Best is yet to come, Andrus tells grads

By BRAD BOWLIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — High school is not the best time of your life, Gov. Cecil Andrus told students during Twin Falls High School's commencement ceremony Friday night.

His words were not lost on the 387 TFHS graduates who hope things will only get better.

"High school is definitely the best time I've had so far," said Toni-Shea Sinclair. "But I'm excited to get out of Twin Falls. I've lived here all my life."

Sinclair plans to attend Boise State University in the fall.

"I'm sure things will get even better, but it's kind of scary, being on your own," said Shelley Rose, who wants to become an interior decorator and plans to attend they leave high school and pursue their own dreams.

For many, those dreams include more school work, according to Keith Tolzin, acting superintendent. Of the 350 seniors who completed an annual survey, 309 — 89 percent — plan to go forward with some type of higher education or technical training. Only 64 of those plan to leave Idaho to attend school.

Twenty-two graduates said they plan to go to work right away, while 16 will begin military service and three are getting married.

For those students continuing their education, nearly $400,000 in scholarship money had been awarded by Friday with more on

German NATO link will assure Red Army stay

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Friday the Soviet Union would keep its troops in eastern Germany and would review its policies on European arms control and security negotiations if a reunited Germany joined NATO.

The Soviet president's remarks were the Kremlin's most dire warning yet about what steps it would take if a reunited Germany joins the Western military alliance.

He repeated the Soviet preference Friday that Germany belong to both NATO and the Warsaw Pact. The Bush administration favors NATO membership for a united Germany.

Gorbachev also suggested Friday that a reunited Germany could follow France's lead and take part only in NATO political activities.

He told a news conference Western leaders seem to assume a unified Germany would join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, though the German people should be allowed to decide the issue. He said Moscow was wary of that prospect.

"What should we do then about all the negotiating processes, including the European process, the CSCE process, the Vienna disarmament process? Then we must take a fresh look at whether we should pursue the same policy, whether we should base it on the same approaches," Gorbachev said.

His warning came six days before he discusses German reunification with President Bush in Washington. It amounted to a new Kremlin bargaining chip, a message that the West would pay a high price for German NATO membership.

The superpowers are involved in negotiations on reducing their nuclear and conventional forces and hope to reach some agreements during the summit. CSCE refers to the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which deals with military security, economic cooperation and human rights.

U.S. officials in Washington said Gorbachev made a similar warning to Secretary of State James A. Baker III during their talks last week in Moscow.

Soviet negotiators still will hold talks Saturday at the State Department to try to wrap up major unsettled issues in a new Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START). The aim is to expand on a declaration already made by Bush and Gorbachev to sign during their May 30-June 3 summit.

Gorbachev denied he was trying to force the West's hand. He told reporters he issued the warning "not to try to scare any of you so that you would resign to get Bush to get away what kind of trump card is being prepared by the Soviet Union," but to appeal for a joint search for "the right solutions, (so) that we not weaken the positive processes in international relations."

'Simple scenario' for Iowa turret blast

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Investigators from a national laboratory, in another blow to the Navy's conclusions about the USS Iowa disaster, told Congress Friday that "a very simple scenario" could have accounted for the gun turret blast that killed 47 sailors last year.

Bags of gunpowder could have exploded after being pressed too hard and fast by a rammer device into the 16-inch gun's barrel, Sandia National Laboratory officials said in testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

In separate testimony, the General Accounting Office also questioned the Navy's finding of probable sabotage and told the Senate panel that the nation's four World War II-vintage battleships "seem to be top candidates for detonation."

The alternative explanations were aired only a day after Navy engineers produced an "unintended ignition" during tests of gunpowder bags like those used in the Iowa, another indication that the fatal explosion could have been accidental.

In its investigation report issued last September, the Navy concluded that the gunpowder could not have ignited accidentally.

After finding traces of a "foreign material" inside the breach of the gun, the Navy concluded that a lone sailor, 24-year-old Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig, "most probably" placed a detonator inside the gunpowder bags and set off the blast intentionally.

Hartwig and 46 others perished in the April 19, 1989, blast.

Officials from Sandia, one of three major research institutions operating under the Department of Energy, challenged the Navy's claim that chemical traces found in the gun barrel pointed unequivocally to the presence of an unauthorized detonator inside the powder charge.

Most of the chemicals the Navy cited as probable components of a homemade detonator were common-

Scientists say time here to combat warming

The Associated Press

LONDON — Earth's warming trend is already under way due to a buildup of gases in the atmosphere, and immediate cuts in the emission of such gases are needed to stop the dangerous process, U.N. scientists said Friday.

The report by the respected U.N. panel could move the international agenda from discussions of whether global warming exists, to plans on how to deal with it. The United States and Japan have been skeptical of the phenomenon and reluctant to take major economic and policy steps to deal with it.

Global warming is the process by which so-called "greenhouse gases" — such as carbon dioxide and chlorofluorocarbons — collect on the outer edges of the Earth's atmosphere and trap heat within.

The emission of some gases must be cut by more than half simply to stabilize the situation, or the warming will be even faster, the U.N. report said.

As it is, the scientists predicted, the overall increase in temperatures in the next century will be greater than that of the previous 10,000 years combined. The rising temperatures could cause sea levels to rise more than two feet by the end of the next century, they said.

