Idaho moves nearer challenging Roe vs. Wade

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE — Right-to-life forces claimed a victory Friday when the Idaho House of Representatives approved H625, a bill that outlaws more than 90 percent of the abortions performed in the state.
In the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's Webster decision, which suggested a state may exercise its interest in protecting the unborn, a flurry of anti-abortion proposals have been introduced before several state legislatures. But Idaho's House became the first legislative body in the nation to pass a bill intended to provoke a challenge to the court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling, which legalized abortion.

Idaho Legislature 1990

"Who shouldn't Idaho take the lead?" asked Rep. L. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, who helped sponsor the bill. "The legislation before you is the legislation the Supreme Court ultimately needs to take a look at."

Brown's comments led off a three-hour debate before an overflowing gallery filled with hushed spectators. Lawmakers depended upon the U.S. Constitution, law journals and their own scribbled notes during the debate. Their voices often betrayed emotion.
"This is without question the most delicate and the most difficult issue I have encountered in the years that I have served in this body," said Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, another of the bill's sponsors. "There are good and decent people on both sides of the issue."

cases except when a woman is raped or is a victim of incest when the pregnancy threatens her life, or when the fetus is severely deformed.
The bill also permits anyone to seek an injunction against any doctor or woman pondering an abortion and sets civil penalties for doctors who perform the procedure.

"What we have attempted to do is provide maximum protection for the unborn while still maintaining a reasonable level of being upheld in light of the various opinions of the justices in the Webster decision," Montgomery said.
Several of those who stood to debate the bill argued that H625 is blatantly unconstitutional and that Idaho has no business being the guinea pig for the Washington, D.C.-based Right to Life organization.
"We take an oath to uphold the law," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, who originally worked with the bill's sponsors.

$700,000 federal grant clears path for Victory Bridge

By KIRK MITCHELL Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The federal government's decision Friday to help build the Victory Bridge across Rock Creek Canyon could spark new growth in the city's industrial park, a city councilman says.
"I think that will really open up and activate that area," Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said.
Brian Whitlock, U.S. Sen. James McClure's aide, said Friday that the Commerce Department has decided to give the city a $700,000 Economic Development Grant.
"I'm excited about it," Kleinkopf said. "I think it will be great."
He said some companies with interest in building plants in the city's industrial park have been discouraged by new lead limits on the Singing Bridge, which crosses the canyon at South Street. South of the lead limits has most loaded tractor-trailer trucks from crossing into the southwest Twin Falls park.

"We will have a bona fide detour that's very little out of the way," City Engineer Gary Young said.
Truckers have been using Eastland Drive and Park Avenue as a detour. Victory Bridge could be completed by May 1991, Young said.
"It will reduce economic damages incurred every day by truckers," he said.
The new bridge also will result in renewed interest in the park, Kleinkopf said.
The federal grant was the last funding link in the city's $1.3-billion Victory Bridge that will connect Sixth Avenue West with Victory Avenue in the southwest part of town.
Besides the federal money, the city will receive $500,000 in Idaho Community Development Block Grant funds for the bridge. The city plans to add another $200,000 from Universal Frozen Foods' property

Pentagon tightens guard against drugs

Knight-Ridder-News Service

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon said Friday it would crank up its role in the Bush administration's war on drugs by ordering more planes, ships and radars to guard the nation's southern flank.
"It is more or less the same, but it is substantially more of the same," Stephen M. Duncan, the Pentagon's anti-drug chief, told reporters.
Duncan said the plan, developed by field commanders, would cost the military nearly double the $450 million Congress earmarked for anti-drug efforts in 1990. The services will have to "tear up out of their hides" the extra $427 million, he said. The military is seeking $1.2 billion for anti-drug efforts in 1991.

Duncan was unable to say how many drug arrests the military had helped make to date. "I don't even keep those kinds of numbers," he said.
But smugglers already have begun favoring land routes through Mexico instead of shipping through the eastern Caribbean because of the increased U.S. military presence on and over the water, he said.
By 1992, the Pentagon will finish building a string of 16 tethered blimps providing radar coverage from California to Puerto Rico, designed to detect low-flying aircraft that might be ferrying drugs into the United States.

Lying approved, North claims

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Forced to testify against his former White House boss, Friday, North reluctantly told a federal jury that he had lied to Congress many times — and that John M. Poindexter knew it, saying "well done" after one such congressional appearance.
But North insisted that neither Poindexter nor anyone else "ever told me to lie to Congress" about the Reagan administration's secret effort to furnish military and financial assistance to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels during a congressional ban on direct U.S. aid.
Prosecutor Dan Webb, methodically stalking the wary witness for nearly five hours, managed to elicit some damaging evidence against Poindexter, the retired admiral and former national security adviser, who is accused of directing a coverup of the Iran-Contra affair.
North, a retired Marine lieutenant colonel who was convicted last year of participating in the coverup, said he kept Poindexter fully informed of his efforts to furnish military equipment, training, strategic advice and money to the Contras from 1984 to 1986.
"You weren't trying to operate on your own, independent of your superiors, were you?" Webb asked.

"Never," North replied.
"And you always kept them advised?"
"Yes."
"Including Admiral Poindexter?"
"Yes."
A succession of North-Poindexter memos introduced into evidence helped the prosecution show that Poindexter knew the truth but prevented congressional committees from discovering it until the Iran-Contra scandal erupted in late 1986.
Other memos showed that Poindexter knew that his predecessor, Robert C. McFarlane, had falsely denied the existence of a Contra aid program in responding to inquiring congressional committees in September 1985.
Eight months later, North warned Poindexter that if the expanding program became known, it "could well be a political embarrassment for the president and you."
North explained Friday that it would have been embarrassing "because Mr. McFarlane had lied to them the year before."
Then in July 1986, Poindexter responded to another congressional inquiry by referring to McFarlane's earlier answers and expressing the hope that the Contra aid matter "can finally be put to rest."

That same month, North recalled, he told Poindexter of his fear that he might have to reveal "things I had been told never to reveal" in a forthcoming appearance before members of the House Intelligence Committee.
North recalled that his boss told him "you can handle it" or "you can take care of it" or words to that effect.
"I lied at the meeting," North said.
Later, Poindexter sent North a staff aide's notes showing that North had told the committee he knew nothing of Contra military operations and that the committee was satisfied.
Write Poindexter to North: "Well done."

But few of North's statements with his boss, came easily. Time after time, he was unwilling or unable to recall events — until Webb refreshed his memory with North's earlier testimony.

Atlantis carries skull aloft for radiation test

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A human skull was earned on the recent mission of the space shuttle Atlantis to help scientists determine how much radiation penetrates astronauts' heads when they are in space.
The skull, owner and gender undetermined, had been carried into orbit once previously and will also be placed aboard the shuttle.
Discovery when it is launched next month, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.
The "radiation test" is part of the "Aviation Week" program, which includes a long stay on the shuttle and Mars-destined, was mounted on the right wall of the shuttle middeck near the lower end of an astronaut sleeping bag.
For the experiment, the skull was sliced apart, filled with more than 100 instruments, reassembled and covered with a plastic material formulated to act like human skin.

Researchers needed an actual human skull to obtain the best data on how much space radiation penetrates the head, according to Aviation Week.
The magazine quoted a Johnson Space Center document as saying that "it is anticipated that a full torso will be flown in future shuttle missions" to determine how much of a radiation dose the body gets during space flight.
The tests are for use in planning extended space station missions and lengthy stays on the moon and Mars.
Aviation Week said the skull was provided by the Air Force and came from someone who had willed it to science. Researchers assumed it was from a woman because of its small size.

White House defends 'embarrassing' call

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush's phone conversation with an impostor claiming to be Iran's president was "a little embarrassing" but underscored his commitment to winning the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon, Bush's spokesman said Friday.
President press secretary Martin Fitzwater said Bush believed the impostor "principally from a hoax phone call," Fitzwater said. He said the administration does not know who initiated the hoax and could not rule out the possibility that it might have originated within a faction of the Iranian government.
Rafsanjani, meanwhile, ridiculed Bush in a phone call. White House officials declined to say details of the conversation. "Suffice it to say it was a hoax phone call," Fitzwater said.

He said the administration does not know who initiated the hoax and could not rule out the possibility that it might have originated within a faction of the Iranian government.
Rafsanjani, meanwhile, ridiculed Bush in a non broadcast call. "Can't be that such a global power, with all its intelligence capabilities, talks to a person it cannot identify?" he asked. "This is a strange occurrence."

The Iranian leader said the episode showed how important Iran was to the United States and added that it was "God's grace" that U.S. officials had not been able to make contact with him.
Fitzwater's statement said Rafsanjani's statement "reflects the difficulty of the situation: One day we hear moderate points of view, the next day we hear antagonistic ones."
"Our position remains steadfast: We want to do everything we can to get the hostages out. The president will talk to anyone, any time," Fitzwater added.

Haitian troops fire, wound 3

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Soldiers fired on student demonstrators Friday and wounded at least three, radio accounts and witnesses said.

At the same time, reports surfaced that negotiations had begun for Haiti's military ruler to resign.

The protest by about 250 students came on the fourth day of anti-government protests over the army's killing of an 11-year-old girl.

Political sources said opposition parties were negotiating with Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril and the army over his possible resignation as leader of this impoverished Caribbean nation, but there was no verification by the government.

"Finally, after four years of struggle, there is a real possibility to realize the demands of Feb. 7, 1986," the late dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier fled into exile after a popular uprising, said Jean-Claude Beaubou, a prominent political and human rights activist.

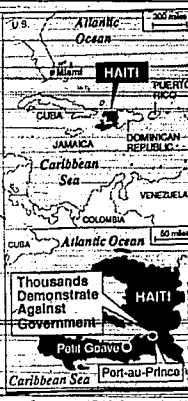

A U.S. Embassy diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity said the United States was not involved in the talks.

"We are keeping in touch with them but we are not very involved with negotiations. We are not putting together a deal. It is up to Haitians to decide if there's to be a change in government," the diplomat said.

A coalition of 11 opposition parties issued a statement Friday calling on Haitians to stage "an unlimited total paralysis of the country" if Avril does not quit by Monday.

They said they proposed that Supreme Court Vice President Gabriel Volcy act as provisional leader until elections are held. The parties have repeatedly said they want Avril replaced for now with a Supreme Court judge.

Avril, who came to power in a 1988 election, said he would be willing to step down if most Haitians wanted him to, although he predicted that would lead to revolution and chaos.

Tape trouble delays tax refunds — WASHINGTON (AP) — Processing of 171,000 federal tax refunds has been delayed a week because of a faulty computer tape, the Internal Revenue Service said Friday.

"That will mean about 31,000 people who filed electronic returns and 141,000 who used paper forms will have to wait a week for refunds," said IRS public affairs director Ellen Murphy. The returns were filed to the IRS service center in Ogden, Utah, from 25 states in the Midwest and Northeast.

"What this is going to mean is that these people who have filed electronically will still get a refund within the two- or three-week time frame promised, but it will be more toward the end," Ms. Murphy said. Filers of paper returns have been getting refunds in five to six weeks.

The IRS service center computers that process returns cannot communicate with those at the Martinsburg, W.Va., center where returns are certified. Tapes from the service centers must be flown to Washington National Airport and trucked from there to Martinsburg.

