March deficit a record

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government posted a $53.34 billion budget deficit in March — a monthly record — pushing the imbalance past the Gramm-Rudman 1990 target in just six months, the Treasury Department reported Friday.

The March gap between spending and revenues produced a deficit of $150.85 billion for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1, 17.5 percent more than the $128.4 billion imbalance during the first half of 1989. Revenues last month were down 4.9 percent from March 1989 to $64.82 billion, while spending rose 13.6 percent to $119.66 billion.

The $53.34 billion difference was the widest monthly gap since a $39.4 billion imbalance was posted in May 1986, according to James Blum, assistant director of the Congressional Budget Office.

Louis Candel, an economist with R.H. Wrightson of New York, said the deficit so far this year points to a return to $200 billion imbalances that existed until recently.

Crandall attributed most of the March deficit to Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. payments, spending by the Resolution Trust Corp. to bail out failed savings and loans, expected income tax refunds as a result of electronic filing systems and Federal Reserve losses because of the falling value of its foreign currency reserves.

The Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law set a target of $100 billion for the total fiscal 1990 deficit. But the law sets no penalties if the actual deficit ends up exceeding the target, an eventuality that has occurred every year since Gramm-Rudman was enacted in 1985.

The Bush administration budget last January estimated the 1990 deficit to be $123.8 billion. The Congressional Budget Office in March projected the deficit would be $159 billion.

For the six-month period, revenues totaled $458.29 billion, up 3.9 percent from the first six months of 1989. Spending totaled $609.15 billion, a 6.98 percent increase.

Long row to mow

When push comes to mow, Verma Hruza, 81, has not lost a step in the battle to keep her front lawn trimmed. Actually a second string grass cutter, Hruza relieved her husband, Milbe, from the lawn mower to attend to other chores. Hruza says the large lawn around their house east of Rupert takes hours to cut, but they're used to it, considering they've resided at that location for nearly 50 years.

Lithuania Soviet Union increases pressure, beats guards

The Associated Press

Still defiant — A2

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. — Moscow on Friday expanded its energy embargo on Lithuania to include certain shipments of food, metal and industrial parts in its continuing effort to crush the republic's independence drive, Lithuanians said.

Dozens of Soviet soldiers also stormed a printing plant and beat civilian guards and a local legislator Friday, witnesses said.

The Kremlin "is seeking to stop the plants, put the workers on the streets" and encourage social unrest," Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis charged at a news conference Friday night.

Thus far in the 5-week-old standoff, no such unrest has occurred. Despite military and economic pressure, Lithuanians have refused to back off their March 11 declaration of independence from the Soviet Union, as demanded by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, and have solicited Western material and political support.

Vilnius radio said the Presidium of the Lithuanian parliament messengered Gorbachev's warning Lithuania's readiness to negotiate.

Landsbergis was quoted as saying that a freeze on putting Lithuania's independence fully into effect could form part of a compromise.

"If somebody authorized by Moscow to negotiate presented us with a package of proposals including this, we could have a discussion," The New York Times' Saturday edition quoted him as saying.

Bush wants discussion of possible retaliation

The Associated Press

the GOP and also fed a bottle of food to a 235-pound orphan manatee at Sea World.

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Bush administration criticized Moscow's escalating crackdown on Lithuania as "another unfortunate step" Friday and said President Bush would summon leaders of Congress next week to discuss possible retaliatory action.

The situation in the break away Baltic republic darkened amid reports that Moscow was blocking food shipments after sharply reducing fuel supplies.

"Witnesses in the capital city of Vilnius also said Red Army soldiers stormed into a printing plant and beat civilian guards."

"We are increasingly concerned by news reports today of an economic crackdown on Lithuania," White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, accompanying Bush on a political trip to Birmingham and Orlando.

Bush, himself, was silent on Lithuania. He avoided the subject as he made a political appearance in Birmingham, Ala., and visited a model recycling plant, and again in Orlando where he campaigned for

"Although our information is sketchy, we are disturbed that this signals another unfortunate step in the pressure being brought to bear by the Soviet Union on Lithuania," Fitzwater said, reading from prepared remarks.

This statement represented a toughening of the administration's rhetoric intended to match the increase in Soviet action and put pressure on Moscow to relax tension.

By delaying any U.S. response until next week, Bush in effect gave Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev a few more days to reconsider his tactics to force Lithuania to drop its efforts to succeed from the Soviet Union.

Bush, during a tour of Orlando's Sea World park, was asked why he was waiting until next week to respond to Soviet actions. "A lot of consultations going on," he replied.

Hopeful of preserving U.S.-Soviet relations and prospects for nuclear arms negotiations, Bush has reacted cautiously over the last few weeks.

the ground up, Galkin said. It caused no damage, according to the Idaho State Police.

The Mountain Home weather radar had reported a growing thunderhead at about 28,000 feet. The cloud suddenly grew to about 40,000 feet just before spouting the tornado, Galkin said.

The storm, however, spent its energy and deteriorated into local showers, he said.

Though many tornado sightings are reported in Idaho each year, the cloud, said Ken Parker of the National Weather Service in Boise.

TWIN FALLS — A tornado touched down east of Kimberly Friday afternoon but caused no damage.

"It was long and narrow, like a pencil and twisted," said Bill Galkin, with the National Weather Service station in Kimberly. Galkin and several others at the Kimberly Research Station viewed the funnel cloud from the viewing roof.

The small tornado grew out of a large thunderhead and snaked its way to the ground. It stayed on the ground about five minutes before it began to deteriorate from

Cowboy State is running out of cowboys

Knight-Ridder News Service

DOUGLAS, Wyo. — Wyoming, the Cowboy State, is facing a shortage of cowboys.

You wouldn't think so. On every state license plate, cowboys ride broncos. The university football team is the Cowboys. Likenesses of cowboys gallop through restaurants and saunter across billboards throughout this large, lonesome state. But to ranch owners like George LeBar, those symbols represent the romance of the old West, not the reality of the new. Truth is, no one wants the job these days.

"Nobody wants to work that hard," said LeBar, who grew up on a ranch and never intends to leave his rolling spread, once grasslands occupied by the Sioux nation.

As a result, LeBar is among the first U.S. ranchers to legally import Mexican cowboys to work on her 400,000-acre ranch properties straddling two states. She can do that because the federal government has for the first time certified that no qualified American citizens are interested in the work.

'We're a dying breed.' — Greg Baker, foreman, LeBar ranch

"Nobody wants to be a cowboy," said Oralia Mercado, executive director of the Mountain Plains Agricultural Service, which helps ranchers like LeBar find suitable workers. "It's hard work, it's dirty work, it's round-the-clock work. It's not something a U.S. worker wants to do."

This month, for the first time, Mercado's organization imported Mexican vaqueros, or cowboys, to work with cattle on the open range of Wyoming and the Dakotas. It is a formal acknowledgment that efforts to hire qualified cowhands have met with failure — even in Wyoming, where unemployment exceeds 7 percent.

