Bush to call up reserves

The Associated Press

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush has decided to call up military reserves to meet shortages of doctors, cargo handlers and other specialists in the Persian Gulf crisis, officials said Friday.

In the tense gulf, Navy commanders operating under new orders to intercept ships carrying goods to or from Iraq stopped two Iraqi vessels off the coast of Bahrain, the Pentagon reported. The ships were allowed to proceed after U.S. forces determined they carried no goods, the statement said. Separately, Bush protested that Iraqi attempts to move American civilians around Iraq and Kuwait violated international law.

The president made his decision to draw on some of the nation's 1.2 million reservists as the U.S. military continued a massive troop and hardware movement to the tense gulf region.

One administration official said of the decision on reserves, "In principle it's been decided, but the details are still being worked out. It's just a question of how many folks they're going to call up and who they are. They're wrangling about that right now."

Announcement of the decision, was delayed because paperwork had not yet arrived at Bush's vacation home from the Pentagon, where military officials had requested the call-up.

The administration brushed off criticism from United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar about the U.S. use of a barricade to enforce sanctions against Iraq. "We believe it's fully authorized," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Friday.

Fresh concerns were raised about the safety of Americans after 35 U.S. citizens were removed from the Khushid Hotel in Baghdad and taken to an undisclosed location, most likely another hotel. Fitzwater said there was some indication the Iraqis wanted to keep them away from the news media.

"We consider it a matter of serious concern," Fitzwater said.

The vacationing Bush, teeing up for a 7 a.m. golf game, told reporters, "I don't think anybody ought to be moved against their will in contravention of international law."

American diplomats in Baghdad believe the Americans may have been taken to the Meila Mansour, a hotel where British citizens are being detained. But Iraqi authorities prevented the embassy officials from entering the hotel to check, Richard Boucher, a State Department spokesman, said in Washington.

Asked whether a hostage situation was developing, Boucher said "I can't speculate at this point."

The State Department said food available on open markets to the 3,000 or so Americans in Iraq and Kuwait was diminishing.

Count finds over million Idahoans

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Idaho and New Hampshire have topped the million population mark, while four states appear to have lost people since 1980, according to preliminary Census figures.

Reports for 18 states were sent to state and local officials on Friday as part of the Census Bureau's local review program. Census officials emphasized that the figures are preliminary and were provided to allow local governments to question the results in the event people were missed or overcounted.

Sharp food price rise seen for '90

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumer food prices are going up 5 percent to 7 percent this year, much more than had been predicted and perhaps slightly because of the Midwest oil crunch, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The new forecast compared with the 3 percent to 5 percent price hike the department has been predicting for 1990 since December.

Double-digit price gains in the first half of this year for fresh fruits, pork, eggs and dairy products, along with "uncertainties about future energy prices," are mostly to blame for the upward revision, said the department's Economic Research Service.

"However, most of the year's price increases probably took place in the first half," the agency said. "Gains in the second half are expected to be more modest."

But the report added that this assumes most of the evolving oil price shock will take until next year to spill over into the grocery store.

Retail food prices rose an average of 5.8 percent in 1989, the sharpest year-to-year increase since 1982. Much of that gain was fallout from the 1988 drought that hit much of the nation.

One USDA official who spoke only on condition of anonymity said that without the Midwest crisis and rising energy costs, the new food price estimate for 1990 would have been in the range of 5 percent to 6 percent.

Thus, the official said, an allowance of only one percentage point was at the upper end of the estimate to allow for higher oil prices.

Further, the source said, some department analysts had wanted to hold the new 1990 food price increase to less than what was decided. Most felt the oil pinch is not going to hit this year, the source said.

In its report, the agency said rising oil prices will increase the cost of growing, processing, and distributing food.

Jim and Carmela Martell are two of Idaho's newest wine makers, recently introducing five vintages bottled at their Glens Ferry winery.

Glens Ferry vintner, telephone man having a good year no matter what

By Mark Kind

Times-News writer

GLENS FERRY — Time will tell whether 1990's Carmela Martell thrills, tickles or pukes wine drinkers' palates, but no matter — this has already been a good year for vintner and telephone man Jim Martell.

First, his Rural Telephone Co. made history this summer by replacing America's last hand-cranked phone system in mountainous Lemhi County with a touch-tone system.

And last week, he opened a $500,000 winery named after his wife.

"We were just going to make a hobby of it, but it got a little bigger," said Martell, 49, as he stood near giant, gleaming stainless steel vats in the basement of his sprawling new stone building.

Ten years ago, the former California oil-bay farmer supported his wife and five children with two jobs, hundreds of miles apart. Weekdays, he installed telephones near Sacramento for another telephone company. Weekends he spent in the Idaho desert around Three Creek, connecting ranchers to the world with his own fledgling company.

"I slept in my pickup and drove 600 miles one-way to work on phones," he said last week.

His phone company was tiny then. It still mainly serves isolated villages, such as Shoup, a tiny hamlet where until this year callers yelled at an operator through a mouthpiece stuck on the wall whenever they wanted to place a call. The telephone line was strung on trees and rocks before Rural Telephone Co. purchased the line.

Subscribers have grown from 17 to 70 since then, Martell said.

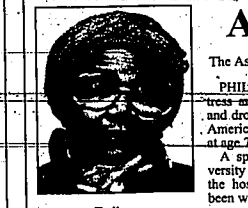

So how did he scrape together enough money to open the winery? "I had a lot of savings," he said.

"I had a lot of savings," he said.

"I had a lot of savings," he said.

"I had a lot of savings," he said.

Actress-singer Pearl Bailey dies suddenly at 72

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Pearl Bailey, the actress and singer with the sexy, throaty drawl and droll sense of humor who once was called America's "ambassador of love," died Friday at age 72.

A spokeswoman at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital said Miss Bailey was rushed to the hospital from a Holiday Inn, where had been staying with her husband. She died at 6:12 p.m. EDT, half an hour after being admitted.

The cause of death was not determined and an autopsy will take two or three days, said the spokeswoman, Kellianne McDonnell. Miss Bailey had a history of heart problems.

"Pearl Bailey was the mother of the world," said Stan Irwin, her manager for 25 years. "She was a very spiritual woman and she never recognized color. Her ideology was, 'we are humans.'"

Last month Miss Bailey underwent surgery to replace her arthritic left knee with a metal and plastic joint.

She left Pennsylvania Hospital on July 30, intending to continue visiting two sisters for a week, while undergoing physical therapy. She then planned to return home to Arizona with her husband, jazz drummer Louis Bellson.