Alaskan volcano spouts ash plume — ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Redoubt Volcano erupted again Friday, shooting out a seventh-mile-high plume of ash that drifted away from the volcano.

There is a warning heading for the Anchorage area or the Kenai Peninsula, a populated area near the volcano, said Cynthia Gardner, a geologist at the Alaska Volcano Observatory.

Anti-AIDS drug due longer study — SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A group that won federal approval of tests for a potential AIDS drug made from a Chinese plant has received a $250,000 grant from a pharmaceutical giant, officials announced Friday.

The grant for further study of Compound Q came from Sandoz, U.S.A., a company based in Hanover, N.J., officials of Project Inform told a news conference.

But the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's decision to allow testing of a purified form of the drug was criticized by Dr. Donald Abrams, a member of the FDA's antiviral drug advisory committee.

Currently, with only half the balloons in place, there are gaps along the Gulf coast and in the Caribbean. Two other radar networks, one in the United States and one in Latin America, also will be used to thwart the traffickers.

Air Force radar planes — AWACS — also will help track down suspicious planes, and 50 interceptor planes stationed at 25 locations across the nation will be alerted to intercept and help the Customs Service or Coast Guard make the actual apprehension. "The department is not going to become a law enforcement agency," Duncan said.

The Navy's Atlantic Command will have four or five ships in the Caribbean every day "expressly" hunting for smugglers, according to an officer in the Pentagon's plan.

Aiding in the search will be eight kinds of aircraft — including E-2 radar planes and F-14 fighters — and six classes of warships, including aircraft carriers and destroyers.

The Pentagon said there would be a 219 percent increase in flight hours for the anti-drug mission and that Navy ships would spend 78 percent more time on anti-drug patrol than in 1989.

The plan includes no provision for basing a carrier off Colombia's coast, although strong opposition to such a plan by Colombian leaders after they learned the Pentagon was weighing such a move late last year. All planes and ships engaged in the surveillance will do so in international waters and airspace, Duncan said.

The plan also bars U.S. forces from shooting at suspected smugglers except in self-defense and includes no major increase in U.S. troops — assigned to Bolivia, Colombia and Peru to battle drug traffickers.

The military's role in the Pacific will be limited largely to intelligence collection and allowing civilian police agencies to use its trained dogs to detect illegal drugs.

but then decided not to support the measure on the floor.

"We also have to be legal realists," he said. After consulting Thursday night with Richard G. Wilkins, a Brigham-Young University law professor who is one of the nation's pro-life legal experts, McDermott shared that lawyer's opinion that several provisions within H625 are "clearly unconstitutional."

McDermott objected to the rape provision, which states a woman must report a rape to a law enforcement agency within seven days. If a rape victim is physically unable to report the crime, she must do so within seven days of when she is able.

McDermott cited troubles with several other portions of the bill, including a section that allows abortion if the mother is in physical danger, and another section that could be interpreted as outlawing the IUD as a means of birth control.

Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, was the only Magic Valley legislator to stand and debate Friday. Although he said he would support the move to send the bill back to committee because it failed to address the fiscal impact of the law if it is passed.

Some legal experts have estimated that it would require two to three years and $600,000 to $1 million to defend the measure as a Supreme Court test case. Representatives for the Idaho chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union said Friday they will seek an injunction to see that H625 does not go into effect if the bill passes the Legislature and is signed by the governor.

The Right to Life bill took a giant step toward becoming law Friday. The first House vote was 47-36.

Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls; Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer; Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul and Rep. Gary Robbins, D-Twin Falls, voted with the minority in opposing the measure.

The bill will come before the Senate State Affairs Committee next week. A member of that committee, Sen. Marri Calmbrecht, D-Obum, predicts H625 will pass through the committee easily and will "sail through" a full Senate vote.

Bridge

The City Council last week selected Higgins-Engineering of Boise to do architectural work on the Victory Bridge.

The city first applied for the grant last spring. Interest in the project soared in January when the state announced the reduced Singing Bridge load limits.

Some people have mistakenly thought that the city was replacing the Singing Bridge with the Victory Bridge. Mayor Tom Condit said: "The bridges have different purposes and are both needed. Condit said. City officials have been lobbying to move replacement of the Singing Bridge higher on the state's funding priority list.

It was first planned as an alternative route to Universal, which is in the industrial park, and into the nearby Victory Subdivision. Its importance to Universal has grown since the state imposed the new load limits in January.

"It will be a much better route to the industrial park than the detour," Universal Plant Manager Michael Johnston said.

In 1990, Universal's transportation costs will increase by $300,000 because of detouring around the Singing Bridge.

Resource policy, medical funding push budget further into red

BOISE (AP) — Red ink continued leaking from the Legislature's evolving 1990 state spending plan Friday.

Budget writers increased support for natural resource policy analysis and medical residency and made a first-ever financial commitment to private efforts against a specific disease.

In yet another series of votes that widened the deficit in the budget for the year that begins July 1, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee boosted support for the family resource program by $30,000 to $150,000 and nearly doubled spending on the fledgling Natural Resource Policy Analysis Group to $240,000.

The additional cash in the family resource program should increase the time the new doctors spend in rural hospitals where the need for health care is the greatest, supporters said, while the boost in support for the Policy Analysis Group at the University of Idaho will provide extra manpower and resources to conduct in-depth reviews of water quality and other issues.

The panel also succumbed to lobbying from the Epilepsy League, allocating $130,000 for its rehabilitative efforts.

Several members worried the action would result in a deluge of requests from organizations seeking money in their battle against diseases from leukemia and other cancers to multiple sclerosis and muscular dystrophy.

But while approving that allocation, budget writers again rejected attempts by some members to force the state's vocational rehabilitation division to obtain services only from the sheltered workshops already providing them. Critics, who successfully repelled that attempt earlier this year, have maintained it was attempt to give one group a monopoly on that business with the state.

With the drafting of the new budget nearly complete, the latest actions pushed the red ink in the overall budget document to $2 million, and additional proposals for higher spending were expected next week as the final bills are written.

Coupled with other legislation likely to win approval this year, the deficit could exceed $8 million, which would have to be made up from the $50 million budget reserve account, and groups of lawmakers are building support for raids on the reserve to finance programs costing nearly $20 million.

In the Senate, meanwhile, $8.1 million in 1991 state aid to community colleges was approved along with legislation delaying for one year a multimillion-dollar shift from the counties to the state in responsibility for the cost of indigent medical care.

The community college allocation represented nearly a 21 percent increase over this year's aid, but included in the increase was $500,000 from the state's cash surplus to help the schools in Twin Falls and Coeur d'Alene meet critical needs.

The plan to shift indigent medical costs from the counties to the state was hailed by the Republican legislative leaders proposing it as an attempt to provide significant property tax relief statewide. Currently, counties are collecting about $13 million a year from property owners to cover those costs, and because of changing federal regulations the state could pick up that burden for what the administration estimates will be $10 million a year.

GOP lawmakers hoped to implement the plan this summer, overriding Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus on aid to counties since Andrus proposed picking up only about $2.5 million of the indigent burden at a cost to the state of about $2 million.

But the tightening state budget picture forced lawmakers to delay their plan for another year to avoid aggravating the already growing deficit in the 1991 budget proposal.

House committee introduces standards for conflict-of-interest for state officials

BOISE (AP) — With new attention focused on actions of state officials including Gov. Cecil Andrus, members of the House Judiciary and Rules Committee have unanimously agreed to introduce legislation outlining uniform conflict-of-interest standards for government officials.

The compromise measure was developed by a Judiciary and Rules subcommittee headed by Rep. Jerry Deckard, R-Eagle, and sent approved for printing by the full committee Friday.

Deckard said the panel probably would consider the bill Tuesday.

The bill before Judiciary and Rules would make it an offense for government officials to use government property for personal gain, charge for governmental services they are required to render in the course of their employment, use confidential information for private gain or have a personal interest in a government contract.

Violations would carry a fine up to $1,000 and up to one year in jail.

Ethics bills have failed in the past two legislative sessions and two measures introduced last month have stalled in Judiciary and Rules. But the spotlight has been turned on the issue lately by the Feb. 8 appointment of Carol Andrus, the governor's wife, to the Morrison-Knudsen Corp. board of directors.

The appointment immediately drew criticism that annual salary and expenses Mrs. Andrus would receive totaling $28,000 might leave the governor obliged to one of the state's largest corporations.

Among other things, Morrison-Knudsen was the prime contractor on construction of the state's new maximum-security penitentiary south of Boise.

Mrs. Andrus resigned from the company's board on Feb. 25, saying it was not worth the criticism her husband and Morrison-Knudsen were receiving for the move.

Andrus argued there was nothing wrong with the appointment, but admitted the perception there might be a conflict made it a political mistake. Both he and Mrs. Andrus said they hoped the controversy would spur the Legislature to pass an ethics bill this year.

Former Republican lieutenant governor Phil Batt, in announcing he would not challenge Andrus for governor this year, said the incumbent should have known better but agreed that a uniform law should be enacted.

"The time's now ripe to pass a strong act," Batt said.

Since then, a number of legislators have publicly opposed up to existing or potential conflicts of interest. And this week, Sen. John Peavay, D-Carey, questioned Sen. Jerry Twigg, R-Blackfoot, about his interest in a large grain elevator. The episode came on the Senate floor during debate on the inability of small elevator operators to obtain rail cars.

Andrus names Hinckley, Shurtliff to panel

BOISE (AP) — Continuing a drive to fill as many state positions as possible with his own appointees, Gov. Cecil Andrus has named two new state Board of Education members to succeed men named by former governor John Evans.

Keith S. Hinckley of Blackfoot and M. Karl Shurtliff of Boise were appointed Friday to the eight-member board governing both public schools and higher education in Idaho.

Hinckley replaces George Alvarez of Boise and Shurtliff replaces Charles "Tiny" Grant of Rexburg. The terms of both men expired March 1.

Alvarez has accepted an appointment to the Education Commissioner of the State, a Denver-based multi-state educational policy organization.

Hinckley, 55, is senior vice president of Basic American Foods and board chairman of Suspended Inc. in Blackfoot. The Rexburg native is a graduate of Madison High School and the University of Idaho and has a master's degree in agricultural economics from Utah State University.

Shurtliff, 51, a Boise attorney, is a former member of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission and former U.S. attorney for Idaho. He also represented Jefferson County in the Legislature from 1962-64.

But at the same time, Andrus announced that

IRS hopes to settle taping suit out of court

POCATELLO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service's deadline for a response to a complaint filed by nine Pocatello IRS agents, including the nation's top officer in 1989, has been pushed from March 12 to March 26.

There is a good possibility the dispute could be settled out of court.

In the complaint and demand for jury trial filed in January in Pocatello's U.S. District Court, the officers and agents accused the IRS of illegally and secretly taping recording a meeting at the Federal Courthouse last August.

The plaintiffs include James Quam, the nation's top IRS officer in 1989 out of 68 districts. Joining him were John McCracken, Mark Seneff, Debra Gruber, Linda Warren, Michael O'Neil, Michael Herrin, Bert Lott and Jeffrey Siebrecht.

They allege IRS equal employment opportunity committee members covertly taped a meeting after assuring them anything said would be in strictest confidence. A tape recorder allegedly was concealed in a briefcase.