It also is a reminder to the families still working the range in this, America's least populous state, that their traditional, even romantic, way of life is quickly disappearing. "We advertised in the newspapers and on radio, but we got zero results," Mercado said, displaying a classified ad that appeared in a Denver newspaper. "I can't see that there's anyone in the U.S. that wants this job. The status of being a cowboy just doesn't exist any more."

Said Carolyn Paseneau, executive director of the Wyoming Wool Growers Association: "We've really turned a page in our history. We have a shortage of cowboys, can you believe it?"

This year Mercado has imported only six workers — four from Mexico and two from Peru — for U.S. ranchers. But she and other experts believe a larger influx of foreign workers will inevitably result from changes in immigration law.

New penalties against employers who hire undocumented foreign workers has effectively dried up the flow of Mexicans who traditionally worked illegally on farms and ranches across the West.

"The traditional cowboy is dead," said Greg Baker, the foreman of the LeBar ranch. "We're a dying breed."

Commission sets hunting regulations, postpones controversy

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Delaying some major battles and problems for another year, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission on Friday approved 1990 big game hunting regulations that closely mirror last year's rules.

Commissioners said Friday they expect to address the management and harvest of various species, but decided to address those through the long processes — currently under way — that will establish new five-year plans to go into effect in 1991.

Two of those issues are likely to arise soon over hunting mountain lions and black bear. A ballot initiative that will come before California voters in November concerning use of dogs for pursuing big game is expected to have some impact on hunting everywhere in the West.

Proposed upland game opening dates were approved during the commission's quarterly session for both 1990 and 1991. These include forest grouse, Sept. 1 both years; pheasants, Oct. 20 in 1990 and Oct. 19 in 1991 in all parts of the state; partridge, Sept. 22 and Sept. 21, respectively, quail, closed in Area 1 and Sept. 22 and Sept. 21 in Area 2; sage grouse, closed in Area 1 and Sept. 22 and Sept. 21 in Area 2 and 3; sharp-tailed grouse, closed in Area 1 and Sept. 22 and Sept. 21 in 1991. Rabbit, hare and mourning dove seasons will open Sept. 1 throughout the state both years and the American crow becomes a legal target on Oct. 1 both years.

In another matter, the commission was also told by the superintendent of City of Rocks National Reserve that there was no reserve a ban on hunting in the Cassia County federal enclave or in the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument in Gooding County.

David Pugh said a ban will remain in place for now since the law establishing the national reserve is silent on the issue.

Pugh, who oversees the 14,320-acre City of Rocks as well as the Hagerman Fossil Beds monument, told the commission that without specific legal authority to allow hunting, his hands are tied.

Pugh said he has asked Park Service attorneys and Idaho Sen. James McClure's office for guidance and has proposed that Congress amend the law creating the reserve to add a provision for hunting. But he conceded there is no guarantee that will resolve the controversy before this fall.

"It would seem to me to solve the problem we should face it early on before the hunting season starts," Pugh said. "There's no question that the expectation of the citizenry was that the expectation of the citizenry was that hunting would continue there."

McClure, an Idaho Republican, took Park Service Director James R. Adams to task over the dispute Wednesday during a congressional hearing on the agency's budget.

The state's senior senator criticized the Park Service and its attorneys for what he contended has been an effort to find ways to prevent hunting in the City of Rocks rather than permit it.

But Pugh said Friday that he has been unable to find any documentation to back up McClure's argument that Congress intended to allow hunting in the reserve, although he understands the public sentiment at early hearings on a federal designation for the City of

Milken will enter guilty plea, sources say

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Billionaire financier Michael Milken has reached a tentative agreement with federal prosecutors to plead guilty to six felony counts and pay record fines and penalties totaling $600 million to settle outstanding charges of market manipulation and other securities fraud, sources said Friday.

Sources said the government expects Milken to provide broad cooperation with its continuing investigation of securities laws violations. They said his testimony could launch a major new round of investigations of misdeeds by savings and loan executives, corporate raiders and others.

Sources familiar with the case said that both sides believed the deal would be made final next week to settle what is by far the largest Wall Street fraud case in history.

Idaho economy still looking strong

BOISE (AP) — Evidence continues to mount showing Idaho's economy to among the strongest in the nation, but the Andrus administration has revised downward its estimate of the now unanticipated cash surplus to reflect an accounting correction.

The Index of State Economic Momentum, which tracks changes in population, employment and income, ranked Idaho eighth in the nation this winter, and new business incorporations so far this year were on a record pace.

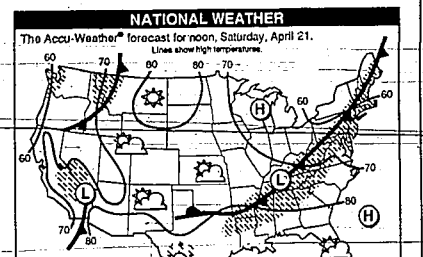

U.S. economy finds itself facing, analyst Richard Gardner said. On Thursday, the Commerce Department reported that income growth in Idaho last year ranked second national on a per capita basis and fourth on an overall basis.

Church changes stance on AIDS child

Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO — A church that had barred an AIDS-afflicted child from attending Sunday School reversed its decision Friday after publicity over the ban sparked a community uproar.

The foster parents of the 5-year-old boy, who is being called Joey, were asked two weeks ago to stop bringing the child to Sunday school. His parents were concerned that their children might catch the disease through contact with the boy, said the Rev. Irwin Lutzer, pastor of the Moody Memorial Church.

Ryan White was the AIDS patient who was refused admission to his Indiana school and whose subsequent fight against bigotry captured the heart of the nation. He died of complications from AIDS April 8, which was about the time that Wait and Terry Rucker were asked to stop bringing Joey to Sunday school.

Lithuanians remain stubborn, defiant

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Shaken hours after watching soldiers take over her workplace Friday, journalist Maria Giedine swore that Mikhail Gorbachev had met his match in Lithuania's stubborn, non-violent resistance.

Officials warned of huge unemployment as factories are shut down due to a lack of fuel, parts and raw materials from the Soviet Union, which is continuing its opposition to Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence.

tas Batisis, tall, blond and smiling, said few Lithuanians care about Lenin anymore. "For Russians, he is God," said Batisis — "That's understandable. But for us, he's not God."

Roman Catholic anti-abortion ads cause problem for PR firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans by a large New York public relations concern to direct an anti-abortion publicity campaign for the nation's Roman Catholic bishops have incited rebellion in the company's ranks. Hill & Knowlton Inc. said Thursday it will go forward with the project, despite continued protest from its workers. The bishops intend to pay the firm up to $5 million over three to five years.

About one-third of the company's headquarters staff signed a letter of protest, arguing that the bishops seek to deny women a basic right. Others have complained individually, and one quit.

There could be other fallout: Two minor clients have withdrawn and many others have expressed disappointment, according to dissident executives who spoke on condition of anonymity for fear of jeopardizing their careers.

Playboy Enterprises Inc., which has hired Hill & Knowlton in the past, is undecided about using it again.

"Our decision will be impacted by our principles. We've been longstanding supporters of reproductive rights," said Playboy spokeswoman Robyn Radomski.

