Bush, North Diaries disclose meeting

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Oliver North met with then-Vice President George Bush a few hours after lying to the House intelligence committee about assisting the Nicaraguan Contras, an entry in North's White House diaries suggests.

Portions of the diaries, released Tuesday, renew questions about whether Bush was more deeply involved in assisting the Contras than he has acknowledged.

The 1,400 pages of notebook entries were obtained by a private group, the National Security Archive, as the result of a lawsuit filed against the government.

U.S. intelligence agencies still are reviewing the remaining 1,200 pages of North's diaries.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, "The vice president's role in the Iran-Contra affair was completely examined in the congressional inquiry and we have nothing to add."

Among the disclosures in the newly released material:

- On Dec. 20, 1985, North laid out a "3rd Country Solicitation Plan" in support of the Contras that included trips by Bush to Honduras for an inauguration.
- The plan also called for President Reagan to meet with Eudoro's president.
- Bush went to Honduras in January 1986 for the inauguration of President Jose Azcona Hoyo and

Ramp first, then work on terminal

By JENNIFER KAUTH Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It will be at least two years before the proposed terminal remodeling project gets off the ground at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

The Airport Board Tuesday had to choose between starting the $100-million project of reconstructing an apron, or general aviation ramp, for private and agricultural aircraft.

And the ramp won.

"You're well aware of the need for the terminal remodel," said Airport Manager Ron Madsen. "But real close to it is the ramp area."

"I wish we could do both," he added.

But the Federal Aviation Administration, which will pay for 75 percent of the terminal remodel and 90 percent of the ramp project, can't afford both.

But then again, neither can the airport, Madsen said.

"It always comes down to money."

In the $666,000 ramp project, the FAA would pay $399,400 and local entities would have to pay the other 10 percent or $66,600.

The terminal remodeling would cost about $1.2 million, with the FAA pitching in about $740,000. Twin Falls would have to come up with about $460,000.

Madsen said the airport could handle the $66,000 bill for the ramp project, but would have to go to voters for a bond issue or tax override to pay for the local portion of the terminal project.

And in the long run, Madsen told the board, repairing the ramp now will save the airport great expense later. The FAA will pay 90 percent

The Snake River: It's all Idaho's...

...even with unseasonal algae bloom

By N. S. NOKKENTVED Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Randall Morgan can't paddle his canoe through the Snake River near his home north of Buhl.

"The river is covered by a thick mat of algae that forms 'literally a carpet across' the river," he said. "It's incredible. It's worse now than last June."

Morgan said he is concerned with the annual algal bloom that seems to be getting worse — and about its implications on water quality in the Magic Valley.

"This is the health of the valley," he said.

The local office of the state Division of Environmental Quality is well aware of the problem and is tackling it with the help of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Mike McMasters, water quality field supervisor.

"We know it's bad, but not how bad it is," he said. In April, however, the division received a $30,000 grant through the EPA's non-point pollution source control program to put together a study that should answer that question.

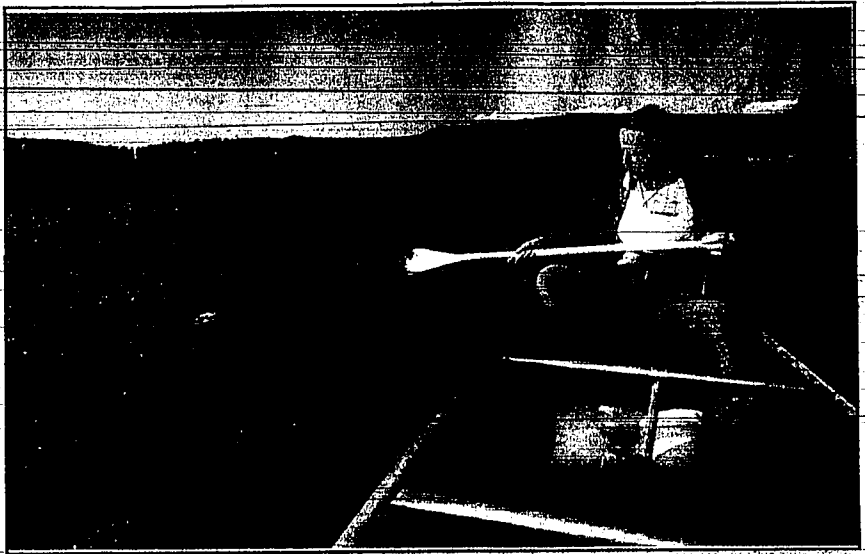

"If you identify sources and quantify them you know what actions need to be taken," McMasters said.

But the problem is not a new one. A lack of high spring flow in the Snake River basin normally flush the nutrients downstream have let those nutrients build up and feed the algal bloom in the river.

"It's there, but it hasn't manifested itself except for the last three years," McMasters said. His department has known about the problems for several years but has not had the resources to do anything about it, he said.

Runoff from agricultural lands, effluents from dairies, feedlots, fish hatcheries and sewage treatment plants contain the nutrients — nitrates, nitrites and phosphorus —

...and we intend to keep its water right here

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus talked with his colleagues in neighboring states on Tuesday to unify opposition to any diversion of Northwest water to other regions of the nation.

Andrus said he spoke with the governors of Oregon and Washington to solidify the states' position against the suggestion of a member of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors that Idaho's Snake River water and water from the Columbia River forming the Oregon-Washington border be diverted to drought-plagued Southern California.

"There is no surplus water in Idaho to transfer anywhere," Andrus said in a statement. "It seems like every few years we must educate Californians about the facts."

The governor's statement was the latest outburst from the Pacific Northwest since Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn on Monday proposed a 10-year, $10 billion aqueduct project to siphon water from the two rivers. California is in the fourth year of severe drought and water rationing has been initiated.

Andrus, joining other state officials in blasting the proposal, said he wanted to make sure the Northwest response will "end this talk before it goes any further."

The Democratic governor called Hahn's proposal ridiculous, predicting it would be successfully and totally blocked, and Congressman Larry Craig, a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, agreed.

"Since the time I was a small child, I have heard of grandiose schemes to divert water from Idaho to everything from the Arizona desert to southern California," Craig said.

"Because of those schemes, starting with the late Sen. Len B. Jordan, there have been prohibitions against the diversion of water from the Snake and Columbia rivers basins written into federal law."

"It would take more than an act of Congress for this member of the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County to gain anything more than public attention," Craig declared.

State Attorney General Jim Jones, who has ardently defended Idaho's water in the courts, said Hahn would get his way "over my dead body." Craig's primary opponent in the May 22 Senate race, Jones called Hahn's proposal "fighting words, and we've got plenty of fight in us."

Andrus press secretary Marc Johnson said earlier that Idahoans and their leaders "jealously and rightly protect our water and southern California's designs on our water don't impress us very much."

"Such an idea would make for good political rhetoric in Southern California, but people will be laughing about it up and down the Snake River."

President, GOP lawmakers review possible tax increases

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush discussed potential tax increases with Republican lawmakers Tuesday as Budget Director Richard Darman suggested deficit-fighting actions totaling as much as $100 billion may be needed this year.

A range of suggestions for raising revenues — including a national lottery, a one-cent federal sales tax and higher taxes on alcohol and tobacco — are "part of the mix," said Assistant Senate Republican Leader

Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo.

Darman's figures — he gave a range of $60 billion to $100 billion — were two to three times the size of the savings that Bush said would be needed when he proposed his fiscal 1991 budget in January.

The $100 billion figure is an outside possibility but "I was citing an extreme case," Darman said later in an interview.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley said he and other Democratic leaders would meet Wednesday morning with Bush on the budget. He commented after a meeting in which many House Democrats insisted that Bush be forced to specify the economic conditions that make major budget cuts necessary.

"If this summit is going to come up with very strong proposals on deficit reduction, we're going to have to lay some groundwork with the country why it's necessary," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif. He suggested major deficit-cutting action would "face a very tough time in the House and Senate on both sides of the aisle" in this election year.

Darman said the scope of the action required depends on the eventual cost of the saving and loan bailout "and that's impossible to estimate reliably at this point."

In any event, he said automatic spending cuts of over 20 percent throughout government loom this fall if Congress and the White House are unable to agree on a series of major deficit-cutting steps.

On whether Bush will support higher taxes as part of a budget compromise, Darman said: "He's prepared to talk without any preconditions."

Fire cripples guided missile destroyer, leaves 1 dead

The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va. — The guided-missile destroyer USS Conyngham limped back to port under tow Tuesday after a fire on the ship's nerve center, killing one sailor and injuring 12 others, the Navy said.

The fire started around 5:30 a.m. on the 27-year-old Conyngham about 80 miles off North Carolina, said Lt. Cmdr. Carrie Harshorne, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

The fire broke out in the No. 1 boiler room when the boiler was fired up, said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

"The fire spread to the combat information center spaces, which caused the captain to evacuate the combat information center and the bridge, temporarily leaving the ship without communications and dead in the water," Fitzwater said.

The Combat Information Center contains all of the ship's communications equipment plus sonar and radar. It is considered "the ship's nerve center."

The Norfolk-based ship, whose skipper is Cmdr. W.R. Williams, has a crew of 383.

The main fire was put out after about 2½ hours and the crew battled smaller secondary fires through the morning.

Atlantic fleet officials said the Conyngham was able to move under its own power en route to Norfolk at about 3 mph until midday, when it lost power about 60 miles east of Norfolk. It was then taken under tow by the salvage ship USS Opportune.

The guided-missile cruiser USS Normandy, the Briscoe and Coast Guard cutters Point Arena, Gentian and Forward also assisted the Conyngham, said Capt. Paul Hanley, a spokesman for the fleet.

The 12 injured sailors were flown by helicopter to hospitals.

Three sailors initially taken to Sentara Norfolk General Hospital Trauma Unit were transferred to the Portsmouth Naval Hospital to join the others. Officials listed four in guarded condition and eight as stable. The Navy said nine had burns and three suffered smoke inhalation.

The Navy identified the dead man as Lt. Algernon Pope Gordon Jr., 34, of Montgomery, Ala. A spokeswoman for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Montgomery said the victim was the son of a U.S. bankruptcy judge there. The spokeswoman said Gordon was married with three children.

Diaries

 Reagan met in Washington that morning with Ecuadorian President Leon Febres Cordero.
 There was an elaborate plan in the Reagan administration to induce three countries to support the Contras, according to evidence produced at North's trial last year. Bush had denied being involved in any "quid-pro-quo" arrangements providing additional economic and military aid to Honduras, in exchange for allowing the Contras to use base camps there.
 North's notes refer to a noon "meeting w/ P.P." on Aug. 6, 1986. That would have been just 3 1/2 hours after North lied to the House intelligence committee by denying he was supplying military advice to the Contras—North admitted he had lied when he took the witness stand at his own trial last year and when he testified in the recent trial of former National Security Adviser John Poindexter.
 Shortly before meeting with Bush, North had reviewed his diaries, the White House aide told a "meeting w/ Don Gregg." Bush's top national security aide.
 Gregg, now the U.S. ambassador to South Korea, has said he found out about North's involvement with the then-Secretary of State resupply network on Aug. 8, 1986. Gregg asserts he didn't tell Bush about North's involvement until four months later, after the Iran-Contra affair became public.

 The notebooks provide offer no elaboration on the Aug. 6 meeting entries. But earlier that day, the diaries show, North got a call relating to problems in the Contra resupply operation. The call was about Rodriguez, a former CIA operative sent to El Salvador with the blessing of Gregg.
 Rodriguez wound up working in North's Contra resupply network, but had a falling out with him. Rodriguez complained to Gregg on Aug. 8, 1986 that private operators were getting rich off of North's network.
 U.S. Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said he didn't believe Congress had seen the page referring to Bush and Gregg and Aug. 6 meetings.
 "It clearly at the very least would raise questions which ought to have been put at the time to appropriate witnesses," Hamilton said of the Aug. 6 entries. "I would have if I had seen them."

 The former House Iran-Contra committee chairman suggested that a congressional investigation might be in order.
 "If there is evidence relevant diaries were withheld, redacted or blacked out—then I would want" the House intelligence or judiciary committees to "conduct an investigation," said Hamilton.
 "I would expect the same of the independent counsel," he added, referring to the Iran-Contra prosecutor's office.
 North and others in the U.S. government who aren't identified by name in his notes met with Panamanian Gen. Manuel Noriega in March 1984, where the discussion focused on the role of Costa Rica as a "buffer" between Nicaragua and Panama.
 A March 6, 1984, entry focused on the "vulnerabilities" of Roberto D'Aubuisson, referring to his "inability to deliver U.S. aid," saying he was a "poor military officer" and alleging he "bumped off best friend," D'Aubuisson is the founder of Arena, now the ruling party in El Salvador. "What were the quids and the quos with all these countries?"

Oregon rejects water transfer idea

FORTLAND, Ore. (AP)— Oregon officials say a Los Angeles County supervisor's proposal to divert Pacific Northwest river water to drought-stricken Southern California is ludicrous and doesn't stand a chance.
 Gail Achteman, assistant for natural resources to Oregon Gov. Neil Goldschmidt, said Tuesday that similar proposals in the past led to a federal law that prohibits federal studies of diversion without approval of the governors of affected states.
 "Our response is that his notion that somehow water is wasted when it runs into the ocean, is based on a complete misunderstanding," Achteman said. "It's based on a notion that somehow it is good to dry up rivers before they go into oceans. Like Los Angeles has succeeded in doing to the Colorado River."

with a Washington state summit on how to resolve in-state disputes over a dwindling resource.
 Washington joined other Northwest states Tuesday in flatly rejecting California overtures for diversion of three billion gallons a day for the growth-choked, drought-stricken neighbor to the south.
 "We don't find the proposal either desirable or feasible," said Gov. Booth Gardner's spokesman, Dan Youmans.

Contra rebels give up their weapons

EL ALMENDRO, Nicaragua (AP)— Eighty Contra rebels turned in their weapons Tuesday to U.N. peacekeeping troops on the first day of their demobilization after nearly a decade of battle. A rebel leader said glumly: "We did not have the ending we all wanted."
 The disarming was the first under an accord reached last week between the government of President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro and the leadership of the Nicaragua Resistance, the Contra umbrella organization.

 of the bill to fix it now. But the FAA won't help cover any repair costs. Costs Madsen says are inevitable because of the ramp's condition.
 The Bureau of Land Management sets up a fire-fighting base each summer at one end of the general aviation ramp. The paved strip is also used as a taxi way for private craft, agriculture spray planes and Reeder Flying Service, Inc.
 Without the ramp, such craft would have to roll across sagebrush-clad fields to get to the runway.
 "The FAA allocates such grant money from the $7 billion Aviation Trust Fund on a five-year cycle. That cycle ends in 1991 and starts anew with fiscal year 1992. The ramp project would qualify as a 1991 project so the airport could apply for the terminal project as a 1992 project, but probably wouldn't get funding until late in the year."
 Further delays could occur, however, since Congress must approve how much the FAA gets for each cycle and has frequently been tardy in renewing the funding.
 Board members were optimistic, however, and said the delay will allow for better education of the public about the need for the terminal remodeling project, which will require the public's support to fly.
 In other business, the board also accepted the resignation of Airport Board Chairman Dick Showell. Dr. Greg Kadlec, a local allergist and asthma physician, will replace Showell.
 The board now has one vacant seat.

 that feed plants in the water, he said.
 An EPA-funded study, constructed to the University of Idaho Water Resource Institute in Kimberly, will use an EPA water quality computer model to find out what's happening in the river system, he said.
 Researchers will gather all the information available to test the model and to find out what further information is needed.
 The division has plenty of information on tributaries to the Snake, but not on the river itself, McMaisters said. The current study, however, should change that, he said.
 The study plan is nearly complete, and sampling should start in June in what McMaisters called a comprehensive assessment of existing conditions. It will identify pollution sources and how much each contributes to the river's problems.
 The division's information on tributaries such as Rock Creek, Vineyard Creek, Cedar Draw, Mud Creek and Billingsley Creek, provide a clue the conditions in the river, and a project to clean up Rock Creek has shown what is possible through voluntary efforts of land users.
 "If you can reduce any of the contributing sources that's going to help," McMaisters said.
 An ongoing study of Billingsley Creek shows it is a microcosm of the Snake River, McMaisters said.
 Agriculture practices along the creek have a major impact on surface and ground water quality, but they are not alone in affecting water quality, the study said.

 Individual operations may not create an aversive effect, but added up, the cumulative impact is plainly visible.
 Land use along the creek includes 12 fish farms, one feedlot, irrigated agriculture, grazing and residences.
 "With help from the Soil Conservation Service, the Division of Environmental Quality, Idaho Department of Agriculture, the College of Southern Idaho and the University of Idaho, the land users evaluated their operations and developed recommendations that would result in better water quality."
 It was a case study of what could be done on a voluntary basis, McMaisters said. And if everybody goes along with the recommendations, improvements could be seen within two years.
 But other land uses above the headwaters of the creek and nature also play a part in the creek's water quality. Water from Curran Springs, which feeds the creek, has a nitrogen level as high as the creek below the agricultural areas. Other nutrients also are present in the spring water.
 "These high nutrient levels in the headwaters of the stream are responsible for a significant part of the water quality problem in Billingsley Creek," said a University of Idaho report on the effort to clean up the creek.
 Waterfowl, beaver and muskrat also contribute to water quality problems in the creek.

Snake River flow boost to help fish

BOISE (AP) — Anglers and rafters should be aware Snake River water levels in Hells Canyon will fluctuate drastically in the next six days to boost steelhead migrations, Idaho Power Co. says.

Beginning about 11 a.m. Wednesday, the utility will nearly double outflows from the current average of 15,000 cubic feet per second to about 28,000 cfs. At that rate, it will take five days to release the full 150,000-acre-feet of water set aside for the fish flush. The action is the result of a cooperative agreement between Idaho Power and the Columbia Basin Fish and Wildlife Authority.