The complaint states the IRS refused to return the tape or copies and transcripts to the plaintiffs. It also charges the IRS fabricated false testimony, and claimed the recording was "fully consented to" and in "full view" of the plaintiffs.

They are asking that the IRS be required to identify everyone who used the recording and why it was made, and that it be ordered to enforce its own rules and take appropriate measures to remedy what occurred.

Dietician licensing bill sparks comment

BOISE (AP) — A bill to license dietitians is not one of the high-profile issues of this legislative session, but it has caused some political indignation for Rep. Mel Richardson, R-Idaho Falls.

Richardson said Thursday he is getting more mail about licensing of dietitians than almost any other issue, except for the abortion question and the call for a constitutional convention to balance the federal budget.

"Most of the opposition I'm getting is based on misinformation," said Richardson, the first-term lawmaker sponsoring the licensing bill. He said the bill probably will come up for House consideration next week.

It would only establish criteria by which a person can become a licensed dietician and set up a state board to regulate the industry, Richardson said.

The idea is not to put naturopaths or those who sell food supplements out of business as some opponents have claimed, Richardson said. It has been suggested that the bill could prevent parents from giving vitamins to their children.

"If it did all that, I'd be trying to kill the bill myself," Richardson said. "I'll have nothing to do with it" protection. In no way do I want to take away anyone's right to get nutrition advice from any source."

Since hitting the flood of criticism, Richardson said he has drafted amendments to protect those who do not hold themselves out to be licensed dietitians, but provide general nutritional information.

Novello sworn in as new surgeon general

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Antonia Novello was sworn in Friday as the nation's surgeon general, and President Bush made it clear he expects no letup in the anti-smoking and anti-drug abuse crusades of her predecessors.

In a brief White House ceremony, Bush saluted both the new appointee and Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan, himself a fervent critic of tobacco use.

"My respect and appreciation of my good friend Lou Sullivan grows every day as he fights for the good health of our people," Bush said. "In the few minutes we've been here, 11 people have died from smoking, 390,000 people each year."

Novella, who succeeds C. Everett Koop, is a pediatrician who has specialized on AIDS and kidney disease in children.

Novello, the first woman and first Hispanic to serve as surgeon general, said at a White House ceremony. "Once a dream, it is now my pledge to be a good doctor for all who live in this great country."

Novello, who succeeds C. Everett Koop, is a pediatrician who has specialized on AIDS and kidney disease in children.

The surgeon general officially is the leader of the 6,500 member Public Health Service, but Koop and others have used the post as a bully pulpit to influence government policy on smoking, AIDS and other health-related issues.

Bush also mentioned drug and alcohol abuse and AIDS as among the challenges facing Novello. "The tasks ahead are difficult," he said. "Because so many of these problems begin with our children, it is only right that we ask a pediatrician to help."

Novello, a native of Puerto Rico. On hand for the ceremony was the governor of Puerto Rico, Rafael Hernandez Colon, who told Bush, "I'm here representing the pride of all the people of Puerto Rico at this moment."

Spokesman denies Bush angry at Fed chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House on Friday emphatically denied a report that President Bush was "mad as hell" at Alan Greenspan, but some private economists said the Federal Reserve chairman was being given a blunt message to lower interest rates or risk losing his job.

The Los Angeles Times in its Friday edition quoted a "longtime Bush adviser" as saying Greenspan's refusal to further lower interest rates made it extremely unlikely Greenspan would be reappointed Fed chairman when his term expires in August 1991.

The unidentified adviser said Bush was "mad as hell" over Greenspan's position and the adviser was also quoted as saying, "I can't believe (Bush) will reappoint him and I don't know a soul in the White House who thinks he will."

White House press secretary Martin Fitzwater denied Bush was angry with Greenspan. Michael Boskin, the president's chief economic adviser, said there was no foundation for the story, which he termed "out of left field."

However, Boskin stopped short of endorsing the Fed's current policies and he also refused to say whether he would recommend that Greenspan be reappointed, calling that question premature.

Various administration officials have publicly criticized the Fed over the past several months, but the Times story was the first to suggest Bush was so upset that Greenspan's reappointment was unlikely.

At the Fed, spokeswoman Marci Schneider said Greenspan would have no comment on the Times story. But many private economists said they believed the unnamed Bush adviser was sending a clear warning that Greenspan needs to relent his tight-money policies in order to spur economic growth, which dipped in the last quarter to its most sluggish pace in more than three years.

Chief tax-writer calls tax cut proposals political junk food

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to cut Social Security and capital gains taxes are in a tight race for an award for dumbest ideas of the year, Congress' chief tax-writer said Friday.

"I was left nearly speechless by this competition until I finally decided to simply call both proposals political junk food and just let them go at that," Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in a speech in Boca Raton, Fla.

Rostenkowski took jobs at President Bush, who wants to cut taxes on capital gains, and some senior Democrats led by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, who want to cut Social Security taxes.

Democratic leaders are weighing how to respond to Moynihan's proposal, which has particular appeal in an election year. Their response on that issue will be included in a plan, expected in the near future, setting out the party's policy on an array of tax issues.

Rostenkowski has written a piece to be published in Sunday's Washington Post in which he spells out his own suggestions on taxes and deficit reduction. He is expected to rely on one of his favorite ideas — a sharp increase in the gasoline tax — and on raising taxes on tobacco, alcohol and oil.

Bush's proposed cut in taxes on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of investments, is worse than the one the president recommended last year, Rostenkowski said in the speech.

"At a time when the deficit is too big, he suggests cutting taxes," Rostenkowski said. "At a time when people are concerned about erosion of the tax system's progressivity, he wants to make it less progressive," meaning it would be based less on the ability to pay.

Jobless rate holds at 5.3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment held at 5.3 percent in February while the economy produced the most jobs in nearly two years and factory payrolls swelled for the first time in 11 months, the government said Friday.

Private economists and the Bush administration said the report was fresh evidence that the economy is rebounding from its anemic 0.9 percent growth rate in the final three months of last year, as measured by the gross national product.

"We believe the economy, after a period of slower growth, is likely to show progress in 1990," said Michael Boskin, President Bush's chief economic adviser.

He noted that the unemployment rate for black Americans, 10.5 percent, was the lowest since August 1974.

A Labor Department survey of households showed a seasonally adjusted civilian jobless rate of 5.3 percent, the ninth consecutive month at that level. The rate has ranged between 5 percent and 5.5 percent since mid-1988 and is in the lowest range since the early 1970s.

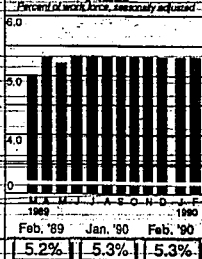

A separate survey of employers showed a non-farm job gain of 372,000, the largest since June 1988. The department revised its figure for January to an increase of 332,000, up from an earlier estimate of 275,000. Manufacturers added 90,000 workers—the first increase since March 1989.

However, Labor Statistics Commissioner Janet L. Norwood cautioned that February gains were inflated by temporary factors.

All of the increase at factories was attributed to the return of temporarily laid-off auto workers. Other types of manufacturing were sluggish. Also, construction payrolls grew by 60,000 employees, the result of unusually mild weather in February, she said.

Congress' Joint Economic Committee

Economist Rudy Oswald of the AFL-CIO warned that the strong dollar, by increasing the price of U.S. goods on overseas markets, will dampen prospects for much improvement in manufacturing payrolls, which are down 199,000 from a year earlier.

Layoffs by Wall Street brokerage houses and job losses at other service firms such as AT&T and IBM haven't been reflected yet in government reports, he said.

Nevertheless, most private economists, who as recently as two months ago were expecting a recession this year, said the economy is beginning 1990 with more vigor than anticipated.

Stock and bond prices both turned down after the report. Brokers said it seemed to dim whatever chance might have existed for any decline in interest rates from the Federal Reserve.

The central bank has been keeping interest rates relatively high in order to slow the economy and curb inflation pressures. It began nudging rates down last June after signs of an impending recession emerged.

However, it's left monetary policy unchanged since December and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan indicated in recent congressional testimony that central bank policymakers have once again focused policy on dampening inflation.

Overall, total civilian employment edged up to 118 million. The jobs numbered 6.6 million above the same in January.

The service sector of the economy added 221,000 jobs, including a gain of 47,000 for health services, 28,000 in government, 17,000 in retail trade and 15,000 in finance, real estate and insurance.

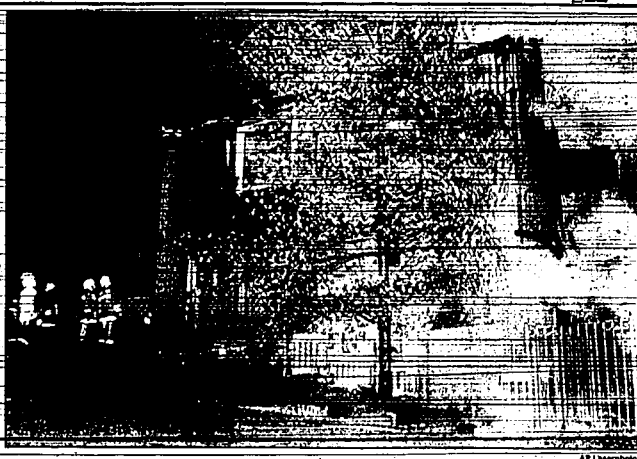

The addition of about 20,000 census workers over the past two months is bolstering the government number and several hundred thousand additional workers will be added in the next few months, Norwood said.

In other details, the department said average hourly earnings posted a 0.6 percent rise in February to $9.87, up from $9.52 a year earlier.

Also, the average manufacturing work week held steady in February at 40.7 hours. Overtime fell slightly from 3.7 hours to 3.6 hours.

The unemployment rates among major demographic groups last month were:

- Adult white men, 4.1 percent, up from 4 percent in January.
- Adult white women, 4.1 percent, up from 4 percent.

Firefighters battle a blaze Friday at the former residence of television evangelist Jim Bakker

Fire destroys former Bakker home

TEGA CAY, S.C. (AP) — Fire destroyed the former sprawling lakeside home of PTL founder Jim Bakker early Friday.

Fire officials searched the smoldering ruins to see if anyone was inside when the blaze broke out, but neighbors said no one had been seen near the house in the past few days.

Police Officer Russell Case, said two vehicles were parked in the driveway.

"It's just leveled," said Patricia Slagle, who lives next door. "There's really nothing to find. If there had been anybody in the house they just wouldn't have survived."

The 4,000 square-foot house on Lake Wylie had room-sized closets and an air-conditioned dog house when Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, lived there.

Robert Rubino bought the home during the PTL bankruptcy proceedings. Rubino was believed to be in New York on business, Case said.

State officials don't like Bush plan

By The Associated Press

Many state and local officials aren't buying President Bush's proposed national transportation policy, which would shift more of the cost to states. One critic called the proposal "all flash and no cash."

The critics are demanding release of billions of dollars from the Highway and Aviation trust funds.

"The states are going to have to do their part and we are, but the federal government has got to do its part. It's got to be a partnership," said Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who lost to Bush in the 1988 presidential election.

But some hailed it for giving the states greater freedom.

The president's policy offers excellent promise for future transportation decision-making and gives states more flexibility over control of federally assisted projects, and it encourages use of innovative financing by the states, said Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson, a Republican.

