome County Jail inmates walk through R.E. Shepherd Park in Jerome where they were picking up garbage Friday afternoon.

Jerome County prisoners get their exercise

By ANITA DENNIS Times-News writer

JEROME — Every few days, the sheriff drops in on convicted murderer Jaimi Charboneau and tells him to put on his coat.

Then Jerome County Sheriff Larry Gold drives Charboneau, handcuffed and wearing jail fatigues and thongs, to some remote area. Then they go for a walk.

Charboneau, like every county jail inmate in the state, is legally entitled to five hours of outdoor exercise a week.

Gold said because the Jerome County Jail lacks an exercise yard, Gold improvises.

Deputies chain other inmates together and lead them around the block, Gold said. Sometimes they walk to R.E. Shepherd Park to pick up garbage or take leaves. They're taken out a few times a week, usually before 7 a.m., he said.

But Charboneau's reputation calls for special handling, the sheriff said, because someone in the community might wish him harm.

Charboneau, 30, was sentenced to death in 1986 for the first-degree murder of his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh. Her body was found at her rural Jerome ranch on July 1, 1984, shot 15 times with a 22 rifle.

His death ended a stormy relationship in which she feared for her life and had sought police protection. Charboneau allegedly kidnapped and raped her just weeks before her death.

Charboneau's death sentence was overturned last fall and he is staying in the Jerome County Jail pending resentencing in April.

Gold said Charboneau is looking for grounds to appeal, and the sheriff doesn't want to give the former rodeo performer any excuse to sue the county.

The sheriff said he never tells the inmate when he's going out, and he never walks Charboneau twice in the same place. Gold pointed out that he has 20 years of law enforcement experience, and he's 3 inches taller and 50 pounds heavier than Charboneau.

Governor admits error in letting wife join M-K

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus says he made a political error when he allowed his wife, do, I said, "If you want to do it, go Carol, to join an Idaho corporation."

Andrus said in an interview Thursday with the Lewiston Morning Tribune, "I should have been more specific."

"This whole thing probably can be traced back to an error in judgment and it has to be mine, not her's," Andrus said.

"I'll admit right up front it's been brought home loud and clear that there are people in Idaho that look at her as an extension of me," he said.

often to do something that was exciting and meaningful. And what I should have said, 'No, no, no, I don't want you to do it, go Carol, to join an Idaho corporation.'"

Carol Andrus was named to the $28,000-a-year post at Morrison-Knudsen Feb. 22.

But Andrus said his first clue that the move was a mistake came at his next press conference Feb. 22.

The governor was peppered with questions about a perceived conflict of interest. "I'll admit right up front it's been brought home loud and clear that there are people in Idaho that look at her as an extension of me," he said.

Andrus said he and his wife had a conversation about the matter. "I'll admit right up front it's been brought home loud and clear that there are people in Idaho that look at her as an extension of me," he said.

Robbins balks at paying court fees

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE — If Idaho's abortion opponents are so intent on having the state take the lead in pro-life legislation, Rep. Gary Robbins wants them to do it on their own dime.

Robbins, D-Twin Falls, is an outspoken pro-choice advocate. He said Friday that he plans to introduce an amendment to a Right to Life-sponsored bill, prohibiting Idaho from footing the legal bills for a Supreme Court challenge.

Some people say it's inevitable. "This thing is surely going to be challenged in court," it of pregnancy.

But the Idaho Right to Life bill, which was drafted under the direction of the National Right to Life Committee of Washington, D.C., calls for restrictions beyond those currently in place.

Known as HB 625, the Right to Life measure prohibits abortion as a means of birth control but allows for abortion in cases of rape or incest.

Attempt fails A5

The U.S. Supreme Court majority stated in its July 1989 Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services decision that states can increase restrictions on abortion after the first 20 weeks of pregnancy.

But the Idaho Right to Life bill, which was drafted under the direction of the National Right to Life Committee of Washington, D.C., calls for restrictions beyond those currently in place.

Known as HB 625, the Right to Life measure prohibits abortion as a means of birth control but allows for abortion in cases of rape or incest.

The extra money is intended to provide the commission the support it needs to develop an overall plan for attacking the educational problems Idaho's Hispanic community faces.

Batt declines run for governor

BOISE (AP) — Veteran state lawmaker and former Republican Lt. Gov. Phil Batt blasted his longtime friend Cecil Andrus on Friday, accusing the Democratic chief executive of jettisoning him above the people he was elected to represent.

Batt, 67, who suffered a wrenching narrow defeat for governor in 1982, said he had decided not to challenge Andrus even though he is "convinced that Cecil Andrus is ripe for defeat."

"After a great deal of soul-searching, I have elected not to run," Batt told a room packed with supporters at the state Capitol. "The thought of being governor, even though a great honor, does not have an overwhelming appeal to me. . . . There's another world out there besides the one we have in the statehouse."

"Others can do the job equally well," Batt said. While he would support announced primary candidates Roger Fairchild, a former state senator from Fruitland, and Boise stockbroker Milton Erhart as the nominee, Batt urged Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo of Idaho Falls and Boise lawyer Dirk Kempthorne to consider the race.

Crapo, who had not shown any interest in governor's race to date, said he wanted to think about Batt's remarks before making any further comments, and Kempthorne considered the race at Batt's urging earlier this year before ruling it out.

In addition to enjoying his retirement from politics that began two years ago, Batt said he was afraid his friendship with Andrus could not survive his campaigns, and he felt a commitment to continue with his membership on the Transportation Board since that agency is swirling with controversy.

But he did not let his friend off the hook, joining the rising chorus of voices from inside the Democratic Party as well as from outside, that has complained of at least a "perception that Andrus has become arrogant."

Batt criticized the ill-fated appointment of the governor's wife Carol to the Morrison-Knudsen Corp. board of directors "a glaring conflict of interest," and he contended Andrus had lost touch with the people's expectations and turned the governor's office into a partisan bastion.

Andrus took exception to some of Batt's criticism, maintaining he continues to exercise Party chief, to the jobs. But the Democratic governor has called for Morgan's resignation, adding that a "good-old-boy network" has no place in state government.

