Anti-hunt efforts sure

SUN VALLEY - Animal-rights activists who recently stopped California from establishing a mountain lion hunt eventually will turn their attention to Idaho, an Jdaho Department of Fish and Game official predicted Tuesday.

The groups probably will target Washington and Oregon, then move to other western states, said Carl Nellis, Region 4 supervisor for Fish & Game. He and other wildlife managers from the West and Canada are gathered here for a Western Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies conference this week.

"It's not a question of if, but when. In 10 years or less we'll see a move," to stop mountain lion and bear hunting in Idaho, Nellis said. If they could stop bear and liod hunting, other hunts probably would be targeted too, he said.

"The Problem is a clash of philosophies, he said.

The problem is a class or purosperiments and "These animal-rights activists think animals have the same rights as humans. If you kill one it's the same thing as murder," he said.

Fish and game managers see it differently. "Our position is that wildlife provides many benefits to people, one of which is consumptive use." he said.

A group calling itself the Committee to Abolish Sport Hunting claimed credit for the hunting ban in California and said it is close to similar bans in other western states. Noriega banker said to launder money

TAMPA, Fla. — Manuel Noriega's longtime personal banker and five co-defendants formed a "partnership in crime" to launder $32 million in drug profits through worldwide financial transactions, a prosecutor said Tuesday.

The defendants — five Bank of Credit and Commerce International employees plus a Colombian airplane broker — knew the huge sums of cash they were trying to disguise were proceeds of cocaine sales but didn't care, Assistant U.S. Autorney Mark Dackowski said in closing arguments.

In fact, they even-offered helpful laundering hints to an undercover agent to skirt "Ladea" — which stood for the Drug Enforcement Administration, he said.

Shuttle pilot suspended over incidents

MASHINGTON — The chief of the astronaut corps said Tuesday that shuttle commander David M. Walker was suspended for more than flying his jet trainer within 100 feet of a Pan Am airliner. "It was an incident that was considered, you might say it was one of the more severe incidents," Donald R. Puddy, director of flight crew operations, said in a telephone interview from Houston. "At the same time it was not the only one and not necessarily the principal one." He declined to elaborate, saying only that the space agency had become concerned about "some things in the manner which he was flying."

Walker, a Navy captain who had flown in space twice, was replaced on a Defense Department mission set for March 1991 and suspended for 60 days from flying NASA's T-38 jet trainers.

He denied that the test was redesigned in order to assure that the untibilizats would pass a Jeakage test.

When leaks were detected in the first test, Lenoir said, the slave unit was removed and a blank plate was substituted. This was done, he said, because it was assumed the leak was from the slave unit and not from the untilicial. In tests usine the blank umbilical. In tests using the blank plate, the NASA official said, the units passed.

Lenoir acknowledged that using liquid nitrogen, which is chilled to minus 250 degrees, is less riporous than using liquid hydrogen, which is chilled to minus 423 degrees fabrenheit. He also said that the liquid nitrogen is pumped through the unbiliciasis during the test at a slower rate than liquid hydrogen flows through the units during an actual space flight.

"We suspect that (the test) is not adequate or stressful enough," the NASA official said.

Radio tower construction given go ahead

MOSCOW — The owner of a Colfax, Wash-based radio station got the green light Monday from the Latah County Commission to build a disputed radio tower on Paradise Ridge south of Moscow. James Macdonald, a University of Idaho law professor who lives near Paradise Ridge, had appealed an April decision to build another radio tower on the ridge. Three towers are there already. Macdonald and other area residents contended the extra tower posed health and safety problems with increased electromagnetic radiation.

But Jerry Leitch, a radiation specialist with the Environmental Protection Agency, said his tests showed electromagnetic radiation at homes on the ridge is within safety guidelines.

Public use may endanger Twin Falls public fountain

Twin Falls's newest landmark has run headlong into an eternal truth: Public fountains attract the public.

The lovely Centennial Fountain, dedicated last week in City Park, had bee bubbling for less than a day before it be came an anthill of splashing children.