Bailey, who has been performing 57 of her 72 years, was one of the few entertainers who

Magellan pictures show Venus' lava flows, faults

The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — NASA engineers successfully capped a day-long battle in stay-in touch with Magellan on Friday after the balky spacecraft's first pictures of Venus showed old lava flows, cinder cones and faults created by "Venusquakes."

After repeatedly losing and regaining contact with Magellan, engineers sent a computer command to the spaceship Friday night that restored regular communications.

Magellan science manager at the agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Thompson said engineers expected to remain in touch with Magellan except when it flies behind Venus, when it normally is unable to send or receive radio signals from Earth.

An unknown problem made Magellan lose its radio link with Earth on Thursday night as it orbited Venus 147 million miles from Earth. Almost 15 hours later, as engineers held a news conference, Magellan's official Steve Wall rushed into the room to announce contact had been re-established.

But as the hours passed, NASA tracking stations in California, Australia and Spain lost and regained Magellan's radio signal because of built-in safety programs in the spacecraft's computers.

The command sent to Magellan on Friday night stopped the spacecraft from rotating and kept its secondary antenna in continuous communication with Earth except when the spacecraft is behind Venus.

Thompson said Magellan will be kept in its protective mode until the cause of the initial loss of contact is understood and fixed.

Magellan project manager Tony Spear was optimistic the problem wouldn't seriously affect Magellan's $744 million mission to use radar to make the best pictures and maps yet of Venus' cloud-covered landscape.

"I have faith in the spacecraft," he said, admitting he was surprised by the trouble.

The communications problem developed shortly after Magellan bounced radar waves off Venus for its first test pictures of Earth's nearest planetary neighbor. The information used to make the pictures was sent to Earth before contact was lost.

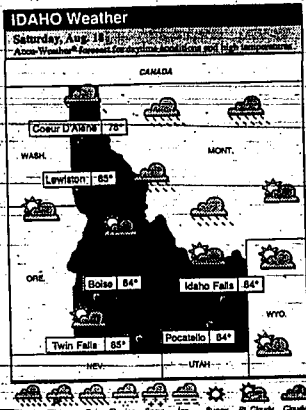

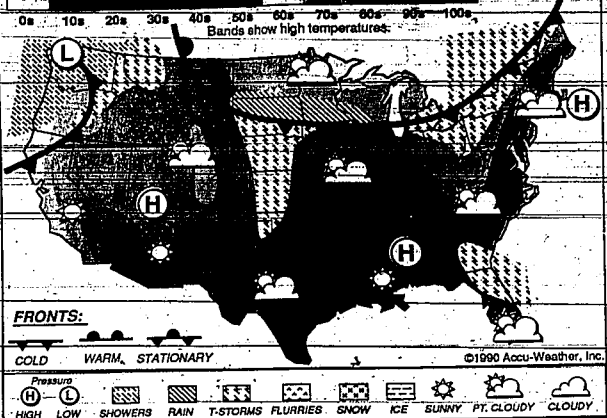

"We've got some raw images that look pretty good," Spear said, adding the pictures would be released early next week.

Project scientist Steve Saunders, who examined the pictures, said they show old, hardened "lava flows and faults and fractures" and "volcanic" cinder cones with craters on top.

Weather summary

Showers and thunderstorms developed over southern Idaho Friday with severe weather conditions reported in the Pocatello area.

There, heavy thunderstorms developed, and there were reports that several funnel clouds were sighted in Power County.

A local low pressure system off the Pacific Northwest coast provided the moisture as clouds built up over the mountains in southern and central portions of the state, and showers fell at several locations.

Rainfall was widespread with amounts ranging from a trace to better than half an inch. McCall reported .17 inch of rain falling in a few minutes and a total rainfall of .68 inches.

Temperatures were mild, with afternoon readings generally in the 80s.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 92 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 38 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 105 degrees at Yuma and Lake Havasu City, Arizona, and Borrego Springs, Calif. The lowest was 35 at Truckee, Calif.

Heavy rains threaten flooding in parts of Texas, Iowa

The Associated Press

Texas and Iowans, already up to their hip pockets in rain, braced for more heavy downpours and flash floods Friday.

Showers and thunderstorms moved northward from Mexico into southwest Texas Friday afternoon. Heavy rain has saturated the ground in the area, and any additional rain could result in flash flooding.

A flood warning remained in effect for the Rio Grande River from Presidio, Texas through Big Bend National Park to the mouth of the Pecos River near Langtry, Texas. The Rio Grande River was out of its banks near Presidio and Lajitas, and was still rising at several other locations.

Thunderstorms deluged parts of Iowa and Illinois Thursday night and Friday morning. Rainfall totals included 4.3 inches at Lowden, Iowa; 3 1/2 inches at East Moline, Ill., and more than 3 inches at Tipton, Bettendorf, and Dubuque, Iowa.

Strong thunderstorms erupted across southeast Idaho Friday afternoon. A tornado touched down southwest of Pocatello and funnel clouds were observed in Power County.

Showers and thunderstorms were also scattered from south Texas across the Gulf Coast, over Florida and eastern North Carolina, and from the northern Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley southeast to the lower Ohio Valley.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms extended from the central Pacific Coast to the northern Rockies, and over the central High Plains.

Hot and humid weather was the rule from the Southeast across the middle and lower Mississippi Valley to much of the Plains. Readings had climbed into the 90s from Georgia and Florida across the upper Mississippi Valley to eastern sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Temperatures also were in the 90s over South Dakota and northeastern Nebraska, in southeast California, southern Nevada and southern Arizona.

Temperatures were in the 60s over Oregon, northeast Montana and along the northern California coast.

The low for the Lower 48 Friday morning was 35 degrees at Truckee, Calif.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 59 degrees at Redmond, Ore., to 102 at Meridian, Miss.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States, Mohamed Al-Maathar, reported that the Americans in those countries "wouldn't be harmed" and assured they are well treated and will be released in due time," he said.

The massive buildup of American military power in the gulf continued in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and to what the administration sees as a threat to oil-rich kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

The deployment now includes stealth fighter-bombers, Marine amphibious assault units and other forces normally used for offense.

Fitzwater said the Pentagon had asked Bush to authorize a selective call-up of reservists. The president is authorized to put a maximum of 200,000 reservists on active duty for 180 days, but Fitzwater said a massive call-up was not anticipated.

"We'll try to keep this as small as possible," the spokesman said. "In recent years, Congress has allocated more and more of the support functions for the military to the reserve forces, so that you find a major aspect of our support in terms of cargo handlers and doctors and medical specialists is so forth are in the reserves," he said.

