Despite security improvements at the Jerome juvenile facility, including an enclosed control area, state officials say they are unsatisfied with the center's performance.

State plans to revoke license of juvenile center at Jerome

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Southern Idaho Youth Center will lose its license on Sept. 13 unless it challenges an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare decision to revoke it.

David Davis, Health and Welfare's regional director, said many factors over recent months contributed to the decision. He cited recent high turnover in staff, the discovery of padlocks on bedroom doors, lack of a qualified administrator and a recent fight at the center that left one youth with a dislocated shoulder. "The bottom line is they've just never been able to get it together and comply with all the rules and regulations," Davis said. The department granted the center a permanent operating license in April. The center was notified this week of Health and Welfare's intent and has 30 days to appeal to the department, Davis said. John Devine, a part-owner of the center, declined to comment Thursday. The potential closure could become a catalyst for six Magic Valley counties already exploring the possibility of building a new regional center. County officials will meet next week and discuss a task force recommendation that areas, excluding Minidoka and Cassia which are building their own juvenile facility, join in construction of a new center with available state grant money and run it collectively through a joint administrative board. "I think it's the thing that has to happen and I think the end result will be that we have better detention services in the community," Davis said. Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Mann, who supports building a new regional center, said, "I think it has brought counties together to realize the need for a juvenile detention center." Until that project gets off the ground, however, "We're in limbo," Mann said. "If we're going to detain kids, we're pretty much going to have to take them out of the area." Jerome County Prosecutor John Morgan said, "We'll take care of business no matter what happens, even if it costs money."

Irish buy Richfield cheese firm

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD — An Irish food company has bought the Ward Cheese Inc. Avonmore Foods USA Inc., a subsidiary of Avonmore Foods of Kilkenny, Ireland, has bought all shares in the Richfield company for an undisclosed sum, Ward's Cheese President Tom Kalange announced Thursday. Kalange said Avonmore approached him and his company's shareholders employees with an offer too good to pass up. "If we did look for a buyer, we couldn't find anybody that better suited us," Kalange said. "They're committed, it's been there, to the long-range future of Ward's."

Kalange has owned a controlling interest in Ward's Cheese since 1985. In 1989, Kalange increased his ownership to about two-thirds of Ward's Cheese stock and the remainder, purchased from family members of company founder C.W. Ward, was placed in an employee stock ownership trust.

No changes in management or in the company's 130-person work force are expected with the Avonmore purchase. Kalange said Avonmore will continue Ward's Cheese Inc.'s planned expansion, which by spring could more than double the company's output of dairy products. In May, Ward's Cheese purchased an 80,000-square-foot plant in Gouding. Part of that space is now storage, but Ward's and Avonmore have selected a contractor to construct a cheese plant in the remainder of the space, Kalange said. "We are going first class. We're going with the very best and the most modern equipment," he said.

Kalange said the expansion program was planned long before Avonmore courted Ward's Cheese, but the purchase will make more money available for the expansion. "We're going to use some major technical support and marketing support, as well as additional capital," Kalange said. With the expansion, the company's annual milk usage will grow from 300 million pounds to about 825 million pounds. Assuming that cows produce an average of 40 pounds of milk daily, the company would absorb the annual production of more than 56,000 cows. At last count, the Magic Valley's eight counties had 77,000 dairy cows.

The area's strong annual growth in milk supply was one factor in Avonmore's purchase of Ward's, said Pat O'Neill, group

Meeting with Hussein encouraging to Bush

The Associated Press

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush said Thursday that King Hussein assured him Jordan would close a vital port to most Iraqi commerce.

The president said he had "no feeling of hope" that Iraq would roll back its army, and dispatched thousands more Marines to the Persian Gulf.

At a news conference at his vacation home in Maine, the president also expressed concern about reports that Americans were being rounded up in Kuwait by the occupying Iraqi military.

"After meeting for two hours with Hussein, Bush was asked whether the situation in the gulf region were stabilizing or drawing closer to war. "I don't know that I can choose between the two options," he replied.

Bush also said he has not yet decided whether to sign an order calling up reserve units.

Later, the Pentagon announced that the president had ordered U.S. ship commanders in the Middle East to intercept all ships carrying goods to or from Iraq or Kuwait, and a Pentagon official said the order also applied to Iraq-bound shipments at the Jordanian port of Aqaba.

The order authorized ship commanders

King Hussein, President Bush meet in Maine to discuss crisis in Gulf to use the "minimum force necessary" to stop any ship suspected of carrying goods to or from Kuwait or Iraq, if the ship refused to stop or to be diverted from its course.

"To the maximum extent possible we will conduct operations without the use of force," the presidential order said. A Pentagon source said earlier that those steps could include attempting to block the ship's passage or firing a warning shot across the bow.

Marines move out - A4 Saddam now target of parades - A4 'Mice' won't play - A8

The president met with the Jordanian leader — and later with Saudi Arabia's foreign minister — as military forces in the Persian Gulf continued to grow.

The Defense Department, meantime, estimated that the deployment of U.S. air, ground and naval forces in defense of Saudi Arabia will cost $1.18 billion through September. The announcement said the expense beyond could not be estimated because the size and composition of the armed forces in the operation and their level of activity, are still evolving.

For the second time in three days, Bush said United Nations-backed economic sanctions were beginning to take their toll on Iraq. But when pressed for details, he

Americans face roundup orders

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Iraq on Thursday ordered the 2,500 Americans in occupied Kuwait to assemble within two hours in a hotel in the capital for protection against "unspecified threats," the State Department said.

Hours after the deadline "very few" had complied, a senior U.S. official told The Associated Press.

"President Bush called the order "a little vague right now."

He told reporters at his vacation retreat in Maine that "anything that counts individuals to do something against their will would, of course, concern me."

But, the president added, "I don't want to overstate it."

The senior U.S. official said in Washington that Iraqi military authorities had "implied" to Ambassador Nathaniel Howell that they "would go out and find" any Americans who did not comply with the Idaho free of smog, bad air plaguing many major cities

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than half the U.S. population still lives in cities plagued by too much smog, and one third in areas with dangerously high carbon monoxide, the Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday. But it didn't include any Idaho cities on either of its lists, for ozone or carbon monoxide standard violations.

Most major cities, 119 in all, flunked air quality checks for at least several days during the past three years, and some such as Los Angeles and New York failed much more frequently, the EPA said.

Eighteen cities violated standards for both smog and carbon monoxide, meaning in most cases they have major pollution problems in both summer and winter months.

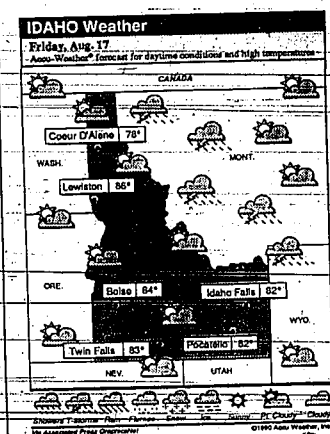

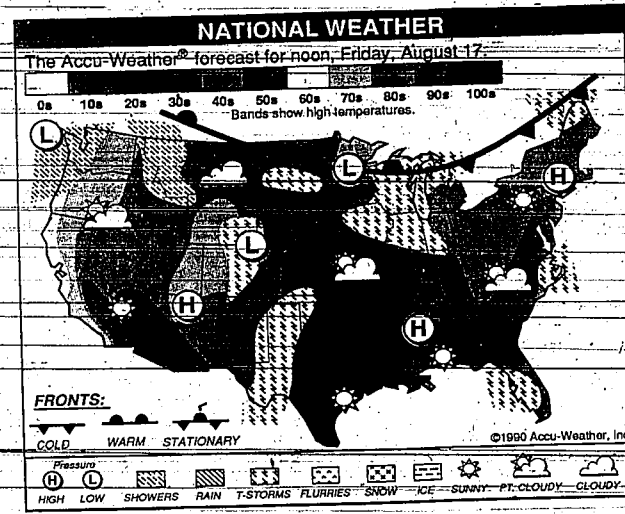

"These lists demonstrate the magnitude of the air-pollution problem still remaining in this country," said EPA Deputy Administrator F. Henry Habicht.

The total number of cities was down five from last year, taking into account cities added to or dropped from the lists. But Habicht said 133 million people still live in areas exceeding the smog standard and almost 78 million are in areas that are over the carbon monoxide limit. The EPA listed 96 areas where monitoring of the air showed that smog or ozone levels were too high more than three times since 1987. Anything over 0.12 parts per million is considered a violation of federal standards. The lists didn't say how far over that level the cities went.

Heavy rains soak widespread sections of the nation

The Associated Press
Many parts of the nation, already sodden from earlier rains, were hit with more downpours Thursday. Strong thundershowers and showers developed along a weak cold front over Virginia and central North Carolina. In North Carolina, the storms produced penny-size hail at Moncure, and hail an inch in diameter at Snow Camp, as well as dropping 2.75 inches of rain in less than an hour. Isolated showers and thundershowers dotted most of the Gulf Coast. There were also a few isolated showers and thundershowers in the lower Great Lakes region, the southern High Plains and the southern Rockies. Showers and

Weather summary

Moisture circulating into the Gen State from the south, along with cool marine air spreading inland from the southwest, brought variable clouds into Idaho Thursday. The southeast corner of the state had enough cloud moisture for scattered showers. By 1 p.m. Thursday isolated thundershowers also popped up near Idaho Falls and from Malad City to east of Pocatello. These storms were likely to continue in southeast Idaho through the evening hours. Besides the clouds and showers, smoke from numerous fires in Idaho and adjacent western states continued to drift through the state, reducing visibility to below five miles in some locations, and partially obscuring distant horizons elsewhere around the state. At 3 p.m., temperatures across Idaho were in the 70s to low 80s. The hot spot was Mountain Home with 84 degrees. The hottest temperature in the state Thursday was 98 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 38 degrees. Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 104 degrees at Lake Havasu City, Ariz., and Borrego Springs, Calif. The lowest was 39 at Gunnison, Colo.

mentioned only a report that bakers in Iraq had been told to stop making confectios.
Bush said in advance of Thursday's meeting that he would press King Hussein to deny Iraq access to the port at Amman, the last remaining waterway left open for the Baghdad regime.
He was asked whether Hussein had offered such assurances, and replied, "Yes."
Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Jordan "is seeking some guidance" about a provision in the cost-benefit study, but he said that allows food for humanitarian purposes.
Amman is Iraq's main outlet now in the face of an international boycott if Hussein fails to act. Bush has indicated the U.S. Navy will set up a blockade to block Iraqi trade from Amman. The president also has offered to help offset Jordan's costs of cutting off business with Iraq.

Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud said he flanked the president for protecting the kingdom. "We still hope that conflict can be avoided but... if and only if Iraq withdraws from Kuwait and legalities return to Kuwait," he said.
Bush made his comments as Saddam denounced any hopes of a diplomatic settlement. The Iraqi president issued a bellicose statement threatening the United States and calling Bush a liar.
The statement by a spokesman, broadcast in Baghdad and carried live on American television, warned that thousands of Americans would be sent home "wrapped in sad coffins" if a military showdown occurs.
Hussein said he hoped the crisis "will begin to de-escalate." However, he also said, "I am not talking on behalf of anyone in the area - but myself."

The State Department, meanwhile, instructed Joe Wilson, the deputy U.S. ambassador in Baghdad, to protest to the Iraqi foreign minister a second U.S. official said. He called the Iraqi military commander in Kuwait merely a "minor" of President Saddam Hussein's government.
The International Hotel is operating the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait City, the capital of the small Persian Gulf emirate seized by Iraq two weeks ago.
The Iraqis also have instructed all Britons to assemble at a hotel in a move the British Foreign Office condemned as "shameful and sinister."
Asked why President Bush did not attempt to evacuate the Americans with military transport planes, as one member of Congress immediately suggested, the U.S. official replied that Iraq had constructed an air defense system around the city.

Juvenile

The nearest alternative detention centers, if they have space available, are in Boise and St. Anthony. Placing a child at a night more than placing a child at the Southern Idaho Youth Center for $65 a night.
"We're going to see how that (afford it)," Munn said.
One interim solution would be for counties to buy the existing center and run it until a new center can be built. But Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said he didn't see how that would improve existing conditions. Jerome residents initially protested construction of the Southern Idaho Youth Center, which began last November, in September 1987. A year ago, Health and Welfare denied the center a permanent operating license, then granted a temporary license which expired shortly before a permanent license was granted in April.

This year several youngsters have escaped from the center, a girl has charged in a tort claim that she was raped while she was held there and the state is currently investigating allegations of criminal child abuse. Davis recently described the organization as a "torpedo ship" as the result of staff trying to discredit the facility and said Health and Welfare harbored a bias against his privately owned detention center.

Davis has denied that. He said Thursday that an expert in juvenile detention services, David Rousch of Michigan, had visited the Jerome center two weeks ago and confirmed that the facility is not adequate.
Devine has indicated that he would sell operation and let counties create a new detention center.

point of number of days of violation, was the Los Angeles-Anaheim Riverside area of California, with 137 days, followed by Bakersfield, Calif., with 44 days and New York City with 17.
Another list included 41 areas where carbon monoxide levels exceeded the limit of 0.9 parts per million on two or more days in either 1988 or 1989.
Los Angeles led again, with 71 days, followed by Spokane, Wash., with 37 days; Oshkosh, Wis., with 32, the area of Steubenville, Ohio and Weston, W. Va., with 31, and then New York and Las Vegas, Nev., with 26.
Smog is primarily a summertime problem, caused by the interaction of the more intense sunlight with chemicals in the air. Carbon monoxide becomes more difficult to control in the winter when temperature inversions keep more pollutants in the lower atmosphere.

Both can cause health problems, ranging from eye irritation to heart ailments.
The lists, which include complex data on the degree to which each area is violating the standards, are used by the EPA to determine whether state clean air plans can be approved or if new actions must be taken. These can include requirements for increased auto inspections or less-polluting gasoline mixtures.
The EPA said it would use the lists to determine any new requirements that cities must meet under the Clean Air Act being worked out by a House-Senate conference committee.

The 18 areas on both lists include the nation's largest urban areas. More than a third are in California: Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland, Fresno, Modesto, Sacramento, San Diego and Stockton.
The others are New York; Boston; Hartford, Conn.; Baltimore; Philadelphia; Washington; Greensboro-Winston-Salem, N.C.; Memphis, Tenn.; Raleigh-Durham, N.C.; Cleveland and El Paso, Texas.
Eight areas were dropped from the smog list from last year: Columbia, S.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Lafayette, Ind.; Phoenix; Huntsville, Ala.; Anderson, S.C.; Tulsa, Okla., and Portland, Ore. Three were added: Smith County, Ga.; the Johnson City-Kingsport-Bristol area in Tennessee and Virginia; and Evansville, Ind.

managing director of Avonmore Foods, in a press release.
Already under way is a $2 million renovation and expansion at the company's Richfield plant where federal and county regulators have occasionally found fault with wastewater disposal practices. Kalange expects the Gooding and Richfield plants to avoid such criticism in the future.
After the Gooding plant starts producing cheese, the Richfield plant will exclusively process whey - a byproduct of cheese production.

The new plant will produce cheddar and mozzarella cheese. Ward's Cheese now manufactures cheddar, whey protein concentrates and refined edible lactose at plants in Richfield and Carey. The Carey plant's operations will not change in the expansion, Kalange said.
The main purchasers of Ward's cheeses in the United States are food companies. Lactose goes to Japan and whey protein goes to U.S. animal feed manufacturers and food processing companies.
Kalange did not disclose sales figures for Ward's cheese or for Avonmore, but Idaho sales tax records show that sales of manufactured dairy products in Lincoln County totaled about $11.8 million during the second quarter of 1990. Ward's Cheese is the only significant dairy processor in the county.

Avonmore Foods already owns cheese plants in the Upper Midwest, but the Ward's Cheese purchase is the company's first venture into the western United States, Kalange said.
Ward's Cheese Inc.'s name will not change immediately, Kalange said.

Consumer Price Index

Inflation up before oil shock

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose 0.4 percent in July, the government said Thursday in a report showing persistent inflation even before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait sent oil prices soaring.