Morgan contends Transportation Board Chairman Marion "Sved" Davidson directed him to intercede for Kiebert and has refused to resign. Davidson said Monday he was advised by personal attorneys not to comment on Morgan's statements.

Neumayer was charged on Monday with the task of unearthing the truth by the agency's advisory board.

"Phil and I both know that no one in public life is immune from criticism and everyone in public life makes mistakes," the governor said in a statement.

Batt, who admitted changing his mind about the race several times over the course of the last week, said there were many issues the Republican nominee could challenge Andrus on in the campaign, but the question of the governor's arrogance is a strong issue of the day.

Governor Andrus has lost touch with what the people expect of him," Batt said. "His two decades of political success have seriously impaired his ability to rule impartially."

In addition to Mrs. Andrus' corporate board appointment, Batt cited the governor's refusal to admit to his office last summer chief Gary Glenn, the executive director of the Idaho Cattle Association, and the increasing evidence that government appointments are being doled out by Andrus as political rewards.

"When young Governor Andrus stepped into the office 20 years ago, he would thrust and parry with his opponents," Batt said. "But he would remain the happy warrior throughout and give the opposition its due. Now, it's the carrot and the stick. I'll give you the carrot if you help me and, if you don't, you'll get thumped by the stick."

Neumayer was given until Friday afternoon to either announce his findings, or give a status report, Stratten said. He would have to seek legal counsel to sort it all out, said Batt, who declined to say who contradicted whom.

In his Friday announcement, he would not run for governor, Batt said it was not a good time for him to drop out of the Transportation Board.

Acting transportation chief wants more time to sort out investigation

BOISE (AP) — Contradictory statements by lengthen an investigation into whether state Highway Safety Administrator Mel Morgan improperly tried to extend sick leave pay to suspended Transportation Director Kermit Kiebert, officials say.

Acting transportation chief George Neumayer has indicated he will need more time to sort out the truth in the shakedown of the agency's Transportation Board Member Phil Batt said Friday.

The board will meet in special session Wednesday to discuss the time sheet coding for Kiebert, Transportation spokesman Jeff Stratten said Friday. "Wednesday was the soonest we could get all the board members back in town."

Morgan has been accused of overstepping his bounds by pushing for sick leave funds for Kiebert, who was suspended without pay in December after being charged with sexually abusing his daughter.

UI students vote on renewing food service contract

MOSCOW (AP) — Students at the University of Idaho will vote March 14 on whether the school should renew its food service contract with Morrison Corp. The voting begins this week.

Last month, the student senate declined to schedule a student advisory vote on the issue.

But supporters of the referendum have gathered 1,060 signatures of students on petitions calling for a referendum, said Kristin Goodman, election board chairwoman for the Associated Students of the University of Idaho.

That's more than 10 percent of the student body and enough to force a referendum on the issue, she said.

Panel endorses liquor license plan

BOISE (AP) — Liquor license alternatives, selling for more than $400,000 to retailers on a virtually endless waiting list could be easier to get but worth less in Idaho if bills endorsed by a House panel become law.

The House State Affairs Committee urged Friday to recommend House passage of two measures that would dramatically change the landscape of what has become a lucrative market for Idaho liquor licenses.

One bill would allow cities to change or drop the state-mandated quota system of apportioning licenses based on population. The other would let counties decide for themselves whether to issue liquor licenses within their jurisdiction.

Counties currently have no such authority, and the only retailers able to legally sell liquor by the drink outside cities are those specifically approved by the Legislature.

The state quota system limits the number of licenses cities can issue to one per 1,500 people. The change would allow cities to keep the quota or discard it or change it to any level local officials want.

Supporters contend the measures would help Idaho's tourism industry while promoting local control and ending an upward spiral of resale prices for liquor licenses.

"It has to stop," said Rep. Emerson Smock, R-Boise, who sponsored both bills. "The state issues these liquor licenses as a privilege, and people take them and kind of abuse the privilege."

Enrile would run if cleared

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile announced from jail Friday that he intends to run for president in 1992 if he is cleared of criminal charges related to the December coup attempt against President Corason Aquino.

Enrile has been in custody since Tuesday's arrest when he was charged with "rebellion with murder" in connection with the sixth and most serious attempt to overthrow President Aquino.

He said he will accept the presidential challenge if the opposition Nationalista Party, of which he is the secretary-general, nominates him, and if he is acquitted of the charges.

Mrs. Aquino's popularity remains high among many Filipinos, but the constitution bars the president from seeking a second term.

Also Friday, hotel owner Rebecca Panillo and his wife Filinda, who were charged Tuesday with Enrile, surrendered to the National Bureau of Investigation officials said.

Enrile and the Panillos couple were among seven people so far indicted in the Dec. 19 coup attempt.

One of the seven, who remains at large, is cashiered Lt. Col. Gregorio "Gong" Honasan. Enrile's former chief secretary, Gen. Antonio Maguinao, was indicted in August 1987, mutiny, against Mrs. Aquino.

The Panillos were allegedly at Enrile's home on Dec. 1, when witnesses claimed they saw Honasan and about 100 rebel soldiers also at the senator's residence.

Soviet party may relinquish oversight role

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee will meet March 11 to consider new party rules that drop the requirement for party officials to monitor administrators of virtually every factory and institution, it was reported Friday.

Communist Party leaders in February agreed to give up their monopoly on power, and compete in a multiparty system. But reformers say the change will be ineffective unless the party also abolishes its committees in virtually every factory and institution in the country.

In a related decision, the ruling bureau of the Communist Party of Lithuania decided to suspend the activities of party members in the affairs of the Interior Ministry, KGB, customs, Ministry of Justice, prosecutor's office, courts, and the economic inspection department, the interior service of Kauno Moscow reported.

The Lithuanian Communists broke off from the national party in December. They have led the way on a number of key reforms.

The national party leaders also will prepare for the March 12 opening of the Congress of People's Deputies.

