House clears way to vote on abortion measure

By MICHELLE COLE
Times-News writer

BOISE — In what might be a dress rehearsal before opening night, the Idaho House endorsed minimal changes on a Right to Life bill Tuesday and cleared the way for a full floor vote Friday or Monday.

The exact vote on the Right to Life-sponsored amendments was not recorded, but about 50 of the House's 84 members stood up to vote "yes." The changes are designed to buttress the Right to Life bill, H.B. 11625, in the likelihood of a Supreme Court challenge. "We got what we wanted," Karen Hefner,

Idaho Legislature 1990

a Right to Life legislative lobbyist from Twin Falls, said following the Tuesday's amendment action. "We feel like we have the best piece of legislation available to pass Supreme Court scrutiny."

Drafted with the help of the National Right to Life organization, the measure will prohibit more than 90 percent of the estimat-

After Tuesday's show of support for their amendments, the bill's pro-life sponsors are "cautiously optimistic" that their measure has the momentum it needs.

House Speaker Tom Boyd, R-Geneseo, also predicts the bill will pass and move to the Idaho Senate.

If pro-life forces prevail, Idaho will have the most restrictive abortion law in the nation and will likely become a Supreme Court test case measuring a state's "compelling interest" in regulating abortion. that found states may regulate abortion access in certain cases.

The specter of losing a Supreme Court case was enough to scare off Utah legislators last month, where a similar ban on abortion as birth control was tabled in a House committee.

Utah Rep. Jerri Wilson, R-Provo, who sponsored the Utah bill, said in a telephone interview, Tuesday that he would have

Twin Falls woman seeks $15 million over jail allegations

By ANITA DENNIS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman seeking $15 million charges that she was "coerced, intimidated and forced" by former jail Cpl. William H. Parsons to submit to sexual activities while she was an inmate at the Twin Falls County jail last summer.

The woman says in a tort claim that she was "forced to endure Deputy Parsons' sexual advances approximately two to three times each week for a period in excess of six weeks."

The claim also charges that the county "failed to properly hire, screen, train, supervise and discipline Deputy Parsons for the acts, constituting a deliberate indifference to the woman's rights."

Sheriff Jim Munn, the county coroner, the state Bureau of Investigation and the state attorney general's office all are named as defendants in the claim.

Munn and County Commissioner

Jim Fraley declined to comment. David Sasser, a Boise attorney handling the case for the county, could not be reached for comment.

Parsons' sister from a phone number was disconnected, and neither Munn nor Fraley knew how he could be reached.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said no criminal charges would be filed against Parsons.

After reviewing what she called a "very thorough" state investigation, Baxter said the woman's statements to police did not support criminal prosecution.

Parsons resigned from the sheriff's office on Sept. 23. On Oct. 4, a state investigator said he had begun an investigation the next day into Parsons' sexual behavior involving one or more female inmates.

According to the tort claim, written by Twin Falls attorney Joe Szanzak, the 28-year-old woman was jailed from July to November 1989.

In the claim, based solely on her

Private ownership legal for Soviet citizens now

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Beset with a sinking economy and rising discontent, Soviet lawmakers made a drastic break with communist orthodoxy Tuesday by voting to allow private citizens to own small factories and hire their own workers.

Applause swept through the Kremlin chamber as the Supreme Soviet, by a 350-3 vote with 11 abstentions, passed the Property Law, which the official Tass news agency described as "the main plank" of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's campaign for economic reform.

The law permits Soviets for the first time in nearly seven decades to privately possess "means of production," an approach at odds with classic Marxist thinking, which sees private ownership the roots of the capitalist exploitation wiped out by the Russian Revolution 72 years ago.

Deputy Premier Leonid I. Abalkin said the law, to go into effect July 1, will enable private citizens to own workshops, garages for automotive repairs, farm enterprises and other small-scale ventures to supplement the notoriously ineffective state-run economy.

Also, subject to restrictions from legislators, the law permits one citizen to hire another for pay, a practice that currently is illegal and was a key target of the Russian revolutionaries.

In the early 1920s, Vladimir I. Lenin and his Bolsheviks temporarily retreated from their drive to implement communism and allowed private ownership of the means of production under the New Economic Policy. The policy was ended under Lenin's successor, Josef Stalin.

Colorado bank explosion kills 3, injures 14

The Associated Press

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. — An explosion shattered a two-story bank Tuesday, killing three people and injuring 14 others, officials said.

Three people were listed in critical condition.

Firefighters and volunteers dug by hand through the rubble of the downtown Crested Butte National Bank to pull out survivors, witnesses said. The entire building was leveled except for the vault.

The cause of the blast in this Rocky Mountain ski resort was not immediately determined, but authorities said they were investigating the possibility of a bomb or methane gas buildup.

Crested Butte Police Chief Hank Smith said two restaurants received bomb threats over the week, and one of them was evacuated.

Mayor Wes Light said three bodies were pulled from the rubble, and all 15 people believed inside during the explosion were pulled out.

The federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms sent a 12-person response team to the scene, and Gov. Roy Romer made National Guard units available to provide assistance.

Bob Gillen, communications director for the Crested Butte ski area, said the resort put its disaster plan into effect and handled rescue operations.

Ron Walters, assistant agent in charge of the San Francisco district of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said agents from Denver and a 12-person national response team were dispatched at the request of local authorities.

"There was an explosion but there are no natural gas lines in there. We're puzzled by it," said Gillen. "It doesn't make sense."

"I'm not ruling out a bomb, and I'm not ruling out an explosion from methane buildup," Smith said. "We've just completed the rescue effort, and we're just now beginning the investigation."

Crested Butte, population about 1,000, is 9,000 feet high in the western Colorado mountains.

Heavy snow hampered rescue efforts and delayed the arrival of ambulances.

Americans now number estimated quarter billion

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — There just under 4 million people, about as many as now live in metropolitan Boston.

On Tuesday it reached 250,000,000, according to estimates by the Census Bureau.

A more detailed count will be calculated following the national head count to be taken April 1.

The 250 million estimate represents a 10.4 percent increase from the 226.5 million Americans counted in 1980.

The U.S. population reached 30 million in 1880, doubted to 100 million by 1915, was 150 million in 1949 and climbed to the 200 million mark in 1976.

Projections done by the Census Bureau indicate that the nation could reach 300 million within 30 years.

Current population growth is estimated at one new person every 14 seconds in the United States. That is based on a birth every 8 seconds and a new immigrant arriving every 35 seconds, balanced by a death every 14 seconds and a departure every 5 minutes.

The United States ranks fourth in the world in population, following China at 1.1 billion, India at 833 million, and the Soviet Union at 289 million.

Bye, bye Blackbird

The Associated Press

CHANTILLY, Va. — America's premier spy plane — the SR-71 Blackbird — came in from the Cold War after a quarter century of super-sonic snooping Tuesday.

It set a transcontinental speed record before retiring to a museum home.

In a final fling for the history books, one of the black, dagger-shaped aircraft flashed from coast to coast in 68 minutes, 17 seconds, arriving at Washington Dulles International Airport outside the nation's capital to the cheers of hundreds of onlookers.

The old record was 3 hours, 38 minutes, set in 1963 by a Boeing 707.

The Blackbird took a running start, refueling over the Pacific Ocean at 60,000 feet before heading east from the California coastline and crossing its finish line near Salisbury, Md., said Matver Gross, president of the National SR-71 lands at Washington, D.C. Tuesday after 68-minute flight across U.S.

Aeronautics Association. The Blackbird then returned before crashing in to Dulles Airport.

The flight also set three other speed records set the record but said that it has been put to rest by the National Aeronautics Association.

"It's bitter-sweet," said Air Force Lt. Col. Bruce Liebman, who flew Blackbirds for the U.S. Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Hondo Air Force Base, Calif., in the 1970s. "I'm happy it set the record but sad that it has been put to rest."

"Bye-bye, Blackbird," said Ben Rich, the Lockheed Aeronautics System Co. executive.

Post Office proposes rate hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governors of the U.S. Postal Service voted Tuesday to raise rates, including a first-class letter, but there could be as much as a year of skimming before any increase takes effect.

"Given at 30 cents, postage is one of America's best buys," said Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank, noting that U.S. postage remains the lowest in the industrial world.

The proposal calls for the cost of a first-class letter to increase from a quarter to 30 cents, with the price for each additional ounce rising from 20 cents to 23 cents. Post cards would cost 20 cents, also up a nickel, while Express Mail would go from $8.75 to $9.75.

Overall, rates will increase by about 19 percent on all types of mail. "We cannot ignore that increases in postal operating costs do occur, just as they do in any business," Robert Strickland, chairman of the board of governors, said after the vote.

He estimated the increase would cost the average person between $10 and $11 a year.

Frank said the increases are needed because the post office could face a budget deficit of over $1 billion, between $1.4 billion and $1.6 billion.

The governors' vote was the first step in a nearly year-long process needed to increase mail rates.

In addition to the first-class increase, the proposal would raise the cost of mailing a typical weekly newspaper from 13.5 cents to 16 cents, while a heavier monthly publication would rise from 29.7 cents to 37.4 cents.