Whatever Playboy's decision, she said, "We feel it's regrettable that such a big powerhouse PR firm has put itself in such a bad PR situation."

Memo warns rising workload could 'overwhelm' Social Security system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration is seeing warning signs of deteriorating service and rising workloads that could "overwhelm" the system, a top agency official says in an internal memo.

"There are signs of this early warning pattern developing in all areas of SSA's basic operations," said the March memo to Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn King.

Deputy Commissioner Herbert R. Doggett Jr. wrote the memo shortly before he retired last month. He said both the numbers of claims pending and the length of time needed to process them increased in 1989.

"When this pattern appears, it is an early warning of deterioration in levels of service," Doggett wrote.

"The possibility clearly exists that at some point workload growth could overwhelm our ability to respond, given our limited resources," the memo said.

claims filed, Doggett reported. The number of cases pending in the agency's six major service centers rose 14.3 percent, and processing times in the agency's Office of Disability Operations rose 6 percent, the memo said.

Staffing levels at the Social Security Administration were slashed from 80,000 to 63,000 during the Reagan years as part of a campaign to streamline and modernize the system. Many agency employees have complained that the cuts left them overworked and unable to provide good service to the public.

Mrs. King, who took over the agency last August, this year has dispatched "strike teams" to visit Social Security field offices and approve hiring additional employees, paying overtime and obtaining more equipment where needs are the greatest. She said Friday the agency is adding about 500 workers.

"I'm confident now that, with the changes we made, by the end of this fiscal year we will have our workloads well under control," Mrs. King said.

U.S. keeps Mexican accused of murder

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Friday it has no plans to return to Mexico a doctor accused of participating in the murder of a U.S. drug agent even if his capture violated Mexican sovereignty.

Justice Department spokesman David Runkel said he "did not foresee any circumstances under which—Dr. Humberto Alvarez Maghain would be returned to Mexico rather than face federal charges in Los Angeles.

But the judge overseeing the case ordered the Justice Department to explain the circumstances leading up to Alvarez' April 3 arrest in El Paso, Texas, on charges of participating in the 1985 murder of drug agent Enrique Camarena.

The Mexican government has also demanded an explanation for what an embassy spokesman here called called the "illegal detention" of the Guadalajara gynecologist.

The defense lawyer in the case charges that Alvarez was kidnapped and flown by private plane to El Paso, Texas, where he was arrested by agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

DEA officials have denied published reports that it paid bounty hunters to capture Alvarez and bring him to the U.S. border. DEA officials have declined to describe how they arrested Alvarez.

A prosecutor handling the case, however, said in court Thursday in Los Angeles that the U.S. government "has had standing offers on the street in Mexico and Guadalajara for rewards" for the capture of those involved in the Camarena murder.

The arrest has sparked a diplomatic protest from the government of Mexico. The Mexican attorney general, Enrique Alvarez del Castillo, said it could end U.S.-Mexican cooperation on drug enforcement.

Suspected war criminals trying to enter America

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has turned away about a dozen suspected Nazi criminals who took advantage of eased visa requirements to reach U.S. airports in recent months, a government official said Friday.

Other suspected Nazis on this list of people banned from this country may have managed to slip into the United States because of the change, which allows West Germans to visit here without a visa, said Neal Sher, who heads the Justice Department's Nazi-hunting office.

Sher declined to name those who were turned away but said he expects an increase in the number of interceptions as the summer tourist season begins.

Previously, West Germans had to apply for visitor visas at a U.S. consulate, where their applications were checked against the thousands of names on the so-called "watchlist" of suspected Nazi war criminals.

In October, however, West

Germany joined other U.S. allies in a program that waives visitor visas for the United States. Since then, visitors are merely screened by Immigration and Naturalization Service officers at the passport control booths of airports, ports and border crossings.

Panel backs easing AIDS blood ban

WASHINGTON—(AP) — A federal AIDS advisory committee recommended Friday that the government's ban on blood donations from Haitians and black Africans be eased for people who have been screened for the deadly virus.

The recommendation, supported by three of the panel's five members, will be considered immediately by the Food and Drug Administration, said Dr. Paul Parkintan, the agency's AIDS coordinator.

The ban has been in place, in part, since 1984, when Haitians who had emigrated to the United States since 1977 were excluded from the list of eligible donors. Sub-Saharan Africans were added in 1986; members of both groups who had emigrated before 1977 were added in February.

The panel voted after several dozen Haitians told the FDA committee they consider the ban discriminatory. Witnesses said the policy has cost Haitians their jobs and homes.

In New York, 50,000 Haitians and African Americans protesting the ban rallied in lower Manhattan, closing the Brooklyn Bridge for more than two hours and tying up traffic around City Hall.

City police had expected a rally of 10,000 people at the rally. Barricades of police and state troopers surrounded the protesters as they marched over them. Helmeted officers on horseback watched the peaceful demonstration.

Teachers back after strike

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma teachers returned to classrooms today after their four-day strike, forcing state lawmakers to forge a compromise on education spending that would raise teachers' minimum salaries.

"It shows that with solidarity the system works. Now we can go back to school," said Carolyn Meyer, an elementary music teacher in Stillwater.

The Democratic-controlled Senate approved an emergency clause Thursday that allows a $230 million education reform and tax bill to become law as soon as it is signed by Republican Gov. Henry Bellmon. The governor said he will sign the bill.

"Everybody's just feeling great," Stillwater Superintendent Bill Hodges said.

The emergency clause had been a stumbling block to the package and the Senate's failure to pass it last week prompted the 31,000-member Oklahoma Education Association to call for a five-day walkout. Republicans opposed the bill.

Inmate volunteers for execution today

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A convicted killer who has spent about half his life behind bars was volunteering to be executed by injection early Saturday for the murder of a cab driver.

"I just want to get it over with," Jerome Butler said last month when his execution date was set. "They could take these cuffs off me and walk me back to the death row and I still won't resist. There won't be no appeals."

Butler, whose age on record is 54 although he claims to be the several-years older, was sentenced to death for the 1986 shooting death and robbery of 67-year-old Nathan Oakley of Houston.

Jury finds man guilty of aggravated assault

TWIN FALLS — A jury has found Twin Falls man guilty of felony aggravated assault.

Reid Monroe Cress, 27, was charged with aggravated battery, a crime that carries a maximum 15-year prison sentence. Aggravated assault carries a maximum five-year sentence.

The jury late Thursday found that Cress struck another man in the arm with an ax in the early morning hours of Dec. 3.

The verdict followed three-day trial before 5th District Judge Daniel C. Hurlbut Jr.

Ketchum authorizes mayor to appoint panel members

KETCHUM — The City Council in a special meeting Friday authorized Mayor Larry Young to nominate five new members of the local dormant housing authority.

The Ketchum Housing Authority will monitor the lack of low-cost housing in the area, City Administrator Jim Jaquet said. Young called the meeting in response to the possible eviction of a number of residents from the Meadows trailer court, but the council did not discuss the trailer court controversy at Friday meeting, Jaquet said.