The administration plan, "Moving America Into The 21st Century," calls for more toll roads, local gas taxes, user fees, private investments, competition, deregulation, research into futuristic systems and openness to foreign air carriers as well as increased attention to safety and protection of the environment.

The policy, unveiled Thursday by Bush and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, contains no strategy to increase federal funding beyond what's already in the president's budget.

Thompson said he agreed with user fees, but added that "it is essential that the users have confidence that their fees are going to be used, promptly, for improvements to the transportation system. As a result, I emphasize again the need to spend down trust fund balances as quickly as practical to put user fee revenue to work on transportation projects."

Arnold Oliver, engineer-director of Texas' Department of Highways and Public Transportation, said his agency is "very concerned about shifting the financial burden."

"We're already stretched to the limit," Oliver said.

"The president had a chance to hit a home run for transportation by agreeing to spend some of the $23 billion already collected in the Highway and Aviation Trust Funds. But being held hostage to reduce the federal deficit, he missed the ball on that one. But hopefully the game isn't over," said James Piz, director of the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Hal Rives, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Transportation, said $66 billion is spent on highways across the country each year and the federal government only pays $12 billion.

Briefly

Official eyes lower trade imbalance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Robert Moshbacher, preparing to lead a high-level trade delegation to Tokyo, said Friday he believes America now has a real chance to reduce its huge trade imbalance with Japan.

Moshbacher said he was carrying a "caseload of cases" which would give the Japanese a chance to demonstrate the new spirit of cooperation evident in last week's summit meeting between President Bush and Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu.

Moshbacher said the U.S. delegation, which will leave for Tokyo on Sunday, will participate in a series of meetings with Japanese government and business leaders, including a planned Thursday discussion with Kaifu. The group will head Tokyo on March 16.

Baker to meet Soviet foreign minister

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze will meet in Washington with Secretary of State James A. Baker from April 4-6, the State Department announced Friday.

The talks are designed to further preparations for the summit meeting President Bush will hold here with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev sometime in June.

Shevardnadze and Baker are expected to concentrate on arms control issues, hoping that a treaty to reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear missiles would be ready for signing at the summit.

They will also discuss regional issues and human rights among other subjects, a Margaret D. Tutwiler, the State Department spokeswoman, said.

Jet loses partial use of landing gear

WARNER ROBINS, Ga. (AP) — An Air Force cargo jet with 26 people aboard lost partial use of its landing gear during takeoff from Panama Friday and landed at Robins Air Force Base, military officials said.

The C-141 jet came in on its left landing gear, which was functional, and only brief sparks and smoke were visible as the right side of the plane came down on the runway.

Emergency crews sprayed firefighting foam on the plane as a precaution. There were no immediate reports of injuries after the 3:45 p.m. landing.

The plane was "bringing military people out of Panama, back to their bases," when it lost its right main landing gear upon takeoff at Howard Air Force Base, said Cliff Tyler, chief of internal information at Robins.

The four-engine plane originally was headed for Charleston Air Force Base in South Carolina and is based at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, Tyler said.

Shooter picked victims at random

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Police say a man who fired at 10 people apparently picked his victims at random as he drove around the city. A newspaper delivery man who was shot in the head died today and seven others were injured.

Police did not know what provoked the shooting spree Thursday morning.

"It's just a completely senseless, random shooting," Police Lt. Mike McKenna said. "This was an unprovoked attack on each of these individuals."

William F. Brown, 41, died Friday at HCA Westley Medical Center. An employee of The Wichita Eagle, Brown was shot as he was stocking a coin-operated newspaper box outside a restaurant.

Police surrounded the gunman's red Volvo and arrested him after he pulled into a fast-food restaurant. Police found a bomb and a fresh carcass of a goose in the suspect's car. The bomb was later detonated.

McKenna said the man, who had not been charged, was sent to a hospital for a mental evaluation. He said there had been several complaints about the man's violence in the past.

U.S. official says bomb warning widely distributed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow testified Friday that a terrorist warning prior to the December 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 was widely distributed to Americans in Moscow and given to Soviet officials.

The State Department previously acknowledged only that the notice was improperly posted in the embassy a week before Flight 103 blew up over Lockerbie, Scotland, killing 270 people.

Officials said the posting violated a policy against notifying government workers when other prospective passengers are not told of a threat.

Raymond F. Smith, who was acting deputy chief of mission in Moscow at the time, told the Presidential Commission on Aviation Security and Terrorism that he felt a "moral obligation to let people know" about the threat against Pan Am flights between Frankfurt and the United States.

County GOP chairman will run for House seat

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls County Republican Chairman Mark Stubbs has formally announced his candidacy for the Idaho House.

Stubbs will run for House Seat 25-A in the 1992 election.

"Earlier this year when Gary Robbins changed to the Democrat party, it is my opinion that he misled his constituents when he said that the Republican Party had changed since he ran for office and was run by the ultra-right, hard-core conservatives," Stubbs said.

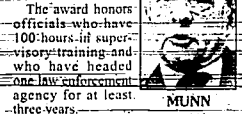

"Mr. Robbins simply saw a political opportunity for his own personal political advancement," he said. "He even made false allegations about me personally as part of his so-called justification for changing parties."

Robbins said Friday he has not decided whether he will seek reelection for his fourth term.

Idaho peace officers' group awards high honor to Munn

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn received an Executive Certificate on Friday, the highest award given by the Idaho Peace Officers Standards and Training Council.

The award honors officials who have 100 hours of supervisory training and who have headed one law enforcement agency for at least three years.

MUNN

"That's the highest you can get so I guess I've reached it," Munn said.

"But that doesn't mean it's all downhill from here."

"It's never downhill in law enforcement," Munn said.

"He's a good man," Deputy Dave Cline said. "He believes in his people and that what makes it work."

Munn has been Twin Falls County Sheriff since 1977.

Director to speak with man seeking insurance reform

TWIN FALLS - The state insurance director is expected to talk next week with a local man about his plans for changing the method of determining auto insurance rates.

Donald McMurrian has been promoting an initiative to force insurance companies to base rates solely on driving records. These base rates for one year and require public hearings for all significant premium increases.

Also, McMurrian said the insurance director should be elected, not appointed by the governor.

McMurrian met Friday with Director Tom Fagiano and Deputy Director Jean Krosch to review the proposals.

"He said Fagiano seemed willing to work for the proposed changes. He is going to get back to me next week and let me know what we can do," McMurrian said.

He said he'll drop his plans if the Department of Insurance agrees to work on the changes.

In a separate action, McMurrian is circulating a petition asking Congress to investigate the insurance industry and take away its anti-trust law exemption.

Early morning fire in Burley chars room in vacant house

BURLEY - A vacant house on Yale Avenue burned early Friday morning, according to a Cassia County sheriff's detective.

The fire, reported at 12:03 a.m., burned out one room and was extinguished by 12:30 a.m., the detective said.

The house, at 950 Yale Ave., was unoccupied and used for storage, he said. There was no damage estimate Friday, and the cause of the fire was under investigation, the detective said.

BLM grazing board slates meeting, speaker deadline

SHOSHONE - The Bureau of Land Management's Shoshone District Grazing Advisory Board will meet at 9 a.m. Thursday at 400 West E. St., Shoshone, but anyone wishing to speak should call the office by Tuesday.

The public meeting will cover a BLM and state land swap status report, the state's resource status testing program and land conditions. The Bennett-Hills Reservoir Management Plan and disbursement of board funds.

The district telephone number is 886-2206.

Valley unemployment rate takes 1-point rise

By The Times-News and Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - Cold weather and a local layoff boosted the unemployment rate for the Magic Valley almost a full percentage point in February, to 4.9 percent.

"After an unusually warm January which kept employment up, February's colder weather forced added workers off the job, raising the local rate," Lon McDonald of the Twin Falls Job Service said.

"Also contributing was a local manufacturer that had a non-seasonal layoff of 25 people," McDonald said.

He declined to name the manufacturer. Despite the 2 percent jump in rates, McDonald noted that, "Magic Valley continues to see better economic times than one year ago."

February 1989's unemployment rate was 6.1 percent.

Once again, the Magic Valley

Gooding, Twin Falls and Jerome counties under the Job Service's definition fared better than the rest of Idaho.

Idaho's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate skyrocketed in February as the late onset of winter left a record work force facing disappearing job opportunities.

The Department of Employment said Friday its preliminary projections placed the jobless rate last month at 5.6 percent, the same rate posted in February 1989 and up from the 4.4 percent state rate recorded in January.

It was the largest one-month change in the rate on record under the current statistical system used by the department.

But February's rate follows the normal trend, analysts said. And they echoed McDonald's comments about warmer weather leading to January's lower-than-usual rates for that month, which contributed to the larger-than-usual jump.

Jerome dairy ordinance dispute reaches high court

By MARK KIND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Idaho Chief Justice Robert Bakes chided Jerome County officials Friday for bringing their hotly debated dairy zoning issue to court.

"I just wonder how many decisions they're going to send up to us just because they're hard ones," Bakes told Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan.

Bakes' comments came as the Idaho Supreme Court listened arguments in a lawsuit the county commissioners had brought against two feuding neighbors. One neighbor has a dairy, and the other objects.

Horgan called the issue "touchy" for Jerome County commissioners. "It almost sounds like you're saying they had two sets of votes, one on each side, so they kicked it out," Bakes said.

The lawsuit's purpose is to determine whether Jerome County's livestock zoning ordinances were adopted legally, Horgan said.

The court will release a written decision in a few weeks.

At issue is whether the public received adequate notice before the county defined dairies as feedlots in amendments to zoning law in 1985.

The original rules said that no feedlot may locate within 1,000 feet of a residence.

The legal battle began in 1987 after the county commissioners overruled neighbors and the county zoning board and granted Kenneth Vanderham a special-use permit for a dairy.

When neighbors sued, 5th District Judge Daniel Meehl ruled that the county hadn't checked to find out how many neighbors were within 1,000 feet of the dairy.

Vanderham's permit went back to the zoning board, which approved the second request, provided that Vanderham obtain waivers from all homeowners within 1,000 feet of his corral. Just one nearby neighbor - Paul Holloway - refused to sign a waiver.

Rather than shut down the 600-cow dairy, the county commissioners sued both Holloway and Vanderham to determine whether county ordinances are legal.

Meehl heard the lawsuit last May and ruled that the 1985 amendments were added to the law without adequate public notice and they were therefore invalid.

Holloway appealed that ruling, sending the case to the Supreme Court.

Horgan said the court has several options. The five justices could uphold or reject Meehl's ruling either in full or in part. Or they could say the case is inappropriate for them to decide at this time.

Whatever they decide, more legal wrangling is in the Jerome County dairy industry's future.

"This is just another chapter in the book and it's still being written," Horgan said.

Senate rejects bill to protect springs, streams of Devil's Corral

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE - After nearly an hour of debate on Friday, the Senate voted 24-17 against legislation that would have provided temporary protection for Devil's Corral springs and streams east of Twin Falls.

This first attempt to bring additional waters under the state's 1989 stream protection law was strongly endorsed by the Magic Valley legislative delegation. But they couldn't carry the day.