The movement of Americans from the Rashid Hotel in Baghdad followed a threatened roundup of U.S. citizens in an Iraqi-occupied Kuwait a day earlier.

To this point, the Bush administration has challenged any suggestion the 3,000 Americans trapped in Iraq and Kuwait were hostages.

Fitzwater said that Iraqi officials, when questioned about the 35 Americans in Baghdad, "told us that they are safe but have not given us any explanation why they were in Iraq," he said.

Bush will return to the White House Sunday night and meet Monday morning with budget aides and Energy Secretary James Watkins to discuss the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis on U.S. energy reserves.

Foreign War convention in Baltimore later Monday and make a campaign trip to Rhode Island before returning to Kennecott.

In military deployment announcements, the Pentagon said Friday, elements of the Army's 1st Cavalry Division and 2nd Armored Division from Fort Hood, Texas, have begun preparing to leave for the Middle East.

Nine of the Military Sealift Command's Ready Reserve Force ships have been activated and are moving to loading ports in support of the Saudi operation.

The Air Force has sent four Air Transportable Hospitals to the Persian Gulf area. Medical personnel and equipment have come from MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., Langley Air Force Base, Va., Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C. An Air Transportable Hospital from Myrtle Beach, S.C., also is preparing to leave.

Navy offers peek at A-12, latest radar-evading craft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy partially lifted the veil of secrecy Friday from the A-12 Avenger stealth airplane being developed as its main bomber for the early 21st century.

The Navy released an artist's drawing of the plane, which resembles a manna ray. The two air intakes on the front underside of the aircraft look a bit like gills.

No details were provided on the exact dimensions and other features of the previously secret aircraft.

The Avenger is the latest in a family of new-generation aircraft with stealth radar-evading technology. The Air Force is building B-2 stealth long-range bombers, and F-117A stealth fighter-bombers using composite materials that limit radar reflections.

The Avenger is still under development and has been the subject of growing controversy since the Navy announced earlier this year that it was a year behind schedule.

Both the Defense Department and the Navy are investigating the delays, which came to light after the department had completed a months-long review of its main aircraft programs. The program reportedly involves the manufacture of stealth composite materials.

Last April Defense Secretary Dick Cheney announced he was cutting the Avenger purchase from 858 to 620 planes.

The Navy has not released figures on the Avenger's full production cost but it has been reported that it could reach $55 billion. The plane currently is in the full-scale development phase under a $4.78 billion Navy contract held jointly by McDonnell-Douglas Corp. and General Dynamics Corp.

The Avenger is designed to replace the A-6E Intruder, the Navy's main attack aircraft for 27 years.

The Avenger is designed to penetrate sophisticated missile defenses to deliver bombs with exceptional accuracy against fixed and mobile targets on land and sea. Its automated electronic cockpit includes a missile warning system for early identification of enemy radars and guided missiles.

could still be called a trouper in the classic sense.

She was born in Newport News, Va., on Mar. 29, 1918, and moved with her family as a child to Washington and later Philadelphia, where she made her debut at age 15, winning an amateur contest by singing "P. Butterfly."

Perhaps best-known for playing Dolly in the black version of the musical "Hello, Dolly!" in the late 1960s, she also enjoyed a long film career, with movies including "Carmen Jones" and "Porgy and Bees."

But Bailey, known as Penrite Mae to the world and Dick to her closest family, considered herself foremost a singer.

"I'm not a comedienne," she once told an interviewer, "I call myself a humorist. I tell stories to music and, thank God, in tune. I laugh at people who call me an actress."

Flipping a feather boa or swathed in chinchilla, abuzz with rhinestones and jewels, Miss Bailey wore a unique and by her throwaway style of singing, a mumbling growl laced with husky patter.

money to plant 40 acres of grapes on the Snake River, erect a miniature castle, and buy tons of Washington grapes? He won a lottery in Reno, Nev., that day.

In 1987, he and his telephone company partner entered a drawing against Nevada Bell, hoping to win the right to provide portable cellular telephone service to Reno. McLenart's Rural Telephone Co. won the lottery, they sold the territory back to Nevada Bell for $2.5 million. Martell bought out his partner with the windfall and had enough left over to invest in wine-making.

Rural Telephone Co. also owns part of the cell-phone telephone service in Boise, Twin Falls, and Elko, Nev.

Now, Martell's son Michael worries about the telephones in Three Creeks, Prairie, Atlanta, Boise River, North Park, Shoup, Tiptonville, Red Rock, New, and other territories about grapes named lemurger, muscat canelli, cabernet-sauvignon, cabernet franc, chardonnay, chenin blanc and merlot.

This year, Martell will harvest three acres of his own grapes, but most will still come from Yakima, Wash., until vines planted this spring mature, about four years. He has taken a law class, planting the chenin blanc variety which has no ed, but didn't.

"Our capacity this year is 4,000 to 5,000 cases," he said. "We want to get up to between 25,000 to 50,000 cases."

That will take six years, Martell said. The castle will lengthen to include a restaurant upstairs and more storage and, bottling, space down 40 acres.

"You could get a couple of million invested real easy," he said. "I didn't think I'd get this much investment."

Final official state population figures are scheduled to be issued Dec. 31.

The figures made available Friday show 14 states gaining population during the 1980s and four having losses. Those with declines were Louisiana, Michigan, North Dakota and West Virginia.

Unofficial estimates issued since the 1980 census had placed Idaho's population above the 1-million mark, so the numbers announced Friday would appear to confirm that the state now has passed that milestone in its growth.

Here is a list of the figures made public Friday, compared with the results of the 1980 census. Reports for other states are expected to become public over the next few weeks.

Connecticut: 3,226,929; up from 3,109,000.

Delaware: 658,031, up from 694,000.

Twin Falls Council to vote on zone request

TWIN FALLS - The City Council is scheduled to decide Monday on former Councilman Rick Carr's request for a city ordinance amendment that would allow convenience stores in residential neighborhoods.

The council also is scheduled to take another look at a dispute over an alley and parking rights near two downtown businesses.

The council meets in the city offices at 6 p.m. It also will meet at 5 p.m. for a work session in the city offices.

CSI trustees meet Monday to discuss proposed legislation

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho's Board of Trustees will meet Monday and discuss a proposed legislative bill that would expand junior college services throughout the state.

The meeting will be at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the CSI president's board room.