The parcel-post rate for a 7-pound package would rise from $4 to $5.06.

Some rate cuts were included for specially prepared business mail that requires little work on the part of the post office.

The skirmishing over postal costs and efficiency began even before the vote was taken.

On Monday, Vincent R. Lombro, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, contended that postage today is cheaper than it was in 1971 when inflation is considered.

But consumer advocate Ralph Nader is unhappy both with rising rates and service.

"The people are going to have to save the post office from itself," said Nader, who proposes setting up an organization of people who use the mail.

Business, which will feel increases most in terms of total dollars, is also unhappy with the prospect of paying more. "Every dollar of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce called the planned increase "unreasonable and unjustified."

Robert Kamerschen, head of ADOV Systems Inc., the nation's largest advertising matter, said he was concerned that raising rates would drive profitable mail out of the postal system when it's needed most.

Computer glitch delays income tax refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 53,000 taxpayers who filed their federal returns by computer and 200,000 or so who used old-fashioned paper forms will have to wait an extra two weeks for their refunds.

The Internal Revenue Service said Tuesday that a backlog in shipment of several reels of computer tape from Cincinnati to Martinsburg, W. Va., had caused a delay in processing those returns.

Obviously this is an inconvenience to taxpayers, and we regret that, said IRS spokesman Frank Keith. He added that the mixup does not signal a problem in the agency's processing system — which has been running at a near record pace this year — but does highlight the fact that IRS computers are antiquated.

The problem affected some of the paper returns that were filed in late January or early February from Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and West Virginia, plus some electronic returns from those states and Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The missing reels of tape recorded one day's processing of returns at the IRS service center in Cincinnati. That involved $3,600 electronic returns plus 250,000 other returns; Keith said a significant number of those other documents were paper returns.

GOP will force vote to help working seniors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans said Tuesday they will try to force votes this year on a bill allowing some older Americans with higher incomes to work without losing a part of their Social Security pension.

By penalizing seniors who wish to enhance their income and remain active members of the American work force, current law actually makes it tougher for many seniors to support themselves, said Sen. Congressional Republicans said Tuesday they will try to force votes this year on a bill allowing some older Americans with higher incomes to work without losing a part of their Social Security pension.

The bill has been signed by 181 of the 435 members of the House. "The Senate will act on the bill this year," predicted Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, the Democratic-controlled Finance Committee fails to approve the measure, he said, "we are going to vote on it over and over and over again" on the Senate floor. Eighteen of the 100 senators have voiced support for the bill.

gressional Republicans said Tuesday they will try to force votes this year on a bill allowing some older Americans with higher incomes to work without losing a part of their Social Security pension.

A person who is at least 65 but under 70 may earn $9,360 this year without losing any Social Security benefits. For each $3 earned above that amount, the worker loses $1 of pension. A person 62, 63 or 64 gives up $1 in benefits for each $2 earned above $6,840.

Summary of proposed postal rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service voted Tuesday to raise postal rates. If approved by the Postal Rate Commission, the new charges could take effect sometime in early 1991.

Here are some highlights of the rates being proposed:

- First Class: First ounce rises from 25 cents to 30 cents; each additional ounce rises from 20 cents to 23 cents.
- Post cards increase from 15 cents to 20 cents.
- Bulk first-class mail, presorted by ZIP code, increases from 21 cents to 26 cents for the first ounce. Bulk first class sorted according to the route walked by the letter carrier increases from 19.5 cents to 24.5 cents for the first ounce.
- Discounts will be offered for bulk first-class mail that has barcodes imprinted to allow the mail to be sorted by machine.
- Priority Mail: Rates of $2.40 to $72.24 would increase to a range of $2.75 to $85.75 depending on weight.

Express-Mail: The price range of $7.75 to $89.05 would increase to a range of $8.75 to $103.30 depending on weight. The letter rate would rise from $6.75 to $9.75 and the 2-pound rate from $12.40 to $13.75.

Volume discounts would be offered for the first time.

• Second Class (newspapers and magazines): The regular rate, outside the home county, ranges from 12.4 cents to 30.2 cents per pound, plus 4.9 cents to 16 cents per piece. That would change to 7 cents to 36.9 cents per pound plus 6.9 cents to 20.1 cents per piece.

The rate for non-profit groups is lower, as is that for materials circulating within the same county where they are published.

• Third class (advertising mail): Single pieces range of 23 cents to $1.50 would rise to between 30 cents and $1.77.

Basic bulk rates of 16.2 cents to 16.7 cents would change to a range of 14.4 cents to 22 cents, and a variety of discounts would be available for extensive presorting of mail. The additional per pound rate would increase from 48 cents to 53.7 cents.

The basic non-profit rate of 7.9 cents to 8.4 cents would change to a range of 7.2 cents to 12.5 cents, also with discounts for presorting. The additional per pound rate would rise from 25 cents to 33.1 cents.

• Fourth Class: Parcel post's range of $1.43 to $26.61 would rise to a range of $1.57 to $39.95.

Printed matter's rates of 67 cents to $5.80 would rise to between 86 cents and $5.74.

The library rate of 64 cents for the first pound and 23 cents for additional pounds would rise to 65 cents and 24 cents.

• Money orders would have a flat charge of 75 cents instead of the current range of 75 cents to $1.

• Post office boxes would cost between $25 and $200, up from a range of $14 to $170.

• Registered mail would be unchanged at $4.00, but the cost of sending certified mail would go up from 85 cents to 90 cents.

• The minimum collection delivery charge would rise from $2 to $2.50.

• Insurance would rise to between 75 cents and $5.40, from the current 70 cents to $5.

• Special delivery would go up from $3.35 to $5.60.

• Return receipts would increase from 90 cents to $1.

Doomsday clock reflects changes

CHICAGO (AP) — The countdown to nuclear disaster gained four minutes Tuesday when "The Bulletin of Atomic Scientists" reset its famous "Doomsday Clock" to reflect the easing of superpower tensions.

The likelihood of a full-scale nuclear holocaust has been reduced, said Leonard Rieber, chairman of the board of directors, before pushing the clock's minute hand back to 10 minutes before midnight.

Recent revolutionary changes in Eastern Europe and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's commitment to helping lift the Iron Curtain led the magazine's board to change the clock for the eighth time in its 43-year history, Rieber told reporters.

The bronze, 18-inch clock hangs in the Bulletin's headquarters on the University of Chicago campus. Its hour hand is always positioned at midnight, symbolizing doomsday, and the minute hand is superimposed on a map of the world.

FAA imposes fatigue damage rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration imposed rules Tuesday for preventing fatigue damage in aging Boeing airliners and proposed tough rules for detecting corrosion in the same planes.

The fatigue rules require replacement of some parts when an airliner reaches set numbers of flights, while the corrosion rules call for periodic inspections of all Boeing 707, 727, 737 and 747 airliners as they age.

The fatigue rules were proposed last May after a task force of U.S. and foreign airlines drew up plans for ensuring that the world's aging airline fleet can keep flying safely. Foreign regulatory agencies generally follow FAA requirements for U.S.-built planes.

The aging airlines also were warned after the roof of an Aloha Airlines 737 ripped off at 24,000 feet over Maui, Hawaii, in April 1988. A stewardess was swept from the plane to her death and 64 passengers were injured. The plane was 19 years old with nearly 90,000 flights.

Benign tumor found on Atwater's brain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors found a benign tumor on the right side of Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater's brain Tuesday and said it would be treated non-surgically with "no difficulty."

Dr. Edward R. Laws, chairman of the department of Neurosurgery at George Washington University Medical Center, said Atwater would be released from the hospital by the end of the week and able to resume "a reasonable work schedule and normal activities next week."

An aide quoted the party chairman as saying, "I've never led a normal life."

In a brief statement issued by the Republican National Committee, Laws said, "Lee Atwater completed tests this morning which revealed a small non-malignant growth in the right side of his head. No surgery is planned and we expect no difficulty with follow-up treatments."

Poindexter trial jury pool grows to 31

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pool of prospective jurors for John Poindexter's Iran-Contra trial grew to 31 Tuesday, including a woman who campaigned for Jesse Jackson and another familiar enough with the case to know former President Reagan had refused to turn over his personal diary.

Seven people were disqualified, including a retired CIA research analyst who conceded the agency had made mistakes, "but not very many."

On the second day of the jury selection process, U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene said, "I think we can do with 45 people" before proceeding with choosing a panel of 12 jurors and six alternates.

Under questioning by the judge, the secretary who has campaigned for Jackson said she could be impartial, adding that she had once sent a get-well card to Nancy Reagan which she was sick.

Workers shut down nuclear plant unit

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Workers at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant began shutting down the Unit 1 reactor Tuesday after plant monitors detected higher-than-normal amounts of radioactivity being vented into the atmosphere.

State, federal and plant officials said there was no danger to the public. The releases were not detected by radiation monitors located off the island, which is about 10 miles south of Harrisburg.

U.S. considers troop cuts in S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — U.S. officials said Tuesday they are considering withdrawing 7,000 troops from South Korea by 1994, a number that would reduce U.S. forces on the peninsula to the lowest level since the Korean War.