Salmon Council wants mayor to quit

SALMON (AP) — The Salmon City Council has called for Mayor Ed Guyton's resignation with each member elaborating on his alleged shortcomings in office.

Packed into the Monday night council meeting, more than 100 residents witnessed the culmination of five months of disagreements between Guyton and the board.

Business leaders seek INEL funding

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Falls business leaders are headed to Washington, D.C., to press for more funding for a unique brain cancer treatment project at the nearby Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"This particular project, with its medical applications, might be the wave of the future for Idaho," said Im Kopolow, director of the Greater Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Alcohol measure on Bingham ballot

BLACKFOOT (AP) — An advisory measure asking voters whether beer and wine sales should be allowed on Sunday will be on the May 22 primary ballot in Bingham County.

And even though the measure is advisory, county Commissioner Dale Arave said Tuesday that if a majority of voters support Sunday sales, the three-member commission will change the law to allow it.

Arave said the commission decided on the advisory vote because it would be easier and cheaper to assess voters' sentiments that way than to conduct an initiative petition drive and a binding countywide vote.

Man stable after getting new heart

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Matt Frogness, 19, who underwent heart transplant surgery Saturday was listed in serious, but stable condition at Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco Monday night.

A nursing supervisor at the hospital said there have been no complications with the new heart, but was uncertain when he might be transferred from the intensive care unit.

Growers brace for more cold weather

POCATELLO (AP) — Snow pelted eastern Idaho Tuesday as a Canadian low pressure system centered over Alberta threatened to send the mercury back below freezing, playing havoc with farmers throughout the southern part of the state.

Recent unseasonably cold nights have already damaged crops in many areas of southern Idaho, and the National Weather Service predicted another round of freezing or subfreezing temperatures on Wednesday morning.

"Protection should be provided for tender vegetation," officials said. "Protection may also be needed in the fruit growing areas of southwest Idaho, where lows in some of the colder areas may approach the critical upper 20-degree range."

Unofficial reports put snowfall in eastern Idaho at up to two inches in the Rigby and Arco areas, north and west of Idaho Falls, with lesser accumulations as far south as Pocatello. Visibility at both the Idaho Falls and Pocatello airports was a mile or less at midday.

Worst hit by the cold so far have been beet growers, and some losses were reported in southern and southeastern Idaho, according to extension agents Ivan Hopkins in Cassia County and Stan Gortsema in Power County.

Gortsema-estimated damage in Power and Bingham County alone at up to 20 percent.

Easily susceptible to frost damage in the early stages of development, beets do not become tolerant to cold until they are an inch or two high. Gortsema said grain in the area has also been tipped by frost.

Grazers may withhold fees from state in protest

BOISE (AP) — Some Idaho ranchers are dissatisfied with state grazing regulations and may pay only part of their grazing fees, Secretary of State Pete Cenarusa has notified the Idaho Land Board.

In February, Cenarusa as a board member called for freezing the 1990 grazing fees at $4.70 per animal-unit month. An AUM is the amount of land required to feed a cow and calf for a month. But his motion failed and the AUMs jumped to $5.21.

Some livestock operators have indicated they would only pay part of their grazing fees or none at all, said Cenarusa.

"They're concerned and would like the board's subcommittee on the grazing formula to meet as soon as possible," he said Tuesday at the Land Board meeting.

Fellow board member and Attorney General Jim Jones said the state would either pursue any payment deficiency or even revoke the grazing lease.

Idaho, other states ask court to let California execute man

BOISE (AP) — Idaho has joined four other states in filing a federal appeals court brief supporting California's effort to carry out the death sentence imposed more than 12 years ago on a condemned murderer.

The "friend of the court" brief was filed with the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Attorney General Jim Jones, Solicitor General Lynn Thomas and Special Deputy Attorney General Kent Scheidegger. Arizona, Montana, Nevada and Washington also signed on in support of California's position in the case. Oregon is the only other state in the 9th Circuit with the death penalty that did not join in the brief.

Robert Alton Harris was sentenced to death for the murders of two San Diego teen-agers who were kidnapped from the parking lot of a local restaurant. His conviction and sentence later were upheld by the California Supreme Court, a federal judge in San Diego and the U.S. Supreme Court.

But a few days before Harris was scheduled to be put to death last month, a 9th Circuit judge stayed the execution to allow the court to consider a claim that the psychiatrist who examined Harris at the time of the trial was incompetent.

The brief by Idaho and the other states urges the appellate court to reject the challenge of the psychiatrist's competence as a "new rule" of judicial procedure.

Kempton's the man for District 24 voters

The voters of Legislative District 24 will choose a new representative for the first time in 22 years next fall, and there is no shortage of strong candidates to replace 10-term incumbent Ernest Hale.

Hale, a Burley Republican who is a former chairman of the House Education Committee, is retiring from the district that includes Cassia, Jerome and Minidoka counties.

Seeking the Republican nomination in the May 22 primary to succeed him are Rupert farmer Harold Mohlman and Albion rancher Jim Kempton. The winner can expect a strong challenge from Oakley Democrat Mike Cranney in the fall.

Mohlman and Kempton both have strong backgrounds in agriculture. Mohlman has been an irrigation district director and Minidoka County fire commissioner, and he was among a group of Minidoka County citizens that persuaded the U.S. Geological Survey to take a look at "Cancer Ridge," an area whose residents have experienced an unusually high incidence of cancer.

Kempton, a retired Air Force officer who at various times served in the Pentagon and taught physics at the Air Force Academy, gave up his military career after 20 years to go into cattle ranching 10 years ago. He's been involved in the Mini-Cassia Development Commission and is campus coordinator of the Albion Centennial Commission.

Both candidates describe themselves as fiscal conservatives and both would be likely to resist further large increases in state spending for education. Both describe themselves as pro-life on abortion, but both would have voted against the highly restrictive House Bill 625 in the last Legislature and both have reservations about legislative attempts to impose abortion restrictions without a state referendum on the issue. Both are concerned with Idaho's decaying infrastructure and would like to see more money funneled to roads and bridges.

Both are credible candidates, but we lean toward Kempton, who has exceptional credentials for a legislative candidate. He's an Idaho native, has experience with the federal bureaucracy, has served as an assistant to the Secretary of Commerce and has gotten to know state government through his service on the Albion restoration campaign.

What's more, he has a vision of what he wants to accomplish in Boise and he knows how state government works. That's usually a successful combination for a lawmaker.

We like his ideas for the long-postponed efforts to restore the Albion campus with a combination of state cooperation and private enterprise; they're realistic enough to get the job done after these many years.

We like the way he's done his homework on issues confronting neighbors of the new City of Rocks National Reserve and the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument. We agree with him that major work on Idaho's secondary federal and state highways is long overdue, starting with Idaho 55 and U.S. 95 — the infamous North-South Highway.

He believes that funding for education should be commensurate with the state's ability to pay for it, but as a former college professor he understands the schools' paramount importance in Idaho's economic development.

Like Kempton, Mohlman recognizes Idaho's road needs. But he doesn't have a formula for paying the $7 billion road bill and he says he's reluctant to raise taxes to fix the highways. He talks about a general dissatisfaction with Idaho's public school teachers, but he offers no solutions to the education problems other than to say that parents have to be more involved and kids need to be better prepared before they graduate from high school.

But we think Kempton would be a moderate-conservative legislator in the tradition of Rupert's Steve Antone and Burley's Bruce Newcomb. He is a man of conservative principles who is flexible enough to know when to change.

Let's tell Air Force 1 more time

The "Air Force 1" sicker idea of the decade — Saylor Creek Expansion's vital signs may have been so low this evening that it was possible: Word trickling back from various Washington offices indicates the Air Force is setting in for a long vigil and that other government officials favor pulling the plug. Nevertheless, Idaho is Too Great to Bomb planners are expecting a good turnout on Mother's Day in Bruneau.

A day to celebrate "Saylor Creek, an Undone Deal" in the town park at Bruneau will see people from all over southern Idaho who have been working to prevent the conversion of the Bruneau plateau to a wasteland of derelict vehicles amid weeds and dust meet each other for the first time. It may be the first time in history that ranchers and hunters, pilots and river rafters, plus sagebrush huggers, will meet in agreement — a new phenomenon in Idaho.

Starting off at noon, a brass ensemble from Homedale High School will play a rousing trumpet voluntary and Bruneau rancher Tom Hall will give a welcome. Some of the speakers are Sen. John Peavey from Carey; George A. Bennett, former commander of Mountain Home Air Force Base; and Bart Brackett, president of the Idaho Cattle Association and just recently returned from Washington, D.C. An one story and microphone will allow input from anyone wishing to add information or encouragement to the crowd. More music and greetings will lead up to the spreading of a potluck picnic and chopping down on Frank Florence's top round of beef at 2 p.m.

Come out to Bruneau and bring your table and dishes, along with a potluck salad or dessert to share. Drinks are on the house. The evening starts at 7 p.m. Go south from Mountain Home on Highway 51. The park faces on the highway. This may be the last time we have to repeat to the Air Force that Idaho is Too Great to Bomb.

Local students part of dive study

I read with great interest the story of the Jason Project in The Times-News on Sunday, May 6, page B6 ("Robot diver explores 1812-era shipwrecks, relays information"). An one story and accompanying diagram, it was stated that there were museums in 14 cities in the United States that would be directly connected to the Jason's video cameras and steering gear during the dive, which was to take place on Wednesday, May 2. One of these cities was Salt Lake City.

You might be interested to know that about 39 students from O'Leary Junior High School traveled to Salt Lake City to participate in the Jason Project. As far as I am aware, these were the only Idaho students to participate in this project. They all came from the science classes of Mrs. Douds, Mr. Gallager and Mr. Mosley. These teachers should be commended for their efforts in this project, which for the students — was a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Trucker can't park in own drive

I am a truck driver and I live in Shoshone; but I am a man with a truck and no place to call "home."

It all began when my neighbor complained to the city and demanded to enforce the ordinance which restricts parking of commercial vehicles with a registered gross weight of over 26,000 pounds. Trucks have one hour to park in a residential area for delivery and pickup. This same ordinance says that residents owning more than one licensed recreational vehicle or trailer are prohibited from parking more than one of each on their personal property.

The only place in Shoshone where I can park my truck for an unlimited amount of time is on Highway 93; and up until May 1, I could park one-half block off Highway 93.

When I need to work on my truck, I leave my trailer on Highway 93 and park my truck in my driveway. Still, according to the police, I can only park in my driveway for one hour. For months now, the police have knocked on my door and telephoned me (during all hours of the day) telling me to move my truck out of my own personal property — my driveway!

On April 29, I legally parked my truck in front of a church. I realize the majority of you didn't know why I parked there, but a few of you know why. Let me tell you now: It's pretty sad when, in America, I can't park my truck in my own driveway; but I can legally park in front of a church (on Sunday, no less)! And rest assured that your council member has seen to it that this won't happen again!

Meanwhile, as I understand it, city officials do not want to enforce this ordinance; but when someone complains, they must act on it. Consequently, at least two or three in Shoshone must be special OK, or the remaining people in Shoshone the special ones. Time will tell.

Did Jerome officials drop ball?

Approximately 10 to 12 years ago, the federal government passed laws directed at protecting the environment. Some sections of these laws addressed the control and handling of dangerous chemicals used for herbicides and pesticides.

These laws also prohibited the indiscriminate disposal practices of these chemicals in order to protect the health of our citizens. Recognizing that the Jerome County Weed Department had been dumping chemicals in their compound previous to the adoption of the environmental law 10 years ago, amazingly, they continued this dumping practice right up to approximately one year ago when the weed department was finally shut down.

Either the county officials in charge didn't believe these laws applied to Jerome County, didn't know or didn't care. They allowed nine years of continued contamination when someone should have listened or known better.

Based on information I've read and similar problems involving other entities, I believe we — in Jerome County — have an ugly surprise in store for us.

Estimating the weed department compound at approximately 1 1/3 acres, we could conceivably be looking at an out-of-pocket cost of between $200,000 and $1,000,000 clean-up expense.

Oh, by the way, I understand the county has no chemical liability insurance protecting us. Must be just a small oversight.

Democrat praises Jim Jones

It has been said that all the Democrats do is whine and complain. Well, this old Democrat is going to put a Republican candidate on the back.

It's not too often that I am impressed by today's candidates. Most of them are greedy, self-righteous and arrogant. Candidates only care about how much money they can get their hands on. They try to buy their way into office with PAC money.

Now there is a candidate who is standing up and saying enough is enough. Now there is a candidate who cares about the people. Now there is a candidate who cares enough about corruption in government that he himself will get involved in cleaning it up. Now there is Jim Jones.

While Mr. Craig is sitting smugly with all of his out-of-state PAC money and figuring on making a killing with a snow job and advertising, Jim Jones is campaigning on truth and hard work. Jim Jones will win in a landslide if people will only open their eyes and look at the differences between him and Craig.

Any candidate who dips so low as to take PAC money deserves to be called nothing more than a "PAC Rat." Jim Jones has seen this light and we, the American citizens, need this kind of man in the Senate because he is on our side. I see the loud-mouthed muck head in Gooding has endorsed Larry Craig. To me, this is more than enough reason to vote for your man and mine — Jim Jones.

Federal spending way too high

Two hundred thousand people in Idaho can't afford basic health insurance. Canada spends 8 percent of its GNP on a health care plan and takes care of all 30 million people. The United States spends 12 percent of its GNP on medical care and still doesn't cover millions of our people. Something is very wrong!

I suggest we cut the military to the extent that the progressive congressmen in Washington D.C. have proposed. We won't lose jobs; we'll just change titles. We need directors to oversee and carry out a national health care plan, we need engineers and workers for roads and bridges and we need more teachers for my suggested smaller classes from kindergarten through third grade. Our children must not be neglected and our teachers must not be abused any more. You say cutting the military is not a state issue? When people in this state stood up against the SIS, Washington D.C. listened; but that took thousands of Idaho voices. When Cecil Andrus said, "no more nuclear wastes imported," he was listened to immediately; and he's just one. I may not be a state issue, but the opinions and letters of state senators and representatives will be taken a lot more seriously in Washington D.C. than will unrecognized individuals.

What I'm saying is that the federal government spends too much of our taxes on military and secret decisions and is not giving enough back to the states for education, roads and bridges and a comprehensive health care plan.

Parks expansion headed for vote

A warning has been sent out by the Public Lands Council to alert the Western people of the massive National Park expansion bill.

This bill would not only threaten the livelihood and property rights of private citizens but would be an enormous burden on the already overtaxed breadwinners of America. Also, the federal government does not have the money to properly take care of the national parks already in existence.

Remember, there is no hunting or fishing and no multiple use such as grazing, lumbering or mining within the boundaries of a national park.

On April 25, this Vento Park Boundary Bill went before the House Interior Sub-committee on National Parks and Public Lands for a vote. It now is headed for the Full House and on to the Senate.

Letters should be sent to: Sen. James McClure, U.S. Senate, 309 Hart Building, Washington, DC 20510; Sen. Steve Symms, U.S. Senate, 509 Hart Building, Washington, DC 20510; Rep. Richard Stalling, 1221 Longworth, House Office Building, Washington, DC 20515; Rep. Larry E. Craig, 1034 Longworth, House Office Building, Washington, DC 20515-1201.

Time for pro-choicers to act

With the primary election just around the corner (May 22), it's time for Idahoans to start thinking about who they want to elect for representation in Boise. Now is the time for believers in personal choice and freedom from government interference to put believers in office.

Pro-life signers, get all of your friends and relatives registered to vote by May 11 and then make sure you cast your ballot for the "choice" candidate of "your choice." If just a portion of the many people who called or wrote myself and other vocal members of the pro-choice coalition would make their voices heard, we could easily have our candidates in office.

For information on the candidates, please call 326-3202 or 734-1816. I strongly urge all voters to get out and become involved in our democratic process!

He has no answers to abuse

He thinks the lady doth protest too much. I refer, of course, to Donna Stalley and her reply to my letter.

I stated that "to the best of my knowledge and belief there was no VOCAL chapter in the Magic Valley." I will now modify that statement slightly: "There is no VOCAL chapter in Twin Falls." At this time I am unable to say for sure about surrounding towns, but I doubt it.

I will agree with you, any large organization will attract a certain amount of kooks and sickies — the larger the organization the more it attracts. That is an unfortunate fact of life.

I stand by my statement that a large percentage of abuse charges are false. In a study in Minnesota, four out of 10 percent of all sexual abuse charges in divorce matters were unfounded. That is a very large percentage. Multiply it by the total number of such allegations and that number is staggering. Your Denver study found that 8 percent of all sex abuse charges were deliberate lies, now add into that number the amount that were unfounded for all other reasons and again we have a large percentage.

In conclusion, let me say that I don't have the answers to child abuse or child pornography. I wish I did. But this much I do know: smut publications exist for profit and profit, and the only effective way to eliminate them is to kill the profit. I will be willing to bet that the copy of "Fingers" that you read was bought and the purveyors of porno pocketed a good profit on the sale. And to the extent that they profited by your reading the article, however well-intentioned you may be, you have contributed to child abuse. Think about it.

Army band concert fantastic

My husband and I have just attended the concert given by the Army Ground Forces Band in Twin Falls. It was thrilling. It stirred our patriotism: We wanted to shout, stomp and whistle. And we wished we could have met and thanked each member of the band. During the Armed Forces Salute we were proud to stand for three of our loved ones: three sons representing the Army, Navy and Air Force way back in the '60s — during the Vietnam War.

We loved the punctual precision of it all and marveled at the logistics of appearing in a different city every night, but then we are a "can-do" nation. Bless them for representing us all. Please come back again.