Soviet Union ready to join police group

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is ready to join Interpol at its next congress later this year, Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin said Friday to the official news agency Tass.

Interpol is the International Criminal Police Organization, a worldwide clearinghouse for law enforcement officials to trade information on international criminals. It particularly focuses on narcotics, smuggling, counterfeit money and forgery.

The Soviet Union is experiencing a dramatic upsurge in crime as reforms permit businesses and individuals to accumulate large amounts of money.

Party changes tune

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Communist Party leader declared Friday that his party now supported democracy and opposed any attempts to restore its former monopoly on power.

Communist Party First Secretary Vasil Mohorita said the party was willing to play the role of a constructive opposition if, as expected, it loses in free elections scheduled for June 8.

Greyhound strike hits service to Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — The Greyhound bus strike has cut service in Twin Falls to two runs a day.

Greyhound Lines Inc. bus drivers went on strike early Friday over wage issues, forcing Greyhound to operate with replacement drivers and some union drivers who crossed picket lines.

Local manager Eileen Steel said the bus line has arranged for a westbound bus at 4 p.m. and an eastbound bus at 1:05 p.m. each day, down from pre-strike levels of six daily buses. "At least we'll have something," she said.

Steel said the local bus station averages between 15 and 20 passengers each day.

Gooding County treasurer declines to seek re-election

GOODING — Dora O. Robertson, Gooding County treasurer since 1965, will not seek re-election this year.

"I was just wanting people to know I'm not filing so there would be others that would file," she said.

Robertson said her salary — $21,000 — is a factor in her decision to not seek re-election but said she has other reasons too. She said it's time for her to do some traveling, visit family and enjoy other activities.

"Everybody in here is nice and it's a good job and I love working here, but stress is a factor," Robertson said. "I should get on with something else. I've been here too long."

Filing time for the primary election in May is March 19-30.

Those who file for the job, Robertson said, should have knowledge of accounting, banking, bankruptcy procedures, computers, public administration, tax decoding, tax appropriation, tax billing and tax collection.

"There's a lot of qualifications they need to fill this office," she said.

Filer firemen put quick end to fire in Twin Falls vicinity

TWIN FALLS — The Eiler Fire Department on Thursday doused a house fire northwest of Twin Falls.

Firefighters were called to 362 Grandview Drive N., home of Jeff Aslett, at 2:10 p.m. Filer Fire Chief Bud Compher said. Twin Falls firefighters had already arrived, Compher said, and Filer finished extinguishing the fire after about an hour.

The cause of the fire, which was in the basement, is still under investigation, Compher said. No one was injured, he said, but there was smoke damage and "minimal" structural damage.

Students' award-winning book may fall to funding lack

TWIN FALLS — Poetry and prose writings at Twin Falls High School are struggling this year to put together their annual "literary book."

"We had to have $4,000 last year and the class raised it all," said student Jennifer Smack, the book's co-editor. "But this year we're finding it really difficult."

Students' efforts to raise money have garnered only about $600. But rising expenses may mean this year's edition will be "virtually priced out of existence," Adviser Connie Woelke said. The book, which includes poetry, short stories, class papers, essays and other works, has won state and national awards the past three years in National Council of Teachers of English contests, Woelke said.

Valley legislators fail to secure road, bridge funds

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

BOISE — Magic Valley lawmakers made an unsuccessful grab for a piece of the state's budget surplus for area roads and bridges Friday.

Sen. Joyce McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, started the fight when she stood to debate a proposal to invest $38 million of Idaho's $126 million budget surplus into a "rainy day" savings account.

"We have not done anything for our infrastructure, for our roads and our bridges," McRoberts said.

Before the legislative session started, McRoberts and several other Magic Valley lawmakers said securing the $3 million to overhaul Buhl's Clear Lake Grade would be their top priority this legislative year. Their job was doubled when, in early January, the state Transportation Board imposed severe weight restrictions on Twin Falls' Singing Bridge. The bridge is estimated to need at least $3 million for replacement or repair.

Local infrastructure problems reflect just a part of the state's overall need: A recent Transportation Department study found

Idaho roads and bridges requiring $7.3 billion in repairs before 1994. "Every legislative proposal so far to infuse some cash into roads and bridges has failed," McRoberts said. "The public pressure appears to be mounting—at least for Magic Valley lawmakers."

This week they received a letter from the leaders of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce reflecting the concerns of local businesses about area roads.

"While there have been some individual efforts, it just seems to us that highways, roads and bridges are taking a backseat in the agendas of most legislators and the governor as well," the letters wrote.

"I do support the savings account, but only if our critical needs are taken care of,"

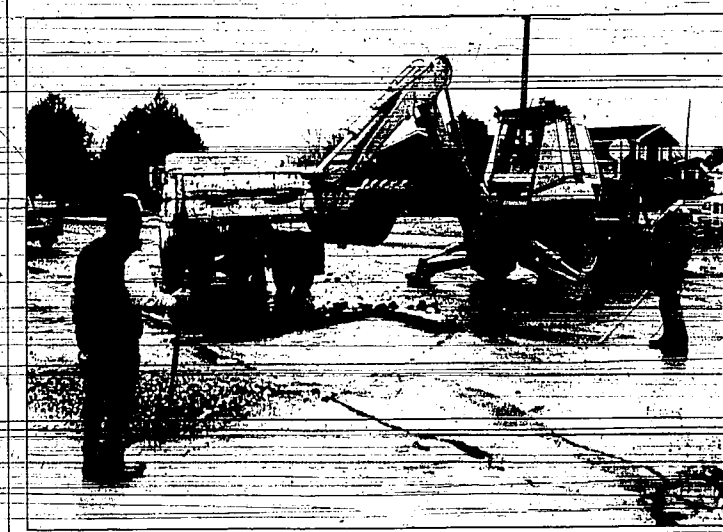

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said during Friday's debate. "I don't think we've done that yet."

Playing off the fact that the weather outside was gray and wet, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, half-jokingly declared it a "rainy day already."