Youngsters and even adults have been wading in its reservoir, clambering atop its lava base and soaking in its concrete trough. The fountain has been soaped and dyed. And the inscribed concrete monu-ment at its base has been used as a bicycle

As dismaying as these developments may be, no one should be surprised. On sweltering summer days, no fountain any-where is kidproof. That cool, splashing water is simply too inviting.

And surely no one expected that bicy-clists and skateboarders could resist a sloping concrete slab in a city park.

Unfortunately, the fountain wasn't designed as a jungle gym. The natural lava rock will stand only so much climbing, and the newly planted foliage will stand hardly any. Already, scrambling feet have scattered much of the bark mulch around the plantings.

Frankly, there isn't much the city can do. Anything that would really keep thoughtless people out of the fountain—such as a chain-link fence—would keep everyone else from enjoying it too. Police can't afford to divert manpower from real crime to keep chasling kids out of the water.

Yet the situation is not hopeless. One reason people have been abusing the fountain is that, until now, no one has asked them not to.

The City Council's "Dear Citizens" letter printed on this page makes just such a request – eloquently. It asks citizens to remind trespassers that the fountain is not

With a little cooperation of that sort, and with a couple of politely worded signs, most of the abuse will stop. In a community such as Twin Falls, where small-town values still hold, most people will do the right thing if someone asks them steady.

The key word there is "most." A certain amount of wading and climbing will always be inevitable.

The city's only recourse may be a philosophical shrug. After all, that's fountain biz.

Snyder victim of short attention spans

WASHINGTON - Mitch Snyder was right. He believed all that weighty business we grew up with the Sunday injunctions to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and shel-ter the homeless.

For a time, that was enough. An ex-con-vict; a man who had abandoned a young-family in New York, the rehabilitated prod-uct of a life fallen apart, Snyder transformed himself into a kind of urban Jeremiah. He was a tircless advocate of moral reform, ser-monizing under a threat of doom.

monizing under a tireat of doom.
For five years, America listened as Snyder spawned a movement. The army of home-less men, women and children who weren't visible at the beginning of the 1980s grew up, literally, under our feet. Snyder organized them and attempted to empower them nized them and attempted to empower grates in their interest.

He understood the soul of the celebrity machine and believed that reporters were there to be cameras and manipulated, that a made-for-TV movie about his life was a kind of affirmation of America.

He threw Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for the homeless, dinners with movie stars as servers and members of Congress ladling soup.

But he pushed the limits as well, fasting and being arrested. Abrasive and single-minded, Snyder thought he could fasten the plight of the homeless onto the American

While he understood much about his country, both Snyder and his movement fell victim to the foreshortened national attention span. America grew weary of the home less who wouldn't go away, who bumped u against them at subway stops and waved pa-

But it was not Snyder's intention to lobby for the homeless until we got bored.

There is an old piece of videotape aired in recent days in which Snyder is seen talking to a police officer outside the District Bluiding, Washington's city hall. The officer is wary of Snyder and his followers, understanding, he says, that they destroy property.

"We don't really destroy property," says Snyder, "though we do sometimes try to en-hance its relation to reality."

A few moments later, he threw a bucket of fake blood on the building.

Three years ago, Snyder-accepted a $5,000 gift from then-Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin. The Soviets made the presentation with great fanfare, inviting American reporters to the embassy. Asked about his motives in taking the money and Moscow's motives in offering it, Snyder was characteristically straightforward.

"We don't spend a lot of time trying to "We don't spend a lot of time trying to determine what prompted President Reagan to promise to renovate our shelter two days before the election," Snyder said. "And we' don't spend a lot of time looking into the hearts of our Russian friends."

In time, opinion changed and hearts were turned against Snyder and the homeless.

Two weeks ago, the local city council scaled back an ordinance birthed by Snyder that guaranteed overnight shelter to anyone seek-ing it. The coffers were empty, said these elected stalwarts of the most bloated munic-ipal bureacracy in the country.

At the same time, it seems, Snyder's long-time relationship with fellow nettivist and soulmate Carol Fennelly had come apart. He went to his room inside the 1,400-bed homeless shelter he'd established five years earlier and wrote a suicide note

When Snyder's body was found last Thursday, the nation's best-known spokesman for the homeless was a political relic, yesterday's news, as unfashionable as disco music.