Millions at stake in which census numbers used

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political power and billions of dollars are at stake in a battle over which final census numbers will be better, the raw or the cooked, the actual count or one adjusted for people who were probably missed.

It's an argument that's been obscured by the early problems plaguing the census count. But a year from now, the question of adjusting the results of the census could be the center of a crucial and bitter debate among the states and cities, in Congress and in the courts.

"They can't beat us out, so they want to count us out," John D. Rogers, a Republican floor leader in the Kentucky Senate, charged in a letter to the Commerce Department.

Democrats and other advocates for minorities see the refusal to adjust as a method of disenfranchising their voters.

New York City Mayor David Dinkins charged that the undercount of minorities will cost cities hundreds of millions of dollars and many seats in Congress.

"They have gotten away with statistical malfeasance for 200 years and figures they can get away with it for another 10," Dinkins said.

"A decision against adjustment is a decision against a more accurate census," Javier P. Guajardo, an assistant attorney general in Texas, wrote the Commerce Department.

"A decision against a more accurate census is a decision against fair representation of the American public, in particular those who need to be counted most — minorities, the poor and the homeless."

The sides already are staking out their positions in terms of language, with opponents referring to adjustment as "fiddling" with the numbers, while those in favor prefer the term "correcting" the count.

Rep. Thomas C. Sawyer, D-Ohio, who heads the House subcommittee that supervises the census, seems to be leaning toward the idea of adjustment.

U.S. presses for death probe speedup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is pressing El Salvador's President Alfredo Cristiani for progress on investigating the murders of six Jesuit priests, the White House said Tuesday. Presidential chief of staff John Sununu raised the matter with Cristiani in a meeting Monday.

Insurance rate rollback may be dead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Supporters of voter-approved insurance rate rollbacks were swung by a recommendation that insurers be allowed a 13.2 percent profit for last year and up to 19 percent in the future.

Proposition 103 supporters said Monday's decision by an administrative law judge could kill voter-approved rate rollbacks.

"This decision starts Proposition 103 right on its head and says, 'It's business as usual,'" said Harvey Rosenfield, chief author of the November 1988 ballot initiative.

In his decision, Administrative Law Judge William J. Fernandez recommended a 13.2 percent profit for the year that ended in November. The recommendation is 2 percent above the long-term industry average.

"The profit margin would be allowed before an insurer was required to roll back its rates for automobile, homeowners' and other lines of property and casualty insurance covered by Proposition 103.

Rosenfield, a frequent foe of state insurance Commissioner Roxani Gillespie, said "It's about what we expected from a judge hired by Gillespie. ... We think Gillespie ought to just stop trying to implement Proposition 103 and leave it for the next commissioner."

U.S. has hopes for chemical pact with USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States hopes negotiations for a chemical-weapons pact with the Soviet Union can be concluded before the summit between President Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev, the State Department said Tuesday.

Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said a range of options were being discussed, but she refused to comment on a Washington Times report that the administration has offered to halt production of chemical weapons by a specific date as part of a compromise.

The negotiations are aimed at reaching a bilateral agreement to reduce chemical weapons stocks in anticipation of a global ban on the arms.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will discuss the issue next week in Moscow. The May 16-18 talks will lay the groundwork for Gorbachev's five-day visit to Washington, which begins May 30.

The Washington Times said in Tuesday editions that Baker has offered to halt U.S. production of new gas weapons by a specified date. That would be a shift from the previous position of ending the manufacture only after a separate multinational treaty banning such weapons went into effect.

Stamps available by phone order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans can now order postage stamps by phone all day, every day.

The U.S. Postal Service announced Tuesday that it has set up a nationwide stamps-by-phone system, operating 24 hours every day.

Customers can buy stamps using major credit cards by calling 1-800-782-6724 (1-800-STAMP-24). The agency tested the concept between 1987 and 1989. It has now hired the Dallas-based firm, TMI Corp., to handle the operation.

The system is expected to be most useful to small businesses, but can also be important to the elderly, the handicapped, and others for whom a trip to the post office can be difficult or time-consuming.

Stamps will be sold at face value plus a $3 service charge, per order, and mailed to the buyer.

12-year-old college student dreams of winning a Nobel Prize

NEW YORK (AP)—New York University has a real-life "Doogie Howser," and he's gunning for a place in the record books.

Not to mention a Nobel Prize.

He's Balamurati Krishna Ambati and he's a college junior. And, he's 12.

He aims to break a Guinness record by graduating from medical school at age 17.

"It all got started at the age of 3," Ambati, known as Bala, explained Monday during a break between exams. "I spilled a pot of boiling water onto myself. I was in the hospital for quite a few months."

"It was then that I decided I wanted to help other people—started thinking about medicine a few years back. I feel it is an avenue to assuage human suffering."

He seems to have the ability. Bala was precocious from birth. His older brother, Jaya, was no slouch, either: he's 19 and a second-year medical student.

"Some people ask me, 'What do you feed them?'" said their father, Ambati M. Rao, an industrial engineer.

Bala was born in Vellore, India. The family came to Buffalo when he was 3. He skipped a few grades as they moved around the country. He graduated from Baltimore's City College High School.

"After the first few grades, I knew I was different," he said. "I don't know what I'd be doing if I were still in the seventh grade. My mind may have gone to waste — and as everyone knows, a mind is a terrible thing to waste."

He became a freshman in NYU's pre-med program last fall and will complete his junior year this month. Bala wants to specialize in ophthalmology or cardiology and dreams of sharing the Nobel Prize in Medicine with his brother one day.

But first he wants to break the Guinness-Book-of-World-Records mark by an Israeli student who graduated with his M.D. from the University of Perugia in Italy at age 18. If everything goes as planned, Bala will graduate two months before his 18th birthday.

"A lot of people want to break some record, don't they? It's a matter of personal satisfaction," he said.

But en route, he'll face the rigors of adolescence and medical school simultaneously. And, perhaps, he'll face critics—who wonder about the maturity of a teen-age doctor.

"It depends from person to person what emotional maturity will be at the age of 17. I guess that since I have emotional maturity at age 12, in college, I presume I'll still have it after medical school," he said.

Still, he concedes, "I guess sometimes I may put pressure on myself. I want to succeed very much."

He lets off steam playing chess, video games, football, basketball and hockey, and collecting stamps. But he's never seen ABC-TV's "Doogie Howser, M.D." The sitcom about a kid doctor; Bala limits his viewing to network news, "Jeopardy" and "Star Trek—the Next Generation."

"I have sort of an adult personality and sort of a kid personality," he said. "Because of my acceleration I have friends in all grades, from seventh grade through college."

Bala attributes his success to "a combination of factors: God; my own ability; hard work, especially; and the help and support I get from my family. They give me so much motivation."

"If you ask me, it's primarily due to God. The second factor is proper motivation, proper channelization of mental faculties," said Rao.

Wisconsin woman won't be tried on adultery rap

ASHLAND, Wis. (AP)—A woman charged under the state's seldom-enforced adultery law won't be prosecuted, according to an agreement filed Monday.

The deferred prosecution agreement requires Donna E. Carroll, 28, to perform 40 hours of community service and attend two months of parental counseling sessions.

If she complies with the conditions the charge will be dismissed at the end of that period, under the agreement signed Monday by Acting Ashland County Circuit Court Judge Thomas J. Gallagher.

The woman, who filed the charge against Mrs. Carroll in July, did not return a call to his office Monday. He has refused in recent weeks to discuss the case.

Mrs. Carroll's lawyer, Jay S. Moynihan, said she entered into the trial, Mrs. Carroll, a homemaker, has been free on a $1,000 signature bond and has moved to Janesville with her 7-year-old son. Their phone number is unlisted.

Mrs. Carroll, who pleaded innocent adultery charge, had admitted during a divorce hearing that she had an extramarital affair in 1989.

Her new former husband, Robert, also admitted he had had an affair. But prosecutors did not press adultery charges against him, saying there was insufficient evidence to prove any violation occurred in Wisconsin.

A court-appointed guardian for the couple's son said last fall that Carroll wanted to disqualify his wife for custody, which she later won. Eaton has said the dispute played no part in his decision to charge Mrs. Carroll with adultery.

The statute, which prosecutors said seldom has been enforced, this century, prohibits a married person from having sexual intercourse with any person other than his or her spouse.

It carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

About two dozen other states still have criminal adultery laws, although enforcement has been virtually non-existent. The penalties are as minor as a $10 fine in Maryland.

In court briefs, Eaton argued the adultery law is still valid and is based on the "necessity of the state in the preservation of the marriage."

He also said the state historically has exercised its power to limit "the right of intimate association in private."

But Moynihan and the American Civil Liberties Union said the law is unconstitutional, denying the rights to privacy and equal protection and amounting to cruel and unusual punishment.

Eunice Edgar of the Wisconsin ACLU said the organization would push for repeal of the statute.

Public schools do little for emotionally disturbed, study says

NEW YORK (AP) — At least two of three emotionally disabled children are not getting the special help from public schools they're entitled to under federal law, according to a soon-to-be-released report.

Even students who get placed in special education too often encounter a stultifying "curriculum of control," heavy on silence and obedience and light on learning.

Some 47 percent dropout rate among youngsters with identified behavior disorders, according to a draft copy of "At the Schoolhouse Door: An Examination of Programs and Policies for Children with Behavioral and Emotional Problems."

Less than 1 percent of the public school population, about 400,000 students, were identified by school authorities as having behavioral disorders. But various studies estimate at least 3 percent to 5 percent of the school population are emotionally disturbed.

This suggests that at best somewhere between 10 and 30 percent of children in need are identified," the report said.

Such youngsters, like all with significant handicaps, are entitled by the 1975 federal Education All Handicapped Children Act to special education.

But whether or not such children get it seems to have as much to do with available resources and local attitudes toward difficult behavior as it does with a student's needs, the report concluded.

The report urged states to re-examine policies that encourage restrictive, costly placements of emotionally handicapped students. In some states, for example, school districts are "off-the-hook" financially if a student is referred to a state institution.

On the bright side, the study cited a number of schools and school districts trying to improve the lives of behaviorally disabled children.

But the picture at most other schools is far bleaker. According to the study:

- Children are often wrongly identified as emotionally handicapped, referred not as a result of proper clinical evaluations, but because they are "mad, bad, sad and can't add," and have thus gotten on the nerves of their teachers.
- Once a student is referred to special education as emotionally handicapped, only 10 percent ever return to full-time regular education.
- Only one of three emotionally disabled students functions at or above grade level.

- Teachers tend to set rigid classroom rules, subordinating learning to silence and order.
- Children, for example, may lose "points" or suffer punishments such as missing recess even if they try to help each other with problems they don't understand.
- Though youngsters often lack social skills, schools provide only limited of artificial opportunities to cooperate with peers.
- Few schools do anything to help emotionally disturbed students with potentially traumatic transitions.

Reform way science taught, group advises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Science teachers should stop spoon-feeding facts to students and allow them to "discover the sheer pleasure" of understanding science, a report said Tuesday.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science is calling for "a reform in science education from preschool to university," but said change is most critical at the college level.

Science, the report said, should be viewed as a liberal art.

"The experience of learning science as a liberal art must be extended to all young people so that they can discover the sheer pleasure and intellectual satisfaction of understanding science," the report said.

The report, the result of a three-year study by academics in the arts and sciences, said conventional methods of teaching science should be abandoned for more student-conducted experiments, specific goal setting and group work to allow students to analyze scientific principles.

Professors who simply lecture on scientific facts in conventional courses often leave students with "underdeveloped intellectual skills and little awareness of the influences of science on their lives," the report said.

Among the recommendations in the report, "The Liberal Arts of Science: Agenda for Action," were:

- Fifty percent of the instruction in a baccalaureate degree program should be devoted to liberal education; at least one quarter of that to liberal education in the natural sciences.
- In most institutions, that is equivalent to 15 to 16 semester hours of instruction in science for all students.

- Student-student and student-faculty interaction should be increased.
- There should be a major reform of national achievement and professional licensing tests. Scientific and professional societies must revise their exams to include all the goals of liberal studies in science.
- Institutions must set specific targets for increasing the number of science graduates from minority and disadvantaged groups.

Chamber's candidate forum slated tonight

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce will hold a public forum for Twin Falls School District candidates at 7 tonight at KMVT's community room.

The chamber's education committee has sent questions to each of the candidates. The candidates - Dave Sommers, Jan Rogers and James Glenn - will answer the questions in the first part of the program.

The public will then be able to ask questions. The KMVT studios are located at 1100 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Saylor bomb-range-growth opponents to picnic Sunday

BRUNEAU - Idahoans Against the Extension of the Saylor Creek Bombing Range plan a rally and cookout at noon Sunday at the BrunEAU Town Park.

The group opposes Air Force plans to expand the Saylor Creek range in Owyhee County to accommodate the transfer of 94 F-4 fighter jets to Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Frank Florence, whose family founded Falls Brand Meats, has donated beef for a barbecue. Participants are asked to bring a side dish or dessert and table service.

Peggy Ostlund of Twin Falls said anyone interested in preserving the southwest corner of Idaho is invited.

Voter registration deadline for primary 3 days away

TWIN FALLS - There are just three days left to register to vote in the upcoming primary elections.

Idahoans, age 18 and over, must register with their county's clerk before Friday in order to be eligible to cast their ballot on May 22. Several legislative races will be decided in this month's election, as well as primaries for congressional, statewide and county offices.

To qualify to register, a person must be a United States citizen; at least 18 years old and have resided in Idaho and in the county in which they are registering at least 30 days prior to the election. Residents who have not moved or changed their name and voted in the last general election are still registered.

The registration deadline has passed for the May 15 school board elections.

Hollister Council tackling open burning, other topics

HOLLISTER - The City Council will meet at 8 tonight at City Hall to draft ordinances dealing with a number of local issues, such as open burning, trash collection, building and electrical codes and public nuisances.

The council has been meeting nearly every week since January in an effort to establish regulations governing certain city matters.

City officials are considering banning open burning, adding $2 a month on to water bills for trash collection, establishing building and electrical codes based on the Uniform Building Code and enacting a broadly worded public nuisance ordinance.

The city may also propose an ordinance setting out guidelines for shutting off water to customers with over-due water bills.

Any proposed ordinances would have to be presented in a hearing to the public and be considered at future council meetings.

Fire does $200,000 worth of damage to shed at park

TWIN FALLS - An early morning fire on Tuesday caused $200,000 worth of damage to a shed and its contents at Sunset Memorial Park, according to Kimberly Fire Chief Bob Vawser.

Vawser was investigating the cause of the fire Tuesday evening.

The fire was reported at 5:45 a.m. and apparently started in the south end of the building, Vawser said.

The 50-by-200-foot shed, with a wooden frame and galvanized tin walls, was fully involved when firefighters arrived at the scene, he said.

The structure was completely destroyed, and stone-carving machinery inside was also damaged.

The blaze was brought under control in an hour, but firefighters were on the scene for five hours, Vawser said. Chemicals inside the shed would flare up after being doused, but no one was injured by the fire.

California man seeks permit for dam at King Hill

By N. S. NOKKENTVED
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A California developer has reapplied for a federal permit for a proposed hydroelectric project near King Hill.

A preliminary permit protects the developer from competing applications at a potential site while studies are prepared for a license application.

The proposed 500-foot-long and 123-foot-high dam would back up a 560-acre lake. O'Keefe submitted an application in February for a project first proposed nearly six years ago by Glenns Ferry farmer Donald Barnhill, who hired O'Keefe to develop the site. A previous application has expired.

Neither O'Keefe nor Barnhill could be reached Tuesday.

But the problems with the original proposal haven't changed, said Bob Cordell, Bennett Hills Resource Area manager.

Idaho Power Co. dropped its plans to develop the site in 1982 because of potential impact on sturgeon habitat and archeological sites as well as a regional energy surplus at the time.

"Those issues are still there," Cordell said.

Potential problems with the project include geology of the site and impacts on "recreation and endemic species" threatened or endangered lists, he said.

Damage to fish and wildlife habitat would be "unmitigable" if the dike dam were built, said Will Reid a fisheries biologist with Idaho Fish and Game Department.

The area is valuable spawning and rearing habitat for white sturgeon, and he said: "Impounding the section of free

Visitors, riding in a van, view a hill of appliances and other discarded metal objects of the Buhl landfill

County officials get close look at scope of solid waste problem

By JENNIFER KAUTH
Times-News writer

BUHL - Wind-blown trash strangled by the squares of a wire fence signaled the proximity of the Buhl landfill.

Inside the compound, workers hustled to cover a mound of freshly dumped tires, lawn clippings, cardboard, tin cans, plastics and other garbage before the wind could blow any more away from the trench.

A group of visitors watched and listened to an explanation as part of an afternoon tour of the county's landfills Tuesday.

With expected new landfill regulations, called Subtitle D, Twin Falls and other counties are contemplating a regional solid waste plan proposed recently by the South Central District Health Department.

Such a regional plan would reduce costs to each county, though Twin Falls would receive the smallest price break since it generates the most garbage.

It's also likely that Twin Falls County would be the site of a regional landfill because of its location and because of the volume of solid waste it generates.

The group, a solid waste citizens advisory board, has recommended Twin Falls jump into negotiations with other counties for a regional plan and promote an educational program that encourages local folk to recycle and teaches people about the options available for dealing with solid waste.

Public health officials say the new regulations could shut down all but three of the Magic Valley's 23 landfills.

And those three would need considerable upgrading to meet the requirements.

The Subtitle D regulations are expected to be issued soon, possibly as early as next week.

Pro-ifer speaks to class; pro-choicer irked

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A local pro-choice activist criticized an O'Leary Junior High School teacher's decision to have a pro-life activist teach students about reproduction.