"There are many citizens in our state who are seriously asking the question, 'How can we put away a reserve account of this magnitude when our road and bridge structure in this state is literally destroying segments of our local economy,'" Noh said.

He moved that the "rainy day" appropriations bill be held on a special amendment calendar where it could take ten days.

School board claims lawsuit threat allows it to keep report on disabled children mum

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A report evaluating how the school district treats learning disabled children is back from Boston, but it has not yet been released to the public.

School Board Chairman Calvin Lamborn, who expected to receive the report Friday, said the document will be reviewed by the school board and discussed at a special meeting tentatively set for Tuesday.

But the threat of a lawsuit from local attorney Greg Fuller, who commissioned the report, allows the school board to keep the report confidential, Lamborn said.

The father-son team of Charles and David Drake visited the district for a full week before preparing their report on how the district evaluates and educates learning disabled children.

Under a verbal agreement, Fuller said he would not release the report to the public to give the board a chance to commission a second outside study if board members disagreed with the Drake report.

Then both reports would be released at the same time.

"If the board does not vote for a second opinion, the Drake report might be leaked next week," Lamborn said.

The Times-News Managing Editor Clark Walworth said he hopes the report is released to the public next week, or the newspaper may take the case to court.

"Walworth said the Drake report is 'certainly a public document under state open records laws; no matter what kind of agreement was made.'"

"The contents of that report may affect the education of perhaps 100 children in this community," he said. "I hope the School Board will choose to do the right thing and not choose to hide this from the public."

Hailey woman charged with taking $46,000

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Criminal and civil charges have been filed against a former employee of Blaine County Medical Center for grand theft — embezzlement.

Helloune resident Sharon Lynn Showalter, 32, has been charged with embezzling $46,317 from the hospital's accounts.

Search and arrest warrants were issued on Sunday and also was released the same day on a $10,000 bond.

According to court documents, hospital administrator Gail Goglia first became aware of the alleged embezzlement on Feb. 9 when she examined copies of checks Showalter endorsed and deposited in Showalter's own checking account.

The alleged theft took place between August and December of 1989 when Showalter was working as a bookkeeper for the hospital.

Showalter quit the hospital in January, the documents state.

Charges state that Showalter "regularly and routinely writes checks against BMCMD funds" for her own use.

Under the advice of her legal counsel, Showalter said she could not comment on the charges.

The civil complaint originally identified $24,230 in stolen funds from the cashing of five checks and requested indemnification for that amount.

With the discovery of additional amounts of diverted funds, the amount has been amended to total $46,317.

An audit by the Boise accounting firm Crandall and Swenson will be completed in the first few weeks, Goglia said, and the total amount will again be amended if additional discrepancies are discovered.

An arraignment for Showalter is set for Monday.

Conviction of embezzlement carries a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Bessire will seek office in Minidoka

By DONNA SCHONMANN
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Carol Ann Bessire has thrown her hat into the ring as a Republican candidate for Minidoka County commissioner.

Bessire, 53, says she has worked closely with Minidoka County government the past 20 years and believes her greatest asset as a commissioner would be her budgetary experience.

She's worked in the county auditor's office for three and one-half years and 13 years on the county fair board where she dealt with budgets, she said.

Bessire is running for the seat now held by Republican Norman Siebold. Siebold has not announced yet whether he will seek re-election and was unavailable for comment Friday. No other candidates have announced for the seat.

The most important issues facing the commissioners are the Environmental Protection Agency's new rules governing solid waste disposal and meeting federal standards for juvenile detention facilities and adult jails.

Police help students disperse from McDonald's

By ANITA DENNIS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The tournament may have ended at the last buzzer Thursday night in the Buhl-Jerome basketball game, but the rivalry didn't.

About 300 teen-agers had gathered at McDonald's on Blue Lakes Boulevard North when Twin Falls police arrived at 9:33 p.m., Patrol Officer Bob Peace said.

Outside and in, it was standing room only, Peace said.

Students from Buhl and Jerome high schools, longtime arch rivals, gathered for the last of three tournament games at the College of Southern Idaho. The Jerome class pulled ahead of the Buhl Indians in the fourth quarter and won the District 4 boys Class A-2 Title 75-66.

Students were loitering at the fast-food restaurant after the game, calling each other names and looking for trouble, Peace said.

Three city police officers and three state police officers went to split them up.

Once they figured out we were sincere about putting them in jail, they broke up

No arrests were made, Peace said, and he saw no weapons. No other problems developed during the night. Peace said.

"It's time to have the competition where they really want to beat each other, but not beat each other up," Jerome High School Principal Gerald Diehl said.

The tension began at the start of the tournament, Diehl said. Some teens at the first two games "didn't give a hoot" about what was happening on the floor, he said.

During those games, Diehl said, 30 to 40 kids from each school became disruptive in the stands.

"You can't tell me these kids are excited about a basketball game when I tell the student body went out to watch a fight," he said.

The games weren't interrupted, and the students were intercepted as they headed outside, Diehl said. "It's a shame. They don't have the school spirit," he said.

But the troublemakers aren't the majority, he said. The players get along well and have many loyal supporters.

"Thirty to 40 kids is just a small percentage," he said. "They just run it for the others."

Tests show no NEL air pollution For the record but some water radioactivity seen

By The Associated Press

POCATELLO — Seven months of independent study have turned up no discrepancies with federal data on environmental effects of the Idaho nuclear reactor in Pocatello.

The Idaho State University officials said the university has been gathering information from school-selected sites since last July, said Bernice Graham, associate dean of the school for the College of Pharmacy. It administers the monitoring program.

To date, sample results show no man-made radioactive particles in water of air samples collected, Graham told a Pocatello service club this week.

He said some radioactivity has been detected in water drawn from several wells on the INEL site, but those findings have previously been documented.

Graham, a health physicist, was employed four years by Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. monitoring emissions from a nuclear power plant on the Susquehanna River.

The Idaho State research program will expand its review to include the elements plutonium and americium, and testing of soil and food stuffs.