The advance in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was slightly higher than most economists had expected. It came despite a 0.7 percent decline in energy costs, which is sure to be more than reversed when August prices are reported next month.

Excluding the volatile food and energy sectors, prices jumped a worrisome 0.6 percent. Analysts view this so-called "core" rate as a better gauge of underlying inflationary pressures.

Gasoline prices reacted almost immediately to the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Georgia State University economist Donald Ratajczak predicted consumer costs will shoot up 0.9 percent in August for the biggest rise since January, when a severe cold snap sent vegetable and fuel-oil prices skyrocketing.

Meanwhile, in a separate report, the Commerce Department said housing starts dropped 2.6 percent in July for the sixth consecutive month to the lowest level since the last recession.

Financial markets took Thursday's inflation report as a sign the central bank would have little leeway to lower interest rates soon. Both stock and bond prices tumbled.

The combination of worrisome inflation and deteriorating economic growth presents a dilemma to the Federal Reserve, whose policy makers are scheduled to meet behind closed doors next Tuesday to shape monetary policy for the following six weeks.

Consumer prices had climbed a brisk 0.5 percent in June after a modest 0.2 percent rise in May.

For the first seven months of the year, consumer prices advanced at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.8 percent, compared with 4.6 percent for all of 1989. Services comprise 55 percent of the index.

The various changes put the index for all consumer prices at 130.4 in July. That means that a hypothetical selection of goods that cost $10 in the 1982-84 base period cost $13.04 last month, up from $12.44 a year earlier.

By contrast, inflation at the wholesale level was improving before the oil shock. The Labor Department said last week that its Producer Price Index, which excludes services and imports, had risen at an annual rate of 3.19 percent in January through July, down from 4.8 percent for all of last year.

At the consumer level, the cost of shelter shot up 0.9 percent, accounting for half of the overall increase in July. That included a 5.1 percent jump in the cost of out-of-town lodging and a 1.4 percent increase in cable television rates.

Food and beverage prices were up 0.4 percent, the third consecutive increase but smaller than June's 0.7 percent gain.

The price of fruit and vegetables rose 1.6 percent, reflecting a 32.2 percent jump in the price of bananas and a 17.1 percent gain in the cost of lettuce. Pork prices were down a slight 0.2 percent, the first decline since September, a period in which they rose 19.1 percent.

Transportation costs rose 0.3 percent last month. Gasoline prices, which had risen 2.5 percent in June, fell 0.3 percent. New car prices, reacting to lackluster sales, fell 0.3 percent, the sixth consecutive decline. But used car prices rose 0.7 percent, the largest gain since January 1989.

Clothing prices fell 0.2 percent, the third drop in a row.

Medical care prices, continuing a long string of stubbornly high advances, rose 0.9 percent in July.

Greenhouse gas increasing fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gas most implicated in the threat of global warming seems to be increasing faster than in past years, says a report issued Thursday by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The concentration of carbon dioxide in the air increased at an average rate of 1.71 parts per million over the last four years, said NOAA's Dr. Pieter Tans.

That is somewhat higher than the 1.5 parts per million rise reported in much of the 1980s. And in the 1960s the increase was reported at only 0.7 parts per million annually.

The carbon dioxide increase varies a lot from year to year. One year it can change very little, and the next year it makes up for the slow increase, Tans said in a telephone interview. "At the moment it seems to be increasing fairly fast."

Concentrations of carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, CFC-11 and CFC-12 are monitored by NOAA's Climate Monitoring and Diagnostics Laboratory in Boulder, Colo. The increasing amounts of these gases in the air has caused concern in recent years.

Many scientists worry that the gases will act somewhat like a greenhouse, causing Earth to overheat.

Global concentrations of carbon dioxide, the most common of the so-called greenhouse gases, have increased by about 25 percent since the mid-1800s, to just over 350 parts per million.

Federal workers face layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal workers are being told that they could face unpaid layoffs in coming months because of stalled budget talks between Congress and the Bush administration, officials said Thursday.

Under rumors that began going out this week, the nation's 2.4 million federal workers were told that they could face up to 22 days without pay in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, if no deficit-reduction package is agreed upon and mandatory budget cuts follow.

Workers subject to the furloughs might be forced to take a day off without pay in each two-week pay period, said the Office of Personnel Management.

Because President Bush and Congress have failed to agree on a deficit-reduction package, the administration has ordered federal agencies to draw up plans to cut spending by 31.9 percent.

Marines heading for Middle East in biggest deployment since 'Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps is building to a force of 45,000 in the Middle East in its largest deployment since the Vietnam war, Pentagon sources said Thursday.

The forces include ground troops and amphibious units from around the globe, said the sources, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Separately, Gen. John Dalley, the assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, said the service had sent a "substantial armada" of assault troops by air and sea to Saudi Arabia, though he declined to estimate a number.

He said the Marines would provide "significant combat capability" in defense of Saudi Arabia and would be ready for a prolonged stay. "We don't just arrive," the four-star general said in an interview. "We're there to stay for a fairly lengthy period."

The Marine buildup is just one part of what has become an enormous movement of sea, air and ground forces to the Mideast. President Bush and the nation's military leaders have kept secret the exact number of U.S. troops responding to the two-week-old Persian Gulf crisis, but officials have prepared contingency plans to put 250,000 soldiers on the ground if necessary.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Thursday that Iraq has continued to increase its armed forces in Kuwait. He said intelligence estimates now put the number at 160,000.

He said there has been no major change in the character of the Iraqi forces, which the Pentagon earlier described as having a defensive appearance.

There's a continuing flow in and out of Kuwait, he said.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon announced that elements of the Army's 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment from Fort Bliss, Texas, had begun deploying for the Middle East.

As well, U.S. Air Force A-10 Thunderbolt II tank-killer attack jets from Hays Beach Air Force Base, S.C., have left for Saudi Arabia, the announcement said.

As for the Marine buildup, Pentagon sources speaking on condition of anonymity said units are being pulled together from around the globe, including bases on both U.S. coasts, Hawaii and Okinawa.

In the main components, the sources said:

- Marine combat forces from bases at Camp Pendleton, El Toro and Twentynine Palms, Calif., are being flown to Saudi Arabia.
- Elements of Marine units in Norfolk, Va. as well as Camp Lejeune, Cherry Point and New River in North Carolina will become part of a 13-ship amphibious assault task force that will be leaving within days.
- A third brigade is on alert and preparing to join the other two for a total force that is expected to number around 45,000 men if all units are deployed.

The third unit, also composed of amphibious forces, will remain floating off the coastal waters of Saudi Arabia, ready to land and project power anywhere on the peninsula, the sources said.

The forces will be bolstered by some 100 M60-A1 heavy tanks, more than 150 ground attack jets armed with AIM-7 Sparrow and AIM-9 Sidewinder missiles, and an army of troop transport, attack helicopters and light armored vehicles armed with 25 mm cannons.

All units arrive with the fuel, ammunition and water-purifying capabilities that will allow them to fight and sustain combat for 30 days.

Gen. Dalley, in an interview Thursday, said the Marine Corps is particularly suited to dealing with the Saudi crisis since its men can move with speed to an area with a "formidable combat capability" and yet remain off shore if necessary, he gives "us the opportunity to do nothing, to use non-provocative means, if a crisis subsides, Dalley said.

Saddam parodies hit airwaves with 'I am Iraq,' others

BOSTON (AP) — Chill out, Madonna and Janet Jackson—Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is catching heavy play on rock-'n'-roll radio these days.

Disc jockeys across the country are dubbing over pop songs to produce parodies aimed at Saddam. It evoked memories of the time when radio disc jockeys played "I am an American" to American hostages with the song "Bomb Iran" set to the Beach Boys' "Barbara Ann."

The results are often more popular than the top 40.

To the strains of the Marvelettes' "Please Mr. Postman," WJZZ-FM in Boston lambasted Saddam as "Wedge" for his country's march into neighboring Kuwait.

The song changes the original lyrics from "Stop, oh yes: wait a minute Mr. Postman, wait a minute Mr. Postman, to 'Oh yeah, wait a minute Mr. Hussein, Kuwait isn't yours Mr. Hussein.'"

The song continues: "Saddam Hussein is cut off at sea. 'Our troops are poised so patiently, 'We're gonna be there for a long, long time 'You'll have nothing but an empty pipeline ... In Philadelphia, WMGK-FM aired "I Am it on Hussein," to the tune of Milli Vanilli's "Blame it on the Rain" and "I Am a Rock" on its show "Harvey in the Morning."

The song plays Saddam with the lyrics: "I am the chosen leader, no I'm not insane, it's right and just because I am Hussein, I am Iraq, I am a tie-ups forced an early end to the event."

"It's our biggest hit," said Julie Roberts, the show's producer. "People want to know why they can buy copies, and there are a lot of requests. 'We've gotten a dozen calls.'"

Saddam has chosen to be known by his first name, but the songwriters are generally calling him Hussein.

WICZ-FM in Hartford, Conn., played "Blame it on the Rain" in response to the crisis, but officials have prepared contingency plans to put 250,000 soldiers on the ground if necessary.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Thursday that Iraq has continued to increase its armed forces in Kuwait. He said intelligence estimates now put the number at 160,000.

He said there has been no major change in the character of the Iraqi forces, which the Pentagon earlier described as having a defensive appearance.

FEC seeks foreign PACs ban reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission on Thursday asked for input on a proposal to ban political action committees of companies at least half owned by foreigners.

The 5-0 commission vote came several weeks after the Senate voted 73-27 to include a similar proposal in a campaign finance reform bill.

The FEC plan, by Commissioner John W. McGarry, establishes a 60-day public comment period, ending Oct. 12. The commission set an Oct. 31 public hearing.

Under the proposed rule, any corporation with 50 percent or more of foreign ownership would be defined as a foreign national unable to participate in federal elections. Subsidiaries in the United States failing to qualify would not be allowed to contribute to campaigns or spend money on any federal election.

The commission also sought comments on how it should enforce the rule and on any other issues involving participation by foreign nationals in federal elections.

Currently, the FEC allows U.S. subsidiaries of foreign firms to have PACs, provided the foreign owners do not control or direct operation of the companies.

Supporting the proposal were Commission Chairman Lee Ann Elliott, and commissioners Thomas J. Joseph, Scott Thomas, and Danny Lee McDonald.

The Senate language, sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was proposed as part of a bill that would impose spending ceilings on candidates and also try to eliminate PACs.

Bentsen said his amendment was intended to give "legislative underpinning" to the FEC case that the Senate might impose a ban on PACs in conference — or if the prohibition is ruled unconstitutional.

Bentsen cited Congressional Research Service statistics showing that PACs of foreign-owned companies contributed $2.8 billion to candidates in the 1988 elections, a 19 percent increase over 1986.

The current system, he said, allows foreign-owned companies to pressure employees of their U.S. subsidiaries to use the PAC money in ways acceptable to the corporate masters in London, Frankfurt or Tokyo.

Children's parade part of Saturday fun

TWIN FALLS — An all-kids' parade and a bike safety program will highlight a downtown celebration Saturday.

The Business Improvement District has scheduled the parade at 11 a.m. Children who wish to participate should be in the parking at the old Sears building, 403 Main Ave. W. at 10:30 a.m.

Kids can participate in one of four categories: pets, costumes, Centennial theme, and bikes and trikes. The parade will proceed down Main Avenue from the Sears parking.

The safety program, featuring a variety of topics, will be held at the downtown fountain. Children can also enter a coloring and slogan contest and win one of 25 bike helmets offered as prizes.

The Business Improvement District is composed of downtown business who pay fees to the district for improvements and promotion.

Idaho Housing Agency has $30 million for home buyers

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Housing Agency has $30 million available for mortgages at below-market interest rates.

The funds will provide 8.42 percent, fixed-interest, 30-year home loans to qualified first-time home-buyers. The money comes from agency bond sales, and is available statewide through participating lenders.

Since 1988, 13 Housing Agency bond sales have raised $544.5 million, allowing about 650 Idaho families to buy homes, according to a prepared release by the agency.

The Housing Agency is a not-for-profit organization.

Vegetable company finds housing for seasonal workers

RUHL — Efforts to locate housing for seasonal workers at the Green Giant packing plant have been successful, Plant Manager Darrel McRoberts said Thursday.

"It's really worked out great," McRoberts said. "We've been able to help 175 workers find housing."

Most of the housing came from property owners who fixed up vacant homes for migrant workers.

Earlier this summer, McRoberts launched a campaign to find housing for workers. He said the Magic Valley's housing crunch threatened the plant's profitability because homeless workers might leave the area before the sweet corn crop was harvested and packed. To encourage landlords to rent to migrants, the company advanced wages to some workers for housing deposits and made payroll deductions of rent to these workers.

McRoberts said the company's annual corn harvest and freezing campaign is nearly 10 percent complete, he said.

State to advertise for owners of unclaimed property, cash

BOISE — You may own something that you don't know about.

And if the state has it, it wants to give it back.

The Idaho State Tax Commission will be printing a legal advertisement in a major newspaper in each of Idaho's counties sometime during August — with the names of unclaimed-property owners added to the list in the past six months.

All told, the list contains more than 89,000 accounts, consisting of abandoned bank accounts, safe-deposit boxes, stocks, returned Idaho tax refund checks and other valuable items, said Cpl. Randy Givens, of the Jerome County Sheriff's Office. She was then released on her own recognition, he said.

Bryant was driving on a gravel road east of U.S. Highway 93 at about 2:15 p.m. when the car took a turn too fast and rolled over two or three times, Givens said.

Bryant, who was wearing a seat belt, stayed inside the vehicle, but Warren, who wasn't wearing a seat belt, was thrown, Givens said.

Buttrey's sold to employees; no changes seen locally

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — The parent company of Buttrey Food and Drug announced Wednesday that an agreement had been reached to sell the 44 Buttrey stores in the Northwest to an investment group including current employees.

The sale should not affect the Twin Falls Buttrey store in the Blue Lakes Shopping Center, Buttrey Vice President of Human Resources John Sullivan said, especially since the buyout was organized by Buttrey's management.

"I don't anticipate any great changes," Sullivan said.

Law officers dispute state's murder rate

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Senate Judiciary Committee recently reported Idaho's murder rate is expected to climb 50 percent over last year, but law enforcement officials closer to home say the committee's numbers are wrong.

Idaho reported 26 incidents of murder and non-negligent manslaughter in 1989, and the committee report predicted the number would climb to 39 this year, giving Idaho the highest rate of increase in the nation.

State and local law enforcement officials say the figures unfairly give Idaho a black eye, because the state's per capita murder rate is less than half the national average.

"I would look at the per capita rate," said James Whitehead, Chief of the Idaho Bureau of Investigation. "That would seem to me to be a more accurate picture."

Given an estimated population of just under 1 million Idaho's projected 1990 murder rate would be slightly more than four murders per 100,000 people. The national average is 10.3 murders per 100,000 people, according to the judiciary committee report.

The committee based its prediction on a report of 20 killings in Idaho during the first half of 1990.

Only 12 of those were actual murders or "criminal homicides," said Karen Wallace, records clerk for the Idaho Bureau of Criminal Identification, which provided the numbers.

The committee's prediction is based on 1989 figures compared to the first six months of 1990.

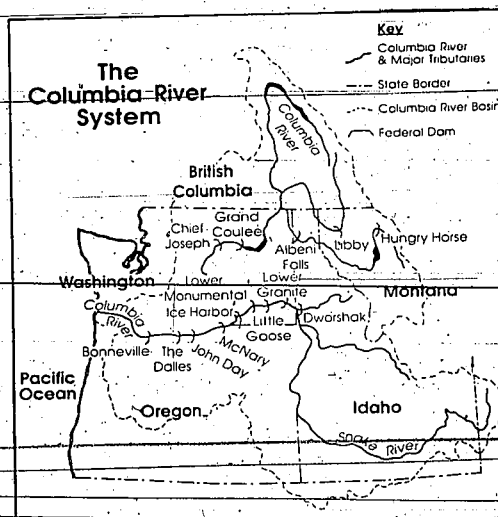

From January-June, 1989, there were 14 murders and non-negligent manslaughters reported in Idaho and the total for the year was 26. Committee figures show 20 such crimes for the first half of 1990. The committee extrapolated that figure into a prediction of 39 for the entire year, said a Judiciary Committee aide who worked on the report.

