House votes to repeal abortion 'trigger' law

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE — One bill down, one to go. The Idaho House took about seven minutes Tuesday to debate and then approve a bill repealing Idaho's abortion "trigger" law.

The law was pulled on the banks more than 15 years ago with the understanding that the criminal penalties would be "triggered" if the U.S. Supreme Court ever reversed its 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision establishing a constitutional right to abortion.

Regardless of whether they leaned toward the pro-choice or pro-life side, a majority of the House agreed with him. The House voted 54-28 in favor of the bill. Some members of the Magic Valley delegation voted with the majority.

Liquor licensing proposals falter

The Associated Press

BOISE — Following the Legislature's long conservative tradition on the issue, the House has rejected a bill aimed at dramatically changing the way liquor licenses are allocated in Idaho.

Math error may stall funding for air study

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE — The Legislature's budget-writing committee thought they funded an air quality study for the Snake River Plain Thursday, but a math error may ground the program.

Bush transport plan would cost travelers

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush announced a national transportation policy Thursday that would cost travelers more and increase local governments' share in meeting air, land and sea travel needs into the next century.

Details of new policy — A2

The policy was hailed as an important step by some industry groups, but most expressed some disappointment, and Democratic members of Congress were critical.

Genetic ambush stops AIDS virus

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Researchers working with live human cells in test tubes have developed a genetic ambush of the AIDS virus and say the experimental technique could combat other types of viruses.

"molecular scissors," that slice the ribonucleic acid of the AIDS virus, thus blocking the virus from making copies of itself.

Call to White House about hostages proves hoax

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush took a phone call from a man he thought was Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani to talk about U.S. hostages in Lebanon but the call turned out to be a hoax, the White House said Thursday.

Since the president has stated he would talk to anybody who would help free the hostages, Bush agreed to talk to Rafsanjani.

In his conversation with the unknown caller, the president repeated U.S. policy that goodwill will beget goodwill but there could be no quid pro quo for U.S. hostages, the network said.

Although the technique is promising, he said it is still far from being available for treating patients.

Rossi said his team copied the molecular structure of the plant RNA and then developed a synthetic gene that manufactured this ribozyme inside the human cells in a laboratory.

Nixon returns, gives GOP his views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon, who has spent the last four years in a self-imposed exile, returned to Washington on Thursday to give his views on the 1974 resignation to a large audience of Republican legislators who want his views on the resignation to be known. Nixon, who began his first term as president in 1969, was the first former president to give the public more than an hour, Republican Whip Newt Gingrich called the feat "an extraordinary tour de force."

Nixon was clearly elated by the response. "I've never had such a warm reception," he said. "Why are you here? Because they invited me."

In the closed session with the lawmakers and reporters, Nixon returned to the White House to give a "private" address to the national and a brilliant practical politician.

Nixon said he is something that might not have happened only a few years ago. "I would have been back to Congress, but the 1974 resignation was a political problem to a large audience of Republican legislators who want his views on the resignation to be known."

Nixon was an emblem in Republican history. He was the first Republican president to be impeached. He was the first Republican president to be impeached. He was the first Republican president to be impeached.

FCC loosens rulings on AT&T long distance links

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission, taking another big step towards deregulating the interstate long-distance market, proposed Thursday to loosen rules on AT&T because the one-time monopoly now faces "significant competition."

The commission in a 4-0 vote adopted a staff proposal that, if approved, would give the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. the freedom it says it needs to maneuver against some 500 long-distance companies in today's $55 billion long-distance marketplace.

The commission said it would study competition in the interstate long-distance arena and adopt necessary regulatory reforms. But it tentatively concluded that "interstate services as a whole are now subject to significant competition and that competition in the provision of business services is particularly vigorous" — a key finding that must be made to deregulate AT&T.

Based on those conclusions, the commission proposed a phased-in package of changes in certain business services, extending later to toll-free 800 services, international calling and operator services.

The commission decided not to propose any changes to residential

The proposals are a victory for AT&T, which the FCC formally declared in 1981 "a dominant carrier that should be subject to regulation to prevent abuses to competitors or customers."

AT&T has argued that it no longer is dominant and that it has lost $1.0 billion in business to competitors since the 1984 breakup of the old Bell System. Prices have fallen 40 percent and its share of the long-distance market has dropped below 70 percent. MCI now has about 12 percent of the business, US Sprint about 10 percent, and the rest is scattered among hundreds of smaller companies.

AT&T applauded the proposals for long-distance carriers, saying the commission "took a major step toward shaping policies based on an outdated orthodoxy but on future business services is particularly vigorous" — a key finding that must be made to deregulate AT&T.

Competitors were less pleased, with MCI saying that while it too welcomed the FCC inquiry, the FCC "clearly recognizes that AT&T can leverage its 'dominance to abuse' competitors."

Prosecution claims Poindexter lied to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John M. Webb said Poindexter lied to Congress and ripped up a key presidential document to "rewrite the history of the Iran-Contra affair," a prosecutor argued Thursday at the start of the former national security adviser's trial.

Poindexter's lawyer said he was only following Ronald Reagan's orders.

Prosecutor Dan Webb also told jurors former White House aide Oliver North, expected on the witness stand Friday, will testify that Poindexter's instructions "were and he lied and he lied to Congress by denying the Reagan administration was secretly helping the Nicaraguan rebels."

POINDEXTER

Webb said Poindexter lied to Congress and ripped up a key presidential document to "rewrite the history of the Iran-Contra affair," a prosecutor argued Thursday at the start of the former national security adviser's trial.

Poindexter's lawyer said he was only following Ronald Reagan's orders.

Prosecutor Dan Webb also told jurors former White House aide Oliver North, expected on the witness stand Friday, will testify that Poindexter's instructions "were and he lied and he lied to Congress by denying the Reagan administration was secretly helping the Nicaraguan rebels."

Poindexter worked to help arm the Contras when Congress shut off military assistance because, through hell or high water, Reagan wanted support to continue," the defense lawyer said.

Reagan "wanted it done within the law and it was done within the law," Becker said, telling jurors he will play videotapes of the former president's testimony taken last month in Los Angeles.

As the proceedings got under way, U.S. District Court judge Harold Greene dealt the defense a setback, ruling that when North is called to testify, Poindexter may not, but about seeing Poindexter rip up the Reagan finding.

The judge also suggested that North had changed his story on that subject.

North testified at his trial last year that he saw Poindexter destroy the politically embarrassing document, but at a Dec. 13 pre-trial hearing in the Poindexter case he testified he realized it was the finding that Poindexter had ripped up only after watching Poindexter's congressional testimony on national television in 1987.

"North appears to have embarked at that time upon the calculated course of attempting to assist his former colleague and co-defendant by prevaricating on various issues," Greene said.

The document stated that the arms sale was part of a plan to gain release of the hostages.

Judge accuses North of 'prevaricating'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North has changed his story in the Iran-Contra affair, "prevaricating" in an attempt to help his former boss, the judge in John Poindexter's trial contended Thursday.

The accusation that North had lied under oath — a contention that could suggest further legal problems for him — preceded his expected testimony at a government witness against Poindexter, his former superior at the Reagan administration's National Security Council.

Poindexter's lawyers tried to bar North's testimony. However, U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene ruled that prosecutors could ask North to testify — as he did at his own trial — that on Nov. 21, 1986, he witnessed Poindexter tear up a document signed by President Reagan, The December 1985 "finding" depicted U.S. involvement in arms sales to Iran as a straight fight against hostages deal.

North testified at his trial that he saw Poindexter destroy the politically embarrassing document, but the judge said North gave different testimony at a Dec. 13 pre-trial hearing in the Poindexter case.

"At the hearing, North said he only realized it was the finding that Poindexter had ripped up after watching Poindexter's congressional testimony on national television in 1987."

"No portion of the prosecution's case may be derived from that Poindexter testimony, which was given under a grant of immunity."

The judge said the former White House aide was trying to avoid having to testify against his former boss when he made the statements at the hearing. North said at the time that Poindexter was the only one in the Iran-Contra affair who "didn't hang Ollie North out to dry."

Panel to seek immunity for ex-aid in HUD probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators said Thursday they will seek immunity for one-time top HUD housing official in exchange for testimony about agency grants and contracts under former HUD Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr.

Sources said the investigators are seeking testimony that Pierce made politically tainted contract awards while secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development during the Reagan administration.