To maintaining the university's credibility in the 5-year, $800,000 contract with the Department of Energy, Graham said Idaho State "owns" its own sample sites. It also selected the data and can publish it for the state and public.

Currently, ISU has four air sampling sites, including Atomic City, Craters of the Moon and two others. Magic Valley water sampling sites are located in Minidoka County, Shoshone, Alpheus Springs, Clear Springs and BT Fish Farm.

McClure wants hunting in City of Rocks area

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James McClure is calling on the National Park Service to reverse its ruling that any hunting be prohibited in south-central Idaho's City of Rocks National Reserve.

McClure, who authored legislation that established the 14,320-acre national reserve in 1988, told Park Service Director James Ridenour in a letter that the agency's action goes against Park Service policy and the hunting agreement developed during congressional review of the bill.

Bark officials have informed Idaho Fish and Game commissioners the agency plans to prohibit any hunting throughout the preserve. But during congressional consideration of the bill, McClure said the Park Service approved hunting in specified areas outside of the preserve's core.

The City of Rocks features exotic rock formations. It also is located on the California Trail, one of the routes pioneers took to the West Coast.

Unlike a national park, which is managed exclusively by the federal government, a national reserve is supervised by the Park Service, state and local government.

McClure added the hunting plan underscores the need for a complete management plan proposal for the Park Service for the Craters of the Moon National Monument.

WAKE UP!
Time is running out. The judgement of God is imminent. Satan is rocking people to sleep through immorality, humanism and the social gospel. Preachers are passing out band-aids instead of performing open-heart surgery. People, like hungry birds with mouths wide open are gobbling down garbage. Don't let your religious garbage be dropped in WAKE UP! Study the Bible for yourself. Westside Church of Christ Meeting at Oddfellows Bldg 235 3rd Ave. E., Twin Falls. Bush claims progress in war on drugs

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — President Bush on Friday claimed progress in the war on drugs, saying "the days of the drug lords are numbered," and asking TV producers to help portray the destructive potential of narcotics.

Bush compared anti-drug efforts to nations casting out oppressive governments, saying "the people of America are casting off the oppression of drugs."

"Week by week, day by day, millions of Americans in thousands of towns are standing up to make the same courageous choice: drug-free neighborhoods, drug-free schools, drug-free kids," he told several thousand school children at a rally sponsored by Orange County's "Drug Use is Life Abuse" program.

Astronauts finish last full day in orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis' astronauts, silent to the world because their military mission, had a last full day in orbit Friday to complete their hush-hush work before they must prepare for a Sunday landing.

NASA said Atlantis is scheduled to land Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, and a spokesman said this means the five-member, all-military crew probably will spend most of Saturday packing up for the return to Earth.

No information was released about the crew's activities in orbit, but Jeff Carr, a spokesman at the Johnson Space Center, said that if the Atlantis crew follows shuttle mission routine, then Friday was the final full day to complete their secret objectives.

Congress pans health coverage plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan commission recommended Friday an ambitious $66 billion plan for providing health care coverage to nearly all Americans. It immediately drew criticism from Congress and some of its own members for failing to recommend a way to pay for it.

The U.S. Bipartisan Commission on Comprehensive Health Care voted to send Congress proposals to provide universal health insurance phased in over five years, and a proposal to ensure long-term health care to Americans.

The divided panel voted 8 to 7 on the plan to achieve universal access. Its vote was 11 to 4 on a plan for long-term care.

"We can't offer any answers, but we can offer a challenge to this country," said Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W. Va., chairman of the panel.

Retired judge to investigate favoritism

WASHINGTON (AP) — A retired federal judge was appointed in December to investigate allegations that former House Speaker Bernard "Bertie" Jr. illegally showed political favoritism to housing developers.

Arlin M. Adams, 68, a Philadelphia lawyer who served for 17 years on the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, was appointed to investigate the allegations against Pierce and former aides at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The appointment was made by a special three-judge panel, following a request by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh.

Adams was given jurisdiction to investigate whether Pierce or other HUD employees had committed the crime of conspiracy to defraud the United States or any other federal crimes in the administration of the department's Moderate Rehabilitation Program from 1984 through 1988.

Mild quake shakes southern Illinois

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — A mild earthquake shook people awake early Friday against dozens of calls to authorities but no reports of damage or serious injuries.

The tremor, centered about 10 miles south of Vandalia, struck at 1:02 a.m. and registered 3.4 on the Richter scale, said Waverly Peterson, a geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

A quake of magnitude 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage.

Southern Illinois rests on several fault lines, including the New Madrid fault, which generated one of the most powerful earthquakes in U.S. history — measuring an estimated 8.3 on the Richter scale — near New Madrid, Mo., in the early 1800s.

Committee investigates GOP senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee is investigating 113 past appearances by Sen. Dan Durenberger to determine whether he violated outside income limits in 1985-86, according to a letter from the panel released Friday.

The letter to the Minnesota Republican, required under the panel's rules, provided additional details of its investigation into Durenberger's controversial book contract and other dealings.

For instance, the panel had not previously disclosed how many paid book promotion appearances by Durenberger were under investigation. Other newly released information provided details on travel reimbursements, a campaign check possibly converted to personal use, book promotion speeches in the U.S. Capitol and gifts of limousine service.

Ex-model pleads no contest to charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ex-model who helped the FBI arrest Washington, D.C., Mayor Marion Barry on a drug charge pleaded no contest to drunken driving Friday and was sentenced to three years probation and fined $927.

Hazel Diane Moore, 38, of Burbank, known while modeling as Rascheda Moore, was not at the Van Nuys court. Defense attorney Ron Lewis entered the plea for her, said Ted Goldstein, a city attorney's office spokesman.

Panels criticize Navy's Iowa explosion probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional panels on Friday strongly criticized the Navy for declaring that Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig probably set off the USS Iowa's explosion, faulting both the investigation and the conclusion's "excess of certitude."

The Navy's determination of a cause for the explosion that claimed the lives of 47 crewmen, including Hartwig, last April "is based on evidence inadequate to support the conclusion," the congressional panels concluded in a 46-page report.