Snyder came to politics in a Connecticut jail 20 years ago with activist priests Daniel and Phillip Berrigan. They were in prison for destroying draft records. Snyder was there for stealing a car out West.

It was, he said later, a mistake made as part of his Jack Kerouse period.

The moody voice of the Beat Generation would have liked Snyder, who was 46 wher he hanged himself in his room at the Community for Creative Non-Violence.

In "On The Road," Kerouac wrote, In "On The Road," Kerouae wrote, "... the only people for me are the mad ones, the ones who are mad to live, mad to talk, mad to be saved, desirous of everything at the same time, the ones who never yawn or say a commonplace thing but burn, burn, burn like fabulous yellow Roman candles exploding like spiders across the stars and in the middle you see the blue centerlight pop and everybody goes 'Awww!"

Women must be included in scientific research and experiments

Recently, a congressional hearing drew at-tention to the fact that women are the vic-tims of discrimination in medical research. Its conclusion: Men are overrepresented in tests of new drugs, devices and procedures

The lack of women in research is a serious problem. Drugs and devices tested only on men may turn out to have dangerous, even lethal, complications when given to women. And if testing is skewed toward the problems of men, then the health-care needs of women may be overlooked or underestimat

Those in the federal government responsi-ble for funding biomedical research were told to make sure that more women are used as research subjects. Those looking for an answer to the problem are treating participa-tion in research on a par with problems of gender discrimination in pay and employ-ment.

Arthur Caplan

It is not quite right to say that men out-number women in biomedical research. Young and middle-aged men outnumber other participants. And these men are likely to be relatively healthy, since many research studies explicitly exclude anyone with dis-abilities, psychosocial problems or chronic illnesses.

The problem of the underrepresentation o women in research is real, but it is not unique. What is unique are the reasons why women are not involved to the same extent as young or middle-aged men. The key reasons: babies and ovaries.

Women have traditionally, intentionally and explicitly been excluded from biomed-cel-research-for-fear-that drugs, chemicals and medical devices of unknown safety and efficacy might be especially dangerous to an embryo or fetus.

Women, the common wisdom of research has long maintained, do not always know if they are pregnant and, in some cases, do not care. Drugs or radiation that are slightly risky for adults can be very risky for a developing embryo. The safest course for protecting embryos — and for protecting against lawsuits that might come in the wake of deformed or stillborn babies born to mothers involved in medical research — is to exclude them.

Paternalism toward fetuses and cond-Paternalism toward fetuses and conde-scension toward women regarding their abil-ity to be responsible about their reproductive status partially accounts for the absence of women from medical research. But these at-titudes are not going to be changed by im-posing the equivalent of an affirmative-action program for recruiting female research subjects.

The other reason why researchers have steered away from women is that they have ovaries. Thus they experience ovulation, menstruation, pregnancy and menopause—phenomena that predominantly male researchers view in a negative light.

For centuries, male scientists and physicians have seen men as representing and il-lustrating what is normal and healthy about human beings. Male physiology and behavior define normal human physiology and behavior. Women, as a number of feminist scholars have been pointing out for many years, are seen as "deviations." Since seinties want to conduct research with subjects. years, are seen as "deviations." Since scientists want to conduct research with subjects who are as normal, as "typical" as possible, bias against non-male traits leads to the exclusion of women as suitable subjects.

Ordering those who fund science to fix gender discrimination by quota or by fiat won't work. Unless the biomedical community begins to take seriously the iden that women are just as normal as men, researchers will continue to be wary of using them as research subjects. And unless society debates and reaches consensus on ethical, legal and social policies that ought to govern involvement of pregnant women and women of child-bearing age in research, researchers will continue to steer away from these women. these women.

Discrimination against women in research will not end until doctors, scientists and legislators agree that it is normal to be female.