The real number for January-June of 1990 should be 12 murders — a decrease from 1989, Wallace said.

"The fact remains that in Idaho, murder is a very extraordinary event," said the committee aide.

Either way, the number of murders in Idaho is so small that almost any increase

Columbia decisions should include Snake

Four states and British Columbia share the Columbia River. Managers must balance increasing demands on the system.

That's what agency officials heard during a hearing in Boise

By N. S. Nakkentved Times-News writer

BOISE — A review of how the Columbia River system is operated ought to include the whole system — including tributaries such as the Snake River — and the plight of salmon that swim in its waters.

Those remarks came here Wednesday at one of 14 public meetings being held throughout the Northwest to take comments on how uses of the Columbia system should be balanced.

"Disneyland enjoys the benefits of the Columbia River, while Idaho salmon struggle for survival," said Andy Brunelle, representing Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus. Water flows that would help salmon survive should be included in the power planning process, he said.

Coordinated operation of the Columbia system as a single unit has enabled dam operators to produce more power. But if the federal government lists five "different" types of salmon as threatened or endangered species, as recently proposed by one Seattle-area group, and Indian tribes, it could radically alter how the river is managed, several speakers argued.

There have been rumblings about

Future of Columbia River vital to Idaho

By N. S. Nakkentved Times-News writer

BOISE — The Columbia River system is the lifeblood of the Pacific Northwest — including Idaho — supplying electricity, water for irrigation and navigation, recreation and salmon and steelhead fisheries.

Representatives from three federal agencies meeting with the public here Wednesday heard that point repeatedly as they took comments for a review of how competing uses of the Columbia River system are balanced.

Dams on the river produce inexpensive hydropower, recreation and flood control, but they have taken a toll on the salmon and steelhead native to the river.

The Columbia River extends 1,200 miles — half of its distance in Canada. It empties into the Pacific Ocean at a rate of about 120 billion gallons per day. The Columbia Basin includes parts of seven states and two countries.

Along the way it passes 14 federal dams and a number of private dams owned by Mid-Columbia utilities — primarily the public utility districts of Chelan, Douglas and Grant counties.

The river generates enough power to light 25 cities the size of Seattle. And 100 of the dams make Lewiston a seaport 475 miles from the ocean.

Water from the river irrigates 6.5 million acres to produce $4.5 billion in crops.

The river system also once produced 12 to 15 million salmon. That number now is about 2.5 million fish.

The Bureau of Reclamation, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Bonneville Power Administration are conducting a review and environmental impact statement of river operations in preparation for negotiations with Canada over the cooperative management of the Columbia River.

Idaho GOP leader attacks Democrat worker

BOISE (AP) — A leader of Idaho Republicans says he wants to head off what he expects will be "mudslinging and dirty tricks" from the campaign camp of Democratic Sen. incumbent Ron Twilegar.

Idaho Falls attorney Blake Hall, former state party chairman, told a Boise news conference on Thursday that when Twilegar hired Richard Callow as his campaign manager, he was getting a "professional mudslinger."

He called upon Twilegar to promise to run a clean campaign.

Hall's appearance was on behalf of the GOP Senate nominee, Rep. Larry Craig, but Hall said the Craig campaign had nothing to do with it. In response, Callow said something Republicans do for every major campaign, a ritual sort of like preparing for deer season.

"It's not even worth the denial," said Callow. "Voters are very smart. They'll get through Republican-style attack spots."

The voters really are interested in seeing a fair comparison between the records of the two candidates.

That's the kind of campaigning I like and it will work very well in Idaho," he said.

"If Democrat nominee Ron Twilegar's attack on Richard Callow to manage his campaign is any indication, healthy Idaho competition will probably be replaced by mudslinging with dirty tricks," said a written statement distributed by Hall at the news conference.

"I am bringing this up today so when the mudslinging comes you know where it's coming from," said Hall.

He played for reporters a videotape from the 1988 Pennsylvania attorney general campaign. He said Callow managed the "unsuccessful race of Democratic nominee Ed Mezvinsky. Mezvinsky lost to Republican Eric Preate.

The brief commercial attacked Preate for "plea-bargaining with a major drug dealer, allowing him to be back on the street again."

Hall said, "at the end of the last minute in an attempt to smear Preate, contained a lie and jeopardized a major drug investigation."

Boisean given prison time

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Boise man convicted of robbing a bank in Salt Lake City last December has been sentenced to three years in a federal prison.

Marion Howard Stevenson, 70, was convicted in May of robbing West One Bank at 1575 South Main Street.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Greene said Thursday he would recommend that Stevenson serve the time at the federal prison in Boron, Calif. He also was sentenced to three years probation.

"This was a particularly peculiar incident," Greene said. "As serious as it was, it was a feeble attempt at a robbery. He bumped his head, shot a pistol in the air and walked away.

"You will be 76 years old when you are finished. I hope the rest of your days can be spent in solitude and retirement," Greene said.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Vincent said he thought Stevenson should have received a stiffer sentence.

"I think he's a dangerous man," he said. "One shot was fired and a person doesn't take a gun unless they intend to use it."

Stevenson lived in Boise for several years.

Columbia

Continued from A5 potential water shortages at the federal dams that line the Columbia, with agencies looking everywhere for water, Twin Falls Canal Co. manager Jack Eakin said. Some feel irrigation is wasteful and a good place to come looking for water.

"There's a lot of other places they can look for water other than here," he said. Salmon are worth saving, he said, but other uses need to be considered as well.

The Bureau of Reclamation, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Bonneville Power Administration are conducting a review and environmental impact statement of river operations in preparation for negotiations with Canada over cooperative management of the Columbia River.

Those three federal agencies operate dams and water projects on the Columbia system or market the power generated by them. The interagency team conducting the review will accept written comments on the process until Sept. 30.

One person at the hearing Wednesday asked why the Corps has apparently delayed installing fish screens — devices that keep young fish from passing through turbines at the dams — though Congress has appropriated the funds for the screens.

"The hang-up was being able as an agency to show the effectiveness of the screens," said Ray Jaren, representing the Corps.

Ed Robertson of the Idaho Conservation League asked how the mandate in the 1980 Northwest Power Act to treat fish and power equitably fits into the review process.

Equitable treatment doesn't mean allocating 50 percent of the water to power and 50 percent to fish, but a reasonable balance, said Roy Fox of the BPA.

"I don't believe we'd be facing an endangered species petition if there was equitable treatment," Robertson said.

Fish runs in the Columbia River system generally are improving, Fox said. But "some stocks have not benefited from improvements," he said.

"We have been following the mandate of the act," he said. "Overall you cannot say that the program has been an equitable consideration."

As evidence of progress, Fox cited money spent on fish hatcheries, bypass facilities at dams and habitat improvement projects. But the fundamental question raised by the environmental groups and Indian tribes that petitioned to put salmon on the endangered species list centers on the overall management of the fish in the river system, he said.

The answers depend on how the fish are managed, and whether management is centered on wild fish, hatchery fish or a mix, Fox said.

The states focus on harvestable salmon, and if that is the focus the fish management is in good shape, Fox said.

A number of people attending the meeting expressed concerns about agencies that generate and sell electricity completing the operation review and negotiating a power agreement with Canada.

Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited noted that private power interests have a role in the negotiations, but private fishery interests do not.

"We believe it is unjust for power interests to be allowed in while fishery interests are kept out," said ISSU's written statement.

Agency representatives said the hearings on the operating review are a way for those interests to be expressed and included in the review process. They also said they would work with federal fisheries representatives throughout the negotiation process.

Only those who will sign the power coordination agreement, however, will be in the negotiations.

The federal agencies are facing a big battle to get fishery representatives at the negotiating table, said Pat Chaney, the Northwest Resource Information Center Inc. in Boise. Sharing power will be as big an issue as energy revenue, he said.

"It remains to be seen if we really take a fresh look at how the system is operated," Chaney said. The agencies are likely to make strategy decisions driven by marketing factors, he said.

The aluminum industry, for instance, is extremely interested in the power agreements and the effects on the industry's electricity supplies, Fox said. That industry accounts for about 30 percent of BPA's revenue.

Others at the meeting said the review ought to include how possible changes in the system operation will affect the need for new power resources, and the environmental impacts of those other resources.

Though the effects on southern Idaho still are unknown, Idaho Power Co. is concerned about how the process will affect its operations in the Brownlee, Roosevelt and Upper Snake reservoirs.

"We're just interested in following the process," Jan Packwood, Idaho Power vice president for power supply,

"I'm quite frankly, am curious about how they're going to balance utility and environmental groups," Packwood said. "Everybody on every side of the table carries their own unique baggage."

Libya calls for replacement of U.S. units
UNITED NATIONS — Libya on Thursday called for the replacement of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf with Arab League forces and U.N. soldiers. Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi, in a letter to the U.N. Secretary-General, also called for an emergency Security Council meeting in Geneva to remove U.S. forces. There was no decision on a meeting, but consultations were under way.

European may have set 2 boating records
LONDON — A Scottish adventurer believes he established two firsts when he chugged ashore Thursday in southeastern England — the first to make five solo trips across the Atlantic and the first to cross in a "bottle". Tom McClean left New York on July 10 aboard his 37-foot scarlet red, bottle-shaped steel boat. The crossing took 37 days.

End of East German coalition declared
WEST BERLIN — Leaders of East Germany's Social Democratic Party on Thursday declared the end of the "shaky" coalition government, a move that could delay the national unification process. However, the leadership move still requires approval from the party's parliamentary caucus, which is to meet Tuesday.

U.S. pilots say 'mice' won't play

F-15c Fighter Plane

SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — In what one called "a little cat and mouse," U.S. airmen said Thursday that American pilots have locked in their weapons radar on Iraqi planes, which have quickly turned and fled.

"They don't want to play with us," one crew chief said. "I was in a Mirage and an F-15 locked onto me, I got out of there, but I let his radar lock onto another plane, it means the U.S. jet has found its target and communicated that to its missile."

The Iraq pilot knew it, too, because his plane carried a warning system something like the "fuzzbuster" radar used by some automobile drivers in America to warn them that they're under the scrutiny of police radar.

"Although the U.S. airmen declined to go into detail, there was no indication that any of the encounters involved Iraqi planes attempting to intrude into Saudi Arabian air space. The airmen suggested that the encounters occurred during missions near the border with Kuwait."

Col. John McBroom, commander of the 1st Tactical Fighter Wing from Langley Air Force Base in Virginia, refused to confirm the pilots' reports and said he had instructed his airmen not to discuss any contact with Iraqi jets.

"I'm not going to get into our encounters," he said.

But McBroom did say he considered U.S. air power here far superior to Iraq's.

"We're not over here to go to war," McBroom said, "but we will finish one quickly in the air."

Another officer in the unit, and several crew chiefs said there have been several instances in which weapons systems aboard U.S. F-15s locked onto the Iraqi Mirage and Mirage jets.

"One of my pilots told me they turned and ran as soon as the radar locks on," one crew chief said.

"There's been a little cat and mouse but when the weapons lock on, they're gone," said another.

Asked again about the encounters, McBroom said: "All I'll do is remind you our radar can lock on at a pretty good range. Beyond that you'll have to ask the Iraqis. The episodes involved Iraqi planes flying well within Kuwaiti airspace."

In Washington, Pete Williams, the chief Pentagon spokesman, said he had asked military officials about the report but had received no information that would enable him to confirm or deny the accuracy of the crew chiefs' remarks.

McBroom said the fighter unit felt somewhat vulnerable on the ground when it arrived last week. But now it has received powerful ground protection from other U.S. forces, including Patriot ground-to-air missile systems.

The unit has set up camp at a Saudi air base. It uses spare Saudi hangars, maintenance garages and other facilities.

Ground rules for a pool of U.S. reporters flown here by the Pentagon prohibit disclosure of the base's location, the number of planes and other weapons systems or the names of non-command officers.

The men are living in Saudi barracks and schools. But a tent city is under construction on the base, as is a portable hospital.

'MASH' hospital treating cases of heat stress

SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — The U.S. military is treating about 15 cases of minor heat stress a day as it rushes to finish a tent hospital reminiscent of the television series "MASH."

Already up and running at the air-conditioned, 50-bed facility are a small ward for patient care and an overnight ward. A two-bed operating room was expected to be ready by day's end.

So similar is the "air-transportable hospital" to the TV series that the facility's commander, Maj. Rich Williams, said that doctors, nurses and other personnel have begun joking about their resemblance to the show's ward.

Williams told one pool reporter that he had become the group's Col. Sherman Potter, the character who commanded the MASH unit.

Others were starting to pick up nicknames as well, the major said.

So far, most people coming to the hospital for treatment have been suffering from minor heat stress. The usual treatment is rehydration by drinking water. In more severe cases, patients are given intravenous injections of nutrient-laden fluids.

Williams said there have been no reported cases of heat stroke, a more serious ailment. He said the overnight ward had not been needed, but added, "I'm sure it will be by tonight."

In the outpatient ward, several patients were being treated for heat stress. One was receiving intravenous fluids.

"This is your fault, colonel," the man joked to his commanding officer, Col. John McBroom, who laughed.

A 28-year-old sergeant from Sarasota, Fla., said he had felt ill after several hours of swinging in a sledgehammer while setting up tents in 100-degree weather.

"I didn't take enough breaks at all," he said.

U.S. troops are being told to drink at least six gallons of water a day but even with that several interviewed this week have said they are finding it impossible to adjust to the desert heat.

"We'll never get used to it. All we can do is drink and drink and complain a bit," an Air Force captain said Thursday.

"If you asked everybody, they'd all say we'd rather go home but we've got a job to do," said an Air Force sergeant.

McBroom visited the tent site and told the men and women to knock off work until nightfall, when temperatures generally drop into the 80s.

"Fifty-five percent of them will go so hard at it even in this heat, that you have to pull them back," the colonel said.

Also receiving treatment at the hospital was a tank gunner from the Army's 82nd Airborne who had aggravated a finger fracture with an Air Force colonel who had nipped a dental crown and was having it repaired by a dentist.

The hospital's chief nurse, Lt. Col. Susan Helm of Goodrich, Mich., said the hospital staff expected that they would eventually have to treat patients with diseases related to food, water and improper sanitation.

Williams said that Dengue A, a some parasitic infections are common to Saudi Arabia and that malaria was a concern in some parts of the kingdom.

The hospital is near an air-conditioned tent city being built to accommodate at least 1,100 men and women of the 1st Tactical Fighter Wing from Langley Air Force Base, Va. Air ready operating is a field kitchen, which served 500 for breakfast Thursday.

Gorbachev restores citizenship of Solzhenitsyn, 22 others

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, apologizing for two decades of political repression, has restored the citizenship of exiled writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn and 22 other literary, scientific and cultural figures, officials said Thursday.

In addition to Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel laureate charged with treason in 1974, Gorbachev's presidential decree returns citizenship to chess champion Viktor Korchnoi; writers Vasily Aksyonov, Vladimir Voinovich, Lev Kopelev, and Georgi Vladimov; scientists Yuri Olov and Valeri Chaldize; and artist Oscar Rabin, Soviet media reported.

Gennady Cherenmykh, head of the citizenship and pardoning department of the Supreme Soviet's secretariat, said Solzhenitsyn had agreed to accept Soviet citizenship, but the writer's wife, Natalia, denied it.

"Nobody has asked him — absolutely nobody in any form has contacted us, not through writing, not through mediation," she told The Associated Press on Thursday in an interview from their home in Cavendish, Vermont.

Solzhenitsyn, 71, has said he would not return unless all of his books were published in Soviet Union, a democracy, can lift the charges. Anything short of that is "wielding the same power as Brezhnev did," she said, adding that the expulsion order also must be reversed.

"Officially, (Gorbachev) has expressed a feeling about the decree of forced expulsion, and then citizenship, and after that we will talk," she added.

Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago" depicted the horrors of Stalin's prison camps.

Roughstock riders steal show at Cassia rodeo

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Bareback and bullriders jumped to the fore in the opening session of the Cassia County Rodeo Thursday night.