The two groups within the House Armed Services Committee — the Investigations Subcommittee and the Defense Policy Panel — cited what lawmakers said were four major flaws in the Navy inquiry: the structure of the investigation, technical tests, police work and psychological analysis.

The Navy, in releasing its report last September, concluded that Hartwig "most likely" caused the explosion by inserting some type of detonator between bags of gunpowder in one of the ship's 16-inch guns.

Navy officials acknowledged at the time that their evidence was circumstantial since all the witnesses, including Hartwig, were killed in the blast in the battleship's gun turret No. 2.

Navy spokesman Otter, Mark Baker, questioned about the congressional criticism, said Friday, "We stand by our original report."

The new report, "USS Iowa Tragedy: An Investigative Failure," summarizes many of the complaints House members raised last December during three days of hearings into the battleship explosion.

At the time, Rep. Nicholas Mavroules, D-Mass., contended the Navy irresponsibly rushed to judgment.

The Massachusetts congressman, in a statement issued with the report's release, said the "only thing more tragic than the deaths of the 47 young seamen last April was the Navy's failure to conduct a proper investigation of the event."

The congressional report faulted the Navy for conducting a one-man inquiry and never upgrading to a board of investigators when it became clear that the explosion cause might have been criminal, not technical.

In addition, it was not until May 8 — nearly three weeks after the blast — that the Naval Investigative Service focused on the possibility of a criminal act, the report said.

"At this time ... NIS was faced with a contaminated crime scene, no chain of custody for evidence and a virtual inability to conduct a proper criminal inquiry from an evidentiary standpoint," the report said.

Referring to extraordinary measures used to remove the projectile that was lodged in the gun barrel after the explosion, the report said, "Although this was to become the most crucial physical evidence, it was contaminated during the process."

The subcommittees also criticized the Navy for first identifying an electronic timer as the probable cause of the blast — then later saying that a chemical detonator was the logical trigger.

The Navy supported the latter finding with a supplemental technical report released in October, but never changed its finding of fact in the original report.

The congressional report also questioned the Navy's selective use of information from the FBI.

The service asked the FBI to corroborate the findings of the Navy's technical team regarding the timer device. But when the FBI was unable to back up that finding, the Navy did not use the report, deemed it inconclusive and told the FBI that additional tests were unnecessary, the congressional report said.

Research Council wants risks studied before Mars mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before carrying out President Bush's proposal for a base on the Moon and a manned mission to Mars, the space agency needs to study new technologies and eliminate "unacceptable risks to the crew," the National Research Council said Friday.

In a report requested by Vice President Dan Quayle, the council said the exploration plan by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration "addresses a reasonable set of technological and strategic approaches, but not all of the technical or credible approaches have been analyzed."

The council, an arm of the congressionally chartered National Academy of Sciences, also said:

- Operation of a U.S. space station by the late 1990's as scheduled is a "reasonable assumption," but present plans for the station are not adequate for a Moon-Mars mission.
- The station "may not be the most appropriate staging base for the Moon and Mars," or, two stations may be needed.
- Nuclear power "eventually will be essential" for the Moon and Mars bases. Also, nuclear propulsion of spacecraft, included by NASA as an option, should be tested.
- The use of nuclear technology in space faces formidable barriers of public acceptance, however, especially if employed in Earth orbit. Therefore, issues of safety are paramount in research and development.

TWIN FALLS — Two seminars on alcohol and drug issues will be held Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church, Fourth Avenue East and Shoshone Street in Twin Falls.

"Alcoholism and Chemical Dependency" is the day-time seminar from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The $15 fee includes lunch. Topics for this seminar include "Medical Health Issues in the Church," "Causes, Symptoms and Progression of Addiction," "Families in the Web of Addiction," "Intervention Techniques" and "Treatment and Recovery Resources."

The evening seminar from 7 to 9 p.m. is focused on prevention. "Preparing for the Drug (Free) Years" is a parenting class that will help those attending learn how to help prevent drug use by their children. Cost for the evening seminar is $5 per person or $5 per family.

D. McNEIL

Registration may be made by calling the church at 733-5872. The Rev. Bob D. McNeil, executive director of the Oregon Council on Alcohol Problems, will lead both seminars.

McNeil has worked nearly eight years as a chemical-health education specialist helping individuals, families and communities gain and increased and informed awareness regarding addiction and co-dependency issues. He is the father of a recovering drug addict and has learned from experience that only when family members stop enabling is there a chance for addicts to begin recovery.

SHOSHONE — The United Methodist Women of Shoshone will be serving Lenten lunches each Friday from March 9 until April 13. Lunches will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the church basement. The menu will include clam chowder, a variety of homemade breads, jam and cookies for $2.50 per person. The public is invited for lunch at the Community United Methodist Church.

TWIN FALLS — National Lutheran Education Week will be celebrated the first week of March. Lutheran churches of the Magic Valley will meet for an evening of activities Sunday at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Filer Ave. in Twin Falls.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a buffet-style dinner provided by the area churches. The program will include Dr. Clifford Horn, professor in the Religion Department of Concordia College in Portland, Ore., plus recognition of students and leaders and entertainment by Magic Valley children who are involved in the Lutheran Educational System.

All those interested in Lutheran education are invited to attend. There will be an offering taken, with all proceeds going to the Scholarship Fund. It is a goal that, with the help of local Aid Association for Lutherans insurance branches, the fund will become a $10,000 endowment and an incentive for Magic Valley youth towards ministry in professional church work.

TWIN FALLS — The First Baptist Church of Twin Falls will be receiving its "America for Christ" offering from March 4 through March 25. March 25 is designated as "America for Christ" Sunday. This Home Missions offering is used to help Christian centers in inner-city Indian ministries, campus ministries, outreach programs and to start new churches.

TWIN FALLS — "Ladies' Night Out" will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the First Assembly of God Church, 189 N. Locust in Twin Falls. Bev Rhoades will minister in music and share a special message. All ladies are invited to attend this fun and inspiring evening. Child care is provided.