The former official, Dubois Gilliam, is serving a federal prison sentence for a conviction in a HUD-related case.

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcommittee that has been investigating HUD for nearly a year, said at a news conference Gilliam "was a key player" in awarding HUD grants under several programs, including the secretary's housing official in exchange for testimony about agency grants and contracts under former HUD Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr.

Quayle goes to Chile for inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle heads to South America today to help usher in new presidents in Chile and Brazil and press President Bush's efforts to win Latin acceptance for the U.S.-instilled government of Panama.

Quayle will help welcome Brazil's new government and Chile's restoration of democracy, even as both those countries snub the Panamanian president elevated by the U.S. invasion that ousted dictator Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Panama was the only country in the hemisphere not invited to send representatives to Sunday's inauguration of Chile's new president, Patricio Aylwin.

Fire kills 11, arson suspected

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Arson was the likely cause of a fire that swept through a downtown restaurant and killed 11 people, including four Americans, police said Thursday.

At least three of the dead were connected with U.S. forces stationed in West Germany, said U.S. Army spokesman Brig. Gen. Schmitz. She declined to release their identities until relatives could be told.

Police first suspected that a gas leak in the kitchen may have caused the Wednesday night fire that gutted Koryo, a Chinese-Korean restaurant near Frankfurt's cathedral and the Zeil shopping district.

Evidence now points more to arson, said police spokesman Manfred Fuellhardt after investigators searched the gutted restaurant.

He said the fire broke out in a storage room under the wooden stairs leading to the restaurant on the second floor of the five-story building.

Smoke quickly filled the restaurant and some guests were injured when they jumped from windows to escape the flames, Fuellhardt said. He said the fire exit apparently was blocked.

Fuellhardt said the victims suffocated.

Afghan leader says mutinous men purged

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Najib of Afghanistan said Thursday that the military has been purged of mutinous soldiers, but the renegade general who led a bloody coup is still at large from hiding, he would keep fighting.

Radio Kabul put the death toll at 56 and said 200 people were injured in fighting since Tuesday's air raid over Kabul. Some travelers who witnessed the attacks said civilian casualties appeared low considering the ferocity of the battles.

The most bustling markets of the capital opened again Thursday, and the war-weary city was reported calm. Questions surfaced about the strength and loyalty of the Afghan air force, the key factor in Najib's survival since the Soviet Union pulled its troops out of Afghanistan last year.

Shah Nawaz Tanai, who as defense minister launched the coup, said in a taped message to his supporters Thursday: "We have risen and our struggle will continue."

Tanai defected Wednesday to the Moslem guerrillas battling Najib's government, but guerrilla leaders made clear Thursday they have no desire to join forces with the hard-line Marxist.

Thousands demonstrate in Haiti, 1 dies

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators streamed into the capital Thursday and set up flaming tire barricades to protest the army's killing of a schoolgirl.

One man was killed when soldiers fired in the air.

About 3,000 people, shouting "Liberty!" and slogans against Haiti's leader, Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, converged downtown near the National Palace after attending a memorial service on the outskirts of the city for a schoolgirl killed by the army Monday.

Avril, who came to power in September 1988 in a coup led by lower-ranking soldiers, has been under increasing pressure from opposition groups to resign.

Businesses closed and people poured into the streets pouring pots and pans, garbage cans and metal pipes after students called a day of mourning for 11-year-old Roseline Xaval.

Mongolian hunger strike continues

BEIJING (AP) — Mongolia's prime minister on Thursday held inconclusive talks on live television with opposition leaders and hunger strikers demanding a multiparty system, foreign sources in Ulan Bator said.

Prime Minister Dumaagiin Sodnom met from five unofficial political groups, including several hunger strikers, but the televised debate broke off after 90 minutes, a source said.

What's what

Credit lunch
Some school cafeterias now issue credit cards to students, and bill parents. The cards are scanned. That moves lines faster. And proves lunch money pays for lunches.

PARALLEL PARKING
Ain't old laws still remain on the books of many states that make it technically illegal to get out on the driver's side of the car when it's parallel parked to the curb. Consider that one in your low-slung bucket-seater.

MOSQUITOES
It's the "Biny Woods of East Texas that two mosquitoes killed a cow. Ate her on the spot. Used to be they'd drug her down to the creek to finish her off. Not anymore. Too dangerous. What with those big mosquitoes down there.

Q. What's the thesaurus?

Do you think Lionel still makes electronic trains? No, sir, it makes electronic components and runs toy stores.

No, sir, what I send you was can't fold six-page piece of paper in that more than seven times.

When a grazing cow chomps down on a tuft of grass, she thrusts her head away from herself to cut it free. But a grazing horse to slice loose a mouthful jerks his head toward himself.

You know the great debate about when life begins—at birth or at conception? Where local law rules "at conception," some citizens now claim-in courts to be nine months older than their birth certificates attest. They seek to change how legal with compulsory school attendance, age of consent, drinking privilege, credit worthiness, marriage restrictions, that time culled majority, and who knows what all?

Twin Falls teenager charged in burglaries

TWIN FALLS - A 17-year-old Twin Falls youth was charged this week in connection with a string of car burglaries in the city. Twin Falls police Lt. Jim Kistler said.

An investigation is continuing and not all charges have been filed, Kistler said. Since the first of the year, 45 to 50 cars have been burglarized, mostly on the north side of the city and in parking lots at the Magic Valley Mall, Blue Lakes Mall and Twin Falls High School.

Radar detectors and stereo equipment were often stolen, but personal items such as clothes and school supplies were also taken.

In many cases, vehicles were left unlocked and unattended for only a few minutes, but some cars were broken into,

Twilegar kicks off campaign

TWIN FALLS - Democratic candidate Ron Twilegar of Boise fired a shot at the U.S. Air Force's plan to expand the Saylor Creek Bombing Range as he jumped into the U.S. Senate race Tuesday.

He also broadsided retiring Sen. Jim McClure's compromise-wilderness bill, with Gov. Cecil Andrus, but said he would support the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The Boise businessman and former legislator kicked off his campaign to fill McClure's seat Tuesday morning in Rexburg. The 45-town tour will end Sunday in Boise.

At the Twin Falls County Courthouse in the afternoon, Twilegar spoke to a small group of well-wishers and news reporters.

In an interview after his speech, he said he does not support the Air Force's current expansion plans at Saylor Creek.

"Unless there are changes, I'm going to oppose the president," he said.

He did not specify what changes he would like to see, however.

Earlier in Idaho Falls, Twilegar, 46, said he disagrees with retiring compromise wilderness bill with Gov. Cecil Andrus. He said it is laden with too much political and special-interest baggage.

"We should recognize the McClure-Andrus wilderness bill is dead," he said. The Republican senator and Democratic governor hammered out the compromise "but backed away in disagreement over whether primitive roads should preclude designating some areas as wilderness."

Although Twilegar said he would support the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, he said "but there are things we could do better and clearer."

The three priority issues for Idaho are education, protecting the environment and maintaining the quality of life in the state, he said.

In 1924, Twilegar was the first Democrat to be elected from Ada County to the Idaho House in 36 years. In 1976, he was the first Democrat from the county to join the Senate since 1940.

He has a law degree and is the president of Capital Industries, a private venture capital company. Twilegar will be opposing Idaho Falls consultant David Steed in the Democratic primary May 22.

In the Republican corner will be Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, who has stepped out from his 1st Congressional District seat, and Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones for the Republican Senate nomination.

financed federally insured loans to buy Las Vegas condominiums. Similar motions have been filed by other defendants in the case.

The federal government filed the lawsuit in Las Vegas in May 1989 alleging 48 people from Twin Falls, Denver, Las Vegas and Boise participated in a "scheme and artifice to defraud."

The lawsuit, which alleges defendants violated the federal False Claims Act, seeks to recoup the government's losses from 24 defaulted loans. The local defendants include Twin Falls Councilman Doug Vollmer and several prominent businessmen, accountants, attorneys and an engineer.

In 1983, developer Richard Alely bought 24 four-plexes for $110,000 each and sold them to the investors at an average price of $140,000 each, the government suit alleges. Alely then exercised a 30-day option to buy the four-plexes back, giving each investor approximately $8,000 in profit, the suit alleges.

The lawsuit alleges investors made down payments of between $1,500 to $1,600, not the HUD-requiring $6,000 to $9,000. White, denying the allegations, "Hepworth's motion to dismiss says that even if the allegations did have merit, the alleged actions would not violate the False Claims Act.