In fact, things went so well in bareback that when two-time Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association all-around cowboy Lewis Field of Elk Ridge, Utah, was awarded a 7.5 as the final rider of the event, the judges were roundly booed by a large crowd.

In the bullriding, seven of the 11 riders went to the time limit and two others were disqualified for slapping the animal with their off hands after apparently attaining the whistle successfully.

The rodeo continues the next two nights at the Cassia County Fairgrounds with tonight's highlights being the return of Aljimon-grown Kent Geyer to his home rodeo. A highlight of Saturday's closing session will be crowning of the queen.

Steve Smith of Hollywood, Calif., opened the rodeo with a 7.3-point ride and later was joined at that level by Dave Sherod of Pleasant Grove, Utah, and Field. But the lead went to Canada's Cam Morris who was awarded a 7.5 for his effort on Wicked Wanda.

Again the best came first in the bullriding when Scot Wheatley, Kremmling, Colo., opened with a 7.9. He later was tied by Choctaw, Oklahoma's Don Owens and Scott Keel of Lemhi finished a point behind.

Charlotte Schmidt, ranked No. 2 nationally in barrel racing, showed why when she turned in a 17.10-second time, becoming the fourth consecutive rider to drive the lead down.

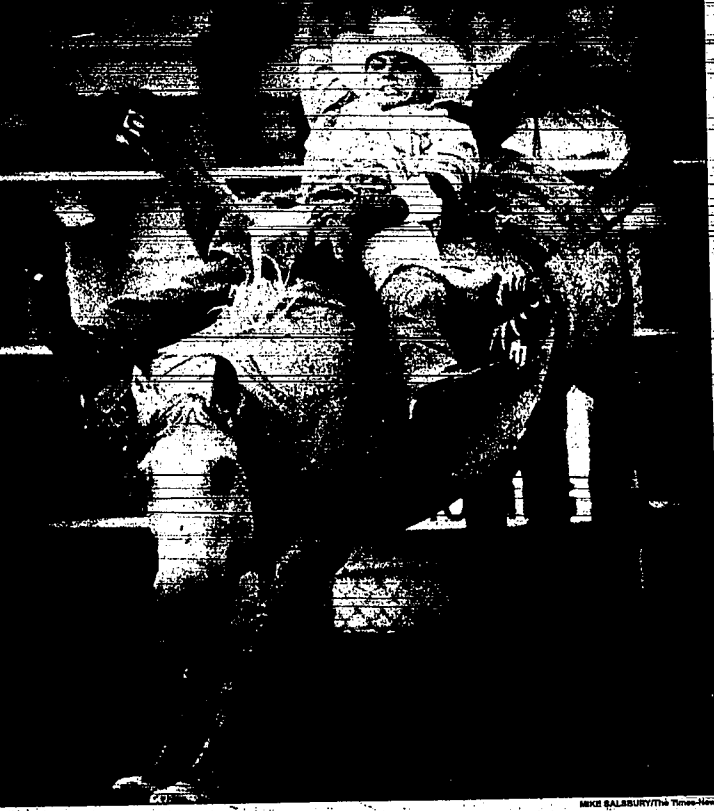

Steer wrestling also upheld the world rankings as Canada's Mark Roy, ranked third coming into the Cassia event, took the lead at 4.2. Lance Robinson of Farmington, Utah, was second at 5.4.

After the big riding display in bareback, a surprise arose in saddle bronc riding when only one mount was covered. That was again by the first-man-out, Bill Felker of Carmen, Idaho, who was given a 6.7. The four others trying it were thrown.

Only two teams were successful in team roping. Darrell Norcutt, Lovelock, Nev., and Russ Funk, Las Vegas, turned in an 11.5. Cal roping lead went to Jerry Jetton, Stephenville, Texas, who had a 9.4. He currently is 11th in the world rankings.

In the queen's competition, Jennifer Edwards led the candidates with a 27.3 in pole bending.

Thursday's final go-around results:
Bareback riding — 1. Cam Morris, Canada, 7.5; 2. Dave Sherod, Pleasant Grove, Utah; Steve Smith, Hollywood, Calif., and Lewis Field, Elk Ridge, Utah, 7.3.
Call roping — 1. Jerry Jetton, Stephenville, Texas, 9.4; 2. Lance Robinson, Farmington, Utah, 10.2; 3. Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 11.5; 4. Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 11.5.
Saddle bronc riding — 1. Bill Felker, Carmen, Idaho, 6.7.
Steer wrestling — 1. Mark Roy, Alberta, Canada, 4.2; 2. Lance Robinson, Farmington, Utah, 5.4; 3. Darrell Norcutt, Lovelock, Nev., 5.4; 4. Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 5.4.
Team roping — 1. Darrell Norcutt, Lovelock, Nev., and Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 11.5; 2. Russ Funk, Las Vegas, and Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 11.5; 3. Darrell Norcutt, Lovelock, Nev., and Russ Funk, Las Vegas, 11.5.
Bull riding — 1. Scot Wheatley, Kremmling, Colo., and Don Owens, Choctaw, Okla., 7.9; 2. Steve Smith, Hollywood, Calif., and Scott Keel, Lemhi, 7.3.

David Sherod leans into Blue Angel during the bareback competition Thursday night.

Ward wins season Class A to be champion

TWIN FALLS — Erick Ward would up as the season Class A men's champion at the end of the summer-long Blue Lakes Cycling Club race series Tuesday.

Ward finished with 87 points, three points ahead of Jerry Boston and 20 ahead of Jeff Gasser.

Class B men's winner was Lee Greer with 60, while Mike McCarthy had 44 and Steve McLaughlin 34. Terry Patterson won the veteran's division with 76 with Tom Cox and Tom Roy at 56 and 54 respectively.

Keith Cox, at 59, won the junior's title, while Karl Christensen at 42 and Ryan Mayer 34 and the women's title was Jill Gasser with 42, followed by Julie Heister at 38 and Tracy Temple 28.

In the final 14-mile time trials Tuesday night, Jeff Gasser won the A-division in 32 minutes, 35 seconds, while Mike McCarthy took the B-1 in 36:26. Tom Roy won the veterans' competition in 36:00, Karl Christensen the juniors at 37:01 and Tracy Temple led the women in 40:33.

Greg Norman shoots a 0 in International tournament

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Greg Norman achieved every golfer's dream Thursday. He shot zero.

Under the modified Stableford scoring system used for the International tournament, however, this is not a good thing.

And the zero point total for the defending champion put him in danger of missing the first cut in the unique tournament that is being played under a fifth format in five years.

Scoring is based on points awarded for performance on each hole: 5 for eagle, 2 for birdie, 0 for par, minus 1 for bogey, minus 3 for double bogey or higher.

The first of 14 along two rounds and the 72 players with the highest point totals advance to Saturday's third round.

The 72 survivors will take their point totals with them and in Saturday's third round will compete for 24 places in Sunday's final. At that stage, however, all points are wiped out and the two dozen finalists start from zero.

Green takes 1-stroke lead in JAL Big Apple Classic

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Tammie Green overcame slow play and her usual slow start to take a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the JAL Big Apple Classic.

Green, with just one victory in four years on the LPGA Tour, shot a 68 and led Katie McLaughlin, Marci Bozarth, Danielle Ammaccane and Rosie Jones.

Twin Falls man headed for Transplant Games

By Karen Irwin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jim Bohm, a resident of Twin Falls, will represent the Northwest in the upcoming U.S. Transplant Games in Indianapolis, sponsored by the National Kidney Foundation.

The transplant games give people who have had heart, liver or kidney transplants an opportunity to compete in athletic events at a national level.

There are eight total events available in which transplant patients can compete, including two team events — swimming and track. Bohm will be competing only in individual events, including bowling, table tennis and tennis.

The 1990 U.S. Transplant Games will be set up like the Olympics with gold, silver and bronze medals awarded. The games will begin Oct. 5 in the same stadium that served as the site of the 1987 Pan American Games and the 1988 Summer Olympic Trials.

Bohm, 36, has had two kidney transplants, the most recent a year ago, and he believes the transplant has affected his negativity intensity.

“The drugs they give you hinder you quite a bit,” he said. “You aren't one-third the player you used to be. Your muscle and Jim Bohm will be competing for the Northwest in the upcoming U.S. Transplant Games in Indianapolis.

“I'm Bohm. Will be competing for the Northwest your bones are affected.”

The Intermountain Organ Recovery System will sponsor Bohm with help from donors around the Magic Valley.

He was selected from his history in athletics. Bohm won state in the bowling event and third in table tennis and he taught tennis for 15 years.

There are also a few others that will be representing the Northwest from areas outside of the Magic Valley.

Pete Rose's earnings hit 11 cents an hour in prison

The Associated Press

MARION, Ill. — Pete Rose is earning 11 cents an hour working in a prison machine shop and isn't playing for the inmates' softball team yet, the assistant warden said Thursday.

Rose, serving a five-month sentence at the Federal Work Camp in Marion, spends eight hours a day in machine shop welding and fabricating metal with 70 other prisoners.

“His work supervisor says he has been getting good reports. He gets in there and works just as hard as the rest of them,” Assistant Warden Randy Davis said.

“Baseball's all-time hits leader also has also been watching the inmate softball teams, but hasn't been able to play because his knee is healing from surgery on July 20, Davis said.

Despite rumors about preferential treatment, Davis said Rose is treated like any other inmate — doing basic chores eight hours a day and sharing a dormitory cubicle with another prisoner. The former Cincinnati Reds manager turned himself in at the prison Aug. 8.

The Marion Daily Republican on Wednesday said confidential sources were reporting Rose had meals delivered to him in his cubicle and had his bed made for him, was allowed a TV and had cut a deal with federal officials to get out of prison early.

Court and prison officials have said the five-month sentence is not negotiable. Rose is scheduled to be released Jan. 7, then spend three months at a halfway house in Cincinnati.

Davis denied the rest of the report. “He's housed just like any other inmate in camp, dorm-style housing, two men to a 12-by-12 cubicle,” Davis said. “There's no TV in cells or rooms or anything else.”

Davis attributed the report to inmates irritated by having a famous man in their midst.

“It sounds like a sour grapes type of thing,” he said, adding that there have been no reports of animosity on the part of other prisoners toward Rose.

“So far, I don't think he's had any problems,” Davis said. “I think he's pretty well acclimated to the camp.”

The 49-year-old Rose was convicted of two counts of filing false income tax returns for failing to report more than $350,000 in income from gambling, autograph signing and baseball memorabilia sales. He also was fined $50,000.

Giants watch pennant hopes slowly disappear

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Von Hayes is in trouble with the fans, not so much for his play as for his mouth.

But he temporarily turned the boos to cheers in the ninth inning Thursday.

Hayes was booed lustily by many in a crowd of 37,840 Thursday until he hit a game-winning two-run homer that lifted Philadelphia to a 6-4 victory in the ninth inning over the San Francisco Giants.

Baseball roundup

The victory was the third straight of a series sweep for Philadelphia, and left the Giants with a five-game losing streak. San Francisco headed home after a 2-8 road trip.

“We're not going to win a pennant that way,” said Giants fifth-year manager Roger Craig. “This is the toughest road trip since I've been here.”

“We came in here with a chance to win the pennant. Now it's going to be tough. We dug ourselves a big hole. I thought we'd be in better shape going home.”

The Giants had gotten within 4½ games of the NL West-leading Cincinnati Reds after trailing by more than a dozen. Now they're nine back again.

Hayes started ripping the fans after they cheered for Pittsburgh's Doug Drabek last month when the Pirates' pitcher got to within one out of a no-hitter against the Phillies.

Phillies manager Nick Leyva isn't exactly happy with the Hayes-fans relationship.

“The biggest reason is that Von likes to express his feelings. He gets on those radio talk shows and seizes upon the conduct of Steinbrenner in this matter as his vehicle for doing so. You can't do that. They pay you a lot of money to perform. There is nothing you can do about whether they cheer or boo. We bring it on ourselves. We have to take it in.”

Steinbrenner's partners sue Vincent to stop ban

Newday

NEW YORK — One day after it appeared the limited partners of the Yankees were looking into the future in an orderly fashion, chaos returned Thursday.

As George Steinbrenner prepared to set a new regime in motion before his exile is to begin Monday, two limited partners filed a lawsuit against Commissioner Fay Vincent and his chief investigator, John Dowd, seeking to nullify Vincent's July 30 ruling that the principal owner relinquish control of the franchise as penalty for his $40,000 payment to known gambler Howard Spira.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Cleveland by Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman and charged Vincent's investigation of Steinbrenner was “an unjustified” and “unlawful” attempt to “repeal” the contract between Steinbrenner and the Yankees.

“The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Cleveland by Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman and charged Vincent's investigation of Steinbrenner was ‘an unjustified’ and ‘unlawful’ attempt to ‘repeal’ the contract between Steinbrenner and the Yankees.”

“The suit further alleged, ‘Apparently, Vincent has been waiting for the opportunity and excuse to rid himself and the game of this blight and seized upon the conduct of Steinbrenner in this matter as his vehicle for doing so. Vincent has drawn upon vague and ill-defined powers vested in the commissioner under rules in the Major League Agreement and has applied those powers against Steinbrenner in an unprecedented manner.’”

The changing of seasons worth noting in Magic Valley

For the person who pokes his head out the door around 6 a.m., the signs are there and certain. The season of summer is steadily advancing toward autumn.

Most apparent is the later sunrise of mid-August. It now rises around a quarter of seven instead of 6 a.m., meaning that a look outdoors at that hour will produce a view of a couple of brilliant planets and some of the sky's brighter stars and constellations which rise in the pre-dawn hours.

And there is the obvious shift in the patterns of agriculture as the sprays of irrigating water over many fields are replaced by the growl and clatter of the combine reaping grain.

In a few weeks, those machines and their accompanying crews of trucks will move into the bear fields and as autumn arrives, into the potato and corn crops.

In the world of commerce, attention focuses on equipping students of all ages for the rapidly approaching school term.

City and country residents alike — in this Magic Valley where both are closely attuned to the land and agriculture — turn their attention to a series of county fairs, traditionally considered the spellbinding events of summer.

True, late August and September can bring warm — even hot — days, but there is a different feel to the atmosphere.

Nights are a bit cooler and days don't warm up as rapidly, providing a gentle reminder that more moderate, even chilly, temperatures are not far distant.

For the farmer, the worker, the back-packer or the fisherman, the stargazer who steps out in his backyard to glimpse the morning sky and for almost any person who pauses to note the rhythms of nature, the change of season is a palpable occurrence.

It is also one that is to be enjoyed as well as noticed as summer's heat slowly gives way to the colors and atmosphere of autumn.

Historians doubt Kuwait will turn into another U.S. quagmire

WASHINGTON — Saddam Hussein's takeover of Kuwait wasn't 24 hours old when the Senate interrupted its business to deplore it and denounce him. But what was that echo in the chamber?

Why did a senator or two refer in a looking-over-his-shoulder way to the "Gulf of Tonkin Resolution"?

Why did minds turn back to an August election 26 years ago? If that date, the Senate, over the misgivings of only two senators, reacted to reports that U.S. Navy vessels had been attacked off North Vietnam's coast by authorizing President Lyndon Johnson "to prevent further aggression."

LBJ used that resolution as the equivalent of a declaration of war, the basis on which he sent 250,000 American soldiers to fight an Asian war, America's longest war, the first it lost.

Mike Feinsilber

Almost by stealth, America was sucked into a guerrilla war on the side of an unpopular government. Johnson hoped each escalation would be enough — only to find that each, instead, made withdrawal more difficult.

And Vietnam deteriorated into a quagmire, an inextricable situation. The United States couldn't win and couldn't quit.

Is the Gulf crisis another quagmire in the making, another place where U.S. forces can't win and can't get out, stuck in 100 degree heat, unable to do more than wait to react to Saddam Hussein? Does history offer some guidance here?

For the most part, historians familiar with the region and with the ways war develop are more optimistic than that. They find some similarities to Vietnam. But they draw encouragement from some big differences.

"Not the least of which," said John Gaddis, diplomatic historian at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, "is that this thing really is a multinational effort that grows out of a rather shocking provocation — and neither was true in Vietnam."