Twin Falls IRS office to be closed during training sessions

TWIN FALLS - Beginning Monday, the Internal Revenue Service's Twin Falls walk-in taxpayer service office will be closed so personnel can attend training sessions.

The office will reopen Sept. 4. Taxpayer assistance during this time can call 1-800-424-1040 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The hours for four IRS walk-in offices in Idaho will change beginning Monday as well.

Once personnel have returned, the Twin Falls office will be open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The office's hours for taxpayer assistance will be extended again beginning in January.

Cunningham Foundation gives CSI scholarship funds

BOISE - The College of Southern Idaho has received $9,000 for 12 scholarships from the Laura Moore Cunningham Foundation.

The foundation was organized in 1963 through the will of Laura Moore Cunningham, the daughter of one of the original founders of West One Bank, Christopher W. Moore.

Twin Falls County Fair Board meeting set Monday

FILER - The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo Board will meet at noon Monday in the Tom Parks Pavilion at the fairgrounds to review plans for this year's fair.

The week-long fair begins Sept. 3.

State treasurer Edwards to speak at Ketchum forum

KETCHUM - Idaho State Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards, a Republican who is running for re-election against former state treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, will participate in a community forum in Ketchum Tuesday.

"These forums represent an opportunity for our citizens to participate in meaningful two-way discussions with key state leaders," said Darrel DeFabry, a Ketchum businessman who is sponsoring a series of forums showcasing Republican leaders. DeFabry is a candidate himself, challenging incumbent Democrat Sen. John Peasey for the state Senate seat representing Blaine, Camas, Golding and Lincoln counties.

The forum begins at 6 p.m. at the home of Dick Fairfield, 222 Willow Road, Zinc Spur.

For information call the DeFabry for Senate headquarters, 726-2123.

Boise firm low bidder to seal coat highway in Buhl

BUHL - A Boise firm is the low bidder in a project to seal coat and resurface a stretch of U.S. Highway 30 in Buhl, the Idaho Transportation Department announced.

Nelson Construction Co. made the low bid of $212,040.

The project involves work on almost two miles of highway.

The contract has not yet been awarded, but the proposed completion date is Sept. 30 for the resurfacing and Aug. 15, 1991 for the seal coating.

Do Mini-Cassia Democrats have a fighting chance at the polls?

By Michelle Cole
Times-News writer

BURLEY - During a recent gathering of the Burley Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce, former Gov. John Evans introduced Idaho Congressman Richard Stallings as a "moderate, independent-minded representative."

"He's taken a particular interest in issues and projects of special concern to the Mini-Cassia area," Evans said.

At no time, however, did Evans connect the dreaded "D" word with Stallings.

Evans said in a later interview that it's customary for Rotary meetings to remain non-partisan. But the former governor conceded, it also isn't very smart to mention party affiliations when you're in opposition territory.

You see, Stallings is a Democrat. And in the past 15 years "Minidoka" and Cassia county voters haven't taken a liking to many of those.

But this year local Democratic Party are working with renewed fervor. Even the Republicans are impressed by some of the candidates. The Democrats are fielding in state legislative races.

If 1990 becomes the year for a Democratic turnaround in Mini-Cassia, party loyalists will no doubt serve up a heaping portion of the credit to Stallings.

Except for a stubborn pocket within Cassia County, the three-term congressman has managed to convince a GOP-controlled 2nd Congressional District to overlook his party affiliation. In 1988, Stallings captured a greater margin of votes against his Republican opponent in the eight Magic Valley counties than President George Bush won over eastern liberal Democrat Michael Dukakis.

"I think I've been the case in point that Democrats can win if they reflect the values of the area they represent," Stallings said.

In the past year, Stallings has invited a number of candidates to jump on his coattails.

"I believe strongly in the two-party system," the congressman said. "I get tired of seeing what I call 'Soviet' ballots in the Magic Valley and in other areas."

Stallings makes it no secret that he recruited Mike Cranney, an Oakley potato grower who has served on the state and national potato boards. Cranney is campaigning against Republican rancher Jim Kempton to fill the District 24 House seat vacated by retiring state Rep. Ernest Hale.

He also had a hand in recruiting George O. Grant, Sr., a Rupert farmer who has served as president of both the state and national sugar beet growers' associations.

Fay says state education board will take stand

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

LEWISTON - The Idaho Board of Education will take a stand on each education issue brought before the Legislature next year, says President Gary Fay.

The board will draft a position paper on each education-related bill before the legislature beginning this spring, Fay said. The board traditionally hasn't done that.

"It will put some credibility in bills the Legislature is proposing," he said.

Fay, of Twin Falls, addressed faculty and staff at a luncheon Thursday at Lewis-Clark State College, speaking on issues ranging from public education to vocational education.

More money must be spent in the coming decade on student services, both in the public schools and in higher education institutions, Fay said.

"You have to reach out for the forgotten half that slips through the cracks," he said.

Improved services probably will translate into higher costs, so the Legislature should continue to enforce the new policy of gradual student fee increases, Fay said.

"The addition of services will result in student fee increases I hope, not a lot," he said. "What we really need is an increase in scholarship money."

Public schools do not prepare students adequately to go on to college, so colleges and universities must bridge the gap until public schools can improve, Fay said.

"The public schools simply haven't prepared students for post-secondary education," he contended.

"That includes college faculty working with the public schools, remedial education for those who want to go to college and more and better student advising and counseling," he said.

Lewis-Clark State College's programs and services for non-traditional students are models for success that Idaho's other colleges and universities should adopt, Fay said.

"You can't enroll a single mother unless you find day care for her kids ... you can't teach algebra without knowledge of fractions," he said.

In the coming decade, a holistic approach to education providing more than just academics at school, both at the public schools

2 Blaine officials back zoning plan

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

HAILEY - Blaine County commissioners Alan Reynolds and Tom Blanchard say they support a proposal which would be a first in Idaho - requiring all new subdivisions to set aside a portion of their subdivision for "affordable" housing units.

But at present, the county has no legal mechanism to enforce such a demand, commissioners say.

"It's one of a number of suggestions ... including price controls - to come before the commission on how to deal with a shortage of 'affordable' housing for people such as construction workers."

The area is in a building boom, but workers increasingly have been complaining that there's almost no low-cost housing available in an area of upscale residential and resort developments.

The recommendations for what is known legally as "inclusion zoning" was one of a list of suggestions from the Regional Economic Action Project's housing task force.

Task force coordinator Michael White said Blaine County's housing shortage in the Wood River Valley has been caused by a number of factors, including the fact there are few resident workers in the 15-24 range.