In order for the act to apply, the government would have had to give the defendants money or land, the motion to dismiss says. The loans were federally insured, but the government did not give the investors money to buy the condominiums, the motion to dismiss says.

A case cited in the motion says, "The Supreme Court of the United States has made it clear that the 'False Claims Act' was not designed to reach every kind of

Jackpot woman hospitalized while husband is arrested

JACKPOT - A Jackpot woman was transported to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Wednesday night after she was beaten in Nevada.

Gerald L. Rogers, 37, Middlestack Apartments, Jackpot, was arrested at Cactus Pete's on charges of spousal battery, disturbing the peace, battery against a police officer and resisting arrest. Elko County Sheriff's Sgt. Jim Black said. Rogers' bail was set at $5,000, Black said.

The woman was tied in her apartment with a Nintendo electrical cord and beaten, Black said. Her live-in spouse then drove her to Cactus Pete's, where security guards and sheriff's deputies restrained and arrested him, Black said.

The woman was released from the hospital Wednesday night, Black said.

Incarcerated man is likely to miss Jerome court date

JEROME - A Boise man cited with theft by false promise, a misdemeanor, will likely miss his magistrate court appearance today because he's in the Nevada state prison in Carson City.

Larry B. Cassel, 44, was arrested last month in Burley on a charge of driving under the influence. The next day, Jerome County sheriff's Deputy Randy Givens cited him for selling a Jerome resident an advertisement in a nonexistent magazine.

The Jerome resident paid $145 to advertise in "Child Watch," a new community weekly magazine.

Cassel was taken to Nevada a few days after his arrest. Givens said where he was wanted for violating parole.

When someone misses a court appearance, a judge can issue a bench warrant allowing Idaho law enforcement officials to arrest that person within state boundaries. But a bench warrant might not be appropriate if Cassel can't make the appearance because he's incarcerated elsewhere, Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan said.

Horgan said he does not usually extradite offenders for misdemeanor charges.

Condition of accident victim good after Tuesday collision

RUPERT - A Rupert man injured in a car accident Tuesday night was in good condition at Minidoka Memorial Hospital on Thursday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Harold H. Heins, 72, was taken to the hospital after his car collided with a pickup at 300 North and 200 West. A stop sign at that intersection had been knocked down, and the driver of the pickup, Juan Vega Ruiz, 24, Hazelton, and Heins' wife, Roberta, 62, were both killed.

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said an investigation into the accident is continuing.

BLM wants public comment on giving up parcels of land

BURLEY - The Bureau of Land Management is seeking public comment on a proposal to trade or sell small parcels of public land.

The areas to be traded or sold are generally small, inaccessible areas with little public value. The first priority for these parcels would be trade for private lands adjacent to larger parcels of public land.

Public meetings are scheduled at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the BLM office 200 S. Oakley Highway, Burley; at 1 p.m. March 16 at the former Eastern Idaho Production Credit Association Building, 246 Third Ave. E., Twin Falls; and at 1 p.m. March 23 at the Midland BLM Resource Area Office, 138 S. Main St., Malad.

Conference looks at ways to improve women's economic status, success

But women are forming new business at three times the rate men are, Weiss said. And they usually borrow less than men. $15,000 - lower than what men usually borrow. Even that causes problems. "Banks usually don't lend less than $50,000," Weiss said.

TWIN FALLS - If the United States wants effective economic growth, it should start with women.

Because if a woman gets extra money, she spends it on clothes for her children or better housing, said Chris Weiss of Women's World Banking, an international organization assisting women entrepreneurs.

But men spend it on motorcycles and entertainment, she said.

"That's been documented over and over and over," Weiss said. "To get the biggest bang for a buck, start with women."

Weiss spoke at the first day of a local conference on women and economic development. Conference organizers hope to define problems facing women in the Idaho economy and develop plans to overcome those problems.

More than 50 women and a few men attended the conference, coordinated by the College of Southern Idaho Center for States have jobs that pay below poverty wage levels, compared to 27 percent of the nation's male workers. Two of every three minimum-wage earners are female. And full-time, year-round women workers earn 65 cents for each dollar earned by men. They need higher incomes, enough to support a family. They need opportunities to move into male-dominated careers. They need credit. And they need public policy "that operates as if women mattered," Weiss said.

cause the seven construction bids were so high. Library Director Arlan Call said. Commercial bid was $316,000 above preselection estimates.

The next lowest bidder, Ormond Builders of Idaho Falls, had a $2.16 million bid Wednesday, which was $91,000 higher than Commercial's bid.

Twin Falls Library Board Chairman Lew Smith said the board will await a recommendation from the project's architect before deciding whether to accept Commercial's withdrawal.

He said Commercial may not be legally allowed to withdraw his bid and could forfeit its $100,000 bond. Idaho bidding laws, on the other hand, may allow the company to withdraw. He said that is an addition error made on the bid.

"At the very least we will ask him to demonstrate whether there indeed was a tabulation error," City Manager Tom Courtney said.

Perkins said subcontractor bids on the project came in on the last day, and his company made an error in adding them up. He said the bid is 20 pages long with 50 items on each page.

"The city could hold Commercial to its bid if it was not the result of an addition mistake, forcing the company to build the structure or forfeit the bond, Smith said.

"At this point we don't know which way we'll go," he said.

Wiser enters race for office of clerk

EDEN - Lynn Wiser, 42, is running for the Jerome County clerk's seat in the May election.

Wiser, the manager of Transmision City in Twin Falls, said he'd like to see more efficiency in the clerk's office and feels his business experience would help him in the job.

Current Clerk Cheryl Watts has said she intends to seek another term.

Wiser has a bachelor of arts degree in business and administration from Utah State University. He grew up on a dairy farm in the Magic Valley and said he still has strong ties to the dairy industry and other local businesses.

He also has 10 years experience with the Agri-Line Irrigation, Twin Falls, designing irrigation systems. His experience in sales and accounting will assist him in the county clerk job.

Wiser said his business experience will enable him to help align county business with the needs of the people of the area.

Hollis Neal, Wiser's campaign manager, said Wiser will improve cooperation between county offices, particularly between the sheriff and clerk offices.

Library work: Low bidder reconsiders

If bid withdrawal stands, some features of library expansion may be eliminated

By KIRK MITCHELL

TWIN FALLS - The city may have to eliminate more features of its library expansion plans after the low bidder on the construction project asked to withdraw his bid.

John Perkins, partner-owner of Commercial General Construction Co. of Idaho Falls, wrote a letter to the city Wednesday afternoon asking to withdraw his $2,072,850 bid, which was $148,185 lower than intended.

"We made an error in our final bid tabulations," Perkins said.

The City Council canceled a special meeting Wednesday in which it was planning to accept a low construction bid.

Idaho Legislature 1990

HOISE - Although they frowned when they spent money on other state-supported programs, legislative budget writers smiled on the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind Thursday.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted 21-1 to allow more than $4.5 million in state funds for the school's programs. They even kicked in $106,800 to fund a new all-weather track.

"We're very, very happy with the appropriation," said James Rainier, superintendent for the Gooding school.

"We have to recruit throughout the United States for teachers so we have to be competitive," the superintendent said.

Thursday's budget allocation also included $45,000 for special classroom amplification equipment, $28,300 to expand a dormitory and $19,200 to establish a summer program for the 125-student school.

Rainier said summer study probably wouldn't start until 1991.

The JFAC budget recommendation must still meet the approval of the full House and Senate.

Blaze at dairy plant forces evacuation of workers, residents

AMALIGA, Utah (AP) — About 80 workers and some nearby residents were evacuated Thursday afternoon as a fire broke out in the Cache Valley Dairy plant in this small northern Utah city, officials said.

The neighbors were told to leave the area amid fears that a cloud of ammonia gas, a flammable, white and a severe irritant, would waft over their homes, the spokesman said.

The fire apparently began during a change of shift at the plant, which employs about 250 people. Dark smoke was visible as far as Logan, about 12 miles to the southwest.

Food sales tax credit passes Senate; Boyd still unimpressed

BOISE (AP) — A legally questionable multimillion-dollar tax break cleared the Idaho Senate Thursday, keeping alive the last piece of tax committee Chairman Rachel Gilbert's campaign to return at least some of the state's record cash surplus to taxpayers.