In Vietnam, by contrast, American historians and authors of 20 'books on the Islamic world; said Saddam Hussein made a crucial miscalculation last weekend: He sought to turn his invasion of Iraq into a religious crusade; instead, said Lewis, he only "succeeded in isolating himself even in the Arab world."

If his maneuver had worked, Saddam might have made his battle into an Arab-against-the-West struggle. Instead, he made it the world-against-Iraq, Lewis said.

Saddam called for a jihad, a religious war, for the Arab masses to rise up against their leaders. And he did it just as the leaders were assembled in a summit in Cairo.

In response, the leaders of Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and the other oil states of the Persian Gulf, in an extraordinary rebuff to a fellow Arab, decided to send a military force to protect Saudi Arabia from Saddam.

Only Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and Korea sent sizeable combat contingents.

Political scientist Nathan Brown, a Midwest specialist at George Washington University, said quagmire in the Persian Gulf may be "the best we can hope for," considering the alternatives — a humiliating U.S. withdrawal or a military offensive against the Iraqis in Kuwait, requiring a scale of warfare "that is politcally impossible."

But Lewis views the threat of Saddam controlling the oil fields of Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia as graver than that.

"You simply can't allow this man to obtain a stranglehold on the world's supplies," he said.

George Herring, a University of Kentucky historian of the Vietnam war, said he sees in the Persian Gulf one big similarity to Vietnam and one big difference.

The difference, he said, is that the American commitment to Vietnam was slow and as concealed as Lyndon Johnson could manage. It grew from a few hundred U.S. troops sent to advise the French in the 1950s to about 200,000 troops, engaged in full-fledged combat in July 1965.

In contrast, the Persian Gulf operations has been "sudden and dramatically large," Herring said, where Johnson sought to underplay the buildup. President Bush broadcasts his determination to commit "whichever force it takes to pry Iraq out of Kuwait."

What's interesting this time is that this is the first crisis where the great powers have all been in agreement. Saddam Hussein doesn't have that ability to play the superpowers against each other. It's been a most remarkable thing, the unanimity that Bush has been able to rally behind.

"If Saddam Hussein makes no big moves, doesn't use poison gas, doesn't go into Jordan, doesn't stage air raids on the Turkish border, if he just sits tight, I suspect that international support for sanctions will lose ground," Dye says. "And if they are not universally supported they lose their effectiveness."

Mike Feinsilber writes for the Associated Press.

Vandal deserves all the worst

I wonder what kind of a low-life would come in a person's yard (it's a fenced yard) and break up everything they could find. Someone broke the hind legs off my donkey, broke my goose girl off her legs, broke off the pole, kicked my plastic cat off its fence, pulled up some flowers I had planted in a tub and let the air out of my snake.

This all happened at one time. I wish you all the bad luck there is. I hope you hair all fall out and sweat-teeth too, and you get arthritis in every joint. I was going to say a terrific headache, but that's out — nothing up there to spare.

Time to keep water for Idaho

The articles in July regarding pollution in the Grand Canyon and on the Snake River were timely. I am sure they helped cancel the Thousand Springs power plant and made citizens aware of the problems on the Snake River. Now is the time to help Bob Burks in his efforts. Sign up as a protector on the Devil's Corral development and mail it to him, Box 298, Wendell 83355. A few bucks included will help our representation. It is time for us to get representatives in Boise to promote legislation banning building of any more power plants for power outside the state of Idaho, and that includes the city of Taconia and California. Any additional power, other than what is already committed, should be banned. Let's keep the water we have left for Idaho.

Volunteers doing a great job

I recently became the new social director at the Twin Falls Senior Center. I had been retained at the center for two years, but was not acquainted with the inner workings. What an education I am receiving.

Everyone in the Magic Valley should know of the dedication of those who keep this center going. Volunteers are what make it work. Perhaps the greatest contribution is made by those who give tirelessly to deliver Meals on Wheels to those who are in need. The meals delivered comes to over a hundred, and day after day the volunteers get those meals out. And without the wonderful group of cooks that prepare those meals and service center, the work could not be done.

Volunteers ready the dining room each day for the many seniors that come each day to enjoy a splendid lunch for only $1.75. Those who can't afford the donation may eat without charge. I doubt that one could prepare such amounts at home for the price.

Volunteers man the reception desk from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m., keep the Bargain Center running (where all kinds of items are for sale) and the cheerful chatter in another part of the room lets me know the galleries are at work stitching love into each piece.

Every volunteer hour benefits the center, which is funded by the United Way and government programs. To remain in business, the center must have new members and volunteers.

As the director, I plan activities that we hope will help fill the time for those that need a lift. We have bus trips, bingo, Jack-pot, good meals, help with social services and most of all companionship. My reason for taking the job was to bring energy and enthusiasm and especially love.

I want to encourage all over 60 to come and join us.

If there is a lack in your life, please volunteer. Nothing is quite so rewarding. Age is no excuse for getting old. One lady we've had lately is a 90-year-old Foster Grandparent. What an inspiration!

I am here to give hugs and love for anyone that needs me. And we need you! Every hour donated benefits the center and the center benefits all of our seniors. Please come and visit.

Love is the answer.

Thanks for rodeo, fair help

The Jerome County Fair Board would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who participated, donated their time and abilities, and worked so very hard to make this year's fair, rodeo, and parade such a huge success. A 4-H leader, and business owners worked together to prove that Jerome County and Magic Valley has the very best.

We would also like to apologize for any offense the Coors-entry signs for the parade might have made.

It took the donations of many businesses to make the parade, fair and rodeo possible. Since the donated Coors signs have been used for several years, there was no anticipated offense intended.

We appreciate the donations of all of the local businesses, but we are also sensitive to the feelings of our community.

This is definitely an issue that will be thoroughly discussed for next year. Once again, we thank everyone for their donations, time, and suggestions to continue to improve our performance and to continue to be the best for our community.

Conservationists fight hydro project

ISLAND PARK — Idaho conservation and sportsmen's groups are making a last-ditch charge at the Island Park hydroelectric project, saying it has survived so far only through backdoor politics.

"It's the anti-luauing and of course we're concerned," said Mick Mickelson of Pocatello, head of the Henry's Fork Foundation.

The controversial hydro-generator has a federal license, and the Senate approved $1 million for it earlier this month.

Now, conservation and sportsmen's groups are starting a lobbying campaign to get the $1 million taken out of a $20.8 billion appropriations bill. A House-Senate conference committee is scheduled to look at that bill in September.

Boise redevelopment suffers fund cut

BOISE — Boise's downtown redevelopment agency has almost $500,000 less in federal subsidies, than its officials previously thought.

As a result, the Capital City Development Corp. is weighing substantial cuts in improving the downtown-renewal area next year, possibly deferring some projects.

Those could be mainly for "streetscape," or improvements such as sidewalks and benches, in the city's eight-block renewal area west of the Boise City Hall.

"It's frustrating for us in that we had prepared a financial plan to finish off the downtown project," Capital City Executive Director Rick Greenfield said Wednesday. Now with the lesser amount of money, we have to go back to the drawing board."

Condemned man wants to marry, sues

BOISE — A Lovelorn Thomas Eugene Creech, Idaho's most notorious Death Row inmate, is taking state authorities to court over their refusal to allow him to marry.

The condemned murderer and his fiancée, Sheryl Lynn Miller, contending that constitutional rights are being trampled, said they planned to file documents in 4th District Court in Boise to force the issue.

Man drowns in fight with Boise police

BOISE — A Pocatello man released from prison last month drowned in a dredge pond near the Boise River after a struggle with a Boise policeman, whom department officials would not identify.

Ronald Earl Walker, 23, died early Wednesday morning after a battle that started on shore and ended in the middle of the approximately two-acre pond, which is about 15 feet deep and filled with weeds.

Police were breaking up a loud party involving about a dozen people, some of whom were underage drinkers, at about 1:30 a.m., when the incident occurred at the pond in the ParkCenter area on Boise's east side.

Pilot of boat which exploded sees charge

GRANGEVILLE — The pilot of a jet boat that exploded Sunday in Hells Canyon, injuring 15 of the 16 people aboard, has been charged with battery against one of the victims of the blast — the boat's owner.

Timothy L. Jewett, 51, was charged with battery in a criminal complaint signed by Diane Cobb, after he allegedly grabbed her by the throat Tuesday, Idaho County Sheriff's Deputy John Petrie said Wednesday.

Petrie said Jewett was scheduled to appear in Idaho County Magistrate Court in Grangeville at 9 a.m. Aug. 31. Both he and Cobb are from Whitebird.

Andrus sees strong growth for Idaho

IDAHO FALLS — Gov. Cecil Andrus says that although other states face financial difficulties, he sees Idaho continuing economic growth through 1992 and beyond.

But his Republican opponent in this fall's gubernatorial race, Roger Fairchild, says he sees the state's economy in a cooling trend. He predicted that unless changes are made in spending, the governor will be asking for more tax increases from the Legislature.

"The economy is cooling off, not heating up," Fairchild said, in a telephone interview.

But Andrus, crediting Idaho's economic strength to diversification of jobs and conservative management of state spending, said the state has the ability to withstand economic peaks and valleys.

Compiled from wire service reports

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A week-long state investigation turned up no evidence that Senate President Pat Tom Michael Crump's Capitol office telephones had ever been tapped, according to the investigators' reports released on Thursday.

The investigation disclosed no evidence to indicate that the telephone cables had been altered or "illegal" monitoring. A report of the Department of Law Enforcement wrote in his report.

But following release of the reports in Idaho Falls by Crump and Gov. Cecil Andrus, Department Director Mark Richardson said the investigators' findings did not invalidate Crump's original suspicions of the evidence a private investigator he hired after getting a confidential tip.

"That does not preclude the fact that something couldn't have happened," Richardson said.

It was only after receiving that verbal assurance from both Richardson and Andrus, who ordered the investigation upon Crump's public disclosure of his concern, that state's Republican leader decided the state's investigative report was acceptable.

"I have to make it clear what they are stating is that they were not able to independently verify the investigator's findings," Crump said.

But I don't want this blown out of proportion. But I don't want it covered up either. I don't see any evidence that it is being covered up at this point.

He also said that since his disclosure on Aug. 3 that he believed his phone had been bugged, "I've had a couple of state officials express to me that they have the same concerns. The ones who have talked to me are not legislative officials."

He declined to identify the officials who have talked with him.

The state Bureau of Investigation's communication specialist J.D. Botiger said his inspection of the telephone system in the Capitol could find no basis to conclude that a wiretap may have been installed on that system.

But while no tap could be verified, Andrus and Crump agreed the inquiry did uncover the need to improve the security of the communications system in the Capitol.

"I have asked the Department of Law Enforcement to work with legislative leadership, existing State-house security personnel and with companies that provide communications services for state government to make specific recommendations to improve security," Andrus said.

He will meet with Crump and other leaders after receiving those recommendations to determine how they should be implemented.

Pocatello, Bonneville schools may have strikes

The Associated Press

Contract negotiations at school districts around the state were continuing this week, but while most appear close to settlement, strikes are looming in two eastern Idaho districts.

Salary and benefit increases were at the heart of the disputes threatening the start of school in the Bonneville and Pocatello school districts in less than three weeks.

A last ditch attempt to independently negotiate a settlement collapsed Thursday in Pocatello, and both sides agreed to call in a federal mediator and resume talks next Thursday.

Teachers have been seeking an 11 percent pay-increase package while the district, supported by last week's report from a fact-finder, has offered about 8 percent.

The teachers overwhelmingly rejected the fact-finders report, citing bias and their refusal to consider the document in bits and pieces. But Education Association President Cathy Litteneker said teachers are willing to negotiate a settlement before school starts Sept. 5.

To the north-in the Bonneville School District, Education Association President Lee Walker said teachers are standing by their decision last spring not to return to the classroom without a contract.

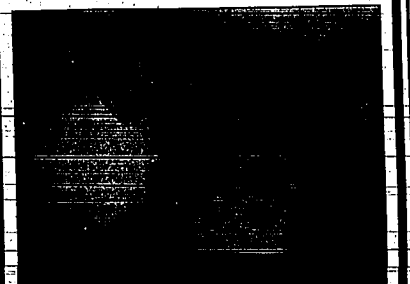

The teachers have already rejected a 9.3 percent salary and benefit offer from the district, sticking with their original demand for a 13 percent increase.

"The offer we have made is very close to what the district could offer," School Board Chairman Larry Clayton said. "We might be able to wiggle up to 9.5 percent."

Walker said teacher negotiators are ready to meet with the board again, but in the interim he said representatives will meet next Wednesday to chart a course of action.

Nashville publishers strike deal with Jusst

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls singer-songwriter has taken another step toward the big time by hooking up with the Peer-Talbot Music Group, a major Nashville music-publishing firm.

Jana Talbot, Peer-Talbot general manager, says her company has invited Suzanne Croner of Twin Falls to work with the company in the future.

The deal came as a result of Croner's recent trip to Nashville, where she played a showcase concert at the Bluebird Cafe. She has several stage names, including Suzanne Jusst. Many major country stars have been "discovered" at the Bluebird.

Most Nashville publishing houses have exclusive arrangements with staff writers who write only for them, Talbot explains, and such publishers will listen only to their staff writers.

But Peer-Talbot has only a few staff writers and works with a handful of outside writers. "I've asked Suzanne to send me songs," says Talbot, who adds that she plans to help Croner tailor her material to the country music marketplace.

"She appeals to me because she's so natural," says Talbot. "She's real, her music comes from the heart, and that makes her believable."

"We really don't do this very often, particularly with people from out of town," Talbot adds. She says that if Peer-Talbot likes a particular song Croner sends, the company could take it under contract and try to get it recorded. "I'm hoping to open a few more doors for her and push her out into spotlight," says Talbot.

Dilettantes' summer potluck set for Saturday at camp

EDEN — The Dilettantes will meet at Anderson's Camp Saturday for the theater group's annual summer potluck picnic. The event will start at noon.

Meat, corn and drinks will be furnished. Participants should bring salad or dessert, table service and folding chairs. A $5 fee will be charged to those who want to swim, play basketball or miniature-golf. Anderson's Camp is north of Interstate 84 at the Hansen Bridge exit.

Recent series on Gem history now available on videotape

BOISE — Videotapes of the Idaho Public Television Centennial series, "Proceeding on through a Beautiful Country," are now available.

The complete set of 13 videocassettes costs $204.75. Individual episodes are also available for $20.95 to $10. The episodes covered Idaho's land, water, people, mining, commerce, Indians, resources, religion, spirit, contributions, settlement, biographies and solitude.

A companion book to the series, "Conversations," also is available in hard cover at $29.95 and soft cover for $10. It includes discussions with many of the people portrayed in the series.

In addition, Idaho Public TV is offering a 90-minute sampler of its "Outdoor Idaho" show. The videocassette costs $31.45.

All prices include sales tax. To order, write Idaho Public TV, 1910 University Drive, Boise, ID 83725. Visa and MasterCard orders will also be taken by phone. Call 1-800-543-6868.

Sorrels to sing her folk music on Saturday near Jerome

JEROME — Rosalie Sorrels, legendary folk singer and story teller with roots in Idaho and Utah, will perform at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Spanbauer Barn, 539 South, 800 East.

Known as "The Travelin' Lady," Sorrels has been singing her own folksy compositions and down-to-earth songs written by little-known writers since she hit the road with her five kids in the early '60s.