Please protect new fountain

riease protect new fountain
On Tuesday, July 3, the Centennial Fountain in City Park was dedicated as our community's centennial project. The concept was developed by a group of citizens who requested and received the support of the city. Many businesses in Twin Falls donated time and materials. Without their contributions, it is estimated that the project would have cost approx/mately $40,000. Because—this was a true community effort, the actual cost to the local taxpayers will be about $10,000, or 25 percent of the estimated cost. In less than a week since the dedication

S10,000, or 25 percent of the estimated cost. In less than a week since the dedication exemony, the fountain has been seriously misused and abused. The concrete monu-ment outlining the state of Idaho has become a jump for bicycles. Adults and children un-der adult supervision regularly wade in the fountain and the trough at the top of the fountain and the trough at the top of the falls. The collection points on both sides of the fountain have become water sildes. The fountain has been spiked with soap and dye The piping system has been dislodged from the trough and the drains have been plugged with material thrown in the fountain.

Originally, we hoped the fountain would be enjoyed through our state's bicentennial. At the current pace, we will be lucky to make it through our centennial year.

The purpose of this letter is to solicit your help. If you observe adults or children in the fountain, please remind them that the foun-tain was not built to be used as an active recreation structure. If you or your children use the fountain for wading and playing, please stop.

Without your help, we will not be able to protect the community's investment and assure the continued use and enjoyment of the fountain for future generations.

MAYOR TOM CONDIE AND THE CITY COUNCIL

Respect can't be legislated

Under the waving "Stars and Stripes" we enjoy a relative freedom known only to a minority of this troubled world of ours. The protection and screnity we enjoy in this country give our children a great future, and ourselves a secure past.

Yet, here in America we also see profes-sional politicians regulating and controlling our lives. Trivial laws restrict freedom. Most disturbing, perhaps, is the complacency of Americans. It seems that we forget how ou freedom was purchased, and the vigilance necessary to protect it, from within as well as abroad.

One of our most valuable freedoms is the freedom of choice. Also the freedom of speech, which has been extended to freedom of expression.

Can you remember the student protests in China? We were proud of the brave souls, many of whom gave their lives for our ideals. Imagine our ruge and disgust had we seen a Chinese patriot shot for burning a Chinese flag. We would have condemned the Communists for their totalitarian tactics.

But wait! Many people think it only proper to legally or violently or legally violently prohibit the same expression here in the land of freedom. Where is the tolerance for dif-fering opinions that America is famous for?

The whole question is one of respect, Do we or don't we respect America? Do our fears outweigh our respect? Does our re-spect outweigh our common sense?

If the politicians see a threat to the flag as If the politicians see a threat to the flag as a reflected threat to themselves, perhaps they see it for what it is. Instead of passing laws to protect the flag, though, maybe they should set about earning respect for themselves and the flag. Real respect cannot be legislated; it must be earned.

Shannon said the city must decide whether or not it wants to continue to pay its share of funding for the economic council.

The city's share would match funds awarded in a grant designed to form the council.

The city's share for the council's first year was $10,000. The $12,000 second-year payment is due-Oct. 1. The grant opportunity will end July 1, 1991.

"Sixteen people have voluntarily contributed 4,977 hours on the project since December 1982. Sharnon said, "which would be $75,000 in professional salaries."

"The city has received more than its money's worth," he added.

Hailey mayor describes plan for shopping center

Hagerman School Board adds extra class period will still be unpopular with some of his

HAGERMAN – Despite a statement from the high school principal that the change was bound to make him some enemies on his staff, the School Board has voted to change class schedules for junior and senior high school students.

The schedule change, approved by the board Monday, will reduce the amount of time spent in each class, but will add an additional class period to good ditional class period to each school day, bringing the total number of periods each bringing the total number of perious candaly to seven.

The original schedule change proposal—to develop, a trimester system—was deemed too radical a change and rejected by the board.

The board considered switching to the trimester schedule during several months, but plans to implement it during the 1990-

1991 school year were stalled after some teachers expressed concern over the increased class time and the splitting of class-caused class time and use spranning strain three units.

The schools will continue to operate on a undester system.

But the new schoule [vill provide the udents with scheduling flexibility, one of the benefits of the trimester schedule, said

However, he noted, the new schedule will still be unpopular with some of his teachers.

"Whichever schedule is adopted, I'm going to make some enemies on the staff," Ills told the board.
Several teachers at a special meeting held last month objected to the seven-period per day schedule because they said it would not allow enough time in each class to complete projects and lessons.