"The people need it," the Boise Republican told her colleagues. "But within moments of the surprisingly lopsided 28-11 vote sending the $24.7 million election-year tax break to the House, GOP House Speaker Tom Boyd of Genesee indicated chances for the bill's ultimate passage were all but nonexistent.

"Almost anything can be done with that legislation when it gets here other than passing it," Boyd said.

Sales tax credit roll call

BOISE (AP) — Here is the 28-11 roll call vote by which the Senate on Thursday approved a $24.7 million increase in the income tax credit for sales tax paid on food.

Republicans for (16) — Anderson, Carlson, Crapo, Hanson, Gilbert, D. Hansen, J. Hansen, Hyde, Madsen, Parry, Ricks, Rydalen, Sawyer, Staker, T. Thorne and Vance.
Democrats for (12) — Beilschpacher, Bilyeur, Blackburn, Calabretta, Christiansen, Davis, Donessley, Lacy, Marley, Peavey, Reed and Wetherell.

Republicans against (5) — Beck, Darrington, Noh, Tomlinaga and Twigg.

bid for governor this year. It was the most costly of any tax legislation introduced in the 1990 session, but tax relief targeted at the sales tax payments on food was also the only kind of break receiving any support during extended hearings on the issue several weeks ago.

Since the current credit was set at $15 in 1973, Mrs. Gilbert said inflation and an increase in the sales tax from three to five cents on the dollar has so eroded the benefit that to compensate the credit should actually be raised to $65 a person instead of $45.

Over the last two days, the Senate has killed Mrs. Gilbert's other tax cuts — an $11.1 million income tax break that would have gone almost exclusively to people with incomes over $30,000 and a $2.6 million reduction benefiting corporations.

In the House, the tax-writing committee has consistently killed proposals similar to the Gilbert food tax credit, although less costly, on grounds that the revenue they would siphon from the treasury would throw the evolving 1991 state budget even further into the red.

That position seemed to be supported by a Boise State University statewide public opinion poll conducted last fall. It showed 72 percent of the people wanted the surplus spent on the state's existing needs, not tax relief.

The Senate's Democratic minority, backing their Gov. Cecil Andrus' spending blueprint that contemplates no revenue loss, stood firmly against the first two tax breaks and got just enough help from Republicans to defeat them.

But that solidarity fell apart on the food tax credit despite the fact that senators from both political parties also supported the kind of spending proposals that make any major tax cut totally unacceptable. A number of the bill's supporters have even called for more spending than budget writers have already endorsed.

"A politically easy vote is not necessary — a fiscally sound vote," said Democrat Karl Brooks, one of the handful of senators to oppose what has been labeled "political grandstanding on a bill that has little chance of ever becoming law."

All the Gilbert tax-cut measures have been under the cloud of an attorney general's opinion that they are unconstitutional since all revenue measures must be initiated by the Legislature. But Boyd disagreed.

"The good and wonderful Senate did this in an atmosphere where the attorney general says they're in over their heads," Boyd said, "and I think they are."

The bill would triple the current $15-a-person credit allowed on state income taxes to compensate for sales tax paid on food.

"We will either give tax relief this year when we have a $126 million surplus or we won't," said Mrs. Gilbert, who continues to consider a

Legislators lose grip; budget deficit looms

BOISE (AP) — The red-ink gap between projected revenue and the Legislature's evolving 1991 spending blueprint widened Thursday as budget committee leaders lost the reins.

"At one time, I thought there were 24 people on this committee who were dedicated to balancing the budget," House Appropriations Chairman Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, said. "At this point, I'm beginning to think that number has dwindled to four or five."

In a series of votes on vocational education and agricultural research, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee ran the anticipated deficit in the budget for the year that begins July 1 to some $2.3 million, and bills awaiting action in the House could easily increase it another $4 million or more.

"I've tried to hold these budgets within reason, and every time we lose one it's to some special interest," Appropriations Vice Chairman Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, said in frustration.

In the Senate, meanwhile, the $42 million diversion from the record state surplus to public works projects easily won final legislative approval and was sent to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, who had originally recommended it.

"The money will provide a significant increase in the cash the state spends to maintain its currently building inventory valued at over $1 billion, but the bulk of it would be used for new construction projects."

Although Andrus outlined his own priority list of projects, spreading some $140 million in work into every area of the state over four years, lawmakers were ready to tinker with that plan in an attempt to beef up the allocations for their regions or special interests. Budget writers expect to make their final recommendation next week.

The Senate action preserved the general integrity of the proposal to launch one of the biggest state construction programs ever, but another key piece of the Andrus spending plan — adding $38 million to the budget reserve account that serves a cushion against any future economic declines — is still in jeopardy.

"With just a handful of relatively minor programs left in finance, the legislative budget will need to siphon some money from that reserve deposit to get back in the black, and several groups of lawmakers have picked up support to expand the raid on the reserve to finance programs the budget committee rejected or ignored."

"The committee's action on Thursday dramatically increased the governor's recommendation for vocational-technical spending in the post-secondary education program, nearly doubling the Andrus proposal for high-priority activities to $475,000 and boosting program improvement support 50 percent to over $162,000.

In agricultural research, the committee added more than $700,000 to the governor's proposal. It included money for aquaculture and, crop development research and an air quality study in the grass-seed growing areas of the Magic Valley and the Panhandle while almost tripling the amount the administration recommended for toxicology research in the food safety area.

Repeated attempts were made to pare down the proposals, but in each case they were rejected.

"We're trying to balance this budget our $100,000 items when it's too late," Rep. Ralph Steolo, R-Idaho Falls, said. "We've gone past the budget balancing time."

House OKs vote on F&G compensation

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House has agreed to let voters decide whether the state Department of Fish and Game should compensate counties for taxes they otherwise would receive on property owned by the agency.

The proposed constitutional amendment was approved 69-11 Thursday and forwarded to the Senate, despite arguments it would set a "dangerous precedent" and that costs would be passed on to sportsmen.

A two-thirds majority was required for passage.

The proposed amendment would require Fish and Game to pay counties a fee 1/100 of taxes corresponding to the value of any property the department owns.

Currently all state land is exempt from local taxation. But the federal Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service make payments to counties similar to those proposed for Fish and Game.

The resolution's sponsor, Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Butley, said the state would be determined based on the unimproved value of whatever type of property was involved. Improvements such as buildings, fish hatcheries or other facilities would not be included in calculating the fee, he said.

Some lawmakers questioned whether Fish and Game might have to increase hunting and fishing license and tag prices to finance the payments. But Newcomb said the department should be able to afford the fees within its existing budget.

"Where did they get the money to buy the land in the first place?" he asked. "I suggest they go to the same place to pay the fees."

But others said the change amounted to a "pick on Fish and Game bill," and might open the door to forcing other state agencies to pay fees in lieu of property taxes on land they control.

"Somewhere along the line," Rep. Pete Blake, D-Pocatello, told his colleagues, "it's going to come back to haunt you and your constituents."

Garn indicates battlefield plan for Utah dead

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Sen. Jake Garn announced Thursday that the Air Force officials have told him that plans to build a $2.3 billion electronic battlefield in Utah are dead.

"The battlefield has been cancelled," Laurie Snow-Turner, Garn's press secretary, quoted the senator as saying. Garn himself was not immediately available for comment.

She said Garn met Thursday afternoon with Air Force Lt. Col. Neal Branford and an unidentified Air Force fiscal analyst. Garn had sought the meeting to get to the bottom of rumors that the future of the battlefield proposed for Utah's western desert was in jeopardy.

What he learned was that planners will recommend to the secretary of the Air Force that military budget constraints have made funding for the Electronic Combat Test Capability impossible.

"There is no further consideration to bring it to Utah," Snow-Turner said.

The senator confirmed, however, that operational electronic warfare simulation ranges in other states, most likely Nevada and California, will be upgraded.

Rumors in military and civilian circles pointed to augmenting already existing electronic battle capability projects at Fallon Naval Station in central Nevada and at the China Lake Naval Weapons Station in California's Mojave Desert.

The announcement, made by Garn from his Washington office, apparently without the blessings of the Air Force.

Just hours earlier, a federal judge in Utah was told by attorneys for a military watchdog group that the Air Force has abused Freedom of Information Act exemptions by keeping battlefield siting proposals secret.

Meantime, Garn said that the apparent cancellation of the battlefield means the Air Force will not release its draft Environmental Impact Statement.

Senate approves splitting duties of education board

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Senate has launched a last-minute effort in its continuing campaign to create two state boards to separately oversee the public and higher education systems.