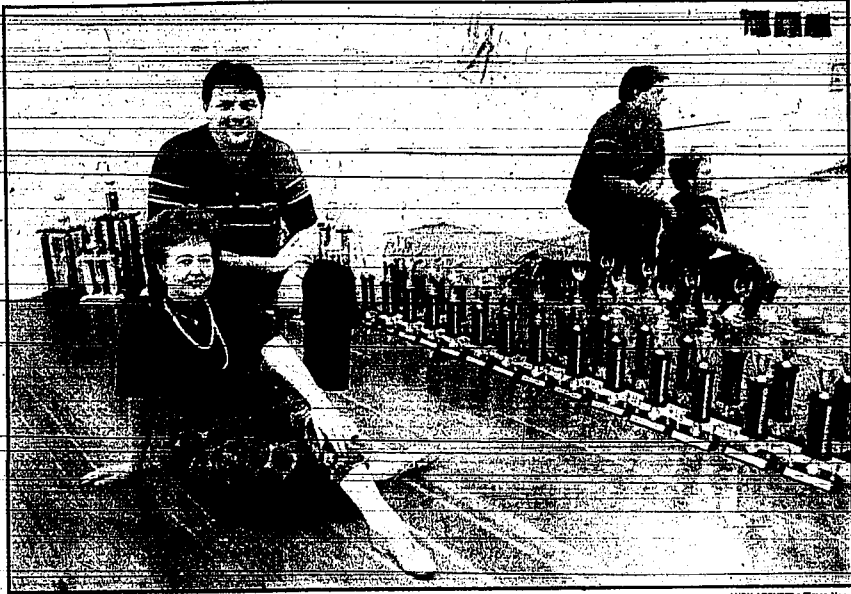

"Intertwined into her unique musical presentations are homey stories told from real-life and not so real-life experiences about being homesick, getting married, having children and bravely weathering the rough storms surrounding her life."

Sorrels has performed in thousands of appearances across the nation. She has been on stage with Uah Phillips, Jean Ritchie, Country Joe MacDonnell, Gamble Rogers and many other notables in the folk singer world.

Tickets can be purchased at the door for $5 or obtained in advance from Pioneer Realty in Jerome.

Willa Dean Nielsen and her son, Kim, teach a variety of dance styles and want their students to learn lessons for life.

Recognition growing for Nielsens' dancers

By Julie Fanelow
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Willa Dean Nielsen has been teaching dance for 33 years, but about seven years ago, she sensed her students needed to "shoot for the stars."

"I felt the kids needed more of a challenge than just dancing," she recalls. "They needed to experience performing."

So in 1983, she started the Stargazers Dance Company. A year later, she was joined by her son, Kim. Today, 100 trophies line the walls of the Nielsen School of Dance, testaments to the Nielsens' dream and their students' talent.

In addition to winning faraway competitions, the Stargazers also are frequent performers at Magic Valley community events. Recent engagements included the Bite of Twin Falls and Kimberly's Good Neighbor Day.

The Nielsens actually run two Stargazer companies, a senior ensemble for ages 13 through 19 and a junior group for dancers ages 10 through 12. Younger dancers can join the Starlettes troupe.

Since the Stargazers' founding, the companies have regularly won the judges at the annual Hoctor's Dance Caravan competitions, among the largest in the nation.

Most recently, the senior Stargazers collected 20 first- and second-place trophies at a caravan competition in Las Vegas. Among the awards was a 2nd Grand Champion designation for their production number, "Pirates," which also was named the most creative dance number in the competition.

The juniors, meanwhile, won 21 first-dance styles to students of all ages.

The Nielsens have extensive dance backgrounds. Willa Dean is a graduate of Utah State University, where she majored in drama and speech with an emphasis in dance. Kim holds bachelor's and master's degrees in dance from Brigham Young University, has taught widely and appeared in the movie "Footloose."

"Dance is very popular now, and because of music videos and movies — styles take far less time to reach places like Idaho. Kim adds that, because of the dance boom, more jobs are available in the field than ever before.

Knowing this — or just wanting to have fun — kids come to the Nielsens' school wanting to learn how to move like pop stars such as Paula Abdul, Janet Jackson and Bobby Brown. The Nielsens, therefore, incorporate the new styles into their classes. But they also make sure the kids study the basics.

The Stargazers learn a lot about dance, but they learn other lessons, too. They learn persistence. The trouques practice at least six hours each week, or up to 10 hours a week when a competition nears.

They learn versatility. "These kids are very good at being able to adapt to their environment wherever they perform," says Kim. "That's the true sign of a professional."

They also learn how to take instructions, communicate and get along with their peers. "All of these things will be useful in their later lives," Kim says.

and second-place trophies at their competition in Salt Lake City. They were also named grand champions for a jazz-inspired dance, "Oh Yeah."

The junior troupe was also invited to dance in the Hoctor's Dance Caravan Teachers' Show the following evening, a privilege given only to the highest-scoring number in the competition.

The caravan shows attract groups from all over the nation, according to the Nielsens. Last year, the senior Stargazers were ranked 20th among dance groups nationwide, while the junior company attained 24th place.

Companies are judged on difficulty of their dance, technique and stage presence. They also are ranked on choreography, which Kim directs, and costumes. In that department, Willa Dean works magic turning fabric into inventive, eye-catching outfits for her young dancers.

The junior Stargazers are Stephanie Whitehead, Annie May, Annette Johns, Jennifer Siegle, Nicole Strand, Becky Sorenson, Lori Lyman, Jill Stanger, Bryce Sturgeon, Kayla Bollwinkel, Tam Moon and Sara Poppelton of Twin Falls; Tona Lee Bradshaw and Meredith Taylor of Kimberly; and Shayna Young and Kayla Thompson of Jerome.

Participants all come from the ranks of the Nielsens' dance school, where Willa Dean and Kim teach a variety of

Annual folk festival returns

Bluesman Eddie Clearwater headlines Saturday's shows

By Barbara Neiwert

HAILEY — Eddie "The Chief" Clearwater returns to Hailey as 13th annual Northern Rockies Folk Festival gets under way today and Saturday at the Hailey City Park.

The festival is a celebration of the best in blues, bluegrass, folk and country music, with musicians from Idaho and across the country.

The festival begins with a hometown duo tonight, Michael Shane and Sher, kick off the event at 6 p.m.

The second set of the evening features a Magic Valley trio starting Sylvia Dill, Rob Harding and Dave Young at 8:45 p.m.

Flying Fish recording artists Tom Ball and Kenny Sultan take the stage at 7:30 p.m. This blues duo has played the "unique blend of guitar, harmonica blues, rag and good-time music to widely diverse audiences, including major festivals nationwide, for the past decade.

Ball and Sultan appeared on television international events and featured on the "Louis 501" Blues radio commercials, have played for Voice of America and have been frequent guests of National Public Radio. Headlining tonight is Rob Quist and Great Northern who will take the stage at 8:30 p.m.

Quist is lead singer and plays banjo, steel and lead guitars. He's backed by a hot band with Steve Sallans on guitar, Dave Griffith on keyboards, Gary Snow on bass and Andy Joslin on percussion.

Quist is recognized as one of the West's best songwriters and main stage performers. He has played the concert and "late circuit" throughout the Northwest and Canada, has appeared numerous times on television, and is working on his fourth album.

The music begins again on Saturday at 1 p.m. with a children's concert produced by Chip Jasmin of Hamilton, Mont. Jasmin, who is an artist-in-residence, employed by the Northwest and Canada, has appeared numerous times on television, and is working on his fourth album.

Gem tape includes local work

BOISE - Two Magic Valley songwriters are featured on the Idaho Centennial commemorative cassette recently released by the Centennial Foundation.

The cassette titled "Celebrate: A Selection of Idaho Songs by Idaho Artists" is a collection of ten pieces selected from the 260 entries in last year's Centennial song competition.

Robin Harding of Jerome wrote the song entitled "Gem Among the Stars" and Joe Cannon of Sun Valley wrote the song "Great State of Idaho," which are included on the recording.

The Centennial Foundation sponsored the song contest to select an official song for the state's 100 birthday.

A Boise couple, Matthew and Nancy Ross, won the contest. Their song "Celebrate Idaho," used to help promote the Centennial celebration, is included on the cassette.

Matthew Haislip, the Centennial Foundation's marketing coordinator, said there has been a great deal of public interest in having some of the songs made available for purchase.

The tape was issued after the selection of winners and the start of the public collection of the songs, Haislip said.

The recording will also include a booklet with the words and music to the songs. The cassette sells for $12 and is available in local book, music and specialty stores.

TV news from Gulf not coming cheaply

New York Daily News

The economic cost to the networks of covering the Middle East crisis may soon make last year's expensive stories of the Gulf War a distant memory.

As the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe and the U.S. invasion of Panama seem cheap.

"There's no inexpensive way to do it right" in the Mideast, said Ed Turner, executive vice president of WABC-TV, New York City.

WABC-TV is the only station to send stories back to the U.S.

Each nation charges an "export fee" of tens and tens of tens of thousands of dollars for satellite time, Turner said, bringing the total transponder bill to about $100,000 per week, per country.

"We're saving the Egyptian economy and the Jordanian economy and Dubai's economy," he joked.

ABC News has spent about $2 million so far. ABC News President Roone Arledge said Wednesday.

He said ABC has been "trying to cut costs where possible" to compete, by cutting back on "producer option" pieces - mostly features requested by specific news programs.

ABC News this week was the first Western news organization to gain access to the Iraqi capital of Baghdad - and Wednesday got the first pictures out, including an interview "Nightline" anchor Ted Koppel did with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

The pictures were sent using Iraqi TV facilities, and the international satellite body Intelsat, which had forbidden transmissions from Iraq, to comply with United Nations-endorsed sanctions against the country, but ABC News got a waiver of the restrictions, Arledge said.

Meanwhile, CBS News' Dan Rather arrived in Baghdad yesterday and filed phone reports.

NBC News, after being assured that it would have visas to enter Iraq Wednesday, did not get them and was instead told they would be granted Thursday.

CNN, which is seen in Iraq, also was promised visas but didn't get them. "The clutter you hear in the background is my 'worry beads,'" Turner said, adding he was baffled by the lack of access.

Astronomical event set at Bruneau Dunes park

BOISE - The Boise Astronomical Society celebrates Idaho with "A Centennial Evening Under the Stars" Saturday at the Bruneau Dunes State Park, 15 miles west of Hammett on Idaho 78.

Daytime events begin at noon and include the following:

- Displays which include moon rocks, an Apollo space suit, parts from the Freedom Space Station, models of Mars and Jupiter and a model of the space shuttle.
- Ryan Showers of the Magic Valley Astronomers will portray "The Idaho Mountain Man" brought forward from the past and discuss native Idaho folklore as it pertains to the constellations.

The evening events include:

- A slide presentation about the evening's viewing.
- A naked-eye tour of the constellations with a Greek mythological background, presented by Chuck Durick of the Boise Astronomical Society and a discussion of the constellations as they appear in Native American folklore by Ryan Showers of the Magic Valley Astronomers.
- A public telescopic viewing session.

Visitors are asked to turn off headlights before entering the activity area as bright white light destroys night vision. If you use a flashlight, please use a red cover.

The public is welcome. For more information, call Art Martini, president, at 362-2074; Ryan Showers at 324-7606 or Jake Reichard at 324-2195.

Folk

Tarynater, The Lonesome Valley Band and the Pinto Bennett Band will perform at 8:30 p.m.

Bennett and the Bennett Band will perform at 9:30 p.m. with a second performance of Tom Bull and Kenny Sullivan.

The John Bateman Band from Park City, Utah will fire up the stage at 4:30 p.m.

While in Idaho, Bateman hooked up with "the Chief" and later "Cow Jazz." As a guitarist and songwriter, Bateman continues to record, and his latest release, "Lover's Game," is a collection of 10 songs.

At 6:15 p.m., Chicken Cordon Blues from Boise returns to the front. The group is led by Art Cain, and features outstanding vocals by Kathy Miller, plus one of the best of the West's horn sections.

Saturday night's headliner is a major talent from the Chicago blues reservoir. At 8:30 p.m., Eddie "The Chief" Clearwater returns for a second year to deliver powerful vocals and guitar playing to bring the audience to their feet. The Chief is supported by a band - starring Tim Austin on drums, Herman Applewhite on bass and veteran guitar slinger Will Crosby.

The Chief is one of the most versatile, colorful and unique entertainers to have emerged from the Chicago blues scene and often wears a distinctive wardrobe to enhance his entertaining.

The Northern Rockies Folk Festival is sponsored by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

Legendary quartet to play Sun Valley

By Barbara Newert
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The Modern Jazz Quartet captures the grand finale of the Sun Valley Music Festival with a performance at 7 p.m. Aug. 29 on the Sun Valley Lodge Terrace.

Reserve tickets are sold out, but general admission is $15 per person, and $12 for Sun Valley Center members. The music festival is sponsored by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

During this year's performance this group will debut a composition commissioned by the Sun Valley Center, a first for the organization.

"The Majesty of the Sun," written by John Lewis, musical director and pianist for the Modern Jazz Quartet, is a remembrance of the group's previous visit to Sun Valley in 1988. Lewis has the ability to capture powerful visual images with his music as evidenced by his many musical scores for movies.

Now approaching their 40th anniversary, the group's music has a timeless quality developed over time.

"It is the extraordinary sensitivity of each artist to respond and play together with nuances that give a thrill to witness in a live performance," said Sun Valley Center Performing Arts Director Kate Wright in a prepared statement.

The group is one of the oldest modern jazz groups still performing together.

The group was formed in 1952 when its original members — Milt Jackson on vibraphone, John Lewis on piano, Percy Heath on bass and Kenny Clarke on drums — emerged from the Dixie Gillespie orchestra and began recording together. In 1955, the Modern Jazz Quartet had its only personnel change when Connie Kay replaced Clarke on drums.

The four musicians cultivated an ensemble sound that remains like no other in jazz.

The group performs with symphony orchestras and string quartets, at universities, on TV commercials and on film soundtracks, plus maintains a hefty international concert schedule.

Newcomer leads CMA finalists

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Newcomer Garth Brooks leads the finalists for 1990 Country Music Association awards with five nominations, the association announced Thursday.

Brooks is nominated for male vocalist of the year, single and song of the year for "If Tomorrow Never Comes," music video of the year for "The Dance" and the Horizon Award for career development.

The 27-year-old singer-songwriter-guitarist has been recording only for a year.

He has lived in Nashville for just three years and before that he was an Oklahoma State University student.

For the top award, entertainer of the year, finalists are Clint Black, Kathy Mattea, Ricky Van Shelton, 1989 winner George Strait and Randy Travis.

New 'Hunter' co-star trained with the cops

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Darlane Fluegel was about to accept another series offer from NBC when she heard a new partner was being sought for Fred Dwyer on "Hunter."

"It had to happen for me very fast," she said. "If not, I'd have to accept the other show. I knew this was going to be my role. I went into the meeting and — pow — I got it. Fred was very supportive."

He went with me to the network to audition.

Fluegel plays Officer Joanne Molenski, a member of the Los Angeles Police Department's Metro Squad and Sgt. Kramer's new partner.

She replaces Stephanie Kramer, who quit her role as Sgt. Dee Dee McCall after six seasons.

It's probably a good thing Fluegel got the role.

The other show hasn't yet shown up on the NBC schedule.

Fluegel, a former model, played Dennis Farina's wife in the NBC series "Crime Story," and has been in such movies as "Once Upon a Time in America," "The Eyes of Laura Mars," "To Live and Die in L.A.," "Tough Guys" and "Freeway."

She was cast in "Hunter" after returning from Canada and a guest role on CBS' "Wiseguy."

"There are so few good, interesting roles for women on television," she said. "You have to take what's available and make it interesting. I told myself, 'If a role comes along with screen time, I'm going to take it.' This was it."

"I like the feeling of 'Hunter.' It's like working with friends. Too often when you walk on a set, it's every man for himself."

In the upcoming fall season, Hunter has been transferred from homicide to the Metro Squad, a madam."

Fluegel grew up in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Binghamton, N.Y., where she wanted to be an actress before she even started school.

"Once, I almost said I wanted to be an actress, but I knew I'd be ridiculed," she said. "So I said ballerina. In high school, I was so shy I never even considered going out for school plays. My aspiration was to go to London. I graduated high school early so I could go to New York. London was a little out of my reach. All I had was fare to New York."

Fluegel studied acting in New York, and worked as a model with the Ford Agency. Her first film role was in "The Eyes of Laura Mars," in which she played a model.

"I got a lot of offers," she said, "but dramatic Darlane was a Stella Adler student and said no to everything. I was such a snob. I expected the roles to be better. I wouldn't play roles where they treated women in a demeaning way. I didn't like the way they treated women in L.A."

"Here, baby, I've got a script for you."

In addition to her new role in "Hunter," Fluegel will be before audiences in the not-yet-released movie "No Cause For Alarm," which also stars Michael Nouri and Charles Durning. It was made in Yugoslavia.

"It's a romantic adventure," she said. "I play a pilot."