"While I totally endorse the use of outside speakers to enhance classroom discussion, I strongly question Mr. (Phil) Gerrish's judgment and possibly his motives in choosing this particular individual," said Blaine Billman, a local pro-choice activist.

Billman said he took exception to Karen Hefner speaking about reproduction at an O'Leary class last month.

Hefner, who Gerrish invited to speak, has counseled pregnant women for the past 12 years and is a legislative lobbyist for Right to Life of Idaho.

"I respect her right to believe as she does," Billman said. "However, it is reasonable to assume that due to that background, she is unable to present an unbiased view on reproduction."

He also questioned whether Hefner's background in speech pathology qualified her for teaching in a science classroom.

The school's nurse would have been a more qualified choice, he said.

"In the past, Mr. Gerrish has stirred controversy in this district through his teaching of creationism. He is also a staunch supporter of the pro-life movement," Billman said. "One can not help but wonder about Mr. Gerrish's motives when you consider these objections."

"I am appalled that a teacher would so brazenly ignore the ethics of his profession, and I want to make sure that this does not happen again," he said.

Hefner countered by saying that Gerrish asked her to give the presentation on birth based on her counseling background and because she had a daughter in the seventh grade.

Gerrish's request came a year ago, long before she became a prominent advocate against abortion, she said. Hefner said she knew Gerrish's stand on abortion but they had not participated together in pro-life activities, she said.

"I was not asked to come into the classroom and talk about abortion," she said.

She said the models of fetuses she used in her lecture were obtained from a medical supply company and that photographs were of fetal development.

Her talk was not technical, Hefner said. And it is not uncommon for parents to participate in such lessons, she said.

"I think any of you here could have told them the same things," Hefner said.

When a student during the lecture asked her what her stand was on abortion: "I told them I did not believe in abortion." That was the beginning and the end of that.

When another student asked her when life began, she responded by reminding the student about what she had said about the fertilization of an egg by sperm and told him to draw his own conclusion, she said.

Union head against swap of ads for TVs

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The regional teacher's union president says he is adamantly against an advertising company's offer to show commercials in school.

"I don't think it is the role of the school to turn children into consumers," said Terry Gilbert, regional director of the Idaho Educational Association.

Gilbert made his comments on the same day that Assistant Superintendent Ken Olson recommended that the Twin Falls School District to sign a three-year agreement with Whittle Communications of Knoxville, Tenn., for the Channel One programming.

Whittle is offering about $150,000 in satellite dishes, television sets, VCRs, cable connections and a daily 12-minute broadcast on Channel One geared toward teenagers.

In exchange it wants to show two minutes of sneaker and candy commercials to children.

"But, Whittle doesn't give away all this paraphernalia for free," Gilbert said. "In return, they gain access to an extremely lucrative and impressionable market: the teen-age consumer."

Gilbert said he will recommend to that local union's executive committee strongly oppose Channel One because the service exploits children.

"Channel One represents the selling by school districts to access by national commercial vendors to captive teen-age students who are valuable because they are regarded primarily as a lucrative market, not because they are primarily regarded as learners," he said.

Several other cable companies offer similar programs for schools including CHN, which produces a daily 15-minute news program for 9,400 schools at no

Hospital board OKs purchasing new scanner

By KIRK MITCHELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Regional Medical Center board of trustees has approved the purchase of a new magnetic resonance imaging machine for the Southern Idaho Regional Cancer Center.

"We're moving up installation sooner than we thought," hospital Administrator John Bingham said.

The board on Monday night approved the purchase of the machine to replace a leased MRI unit currently being housed in a mobile home next to the hospital. The new machine plus maintenance and materials will cost $3.2 million over five years.

The MRI uses a laser camera and computers to create images of the human body. The magnet causes hydrogen atoms, the human body's most common atoms, to align with it. The atoms give off faint signals that the computer transforms into images.

The MRI is especially suited for examining the pelvis, liver, spinal cord, knees, tennis cartilage, blood vessels and other soft tissues of areas that might be obstructed from view by bone.

The new machine will be able to take images of shoulders and extremities, unlike the current machine, and it also will reduce exam times for patients and provide clearer images.

Bingham said the board pushed up the replacement of the leased machine by six months.

The new machine will be ready for use

Wrecked plane recovered from reservoir

By ANITA DENNIS
Times-News writer

ROBERSON - The plane that crashed and killed a passenger on Monday was pulled from the Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir Tuesday.

A Federal Aviation Administration official in town will coordinate the follow-up investigation, Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said.

Thirteen-year-old Kyle Parrish, a movie stuntman from Ketchum, drowned shortly after the Piper Super Cub hit the water at 8:45 a.m.

Parrish and the pilot, Michael Brunetto, 50, also of Ketchum, had been flying low over Sandy Beach, where Parrish's plane was camped. On their second pass over the camp, the plane clipped the top of Leon and Christella Parrish's tent, and the left wing struck the windshield of their pickup, which was parked next to the tent at the water's edge.

The plane then flipped and landed in 16 feet of water. Brunetto escaped quickly, but Parrish was held under water by his clothing, and couldn't get free despite rescue attempts by his parents and the pilot.

Brunetto, who also owns the plane, was not seriously injured.

All three campers were used to lift the 48-year-old plane out of the reservoir, Munn said. The crew took 2 1/2 to three hours, Munn said, and the plane was finally out of the water at about 3 p.m.

"This was a job," Munn said.

Twin Falls County provided the equipment and hauled the plane back to its shop, Munn said. The Intermountain Dive Team of Twin Falls and Twin Falls deputies assisted in salvaging the aircraft.

Not enough fuel leaked to cause any harm, Munn said.

The National Transportation Safety Board is in charge of the investigation, but the FAA will do the legwork, NTSB Regional Director Keith McGuire said from Seattle.

Burley city attorney to battle Idaho Citizens Network lawsuit

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News Correspondent

BURLEY—The city attorney will defend Burley from a legal action against the city.
City Council members passed a resolution Monday to allow Bill Parsons to represent them in a lawsuit with the Idaho Citizens Network.
Last fall the city filed a suit against the group, which lobbies for the rights of the handicapped, to keep members from picketing or obstructing city meetings. In June, local handicapped residents and others blocked the entrance to City Hall for about ten hours, protesting accessibility to the building.
The Idaho Citizen's Network filed a countersuit alleging various civil rights and accessibility violations.

A 5th District Judge recently allowed the group to amend the suit as defendants.

Area resident Connie Williams said at Monday's meeting the city shouldn't have to pay for the council members' defense.

The council decided the resolution was appropriate because the council members weren't acting as individuals but as a City Council.

No further hearings on the suit have been scheduled, but Parsons said it is likely more preliminary hearings will occur.

The council also approved a drilling on East 16th Street to test the compaction of the street.

The city has been trying to resolve a dispute with Jerry Walton's Underground Systems over a repair job to the street some time ago.

The city contends Walton's work was unacceptable. The cost of the sample will be about $700.

The city will soon have an ordinance which will allow open burning within the city limits.

The burning will be by permit only. Burns won't be permitted until the new ordinance is published in the newspaper.

The district had a $1.9 million surplus last year that could be used to buy the equipment without the White controls, which prohibit the use of any other broadcast on their television sets, Gilbert said.
Gilbert is not alone in his opposition.

Major educational organizations, which oppose Channel One include the National Education Association, the national PTA, the American Association of School Administrators, National Secondary School Principals, National State Boards of Education and the Council of Chief State School Officers.
The State Board of Education in North Carolina has banned Channel One from public schools.
Peggy Charren, president of the public interest group Action for Children's Television, said in a telephone interview Tuesday that in-school commercials send the wrong message to students.

Instead of teaching children that what matters is what they do, know and are, the commercials teach them that what they have and what they wear is important, she said.
"That's a hell of a thing to tell kids who don't have any money," she said. "They advertise sneakers in schools that have dress codes banning expensive shoes because kids are mugging each other for clothes."

Channel One is in about 3,400 schools around the country, she said. Two minutes a day throughout the school year are equivalent to one full day of school, she said.

"Reid did not think PERC would honor Fish and Game request to deny a permit, but he said the department would notify—the department in that preparing a license application would be costly and the river would probably not be able to build the dam anyway."

The Dike site is within a stretch of the Snake River set aside by legislative action for interim protection pending the state Water Resources Board's development of a state-wide rivers plan.
That plan is due to be released July 1.
The site is about 15 miles downstream from the A. J. Wiley site where the city of Idaho Falls and Tacoma City Light have proposed an 86-megawatt dam to supply power to Tacoma, Wash. and Idaho Falls.

Week-long grand opening activities will begin June 23 for the new cancer center, Bingham said.
In other business, the board approved the renovation of the hospital's emergency room.
The $26,000 enlargement will double the seating in the emergency room to 16 seats and improve the registration area.

The expansion was needed because of increased use of the emergency room, Bingham said.

Ketchum tables restaurant expansion to study parking aspect

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

found the Ketchum council reluctant Monday to approve his plan to add a second-story to his restaurant. The council tabled approval of the 1,100-square-foot addition so members can study the addition's impact on the city's limited parking spaces.

During considerable discussion, council members questioned the city's policy of setting aside parking provisions when businesses expand in return for cash compensation.

"I haven't heard anyone in town support in-lieu payments," Councilman Tom Held said.

"I'm totally against in-lieu payments," Councilman Guy Coles said.

A city ordinance currently allows new and/or expanded facilities within the city's core business area to provide payment to the city in lieu of providing on-site parking.

Wimer agreed with the council that his $6,720 in-lieu payment seemed low, saying "to be honest it does seem a little cheap."

Councilwoman Sue Wolford, after first supporting Wimer, changed her mind and voted with Held to table the matter. Coles-voted against tabling.

Councilwoman Suzanne Orb removed herself from the debate due to conflict of interest.

Council members said during discussion the Wimer proposal might not meet one of five criteria needed in order to accept the in-lieu payments — that the project not result in an unreasonable demand on area parking.

But Wimer said the restaurant is open in the evenings, when downtown parking isn't critical.

In another parking matter, the council agreed to pay local businessman Louis Mallane, $750 a month to rent a vacant lot the city uses for public parking.

The council directed Mayor Larry

Young to negotiate with Mallane to obtain a long-term lease on the property.

The present arrangement is on a month-to-month basis, allowing Mallane to raise the rent every 30 days if he chooses.

All the council members said they were concerned about the rapidly rising land prices.

In-lieu parking fees will not raise sufficient funds to purchase land for parking unless the fees are raised substantially, Held pointed out.

Shoppers pick Resale clothing store as most popular Twin Falls business

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A "gently worn" clothing store has won the hearts of the Twin Falls shoppers.

Mrs. M's Resale's, with a business formula of consignment sales and trading, received more votes than any other business in a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored popularity contest.

And the business started, at least in part, as therapy for owner Marilyn Hempleman after her daughter was killed by a drunk driver in 1988.

"I think I would have lost my mind if I hadn't gotten into this," Hempleman said Tuesday.

Hempleman said a lot of young career women and new mothers frequent the store, which offers a variety of women's and maternity wear, as well as formal dresses for teenagers.

Mrs. M's Resale, 1176 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., received the most votes from the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce "People's Choice" contest during its Small Business Week festivities. The chamber distributed ballots at local stores and in newspaper ads during the course of the contest.

Small business week activities were organized by the chamber's Business Retention Committee. A seminar on small-business advertising strategies will be held today at 10:30 a.m. at the Weston Plaza Hotel.

This is the first year the chamber has sponsored a small business appreciation week. It presented a multitude of awards, but the top honor went to Tom Ashenbrenner of Price Hardware, who was named Small Business Person of the Year, an award based on civic activities as well as business success.

Other "People's Choice" finalists were:

- Price Hardware Co., 147 Main Ave. W.
- Gum State Trophies & Advertising, 371 Locust St. S.
- Venzon Jewelers, 153 Main Ave. W.
- Everybody's Business, 705 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.
- Canyon Springs Inn, 1357 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.
- Engberg's — Handcrafted Furniture, 221 Main Ave. W.
- Austin's Truck Brokerage Inc., 832 Harold St.
- Showwell's Inc., 134 Ostrander St.
- St. Vincent de Paul Center, 244 Main Ave. S.

State announces program to help fund small businesses

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department of Finance has announced a program to ease financing for small businesses.

The department has prepared a simplified form to register corporate securities, such as public stock, for small businesses. It hopes the new form will make it easier for small businesses to find investment money in a state that is venture-capital poor.

The form allows companies to use public advertising to raise up to $1 million in offerings from an unlimited number of investors. The form, called Small Corporate Offering Registration Form (SCORF) uses an easily readable question-and-answer format usable by accountants, lawyers or other people who aren't securities experts. That should reduce offering costs and increase the amount of money available for the company to invest.

"SCORF is intended to provide financing for those businesses in need of capital that cannot find, or do not want the limitations of, bank financing or venture capital funding," Department Director Belton J. Patty said in a prepared release.

The department also announced the publication of three brochures to help small-business capital formation. The brochures explain the Small Corporate Offering form and how to use it; advice to investors in small businesses; and the basics of issuing securities.

For more information, contact the Department at 334-3684.

Burley city attorney to battle Idaho Citizens Network lawsuit

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The city attorney will defend Burley from a legal action against the city.

City Council members passed a resolution Monday to allow Bill Parsons to represent them in a lawsuit with the Idaho Citizens Network.

Last fall the city filed a suit against the group, which lobbies for the rights of the handicapped, to keep members from picketing or obstructing city meetings.

A lawsuit alleging various civil rights and accessibility violations. A 5th District Judge recently allowed the group to amend the suit to add council members as defendants.

Area resident Connie Williams said Monday's meeting the city shouldn't have to pay for the council members' defense.

The council decided the resolution was appropriate because the council members weren't acting as individuals but as a City Council.

No further hearings on the suit have been scheduled, but Parsons said it is likely more preliminary hearings will occur.

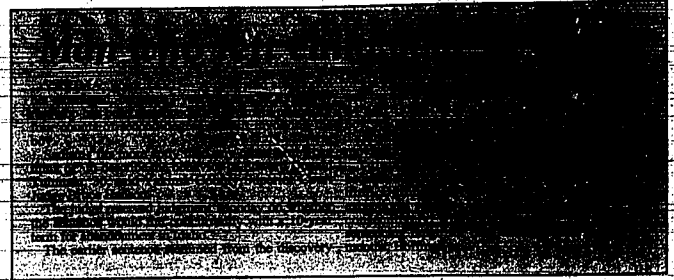

The council also approved a drilling on East 16th Street to test the compaction of the street.

The city has been trying to resolve a dispute with Jerry Walton's Underground Systems over a repair job to the street some time ago.

The city contends Walton's work was unacceptable. The cost of the sample will be about $700.

The city will soon have an ordinance which will allow open burning within the city limits.

The burning will be permitted only if Burns won't be permitted until the new ordinance is published in the newspaper.

him to give a lecture once on alternatives to evolution and two other lecturers were invited to discuss evolution. "I resent accusations against his integrity," Hicks said.

The district had a $1.9 million surplus last year that could be used to buy the equipment without the Whittle controls, which prohibit the use of any other broadcast on their television sets, Gilbert said.

Gilbert is not alone in his opposition. Major educational organizations which oppose Channel One include the National Education Association, the National PTA, the American Association of School Administrators, National Secondary School Principals, National State Boards of Education and the Council of Chief State School Officers.

The State Board of Education in North Carolina has banned Channel One from public schools. Peggy Charren, president of the public interest group Action for Children's Television, said in a telephone interview Tuesday that in-school commercials send the wrong message to students.

Instead of teaching children that what matters is what they do, know and are, the commercials teach them that what they have and what they wear is important, she said.

"That's a hell of a thing to tell kids who don't have any money," she said. "They advertise sneakers in schools that have dress codes because kids are mugging each other for clothes."

Channel One is in about 3,400 schools around the country, she said. Two minutes a day throughout the school year are equivalent to one full day of school, she said.

Whittle salesman give a deceptive presentation to school boards, she said.

"If anyone thinks Whittle is in the do-goody business ought to have their heads examined," Charren said. She said some educators are rationalizing that by showing the commercials they can teach children how not to be influenced by them.

"You need to give them drugs so they learn how to deal with drugs," she asked.

Crash

interviewing the pilot and witnesses and checking the weather conditions at the time of the crash to determine its probable cause.

"It's pretty much a routine," McGuire said.

An FAA spokesman in Seattle, Mitch Barker, said no reprimand has been considered against Brunetto.

"At this point, there's no indication that that's been compromised," Barker said.

At 8 a.m. Monday, Brunetto and Parrish took off from Mary's River Ranch, north of Death, Nev., where they were on business. They were heading home and flew low over Sandy Beach, on the east side of the reservoir, to wave to Parrish's parents.

Another camper summoned help after he heard the crash.

The Elko County Sheriff's Office, Jackpot fire and ambulance crews, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, Twin Falls ambulance, Twin Falls and Buhl Search and Rescue teams and the Intermountain Dive Team all responded to the scene.

Parrish's body was removed from the plane three hours after it crashed.

within six months, he said. The Cancer Treatment Center was built to house the larger machine. Week-long grand opening activities will begin June 25 for the new cancer center, Bingham said.

In other business, the board approved the renovation of the hospital's emergency room.

The $26,000 enlargement will double the seating in the emergency room to 16 seats and improve the registration area.

The expansion was needed because of increased use of the emergency room, Bingham said.

Ketchum tables restaurant expansion to study parking aspect

By ROBERT DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM—Business owners who wish to expand their retail and service outlets may have their plans squashed unless they can provide additional parking spaces.

Duffy Witmer, owner of The Pioneer Restaurant on Main Street, found the Ketchum council reluctant Monday to approve his plan to add a second story to his restaurant. The council tabled approval of the 1,100-square-foot addition so members can study the addition's impact on the city's limited parking spaces.