HEYBURN — The "Heyburn Pacesetters" will present the worship service at 11 a.m. today at the Heyburn Seventh-day Adventist Church located two miles east of the Burley Mall on Alfresco Road.

The "Heyburn Pacesetters" is a group of local young people who are members of the Pathfinders, a national organization of young people age 10 and older. The organization is similar in activities, goals, etc., to the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Inc. and is open to both boys and girls. The local club is directed by Cindi Holiman of Rupert.

Suburb School begins at 9:20 a.m. today with classes for all ages. The services will conclude with a fellowship potluck at 12:30 p.m. For more information, call Cindi Holiman at 436-0661.

Hispanics defecting to 'sects' concerns bishops

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, commonly called the Mormons, are being lured away by rival religions, Roman Catholic bishops urged the faithful to fight back with tactics that include door-to-door "visits" by "zealous Catholics."

An assignment issued Wednesday by the Catholic Church in the past decade, the 30 bishops of northwestern Mexico and California was unusual in that it named specific religious churches of "proselytism," which it and strongly criticizing their defined as the "use of unfair and methods, blanding them as 'unfair' and 'anti-Catholic.'"

The 14-page statement singled out Pentecostals, Jehovah's Witnesses, Seventh-day Adventists and the religion for another. These tactics include "psychological" and "economic pressure," "manipulation of historical and biblical data" and "constant wangs to potential converts that the end of the world is near."

The sects hinder ecumenical moves, especially when some families and communities have recruited into the former Catholics experienced painful divisions, "must be rebaptized when they become members of 'another' such tactics, the bishops said."

adding that "worldwide ecumenical dialogue reached agreement that baptism cannot be repeated." The bishops said the claims about baptism have an "anti-Catholic spirit behind them."

"Many Hispanic individuals have isolation and alienation" because of such tactics, the bishops said.

The Times-News

LAWRENCE E. KAN — College of Southern Idaho freshman Scott Lupo finished seventh in pole vault at the National Junior College Athletic Association indoor track and field championships here Friday.

Lupo's CSI's teammate Will Dozier was 12th with the 60-meter dash with a time of 7.79 seconds.

Dozier and CSI freshman Shannon Cato will compete in the triple jump finals today.

Lupo, a freshman from Pocatello, leaped 5 feet, 3 1/2 inches for his seventh-place finish.

CSI clinches 5th straight regular-season title

CSI's Anthony Williams breaks clear for an easy basket against Utah Valley.

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho reached some new plateaus Friday night.

The second-ranked Golden Eagles nailed down their fifth straight regular-season Region 18 men's basketball title — seventh counting ties — and their 99th consecutive regular-season victory in beating Utah Valley 86-83.

The victory also assured CSI of the top seed in the Region 18 tournament in Orem, Utah, next Thursday when the Eagles will meet eighth-seeded Eastern Utah in the opening round at 7 p.m. Meanwhile, the Eagles will be going for No. 100 at home when it hosts Salt Lake Community College in the season finale tonight. Even if successful, it will be more than two more years before the Eagles can challenge the national junior college record of 139 straight wins at home.

The Eagles had to sweat this one out right down to the final three seconds as a 28-point effort by sophomore Stan Rose, including two free throws with 25 seconds showing, kept Utah Valley within one point.

Over the next few seconds CSI freshman Dan Poulton went from the depths to the heights as he first threw away an in-bounds pass — but then rebounded himself — with a tough rebound against Rose.

That led to an intentional foul that allowed Anthony Williams to hit one of two free throws and on the in-bounds pass, sophomore Elton Levy-Mayer was fouled and came up with the closing point from the line.

It was reminiscent of CSI's overtime victory against Utah Valley before Christmas and left Eagle coach Fred Tenklee looking forward to no matches in the tournament.

"It was exactly the kind of game I expected. I felt both teams would be in contention until the final seconds and something would swing it one way or the other," he said. Utah Valley has lost by 3, 5 and 3 in its last three appearances here — and the school has never beaten CSI.

"We knew Utah Valley was coming in loose and feeling no pressure because everything they could possibly win — tournament host, third place in the standings, everything was already theirs," Tenklee continued.

The major plus for CSI in this one was point.

CSI women knock off 14th-ranked Wolverines

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The lethargy that has plagued College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team started thawing in the closing 10 minutes Friday night — to the appreciation of Coach Ben Stroud.

Stroud watched his Eagles rebound from two tight road losses last week to beat Utah Valley's pre-season winter 74-56 in a Region 18 basketball game.

The Eagles remain at home tonight entertaining the Salt Lake Community College Bruins at 5:15 p.m. That will bring them to the opening round of the regional tournament in Rexburg next Friday when they will again meet the Utah Valley Wolverines, at one time this season rated as high as ninth nationally and currently ranked No. 14 in the nation.

"It sure was nice to have the freshman back," said Stroud with a smile, referring largely to the rejuvenated scoring of Cynthia Clinger, Shaun Taucoli and Candace Lords, who had 18 and 14 points, respectively. "I also felt Becky Brower

Pressure mounts for N.C. State's Valvano to resign

By AL BOYCE
The Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — With students and faculty demanding his ouster as basketball coach at North Carolina State, an angry Jim Valvano said Friday he was ready to leave if in any point shaving, the school's student newspaper on Friday called for an end to the controversy.

Scandals nothing new at N.C. State — B3

Although Valvano has not been implicated in any point shaving, the school's student newspaper on Friday called for an end to the controversy.

Valvano said he was ready to leave if in any point shaving, the school's student newspaper on Friday called for an end to the controversy.

Valvano said: "Whatever is done is going to be fair and equitable to all parties. I consider the university my friend."

"I think what the coach and I do over the next few days, I won't comment on," N.C. State interim chancellor Lucy Montith said when asked if he would meet quickly with Valvano.

Montith said, "People have the right to their opinions and to state their opinions. But that won't be how I make my decision — based on opinions, when I want facts."