The proposed constitutional amendment cleared the Senate Thursday on a 29-13 vote, one more than the two-thirds margin needed.

The measure would limit the authority of the current Board of Education to the public school system and then create a new state trying to keep up" to catch up. It was the second time the Senate has endorsed the dual-board concept since it was recommended as part of a major study of Idaho's education system in 1983 sponsored by the Idaho Association of Commuter and Industry.

Idaho Legislature 1990

In 1987, the proposal won overwhelming approval in the Senate, but it fell two votes short of passage in the House.

Supporters have argued that the current board spends the bulk of its time on higher education matters, becoming little more than a rubber stamp for public-school issues despite the mounting concern over issues like classroom size, drop-out rates and district consolidation.

Proponents maintain those issues need intense review beyond that given by state schools.

Superintendent Jerry Evans, even though he is an elected state official, but the board just does not have the time.

But critics contended state policy benefits from a single board with one general overview of the entire educational system. A second board, they said, would simply create more government bureaucracy.

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory is helping the Air Force find safer chemicals to clean, strip and degrease its fighters and bombers, researchers say.

Two research projects are under way at EG&G-Idaho, the INEL's largest contractor. In one, scientists are looking for alternative ways to degrease and remove wax from aircraft parts. Another is a search for less hazardous solutions to strip paint from planes before inspection and repair.

The Air Force has the largest fleet of aircraft in the nation, larger than any commercial airline, EG&G scientist Penny Wikoff said.

House OKs open records amendments

BOISE (AP) — A House committee has adopted eight amendments for inclusion in legislation defining what government records will be open to the public and where access will be restricted.

The State Affairs Committee also decided Thursday to incorporate the amendments in a new bill. That will allow the measure to avoid the general amending process on the House floor, where changes might be made that could cost it support.

A subcommittee including lawmakers who served on an interim legislative panel that developed the original legislation last year will review the revisions before they go to the full House, said State Affairs Chairman Pam Bengson, R-Boise.

The voluntary bill includes enough detail for virtually anyone to find fault, so its prospects of being approved by both chambers of the Legislature were uncertain. But supporters remained confident the measure represents the answer to years of unsuccessful efforts to update Idaho's open-records laws.

The measure lays out a framework of requirements for access to state and local government records. It also includes a number of permanent exemptions from disclosure rules and dozens more that would end in three years if the bill becomes law.

That provision is aimed at forcing government officials to justify the need for their exemptions by July 1, 1993.

Exemptions added, expanded or clarified through amendments approved Thursday involved personnel records; investigative records; the state Department of Corrections Youth Rehabilitation Act files; county security concerns; the Public Employee Retirement System; the state Tax Commission and information on a mission participating in environmental or public health studies.

Soviet, Nevada nuclear critics join in message

BOCADELLO (AP) — Residing downwind from nuclear test sites in the Soviet Union and Nevada has bridged cultural differences for two groups to the activity.

Kairat Umarov lives in the Soviet Central Republic of Kazakhstan. Pauline Esteves, a Western Shoshone tribal elder, hails from the Nevada Test Site region.

Umarov and Ms. Esteves were in Bocadello this week on a speaking tour through the West, co-sponsored by the Nevada Desert Experience and Bay Area Peace-Test, critics of testing at the Nevada site. They were brought to Idaho by the anti-nuclear Snake River Alliance and other groups.

"Our goal is to stop nuclear weapons testing at the Nevada Test Site and globally because we cannot have peace if this keeps on going," Ms. Esteves said, noting that the stockpile of nuclear waste continues growing.

From 1949 to 1963, the Soviets conducted atmospheric nuclear testing at Kazakhstan. They then moved that testing underground.

Since the Nevada Test Site was closed in 1992, more than 500 nuclear explosions have occurred there, creating huge craters in Nevada's barren desert.

Umarov said there is a high incidence of cancers, leukemia and congenital defects in his Soviet region.

"Our people were exposed during the '40s and '50s. The third generation is suffering from the same effects as Hiroshima," he said Wednesday.

A member of the Western Shoshone National Council, Ms. Esteves said the wildlife and vegetation on which her tribe depends also are suffering from the effects of radioactive gases which escaped from the ground following underground test.

Browning becomes 1st Canadian to defend title

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Kurt Browning became the first Canadian ever to defend a title in the World Figure Skating Championships Thursday night. The 23-year-old Browning didn't even need the quad, a four-rotation jump that only he has completed in competition, to move past Viktor Peferlov of the Soviet Union.

Eagles blow away Eastern Utah in tourney

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

OREM, Utah — Tournament jitters and the onus of being No. 1 in the South posed no problem for the College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team Thursday afternoon as it waltzed past the College of Eastern Utah 95-68 in the tournament's opening round.

The Eagles had a false start, jumping out to an early 12-point lead only to see CEU cut back to within six points. But the Eagles then blazed into a 25-point halftime advantage and there was never any doubt about the outcome of the game.

The victory means CSI, ranked No. 2 in the nation among junior basketball teams, will take on No. 4 seed Dixie — one of the two teams to beat it this year — in the tournament semifinals at 6 p.m. today in Utah Valley Activity Center.

ing 17 points and leading 19-6, but it managed just eight points in the next seven minutes as CSI returned to a 27-21 advantage in the next three minutes. CSI blew the game wide open with a 14-point surge, freshman Carlos deSilva highlighting it with the last nine points of the half.

Dixon keeps the Tigers running on time

By STEVE CRUMP Times-News editor

POCATELLO — To Wood River High School boys' basketball coach Norm Cook's way of thinking, the difference between his ballclub, Buhl, and Jerome this season was obvious.

orable mention all-state football team selection by The Idaho Statesman and the Associated Press as a defensive end and has generated some interest from college football coaches, he's more interested in basketball.

"I don't know why," he said. "It's more exciting to be a basketball player, you've got to be thinking more. It takes more concentration."

Trinkle said CSI hurt itself after getting off to that early 12-point lead, but he denied that early substituting may have done it.

"I said it on the radio the other day — it's our sparkplug," said first-year Jerome coach Jim Stauffer, whose ball club lost 66-47 to top-ranked Bishop Kelly here Thursday night in the first round of the Idaho Class A-2 basketball tournament.

"After we lost Red (Bailey), I knew that was going to be part of my job," he said. "I had never played for Coach Stauffer before. He was the junior varsity coach under Allen, but Jim does pretty much the same things Ben Allen did, so the transition was pretty easy."

"Basically, if you take care of defense, the points will come," he said.

Trinkle said CSI hurt itself after getting off to that early 12-point lead, but he denied that early substituting may have done it.

"Dixon played with (Mike) Welch, he played with Batey, he knows how to win," said Cook. "It's so important for a young team to have somebody like that. He's brash, a little cocky — he's confident, that's his biggest strength."

"Tracy doesn't mind doing all the tough things you have to do," said Stauffer. "He isn't intimidated, and he's used to playing kids who are 6-4, 6-5."

"Tracy can do a lot of things," said Cook, who was the assistant coach on the Magic Valley Basketball Congress, International team on which Dixon played last summer. "He's a great rebounder who

Knights overpower Jerome in A-2 1st round

By RON GATES Times-News writer

POCATELLO — A late rally was too little, too late for Jerome Thursday as the ranked Tigers, too late, 1-ranked Bishop Kelly 66-47 in the first round of the Idaho Class A-2 boys' basketball tournament.

the third quarter — remained 19 down, at 52-33, with 6 minutes, 20 seconds left to play before Matt Williams ignited a short burst that eventually worked the deficit down to 13 points.

Although Bishop Kelly went cold except for a Greg Harter 3-point shot, the Knights' defense was restricted to the final minutes.

Weber State's Aaron Bell drives into Nevada-Reno's Gary Scott in 1st half action

ROISE — Jason Joe scored 26 points, including 10 straight free throws in the final 2:42, lifting Weber State to a 75-66 victory over Nevada-Reno in the first round of the Big Sky Conference tournament Thursday night.

Joe, who was 12-for-12 from the line, led a Weber State assault on the clarity stripe that included 24 of 27 in the second half. The Wildcats sank 32 of 42 free throws for the game.

The win was Weber State's fifth straight first-round victory, including three straight over UNR, and carried the Wildcats into a semifinal match-up against second-seeded Eastern Washington Friday night at 9 p.m. in the Boise State University Pavilion.