During considerable discussion, council members questioned the city's policy of setting aside parking provisions when businesses expand in return for cash compensation.

"I haven't heard anyone in town support in-lieu payments," Councilman Tom Held said.

"I'm totally against in-lieu payments," Councilman Guy Coles said.

A city ordinance currently allows new and/or expanded facilities within the city's core business area to provide payment to the city in lieu of providing on-site parking.

Witmer agreed with the council that his $6,720 in-lieu payment seemed low, saying, "to be honest it does seem a little cheap."

Councilwoman Sue Wolford, after first supporting Witmer, changed her mind and voted with Held to table the matter. Coles voted against tabling.

Councilwoman Suzanne Orb removed herself from the debate due to conflict of interest.

Council members said during discussion the Witmer proposal might not meet one of five criteria needed in order to accept the in-lieu payments—that the project not result in "an unreasonable demand on area parking."

But Witmer said the restaurant is open in the evenings, when downtown parking isn't critical.

Young to negotiate with Mallonee to obtain a long-term lease on the property.

The present arrangement is on a month-to-month basis, allowing Mallonee to raise the rent every 30 days if he chooses.

All the council members said they were concerned about the rapidly rising land prices.

In-lieu parking fees will not raise sufficient funds to purchase land for parking unless the fees are raised substantially, Held pointed out.

Shoppers pick Resale clothing store as most popular Twin Falls business

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—A "gently worn" clothing store has won the hearts of the Twin Falls shoppers.

Mrs. M's Resale's, with a business formula of consignment sales and trading, received more votes than any other business in a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored popularity contest.

And the business started, at least in part, as therapy for owner Marilyn Hempleman after her daughter was killed by a drunk driver in 1988.

"I think I would have lost my mind if I hadn't gotten into this," Hempleman said Tuesday.

Hempleman said a lot of young career women and new mothers frequent the store, which offers a variety of women's and maternity wear, as well as formal dresses for teenagers.

Mrs. M's Resale, 1176 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., received the most votes from the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce "People's Choice" contest during its Small Business Week festivities. The chamber distributed ballots at local stores and in newspaper ads during the course of the contest.

Small business week activities were organized by the chamber's Business Retention Committee. A seminar on small-business advertising strategies will be held today at 10:30 a.m. at the Weston Plaza Hotel.

This is the first year the chamber has sponsored a small business appreciation week. It presented a multitude of awards, but the top honor went to Tom Ashenbrenner of Price Hardware, who was named Small Business Person of the Year, an award based on civic activities as well as business success.

Other "People's Choice" finalists were:

- Price Hardware Co., 147 Main Ave. W.
- Gem State Trophies & Advertising, 371 Locust St. S.
- Venzon Jewelers, 153 Main Ave. W.
- Everybody's Business, 705 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.
- Canyon Springs Inn, 1357 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.
- Engberg's—Handcrafted Furniture, 221 Main Ave. W.
- Austin's Truck Brokerage Inc., 832 Harold St.
- Shotwell's Inc., 134 Ostrander St.
- St. Vincent de Paul Center, 244 Main Ave. S.
- The Double Decker restaurant, 117 Main Ave. E.

State announces program to help fund small businesses

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—The Idaho Department of Finance has announced a program to ease financing for small businesses.

The department has prepared a simplified form to register corporate securities, such as public stock, for small businesses. It hopes the new form will make it easier for small businesses to find investment money in a state that is venture-capital poor.

The form allows companies to use public advertising to raise up to $1 million in offerings from an unlimited number of investors. The form, called Small Corporate Offering Registration Form (SCORF) uses an easily readable question-and-answer format usable by accountants, lawyers or other people who aren't securities experts.

That should reduce offering costs and increase the amount of money available for the company to invest.

"SCORF is intended to provide financing for those businesses in need of capital that cannot find, or do not want the limitations of, bank financing or venture capital funding," Department Director Belton J. Parry said in a prepared release.

The department also announced the publication of three brochures to help small-business capital formation. The brochures explain the Small Corporate Offering form and how to use it; advice to investors in small businesses; and the basics of issuing securities.

For more information, contact the Department at 334-3684.

17 share home in flooded neighborhood

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The rain-swollen Arkansas River on Tuesday reached a record level, forcing residents into unusual living arrangements, such as the 17 people from four families sharing Sandy Pratt's house.

"I'm just glad they all have a place to go," said Mrs. Pratt, whose 13 neighbors moved in last week after the Arkansas River flooded. "As long as we're dry on this hill, they have a place to eat and sleep and get clean."

That means eating in shifts, sleeping over sleeping buddies, standing in line for the bathroom and hearing the wending whirr of washer and dryer.

The river reached a record 27.6 feet at Little Rock, 4 feet above flood stage, forcing an estimated 325 families from their homes.

In Texas, the Trinity River caused the region's worst flooding in 80 years, with more than 1,600 people seeking shelter. Oklahoma's Lake Texoma, which crested 27 feet above flood stage, has forced hundreds of people to evacuate.

In the past two weeks, floods contributed to the deaths of 13 people in Texas and one in Oklahoma.

North Little Rock city employees unload sand-bags to help build a levee.

Officials said the flooding along the Arkansas River was the worst since a 1927 rampage that prompted construction of many of the levees along the river.

Mrs. Pratt, who grew up in the neighborhood where she now lives with her husband and two children, said she was going grocery shopping Friday night when she learned relatives and others down the street were being told to leave.

"I told my mother, 'Well, I guess I'd better go (to the grocery store) because it looks like I'm going to have company.'"

The company included her parents, her sister's family of three and another neighbor's family of seven. The Wombles, the Irvings and the Carrolls spent the night packing their belongings into rented trucks. On Saturday morning, when the trucks were parked on higher ground, they moved in with the Pratts.

"You can imagine trying to cook for 17 people," said Mrs. Pratt. "We eat in shifts."

Her sister, Vicki Carroll, added: "We all kind of line up around the coffee pot and at the refrigerator."

Many of their meals have been provided by the Salvation Army, which has a vendor's truck set up at the end of the block. "As soon as they see us, they come down with sausage and biscuits and coffee," Mrs. Pratt said.

Sleeping bags, the couch and a pop-up camper in the back yard have been used for bed space. "There were bodies everywhere," said Eunice Womble, Mrs. Pratt's mother.

Getting into the bathroom also has been difficult. "It's almost time to go to bed by the time we all get clean," she said. "We have two bathrooms, so that helped."

Ex-hostage gains weight, still tires easily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freed hostage Frank Read is in good spirits, sleep well and is beginning to regain some of the approximately 50 pounds he lost in captivity, a brief medical report said Tuesday. However, Read is expected to remain hospitalized for about another week, the Air Force said in a statement.

"He tends to tire easily, so the medical staff has slowed down the examination schedule," the statement said.

Soviet negotiator blasts U.S. stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's chief arms control adviser said Tuesday that continued U.S. opposition to naval arms talks could damage superpower ties.

"We think that this policy is unjust and aimed at undermining security and gaining military superiority over the Soviet Union," Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev said of the American refusal to negotiate over a ban on short-range nuclear weapons in the superpower navies.

Akhromeyev made the comments in his first appearance before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee and his second trip before a congressional panel in less than a year.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's principal arms control adviser and a member of the Supreme Soviet, Akhromeyev said U.S. opposition to naval arms talks could jeopardize significant cuts in armed forces and weapons down the road.

Democrats urge Bush to scrub veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders urged President Bush on Tuesday not to veto a proposal guaranteeing unpaid leave to workers with family emergencies, as the White House reaffirmed its opposition to the bill.

Supporters said they believe they have enough votes to win passage in the House but are short of the two-thirds necessary to override a veto.

House Speaker Thomas Foley and other Democrats joined Republican backers of the family and medical leave bill in a bipartisan demonstration of support for the measure, scheduled for House action Wednesday.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Murlin Fitzwater reiterated a veto threat made a day earlier by chief of staff John Sununu. Fitzwater said the White House believes the bill would drive up unemployment.

Flight union seeks health protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national flight attendants' union formally asked the government Tuesday for better protection against airliner health hazards ranging from cosmic radiation to unwieldy beverage carts.

The 30,000-member Association of Flight Attendants petitioned the Federal Aviation Administration for protection under the federal standards that affect most other workers.

"They really only care about our safety when it comes to keeping us alive in a crash so the passengers can be evacuated," said Matthew Finucane, the union's director of air safety and health.

The union accused the FAA of preempting the Occupational Safety and Health Administration from protecting the aviation work place but failing itself to protect crew members from disease and injury in the sky.

FAA spokesman Bob Buckhorn said he had not yet seen the petition and had no immediate response to the union's request.

U.S., Iran close to claims agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Iran are close to settling about 2,600 small claims Americans filed against Iran after the 1979 Islamic revolution, the State Department said Tuesday.

The progress has been made over many months and has no connection to the recent release of two American hostages or the fate of other U.S. citizens still held in Lebanon, officials said.

"A package settlement of small claims has been under discussion for some time, and differences have narrowed considerably, but we have not yet closed this matter," said spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler.

Quayle, Thatcher recall Ike's vision

LONDON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Tuesday paid tribute to Dwight Eisenhower's postwar vision of a free and united Europe. Quayle joined at a ceremony marking the 100th birthday of Eisenhower, the World War II Allied commander who later became U.S. president. The gathering was held on the 45th anniversary of the Allied victory in Europe. Quayle sat with Mrs. Thatcher in the room where Britain's wartime leader Winston Churchill often met with Eisenhower. The vice president said Eisenhower's "vision has come true today," adding, "Now we must carry on with that victory."

QUAYLE

He foresaw the unification of Germany and foresaw that we should come to a stage when a divided Europe would be a thing of the past," Mrs. Thatcher said of Eisenhower. "That is what we're working for now."

Costa Rica's new president sworn in

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Rafael Angel Calderon assumed the presidency Tuesday from Nobel laureate Oscar Arias and proclaimed the ambition of Latin America's most stable democracy to become "a world power of disarmament and human rights." Calderon promised a government of national consensus in which private enterprise will be the motor of what he termed "economic democracy."

He also lamented the large federal budget deficit — 6 percent of the gross national product — and said austerity measures would be needed during his first year in control inflation.

There are economic world powers and military world powers. We only aspire to consolidate ourselves as a world power of disarmament and human rights," Calderon told a crowd of 50,000 in the national soccer stadium after receiving the presidential sash from Arias and taking the oath of office.

Victims: Winnie Mandela beat them

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — While Nelson Mandela was in prison, he set out to his wife's house to remove three men who had been abducted there and beaten, a witness testified Tuesday in a murder trial.

Mandela's wife, Winnie, has not been charged in the case, which went to trial one week ago. But two alleged victims have testified that she was the first to beat them, using her fists and a whip. Members of her bodyguard later joined in, according to testimony Monday and Tuesday.

Quarry collapse in Zaire claims 60

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — A tin quarry collapsed in eastern Zaire, killing 60 people, the state news agency reported Tuesday.

Rescue workers who dug down nearly 70 feet have recovered 20 bodies, the agency said.

The cave-in occurred Monday at Salambila, near the border with Rwanda, at a mine owned by the Kivu Mineral Society, according to the report. No other details were immediately available.

Iraq says it can make seized devices

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq has been able to produce devices similar to those seized in March by British customs agents who claimed they were triggers for nuclear weapons, President Saddam Hussein said Tuesday.

He also said Iraq had been able to import some of the devices before the batch was seized in England.

The seized devices had been manufactured in the United States. Saddam reiterated Iraq's denial that the devices were also triggers, but said Iraqi technicians at the Ministry of Industry and Military Industrialization were able to produce two of them.

Gadhafi pondered U.S. base attack

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi considered a "missile attack" against a U.S. military base in Greece after American warplanes bombed Libya in 1986, Gadhafi told a peace conference last weekend.

Gadhafi said he conferred with a member of his government on the possibility of launching missiles to hit a U.S. military base on the island of Crete. He was addressing delegates at the conference at Ierapetra on Crete via satellite Saturday. Excerpts from his "fury" 35-minute speech were published Monday in the Athens daily Eleftherotypia.

British fashion designer dies at 57

LONDON (AP) — Alexander Plunket Greene, who with his wife Mary Quant helped revolutionize the British fashion scene for young people in the 1960s, has died, his family announced.

He died Friday at age 57, his family reported Monday. No cause of death was given. Plunket and his wife Mary Quant met when they were both students at Goldsmiths' College of Art in southeast London, and they married in 1957.

Jewish leaders visit Holocaust plan site

WEST-BERLIN (AP) — Leaders of the World Jewish Congress stood outside the villa Tuesday where Nazi leaders plotted the Holocaust and recalled the 6 million dead, including brides and grooms, rabbis and students and "dreamers of Zion."

"I will not pray here, because I personally believe that God turned his face away from this place, as he did from Auschwitz," said Edgar M. Bronfman, president of the World Jewish Congress.

The solemn ceremony in front of the Wannsee Villa, where Nazi leaders in 1942 mapped out the "Final Solution," was the most emotional part of the three-day World Jewish Congress in Berlin, which ended Tuesday.

It was the first time the Congress had met on German soil, and some delegates refused to attend, saying their grief was still too great.

Wannsee Villa is now in disrepair, with many of the inside walls ripped out and dusty scaffolding covering one part of the facade.

West Berlin officials have promised to refurbish the villa and turn it into a Holocaust memorial. A tribute composed by Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel, a concentration camp survivor, called to mind the Holocaust victims.

It spoke of "teachers and their pupils (brides and grooms, intellectuals and workers, rabbis and their disciples, young revolutionaries and old dreamers of Zion."

The declaration recalled how the Nazis "in the name of their criminal leadership on behalf of their nation, condemned the entire Jewish people to death and oblivion."

British: Author should make public apology

LONDON (AP) — Hopes raised by the release of two American hostages in Lebanon have turned to frustration for families of British captives, and some are demanding a conciliatory gesture from author Salman Rushdie.

David Waite, the brother of hostage Terry Waite, has said Rushdie should apologize for his book, "The Satanic Verses," which many Muslims consider blasphemous to Islam.

The father of hostage John McCarthy was quoted as saying "The Satanic Verses" should never have been published. Rushdie's defenders say it is unfair to blame the British author for the plight of the hostages. Most of them were kidnapped before the publication of the book in September 1988 and the subsequent decree issued against the author by Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. The decree called for Rushdie's death on grounds the book blasphemed Islam.

Breakfasts highlight mom's day

It's been a long time since I awoke to muffled clatter and chatter from the kitchen where my "little ones" were surprising me with breakfast in bed.

Nancy Joy Jones
 Valley cooking

Now, we play "telephone-tag" to keep in touch. With one eight (or is it seven) hours difference since daylight savings), another two hours ahead and another one behind, I find I wait up to call one using the cheaper rates only to find I got them out of bed. Luckily, one lives close by so I know when to get him (or his house, by course).

So would I go back? Only for a breakfast on Mother's Day. If you can get your hands on one of those muffin tins that make the miniatures (sometimes they come with children's cookwear) muffins here's a good brunch addition. Also they can be made ahead because they freeze well.

BITE-SIZE APPLESAUCE MUFFINS

Muffins:
 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup applesauce
 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
 1 tablespoon baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Topping:
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
 Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Cream butter and gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in applesauce. Combine flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon.

Add the flour mixture to the creamed mixture and stir until moistened. Remember, overmixing makes tough muffins. Spoon batter into lightly greased miniature muffin pans, filling two-thirds full. Bake for 15 minutes. Remove from pans immediately.
 Combine sugar and cinnamon. Dip muffins into melted butter, then into sugar-cinnamon mixture.

CINNAMON TOAST ROLL-UPS

1/2 cup sugar
 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
 12 slices of very fresh white bread, crusts removed
 1/2 cup butter, melted
 Stir together the sugar and cinnamon. Put each slice of bread between sheets of waxed paper and roll the bread with a rolling pin to one-fourth-inch thick. Brush melted butter on both sides of the bread. Sprinkle about 1 teaspoon of the cinnamon sugar on one side of each slice. Roll the bread tightly jelly-roll fashion (cinnamon sugar on the inside). Trim ends on a diagonal to make a neat cut surface. Put the rolls, seam side down, on a baking sheet and bake them in a 350 degree oven for 15 minutes, or until the area is lightly browned.

Makes 12 roll-ups: Of course you can easily double or triple recipe if doing it for a crowd.
 Have you noticed that most recipes that call for broccoli can easily be exchanged using asparagus? Both of these recipes would work well with either.

BROCCOLI CHEESE PIE

Preheat oven to 400 degrees and have a 10-inch pie pan ready.
 Make a cheese crust by combining:
 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
 1/2 cup flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 1 stick (1/2 cup) butter or margarine, melted
 Press this mixture in the pie pan, both bottom and sides. I've found if I insert my hands into plastic bags, I can press the crust flatter and more even and not gouge it with fingernails or get hands messy.
 Another handy gadget is one of those small rollers from the gourmet shop or even a small wallpaper seam roller, kept just for cooking.

For the filling, prepare these ingredients:
 2 cups broccoli or asparagus, fresh-chopped and cooked
 1 tablespoon butter
 1 medium onion, chopped
 1/2 pound sliced fresh mushrooms
 2 tablespoons flour
 1 cup light cream
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 dash of pepper
 3 eggs, slightly beaten
 In a saucepan, sauté the onions and mushrooms in butter. Stir in the 2 tablespoons of flour, add the light cream, salt

Delight mom with brunch from the heart

A special brunch that comes from the heart will delight Mom on her day. It's a treat for children, too. Preparing a surprise in the kitchen is almost as much fun as eating it later, especially when the kids begin with easy-to-use menus and imaginative recipes.