Although the waters in question originate on private land and do not leave it until flowing into the Snake River, area lawmakers sought a two-year protective statute to block any potential development on one of only two spring creeks still to develop along the Snake River stretching from Murtugah to Hagerman.

The bill would allow further study of the spring.

Critics of the move called it another government intrusion into private land that could establish a dangerous precedent.

"It was a direct attempt on a water steal," Robert Erkins, who owns the Devil's Corral lands, said following Friday's debate.

For more than 20 years, Erkins has made applications to use the water for either a small hydroelectric project or a fish hatchery. He maintains he filed the applications as a means of protecting the water flows.

But Noh, who is Senate Resources and Environment Committee chairman, said more than 60 protests have been filed with state officials on those applications. But he has heard no opposition to Magic Valley lawmakers' proposed interim protection of the water.

Panel sees rise in management jobs, wage gap

By H.R. WEIXEL Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Women are moving more and more into the workplace, but still lag behind in wages, a panel discussed Friday.

In Idaho, 44 county treasurers are women, 31 women serve in the Legislature and the 14 employees in her office are women, Idaho Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards said.

Deborah Andrews, manager of the Twin Falls branch of Benjamin Franklin Savings and Loan, said 75 percent of her company's managers are women.

Yet 43 percent of women workers in the United States are currently in jobs that pay below poverty-level wages, compared with 27 percent of the men, Edwards said.

Edwards and others spoke on the second day of a two-day conference on women and economic development. Conference organizers hope to define problems facing women in the Idaho economy and develop plans to overcome those problems.

Management skills women have learned, much of them in the home, are key factors in statistics that show only one out of five businesses started by women fail, Edwards said.

Meanwhile, four out of five businesses started by men fail, she said.

Trudy Anderson, administrator of the Idaho Division of Vocational Education, said further gains by women in the workplace will require

Statehouse splits air study funding

By MICHELLE COLE Times-News writer

BOISE - Legislative budget writers acted quickly Friday to correct a funding snafu that endangered an air quality study for southern Idaho.

The legislature's budget-writing committee agreed to redivide the $140,000 it had allocated Thursday to the University of Idaho's agricultural research budget.

A math error by Sen. Lynn Tomingas, R-Rupert, put a study of the Snake River Plain airshed in jeopardy. He allocated only $40,000 for the study, which experts had said would probably carry a $100,000 price tag.

The committee did allocate $100,000 for northern Idaho smoke-reduction research.

Friday, the committee voted to split the $140,000 allocation down the middle, giving $70,000 to each study.

"It appears to be a satisfactory resolution of the problem," said Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly. "I think we're on a positive course."

The appropriation still needs the approval of the full House and Senate.

In a January report, the Idaho Division of Air Quality outlined a monitoring plan that would measure current effects of field burning and develop a model to project

Bliss moves to tighten control over water access

By SUZANNE HUXHOLD Times-News correspondent

BLISS - With the prospect of a possible drought looming larger every day, the Bliss City Council has taken steps to take more control of the city's water.

The council unanimously voted Wednesday to restrict the accessing of city water without the council's permission.

Now, anyone wanting to tap into the water system must come to the council first, changing the policy in effect since 1976.

Mayor Roland Zollinger said, "We have to protect our water. I don't even know if we have enough water to sell."

The decision came after a disagreement last month among three county residents, Len Kelso, Leroy Hess and Richard Ruzer, over the use of the city's water outside the city limits.

Kelso agreed to pay the cost of having pipe laid that would bring city water to his property outside the city limits. However, since the line also brings water to the properties owned by Hess and Ruzer, he asked the council have the pair help pay the costs.

Kelso said later in a telephone interview he's leaving the matter in the council's hands. "I wasn't trying to beat 'em out of nothing," Kelso said in a telephone interview. "Anyway, it's none of my business now."

The council made no decision on Kelso's request.

In a related item, the council also decided that the city will shut off water to residents who haven't paid their water bill after the 15-day final notice. Residents, however, may come to council meetings and explain extenuating circumstances.

Until now, the city gave several warnings in person before shutting off the service.

In other business, Zollinger and council members said they were concerned about the condition of the city.

Council members Keith Benscotter and Eddie Butler said benches in the city park had been returned for nearly a month and that the airport parking lot marm road had been down for months. Trash on the roads was also discussed.

"The main street is a mess," Zollinger said. • See WATER on Page A7

Idaho timber sales lost money in 1989

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

BOISE — A U.S. Forest Service report says six out of 10 Idaho national forests lost money on timber sales programs in fiscal year 1989.

The Sawtooth National Forest lost $25,900 in 1989. But that figure may be misleading, said forester John Robateck of the Twin Falls Forest Service office.

The Forest Service economic report, released Thursday, said on a national scale, 36 of the 122 national forests with commercial timber sale programs made a profit.

The Sawtooth, however, sells little commercial lumber. Most of the timber-related activity in the southern Idaho forest includes post and pole, firewood cutting, reforestation and salvage of diseased, burned or dead timber, Robateck said.

Such timber programs generally aren't intended as money makers.

In fiscal 1989, Idaho's forests harvested a total of 800 million board feet — enough to build 90,000 1,800-square-foot homes — and cleared $10.8 million in revenues before payments to counties.

Twenty-five percent of each forest's timber revenues are rolled over to nearby counties for schools and road maintenance and construction.

Cutting levels in Idaho increased 4.8 percent last year, when Idaho forests harvested 761 million board feet and lost $3.1 million after payments to counties.

No county payment figures were available.

Nationally, the Forest Service saw a 3 percent reduction in a total timber harvest of 11.9 billion board feet but revenue increased slightly from $1.4 to $1.5 billion.

The spotted owl controversy in western Oregon and Washington pinched harvest levels in the lucrative old-growth forests, officials said, and timber-sale appeals throughout the West also reduced harvests.

Pacific Northwest forests harvest nearly half of the total Forest Service volume, and generate the most jobs (55,709) and income ($1.9 billion).

David Van de Graff, a Boise Cascade Corp. forester in Emmett, said intense competition for timber in Idaho continues to drive up prices, much to the delight of revenue-hungry forests.

"What we're seeing is competition coming in from outside the area and bidding up sales," Van de Graff said. "Harvests have been reduced in their areas because of the spotted-owl and other kinds of appeals and they've come here trying to survive."

"It all makes for pretty intense competition. And it's driving up the capital for the national forests."

Once again, the Panhandle National Forests in North Idaho dwarfed the pack in harvest levels and revenues, with a 263 million-board-foot harvest and $10.5 million gross revenue.

Besides the Sawtooth, forests posting losses in Idaho included the Boise ($1.5 million), Salmon ($162,000), Challis ($339,000), Targhee ($1.76 million) and Caribou ($549,000).

between January and February rates.

February was also the first month since June that Idaho's rate has exceeded the national average.

The national jobless rate remained at 5.3 percent for the ninth straight month despite the economy generating more than 370,000 new jobs, the largest increase in 20 months.

The dramatic increase in Idaho's unemployment rate — felt in every region of the state — came as the work force inched upward to just under 510,000 while total employment dropped nearly 6,000 to under 482,000. More than 28,000 Idahoans were off the job during the month, the largest number since May 1988.

February's performance tended to underscore experts' predictions that the employment situation in Idaho would weaken as the state's qualified labor force diminished. After seeing annual unemployment in 1989 fall to a record low 5.2 percent, analysts had forecast the rate to climb back up to 5.5 percent this year.

"There was general agreement that it is going to be a two-year study," Tominaga said. The present allocation will at least pay for front costs, he said.

Although the $70,000 won't be available until July 1991, Tominaga said a steering committee will be selected soon. That committee will then select a contractor to begin the work.

Tominaga and Noh said the study might also be used as a data base to consider the possible effects of the eight-thousand-springs conflict power plants planned for northern Nevada.

The council again discussed buying The Trading Post for a civic center and Centennial museum. The building needs extensive repair and at least two new bathrooms, Butler said.

In the Magic Valley, where the circumstances are known, where the personalities are known, I have found no opposition," Noh said. "It isn't private water. It's public water."

But Sen. Ann Rysdalech, R-Idaho Falls, called the protective legislation an end run around existing laws that could jeopardize springs on private land throughout the state.

Sen. Herb Carlson, R-Eagle, called the bill an example of the "grotesque" heavy hand of government.

Noh maintained the interim protection, which would only delay any development plans for two years, could help avert litigation between Erkins and the state.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, contended the delay was justified so that experts could determine the best use for one of the area's last unspoiled springs.

"We've gone past the point in Idaho where we can give this water away," Peavey said. "There's some public values there we need to look at."

Angered by the proposed legislation, Erkins has put the popular-recreation area up for sale and said he'll sell it to the highest bidder. He also plans to close Devil's Corral to the public and has instructed the Jerome County Sheriff to enforce trespassing laws.

"I don't know about the rest of my family, but I've had it," he said Friday.

In the weeks since the protection bill was introduced, Erkins said he's received many telephone calls from concerned senators and from "outraged" representatives of the Idaho Farm Bureau.

Noh accused the Farm Bureau of raising the specter of horrors that just don't exist.

"The Magic Valley delegation was stabbed in the back by some inadequate research by the Idaho Farm Bureau," he said.

New Catholic catechism meets strong criticism

By The Hartford Courant

"Who made you?"
"God made me."
"Why did God make you?"
"God made me to know Him, to love Him and to serve Him in this world and to be happy with Him forever in the next."

Large chunks of the Baltimore Catechism are lodged permanently in the memories of millions of older Roman Catholics.

Approved by the U.S. Catholic bishops in Baltimore in 1884, the catechism — with minor variations in phrasing among different editions — became the official text for teaching religion for generations. But the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s introduced new teachings in the church and rote memorization fell into pedagogical disrepute.

The catechism was withdrawn, and for nearly 20 years there has been no "official" text for teaching religion in the Catholic Church. Catholic educators have stressed "religious formation," teaching a child to live a Christian life, over religious information.

Now the draft of a new "universal catechism" has been developed under the direction of Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, head of the Vatican's doctrinal office, and sent to the bishops of the world for their reaction.

"This is the most important document to come out since Vatican II," said the Rev. Thomas Reese, a Jesuit priest who is editing a book on the new catechism. "It will set the parameters of how the Catholic faith is taught in the 21st century."

Although stamped "secret" by the Vatican, for bishops only, the draft is being widely circulated in church circles.

And it is stirring worldwide controversy for what some call its narrow view of the faith and its lack of attention to biblical and theological scholarship.

The 434-page document will not replace the Baltimore Catechism but is meant to be a summary of official church teachings that bishops may use to develop their own religious education materials.

It is the first universal catechism since one issued in 1566 in the wake of the Council of Trent, which mobilized the Catholic Church against the Protestant Reformation. The Baltimore Catechism drew largely on that earlier compilation of the faith, called the Roman Catechism.

"The reaction from all of the analysis is extremely negative," overwhelmingly so," said Reese, who coordinated a symposium on the new catechism recently in Washington.

Reese said scripture experts complain that the text ignores 50 years of biblical scholarship.

He said the catechism is needed to tell people "it's safe to teach this material this way and this is what the church wants you to teach."

"I have received so many complaints from people who tell me they are confused by what this teacher has given, or that teacher has given," Whelan said.

Archbishop John F. Whealon of Hartford, Conn., who is on a committee of bishops reviewing the draft catechism, agrees with some of the criticisms. But he said he would welcome a revised version.

