Kuwait attack hikes Idaho fuel prices

By Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The invasion of tiny Kuwait sent out economic shock waves all the way to the Magic Valley that will mean higher gasoline prices and possibly a squeeze on farmers.

And means higher gasoline prices in an area with long distances to travel and lots of crops yet to harvest — crops that in the past few years have been drawing high prices and fueling strong local economic expansion.

"It's of major concern to the growers, especially at this time of year when the harvest is in full swing," Mike Tracy of the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation said. "In the next few weeks, if we see substantial fuel-price increases, in the long run that will negatively affect the state of Idaho." Gasoline prices went up 4 cents for self-service, headed fuel nationwide, AAA Spokesman Dave Carlson said. Locally, dealers say that wholesale prices are going up about the same amount and motorists can expect to see pump prices increase at least that much.

"Prices are starting to move up," Circle K District Manager Kent Brandon said. Oil-rich Kuwait, which was known for over-producing its OPEC oil quota, was invaded by neighboring Iraq on Thursday. Although Iraq said it will withdraw its troops soon, oil prices are expected to remain higher.

"I think the discipline of OPEC has had a real shock, and I doubt they will overproduce again," said Kelly Matthews, First Security Bank economist. "I think the message has been sent."

Mathews said he expected the price of a barrel of oil will remain in the $20-$25 range, instead of the $15-$20 range that it has been recently. That means more inflation, and a tough decision by the Federal Reserve System.

Gov. Cecil Andrus and State Rep. Gary Robbins toured the Mountain Fresh Produce Inc. site in Twin Falls on Friday morning.

Mountain Fresh unveils $400,000 expansion of onion processing plant

By Michelle Cole
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Mountain Fresh Produce unveiled a $400,000 expansion of its onion processing plant Friday as Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus took his share of election-year credit for Idaho's prosperity Friday.

But the governor also handed out kudos to Twin Falls city and business leaders.

"We're on a roll and Twin Falls is a major magnet for that," Andrus said in opening remarks.

The governor's visit also included the ceremonial passing of a $500,000 state grant for the city's Victory Bridge project and a tour of the newly expanded Universal Frozen Foods plant.

A politician's day on the road — B2

Flanked by Idaho Commerce Director Jim Hawkins and Twin Falls city and Chamber of Commerce officials, Andrus started the day at Mountain Fresh, where co-owner Bill Loughmiller told the governor about plans to invest $400,000 in an expansion of the fresh-pack onion processing plant in the city's industrial park.

The expansion could mean at least 20 new jobs or more if Loughmiller branches into processing hash brown potatoes as well.

Even though the onions now processed at the Twin Falls site are grown in Nampa and Caldwell, Loughmiller said he chose to locate his plant in Twin Falls because of its proximity to major transportation routes.

Loughmiller said his company isn't looking for any state grant money, but he is using property tax incentives to finance the company's expansion. The governor's visit was merely so Andrus could see the operation first-hand.

Many of the VIPs stayed back as workers fed suspended onions into giant machines, their cut and wrapped the onions as they came out the other side. A pungent smell of onions filled the air and brought tears to the visitors' eyes, but Andrus moved forward for a closer look.

With tears streaming down his face, the governor turned to the group and joked: "I peek closely at my eyes when you guys ask me for any more money."

Although this was an official gubernatorial visit, it also provided Andrus with

Jobless figures advance in step

TWIN FALLS—A shaky local unemployment report for July echoed disappointing state and national data.

The unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties jumped to 5.1 percent, the Idaho Department of Employment said, up from the rates recorded in June and July 1989. Every other labor-force indicator also came up negative over year-ago levels.

The labor force dropped 720 people to 38,260 and the number of people employed dropped 200 people to 36,400. And 200 fewer people were employed this July than in July 1989.

In the Magic and Wood River valleys, only Blaine County posted a lower unemployment rate over year-ago levels. The other major areas were still plagued with high unemployment from food-processing plant layoffs for scheduled maintenance. In Cassia County, the jobless rate climbed to 12.5 percent in July from 9 percent a year ago; the increase was even sharper in Minidoka County, up to 12.2 percent from 7.2 percent in July 1989.

But as a whole, the Magic Valley's unemployment was lower than Idaho's or the nation's, Twin Falls Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin said.

"I think that's an indication that we're stronger than other economies," McAlindin said.

The central Magic Valley posted a 5.1 percent unemployment rate, up from 4.8 percent in June. Last July's rate was 4.5 percent.

Statewide, widespread seasonal and permanent layoffs sent Idaho's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate soaring in July to a 79-month high of 6.4 percent.

The total labor force expanded during the month while job opportunities slipped to push the number of Idahoans without work to 31,600, the highest total since February 1988. Nationally, the jobless rate also rose significantly, picking up three notches to hit 5.5 percent, the highest rate in two years as the weakening economy lost 219,000 jobs.

Richard Rubin, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the U.S. economy is not going to hang on much longer. It is headed directly into a recession.

Other economists, however, said the skittish economy may not drop that far.

Analysts also said that the state formula used to adjust the jobless rate for seasonal

Iraq troops will pull out on Sunday

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq said Friday it will begin withdrawing troops from Kuwait in two days, but the U.S. State Department said some Iraqi soldiers had pushed their advance to within a few miles of the Saudi border.

An Iraqi government spokesman said all troops in Kuwait will be withdrawn according to a timetable, beginning Sunday, according to an official radio broadcast. No time was specified for complete withdrawal.

The government spokesman said the Iraqi troops might stay longer if "something cropped up that threatens Kuwait and Iraq."

Iraq said it invaded Kuwait on Thursday to provide security for a provisional government that had overthrown Kuwait's rulers. The international community dismissed that claim.

In Washington, President Bush warned Iraq not to threaten U.S. "vital interests" or try to rid oil-rich Saudi Arabia of its conqueror of Kuwait. He said the United States was willing "to help in any way we possibly can" to stop Iraqi aggression. Bush has refused to rule out the use of military force.

A NATO source said the United States had "contingency plans" in case Iraq's president, Saddam Hussein, advanced his forces further through the strategic region. He did not say what those plans were.

U.S. demands Iraq account for Americans

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The United States on Friday demanded that Iraq provide immediate information about the fate of 14 American oil workers missing from Kuwait and believed to have been rounded up by Iraqi troops.

U.S. officials were also trying to confirm rumors that other Americans might have been picked up by Iraqi troops who invaded Kuwait in the pre-dawn hours Thursday, said one official.

A U.S. diplomat in Baghdad went to the foreign ministry and presented a list of the 14, the companies they worked for, and the three sites from which they were taken on Thursday when the Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait, said a U.S. official.

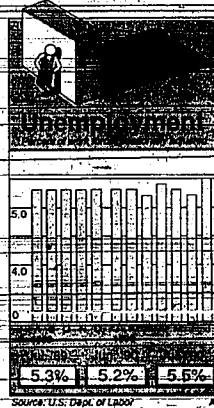

The diplomat asked that Iraq account for the 14 "as soon as possible on an immediate basis," said a State Department spokesman Richard Boucher.

The U.S. diplomat in Baghdad reminded the Iraqis "of their commitment to safeguard the safety of Americans," said Boucher. The commitment was given to U.S. diplomats in Baghdad during the early hours of the invasion, Boucher said.

In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly summoned Iraq's ambassador, who said he would try to confirm the safety of Americans, said an official who asked not to be named.

As he left the short meeting, Ambassador Mohamed Sadiq al-Mashat denied his country was holding any Americans. Pressed about reports of Americans being seized, he answered, "It is an Iraqi one of you" which is no basis whatsoever.

However, he said that we will confirm they're all captured, but we believe they are."

Senate rebuffs troop force cutback
WASHINGTON — The Senate rebuffed an attempt Friday to cut nearly four times as many U.S. troops as President Bush has proposed to cut in his 1991 military budget.

Despite arguments that the Cold War has ended and the United States faces severe money problems, the Senate rejected an amendment to cut 130,000 troops, including 80,000 in Europe. The vote was 59-40.

In proposing a $307 billion defense bill for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, Bush called for about 40,000 troops to be cut overall.

The Senate Armed Services Committee approved a $289 billion military budget last month that would cut troop strength by 100,000, including 50,000 in Europe.

The chairman of the Senate Armed Services panel, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., warned that a deeper cut in the nation's 2.1 million military personnel than the total approved by his committee would force the Pentagon to "send out the pink slips."

Imprisoned Shiites freed from prison
NEW YORK — ABC News reported Friday that all of the 17 Shiite Muslims imprisoned for terrorism in Kuwait are now free following a Modern group holding Western Islamic Jihad, a Muslim group holding the 17 as hostages.

Does this affect the fate of the American hostages? We don't even know who freed the Kuwait prisoners," Jennings said. The report did not elaborate.

Transaction defied as big savings
WASHINGTON — An Arizona insurance company executive accused of getting a sweetheart deal in 1988 said Friday that the transaction has already saved taxpayers $100 million.

James M. Fall of Phoenix defended his acquisition of 15 failed S&B's which he now operates under the name of Bluebonnet Savings Bank, Dallas.

"Bluebonnet is part of the solution to the savings and loan crisis, not part of the problem," he said in testimony scheduled for delivery Monday to a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Chlorator touts Star Wars impact
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, touring a Star Wars test site during an outbreak of war in the Persian Gulf, said Friday the project had helped force sweeping changes in the Soviet Union.

Despite the threat in superpower relations that some claim has rendered the multibillion dollar Strategic Defense Initiative irrelevant, Thatcher said the Soviet invasion of Kuwait proved the importance of a strong military.

"There will always be evil in human nature, and we never know where it will come from," she said. "We must always keep our technology sharp."

The Fed controls the nation's money supply, and can loosen the grips and let more money flow into the economy so people can afford oil-price increases, Matthews said. But he also said that's doubtful.

Instead, it is likely the Fed will continue its course and demand for other commodities will decrease because consumers will have less money to spend, Matthews said.

Fairchild criticized the Andrus administration for ignoring these needs.

The former Republican Senate Majority Leader has proposed using the state's budget surplus to make grants to cities and counties to fund infrastructure improvements.

It is behind the scenes," Fairchild said.

Last year the Idaho Legislature took the governor's suggestion and put a chunk of the surplus into building improvements, Andrus said.

In the last minutes before the legislative session ended, legislators also approved a portion of the budget surplus to build bridges.

If he is re-elected to a third term, the governor said he will ask the Legislature to look at spending more surplus dollars on roads and bridges as well as investigating long-delayed options. He did not specify what those long-term options might be.

Landmark civil rights legislation passes House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed landmark civil rights legislation despite President Bush's veto threat Friday as Congress juggled a host of bills in the race toward summer recess.

Attempting to meet a self-imposed deadline of finishing business by week's end, the House pushed the Civil Rights Act of 1990 closer to final passage, approving the measure by a 272-154 vote.

Stand up for what you know is right, stand up for America's values," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., told his colleagues shortly before the vote. The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference committee where prospects for compromise seemed bright. The Senate approved its own version two weeks ago.