The report was one of three being prepared by working groups of the U.N.'s Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, which called on the expertise of about 1,000 scientists around the world.

The two other working groups are preparing reports on the effects of global warming, including dangerous climatic change they say will cause rising seas; the spread of disease; and widespread starvation in poor countries.

The scientists said global temperatures will likely increase about 1.8 degrees Fahrenheit in the next 35 years and 5.4 degrees before the end of the next century. Sea levels were predicted to rise by 2.3 inches each decade. That would come to 8 inches by the year 2030, and more than two feet by the end of the next century.

Plan to donate embryos ignites a fresh squabble

The Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — A woman's decision to donate seven frozen embryos she won in a custody fight, rather than use them to become pregnant, does not end the battle, her ex-husband said Friday.

"I am totally against it," Junior Lewis Davis, who produced the sperm for the embryos, said of his ex-wife's decision to donate them to another childless couple.

"There is just no way I am going to donate them," Davis said.

"I feel that's my right; then I would be a parent to it. And I don't want a child out there to be mine if I can't be a parent to it."

Davis, 31, and his ex-wife, Mary Sue Davis Stowe, 29, have been locked in a legal battle over the four-to-eight-cell embryos conceived through in vitro fertilization in 1985 while they were still married.

In the only contested issue in their divorce, Blount County Circuit Judge W. Dale Young ruled in September that temporary custody of the embryos should go to Mrs. Stowe, who at the time said she wanted to try to bring a child to term.

The judge, taking the unprecedented step of ruling that "life begins at conception," accorded the embryos the same rights as children. He said it would be in the embryos' best interests to be with Mrs. Stowe.

Davis has appealed the decision. The Tennessee Court of Appeals scheduled oral arguments for June 6.

Suicide Controversial biographer claims huge drug overdose was real cause of death of 'The King' in 1977

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Call off the hunt! Elvis is really dead — and the "king of rock 'n' roll" committed suicide with a huge drug overdose, Presley's controversial biographer claimed Friday.

"It's the dream gone to nightmare. It's perfect. It's the archetypal rags to riches to rags story," writer Albert Goldman said as advance copies of his Life magazine cover story were released to the media. "This is what happens."

The story is getting a big ride in the June issue. "Thirteen years after the death of ELVIS PRESLEY new evidence points to an inescapable conclusion — SUICIDE" reads the copy alongside a photo of the King.

A private autopsy conducted following Presley's death in August 1977 put the cause of death as a heart attack. Through years of rumors about his death — including some saying Elvis staged his own funeral — the Presley estate has stuck with that finding.

A Friday morning phone call to Graceland, Presley's Memphis mansion, for comment on Goldman's claim from the Presley estate was not immediately returned.

Goldman stunned and infuriated millions of Presley fans around the world with his 1981 biography, "Elvis," which portrayed the King as an obese, impotent drug addict incapable of taking care of himself. Later, an unflattering Goldman book on the late King Lennon had the same effect on his fans.

Goldman had written in "Elvis" that the singer died of an accidental overdose.

But his conversations with David Stanley, Elvis' stepbrother and a fixture at Graceland, convinced Goldman that Presley had taken himself out. Stanley, one of the first people to see Elvis dead, says he knew all along it was suicide but had trouble accepting it.

"Several things convinced me. ... He was too intelligent to overdose. He knew the PDR — Physicians' Desk Reference — inside and out," Stanley said Friday at the

ELVIS PRESLEY

Time & Life magazine. The PDR is a standard reference book on the effects of various medicines.

The day he died, Elvis had consumed three packets of assorted drugs at once along with some cocaine; the doses were usually spread out over eight hours, Stanley said.

Goldman points to Elvis' physical deterioration, his drug addiction and his depression over a tell-all book written by ex-bodyguards Red and Sonny West as three factors.

Idaho Democrats promise unity behind LaRocco

By The Associated Press

The two Democrats who lost the 1st District congressional nomination to Larry LaRocco said they will campaign for him in the general election against Republican Sen. Skip Smyser of Parma.

If they do, it could create a lot of drama at a news conference Friday. LaRocco passed out buttons saying, "Eat Our Dust," to Jeanne Givens and Dick Rush, the two other Democrats he defeated in Tuesday's primary election.

LaRocco said he feels he begins the general election campaign ahead of Smyser, who had no Republican primary opponent and coasted to the nomination. The Democratic primary was a hotly contested three-way battle, and LaRocco called it, "A fantastic launching pad to win this seat."

There is no incumbent, since GOP Rep. Larry Craig is surrendering the seat to run for the U.S. Senate. Mrs. Givens took the "Eat Our Dust" button to refer to U.S. Highway 95. She said Smyser, who has been chairman of the Idaho Senate's Transportation Committee, is vulnerable because he has done little to improve U.S. 95, the state's major north-south route.

"We need to get rid of Skip Smyser. He needs to answer for Highway 95. We all spend a lot of time on Highway 95 and it's a wretched mess," Ms. Givens said. "Eat our dust off Highway 95."

It was a light-hearted news conference, with the three Democrats evidently forgiving everything said in the heat of the campaign.

Mrs. Givens sniped during the race about the fact that LaRocco drives a luxury car, a Mercedes-Benz, leased-in-Oregon, while she uses an American-built Chevrolet.

LaRocco said Friday he has had Chevrolets in the past, purchased from veteran Democrat Cy Chase at St. Maries.