Even little ones can be cooks, with just minimal supervision from Dad or older brothers or sisters. The breakfast treats they'll proudly present to Mom are prepared with frozen pie crust shells that make delicious, flaky pastries without fuss or mess. Just see what youngsters can do with Cinnamon Pastry Stars and In-A-Jam Roll-Ups.

"Good Morning!" Pizza is bound to capture the eye of older children, who'll be surprised at how easy it is to make a golden, crisp crust. Everyone will want to have a hand in sprinkling on savory toppings. And, brunch will be simple with Easy Egg and Sausage Pie, a satisfying dish that lives up to its name.

CINNAMON PASTRY STARS

Tell Mom she's the star! Lightly touched with cinnamon, these crisp, golden treats will light up her eyes.

2 regular pie crust shells
 2 tablespoons melted margarine
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Take pie crusts out of pan while frozen, place on lightly floured board, let stand 15 to 20 minutes to thaw. Roll each crust slightly to even, brush with margarine. Combine sugar and cinnamon in a small bowl, sprinkle over crusts. Cut out shapes using star-shaped, or any other, cookie cutters. Place on baking sheet and bake 6 to 7 minutes or until golden brown.
 Makes approximately 3 dozen stars, depending on cookie cutter size.

IN-A-JAM ROLL-UPS

Talk about easy and good! Moms who taste-tested these sweet treats especially liked roll-ups made with raspberry or strawberry preserves.

 1/2 cup preserves, jam or jelly, any flavor powdered sugar
 Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Take pie crusts out of pan while frozen. Invert each on a large baking sheet; let stand 15 to 20 minutes to thaw. Crusts will flatten as they thaw. Spread preserves over each crust to within one-inch of edge. Roll each crust tightly into a cylinder, pinch ends. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Sprinkle with powdered sugar on top. Let cool before serving; cut into 1-inch pieces.
 Makes 2 roll-ups, approximately 10 slices per roll.

Lowering kitchen time for working cooks

By CHRIS CHRISTENSEN
 Knight-Ridder News Service

You've survived one more grueling day at the office and an equally exciting commute home. Apron on, parking knife in hand, you brace yourself for the biggest challenge of the day.

What to make for dinner. The body lingers for chicken stew and pork tenderloin, but the spirit says soup and sandwiches.

There's no doubt that one of life's biggest little challenges is cooking a satisfying meal in short order. Notice I said "satisfying." Sure, you can phone for take-out or pizza man to deliver, but those solutions do little more than put the old appetizer on hold for a bit. Soul-satisfying they're not.

Enter Brooke Dojny and Melanie Barnard. Like geniuses in the kitchen, these two long-time chefs and cookbook authors are making a lot of people's food wishes come true. No magic bottle required. Just a copy of their latest pizza manual, "Let's Eat In: Quick, Delicious, Weekday Meals" (Prentice Hall Press, $19.95).

"Melanie and I have very strong feelings about families, couples, and the need to sit around the table to a meal cooked in their own kitchen by hand and with loving care. It satisfies a real social need. Nothing replaces the nice feeling you get from cooking and serving something out of your own kitchen, even if it's a simple meal of Sloppy Joes," says Dojny, a 46-year-old mother of two teen-agers who speaks from experience.

The pair's new book is a collection of 175 easy-to-prepare, often sophisticated recipes they hope will do more than simply satisfy hunger.

"Cooking is such a creative and satisfying process," Dojny says. "First there's the anticipation. Then the satisfaction that comes from cutting up the meats and vegetables and creating the dishes. Even the wonderful aromas of the foods cooking that make it an enjoyable experience for the entire family. It's not something you can get from a fast-food dinner."

Even the names of the recipes make the mouth water. Penna with Garlic, Olive Oil and Broccoli; Pork Terroir Medallions with Peas; Shrimp and Sweet Corn Chowder — many of the ideas for which came from their days as co-authors of the "Quick From Scratch" column that appears regularly in Cook's magazine. In fact, Melanie Barnard introduced the column in 1984, and the two co-wrote many of the articles between '87 and '89.

"Then we started our own syndicated newspaper column, 'The Afterwork Gourmer.' It did so well that we just sensed there was a real need out there," Dojny said. Keeping the entire family's taste levels in mind, Barnard, who at 45 is also the mother of two teen-agers, and Dojny began working from some of their favorite column recipes, revising, improving and shaving minutes off preparation times. They've included chapters on soups, salads, meats, seafood, eggs, accompaniments and desserts.

"We love the challenge of taking a recipe that calls for veal stock and finding a way to make it in half the time,"

Dojny says. Every recipe was prepared at least twice, with each cook trying them out on her family. Often they'd exchange notes, then revise and give it another whirl with a few improvements.

"Our family members were a very happy group from the minute we began developing the recipes. Each one of them has his or her favorites," says Dojny.

That's evident in the titles of some of the recipes, like Steak and Golden Onion Sándwiches for Matt D., a favorite of Dojny's son, who now makes them for himself and his friends at the drop of a hat and at all hours of the day and night.

The dessert chapter of "Let's Eat In" may alone be worth the price of the book for those who crave sweet temptations, but are turned off by the time it takes to make them.

"We organized the book and chose the recipes so that you could also elaborate on them, or use some of them to round out your own quick meals. For instance, you might want to make our Cheddar Drop Biscuits as a nice accompaniment to leftover ham," she says.

"Although they stopped short of including preparation times on the recipes, Dojny says the majority of them can be put together in 30 minutes, 45 tops.
 "Times are too difficult to estimate. Everyone has his or her own pace and style of cooking. And some people have to contend with small children underfoot."

Dojny and Barnard remember those days. Which is probably why they knew this book was a good idea.

'Lets Eat In' recipes for quick after-work meals

 Knight-Ridder News Service

Here are several recipes from "Let's Eat In," along with comments and meal tips, from the authors.

The first recipe, an exceedingly simple pasta dish, is meatless; but hearty enough to be a most satisfying main course. Accompany this meal with a nutty whole wheat country loaf and sliced tomatoes, perhaps sprinkled with some Gorgonzola cheese.

PENNE WITH GARLIC, OLIVE OIL AND BROCCOLI

12 ounces penne or other thick, tubular pasta
 4 cups broccoli florets
 6 tablespoons olive oil
 3 large cloves garlic, minced
 1/2 cup diced, commercially roasted red peppers
 1/2 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
 Salt

Have the staples at your fingertips

By Knight-Ridder News Service

The key to speedy meal preparation is having everything at your fingertips. Assuming you already have on hand staples like butter, eggs, milk, flour and sugar, here then are other basics that guarantee you'll be prepared to eat in a hurry.

HERBS AND SPICES:

Parsley, basil, dill, rosemary, cilantro, cumin, oregano, red pepper flakes.

ON THE SHELF: Rice (a variety), dried pasta, sun-dried tomatoes, capers, roasted peppers, vinegar (a variety), olives, olive oil, pasta sauce, canned Roma tomatoes, tuna, Dijon mustard, canned chicken, beef stock, beans (dry and canned).

 Add the garlic oil, roasted red peppers, black pepper, salt and the Parmesan cheese to the pasta and broccoli in the pot.

(Salt sparingly since Parmesan cheese can be very salty.) Toss gently but thoroughly, until the pasta and broccoli are coated with the oil.

Serve immediately; pass more Parmesan cheese at the table.
Note: If reheating in a microwave, use low power so that the broccoli will not become overcooked. Makes 4 servings.

The sunny flavors in this dish remind us of the South of France. The recipe favors increasingly available fresh herbs and balsamic vinegar. If you have never tasted this mellow vinegar, it will delight you with its wonderful fragrance and flavor. All that is needed are some hot noodles with parsley and a loaf of crusty bread.

CHICKEN PROVENCE
 4 tablespoons olive oil, divided
 4 boned and skinned chicken breast halves (about 1 pound)
 Salt and pepper to taste
 1 small red bell pepper, thinly sliced
 1 small yellow bell pepper, thinly sliced

Woman dating cross-dresser asks if clothes make the man

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one I can not discuss with anyone else because it's very personal and somewhat embarrassing. I am a divorced, 45-year-old woman. I recently met a very charming, handsome, 48-year-old gentleman. I was attracted to him immediately. He is divorced, intelligent, masculine and well-educated. On our first date, he told me that he was very much attracted to me, but he had some thing to tell me that we were to have a second date. Then he told me that he enjoys dressing in women's clothing occasionally. He insisted he is not gay or bisexual, but he has a "need" to cross-dress occasionally. (This includes makeup, high heels, a wig and women's clothing - which I assume includes women's underwear.) He told me that his first marriage broke up because his wife couldn't deal with his need to cross-dress occasionally. Abby, this man is totally masculine and I am very much turned on by him, but I don't want to become involved in a situation I can't handle. What can you tell me about men who cross-dress? I can't believe they are 100 percent male. Are there any women who have dated (or married) such men who can give me some advice?

Dear Abby

— PEG IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR PEG: Your charming, intelligent masculine friend is a transvestite. Contrary to popular belief, not all transvestites are gay or bisexual; they are biological males who have an emotional need to dress as women occasionally. Many transvestites marry and have children. In some instances, their wives are aware of their need to cross-dress and are very supportive. However, some wives find this kind of behavior bizarre and disgusting and are unable (or unwilling) to accept it. Your friend reads high marks for being honest with you on the first date. Whether you choose to become seriously involved with him will depend on your ability to be non-judgmental about his sexual needs. If you cannot accept this kind of behavior, say goodbye and forget him. But if you choose to have a relationship with this man, I suggest that you contact women who are happily married to transvestites. (Their numbers would startle you.) There are groups of transvestites who get together with their families to socialize and exchange experiences. If you are interested in contacting such a group, write to Sacramento Gender Association, P.O. Box 417701, Sacramento, Calif. 95841. Please send a long, business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply, as it is a non-profit organization. DEAR ABBY: Apropos "older" graduates: I was present when the then-ambassador to Japan, Mike Mansfield, delivered the commencement address for the University of Maryland's Asian Division in Tokyo. Ambassador Mansfield began his speech with, "To the graduate who is receiving his degree at age 61, young man, you have a bright future!" Ambassador Mansfield was 83 years old at the time. — JEFF CHEEK, AOMORI, JAPAN

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.99 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61051. (Postage is included.)

BOW TIES WITH ARGULA AND BACON
Ingredients:
 1 small green bell pepper, thinly sliced
 1 onion, thinly sliced
 1 clove garlic, minced
 1/2 tablespoon minced fresh basil or 1/4 teaspoon dried
 2 teaspoons minced fresh oregano or 1/2 teaspoon dried
 2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
 Heat 2 tablespoons of the oil in a large skillet. Use the palm of your hand to flatten the chicken breasts to an even thickness. Salt and pepper both sides of the chicken and saute for 12 to 3 minutes per side over medium heat until golden-brown. Remove the chicken from the skillet.
 Add the remaining 2 tablespoons of the oil to the skillet and saute the peppers and onion for 3 minutes. Add the garlic, basil, and oregano and saute for about 30 seconds. Taste and add salt and pepper.
 Return the chicken to the skillet and pour the vinegar over it. Bring to just a boil, lower the heat, and simmer, covered, for 5 minutes until the chicken is just cooked through and the vegetables are crisp-tender.
 Serve the chicken with the vegetables and juices spooned on top. Makes 4 servings.
 We know argula best as a salad ingredient, its light lemon-peppery taste lending interest to even the simplest dishes. Recently, some restaurant chefs have been using it in pasta sauces. Here is our rendition of the one we liked best. It's a lovely combination, the argula offsetting the garlic and smoky bacon. Serve with a salad of leaf lettuce and sliced peppers dressed with a balsamic vinaigrette.

Ingredients:
 6 slices bacon
 12 ounces pasta bow ties
 4 tablespoons olive oil
 1 large clove garlic, minced
 4 cups argula leaves, cut into thin crosswise slivers
 1/2 cup white wine
 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese
 Salt
 Cook the bacon over medium-low heat in a skillet, until browned and crisp, about 10 minutes. Drain on paper towels, crumble, and reserve. Pour out all but 1 tablespoon of the bacon fat and set the skillet aside.
 Meanwhile, bring a large pot of water to a boil. Add salt to the water and cook the bow ties at a rapid boil for about 8 minutes, until al dente. Drain the pasta in a colander.
 While the pasta is cooking, make the sauce. Heat the olive oil in the skillet over medium heat. Add the garlic and the argula and toss until leaves are well-coated with oil. Cook, stirring frequently, over medium heat for about 3 minutes, until the leaves are wilted. Add the wine and bring to a simmer. Cook for 1 minute.
 Add the cooked bow ties to the sauce, sprinkle with the Parmesan cheese, and stir gently to combine. Season with a generous amount of freshly-ground black pepper and salt to taste (keeping in mind that the bacon is salty).
 Transfer to a warm platter or plates, sprinkle the crumbled bacon over the top, and serve. Makes 4 servings.

COVERED DISH LUNCHEON CASSEROLE
 3 packages of frozen chopped beef, one recipe
 1 large onion, chopped
 1/2 cup minute rice
 1/2 cans cream of mushroom soup
 12-ounce jar cheese sauce, like Cheese-Whiz
 1/2-cup melted butter
 salt and pepper to taste

Thinly broccolini thoroughly and drain well. Mix with other ingredients and turn into buttered casserole dish. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.
 This has several variations besides substituting asparagus for the broccolini.
 Smaller group? Then use only 2 packages of vegetable, 1 can of soup, 1 cup of rice, 6 tablespoons of butter, a medium onion and an 8-ounce jar of cheese sauce.
 Want to try it just for your family? Then just use 1 package of vegetables, one-half can soup, one-half cup rice, 3 tablespoons butter, and one-half small jar cheese sauce and a small onion.
 Have a great Mom's Day, Enjoy!

Computer screens pop up on shopping carts

By E.A. TORRIERO
 Knight-Ridder News Service

HERMOSA BEACH, Calif. — It was in aisle three of a Vons supermarket that Margaret Blake had an encounter with future shock.
 "If it wasn't for this thing," Blake said, looking uneasily at a computer screen on her shopping cart, "I wouldn't have remembered to pick up some disposable diapers for my daughter."
 Here in this laid-back beach community in suburban Los Angeles, a trip to one supermarket can mean a lot of bytes.
 Through the magic of VideCart, the brainchild of a frustrated Chicago shopper, marketers browse with shopping-cart video screens capable of displaying everything from sale items in their aisle to ingredients for a chicken teriyaki dinner and where to find them.

 "I wouldn't trade it for the world," said shopper Ann Hutchinson, who regularly visits the store — one of three in the nation testing VideCart.
 Roughly the size of a large manila envelope, the screen sits atop the front of a cart and relays information from "strategically" located sensors. Besides displaying the latest bargains, it entertains checkout customers with horoscopes, the latest news and sports or a trivia game.
 The system, also being tested in Chicago and Atlanta, is being developed by Information Resources of Chicago, whose president was smiling when he was asked to expand its use soon, possibly to the San Francisco Bay Area.

 "We think it's been a big hit already," company spokesman Robert Brengener said, adding that about 70 percent of shoppers appear to be using the carts.
 Advertisers are expected to underwrite the costs of the system by paying rates based on the number of potential customers. A trade group survey in 1987 showed two out of every three shoppers made their buying decisions while walking down supermarket aisles.

A spokeswoman for Vons says it's too soon to tell whether sales of video-advertised items have increased. Store manager Mike Curtis said he has found general acceptance of the screens, but has noticed that young people quickly grow bored with them and older people find them frustrating to operate.
 On one recent afternoon, roughly one out of every five consumers passed up the screen-equipped carts for ordinary ones. Some complained that the video units blocked access to the child-restraining seats. Others found the screens perplexing.
 "I wish it had directions," moaned Blake, a schoolteacher who admits to being computer resistant.

Food doesn't need salt to be delicious

By The Baltimore Evening Sun

Food doesn't need salt to taste good, according to the American Heart Association.

Eating too much salt can contribute to high blood pressure, a major risk factor for strokes, heart attacks and kidney failure. More than 60 million American adults and children have high blood pressure.

The human body requires only 1/2 teaspoon of salt per day but the average American eats one to three teaspoons of salt, according to the American Heart Association.

A variety of high blood pressure brochures are available from the American Heart Association. Single copies are free by calling the association at 1-800-HEART-03.

Brochures include: "About High Blood Pressure," "About High Blood Pressure in Children," "How You Can Help Your Doctor Treat Your High Blood Pressure" and "Now You're Cookin' Healthy Recipes to Help Control High Blood Pressure."

This Chicken Cacciatore recipe is from the "Now You're Cookin'" brochure.

Nonfat yogurt makes rich-tasting parfait

Using nonfat yogurt removes the fat but none of the fun in this luscious Yogurt Creme With Raspberry Sauce.

In the Yogurt Creme, the nonfat yogurt is combined with lemon peel, vanilla and salt in a cheesecloth-lined strainer and refrigerated until the yogurt thickens and drains. The Raspberry Sauce is simply frozen raspberries whirled in a blender or food processor with a bit of sugar and vanilla. The two mixtures, layered in dessert glasses, look like you've worked for hours (when it just took a few minutes) with a cost of only 229 calories and less than one gram of fat.

YOGURT CREME WITH RASPBERRY SAUCE

- 3 containers (8 ounces each) plain nonfat yogurt (no gelatin added), divided
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Raspberry Sauce (recipe follows)

To make Yogurt Creme, line a large strainer with a large piece of double thickness cheesecloth; place over a large bowl. In another bowl, combine 2 containers of the yogurt, sugar, lemon peel, vanilla extract and salt; pour into prepared strainer. Cover and refrigerate until liquid has drained into bowl and yogurt is of spreadable consistency, about 24 hours. Remove yogurt from cheesecloth and place in large bowl; discard cheesecloth and accumulated liquid. Fold remaining container of yogurt into thickened yogurt into 4 dessert glasses place alternate layers of Raspberry Sauce and Yogurt Creme. Chill; serve garnished with fresh raspberries and mint, if desired.