PACs donated money to valley primary campaigns

TWIN FALLS - Campaign contributions from big business and special interest groups may be political action committee politics as usual in Washington, D.C., but several Magic Valley candidates also banked similar contributions prior to the May legislative primaries.

Finance disclosure reports filed recently with the Idaho Secretary of State show local winners - and losers - enjoyed a boost From political action committees fueled by Idaho banks, utilities and even educators.

The Twin Falls orthodontist raised more than $13,000 in his first bid for political of-fice, which included $4,000 Toolson loaned to his own campaign. But he lost the race with 44 percent of the vote. According to a report received by the Secretary of State on June 21, Toolson's campaign was more than $1,800 in the red.

Noh raised $4,800 this year for his re-election effort, which includes $200 from the Idaho Education Association spent for advertising on behalf of Noh, Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, and Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls.

EDEN The city's current system of garbage pickup is running amok, city officials say.

city officials say.

Council members said they have heard complaints from residents that their garbage isn't picked up regularly, but that they are charged a fee every month for the pickup service.

Councilwoman Diann MeNeil said that residents aren't convinced that all their garbage will be picked up. She said some residents have told her some garbage is often left behind by garbage men, leaving res-idents to haul it away themselves.

Comments from the council mem-bers came during a discussion of garbage rates.

Bob MeIntire of the McIntire San itation Service in Hurley, the city's garbage pickup contractor, attended the City Council meeting and began discussion of a new rate proposal for garbage removal.

He told the council the existing $3 monthly charge per household is not enough for him to continue hauling Eden citizens' garbage.

McInitic contends that some residents are paying for only one household but are actually combining the garbing—from—several—households into one load.

the suggested monthly garbage pickup rates could be reduced if ev-ery household in the city had there garbage hauted by his company. He suggested the city could pass an or-dinance requiring all residents sign up for garbage pickup services.

McIntire Sanitation Service has nly 45 customers in Eden — less nan one-third of the 150 homes in the city.

Apparently another problem oc-curs with burned garbage.

City Council members told McIn-tire garbage burning is common in

This means more garbage w up much more quickly and wi to be hauled at a quicker pace.

McIntire proposes that current customers be charged $5 a month cavith a once-a-week pickup schedule. No burned garbage will be picked up, and residents-may-use-plastic-bags or small cans, or a combination of the two.

A letter will be sent by McIntire's company to the customers relating this proposal in detail.

The City Council did not make any decisions on the matter.

In other business, the council granted two building permits: Joe Belt was granted a permit to build an addition to his trailer house and Raymond Way received his permit to build a patio.

The study looked at Idaho schools-presently on the system and inter-viewed teachers, support people and students. Ills said that although he had received the report only hours before the meeting, his initial feel-ings were that the trimester was suc-cessful and broadly accepted. Ills told the board that the study addressed many of the concerns that his teachers had expressed, but that it did not deal with the integration of junion high students into the sched-ule – essential to Hagerman because most of the high school teachers also teach junior high classes and would therefore have to be on the same schedule.

The Nationals were held to a record-low two hits and Julio Franco followed a 68-minute rain delay by lining a two-ran doube in the seventh inning Tuesday night as the Americans won 2-0 for their third straight victory and fourth in five years.

They didn't even use Randy Johnson, who pitched one of six no-hitters this season, five in the AL.

"It's never fun to play in the rain," said Al. shortstor Cal Ripken." And in the All-Star game, you'd like perfect conditions." Major league baseball took out a $17 million insurance policy with Lloyd's of Condon to protect against a rainout. If it had been postponed, it would have been played Wethersday night and forced the AL to reschedule four games.

The start of the game was delayed 17 minutes by rain and Franco's go-anead hit off Rob Dibble came after a wait of more than an hour.

"I went inside and just tried to stretch and concentrate," said Franco, the game's WVP. "Then I tried to look at him while he was warming up because I never saw him before. They said he threw hard."

"Everything came down to me against the guy, and I got beat with a fisstball. The way it ought to be," said Dibble, who has been clocked at 100 mph.