"I was worried there would be an Oldsmobile at that came out," added Rush, who drove his family station wagon during the campaign.

"We can make light of some things and move ahead," said LaRocco. He said he expected to spend $400,000 in the primary and $400,000 overall. But LaRocco said with "a level playing field," (no incumbent), he expected to raise as much as Smyser.

Rush, who was director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture before resigning March 5 to run for Congress, said he resigned that job with no strings attached. But he said he has a meeting scheduled with Gov. Cecil Andrus next week and will seek his old job back.

He did not rule out a run for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in 1992, likely against incumbent Republican Sen. Steve Symms, but said right now, he would "not be interested in running for anything. "I wouldn't say no to any future political race, but that's not a race I'm interested in," he said, adding later that he is not particularly interested in any political race at present. State Democratic Party Chairman Conley Ward said even though there were "no pulled punches in that primary," he welcomes the three Democrats to work well together against Smyser.

But Ward said it was particularly interesting to him to be holding a Democratic "unity" news conference at the same time the conservative and moderate elements of the Ada County Republicans are involved in a public feud.

Elsewhere in Idaho politics, the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate launched an early blast in the fall election, accusing Craig of being weak on water rights, budget and wilderness issues. While Attorney General Jim Jones did not win the GOP primary election, he succeeded in showing a weakness in Craig's record, said Ron Twitlager.

Briefly Diesel fuel spill no threat to fishery

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — No serious damage to the local fishery was expected from a car-truck accident that spilled 180 gallons of diesel fuel into a tributary of Henry's Lake.

The spill into Howard Creek occurred about noon Thursday when a car driven by Ernest Nunn, 20, of Helena, Mont., collided head-on with a truck driven by Jacques Eugene Wainwright, 25, of Minnabha, on U.S. Highway 20 about four miles southwest of Terrell Pass.

Idaho State Police said Nunn's car was southbound when he apparently crossed the center line. The collision ruptured the truck's diesel tank, spewing the fuel onto the road and into the creek.

Pocatello mayor slams fund request

POCATELLO (AP) — Mayor Peter Angstad has turned down a $75,000 funding request from the Greater Pocatello Chamber of Commerce, and reduced city funding for Meals on Wheels and other programs.

Amid warnings of additional budget cuts to come, the mayor said proposed non-departmental spending almost in half Thursday. The budget items include those not normally funded by individual city departments or programs.

Erhart ponders Ada GOP position

BOISE (AP) — Moderate Republicans are trying to oust conservative Ada County Republican Chairman Lyman "Gene" Winchester, and unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Milton Erhart is among those considering a run for the post.

The effort to eject Winchester comes in the wake of his admitted involvement in a forgery of tax activist Don Chance's signature on a scathing letter urging the defeat of Rep. Jerry Deckard and Sen. Herb Carlson.

Led by Deckard, R-Eagle, the effort to remove Winchester has enlisted some prominent Republicans in the county.

Idahoan gets Medal of Honor plates

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's first special-vehicle license plate honoring a state recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor has been presented to Korean War veteran David Bleak of Moore.

The special plates were authorized by the 1989 session of the Idaho Legislature.

Earning the Congressional Medal of Honor is the reward for exceptional heroic and personal achievement," Gov. Cecil Andrus said this week. "It's a real pleasure for me to help an Idaho veteran obtain the vehicle license plates which call attention to that achievement."

State pension value drops slightly

MOSCOW (AP) — The value of Idaho's $1.8 billion public employee pension fund dropped 1.4 percent during the first three months of this year.

But analysts told the Public Employee Retirement System of Idaho board this week that the loss was less than half that experienced by the broader U.S. stock market. And roughly 70 percent of the pension funds in the United States reported greater losses during that period, they said.

Ada man named marshal nominee

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush said Friday he will nominate Michael Johnson, Ada County commissioner, to be U.S. marshal for Idaho.

In Tuesday's primary election, Johnson won a six-way race for the Republican county commission nomination. No Democrat filed for the position. Next was Lynda Fischer, Johnson's administrative assistant, who received 2,331 votes.

If confirmed by the Senate, Johnson would succeed Blaine Skinner, former Bonneville County sheriff, who served during the administration of President Ronald Reagan and will continue to serve until Johnson is confirmed.

The nomination was announced by the president during a four-day vacation trip by Bush.

Court upholds disability ruling

BOISE (AP) — A sharply divided Idaho Supreme Court has rejected a request that it reconsider a decision that cost a former Bunker Hill Co. miner almost all of his disability benefit.

The court on Friday ruled 3-2 against changing a decision two years ago. It agreed with the Industrial Commission that disabled miner Paul E. Frank should have a 55 percent disability benefit, rather than 100 percent.

Imbalance in foreign trade dips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit shrank to $26.4 billion from January through March, the smallest quarterly imbalance in more than six years, the government reported Friday.

The Commerce Department said the 8.2 percent improvement in the trade balance was a result of record-high export sales that offset the highest volume of foreign oil shipments in more than 12 years.

The improving trade performance, if it continues, would be good news for the U.S. economy. Over the past three years, rising exports have accounted for more than one-third of total domestic growth as American manufacturers enjoyed a boom in foreign sales.

In other economic news Friday, the Commerce Department reported that consumer spending shot up by 0.6 percent in April. However, the National Association of Realtors reported that sales of existing homes fell 2.1 percent in April.