The bill would overturn the effects of five Supreme Court decisions in recent years, which reined in affirmative action programs.

Bush argued that the measure would go too far and would lead to hiring quotas. But he also promised to sign what he called "a sound, practical compromise."

The legislative timetable was further complicated by the arrival on the House floor of a highly contentious campaign finance overhaul bill. Some House members in both the Democratic and Republican parties complained that too little time was being set aside for the bill.

The Senate, by a largely narrow 59-40 vote Wednesday night, approved a Democratic bill that would limit Senate candidates' campaign spending at $2 million to $10 million, depending on their states' population.

Work on those and other bills has kept the both chambers in marathon sessions deep into the summer nights.

Nevertheless, Democrats voted 240-12 for the bill. Thirty-two Republicans joined the Democratic majority Bush while 142 supported Bush's position. On the roll call for passage, the bill fell 12 votes short of what would be needed to override a presidential veto.

Major provisions range from a ban on racial harassment in the workplace to barriers against reopening court-approved fair-hiring agreements.

Deal in works to pay defaulted student loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A deal will be ready within a few weeks to pay off the defaulted loans held by one of the nation's insurers of student loans, Secretary of Education Laura F. Cavazos told a Senate panel Friday.

The timetable for covering the bad loans insured by Higher Education Assistance Foundation of St. Paul, Minn., comes as jittery banks must decide whether thousands of students will get loans for the upcoming academic year.

Bankers have warned that commercial lenders would flee the student loan market if the non-profit insurer defaulted and they have to absorb losses.

In a further effort to boost lender confidence in the program, Cavazos said regulations will be published Monday aimed at barring false information from privately owned trade and technical schools whose students receive the guaranteed loans.

"We are intensively involved in sensitive discussions with other organizations that have an interest in and capacity for assuming all of HEAF's guarantee functions," Cavazos told the Labor and Human Resources education subcommittee.

"We are committed to putting in place a solution that will ensure that new loans are made and insured without interruption, and that the existing HEAF portfolio is properly serviced, collected, insured and reinsured," he said.

He told the panel the arrangement would be in place within a few weeks.

Department spokeswoman Elin Fietek said it is unlikely HEAF will survive the restructuring.

The financially threatened foundation guarantees student loans in Minnesota, West Virginia, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming and the District of Columbia, and insures loans in other states as well.

The foundation, one of 47 guarantors across the country, told the Education Department four weeks ago that it was having serious financial problems because of a high rate of defaults.

Genetic disease diagnosed in human egg before conception, researchers say

NEW YORK (AP) — Cystic fibrosis has been diagnosed in a human egg before conception, an advance that could satisfy abortion opponents' objections to fetal diagnosis, researchers said Friday.

The technique is now being applied to other genetic diseases, including muscular dystrophy, hemophilia and sickle-cell anemia, said Yury Verlinsky, director of the Reproductive Genetics Institute at Illinois Masonic Medical Center in Chicago.

These diseases can now be diagnosed only a normal child.

nosed in the fetus before birth. But such diagnosis often leaves the parents with no option but to terminate the pregnancy if the fetus carries the disease.

The new technique of pre-conception diagnosis makes abortion unnecessary, Verlinsky said in a telephone interview.

"I feel it's going to be the technique of choice for the families who are carriers for genetic diseases," he said. "It's better to avoid abortion and to have this technique to conceive only a normal child."

west-Sunday. Continued very warm. Highs from the lower 90s east to near 100 west. Lows mostly mid-50s to mid-60s.

Weather summary

Clear skies brought warmer temperatures to all Idaho Friday.

Aleutian temperatures were in the 80s and 90s over most of the state although readings in higher mountain areas were slightly cooler. There were no reports of rainfall although a few thunderstorms boiled up over some mountain ranges.

Winds were light by evening after brisk breezes made the morning and midday hours pleasant.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 95 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 34 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 110 degrees at Laughlin, Nev. The lowest was 33 at Gunnison, Colo.

Forecasts

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Saturday and Sunday sunny and warmer. Highs Saturday in the lower to mid 90s and Sunday mid-90s to 100. Lows Saturday night in the mid-to-upper 50s. Winds on Saturday west 5 to 10 mph.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Saturday and Sunday sunny and warmer. Highs in the mid-90s to the lower 100s. Lows Saturday night in the upper 40s to the lower 50s.

Extended forecast: Southern Idaho - Sunny and hot through Wednesday. A slight chance of afternoon and evening thunderstorms mainly over the mountains. West highs 95 to 105 Monday and Tuesday then 90 to 100 Wednesday. Lows in the upper 30s and 40s. East highs mostly in the 90s with lows in the 50s and lower 60s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah - Sunday fair and warmer. Highs Saturday in the lower 90s and Sunday in the mid-90s. Lows 55-60.

Nevada - widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms Saturday and Sunday becoming more numerous.

Summer showers, thunderstorms dampen midlands

The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms produced heavy rains in parts of the nation's midsection raising river levels and bringing the threat of flooding.

A flood warning was posted Friday along Johnson Creek and the north fork of the Gagehuppe River above Kerrville, Texas. More than four inches of rain fell overnight and several highways were closed by flooding.

There was also locally heavy rain during the night across parts of Kansas. Flooding was reported but precautions are advised because of rapidly rising rivers and streams.

Rain showers and thunderstorms continued during the afternoon Friday, reaching from southeast Nebraska across eastern Kansas, northern Oklahoma, parts of Arkansas, Missouri, southern and central Iowa, and western Illinois.

Showers and thunderstorms extended from eastern Wisconsin into Michigan, over northern Mississippi, Louisiana, parts of Texas and Florida.

There were scattered showers over south-central New Mexico, central Colorado, north-central Nebraska, north-central South Dakota, eastern North Dakota and northern Minnesota.

Rain showers and thunderstorms also were scattered along the South Carolina coast and from northwestern South Carolina into eastern Georgia.

The low temperature for the Lower 48 states Friday morning was 33 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

Portland, Maine, set a record of 90 degrees for the date.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 55 at Wichita and Cheyenne City, Wyo., to 106 at Needles, Calif.

House boosts federal borrowing limit $72 billion over 2 months

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House voted Friday to let the government sink $7.2 billion deeper into debt over the next two months, a cash infusion designed to avert an unprecedented federal default.

By a 247-172 vote, the lawmakers decided to provide enough money to keep federal coffers full through Oct. 2.

The measure was sent to the Senate where leaders are trying to avert off several controversial amendments that could delay the Congress' August recess.

Last Tuesday, the House approved a longer-term extension of the debt limit, providing $322 billion in borrowing authority. But that measure is not expected to advance until after the Congress' August recess.

Senate rebuffs troop force cutback

WASHINGTON - The Senate rebuffed an attempt Friday to cut nearly four times as many U.S. troops as President Bush has proposed to cut in his 1991 military budget.

Despite arguments that the Cold War has ended and the United States faces severe money problems, the Senate rejected an amendment to cut 130,000 troops, including 80,000 in Europe. The vote was 59-40.

In proposing a $307-billion defense bill for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, Bush called for the final 400,000 troops to be cut overall. The Senate Armed Services Committee adopted a $289 billion military budget last month that would cut troop strength by 100,000, including 50,000 in Europe.

The chairman of the Senate Armed Services panel, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., warned that a deeper cut in the nation's military personnel than the total adopted by his committee would force the Pentagon to "send out the pink slips."

Thatcher said SDI had forced Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to realize his army could not keep up with the United States without draining the country's resources, she said.

Thatcher touts Star Wars impact

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, touring a Star Wars test site during an outbreak of war in the Persian Gulf, said Friday the project had helped, force sweeping changes in the Soviet Union.

Despite the thaw in superpower relations that some claim has rendered the multibillion-dollar Strategic Defense Initiative irrelevant, Mrs. Thatcher said Iraq's invasion of Kuwait proved the importance of a strong military.

"There will always be evil in human nature, and we never know where it will come from," she said. "We must always keep our technology sharp."

Transaction defended as big savings

WASHINGTON - An Arizona insurance company executive accused of getting a sweetheart savings loan bailout deal in 1988 said Friday that the transaction has already saved taxpayers $100 million.

James M. Fall of Phoenix defended his acquisition of 15 failed S&Ls which he now operates under the name of Bluebonnet Savings Bank, Dallas.

"Bluebonnet is part of the solution to the savings and loan crisis, not part of the problem," he said in testimony scheduled for delivery Monday to a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Gas

The Fed controls the nation's money supply, and controlling the money supply will let more money flow into the economy so people can afford oil-price increases, Matthews said. But he also said that's doubtful.

Instead, it is likely the Fed will continue its course, and demand-for-oil consumers will have less money after buying gasoline.

"My guess would be that we'll have a little higher inflation, and it probably will have a negative impact on the economy," Matthews said.

Farmers could be squeezed because it's doubtful farm prices will increase as they did in the 1970s. During that period, the farm economy was initially prosperous because farm prices increased as much as fuel.

That's doubtful this time around, Matthews said.

But the Pacific Northwest, one of the hotter economies in the United States, should be affected less than the rest of the country "under existing circumstances," Matthews said.

The nation's financial markets, reacting quickly and substantially to the news, kept local stock broker Fred Nelson of A.G. Edwards busy.

"We have been kind of bargain hunting," Nelson said. Some companies that were good investments because they had better investment value than the Dow Jones industrial average dropped more than 128 points Friday morning.

But the market, buffeted by the Kuwait invasion and a weak employment report, turned around when Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze predicted a rapid withdrawal of Iraqi troops.

Kuwait

that Iraq pull out of Kuwait immediately. The Soviet Union, Iraq's main weapons supplier, cut off shipments Thursday.

Egypt broke the silence among major Arab nations and harshly condemned the invasion. The Arab League, meeting in Cairo, also denounced the invasion and called for Iraq to withdraw immediately. The Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes Saudi Arabia, similarly criticized the Iraqi attack in a statement issued in Geneva.

Jordan's King Hussein met with Saddam in Baghdad, then announced that Arab leaders would gather for a summit Sunday to discuss the crisis. He also urged the United States not to intervene militarily.

Saudi sources said there was a good chance Saddam would meet with the ousted Kuwaiti ruler, Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmed Al-Sabah, at the summit.

The United States proposed that the U.N. Security Council adopt sweeping military, trade, and economic sanctions against Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait.

Driven by fears of a production drop, oil prices continued to climb.

North Sea Brent Brent, the most widely-traded international crude, rose $2 a barrel Thursday and 86 cents more on Friday to close at $23.25.

Last month, oil prices were as low as $16 a barrel.

In Amman, Jordan, a senior Iraqi diplomat said Friday: "We believe that the job of leading the invasion of Kuwait can take over all the responsibilities now and they are capable of defending their national security."

Not a single member of the provisional government has been named publicly. The Iraqi government was unable to find leading Kuwaitis willing to cooperate with it in forming a government. Gulf sources outside Iraq told The Associated Press.