He said the catechism is needed to tell people "it's safe to teach this material this way and this is what the church wants you to teach."

"I have received so many complaints from people who tell me they are confused by what this teacher has given, or that teacher has given," Whelan said.

Mormons name 10 new mission presidents

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The first presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has named 10 new mission presidents.

A news release says the presidents will be given their assignments later this year.

The church operates 227 missions throughout the world. That number will increase to 255 in July, said spokesman Don Lefevre. There currently are about 41,000 Mormon missionaries in the field, he said.

The new presidents are: Julio Alvarado, 38, a businessman in Guatemala, Guatemala; Athos M. Amorim, 57, a reserve army colonel in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil; M.

Garfield Cook, 49, chairman and chief executive officer of Non-Invasive Medical Technology Corp. in Salt Lake City; Pedro Hoffman, 46, a church accountant in Valencia, Venezuela; Wilfredo R. Lopez, 43, an employee with the church educational system in Santiago, Chile; Larry L. Lunt, 46, a Salt Lake City attorney and state representative; Francisco P. Salazar, 39, an import-export businessman in Puebla, Mexico; Kenneth D. Reber, 48, a Sandy insurance agent;

Seichiro Utagawa, 38, the translation manager for the church's office in Tokyo; and Kenneth Wilson, 66, who currently is serving a mission for the church.

Protesters smash the windows of a McDonald's restaurant in Hackney in east London.

Tax protesters attack police, loot, burn Thatcher in effigy

LONDON (AP) — Crowds angered by a new tax battered police-looted stores; paraded effigies of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and hurled bottles and eggs in protests across Britain. Dozens of people were injured or arrested.

Mrs. Thatcher today blamed a leftist group known as Militant Tendency for the violence Thursday night that left the main street in the London borough of Hackney strewn with glass.

"As you know, it is not the way to conduct affairs at all," she said during an appearance in Glasgow, Scotland. "Any conduct intimidating or violent is absolutely contradictory to democracy."

"There have been four straight nights of violence against the new community charge," which replaces the system of taxing homeowners to pay for government services. Instead, municipal councils now divide the costs of services equally among all adults in their district.

Charges can vary widely, depending on the level of services provided by a district. And since each adult is taxed, it means two people living in a two-room apartment would pay twice as much as one person living next door in an eight-room house.

Anger over the system has sent Conservatives' popularity plunging to its lowest level in its decade of rule.

Local legislators in the district of Haringey met today to discuss the district's tax, which at 1974 is one of the highest in the country. During a meeting of the council Monday night, demonstrations outside turned violent, and police had to clear shouting protesters from the spectator section.

Tony Benn, an opposition Labor Party member of Parliament, said, "This is the first major civil disobedience campaign since the suffragettes demanded the vote before the First World War."

Lithuania faces weekend showdown with Kremlin

MOSCOW (AP) — Lithuania's newly elected lawmakers pressed on toward a showdown with Moscow, causing Friday on how to take the reins of power after the declaration of independence expected by parliament this weekend.

A session vote by the Lithuanian Supreme Soviet would confront Mikhail S. Gorbachev with what could be his greatest crisis: the breaking away of one of the 15 Soviet republics, with the possibility of the rest of the multinational empire following suit.

"Moscow is menacing us. We hope it's only with words," said Andrius Kubilius, secretary of Sajudis, Lithuania's pro-independence movement. "We don't think there will be an acute economic blockade. It wouldn't be profitable for them, either economically or in terms of international opinion. But we don't know."

However, in comments reported Wednesday by official Radio Vilnius, Gorbachev appeared to accept Lithuania's right to secede, although cautioning that the once independent state on the Baltic Sea would have to pay $34 billion in compensation for factories built and money invested during a half-century of Soviet rule.

With the legislature's opening session scheduled for Saturday night, secession activists reported from the capital of Vilnius that the stance of Lithuanian President and Communist Party leader Algirdas Brazauskas was still unclear.

As chairman of the 141-seat chamber, Brazauskas conceivably could stave off immediate confrontation with the Kremlin by using his office to delay debate on the secession issue, which is expected to begin Sunday.

"This position is that we should act step by step, that there's no need to do it hastily," Alydas Medvilinskas, Sajudis executive director, said by telephone. He said Brazauskas' most recent appearance on state-run Lithuanian TV Wednesday showed his position has not changed.

Kubilius, however, noted that the President of the Supreme Soviet or legislature, that Brazauskas heads has included the independence issue on the legislative agenda, which he took to be a sign of tacit support from the Lithuanian leader who masterminded his Communist Party's December declaration of independence from the Soviet party that Gorbachev heads.

Leaders urge U.S. to trust Sandinistas

MAGÜTO, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela and Spain on Friday told Vice President Dan Quayle the United States should trust Nicaragua's outgoing Sandinista government to peacefully give up power and should hasten demobilization of the Contra rebels, U.S. officials said.

In what one aide described as "a kind of rolling summit on Nicaragua and the peaceful transfer of power," Quayle met with Venezuela's President Carlos Andrés Pérez the day after incoming Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro met with Pérez. President Daniel Ortega is also due to arrive in Venezuela on Saturday.

Spanish Prime Minister Felipe González joined the talks Friday, did Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who is accompanying Quayle to Sunday's presidential inauguration in Chile.

Kennedy told the Latin leaders there's considerable skepticism in Congress about Ortega and they "should not put confidence totally in Ortega," said U.S. officials who were in the meeting.

Quayle concurred, stressing the United States prefers to trust Mrs. Chamorro. He said the Bush administration also wants the Contras to disband but said their security must be ensured.

Quayle, on the first day of a week-long trip to the region, spoke by telephone with Mrs. Chamorro Friday morning from Air Force Two.

U.S. officials said all agreed further negotiations are needed on the transfer of power and demobilizing the rebels before Mrs. Chamorro's April 25 inauguration.

More talks were expected when the Spanish prime minister travels in his plane from Caracas with Ortega, Pérez and Costa Rican President Oscar Arias to Sunday's inauguration.

Spain and Venezuela agreed with Quayle that they should provide trade and economic aid to help rebuild Nicaragua's languishing economy.

Protesters at Hackney carried placards reading "Break the Tory poll tax," "Smash poll tax" and "Can't pay won't pay." The Labor Party and other opponents have dubbed the community charge the poll tax, after a similar per capita tax that caused a rebellion in medieval times.

Police Commander John Furnell said about 200 people broke away from the main crowd and rampaged through a Hackney shopping mall, hurling trash cans through windows and looting up to 50 stores.

Aoun calls for peace with Moslems, rivals

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gen. Michel Aoun appealed Friday for an end to Lebanon's 15-year-old civil war, making a conciliatory move to Moslem leaders and a Christian warlord he has tried to crush in a month of fighting.

The cease-fire was holding despite minor exchanges of sniper fire.

At least 750 people were killed and 2,089 wounded during the inconclusive showdown between the two forces for mastery of the 310-square-mile Christian enclave.

Williams' offense helped Jerome rebuild in a hurry

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Jerome got to the state Class A-2 boys' basketball tournament the hard way this season, with four new starters and a first-year coach. For Tiger junior Matt Williams, that makes the experience all the better.

Before the season, nobody picked Jerome. Williams, a 6-foot, 4-inch forward-center who leads the Tigers in scoring with a 16.1-point average. "Nobody thought we'd be going back to the state tournament. But we beat a lot of teams by outshooting them and out-rebounding them, and that makes it sweeter. It hasn't been a perfect season."

Maybe not. But it's been a good one for Williams, a specialist in offense on a team that emphasizes defense. He's taken up the scoring slack for the graduated Clint Bailey and helped make the other two-thirds of the "Tigers" forefront, seniors Tracy Dixon and Matt Farnsworth, greater offensive threats.

"He's a really good one," said Twin Falls High coach John Astorquia. "He's a good one-on-one player, with good head and shoulder fakes. He's a good outside shooter, and he's big enough and strong enough to go to the basket. Like with (sharpshooting sophomore guard Brett) Walker, you can concentrate on him because Jerome has so many other shooters."

"Matt's a great outside shooter who in the last few games has become a much better inside player," said first-year Jerome coach Jim Stauffer. "He's had some good games inside this season."

Williams' size, shooting ability and fluid moves made an early impact on the young Tigers this year, but Williams says this season has been a work in progress.

"I learned a lot this year just by playing on the same court with Tracy," he said. "I think it helps a bunch that all of us knew Tracy and that most of us had played on the same teams for so long. Jim Stauffer was our (junior varsity) coach, so we knew what he expected. It made the transition (to the varsity) a lot easier, and I think Jerome was a lot better than people expected."

Williams started the season as a good outside shooter who by virtue of his size got his share of baskets in the paint. But he, his coach and teammates agree, Williams has evolved into a more complete player.

"I could do a little better job rebounding," said Williams. "I kind of like the defensive role, but that's a lot easier when you're playing with Tracy. I like to take the outside shot, but there are some opportunities inside."

Williams says he feels free to take the open shot, but doesn't have a specific goal about a scoring average.

"I didn't set out to score a lot of points," said Williams. "I want to be an all-around player and help this team win." "He works hard at improving."

Williams predicts nobody will be able to call 1990-91 a rebuilding season for Jerome.

"We'll be a lot more experienced going into next season," he said. "If our juniors put in the time, we'll be state champions."

Jerome roars past Bear Lake into state consolation final

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — It took six Bear Lake points for Jerome's afterburner to kick in Friday afternoon.

When it did, the Tigers left the Bears in their exhaust fumes in the consolation bracket of the Idaho Class A-2 boys' basketball tournament.

"They did pretty much what we expected them to do, and that was try to run," said Jerome coach Jim Stauffer.

Stauffer in the waning of his team's 84-48 romp over Bear Lake. "But we're actually a running ballclub too."

Jerome scored nine unanswered points over a 2½-minute stretch and outscored the Bears 14-4 over the last five minutes of the first quarter to take a seven-point lead that never got smaller. As a result, Jerome will play in the tournament consolation championship for the second straight year.

The Tigers will take on fifth-ranked Middleton, which beat Wilkes 72-54 in Friday's other consolation game, at 9:30 this morning in Holt Arena. Jerome beat the Vikings, twice during the regular season, winning 69-67 in Jerome last Dec. 8 and 62-51 in Middleton on Dec. 21.

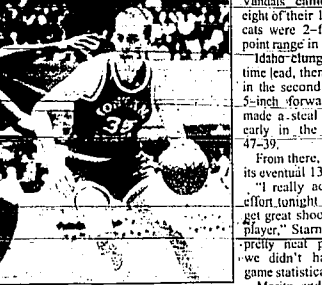

Idaho earns berth in Big Sky title game

By DAVE GOINS

BOISE — It may not have been a vintage University of Idaho basketball victory Friday night, but the Vandals will take it just the same.

Idaho held off sixth-seeded Montana State in the final minutes and escaped with an 80-71 semifinal victory in the Big Sky Conference tournament.

The Vandals, now 24-5, will play Eastern Washington, a winner over Weber State in Friday's other semifinal, in Saturday night's championship game. Tipoff time is 8:05 p.m. ESPN, channel 13, in the Magic Valley, will televise it nationally.