The better-than-expected performance sent many economists scurrying to revise their trade forecasts for the year. Many had been expecting that weaker foreign demand and a rising oil bill would translate into a worsening trade deficit.

However, some analysts cautioned that it was too soon to tell whether the first quarter performance would continue for the rest of the year. They noted that oil imports are surging because U.S. production has dropped to 25-year lows and that the strength of the U.S. dollar in comparison to the Japanese yen could start showing up in rising imports of Japanese products.

For the first quarter, U.S. exports rose 4.7 percent, to an all-time high of $96.04 billion. Imports were also at a record level, reflecting the surge in oil demand. They climbed 1.6 percent, to $122.4 billion.

The report Friday on merchandise trade as calculated on a balance-of-payments basis confirmed trends already noted in the department's monthly merchandise trade reports. They showed a first quarter deficit of $23.9 billion.

The increase in consumer spending was the biggest gain since January.

Heart attack fatal to actor Tayback

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Actor Vic Tayback, who played Mel the crusty diner-owner on the old "Alice" television series, died at home of a heart attack Friday. He was 60.

Tayback, who has had a history of heart trouble, including triple bypass surgery in 1983, died in his sleep at 1 a.m., said his agent and friend of 20 years, Fred Amiel.

Paramedics took Tayback to Glendale Adventist Hospital but there was no chance of reviving him, he said.

Although he was best known to TV viewers as the loudmouth Mel Sharples for nine years, Tayback played supporting roles in numerous motion pictures.

Report moves officials to search river for man

RUPERT — Mini-Cassia authorities were searching Friday evening for a man reported to have fallen into the Snake River, the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office said.

The office received a call at 1:01 p.m. that a man had fallen into the river just below the Minidoka Dam, near rapids and did not surface.

The Minidoka and Cassia County sheriff's offices and divers responded and were searching the area, with the Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue and others assisting, the sheriff's office said.

Further details were unavailable Friday night.

McClure to speak Tuesday to Kimberly Class of 1990

KIMBERLY — Retiring Sen. James McClure will address Kimberly High School commencement exercises Tuesday night.

McClure, an Idaho Republican, has agreed to speak to the graduating class during beginning at 7:30 at the high school, 241 Center St.

It is the only Magic Valley appearance the senator has scheduled in his swing through Idaho during the Memorial Day congressional recess.

Man charged for burglary after being caught in shop

TWIN FALLS — Officers charged a Kimberly man with first-degree burglary after finding him hiding inside an automobile repair shop, according to court records.

On Friday, Kelley Wayne Hood, 19, 390 Monroe St., appeared before 5th District Magistrate Judge Charles P. Brumbach, who set his bond at $1,500.

Twin Falls police received a call at 4:37 a.m. Friday of a burglary in progress at Marchello's Repair on Washington Street North, court papers say. Officers who responded to the scene found a broken window and $15,000 worth of tool boxes, mechanic hand tools and testing kits loaded into a pickup, papers say.

They arrested a man who they found hiding under a car in for repair.

Program available to help with management of crops

TWIN FALLS — A new agricultural conservation program designed to encourage producers to implement integrated crop management is available in Twin Falls County.

The program is open to 20 farmers, ASCS County Executive Director Jim McLaughlin said.

The new ACP practice allows producers with cost-share assistance to develop and implement an integrated crop management system that will ensure pesticides and nutrients are used in an efficient and environmentally sound manner.

"Agricultural chemicals play an important role in productive and efficient farming operations," McLaughlin said. The new ICM approach will further increase the efficiency of agriculture while providing environmental benefits.

Crop management specialists will assist producers with the ICM program. Farmers approved for the systems will be eligible for cost-share payments of up to $7 per acre for small grains and row crops and $14 per acre for orchards, vegetable or other specialty crops.

Foundation grants hospital mammography unit funds

GOODING — The Gooding County Hospital Foundation has received a $10,000 contribution for a mammography unit.

Velma Morrison of Boise awarded the money on behalf of the Harry Morrison Foundation, founded for her late husband.

A mammography unit costing $15,000 was recently installed at the hospital and is being used for mammograms to detect breast cancer, hospital President Edward Koester said. The hospital paid for $5,000 and had asked for help in financing the remainder. Velma Morrison decided to cover the entire balance, he said.

"We were really pleased with her generosity," Koester said, noting this gift is the largest single contribution ever received by the hospital. "The Gooding County Hospital Foundation and hospital board wish to thank Mrs. Morrison and the Morrison Foundation for the concern and support they have given. Gifts such as this enable the hospital to be updated in its facilities and services."

Supreme Court ruling sparks concern

Governor urges vigilance over water rights

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

GOODING — Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus said he is confident Congress eventually will enact legislation effectively overturning Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision giving the federal government authority over water through dams it licenses.

But in the wake of a vote by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to divert water to Southern California from the Snake and Columbia rivers, the governor told the Gooding Rotary Club Friday that Idaho must remain on guard against attempts to usurp the Northwest's most valuable resource.

"We are moving quickly on several fronts, and the response will be firm, complete and unmistakable," Andrus said. "There is no surplus water in Idaho to divert anywhere. We won't be party to any schemes that would allow that to happen."