An Iraqi radio broadcast, which was also carried by a station calling itself the Provisional Government of Kuwait, Radio, said the Al-Sabah royal family that ruled Kuwait for almost 250 years will never return to power.

The statement also indicated the decision to withdraw was not made to satisfy international demands.

"We refuse to respond to empty chatter here and there by malicious people to whom we give no weight," the statement said.

Baghdad radio also carried a government statement denying reports it was massing troops inside Kuwait along the Saudi border.

However, residents of the Saudi border city of Dhahran, reached by telephone from Bahrain, said Iraqi troops early Friday evening had laid down a checkpoint less than a mile from the border.

One man, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he had written a letter to the Saudi government touching the Saudi territory but went back quiet when the Saudi border patrols instantly alerted them.

The opposite Saudi checkpoint had registered about 50,000 foreign families fleeing Kuwait.

factors is still being tied by the dramatic economic growth the state experienced in 1987 through 1989, and this year's more stable economic performance has not been able to maintain that growth pace.

The government said the total number of jobs in the state was more than 495,000 while the number of jobs fell by 1,000 to under 464,000.

July's jump in joblessness pushed the average unemployment rate for the first seven months of this year to 5.7 percent, two-tenths of a point higher than analysts predicted for the entire year. But after hitting a record low 5.2 percent last year, the unemployment rate was expected to rise to 6.2 percent.

Other counties in the Magic and Wood River valleys reported their unemployment rates for July 1990 and July 1989:

- Blaine County: 3.3 percent, 3.6 percent
- Cassia County: 12.5 percent, 9.6 percent
- Minidoka County: 12.2 percent, 7.2 percent
- Camas County: 7.1 percent, 3.8 percent
- Lincoln County: 6.7 percent, 4.1 percent
- Generally, the unemployment rates for July, June and July 1989 were:
- Punahoa: 7.6 percent, 6.8 percent, 6.2 percent
- Lewiston area: 4.7 percent, 4.4 percent, 4.2 percent
- Canyon County: 1.8 percent, 10.8 percent, 6 percent
- Ada County: 4.9 percent, 3.4 percent, 3.4 percent
- Pocatello area: 7.2 percent, 5.4 percent, 5.4 percent
- Idaho Falls area: 5.1 percent, 4.2 percent, 4.5 percent

As he pointed to the peeled and bagged onions.

Fairchild criticized the Andrus administration for ignoring those who need it.

The former Republican Senate Majority Leader has proposed using the state's budget surplus to make grants to cities and counties to fund infrastructure improvements.

Andrus said Friday that Fairchild is dead in the time.

Last year the Idaho Legislature took the governor's suggestion and cut a chunk of the surplus into building improvements, Andrus said.

In the last minutes before the legislative session ended, legislators also allocated a portion of the budget surplus to roads and bridges.

It is re-elected to a fourth term, the governor said he will ask the Legislature to look at spending more surplus dollars on roads and bridges.

It will be investigating long-term funding options. He did not specify what those long-term options might be.

The Times-News regrets the error.

Correction

Due to an editing error in Friday's story on Gen. Dennis Conrad, Conrad was quoted out of context. Conrad was not speaking of disabled or minority homeowners when he said, "They can plug into another program that will help." He was speaking of poor residents. The reporter's comment was specifically referring to a hypothetical single mother.

The Times-News regrets the error.

Landmark civil rights legislation passes House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed landmark civil rights legislation despite President Bush's veto threat Friday as Congress juggled a host of bills in the race toward summer recess. Attempting to meet a self-imposed deadline of finishing business by Tuesday, the House pushed the Civil Rights Act of 1990 closer to final passage, approving the measure by a 272-154 vote.

Stand-up for what you know is right, stand-up for America's values," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., told his colleagues shortly before the vote. The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference committee where prospects for compromise seemed bright. The Senate approved its own version two weeks ago.

The bill would overturn the effects of five Supreme Court decisions in recent years, which reined in affirmative action programs.

Bush argued that the measure would go too far and would lead to ban on racial harassment in the hiring process. But he also promised to sign what he called "a sound, practical compromise."

The legislative timetable was further complicated by the arrival on the House floor of a highly contentious campaign finance overhaul bill. Some House members in both the Democratic and Republican parties complained that too little time was being set aside for the bill.

The Senate by a largely party-line, 59-40 vote Wednesday night, approved a Democratic bill that would limit Senate candidates' campaign spending at $2 million to $10 million, depending on their states' population.

Work on those and other bills has kept the both chambers in marathon sessions deep into the summer nights.

Nevertheless, Democrats voted 240-12 for the bill. Thirty-two Republicans joined the Democratic majority, while 142 supported Bush's position. On the roll call for passage, the bill fell 12 votes short of what would be needed to override a presidential veto.

Major provisions range from a ban on racial harassment in the workplace to barriers against reopening court-approved fair-hiring agreements.

Deal in works to pay defaulted student loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A deal will be ready within a few weeks to pay off the defaulted loans held by one of the nation's insurers of student loans, Secretary of Education Lauro F. Cavazos told a Senate panel Friday.

The timetable for covering the bad loans insured by Higher Education Assistance Foundation of St. Paul, Minn., comes as jittery banks must decide whether thousands of students will get loans for the upcoming academic year.

Bankers have warned that commercial lenders would flee the student loan market if the non-profit insurer defaulted and they have to absorb losses.

"We are intensively involved in sensitive discussions with other organizations that have an interest in and capacity for assuming all of HEAF's guarantee functions," Cavazos told the Labor and Human Resources education subcommittee.

"We are committed to putting in place a solution that will ensure that new loans are made and insured without interruption, and that the existing HEAF portfolio is properly serviced, collected inured and restructured," he said.

He told the panel the arrangement would be in place "within a few weeks."

Department spokesman Rita Fiedler said it is unlikely HEAF will survive the restructuring.

The financially threatened foundation guarantees student loans in Minnesota, West Virginia, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming and the District of Columbia, and insures loans in other states as well.

The foundation, one of 47 guarantors across the country, told the Education Department four weeks ago that it was having serious financial problems because of a high rate of defaults.

Genetic disease diagnosed in human egg before conception, researchers say

NEW YORK (AP) — Cystic fibrosis has been diagnosed in a human egg before conception, an advance that could satisfy abortion opponents' objections to fetal diagnosis, researchers said Friday.

The technique is now being applied to other genetic diseases, including muscular dystrophy, hemophilia and sickle cell anemia, said Yury Verlinsky, director of the Reproductive Genetics Institute at the Illinois-Masonic Medical Center in Chicago.

"These diseases can now be diagnosed in the fetus before birth. But such diagnosis often leaves the parents with no option but to terminate the pregnancy if the fetus carries the disease."

"I feel it's going to be the technique of choice for the families who are carriers for genetic diseases," he said. "It's better to avoid abortion and to have this technique to conceive only a normal child."

U.S. Mideast forces to be bolstered with 3rd carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is sending a third aircraft carrier and 15,000 sailors and Marines toward the Middle East early next week to bolster its naval armada in the Persian Gulf crisis, Pentagon officials said Friday.

As military strategists and lawmakers debated the dangers of committing U.S. combat troops to a protracted desert war against Iraq tanks, President Bush declared that "all options are open" — economic and otherwise.

"My hands aren't tied," the president told reporters at the White House as he boarded a helicopter for Camp David, Md.

Bush was asked if the United States would intervene to help Saudi Arabia repel an invasion by Iraqi troops, which seized oil-rich Kuwait on Thursday.

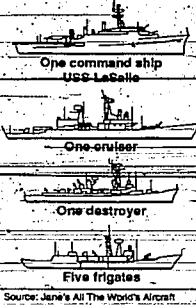

If the Saudis requested help, Bush replied, "I'd be inclined to help in any way we possibly can. It's that serious."

Presidential spokesman Martin Flaherty said the United States had informed its Western allies that it would not rule out a military response if Iraq's forces advance beyond Kuwait territory.

Persian Gulf Ships

"The world cannot sit back and watch a person like (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein take over half of the oil reserves in the world," Aspin said.

Defense Department officials said 15 naval vessels led by the carrier Saratoga and including a Marine amphibious assault unit will leave East Coast ports on Monday and Tuesday for the Mediterranean.

The Saratoga will be accompanied by the guided missile cruiser Philipine Sea, the destroyer Spruance, guided missile destroyer Sampson and frigate Elm R. Montgomery, all based in Mayport, Fla.

Departing Norfolk, Va., will be the battleship Wisconsin, guided missile cruiser Biddle, frigate Thomas C. Hart and destroyer tender Yellowstone. The fast combat support ship Detroit, based in Earle, N.J., will also join the battle group, the Pentagon said.

Those nine ships are scheduled to leave on Tuesday. They will be preceded on Monday by five ships that make up the Marine amphibious ready group.

These are the amphibious assault ship Imehon and the amphibious transport dock Nashville, both based in Norfolk, and the dock landing ship Whidbey Island and tank landing ships Newport and Fairfax County, based in Little Creek, Va.

Carriers are normally outfitted with a wide array of missiles, and firepower, including FA-18 jet fighters, F-4 attack aircraft and A-6E bombers.

Currently, there are 18 U.S. Navy ships in the Mediterranean with about 19,000 personnel aboard, Pentagon sources said.

Inside the gulf, the U.S. military presence is represented by eight warships of the Joint Task Force Middle East, led by the command ship USS LaSalle and including a cruiser, destroyer and frigates.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Withers refused to link the latest ship movements with the gulf crisis, saying they had been planned for months. Although the Saratoga had been scheduled to relieve the USS Eisenhower, he said, the two carriers might remain together on duty in the Mediterranean for a while.

The Eisenhower was deployed in the region in March. Its Marine amphibious unit has been stationed off the coast of strife-torn Liberia for several weeks.

The carrier Independence already is steaming toward waters outside the Persian Gulf, from the Indian Ocean to back up the U.S. Navy's task force of eight warships already stationed inside the gulf.

While the United States is focusing for the time being on naval maneuvers, concerns were expressed at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill about the implications of sending American troops "into battle" against Iraq's 5,500 tanks and million-man army.

Even though billions of dollars in U.S. arms have been sold to Saudi Arabia over the years, its 65,000-man army is largely untested on the battlefield. Just last month, the Saudis signed an agreement to buy $3 billion of the U.S. Army's most advanced tanks, the M-1A2s, but they aren't scheduled for delivery until the mid-1990s.

Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told NBC the United States could "dominate the gulf from a naval standpoint (and) we can dominate them in the air," but that landing U.S. combat troops "would be a major problem."

Mideast observers note that most Mideast nations friendly to the United States have refused to allow U.S. bases on their territory.

Barge leaks more oil in ship channel

SAN LEON, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard officials said Friday a barge that collided with a tanker in the Houston Ship Channel may have spilled 700,000 gallons, or nearly all of its cargo, into Galveston Bay.