Also on Tuesday, South Korean President Roh Tae-woo warned North Korea that the discovery of what Seoul officials describe as an invasion tunnel across the 2 1/2-mile Demilitarized Zone could lead to the communist nation's "self-destruction."

A reduction of 7,000 troops would leave roughly 26,000 U.S. servicemen in South Korea. It was reported earlier that the United States would be withdrawing about 5,000 troops.

Union asks strikers to use own cars to deliver blood

By The Associated Press

Union officials on Tuesday asked striking Greyhound bus drivers to use their own cars to deliver blood to hospitals where supplies have been disrupted by the five-day walk-out against the only nationwide bus company.

The American Red Cross said it was unaware of serious disruptions caused by the strike against Greyhound Lines Inc., and an Associated Press random nationwide check produced no reports of shortages caused by the strike, although in some cases supplies had to be delivered by other means.

The King's Daughters' Medical Center in Ashland, Ky., is using taxis for deliveries about 10 times a week from the blood bank in Huntington, W. Va., — a 30-mile one-way trip.

Meanwhile, a driver of a Greyhound bus from Los Angeles made a wrong turn onto a snow-covered dirt road near Flagstaff, Ariz., and the vehicle and about 30 passengers were stuck for about three hours.

Color of the ink

Color of the ink in your pen has nothing to do with how you write, quite true. But virtually all of those interpreters of handwriting "colored-ink" tend to be insecure.

Oldest-known Last Will and Testament was left by Nubkhe, son-of-an-Egyptian pharaoh. He died in 2601 B.C. In that Will was familiar phrasing roughly translatable as "Being of sound mind and body...I, the late Nubkhe, do hereby bequeath to my wife, three children, and to an other woman" not now identifiable. Clearly, the "other woman" is also a social phenomenon of ancient origin.

A computer run on weather forecasts suggests the forecasts get it right 54 percent of the time. That beats the 50-50 odds of a coin flip, what?

WORMS

For those people who'd like to eat earthworms, The Miami Herald printed: "Wash the worms in cold water and lemon juice for an hour...before boiling them three times each time in changed water...Spread them on a cookie sheet and bake at 350...Cool and crumble into breads, salads, soups..."

L.M. BOYD

What's what?

If you're ragged overmuch for snacking between meals; you might mention the hummingbird; It eats about 50 times a day.

BARD'S TOWN

Stratford, Ontario, is another Shakespearean Festival town—Youngsters there go to Romeo and Juliet Elementary schools, and to King Lear High. When you get there, you can stay in the "As You Like It Motel." Understand it's a pretty little hamlet.

Consider small boys who want to play baseball. Should they be organized and supervised by grown men? Or would they be better off merely led into the game by other boys? Devout believers argue both sides of this one. Toss it out the next time the conversation lags.

What's hard to grasp, for me anyhow, is that a laser burns billions of times brighter than the light at the sun's surface.

Theatrical Redgraves planning onstage get-together

Oklahoman earns Mrs. America title

LONDON (AP) — The theatrical Redgraves are planning an onstage family get-together in Chekhov's "Three Sisters" with Vanessa and Lynn Redgrave joining Vanessa's daughter, Joely Richardson, in the title roles.

VANESSA REDGRAVE joins sister, daughter in play

The two sisters, Vanessa and Lynn, have never performed together publicly, Thelma Holt, the play's producer, said Tuesday.

Ms. Richardson, 24, appeared in the film "Wetherby" with her mother, Lynn, who turns 47 on Thursday, has been living in Los Angeles for many years and has not worked on the British stage since 1972.

"I always felt that to justify spending so long away it would have to be something very special for me to return," said Lynn, who received an Academy Award nomination for her role in the 1966 film "Georgy Girl."

Vanessa, 53, received an Oscar for the 1977 film "Julia." These are three great, great roles and it was an absolute stroke of genius because the relationship we have is so strong and loving," Lynn said.

The play is scheduled to open in London in November.

Rockefeller to model underwear for charity

NEW YORK (AP) — Take off the expensive suit, the suspenders, the designer shoes, the silk shirt, and what would O. Stillman Rockefeller be? Just another scantily clad millionaire selling underwear.

The 30-year-old Rockefeller — a descendant of William Rockefeller, brother of John D. Rockefeller Sr. — will soon be seen modeling Jockey brand underwear.

It's all for charity. One of his fellow underwear salesman is Jim Palmer, former Baltimore Oriole and Hall of Famer.

Rockefeller, who normally works with artist Mark Kostabi, will donate his fee for doing the ad to Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, publicist Natasha Devlin, said Tuesday. The first ad, which will be printed only, is set to appear in the next issue of Forbes magazine.

Drama critic Kerr hears songs for first time

NEW YORK (AP) — Drama critic Walter Kerr had a Broadway theater named for him and, during the ceremony, he was treated to a couple of musical comedy songs for the first time in nearly 40 years of reviewing.

Barbara Cook, the original Marian in "The Music Man," sang an early version of "My White Knight," which suffered deep cuts before opening night. Jonathan Hadary, now in the revival of "Gypsy," sang "Nice She Ain't," a song written for the character he plays but never made it to rehearsal.

And Colleen Dewhurst read some poems by Kerr, breaking up into laughter over one about herself as Cleopatra. "Miss Dewhurst is simply not well cast as a kitten," she read.

The house renamed Monday night was the 954-seat Ritz, now called the Walter Kerr Theater. Kerr reviewed shows for the now-defunct Herald-Tribune from 1951-1966, before moving to The New York Times. He retired from the Times six years ago.

Singer Osbourne replies to Cardinal O'Connor

NEW YORK (AP) — Ozzy Osbourne, former lead singer of Black Sabbath, doesn't think much of Cardinal John J. O'Connor's credentials as a music critic.

"You are ignorant about the true meaning of my songs," Osbourne wrote Monday to O'Connor, who in a sermon had singled out the heavy-metal bratster as especially satanic. "You have also insulted the intelligence of rock fans all over the world, and I recommend you do a little research before making your opinions in the future," Osbourne said.

Osbourne, who's been known to bite the heads off bats and pigeons, fired off a telegram after O'Connor speaking Sunday at St. Patrick's Cathedral, singled out Osbourne's "Suicide Solution" as typifying the songs that lead to demonic possession and even suicide.

"I am offended and deeply hurt by your remarks about me," Osbourne said. "If you want to discuss this matter with me personally, you can call me any time and I will only be too happy to discuss this with you in private. God bless you."

Osbourne was sued in 1987 by parents of 19-year-old John McCullum, who committed suicide while listening to another Osbourne song. The lawsuit was dismissed.

The thrash-rocker says "Suicide Solution" was really about the dangers of alcohol, which caused the death of his friend Ron Scott, lead singer of AC-DC.

The song, Osbourne told The Associated Press in 1987, "was nothing more than a warning to people on the dangers of drinking too much alcohol. The song was a warning to me as well as everyone else. If I hear it enough maybe it will leave an effect."

Osbourne acknowledges he still has a drinking problem.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jennifer Johnson of Edmond, Okla., was crowned Mrs. America on Monday in the 13th annual pageant for married women.

Mrs. Johnson, a 28-year-old volunteer worker, topped 49 other contestants to win the Mrs. America crown and an assortment of prizes. She is the wife of an attorney and the mother of a 2-year-old and an 8-month-old.

American mother arrives in New Zealand to press custody battle with ex-husband

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — The American mother who went to jail to protect her daughter arrived in New Zealand on Tuesday to press her custody fight with her former husband, who she claims molested the child.

Elizabeth Morgan, the 42-year-old Washington cosmetic surgeon who has for three years battled for sole custody of Hilary Foretich, refused to acknowledge waiting journalists at Auckland International Airport.

Morgan slipped through a side exit after arriving on a flight from Los Angeles and was ushered into a car. As the car sped away, she bowed her head to avoid waiting cameramen.

The daughter, Hilary, 7, was first smuggled to Britain and then to New Zealand, where she has been living with her maternal grandparents under the name Ellen Morgan.

Morgan was jailed for 25 months in 1987 for refusing to reveal her daughter's whereabouts when a Superior Court judge in Washington, D.C., granted the child's father, Eric Foretich, unsupervised visits.

Foretich spent two years tracking Hilary down and arrived in New Zealand last week.

Foretich, 45, a dental surgeon from Falls Church, Va., has vigorously denied the allegations of child sex abuse and kept a low profile in New Zealand. He also has countered that Morgan is mentally ill.

Although she has not seen Hilary in more than two years, Morgan said through her New Zealand lawyer she would not immediately fly to Christchurch for a reunion.

Instead, lawyer Lynn Stevens said she will spend a "few days" meeting with her lawyers and with Hilary's attorney.

Morgan's efforts to avoid the media apparently included booking her Air New Zealand business-class seat under the name of Mr. J. Morgan through to Sydney, Australia. She also booked a ticket on an early flight Tuesday from Auckland to Christchurch as Mr. J. Morgan but that reservation was canceled from Los Angeles on Sunday, travel agent told The Associated Press.

Stevens said Morgan has high regard for the New Zealand Family Court system, which is to rule on the custody issue. No date has been set for a hearing.