Among those schemes, he said, has been contacting the governors of Oregon and Washington and securing a commitment "that we will stand together and are absolutely opposed to any study, let alone diversion, of our water."

Ten members of Idaho Right to Life picketed Andrus' appearance at the Lincoln Inn, protesting his veto of House Bill 625 which would have given Idaho the nation's most restrictive anti-abortion law. Andrus walked past the picketers without comment on his way out of the building.

Andrus told the Gooding Rotarians that Idaho is exploring development of a regional compact to assure every possible legal roadblock is in place to prevent any diversion. Federal law already prohibits even the study of possible interstate water diversions.

In addition, Andrus said he has asked that both what he has called the "crackpot scheme" by Los Angeles County and the Supreme Court decision giving the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission primacy over states in control of water that passes through dams it licenses be put on the agenda for the July meeting of the Western Governors' Association.

The Idaho Water Resources Board has been asked to assess the recent developments and recommend to Andrus any action it deems appropriate. The bottom line, he said, is that "the answer to water problems faced by other areas does not lie in the Northwest."

"If they need more water in L.A., they should quit squandering millions of acre-feet to grow surplus cotton and rice crops in the Imperial and San Joaquin valleys," said the former Carter administration Interior secretary.

"The water is there; California is just not willing to make the tough decisions to use its own resources more wisely."

Idaho water chief: State will have say in projects

By BRAD BOWLIN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's chief water manager says a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the federal government's control of water rights at hydroelectric dams doesn't leave the state without a voice in future projects.

R. Keith Higginson, the director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, said here Friday that a unanimous Supreme Court ruling last Monday that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has authority over the dams it licenses didn't change the fact that any future hydro projects must be granted a state water right.

FERC will decide how much water must bypass a power plant, Higginson said, but "they still need a state water right to use water for the benefit of the power plant."

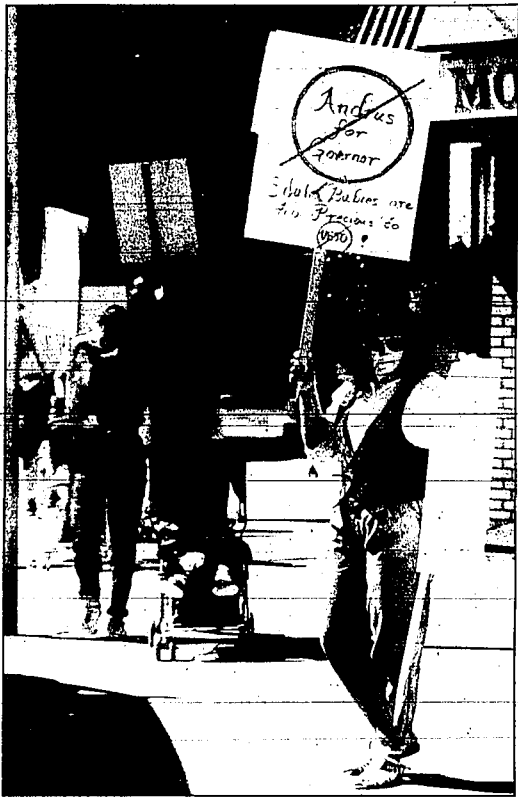

Higginson made his comments during the regular meeting of the Idaho Water Resources Board.

Voting 9-6, the high court struck down California regulations aimed at assuring survival of trout in the American River in Northern California.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing for the court, said the Federal Power Act preempts California's stream-flow regulations.

Although the decision is "not yet interfering with state rights," legislation should be implemented to counter the

Anglers can expect good fishing on opening day

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

Good to excellent conditions will be waiting for anglers as Idaho's general fishing season opens today.

Low spring runoff from an inadequate winter snowpack has created mid-season conditions on most streams, leaving them clear with good flows.

The recent rainy cold snap in the southern part of the state may slow down trout in many streams, but Idaho Department of Fish and Game hatchery supervisor Mike Larkin said anglers just have to adjust to make the weekend openers a success.

"They're going to have to fish slowly" so those lazy trout have time to nail the lure or fly, Larkin said.

Silver Creek in the Wood River Valley and the internationally famed Henrys Lake and the Henry's Fork of the Snake River in eastern Idaho were likely to offer good success to the crowds of fishermen descending on them.

"The river is in great shape," said Mike Lawson of Henry's Fork Anglers at Last Chance. "All the lakes will be good, especially Henrys Lake."

The stonies were already out and a salmon fly hatch could offer an added bonus.

Henry's Lake again produced a record spawning run with more than 12,000 cutthroat trout going through the hatchery by mid-April, said Fish and Game spokesman Rod Parker.

"This is an indication of good prospects for angler success in 1990."

Closer to home, Fish and Game is expecting the usual big opening-weekend crowds at Sublett Reservoir in Cassia County. Thorn Creek Reservoir in Gooding County, the Big and Little Wood rivers, Billingsley Creek, Magic Reservoir and Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

Chip Corsi, Region 4 fisheries manager for Fish and Game, said opening-day anglers should expect mid-summer conditions in high-country lakes and streams.

"Big Wood River, Little Wood, all of them are running quite low and very clear," Corsi said. "They appear in late July and August condition."

But Rock Creek and other South Hills stream are running muddy, he said.

State officials advised anglers to check regulations because of some new rules for this season.