The Coast Guard had said earlier that 500,000 gallons of oil spewed into the bay after the accident. But officials, considered adjusting that estimate after salvage crews found nothing in a once-submerged cargo tank they expected to contain about 200,000 gallons of oil.

"It looks like a lot of the oil may have escaped from it," Coast Guard Capt. Thomas Greene said.

Greene said officials were rechecking ship manifests to determine exactly how much oil was aboard the vessel.

"It could be close to 700,000 gallons spilled, but I'm not willing to say that yet. The total capacity of that barge was 750,000 gallons. They're telling us they had 716,000 gallons actually on board," Greene said at a press conference at Eagle Point, aerial estate development where oil has washed ashore.

The state health department, meanwhile, announced that a ban on fishing in the bay, begun Thursday, would be partially lifted Saturday in several areas apparently unaffected by the oil.

The accident occurred a week ago when the Greek tanker Shinoussa collided with two barges in the Houston Ship Channel, causing one barge to nearly sink.

Oil from both barges bubbled into the seafood-rich bay, threatening sensitive marshes, birds and other wildlife. The oil has washed shore on several beaches.

Supreme Court justice stable after taking fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall was hospitalized for observation Friday after a fall the day before in Chicago, a court spokeswoman said.

Marshall, 82, was admitted to the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., where he was listed in stable condition, said Toni House.

She said Marshall, who was in Chicago to speak at the annual convention of the American Bar Association, stumbled in the lobby of his hotel Thursday evening.

He flew back to Washington Friday "because he prefers consulting with physicians he knows," House added. It did not appear he had broken any bones in the fall.

She said Marshall does not plan to return to Chicago, where he was scheduled to address a dinner of the ABA's Judicial Administration Division Monday night.

Subcommittee chairman says he blew it

WASHINGTON — The chairman of a House health subcommittee said Friday that "I blew it" by injecting race into his criticism of a black cabinet member for backing Bush administration policies.
 But Rep. Fortney "Fete" Stark, who is white, told the House he stood by his main point — that administration policies are harming blacks and the poor — and regretted that race had obscured his complaint.
 Stark was the object of strong denunciations on the House floor Friday, a day after he had labeled Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan "a disgrace to his race."

Bush's dog back performing functions

WASHINGTON — President Bush's dog Millie has recovered from the ill effects of ingesting paint solvent and is "back performing her functions as First Dog," a White House official said Friday.
 The president had said Thursday that Millie was suffering from lead poisoning.
 In a medical update, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater downgraded the problem to "acute lead exposure" and said the English springer spaniel is back to her old self.

Woman seeks $11 million for stress

WASHINGTON — The Virginia woman who received obscene phone calls from former American University President Richard Berendzen said Friday she is seeking $11 million in damages for emotional stress on her and her family.
 Susan Allen of Fairfax, Va., demanded $4 million from Berendzen and $7 million from the university in a suit filed Thursday in District of Columbia Superior Court.
 Berendzen's calls to Allen began in March in response to an advertisement for home child care that she had placed in The Washington Post.

Girl pulled from river listed as critical

PITTSBURGH — A 9-year-old girl who was pulled from the Ohio River after more than 30 minutes underwater was hospitalized in critical condition Friday.
 Rachel Nation of East Liverpool, Ohio, had no heartbeat when she was pulled from the river Thursday afternoon, but paramedics revived her, said chief sheriff's deputy Alex Stakias.

NEA advisers vote to delete anti-obscenity pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The advisory body of the National Endowment for the Arts voted overwhelmingly Friday to eliminate an anti-obscenity pledge that artists and arts institutions must sign before they can receive federal grants.
 After an emotional debate, the National Council on the Arts urged endowment chairman John E. Frohnmayer to stop requiring grant recipients to agree in writing to comply with a congressional ban on using federal funds for works that might be deemed obscene.

The 17-2 vote by the presidentially appointed council is not binding on Frohnmayer. "I'm going to consider it and take any action in due course," said Frohnmayer.
 The motion to remove the anti-obscenity pledge was sponsored by council member Roy Goodman, a New York state senator and arts patron, who called it "a loyalty oath reminiscent of the McCarthy era" of anti-communist witch hunts led by Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., in the 1950s.

Goodman said the pledge "insulted and alienated the arts community and worsened the furor surrounding the endowment." "The artist knows what the law is," he said. "We don't have to rub his nose in it."
 Frohnmayer instituted the pledge after conservative lawyers led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., persuaded Congress last October to amend the arts endowment's current $171 million budget to include a prohibition against federal support for obscene art.

Economic sanctions can hurt Iraq, experts contend

By Martin Marris
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Swift action to freeze Kuwaiti assets overseas after Iraq's invasion of its oil-rich neighbor will prevent strongman Saddam Hussein from reaping immediate economic benefits.

If Western nations also take additional moves to cut Iraq's oil lifeline, Baghdad's already strangled economy will be dealt a harsh blow.

The United States took the lead by freezing billions of dollars of Kuwaiti and Iraqi assets, banning imports of Iraqi oil and imposing other trade sanctions. Oil accounts for 97 percent of Iraq's exports to the United States. Kuwait had about $142 billion invested in the United States at the end of 1989 and Iraq had almost nothing invested, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Britain and France froze Kuwaiti assets to keep the country's new Iraq-installed government from seizing them. Japan, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg have announced plans to do so.

The Netherlands was considering an assets freeze, but there were no immediate indications whether the Dutch were prepared to bar Iraqi oil from the major European port of Rotterdam — a potentially crippling blow.

Senior officials from the 12 European Community nations were to meet in Rome on Saturday to discuss economic and other sanctions against Iraq, an EC source said Friday.

But so far only the U.S. and French governments have blocked Iraq's assets in their countries, and the United States has been the only country to move firmly against Iraq's oil.

Analysis stress that speed was essential in any successful move to prevent Kuwait's $100 billion of assets overseas from getting into the hands of the new Kuwaiti government.

"The priority today is to freeze Kuwait assets," said Andrew Cunningham, associate editor of the Nicosia-based Middle East Economic Survey. "If you don't do it now, they'll get the assets," he said.

In contrast, the United States and its allies have slightly more time at their disposal to shape a collective policy to isolate Iraq's own economy. "Iraq is in an extremely vulnerable position," Cunningham said, adding that Baghdad relies significantly on Western credits but "oil is the main thing."

Analysis

Iraq uses three export routes for its oil: pipelines across Saudi Arabia and Turkey, and the Persian Gulf sea outlet. The pipelines were built during the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, when Baghdad's traditional oil route through the Gulf was repeatedly attacked by Iran.

After the war, Saddam hoped to found an ambitious reconstruction program on oil income, but sagging oil prices undermined recovery efforts.

The uncertainties after Saddam's invasion of Kuwait are pushing up oil prices, but with a big question mark over his ability to sell it this may not be a benefit.

It was unclear whether the invasion would slow or halt Kuwait's oil production. Iraq's control of Kuwait's 9 billion barrels of crude oil reserves, added to Baghdad's own 100 billion, will be of little use to the Iraqis if they cannot market their oil.

The war with Iran left Saddam a foreign debt from $60 billion to $70 billion; including about $30 billion to Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and other oil-rich Arab countries that helped finance his war.

A desire to erase part of the debt burden was one reason behind Saddam's sudden invasion.

Iraq is saddled with overcentralized state industries and a high annual inflation rate.

German leaders urge earlier vote on unity; Berlin to be new capital

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Leaders of both Germany on Friday urged joint elections two months earlier than planned, and the countries agreed to make Berlin their united capital.

The early election plan ran into immediate objections from the leftist Social Democrats, who form part of the East German coalition government but are the opposition in West Germany. The Soviets said it could disrupt international talks on German unification.

Lothar de Maiziere
Wants more investment

East Germany's prime minister, Lothar de Maiziere, made the proposal to advance all-German elections from Dec. 2 to Oct. 14.

West-German Chancellor Helmut Kohl welcomed it, saying the earlier vote "corresponds with the wishes of the people in East Germany and also in West Germany." Kohl's remark came in a statement released by his office in Bonn. He was on vacation in Austria.

Under pressure for early unification, De Maiziere said he sought "unity that was as quick as possible, but as good as needed" and hoped that a decision might improve the climate for investment.

Social Democrats in both Germanys immediately criticized the proposal. Oskar Lafontaine, the Social Democrats' challenger to Kohl in the upcoming election, called the latest proposal a "transparent manipulation attempt" for Kohl and de Maiziere to quickly capitalize on their popularity.

He said the proposal for earlier elections breached an agreement that was reached with the Social Democrats on a Dec. 2 election date.

The East German Social Democrats, de Maiziere's coalition partners, accused the prime minister of "election fraud" and trying to improve the chances of the Christian Democrats, de Maiziere's and Kohl's party.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gromitsky said the call for early elections was an "unexpected turn" that could disrupt international talks on German unity.

The Soviet Union has been East Germany's largest military and trading partner.

The decision on making Berlin the new capital came as negotiators for the two Germanys ironed out remaining points of joining the two countries.

Replicas of ships Columbus used begin journey

HUELVA, Spain (AP) — As if emerging from a five-century time warp, exact replicas of the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria set sail Friday on a six-month voyage to prepare a planned 1992 re-creation of Columbus' Atlantic crossing.

The 15th-century royalty sent Columbus off in search of precious metals and spices; Spain's present-day government hopes the new voyage will lure tourist dollars.

Ninety crew members began the voyage to 12 Spanish ports, hoping to follow the exact sailing methods of Columbus and his intended men.

All but the commander, a Spanish navy captain, will sleep outdoors, as Columbus crew did on the voyage to America.

Like Columbus, Capt. Santiago Bolivar will lead from the deck of the Santa Maria, the flagship.

"The objective of the 1992 voyage will be to study in action the navigation methods of the 15th century and the effectiveness of Columbus' sailing methods," Bolivar, 40, told reporters.

Spain, which bankrolled Columbus, also spent $2 million to build the three ships from Galician pine and oak from the Pyrenees.

They sailed from this southern port — 310 miles southwest of Madrid — 498 years to the day of Columbus' first voyage to the New World.

The head of the government company planning the 1992 celebrations, Luis Vazquez, saw them off and laid a wreath at a monument to Columbus, not far from the site where the explorer began his adventure.

Quake hits in southern Iran this time
NICOSIA — A strong earthquake jolted the oil-rich Iranian province of Khuzestan on Friday, a little more than a month after a devastating earthquake in the north killed 40,000 people.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, said the tremor struck at mid-afternoon and measured 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale. Reports on damages or casualties were not immediately available, the dispatch said. Khuzestan is located on the oil-producing belt in southern Iran.

Soviet craft docks 'neatly' with station
MOSCOW — The manned spacecraft Soyuz TM-10 docked with the orbiting Mir space station on Friday, two days after it was launched, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The docking was "made neatly and precisely on time," Tass said.

Flight commander Lt. Col. Gennady Manakov and engineer Gennady Strekalov will spend one week working with the old crew which has been on board since Feb. 11.