The housing authority was instituted in 1969 but hasn't been active in recent years and the members' terms have long since expired. Young is expected to have a list of nominees ready for the council's May 7 meeting.

Friday morning chase leads to wreck, pursuit on foot

TWIN FALLS — Two people were charged after leading police on a high-speed car chase at speeds reaching 90 mph through town early Friday morning, then running on foot from officers when their car crashed, according to police and court reports.

Santiago Neal Leayla, 24, 430 Oak St., was charged with five misdemeanor violations, reckless driving, leaving the scene, racing on a roadway, eluding an officer and not having a license on his person, according to court records.

A police officer began pursuing two cars at 12:09 a.m. that failed to stop for a sign at Buchanan Street and Addison Avenue, the police report said. The officer lost sight of one car, but continued after a red convertible 1969 Firebird. Two more police officers joined the chase at West Five Points as the convertible sped west to Blake Street, where it attempted to make a left turn, the report said. The car went up on a curb and knocked down a stop sign before resting, the report said, and the driver and a passenger ran off on foot.

Rolando B. Trevino, 26, 552 Fifth Ave. E., was charged with obstructing an officer, according to the police report.

Man found in intersection charged with drunk driving

TWIN FALLS — A 24-year-old man was arrested on a charge of driving under the influence after he was found Thursday passed out behind the wheel of a car at North Five Points, according to a police report.

Douglas Lee Walter, 350 Grandview Drive No. 46, was charged with the charge before 5th District Magistrate Judge Charles P. Brumback on Friday. The judge set Walter's bond at $4,000 for the DUI and a charge of driving without privileges.

At 8:11 p.m. Thursday, police responded to a report of a man having a seizure at the intersection. They found an eastbound city one-third into the intersection with the driver passed out inside and the engine off, the police report said. Two paramedics removed him from the car, and a witness gave police a pint jar containing a liquid smelling of alcohol that he had removed from between the driver's legs, the report said. A test showed the driver's blood-alcohol content to be .339, more than three times the legal limit.

Jerome police, Optimists hold 'bicycle rodeo' today

JEROME — The Jerome Police Department and Optimist Club will have a "bicycle rodeo" today in honor of National Bike Safety Week, Jerome police Capt. Jay Gardner.

At 10 a.m. kids can gather in the 200 block of West Third Street, where events begin, Gardner said. Police will register and inspect bicycles for free, then participants can complete figure-eight and a figure-eight course, among other things. Police will teach hand signals and traffic safety, as well as how to make U-turns, mount and dismount bikes and parallel park, he said.

Events last until 2 p.m.

City approves library expansion contract

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The City Council has approved a construction contract for library expansion, including a list of features that depend on future donations.

The council voted Friday in a special meeting to accept the contract that includes some $144,000 in contingency features including two flagpoles, an elevator and storm windows.

If the library board receives sufficient donations before the features must be put in, then they will be added to the project, Library Director Arlan Call said.

Councilwoman Mary McCluskey praised library officials for finding a solution to an unexpected money shortage.

"I'm very pleased with what the library board has done," she said.

Some of the features are aesthetic changes, such as installing carpet instead of less-expensive tile, Call said.

Board Chairman Leon Smith said donors can give money for certain features as memorials — flag poles, for instance — and the library would honor the donation with a plaque.

Call said construction will likely begin within two to four weeks.

Leaving out the contingency features still would leave the city about $135,000 short of Ormond Builders' original $2.18 million bid.

Call said interest on the $2 million bond issue could earn as much as $100,000, and the Twin Falls Public Library Foundation has committed to raise the remaining $35,000.

Ormond was the second lowest bidder when bids were opened last month. The bid went to Ormond after low bidder Commercial General withdrew its bid because of addition errors.

Ormond's bid, however, was more than the Library Expansion Advisory Panel had projected before the election last August.

The library board considered rebidding the project, but decided against that, partly because it would be difficult to get many bids this late in the construction season.

The city received a $245,000 state grant to help pay for the expansion.

Valley plans events to celebrate the Earth

By The Times-News

What on earth are you doing this weekend?

Sunday is Earth Day, and observances are expected across the nation and around the globe.

Many programs will be serious attempts to bring attention to environmental threats and problems. Other events will feature more lighthearted fare. Here's a list of some observances planned in the Magic Valley.

TODAY

At 1 p.m., the Mini-Cassia Earth Day celebration will feature the planting of 300 trees at Freedom Park near the Burley-Heyburn bridge. Participants are asked to bring buckets and shovels. Team leaders will direct groups in the most effective way of planting seedlings.

SUNDAY

An Earth Day Kite Fly-in sponsored by The Times-News is set for 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday west of the tower on the College of Southern Idaho campus, the event is open to all ages. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded and free refreshments will be given to participants.

Twin Falls' major celebration will begin at 2 p.m. in City Park. At 1:30 p.m., a bicycle parade from Jerome will arrive at the information center by the Perrine Bridge. Twin Falls area cyclists are invited to join the group as it completes its ride throughout the park.

In conjunction with Earth Day, Twin Falls County employees wear Earth Day T-shirts Friday at the courthouse.

Events at the park will include:

- Earth flag raising and dedication of an Earth Day Tree by CSI students and the Girl Scouts.
- Magic Valley environmental report card by Jerome High School students.
- Collection of aluminum, glass and paper recyclables.
- An "open-mike" featuring music, poetry, essays and speeches. Anyone can participate and may sign up in the park.
- A poster contest. Entries are due at 2 p.m., and judging will be at 4 p.m. Prizes will be awarded.
- At 4 p.m., a forum on "Social, Political and Spiritual Aspects of Environmentalism" will be held at the First United Methodist Church across from Twin Falls City Park.
- In Bliss, Girl Scouts will plant five hybrid poplar trees near the Special Education building at Bliss School.

The scouts raised the money for the trees during their annual cookie sale. Scout leader Allison Janss said the girls, ages 8 to 11, have also raised enough money from a community trash pick-up program to purchase 1/8 acre of Central American rain forest. The purchase is part of the Nature Conservancy's Adopt The Rain Forest program.

Janss said a local sponsor paid the Scouts

Residents report UFO sightings

By BARBARA NEIWEIT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The night skies glowed a bit brighter Thursday with the reported appearance of an unidentified flying object.

"The way the thing was moving it didn't look like it was a helicopter or anything like that," Elaine County Sheriff's Dispatcher Sherry Reddick said.

Reddick took a call at 10:53 p.m. Thursday from a lady who lived in Gimlet, just south of Ketchum, who reported an unusual object in the night sky west of Hailey.

Reddick said she and a state police officer, a Hailey city police officer and another Hailey resident went outside the sheriff's office after receiving the call and watched the object through binoculars in the direction of Crook Creek Canyon.

On Friday, local UFO watcher Mike Fidler, of Rupert, said three other valley residents — one an airplane pilot — called him and reported sightings — all consistent.

The sheriff's blotter reported that it was "a very bright

Citizens' group receives range expansion report with criticism

By N. S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A citizens' group that was formed to advise the Air Force on a proposed Saylor Creek Bombing Range expansion has criticized an environmental review of the project.