Slot and bag limits have been imposed on cutthroat trout in eastern Idaho, trout bag limits and bait-tackle restrictions are in effect on sections of the middle fork of the Boise River and the main Boise River and compromise rules on tackle and catch-and-release have been set for the Big Wood River and Silver Creek.

But even though stream conditions should be nearly ideal, lakes and reservoirs will probably offer the best fishing action.

Fish and Game geared up for the opener by stocking millions of trout throughout the state, including a larger-than-usual number of catchable rainbows in the Richfield Canal.

Judge delays decision to try man in sexual assault case

By KATHI SCHRADER Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Fifth District Magistrate Judge Barry Wood will decide on Tuesday whether a 24-year-old Howe man will stand trial on charges of brutally raping a 62-year-old Lincoln County woman three years ago.

After listening to nearly five hours of testimony at a preliminary hearing Friday, Wood decided to weigh the evidence before deciding whether the case warrants a trial.

Robert A. Amerson originally was charged with one count of rape, but Lincoln County Prosecuting Attorney Lavon Loyd later filed two additional counts of forcible sexual entry with a foreign object and robbery.

The victim silently wept in the audience during a preliminary hearing postponed a week ago but on Friday testified seemingly without emotion.

She said that at about 5:30 a.m. Dec. 18, 1986, she was driving west on Highway 26 from Richfield to her job in Jerome. She noticed a burgundy-colored car following her. It flashed its lights and pulled up beside her twice, she said. It then passed her, turning to block the road.

A man got out of the car, came to her car and asked her directions to Twin Falls.

"Then I put the window down a little ways, he put his hand into the window and forced his way into the car," she said. "He put his hand over my nose and mouth and pushed me across

Putting base plans 'on hold' leaves residents up in the air

By BO McWILLIAMS Times-News correspondent

MOUNTAIN HOME — Residents here are reacting with caution to the future of the nearby Air Force base following the announcement this week that the proposed massive expansion of the bombing range is "on hold."

Marcus Cox, in a Mountain Home restaurant, said the proposed range expansion is "vital to the future of the base."

Local real estate developer John Bemsenolo, just back from Washington, D.C., said Air Force officials told him scaling down the proposed expansion — to just 300,000 acres — would make the range suitable for a number of uses, thus ensuring the base's future.

"There are many options available, depending on the aircraft and mission where Mountain Home's base can be utilized," Bemsenolo said.

Air Force Secretary Donald Rice told the Idaho congressional delegation Wednesday that expansion or development of the Mountain Home Air Force Base and the Saylor Creek Bombing Range was put on indefinite hold.

"The decision is the result of pending military budget cuts due to easing tensions with East

Court orders district to suspend religious activities

By The Associated Press

Joey Long has chased the church from her school with an out-of-court settlement banning religious intrusion in the tiny Rockland School District in southeastern Idaho.

"It's a relief that it's over," the 16-year-old student said Thursday. "But the attitudes haven't changed throughout all of this. They still don't think they've done anything wrong," she said.

Long said her mother, a beauty salon operator, lost all her customers. The teen-ager said she lost her friends.

Represented by the American

Civil Liberties Union, Long, her mother and another Rockland family accused the school district, claiming their school had become an arm of the Mormon church, encouraging prayer and on-campus seminary classes.

The ACLU protested, filing a federal lawsuit last November that accused school officials of trampling constitutional officers dividing church and state.

School officials initially denied the charges. But they signed a settlement this week that admits to the allegations in full.

A three-page consent decree, approved Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge in Boise, requires the district to cease activities contrary to the First Amendment.

Included in the allegations were holding seminary classes in a school building during school hours, and allowing school bulletin boards to promote church events.

Also cited were striking school-sanctioned activities to the local Mormon church and asking student-athletes to bow heads in prayer prior to athletic competition.

The settlement includes undisclosed monetary damages for the two non-Mormon families bringing suit. Neither side would reveal the sum involved Thursday.

The families had sought $100,000 in compensatory damages in their complaint.

BYU downs LaFayette 13-3 in NCAA tournament
STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Brigham Young scored three runs in the sixth inning and five in the seventh to beat LaFayette 13-3 Friday in the NCAA South II Regional in Starkville.
The victory lifted Brigham Young to 43-24-1, while LaFayette completed its season with a 26-17 mark.
"I knew our offense would start rolling if (starting pitcher) Lance (Clark) could keep it close for about five innings," Brigham Young coach Gary Pullins said.
LaFayette took a 1-0 when Mark Rowland singled, advanced advanced to third and scored when Bob Spagnolo got caught in a rundown trying to steal second.
Brigham Young tied the game when Gary Daniels scored on a double play grounder.

Schuler new Clipper coach, sees change ahead for team
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Schuler is the new coach of the Los Angeles Clippers and expects big changes — he wants the team to win right away.
"It's a big day in my life to have the opportunity to coach this team," Schuler said at a news conference. "So far this year, there have been seven coaching jobs open in the NBA. I got the best job, there's no doubt about it."
"There is just no reason why the Los Angeles Clippers won't have a very good team. We're talking right away."
Schuler, the NBA's coach of the year three seasons ago, said he signed a four-year contract with the Clippers. He succeeds Don Casey, who had a 41-85 record in 1½ seasons as the club's head coach.
Last month, the Clippers fired Casey, who had a one-year contract with an option for another year. Casey had a 30-52 record, their best in five years, but the team had not made the playoffs since in 1976 while playing in Buffalo.
"I'll be very disappointed if we don't make the playoffs next year," said Schuler, 49. "We have the talent to do that. It's a versatile team. It's a team that can do a lot of things. It's a team that hasn't come close to reaching its potential."
Schuler said assistant coaches will be hired later.