They replace cosmonauts Anatoly Solovoyev and Alexander Balandin, who are scheduled to return to Earth on Aug. 9, following a mission plagued by problems with the spacecraft's thermal insulation and a broken hatch.

Lull in Liberian civil war short-lived
MONROVIA, Liberia — Government troops and rebels loyal to Prince Johnson fired rockets and shells Friday in block-by-block fighting for the ravaged Liberian capital.

The bodies of several pedestrians killed by the cross-fire were left lying on the sidewalk. Branches were blown off trees. Damaged downtown shops front were blasted anew by line-of-sight firing.

The clashes followed a one-day lull in the 7-month-old civil war, when Johnson's men had apparently pulled back to face a possible threat from forces loyal to rival rebel leader Charles Taylor.

Big Ben falls victim to faulty bearing
LONDON — It's not the heat but a faulty bearing that has stopped the clock of Big Ben three times this week, the government said Friday.

The hands of the famous clock on the tower of the Houses of Parliament stopped at 3:11 p.m. Friday, which is about where they sagged on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Talks between Koreans in peril

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea, upset by rival South Korea's moves to improve ties with the Soviet Union, indicated Friday it might boycott historic talks between the two Koreas' prime ministers.

A South Korean government delegation is in Moscow discussing issues that Seoul officials say include economic cooperation and establishing diplomatic ties.

North Korea's official Communist Party newspaper Rodong Sinmun hinted at the possibility of a boycott of the prime ministers' talks in a commentary carried by the Korean Central News Agency — and monitored in Tokyo.

The newspaper denounced the South Korean delegation's visit to Moscow as a divisive act "going against the desire for reunification."

It said if Seoul and Moscow open formal relations, it would perpetuate the division of the Korean peninsula, bitterly divided since 1945.

The Soviet Union is a close ally and arms provider for North Korea.

In an unprecedented move last month, the rival Korean states signed an accord setting up the first talks between their prime ministers. The first meeting is to be held in Seoul beginning Sept. 4 and the second is scheduled beginning Oct. 16.

Red Sox bullpen ace Reardon out for season

BOSTON — Jeff Reardon, the ace of the Boston Red Sox bullpen, will have surgery Monday for a ruptured disc and miss the rest of the season.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Boston team physician, said that a myelogram confirmed that the ruptured disc is the cause of pressure on a nerve in Reardon's lower back.

Reardon was placed on the 21-day disabled list Friday and Boston recalled rookie right-hander Daryl Irvine from Pawtucket of the Class AAA International League.

Pappas, a noted orthopedic surgeon, said Reardon will have the surgery at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

Lakers trade Woolridge to Nuggets for draft picks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Amid rumors that Jerry West was about to trade two starters in a blockbuster deal, the Los Angeles Lakers made a move Friday, trading reserve forward Orlando Woolridge to the Denver Nuggets for No. 2 draft picks in 1993 and '94.

Woolridge signed with the Lakers in 1988-89 as a free agent after having lost a season to drugs. He averaged 8.7 points and shot 46.8 percent, but improved to 12.7 and 55.6 percent last season, playing the No. 3 forward.

U.S. women dominate figure skating

Soviet Sergei Grinkov spins Ekaterina Gordeva during the Goodwill Games pairs' freestyle figure skating as they capture the gold medal in the pairs' competition.

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — The Goodwill Games reach their final weekend with three American world champions within reach of gold.

Figure skater Jill Trenary, boxer Eric Griffin and the women's basketball team have looked just short of unbeatable in early action.

Trenary led a 1-2-3 American sweep of the original program Thursday night. That's worth one-third of the total score and the other two-thirds shouldn't be much of a problem for the three-time U.S. champion.

"I was very nervous," Trenary said of her first competitive appearance as world champion. She won the title in March at Halifax, Nova Scotia. "Once I'm out there, I don't think about it. I'd just freak out if I did, I'd think about being world champion as I went into a triple jump."

The Soviets had no trouble in pairs, an event they've dominated for decades. Ekaterina Gordeva and Sergei Grinkov, the 1989 Olympic gold medalists and current world champions, survived her flubbed triple toe loop to hold off Artur Dmitriev and Natalia Mishkutenok. Elena Bechke and Denis Petrov took the bronze.

In men's volleyball, the Soviets staged a sensational comeback to win world championship in the semifinals 12-15, 8-15, 15-10, 15-12, 15-10. The United States played Italy in a later game.

Trenary is debating whether to remain an amateur or go into a professional show. That decision is close at hand.

"I'm going home to Minnesota after these competitions to take it easy and decide. I can't just sit around for a couple of months deciding. I can't just float through life. It's difficult for athletes to think this is their last amateur competition."

It is her last. Trenary would like to make it one of her best even though this is too early in the season — it's actually before the figure skating season — to expect very much.

"It's difficult to skate competition in July or August," she said. "The pressure is less because it's our offseason. My skating has really come together the last two weeks."

PGA bans tournaments at clubs that discriminate

The Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. — The PGA Tour, prompted by the Shoat Creek controversy, said Friday it will deny tournament rights to golf clubs that have all-white memberships or show any other signs of discrimination.

The tour's 10-member Tournament Policy Board voted for tougher anti-discrimination rules following threats of protests and sponsor pullouts at next week's PGA Championship.

"In the event a golf club indicates its membership practices and policies are non-discriminatory, but there is information that raises a question as to such practices and policies (e.g. all-white membership), the staff is authorized to require on a case by case basis that as a condition of hosting an event, the applicable golf club take appropriate action to encourage minority membership," the PGA statement said.

The policy would affect tournaments on the PGA Tour, the Senior PGA Tour and Ben Hogan Tour events.

"We are not aware of any (host clubs) that have exclusionary policies," deputy tour commissioner Tim Finchem said. "There are some that don't have blacks, but we have black members in the past—we're still assembling data. The clubs will be looked at on a case-by-case basis."

The Charlotte Observer, in an article last week, found that 17 clubs where PGA Tour events were held have all-white memberships.

Hamblin, Frank share Idaho Open 1st-round lead

By Larry Hovey Times-News writer

CALDWELL — Magic Valley's Mike Hamblin and Tracy Frank used their strength to share the first-round lead in the Idaho Open golf tournament here Friday.

The long-hitting Hamblin ravaged the Purple Sage Golf Course's three par-five holes for two eagles and a birdie, while Frank carved out a four-under-par 34 on the front side. That left them tied with Scott Blake of Tacoma, Wash., and five under par at 66.

Those three were part of the small army of 13 that bettered the 71 par standard on the course. The tournament continues today and concludes Sunday with the winner collecting $3,500 and earning a spot in the Hogan Tour Boise stop next month at Hillcrest Country Club.

Hamblin's 15-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th hole pulled him into the tie. He missed just three greens all day, but cost him this only two bogies.

"I couldn't get it close on the four-putts," he said. "The times I felt I had hit it within 10 feet, it wound up being 20."

But those problems didn't occur on the par fives. He used a deft iron to get the last 260 yards on the third hole, leaving a putt of four feet.

A 220-yard five iron and missed 12-foot putt made him settle for birdie on No. 12. Then on 18 he hit an eight-iron 200 yards to the front edge of the green and canned a 15-foot putt.

Between those eagles he had two birdies and two bogies. "It was all five pars," he said. "I couldn't get anything going anywhere else."

Frank played the back nine first and had to birdie the final hole to get under par. But on his first tee, he was accurate the hole all the time, having an 18-inch birdie on the par three No. 4.

But a chip-in birdie from behind No. 8 was his highlight. "I always end up behind that hole no matter what I do,"

he said. "This time I knocked it over the green again, but I held it out. I knew then I was in the tournament."

Blake had a good chance to take the lead at a very low number. He was three under on the front and then reeled off birdie on No. 2, 10, 11, 12 and 13. But that seven-under par slipped away on a double-bogey on the closing par-four hole, and he was unable to par the thirteenth.

Putting woes visited Gooding professional Rob Ellis, who carded an even-par 71. Most of that was attributable to a four-putt on the 12th hole. Defending champion Ron Preece of Boise had a one-over-par 72 in his quest for a third Idaho Open title.

Big Sky mulls expansion or division

SUN VALLEY (AP) — The Big Sky Conference cannot afford to hide behind its NCAA Division I-AA status while the nation's major colleges scramble to form so-called "super-conferences," the league commissioner said.

While the nine-member association is not "aggressively looking" for additions, Ron Stephenson acknowledges there is a feeling that nine is not a good number. Maybe 10. Some say 12, and split into two divisions.

The lure of lucrative television contracts and windfall gate receipts from past-season playoffs among division winners to determine conference champions have Division I schools excited about league additions and mergers.

Penn State's abandonment of independence has long been put on the Big Ten map, says Commissioner Tom Izzo. "I'm not sure if it's a whole leap toward super-conferences. The Nittany Lions' move stirred a hornet's nest of activity."

This past week, Arkansas abandoned the Southwest Conference to join the SEC. The SEC also has counted independent Miami, the defending national champ, and in July, the eight-member Metro Conference invited eight independents to help form what would be a 16-member, two-division league.

Speculation that the Pac-10 has been added to the Big Eight of Colorado, and perhaps snagging a few very well received by most, if not all, the people in our league."

But USU—football coach Chuck Shelton feels it is unlikely the Aggies or any other Big West school would seriously consider leaving to the Big Sky—while it keeps its smaller I-AA standing.

It's also possible the Big Sky may cast longly glances at Big West survivors in the event UNLV leaves. Stephenson mentions New Mexico State, Long Beach, Fullerton and Pacific, but acknowledges, "the decision to move into California is something we've never really considered."

Shelton preads the Big Sky would find Big West teams infertile recruiting ground.

"There is no interest in our conference in looking toward the Big Sky at this time," Shelton said. "And we have no interest in being in the Big Sky."

Indeed, Shelton said he had heard of a couple Big Sky schools considering making a bid for Big West membership. He said it would be inappropriate to identify them, however.

But Stephenson said it is no secret that both Nevada-Reno and Boise State have made tentative inquiries to the Big West.

"It was more of a 'would you look at us' kind of thing," he said. "Nevada-Reno, of course, has its sister institution in Vegas in that league, and in Boise's case, they've made no secret that they would some day like to be a Division I program."

NFL exhibition season kicks off today

CANTON, Ohio — The NFL's exhibition season starts this weekend in Tokyo, London and Canton. The Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns open the schedule at Canton, Saturday, following the enshrinement of seven men into the Hall of Fame. Japan gets its turn Sunday — Saturday night in the United States — with Denver and Seattle, followed by the Los Angeles Raiders and New Orleans at London on Sunday.

The weekend's abbreviated schedule of special games gives the six teams involved a fifth preseason game, one more than the other NFL teams. Kickoff time tonight for the Denver-Seattle game is 8 p.m. MDT. It will be broadcast live by ESPN. Channel 13 in the Magic Valley.

The Raiders-Seattle game is scheduled for 11 a.m. Sunday on NBC, Channels 7 and 38 locally.