Montana State's Dave Mortiz, right, drives around Idaho's Clifford Martin but the Vandals won 80-71

The winner will get the Big Sky's automatic berth to the NCAA tournament.

Idaho had a 13-point lead with between eight and nine minutes to play. That lead dwindled, though, as MSU's outside game came to life.

With 3 minutes, 51 seconds left, Bobcat forward Dave Mortiz hit his second consecutive three-pointer to cut Idaho's lead to three points, at 68-65.

But with 1:01 left in the game, the Vandals got an 18-footer from junior guard Leonard Perry to push the lead back to five, and then Mortiz made a second free throw. (6-of-6) in the final minute to preserve the win.

"We have some areas where we need to improve," said Idaho coach Kermit Davis. "But it was a big win for us and we're going to be playing in the championship game."

Mortiz made the task of an assistant coach a difficult one by cutting one for the Vandals.

"That's what the three-point line has done for college basketball," Davis said. "It's put the excitement back into the game. Mortiz just played a really good game. He caught a rebound because he's 6-7 and he shoots from the outside."

MSU coach Stu Starnes said he was impressed with Idaho's defense, against which the Bobcats shot just 23-for-52.

"They are the best defensive team in the conference," said Starnes, who is now taking a one-year sabbatical leave. "They're carried the Vandals on his sturdy shoulders with 24 points and 12 rebounds, agreed with Starnes's assessment.

"We came out with intensity," Smith said. "I wore them down in the second half. And I think that's a credit to our defense."

The defense was actually at its best in the first half when the Vandals came out and made one of their 11 steals. The Bobcats were 2-for-10 from three-point range in the first half.

Idaho clung to a 41-34 half-time lead, then expanded it some in the second half after a 6-point, 5½-inch forward, Ricardo Boyd made a steal and a slam dunk early in the half to make it 47-39.

From there, Idaho expanded to its eventual 13-point lead.

"I really admired my team's effort tonight because we didn't get great shooting from any one player," Starnes said. "It was a pretty neat performance when you didn't have a very good game statistically."

Mortiz ended the game with 20 points, coach Johnny Muck contributed 16, and Brian Elve added 11.

Perry helped the Vandals with a strong outside shooting performance. He ended the game with nine points.

CSI rolls past Dixie, on to region final

OREM, Utah — The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team has arrived on the threshold of its second major goal of the season.

Fighting together strong-scoring efforts at the end of both halves, the second-ranked Golden Eagles knocked off long-time nemesis Dixie College 87-77 here Friday to make the finals of the Region 18 tournament.

CSI, raising its overall record to 11-2 on the year, thus won the homecourt and neutral-court games against Dixie, which beat the Eagles in St. George, Utah, six weeks ago.

The top-seeded Eagles will play host Utah Valley, the No. 3 seed in this tournament, for the regional championship tonight at 8 p.m. in the Utah Valley Activity Center.

The Wolverines (22-11) got to the championship game by beating Salt Lake Community College 66-65 in the other semifinal Friday.

Saturday's winner advances to the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament in Hutchinson, Kan., March 20-24.

Although the Eagles had a double-digit lead at halftime and for a fair portion of the first several minutes of the second half, Dixie trimmed the deficit to 62-60 with 11 minutes left.

CSI women rout Ricks, face UVCC for region title

By RON DENNETT
Special to The Times-News

REXBURG — Coach Ben Stroud knew his College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team could play defense, but even he was slaking his head-in-amenor after the Golden Eagles' Region 18 tournament opener Friday night.

"It's been a long time since I've seen a team play with that kind of defensive intensity for that long," said Stroud.

The relentless defensive attack left second-seeded Ricks College stunned as No. 3 seed CSI came away with a 97-66 semifinal victory over the Vikings.

With the win, CSI earned the right to play top-seeded Utah Valley College, a 97-76 winner over North Idaho College in the other semifinal, for the championship at 8 p.m. in Hart Gymnasium.

Stroud said a victory over Utah Valley and thus a trip to Tyler, Texas, March 19-24 for the national juco tournament is within the reach of his Eagles, who improved their season to 20-5 with the win over Ricks.

"Utah Valley is a good team," he said. "They have guards who can hit the three-pointers and the whole team is cagey. But we've been winning games all year with defense. Now we just need to sustain for another 40 minutes."

The Eagles man-to-man defense kept the Vikings' offense tentative from the opening tipoff. CSI jumped to an 11-4 lead in the first four minutes, then built a 19-point lead with 5 minutes remaining before the half.

"CSI played a heckuva game," said Ricks coach Lon Woodland. "They put so much defensive pressure on us that I think we got out of our offense. We got rattled early and just never recovered."

Without loss, Ricks' season record dropped to 22-7. The Vikings will play NIC at 6 p.m. tonight for the third-place trophy.

CSI's Cynthia Clinger, a 6-foot, 2-inch freshman forward, was largely responsible for burying Ricks early. She hit 7 of 9 field goal attempts and a free throw in the first half to

Colorado shocks No. 6 Missouri

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Colorado, winless in the Big Eight Tournament since 1984 and playing for a coach who's already been fired, did what the No. 1 team in the nation failed twice this year to do — beat Missouri.

After falling to hold a nine-point lead with 1:08 left, the Buffs (11-17) took over in overtime and shocked the top-seeded No. 6 Tigers 92-88 in a stunning first-round upset.

"I prefer that you don't build this up to a 'Wen-one-for-the-Gipper' thing," said Coach Tom Miller, who was told two weeks ago he would not be back. "I'm more excited for the players, and what they accomplished, despite a lot of tough knocks and bad words."

Colorado, which has lost 52 straight Big Eight regular-season road games, rebounded from its breakdown late in regulation. Steve Wise scored the first four points in overtime as Colorado center Shaun Vandiver, the Big Eight's leading scorer and rebounder, watched from the bench with five fouls.

"Even when it gets in overtime with out Shaun, those kids just didn't have any quit in them," Miller said.

"Everybody wanted to send coach out in a special way," said Wise, and "you couldn't ask for more than what we did today."

Sun Devils stun Pac-10 top seed Oregon State in quarterfinals

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Isaac Austin scored 19 points and his brother Alex had nine of his 17 in the final 3:10 as Arizona State shocked 22nd-ranked and top-seeded Oregon State 83-75 in the quarterfinals of the Pacific-10 Conference Tournament Friday night.

The win advanced the eighth-seeded Sun Devils (15-14) into Saturday's semifinals against fourth-seeded UCLA (19-9), which eliminated Oregon 94-74 earlier Friday.

Oregon State, which still is expected to receive an NCAA Tournament bid on Sunday, had its record drop to 22-6 despite a 31-point rout by Pac-10 Player of the Year Gary Payton — 19 coming in the second half.

Alex Austin, who had 12 second-half points, put Arizona State ahead to stay at 71-68 on a 3-point govt with 3:10 remaining.

Brian Camper's layup with 2:41 left and Alex Austin's jumper 43 seconds later made it 73-68.

The Beavers closed to 77-73 on Payton's fifth 3-point goal of the game with 1:30 left.

But Alex Austin hit a 15-foot jumper with 41 seconds left for a 79-73 lead and sealed the win on two free throws with five seconds left.

Arizona State, trailing 66-63 at halftime despite making 11-of-18 field goals, used a 17-2 run to take a 68-62 lead with 5:09 remaining before consecutive 3-point goals by Will Branley and Payton tied the score with 4:32 to play.

Branley finished with 11 points while freshman Charles McKinney had 18, tripling his previous season-high.

Camper scored 12 points for the Sun Devils while Mark Becker had 10.

Arizona State made 11 of its first 12 field goals and led 15-4 four minutes into the game and 26-22 with 7:11 left in the half before McKinney and Payton helped Oregon State take its halftime lead.

Hawaii 66 Utah 60

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Terry Houston scored 21 points as Hawaii defeated Utah, 66-60, Friday night in the semifinals of the Western Athletic Conference tournament.

The Rainbows earned their first berth in the WAC championship game with the victory. Air Force and Texas El-Paso battled late Friday for the other spot in the finals.

Hawaii went ahead, 46-45, on Houston's layup with 11:52 remaining and never trailed again.

Troy Bowe added 14 points for third-seeded Hawaii, which improved to 17-10.

Utah, the tournament's No. 7 seed, finished its season 16-14. Keith Chapman scored 15 points and Walter Wanta 12 for the Utes.

Kansas 118 Iowa State 75

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Second-seeded Kansas moved to a 39-point halftime lead and beat Iowa State 118-75 Saturday in the first round of the Big Eight tournament to set up a semifinal game with No. 1 Oklahoma.

Kansas shot 65 percent in the first half in one of the worst blowouts in the 14-year history of the tournament. The Huskies (29-3) met the top-ranked Sooners, who turned back Nebraska, in a semifinal Saturday afternoon.

Kansas, scoring the most points in a tournament game since Oklahoma scored 116 in 1985, then handed Iowa State one of the worst beatings since the two schools began playing in 1900. Kansas won by 45 points in a game that ran.

UCLA 94 Oregon 76

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Don MacLennan scored 25 points and UCLA defeated Oregon 94-76 Friday night in the first round of the Pacific-10 tournament in quarterfinal play.

The fourth-seeded Bruins (19-9) will face the winner of Friday's second quarterfinal game between top-seeded and 22nd-ranked Oregon State and eighth-seeded Arizona State in Saturday's semifinals.

College basketball

virtual certain pick for the NCAA tournament, was its fourth straight in the Big East tournament since winning it in 1986.

Tom Orel scored 16 points, Lance Miller 15 and Chris Walker 14 for the Wildcats, who held St. John's to five points in a 12-minute span of the second half. Villanova turned a seven-point deficit into a five-point lead during that time.

St. John's took its largest lead of the second half, 44-37, on a three-point play by Malik Sealy with 15:14 left. Sealy led the Redmen with 18 points.

Virginia 92 N. Carolina 85

KILGORE, N.C. (AP) — After blowing a nine-point lead with six minutes left in regulation, Virginia beat North Carolina 92-85 Friday on Anthony Oliver's clutch shooting in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

The victory, Virginia's second over North Carolina this season, advanced the Cavaliers into Saturday's first semifinal against Clemson. It also solidified Virginia's chances for a bid to the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. The bids will be announced Sunday.

It marked the first time since North Carolina (19-12) lost to Maryland in 1986 that the Tar Heels had dropped an opening-round ACC tournament game. But after taking an 85-84 lead with 2 minutes, 44 seconds remaining in overtime, North Carolina didn't score again. An ill-advised three-point attempt by Scott Williams with 36 seconds left sealed the defeat.

Oliver, a sophomore guard, made 10 of 11 shots from the field for 23 points and — Stith led the Cavaliers with 32 points — Rick Fox had 21 points for North Carolina and Williams added 20.

Texas 92 Texas A&M 84

DALLAS Morning News

DALLAS — Texas combined finesse, fast break and three-point shooting Friday in a 92-84 victory over Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Classic opener.

Texas had 24 offensive rebounds and scored 29 points on putbacks. Forward Guillermo Myers had a season-high 16 rebounds along with 15 points to lead the Longhorns' assault before a slout crowd of 16,713 at Reunion Arena.

The Longhorns' rebounding offset 37 percent shooting from the field. Despite the off-day, all their starters scored in double figures, led by swingman Lance Blanks — 22. Guard Myers also had 15, and Locksley Collier had 12.