Schumacher's 'Flatliners' long on flash, short on depth

By Michael Wilmington
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Few recent movie trailers pack as much swanky sock as the one for "Flatliners." Five med students huddled around a table:

Review

Rapid-fire close-ups: wary Julia Roberts, sneering Kiefer Sutherland, skeptical Kevin Bacon. The oscillating green line on the heart monitor that signals when a life stops. Shadows, streets, music pulsing — "It's suddenly that 'Ymahhhhh!' And on comes the Voice of Doom, or at least Burbank, announcing: "Some lines shouldn't be crossed." Some lines shouldn't be crossed, some movies shouldn't be watched. No wait. That's not the message. If "Flatliners" is anything at all, it's watchable: a time with Jan de Bont cinematography, deep-focus decor, an attractive cast. The movie's problem, like many others recently, is that it isn't any deeper, dramatically or psychologically, than its own trailer. It's the trailer, the long version.

"Flatliners" is set in a med school that seems to have taken up emergency headquarters in a Renaissance museum. Within its crazily photogenic confines, five students try to experience "life" after "death" scientifically. Tension is jacked to the max: There's barely a scene of near-death and revival where somebody doesn't run in at the last minute, or start screaming hysterically, or — the equipment doesn't blow a fuse. Afterwards, everyone cools bit and gets into bidding wars about who goes under next.

"It's a good day to die!" Sutherland announces, with a mean-crazy look. In the first scene, obviously he's just been watching "Little Big Man." After this, you'd be willing to bet the movie wouldn't have the chutzpah to follow up later with Sutherland saying: "It's not a good day to die." You'd be wrong.

"Flatliners" is about life and death, atonement, remorse and conscience; in other words, it tries to replicate commercial guts with philosophy. Good subjects, laudable intentions, superb execution. Here, as four of the quintet experience life after death, you may be disconcerted to discover that the Great Beyond consists, respectively, of a breakfast food commercial, set in a huge field with camping dog and boys, soft-core black-and-white porno with lots of multiple images, soaring helicopter mountain shots and what appears to be part of a slow-motion horror movie by Brian de Palma. Why risk death when all you need is cable TV? The High Concept here: Death involves confronting past sins, which are roused to life and attack the survivors — like Sutherland, pursued by a demonic little boy (Joshua Rudoy) whom he apparently killed in life.

The other sins range from nasty playground behavior to gluttony to William Baldwin's compulsive seductions. Baldwin's punishment being harassed by women who act as if they want impersonal, manipulative sex — doesn't seem much of a detriment. It's nice that a modern movie tries to encourage moral behavior, but screenwriter Peter Filardi's notions of spiritual struggle are too trivial: dark nights of the "Soul on dry ice."

Joeel Schumacher is often good at movies about young people in groups. His best, "St. Elmo's Fire," conveys yuppie angst with interestingly chilly sentimentality. But the fact that he uses such drop-dead decor and hyper-vigorous camera movement may be a clue that the movers, his "hot" actors, have to sweat bullets here.

Everybody does. Sutherland almost sweats grenades. Best of them is Bacon, putting real body English into his role of principled jock-athlete Labracio, who thinks the attempt is bull. (You'd be willing to bet the film-makers wouldn't have the chutzpah to make Labracio undergo a religious conversion. You'd be wrong.) Bacon is supposed to be an ace with the resuscitators; when he's about to jump-start somebody back into life, he rubs them together like an air hockey king warming up.

Burke's trapped like the others in this great government museum of a movie, with a little pile of an idea rattling down echoing hallways. It almost seems a cheat that the film makers don't show any inklings that emptiness and flashy camp may tinge their "philosophy." You'd be willing to bet they wouldn't have the chutzpah to end their movie with heavenly clouds dissolving into clouds with a huge title card proclaiming: "Redemption! It's a wonderful feeling!" This time, you'd be right.

'Chinatown' sequel opens softly

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Nicholson's private eye Jake Gittes failed to get his man at the box office, so the sequel, "The Two Jakes," opened to a dry weekend return of $3.7 million. "Flatliners" a new drama about young medical students who flirt with death, was the top-grossing movie its debut weekend, pulling $10 million. The film stars Kiefer Sutherland, Kevin Bacon and Julia Roberts.

According to figures released by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., "The Two Jakes" finished in seventh place on the box-office charts, with an average per-screen average of $3,092, lower than "Flatliners," the comedy "Ghost," "Air America" and "Presumed Innocent."

"Two Jakes" is obviously a flop, said John Krier, president of Exhibitor Relations, which tracks box-office trends. A follow-up to 1974's acclaimed "Chinatown," "The Two Jakes" was directed by Nicholson. In second, and now clearly the biggest surprise summer hit, was "Ghost," making $9.5 million. It was followed in third by Mer Olsson's "Air America," which grossed $8.1 million in its first three days.

"Presumed Innocent," the adaptation of Scott Turow's best-selling murder mystery, finished fourth with ticket sales of $7.9 million. Fifth, continuing strongly despite waning reviews, was "Problem Child," collecting $4.8 million. "Young Guns II," the frat-pack-in-chaps Western, fell more than 40 percent from third to sixth place.

Eighth was the spider drama "Arachnophobia," netting $3.6 million. In ninth was "Die Hard 2," grossing $3.1 million to pass the $100 million mark.

An attempt to link the faltering Middle-East drama "Navy SEALs" to the Iraq-Kuwait crisis with a new advertising campaign misfired. The film grossed $1.3 million, down from $2.3 million the previous weekend.

Here are the top movie ticket sales for Friday through Sunday as tallied by Exhibitor Relations, including per-weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross and number of weeks in release.

1. "Flatliners," Columbia, $10-million, 1,319 screens, $7,608 per screen, $10-million, one week.
2. "Ghost," Paramount, $9.5 million, 1,766 screens, $5,353 per screen, $85.5 million, five weeks.
3. "Air America," Tri-Star, $8.1 million, 1,992 screens, $4,240 per screen, $8.1 million, one week.
4. "Presumed Innocent," Warner Bros., $7.9 million, 1,432 screens, $5,446 per screen, $42 million, three weeks.
5. "Problem Child," Universal, $4.8 million, 1,769 screens, $2,740 per screen, $31.2 million, three weeks.

6. "Young Guns II," Fox, $4.7 million, 1,770 screens, $2,661 per screen, $21.3 million, two weeks.
7. "The Two Jakes," Paramount, $3.7 million, 1,206 screens, $3,092 per screen, $3.7 million, one week.
8. "Arachnophobia," Disney, $3.6 million, 1,823 screens, $1,976 per screen, $41.2 million, four weeks.
9. "Die Hard 2," Fox, $3.1 million, 1,691 screens, $1,822 per screen, $101.2 million, six weeks.
10. "Ducktales: The Movie," Disney, $2.6 million, 1,658 screens, $1,681 per screen, $9.3 million, two weeks.

The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows.

- G. General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG. Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13. Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.
- R. Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X. No one under 17 admitted.

What's what?

Full moon for lovers
Now those researchers claim to know that women are 30 percent more active sexually during a full moon, reports our Love and War man, turning to his almanac.

In Western cultures, according to a student of same, men tend to part their hair on the left, women on the right. But you'll see exceptions in every crowd.

It's a matter of historical record that Old West cowboys were particularly fond of silk bandannas. Cool-in-summer, warm in winter.

What in the world should the Smithsonian do with its collection of 650,000 feathers?

Q. What's a "Wolf Ticket"?
A. A poor efficiency rating on the job. Or a bad-conduct report.

That onetime trademark name "lanolin" is everybody's word now.

SMALLPOX
True, Edward Jenner developed the smallpox vaccine. But rural folk understood the principle much earlier. A farmer, midland, in fact, told Jenner she couldn't get smallpox because she'd had cowpox. That showed him the way to go.

Insects outnumber humans far more than a million to one, I'm told.

Correct, a sparrow has 14 vertebrae in its neck, twice as many as a giraffe.

Cramps, fever early clues to bowel disease

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, our 13-year-old son Josh, who had always been a healthy, active boy, started having sharp stomach pains and a constant fever. It was the beginning of a nightmare that lasted nine months.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Physicians in our small town told us that Josh had a "nervous" stomach. We were asked if he was having trouble in school. He wasn't. Then the doctors suggested that it was stress, common in adolescents, and would probably pass. But Josh's condition rapidly grew worse. He lost his appetite and, in a few weeks, he dropped 25 pounds! Seriously alarmed, we went to two more doctors. They told us that his symptoms were "imaginary" and suggested Josh needed psychological "counseling."

For nine months, I patiently watched my son's health slowly deteriorate. Other parents can be spared my experience by simply being aware of the early warning signs of inflammatory bowel disease: persistent diarrhea; abdominal pain or cramps; blood passing through the rectum; fever and weight loss; skin or eye irritation; delayed growth and retarded sexual maturation. — JOSH'S MOTHER, WILMINGTON, OHIO
DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for writing so that I can alert other parents that an estimated 2 million Ameri-

Readers, if you or anyone you know has the above symptoms, help is available. Call the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis at its toll-free number, 1-800-343-3367. They will send you a list of doctors in your area who specialize in treating inflammatory bowel disease. Also available are free educational brochures, and the location of local chapters of the sponsor seminars and support groups.

DEAR ABBY: I do volunteer work at a very large medical center. I feel very good about it. We have 400 volunteers at this hospital, and we all feel very proud of what we do for the patients. The other day, I was with a group of women (not at the hospital) and several of them said they thought I was foolish for working at the hospital for nothing. One woman said she would never do that kind of work. She was PAID for her time. Abby, what do you think of a remark like that? — LONGTIME VOLUNTEER
DEAR VOLUNTEER: You called the fight case "B.C." (Before Column). I worked as a Grey Lady for the American Red Cross training women to work in hospitals — and it was one of the most rewarding experiences of my life.

The rewards that come from volunteer work are far more valuable than any monetary compensation. Women (and men, too) who are financially able to volunteer their services should do so, and leave the paying jobs for those who must work in order to support themselves, or a family.

DEAR ABBY: This is for your "Now I've heard everything" file in Iowa, Mich., a very interesting attempt to drop two service station attendants at gunpoint. The attendants refused to hand over the money, so the would-be robber threatened to call the police. The attendants still refused to budge, so the drunk called the police, who showed up and immediately arrested him. — A RICHMOND, VA., READER
Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $2.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. 'Missing' Elvis song coming out

TUPELO, Miss. (AP) - RCA has released a "new" song by Elvis Presley, a poignant ballad called "My Happiness" that had been believed lost, an RCA executive said from the late singer's birthplace.

An 18-year-old Elvis recorded the song for his mother Gladys on July 18, 1956, at Memphis' (Tenn.) Recording Service. The vanity acetate disc, for which the singer paid $3.98, is thought to be first recording by "the King."

"It could be called the underpinnings of rock 'n' roll. It's still blues and country," said Dan Wardell, national director of catalog music for RCA. "Some have described it as the birth of rock 'n' roll."

"My Happiness" is the lead cut on RCA's just-released "Elvis: The Great Performances," a companion album to a two-volume video today from Buena Vista/Video.

Thursday was the 13th anniversary of Elvis' death on Aug. 16, 1977. He was 42 years old.

The acetate disc had been in the possession of a high-school chum of Presley. RCA obtained the license to the song.

The song was snapped up immediately for radio airplay in the United States and Europe, said Wardell. "The sentimental strains of 'My Happiness,'" he said, "is this unusual because it was thought to be lost-for many years."

Wardell was a guest at welcoming ceremonies Saturday at the Elvis Presley Birthplace at Park in Tupelo. "The sentimental strains of 'My Happiness,'" he said, "is this unusual because it was thought to be lost-for many years."

RCA was approached about it 18 months ago, Wardell said, and it took that long to conclude arrangements for its release. Sun Entertainment Corp. bought the rights to "My Happiness" from Leek; RCA ob-

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

No reason makes it right
To shun accepted ways from stubborn spite
And we may better join the foolish
Than cling to wisdom, lonely though unloved.

Cover story

Different storytelling approach on tap for this season's 'Night Court' series

By Evan Levine

Nowhere is the need of a television audience to suspend disbelief more evident than with "Night Court" (airing Wednesdays on NBC).

Attending a scabbard presided over by Judge Harry Stone (Harry Anderson) is akin to visiting a bizarre children's birthday party: You're just as likely to meet clowns run amuck, tricksters whose lapels shoot water, and assorted rascals, all of whom insist on saying everything at the top of their lungs. ("WHAT'S THAT, DAN? YOU WANT TO WHAT???" Giggles, giggle.) But Chris Cluess and Stu Kreisman are out to change that. The new executive producers of "Night Court" say NO MORE stupid pct, nun, plumber of mother-in-law tricks.

Cluess and Kreisman are not exactly new to the series: "We were there for the first and second seasons, then we went away; and now we're back," they explain. (They act and talk almost as one entity, so for convenience's sake, we'll think of them as such: the executive producer, Cluessman.)

"During their time 'away,'" as they refer to it, the two worked on "Newhart" and "Cheers" and developed some TV pilots. But now they're back with a vengeance. "The show has relied too much on elephants walking through walls," they admit. "But now, we're getting back to character. There will still be great jokes, but they'll come out of the characters themselves."

"We're going to be using a lot of different approaches to storytelling," they continue. "And all the characters will be going through major changes and emotional crises, right up through the end of the season."

Such as?

"We'll be doing a lot of stories in arcs—stories that run through four or five episodes," they explain. "On a more personal level, Harry will get a girlfriend; she'll be a lady who works for a paper like the New York Daily News. They'll meet when she covers a murder trial. She'll be very hard-nosed, a real opposite of him."

"We'll meet the sister of Dan (John Larroquette). She is 20 years younger than he, and he almost never speaks about her. But after a few minutes, it'll be obvious that she's Dan's dress. We'll deal with Christine (Markie Post) being a mother. And we'll do a 'prequel'— we'll see how they all got to where they are. We'll see Mac (Charlie Robinson) in Vietnam; that will be the most dramatic of the stories. But they'll all have some bizarre twists. We'll also do a black-and-white episode. And we'll have the characters attend a session of "Day Court."

Fans of the show should take heed, because it sounds like the series could be heading into its final season. "We hope it will be picked up for a ninth season, but if it's not, we want to go out with a bang," they explain. Cluess and Kreisman have certainly entered the fray. They hired and guided writers,

ON THE COVER: Some changes are in store this season for "Night Court," starring Harry Anderson as Judge Harry Stone. The series airs Wednesdays on NBC.

Hanks may nudge Keaton's Batman

Q: Is it true that Michael Keaton will not play Batman in the sequel to that movie? Is he not available due to other commitments? — A.A.

A: It's not a matter of his availability. The thinking in Hollywood is that the film's big draw was Jack Nicholson portraying the Joker. Since the Joker was killed off, Keaton alone might not be enough marquee firepower. The producers' first choice for Batman was Tom Hanks, and he may very well wind up with the role in the sequel.

Q: Arsenio Hall seems to have quite a feud going with LaToya Jackson as evidenced by his frequent mention of breast implants. He seems like such a regular guy that he would have no enemies. Am I right about that? — E.S.

A: No, you are totally wrong. In a very short time, he has somehow managed to alienate some of the biggest names in the entertainment industry including Madonna, Spike Lee and Rosanne Barr.

taken with the handsome, continental actor who plays Victor Newman on the serial. Can you tell me something about him? — H.R.

A: He's Eric Braeden, a German-born, 49-year-old actor, who considers himself passionate, persevering and loving. Trouble for his female fans is that he's been happily married for the last 24 years, and has a 10-year-old son, Christian. In any event, look for Eric to make a big splash in the TV-movie version of Jackie Collins' spicy novel, "Lucky."

Q: Although she plays goody-two-shoes in public, isn't Mario Thomas also very tough customer at home with husband Phil Donahue? — H.F.

A: The buzz is something like that. It's probably due to the new book about the couple, "That Girl and Phil," by Desmond Atholl. He depicts Mario as a screaming tyrant, a wrathful wifer at home. And I have heard that staffers on "Donahue" are wary of her. Close friends of the couple dismiss such talk, however. "It has to be the Mario I've known ever since childhood," remarked one of her chums.