Silveira holds 1-shot lead at St. Jude

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Larry Silveira overcame two shots-into-water hazards to shoot an even-par 71 on Friday and hold a one-shot lead midway through the St. Jude Classic golf tournament.

Silveira, who set a course record with a 9-under-par 62 for a three-shot lead on Thursday, completed two rounds over the 7,000-yard TPC Southwind course at 133, one shot ahead of Buddy Gardner and Loren Roberts. Gardner shot 69 and Roberts 68.

DUNVER, Mass. — Ellie Gibson, who has made only $1,264 in her first 10 months as a golf pro, shot a 67 on Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Dale Eggleston after 36 holes of the Boston Five Classic.

Gibson, who had made the cut in only one of seven previous tournaments this year, was at 6-under-138 after two rounds over the 6,008-yard Tara Ferncroft Country Club course.

Eggleston, the 1980 Boston Five champion, was one shot ahead of 1982 tournament winner Sandra Palmer.

3rd Spudman Triathlon set for today

BURLEY — The Spudman Triathlon, bearing its new designation as a qualifier for the Bud Light USTS National Championship, will be renewed for the third time today.

The 1.5-kilometer swim, 40-kilometer (26-mile) bike ride and 10-kilometer (6.2-mile) run will begin on the waterfront at 8:30 a.m.

Organizers expect about 125 participants.

FBI investigating possible wiretap of legislator's telephone

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE — The Justice Department is investigating the possibility that state Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo's Capitol office telephones have been illegally monitored, the Senate leader said Friday.

"I'm pretty confident that the only explanation we've been given at this point to explain the circumstances is that there is some kind of 110-volt device surveilling the line,"

Crapo said.

The Idaho Falls Republican advised GOP House Speaker Tom Boyd of Genesee, Senate Democratic Floor Leader Marguerite McLaughlin of Orofino and Senate Judiciary Chairman Denton Darrington of Declo about the situation. Crapo said he would ask the Legislative Council, which controls legislative operations, to hire a specialist for advice on how to improve security.

"We've given law enforcement officials our knowledge of the situation," Crapo said.

"But we have not engaged with them in any speculation of who might be responsible. We have no hard evidence right now," Darrington said he met with an investigator last week. "Idaho Watergate" — "I can't believe it," Darrington said Friday. "We don't have the slightest notion who did it, but the stakes are the Senate."

Whoever tapped the line was privy to conversations with campaign contributors and talks involving strategy for key Senate races, Darrington said.

Doug McConnaughey, communications director for the Senate, said the FBI had not provided officials any information on its investigation and the indication it received is that this is an ongoing investigation.

Crapo said there have been a series of incidents over the past seven months, including two illegal entries to his office during this winter's legislative session, that caused him to wonder if there was anybody trying to get information out of our offices illicitly.

But he said nothing was done until last week when his office was told by a confidential informant that information was being surreptitiously obtained from the office.

On July 25, a day after the informant's contact, Crapo said he hired a private investigator to check the office out. While the investigator found no transmitters, Crapo said he found evidence of high voltages on the line to his desk telephone and a phone used by McConnaughey, indicating some outside power source, possibly for a recording device, was attached to him.

LDS leader Benson's birthday today

SALT LAKE CITY — Earl P. Benson, president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will turn 91 on Saturday.

The Whitney, Idaho, native, leader of the 7.5 million-member church, will be honored at a family celebration, a church spokesman said. Benson has recently curtailed activities following a bacterial infection diagnosed in June.

Thriving economy vital, treasurer says

LEWISTON — The biggest dilemma facing Idaho's treasurer is recent congressional proposals that would exact hidden taxes and fees to lower the nation's soaring deficit.

"My most important job is keeping the economic comeback alive," said Lydia Justice Edwards on Wednesday in Lewiston. She said she has raised $85 million in interest from investments during his first four years as treasurer. Mrs. Edwards is running for a second term.

Montana firm gets big dam projects

BOISE — A bid worth more than $10 million has been awarded to repair the faulty Deer Flat dams on Lake Lowell near Caldwell, the Bureau of Reclamation says.

Modifications are needed to correct deficiencies in the dams that, if left uncorrected, could lead to sudden failure of the embankment, Barnard Construction Co. of Bozeman, Mont., was awarded the $10,232,000 contract and was slated to begin work this week.

Kole, Echohawk trade charges

COEUR D'ALENE — Echohawk may be his name, but Republican attorney general candidate Pat Kole complains he is running against an echo. The GOP candidate said Wednesday in Coeur d'Alene that his opponent is stealing his best lines. But the Democratic Bannock County prosecutor says those phrases have existed longer than Kole has been in politics.

Kole said he called the position of attorney general "the people's lawyers" four months ago and Echohawk subsequently adopted the line. On Monday, Echohawk referred to the office as the "people's law firm."

Kole said he also has promised that as successor to Jim Jones, he would emphasize family values and child sexual abuse prosecution, only to have Echohawk adopt the same or similar stands. But Echohawk said Kole should study the genesis of these lines before claiming them as his own.

BLM has policy for riparian areas

BOISE — A final policy detailing how the U.S. Bureau of Land Management oversees its riparian, streamside areas in Idaho has been completed.

Riparian areas are influenced by permanent sources of water, such as stream banks. Riparian areas make up a very small percentage of the acreage managed by BLM in Idaho, but they have values far beyond their size," said Delmar Vail, state BLM director.

Sisters point at brother for murder

COEUR D'ALENE — Two sisters of an accused-killer say their brother should also be a suspect in a second slaying, though another man has been convicted of murder in that case.

"Eugene Barnes" sisters said Thursday they believe their brother killed David Ritchey, 32, a Spokane newspaper carrier, in 1987. Gregory Rowley, a Spokane cement worker, was convicted in 1989 of murdering Ritchey.

Symms continues to build 1992 war chest

BOISE (AP) — While Idaho politicians are shaking the bushes for cash to finance their 1990 election bids, Republican Sen. Steve Symms continues to quietly build his campaign war chest for 1992.

His midyear campaign report filed with the secretary of state's office showed Symms raised another $68,000 during the first half of this year, all but $3,000 of it from out-of-state contributors.

The conservative lawmaker, in his second six-year term, also earned $12,500 on investment of his campaign treasury, so that after limited operating expenses since January the campaign had over $409,000 in cash at the end of June.

By comparison, GOP Congressman Larry Craig, who is running for the Senate seat of retiring Republican James McClure, has been out trying to raise money since the year began and accumulated $550,000. He got a major cash infusion last month when President Bush appeared at two fund-raisers that grossed more than $200,000.

But just like business-political fund-raisers have their problems, Boise, Idaho, Gov. John Evans, required still having more than $3,000 on hand from that last campaign. Symms spent $2.9 million while Evans poured $1.9 million in that race four years ago.

Evans did report borrowing $5,500 in late March, when he was considering a bid for McClure's seat in early May, well after deciding against challenging the party's eventual nominee — Ron "Twiegar" of

Latah County edging away from juvenile center plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Latah County commissioners say they are leaning toward rejecting a joint-operational agreement for a proposed regional juvenile detention center in Lewiston.

But Nez Perce County commissioners said Thursday that if Latah officials refuse to join them in running the facility, its size may have to be pared from 16 to 12 beds to cut operating costs.

Latah County would have to pay half the center's estimated $420,000 annual operating costs to buy into joint operation of the center. Part of that expenditure would be retained in payments from Clearwater, Idaho and Lewis counties, and possibly Asotin County, Wash., and the Nez Perce Indian Tribe.

The Symms' campaign reported a $100 check from a Denver contributor bounced because the account it was written on had been closed.

The man Symms beat in 1986 to win a second term, former Demo-

Magnuson said Thursday that would jeopardize every other county program.

After reviewing budget requests from the county's departments, Magnuson said he is inclined toward Latah County, also, paying a daily rate for each of its juvenile offenders.

"It sure seems a lot more feasible for this county," he said. "It seems like a gamble for Nez Perce County."

Nancy Johansen, chairwoman of the Latah County Commissioners, said the county has spent only $3,600 to hold juvenile offenders at the Ada County Juvenile Detention Center in Boise during the current fiscal year.

A final decision is expected by next Wednesday. Commissioners said they first wanted to consult with Prosecutor Craig Mossman.

"An agreement among the counties is the last hurdle to be jumped before the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare considers Nez Perce County's grant application for the center."

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

JEROME — "A year ago, Carelyn Blake closed. The marriage founder, but this spring her husband said he wanted to reconcile and get it renewed after a three-year hiatus. So Blake spent $2,500 for the prettiest wedding gown she could find. Before she could wear it, however, she learned in June that her husband, Gordon Roger Howell, had married another woman in Jerome. The marriage, according to Blake and a Jerome County prosecutor, was Howell's 13th. "He's breaking hearts left and right," Blake, 44, said in a phone interview from Newport Beach, Calif. The prosecutor, tipped by Blake, has charged Howell, 45, 921 S. Davis St., with felony bigamy. The criminal complaint says Howell married 32-year-old Tamara Lee Shelton in June while he was still married to Blake. He appeared before 5th District Magistrate Roger Burdick Friday, where a public defender was appointed. He remains free on his own recognizance. An Aug. 23 preliminary hearing has been set. Gordon Howell could not be reached for comment, and Tamara Howell declined to comment. Blake, who says she is Howell's 12th wife, and other ex-wives from California to Michigan tell a tale of falling for a good-looking, charismatic man who left them debt-ridden and emotionally devastated. "He is very convincing," Blake said. "He can be extremely charming and he is an excellent lover. "He'll talk you into killing yourself," said Karen Johns of Grand Rapids, Mich. She said she married Howell in September 1985. "Oh yeah, he is Mr. Romeo. He's got this right down to a science." Johns said that when Howell left her in July 1986, she sank into debt and had to file for bankruptcy, which just cleared in May. She said she owed $20,000 in medical bills, credit card charges run up by her ex-husband and other expenses. Blake said Howell wooed her with cards, flowers, gifts and such lines as, "This is the first time I've ever been in love in my life. You're turning me inside out" and, "You're the most beautiful woman I've been with in my life." Blake and Howell grew up together as cousins, Blake said, and their close friendship unexpectedly turned romantic. Even knowing much of his track record with women, she never thought he would betray her. "I believed everything he said because it was in sync with what he said when we were growing up," she said. Orlia Howell of Highland, Calif., said when Howell courted her, his love for her two children increased her love for him. "He can show love to kids and their moms fall for him," she said. During their three-year marriage in the early 1980s, he was a good father and husband, she said. "Then all of a sudden it changed, and I didn't understand it for a while. I come

Spears pool will open late due to maintenance

JEROME — The pool at Spears will open a week later than anticipated, officials say, because it's taking longer than expected to get it ready after a three-year hibernation.

"There was no way to know until we started working on it," said Recreation District Director Michael Pepper Friday. Pepper said the pool has sat idle for three years, and it will take workers another week to clear the water pipes, remove rust and clean the electric boiler.

The Jerome City Pool shut down earlier this week after mechanical failures crippled it. The pool's out at Spears Manufacturing is still owned by Spears.