Comments turned in by the 65-member group called the draft environmental impact statement prepared for the Air Force inadequate.

A minority report included in the group's comments, however, supports the proposed expansion and the completion of the impact statement's second phase.

Critical comments included:

- The impact statement has not demonstrated a need for a range expansion and has given no convincing reason for continuing with the impact statement's second phase.

- It doesn't consider training needs in light of changing world politics, the pending retirement of F-4 jets and better use of other existing ranges, according to the group's comments.
- It failed to consider mechanisms for use of the land other than a withdrawal, which would give the Air Force control of the land.
- The small percentage of training time that requires live ordnance could be done at existing ranges, reducing safety and access problems and environmental damage at Saylor Creek.
- The impact statement should consider creating an electronic range that uses only simulated weapons.
- Mountain Home Air Force officials had not seen the comments and had no response on Friday afternoon.

The Air Force still is taking comments on "Tier One" of its two-part environmental impact statement, on a proposal to move 94 F-4 jets to Mountain Home and the need for increased training capacity at the bombing range.

Tier One discusses the impact of the realignment of planes in a congressionally mandated consolidation of military bases, the need for changes in the airspace adjoining the range and the need to practice supersonic flight as part of air-to-air combat training.

The size of an expansion, increased training needs, impacts and alternatives would be discussed in Tier Two of the impact statement.

The citizens group was organized by the Bureau of Land Management to advise the Air Force on the expansion and suggest alternatives.

Times-News sports editor chosen to head city desk

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Times-News Sports Editor Steve Crump will change desks — and jobs — Monday, when he becomes the newspaper's city editor with responsibility for its local news coverage.

Crump has worked alongside various Times-News city editors since 1981, when he was hired as sports editor.

"Steve is an excellent journalist with a excellent background in the news staff," Times-News Managing Editor Clark Walworth said. "He has spent six and a half years in the Magic Valley and knows the area probably better than anybody else I could have hired."

Walworth was city editor until February, when he was promoted to managing editor. That position came open when former Managing Editor Stephen Hargen was promoted to publisher.

Crump, 38, is a Poetello native with a bachelor's degree from Stanford University and a master's from Northwestern University. He has worked at the Idaho State Journal in Poetello as a political reporter, the Great Falls, Mont., Tribune as a sports writer and news editor and the Idaho Falls Post Register as sports editor.

"People who have been reading the sports section for the past few years know he's one of the best writers on our staff," Walworth said.

Crump said he plans to continue the "strong hard-news tradition of reporting at The Times-News."

But he also plans "to make our stories more reader-friendly," he said, and to beef up the paper's coverage of areas outside the Twin Falls city limits. And he plans to write a column.

Crump will remain temporarily in charge of sports while a replacement is hired. Walworth said he has already been in touch with promising sports editor candidates to fill the position.

Sun Valley eyes plan for lower-cost housing

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Rhetoric concerning affordable housing in the Wood River Valley, turned to action Thursday, when the Sun Valley City Council approved a first reading of a controversial building moratorium.

The 10-day moratorium would allow the council to put in place "linkage" requirements on future subdivision developments in the city.

Such requirements could dictate that developers build a certain percentage of affordable units within a subdivision.

Costs of single-family homes now constructed in subdivisions within Sun Valley's city limits start at $250,000. "We need to provide housing for a pluralistic society," Councilman Steve Lubert said.

Lubert's comment came on the heels of a presentation by residents of The Meadows trailer court, 2 miles from the Sun Valley City limits. Residents are fighting a move by new owner Ron Sharp to upgrade the park, which they say will force some to leave the trailer court.

Resident Kathy Blumel told the council to "pay attention to what's happening. The Meadows is the last of affordable housing in the north valley."

Since the trailer court does not lie within the city limits the council took no action, but Blumel's plea appeared to find a sympathetic ear among council members.

Lubert proposed the moratorium and councilman Kevin Laird and Joe Humphrey concurred. Before voting, Humphrey reminded Lubert that Sun Valley's comprehensive master plan states the city was to be an area of high quality homes where service personnel lived outside the city.

Lubert then moved that the three readings be waived, and the moratorium be initiated immediately. The motion

TWIN FALLS - "Renewing America's Moral Heritage" will be the theme for this year's National Day of Prayer on May 3.

National Day of Prayer will be honored at 7 a.m. May 3 at the Weston Plaza, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. in Twin Falls with an "Hour of Prayer." A Candlelight Prayer service will be held at 8 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho Campus Tower.

Prayer has been a foundation stone in the establishment and growth of the United States of America. National Prayer days have long been a part of our country's heritage and observing them is a great American tradition. Congress passed a bill in 1988 making the first Thursday of each May the National Day of Prayer.

The day is sponsored by the National Day of Prayer Task Force which is comprised of men and women who desire to make citizens aware of their responsibility to pray for our nation. The Task Force is not sectarian and has no political affiliation or influence. A successful prayer day depends on the participation of Americans from all backgrounds. Everyone is encouraged to participate by observing National Prayer Day and inviting others to do the same. Honorary Chairmen are President and Mrs. George Bush.

For more information, call Jack Muldoon at 733-8931 or the Celebration for Jesus' office at 733-8653; or contact the National Day of Prayer Task Force, P.O. Box 6826, San Bernardino, CA 92412, phone (714) 882-9932.

BOISE - The 30th Annual Conference for the Pacific Northwest Association of Church Libraries (PNACL) will be held June 28-30 at the University Christian Church, 1801 University Dr., and at Boise State University, 1910 University Dr., Boise. The conference, hosted by the Treasure Valley Chapter of the PNACL, is for librarians, ministers, church school workers and anyone interested in church libraries. For more information, contact Debby Kephau at 298 Blue Lake, Boise, ID 83705; phone 343-0761; or Marion Goemant, 7745 Long Dr., Boise, ID 83704, phone 378-8514.

REXBURG - Ricks College is sponsoring a tour to LDS Church history sites and the Hill-Cornah Pageant July 12-24.

Co-sponsored by Public Relations and Continuing Education, the 13-day aircoach tour will visit principle sites of Mormon history. The tour leaves from the college and Idaho Falls by motorcoach July 12 and returns to Idaho Falls from Washington, D.C.

The tour director will be Ron Campbell, director of the Division of Continuing Education, and tour historian will be H. Dennis Gibbons, who has conducted numerous church history tours. Gibbons is currently an instructor and inservice trainer at the Institute of Religion of USU.

Director of Public Relations, Ken Howell, says they have received several inquiries about such a tour each year and that this tour is a response to the interest received over the years.

The tour includes visits to church sites such as Winter Quarters, Adam-ondi-Ahman, Far West, Liberty and Carthage Jails, the restored Nauvoo, the Kirtland Temple, the Joseph Smith Home, the Sacred Grove, Martin-Harris' home-the Whitmer Farm and the Washington, D.C. Temple. Other bonuses of the trip include attending the Hill Cornah Pageant, taking a dinner cruise down the Mississippi River and visiting Niagara Falls, the White House, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials and the Smithsonian Museum.

Cost per person is $895 (twin), $815 (triple) or $750 (quad).