Smith carves out 1st-day lead at Women's Amateur

BOISE — Defending champion Jean Smith's two-under par 69 — "maybe the best I've ever had here" — gave her the lead but couldn't break her away from the field in the first round of the Idaho State Women's Amateur Golf

Perhaps the closeness of the field is the biggest story, the length of this hilly course and its sharply pitched greens were seen as pre-tourney separators. Quail Hollow's women's tees reduce the title outcome to pitching and putting. "Strategy is a big part of this tourney," said Smith.

Cowboys, Pocatello split doubleheader

TWIN FALLS — Tuesday's Southern Region "A" American Legion baseball doubleheader, a full 14 innings of baseball, concluded with things pretty much as they were before it began. As was the case in Pocatello's Halliwell Park last month, the Twin Falls Cowboys clubbed their way to a 9-5 decision in the first game, then watched the league-leading Rebels of Pocatello use a pair of errors to break a tie and gain a split 9-7 in the nightcap. "It's too bad we couldn't get the second one too for seeding purposes," said

Twin Falls coach Dave Slotten. "But there are a lot of conference games left. Maybe someone will get them."

Tuesday's results left Procatello. 21-5 in all games, 6-2 in district play while Twin Falls, 21-12 overall, again trails by one game at 5-3.

The Cowboys have four conference games remaining — one against Minico in Burley at 5 p. m. today, a doublehead or against Idaho Falls at home on July 17 and a single game with Minico at Frontier Field on July 23. Poky also has four conference games remaining, two conference games remaining, two against Minico in Rupert on Friday and two in Idaho Falls on July 18. Please see COWBOYS/B4

McMahon half-heartedly signs for year with Eagles

CHICAGO — Because other teams weren't calling, Jim McMahon decided he would rather be in Philadelphia and signed a one-year contract Tuesday with the Eagles. The deal reunites McMahon with former Chicago Bears defensive coach Buddy Ryan. But, first, McMahon will participate in a celebrity golf tournament this weekend that includes Bears coach Mike Ditka. McMahon and Ryan share a mutual disrespect for Ditka that failed to keep the trio from winning Super Bowl with the Bears for the 1985 season.

The Bears have defeated the Eagles in four meetings ince Ryan became Philadelphia head coach in 1986. The since Ryan became Philaderphia head coach in 1986. The teams are not scheduled to play this season.

McMahon, 31 on Aug. 21, will be a backup to Randall Cunningham, the S3 million do-everything quarterback who has played in the last two Pro Bowls.

Dawson signs 1-year deal with Cubs for $3.7 million

CHICAGO - Happy Birthday,

CHICAGO — Happy Birthday, Andre Dawson!
He celebrated his 36th birthday on Tuesday as the Chicago Cubs announced they had agreed to a new one-year contract with an option for a second year. The pact guarantees him $3.7 million.

In addition, the option year becomes guaranteed if Dawson is able to play 140 games next season.

Before suiting up to participate in his seventh All-Star game, Dawson, an eight-time Gold Glove winner and the NL MVP in 1987, called it "a joyous ocension. We have the All-Star game here on my birthday and the contract is resolved. It's a day, I'm sure, that will stand out in my career."

Chemical use for cosmetically perfect produce under fire

perfect produce under lire
The practice of using agricultural chemicals to obtain cosmetically perfect produce came under fire in Congress excently.
The Senate Agriculture committee approved a reform package that would require a modification of federal grading standards that currently rewards farmers for producing flawless fruit and vegetables.
Often this commercially desirable appeanace is the indirect result of pesticide usage.

offen this commercially desirable appearance is the indirect result of pesticide usage.

The legislation, entitled the Agricultural Marketing Reform Act of 1990, was introduced by Sen. Wyche Fowler Jr., D-Ga., and is a portion of the 1990 Farm Bill.

Reaction to the vote was mixed. Industry trade associations remained opposed to the measure while consumer groups praised its passage in committee.

"Both consumers and farmers win with this important change in grading standards," said Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, a Washington-based advocacy group. "Consumers will, have the opportunity to buy nutritious and wholesome produce which has less pesticide residues, Farmers can (also) cut back on costly pesticide use and increase the markets for their produce." Haas estimated that between 10 percent to 20 percent of the chemicals used on produce are applied in hopes of maintaining cosmetic qualities.