Yield: 4 portions, 1 1/3 cups Yogurt Creme
Per portion: 229 calories

To ensure success of this recipe it is important that the yogurt used be made without gelatin so that liquid is released during the straining process.

RASPBERRY SAUCE

- 1/2 package (from a 12-ounce package) frozen unsweetened raspberries, thawed (about 1 cup)
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

In the bowl of a food processor fitted with a metal wing blade or in the container of an electric blender process raspberries until smooth. If desired, strain through a fine sieve, discarding seeds. Stir sugar and vanilla extract into puree.
Yield: about 1/2 cup.

'Perfect Pasta' author now takes readers inside Italian country kitchens

By GERALD EITNER

Knights-Ridder News Service

In the early 1980s, Roman-born Valentina Harris wrote "Perfect Pasta," a cookbook that helped acquaint Americans with the virtues of pasta. Now she takes readers inside the country kitchens of Italy for hearty peasant fare with "Recipes From an Italian Farmhouse" (Simon & Schuster, $24.95).

Harris' farmhouse is a composite of many in Italy. It cooks up exciting dishes, ranging from the country's northern regions to its southernmost reaches, and captures the diversity of Italy's food traditions.

Each region's distinctive foods often mirror history as well as geography. A Sicilian fish-stew couscous reflects Arabian influences, while a meat soup with beans and sauerkraut incorporates touches of Austria and Switzerland.

"Recipes From an Italian Farmhouse" addresses humble fare from the rustic poetry of the surrounding hills and fields. Fresh herbs and fruity olive oils combine with other basic ingredients in a simple manner to create memorable dishes that sustain family and friends.

"I have no time for fussy cooking, which pretends to the exactness of a chemical equation," Harris says. "For me, cooking is essentially intuitive. With a little care and love, I like to cook the food which evolved out of necessity, availability and hunger."

Harris' new cookbook offers good insights into using Italy's basic ingredients. It covers the spectrum of rice, polenta, pizzas, eggs, cheeses and sweets, as well as the main dishes of meat, poultry, game, fish and seafood.

The photographs are exceptional, and "capture the essence" of the book's cuisine as well as the flavor of people. Harris gives personal interpretations of the various recipes and explains them in an easy-to-follow manner.

SICILIAN RICE

- 2 anchovy fillets
- 1 1/2 cups long-grain rice
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 5 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- 2/3 cup white wine
- Juice of 3 lemons
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon tomato paste
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 3 firm ripe tomatoes, halved, seeded and cubed

1/3 cup black olives, pitted
Pinch of dried marjoram
Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a boil. Put 1 plate on top of the pan, covering the water. Lay the anchovy fillets on the plate, and mash them with a fork. They will dissolve smoothly with heat. When anchovies are dissolved, remove the plate, add the rice to the water, and cook until tender, about 45 to 55 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a small saucepan, saute the onion in two tablespoons of olive oil. When the onion is golden and soft, sprinkle the vinegar over it, and allow it to evaporate for two minutes. Add the wine, lemon juice, mustard, dissolved anchovies and tomato paste. Mix carefully, then sieve once to make a smooth sauce.

Drain the rice, and spread it out on a warmed serving platter. Pour the sauce over it, and sprinkle it with salt and pepper. While the rice cools slightly, fry the tomato cubes quickly in the remaining three tablespoons of olive oil for one minute; then mix in the olives and marjoram. Pour them over the rice and sauce, then serve. Makes four servings.

This next recipe is originally from Austria, where it is called G'rosst. The author describes it as a very simple, economical way to use leftover boiled beef to make a delicious fried-cake-of-meat-and-potatoes flavored with chives. It can be eaten hot or cold, and makes an excellent item for a picnic.

MEAT AND POTATO CAKE

- 4 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
- 1 pound cold boiled beef, cut into small chunks
- 4 cold-boiled medium-size potatoes, cut into small chunks
- Salt and pepper to taste

Heat the butter in a seven-inch skillet, and snip the chives into the butter. Add the meat, potatoes, and salt and pepper. Mix very thoroughly, then cook for 10 minutes, pressing down with a metal spatula to create a crisp crust underneath.

Turn the potato cake over by sliding it onto a plate, then tipping it back into the hot pan. Cook until the other side is also just crisp, then serve at once. Makes four servings.

This antipasto dish is a favorite in Naples.

NEAPOLITAN ANTIPASTO

- 8 anchovy fillets
- 8 thick slices Italian bread
- 7 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 1 1/2 cups sliced Mozzarella cheese
- 3 canned tomatoes, seeded and cut into strips
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- Oil

Blot the anchovy fillets, and split them lengthwise. Cut the bread slices in half, and thickly spread one side of each with butter. Distribute the Mozzarella cheese equally over the bread slices. Top each slice with a piece of tomato and a piece of anchovy. Season each slice with salt and pepper and a pinch of the oregano.

Preheat a baking sheet with the oil, place the bread slices on it, and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for nine minutes, or until cheese melts and toasts are golden. Makes four servings.

This basic cake is considered the most rustic of all Italian cakes because it is made with cornmeal and has no rising properties. The recipe is from Lombardy, where it is eaten at breakfast time by children on their way to school.

CORNMEAL AND NUT CAKE

- 2 cups finely ground polenta or cornmeal flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 sticks unsalted butter, melted
- 2/3 cups almonds, finely ground
- Butter for greasing
- Dried bread crumbs for coating

Put the flour twice, then sift it twice more with the sugar. Stir in the almonds and melted butter, and mix thoroughly. Grease a 10-inch round, deep cake pan with butter, then coat it completely with the bread crumbs.

Pour the cake mixture into the pan and bake in a 400-degree preheated oven for 40 minutes. Cool in the pan, then turn it out. Makes eight servings.

Myriad of cooking oils differ in flavor, quality

Q: Please tell me about the many different types of cooking oils I see in the market. Are some more healthy? Can you buy one type of oil and use it for everything? What about olive oil—is it better and how is it best used?

A: There are indeed numerous cooking oils available, expressed from seeds, legumes, plants, fruits and nuts. Each differs in both flavor and cooking qualities, according to "Cooking A to Z" (Orho Books; $32.95; 1988), edited by Jane Horn.

The following information is excerpted from the book's listing of common edible oils:

- Almond Oil: toasty almond flavor; best used in salads and cold dishes; flavor destroyed by heat.
- Avocado Oil: mild, buttery, delicate flavor; good for salad dressings and baked goods; may be used for sauteing, stir-frying and deep-frying.
- Coconut Oil: coconut flavor; may be used for frying.
- Corn Oil: bland flavor; excellent for frying.
- Hazelnut Oil: strong toasted hazelnut flavor; use in combination with other oil for cold dishes; flavor destroyed by heat.
- Olive Oil: available in several different grades; in increasing level of acidity, olive oil can be classified as extra-virgin, superfine, fine and virgin or pure; excellent for salad dressings, marinades, sauces and sauteing; not suited for deep-frying.
- Peanut Oil: subtle peanut flavor; use for salad dressings, sauteing and stir-frying.
- Safflower Oil: flavorless; excellent for deep-frying; less suitable for salad dressings.
- Sesame Oil: toasty, nutty flavor; Chinese is stronger in flavor than Japanese; heat alters flavor.
- Soybean Oil: bland flavor; excellent for salad dressings; may be used for frying.

Joan Drake

Walnut Oil: rich, nutty flavor; use sparingly; heat destroys flavor

Oils are composed of three types of fatty acids: saturated, monounsaturated and polyunsaturated. Oils with more than one-third saturated fatty acids are termed saturated; those with less are unsaturated. Unsaturated oils are further classified into polyunsaturated and monounsaturated.

Oils low in saturated fat are considered more healthful. The American Heart Association and the American Cancer Society recommend no more than 30 percent of the calories Americans consume come from fat. Of that 30 percent, less than 10 percent should be saturated fat, with the remaining divided equally between polyunsaturated-fat and monounsaturated fat.

Cocunut oil, palm oil and palm kernel oil are all saturated fats. Safflower, sunflower, corn, soybean and cottonseed oils are polyunsaturated. Olive, peanut and canola oils are monounsaturated.

Joan Drake writes for the Los Angeles Times.

Cooling down that hot water heater

Q. My electric water heater makes the water too hot, and I've been forced to keep turning the electricity on and off to try to control the temperature. I had a plumber in last year, and he drained the tank, but the problem continues. A. Atanacio.

The temperature of the water in a typical electric water heater is controlled by a pair of thermostats, one near the top and one near the bottom of the tank. The thermostats are reached by removing small access doors in the tank cover. Gas water heaters also have a temperature-control knob, generally near the bottom of the tank.

Many electric water heaters are installed with the temperature settings at 150 degrees or more, and often the settings are never changed even though water at 120 or 130 degrees saves electricity and is adequate for most household uses, including bathing and washing clothes. Dishwashers require higher water temperatures, but many modern dishwashers have built-in booster heaters.

To set back the thermostats, shut off the electricity to the water heater and remove the access doors. The thermostat usually has a small dial with temperature markings and a knob that is turned with a screwdriver. Avoid touching any wires or terminals while setting the thermostat back. It's best to use the lowest setting, often 120 degrees, then work up if that setting proves inadequate. Replace the access cover before turning the power back on.

If that does not reduce the water temperature, one or both of the thermostats may be defective.

Gene Austin

Controlling a water heater by manually turning it on and off daily is a bit crude in this age of automation. Some home centers and electrical-supply stores sell special automatic timers for water heaters that will shut off the current periodically during the day and save additional electricity.

Do-it-yourselfers who want a timer but are not thoroughly familiar with electrical work should have it installed by an electrician. It's a good idea, however, to manually turn off the power to an electric water heater during absences of several days or more.

Owners of electric water heaters should also check with their utility companies to see whether a special off-peak rate program is available. In such programs, electricity to the heater is timed so that water is heated during off-peak, low-rate periods.

Occasionally draining some water from a water heater helps control buildup of lime and minerals that can reduce efficiency and damage the tank. Draining is done by opening the draincock at the bottom of the tank and letting a few gallons of water run out.

Q. It is usually dark when I get home from work, and I would like to have a way to automatically turn on the outside lights to my house. Can you suggest a way? — V. Hale

A. There are several possibilities, but one of the best is a motion-sensing light control that can replace an existing outside light or be installed with new wiring. A control of this type will conveniently turn on lights when you or visitors drive or walk in the vicinity of your home, and also serve as a security system to scare off would-be intruders.

Motion-sensing lights are reasonably priced — usually less than $50 — and are sold for do-it-yourself installation at some home centers and electrical-supply stores. The light has an infrared sensor that detects the presence of any moving heat source in an invisible field. The field can be adjusted to reduce nuisance lighting triggered by small animals or passing vehicles. The lights turn off automatically when the heat source leaves the field.

Q. I am considering adding roof vents in the attic of my ranch-style house to improve ventilation. Is this a good move, or would the vents also allow heat to escape from the house in winter? — R. Eddy.

A. Roof vents are needed in some insulated attics to help prevent condensation of moisture in cold weather and trapping of heat in hot weather. If the attic floor is adequately insulated, venting should cause little or no heat loss from the living area in winter and have little effect on hot-weather comfort. There is probably no need to increase vent space unless you have had problems with condensation or trapped heat.

Berries adaptable, easy to grow in area

Raspberries and strawberries are two of the best adapted fruits in the Magic Valley. They are relatively easy to grow for most home gardeners.

Allen Wilson Gardening

Canby is the most popular raspberry in the Intermountain area. It produces good yields of large red fruit with good flavor. It is also almost completely thornless.

Honey Gold is an excellent yellow variety which has even sweeter flavor. It is not thornless, but is one of the hardiest of fall raspberries. It has not been damaged even during cold winters when Canby has had some winterkill.

My favorite strawberry variety is Hecker. It bears fruit continuously from late June to September. It has good flavor and sweetness. Another good everbearing variety is Ozark Beauty. It bears heaviest in July, whereas Hecker bears heaviest in August and September.

If you want a heavy early crop for making preserves, plant one of the single crop varieties such as Canoga, Hood or Shuckan. They bear for about three weeks in late June and early July. Local nurserymen can recommend other adapted raspberry and strawberry varieties.

Now is a good time to apply weed killers to raspberries and strawberries. Casoran works well on established raspberries. It will kill grass and other weeds which may have started to grow and will prevent other weeds from starting during the summer.

Dacual (sold as Garden Weed Preventer) works well on strawberries. All existing weeds must be pulled or hoed first since Dacual will only prevent new weeds from germinating. Old, dead raspberry canes should be removed if you have not already done so. Don't remove the canes that are developing leaves. If you have not fertilized yet, apply a general purpose or fruit and vegetable fertilizer to both raspberries and strawberries.

Where strawberry plants are crowded closer than four to six inches, some of the oldest (largest) plants should be removed.

The new young plants which grow on runners last summer will produce the most fruit. I normally plant new plants about one to two feet apart and let them fill in with runners the first summer.

Both raspberries and strawberries need frequent irrigation, especially during flowering and fruiting stages. As weather warms, they will need water two or three times a week on sandy soils.

Baby boomers make gardening a hip hobby

By JEAN MARBELLA
The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Gardening is enjoying record popularity, surveys show, with seemingly every patch of ground, every bit of balcony and every box on every window being tilled to an inch of its life.

"I always say it's a whole lot cheaper than a psychiatrist," said Jack Heyrman, a 40-year-old music producer who can be found most weekends in the garden of his home in Baltimore. "I think there's something very naturally pleasing about getting dirty, not to sound too gnola about it."

He is one of thousands of younger gardeners who are giving the age-old hobby a boost. The National Gardening Association, for example, has found that the number of gardeners in the United States rose to 70 million and lawn and garden sales to $16.3 billion last year.

"It's because of the baby boom generation," said Bruce Butterfield, the association's research director. "Traditionally, people discover gardening when they turn 40. In your 20s, you have school, your identity, your job to organize. In your 30s, your emphasis is on family and home. You hit your 40s, and you want to have a hobby you can enjoy, and you have the income to indulge in it."

Baby boomers, that demographic bulge of people born between 1946 and 1964, began entering their 40s several years ago, and will continue to do so until the year 2004.

New and old gardeners alike are turning to gardening magazines, books and catalogs to learn more about the craft.

"Anytime a magazine like Southern Living has a feature, we get five or six calls," said Wink Rupperecht, vice president of Pinchbeck Nursery in Low Green, Md. "They're asking for more sophisticated varieties."

"People are getting a lot smarter about gardening," agreed Carrie Engel, manager of the greenhouse at Valley View Farms. "They want to know what we spray on the plants. Twenty years ago we had maybe six varieties of impatiens; just red white and pink. Now we have 15 different varieties. It's really expanded."

"They'll come in with their Wayside Gardens catalog, looking for specific things. They are as addictive as anything I've ever seen," said J. Crew or Williams-Sonoma — even lavished a lens on. Suddenly, you wonder how on earth you ever got along without an etagere a fleur (read: plant stand), adobe house pot or PRELLI work gloves. And knowing the yuppie appeal of the import, one catalog offers Italian market umbrellas, English planters, Swedish stepladders, Provencal vases, Valencian glassware, Chinese garden pots and even reproductions of the furniture in Claude Monet's gardens at Giverny.

Even the garden club, that haven of the white glove, is sandwichee set, has felt the influx of the nouveau gardener. Many local clubs have started meeting at night to accommodate members who work outside the home during the day.

"Many of our young ladies are in the work force, and they can't come to our day meetings," said Sue Tray, president of the 5,000-member Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland. "We're not merely the luncheon-flower show group any more, though, we still have that."

But while some may scoff at such frivolities, cataloguers like Paul Hawken of Smith & Hawken say their wares are, at their heart, functional.

"If you're a ballet dancer, you can't dance in Keds," said Hawken, who in 11 years has turned his catalog into a $50 million business. "We just try to sell things that are useful and beautiful. What's interesting with all our tools, which are the best in their country of origin, are what (landscape) workers buy for themselves. When I tell them that these are considered upscale tools for yuppies in this country, they just laugh."

Though based in Mill Valley, Calif., 70 percent of Smith & Hawken's customers live on the East Coast.

"We don't have maple trees turning golden in the fall here. We don't have crocuses coming up through the snow," Hawken said. "Gardening means more to people with weather with four seasons."

Green becoming color of choice inside homes

By The Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — Green, the color most associated with soaring forests, pristine prairies, pure vegetables and really big money, once again is becoming the color of choice inside many American homes.

As surely as plants had in a Midwestern spring, signs of this greening of America are appearing on all sides for spring 1990. Green leather sofas are advertised to consumers as a serious home option. Grass-green carpeting is appearing in home magazines for fashion-forward homes. Green glassware and dinnerware are available at fashion-conscious stores such as Crate & Barrel.

"It's a very big trend," says Dolores Ware, director of sales promotion for the Color Association of the U.S., "and it's only beginning."

Those old-enough-to-remember-a-previous-green-wave may be pardoned from recoiling at the news. Avocado green, with its companion colors of harvest gold, hippie-hip tone brown, swept the country more than 20 years ago and, for some, now lingers as a bad color joke.

The greening of the 1990s, however, is shaping up differently. No single green shade appears to dominate a consumer's choices. The new options are "more nature's colors," says David Snyder, vice president-home fashion merchandise director for Marshall Field's. They are "light, brighter greens and deep, rich jewel tones."

Crediting a color and fashion cycle as predictable as the changing seasons for this color revival, Snyder suggests that "green will have a major impact on what we are going to have in our homes and our lives in the 1990s."

No color ever totally disappears, of course. Green was around in the last decade, primarily in the traditional deep forest tones associated with designers such as Ralph Lauren.