But the company has leased the pool for a nominal fee to the Recreation District, a separate entity from the city.

The pool at Spears will open Aug. 13 and buses will begin their shuttle runs that day as well.

The Sagebrush Swim League Meet will be held in Rupert today, not at the Spears pool, because of the delay. For more information, call 324-3389 or 324-2963.

Stallings slated to discuss 1990 Farm Bill, other issues

BURLEY — Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings will discuss the 1990 Farm Bill and other agricultural issues Tuesday. The discussion will occur during a joint meeting of the Burley Area Chamber of Commerce and the Burley Rotary Club.

The luncheon meeting begins at noon at the Burley Inn.

Meehl orders trial against Motorola split into phases

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl has ordered a trial in a lawsuit against Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc. split into two phases.

Meehl entered the order after hearing nearly an hour of arguments last week about whether Motorola was delaying pre-trial procedures.

Jerome resident and inventor Michael Dahmer claimed the company was delaying and making it unnecessarily expensive to develop his case.

Dahmer sued Motorola in 1985, claiming it stole technology he developed. The technology scrambled radio-telephone talk.

"After several years of maneuvering and delays, Dahmer's lawsuit ended in Meehl's lap.

Meehl decided to split the trial into two parts.

The first jury trial would decide whether Motorola is liable.

If a jury decided the company did indeed steal Dahmer's technology, a second trial would determine how much damage he suffered.

"The court feels that liability is of enough questionable possibility, that we should allow a jury to decide and then decide who pays," Meehl said.

But Meehl refused to order sanctions against Motorola, even though he said there had been a delay in pre-trial procedures.

The problems just weren't serious enough to require sanctions, he said.

"The court feels it would be extremely naive to think that there hasn't been something suspicious," he said.

Motorola's attorneys argued that the age of the case — the company's alleged actions occurred in the early 1980s — and the size of the company made it hard to ferret out information that Dahmer wanted.

City Council to hear Carr's zoning requests Monday

TWIN FALLS — The City Council is scheduled to consider former councilmember Rick Carr's request to allow convenience stores in residential neighborhoods at its meeting Monday night.

Carr has asked for an amendment to city zoning ordinances to allow the stores in residential areas.

Numerous citizens opposed the request at the Council's last meeting.

The Council meeting starts at 6 p.m. in the city offices.

Brothers J.R. (left) and Tony Wrobel engage in some fencing. No foils, but wire cutters, pliers and a crowbar were the weapons they used to tame the chain-link opponent at Bicket Elementary School. The fence, along Fourth Avenue North, needed to be moved a few feet around a new sidewalk that was part of renovation work at the school.

As Idaho memorial is unveiled, area families recall sons who died

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

IDAHO FALLS — Billy Gene Smith of Filer was on his way to church services somewhere in South Vietnam in 1967 when a mine blew his jeep apart. He was 21 years old.

Elmo Lee DeFord was standing guard duty one year earlier when a Viet Cong-guided squad attacked his camp. He killed four Vietnamese before his gun jammed. He died two weeks later at age 19, a victim of shrapnel wounds inflicted by a pair of hand grenades.

Smith and DeFord were two of the 243 Idahoans killed in Vietnam whose names are set on a monument to be unveiled today in Idaho Falls. The Freedom Birds Inc., a non-profit group of Vietnam-era veterans, began the project five years ago, said former treasurer Nancy Shamel. Shamel was a civilian airline stewardess in Vietnam, 1967-69.

A reception at the memorial begins at 2 p.m. today at Freeman Park with the dedication following at 3 p.m.

"Within the last five to 10 years, the American people have realized there really was a war in Vietnam," Shamel said.

For the families of Smith, DeFord and the thousands of others who died in Southeast Asia, there was never any doubt. "It was rough over there. It was tough, but he never would tell me," said the Rev. Perry DeFord, Elmo's father, at his home in Hansen. "He didn't want me to worry."

DeFord kept his son's minders of his youngest boy. There is the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star, awarded for valor along with two medals awarded by the government of South Vietnam.

"There used to be blood on this," DeFord said, holding his son's dog tags. "You can see where they were bent by the shrapnel."

He lifts an old leather wallet out of the suitcase. All that remains inside is a tiny book of Bible quota-

Model shows design of Idaho memorial.

"He was a Christian boy," DeFord said. "We all have a great faith in the Lord."

Martha Smith, who lives in Buhl, remembered her only son as "a nice person ... who could run like a sink of lightning." She still thinks her son may be alive even though a locked casket with his name on it was flown here, from Vietnam and buried in Sunset Memorial Park.

A few photos and a Western Union telegram telling her of her son's death are the only mementos Smith has from her son, who was drafted into the Army and served in the Corps of Engineers, building roads and repairing vehicles.

A memorial to Idaho's Vietnam veterans is long overdue, but it won't ease the pain for those who lost loved ones, DeFord said.

"It doesn't make it easier," he said. "Nothing can take away the loss of a son."

Still, Shamel expects 1,000 people to gather at Freeman Park today to remember fallen comrades and family members.

"The monument is a large inverted 'V' represents the individual victory of all those who fought in Vietnam, and acknowledges the controversy surrounding the war and the devastating effect it had on American society. The Freedom Birds raised about $70,000 from private donations for the monument, and $200,000 from the Idaho State Lottery through state legislation

Gooding takes implement dealer to court

By Suzanne Hurdold
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — A 20-year old dispute between a local farm implement dealer and the city will have another hearing — it's second — in court Aug. 11.

The city of Gooding is prosecuting Doug Wood, owner and operator of E&W Implement, for disregarding citations issued him under an amended city ordinance.

The ordinance states that it is unlawful to park farm equipment on city streets. Wood said his business is dependent on the tractors that local farmers bring in for parts and repairs. And he said he has ignored the notices because he would have no other way to run his business if he lost the use of city parking spaces.

He also contends that the ordinance is directed only at him; the sole implement dealer in the city and is a result of many years of bad feelings between him and the City Council.

But, according to police Lt. Paul Brown, the dispute is based entirely on Wood's unwillingness to obey a city ordinance.

"It's a matter of lack of cooperation on the part of Doug," he said. "We're not singling Mr. Wood out, although he seems to think so."

Brown said the ordinance has been in effect for many years, but was amended in December of 1980 so that police could cite the person in possession of the unlawful parked vehicle, as well as the owner.

Wood and the city have been to court about this before, some 10 years ago, and Wood won that battle.

"They (City Council members) frankly want to get even with me,"

Wood said. "I'm not in their good graces," he added.

Gooding Mayor Gene Heller contends the tractors cause not only a traffic hazard, but a health hazard as well. Heller says the dirt from the tractors introduces toxic substances into the street.

"There are some vacant spaces around his block," Heller said. "He could lease space and park his equipment there."

Wood said he used to do that, but the rent on the vacant lot behind his building has risen from $50 to $350 per month.

Wood contends that not only does his business bring in $4 million a year, but that he pulls in customers for other Gooding businesses as well.

"I drag a hell of a lot of business into this town," Wood says. "The farmers come in and bring their wives and they do their grocery shopping and go to the vet for something and the grange for something, and the restaurant."

Ron Stroud of Strickland Realty agrees. He says his business, adjacent to E&W, receives a lot of exposure due to the traffic from the implement dealer.

"It's wonderful, the farmers come in and we're right here," Stroud said. "We're down to one implement place as it is. We need to keep every business going-in Gooding as we can."

Wood, however, feels that the council is not interested in the agricultural aspect of the local economy.

"They've taken the agriculture out of the economy of this town," he said. "Every other business in this town can only park wherever they want, they can have sidewalk sales every damn day and block off a whole street."

Wood said he has received three citations against the parking of horse trailers and commercial rigs on city streets. Wood contends that those vehicles are never cited.

"For the most part, that's true," Lt. Brown said. "Also, he admits that there is no real traffic hazard posed by the parked tractors."

Wood has been cited three times for the city ordinance, and it is obligated to obey the law. Which Wood said he'll do if he loses in court.

"If that happens, I'll probably close up," he said. "I don't think a guy could function without using the parking spaces."

Wood said he has received offers from both Wendell and Jerome to open up shop there. During his last court tangle with Gooding, Wendell offered him 5 acres free of charge if he would run his business in the community, he said.

Wood also owns several lots on the south side of town where he now stores and displays farm equipment. Some people have suggested the store be broken tractors and back forth would cause more trouble than help the city, he said.

Heller said the city has offered to help Wood find financial help in building there, and that it would continue to help him find a way to build on that lot.

"I'd like to get out of the middle of town, too," Wood asserts. "But every guy who's built a new building in this business isn't in this business anymore."

E&W is located on 3rd Avenue East and Washington Street. The tractors in question are parked on Washington.

Wood says he has received complaints from only one of his neighbors, who owns an unoccupied building behind the implement dealer.

"That street is so empty it's a joke," Wood said. "Nobody parks there. There ain't a soul who walks down that street once a month."

Heller said the city cannot make ordinances based on the traffic patterns of individual streets. And he asserts that the city has to start somewhere to clean up town.

"If we can't clean that up, how can we clean up anything," asked Heller. "But we're not trying to drive anyone out of town, that's the last thing we want to do."

Andrus struts his style in visit here

By Michelle Cole
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although Gov. Cecil Andrus' visit to Twin Falls Friday was classified as "official," the man who administers and enemies alike call "the conservative politician" seized the opportunity to strut his stuff.

In between touring Twin Falls food processing plants and a check-capping ceremony, Andrus campaigned hard for a fourth term.

He was the first out of the car at a Universal Frozen Foods construction site, where he headed straight for the lone worker.

"Good morning," the governor said as he extended his right hand.

"You must be Cecil. I can't miss that face," the worker said. "Right. And I need your help this fall," Andrus said, shaking his hand.

Next the governor spied a worker atop a cement structure that was at least three stories high.

"I've got a voter up top," Andrus said, before he climbed a shaky ladder. Members of his staff stayed below and held their breath.

Although the three-term Democrat pressed the flesh of Twin Falls City Council members and Chamber of Commerce officials, he also made an effort to meet with those who weren't wearing suits.

The governor and a coterie of VIPs, which included Department of Commerce Director Jim Hawkins and state Rep. Gary Robbins, Dr. Twin Falls, toured Universal Frozen Foods where the governor greeted workers over the din of potato processing machinery.

"Sure could use your help in November," he said to a worker who was sorting curly fries.

Around noon the group stopped in the cafeteria, where Andrus tipped his hard hat and joked with workers about having to wear a hair net on his nearly bald head.

Then he was up to shake more hands. "How ya doin'? I sure could use your help in November."

After making their way through the food line, the VIPs clustered at tables together.

But Andrus plopped his tray down at a table where three workers were already eating.

The governor chatted with the men while he ate fried shrimp, corn, mashed potatoes. Andrus also finished a side-dish of french fries.

Then he was up to shake more hands. "How ya doin'? I sure could use your help in November."