CSI women draw homestanding Ricks in opener

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

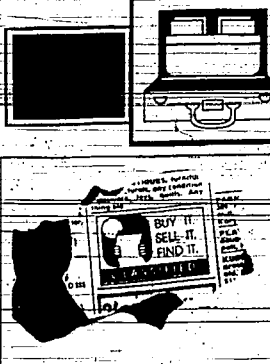

REXBURG — There is very little mystery to this year's Region 18 women's junior college basketball tournament this weekend at Ricks College.

The Eagles will have trouble. Four teams will participate in the event. Third-seeded CSI (21-5) will meet host and second-seeded Ricks (24-6) in the opener at 6 p.m. tonight in Hart Gymnasium.

At home, where CSI is allowed to use its trickery outside and hit the boards with a little authority inside, smashed all three with lopsided victories. The Ricks game, a 50-point affair, isn't countable since Ricks will never have a night that bad again.

children or individuals engaged in research and which, when taken as a whole, do not have serious literary, artistic, political or scientific merit.

Some writers felt they were staring down a potential pact with the devil, opening the gates to increased censorship and state control of the arts.

"It's ironic that we've spent all these years railing about restrictions on artists in Eastern Europe and just when they're gaining freedom we're beginning to feel restricted," Collins said.

The Cambridge-based poet also objected to "sandwiching" homophobic art between images of sadomasochism and sexually-exploited children. "Everyone I've talked with feels it's alarming," she said.

Other writers didn't take things quite so hard.

Writer Ursula Hegi of Spokane, Wash., said she signed without hesitation because "it was not in any conflict with what I'm doing."

Mark Richard, a New York novelist, said the devil may have been dangling the money before him, but that didn't much diminish his temptation.

"I would never let anything dictate my work. Ever. But for 20 grand, I'd sign even if I were a heroin addict," said Richard, who earned $7,000 last year. "Let them come after me for it."

The NEA's Falick said the endorsement has not so far developed a procedure for checking up on the thousands of photographers, dancers, urban designers, painters and other artists who each year receive federal funds.

Liam Reitor, who directs the Norfolk, Va.-based Associated Writing Programs, said enforcing the restrictions could prove an "administrative armpit nightmare."

But enforcing them through an artistic police state would be scarier, he said.

"That's why the writers' coalition, an umbrella for 50 member groups including PEN America, the Modern Language Association and the National Writers' Union, plans to monitor closely the NEA's next steps.

The (WTA) is supposed to be an arts advocate and at the same time must comply with this law," Reitor said. "The endorsement fits in difficult to defend itself so it falls to the field and to the artists themselves to protect First Amendment rights."

The McClures' home to hear Doug play.

"It was a great honor to have him in my home," said McClure. Rose gave him a lesson and later introduced him to the Meadowmount School of Music, a summer program near Lake Placid, N.Y., that is affiliated with the prestigious Juilliard School of Music.

When he's not on the tour with the Western Opera Theater, McClure works with the Franciscan Chamber Players. He founded the quartet in 1985, but it includes people he's played with since his days as a student at the New England Conservatory of Music during the early 1980s.

The ensemble is the quartet-in-residence at Summer Music Monday, a summer program in Central Calif., run by the Eastman School of Music. A few years ago, the quartet played for King Juan Carlos I of Spain at a formal dinner that Dianne Feinstein — then mayor of San Francisco — held in his honor.

In April, the quartet is scheduled to make a recording with renowned French jazz violinist Stefan Grappelli.

to make annual pilgrimages to the missions.

"Still, many Christian concepts sin and hell, for example — proved unalterably alien to native Americans. They also couldn't understand the personification of deities, nor Christianity's division between the natural and the supernatural.

In addition, Swagerty said DeSmet erred when he established a mission among the Blackfeet, mortal enemies of the Flathead, with whom he had worked first. The Flathead had thought the power conferred by the new religion would be theirs alone.

In addition to some of Point's artwork, "Sacred Encounters" will include a pair of globes — one of Earth, one of the heavens — made in Holland in 1674 and shipped from Belgium to DeSmet in 1834. They are the only pair of their kind in the Western Hemisphere, Swagerty said.

The multimedia display will also include Indian artifacts reflecting the Catholic influence and the merging of the cultures. From a native perspective, said Swagerty, the encounters represented "not so much conversion as a set of convergences."

"Sacred Encounters" is an official project of the Columbian-Quincentennial marking the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' coming to the New World in 1492.

'Glory' shows black regiment in Civil War

By MALCOLM L. JOHNSON
The Hartford Courant

"Glory," which passionately depicts the training and decimation of the first important black regiment in the Civil War, is only a partly ironic title.

In the end, after the men of the 54th Regiment of the Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry have charged into withering fire in a futile attack on an island fort near Charleston, S.C., there is a sense that they died heroes. Yet there is a deeper feeling of waste. Fort Wagner on South Carolina's Morris Island was never captured and although the gallantry of the 54th brought more black soldiers into the Union's fight, the victory of the North did not produce any kind of equality of the races.

The ending of "Glory" is all the more troubling because of the music by James Horner that accompanies the bloody, murderous charge. With its madly rhythmic surges and choral bursts, it sounds much like Orff's "Carmina Burana." Although there is certainly strong irony in such music — with its evocation of wandering students and defrocked priests, whose medieval rebellion against the church flourished and then died out — the allusion will be lost on most viewers. And taken on its sound alone, the jagged jubilation of music seems oddly inappropriate for the scenes of the disasters of war.

Although its ending is both disturbing and painful, "Glory" achieves considerable importance because it brings to light a little-known part of American history. Never before has a feature film celebrated a 19th-century African-American fighting force. Commercial films about significant moments in American history are rare enough. Features treating black Americans of the past are virtually nonexistent unless one goes back to the scurrilous "Mandingo" and "Drum."

The virtues of "Glory" go beyond mere ambition, however. Denzel Washington and Morgan Freeman bring depth and power as two of the black recruits, a man of war and a man of peace. Matthew Broderick fashions an impressive portrayal of the little colonel, the son of Boston Brahmin abolitionists, who leads the regiment. And there are finely drawn performances by Cary Elwes and Andre Braugher as two of the colonel's boyhood friends and comrades-in-arms, one a white officer, the other a black enlisted man. Jihmi Kennedy delivers an especially affecting characterization as a poor, illiterate Southern black raised up from slavery by his Army experience.

The direction by Edward Zwick, co-creator of "thirtysomething" and director of "About Last Night...," is capable and earnest, rather like that of a Merchant Ivory historical film such as "The Bostonians," and the screenplay by Kevin Jarre is well constructed and nicely balanced. Neither the mise en scene nor the dialogue achieves a thorough sense of America in the 19th century, but the use of the letters of Robert Gould Shaw, the young colonel of the 54th, imparts a period voice and viewpoint. It's a pity they are not used more frequently in the latter half of the film.

Broderick draws Shaw as a driven young liberal, baptized in fire at Antietam, who struggles to become a leader. It is a sensitive and moving performance.

Washington hard to recognize in film

By BOB THOMAS

The Associated Press

"LOS ANGELES — The fact that black soldiers fought in the American Civil War might come as a revelation to many who see "Glory," one of the film's stars, Denzel Washington, admits, that he was unaware.

"I knew absolutely nothing," said the actor, who portrays a bitter runaway slave. "I didn't even know that blacks fought in the Civil War. The American history classes that I took don't seem to dwell on that at all. It was inspiring for me; it gave me a lot of energy to continue research and get further and further into it."

"Although the character I play isn't based on a real person, I kind of put ideas together that I found from reading slave narratives and things like that."

"Glory" is partly based on two books about the 54th Massachusetts Colored Volunteer Infantry — "Lay This Laurel" and "One Gallant Rush" — as well as the letters of Robert Gould Shaw, the Boston Brahmin who commanded the all-black unit. The script by Kevin Jarre describes how Shaw had to fight his Army superiors in order to outfit his soldiers and win battle duty.

Matthew Broderick portrays Gould, and the soldiers include Washington, Morgan Freeman, Jihmi Kennedy and Andre Braugher. With shaved head and scarred face, Washington, the dedicated doctor of TV's "St. Elsewhere," the married Steven Berk of "Cry Freedom" and the earnest police chief of "Mighty Quinn," is scarcely recognizable.

One of the ironies of "Glory" comes at the climax, when the 54th is sent on the first wave against the impregnable Fort Wagner, which guarded Charleston harbor. It appears to be a suicide mission.