"She is acutely conscious of the strong tradition in New Zealand of keeping matters before the Family Court private and confidential," Stevens said. "Accordingly, she requests that all media respect the privacy of herself, her family and Hilary."

"She is very pleased that in New Zealand the best interests and welfare of Hilary are regarded as the paramount consideration," her lawyer said.

Stevens said Morgan would not meet the media during her visit. He said he did not know when she will go to Christchurch or how long she is visiting.

Morgan reportedly has spoken only once to her daughter by telephone since she was jailed. And it seemed likely on her first day in New Zealand she would not be able to talk because all-phone communications were down in Christchurch, 190 miles south of Wellington, the capital.

Telecom, the national-telephone company, could not explain the communications failure.

Afghan rebellion thwarted

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Soldiers led by the defense minister joined with Moslem guerrillas Tuesday to try to overthrow Afghanistan's government, but were defeated by troops loyal to President Najibullah, radio reported.

The official radio said the loyalists controlled Kabul, the capital, and an indefinite curfew was imposed at 7 p.m.

In the Soviet Union, which sponsors the Najib government, the official news agency Tass said: "The loyal troops have now mopped up the main pockets of resistance, leaving the situation in Kabul firmly controlled by the government."

Western diplomats, guerrilla leaders in Pakistan and the Soviet media reported heavy fighting and said Afghan air force planes had bombed Arg Palace, Najib's headquarters in the heart of Kabul.

Heavy artillery and tanks fired for several hours on the buildings of the Defense Ministry and the army's main political directorate, Tass said. It also reported shelling of residential districts, but said they abated after dark.

Kabul radio said the coup leader was Maj. Gen. Shah Nawaz Tanai, the defense minister, a hard-line Marxist linked to at least two of the five previous coup attempts reported against Najib, who took office in 1986.

He was joined by followers of the fundamentalist-guerrilla leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, the radio said.

Najib said on state television Tuesday night: "Some soiled elements today tried to carry out a conspiracy and provoke bloodshed, but the government forces have neutralized them. They have been suppressed."

Repeating a message broadcast earlier in the day by Interior Minister Aslam Watanjar, who was named to replace Tanai, Najib urged Afghans to help capture the general "dead or alive." He said numerous soldiers who surrendered by 4 a.m. Wednesday would be given amnesty.

Labor demands quick approval of Baker plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — Vice Premier Shimron Peres on Tuesday threatened to bring down the government unless Israel's Cabinet gives immediate approval to U.S. proposals for starting a dialogue with Palestinians.

The decision-making inner Cabinet is scheduled to meet Wednesday, with Peres' center-left Likud, Shiner and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc still at odds over the U.S. plan.

Peres read an ultimatum after a 45-minute meeting of Labor Cabinet ministers at his office in Tel Aviv. He demanded a Cabinet meeting to decide whether to accept the plan which the parties have been signing over since October.

"Labor ministers demand a discussion and decision on a positive answer to the questions U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III presented to Israel," it said.

Peres told reporters he would consider a tie vote in the inner Cabinet, which has six members of each party — a negative response that would "bring an end to the government."

"We demand a vote and a decision tomorrow," he said.

In an interview on Israel Television, Foreign Minister Moshe Arens of Likud declined to say if the issue would come to a vote Wednesday or even be discussed. He quoted Shamir as saying "It's better to have a good decision than a quick decision."

Philippine court frees coup attempt suspect

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Supreme Court on Tuesday granted bail to Sen. Tito Sotto, Enrile, the opposition leader who was arrested in connection with December's bloody coup attempt, but it delayed ruling on the validity of charges against him.

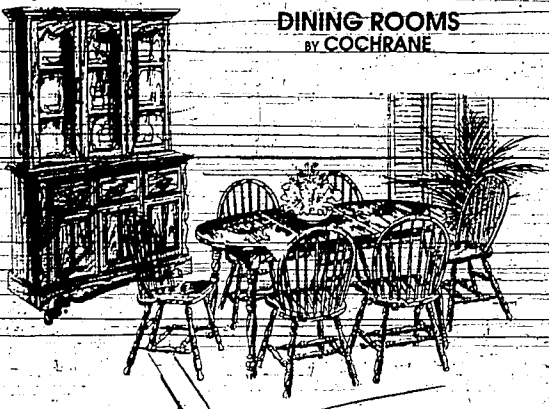

The decision appeared to be a setback for President Corason Aquino's government, which accused Enrile last week of "rebellion with murder."

The court said bail was granted because the chances were "fairly remote" that Enrile would flee the country.

Report stresses 13 points for special education

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two psychologists have 13 recommendations, or "changing written forms to forming a parents advisory committee, after examining the Twin Falls School District's programs for learning-disabled students.

It also noted that the district in the past hasn't spent all the money the state gave it for special education programs, although that appears to be common practice among Idaho's schools.

The Twin Falls Schools Board on Tuesday released the report, written by Charles Drake and his son, David Drake, of Massachusetts. The Drakes recently spent a week studying the district's special education programs.

The board decided to release the report after acting Superintendent Keith Tolzin, in a written recommendation said that he and legal counsel had determined the report was public. Board members had previously expressed uncertainty over whether they would release the report.

Earlier they had met with the Drakes in what board Chairman Calvin Lamborn said was a "positive" session, but the written report skipped the praise and focused on recommendations.

"I guess that was one thing I missed in the Drake report," said Director of Support Services Bill Feusaberg, who oversees Twin Falls' special education program. He said recent evaluations by the federal government and a state team found the school's programs commendable in many ways.

"I would love to have done that, and there are certainly some good things," said attorney Greg Euller, who commissioned and paid for the Drake report. "But to put it in another 33 pages of the report at my expense should not be expected."

The shortcomings found by the state and federal government have been corrected, Feusaberg said. He will prepare a response in a few weeks to a few "distortions and errors" in the Drake's report.

"I think it's constructive," Euller said of the report. He and his wife, Shawna, who have learning-disabled children, say they want to help the school system help such students.

The Drakes pointed out that the school for fiscal year 1988 spent $347,000 less than it received from the state for special education programs — 27 percent of its $1.27 million special-education allocation.

But that's not unusual, according to a

TWIN FALLS — An Oregon man charged with two counts of grand theft appeared in court Tuesday, according to court records.

Spud promoter: Japan wants 'American fries'

By MARK KIND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In America they're called French fries. In Japan they're called American fries. So what do the French call them?

The National Potato Board is successfully marketing fried U.S. spuds to Japan, but they're not called French fries, a board vice president said Tuesday.

"American fries" is becoming the generic term," Robert Mercer said in a speech to farmers and businessmen at the First Security Bank agriculture forum.

The crisp golden-brown American variety is different from the traditional limp, gray Japanese variety of French fry, he explained.

French fry exports to Japan have shot upward since 1980, Mercer said. In 1988, the United States sent 100,000 metric tons to Japan — up dramatically from the 25,000 sent in 1980.

And as U.S. fast-food companies expand in Japan, he expects Japan to import 125,000 metric tons of French fries in 1990 — or about 8.5 million 100-pound sacks of potatoes.

"We project that will double in the next five years," if federal support for the marketing program continues, he said. In addition to its own funds, the National Potato Board spends more than $2 million in federal money each year to promote spuds internationally, Mercer said.

Mercer stopped short of taking credit for two years of record demand for potatoes and continuing high prices. But he did take credit for marketing projects undertaken by the board in the United States in recent years.

The first campaign began about ten years ago and was aimed at convincing U.S. consumers that potatoes are nutritious.

"With that goal reached, the board last year began telling consumers that potatoes are easy to prepare in microwave ovens. The campaign was called 'Potatoes in the Fast Lane,' Mercer said.

Mercer noted that potato prices are excellent for growers, but he cautioned farmers in the audience against planting more potatoes to take advantage of the prices.

"I love creating demand, but unfortunately there's more of you than there is of me and you can increase supply faster than I can increase demand," he said.

Jerome commission drops dairy industry proposal

By H.R. WEIKEL
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The county planning commission has turned its attention away from a dairy ordinance proposed by the dairy industry and returned to its original, more restrictive proposal.

The commission on Monday began revising the ordinance developed last year by a community committee and agreed to downplay the importance of an alternative proposal from some local residents in the dairy industry, presented by a Twin Falls lawyer.

Since the attorney's submission covers dairies only, let's consider that as an alternative suggestion we have from the public and use the ordinance presented at the hearing for our study tonight," commission member Jane Leubetter said.

The original proposal, which drew heavy fire from area residents in a public hearing in December, that it was either too restrictive or unrestrictive enough, is significantly different from the alternative proposal.

The alternative proposal, presented by Harry DeHann, would not apply to existing operations and would only concern dairies.

The original proposal would significantly affect existing dairies but the commission on Monday voted on only one provision in it.

Commission Chairman Tom Bush cast the deciding vote to establish a $150 annual special-use permit, 1 member, Martin Lee and Wayne Thompson voted against the fee. Thompson said he agrees with a fee but said the amount is too high.

Voting in favor were members Dan Suhr, Don Mason and Robert Golny.

Funds from the fees would help pay for other provisions of the ordinance, such as inspections.