Interested persons should contact the Public Relations Office or the Division of Continuing Education for applications. A $100 deposit is due with the application and the balance must be paid by June 1.

TWIN FALLS - Jehovah's Witnesses from the local area were among the contingency of 900 to 1,000 attending a special assembly April 15. "Standing Firm as One Flock" was the scriptural theme of the event held in the Idaho Falls Civic Auditorium.

The featured speaker was Robert E. Hendricks, representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in New York. He delivered the keynote message about the advancement of the Bible education program throughout the world where Jehovah's Witnesses are actively proclaiming the good news about God's Kingdom by Jesus Christ. Encouraging experiences were related about the progress being enjoyed by witnesses standing firm as one flock.

Christian delegates were alerted that now is the time to stand firm as one flock before the true God

Jehovah. Practical information about provisions to aid in standing firm, examples of standing firm and guarding against weakening influences was given. Witnesses were reminded that their united stand for true worship protects them from divisive forces pervading the world and puts them in a better position to help others.

Those who would like to know more about the Bible's message of hope are encouraged to contact local Jehovah's Witnesses about their free home Bible study program by calling Stanley H. Major at 734-0390.

Injury on job wins $900,000
 CLARKSTON, Wash. (AP) — A man who was injured on his construction job while carrying heavy windows has been awarded $900,000 by a Whitman County jury.
 The jury decided Flour City Architectural Metals was negligent in requiring that David Jones and another man carry 62 windows into Washington State University's Wegner Hall during the building's 1981 remodeling.
 Attorney John Layman, who represented Jones and his wife, Kathleen, in the lawsuit against Flour City, said he believed it was the largest verdict in the history of Whitman County.

Farmers dispute U.S. policy
 NAMPA (AP) — Idaho agricultural interests say they want changes in national policy because too many farmers are going bankrupt.
 But Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, told a Wednesday roundtable discussion in Nampa he supported the 1985 Farm Bill even though his family had lost their farm.

Utah plant No. 1 U.S. polluter
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Magnesium Corp. of America's Utah plant—formerly AMAX—is the nation's worst air polluter, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says. In the formal release of its Toxic Release Summary, the EPA also said Utah's skies receive the sixth-most toxic chemicals from industrial pollution of any state. Ninety-two percent of that pollution comes from Magnesium Corp.'s operations in western Utah's Tootle County, on the shores of the Great Salt Lake, the agency states.

The report contains estimated from industry on the amount of toxic materials they produce. Figures are for 1988.
Woman healer advocate warned
 SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A woman seeking recognition of women's role in the Mormon Church as healers says she has been admonished by her bishop to "be careful."
 Belina Lindsey said her research into early healing activities by women in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has "touched many nerves" among contemporary LDS women.

Woman wins suit in sex case
 COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — A woman who sued a Coeur d'Alene hospital and her psychiatrist for damages from alleged sexual relations with the doctor has been awarded $650,000.
 The jury deliberated less than four hours before awarding $500,000 in compensatory damages and $150,000 in punitive damages to the woman.

Man held for booby trap gun shooting

DENVER (AP) — A handyman accused of setting a shotgun booby trap that killed an intruder in his frequently burglarized warehouse was ordered held Friday while authorities decide whether to prosecute him for murder.
 Denver District Attorney Norm Early said hundreds of callers had offered unsolicited advice ranging from "give the man a medal, to hang him."
 Friends of Philip Connaghan, who survived Thursday, say they have received offers of help for him. Connaghan, who was in Kansas when the youth was killed, appeared before Denver County Court Judge Larry Bohning, who ordered him held without bond for investigation of first-degree murder. Prosecutors have until Tuesday to file formal charges.
 Michael McComb, 19, of Denver, was shot in the chest late Saturday while leading three juveniles in an apparent burglary attempt at the downtown warehouse. The three juveniles, who were booked for investigation of burglary and released to their parents, told police they were looking for adventure.
 Police said the shotgun that killed McComb was attached to a trip wire they believe Connaghan rigged at the warehouse, which has been burglarized of his tools eight times since 1987. The front door of the warehouse bore the inscription: "Danger — Enter at own risk."
 Tim McComb, father of the slain youth, declined comment, other than to say, "I'd just as soon let it be."

Prairie dog shooting brings alarm

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Roy Romer urged a gun club to call off a prairie dog shooting contest that has drawn protest from animal rights groups.
 Romer said he lacks the power to stop the July 14-15 event, billed as the "Top Dog World Championship Prairie Dog Shoot," and argued that "it is wrong to make a spectacle of the killing of prairie dogs."
 Participants will compete in 50 two-member teams and attempt to kill the most prairie dogs at the greatest distance. The contest is to take place on private farms and ranches around Naturita and Nucla, two hamlets in western Colorado about 100 miles south of Grand Junction, organizers said.
 Hours before the governor made his announcement Thursday, U.S. Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-Colo., accused him of dodging the controversy. Romer had said Wednesday he wouldn't try to stop the event because it is a local issue.
 "To think people would turn it into a bloody circus is macabre," said Campbell from Washington. "I know it's an election year, but Roy should think about this again. This is something he should take a stand on."
 Stan Austin, one of the organizers, said of Romer's stance: "Well, those things happen. We realize there are people on both sides of this issue."

Professor apologizes for accusing Andrus

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — The Brigham Young University law professor, who questioned the constitutionality of Idaho's abortion bill, has apologized for accusing Gov. Cecil Andrus of using him as a "Mormon scapegoat" in vetoing the legislation.
 Richard Wilkins, the anti-abortion lawyer whose criticism of the bill earned him death threats from those claiming to be part of the right-to-life movement, said Friday that the accusation made two weeks ago before a conservative women's group were unfortunate.
 "I was terribly embarrassed," said Wilkins, who was among the experts Andrus consulted before deciding to veto what would have been the nation's most restrictive state abortion law.

Soupy Sales to receive honorary doctorate

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Comedian Soupy Sales will get an honorary doctorate instead of a pie in the face when he visits his alma mater, Marshall University.

"This doctor will be making house calls," Sales said after learning he will be honored at the school's commencement May 12.

"I'm thrilled to death about the honor. I have a warm spot in my heart for Marshall."

Sales grew up in Huntington as Milton Supman and graduated from Marshall with a journalism degree in 1949. He said he was fired from the school newspaper, The Parthenon, for cracking too many jokes and spending too much time at the student union.

Sales, who said he's had more than 19,000 pies thrown in his face during his 41-year show business career, is best known for his first network television show, "The Soupy Sales Show," in the 1960s.

Yugoslavian princess visits Parliament
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Princess Jelisaveta entered Parliament on Friday, the first member of the Karadjordjevic dynasty to cross the threshold of the communist-ruled legislature.

Her appearance, on invitation of a parliamentary deputy, stirred few political passions, despite a law banning all members of the royal family from returning to the country.

She said her appearance was "a wonderful miracle." "I am so happy because we are all of the same blood and we are all brothers," said the princess, who is the mother of TV's "Dynasty" star Catherine Oxenberg.