The Longhorns (21-7) will face Houston (24-6) in the semifinals at 8 p.m. Saturday. Houston defeated Rice, 90-81, in the other afternoon quarterfinal. Texas probably assured itself a spot in the NCAA Tournament, unless a team other than the Longhorns, Houston or Arkansas wins the SWC tournament to secure an automatic berth.

A&M, led by interim coach John Thonion after Shelby Metcalf was fired Jan. 22, finished 14-17.

Arkansas 84 SMU 61

DALLAS (AP) — Oliver Miller, known more for his rebounding and shot-blocking, scored a career-high 22 points Friday night to carry the ninth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks to an 84-61 Southwest Conference tournament victory over the Southern Methodist Mustangs.

Arkansas, the regular season SWC champion, advanced to Saturday's semifinal game. The Razorbacks will play the winner of Friday night's Baylor-Texas Christian game.

In the other semifinal bracket, Houston, a 90-81 winner over Rice, will play Texas, which beat Texas A&M 92-84.

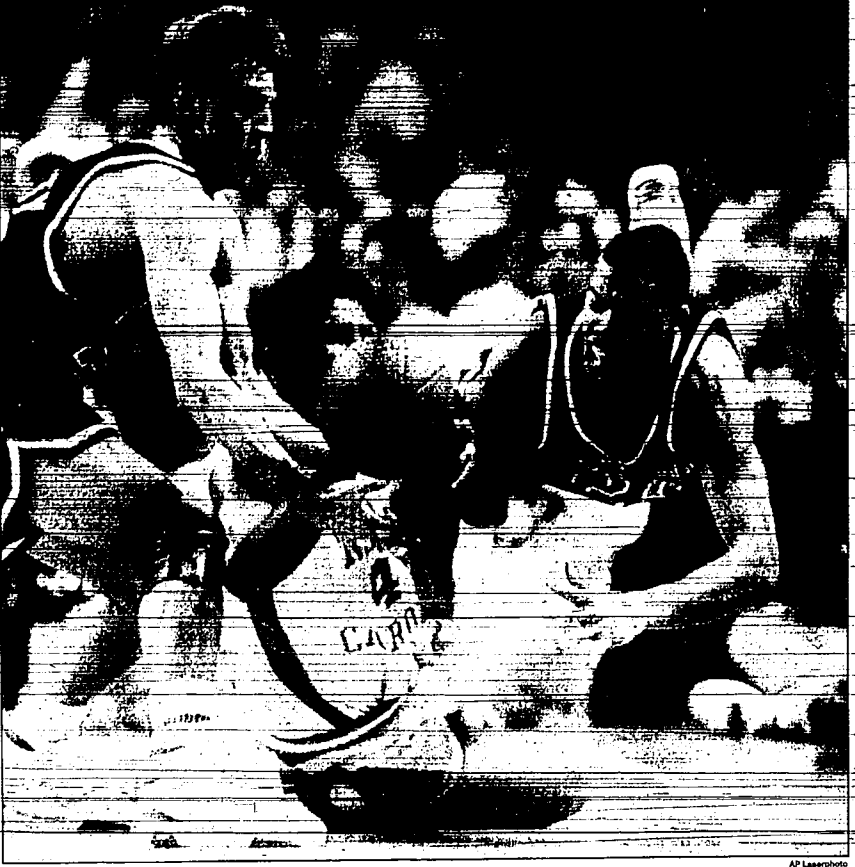

Vanderbilt 78 Georgia 74 (OT)

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Scott Draud scored four of his 13 points in the final 39 seconds of overtime as Vanderbilt upset 25th-ranked Georgia 78-74 in the quarterfinals of the Southeastern Conference tournament Friday night.

The Commodores, who hit 32 of 39 free throws, forged their way into a semifinal battle with Mississippi, an 87-86 winner over Tennessee earlier Friday.

Vandy (16-13) beat the SEC champion Bulldogs (20-8) for the first time in three meetings this year. The Commodores never trailed in the extra period, which was forced by Marshall Wilson's shot jumper from the left base line with eight seconds left in regulation to lift Georgia into a 63-63 tie.

Vandy led the rest of the way after Todd Millholland hit a 16-footer from the right side to break a 69-69 tie with 1:47 left in the extra period.

Virginia's Bryant Stith, right, takes flight in a scramble for a loose ball with teammate John Crotty and North Carolina's Rick Fox

Draud's 15-footer with 39 seconds left created a four-point lead, which dwindled to one when Wilson hit a 3-pointer from the top of the circle.

Vandy then got one of two free throws from Reed Wilcox with 13 seconds to play and Draud tied it on two free throws with five seconds left, offsetting a layup two seconds earlier by Georgia's Rod Cole.

Syracuse 58 Pittsburgh 55

NEW YORK (AP) — Derrick Coleman hit a go-ahead jumper with 20 seconds left and then blocked an attempted dunk by Brian Shorter to give fourth-ranked Syracuse a 58-55 victory over Pittsburgh on Friday night in the quarterfinals of the Big East tournament.

The top-seeded Orangemen (23-6) overcame the slowdown tactics of the Panthers to advance to Saturday's semifinals against the winner of the St. John's-Villanova game.

Pittsburgh (12-19) ran 20- to 25 seconds off the 45-second shot clock on virtually every possession. It was an attempt to offset the depth of the Orangemen and it worked until Coleman, the conference's player of the year, took over in the final seconds.

Pittsburgh, which had to best undefeated Boston College on Thursday night, took a 55-54 lead with 1:36 left on a pair of free throws by Bubby Marlin.

Syracuse's Billy Owens, who was hampered by a back injury throughout the second half, missed a jumper with a minute left and Shorter grabbed the rebound. Pitt then started to run down the shot clock, but Brad Brookin was called for a five-second violation with 30 seconds to play.

Oklahoma 78 Nebraska 65

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — William Davis scored 26 points and started an Oklahoma surge late in the second half as the top-ranked Sooners avoided the upset bug of the Big Eight Tournament and beat Nebraska 78-65 in a first-round game Friday.

The Sooners (24-4) advanced to a semifinal game against the winner of the No. 2 Kansas-Iowa State game in a tournament that has seen No. 6 Missouri fall to Colorado and sixth-seeded Oklahoma State beat ninth-seeded Kansas State in a close game.

Nebraska (10-18) hung close with the Sooners until Davis pulled Oklahoma away by scoring six straight points.

Long Beach St. 86 Utah State 68

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Freshman Lucius Harris scored eight of his career-high 23 points during a 2-40 span to quell a second-round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament Friday night.

After running off the game's first seven points, Maryland's shooting went cold and basically remained that way for the duration. The Terrapins had just three field goals in the first nine minutes of the second half, and Hurley led a run that put Duke (24-7) on top and in Saturday's semifinals.

Hurley scored the first seven points in a 9-2 run that lifted the Blue Devils from a 60-57 deficit to a 66-62 edge after Henderson hit a pair of free throws with 12:31 left.

Clemson 79 Wake Forest 70

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Young scored the final six points for 17th-ranked Clemson as the Tigers beat Wake Forest 79-70 Friday for their first opening-round victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament in 10 years.

Clemson (24-7), which earned the tournament's top seed after finishing first in the ACC in the regular season for the first time, opened up a 26-point lead in the first half and was up by 16 early in the second half.

But the eighth-seeded Demon Deacons (12-16) cut the lead to three points in the last two minutes despite the loss of point guard Derrick McQueen, who was carried off the court in a stretch after being involved in a collision under the Clemson basket.

Louisville 76 Memphis 73

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Jerome Harmon came off the bench and scored 22 points, and No. 18 Louisville held Memphis State without a field goal for nearly eight minutes Friday night to score a 76-73 victory in the semifinals of the Metro Conference tournament.

Regular-season Metro champion Louisville (25-7) saw a 20-point second half lead fade to three points in the final minute, but grabbed the tournament title game for a fifth straight year.

Memphis State (18-11) was held to a single field goal in the final 8 1/2 minutes of the first half and trailed 39-29 at intermission and couldn't recover.

After Kelvin Allen's basket game Memphis State at 22-21 lead, Louisville went on a 16-7 run for 37-24 lead with 2:16 left in the half. Labradford Smith scored seven points and Harmon six in the run.

Memphis State, which shot 44 percent from the floor, didn't have a field goal after Allen's, until Cheyenne Gibson hit a 3-pointer with 1:01 remaining before halftime to cut Louisville's lead to 37-27.

Duke 104 Maryland 84

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Phil Henderson scored 24 points and Phil Hurley ignited an early second-half holding Providence scoreless for 6:17 midway through the second half.

After two free throws by Eric Murdoch brought the Friars (17-11) to 46-44 with 13:13 to play and the Hoyas then went on a 9-0 run as Mumbo and Alonzo Mourning, who had 12 points, 10 rebounds and four blocks, controlled the inside and forced Providence into taking altered shots.

The run ended with 6:56 to play when Marques Bragg's layup brought Providence within 55-46.

Auburn 78 Louisiana St. 76

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — John Caylor hit a 3-point shot with five seconds remaining to give Auburn a 78-76 upset over 16th-ranked LSU in the quarter-finals of the Southeastern Conference tournament Friday.

It was the fourth loss in six games for LSU, which blew big leads in late-season losses to Georgia and Florida.

Caylor's game-winner capped a comeback from a 15-point first-half deficit and was Auburn's first lead in the game.

The Tigers (13-17) snapped a three-game losing streak overcoming a 76-71 deficit with 50 seconds to play after LSU's Chris Jackson hit an 18-footer.

Reggie Gallon hit two free throws with 41 seconds left and Derrick Dennison, who finished with 34 points, stole the in-bounds pass and hit a layup to cut the lead to 76-75 with 39 seconds to play.

Connecticut 76 Seton Hall 58

NEW YORK (AP) — Tate George scored 20 points, and his six steals helped Connecticut force 24 turnovers Friday as the No. 8 Huskies defeated Seton Hall 76-58 in the Big East tournament quarterfinals.

Connecticut, already the winningest team in its school's history, overcame an off day by its frontline players to improve its record to 26-5. The Huskies, second-seeded in the tournament, will meet the winner of the Georgetown-Providence game in Saturday's semifinals.

Seton Hall's final in last year's NCAA tournament, finished the season 12-16.

Georgetown 77 Providence 77

NEW YORK (AP) — Dikembe Mutombo had 18 points, 14 rebounds and six blocked shots on Friday and No. 5 Georgetown came back from a 12-0 deficit to then hold off Providence 77-77 to advance to the semifinals of the Big East tournament.

The Hoyas (23-5), who led by 13 points with 41:55 to play, will meet No. 8 Connecticut, a 76-58 quarterfinal winner over Seton Hall, on Saturday.

Georgetown, the defending champion and third seed for this tournament, broke open a close game by 80-61 with 10:27 to play on the first two of its 10 straight New Mexico State points.

Trailing 34-32 at halftime, Fresno State opened the second period with a 12-5 run to lead 44-39 with 15:52 to play. Todd Bernard, who finished with 18 points, had two field goals and a 3-point basket during the spurt.

The Aggies battled back in the first half with 10:27 to play on the first two of its 10 straight New Mexico State points.