Increasing summer tourism into an area known in the past mainly for its skiing has created demand for a year-round work force, but high land prices make affordable housing scarce.

And White said increased construction of high-cost houses means more year-round construction workers are looking for housing.

A task force study in March concluded there is an immediate need for 400 new housing units to accommodate between 675 and 1,000 workers.

Private enterprise has not taken steps necessary to assure the availability of affordable housing, White told commissioners.

Now it is up to government to push the private sector toward solutions, he said.

"You can anticipate very vocal opposition to the ideas we presented," he said.

F&G opposes national park at Craters of the Moon

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

ISLAND PARK - Citing lost hunting opportunities with approval of other nation preserves, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission has formally opposed creation of an expanded Craters of the Moon National Park.

"We've already lost hunting rights at Hagerman Fossil Beds and the City of Rocks," Commissioner Wes Rose of Jerome told his colleagues in urging the decision on Friday. "Hunters can only lose with any expansion of Craters of the Moon."

The commission, wrapping up its two-day meeting in Island Park, expressed concern over the inclusion in any park area of Big Southern Butte and Cedar Butte south of Atomic City.

The addition of those areas to the current Craters National Monument would squeeze a small parcel of agricultural land between two refuges, the proposed park and the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

A growing elk herd on Big Southern Butte could become a problem for farmers if hunting is unavailable to limit populations.

The commission also set regulations for this year's waterfowl and fall steelhead seasons and set the stage for imposing a quota on nonresident permits for hound hunting for next year's spring bear season.

Commissioners adopted the Fish and Game Department's recommendations for waterfowl this year, setting the split season to open Oct. 20 and run through Nov. 25. The season reopens Dec. 15 and runs through Jan. 15.

Limits remained unchanged at four in the bag and eight in possession. With canvas-back populations up, hunters may include two canvasbacks or two redheads, or one of each, in the daily bag.

Goose season will open uniformly across the state on Oct. 6 and run through Jan. 6. Southwestern Idaho will see limits of one in the bag and one in possession early and late in the season - with the interior period covered by limits of two in the bag and four in possession.

The lower limits will apply during the first 37 days of the season in the Magic Valley with the high limits in effect the rest

TV airing fails to bring murder leads

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

JACKPOT - A year ago, two Twin Falls men drove into the Nevada desert and were killed.

Today, authorities are still trying to find out what happened - and a television re-enactment of the murder has not produced any leads, Elko County Sheriff's Detective Mike Kolsch said.

But the public service announcements are still airing and Kolsch is optimistic.

"You never know until you try," he said.

Russell Everett Boyd, 64, and LeVell Elmer Tolman, 65, were both killed a year ago by shotgun blasts while on a recreational prospecting trip south of Jackpot, just west of U.S. Highway 73.

Their bodies were found two days later, after rain had washed away any traces of the murderer's tire tracks or footprints. The Elko County Secret Witness program sponsored the production of a video re-enactment of the deaths and is offering a $1,500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assailant.

The spot has aired on stations from Twin Falls to Las Vegas. The two men were driving a 1961 dark green International pickup. Boyd is described as 5-feet, 10-inches tall, 125 pounds, with blue eyes, gray hair and balding.

Tolman is described as 5-9, 280 pounds, with hazel eyes and gray hair.

Anyone with information can call Elko County Secret Witness at (702) 738-HELP, the Elko County Sheriff's Office at (702) 738-7121, or any local law enforcement agency.

F&G wants to put swans at Hagerman

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

ISLAND PARK - An ambitious management plan to trumpet swans, calling for officials to move as many of the birds as possible away from the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, has been unveiled before the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

The plan calls for federal and state agencies to work on dispersing the swans away from the Yellowstone area to more suitable wintering areas.

Ruth Shea, regional biologist and local expert on trumpeter swans, told Fish and Game Commission on Thursday about 2,000 trumpeter swans winter in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, with about 700 of them concentrated during winter in the Harbin State Park area.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game want to transport swans to the Thousands Springs area along the Snake River near Hagerman, and downstream to Grand View.

It's their hope that moving swans will spread the population and decrease susceptibility to disease and problems associated with severe winters.

"Right now, it's the classic case of all your eggs in one basket," Shea said. "If it drops, you're in trouble."

Up to 700 of the swans winter in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, concentrating in Harbin State Park. A majority migrate to the area from western Canada.

Attempts to trap and shuttle the birds to southern Idaho are expected to get under way in late October and early November.

This has got to happen now because vegetation for the swans is much less than normal," Shea said. "Basically, there is no good food for the swans to survive in that area."

In the winter of 1988-89, the Henry's Fork of the Snake River iced over, contributing to the deaths of at least 100 swans in the Island Park area, Shea said.

"That winter, officials tried to move and in colleges and universities must be adopted for students to be successful," he said.

He charged the education faculty members who are responsible for training the next generation of teachers, with teaching learning skills for the next century.

"It's your job to ensure that 20th century teachers don't go into the profession with 19th century skills," Fay said.

Fay advocates a year-round school system modeled after a successful program at Salt Lake City. Students attend class for nine weeks and are off for three weeks.

"People resist the concept, but Fay insists the current nine months on, three months off is archaic, considering it was developed because children were needed to work on farms during the summer months.

Society, business and industry have been crying for public schools to keep kids in longer," Fay said.

He also contended that public education costs must be reduced during the next decade by consolidation of smaller districts referring to it as the "C-word," Fay said. "Consolidation will be a major emphasis in the next decade, whether administrators like it or not."

However, his definition of consolidation, at least at this stage of the game, does not necessarily involve closing down school districts and sending students to others.

"Consolidation, or 'regionalization' of some services, as well as administration and financial planning, may be the key to saving educational costs, Fay said.

have presented," he said. "But you also will have majority support."

He recommended:

- Requiring any new subdivision to set aside a specified number of smaller-sized, affordable lots, or build smaller residential housing units along with high-price homes and lots.
- Controlling the sales price of some employee housing so the county, not inflation and the market, will dictate prices.

- Allowing accessory units as part of existing lots, limited in size and subject to rental restrictions.
- Permitting caretaker and guest houses to be used for long-term rentals.
- Incentives to developers to build residential housing.
- Creating pockets of high-density zoning allowing lots smaller than one acre.
- Requiring developers converting residential lots to commercial property to replace the residential units.

"New subdivisions have been largely low-density, high-price proposals," said White.

"The outcome of this process will certainly be a continuing escalation of our local cost of living as businesses, services and government compete for scarce employees who have to travel increasingly long distances from reasonably priced housing to their work places," he said.