Blazing Suns just too hot for Portland

No comeback magic can help as Phoenix stuns Blazers 123-89

PHOENIX (AP) — The Phoenix Suns made sure Portland Trail Blazers had no more comeback magic on Friday night.
Tom Chambers scored 15 of his 24 points as the Suns led a 30-point lead in the first half and went on to beat the Trail Blazers 123-89, cutting their lead to 2-1 in the Western Conference finals.
Phoenix, which blew a 25-point lead in Game 2 at Portland on Wednesday night, plays host to the Trail Blazers in Game 4 of the best-of-7 series Sunday.
The Suns rode to a first-quarter advantage of 40-18, the most opening-period points ever allowed by Portland in a playoff game.
Phoenix built 61-31 and 70-40 leads in the second period en route to a 71-43 half-time margin.
The Trail Blazers got no closer than 25 in the second half. The Suns' largest lead was 103-57 with 1:06 left in the third quarter, putting Portland in jeopardy of losing by the largest margin ever in an NBA playoff game.
Minneapolis beat St. Louis, 133-75, in 1956, but the Trail Blazers reserves used an 18-0 run in the fourth period to make the final score more respectable.
It was Portland's worst playoff loss ever and the second-biggest postseason victory for Phoenix.
Chambers was 11-for-13 from the field and Jeff Hornacek scored 17 points on 8-10 shooting. Kevin Johnson also had 17 points for the Suns, and Jerome Kersey led the Trail Blazers with 16.
Phoenix made 78 percent of its shots in the opening period of 18 of 23.
Portland, which shot only 33 percent from the field in the first period (nine of 27), scored the game's first basket and never led again.
The Suns used a 10-0 run for a 16-4 lead with 8:20 remaining in the first quarter. Chambers had six of his 10 points in the period during the final three minutes.
Eddie Johnson's hook and two free throws capped a 10-0 spurt for a 50-22 Phoenix lead 4:11 into the second period.
The Suns led by 30 points twice (61-31 on Chambers' baseline jumper 4:26 before halftime and 70-40 on Kurt Rambis' jumper with 1:50 left).
Terry Porter, led to five first-half points, hit a 3-point goal with 35 seconds remaining to make it 71-43 at intermission.
The Suns shot 77 percent from the field in the first half (30 of 39) to Portland's 40 percent (20 of 50).

Fishing good to excellent as 1990 season opens

By The Associated Press
Larkin said anglers' just have to adjust to make the weekend opener a success.
"They're going to have to fish slowly" so those lazy trout have time to nail the lure or fly, Larkin said.
Silver Creek in central Idaho's Wood River Valley and the internationally famed Henrys Lake and the Henry's Fork of the Snake River in eastern Idaho were likely to offer good success to the crowds of fishermen descending on them.
"The river is in great shape," said Mike Lawson of Henry's Fork Anglers at Last Chance. "All the lakes will be good, especially Henrys Lake."
The stonies were already out and a salmon fly hatch could offer an added bonus.
Henrys Lake again produced a record spawning run with more than 12,000 cut-throat trout going through the hatchery by mid-April, said Fish and Game spokesman Rod Parker.
"This is an indication of good prospects for angler success in 1990."
State officials advised anglers to check regulations because of some new rules for this season.
Slot and bag limits have been imposed on cutthroat trout in eastern Idaho, trout bag limits and bait-tackle restrictions are in effect on sections of the Middle Fork of the Boise River and the main Boise River and compromise rules on tackle and catch-and-release have been set for the Big Wood River and Silver Creek.
But even though stream conditions should be nearly ideal, lakes and reservoirs will probably offer the best fishing action.
The Fish and Game Department geared up for the opener by stocking millions of trout throughout the state.

Pistons hope to finish Bulls at Chicago today

The Associated Press
CHICAGO — The hobbling Chicago Bulls face a must-win game, and the reeling Detroit Pistons hope to put the NBA Eastern Conference title out of reach when the rivals continue their best-of-7 series at Chicago Stadium Saturday.
The Pistons enter the game with a 2-0 lead built on their home floor in Auburn Hills, Mich.
All eyes Saturday will be on Michael Jordan, the always pleasant and ever-available superstar who has been in a snit since Tuesday night's embarrassing 102-93 loss at the Palace. At halftime, Jordan chided his teammates and told them they would have to play harder. Then, out of character, Jordan has made himself unavailable to the media.
"To get the team going, we need emotion, not anger," said coach Phil Jackson after the Bulls' practice session Friday.
"There's no doubt about it, there's no tomorrow. Tomorrow is fishing, or out on the golf course."
(But) the controversy only is in the media," Jackson said. "It's not among our selves."
Jordan has hip and wrist injuries and John Paxson has an ankle injury, but coach Phil Jackson said both are improved. They should be ready for Saturday's nationally-televised encounter.
"I'm feeling good and Michael is all right," Paxson said. "We had two great practices. I can't speak for Michael but he was talking it up in practice today and if he doesn't want to speak with the media, it's his business."
"This whole thing is being blown out of proportion. All I know is, we'll be ready on Saturday afternoon."
The series will continue with another televised holiday matinee Monday, and if the Pistons win both games, the series will end. If not, it continues at the Palace Wednesday night.
"I'd like to get it over in as few games as possible," said Detroit coach Chuck Daly. "But we need to win at least one of these two games which would really set us up."
Daly said as far as he is concerned, the series starts Saturday. He also expects to the Bulls to use Jordan's actions to their advantage.