RUPERT — Harold John Fredrick, 69, of Rupert, died Thursday, Aug. 2, 1980, at his shop in Rupert.

He was born Aug. 12, 1910, in Bull Canyon, Idaho, the son of Reinhold and Alta E. Eilers Fredrick. He moved to Rupert with his family where he attended schools and graduated from Rupert High School. He also graduated from Frank Wiggins Trade School in California. He married Eunice Schulz on Dec. 5, 1946, in Rupert where he had since resided. He was engaged in farming and was co-owner of Fredrick Beans & Grain Warehouse in Rupert.

Surviving are his wife of Rupert, one son, Bruce Fredrick, also of Rupert, three daughters, Elaine, Kay Heyburn, Marcia Drape of Rupert and Laurel Souther of Boise; one sister, Velda Lott of Rupert; one brother, Harold Sadler of San Diego; and seven grandchildren.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Monday at the Rupert United Methodist Church, 605 H. St., with Rev. L.G. Metzger, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial will be at the Rupert Cemetery. Friends may call Sunday afternoon and evening at the Hansen Mortuary Chapel, 710 Sixth St., in Rupert, and one hour before the funeral at the church. The family suggests memorial contributions be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

He died July 27, will be at 1 p.m. today at the Burley LDS Stake Center, 2050 Normal Ave., with Bishop Steven A. Tull officiating. Burial will follow at the Gem Memorial Gardens in Burley. Friends may call from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. today at the church. Arrangements are under the direction of the Payne Mortuary in Burley.

DEGLA — The funeral for Mary Frances Degla, 89, of Delta, who died Wednesday, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at the Decio LDS Church, with Bishop Melvin Darrington officiating. Burial will be at the Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn. Friends may call from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday at McCulloch's Funeral Home, 321 E. Main St. in Burley, and one hour before the funeral at the church.

From a background where you don't walk out on a marriage," she said. But she divorced him seven years ago, she said.

In retrospect, she said, "He was never a charmer. I was stupid. I was blind."

Margaret Howell of Pheasant Falls said she married Gordon Howell in January 1969; had two children by him and divorced him in 1979. At that time, however, she learned that he had already divorced her in Jefferson County, Colo., in 1974, and she acknowledged that di-orce.

It was in connection with his marriage to Margaret that Gordon Howell was arrested on a bigamy charge in 1971 in Teton County, Idaho. But the Texas wife decided not to press charges, Margaret said.

Howell, a trucker during that period, would leave for as long as two years at a time, Margaret said. She said she finally sought a divorce after she sought receiving calls from Howell, who said they were married to Howell and that he had deserted.

"I didn't want my kids to end up like him," she said.

Eighteen-year-old Cathy Howell, Margaret's daughter, said she loved her father, but she is angry at him for leaving when she was young.

"He didn't help my mom. If he cared he would have helped her support us," she said.

Carolyn Blake said she was "a basket case" when Howell left her this winter, but that therapy has helped her cope.

Blake, recently remarried, remains bitter.

"I don't feel a bit sorry for him," she said. "It's a hate and anger for the financial, the mental pain and anguish I went through."

Costs

University and at Eastern Idaho Technical College in Idaho Falls.

State Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, said Idaho needs to address two major issues that exist in its higher education system: Students at community colleges pay less than their university counterparts for similar courses, and taxpayers do not pay equally to support the two-year schools.

Currently only residents of Twin Falls, Jerome and Kootenai counties support CSI and North Idaho College with their property taxes.

CSI trustees have said they support the proposed legislation, but they would prefer a bill that spreads the capital improvement costs, not just maintenance and operations costs.

BSU receives additional state funding to expand its current vocational education and community outreach programs, but resists any restructuring of its fee-based division courses to fit into a junior-college mold, Keiser said.

"We're currently doing all those things that a community college does," and we're doing them rather efficiently," Keiser said.

As a result of the largest university BSU provides many vocational and community services at a lower cost to the state than smaller schools like CSI, Keiser said.

Not so, Keiser said, but "the establishment of a separate community college" would be raising a flag and marching backwards.

Lewis-Clark State College also serves a community college role in the Lewiston area, Vickers said. Adding another layer of classes in the form of a junior college would be counterproductive, he said.

On Thursday, State Board of Education President Gary Fay of Twin Falls urged lawmakers to proceed cautiously with the bill's provisions to convert Eastern Idaho Technical College to a community college.

Although he does not oppose a community college there, Fay said he thinks proponents should talk with the state regents before they seriously consider adding academic courses and erecting buildings on the Idaho Falls campus.

"That campus belongs to the state of Idaho, it does not belong to the community of Idaho Falls," Fay said.

"Perhaps there may be a way to sort something out," he said, "but the community college legislation specifically identifies the way to create a community college."

Suggesting a lease agreement as a possible solution, Fay estimated it would cost Idaho Falls $100 million to build a campus comparable to that of the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

Fay said he would prefer Idaho State University expand its undergraduate courses in Idaho Falls to the community.

creating an independent college.

"Service-wise it wouldn't provide a lot for the community," he said. "Accademically, I feel Idaho State can provide anything that students in Idaho Falls are likely to get" with a community college.

"Besides," he said, "they have their administration already in place."

A community college in Idaho Falls could pull potential students away from Idaho State University in Pocatello just 50 miles away, ISU's vice president of academic affairs told the committee Friday.

But the university could benefit in the long run, Michael Gallagher said. A community college in Idaho Falls could eventually send students to the university that would not otherwise have gone to college, he said.

Upper Snake water shortage is for farmers, not recreationists

The Associated Press

POCAJELLO — All those drops in the buckets known as reservoirs along the upper Snake River... The water in the reservoirs belongs to somebody... it belongs to the people who bought and paid for the reservoirs to be built," he said.

Storage capacity on the Snake is just over 4 million acre-feet, held in nine reservoirs of varying size... "The biggest contributor to the way the river is managed is the amount of snowfall that falls in the winter time," he said.

were the two driest years, back to back, on record... "We have to make our decisions based on priority of water rights," said Corless... "The potential for filling the other reservoirs is considerably less than that."

precipitation, the level of the reservoir was high for most of the season... "Our obligation under contract is to shut the reservoirs completely off," he said.

five days after than months, BOR officials use other sources of information... "After deciding to locate the center park in the region, which has no other state park facility, the Department initially planned base at the mining ghost town of Bayhorse just over the Salmon River and about 10 miles south of Challis.

Minidoka County Fair and Rodeo starts Monday

The Times-News

RUPERT — The hubbub of a county fair is often the summer's highlight... "Strolling through exhibition buildings, marveling at the well-groomed 4-H animals, and sitting wrapped up in that old quilt at the rodeo are true Americana."

Incident are Muzzie Braun and the Little Braun Brothers, Jennifer McCarter and the McCarter Sisters and cowboy poet/musician Baxter Black... "The exhibition buildings open to the public at 6 p.m. on Wednesday and will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, with the exhibits from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday."

noon on Saturday to allow more time for events rather than having to eliminate some... "Adults can take their turn Wednesday night in the adult gymkhana, also free to the public, starting at 8 p.m."

Gate beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday... "Magic Valley Antique Tractor Pullers will hold a tractor pull at approximately 2 p.m. Saturday on the race track at the county fairgrounds."

Gold pan breaks ground for new park

CHALLIS (AP) — The kind of gold pan prospectors used to make the region famous scooped out the first dirt as development of the park.

Unlike other state parks that have definite boundaries and are owned or leased by the state, the Land of the Yankee Fork will be operated under agreements with the Forest Service and private property owners, encompassing the entire area of the sprawling Salmon River Mining District.

For the record

Recent court action in Twin Falls County included the following:

Driving under the influence filings: Steven H. Brown, 27, Boise... James Vaughn Bingham, 24, Mountain Home... Argenio L. Ayala, 28, Ragerman... Jerry L. Shaff, 39, Route 2, Ellers...

180 days in jail, $1,000 fine, license suspended 180 days, 175 days in jail suspended, 24 months probation, must attend Alcoholics Anonymous... Felony filings: Robert B. Beekhuis, 48, 622 Catalina Drive, first-degree burglary, bond set at $120,000, public defender appointed, preliminary hearing requested...

Twin Falls County gives tentative nod to '91 budget

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Commission tentatively decided Friday to spend almost $9.6 million during the upcoming fiscal year... "Commissioners Jim Fraley and Marvin Hempleman approved the tentative fiscal year 1990-91 budget Friday in the absence of Commissioner Norma Blass, who is recuperating from surgery."

County Commission will recycle soon and cannot be recycled

TWIN FALLS — The County Commission is not recycling, but will be soon.

But the market for recycled products in Twin Falls is slim, Fraley said... "White paper, aluminum and possibly white goods, such as old refrigerators, are the likely products for recycling in the area."

Driving under the influence arrangements: Gregory Allen Schroeder, 18, 1442 Miner Blvd., charged on reckless driving, 90 days in jail, public defender appointed, pleaded innocent... Felony sentences: Glenn Beebe, 30, 173 10th Ave. E., Jerome, third offense driving without license, reduced to misdemeanor DUI, 180 days in jail, license suspended 180 days...

WHAT A DEAL! EXCELLENT TIPS AND CAREER ADVANCEMENT POTENTIAL

Gactus Pete's is offering two classes which will instruct students in dealing "21". Successful graduates will have the opportunity to apply for part-time or full-time positions at Cactus Pete's.

DEALER INSTRUCTION COURSES
These courses will be taught at space 581 in the Lynwood Mall in Twin Falls beginning August 6, 1990. The two classes will be available Monday through Friday from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and again from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m. Enrollment will be limited to 100 students.

Cactus Pete's personnel will interview prospective students from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Wednesday, August 1, 1990 and Thursday, August 2, 1990 at space 581 at the Lynwood Mall, 550 Blue Lakes Boulevard and North in Twin Falls. For further information and interview appointment, please call Cactus Pete's Human Resources Department at 1-800-442-3833; ext. 146/149 or call 734-3363 on the day of the interviews.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Learn to reason forward and backward on both sides of a question.
— Thomas Bladl.

"I thought we had an easy set," confessed East. "In choosing between shifting to diamonds and shifting to hearts, I missed out on the best defense."

Look over the play to see if you can spot East's mistake. East took his high club and shifted to the heart queen, now surprisingly by South's ace. South then led a diamond to dummy's ace and ruffed a diamond high. A low trump was led to dummy's nine for another diamond ruff (high), and the trump seven to dummy's ace allowed another diamond ruff, establishing dummy's fifth diamond. South still had a low trump to lead to dummy's six, and dummy's good diamond was his 10th trick (seven spades, one heart and two diamonds).

Should East have switched to diamonds instead of hearts at trick three? That would lead to the same result — the fifth diamond being established even sooner.

The defense has prevails is a trump lead at trick three. Try it. It removes a dummy entry before South is ready for it, and dummy's fifth diamond never comes into play.

The heart shift at trick three is an impulsive play. If South has heart leads, he will always have them provided he is kept from making use of dummy's long suit.