"We'll probably have a hell of a time selling that now," said Commissioner Rupert House.

Grant was one of six candidates statewide to win his name on the ballot through a write-in campaign.

"He'll challenge Republican Majority Caucus Chairman Ewan Tomnaga for his District 24 state Senate seat."

"I think both have a very good chance of winning, depending upon how hard they get out and work," Stallings said. "Mike's biggest problem is that he's running as a Democrat. We've joked about that."

Both Cranney and Grant are well aware of what kind of political baggage a Democrat carries - especially in the Mini-Cassia area, perhaps the most conservative region in the Magic Valley.

"Both admit they considered running as Republicans.

"Philosophically it wouldn't bother me much," Grant said. "I'm a moderate, I think there's some moderate Republicans and some conservative Democrats."

But Grant and Cranney decided to place their loyalties with the party that helped recruit them.

while campaigning?

"I try to mention it," Cranney said. "I try to talk to people about the importance of having a balance in good government and guest houses to be used for long-term rentals."

Tomnaga said he isn't taking Grant's challenge lightly.

The Grant family is well-known in the area and Grant is a former president of the sugar beet growers, the Republican senator said. "I think he's a very credible candidate."

It's no accident that Grant and Cranney have name-recognition outside of politics.

The last Democratic candidate who was successfully winning seats in the state Legislature shared the same advantage.

Robert Saxvik, who was first elected to the state Senate in 1970, said, as a sportscenter and manager of a local radio station and as an active Rotarian, he had the name recognition that helped him become the first Democrat to represent District 24 in more than two decades.

Saxvik served in the state Senate until 1976, when he lost his bid for re-election by 265 votes.

He was later appointed by Evans to serve on the Northwest Power Planning Council, a position which has taken Saxvik out of the political spotlight.

But if he were to offer advice to the Democratic candidates seeking Mini-Cassia votes this year, Saxvik said they must not ignore downtown Burley and Rupert.

Others say it's a mistake to lump Cassia and Minidoka counties together.

Rupert and the surrounding towns were settled by immigrant homesteaders and the resulting ethnic diversity has produced a small Douglas of Democratic voters, said Bostous Jones, a Robbins campaign strategist and Democratic chairman of Legislative District 25.

On the other side of the Snake River, Burley and the small towns that surround it were settled by Mormon families with a more conservative political outlook.

But it would also be a mistake to think Cranney may have a political advantage just because he is a member of the LDS church.

"I think a lot of people characterize that as an asset. But I think they sell that block of voters short," he said.

The biggest mistake, however, may be to make political bets based on party affiliations.

Grant said he doesn't know whether the time is right for Mini-Cassia Democrats.

"I can't feel that way," he said. "If a candidate is a good candidate then the time is right."

Briefly

Horsing contests on tap this weekend

FILER — About 40 entrants in seven different classes are expected to compete in the Magic Valley Saddle Bit Futurity today and Sunday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.
 Most preliminaries and some finals will be held today, but the bulk of the finals are scheduled for Sunday. Competition will start at 9 a.m. today and 10 a.m. Sunday.
 Entrants are expected from throughout southern Idaho and from as far as California.

Golfers wait, wonder as rain halts play at International

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Jack Nicklaus and defending champion Greg Norman have an overnight wait to discover if they will advance into the third round in the storm-delayed International golf tournament.
 Norman and Nicklaus each finished with 3-point totals moments before darkness halted second-round play Friday night on the Castle Pines Golf Club course.
 A three-hour storm delay left 32 players stranded on the rain-soaked course. They are scheduled to return at 7 a.m. for a complete second-round play. Some have as many as six holes remaining.
 Until all players are finished, the qualifying score to make it into Saturday's third round will not be known.

It's official: Michael Cooper free to sign with Italian team

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Michael Cooper, the gritty and graceful defensive specialist and 3-point shooter for the Los Angeles Lakers, ended 11 years with the team Friday when he signed a free-agent contract with the Italian team.
 That leaves Cooper free to sign a reported multimillion dollar contract with an Italian team, Il Messaggero of Rome. The Lakers were unwilling to give Cooper a deal with the number of years and dollars available to him in Italy.
 Cooper, 30, is a sixth-year veteran who has won five NBA titles in the 1980s.

80-point bull ride highlights 2nd evening of Cassia rodeo

By Larry Hovey
 Times-News writer

BURLEY — A twisting, spinning ride that produced a score of 80 highlighted the bull riding event and the second season of the Cassia County Fair Rodeo-Friday night.

Richard Rule of Loveland, Colo., and a bull named Ethyl's Nightmare provided the big entertainment. Just a few feet away stepping out of the chute, the bull simply spun as Rule hung on to displace two other cowboys and take the lead in the crowd-pleasing event.

Scott Whitley of Kremling, Colo., and Don Owens of Choctaw, Okla., had posted 79s in Thursday's first go-round. Five cowboys made it to the time limit in bullriding, with the next-best Friday night score of 76 by Ken Stillman putting him in fifth place behind Scott Kest of Lemhi who had a 78 Thursday.

Friday's session began during a rain squall that definitely dampened opening ceremonies and caused a couple of animals to slip and fall in the early going.

The crowd gave Kent Cooper of Albion a grand welcome, but it was not the home-grown athlete's night. My Best bucked him off three bounds out of the chute in the saddle-bore competition.

Later in that event, Tom Reeves of Stephenville, Texas, took over first with a 77. The other event lead that changed hands Friday was the team roping event, taken over by Hal Petersen and Perry Shank of Filer.

Cam Morris of Calgary retained the bareback riding lead he took Thursday night with a score of 75, while Jerry Jetton of Stephenville, Texas, stayed on top of calf roping with his Thursday night-time of 9.4 seconds.

MIKE SALSBURY/The Times-News

A summer storm passes by prior to the events.

Woodbury second runner-up, Jill Ward was named senior princess, with Annalee Anderson first runner-up and Amanda Jensen second runner-up.

Leaders after two go-rounds:

Same old song for U.S. in game with Yugoslavia

The Washington Post
 a consolation round Saturday for third place.

BUENOS AIRES — Led by Drazen Petrovic's 31 points, most coming on three-pointers, the powerful Yugoslavian basketball team eliminated the United States, 99-91, in the semifinals of the World Basketball Championships Friday.

Petrovic, who plays for the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association, frustrated and demoralized the young U.S. squad all afternoon with his sure ballhandling and his accurate jumpers. Whenever the U.S. team made a run, he was there to snuff it out with a steal, an assist or a three-point shot.