"These men were looking for an opportunity to prove themselves," said Washington. "The battle was no more dangerous than their day-today lives with the constant threat of slavery and slave masters with their mentality over their heads. They were looking for the opportunity to have a fair fight and to have a rifle as well, regardless of the odds."

U.S. company to build 2 theaters in Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not to be outdone by McDonald's, Time Warner Inc. announced plans to open American-style multiple-screen movie theaters next year in Moscow and Leningrad, where audiences will be allowed to eat popcorn in their seats for the first time.

The two ultramodern theaters are expected to open in late 1991 at a cost of $28 million, and will offer the Soviet Union's avid moviegoers a total of 19 new screens and 7,400 new seats to enjoy popular foreign and domestic films, U.S. and Soviet officials said.

The theaters will feature state-of-the-art projection and Dolby stereo sound systems, computerized ticket booths, concession stands in marble and neon lobbies, restaurants, souvenir shops and video game arcades — with parking lots out front.

American popcorn, a novelty to Soviet audiences, will be sold along with candy and soft drinks.

The project is a joint venture between Time Warner, a worldwide publishing and entertainment conglomerate whose Warner Bros. International Theaters Co. subsidiary will own 60 percent of the theaters, and the official Soviet film agency, Sovexportfilm, which will own 40 percent.

'Father Dowling' gets second chance after facing early cancellation on NBC

By WENDY WALLACE

One of the rules of series television is that, although death may be a relative term, cancellation is forever. Most canceled television series don't get the opportunity to be resurrected on another network. But "Father Dowling Mysteries" can now join such series as "My Three Sons," "Taxi," "It's a Living," "Diff'rent Strokes" and "Charles in Charge" in that that select group.

"Father Dowling" first aired in November 1987 as a two-hour NBC movie, "Fatal Confession: A Father Dowling Mystery." That movie was a series pilot for NBC. In "Father Dowling Mysteries," Tom Bosley plays a Chicago priest whose inquisitive nature draws him into investigations of crimes with his streetwise assistant, Sister Steve (Tracy Nelson). Mary Wickes and James Stephens co-star.

"Considering the fact that 'Fatal Confession: A Father Dowling Mystery' followed a Tom Brokaw interview with Gorbachev on NBC, we were extremely surprised with the response," says Bosley. "Apparently, there was enough stuff for NBC to give us the go-ahead to do six more shows. We weren't certain of what the future would hold for us."

After six airings, "Father Dowling" was dropped by NBC in 1988. While the cancellation came as a surprise (ratings were good to fair), the series was picked up by ABC early last year. And since its return last November, the ratings have been promising, despite strong competition from NBC's powerhouse Thursday-night lineup.

"There is a holding period once you finish, before the performer is released and has the freedom of choice to pursue another series," says Bosley, who starred from 1974-84 in "Happy Days," a huge hit for ABC. "We had heard some rumors in April (1989), after NBC had let the show go, that there was interest at ABC. I was shooting a 'Love Boat' movie in the Caribbean, and I got a call from (executive producer) Fred Silverman telling us that the show was going on the air. I was very interested and ready to do it. 'Father Dowling' was something Silverman, (producer) Dean Hargrove and I batted around for years.

"The relationships work," Bosley says of Nelson and his other co-stars. "We have a lot of fun together when we're not shooting, and we have a lot of fun together when we're working.

Tracy and I and the production office have had many letters from the clerics. We use the same church in Denver for each show, and the nuns and the priests that are there have been extremely helpful to us. They're pleased that we are playing nuns and priests as human people who make human mistakes. In the past, we've had a history of portraying church people on a very high pedestal, more or less, that becomes untouchable between an audience and that person. So from that point of view, we've been very encouraged by the letters that we've had."

ABC introduces 4 new series for spring

NEW YORK (AP)—ABC said Friday it is putting four new series on its spring schedule and taking two others off temporarily. Those two, "China Beach" and "Anything But Love," will go on a production hiatus.

Three of the new series, one-hour series, are set in the office of a big-city district attorney. It will debut in its regular Wednesday time period on March 28, displacing "China Beach."

"Twin Peaks," a dark humor series set in a small town in the Northwest, will begin in its regular Thursday time period on April 12, with "The Young Riders" shifted to make room for it.

"Riders" will move to Monday on April 16, joined then by the "Anything But Love."

Gibson faces challenge of tragic 'Hamlet'

Q: Yes or no: Is action-man Mel Gibson really going to do a movie of "Hamlet"? — F.L.

A: As we speak, Mel is in England preparing for the film which will start shooting the last week in April with Franco Zeffirelli directing. Gibson, who has quit drinking and calmed down a lot, obviously wants to show his stuff in something—more artistically challenging than "Lethal Weapon." Why else, when he's one of the hottest stars in Hollywood, would he devote almost a year to "Hamlet"?

missing Henry Fonda's closeups, a difficult feat for the already tense actress. However, Bette and Henry came through brilliantly, and so did little Jane in her unseen debut.

Q: Mikhail Baryshnikov's film career so far has been nothing like the success he achieved in ballet. Has he now quit trying to be a movie star? — E.D.

A: No, as a matter of fact he has another film coming up, co-starring with Gene Hackman in "Dinosaurs." Although 42-year-old Baryshnikov's dancing days are numbered, his opportunities are unlimited; as one of the most famous figures in the ballet world. A second career as a movie star would give him the kind of high profile fame he won as a dancer.

Q: Isn't it true that the late Yul Brynner was so cruel to his son that he turned the boy into an alcoholic at 22? — I.B.

A: Yul's boy, Rock, is now 42, has gone through three marriages and is contemplating a fourth, and was a self-confessed drunk at 22. The situation changed when he became terrified enough to say, "Yes" and quit the sauce. Yul wasn't to blame, says Rock. It was those roistering Irish bars he visited in Dublin in his youth. But still, in all, Rock says Brynner was never a model father.

Q: What's this about John Forsythe being seriously injured in an auto accident? Is his TV career over? — C.W.

A: Forsythe wasn't the injured party. His car was, and so was the other driver. Seems the ex-"Dynasty" star was tooting down a Hollywood thoroughfare when his auto was hit broadside by a driver who ran a red light. John was shaken, but the other driver was hospitalized. Forsythe didn't let the incident prevent his participation in the recent Bob Hope special. "When you've been an actor as long as I, you've got to be tough," said John.

Q: Can you tell us about that new book just out about "A Chorus Line" creator Michael Bennett that charges the director-choreographer was homosexual, miserable in his private life and treacherous in his personal relations with friends and foes alike? — R.L.

A: The book you refer to, "One Singular Sensation: The Michael Bennett Story," by Kevin Kelly, is not quite as sensational as you make it out to be. But the book takes a straight-on look at Bennett, who grew up as Michael DiFiglia in Buffalo, N.Y., and died of AIDS at 44 in 1987. Author Kelly, a theater critic, describes Bennett as manipulative, a control freak and a person who took credit for the accomplishments of others with unerring ease. Bennett had affairs with both men and women, and many of his lovers recount how he "used and discarded" them. A tough book about an unhappy man.

Q: Deborah Norville and Bryan Gumbel sure seem cozier on the "Today" show than Jane Pauley ever did with Bryan. Is there something going on there that we don't know about? — S.S.

A: All that's going on is that Norville knows Gumbel has the clout. She is known to be a lot shrewder than Jane, who never had time for office politics.

Q: It was amazing to find Frank Sinatra and his wife posing for that Revlon ad. How did they get talked into it? — H.J.

A: That coup was pulled off by Dennis Stein, a major consultant to the cosmetics company and a close friend of the Sinatras. Stein also is Elizabeth Taylor's sometime escort. If the rumors are true that the couple got $2 million for doing the ad, which only took a day, that might have been persuasion enough.

Q: Once again, newspaper accounts of rocker Billy Idol's exploits — this time in a motorcycle crash — make him sound pretty weird. Is he? — L.L.

A: Friends of the rock star are used to having blond Billy phone for a chat, then abruptly drop the receiver and forget to come back for a while. Adding to their frustration, Billy can be heard singing loudly in the background. All this keeps the line open, so the friend on the receiving end is stuck until Idol is ready to resume the conversation — when he gets around to it.

Q: Can you tell us something about actress Rachel Ward, who for our money is one of the last great glamorous actresses left in Hollywood? — J.M.