The commissioners discussed a number of other provisions in the original ordinance, which have drawn considerable opposition, but made no decisions: Those provisions are:

- Annual inspections and operating permits.
- An application process, yet to be determined, for any increase in their

Attorneys debate deadliness of boots

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Is a boot a deadly weapon? The Idaho Supreme court is pondering that question after an hour of arguments Tuesday in an assault-and-battery case from Halley.

"It's a very curious case," said Deputy Attorney General James E. Leuenberger as he chatted with a Filer High School class that sat through the hearing.

Leuenberger debated Ketchum attorney Carol L. Shephard on the merits of a criminal assault and battery case from Halley.

Clinton Lloyd Huston was charged several years ago with battery, a crime carrying a maximum six-month sentence, and aggravated assault, a crime with a maximum of five years in prison.

Prosecutors originally charged Huston with hitting his estranged wife with the butt of a rifle, resulting in a battery charge. They also said he threatened her with a rifle or shotgun, leading to the aggravated assault charge.

On the day his trial was to start, Huston pleaded guilty to battery but said he did not hit his wife with the rifle, however, admit he kicked her with his work boots.

Prosecutors then tacked on Huston's boots to the list of allegedly deadly weapons in the aggravated assault charge.

The jury decided Huston was guilty of aggravated assault but decided the crime came from his hard-soled work boots, not the rifle or shotgun.

Because the threatening-by-boot charge was essentially the same as the battery-by-boot charge, Shephard said, Huston should only be sentenced on the lesser charge.

Fifth District Judge James May didn't agree, and gave Huston six years in prison, with a three-year minimum.

The five Supreme Court justices, hearing appeals this week in Twin Falls, took the case under advisement and will kick out a written decision later.

Cable company to refund taxes after settling assessment fight

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — King Videocable will mail subscribers refund checks once the company settles a dispute with the county over property taxes, the company's general manager says.

"We will refund the net tax to subscribers," King Videocable Co. General Manager Vince Thompson said Tuesday.

Twin Falls County is considering whether to reimburse King Videocable for part of its 1988 and 1989 property taxes.

"I don't think there is any doubt that we will have to return the money," County Assessor Dorothy Hamby said Tuesday.

"We will hopefully resolve our differences as soon as possible," Thompson said.

Twin Falls subscribers could receive $14 refunds and Jerome subscribers could receive $18 refunds, Thompson said.

King Videocable has been charging $1.27 to Twin Falls subscribers because of the higher property taxes, he said. Jerome subscribers have been paying an extra $3.05 per month.

King Videocable protested its taxes in 1988 over a new tax assessment approach that takes into account intangible assets, such as management process. Since then, three Idaho district courts have ruled that the method is illegal.

Because of the intangible approach, King Videocable's tax assessment in Twin Falls County rose from $2 million in 1987 to $12.5 million in 1989.

Senate narrowly kills tax cut

BOISE (AP) — An $11.1 million cut in personal-state income taxes, the first piece of an eight-year tax-cutting package, narrowly failed in the Idaho Senate Tuesday.

But Sen. Herb Carlson, of Eagle, one of two Republicans who joined the Democratic minority in defeating the bill by a single vote, delayed its formal death by reversing the right to have the vote reconsidered on Wednesday.

Another floor vote was expected later Tuesday on a $2.6 million corporate income tax cut that is the second piece of the package. The Senate Chairman Rachel Gilbert, a Boise Republican considering a run for governor, forced to the floor in her campaign, returned to some of the state's record surplus to taxpayers.

Both the personal and corporate income tax proposals would return rates to their 1986 levels, before lawmakers raised rates for the upper brackets to cover an expected deficit that never materialized.

Considered fiscally irresponsible in view of the evolving legislative-state spending blueprint, many of the same Republicans who supported the tax-cut package last year backed the tax cut that would engulf the state in a sea of red ink. Some Republican legislative leaders already have been talking about raiding the budget resources to cover additional spending proposals. Budget writers have rejected or ignored

Carlson said he reserved the right to force yet another vote on the personal income tax measure "as a means of letting everybody live with all the politics that were involved with this thing, when there should have been none. They're trembling."

The third piece of Gilbert's package, a bill tripling the current $15-person income tax credit for the sales tax paid on food at a cost of nearly $25 million, could be put to a vote late this week.

The validity of all three bills has been placed in question by an attorney general's opinion. It cited constitutional provisions such as Idaho has, requiring revenue-raising bills to be initiated only in the House, applies to bills that reduce revenue as well.

But even if any of the bills slipped through the Senate, chances of clearing the House tax-writing committee were slim at best. House Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, already has said—the attorney general's opinion would carry significant weight with him if he is faced with handling those bills.

"This is political grandstanding on a bill that has little chance of ever becoming law," Democratic Floor Leader Bruce Sweeney of Lewiston said.

The personal income tax cut, which would almost exclusively benefit taxpayers earning over $30,000 a year, was defeated on a 21-20 vote. Carlson and Laird Noh of Kimberly were the only Republicans to join the 19 Democrats in blocking the bill. Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, was absent through the day.

"The facts don't bear out the claim that the people are clamoring for an election-year tax cut," Democratic Karl Brooks of Boise said, citing the Boise State poll.

Calling it election-year tax gimmickery, he suggested the bill was typical Republican tax policy, which is "to target tax relief ... to the well-to-do, the upper-income people."

But Mrs. Gilbert said the rate hikes in 1987 pushed Idaho's tax rates toward the highest in the nation, giving the state a negative image for further business expansion.

Legislative budget writers endorse 200-inmate prison addition plan

BOISE (AP) — The state Corrections Board's short-term plan to keep pace with Idaho's skyrocketing prison population has gained the endorsement of legislative budget writers.

In addition to making the multi-million-dollar commitment to a new 200-inmate unit at the main prison, south of Boise on Tuesday, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee also approved extra cash for substance abuse treatment in the penitentiary system.

"We're spending millions and millions of dollars in this state to recycle untreated substance abusers through our criminal justice system,"

Rep. Ken Robison, D-Boise, said. "If you think we're saving money by not spending it on substance abuse, we're just kidding ourselves."

The extra $75,000 dedicated to substance abuse treatment in the prison budget will complement some $220,000 included in the Health and Welfare Department budget for drug and alcohol abuse treatment in the prisons.

Without any opposition, the panel endorsed the $175,000 the Corrections Department needs to staff the new 200-bed unit beginning next February.

Support for that outlay effectively committed the panel to approve the $3.6 million needed to construct the unit, which would house medium security inmates. That spending proposal will be considered later this week when the committee looks for a consensus on an unprecedented long-range public works program that currently includes projects in every area of the state over its four-year life.

Former White House aide considers entering governor's race

BOISE (AP) — Former White House aide Larry Eastland said Tuesday he will make an announcement this week on whether he intends to pursue a possible Republican primary bid for governor this year.

"We're talking to people about putting together a committee," Eastland said, and a number of GOP operatives said the Boise businessman has decided to make a bid for the right to challenge incumbent Democrat Cecil Andrus in November.

Eastland would become the third Republican in the race to oust Andrus, Boise stockbroker Milton Erhart and former state Sen. Roger Fairchild of Fruitland have already announced their candidacies. While former Lt. Gov. Phil Batt of Wilder disappointed many party leaders when he declined to run last week, Senate tax committee Chairman Rachel Gilbert of Boise has indicated some interest in the race.

Woman set for laser therapy to save fetuses

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A pregnant Oregon woman was to undergo a pioneering laser therapy late Tuesday in an effort to save her twin fetuses from a potentially fatal disorder, doctors say.

Frank Boucher, 25 of Salem, Ore., was scheduled for the 90-minute procedure at University of Utah Health Sciences Center "sometime after 5 p.m." (MST) at hospital spokesman John Dwan said.

He said the time was tentative, but doctors had decided the therapy was warranted after reviewing a battery of tests conducted earlier in the day. The tests included ultrasound scanning of Boucher's four-month-old male fetuses, and analysis of amniotic fluid.

Dwan said doctors would not immediately know whether the procedure is successful. More testing will be needed after the operation, he said.

The therapy will be done by Dr. Julian DeLia, the only physician in the country who has performed the procedure.

DeLia has declined to be interviewed, saying he prefers to discuss his research within the framework of scientific journals.

Boucher found out two weeks ago that the fetuses suffer from Twin-transfusion Syndrome, an often-fatal condition where fetuses share the same blood supply. About 2,500 American babies annually die or are born prematurely with severe health problems as a result of the condition.

DeLia, who has done the procedure four times before, uses a neodymium-YAG laser beam directed through a fiber-optic rod in a specially designed "flescope" to seal off blood vessels in the placenta that are shared by the twins.

Doctors at the University of Utah offered to pay for the procedure, while the Salem Statesman Journal newspaper has agreed to pay for air fare to Salt Lake City for Boucher, who is on welfare.

In fetuses suffering from TFS, blood flow strongly favors one twin, causing it to build up too much amniotic fluid and/or suffer heart failure from having to pump so much. The other twin, meantime, has too little amniotic fluid and shows growth retardation.

Police chief's son charged after alleged drug buy

MOSCOW (AP) — The son of before Magistrate William Moscow's police chief, who left Hamilton on the charge.