The U.S. team now plays Puerto Rico in a consolation round Saturday for third place.

Yugoslavia will play Sunday in the finals against the Soviet Union, which got 26 points from forward Valeri Tikhonenko and survived a scare from the Puerto Ricans, 98-92, in the other semifinal game.

The Yugoslavs' clear dominance overshadowed U.S. center Alonzo Mourning's best game of the tournament. Mourning, of Georgetown University, finished with 26 points on 13-of-18 shooting.

He also had a game-high 11 rebounds and used his quickness to embarrass Yugoslav big man Vlade Divac, on loan from the Los Angeles Lakers.

Krystkowiak out for season following more knee surgery

The Associated Press
 out.

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — Larry Krystkowiak will be lost to the Milwaukee Bucks for the entire 1990-91 season after again undergoing knee surgery, but team officials say they expect the Montana native to make a comeback.

"People here have not written him off," said Bill King, public relations director for Milwaukee. "He's a very class individual and people are pulling for him."
 "I don't think anybody is counting him out," King told the Great Falls Tribune in an interview published Friday.

Krystkowiak is one of two former Big Sky Conference players in the NBA. The other is Idaho alum Raymond Brown, a reserve center with the Utah Jazz.

When it was announced that Krystkowiak, 25, would need further surgery on his left knee, resulting in him to miss the coming NBA season, it was feared his productive yet injury-plagued career was over.

"We realize there are no guarantees," King said.

Friesz may start today

Chargers face Rams as preseason continues
 The Associated Press

San Diego Coach Dan Henning is ready to 'give Friesz a look.'

John Robinson looks two ways at the injuries and holdouts that have forced the Los Angeles Rams to use backups in their first two exhibition games.

The "latter" is second-year defensive end Brian Smith, whom Robinson has projected as a future star. He sprained ligaments in his left knee and will be on the sidelines Saturday when the Rams play host to San Diego at Anaheim Stadium.

Former University of Idaho quarterback John Friesz, a rookie, is expected to start for San Diego.

"Combined with an injury to Alvin Wright and holdouts by Kevin Greene and Doug Reed, it leaves the Rams thin up front, particularly since Bill Hawkins is recovering slowly from off-season knee surgery.

But Robinson sees the good side. "The injuries probably leave us more vulnerable defensively, but it's also a great opportunity for others," he said, noting that George Bethune, who had two sacks in last week's win over the Chargers, is scheduled to change in the spot occupied by Smith and Hawkins.

Frontrunning Bucs take doubleheader in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have a new motto in 1990: "Let's play two."

The Pirates swept their fourth doubleheader of the season Friday night as Jay Bell hit one of Pittsburgh's three homers and singled home the winning run in the eighth inning for a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Mike York made an impressive major-league debut in the opener, pitching seven shutout innings for a 7-1 victory.

Pittsburgh has swept all four of its doubleheaders this season, the latest sweep-over seven innings in the nightcap, but three of them were solo homers that allowed Pittsburgh to forge a 3-3 tie. Bobby Bonilla extended his hitting streak to a career-high 47 games with his 27th left-field hit his seventh, and Bell added his fifth.

National League

Tim Laryana (5-1) walked pinch-hitter John Cangosi to start the eighth. He advanced on Jose Lind's sacrifice and a wild pitch, then scored on Bell's two-out infield single.

"It was a long but super night," said Bell, who brought a 4-for-39 slump into the nightcap.

John Smiley (6-6) gave up nine hits and three runs over seven innings. Glenn Braggs had an RBI single and Eric Davis drove in a pair of runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Stan Belinda allowed two hits over the last two innings for his sixth save. The Reds now have been swept in three doubleheaders and split their other two.

"We don't play very well in doubleheaders, do we? And I don't know why," Reds manager Lou Piniella said.

Fisk breaks Bench's record

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Carlton Fisk broke Johnny Bench's career home run record for catchers by hitting his 28th as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 4-2 in a split of Friday's twin doubleheaders.

In the opener, Nolan Ryan failed for the third time to win his 301st game despite giving up only three hits and striking out 15 in 10 innings but the Rangers won 1-0 on Ruben Sierra's 13th-inning single.

With the White Sox leading 1-0, Fisk triggered a three-run second inning by hitting a 2-1 pitch from Charlie Hough into the left field seats. The 42-year-old Fisk has 349 career home runs, 328 as a catcher.

It also was his 187th homer as a member of the White Sox, breaking a tie with Harold Baines for Chicago's career mark. Fisk's home run was his 45th since he turned 40, which puts him third on the 40-and-over list. The split dropped the White Sox season-high 64 games behind first-place Oakland in the American League West.

Melido Perez (11-10) went seven innings for Chicago and Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for 39th straight major-league starts in a complete-game seven-inning effort.

The opener marked the fourth time this year Ryan struck out 10 or more in a game and the 203rd time in his career. He has struck out 15 or more 25 times. Ryan did not walk a batter.

"As long as we win, that's the bottom line," Ryan said. "My job is to keep us in the line."

Soviets would answer UN call for troops

MOSCOW — Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Friday the Soviet Union would send troops to the Persian Gulf if the United Nations calls for a multinational military force to solve the Persian Gulf crisis.

Shevardnadze's statement took the Soviet Union one step closer to agreement with the United States on an armed, unified front to halt Iraqi aggression. It could put American and Soviet soldiers on the same side for the first time since World War II.

Meanwhile, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev accused former ally Iraq of "treachery" in using Soviet-provided weapons to seize Kuwait. He called for international cooperation to keep the conflict from becoming "a full-scale military confrontation."

U.S. trade deficit hit 7-year low in June

WASHINGTON — Record exports and shrinking oil imports helped push the nation's merchandise trade deficit to its seven-year low in June, the government reported Friday. But analysts saw oil as a problem in coming months because of the Midwest crisis.

The economists suggested that while exports may remain strong in the second half of the year, oil is likely to drive up the cost of imports as price hikes from the Middle East crisis are added to the bill.

The Commerce Department said the deficit dropped to $5.07 billion, a 34.7 percent decline from May's $7.72 billion and the lowest since a $3.96 billion imbalance was posted in June 1983.

The 4.6 percent increase in exports included not only $500 million in aircraft shipments, but gains in other business — capital, equipment — as well.

Imports declined 2.9 percent to $39.37 billion, helped by a $631-million drop in oil costs.

Oil imports in June fell 4.6 percent to $3.69 billion. Americans imported 8.40 million barrels a day, down from 8.93 billion in May.