The princess told reporters she came to help organize a meeting of ecologists who plan to meet in Belgrade next year under United Nations auspices.

She refused to comment on the political situation in the country, where two republics have followed the democratic call echoing through the Soviet bloc by deciding to stage free, multiparty elections.

The princess, a Serb, has been home several times recently, basking in the newly reclaimed glory of Serbian nationalism.

Legendary Pickfair estate is razed

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Pickfair, the legendary estate of Hollywood film stars Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, has been razed so actress-singer Pia Zadora and her multimillionaire husband can build a palace.

The rambling estate, first built as a hunting lodge, was dubbed the Buckingham Palace of Hollywood. Albert Einstein, Charlie Chaplin and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were some who passed through its doors.

Prima ballerina Anna Pavlova danced there. Maurice Chevalier sang there. Rudolph Valentino, Clark Gable and Joan Crawford attended parties there.

Originally surrounded by 15 acres of gardens, lawns and tree groves, the property now takes up less than three acres.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., the actor's son from another marriage, was saddened by the demise of Pickfair.

"I regret it very much," Fairbanks said Thursday. "I wonder, if they were going to demolish it, why they bought it in the first place."

The Beverly Hills Historical Society raised no objections when Miss Zadora and husband Meshulam Riklis announced plans to demolish the home to make way for a Renaissance-style Venetian palazzo.

"I've got a funny feeling about it, because it's no longer Pickfair to me," said Phyllis Lerner, historical society president. "It really wasn't a pretty house, but my God, the guest list!"

"The house has been changed through the years a number of times so that it no longer is the original Pickfair," Paul Selwyn, chairman of the city Planning Commission, said that summer when the commission approved the project.

Contractor Rob Myers said the ravages of time and termites made demolition inevitable.

"Once we got into it, it was like cancer," Myers said. "We kept cutting away at the bad stuff, trying to get at the good stuff until we got down to the foundation. And the foundation didn't have any steel in it, so we couldn't build on that and we had to keep going."

Miss Zadora and Riklis bought the estate from Los Angeles Lakers owner Jerry Buss in 1988 for $6.6 million.

The couple reportedly plan to spend $5 million to build their tile-roofed palazzo, adding 2,754 square feet to the original 13,421 square feet of interior space.

Miss Pickford appeared in such films as "Pollyanna," "Tess of the Storm Country" and "Little Annie Rooney." Fairbanks was the swashbuckling hero of "Zorro," "The Thief of Bagdad" and "Robin Hood."

Miss Pickford and Fairbanks divorced in 1934. After she retired from acting, her third husband, Buddy Rogers, opened the estate for charity fund-raising. She died in 1979 at age 86.

Miss Zadora appeared in the films "Lonely Lady" and "Butterfly," two phenomenal flops in the early '80s, but has since launched a successful career singing torch songs from the '40s and '50s. Her husband is head of Riklis Family Corp., which was No. 47 on Forbes magazine's 1989 list of top 400 privately owned companies.

Water skier reclaims artificial arm recovered by fisherman

CALEDONIA, Minn. (AP) — It lay at the bottom of the Mississippi River for 9½ months, but Chuck Rollins says his artificial arm will be as good as new with a couple of straps and a cable.

Rollins, 66, was waterskiing in July when his artificial arm came off after his son-in-law accelerated the boat too quickly. He had a new limb made, but knew that someone would find the flesh-colored arm and wonder where the corpse was.

The $2,000 prosthesis, with stainless steel hooks surfaced on the end of Corene McCollison's line as she fished Tuesday near Brownsville in southeastern Minnesota.

"I was completely surprised," she said.

McCollison, 20, of Hokah, quickly made news and reached Rollins, a retired Caledonia construction worker who lost his limb about 13 years ago when a loader tipped over.

On Wednesday, he walked into the Houston County sheriff's office and announced, "Well, I'm the corpse that belonged to that arm."

"That's just like winning the U.S. lottery," he said.

Friesz's stock slipping for Sunday's NFL draft

By COLIN MULDOON
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — Six months ago, record-setting University-of-Idaho quarterback John Friesz was a can't-miss first-round NFL draft pick. But when the draft finally arrives Sunday, he still may be waiting at the end of the third round.

Since the heady days last fall when ESPN commentator Gene Washington called him the best quarterback available in this year's draft, a whole crop of juniors, including Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware of the University of Houston and Jeff George of the University of Illinois, has made itself available to the NFL. That's taken Friesz down several notches in the estimation of NFL player personnel directors — and probably cost him a lot of money.

"He doesn't have the great foot quickness, but he has good awareness and good release," said Joe Wooley, director of player personnel for the Philadelphia Eagles earlier in the week. "I like him as a second-, third-rounder."

"Guys like Friesz will end up playing, but what you're really looking for, they don't fit the mold," said Washington Redskins general manager Charley Casserly.

"Right now it's looking like it could be anywhere from a late first-round to a high fourth-round pick," said Friesz this week. "I couldn't name a (particular) round. I couldn't name a team. I wish I could, but I can't."

Most professional scouts don't regard this crop of quarterbacks highly, and they almost universally rate three juniors — George, Ware and Scott Mitchell of the University of Utah — as the best of the bunch. The pecking order established by scouts and ratings services will be pretty set by Sunday, and the list compiled by Fred Mitchell of The Chicago Tribune is typical:

George (signed Friday by the Indianapolis Colts as the No. 1 pick in the draft for $15 million); "Quick, Dan Marino-like release. George impressed scouts recently by unleashing 80-yard passes during a workout in Champaign (Ill.) He is a good play-action fader and is well suited for the pro-style drop-back passing attack."

Ware: "An exceptionally strong arm individual."

Colts sign draft pick George to $15 million deal

By JODI PERRAS
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts signed Jeff George on Friday to a six-year, $15 million contract that will put the Illinois quarterback among the four highest-paid players in the NFL.

Colts general manager Jim Irsay announced the signing at a news conference, confirming that George would return to the city where he starred in high school.

"We really feel that this move in the long run is going to be a very significant one for the '90s," Irsay said.

"We feel that throwing the football is the way you have to be successful. I really don't think we've thrown the football consistently in a way we'd like to see probably since Bert Jones left in the late 1970s."

George's agent, Leigh Steinberg, confirmed that the deal would make George the highest paid rookie in NFL history. Among current players, George's package would rank below only Buffalo's Jim Kelly and Philadelphia's Randall Cunningham. It is equal to the contract of Cleveland's Bernie Kosar.

George will earn more than Joe Montana, John Elway, Warren Moon and several other established star quarterbacks.

George modeled a No. 11 jersey at the news conference and said he was ready to challenge Chris Chandler and Jack Trudeau for the starting job this fall.

"I'm a confident guy. This is just an ideal place for me. I expect a lot of great things are going to happen for me and Indianapolis in the next year," George said.

Irsay said the team hoped to evaluate all three quarterbacks in mini-camp and training camp before making a decision on trading either of the two veterans.

"Whether we would entertain a trade or not, we wouldn't rule that out, but we have no plans to trade right now," Irsay said.

"We really feel it's important to have more than one quarterback."