Q: From everything I've seen and read, Candice Bergen appears to be the perfect woman. Can you tell me something about Louis Malle, the man who finally got her to the altar? — U.T.

A: In filmmaker Louis Malle, Candice Bergen has finally met her match. Fourteen years her senior, he is a charming titan of great modesty and the heir to an old French sugar fortune. After concentrating in political science at the Sorbonne, Malle began studying film in France, much to the dismay of his family.

His second film, "The Lovers," starring Jeanne Moreau, elevated him to the front ranks of French filmmaking. Over the years, Malle has directed a string of critically acclaimed films ("Lacombe Lucien," "Murmur of the Heart," "The Fire Within," "Atlantic City," "My Dinner with Andre") both in France and in America, where he settled permanently after marrying Bergen in 1980. Malle has two children from a previous relationship and a 4-year-old daughter with Bergen.

FAMILY AFFAIR: Sly Stallone's little sister, Toni Ann, has been bitten by the acting bug. She just had a series of glamour photographs taken by top lensman Harry Langdon as the first step in launching a career in the movies. I hear her famous brother is going to give her a helping hand and she certainly won't need more than that for starters. Let's not forget Mamá Stallone, who's always been a one-woman fan club for her son and undoubtedly will do the same for Toni Ann.

Q: Is leggy and beautiful actress Julia Roberts married or dating anyone steadily? — L.Y.

A: Roberts co-starred opposite Richard Gere in what is perhaps the year's biggest sleeper hit, "Pretty Woman." The very shapely actress is not married. She is, however, currently dating actor Kiefer Sutherland, the son of veteran actor Donald Sutherland. The couple acted very affectionate at a recent Hollywood movie premiere.

Q: I know that Charlie Sheen grew up in Malibu along with Chris and Sean Penn. Do you know whether he went on to college or studied acting in school? — V.A.

A: Charlie did indeed grow up (although some Malibu locals would challenge that statement) in that California beach community along with the Penn brothers and Rob and Chad Lowe.

Charlie was quite a hell-raiser during his younger days (he's only 24 now) and found life in the first lane much more interesting than school. As a matter of fact, Charlie never did graduate from high school nor has he availed himself of any higher education.

He landed his first film role at his first audition and has no formal acting training.

NOT A KNOCK-OFF: Many movie people have commented on the fact that Kathleen Turner bears a resemblance to a young Lauren Bacall in style and sexiness. One person who doesn't share that opinion is Turner herself. Recently when someone asked her about the similarities she replied tartly, "The way I look at it, Bacall is more of an old Kathleen Turner."

Q: In a town full of gabby women, who do you think rank as Hollywood's best talkers? — R.Z.

A: The two who I enjoy talking to most are Esther Williams and Debbie Reynolds. One is a former bathing suit queen and now is a successful businesswoman.

The other is a veteran of notoriously rocky marriages, and is here to talk about them. Both share endearing qualities — a keen sense of self-appraisal, candor, and much humor. Therefore, I was delighted to hear that Esther and Debbie are being teamed up for yet another TV talk show — this one called "Girlfriends." I'm not crazy about the title, but I can't wait to hear them in action.

Soap opera scene

Summer romance is hot ticket on soap

By John N. Goudas

In lazy August, stick to basics. On "Generations" it means putting 18-year-old dancer Maya Rubens in a swimsuit.

The sight of former model Vivica A. Fox in a bikini delights viewers, and suitor Adam who has trouble keeping his hands off Maya when they're not arguing over something. Discovering that Adam is the father of Doreen's baby soured Maya lately. Yet she's mighty fond of the good-looking fellow.

So far the romance between Maya and Adam is the hot ticket with young soap viewers. The trick is to keep the fires burning. Adam has yet to woo Maya into the sack but he has come close. The pair appear doomed to marry and settle down to happiness, meaning boredom ahead, in soap opera terms. Neither Maya nor Adam (Kristoff St. John) want that to happen.

"Maya hopes to marry Adam," Vivica admits, "but it's too soon for a wedding. We've got something going here and mustn't ruin it. So Maya and Adam will argue and sulk and go crazy."

A lovely model from South Bend, Ind., Vivica is learning her craft on camera. Monday nights the soap provides acting lessons for some of the cast and Vivica takes dancing and singing lessons on the side.

Three years ago the young woman won an International Talent and Modeling Contest. Offers poured in from Japan, Europe and New York. New York won out.

Just nine months ago, Vivica went after the role of Maya and landed the job. "I like challenges," says Vivica. "I knew I could make the jump from modeling to television. I use a tape recorder to learn my lines each day, and I listen until I get it right. It's no big deal."

"I also like Maya's background. She's led a sheltered existence, going underground with her father Daniel Rubens. She's sensitive and aware. Adam must handle her carefully."

Like dancer Maya, Vivica has plans for a song and dance act of her own. It would be Vivica and her two cute nephews, out to give the Jacksons a little competition. "I shouldn't talk about my act," says Vivica with an afterthought. "It's not smart to show all your cards at once."

CHANNEL CHATTER

James Reynolds, known to many as Detective Abe Carver on "Days of Our Lives," makes the move to "Generations" on Aug. 29, when he takes over the role of businessman Henry Marshall. Actor Taurean Blaque, who originated the character, is leaving "Generations" for personal reasons. Reynolds founded and operated the L.A. Repertory Theater for seven years and is currently appearing at colleges across the country with a one-man show about the black American experience.

PLOT PORTENTS

Will Eric really confront Stephanie and live with Brooke on

"The Bold and the Beautiful"? Macy is on a high now that she and Thorne have made up. Sally underestimates Bill Spencer.

Big movie investor Johnny doesn't see that he's being flimflamed by Kiriakis on "Days of Our Lives." Roman digs into Porter's background. Will Sarah and Carrie survive Chad's fire, the result of freebasing cocaine? After the fall, Jack needs Jennifer's strength.

Felicia may lose the baby on "General Hospital." Decker and Dawn outsmart the police. Casta can't make up her mind about Colton who talks of his life with Felicia. Decker is unable to recall Colissimo's death.

Jessica needs help in dealing with Mary on "Generations." Adam and Maya make up for the moment. Kyle hasn't a clue about Jordan's art plans. Even Martin may buy art from Jordan.

of going back to films full time. He's done two movies recently and is considering a third. This one would be a biography, playing King Farouk, the notorious Egyptian leader known for his controversial rule and lecherous ways — and for owning the world's largest collection of pornography.

Q: We haven't heard much lately about that handsome black actor who used to play the detective "Shaft" in the movies. Who is he and what's he doing now? — D.P.

A: You're referring of course to Richard Roundtree, 48, who appeared as a private eye in three "Shaft" movies in the early 1970s. Richard is on his second marriage now, and is working on an NBC-TV soap opera, "Generations."

Unlike his action-packed "Shaft" roles, Roundtree portrays a doctor with a 20-year-old daughter.

He tells me he still has trouble saving money and considers himself upbeat, friendly and caring.

Q: What's happening with Margaux Hemingway, the great novelist's granddaughter, who seems to go through husbands with gusto? — L.K.

A: Hold on a minute. Margaux has been married twice before, and has had her physical and emotional ups and downs.

When she posed nude recently for a men's magazine, she said she did so because she lost a lot of weight, got back in shape and wanted to show off the results.

One of those enjoying the sight is said to be Hollywood producer Robert Evans, whose third wife was Ali MacGraw, before she married Steve McQueen. (Are you still with me?)

Anyway, my European spies say Margaux and Evans plan to get married soon.

Q: We love the new movie about spiders, "Arachnophobia." Haven't there been a number of films featuring birds, animals, insects, etc. terrorizing humans? — V.I.

A: The creatures-terrorizing-humans gambit has proven quite successful for Hollywood filmmakers over the years. These movies include "The Birds," "Jaws" (sharks), "Willard" and "Ben" (rats), "Orca" (killer whale), "Wolfen" (wolves), "Cujo" (dog), "Nightwing" (bats), "The Swarm" (bees), "King Kong" (ape), "SSSSSS" (snakes), "Piranha" (fish), and "Empire of the Ants."

Q: Is it true that Gene Hackman almost died because he had a heart attack in an airplane that had mechanical difficulties and couldn't land right away? — S.L.

A: No, it's not true. The 58-year-old actor did spend some time in the hospital, after narrowly avoiding a heart attack. Hackman was in Oregon with his son Chris, building something called an aerobatic plane. It's a hobby they both share.

After having chest pains, Hackman was rushed to a local hospital where an artery-opening balloon catheter heart procedure was performed. He's OK now, and tells me he plans to continue his aerobatic flying hobby after he recovers.

affairs on "Santa Barbara," not realizing Richards is still behind Sellers the bomber. A confused Kelly still doesn't realize Quinn isn't Robert. Lionel must prove he isn't lying and needs money.

Tina takes the stand and is questioned by Johnny in "One Life to Live." Chuck Wilson comes back to town and Asa refuses to see him. There is trouble ahead for both men and Gabrielle comes across some unopened letters from Max's mom that were supposed to have been burned.

Alex keeps chipping away at Norma, asking her about Rick's murder in "Loving." Norma breaks down and drinks and takes pills trying to forget what really happened. Rio proposes to Rocky but he swears it isn't because he is in danger of being deported. Ava is kidnapped. Jeremy is truly touched when he learns that David has bought one of his paintings but his happiness is short-lived in "All My Children." Travis tells Erica that he is Molly's father and begs her to have Bianca tested as a possible bone marrow donor. Erica flies into a rage but then reconsiders the child's plight. Today's schools examined on public TV

"Learning in America: Schools that Work," a two-hour education special, will air September 5 at 9 p.m. MT (8 p.m. Pacific) on Idaho Public Television.

This special program is a spin-off of the five-part series, "Learning in America," which was a comprehensive television report on the state of American education, and which aired to wide critical acclaim last spring on public television.

It was later rebroadcast in September.

"LIA: Schools that Work" will explore the problems plaguing America's elementary schools through an unusual approach. Much of the program will profile schools that have a record of outstanding accomplishment, despite the many daunting problems that public schools face today.

Through careful examination of these schools, with little in common other than superior achievement, the program will try to cast some light on the necessary ingredients in developing an excellent elementary school environment.

The program format includes some 90 minutes of documentary reporting on the schools, with 30 minutes of debate by leading educators about the nature of reform needed in many of our nation's elementary schools.

The debate will address such issues as cooperative learning, the role of parenting, alternative programs of grading, and increased school autonomy.

'60 Minutes' nearly topped Nielsens with report on the Middle East crisis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boosted by viewer interest in the Middle East crisis, a "60 Minutes" broadcast that began with reports on the crisis was the nation's second most-watched show last week, Nielsen estimates showed Tuesday.

The CBS-News broadcast averaged a 14.7 rating, just one-tenth of a rating point below the week's ratings winner, a repeat of NBC's "Cheers."

In a week of reruns, CBS' "Top Cops," getting a summer tryout, again scored well in the Nielsens. Its 12.0 ratings average earned it 16th place in the ratings and made it the highest rated new series of last week.

Front-running NBC won the week with a 9.6 average rating for its prime time programs, but ABC and CBS weren't far behind. ABC averaged a 9.3 and CBS a 9.2. Each ratings point represents 921,000 homes.

The ratings showed that more viewers watched network coverage of the Middle East crisis than prime time entertainment shows.

News ratings for the week ending Sunday showed ABC in first place with a 10.6 average. CBS, the only

'Cutting Edge' may not make a nick

By David Zurawik
The Baltimore Sun

It's time to draw a line in the sand of television journalism.

If it is one thing to go along with Gerald Rivera when he declares himself an "investigative reporter." It is one thing to go along with Deborah Norville when she talks about "pounding the pavement" as a reporter on her climb to "Today," when in fact what she did was sit at an anchor desk and read the news.

But accepting the idea of Maria Shriver as being on the "cutting edge" of broadcast journalism, as NBC asks viewers to do, is too much. Describing her this way is like saying Zsa Zsa Gabor is on the cutting edge of feminism.

The debut of "Cutting Edge With Maria Shriver," which airs Tuesdays nights on NBC, is a hodge-podge of lightweight celebrity interviews with no discernable focus or purpose. It opens with Shriver standing on a street in Los Angeles. "We open on the streets," she says, "because the streets often give rise to the people and ideas that are cutting edge. The edge is the attitude of a young rock 'n' roller. It's the ferocious tenacity of an aging athlete who refuses to call it quits. It's an entrepreneur whose goal is to give capitalism a good name. It's an actress who wants to give bimbo a bad one. Whatever the cutting edge is, we think it makes for good television."

Whatever the cutting edge is? If Shriver doesn't know, why is it the concept for this show? It appears that the "cutting edge" is anyone Shriver & Company decide it is and who they can get access to.

"Cutting Edge" has a gimmick. It has an under-produced, raw look intended to give viewers the sense that they are on the inside of the process, closer to the interviewer and interviewee. For example, the viewer is shown Shriver doing an interview while a cameraman points another camera. The idea is that by seeing the other cameraman, the viewer will feel the show has less gloss and is somehow more real.

More real than what? The suggestion that Maria Shriver is on the cutting edge of broadcast journalism?

'Fess up' if you remember Durango Kid

By Doug Nye
Knight-Ridder News Service

Awww-right! Saddle up, buckaroos

The Durango Kid has been rediscovered.

That mysterious masked rider who roamed the celluloid West bringing an assortment of outlaws to justice during the hey-day of the cowboy movie, will be featured in a dozen films, all in glorious black-and-white, on The Movie Channel Monday and Tuesday.

If you've never heard of The Durango Kid, that's understandable. The films have been out of circulation for decades. This will mark the first legal showing of Durango Kid movies since he officially galloped off into the sunset in 1952. Once the series ended, Columbia Pictures, which produced the Durango films, locked them away in a vault where they've remained until now.

Michael Duda, vice president of program planning and film acquisitions at The Movie Channel, is the man responsible for rescuing Durango from cinematic Boot Hill: The Durango Kid pictures were a part of the genre known as the B western, which were turned out in incredible rate during the 1930s, 1940s and early 1950s. Durango, along with the likes of Roy Rogers, Hopalong Cassidy, Gene Autry and Lash LaRue, entertained millions of kids at the local movie theatre each Saturday.

"Durango was played by Charles Starrett, a former Dartmouth football player who appeared in his first film in 1926. The square-jawed Starrett played a variety of movie roles before finding his Hollywood niche in 1935. That's the year, Columbia, looking for a cowboy star, cast him in a western called "Gallant Defender."

Obviously the studio was pleased with the results. Starrett went on to star in 132 cowboy sagas during the next 17 years. Although Starrett had portrayed The Durango Kid in one film in 1940, it wasn't until 1945 that he began playing the character in every movie for the rest of his career.

The Durango Kid pictures were about as formulaized as they come. In practically every film Starrett played a character named Steve who, along with his sidekick (usually Smiley Burnette), would ride into a town where trouble brewed. And when violence eventually erupted, Starrett would disappear behind some rock or some tree to change into his Durango garb. It was always the highlight of any Durango Kid movie. Accompanied by exciting thunderous background music, Starrett would suddenly appear in all-black atop his beautiful white horse Raider. Moments later, with guns blazing, he would swoop into town and begin the clean-up.

It all happened at a break-neck pace since most Durango Kid movies ran less than an hour. Most of them probably were made in five to seven days at the rate of nine or 10 a year. Were they great movies? Hardly, but, boy, they were fun.

And when kids weren't watching him on the screen, they could read about his other adventures in the "Charles Starrett as The Durango Kid" comic book which began in 1949 and lasted for 41 issues.

By 1952, the B westerns were heading toward their last roundup, victims of rising costs and, more importantly, the coming of television. Starrett made his final Durango Kid movie, "The Kid from Broken Gun," that year and then retired. One of the founders of the Screen Actors Guild, Starrett died at age 82 in 1986.

"We've been told that some people have signed up for TMC when they heard about the Durango Kid movies," Duda said.

TMC has only three scheduled Monday and they begin at (gasp!) 3:30 a.m. Hey, you have to get up pretty early in the morning to catch The Durango Kid. Tuesday, beginning at 7:30 a.m., TMC will run nine Durango films in a row.