A: What you ask only demonstrates that appearances — especially those gleaned from the movies — can be very deceiving. Rachel grew up in patrician circumstances in England. But that was then. Today, Rachel prefers informality. She once showed up at a sequin-smothered Hollywood

Cote grows into daytime romance

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

Suzy Cote has been playing Samantha Marler in "Guiding Light" for a little over a year and she finally has a full-fledged romance going which pleases her very much.

"Romance is the keynote on soaps," says Suzy. "People just love it when a character is involved in a romance. People read novels like 'Jane Eyre' and 'Wuthering Heights' more for the romance than for their status as classics."

Suzy's Samantha is involved with Dylan (Morgan England) and although their road to love has been bumpy, it seems they are committed to each other. Samantha, whose age isn't stated but she must be somewhere around 18 or 19, recently approached her Uncle Ross (Jerry Ver Dorn) for permission to move in with Dylan. She certainly has come a long way since the days when she was wearing a braid and peering behind glasses. Some characters grow up quickly on soaps.

Suzy is very happy with her role and looks forward to sharing a bigger storyline now that she has a love interest. Suzy could be described as a nice girl and in soaps, sometimes that spells "back burner" plotting. However, Suzy disagrees somewhat. She says you have to work harder if your character is "nice" so that you don't make her gushy and sickly sweet. It's o.k. to be nice if you keep the character interesting, according to Suzy.

"I think the writers are handling the relationship between Dylan and me with an honest point of view," says Suzy. Samantha is someone who wants to learn and she is not rebellious by nature. She is open and that makes her vulnerable but she's not weak, either. There's more conflict in our storyline now, and I welcome it."

Suzy also noted that you never know when your character is making a connection with the audience. She recalls being approached by a young girl who suffered from asthma. The girl, having seen Samantha have an asthma attack on the show, admitted that it was the first time she saw anyone on TV with asthma. It made Suzy realize there's more to it than just learning your lines and giving the best performance you can.

Suzy Cote plays Samantha Marler in "Guiding Light"

CHANNEL CHATTER

Jay Hammer who plays Fletcher Reade in "Guiding Light," is taking a hiatus from the soap to conduct drama seminars at his alma mater, the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif. Hammer turned over his winnings from the game shows "Wheel of Fortune" and "25,000 Pyramid" to the university. The actor quipped, "teaching might be a good safety net when Fletcher's no longer running the newspaper."

John Viscardi has been playing the part of Father Tony on "One Life to Live" from time to time. The producers recently decided to make Father Tony a full-time character and signed the actor as a contract player. Before John became an actor, he placed as a Golden Gloves boxer.

premiere wearing jeans and cowboy boots. The home she shares in Australia with actor Aussie Bryan Brown and two young daughters is a modest, tin-roofed farmhouse. She likes to ice skate and even enjoys bowling. In top things off, Rachel's latest movie role hardly rates a glamorous tag. She plays a penniless alcoholic marooned in the California desert.

ONE AND ONLY: Question — Why is Mary Tyler Moore different than Elizabeth Taylor, Cher, Raquel Welch and Jane Fonda, to name a few?

Answer. — Moore told a fashion newspaper that "I want to be the only actress to go through life without having done an exercise video or a fragrance."

Q: Isn't it true that Mickey Rooney was bitter about his broken marriage to the late Ava Gardner, and was almost gloating at the news of her death? — M.B.

A. Rooney was terribly saddened by the news of Gardner's demise. She was, after all, his first wife. Mick privately confessed to me that some of his many subsequent marriages went nowhere near as smoothly as did his bumpy but occasionally blissful union with

Ava. After her death, Rooney dedicated his nightly appearances in a touring stage revival of "The Sunshine Boys" (with Donald O'Connor as his co-star) to Gardner's memory. She was married to Frank Sinatra longer than she was to either Rooney or her second husband, bandleader Artie Shaw. But Mick confesses he has wonderful memories of that brief experience.

Q: Isn't it true that Cher is secretly jealous of her daughter, who is much better looking and a better singer than she is? — H.G.

A. Chastity Bond is Cher's grown daughter by ex-husband Sonny Bond, now the mayor of Palm Springs, Calif. Chastity is hardly the flashy beauty her mom is. The young woman was spotted at a New York party, and the sight was not prepossessing. Chastity's hairstyle was long and stringy, and her outfit appeared to be designed by a Grateful Dead fan. Strictly tie-died, '60s and outmoded. Chastity is working, she says, on a "tootsy rock 'n' roll album." Mom certainly doesn't have to worry about professional competition from her daughter.

Q: Although he says otherwise, hasn't Sylvester Stallone played Rambo so many times that he's become just like the super-violent character? — T.D.

A: Don't ask Sly that. You might get a punch. Just kidding! Stallone has taken great pains to impress upon the public that he is not like the character he plays. "I'm not a right-wing, jingoistic human being," he told me recently. "Rambo is He's psychotic in many ways." Sly, on the other hand, sets himself as a child of the peace-protest-'60s. He considers himself a free spirit, a sensitive artist. Undeniably Stallone is very different in a conspicuous way. Sly is extremely rich, lives extremely well and collects fine art.

Q: Have Anthony Quinn's many health problems forced his retirement from the screen? — L.H.

A: It's true the 74-year-old veteran actor recently went through heart bypass surgery. The first words after the operation to his wife, Iolanda, and his three sons were, "I plan to continue to work for at least another 10 years." Actually, Tony has always been physically strong and didn't have a clue about his heart condition until he experienced chest pains late last year. But, happy to say, Quinn, although down at the moment, simply cannot be counted out.

Rooney's return from suspension boosts '60 Minutes' to 4th place

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sparked by the return of suspended commentator Andy Rooney, "60 Minutes" jumped to fourth place last week in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings, according to figures released Tuesday.

Helped by Walter Matthau's first appearance in a television movie and the Miss USA beauty pageant, CBS finished in second place for the week.

But it was the re-emergence of "60 Minutes" — beaten the week before by an hour's worth of "America's Funniest Home Videos" repeats — that was probably the best news for the struggling network.

Sunday's broadcast, in which Rooney distanced his abbreviated suspension and denied he was a bigot, had a 22 rating, easily beating ABC's competing "Life Goes On."

That series had an 8.9 rating, trailed by NBC's Disney movie hour, which averaged an 8.3 rating. Each ratings point represents 921,000 homes.

On Feb. 8, Rooney was suspended for three months without pay after a gay-oriented magazine quoted him as making a racial slur. He denied he said it. CBS News president David Burke lifted Rooney's suspension

News show debuts in nation's schools

NEW YORK (AP) — Channel One, a news show with advertisements aimed at teen-agers, made its national debut Monday in 400 schools amid an uproar over whether a daily dose of commercials corrupts the school day.

The show is the most ambitious and controversial project yet from Whittle Communications, a Knoxville, Tenn.-based company that creates innovative media used by advertisers to reach narrowly defined audiences.

Architects of the Channel One program say it should produce handsome educational dividends for students and educators, as well as potentially lucrative financial rewards for the company producing it.

But critics say the two minutes of commercials included in each 12-minute show represent an unwarranted intrusion on a captive audience required by law to be in school.

Children's advocate Peggy

Charren said the ad-supported service has been "insidiously designed to privatize education by buying a portion of the school day for corporate clients."

Officials in the states of New York and California have prohibited public schools in those states from carrying the program because of the commercials, and the state of North Carolina has asked a state court to enforce its board of education's ban on the program there.

Several national education groups are opposing Channel One, backing the use instead of a daily commercial-free news show for teens that Turner Broadcasting System Inc. began running last August on its Cable News Network.

But Christopher Whittle, chairman and founder of the company producing Channel One, said he has found overwhelming support among parents, teachers and students.

He said the commercials are an essential element of the Channel

One system because revenue from the $150,000 charge for each 30-second commercial pays for the $150 million in video equipment on loan to schools that show the program.

Whittle said his surveys show few if any students are getting a chance to watch the Turner ad-free news program in school because there are few TV sets available in most schools.

Ed Winter, the Whittle executive overseeing the project, said more than 2,700 schools in 34 states have signed three-year contracts to show the program every school day. The signup effort has been under way in earnest since last fall, and Winter said six of every 10 schools approached have agreed to sign.

Four hundred of those schools with 300,000 students have been equipped with the dozens of TV sets, the satellite dish and video recorders needed to record the show, which will be transmitted overnight by satellite.