Hayes' bat powers Philly victory over cold Atlanta

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — How could anyone upstage Len Dykstra, whose .411 batting average leads the National League? Try this: single, triple, homer, four RBI. A neat cycle.
That's what Von Hayes did, coming only a double short of what no Phillie batter has done in 27 years.
It happened Thursday night in an 8-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves. He had a chance for the double in the seventh inning.
"One of the guys mentioned it to me," he said, "so when the count got to 3-1, I was pretty much going to swing at anything."
Braves reliever Dwayne Henry served Hayes a changeup that he popped to second, ending his chance to hit safely all but bases in one game.
The last Phillie to do that was Johnny Callison, against the Pirates in Pittsburgh in 1963. The last Phillie to hit for the cycle at home was Chuck Klein, in 1921.
"It's good to see Von start swinging the bat again," Phillies Manager Nick Leyva said. "He's been struggling a little bit. He's the kind of a ballplayer, when he gets hot, he makes things happen."
Hayes was pretty cold on the Phillies just-ended trip to the West Coast, going 6-for-31 at the plate, a chilly .194 average.
"I knew what I was doing wrong," he said. "I made adjustments. Instead of jumping at the ball, I was trying to take my hands back first."
It worked.
Hayes struck out on his first at-bat, but he singled in the Phillies fourth run in a four-run second inning, tripled in a run in the fourth, and drove in two more runs with a blast over the right-field fence in the sixth.
Dykstra, meanwhile, went 3-for-5 in the plate, driving in two runs and raising his league-leading batting average to .411. The Phillies had a total of 14 hits. The team is batting .281.
Hayes said getting out of his slump was easier because his teammates were hitting.

Gibson trying to come back from injuries of 1989

By PETE HERRERA
The Associated Press
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The pitch was a fastball, a little inside, but the type that Kirk Gibson would more often than not have hammered two years ago.
This time, Gibson got underneath it and lifted it softly to left center for an easy out.
Ten months without 90 mph fastballs have taken their toll on the 1988 National League Most Valuable Player and catalyst for Los Angeles' euphoric World Series championship that year.
Gibson, recovering from a torn left hamstring that sidelined him for the final three months of the 1989 season, fired out and singled Thursday against Colorado Springs pitcher Rod Nichols as he began a 20-day rehabilitation assignment with Albuquerque, the Dodgers' Class AAA affiliate in the Pacific Coast League.
After his four-inning stint, Gibson said he was generally satisfied with the results, but he conceded he's not sure when he'll be ready to rejoin the Dodgers.
"This thing will dictate how long I'm here," said Gibson, pointing to the left knee. "I'll see what I can do. I think it was a good start and hopefully everything will feel good tomorrow. I think I pushed it a little bit."
Gibson, 33, had not played since last July when he underwent surgery to repair a slight tear in the hamstring near his left knee. Doctors said Gibson may have initially injured the hamstring while sliding into second base in the 1988 championship series against the New York Mets. He aggravated it early in the 1989 season and, coupled with a right knee sprain, was sidelined the rest of the year.
His last season included a 213 batting average, nine homers and 28 RBIs — figures that were a shadow of the 1988 season in which he hit .290 with 28 home runs.
The Dodgers, in second place in the NL West, eight games back of Cincinnati, hope Gibson can play himself into form in the warm, dry climate at Albuquerque.
In batting practice Thursday, Gibson drove five balls over the right and center field wall, the shots landing in the lava beds that surround the Albuquerque stadium.
"I'm not worried about my hitting," said Gibson, his thoughts occupied by his knee.
"Just from running, I tightened up a lot. When you get in a game, it's different. If it's a game where I need to put out a little extra, then I will."
Gibson started in center field. In his only fielding chance, he turned the wrong way on a fly ball to deep left center by Colorado Springs catcher Tom Magrann. Gibson slipped trying to recover but the ball hit the base of the wall to drive in the second Sky Sox run of the inning.
"I made some elementary mistakes," he said. "My first at-bat was one of them and the ball in center field was another. I knew the wind was blowing hard that way but I didn't take it into consideration. I turned around because I knew it was going to be over my head, but the ball was well off from where I was. I just turned the wrong way."
After his fly ball out to right Gibson flied out to right center in the Dukes' first on a 1-0 count, then singled to right in the fourth off Rod Nichols.
"It really wasn't a very good at-bat for me," Gibson said of his first plate appearance. "I made contact but I didn't swing at a good pitch for my strength."
Albuquerque manager Kevin Kennedy said Gibson would determine the length of his stay in Albuquerque.
"It will be day by day," Kennedy said. "I'm sure as soon as he feels he's ready, I'm sure he'll be recalled."
Kennedy said Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda and Fred Claire, executive vice president for player personnel, would get daily reports on Gibson's progress.
"Our priority is to get him to the big leagues," Kennedy said.