Strawberries, chocolate make dazzling desserts eddings, anniversaries, baby-showers, gradua-tions – summer is the peak season for celebra-tions! Festive occasions call for new, no-fail dessert recipes that impress. With luscious, red-ripe strawberries and creamy-rich-chocolate it's casy to create dazzling desserts. Showcase chocolate and strawberries in stylish Italian Tiramisa or "Lift Me Up," recently prized as a chie dessert item in the trendiest restaurants.

"Lift Me Up," recently prized as a chic dessert tieth in the trendiest restaurants.

Tiramisu is layered with espresso-soaked ladyfingers, sliced strawberries and a creamy, rich filling made with white baking bars (known by Europeans as white chocolate). Halved strawberries create a brilliant, ruby-red crown. Try strawberries and chocolate in other favorites such as tarts, shortcakes or in the recipes that follow.

STRAWBERRY-WHITE CHOCOLATE TIRAMISÚ

CHOCOLATE TIRAMISÚ

11/2 cups cooled espresso or strong coffee
2 tablespoons brandy (optional)
2 pint baskets fresh stramberries, stemmed, divided

Be prepared with recipes for hot, cold summer days

The unpredictable weather of summer can be a problem for the cook eager to please family and friends with boilday meals come rain or come shine. But careful planning, and an attitude nearly as flexible as a contortion-ist in a sall-water-taffy factory, can help pre-pare you for anything.

ist in a salt-water-taffy factory, can nep pre-pare you for anything.

Many of you have attended festivals on gloomy days when the food booth serving hot chocolate is up to its marshmallows in customers, and the lemonade stand is dying. Or, conversely, on sweltering days, when the shaved-ice seller could pass for the Pied Piper and the hot soup concessionaire can't even attract flies.

Piper and the hot soup concessionaire can't even attract flies.

The lesson from these observations? Be prepared. Plan a few foods that are especially welcome in hot weather, a few that are good on chilly days, and some that can be served hot or cold.

good on chilly days, and some that can be served hot or cold.

Blend a little of the unexpected into your meals. Irene Rothschild, a cooking teacher from Pennsylvania, has done just that in her new book, "Cold Soups, Warm Salads," featuring more than 100 recipes for warm-weather dining.

"I have an aversion to sitting down to a relatively formal meal and being served an ordinary green salad," Rothschild wrote. "To my way of thinking, this practice has become tired and mundane. A better alternative would be a cold soup and a warm salad—much more interesting, usty and up-to-date."
Our recipes feature some twists on favorites—such as the Iced Almond Latte for hot days—plus some barometer foods that you can serve either hot or cold, depending

While dad drinks the night away, daughter dreams he'll leave

DEAR ABBY: My father lives in another state, and he visits me three or four times a year for two weeks (sometimes) at a time. Prior to each visit, I work myself up into a nervous frenzy because I know he will drive me cruzy while he s here.

I don't know how to stop this vicious cycle (which has been going on for five years) without losing him altogether, which sometimes I think might not be such a bad idea.

Please don't recommend intervention, as he doesn't think he has a drinking problem.

What's what?

"Almost every man who teaches psy-chology at the college level has a fermal following of at least half a Gozen yearne, women willing to spend the night with him." So writes a University faculty mentior. Our Love and War man will file this note in that special folder with rock stars, quarterbacks and lottery win-ners.

Q. What was the first best-selling rock-and-roll record?

A. "Crazy, Man, Crazy," Bill Haley.

Q. When did American men first start wearing Jockey-type underwear?

A. Early 1930s. That's when the longiohn market bottomed out. Pajamas came in around 1905. Nightgowns have been around forever, pritnear.

Sloths sneeze slowly. This is not only true, it's hard to say.

HURRICANES

Q. Recall when hurricanes were named only after women? How'd that named only later women? How of that get started?

A. In 1941, a novelist named George
R. Stewart wrote "Storm" wherein a fictional forecaster called a hurricane "Maria." Military meteorologists thought that nifty, so made it a practice in World War II.