Last Friday, David Cameron admitted he attempted to get his son out of a house Feb. 24 before a confidential police informant allegedly bought marijuana from one of his son's roommates.

David Cameron ended up taking his son out of the house between the time the alleged buy was made and the time a search midemeanor charge against the 19-year-old was issued Feb. 24.

Mayor Paul C. Agidius said last week. Eventually, the police chief and his wife and son were taken to the police station Feb. 24, where Ryan Cameron was questioned and searched.

Mark Moorer, Moscow's deputy city attorney, said the misdemeanor charge against the 19-year-old Ryan D. Cameron, son of Police Chief David G. Cameron, was filed Monday afternoon.

He said Ryan Cameron is scheduled to appear March 14

High-tech firm files bankruptcy

IDAHOO FALLS (AP) — EI International Inc., an Idaho Falls high-tech company that has suffered business setbacks since 1986, has filed for protection under the federal Chapter 11 bankruptcy law.

The engineering and computer development company, which employs 150 people throughout the country, filed in Bogalitto as a result of continuing losses from its products and because of its inability to collect money from many of its contracts, a company statement said Tuesday.

"Day-to-day operation of the company's ongoing businesses is expected to continue uninterrupted," officials said.

EI President Norm Main said the attempt to voluntarily restructure the firm's financial obligations had failed because of continuing losses. EI now has 15 days to submit a list of assets and liabilities to the U.S. District Court.

The company was founded to serve the utility industry. It expanded to offer nuclear safety software and eventually computer equipment when William Boits took over as president in 1978.

Inquiry fails to explain crash

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho National Guard inquiry into a Sept. 39, McCall; Chief Warrant Officer Mountain Home could not determine why the chopper lost power and crashed into Dinkett Mountain, killing three of four crew members.

The investigation found that an "emergency situation" existed at the time of the crash, but all evidence of the emergency was destroyed in the wreckage, officials said Monday.

"The results are very ambiguous," said Maj. James Ball, a National Guard spokesman.

The surviving crew member, Sgt. Gary "Chuck" Scheer of Boise, remembers hearing the pilots mention an emergency, but he was facing backward and did not know specifically what went wrong, Ball said.

Killed in the crash were Chief Warrant Officer 4 James R. Bollar, 39, McCall; Chief Warrant Officer 4 Dickie C. Hill, 46, Boise; and Sgt. Charles L. Hansen, 28, Boise.

The CH-53 "Hooy" helicopter was on a routine training flight when it encountered the emergency, lost power and crashed, Ball said.

The helicopter's engine was not producing sufficient power to maintain flight and was operating at extremely low power at the moment of impact.

The engine was capable of producing full power, according to test analysis of the engine; no deficiencies that could have caused or contributed to the power loss were found, nor could any power loss scenarios be duplicated.

Hong Kong group buys historic Spokane hotel

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A Hong Kong hotel group says it has agreed to purchase and renovate the historic Davenport Hotel, which in its 75 years has hosted such guests as Mary Pickford and Teddy Roosevelt.

Sun International Hotels Ltd. has agreed to purchase the landmark, Charles Van Marter, a lawyer representing Lomas Financial Corp. of Dallas, told a news conference Monday.

The Texas-based mortgage company closed the hotel in 1985. Neither Van Marter nor Sun International officials would disclose the purchase price. The deal is expected to close by March 23, Van Marter said.

Sun International President James Hill said more than $10 million in renovation is planned, including installation of a fire sprinkler system, structural reinforcement and enlarging some of the hotel's 400 rooms. The top two floors of the 14-story Florentine-style hotel will be converted into 18 luxury apartments, Hill said.

The transaction is the first in the United States for Sun International, which operates 10 hotels in China and Thailand.

"We're anxious to participate in prospects where we see growth," said Hill, who once managed a restaurant inside the hotel and whose father was one of the building's first managers.

When the renovation is completed in nine months to a year, some 300-350 people will be employed, Hill said.

The Davenport, where thousands of high school students attended proms in ornate ballrooms and families enjoyed elegant Easter brunches, holds an emotional spot in the city's heart.

"I was pleasantly surprised by the emotion shown to the salvation of the Davenport," said Wai-Choi Ng, Sun International chairman and Hill's partner in the venture.

Spokane city and economic development officials and Friends of the Davenport, a grass-roots group that sought to lure investors, went out their way to welcome the new investors, who began looking at the property in January.

Mayor Sheri Barnard assigned a building department employee as liaison to ensure the project doesn't become snaggled in red tape, Hill said.

Lomas announced last year it would consider tearing down the building unless a buyer were found by September 1990.

The hotel, finished in 1914, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The new owners will take advantage of the tax credits that come with the historic designation, Hill said.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation has taken an interest in the building, as has the Washington Trust for Historic Preservation, which placed the hotel on its "10 Most Wanted" list of threatened structures.

Once described as "The Waldorf of the West," the Davenport has been host to celebrities and entertainers. Presidents Teddy Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy stayed there, as did entertainers Mary Pickford, Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey and Bob Hope.

After a fire destroyed most of downtown in 1889, Louis Davenport parlayed a waffle restaurant into a fortune, which he used to commission architect Kirtland Cutter to build a magnificent hotel. He furnished it with art and antiques from around the world.

Canaries and exotic birds once served as backdrops in the gift-edged Mediterranean-style lobby.

While a boarder, Western novelist Zane Grey wrote "Desert of Wheat," a portrayal of Northwest wheat farming towns.

Garlic wards off illness, vampires

Oh, Ivans; if only you had asked me for advice to ward off those gossip vampires, you need only wear a clove of garlic (gold-plated if necessary) around your neck.

At least, a garlic necklace was the recommended deterrent for vampires in "Dracula." By nibbling a clove or two while confessing all to Liz Smith and People magazine, you may have avoided a cold, stroke, heart attack, lowered your cholesterol, raised your HDL's, prolonged your blood clotting time, killed a few cancer cells, and cured athlete's foot. All these claims have been made about the "cusp of intellectuals."

Jane Slickers Food and health

Americans are swallowing some of this lore to the tune of 200 million pounds of garlic a year. Annually, 14,000 acres of dirt surrounding Gilroy, California (the garlic capital of the world) are cultivated with garlic. Will Rogers reputedly said Gilroy was "the only town in America where you can marinate a steak by hanging it out on the clothesline."

Despite more than 300 varieties worldwide, most often found in the local grocery is California Early, a relative in the lily family. One separated from the bulb and its usually white, papery skin into individual cloves, garlic can be dealt with whole, minced or pressed.

Pressing renders the sharpest flavor, claimed to be 10 times stronger than when minced with a sharp knife. Leaving the cloves whole renders the mildest flavor. Raw garlic yields a much more intense flavor than long, slow cooking which mellows the flavor considerably. Mincing and pressing release the active ingredient allicin, a sulfur-containing compound that is rapidly converted to allicin. Allicin accounts for the powerful odor of garlic, and - it is believed - most of the curative properties of garlic.

Unfortunately, allicin is destroyed by high heat such as that generated by cooking or processing garlic into capsule form. Kyolic, a form of garlic extract capsule sold in health food stores, is processed by a lengthy cold temperature method that claims to preserve the active ingredients.

When scrutinized scientifically, the medicinal qualities hold up remarkably well. Several reputable studies report the cholesterol- and triglyceride-lowering effects of garlic. Australian Research published a study claiming subjects taking four capsules of Kyolic per day demonstrated an average 10 percent drop in their serum cholesterol levels after six months.

This effect was noted only in subjects who had cholesterol levels above 220. Subjects who had normal cholesterol levels (150 to 200) did not experience a drop. Subjects were tested monthly for six months. Initially, their cholesterol- and triglyceride levels were elevated. Not until six months into the study did the effects become substantial. Researchers speculate the garlic may initially release stored fat into the blood, temporarily raising blood levels of cholesterol.

HDL (the good cholesterol) levels were elevated by a significant amount and LDL (the bad cholesterol) levels decreased a significant amount over the course of the study also.

Researchers also found that cholesterol levels of six subjects were resistant to any lowering. On analyzing their diets, all were found to be high fat eaters (steak and ice cream). Therefore, do not run off to the health food store buy garlic capsules and assume you can continue your wicked way of eating. The garlic worked best on the high carbohydrate eaters in the study.

Another study reported in Health magazine, claimed blood from subjects who ate FOUR BULBS of RAW garlic per day killed cancer cells up to 160 times that of blood from subjects who ate no garlic. This is a promising result, but not in a living tumor in a subject's body. Also the side effects of eating that much garlic were not reported.

Another study done at the State University of New York, reports that garlic inhibited platelet aggregation (blood clumping). An Indian study comparing ethnic groups who ate lots of garlic with those who ate little, reported the garlic-eating group had a 50 percent decrease in those who ate little garlic. This would seemingly be a defense against heart attacks.

The California Nutrition Book claims garlic may stimulate the flow of mucus and relieve symptoms of asthma and colds.

This should be enough evidence to Old favorites back in microwave form

Raisins, walnuts and prunes, among this country's favorite foods, were popular long before the debut of microwave cooking.