Valvano returned to Raleigh to help the Wolfpack prepare for its final regular-season game Sunday against Wake Forest. Valvano said he expects to coach the team at least through the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

"I expect to complete this season with this team, but that doesn't mean we won't have this meeting as soon as possible," he said.

On Thursday, the state announced a full investigation into charges of point shaving. The allegations involve a past Wolfpack game against Wake Forest, the team's traditional season-ender.

But investigation said the state inquiry will likely take "a pretty long time... Certainly we're aware that certain individuals will not be cooperating with us."

On Wednesday, ABC News cited unnamed sources as saying former N.C. State player Charles Shackelford and New Jersey businessman Robert Kramer conspired with Valvano to rig the game for betting purposes during the 1987-88 season.

BSU-Weber State battle for berth in Big Sky tourney

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

OGDEN, Utah — So who will be more nervous tonight, Boise State basketball coach Bobby Dye, or BSU athletic director Gene Bleymaier?

The Broncos travel to Ogden tonight for a regular season-ending encounter with Weber State. If it loses to the Wildcats, Boise State will host the conference tournament without the right to play on its home court.

Apart from the embarrassment of having to watch the league tournament from the cheap seats in their own gym, the Broncos have promised the other eight Big Sky schools $27,800 apiece for the right to host the tourney. That kind of guarantee will obviously be a lot harder to cover if Boise State isn't playing.

Boise State officials remain unflinched regarding the tournament.

"Financially, we're going to make it," Bleymaier said Tuesday. "We've sold 7,000 tournament tickets. I predict the Boise community will continue its support, whether or not (BSU) is in."

The Broncos and Wildcats are each 7-8 in Big Sky games, tied for sixth place. The top six teams in the regular season league standings go to the tournament.

Valley beats Challis in OT to gain final

By COLIN MULDOON
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — Third-ranked Valley survived a fourth-quarter Challis rally and shut down the Vikings in overtime, nabbing a 65-60 victory here Friday and advancing into today's championship game in the Idaho Class A-4 boys' high school basketball tournament.

The Vikings will play the winner of Friday's late semifinal game between top-ranked Fruitland and fourth-ranked Ririe. The title game is scheduled for 7 p.m. MST in the Kibbie Dome on the campus of the University of Idaho.

When Valley let its guard down after taking a 41-26 halftime lead, Challis moved in to conquer.

Valley had come out in a full-court press from most of the first half that virtually shut down Challis' outside shooting. But Valley coach Bill Mitchell pulled his troops back in the third quarter and midway through the fourth basically to give his players a rest. What resulted was a Challis barrage of three-pointers that started late in the third quarter and continued to the 6-minute, 5-second mark in the fourth period.

Four consecutive shots from three-point land — the last a Jerrod Farr cannon from 20 feet — pulled Challis to within two points, at 53-51. Twenty seconds later, junior forward Bo Polson tied the game with a basket inside the key.

Challis struck the glue to Valley in the remaining minutes of regulation, tying the game at 56 with an inside putback by junior forward Ivan Hooper.

valley and for the most part, his Wolves were able to do just that in the first half. They took a 37-31 lead into the locker room at halftime.

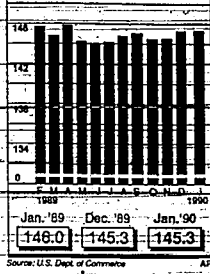

The man Wiseman wanted to stop came alive in the second half, however. Six-foot, five-inch senior center Kevin Hooper was the man for Midvale and a nightmare for Wiseman. Hooper collected 15 of his 18 points in the second half and finished the night with 10 blocked shots.

The big man was neutralized in the overtime period as the Wolves were able to move inside. Following a three-point bucket by Jeremy Burgess shares, up from 157.93 Monday.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 199.83 million shares.

Market analysts said the strong performance was made possible in part by momentum-building up all week.

Confidence in the U.S. financial market got a boost when stocks managed to shrug off a series of severe setbacks in Tokyo.

A new government reading on the economy, released Friday morning, reinforced the feeling that the U.S. economy isn't about to slump into a recession, analysts said.

Reporting on the main government gauge of the economy's future, the Commerce Department said the index of leading economic indicators showed no change in January.

The flat reading followed two months of increase.

Texas Utilities topped the Big Board's list of actively traded issues, rising 1/4 to 34 3/4, as more than 4.1 million shares changed hands. Dividend-related trades swelled volume in the stock market.

Philip Morris was next by line and rose 1/4 to 36 1/4.

Among other heavily traded blue chips, General Motors jumped 1/4 to 46.

General Electric gained 1/4 to 62 1/4.

International Business Machines added 1/4 to 104 1/4 and Exxon sold heavily earlier in the week due to an indictment stemming from last March's Alaskan oil spill, went up 1/4 to 46 1/4.

Other auto stocks besides GM fell well. Ford moved ahead 1/4 to 47 1/4 and Chrysler climbed 1/4 to 17 1/4.

As measured by Wilshire Associates, index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market gained $2.67 billion, or 0.83 percent. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.45 to 184.97 and was up 62.42 points in the week.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose 3.24 to 386.25, and S&P 500 index of market index went up 2.10 to 335.33.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose 3.81 to 441.02, adding 11.50 points in the week. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index ended at 356.12, up 2.08 Friday and 5.02 for the week.

Corp. Rates continued to rise last night, reaching 10.31 percent by Feb. 23 before dropping to 10.23 percent Friday.

Richard Peach, deputy chief economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association, said rising rates often boost sales because buyers want to lock in on loans for mortgage costs that are expected to rise.

The housing industry slowed dramatically early in 1989 as the Federal Reserve sought to contain inflation by keeping interest rates high and thereby slowing the economy. Mortgage rates fell during the summer, spurring sales, but moved back into the restrictive range in January.

Seiders said a recent survey by the Home Builders found 50 percent of its members offering incentives to offset the industry's weakness. They include optional equipment on a extra cost, and builder payment of closing costs.

"It doesn't seem to have worked," he admitted.

In its report, the Commerce Department said the median price of a new home continued to climb in January, rising 1.4 percent to $127,000.