The pact also carries a $3.5 million signing bonus. It is 40 percent higher than the contract Troy Aikman signed as the top pick of the Dallas Cowboys last year.

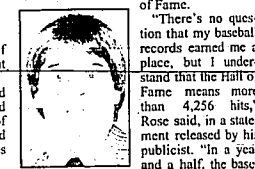

Steinberg, who also negotiated Aikman's contract, and Irsay bargained until 5:30 a.m. Friday at an all-night restaurant, Steinberg said.

The agent arrived at Colts headquarters late Friday morning to tie up loose ends on the deal.

Rose admits tax violations, asking to be in Hall of Fame

By JOE KAY
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — He's already out of baseball. Now Pete Rose will try to stay out of jail.

ROSE

The former Cincinnati Reds star walked out of federal court Friday a convicted felon after pleading guilty to two charges of filing false income tax returns. Still ahead is a possible six-year prison term and fines totaling $300,000.

Rose was free on his own recognizance while the U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel awaits a pre-sentence investigation, which take four to six weeks. A sentencing date will be set at that time.

"This is a very sad day for major league baseball, a very sad day for the city of Cincinnati, Ohio, certainly a very sad day for Mr. Rose and his family, but particularly for Pete Rose who is an idol," U.S. Attorney D. Michael Crites said.

about whether or not I'm worthy of the Hall, and I hope they'll understand that the mistakes I made off the field were caused by my gambling disorder."

Baseball's all-time hits leader was banned for life last Aug. 23 for gambling. He said he has been diagnosed as having a gambling disorder and is getting psychiatric counseling.

He pleaded guilty to two counts of filing false tax returns by failing to report income under an agreement with prosecutors that allowed him to avoid indictment.

Crites said this was no "sweetheart" deal. He said prosecutors did not try to bring more serious tax evasion charges against Rose because they didn't think they could prove them. A grand jury has been investigating Rose's taxes for a year.

"Had we gone to the grand jury and presented charges, I can tell you that the charges would have been filing false tax returns, not tax evasion," Crites said.

Rose, accompanied by two lawyers, admitted he failed to report $354,968 in income from autograph appearances, memorabilia sales and gambling. He later appealed to fans to forgive him and, even as a possible jail term hung over his head, asked to baseball writers to vote him into the Hall of Fame.

"There's no question that my baseball records earned me a place, but I understand that the Hall of Fame means more than 4,256 hits," Rose said, in a statement released by his publicist. "In a year and a half, the baseball writers will have to make the decision about whether or not I'm worthy of the Hall, and I hope they'll understand that the mistakes I made off the field were caused by my gambling disorder."

Rose likely to get jail time

By RITA CIOLLI
Newsday

During his career, Pete Rose hit safely three or every 10 times he came to the plate. But unfortunately for Rose, his odds of striking out are significantly greater now that his fate is in a judge's hands.

Legal experts say Rose is likely to spend some time in prison because of tougher sentencing guidelines and the tendency of judges to make examples of celebrity defendants.

"It is like what happened to Leona Helmsley. The court has to show that the rich and arrogant don't walk away while the working man pays the penalty," said Gerald Shargel, a Manhattan lawyer who represented organized-crime figure John Gotti and former Bronx borough President Stanley Friedman. Helmsley is appealing a four-year sentence for federal tax evasion.

Rose pleaded guilty Friday to two charges of filing false income tax returns for 1985 and 1987. He faces a maximum sentence of three years and a $250,000 fine on each count.

About 45 percent of tax cheats sentenced on federal charges last year received jail sentences, according to the Internal Revenue Service. But many of those cases involved crimes that took place before the harsher rules went into effect in 1987.

After a lengthy trial, Finn glided through the last three innings.

"They hit him hard, but they hit some good pitches," Bloxom said.

Walker said CSI's intensity slipped.

CSI, N. Idaho break even in opening double-header

By JIM MEEHAN
Special to The Times-News

COEUR D'ALENE — North Idaho College's Ray Ward provided some Cardinal relief when College of Southern Idaho's Eric Miller didn't pitch Friday.

Miller, who saved the Eagles' 7-2 first game with some solid relief, was nicked by Ward with the second game on the line. Ward's RBI single in the seventh inning helped NIC to a 4-3 win and a northern division Region 18 double-header split with the Eagles.

Miller, a freshman right-hander from Rupert, replaced Traver Hunter with two outs and NIC runners at first and second. His first pitch to Ward was the last of the game.

Ward hit a higher pop past diving CSI middle-infielders, scoring pinch-runner David Maehl with the winning run.

"I figured he'd try to throw a fastball to get the first strike to me," Ward said. "I just tried to put it in play."

The split left North Idaho and CSI tied for second place in the northern division of Region 18 with 5-3 records, one game behind pace-setting Treasure Valley Community College, which beat Ricks 15-10 in Rexburg Friday. The Cardinals and Eagles meet today at noon EDT for a single game.

The top two finishers from the northern division will advance to the Region 18 postseason tournament, the northern division champ hosts that tourney.

In Friday's nightcap, CSI's John Greene clubbed a first-inning homer, but the Cardinals jumped on Eagle starter Steve Cooke for two runs in the third inning. NIC's Cavanaugh's base hit to center. One out later, Ward tripled to drive in Cavanaugh.

"NIC added another run in the fourth inning, courtesy of a rain-slickened outfield. With two out, Shane Buchard, singled and came around to score when Derek Knight's single got past CSI left-fielder Lonnie Reiber, who slipped on the wet grass.

A number of major league scouts were in the stands to watch Cooke, a lefty with an 88 mph-per-hour fastball. Cooke started strong but was chased in the fourth inning.

"He's struggling," CSI coach Jim Walker "When the scouts come around, he just doesn't look very good."

Meanwhile, NIC's Dann Stordiu, a 6-foot, 10-inch right-hander from the Netherlands, probably impressed scouts by enticing the Eagles to chase bad pitches.

"We're free swingers," Walker said.

"The big guy did a good job and we helped him out by swinging at bad balls."

Stordiu pitched five plus innings; giving up three hits with his 80 mph-plus fastball.

"He threw well, but he wasn't quite right," said CSI coach Jack Bloxom. "He wasn't quite on."

When Stordiu strayed from the strike zone, reliever Richard Hooten came in with one out and two on in the sixth: He gave up a hit to Kent Schow and wild pitch helped CSI close within 3-2.

They Eagles' knotted the game by scratching across a run in the seventh, before Ward's single won it in the bottom of the frame.

In the opener, the Eagles rattled NIC pitcher Darren Finn for seven runs in the first four innings.

Greene's singled drove in Schow in the first. Reiber belted a two-run home run in the second and Sean Hicks knocked in three runs with singles in the third and fourth innings.

Bloxom managed just five hits off starter Brian Avram and Miller.

Jason Newmark scored NIC's first run in the second inning and Buchard had an RBI single in the sixth.

After a rocky start, Finn glided through the last three innings.

"They hit him hard, but they hit some good pitches," Bloxom said.

Walker said CSI's intensity slipped.

"After that third inning we didn't do any-