The time seemed perfect to look at raisins, walnuts and prunes in new ways and put them to the test in a microwave audition, offering trusted, exciting flavor and nutritional assets to the time-conscious microwave cook.

The microwave oven has reached stardom after nearly two decades of standing in the wings as an understudy. Presently more than 75 percent of homes have at least one microwave oven. It is expected that within the next ten years, 50 percent of all American households will be "two microwave homes."

Changes in lifestyles, work habits, family size and structure, and changing food preferences have been key factors affecting consumer acceptance of microwave cooking. All have combined to create a wave of new microwave interest.

New apple varieties may push out Red Delicious

By LOU PAPPAS
Times-News Tribune

Red Delicious, move over. Here come six new apple varieties bursting with flavor. Washington growers are now marketing some new names, and they're likely to surpass the old favorites - classics such as the Red and the Golden Delicious, the Granny Smith, Winesap, Rome Beauty and Newton Pippin.

As the apple season closes down for stateside growers, New Zealand orchardists are picking and shipping in their crop bearing such new labels as Fuji, Elstar, Criterion, Jonagold and Gala.

The apple of our eye may soon wear a new name tag. Called the Fuji, this up-and-coming all-purpose apple won't win a prize for beauty.

Ranging from yellow-green with red highlights to nearly solid red, it is dowdy and generally smaller compared to the queasily Red Delicious, the exemplar of apple pulchritude. But the Fuji wins hands down when it comes to snapping crispness and sweet lively flavor. "It has more sugar than any apple we've ever tested," says Duane Green, a University of Massachusetts pomologist (apple scholar).

According to apple industry sages, by 1995 the Fuji will be planted more often than any other apple tree.

"It is apple-grower friendly, has a long shelf life and doesn't turn mealy," said Amy Hedeen, spokesperson for the Washington Apple Commission and wife of a Wenatchee apple grower.

Other new names to watch for are the Gala, a yellow-gem with red striping to nearly solid red. It's delightful eaten fresh, out-of-hand, and in salads.

Criterion, a vivid yellow, often with a red blush, is particularly good fresh, rather similar to Golden Delicious in flavor, but also nice for baking. When cut its flesh stays white longer than other apples, and it's available longer, from fall through spring.

The Elstar, bright red and yellow with a sweet-tart flavor is another great apple for fresh use. Jonathan, red with a greenish yellow background, is tangy sweet, ideal for pies, cobblers or baking of any kind.

Jonagold, a cross between Jonathan and Golden Delicious, is yellow overlaid with red and best used fresh.

The changeover won't happen instantly because new apple trees grow slowly, and the Red Delicious is entrenched with more than 50 percent of production. But officials say it has been overplanted; its prices have dropped below the cost of production, so the time is ripe for change.

The Golden Delicious is America's No. 2 apple, and the Granny Smith is fast gaining in popularity. Crisp and spritely, Grannies have immortalized the name of Mrs. Thomas Smith. Smith was a woman living in New South Wales, Australia, in the 1850s who threw her Tasmanian French crab apples onto a creek bank; they then sprang up to produce the Granny Smith.

The Granny Smiths were planted in the prime apple-growing valleys of central Washington state in the late 1960s, and production is anticipated to reach 10 million boxes annually by 1992. An appealing way to discover the new apple varieties is to stage an apple-and-cheese tasting, mating the six new apple varieties with a tray of four or five cheeses, such as sharp Canadian Black Diamond-Cheddar, Oregon-blue cheese, Port Salut, Dutch-Beyerder and Norwegian Jarlsberg cheese.

Cook's profile

The family that cooks together ...

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS: As Gary and Joan Fay prepare dinner every evening, they share not only the work, but also their day's experiences.

"We have a good time cooking and talking, because we'll sit here and discuss what we've done and cleaned up about it," Joan says. "And it gives us a chance to get together."

While Gary fixes the meat dish, Joan chops vegetables for the salad. "It's kind of fun to pick out a couple of dishes, and one spouse prepares one and one prepares the other," Gary says.

The couple also share in the experience of hunting and fishing for the meat that makes up some of their main dishes. And when it comes to big game, the cutting and wrapping of it is also a shared event—a family affair, in fact. Gary cuts, Joan wraps and 19-year-old Jody and 14-year-old Christopher "put the packages in the freezer."

Gary says the first consideration with wild game is to take care of it in the first place. "With your fish, keep them cool - and with deer, elk and moose, make sure you have those well taken care of and cleaned up."

Ordinarily, he does not age venison more than about three days, because it doesn't have the protective fat layer beef has, and will dry out faster. He then quarters it and takes it into the kitchen.

First he removes the bones, and as he cuts, he takes off all the gristle and fat. He also trims the outside where it may have dried a little.

"And so you have just a solid piece of red meat," he says. "I make all of it a shared event—a family

 "my cuts into steaks and roasts."
 He says his favorite venison dish is one called...

STEAK DIANE

Serves 3-4
 3-4 venison steaks, approximately 4 inches in diameter and 1 1/2 inches thick
 Soy sauce
 Olive oil
 Green peppercorns
 Using the back of a large knife, beat steaks on both sides, to tenderize. They will end up to be about 5/6 inches in diameter and 1/2 inch thick. Sprinkle soy sauce on the tenderized steaks and put olive oil on that. Then crust some green peppercorns and rub on top of the steaks. Roll steaks up and refrigerate for about 1 hour. In a frying pan, put 1 tablespoon oil and 2 tablespoons butter.
 When this just starts to brown, unroll 2 of the steaks in the frying pan. After 40-50 seconds on medium to medium high heat, turn them over for another 40 seconds, until they just barely turn brown. Roll them up again, then sear the other 1 or 2 steaks in the same manner. Roll them up and set aside. Add to skillet:

1 tablespoon butter
 Reduce heat to medium. Stir in:
 About 1/2 cup minced shallots
 About 1/2 cup fresh parsley
 Let that cook for a minute. Mix in a bowl:
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
 1 cup beef bouillon, made with granulated bouillon
 Blend together and stir into frying pan. Add:
 A few drops of cognac, port or madiera wine
 When sauce begins to bubble, put up to 4 steaks in for 3-4 minutes, turning them over. If you like your steak medium or well done, leave them in there longer, 5-6 minutes on plates, but leave sauce in frying pan for people to help themselves. Serve with baked potatoes and a salad.
 He says you can just barely taste the mustard in this, and the brown sauce is just delicious. "It's a peppery-type steak, and the meat has very good texture," he says. "If people don't really like the flavor of venison, you can cook this and pretty well get away from that taste."

 Joan says she dislikes cleaning lettuce and can avoid it much of the time by making this salad that she and her family enjoy.

MARINATED VEGETABLES

1 tomato, quartered and sliced not very thin
 1 avocado, chunked or sliced
 About 1/4 onion, sliced into very thin rings or about 1 tablespoon thinly sliced green onions or shallots
 About 7-8 flowerettes of broccoli or cauliflower
 A handful of grated cheddar or parmesan cheese (but no more than one type of cheese at a time) or cannot get rid of parmesan cheese (this goes easy on the amount of canned cheese)
 About 4-5 mushrooms, sliced
 Put some mushrooms on the bottom, and the avocados (look in the bowl so they will stay-looking fresh) and arrange the rest of the vegetables within some of the mushrooms in the middle, in a pleasing arrangement of colors. Sprinkle over the top of the salad:
 About 1 teaspoon Scallion Salad Supreme
 The dressing:
 About 1/2 cup vinegar
 About 1/2 cup oil (she often uses olive oil for this)
 1 teaspoon granulated bouillon
 Shake until bouillon is dissolved
 Pour over the salad and marinate, no longer than about 1/2 hour.
 Gary has a recipe for wild Canadian goose he says he likes very much. He calls it...

BAGGED GOOSE

First make a vegetable stock, using:
 1 teaspoon chicken bouillon
 1 turnip, cut into pieces
 Celery, cut into pieces
 Carrots, cut in pieces
 Lettuce leaves
 A whole onion
 2 bay leaves
 4 cloves
 A little salt (he says he likes to adjust the salt outside of the cooking)
 About 1 quart water
 He says he generally uses the vegetables he finds in the refrigerator, and sometimes uses a potato, too. Simmer stock 1 1/2 hours.

Next, make corn bread according to directions on package. Now you are ready to make...

CORNMEAL STUFFING

2 beaten eggs
 1 cup stock
 6 tablespoons chopped onions, sauteed until they become a little glassy
 1 teaspoon garlic salt
 6 tablespoons melted butter
 1/2 cup diced celery
 4 cups crumbled corn bread

1 teaspoon sage
 1 teaspoon black pepper
 1 teaspoon salt
 Combine ingredients and stuff goose. Rub the skin with bacon grease. Put goose into a paper bag. Staple the sack and place on rack in broiler pan, and bake at 375 degrees for 3-4 hours. Puncture sack and let juices run out into broiler pan. Separate the grease from juices and put juice on the meat.
 Serve with marinated vegetables.
 "The goose has a tendency to be dry in any case, but that sack holds the moisture into the goose, and it's just very, very tender."

 Another way Gary fixes venison is on the outdoor barbecue - an appliance he uses all year.