Factions clash in township violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Roving bands with makeshift shields, guns and spears rampaged through Soweto and other black townships Friday, clashing in sporadic battles that have killed 183 people in six days.

Police in armored vehicles rolled over streets barricaded with boulders and burning cars. They used tear gas to disperse shouting mobs and fired shotguns at combatants fleeing through narrow shantytown streets.

The fighting pits Zulu supporters of the conservative Inkatha movement against mostly Xhosa members of the African National Congress, led by Nelson Mandela.

Foreign ownership proposed for USSR

MOSCOW — The government has submitted a bill to parliament that would allow foreign companies to become sole owners of new enterprises in the Soviet Union, Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said Friday.

It would be the first time in at least 60 years that foreigners have been allowed to wholly own businesses here. Under current law, foreign companies must join with Soviet firms in joint ventures.

"It is impossible to move toward a market economy while the country is isolated from the world economy," Ryzhkov said in remarks carried by the official Tass news agency. "One can no longer rely on joint ventures alone."

Coe sentenced to life for killing stepson

BARTOW, Fla. — Murderer Thomas Coe was given life in prison on Friday for killing his two-year-old stepson by dunking him head-first into a toilet, a death so gruesome it spurred the Florida Legislature into action.

Many in this town wanted to see Coe in the electric chair. The judge followed the jury recommendation in sentencing Coe, 23, for first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in the death of Bradley McGee, a child who was systematically abused before his death.

Task force: States should manage wetlands

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — The country's wetlands are so diverse that a national policy to save them should be managed by the states, a federal task force was told Friday, but environmentalists disagree.

The Domestic Policy Council's Wetlands Task Force held the first of six public hearings around the country to discuss how to meet President Bush's "no net loss" goal. Meetings will also be held in Illinois, Louisiana, Washington state, Alaska and Rhode Island.

"I think there are many areas where this country has to have a uniform policy, but not in this kind of area where you have so much diversity and so much local color and so many local ramifications," said North Dakota Gov. George Sinner.

Environmentalists say development — mainly agriculture — has claimed about 55 percent of the nation's wetlands. In addition to providing a home for wildlife, the country's remaining 99 million acres of wetlands help control erosion and recharge groundwater.

Last year, Bush pledged to create a federal policy requiring that any wetlands developed equal the number of acres reclaimed.

In 1987, North Dakota passed the country's first no-net-loss wetlands law, which established a land bank to purchase wetlands and other acre-for-acre.

David Sprynzyrnayk, engineer for the state Water Commission, said North Dakota has added 632 acres of wetlands since the law took effect. It has about 2 million acres of wetlands, the most in the contiguous United States.

"I just can't see how the policy can work with a myriad of federal agencies coming in with new regulations, sometimes overlapping, sometimes conflicting," said Sinner.

Officials from other Western states agreed.

"State boundaries are top artificial. They don't respect the boundaries of wetlands or drainage basins," said Robert Hall, of the Denver Water Department. "The state or states' flexibility to do what's best on an overall goal. But let us do the balancing."

Group of foreigners flee help-control from Kuwait

KHAEIL, Saudi Arabia (AP) —

Nine foreigners, including three Americans, made it safely to a Saudi border post Friday after a "terrifying" journey through the Kuwaiti desert to escape a feared Iraq roundup in occupied Kuwait.

Stephanie McGee, an American singer for The Associated Press who was with the group, said she escaped along with two other Americans, a Briton, a Canadian and four Indians.

She spoke in a brief call from a telephone booth at the Saudi border post of Khafji, an American singer for The Associated Press who was with the group, said she escaped along with two other Americans, a Briton, a Canadian and four Indians.

Ms. McGee, a longtime resident of Kuwait, said she and the others in the group dressed as Kuwaitis for their journey. Since she spoke Arabic, she sat next to the driver. She carried the identity card of a Lebanese friend.

"As soon as we left the paved road, we ran into Iraqis and they said we had to go back," she said. "We moved away, and then took another turn through the desert sands and made a dash for it."

"It was very, very terrifying," she

On Thursday, Iraqi military authorities ordered Britons and Americans to assemble at Kuwaiti hotels, but then failed to turn up to meet them. There are 4,000 Britons and 2,500 Americans in Kuwait.

No one responded to the Iraqi call, as far as I know, but everyone is making a rush to get out of Kuwait," said Ms. McGee.

She said she had heard that only two Britons showed up at the Regency Palace hotel in response to the Iraqi order and were told, "We have no room for you, stay in the ballroom."

"We believe it was all only an Iraqi show, but everyone is trying to get out," she said.

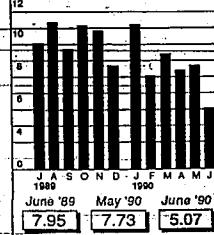

The group she escaped with included both men and women, she said. She identified the Canadian with her as Kathy McGregor.

Other travelers who reached Khafji on Friday said that a Kuwaiti woman was shot in the foot in one of the latest convoys of escaping nationals.

The travelers were quoted by friends in Bahrain as saying the incident occurred when a convoy of 14 cars was crossing the border Thursday night.

Soviet republic ready for multiparty vote

MOSCOW (AP) — The parliament of Soviet Georgia on Friday debated details of multiparty elections set for October, the first such balloting in the republic's history.

Last month, radicals blocked a key highway junction for about a week to protest what they saw as a refusal to block the republic's elections.

The blockade disrupted passenger and freight service and cost the republic an estimated $6.4 million, the official Tass news agency said.

The parliament, which convened Friday in Georgia's capital of Tbilisi, intends to adopt one of three election bills, according to the Interfax independent news service.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

By GIBBY WOLFE

"The bitter and the sweet come from the outside" the hard from within. From one's own efforts.

— Einstein.

In today's game, three important cards were poorly placed for declarer while only one was made. See if you can find the way to make the game in spite of this adversity.

East's spade nine lost to South's king, and the heart queen was passed successfully, blotting East's 10. West refused to lead the heart jack, and South now turned his attention to clubs. A club was led to dummy's king and East's ace, and East returned the club jack. West overlooked electricity to switch honors, forcing South to lose four tricks. (Had West not overtaken, East would have contained clubs, South ruffing. A heart to dummy's ace and another club ruff would have eliminated clubs from the spade eight to East's 10 would have employed East.)

How should South have played to make his game? A much better plan for South is to pick up the last trump at trick four and then lead a low spade from dummy. East wins his 10, but what can he do? Regardless of what he leads, he gives up a free finesse, and instead of nine winners, South has a surer 10.