But in the mid-1980s, color professionals such as those who work with Ware's Color Association began seeing a need to "warn" the charts of colors for products offered to U.S. consumers. Green began to heat up both in tone and in sales with the return of acid green and chateausse, reminiscent of the 1960s and now popular in swimwear, activewear and children's wear.

"The green hue has extended itself from the spruce (dark greens with a blue hint) and the traditional forest tones to the newer spring green and kiwi," Ware says. She predicts that consumers "will see even more variations. You're going to see a lot of aquatic shades and other yellow greens. Olive green is exceedingly popular now in menswear."

Color-sensitive retailers such as Crate & Barrel were quick to bring green merchandise into the stores "before the consumer bought it," says Pat Eckerstrom, merchandising coordinator.

Expos clobber Dodgers; Reds move ahead by 6 games in NL West

MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Lincecum and Bill Sampen earned a victory in his first major-league start Tuesday night as the Montreal Expos beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-1.

The Dodgers' loss extended their Cincinnati lead in the National League West to six games.

Sampen (1-0), a last-minute replacement for Oil Can Boyd, allowed only one unearned run in five innings as the Expos won for the fourth time in five games. He gave up four hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter.

Boyd was unable to pitch because of numbness in the middle finger of his pitching hand. There was no immediate word on the extent of the injury.

Wallach, who entered the game in a 4-for-33 slump, hit both of his home runs against Dodgers starter Tim Lincecum, who hadn't lost to the Expos in seven previous lifetime starts.

Belcher (2-3) pitched five innings, allowing five runs on eight hits. Sampen, a 27-year-old right-hander, had pitched 10 1/3 innings of relief in eight games this season before Tuesday night's start.

Eddie Murray of the Dodgers injured his eye in batting practice and didn't start, but he pinch-hit in the ninth and grounded out to extend his consecutive game streak to 386. It is the longest active streak in the majors behind Baltimore's Cal Ripken, who has played in 1,276 straight games.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the eighth when Mike Scioscia singled, went to second on Lenny Harris' infield hit and scored on a sacrifice fly. Traxler's grounder went through second baseman Delino DeShields' legs.

Wallach, 2-for-18 lifetime with no homers against Belcher, tied the game in the bottom of the inning with his third home of the year.

Wallach made it 2-1 in the fourth, hitting a 2-0 pitch over the left-field fence after Andres Galarraga had singled. It was the ninth time in Wallach's career that he has hit at least two homers in a game and the first since May 4, 1987 against

National League

Atlanta
The Expos added two runs in the sixth on consecutive singles by Galarraga and Wallach and Larry Walker's RBI double, which drove Belcher from the game. Wallach scored when reliever Drew Hall hit into a fielder's choice.

Montreal recovered twice in the seventh when the Dodgers committed three errors. Tim Raines singled and scored when Scioscia's throw hit Raines and rolled into center field, where it was bobbed by Juan Samuel.

Galarraga followed with a double and came home when Samuel dropped Walker's fly ball in right-center.

Montreal added two runs in the eighth, one scoring on an error by shortstop Alfredo Griffin and the other on Galarraga's groundout.

New York 4 San Francisco 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Kevin Reynolds drew a bases-loaded walk from Rick Reuschel with two outs in the seventh inning to snap a tie as the New York Mets beat the San Francisco Giants 4-1 Tuesday night for their fourth straight victory.

Reuschel (2-3) started on three days' rest as scheduled starter Mike LaCoss was scratched with a recurring neck injury.

With the game tied 1-1, Gregg Jefferies walked and one out in the seventh and stole second despite a pickout. One out later, Howard Johnson was walked intentionally and Darryl Strawberry drew a walk on four pitches to load the bases.

Reuschel went to a 3-0 count on Reynolds, got a strike, and then threw a pitch inside to force in the go-ahead run.

The Mets added two runs in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Jefferies and an RBI single by Dave Magadan.

Reuschel, who has walked 20 in 47 innings, fell to 14-25 lifetime against the Mets. The 40-year-old right-hander allowed four hits in 6 2/3 innings and walked seven. He did not lose his third game last season since July 1.

Sid Fernandez (2-3) pitched seven innings and allowed four hits for the victory. John Franco worked two innings for his seventh save in seven opportunities.

It was the Giants' third straight loss.

Kevin Mitchell tied the tie in the fourth inning with a 430-foot home run that cleared the back wall of the Giants' bullpen in left field. It was his seventh homer.

On Saturday, Mitchell hit a 462-foot homer against Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the third on Magadan's sacrifice fly.

Gary Carter, who played in New York for five seasons, got a standing ovation when he was introduced in the Giants starting lineup. He brought the fans to their feet again in the fifth by just missing a home run down the left-field line.

Carter walked in the fifth and singled in the seventh to finish 1-for-2.

Pittsburgh 10 San Diego 2
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike LaValliere and Andy Van Slyke homered and Walk-errell came in for his first victory as the San Diego Padres beat San Diego 10-2 Tuesday night for their 10th victory in 12 games.

The Pirates, who lost nine of 12 to San Diego last season, are 5-0 against the Padres since they were traded to Pittsburgh (1-1) allowed two runs in the first, then benefited from four double plays over the next five innings in improving to 3-0 lifetime against San Diego. The Padres traded Mike to the New York Yankees last July and he later signed with Pittsburgh as a free agent.

Terrell, who is 3-0 with a 1.15 earned-run average in four career starts at Three Rivers Stadium, allowed eight hits, struck out two and walked two over seven innings. Bobbitt finished up with two scoreless innings.

LaValliere and Van Slyke each earned runs in the five games between the teams this season.

The Yankees are 2-11 against right-hander Steve Carlton since Greg Cadaret (0-2), the former Athletic, walked Carey Lansford with one out in the first inning and Jose Canseco hit a ground-rule double. Mark McGwire then broke an 0-for-18 slump with a sharp single to left in the fifth.

McGwire singled with two out in the fifth and scored when Dave Henderson doubled to left center to give the A's a 3-0 lead.

"I got two hits and now it's news," Terrell said in the clubhouse early night and searching for an answer. McGwire said, "We're in first place and I'm pretty damn happy."

Oakland added two unearned runs off reliever Lance McCullers in the seventh. Canseco walked with two outs and hit the left-center-fielder Roberto Kelly dropped McGwire's high fly for a two-base error, breaking Kelly's 90-game errorless streak. Henderson walked and Terry Steinbach singled to score McGwire.

McI had doubled twice for the Yankees, who were 0-for-4 with runners in scoring position.

"If we have to start waiting for this, then this team is in trouble," Carlton said. "The A's were the best team in baseball the last two years, so I guess they're the best again."

Milwaukee 7 Detroit 5
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rob Deer and Paul Molitor homered Tuesday night and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Detroit Tigers 7-5, offsetting Cecil Fielder's fifth home run in three days.

Matt Nokes and Tony Phillips also homered for the Tigers, but they still lost for the ninth time in 10 games. Reliever Paul Mimbella (1-0) pitched five scoreless innings for his first victory since Sept. 3, 1988.

Fielder leads the major leagues with 12 home runs and 28 RBIs. He hit three homers Sunday in Toronto and has connected two straight days in that city, where he has a total of five.

Fielder hit his fifth home run of the season, a two-run shot in the top of the eighth.

Van Slyke, who singled and scored in the first, hit his fifth homer of the season in the sixth, a two-run shot off Mark Grant. He also had an RBI single in the eighth.

Van Slyke is hitting .563 against San Diego with two homers and six RBIs.

Chicago 10 Atlanta 8

CHICAGO (AP) — Andre Dawson, whose solo homer in the ninth tied the game, hit a two-run shot in the 11th inning to win it as the Chicago Cubs outslugged the Atlanta Braves 10-8 on Tuesday.

Dawson led off the bottom of the ninth with a shot over the center-field fence off Joe Boveer to tie the game after Atlanta's Jeff Treadway had scored the go-ahead run in the top of the inning on Bill Long's wild pitch.

Long (1-0) pitched 2-1-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

The Cubs tied the score at 7-7 in the eighth when Jerome Walton doubled and Ryne Sandberg was credited with an RBI single when his pop fly to short right was lost in the sun by second baseman Treadway and fielder.

Ron Gant's first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the top of the eighth, had given Atlanta a 7-6 lead. Pinch-hitter Andre Thomas led off with a single and Gant followed a drive over the fence in left-center off Paul Assenmacher.

The Cubs had gone ahead in the bottom of the seventh when Sandberg doubled off Tom Glavine. Andre Dawson was intentionally walked and Lloyd McClendon delivered an RBI single.

Glavine settled down after the Cubs scored five unearned runs in the first inning, finishing with one out in the 11th off Wayne Henry (0-1) and Dawson followed with a drive over the fence in left-center off Paul Assenmacher.

Consecutive singles by Mark Lemke, Treadway and Greg Olson gave Atlanta a run in the fourth.

Blauser, who hit two homers on Monday night, added a two-run shot to left-center in the fifth. Olson hit his first major-league homer in the sixth, chasing Wilson.

Oakland pitching staff posts another shutout against Yankees

Sanderson pitched the New York Yankees for the second time within a week as the Oakland Athletics won 5-0 Tuesday for their eighth victory in nine games.

Last Wednesday, Sanderson pitched seven shutout innings and beat the Yankees. He then flew home to Illinois in time for his wife, Cathleen, to give birth. Sanderson then returned to Oakland and pitched 4-0, 1-3 scoreless innings against the New York Yankees.

"I love my job, and I love pitching for this team," Sanderson said. "But nothing would be more important than what happened this week at home."

"I don't think I'm so special in that regard," he said. "Everybody out there on the field has a personal life, not just someone who's wife is about to have a baby. Once the game starts, we have to put it aside. This is a great way to make a living, but I'm no different than anybody else."

American League

Maybe not, but he's just what the Athletics hoped to get when they signed him as a free agent for $750,000. Sanderson had lost his job as a starter for the Chicago Cubs and gone just 35-37 in the last five years.

Oakland wanted someone to fill the void left by free agent Steve Davis went to Kansas City, and Sanderson, 33, has been a perfect fit. Sanderson (4-1) lowered his earned run average to 2.50. He struck out five and, for the first time in six starts, did not walk a batter.

"What he did for us," Yankees manager Bucky Dent said, "We've had our opportunities against him, but we just can't push them across. I think if we push a couple of runs across early, it would be a different ballgame. You've still got to cross the dish."

Gene Nelson was perfect for the final 2-2-3 innings for his second save.

Oakland has now won seven in a row and 14 of 17 over New York and A's pitchers have allowed three earned runs in the five games between the teams this season.

Oilers square NHL semifinal series at 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Mark Messier showed why he's a finalist for the NHL's Most Valuable Player award, scoring twice and adding two assists Tuesday night to lead the Edmonton Oilers to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks in Game 4 of the Campbell Conference finals.

The victory enabled the Oilers to regain the home-ice advantage they lost when the Blackhawks won the first game in Edmonton. The best-of-7 series shifts back to the Northlands Coliseum on Thursday night, with Game 6 scheduled for Chicago Stadium on Saturday night.

The Oilers, sparked by Messier one of three, finished for the Hart Trophy — made the most of their opportunities in the first period, outscoring the Blackhawks 2-1 despite being outshot 11-3.

The Oilers' captain, the runner-up to former teammate Wayne Gretzky in scoring races, made his mark early, tied 2-0 at 17:25 when he outaced everyone for a loose puck, broke down left wing and beat Greg Millen on a breakaway.

The Oilers ended Millen's evening 11 seconds into the second period when Messier set up Craig Simpson, who intercepted a clearing pass by Reijo Ruotsalainen and fed Jeremy Roenick, who beat Bill Ranford from the lower right circle for his 10th goal of the playoffs.

But Messier restored the Oilers' two-goal lead at 14:06 with his eighth of the playoffs, also on a breakaway. Craig Simpson intercepted Doug Wilson's pass in the Oilers' zone, whirled and found Messier streaking through center ice. Messier fired home and backhanded the puck through Cloutier's pads.

The Blackhawks had several scoring chances in the last four minutes of the second period, when the Oilers drew successive penalties, but couldn't capitalize.

Edmonton, which was outshot 27-16 for the game, played it close to the wire in the final period, rarely taking a risk. The Blackhawks were hurt when Jocelyn Lemieux was going for a goal at 12:03 for handing a rebound, which the goalkeepers were behind his net to play the puck.

Schlichter signs up for Detroit football

Knight-Ridder News Service

DETROIT — Art Schlichter, the former Ohio State quarterback suspended by the NFL for gambling, has signed with the Drive, Detroit's Arena Football League team.

The signing will be announced Wednesday at a press conference at Joe Louis Arena, Schlichter, who played three seasons for the Indianapolis Colts, is expected to be the Drive's starting quarterback for the June 8 season opener at Pittsburgh.

Schlichter, 30, has battled a gambling addiction for some time. Last October, he admitted himself into a 30-day program at a Las Vegas, Nev., hospital that specializes in treating gambling addicts. In November, he was fined $250 fine and given a 30-day suspended sentence in a Nevada court for passing a bad $150 check. He had filed for bankruptcy in 1988.

Bosworth ending football career

SEATTLE (AP) — Brian Bosworth, the Seattle Seahawks' linebacker who signed a 10-year, $11 million contract, wasn't invited to the team's minicamp last week because he still is recovering from surgery on both shoulders.

A report in Tuesday's USA Today said the 6-foot-2, 236-pound Bosworth no longer will play football and that negotiations were under way with his agent, Gary Richard, to negotiate a contract settlement with Seattle.

General Manager Tom Flores, who called the report "premature," agreed that Bosworth's future appears bleak.

"He doesn't look too promising at this stage that he'll play this year," Flores said. "But we want to make sure we have explored all the avenues. He still wants to see one last doctor, to my understanding."

Tar Heels' Rice released under bond

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina guard King Rice was released under $2,500 bond this morning after police arrested him for assaulting a female, resisting arrest and destruction of public property, authorities said.

Chapel Hill police Capt. Ralph Pendergraph said the incident began at 3 a.m. in the downtown area.

"One of our officers, Officer (Rice) struggling with a female at University Square about three in the morning," Pendergraph said in a telephone interview. "It appeared that he was choking the woman."

Pendergraph said Rice and the unidentified woman apparently knew each other.

When Public Safety Officer Ed Brooks attempted to take Rice into custody, he resisted, according to Pendergraph. Assisting officer Ben Wiseman suffered a neck laceration, thumb and hand to be treated at the University of North Carolina Hospitals, Pendergraph said.

Canseco: 'I would like to play for the Yankees'

Newsday

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jose Canseco beat the New York Yankees with two home runs Monday night, no surprise there. The bombshell came afterward, when Canseco said he might like to join the Yankees in two years. Out of the blue, he said, "I like playing against the Yankees and with them. Maybe I'll play for them someday."

Canseco sometimes likes to kid around, but the troubles he's had here are no joke. He indicated the Yankees are a team he would consider as a serious alternative for next season, when he will be eligible for free agency. "With free agency coming around," Canseco said, "Steinbrenner might give me something to think about."

Other big-name free agents, such as Mark Langston and Mark Davis, may have stayed away from the Bronx because they had reservations about playing for Canseco, however, he has good feelings about the Yankees. He said, "I think the Yankees will have the time when they will be the Yankees again... with Canseco in night."

Growing up in Miami, the Yankees were Canseco's favorite team. He loved the aura.

"When I was young, the Yankees were the team I wanted to play for," he said. "They had the dynasty. Don Mattingly, Dave Winfield, Thurman Munson. I always dreamed of playing in New York."

Plus, Canseco's relationship with the A's front office has been strained since his troubles with the law.

"Obviously, I could rant and rave and throw things, but that wouldn't change things," he said, adding that he would be willing to listen to offers to stay in the major leagues.

"In my mind I feel like I was in a slump the last three games," he said. "So if somebody gives me a shot, I might take it."

Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston agreed. "It might not be the end for Mike," he said. "Boston and St. Louis need pitching, so there might be a spot for him somewhere."

Jays release fanagan

TORONTO (AP) — Mike Fanagan took his release by the Toronto Blue Jays on Tuesday in the same stoic way he worked on a major league mound for 15 years.

The 1979 American League Cy Young Award winner was let go after going 2-2 with a 5.31 ERA this season for Toronto. He was 8-10 with a 3.93 ERA last season.

"There are only two sure things in this game. You're either going to quit or get released," the 38-year-old left-hander said. "I'm fortunate to have been a Blue Jay for three years and I'll cherish that always."

The Blue Jays recalled right-hander Steve Cummings from the Syracuse of the International League to take his place on the roster. Fanagan showed little emotion as he spoke with the media.

"Obviously, I could rant and rave and throw things, but that wouldn't change things," he said, adding that he would be willing to listen to offers to stay in the major leagues.

"In my mind I feel like I was in a slump the last three games," he said. "So if somebody gives me a shot, I might take it."

"You never know where bottom is until you plumb for it." Frederick Lutz.

Too bad you ran out of finesses to take," observed a sarcastic dummy. "Had you been able to finesse in a fourth suit, I'm sure your luck would have changed."

West won the heart ace and returned his seven to South's Jack and West's queen. West continued with the nine to establish his hearts, and South took his king. A losing diamond finesse came next, and East returned club. Looking at what only eight tricks were in the club finesse, South resigned himself to another finesse. West won and cashed two more hearts to beat the game a shameful two tricks.

Which club should South have returned? First count potential winners. After East's heart ace is played, South has five sure winners outside the club suit. The club suit offers four or five more, depending on the success of the finesse. If it loses, South has hearts slugging against West's lead, so the course is clear. Win the heart king at trick two and cross to a high diamond to take the club finesse. It loses, but the game is safe - nine tricks if West wails. It wins, it's hearts.