In this dodge, when all else fails, you don't read the directions, you quote Ben Franklin: "The heart of a fool is in his mouth, but the mouth of a wise man is in his heart."

Cows get huge hair balls in their stomachs. They wouldn't, if they didn' go around licking other cows in their search for salt.

PARAGUAY
Almost everybody in Paraguay is bilingual. They speak Spanish. And their native Guarnai. What! You've never heard of it? It's the common tongue.
Paraguay, it's said, will be the world's most bilingual country as long as Quebee remains a part of Canada.

Q. Who are "the Cariocas"?

A. That's what the people of Rio de anciro call themselves.

Q. What's a "hippodromed" contest?

A. One wherein the winner is decided before the event. As in a horse race for a movie or circus. Or a professionaal wrestling match.

Check plants regularly for insect damage

Hot weather is ideal for rapid growth and multiplication of insect pests on plants. It is important to check plants regularly for insect damage his late in the plant for a formal plant in the control of the plant in the plant sap. They usually cause the plant sap. They usually cause mottled coloring or twisted and distorted foliage.

If you notice damaged leaves check carefully for insects are more likely to be found on the bothewing and sucking insects are more likely to be found on the bothewing and sucking insects are more likely to be found on the bothey in the plant sap. They grow they are protected from predators inside.

Leaf miners tunnel inside the leaf, they roll or tie leaves together so they are protected from predators inside.

Leaf miners tunnel inside the leaf, eating the inner tissue and leaving the two outer layers. The first noticeable sign of aphids feeding in trees may be the sticky exudate dripping from the leaves. Some pests, like mites, are so tiny that you may need magnification to see them. If you notice tiny specks on the bottom of a leaf, watch closely to see if they are moving.

Some pests, like slugs, cutworms and carwigs, feed only at night. Others fly or crawl quickly to other areas once they have had their meal. Root feeding insects may not be noticed until a plant wilts or you harvest root vegetables. Then you will notice the holes chewed by maggots or wireworms in the roots. The only effective way to prevent damage from root insects is to treat susceptible plants at planting time.

It is not necessary to spray every time you see a few leaves with holes. There are natural insect predators which will often take care of small insect infestations. However, a small amount of damage may serve as a signal to watch closely for a few days to see if more damage occurs.

New standards on appliances will save consumers' money

Squeezing an extra year or two of life from an old appliance makes lies "conomic sense these days. New energy efficiency standards for many major appliances, legislated in 1987 b the National Appliance Energy Conservation Act, kick in this year and are expected to save consumers $28 billion in energy costs over the lifetime of appliances sold in this decade.

The new standards, which require that new appliances be up to 30 percent more efficient, than older models in use of energy, cover such major appliances as central haters, central and room-type air conditioners, refrigerators, freezers and water heaters.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"He who conquers others is strong; He who conquers himself is mighty."

A reader writes: "My partnen is a stickler for disciplined bildding and tolerates no exceptions. I think there's always room for an exception, and-I offer this duplicate hand in evidence. Please let me know your views.

The fit it two suits makes this.

The fit in two suits makes this game a good bet despite possession of only 21 HCP." he continues. "However, my partner (North) insists that he was barred from bidding more than three spades once the partnership had agreed to play at a part-score (North's pass to one scude)."

the partnership had agreed to play at a part-scro (North's pass to one spade).

In general, the views expressed by North are valld. Whether they apply in today's peculiar circumstances is another matter. Certainly South's bidding describes a good 6-4 hand, and North might have bid on to game in recognition of the double suit fit and singleton heart.

Although I suspect that the unusual near-silence of the opponents may have contributed to the poor result, North's one-diamond result. North's one-diamond response-should-take-much-of-the-blame. On hands that are worth only one constructive bid, I always prefer to respond in the major. (If you comofrathed bidding one spade over one heart, or two spades over one spade? If not, the one-spade response is definitely the better choice—"running for daylight" is the football term.) After the one-spade response by North, South makes sure of reaching game. (A rebid of four clubs over one spade is a modern method to describe South's hand.)

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds:

ANSWER: One no-trump. Don't bid two diamonds. This forces opener to bid again. With this potential misfit, the objective is to stop as soon as possible in the lowest convenient contract.