MUSTARD VENISON STRIPS

Serves 4
 2 pounds venison, cut in strips, about 4 inches long and 1/2 inch thick
 Mix:
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup prepared yellow mustard
 1 tablespoon sugar
 1 tablespoon ketchup
 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
 Heat and then put meat in. Do not cook. Let soak about 1 hour. Remove meat from the sauce and grill over barbecue.
 He says he usually doubles the recipe for the sauce so there will be enough to put on hoagy buns along with the strips of venison.

turn anyone into an alliumphibic (garlic lover). Are you ready to join the "Lovers of the Stinking Rose Society" or plan your vacation in Gilroy, Calif.?
 I decided this would be a good year to try my green thumb at growing garlic. Horticulture magazine says that 3 by 4 foot plots will grow a year's supply. But living in a Northern climate, I found garlic is best planted in the fall (like tulips). It can be stored up to a year in a cool, dry basement (50 degree environment).

Actually, it can be stored indefinitely since six bulbs were found in King Tut's tomb dating from 1350 B.C. Too hot, it will rot. Too cold (as in the refrigerator) and it will sprout. If you find your garlic has sprouted, plant the cloves and they will produce garlic chives for salad or soup garnish.

Minister's pay seems paltry by standards of costly wedding

DEAR ABBY: I need someone to explain something to me; perhaps your readers could help. The story goes like this:

The bride was beautiful in her $900 gown. The photographer charged $830, and she didn't bat an eye. The florist insisted on his $360 in advance. The organist was only fair, but worth the $50 she was paid. The dinner was said to be delicious and expensive. The minister who gladly gave 1 1/2 hours of his time, helping to plan the ceremony, counsel the couple and conduct the two-hour rehearsal to which everybody was late, came to the church an hour and a half early so pictures could be taken beforehand—all in spite of the fact that neither the bride nor groom nor any members of their families, belonged to his church. He was paid $20.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Abby, if this were the exception, I would chalk it up to one insensitive, ungrateful couple, but this is not the exception—it is the rule. It has happened to me scores of times during my career in the ministry, so it appears to be the accepted way of doing things. It may not be intended as an insult, but it certainly feels like one. Can you understand this?

—PUZZLED IN WICHITA

DEAR PUZZLED: I can understand this happening 40 years ago, but today, a minister cannot have his suit cleaned and pressed, get a haircut and pay to gas up his car to get him to the church and back for $20. Today, a $100 bill for his services would seem meager.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Rhannon Vaughn, and I go to Nicholas Elementary School in Sacramento. I asked my teacher how to spell "humbongous" and she told me to look it up in the dictionary. I tried, but I couldn't find it anywhere. Abby, if you don't know how to spell a word, how are you supposed to find it in the dictionary? Please help me.

—RHANNON

DEAR RHANNON: That is a very good question. Begin by doing some hi-and-miss detective work. Try to find it by looking in the "h's" and guessing how you think it is spelled. If you can't find it, you've guessed wrong, so try spelling it another way. You may have to make four, five or six guesses.

(By this time, you have probably discovered that the word you are looking for is spelled h-u-m-o-n-g-o-u-s.)

DEAR ABBY: A Student in New Jersey should tighten up.

"Student" states that dogs are trained, and nurses are educated. (You had referred to trained nurses.)

My dictionary defines the word "train" as: subject to discipline and instruction; to make proficient.

That seems to be an appropriate word to use in connection with my profession. I consider myself trained, as are some of my canine patients—only in different skills.

Canyon Conference coaches pick all-stars

The Times-News
KIMBERLY — Conference and all-star game selections for the 1989-90 Canyon Conference boys' basketball season have been completed by league coaches.

Named to the all-conference team were senior guard Dave Black, junior forward Blake Mitchell, senior center Benjie Mussman and junior guard Brian Hardy, all of Valley; senior center Kelly Holcomb and senior forward Randy Collins, both of Kimberly; junior center Rob Traudt and senior guard Randy Draper, both of Glens Ferry; senior center Kurt Steadman of Declo and junior guard Robert Lessly of Wendell.

Named to the all-senior Canyon Conference team that will play the Magic Valley Conference seniors in the annual all-star game at Murtaugh March 13, were Black, Mussman, Holcomb, Collins, Draper, Lessly and guard Brad McDonald of Kimberly; guard Torrey Jasper of Wendell, forward Luke Kelsey of Kimberly and guard Mare Lute of Filer.

Senior forward Brian Coon of Filer was voted a special all-star as coaches felt he probably would have made the team handily had he not been sidelined by injury.
Randy Potter of Kimberly will coach the all-stars at Murtaugh.

Jerome's Capps wins Butte bout by 1st-round knockout

TWIN FALLS — Kevin Capps of Jerome won his 119-pound bout by knockout in a card held over the weekend in Butte, Mont.
Capps, a member of the Twin Falls Elks Boxing Club, scored a first-round knockout of Stewart Strever of Billings, Mont.

Ashley leads Division III women's singles bowling

POCATELLO — Cathy Ashley of Twin Falls leads Division III of the women's singles competition after the first weekend of the Idaho State Women's Bowling Association Championships.
Ashley tallied a first-weekend total of 693.

Walter's shooting gives Jerome a lift

"Right now, if it's open enough and if it's the right situation, I'll take it. If it's a close game at the end or if you can get a better shot or if you're on the losing end, it's different."
— Jerome's Brett Walter

Jerome's Brett Walter looks for an outlet pass against Buhl in last week's District 4-A-2 tournament.

"I think Jerome has done a good job of putting (Walter) in a position to take an advantage of what he does well. You can't concentrate on him."
— Twin Falls coach John Astorquia

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor
JEROME — Jerome High School sophomore guard Brett Walter has gotten quite a following in the last few weeks. Point guards, mostly, putting a hand in his eye to prevent him from burying one of his 25-foot jump shots.

up. With Farnsworth shooting so well, and (Matt) Williams able to score, Jerome has a lot of ways to beat you."
Walter had the biggest night of his young high school career on Feb. 3 with 23 points, five three-point-goal effort against Wood River in a 70-58 victory. But he was sinking more shots long before then.

Keith (coach) told me he's shot like that since he was in the seventh grade. Astorquia said. "He gets himself open to take good shots and he's poised for a sophomore."
" My dad and my brothers played basketball, so I've been playing with them for a long time," Walter said. "I've been shooting the ball a lot; it's just part of the game."

Colorado State, BYU favored in WAC tourney

The Associated Press
EL PASO, Texas — Colorado State is the No. 1 seed in the Western Athletic Conference tournament, but league coaches say the tournament likely will resemble the regular season, which almost ended in a four-way tie for first.
"I wouldn't be surprised by any team being upset, not one," CSU coach Boyd Grant said. "I don't think anyone will have it easy. I really don't."

Twin Falls' Toolson named 2nd team all-WAC

The Associated Press
LITTLETON, Colo. — Twin Falls' Andy Toolson, a senior forward at Brigham Young University, has been named to the second unit of the all-Western Athletic Conference basketball team.
Toolson is the WAC's No. 6 scorer this season, averaging 18.6 points a game, and is the WAC's No. 4 rebounder with an average of 6.7 boards.

Andy Toolson, No. 6 scorer in WAC this season, averaged 18.6 points a game and was the leading rebounder with a 6.6 average.

Haws, a 6-2 senior guard, was the league's steal leader (63) and third-leading scorer during the conference season at 18.6.
Longley, a 7-2 junior center, was second in scoring with a 19.8 average, second in rebounding at 9.3 and first in blocked shots with 97.

Last-ditch baseball talks drag on into the night

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press
NEW YORK — Baseball negotiations resumed Tuesday night after a nine-day lull and took on a sense of added urgency when management's Player Relations Committee canceled an owners meeting scheduled later in the week.

PRC met for about three hours Tuesday afternoon before little chance opening day could remain on April 2 as the negotiating session and Selig said it will meet again Wednesday morning.

A quarterly meeting of owners had been scheduled for Thursday morning in Irving, Texas, but the PRC thought it was better to negotiate than to spend a day traveling and briefing owners.

Management's lockout-hit its 20th day on Tuesday and both sides say that if camps don't open by Monday, there's a chance the season will be canceled.

Syracuse latest subject of recruiting allegations

The Associated Press
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Syracuse University basketball coach Jim Boeheim defended his program Tuesday after a newly released book suggested the Orangemen were guilty of recruiting violations.
The book alleges that Robert Johnson, Lamara, who is unemployed and lives in a New York City housing project, is a member of the Syracuse bench.

Management's lockout-hit its 20th day on Tuesday and both sides say that if camps don't open by Monday, there's a chance the season will be canceled.

N.C. State says Valvano offered to resign; coach says he didn't

Knight-Ridder-News Service
RALEIGH, N.C. — The stalled negotiations between North Carolina State University and Wolfpack basketball coach Jim Valvano stem from a basic disagreement.
Interim Athletic Director Harold Hopfer says Valvano said he wanted to resign. Valvano says he didn't.

In New Jersey, Robert Kramer III, the business manager whose name ABC linked to contract-shaving, said Tuesday that he was vindicated by New Jersey authorities' decision not to prosecute.
